• Hereford weather •

Monday's high, 45; low, 26; snow, 1 inch; 0.11 inches precipitation, according to KPAN Radio.

The forecast for Wednesday calls for mostly sunny skies from the Northeast to Florida. There will be rain from Texas to Michigan and snow in Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. The Plains will be dry and cold, with rain and snow across the Northwest.

• New front brings snow •

Snow accumulations in the Texas Panhandle and thunderstorms elsewhere in the state resulted today from a new front with cold Canadian air moving through the region.

Several inches of snow were expected to fall by early Wednesday from the front, which has stalled along the Rio Grande from near Laredo into El Paso. Another system paralleled the Texas coast from near Beaumont to Alice.

Snow could spread over the Concho Valley and South Plains late Tuesday, the National Weather Service said. It posted a winter storm warning for the South Plains and a heavy snow warning for the Panhandle, with some freezing precipitation also expected in the Permian Basin.

The storm watch will be extended by Wednesday through the Trans Pecos, Davis Mountains and Marfa Plateau.

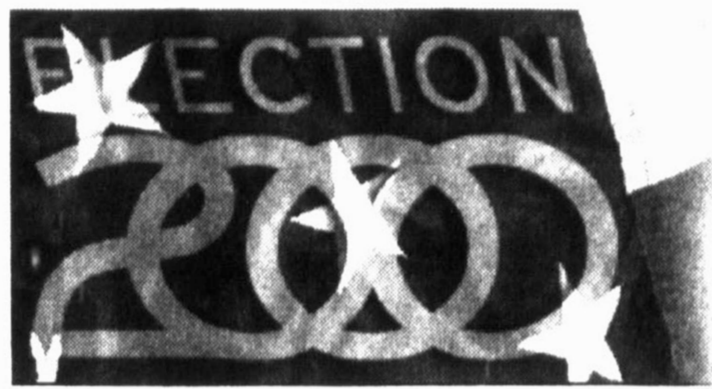

Rain was already falling east of Abilene and west of Fort Worth, along with the Big Bend, Permian Basin and far West Texas.

Early-morning lows ranged from below freezing in the Panhandle and South Plains. Extremes were 28 degrees at Dalhart and 76 at Port Isabel.

Other readings were 53 degrees at Fort Stockton, 50 at Burnet, 42 at Wichita Falls and 52 in the Temple-Killeen area.

Northerly and northeasterly winds at 10 to 25 mph, with higher gusts, across the Panhandle brought lows into the single digits with the wind chill.

A chance of occasional continued showers and some thunderstorms was forecast in the north and west through Wednesday.

NOW IT'S THE VOTERS' TURN

■ Candidates have had their say; people to have theirs

The Associated Press

In Oregon, they mailed 'em in. In two New Hampshire hamlets, just about every registered voter showed up shortly after midnight to cast ballots. And across the land, finally, Americans heralded the end of the tightest presidential race of their era Tuesday by making that most crucial of Election Day choices: vote or stay home.

After months of palaver and posturing, Americans of all persuasions and politics got their chance Tuesday to wield the pencil or yank the lever. The verdict, as has become customary, was mixed.

Polls indicate the contest between Republican presidential nominee George W. Bush (left) and Democratic candidate Al Gore may be the tightest race in 40 years.

Some, like Michael Duke, 22, of Wheeling, W.Va., craved the opportunity. "I absolutely can't wait," he said. Others, like Joe Provoyeur of Cranston, R.I., said no thanks. "Pointless," he grouched.

Go or don't go, scoff at it or embrace it, but it's hard to simply ignore: the granddaddy of all like my vote could make a difference," said Janet Myers, 30, a Chicago social worker.

America has always been filled with people who stoutly straddle the border of idealism and cynicism, and Election Day brings this out in stark relief.

Look this way: You'll find a war veteran or young activist rhapsodizing about democracy's responsibility. Whirl around: There's an equally adamant I-can't-take-it-anymore grouch, saying voting's only a smidgen smarter than scouring the night sky for extraterrestrials.

Dozens of interviews with would-be voters and their won't-be-voting counterparts in recent days bear this out. They reflect the delightfully logical ambivalence of Elijah Conley, verdict, as has American Election Days. "This is the first election for me when I feel

Aikman's 'voters' go to the polls

As registered voters make the ritual trek to the curtained polling places, many of their children already have marked ballots.

Students at Hereford Junior High School cast their ballots last week through an electronic polling page. On Monday, students at Aikman Elementary School did the real thing, nearly.

The students have been studying the election and the White House for several weeks, but unlike other students who used substitute polling places and practices, the students at Aikman kept their voting as realistic as possible.

Several weeks ago, third-grade students passed out Aikman voter registration applications to teachers and students. Applications were turned back to the third-grade students, who filled out Aikman registration cards and delivered them to the prospective voters for signatures.

With red, white and blue curtained voting stalls lining the library's north wall, students filed in to have their registration cards verified, stamped and were then handed a mock ballot with the names of either Vice President Al Gore or Texas Gov. George W. Bush.

Third-grade election officials directed traffic making sure each voter had a sharp pencil, a ballot, and privacy to mark their ballots.

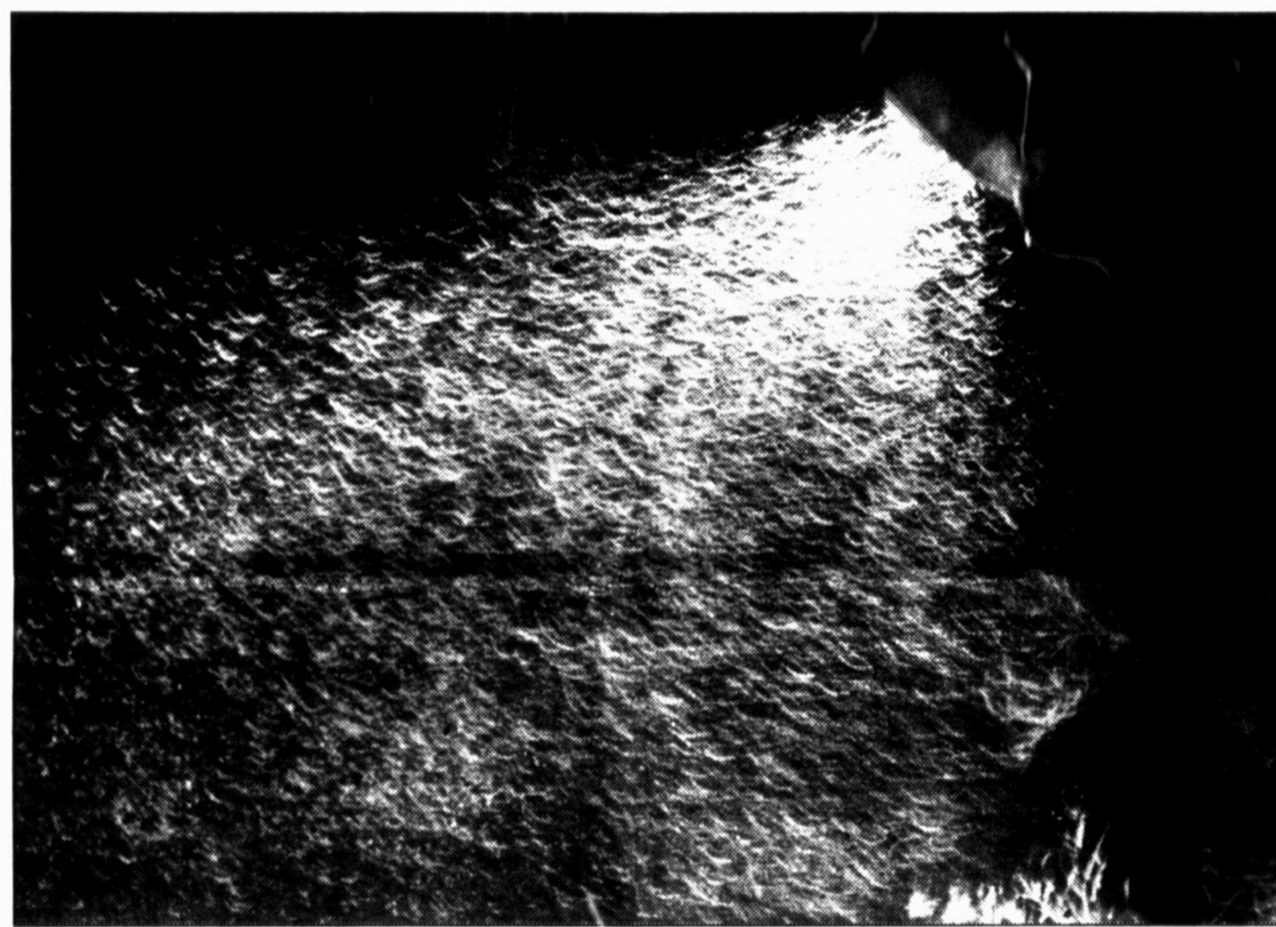

Regardless of the students' inability to cast a legal ballot, the lessons garnered from the election events was far more than just time out from class.

"We've listened and watched the candidates and we've had to make a decision on what we really knew about the candidates," said Melissa Hamby, a third-grade student in Mary Ann O'Rear's class.

"When we started this study, I was really for Al Gore, but after I learned more about him and some of the things he stands for, I've changed my mind and will vote for Bush," Miranda Parman said.

Although many of the Aikman voters don't fully understand the issues attached to the election, many young would-be voters had definite ideas on what each candidate would

Weather blamed for influx of rodents

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Children may find Mickey's high, squeaky voice amusing and the idea of Stuart Little driving a roadster hilarious, but in real life, mice and rats are anything but amusing.

Rodents carry diseases transmittable to man; destroy wood, wiring and carpets in buildings.

This year, more than most, residents have seen their homes invaded by mice and in some cases even rats.

Jim Scott of Scott and Son Pest Control blamed the heavy influx on the prevailing dry conditions.

"Everybody is having mice this year. All the little water puddles in the fields have dried up, we haven't had any dew and the mice are just coming in to get water, food and shelter," Scott said.

"Usually after harvest is when we see the biggest problem, but this year with so many crops not making it, the mice just came to town," he continued.

Most pest control companies report a tremendous increase in the number of rodent calls they have received.

Calling a professional exterminator is always an option, but Scott says there are numerous things the average citizen can do to eliminate the problem.

Checking for mice can be done by shining a blue fluorescent light along counters, baseboards and windowsills. The blue light

City signs on to dairy offer

By Donald Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

A Hereford Economic Development Corp. financial incentive package to a dairy considering opening an operation in Deaf Smith County gained the approval of the Hereford city commissioners.

HEDC executive director Don Cumpton said Monday night the financial package extended to Scouten Dairies includes construction funds up to 10 percent of total construction costs.

The dairy would be completed in four phases and would handle 25,000 cows. The facility would be constructed on three sections of land subject to successful permitting from the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission. Construction would be completed by 2009 and would employ 250 people. The commitment from HEDC is contingent on the placement of permanent financing and commencement of operations. Schouten Dairies, which is owned by Mike and Zeba Schouten, operates three facilities in the Stephenville area, with capacity of 4,800 cows.

Cumpton said the Schoutens also are visiting other areas, which are considering the offer of financial incentives.

The financial package offered to Schouten Dairies is the second in recent weeks involving a dairy operation.

Earlier this month, the commissioners ratified an HEDC decision to provide financial assistance to Van Der Weg Dairies. The agreement also would commit the agency to provide 10 percent — not to exceed $190,000 — to Van Der Weg Dairies.

Cumpton said Jacob Van Der Weg is arranging local financing for the dairy operation, which could begin operations in 8-10 months and would start up initially with 1,200 cows. He said Van Der Weg plans to expand the herd in phases to about 3,000 cows.

The commissioners tabled an engineering agreement on the design of a new wastewater treatment facility.

The proposed contract with Oller Engineering Inc. was for $328,000, which is about 8 percent of the estimated construction cost of the $4.1 million facility.

The city administration indicated it felt the OEI proposal was too expensive and the company agreed to submit another proposal.

The city's wastewater treatment plant does not meet state standards, and the commissioners voted May 15 to build an aerated lagoon system to treat wastewater. At the same time, the commissioners directed Oller Engineering Inc. to begin designing the facility, which will be built at the city farm.

The aerated lagoon method will require about 34 acres of land. There would be three aerators in each lagoon that would

Goodyear critics claim tires replaced quietly

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. has been quietly offering free replacements for thousands of tires in a practice known as a "silent recall," the Los Angeles Times reported today.

Goodyear acknowledged last month that tread separation involving its 16-inch Load Range E light-truck tires has been linked to 120 injuries and 15 deaths. Company officials have said a recall wasn't necessary because it found no defects.

The Times, citing unidentified sources, said Goodyear has received more than 3,000 claims since 1995 about its light-truck tires. Most of those claims have been settled, with consumers receiving replacement tires and reimbursements.

Goodyear denied conducting a silent recall and claims it is providing replacements on a case-by-case basis, the newspaper reported.

Safety advocates and lawyers believe the Akron, Ohio-based tire maker is placing thousands of drivers and passengers at risk by not declaring a full public recall, the newspaper said.

The commissioners also approved a resolution authorizing the Panhandle-Plains Higher Education Authority Inc. to issue $540 million in general obligation bonds, which will be used between now and Dec. 31, 2003.

The obligations will be used by the authority to purchase student loan notes, refund outstanding obligations, set aside certain funds for payment/security of the bonds and paying administrative costs involved with the issuance of the bonds.

In other business, the commissioners heard a presentation from the Hereford Police Department about juvenile alcohol abuse.

During the past several months, the department has cited many juveniles for possession or consumption of alcohol.

"The citations have been issued to all classes of youngsters, from athletes to dropouts. We feel that at some point, the police and fire departments are going to be called to the scene of an accident involving alcohol to retrieve mangled bodies, and that is one tragedy we want to avoid," Nolen wrote to the commissioners.

The police department sought the commissioners' guidance and support in curtailing juvenile drinking.

The commissioners also:

- Approved the request of Elton Davis to rezone property at 601 Ave. H. Davis asked to change the zoning from multi-family to mobile home, which would conform to local uses;

- Approved the request of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil O. Kelley to rezone property located at 406 W. 6th from multi-family to restricted commercial district. The request was to make the property consistent should the Kelleys decide to sell or change the use of the property. Businesses located adjacent to the property are a beauty shop, neighborhood grocery, investment banking and a park; and

- Approved a $10,000 contribution to the operation of the YMCA's youth programs.

CREATORS SYNDICATE

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Every time you print a letter about grandmothers who don't see enough of their grandchildren, my mother-in-law clips it and sends it to me. I'd like to reply to her:

Dear Grandma: If you want to see your granddaughter, great! Get in your car, and come over and pick her up. I will lend you her car seat. She would love it if you took her to the zoo, the movies or out for dinner. Don't blame me because you don't have a close relationship with her. Apparently, you expect me to deliver her to your house and stick around to make sure she doesn't break one of your antiques.

Ann, my mother-in-law never complains about this to my husband. I have told him many times that HE should take our daughter over to see his mother, but he says he is too busy. So now it's my fault. My mother-in-law is a healthy, able-bodied woman who can and does drive herself everywhere. I say if she wants a relationship with her grandchild, it's up to HER. What do you say? — Staten Island, N.Y., DIL

Dear Staten Island DIL: That poor child is the victim of an underground battle being waged between her mother and her grandmother. Also, your daughter may be too young for Grandma to manage on her own, and it is possible things will improve when she is older. Meanwhile, how about establishing a standing date — every Saturday, or every other Saturday afternoon, is "Grandma's Day." One weekend, you take her to Grandma's and spend a couple of hours visiting. The next weekend, Grandma can pick her up and take her out. And insist your husband pitch in and do his part, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I can top the letter about the couple who have been dating for 15 years and can't seem to set a wedding date.

"Mick" and "Tracy" have been dating since 1978 and became engaged in 1982. She lives with her parents, and he lived with his mother until she passed away last year. They bought bedroom furniture 13 years ago. Part of it is at Tracy's parents' house, and the rest is at Mick's. Two years ago, they bought a house together, and now, Mick is living there alone.

They are both in their early 40s, and marriage seems to be as far away as ever. I have told them that they are wasting their lives, and if Tracy wants children, she'd better do something about it soon. I believe they are afraid of commitment, but doesn't this seem extreme? Is there any way I can wake them up? — Ohio Friend

Dear Friend in Ohio: I do not recommend trying to wake up animals or people who seem content to be sleeping. I'm sure Tracy knows about her "biological clock" and need not be reminded. You mean well, dear, but additional input from you will not be appreciated. So, MYOB.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the mother whose son gave his wife a $6,500 family heirloom as an engagement ring. They were married for two years and then divorced. The ex-daughter-in-law refused to return the ring.

I have a suggestion for men and women contemplating marriage. Instead of giving your potential mate a family heirloom, save the ring for a future daughter or granddaughter. That way, if the marriage breaks up, the ring will still be in the family. I hope you will print my letter, Ann. People need to know this. — Stacy in Maryland

Dear Maryland: A marriage today has a 50-50 chance of surviving. With those odds, it's risky to give an heirloom ring for an engagement. (The jewelers will love this advice.) Your suggestion is a safer one. Another is to present the heirloom ring as a gift for the 10th wedding anniversary.

Why Do I Hear, But Not Understand?

Study by University of Cambridge in England Reveals Key Answer.

CAMBRIDGE, ENGLAND—Until recently, there was no practical way to identify dead regions of hearing cells in the ear. However, a new British-developed procedure using standard test equipment now allows for identification of dead hearing cell regions.

The study suggests that the presence or absence of dead regions may have serious implications in the fitting of hearing aids.

This research reveals that amplifying dead cells is a mistake which will result in poorer speech understanding in noise. A new type of digitally programmable microcircuit is now being released that can be programmed to bypass the dead cells. As a result, the patient's usable hearing cells receive amplification, thereby improving speech understanding in noise.

"We are employing a like method in our diagnostic sound booths using sound field speech noise with each patient," said Richard Davila, II, of Livingston Audiology & Hearing Aid Centers. "This test simulates hearing in a noisy crowd. We are able to determine maximum speech understanding by frequently shaping this new hearing aid."

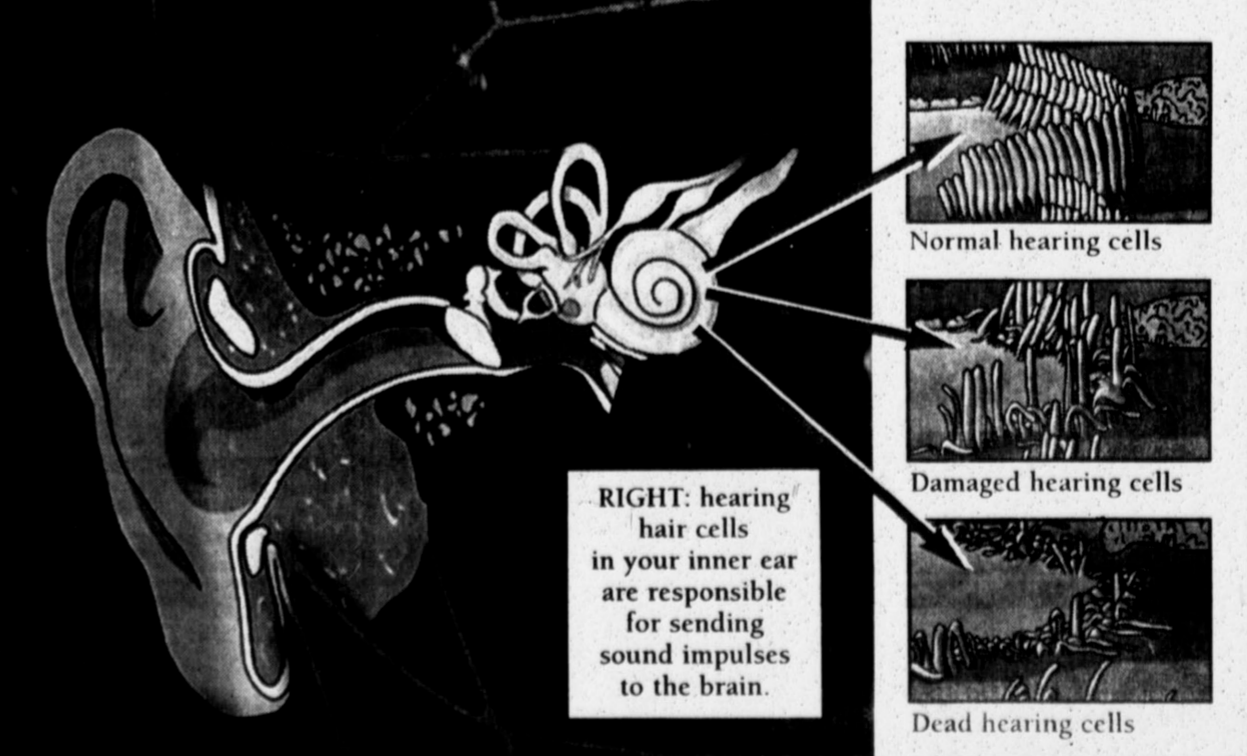

The results have been phenomenal. For the first time a patient is able to actually realize the exact percentage of speech understanding improvement in noisy listening environments.

This new product comes in all the different shell sizes, including the smallest digital models. During the West Texas release, we are offering this new frequency shaping product on a 30-day satisfaction trial. Try this new technology for 30 days in your daily routine and experience better hearing. If you do not experience improved speech understanding, there will be no charge to you. 100% satisfaction is guaranteed in writing.

Livingston is a total hearing care facility with masters-degreed audiologists with locations in Lubbock, Plainview, Hereford and Amarillo.

We will be in Hereford for ONE DAY ONLY Wednesday, November 8th. 902 N. Lee (across from Burger King). Call today 363-1751 or toll free 1-800-828-0722.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 7, the 312th day of 2000. There are 54 days left in the year. This is Election Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 7, 1917, Russia's Bolshevik Revolution took place as forces led by Vladimir Ilyich Lenin overthrew the provisional government of Alexander Kerensky.

On this date:

In 1893, the state of Colorado granted its women the right to vote.

In 1916, Republican Jeannette Rankin of Montana became the first woman elected to Congress.

In 1929, the Museum of Modern Art in New York City opened to the public.

In 1940, the middle section of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge in Washington state collapsed

In 1944, President Franklin Roosevelt won an unprecedented fourth term in office, defeating Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1962, Richard M. Nixon, having lost California's gubernatorial race, held what he called his "last press conference," telling reporters, "You won't have Nixon to kick around anymore."

In 1972, President Nixon was re-elected in a landslide over Democrat George McGovern.

Ten years ago: In some of her strongest remarks during the Persian Gulf crisis, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher warned Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that time was "running out" for a peaceful solution.

Five years ago: In a Japanese courtroom, three American military men admitted to the ambush-rape of a 12-year-old Okinawan schoolgirl, an attack that outraged the Japanese and strained security ties between Japan and the U.S. (The men later received prison sentences ranging from six and a half to seven years.)

One year ago: Relatives of the victims of EgyptAir Flight 990 gathered in Newport, R.I., to bid them a wrenching farewell, a week after the plane crashed into the Atlantic Ocean. Tiger Woods became the first golfer since Ben Hogan in 1953 to win four straight tournaments. Kenya's Joseph Chebet won the New York City Marathon; Adriana Fernandez won the women's division.

Next: Lady Whitefaces unravel Dumas for 3rd, final time

By Jeff Blackmon
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

Only the net prevented Hereford middle blocker Sarah Griffin from decapitating a Dumas player and adding an exclamation point Saturday during the Whitefaces 15-5, 15-11 torching of their District 3-4A rival in their Regional Quarterfinal match.

"I wanted to hit somebody in the face so bad," Griffin said. "I wanted to send their seniors home crying."

Griffin's attitude sums up better than any sports writer can the intensity Hereford players feel when they walk on to the court to play the Dumas Demonettes. The sophomore said the team's emotional level was at an all time high.

"I think we were a little bit on the roof today," Griffin said. "Anytime we can beat Dumas in a situation like this is the most awesome feeling."

For the coaches, that awesome feeling is more like a sigh of relief. Girls athletic director and head volleyball coach Brenda Kitten said anytime the Lady Whitefaces can get past Dumas in the playoffs removes a big burden off her shoulders.

"Honestly, it is more of a relief than a joyous win for us," Kitten said. "To beat them a third time is a difficult task."

Kitten also said Griffin's attitude is exactly what they must have with each team they face in the playoffs from here on out.

"There will not be any easy matches," Kitten said. "We've got to twist the knife once we are in front."

"We want our opponents to go home hating volleyball," Kitten said.

The Demonettes and Lady Herd are now tied in the win loss column in playoff action at 4-4 while Hereford High advances to their 11th straight Regional Semifinal appearance.

Kitten said she is thrilled with the level of success her team has had for the last 13 years (13 straight playoff appearances), but said she never wants her team to become satisfied.

"We are humbled by our success," Kitten said. "We want to be happy with our success, but you can't become content."

The team's next challenge to avoid contentment lies with their Regional Semifinal date with Burleson (30-5) tomorrow evening in Vernon beginning at 6:30 p.m. Kitten said one disadvantage going into tomorrow's match is that she and her coaches have not had a chance to witness any of the Lady Elks' games. The coach said she always wants to see a team in action before she steps on the court against them.

"I would much rather see a team before we play them," Kitten said. "I've only been able to ask coaches that have played them what they are like."

Kitten said Burleson's style is much like District 3-4A opponent Canyon Randall. Like Randall, the Lady Elks rely mainly on their big hitters up front. The coach said their opponent has two six footers at the net including a 5-foot-10-inch outside hitter and a 5-foot-8-inch setter.

"They are probably the biggest team we will see," Kitten said. "We will try to prepare for them just like we did for Randall."

"We will try to push the ball to the back court," Kitten said.

In order to challenge the Lady Elks, coach Kitten said her team must execute on the defensive side of the ball. The Lady Whitefaces executed their defensive plan almost flawlessly Saturday dominating the net with their renewed blocking skills and back court effort.

"We've got to find a way to slow down the ball and get our digs in," Kitten said. "They are not flashy, but they are solid fundamentally."

On defense, junior designated setter Ashley Gonzalez led the team in digs with 12 while Griffin, Kali Hall and Tessa Baker each had three playable blocks for the team. Junior outside hitter Michelle Bernhardt said she feels that when the Lady Herd plays defense the way they can that they will dominate a game like they did on Saturday.

"We knew the key to the game would be to keep blocking them and hitting it hard," Bernhardt said.

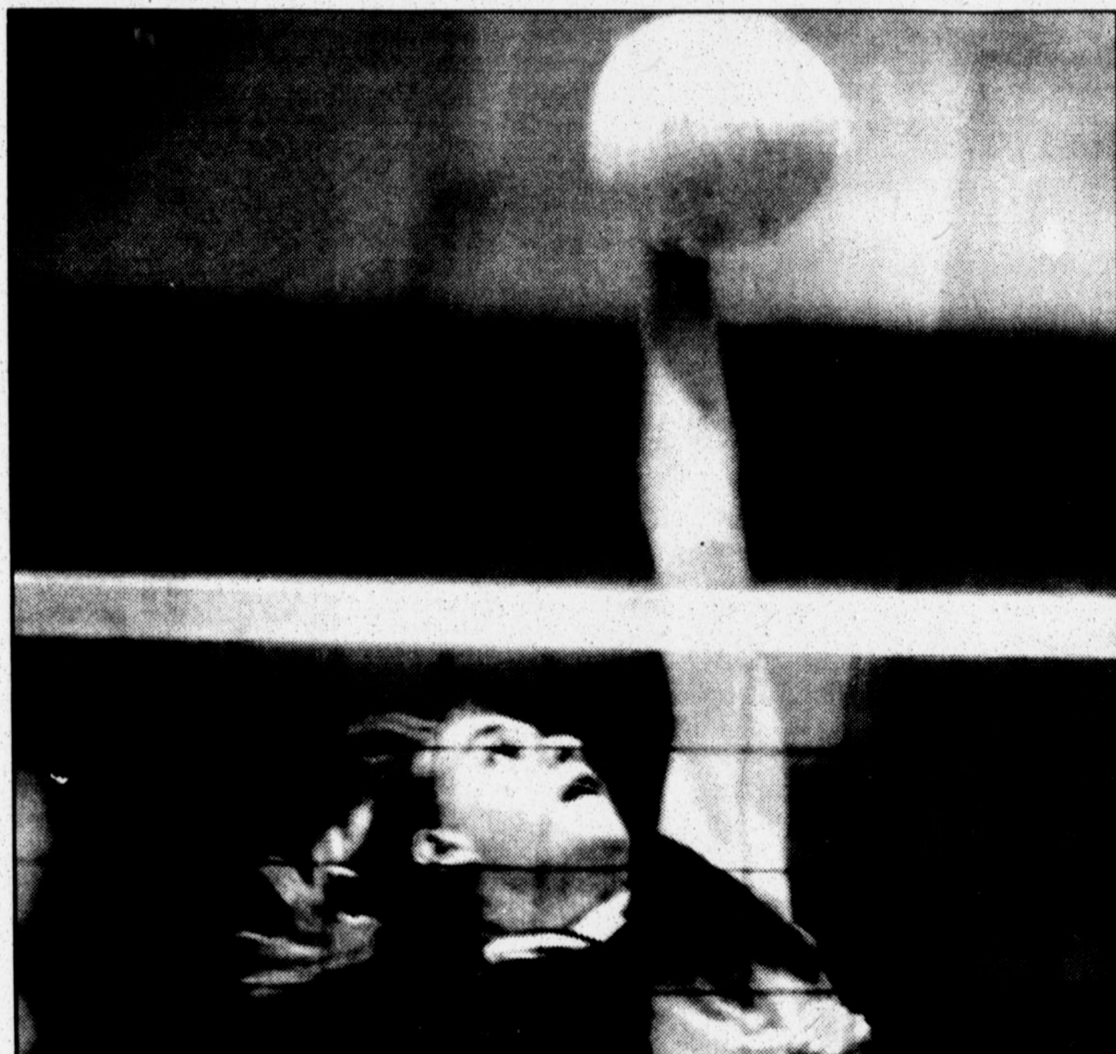

Kitten said her team has to come out with the same attitude that they had against Dumas.

"Against Dumas we had a lot of emotion," Kitten said. "We are at a point now that we have to have that kind of intensity."

"We must be aggressive," Kitten said.

A Full Stretch

Kali Hall gets ready to dink a short shot into Dumas' front court during Hereford's second match against the perennial Panhandle rival Saturday at Amarillo Caprock. The Lady Whitefaces topped the Demonettes 15-5, 15-11 to advance to the Class 4A regional semifinals.

OH, YEAH!

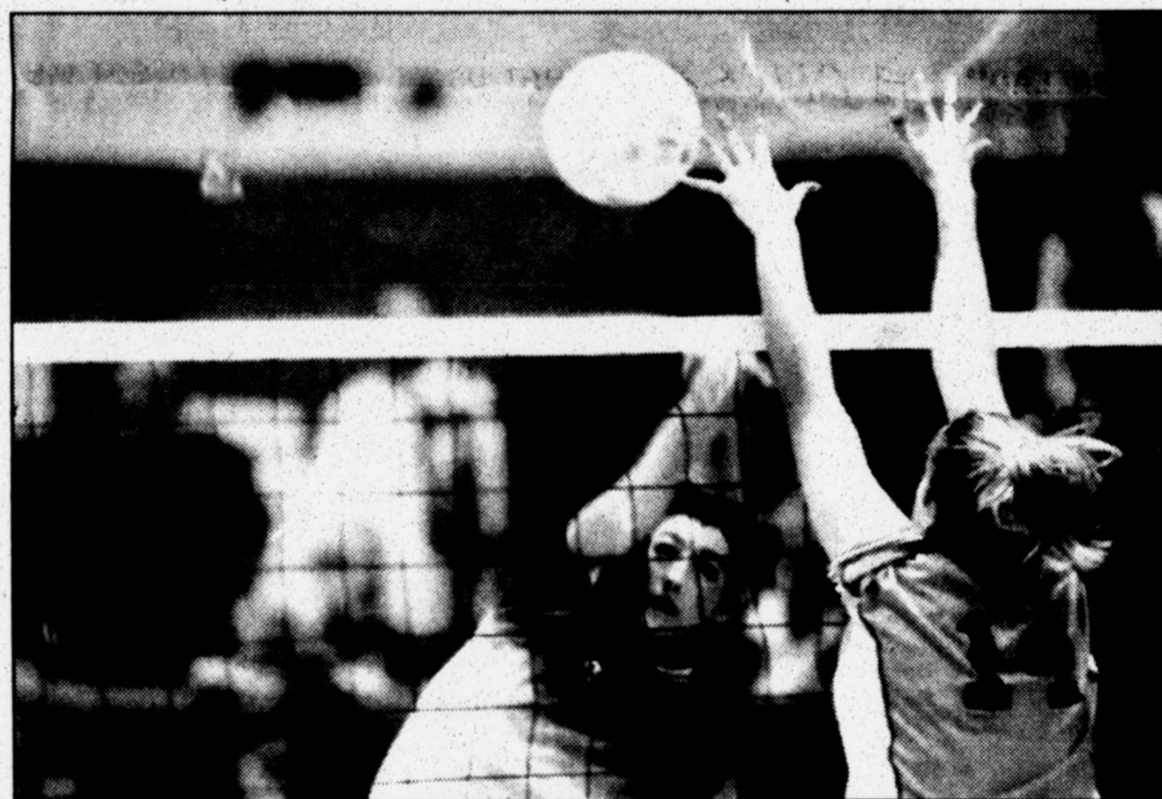

Ashley Gonzalez digs a Dumas shot at mid-court.

Saluting a sea of maroon — The HHS volleyball team faces those who love them most, a typically large and boisterous Hereford crowd that makes any venue seem like home.

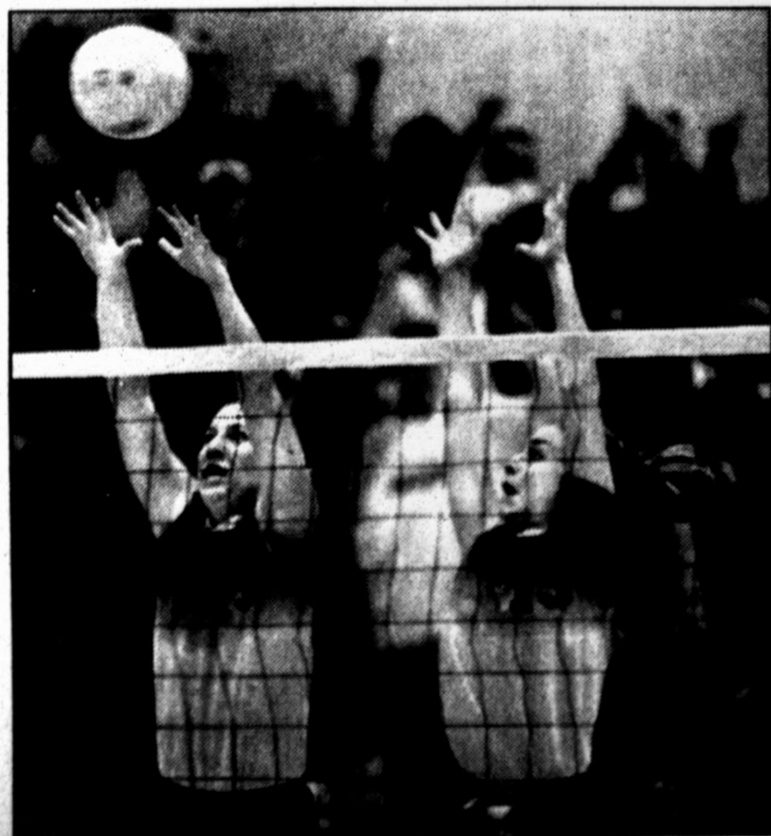

Queens of THE COURT

The Lady Whitefaces, 30-5 on the year, proved again that their season-long ranking at the top of the Class 4A polls has been well-deserved. The reigning state champions pummeled Dumas Saturday to further their dreams of a 4th state championship in five years — a march they know so well, and one that was rescheduled for tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. in Vernon against the 30-5 Burleson Lady Elks despite winter storm warnings for the Texas Panhandle and South Plains areas.

The slammer — HHS middle blocker Sarah Griffin kills a shot against Dumas'.

The wall — Pam Klein and Kali Hall can't reach a Dumas return.

The team poses courtside with its most recent acquisition for the volleyball program's trophy case.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Mice

picks up traces of the rodent urine and indicates paths normally traveled by them. Some buildings can have a rodent population which goes undetected for years, depending on available food supplies.

Scott says the earliest sign of a problem is of course the grain-sized fecal matter. Using the blue light just gives a better idea of how severe the problem may be.

"If you've seen one mouse, or even a few droppings, chances are you've got more than just one. They attract other rodents and often live in colonies."

Scott said people often tell him they set traps, but the mice are able to clean off the bait, without getting caught. For this type of situation, Scott recommends glue traps placed in the paths.

"Some of these mice are so small they don't get caught, or they can clean out the baits without triggering the traps. Glue baits work well to give an idea of the number of mice you have."

Peer and beam style (not erected on a solid slab) homes are more susceptible to rodent infestations due to the greater openings which allow rodent access.

Scott said the best approach is to keep them out before they ever get started by simply plugging and caulking holes and cracks where the furry critters can get in.

"Mice and rats both can get in anywhere there is a quarter-inch opening. You've gotta plug and caulk holes in the roof and awnings. Use commercial steel wool around pipes and then seal them," he said.

Food supplies, such as pet foods and easy to access foods wrapped in lightweight plastic, should be stored in airtight containers, even before they are opened. Crumbs and other food items should be properly disposed of before they can attract mice.

Blocking their access and getting rid of the rodents is only part of the battle. Getting rid of the unseen vermin left behind is essential for the health and safety of the human inhabitants.

Scott urges anyone having to dispose of a rodent carcass, or clean up after them to use all safety pre-cautions including plastic gloves, filter type face masks, and strong solutions of germ killing anti-bacterial cleaners.

"Right now you nearly have to use an integrated pest management approach to keep them from getting out of hand," Scott said. "This means finding out how bad they are, eliminating their food supply, decreasing easy access, and using traps and poisons when and where they are needed. Once they make a home in town, they don't want to move back out in the country."

Clinton signs debt relief bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling it "good for our souls," President Clinton on Monday signed a foreign aid bill that supplies $435 million to forgive debts of the world's poorest countries. "By lifting the weakest, poorest among us, we lift the rest of us as well," Clinton said.

Clinton said the bill, would free poor nations from crushing financial obligations to let them feed and educate their people better.

"It will be good for our economy because it represents an investment in future markets; good for our security because in the long run, it is dangerously destabilizing to have half of the world on the cutting edge of technology while the other half struggles on the bare edge of survival; but most of all, it will be good for our souls because global poverty is an affront and confronting the challenge is simply the right thing to do," Clinton said.

54, a factory worker in Milwaukee. "I still vote in every election because I think one evil is better than another," he said.

For most Americans, this election is hardly a frantic, do-or-die event. Democrat Al Gore and Republican George W. Bush, while hardly identical, aren't polar political opposites, either. And the relative comfort and peace that the past decade has handed many Americans hasn't framed this election as a do-or-die event.

"I don't feel the urgency I have felt in some previous races," says Win Moses, a state legislator from Fort Wayne, Ind. "We have a fine choice between two basically good people who have different directions they want to lead America in prosperous times."

Some got an early start. Earlie were absentee voters who submitted ballots weeks in advance — folks like retiree Richard Steider, who volunteers at a Sacramento, Calif., railroad museum.

"You don't belong in America if you don't care enough to vote," said Steider, 77. "If you are a citizen of this country, you need to take part in working to keep it working."

Then came voters in Oregon, the only state with an all-mail ballot — an effort to increase turnout that seemed to be working. Secretary of State Bill Bradbury predicted 84 percent of registered voters would cast ballots by Tuesday night.

In the New Hampshire mountain hamlets of Hart's Location and Dixville Notch, all but two of the 60 total registered voters got a jump on their Election Day counterparts in other states by scurrying in to vote just after midnight, which has become a tradition. Their verdict: George W. Bush.

do, if elected. The students, like the adults attending the voting booths today, discussed the election in various places, outside the polling location. Once inside the polling location, all political conversation stopped.

"We don't want discussion in here to influence the voters' decisions," said Amanda Sanchez, working as an election official, checking registration cards.

Student initiated discussion in the classrooms indicates these students have put a lot of thought into their candidate choice. Third-grade students discussed how candidates would impact welfare programs, housing, education, big government and even medical care.

What election would be complete without the ballot counters. Third grade students manned the counting tables and recorded the number of votes cast for Bush and Gore.

Every 30 minutes, the ballot box would be emptied and the counters would go to work. And the vote from registered Aikman voters:

- Bush 284;
• Gore 143.

Bluebonnet Elementary students were scheduled to participate in a mock election today, as were fifth-grade students at West Central. Shirley students held their election last week.

Court to decide on compliance costs for clean-air rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nationwide clean-air standards are at stake in a major environmental case that asks the Supreme Court whether the government must consider compliance costs — and not just health benefits — in setting air-quality limits.

Industry groups are asking the justices to rule that the Environmental Protection Agency must weigh the cost of reducing harmful emissions against the benefits of improved air quality.

The Clinton administration argues the EPA is not supposed to consider costs in setting the standard. The government wants the justices to reverse a lower court ruling that said the EPA went too far in adopting tougher standards.

Judge won't block state crackdown

Briefs

LOS ANGELES — A federal judge has refused to stop state officials from cracking down on California-based Web sites that let users in one state trade their vote for president to someone in another state. The American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California had sought to get a temporary restraining order, arguing Secretary of State Bill Jones' actions were an unconstitutional restriction of free speech. U.S. District Judge Robert Kelleher denied the request in a ruling issued Monday night. The Web sites seek to have Green Party candidate Ralph Nader supporters cast their votes for Vice President Al Gore in states where the presidential race is expected to be close. In exchange, Democrats agree to vote for Nader in states where Republican George W. Bush is expected to win.

Drug stores to pull cold, diet drugs after FDA warning

WASHINGTON — A number of major drug store chains are pulling dozens of over-the-counter cold remedies and diet pills from their shelves after the government warned that an ingredient could cause hemorrhagic strokes, especially in young women. The Food and Drug Administration issued an unusually strong warning Monday, telling Americans to immediately quit using drugs containing phenylpropanolamine, or PPA, which is found in Dextam, Tavist-D and dozens of other medicines. The agency, which intends to ban the ingredient, asked manufacturers voluntarily to stop selling PPA-containing drugs.

AMARILLO — This year's election could be extraordinarily significant for the state and for the Texas Panhandle.

If Gov. George W. Bush wins, Lt. Gov. Rick Perry will be the new resident at the Governor's Mansion, and the lieutenant governor's post will be vacant.

Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, has expressed some interest in the post.

If Vice President Al Gore wins, there still will be important statewide issues to resolve.

To inform area residents about these topics, public television station KACV-TV is airing a live, one-hour program "Perspective: Post-Election Impact," at 9 p.m. Thursday. The program will feature Bivins, along with state Reps. John Smithee, R-Amarillo, and David Swinford, R-Dumas.

"Redistricting will be a major concern for the upcoming state legislature," program producer/host Larry Lemmons said.

"State demographics show population increases in major urban areas and along the Rio Grande. We're losing people in the Panhandle rural areas, and that could translate to some degree to a loss of power."

Other topics will include public education and the accessibility of health insurance for children. Viewers are encouraged to either phone in or e-mail questions during the broadcast.

"Perspective: Post-Election Impact" will be rebroadcast at 5 p.m. Nov. 12.

KACV-TV is broadcast on Channel 2 and on Hereford Cablevision Channel 2.

Record smokers' award is upheld

MIAMI (AP) — A record $145 billion verdict won by Florida smokers has been upheld by a judge, who also widened the scope of the lawsuit to cover more people.

Circuit Judge Robert Kaye concluded the award was reasonable and did not violate a Florida law which prevents a punitive verdict from bankrupting a defendant.

"The award is in keeping with the degree of wrongful conduct without sending the defendant into bankruptcy," Kaye wrote in a 68-page order issued Monday.

Kaye's decision came the same day he received a federal judge's decision rejecting federal jurisdiction and sending the case back to him.
