GLOBAL WARMING

Delegations blast compromise plan as sellout to U.S.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Digging in their heels despite an approaching deadline, delegates at global warming talks today dismissed the chairman's last-minute compromise proposal as a sellout to U.S. demands.

"We are taking a step backward," said French Environment Minister Dominique Voynet.

Voynet said under the proposal, global emissions would actually increase, rather than meet the commitments agreed three years ago to cut greenhouse gases from 1990 levels.

Negotiators from more than 180 countries are under pressure to strike a deal on reducing greenhouse gas emissions that scientists say are heating up the earth's atmosphere.

Delegations are considering an array of proposals aimed at helping countries meet reductions targets without antagonizing poor or rich countries, major industries or environmental groups.

The talks stalled Thursday over a U.S. demand to get credit for greenhouse gas "sinks" — forests, farmland and other vegetation which absorb carbon dioxide.

The proposed compromise was put forward

Americans hitting stores early to get head start on Christmas

The Associated Press

Many Americans woke at the crack of dawn today to pack into stores for a post-Thanksgiving tradition: getting a running start for the present-buying season.

At a KB Toys in Philadelphia, store clerk Karen Kalbacher, 23, already felt "beaten up" by 6 a.m. after handing out plastic bags for shoppers.

"It's like being a lineman. We were slammed into each other. They were snatching bags faster than I could hand them out," she said. "You work in a toy store a couple of years, you hate the holidays."

Hundreds of people already in line rushed in when the toy store doors opened at 5 a.m., snapping up early-morning bargains like the $80 scooter on sale for $29.99 and a $45

Teckno "robot puppy" selling for $19.99.

Linda Corrado, 31, of Northeast Philadelphia had a Teckno in one of her several bags as she strolled out of the store shortly after 6 a.m. She had spent $304 at the toy store and, like most shoppers, was heading straight to another store.

"It's a high," she said of the early-morning buying frenzy. "I probably do end up spending more because I get that excitement."

That was music to retailers' ears.

"So far, it's a lot heavier than last year already," store manager Pat Moran said. "You never know from year to year what the customers are going to buy."

Confronted with signs of sluggish consumer spending, retailers nationwide are banking on a combination of discounts and intense advertising to woo shoppers this holiday season.

"Christmas will be decent but not spectacular," said Kurt Barnard, publisher of Barnard's Retail Trend Report, based in Upper Montclair, N.J. "You won't see the binge buying you saw last year."

Barnard and other analysts expect about a 3 percent to 4 percent sales increase at stores this holiday shopping season, compared with 7 percent last year. Even online sales are slowing, with sales projections in December of $11.6 billion — up from last year's $7 billion, according to Jupiter Research. In previous years, holiday sales were known to double or triple.

Timing, Mother Nature hurt

Jesko's decision to switch to pumpkins didn't pay off in 2000

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Boredom, combined with low commodity prices, should have made Daniel Jesko's crop of choice a Thanksgiving to remember.

Unfortunately, timing and Mother Nature worked against him this year. Instead of adorning the yards of city dwellers or becoming favorite holiday desserts, Jesko's 150 acres of pumpkins lay in the fields waiting for the cattle, which will be turned out to feast royally.

"That early freeze that nipped us in September, followed by hot, blowing winds and temperatures in the '80s just sucked the pumpkins dry," Jesko said. "We would have been all right if the temperatures hadn't gotten high. But, those plants were still trying to feed the pumpkins."

Jesko said he's already turned 100 head of young cattle out on 40 acres.

"It took them about three weeks to clean up 40 acres. And, they do really well on pumpkins. They break them open and eat the seeds first, but after the seeds are gone they go ahead and eat the meat," he said.

Had everything worked out well, Jesko would have sold the golden gourds to Larry Malamen, who would have sold them farther south, but the erratic weather ended it this year.

"It was a terrible year this year. I knew Pumpkins sit unharvested in Daniel Jesko's fields. Bad weather ruined his plans to market pumpkins this season, so his cattle will get to "harvest" the pumpkins in their own way.

I wasn't going to raise cotton or corn this year. Some of the other crops are really boring. Someone approached us about growing pumpkins and my family had done it back in the '80s. It just didn't work out this year," Jesko said. "If we had been able to take it all the way to harvest, it should have made 30,000 pounds per acre."

Pumpkins are a relatively easy crop to grow, Jesko said. "They're fairly disease-tolerant and they don't need a lot of water. They are very labor-intensive. They have to be harvested by hand. That's expensive and time-consuming."

Jesko said down near Plains, where the temperatures stayed warmer for a while longer and where they got a little more water, the pumpkin growers were making crops of 40,000 pounds per acre.

The pumpkins in Jesko's fields were of the jack-o-lantern variety, which means larger fruits, with thicker skins and slightly less color to the meat.

"Vegetables are always a big gamble," Jesko said. "This time we lost the bet."

Jesko said his family traditionally keeps a few pumpkins and his mother cans some for use in pumpkin pies, but wasn't familiar with some of the pumpkin facts.

Though commonly used in traditional pies and quick breads, the pumpkin is actually a member of the squash family and can be eaten much like other varieties of squash.

According to an agricultural extension service brochure from the early 1950s, early colonists used the pumpkin as a bowl for eggs, milk and spices, baking the pumpkin and contents in hot ashes for the first pies.

As settlers moved west, the pumpkin became a staple of the winter diet. Its late harvest made it perfect for fall gardens and it stored well in root cellars. For many years, pumpkins were baked in the shell, then mashed, salted and buttered, much like potatoes.

Jesko's cattle know a good thing when they taste it.

Modern data indicates one serving of raw pumpkin — ½ cup of raw pumpkin — is high in potassium, high in vitamins A and C, has very little fat and no cholesterol.

Jesko said he may try pumpkins again next year. This year just didn't work out.

FLORIDA RECOUNT

U.S. Supreme Court eyes intervention in contested election; both Bush, Gore are picking up votes during recanvass of votes

The Associated Press

The Supreme Court weighed intervention in Florida's contested presidential election on Friday as George W. Bush gained ground in a recount of military absentee ballots and Al Gore picked up support from a recanvass of votes cast on election day.

Republican running mate Dick Cheney was released from the hospital, two days after suffering what doctors described as a very mild heart attack — his fourth.

Bush holds a 930-vote lead in the state that stands to pick the next president, with recounting allowed until Sunday at 5 p.m. under a deadline fixed earlier in the week by the Florida Supreme Court.

Even then the nation's longest presidential election may not produce an acknowledged winner. Gore served notice on Thursday he intends to contest the results, citing a decision by officials in Miami-Dade County not to conduct a full recount.

"I worry regardless of the result," said Sen. Paul Wellstone, D-Minn. "We really are becoming very polarized. The first-generation American in me says we need to bring this to closure."

But closure was elusive, with court cases pending and recounts continuing.

Bush went to the U.S. Supreme Court on Wednesday, seeking a ruling that would invalidate all recounts and preserve his 930-vote lead.

Gore's lawyers objected in a legal filing of their own, and on Friday day Bush rebutted the vice president's objections, saying they do not overcome the "powerful justification for review by this court."

Theodore Olson, an attorney for the Bush campaign, said on NBC's "Today" show Friday that it was "uncertain" what the court would do. But, he added, "Even if the United States Supreme Court does not intervene at this point, it might well decide later that this process, which changes the rules after the election, is unconstitutional."

Florida Secretary of State Katherine Harris, in papers filed Friday with the U.S. Supreme Court, said her state's highest court changed Florida election law when it allowed the manual

Cheney out of hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidate Dick Cheney left the hospital Friday after his doctor said he was recovering well from a mild heart attack.

"I'm on my way home after a stay here at George Washington Hospital," Cheney said as he left the hospital two days after he checked himself in with chest pains.

Cheney said doctors gave him no indication that he would be unable to serve as vice president. "There are no restrictions," he said.

Cheney said he spoke to running mate George W. Bush Thursday night. Asked what they talked about, he replied, "Florida. That's what we always talk about."

The presidential election still hinges on the Florida ballot counting and legal challenges.

Cheney said he and his doctors would review his exercise program and diet in the future. "It's a reminder of the importance of living a normal health style."

He said the 1991 Gulf War, when he was secretary of defense, was the "ultimate stress" for him and "I have not found this situation nearly as stressful as that was."

Democratic vice presidential nominee Joseph Lieberman and Cheney spoke by telephone Thursday morning, with Lieberman wishing his Republican counterpart a speedy recovery, said Cheney aide Kathleen Shanahan.

Despite the extraordinary presidential election legal contest taking place in Florida, the two had a "very cordial" conversation and both vice presidential candidates said "they would like to get together when this is all resolved," Shanahan said.

• Band members make All-State •

Congratulations to several Mighty Maroon Band members for outstanding jobs last week at the All-Region Band Auditions. Cassie Daniel and Stefan Friemel made the All-Region Band. Cassie qualified to audition for All-State Band while Stefan and Aaron Landers are Alternates to audition (and could still do that if someone else is unable to audition for any reason.) Paul Kilpatrick, Amanda Fellers and Kerri Flood came very close to being alternates to audition for state. Again, congratulations to these fine musicians as they help themselves and our band improve everyday.

• CRP grazing extended •

The local FSA Office has been notified that due to native pasture conditions caused by the 2000 drought, CRP grazing has been extended through Dec. 31. No additional payment reduction will be charged to individuals who previously grazed, unless additional acreage is grazed. Participants who have been grazing need to be sure and not violate their grazing plan, as overgrazing could jeopardize the contract. All paperwork must be signed and in the FSA office before grazing will be allowed. Participants with questions, should contact the FSA office at 364-0530.

• Rains help fill Texas lake •

CONROE, Texas (AP) — As much as 15 inches of rain over the past month has filled Lake Conroe to nearly its normal level, reversing the effects of a drought that had left the lake at near-record low levels.

The lake north of Houston in Montgomery County was just a few inches under its 201-foot level Tuesday with a trickle of flow still coming out of the lake's 444-square-mile watershed, primarily the area covered by the Sam Houston National Forest.

After an extremely dry summer, the lake level on Oct. 22 dropped to 197.1. The lowest ever recorded was 196.02 on Jan. 12, 1989.

"And that was a year in which we were releasing 50 million gallons a day to Houston," Lake Conroe Manager W.R. Kellum told The Courier, Montgomery County's daily newspaper.

In 2000, none of Lake Conroe's water has been released to Houston, which owns two-thirds of the water in the 21,000-acre lake.

Since the Oct. 22 low point, Kellum said rains feeding the lake from Caney Creek, the east fork of the San Jacinto River, and Lake Creek have helped fill the lake, along with runoff from the national forest.

Kellum said another 2-inch rain would get the lake to 201 and anything beyond that will be released by a dam into the downstream west fork of the San Jacinto River to keep the lake at its optimal level.

"It's a balancing act to keep water off of lake property and protect downstream property as well," he said.

• Zoo replaces red wolf •

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — Wanted: Wolfish handsome, outgoing male willing to help keep the species going.

Almost two years after the death of Rusty, a red wolf credited with helping bring the vanishing species back from the brink of extinction, Victoria's Texas Zoo has begun the search for his replacement.

"We're very excited about it," head zookeeper Carla Grutzmacher said in Friday's editions of The Victoria Advocate. "We really miss Rusty. He was a favorite of everybody here. It'll be good to have another male here."

Rusty fathered 19 pups, 17 of which lived, so many that authorities had to remove him from a breeding program in 1991 because they feared his large number of offspring would lead to interbreeding in the species.

The 12-year-old wolf was put to sleep in March 1999 after developing arthritis in his back and neck.

"He was very ready and willing to continue breeding but (program officials) didn't want him to continue," said Grutzmacher. "They said he had done his job — maybe too well."

Rusty had lived at the zoo since 1989 as part of the Red Wolf Species Survival Program, an effort by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the American Zoological Association to save the wolves from extinction.

His offspring, born between 1989 and 1991, have been sent to other Red Wolf Species Survival Program sites throughout the country.

About 300 red wolves currently exist in captivity. None are believed to live in the wild.

The zoo has requested a male red wolf from the Fossil Rim Species Survival Program in Glen Rose, which is about 45 miles southwest of Fort Worth. The zoo also participates in the species survival program.

Officials at Fossil Rim must first determine if there are any red wolves that are suitable to breed with the two females at The Texas Zoo.

In exchange for the new male, the Texas Zoo would give Fossil Rim a female, Grutzmacher said. If there are no problems, the zoo could have a male in time for the January breeding season.

• Tornado touches down •

A line of severe thunderstorms spawned one tornado in southeast Texas late Thursday that uprooted trees and toppled power lines.

No deaths or injuries were reported as a result of the storms, officials said.

The tornado was spotted about 10:57 p.m. near Conroe in Montgomery County by officers with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Let the shopping begin!

'Tis the season — The shoppers' dream comes true every year right after Thanksgiving when shoppers nationwide hit the stores for the most profitable season of the year. Many stores opened early today to allow the earlybird shoppers time to get in on some holiday bargains. Kerry Whitson was out early, but not waiting for the stores to open. Whitson leisurely scoped out some of the dresses in the children's department at the local Beall's store.

Thanksgiving: More than turkeys

From celebrities feeding the hungry in Los Angeles to children watching a giant Mickey Mouse waft over Manhattan, millions of Americans came together to giggle, gobble and gab this Thanksgiving holiday.

In New York, die-hard parade spectators braved frigid temperatures to enjoy 20 floats, dozens of clowns and bunches of colorful helium balloons in the 74th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

"If I don't do this, I get yelled at," said Michael Brady, who came to the parade with his eager offspring — Mikey.

Mikey, by the way, is 20 years old.

Parade-watching also was the order of the day in Philadelphia, where thousands of warmly dressed spectators lined the Benjamin Franklin Parkway to watch the 81-year-old event, the nation's oldest Thanksgiving parade.

"I wanted my kids to have the same memories I did when I was a child. My father brought us every year to the parade," said Henrietta Kershaw.

Thousands also flocked to the America's Thanksgiving Day Parade in Detroit, where a river of floats, marching bands and dancing acts made their way through downtown.

"I want to see the grand finale," said Eric Walden, 10, who was perched on a statue overlooking the parade. "I don't know what it's going to be, but I know it's going to be big."

The grand finale: The mayor gave Santa the keys to the city.

The crowds that gathered in Kansas City's Country Club Plaza were there for another Thanksgiving tradition: The lighting of more than 200,000 colored bulbs that decorated every tower, building and balcony in the ritzy shopping and dining area.

"It puts you in the Christmas spirit," said spectator Ron Forbes, a lifelong resident of the Kansas City area. "It makes you enjoy Christmas more."

For scores of volunteers, the holiday was a chance to feed the hungry.

In Atlanta, an estimated 30,000 meals were dished out at the annual Thanksgiving dinner sponsored by Hosea's

Feed the Hungry and Homeless, an anti-hunger campaign founded by Hosea Williams. The 74-year-old civil rights veteran died last week of complications from kidney cancer.

"I just wanted to be a part of this," said rapper Sean "Puffy" Combs, who donated money for this year's seven-course dinner. Combs was joined by Georgia Gov. Roy Barnes and Olympian Gail Devers.

Some famous names also served meals to the hungry at the Fred Jordan Mission in Los Angeles, where about 1,000 people sat down to plates of turkey and potatoes. Edward James Olmos, Dick Van Dyke and Jennifer Love Hewitt were among the Hollywood actors lending a hand.

"The more you give, the more you will receive," said Olmos as he pitched in. "This is food for the soul."

In downtown Los Angeles, a Catholic priest handed out $15,000 to the needy and disabled. Most of the cash the Rev. Maurice Chase offered was in $1 bills, but a handful were lucky to receive $100.

"I was just passing by and saw they were giving something away," said Lisa Carr, 31. She planned to use the money to buy clothes for her 14-year-old son who has cerebral palsy.

In Houston, the annual Thanksgiving Houston Superfeast prepared 6,000 pounds of turkey for a crowd of more than 15,000.

Clothes that filled a 40-foot long tractor trailer were offered to the underprivileged at the event, in the culmination of a weeklong clothing drive by the Salvation Army.

For the first time at the 150-member Thomas Baptist Church in Little Rock, Ark., the men took on the challenge of cooking Thanksgiving dinner. More than 100 meals were served by noon.

Many American Indians marked the holiday differently. In Massachusetts, about 250 Native Americans participated in the National Day of Mourning, an annual event commemorating crimes American Indians have endured since the Pilgrims arrived in Plymouth in 1620.

"They think Thanksgiving is a happy thing, like New Year's or Christmas, but it's not for us Indians," said Sam Sapiel, 69.

After Wednesday's travel frenzy, a relative lull settled throughout most of the country.

Restocking already — Employees of local retail merchants arrived at work early today and before the day had really begun were already busy restocking shelves stripped of Christmas decorations and gifts. Jeannie Walker opened numerous boxes of holiday goods in between working the register and helping customers.

WESTWAY BAPTIST CHURCH

November is the month to pause and recall the many things we are thankful for as we conclude the Thanksgiving season. We urge you to count your blessings, count your gains and not your losses, count your joys and not your woes, count your friends and not your foes.

Remember that Thanksgiving daily includes: two teaspoons of trust, one cup of contentment, three tablespoons of gratitude and most of all, practiced faith.

Sunday school is at 10 a.m., morning worship is at 11. Please come and worship with us.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Pastor Dorman Duggan and the congregation of Community Church, 15th and Whittier, invite you to come and worship and praise with them Sunday morning.

Sunday school for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m. and the morning worship service starts at 10:30. A nursery is provided.

The Intercessory Prayer Group meets Monday at 6 p.m.

HOOP DREAMS

By Jeff Blackmon
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

Neither Key Harrison nor Randy Dean knows what the 2000-2001 basketball season has in store, but both high school coaches hope their teams not only will be going strong by the District 3-4A season, but they also will be in the hunt for a playoff berth or even a state championship.

"If we set our goals high enough and work to achieve them, then there are a lot of things out there for us to accomplish," Dean said.

Both men understand what it takes to make it in Panhandle basketball, and they know expectations are high in Whiteface Country as the Maroon and White begin their seasons.

After three games, the Lady Whitefaces stand at 2-1, boasting victories over Seminole and Lubbock. The sole loss was to state-ranked Amarillo High. The Lady Whitefaces are coming off a 24-8 season and a first-round playoff exit to state-ranked Canyon Randall. The girls team finished second to the Palo Duro Lady Dons in last season's district competition.

Harrison, head girls basketball coach and 1999-2000 District 3-4A Coach of the Year, said the season is going to be a tough one with only three returning lettermen. The season got tougher after the University Interscholastic League decided it would be a good idea to add Canyon High and Canyon Randall to the Lady Herd's district. Both Canyon and Randall are state-ranked squads.

With only three playoff spots available and district champion Palo Duro returning strong, Harrison said every district game takes on added importance.

"The additions (Canyon, Canyon Randall) are going to put the pressure on everyone else to make the playoffs," Harrison said. "We are going to have to beat a couple of those teams to make the playoffs."

"Whoever wants the district cham-

The Lady Whitefaces look at rebuilding while the boys want a shot at the big dance

ampionship will have to go through Canyon High," Harrison said.

Canyon, which was shifted from District 4-4A, is the defending state champion team and will be a tough opponent for any District 3-4A team. However, the Lady Eagles could be vulnerable after losing three starters, including Jolee Ayers (graduation) and the Thiel sisters (moved). Harrison said he thinks the team that can play with high intensity from the start of the district season will come out on top.

"As soon as district starts, we are going to have to play at a playoff level right away," Harrison said. "There are not going to be any nights off for us."

"We will have three or four of the top 10 teams in our district, so it will be a little rough," Harrison said.

One bright side for the ladies is that they are putting a young team on the court. Only five seniors — Jenny Gonzalez, Pam Klein, Ashley Fangman, Vicki Perez, and Holly Schilling — are on the 2000-2001 team. With such a young team running their motion offense and man defense, Harrison said his goal for the season is to get his team some much-needed experience early to make them better for the district season. He said he thinks this will give his squad a chance.

"We are going to have some growing pains early, and we are just trying to get it together before district rolls around," Harrison said. "We are going to be young, and our success depends on how soon we grow up."

The Lady Herd will not face Palo Duro, Canyon High or Canyon Randall before Christmas, that should give them some extra time to get into form before playing any of those teams.

"We have an excellent opportunity, because we face Borger, Pampa and Caprock before Christmas," Harrison said. "The way it sets up, we have a while to get better. But after Christmas, we better have it turned up because we really are going to have to play hard then."

On the boys side, Dean, who was named District 3-4A Coach of the Year, said he and his squad have hopes of returning to the state playoffs and maybe even a shot at the title. The coach said after last year's playoff loss, the team immediately started talking about the realistic goal of making it to the state tournament in Austin.

"We are looking forward to the year," Dean said. "I feel like we have an opportunity to take the success we had last year and apply it to this year."

"From what we were able to do last year we feel it is possible to make it to the state tournament in Austin," Dean said.

The Whitefaces finished the 1999-2000 season with a 23-11 record after being ousted in area competition by eventual state champion Denton-Ryan. Dean said he thinks his team will do well despite having aspirations of District 3-4A dominance and playoff glory.

"I think these guys have basically been in the position of having expectations on them for their whole careers," Dean said. "They do a great job of handling that. I think if we take care of our business and prepare ourselves, then we will have our opportunities to be successful."

But make no mistake about it, Dean knows that no handouts will be given to the Whitefaces during their run. He said they have to harness their talent in order to reach their goals. The Whitefaces averaged 57.8 points per game last year while holding their opponents to just 53.2 a game, and Dean knows those are the kind of statistics that need to be repeated and even bettered.

"The only way we are going to get to Austin is if we do the things that are going to prepare us to play at that level," Dean said. "I think this year our team will do the things that have made it successful in the past — giving great effort night in and night out and playing good defense."

The Whitefaces have begun their season in usual fashion: missing many key players. Seniors Cody Hodges (20.5 points per game), who was named the district's Player of the Year last year, first team All-District performer Slade Hodges (13 points per game), second team All-District 3-4A players Chayse Rives (6.1 points per game) and junior Cody Marsh (7.7 points per game), junior Tim Dudley (2.5 points per game) and senior J.P. Holman (1.8 points per game) just began to practice with the team this week with the end of the football season.

The Whitefaces are 0-2 after losses to Tulia and Seminole while playing undermanned. The coach said he would like to have his whole team intact by the time the district season begins, but he said he believes that several younger players who moved up to varsity to fill in have gotten some invaluable court time.

"We have just made too many mistakes to win, but understanding the circumstances these guys are in and taking those mistakes and growing from them is a major part of why we go ahead and honor our schedule," Dean said. "There is no substitute for the playing time."

Dean said young players getting four or five games under their belts as freshman or sophomores always helps the players out when they

Smith sees stars and Vikes

Cowboy gets his bell rung during 27-15 loss to Minnesota

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith suffered a concussion in the third quarter of Thursday's game against the Minnesota Vikings.

Although Smith was motionless on the turf for a few minutes, he was laughing with trainers as he walked to the locker room. Doctors sent him home before the game was over and plan to examine him again Friday.

"It was good to see him moving around," quarterback Troy Aikman said. "He took a big hit. I think he'll be OK."

Running right on a handoff, Smith was slowed by safety Robert Griffith, then linebacker Ed McDaniell hit him helmet-on-helmet. The collision spun Smith around, causing him to fumble the ball to the Vikings and land flat on his back.

Smith eventually sat up, then was helped off the field by trainers. Smith was clutching his right arm and appeared groggy as he was led to the locker room.

are asked to come up and play with the varsity team later in their high school careers.

"They are playing at a level that is going to challenge them to the max," Dean said. "To win, they have to play perfectly and that is a challenge in itself."

The Whitefaces graduated District 3-4A Honorable Mention winner Eric McNutt, Steven Northern, Mike Bedoya, Cesar Sota, Jerry

Harmon, Justin Carroll and Nick Celaya after last year's season, but four of five starters are returning. Panhandle All-Star McNutt is the only starter the Whitefaces are missing heading into the season, but Dean said the team still must work on its depth.

"We have some depth to replace and that is what we are going to have to start addressing immediately," Dean said.

Emmitt

Heading into the tunnel, he asked one of his helpers if he was knocked out. When told yes, he started laughing. He was then told that he also lost the ball.

Minnesota scored a touchdown on the ensuing drive and broke the game open. The Vikings won 27-15.

"It was a big hit and it also was the turning point of the game," McDaniel said. "He is a good friend and I hate to see that happen to a friend."

Smith gained 100 yards on 12 carries, including a 52-yarder that was his longest since a 63-yard touchdown against the Vikings last season. He took oxygen on the bench after that run and, at half.me, received intravenous fluids.

De Kooning's remark gave McCartney freedom to paint

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK — Paul McCartney and his Beatles song-writing partner John Lennon changed the course of popular music. But that doesn't mean McCartney thought he could do everything.

For example, McCartney wanted to paint but didn't believe he could do it because he hadn't attended art school.

Then, about 18 years ago, McCartney and his wife, Linda (who died in 1998), visited Willem de Kooning. The painter was a client of Linda's lawyer-father; she had known him for years. As the McCartneys were leaving, de Kooning asked them to choose a painting. They did. McCartney thought it resembled a purple mountain but asked the painter what it was. The reply: "I don't know. Looks like a couch, huh?"

With that remark, McCartney said he found the freedom to paint.

Now 58, he was in New York recently for a showing of his canvases at the Matthew Marks Gallery and to celebrate the publication of "Paul McCartney Paintings" by Little Brown. It was only his second gallery exhibition; the first was in Siegen, Germany, in May 1999.

In a single day, McCartney signed 600 prints; 200 each of his "Big Mountain Face," "Egypt Station" and "Ancient Connections." He also did a few interviews.

Did you start painting gradually?

McCartney: I think it was an explosion. Once I got free of my own stupidity, it was just like a volcano erupting. It was the remark Bill de Kooning made that seemed to indicate he had such a free take on painting. I had gotten the mistaken idea that unless I got the exact subject and the exact thought behind it, I shouldn't start. Bill's idea was quite the opposite. He would often start by writing the name of one of his friends on a canvas and painting over it and starting from there. That became more interesting to me than becoming broody. Everything I'd ever wanted to try came out.

How important is a painting's subject?

PAUL MCCARTNEY in New York recently for a showing of his canvases.

McCartney: I think people worry about content. Somebody will wait until they have the exactly right idea. I have friends who are like that. It was getting in the way for me, the idea that if I haven't got a deep and meaningful idea, I can't start. Bill said, "Why don't you just start?" He didn't become so much a mentor to me as it was his attitude and one little chance remark that inspired me.

Do you need to be in a certain mood to paint?

McCartney: I need to just have an urge to paint. I say, "I'd love to paint a picture and I've got time." Often it's just having a bit of time to do it. It's such a nice relief from the pressure of touring. On the world tours I did in the '90s, I painted quite a lot. I surprised people by not taking my days off. In my mind, I was taking the day off. I was painting.

What mood do you then get into while you're painting?

McCartney: If I'm lucky, I go through a door into the painting. I lose myself in the painting. I like that. My thing is about following the accidental, more than trying to paint an accurate bowl of apples. I enjoy most following the paint. It leads me somewhere else. I think I enjoy just letting the magic unfold and letting the spirit of the paint tell me where we're going.

It's similar to music. You get a couple of words or notes or chords that excite you and you just follow them and add a bit more and see where it takes you. That's the thrill for me.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs."

Then remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

recounts to continue. Until then, she said, "a manual recount was a last-resort remedy" to be used only when machine tabulation failed.

The recounts continued, though, and Bush picked up a handful of votes in Broward County, where the canvassing board resumed its review of approximately 1,500 ballots.

Elsewhere, officials in Clay County voted to accept 14 of 17 previously rejected overseas ballots. That gave Bush 13 votes and Gore one.

In mid-morning, the situation looked like this:

• Broward County: With all 609 precincts and absentees recounted, as well as 431 of an estimated 1,500 questionable ballots, Gore has a net gain of 245 votes.

• Clay County: Bush picked up a net gain of 12 votes when the canvassing board decided Friday to accept 14 previously rejected overseas ballots.

• Miami-Dade County: The canvassing board voted unanimously to stop the county's hand recount Wednesday. That negated a net gain of 151 votes for Gore.

• Nassau County: The canvassing board voted to use Nov. 7 vote totals instead of the results of a machine recount that inadvertently missed about 200 presidential ballots. The action resulted in a net gain for 52 votes for Bush.

• Palm Beach County: With results released from 217 of 637 precincts recounted, George W. Bush gained 14 votes.

The Gore campaign asked the state Supreme Court to order the recount reopened in Miami-Dade, but the justices refused.

Gore campaign attorney David Boies, also on NBC, noted that Miami-Dade officials decided to stop their counting after Republican backers staged noisy demonstrations, "mini-riots if you will," outside the recount office. "If that's the reason they stopped counting, I think it's very unfortunate."

Gore's lawyers said they will go to state court in Tallahassee to contest the Miami-Dade election results after the votes are certified, expected late Sunday.

"Nobody should be surprised by this. We've been saying all along that we wanted a full and fair count and that's what we intend to see happen," said Ron Klain, a Gore campaign legal adviser. He said some results in other counties also may be challenged, but he did not give details.

Asked if that meant Gore would not concede the election even if he was behind in votes, Gore campaign spokeswoman Jenny Backus said that was correct.

"We want a full, fair and accurate count and the only way left to do that is to file a contest for Miami-Dade," she said.

The Florida Supreme Court, in setting the Sunday deadline for vote certification, anticipated the vote would be contested and wanted to ensure enough time for such challenges before the state's crucial 25 presidential electors are chosen on Dec. 12. Whoever wins those electors will have enough votes to become the next president.

The Bush campaign had nothing to say about Thursday's developments. "It's Thanksgiving and we're not going to comment," Bush spokesman Ari Fleischer said.

Bush spent Thanksgiving with his family in Austin, Texas, while the Gore family was at the vice presidential residence in Washington.

Bush also has filed suit in a Florida court asking 14 counties with heavy military populations to recount overseas ballots. Hundreds of ballots, many from military outposts, were rejected last week when Democratic lawyers urged county boards to scrutinize them.

Bush won a significant victory Thursday when the Florida Supreme Court refused to order Miami-Dade County officials to resume their ballot handcount.

With 135 of 614 Miami-Dade precincts recounted, Gore had gained 157 votes before the counting stopped there.

"The writ is denied without prejudice. ... No motion for rehearing will be allowed," the court's brief, unanimous opinion said.

In papers filed with the U.S. Supreme Court, the vice president's lawyers said Bush was asking the justices "to interfere with a task that has been expressly delegated to the state of Florida," the choosing of presidential electors.

Florida's Republican state lawmakers have said they may call a special session of the GOP-controlled Legislature to choose their own slate of electors if the hand recounts push Gore over the top or if the Dec. 12 deadline is not met.

House Speaker Tom Feeney said that if the electors were not picked by the required date, "the responsibility falls on the Legislature in Florida to decide who those electors are going to be."

Vietnamese girl in famous photo working for peace

People

VALENCIA, Spain — Phan Thi Kim Phuc, the Vietnamese woman who as a 9-year-old girl was photographed fleeing a 1972 napalm attack, says she wants the picture to be used as a protest against wars.

"This picture is a powerful gift for me to promote peace," Kim Phuc said Thursday pointing at the naked and screaming youngster in the world-acclaimed photograph by Associated Press photographer Nick Ut, who won a Pulitzer Prize.

"With this photo, I want to tell people how horrible a war can be," said 37-year-old Kim Phuc, currently president of a humanitarian foundation that helps innocent young victims of war.

Kim Phuc was in this eastern city to attend a three-day international conference to plot strategies against rape, wife-beating, sexual exploitation and female circumcision.

Some 1,300 activists from around the world were invited by Spain's Queen Sofia Center for the Study of Violence to discuss gender-based violence.

Kim Phuc, who lives in Canada and has two sons, said that despite the passing of time, she has never got over the war, adding that when alone she can't look at the picture.

"It's terrible, it seemed to me like it happened yesterday," she said.

Helen Hunt

NEW YORK — Winning an Oscar flooded Helen Hunt's mailbox.

"I immediately got offered a lot of movies, and said no to every one of them," Hunt told Movieline magazine in its November editions. "Nothing felt exactly right, and I had been spoiled by having everything be exactly right in terms of my series and 'As Good As It Gets.'"

The Emmy-winning star of the NBC series "Mad About You" won an Academy Award for "As Good As It Gets," which also starred Jack Nicholson and Greg Kinnear.

"For a long time, every movie that came out was one I had read. I won't say that the movies were, because the actresses who starred in them might not know I was offered them first. Eventually, I wasn't the first person they came to, but the fifth."

Penelope Cruz

NEW YORK — Penelope Cruz may already have found the man for her — or has she?

"It's impossible to define exactly what kind of person I like," the 26-year-old native of Madrid, Spain, tells Harper's Bazaar magazine in its December issue.

"It's only happened two or three times in my life, but I've felt things for completely different kinds of people. What's important is just finding that connection with someone — I don't know, maybe from before."

Does that mean Cruz believes in reincarnation?

"I know for some people it must sound like I'm crazy, but I completely believe in it," she says, pointing out that her relationship with director Pedro Almodovar sometimes gets odd.

"I would be at the theater, think about him, and then pass him on the street — that happened three or four times before I knew him. Two days ago, I picked up the telephone to call him. I had to do something else, so I hung up and decided to call later. I came back and there was a message from him — those things always happen."

by the conference chairman, Dutch Environment Minister Jan Pronk, after the meeting deadlocked.

Costa Rican President Miguel Angel Rodriguez Echeverria complained about the removal of the idea of crediting countries for protecting the tropics from deforestation, which he said would lead to an increase in logging.

"Leaving aside the issue of deforestation is very serious," Echeverria told a news conference, urging market incentives for conservation. "We have to make keeping forests more attractive than destroying forests."

The European Union and other countries said the proposal caved in to "the Umbrella Group," a U.S.-led bloc including Canada, Japan, Australia and a few other countries that would benefit from the sinks scheme.

"Some of us thought yesterday Thanksgiving turned into 'sinks-giving,'" German Environment Minister Juergen Trittin half-joked.

He said the proposal was so watered down that it was "weaker than the text of the Kyoto Protocol," a 1997 treaty that set targets for global emissions reductions.

"Our concern is that the rules would allow countries to selectively count credits for land use projects or activities that deliver no new benefit to the atmosphere," said New Zealand delegate Pete Hodgson.

The European Union echoed environmentalists' criticism of an emissions "trading" mechanism that would waive a significant portion of the emissions cuts in industrialized countries if they backed cleanup projects the developing world.

Negotiators, who began their talks on Nov. 13, have until Saturday to agree on ways of meeting targets for emissions cuts.

Under the Kyoto Protocol, worldwide emissions of heat-trapping gases must decline to 5.2 percent below their 1990 levels by 2012.

Carbon dioxide and other gases that store heat in the atmosphere are primarily produced by cars, power plants and factories.

Israeli, Palestinian leaders agree to resume cooperation

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat spoke by phone today, their first contact in more than three weeks, and agreed to resume low-level security cooperation, Barak's office said. The conversation came on another day of deadly ambushes and an Israeli rocket attack on a Bethlehem hotel.

Arafat was meeting with Russian President Vladimir Putin in Moscow today when Barak placed a call to Putin's office. After getting Barak's permission, Putin handed the phone to Arafat so the Palestinian leader could speak with Barak.

The Israeli and Palestinian leaders agreed to resume low-level security cooperation and to reopen Israeli-Palestinian liaison offices in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, Barak's office said in a statement. A resumption of security coordination, even if only at level of officers in the field, would be a first small step toward rebuilding trust and ending violence.

Israel on Thursday had ordered the Palestinians to leave the 10 offices, the only regular channel of contact between the sides, after an Israeli officer was killed by a bomb planted in one of the shared compounds in the Gaza Strip.

Israeli-Palestinian security cooperation was one of the cornerstones of interim peace accords. In two months of fighting, contacts between security officials from both sides were cut and replaced with angry accusations. Israel said Palestinian security agents were often involved in attacks on Israelis, while Palestinians complained that Israel used excessive force against Palestinian demonstrators.

Arafat told Barak that he would try to do everything he can to stop the fighting, according to the Israeli statement. Arafat's senior aides were with him in Moscow, and were not immediately available for comment.

Despite the renewed contact between the two leaders — their first since Barak spoke with Arafat by phone on Nov. 1 — violence persisted Friday.

Palestinian rock-throwers clashed with Israeli soldiers in several locations, including the West Bank towns of Ramallah and Bethlehem, and the Karni crossing between Israel and Gaza.

In biblical Bethlehem, an Israeli tank shelled a hotel after Palestinian gunmen fired at Israeli troops guarding an Israeli enclave. Two shells hit the fourth and fifth floors of the Paradise Hotel. Israel radio said gunmen were shooting from the hotel, a charge denied by Ibrahim al-Atrash, a hotel employee. Six Palestinian passers-by were hurt by shrapnel.

Elsewhere in the West Bank, an Israeli motorist was killed in a daylight shooting ambush and an activist in Arafat's Fatah movement was shot dead in what Palestinians said was an attack by Israeli troops tracking gunmen.

In the town of Nablus, thousands of Palestinians attended the funeral of Ibrahim Bani Odeh, a suspected Islamic militant bombmaker who, Palestinians say, was assassinated by Israel. Bani Odeh's Hamas group pledged revenge.

"Our response will be more car bombs and they (the Israelis) will pay a high price," said the Hamas leader in Nablus, Sheikh Hamed Bitawi. On Wednesday, two Israelis were killed and more than 60 wounded in a car bomb attack in the northern Israeli town of Hadera.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

JUDAS ISCARIOT, THE BETRAYER OF JESUS, WAS THE ONLY MAN AMONG THE ORIGINAL TWELVE DISCIPLES WHO DID NOT HAIL FROM GALILEE. THAT HE WAS STRONGLY DISLIKED FROM THE OUTSET BY THE OTHERS IS APPARENT FROM THE VERY WORDS OF JOHN (JOHN 2:6). JUDAS WAS THE TREASURER OF THE GROUP—"HOLDING THE BAG" WAS THE EXPRESSION THEY USED—DENOTING THAT HE RECEIVED ALL GIFTS AND MONEY CONTRIBUTIONS FROM THE PUBLIC, PAID FOR ANYTHING THE GROUP MIGHT NEED (FOOD, CLOTHES, ETC.), AND DISPENSED MONEY TO THE POOR, ALL IN JESUS' NAME. BUT JOHN SPOKE FOR ALL OF THEM WHEN HE SAID JUDAS WAS A THIEF WHO DIDN'T CARE FOR THE POOR AT ALL, BUT CARRIED THE BAG OUT OF HIS LOVE FOR THE MONEY THAT WAS IN IT AND THE SENSE OF POWER AND IMPORTANCE IT GAVE HIM!

WHY HE BETRAYED JESUS HAS ALWAYS BEEN A CONJECTURE OPEN TO LENGTHY DISCUSSION. SOME HAVE SAID IT WAS PURELY HIS GREED FOR THE THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER, OTHERS MAINTAIN IT WAS OUT OF ANGER AT THE REBUKE HE RECEIVED FROM JESUS... (JOHN 12:1-8). ANOTHER THEORY IS THAT JUDAS, ALWAYS ANXIOUS AS TREASURER TO GET MORE MONEY, SAW AN EASY CHANGE TO ENLARGE THE TREASURY WITH NO REAL DANGER TO JESUS—FOR HE REASONED THAT THE SON OF GOD COULD COMMAND LEGIONS OF ANGELS TO RESCUE HIM WHENEVER HE WISHED! BE THAT AS IT MAY, ONCE THE DEED WAS DONE AND THE COLD LIGHT OF REASON REVEALED TO JUDAS THE ENORMITY OF HIS CRIME, HE REPENTED IN A FRENZY OF DISPAIR, HURLED THE BLOOD MONEY BACK AT THE PRIESTS AND RUSHED OUT AND HANGED HIMSELF!

LEGEND SAYS THAT THE TREE ON WHICH JUDAS HANGED HIMSELF (SINCE CALLED THE JUDAS TREE) WAS THE LOVELY REDBUD TREE, A FLOWERING ORNAMENTAL SHRUB WHICH CAN ATTAIN HEIGHTS OF FORTY FEET!
