Water District meet yields complaints

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Billed as an "informational meeting" on the Deaf Smith Fresh Water Supply District, a Tuesday evening meeting began with explanations of the duties of the district's board and deteriorated into a gripe session.

Early on in the evening, the Hereford city manager, Chester Nolen, told the gathering of about 80 persons that the city is willing to assume management of the district.

But, Nolen emphasized, the city does not want to own the system that serves residents of the San Jose community.

An open meeting of the district's board was scheduled at 1 p.m. Wednesday. Decisions on the operation of the district in the future are expected.

Near the end of the two-hour meeting Tuesday evening, a San Jose resident complained:

"The city has never given a damn about the labor camp. Why now?" Nolen responded, "They (the board) came to us. We aren't seeking the work."

As the meeting drew to a close, tempers flared briefly as customers of the water district asked questions about money, billing, service and board meetings.

Conducting the meeting were representatives of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission, the successor to the Texas Water Commission. TNRCC has jurisdiction over districts such as the one operating in San Jose.

Carol Limaye and Patrick King,

TNRCC staff members, reviewed the process by which the water district functions.

King told the audience that dissatisfaction with the board may be remedied by electing new directors.

Limaye said if a contract is executed with the city, a new board would have the right to review the terms and make changes.

Nolen said the City of Hereford has no desire to "annex or take over" the water district.

"We just want to make sure you have water," he declared.

Continuing complaints through the years about the board of directors surfaced. A spectator claimed, "Regardless of who the board members are, the people are never satisfied."

Questions about possible rate increases if the city assumes management were fielded by Limaye and King.

Even if the operation continues as it is now, Limaye told the audience, costs will rise.

"Costs are going up, especially for small systems," she said.

King reminded that a "trade off" of some overhead would be effected if the city assumes management.

Limaye asked for the group to "focus on the future" and was accused by a woman of "taking up for the board."

"We haven't talked to the board," Limaye responded. She reiterated the purpose of the meeting was to provide information on the duties of the water district's board and regulations.

She pointed out that there should be a trained operator with the district, by state regulation.

At the beginning of the meeting in the Hereford Community Center, Limaye asked persons who would need translation from English to Spanish to move to the front of the room where an interpreter could assist them.

Only one woman took advantage of the invitation but later, a complaint was lodged near the end of the meeting that the TNRCC was insensitive to the needs of the people in attendance.

"Didn't you know there would be Spanish-speaking people?" she asked. "They have to feel they are being treated badly."

The TNRCC representatives told the group that the purpose of their visit was to "facilitate communication" among the factions involved.

Complaints about the way the board conducts meetings were numerous, but were primarily directed at the absence of open meetings.

"Meetings are closed. They treat us badly," said a woman.

A water district customer said she was overcharged and never given a refund. Another said residents don't give materials to the board because "they'll just throw it away."

King and Limaye told the audience that a board would continue to have authority over the water district if a contract is negotiated for the City of Hereford to assume management.

If the TNRCC should decide to dissolve the water district, as law would allow, the board also would be disbanded, said Limaye.

Asked how an agreement would affect rates, the TNRCC staffers said, "It probably won't be the same as it is now." A resident of San Jose said the present "water office cost us a lot. We don't need the city."

The Deaf Smith County Fresh Water Supply District No. 1 serves slightly more than 100 customers in the San Jose community. Two wells provide water for the area.

The district also is responsible for sewer service within the area. The City of Hereford handles waste materials from a lift station.

Aikman fundraiser nets six computers for library

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Every day at Aikman Elementary School, second graders are heading for the library to check out books and take tests on the computer.

And throughout Hereford each day are people whose purchases of jewelry and Christmas items helped buy those very computers. School librarian Patti Smith said she, principal Charles Lyles and representatives of the Parent-Teacher Organization at the school were discussing ways to raise money before school started last fall.

A fundraiser was mentioned as a means of obtaining funds needed to buy a computer and Accelerated Reading software that Mrs. Smith wanted for her library.

Knowing that Northwest Elementary had held a previous fundraiser with IFS Co., Mrs. Smith obtained information about the firm and a meeting was held with Lyles, Mrs. Smith and Deloris McNeely of the PTO.

Jewelry and Christmas items were selected and students and PTO members fanned out to sell to their friends and relatives.

Mrs. Smith said school officials urged children not to go door to door, but to sell only to people they knew.

She said nobody knew exactly how much money would be raised by the drive, which was held during October and November 1993.

But when the smoke cleared and the school's profit was realized, there was about $6,900 available for computers.

"The kids did great," she said, adding that raising so much money was "a pleasant surprise."

With the money in hand, Lyles said, the school took some $8,000 of its own money and ordered the six Apple computers, two printers and Accelerated Reading software.

The package contains a list of recommended books for children to read. They then log into the computer under their own names and take a test on the book.

The books are ranked by difficulty, with a varying number of points available based on that difficulty.

The tests assess the child's knowledge of the book, asking general questions about the text.

"It's a program to motivate kids to read," Mrs. Smith said. In addition, teachers can access their students' records at the end of the six weeks to see how many books have been read and how well the students have done on the tests.

Because the system has been on line for fewer than six weeks, Mrs. Smith said, no definite plans have been made for how to incorporate the testing into the curriculum.

However, she said, plans will be developed before the 1994-95 school year for ways to use the Accelerated Reading as a part of the curriculum and for ways to give incentives for children to take the tests.

Trustees pass purchase of buses, Shirley waiver

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Hereford Independent School District trustees broke in their new board room in grand style on Tuesday with a regular meeting that included a five-hour open session and an executive session that lasted past midnight.

Trustees followed a new agenda format for the session that included a six-item action agenda.

Within that agenda, trustees were asked to act on a grading waiver for Shirley Intermediate School, to approve bids for two new school buses and they looked at possible renovations of the high school annex created by the move of the administration building.

In addition, discussions were held regarding the District Improvement Plan as submitted by the District Leadership Team and reports were made on the high school ag program, the energy program and budget reports from two schools.

Trustees accepted bids on two new school buses, one a regular bus that also will be used some for activity trips and one air conditioned bus to be used solely by special education students.

Assistant superintendent Don Cumpston presented two bids on the buses, with each bid containing prices for conventional rear-engine buses and forward control buses.

Cumpston said the district last year bought forward control buses that are getting 12 miles per gallon of fuel, and recommended that type be purchased again despite the fact that the low bid on each vehicle was more than $5,000 higher than for a conventional engine bus.

He said that the difference in gas mileage -- 12 mpg versus 8 mpg on conventional engine buses -- would generate $8,750 in fuel savings over the 300,000 mile life of the buses.

The low bid for the 60-passenger special education bus -- which Cumpston said has air conditioning and tinted windows -- was by Bridges-Hemphill for $53,219, while the low bid for the 72-passenger regular use bus was $46,847 from the same company.

Cumpston said they will be purchased on a three-year lease-purchase, with payments beginning in the 1994-95 budget.

The early vote was required, he said, to allow the order to be placed and filled by October.

Cumpston said the air conditioning and tinted windows for the special ed bus are not state requirements, but are highly recommended.

In discussions about the high school annex -- the portion of the cafeteria building formerly occupied by the superintendent's office -- trustees took no action following presentation of several construction options by architect Larry Harvey of Lubbock.

Harvey presented possible building reconstructions at last month's meeting, but was asked to do different designs to incorporate expansion of the cafeteria and possible construction of a separate dining area for Pre-K students who currently eat in a corner of the cafeteria.

Harvey explained to the board that changing the building from an office complex to classrooms made significant changes on the fire safety codes, including a requirement that there be one-hour fire protection in the halls, which allows students one full hour to exit the facility in case of fire.

In addition, the 46-inch wide hallway must be six feet across in a school classroom area and there must be no dead-end halls of more than 25 feet in length.

Harvey's concepts for the building included one using existing space only, one adding a 2,400-square-foot addition for Pre-K dining, one adding 2,400 square feet for additional dining and 2,688 square feet for Pre-K dining and one option that could be used to convert the entire building to classrooms if a cafeteria is ever built across Union Street in the main high school building.

The estimated prices for the options ranged from $105,000 to about $450,000. Some of the options included building addition space on the south end of the building for Pre-K dining.

Instead of proceeding with the remodeling -- which trustee Jim Marsh said has come "a long way from $70,000 to $80,000 and maintenance people doing the work." -- trustees opted to accept a suggestion by Marsh to hold a special work session to examine what they want to do with this building and other long-range construction options around the high school.

That meeting will be held at 5 p.m. Tuesday, April 5 in the old administration building.

Shirley principal David Fanning requested a waiver be applied for from the state regarding promotion guidelines, saying that the school's portfolio grading system will incorporate numerical grades next year, but that they are not being used in all areas this year.

State guidelines call for a student to have a 70 grade before being promoted. However, this year's portfolios replace numerical grades with progress indicators: 4 means above expectations in the subject work; 3 means met expectations; 2 means minimum expectations; and 1 means did not meet expectations.

Fanning said the waiver will make students have a No. 2 rating to be promoted.

The waiver requested passed on a 6-1 vote, with Trustee Raul Valdez voting against it.

TSTA hails reform proposals

AUSTIN (AP) - The state's largest teacher group is praising Texas schools and decrying some education reform proposals that are meant to give parents more school options and local communities more power.

"What price will we pay if we opt out for choice 'gimmicks' which do nothing to fix what is wrong with our schools?" asked Richard Kouri, president of the 95,000-member Texas State Teachers Association.

Education efforts already underway have yielded higher test scores, he said, showing that "Texas schools are on the right course."

Kouri - who released a yearlong study Tuesday of education reform in other states and Texas efforts - said his criticism includes proposals to pay private school tuition with public funds and Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush's proposed home-rule school districts.

Home-rule districts would not have to follow such state regulations as class-size limits and the no-pass, no-play rule governing extracurricular activities, according to Bush's campaign. They would be subject to state requirements on student performance and accountability standards, along with federal regulations.

"You remember home-rule districts. That's when if you could throw a football far enough, 50 was passing, and our rule of thumb on class size was 'Stack 'em deep, teach 'em cheap,'" said Kouri, referring to the school system prior to 1984 education reforms.

Those reforms, known as House Bill 72, included the prohibition on students participating in extracurricular activities unless they pass all their courses.

Bush's press secretary, Deborah Burston-Wade, said giving school districts freedom from many state rules would allow educators and local people to "decide what is best for their kids."

"You can't use this 'One size fits all' ideology for the kids in Texas," she said.

Among other findings he cited: - Choice alone has not resulted in an increase in student achievement in any of the states.

'Doctor's Day' set today

To honor the achievements and services performed by all medical doctors, Hereford Regional Medical Center designated today, March 30, as "Doctor's Day."

"The professionalism, integrity and hard work of physicians provide the cornerstone for medical services in our community," said Ron Rives, hospital CEO.

"Especially in this time of confusion and uproar about health care reform, it is important to remember what a vital role the physician plays in our good health," added Rives. "The doctor is the director of all health care services the patient receives."

Physicians on the medical staff at HRMC are Howard Haysom, Howard Johnson, Palani Mani, Duffy McBrayer, Gerald Payne, Kent Walker, Ranga Mani, Jesse Perales, Robert Clark, and Nadir Khuri.

Also included on the HRMC medical staff are visiting physicians: Joaquin Martinez-Ararras, Dik Cheung, R.H. Cox Jr., Donald Kuxhausen, Nona Fulton, Robert Ball, John Andrew, Ted Nugent, and Mary Townsend.

Agency praised for fee guidelines

Charge for public records won't include search time

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas attorney general's office, media and public watchdog groups praised new guidelines adopted by the General Services Commission outlining the costs state agencies may charge for the release of public records.

The guidelines, adopted Tuesday, didn't include a provision widely opposed by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, media and public watchdog groups that would have allowed the state to charge new fees for public records searches that take more than 15 minutes.

The so-called 15-minute limit had drawn criticism during public hearings from opponents who said it would result in a more secretive government because charges for public documents would increase significantly.

Others testified that the public should not be subject to unreasonable charges for copies of documents that show how their tax dollars are being spent.

"We are very pleased the way the process worked," said attorney Laura House, a director of the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas. "The public spoke and the General Services Commission responded. Hopefully, this will alleviate a lot of the confusion about what the governmental bodies can charge for public records."

Under the new proposal, personnel and overhead charges can't be added to requests for copies of 50 pages or less if the documents are or should be "readily available information."

As now written, the guidelines leave it up to the agency to decide when requested public records are "readily available" - and when they aren't available.

If the records aren't readily available, much of the cost of gathering the information can be recovered from whoever requests it.

Although the previous proposal had defined "readily available" as information that could be located in 15 minutes, the new guidelines state that information is considered readily available unless it "requires a substantial amount of time to locate and prepare for release."

The commission adopted a guideline that recommends state agencies allow members of the public who simply want to inspect readily available information to do so without charge, even if it requires the agency to dig through a computer to find the information and then print out a copy.

Madeleine Johnson, a special assistant attorney general, said she hoped most of the state agencies would adopt the General Services' guidelines and not overcharge the public for records.

"The state agencies still will have the option of charging costs that are different from the guidelines, but I think most of the governmental entities will adopt this," Ms. Johnson said.

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Morales, said the changes will "promote open government."

Gerald Heep, director of internal audit for the commission, said the commission staff complied with Morales' wishes to drop the 15-minute limit because the attorney general interprets the Texas Open Records Act.

"Instead of being objective, it will be subjective and each agency will determine what is a substantial amount of time," Heep said.

AIKMAN

are on-line with Accelerated Reading, but by next year the entire student body will have access to the system.

Of the money the school supplied, $5,000 was earmarked for the purchase of books in the library -- money that would have been spent had they not got the computers at all.

Because they are here, however, Mrs. Smith said, she is gearing her purchases toward those books on the reading lists.

Another $1,000 of school money helped purchase the Accelerated Reading software, while the remaining $2,000 went toward the computers and printers, supplementing the PTO-raised monies.

Accelerated Reading books are identified in the library by the large red dots stuck on the spines of the volumes.

"Every year as we keep buying library books, we'll get books that are on Accelerated Reading," she said.

So far, she said, the response to the program has been good among the students, telling about one girl who came into the library recently and took a test, returned the book, checked out another book and was back before long to take that test.

And, she said, "they are taking out harder (books)," ones they wouldn't have read before being faced with the possibility of gaining more points for reading harder books.

Both Lyles and Mrs. Smith praised the PTO for their coordination of the fundraiser, stressing that the project was put together by that group and conducted by PTO volunteers.

As for the future of Accelerated Reading, Mrs. Smith said, she will continue to use her normal book-buying budget to obtain volumes from the recommended reading list.

She would eventually like to raise enough money to add Accelerated Reading terminals in every classroom in the school.

TRUSTEES

-- Trustees approved a state textbook list for the next several years.

Severo Reyna, the district textbook coordinator, said the textbook committee reviewed the recommended books from samples provided by publishers.

Reyna said the entire list is approved because then, if teachers want to change textbooks during the next six or seven years, they will be able to have them provided by the state rather than having to pay personally for books not approved by the district.

The vote to approve the list was unanimous.

-- Trustees appointed Reyna to be Section 504 Coordinator.

Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt said the position is needed in case there is a student who does not fit under other special education programs. That student can apply for Section 504 and the district would create a program for that child.

-- Energy Manager David Morris reported to the board that, through the first 12 months of the district's energy conservation program, HISD saved $74,982 in energy costs over the test period of March 1992 through February 1993.

"I anticipate conservatively, since we're beginning our second year with all these things in place... that we're going to see $100,000 in cost avoidance (over the test period) for the next 12 months," Morris said.

The district opted last year to purchase an energy management system that guaranteed energy savings of at least $70,300 the first year.

-- Trustees heard budget reports from Shirley and West Central Intermediate Schools, as well as from Assistant Superintendent for Education Support Services Corky Lockmiller.

-- All trustees were present at the session. They are: Ron Weishaar, president; Steve Wright, Joe Flood, Raul Valdez, Jim Marsh, Raymond Schlabs and Mike Veazey.

If it weren't for black stations and disc jockeys playing his music back when he was just a boy wonder, "it would have been impossible for my career to have ever existed," said the 43-year-old star.

The Grammy and Academy Award-winning performer was honored Thursday at the 10th annual National Association of Black Owned Broadcasters awards.

Other honorees were Whitney Houston, "Soul Train" founder Don Cornelius, musical producers Jimmy Jam and Terry Lewis and Rep. Kweisi Mfume, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Holy Week service set by church

A Maundy Thursday service at First Presbyterian Church of Thursday will feature an adaptation of the ancient Tenebrae service.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the church sanctuary.

Tenebrae, which means "darkness" represents the darkness that fell over the earth as Jesus was crucified. In the service, the darkness will be symbolized by extinguishing a lighted candle after each meditation on the seven last words of Jesus.

The seventh candle will remain lit, pointing to the Resurrection.

Communion will be served by elders of the church. The Rev. Don Shepherd, interim pastor, will deliver the meditations.

A contract was signed in 1492 between Christopher Columbus and Spain to seek a westward ocean passage to Asia.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Frank Sinatra forgot some of the words but showed his son who's boss in his first concert since he collapsed on stage.

Sinatra, 78, appeared in good shape during the hour-long concert Thursday but missed several lines to "New York, New York" and stumbled his way through "The Lady Is a Tramp" despite help from four large electronic prompters.

The Chairman of the Board bantered with Frank Sinatra Jr., who directed his orchestra, and yelled, "Say something!" when his son missed a cue.

"His mother said get him a job, get him out of the house," Sinatra wisecracked.

Sinatra collapsed on March 6 during a concert in Richmond, Va., complaining that he was overheated.

Herd starts district play with 7-4 win over Dumas

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Russ Watts' two-run single in the seventh inning broke a 4-4 tie Tuesday in Dumas and got Hereford off to a good start in District 1-4A play.

Hereford held on for a 7-4 win over the Demons, which gave the Herd a 1-0 district record, 7-8 overall.

Dumas drops to 0-1 and 6-9. Herd pitcher Andrew Tijerina relieved for an injured Ray Hastings in the fourth and pitched out of a couple of jams with minimal damage to get the win. Hastings, the starter, was hit in the stomach by a batted ball, coach J.J. Villarreal said, but the injury apparently was not serious.

"It took a little off his fastball, and he was having trouble throwing strikes," Villarreal said, "so we brought in Andrew with the bases loaded."

Tijerina gave up one run, giving Dumas a 3-2 lead, but Hereford came back with single runs in the fifth and sixth to take a 4-3 lead. Dumas tied it up with the help of two Hereford errors and an RBI single, but Tijerina escaped a one-out, two-men-on situation.

Hereford's Ronald Torres led off the top of the seventh with a bunt single, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Chris Vallejo walked and went to second on Tanner Murphey's groundout to short, but Torres couldn't score on the play.

Dumas walked No. 3 hitter Jacob Lopez intentionally to face Watts, setting up the double play, but Watts made the Demons pay with single through the right side, scoring Torres and Vallejo. Lopez later scored on a delayed double steal, as Watts purposely got caught straying off first base. Hereford led 7-4.

Dumas loaded the bases with no outs in the bottom of the seventh on two walks and a hit, but again Tijerina got out of it. He picked off the Demon runner at second, then struck out the next two batters: one looking, one swinging.

"I thought Andrew did a good job," Villarreal said. "When you get senior leadership, it helps. Russ Watts had a timely hit, and like I said, when you have senior leadership, it sure helps."

Tijerina also had RBI singles in the second and sixth innings, driving in Armando Zambrano and Watts, respectively.

In the third, Vallejo doubled and scored on Lopez' groundout. Dumas tied it up with two runs in the bottom of the third and took the lead with one in the fourth. The Herd tied it back up in the fifth when Stacey Sanders was hit by a pitch and came around to score on a wild pitch.

The other District 1-4A teams also played their district openers Tuesday.

Pampa got a sixth inning homer from Ryan Cook and beat Randall 4-3 in Pampa. Pampa improved to 12-3, and Randall dropped to 12-4.

In Borger, the Bulldogs' Matt Ormon tossed a four-hitter and beat Caprock 2-1. Borger goes to 9-6, while Caprock drops to 6-9.

Next up for Hereford is Pampa, after the district takes the weekend off. The Harvesters will host the Herd at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Pampa.

The Herd's next home game will be April 9, when Caprock comes to Whiteface Field for a 1 p.m. game.

The junior team will play a couple of home games between now and the next varsity game. The Dimmitt JV will be here at 4:30 Thursday, and the Plainview JV will come to Hereford at 5 Monday.

Hereford's JV B team will play the Canyon freshmen at 4:30 Monday in Canyon.

Switzer to be next Cowboys' coach after Johnson and Jones part ways

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, who left the Sooners program under a controversial cloud five years ago, will be named the third coach of the Dallas Cowboys at a news conference today.

A source within the Cowboys organization told The Associated Press that Switzer, who has had no head coaching experience in the NFL and ran a run-oriented offense when he was at Oklahoma, will replace Jimmy Johnson.

No details on Switzer's contract were immediately available. The source said Jones and Switzer were working out details of the deal this morning in Jones' office at Valley Ranch.

The two met outside of Dallas late Tuesday night after Johnson and Jones parted ways despite winning two consecutive Super Bowls.

It was the mention of Switzer in a barroom tirade in Orlando, Fla., by Jones that infuriated Johnson to the point of wanting to leave the Cowboys.

"All of this is highly ironic," the source said. "Jerry believes that Switzer can quickly adapt to the NFL and that his college background won't be a detrimental factor."

"Switzer won't get the kind of long-term deal that Jimmy got and of course Jerry will now be in charge of all the management and personnel decisions."

The source said Switzer had met with several assistant coaches this morning to try to iron out the transition from Johnson, who has openly expressed his dislike for Switzer going back to the days when Johnson was head coach at Oklahoma State.

Troy Aikman also is reportedly headed to Valley Ranch to meet with the new coach.

It remains to be seen how much Aikman would respect Switzer, whom he played for as a freshman at Oklahoma before transferring to UCLA.

"There's no reason Barry can't be a great NFL head coach," Aikman told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "People think we have problems because I left there. But he was as friendly and as helpful as could be to me. Now, I think of us as being friends."

Switzer, 56, won three national titles in 16 years at Oklahoma before leaving amid several scandals involving arrests of his players. He went 157-29-4 at OU and won or tied for 12 Big Eight titles.

An Arkansas native, Switzer and Jones played together for the Arkansas Razorbacks.

Johnson was diplomatic in his response to reports that Switzer will replace him, saying it is strictly Jones' decision.

"It's a little bit of a surprise to me, but again, that's Jerry's decision," Johnson said this morning on NBC's "Today" show. "We'll just have to wait and see how it works."

Johnson's resignation capped a longstanding feud that boiled over last week when Jones suggested in a barroom conversation that he should hire a new coach, and his remarks got back to Johnson. At the time, he mentioned Switzer as a replacement.

Jones gave Johnson a multimillion-dollar settlement and the two were amiable at their news conference.

"There's no way in the world either one of us could have done all this without each other," said Johnson, happy to be leaving even though it meant giving up a chance for a record third straight Super Bowl victory.

This morning, Jones sneaked into the Cowboys offices the back way, driving his automobile around the lawn to his office to avoid the media-patrolled parking lot.

Johnson, 50, said he expects to coach again, although no NFL head coaching positions are open for the

Cowboys' coaching move isn't in team's best interest

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

It figures that two men so adept at hogging credit wouldn't have a clue about sharing blame.

The only thing less believable than the chummy way Jerry Jones and Jimmy Johnson parted company may be that neither claimed to have originated no-fault divorce.

Said Jones: "We have mutually agreed that if we don't look out, we'll take some of the greatest accomplishments in all of sports and maybe turn it into something that's not in the best interests of the Dallas Cowboys."

Said Johnson: "I can truly say he understands me better than ever before, and I think I can say I understand him. After these discussions, we felt it would be in the best interests of the Dallas Cowboys that I no longer be the head coach."

The best interests of the 49ers were served, certainly. And maybe the best interests of the Redskins, Giants, Eagles, everybody else in the NFC, and whichever team the AFC sends as its ritual sacrifice in next year's Super Bowl.

But the Dallas Cowboys? Get serious.

Those stirring testimonies aside, anyone who thinks what happened Tuesday was in the best interest of the Cowboys needs to have their helmet examined for cracks. In the span of a few hours, what looked like a rock-solid model for rebuilding a pro football franchise and carrying it into the next century unraveled faster than Burt and Loni. Some surprise. The bigger surprise is that Jerry and Jimmy announced it sitting side-by-side during a news conference at the Cowboys' (Less-Than) Happy Valley Ranch headquarters, instead of exclusively on one of those tabloid television shows.

Imagine the smirks on the faces of the producers if Johnson had dropped that same line about "No one incident led to this" on their show; it's practically a challenge to pull the videotape on every public tiff he and Jones ever had. There are plenty.

There was the time Jones met an overweight guy at a bar, liked him, and sent him to see Johnson, all serious and everything, about a tryout.

And the time Jones ushered Saudi Prince Bandar along the Cowboys sideline during a game, then brought him into the locker room.

And there was the Emmitt Smith holdout.

And lest we forget, there was last week when Jones, in yet another bar, let slip that 500 other people - including himself and Barry Switzer, Johnson's bitter rival and reported successor - could have coached the Cowboys and done just as good a job.

Of course, Jones' side of the story is not without tabloid appeal either. There was the time, at the end of last season, when Johnson pronounced himself "intrigued" by the challenge of doing for the expansion Jacksonville Jaguars what he claimed to have done for Dallas. And the time, on David Letterman's show, when he got caught up in the spirit of the moment and tweaked Jones for being cheap. And meddlesome.

Just as there was enough credit for each to claim after winning consecutive Super Bowls, there will be more than enough blame to go around after Dallas fails to win a third.

What happened in Dallas on Tuesday, what is about to happen in the season ahead, is an old story. Two people sacrifice everything for success and find out there is only one thing left to sacrifice after they attain it: each other.

Sonics blast Blazers for sixth straight win

By The Associated Press
The opposition is talking about Seattle's defense again, a sure sign the SuperSonics are on another winning streak.
"They're frustrating because they reach and they hack and they hold," Clyde Drexler said after the Sonics broke open a close game in the fourth quarter on the way to their sixth straight victory, 114-100 over Portland on Tuesday night. "But you can't complain. They're effective with it."
Veteran Trail Blazers forward Buck Williams was complaining, however, calling George Karl's defense a zone.

"That sort of reminded me of playing college basketball," he said. "Coach Karl has done a very fine job of sort of disguising his defensive strategy. They're just sort of standing there, switching and fronting and making it very difficult on the entry pass."
The Sonics forced the Trail Blazers into seven turnovers in the fourth quarter and used a 13-3 run to take a 99-90 lead. Drexler had two turnovers during the decisive spurt. Shawn Kemp scored 16 of his 28 points in the third quarter, including his first 3-pointer of the season, to lead six Sonics in double figures. Kendall Gill scored 20 points and Gary Payton had 18 points, nine assists and no turnovers for Seattle.

Rod Strickland had career-high 30 points and 10 assists and Clifford Robinson had 26 points and a career-best seven blocked shots for the Blazers.
Rockets 122, Kings 101
Houston, playing its first game in two years without Hakeem Olajuwon and with two players ejected in the first half, won at Sacramento behind Otis Thorpe's 21 points and 18 rebounds.

Olajuwon was suspended for one game for hitting a referee on Sunday. Carl Herrera was ejected in the first quarter after punching Sacramento center Olden Polynice, and Vernon Maxwell was ejected with two technicals.
Mitch Richmond led the Kings with 24 points.
Spurs 117, Mavericks 92
David Robinson dominated inside with 37 points as San Antonio won at Dallas, the Mavericks' 15th consecutive defeat.

Lakers 91, Timberwolves 89
Magic Johnson won his second straight game as coach when Nick Van Exel's layup broke a tie with two seconds left.
Elden Campbell led the Lakers with 27 points. Isaiah Rider, who missed a jumper as time expired, led visiting Minnesota with 22 points.
Magic 120, Bullets 101
Orlando matched a club record with its 41st victory as Shaquille O'Neal scored 25 points and Nick Anderson 18 to hand visiting Washington its ninth straight defeat.
Don MacLean had 23 points for the Bullets.
Warriors 116, Jazz 113
Latrell Sprewell scored 35 points as Golden State won at Utah.
Sprewell scored the go-ahead basket, a drive from the baseline into the lane, to put the Warriors ahead 102-101 with 3:10 remaining. That started Golden State on a 9-1 run.
Karl Malone had 24 points and a career-high 23 rebounds for the Jazz.
Hawks 101, Nets 98
Atlanta improved its record at home to an NBA-best 31-5 as Kevin Willis had 24 points and 16 rebounds.
Derrick Coleman had 16 points and 18 rebounds for the Nets.

Knicks 106, Hornets 95
New York won its 14th consecutive game as Charles Oakley, a doubtful starter because of a knee sprain, had a season-high 22 points and grabbed 17 rebounds.
Alonzo Mourning scored 28 points for the visiting Hornets.
Cavaliers 106, Clippers 96
Gerald Wilkins scored 12 of his 28 points in the third quarter, lifting Cleveland over Los Angeles.
Cleveland won its third consecutive game and the visiting Clippers, who got 26 points from Dominique Wilkins, lost their third straight.
Pistons 123, Heat 115
Sean Elliott scored eight of his 16 points in the final 3:06 as Detroit won at Miami.
Joe Dumars paced Detroit with 30 points, all but five in the first and third quarters.
Matt Geiger scored 23 points for the Heat.
Bulls 106, 76ers 103
Scottie Pippen scored 27 points as three-time defending NBA champion Chicago clinched a playoff spot while handing visiting Philadelphia its eighth straight loss.

Rick Fox had a career-high 33 points and hit six free throws in overtime to lead Boston at Milwaukee.

Vandy, Villanova to meet for NIT title

NEW YORK (AP) - Jan van Breda Kolff is in only his first year at Vanderbilt, and he's already about as good as a basketball coach as the Commodores have had.
With an 82-76 victory over Kansas State in the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament on Monday, he clinched the best winning percentage of any Vanderbilt rookie coach.
The Commodores are 20-11 for a .645 winning percentage. The previous best for a first-year coach was .600 in 1989-90 by Eddie Fogler.
"We have played very well down the stretch," van Breda Kolff said. "There was just that one lapse."
That would be Vanderbilt's 81-56 loss to Auburn in the first round of the Southeastern Conference tournament, which sent the Commodores to the NIT instead of the NCAA.
Tonight, they play in the NIT final against Villanova, which lost to eventual Big East tournament champion Providence in the first round of their tournament.

"We picked the wrong time to have a bad game in the SEC tournament," van Breda Kolff said. "We've had a good season, but so has Villanova. We just both happened to lose in the first round of our tournaments."
Vanderbilt is an excellent shooting team, led by Billy McCaffrey (21.1 ppg) and Ronnie McMahan (15.4 ppg). Van Breda Kolff says ball movement is the key.
"If you have patience on offense, you usually shoot at a higher percentage when you have the kind of shooters we do," he said.
Vanderbilt averages 46.4 percent from the field, compared with 43.6 percent for Villanova.
After the bad game against Auburn, Vanderbilt's first NIT game came at Oklahoma, and that was expected to be the end of the Commodores.
"When we went to Norman, Okla., for our first game, a lot of people didn't think we'd get this far, but if you look at the power ratings of these teams, Vanderbilt, Villanova and Georgia Tech were the top three in the field. Two of those three are here," van Breda Kolff said.

"So I don't think it's a real surprise, but we had to work very hard to be here, just like Villanova."
Steve Lappas, a former Manhattan coach, is in his second season at Villanova.
The 1985 national champion Wildcats (19-12) are led in scoring by sophomore Kerry Kittles with an average of 19.7, but the real difference for Lappas' young squad this year has been the play of freshmen Jason Lawson and Alvin Williams.
"To be honest with you, if somebody had told me before the season, 'Here's 12 wins,' I wouldn't have played a game," Lappas said. "We were picked as a legitimate 10th place team in the Big East. Who knew Alvin Williams and Jason Lawson were going to be these kinds of players. You never know about freshmen."

"That's the thing that made us a good or very good team - these two guys coming on. The other three guys have been our constants," Lappas said.
Williams has become the team's point guard, running the offense, while the 6-foot-6 Lawson has an average of 10.2 points and leads the team in rebounding with 6.7 a game, just ahead of Kittles 6.5.
"We've improved tremendously in rebounding," Lappas said. "And that's Jason. He finally got the lead over Kittles, our two guard, and if your two guard leads you in rebounding, you're in trouble."
The consolation game earlier at the Garden will have Kansas State (20-13) against Siena (24-8).

Baylor coach plans to fight for her job

WACO, Texas (AP) - Pam Bowers says she had anticipated for several months that she would be fired this spring as Baylor's basketball coach, but that the timing of the announcement was what came by surprise.
Ms. Bowers, 45, vowed to fight to regain her job again, saying the school fired her because of complaints she lodged last year concerning alleged violations in the men's basketball program run by coach Darrell Johnson.
"I have the definite intention of pursuing this all the way to the end. I have nothing to lose. It's important I do this because of what I taught my players to do, to keep fighting until the buzzer," Ms. Bowers said.
She has no interest in coaching at another school, she said.
Ms. Bowers' attorney, LaNelle McNamara of Waco, was with her at a news conference Tuesday at the Bowers' residence and said a lawsuit will be filed soon in federal court to force Baylor to rehire her.
The suit, which will ask also that Ms. Bowers be awarded a substantial cash judgment, alleges she was fired for blowing the whistle on the men's program, not for a losing record, as her letter of termination alleged.
"I think she is being dismissed in retaliation for reporting sex discrimination at Baylor, for reporting Title IX violations and in retaliation for complying with NCAA rules requiring reports of NCAA violations," Ms. McNamara said.
However, Ms. Bowers said that to her knowledge, none of what she reported was connected in any way to the season-long suspension of four varsity men's players. The eligibility of the four - all junior college transfers - is under investigation.

Ms. Bowers said she complained when she learned that a term paper was being faxed from Baylor athletic offices to WestArk Community College, where Baylor was recruiting two male basketball players.
She said she didn't know to whom the term paper was being faxed. When pressed to elaborate, she said, "I think the term paper had to do with Mike Tyson."
She said she also reported allegations of excessive entertainment to recruits by the men's basketball program.
As part of her sex discrimination and Title IX complaints, Ms. Bower noted that she was paid $36,900 while Johnson was paid $95,000, and that his top assistant even made more than she did. She said the men's basketball budget was $672,828, compared to $314,464 for the women's basketball program.
Ms. Bower filed her Title IX complaint against the university last summer and the Office of Civil Rights has been investigating the school.
Baylor fired Ms. Bower last May 24 after saying it found six violations of NCAA rules within the women's basketball program under her guidance.
She was rehired three weeks later, but worked the past year without a contract, she said, after she refused to sign a two-year contract that stipulated she could be fired for virtually any reason, including violations in other sports.
Notification of her second termination in 10 months came on Monday in a letter from athletic director Richard Ellis.
Ellis wrote that she was being fired for "your continuing failure to achieve win-loss success as coach of the basketball team, including your failure to achieve a winning season this past year, and the record of your team against Southwest Conference schools."

Ellis wrote that she was being terminated immediately, although she would be paid through the end of her contract, which expires on May 31.
Ms. McNamara noted that the firing Monday came only three days before the NCAA is to report on its investigation into allegations that led to the suspension of the four players on the men's team.
"If they waited until after that to fire her, it would lend more credence to retaliation. So they probably hurried up and did it first," Ms. McNamara said.
"I'm just kind of numb," Ms. Bowers said. "I don't hold any animosity for anyone, but I don't have a lot of respect for anybody making decisions at Baylor right now."
Ellis said the school will initiate a nationwide search for her replacement. Ms. Bowers said her assistants were told they will be considered for the job.
Ms. Bowers had a 168-257 record in 15 seasons as Baylor's coach. Baylor was 13-14 last season (4-10 in SWC play), but among the victories was the Bears' first ever over the Texas Lady Longhorns, 81-75 in Waco.

But after that victory, Baylor closed the season with five straight losses, including an 85-72 defeat to Texas A&M in the first round of the post-season tournament.
Ms. Bowers, who began her career at the first women's coach at McLennan Community College in Waco, enjoyed only three winning seasons at Baylor - 16-11 in 1981-82, 16-14 in 1982-83 and 15-12 in 1983-84.

Yanks release Maas to try to hook on elsewhere

By The Associated Press
 All Kevin Maas ever wanted was a job, a fulltime, day-in, day-out spot in the New York Yankees lineup. And after he broke in with 21 home runs in 1990, it seemed a reasonable goal. Now, Maas may find that job, but it won't be with the Yankees.

Maas' misfortune is that he is a first baseman, the same position as Yankee staple Don Mattingly. And with Mattingly healthy, Maas' playing time was reduced each year. Finally, the club cut the cord on Tuesday, releasing him.

"I always wanted to play for the Yankees and I always wanted to play more than I did," Maas said. "I'm only looking at it as a positive. I'm going to get more of a chance to play somewhere."

Maas, 29, hit .205 with nine home runs and 25 RBI in 151 at-bats last year for the Yankees. He also spent time at Triple-A Columbus, where he batted .279 with four homers and 18 RBI in 104 at-bats.

His roster spot this spring went to outfielder Daryl Boston, who signed as a free agent after hitting .261 with 14 home runs and 40 RBI last year for the Colorado Rockies.

On the field Tuesday, Boston celebrated with a three-run homer to lead New York past the Montreal Expos 6-2.

Cubs 10, Giants 4
 At Mesa, Ariz., Ryne Sandberg's two-run double and a three-run homer by Rick Wilkins sparked a six-run eighth inning.

Indians 1, Marlins 0
 At Marlins, Fla., Dendrier

Martinez tuned up for his seventh consecutive opening day start by throwing seven scoreless innings.

Twins 4, White Sox 1
 At Fort Myers, Fla., Pat Mahomes pitched six scoreless innings.

Royals 11, Reds 4
 At Haines City, Fla., Cincinnati reliever Rob Dibble walked five batters, including two with the bases loaded in a four-run seventh inning.

Red Sox 7, Rangers 1
 At Fort Myers, Fla., the Boston Red Sox stole four bases giving them 37 for the spring and scored six runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

Blue Jays 4, Tigers 4
 At Vero Beach, Fla., Brian

Williams pitched six strong innings and Luis Gonzalez drove in two runs.

Pirates 11, Cardinals 8
 At St. Petersburg, Fla., Brian Hunter's three-run homer keyed a four-run fifth inning.

Mets 6, Braves 0
 At West Palm Beach, Jeremy Burnitz hit a two-run triple in the first inning and Anthony Young pitched five scoreless innings.

Orioles 6, Phillies 6
 At Clearwater, Fla., Baltimore and Philadelphia agreed to end the four-hour, 15-minute game after 11 innings.

Blue Jays 4, Tigers 4
 At Lakeland, Fla., Cecil Fielder's

RBI double in the seventh pulled Detroit into a 4-4 tie and the two managers decided to end it at 11:05 p.m. after three hours of play.

Angels 10, Padres 6
 At Peoria, Ariz., Harold Reynolds, traded to California earlier in the day for pitcher Hilly Hathaway, went 2-for-6 with a double and a triple.

Mariners 13, Rockies 8
 At Tucson, Ariz., Tino Martinez had three hits, including a home run, and four RBIs.

Athletics 8, Brewers 3
 At Chandler, Ariz., Geronimo Berroa, who has slugged his way onto the A's as a non-roster player, hit a three-run homer.

Mercer acquitted of fixing fight

NEW YORK (AP) - Heavyweight contender Ray Mercer plans to resume his boxing career now that a jury has cleared him of charges that he offered Jesse Ferguson $100,000 in mid-fight to take a dive.

And when he gets back into the ring, Mercer said, "Believe me, my lips won't move."

The jury deliberated for just five hours before acquitting Mercer on Tuesday afternoon of sports bribery. The trial in Manhattan's state Supreme Court lasted two weeks.

Mercer's mother, Betty, squealed in delight, then covered her face and eyes when the verdict was read.

Mercer, sitting at the defense table with his fingers intertwined, showed no emotion.

"The Lord knows I'm innocent, and it showed today," the 31-year-old fighter said afterward.

COWBOYS

Johnson was expected to spend several more days at the Cowboys' headquarters before heading to the Florida Keys to relax on his boat and move into a new house in the area.

Johnson, who originally signed a 10-year contract to coach the Cowboys, received permission to join any team he wants - whenever he wants - despite the five years left on his contract.

In the five years he spent in Dallas, Johnson took the Cowboys from 1-15 to consecutive Super Bowl titles. He said he's leaving not because he couldn't do it again, but because he was having trouble wanting to.

"This boiled down to a personal thing between Jimmy and Jerry," said Cowboys defensive coordinator Butch Davis, who's spent 15 years working with Johnson. "It was nothing about football, it was nothing about management. This was personal."

Johnson and Jones had been trading verbal salvos since the Cowboys defeated the Buffalo Bills 30-13 in the Super Bowl in January.

The players, who still have to answer to Jones, were staying out of that aspect of the breakup.

"I'm paid to play football, but I had a lot of respect for what Jimmy Johnson did," said quarterback Troy Aikman.

It remained to be seen how Aikman would get along with Switzer. The quarterback played for Switzer as a freshman at Oklahoma before transferring to UCLA.

"There's no reason Barry can't be a great NFL head coach," Aikman told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "People think we have problems because I left there. But he was as friendly and as helpful as could be to me. Now, I think of us as being friends."

Emmitt Smith was not immediately reachable for comment. However, last week he said, "If you fire Jimmy, you fire me."

Michael Irvin, who played for Johnson at Miami, stormed around Valley Ranch slamming doors. He sat still long enough to say "it hurts."

Free agent defensive lineman Tony Casillas played for Switzer at Oklahoma and said he'd like to see his old coach in Dallas.

"He's a lot like Jimmy in that he knows how to win," Casillas said. "But he knows how to have fun, too."

As for Johnson, Fox Sports, which owns the NFC television rights, is courting him to be an analyst.

"We certainly welcome the opportunity to discuss with Jimmy Johnson the possibility of coming to Fox Sports," Fox Sports president David Hill said. "We would love to have a two-time Super Bowl winning coach on our broadcast team."

Annual fundraiser scheduled

The public is invited to participate in the Hereford Pilot Club's Annual 42 Tournament planned from 7-10 p.m. Thursday in King's Manor Lamar Room. Tickets are priced at $5 per person and can be purchased at the door. All proceeds will be used for various community projects. Refreshments will be served throughout the evening's festivities and the grand prize of a card table and chairs will be awarded.

HHS students are honored

The UIL contest was recently held at West Texas A&M University. High school students who received a one rating on a Class II vocal solo included (standing, from left) Michelle Kovacs, Jessica Sorenson, Cady Auckerman, Christie Sapp, Rebecca Gutierrez (Class III), (seated, from left) Scott Shaw, Mandy Matheny and Michelle Williams. Not pictured are Alicia Benegas and Brian Thomas.

CINCINNATI (AP) - The last time Jerry Rubin visited his alma mater, federal agents chased him away. A quarter-century later, he returned as an invited guest.

The former Yippie came back to Walnut Hills High School to raise money for its centennial celebration next year.

"It's liberating. Everybody's gone so it's almost a new place," said Rubin, class of '56.

In 1969, Rubin wasn't allowed to speak at the school because police and federal agents were concerned about his role in the riots at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

"They treated me like I was King Kong, coming to demolish the place," said Rubin, who spoke about entrepreneurship and pitched a vitamin product on Thursday.

Some students weren't impressed by the 55-year-old Rubin, who once threw dollar bills onto the New York Stock Exchange to protest the excesses of capitalism.

"My goals in life are not to be rich," said Kristi Kreeger, 16. "He has become what he preached against."

American humorist Will Rogers and pilot Wiley Post were killed in an airplane crash in 1935 near Point Barrow, Alaska.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for over five years. We are having a terrible problem, and I don't know what to do about it.

I love "Jimmy" very much, and he loves me. We have five children--three teenagers from my first marriage and two daughters. We also had two cats that lived with me for four years before I married Jimmy. These cats were part of my family for a long time.

Last year, "Tony," the older cat, developed health and personality problems that we could no longer deal with. He was blind in one eye and incontinent. Because of the mess in the house, we kept the cats in the garage. The vet who treated Tony recommended that we have him put to sleep.

I prepared the children for this and asked Jimmy to take the cat to the Humane Society. I found out that while the children and I were away from the house, instead, Jimmy put the cat in a box, hooked it up to the car exhaust and killed him.

When he told me what he had done, I was horrified. I find it hard to believe he would do such a brutal thing. Jimmy says I am being ridiculous. He insists it is no different from swatting a mosquito or killing a spider, and since we were going to have Tony euthanized anyway, he just saved us $50.

I'm having a difficult time dealing with this. I cannot tell the children because they would never forgive Jimmy. Is this "no big deal" as he says? What do you say, Ann?--Garden City, Mich.

DEAR GARDEN CITY: It's very difficult to reason with a person who sees no difference between swatting mosquito and killing a cat. And let us not overlook the fact that this wasn't just ANY cat, it was you beloved pet.

That Jimmy took this matter into his own hands to save $50 says a great deal about his lack of sensitivity. I hope he sees this letter and the kids don't.

Gem of the Day: Happiness makes up in height for what it lacks in length.

Ann Landers' latest booklet,

"Nuggets and Doozies," has everything from the outrageously funny to the poignantly insightful. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

The earliest known fabric made with a pile is called the Pazyryk rug. It was made about 425 BC and was discovered in southern Siberia.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) - Bobcat Goldthwait says he's rude, sure, but he's no shoplifter.

The comedian who played a deranged cop in the "Police Academy" movies was detained by police Thursday after a grocery store clerk accused him of shoplifting a pack of Roloids.

"When the clerk said she wanted to search my pockets, I told her I would rather have dinner and drinks first," Goldthwait said. "Needless to say, that didn't get a smile out of her and she called the cops."

Goldthwait was released and no charges were filed after police searched him and found nothing. Employees at the Cub Food store apologized.

DEAR DR. LAMB: How much protein does a 1-year-old baby need? My daughter says babies are vegetarians, so it doesn't matter if they have meat. She feeds her son fruit and vegetables for lunch and jars of "dinners" and fruit for supper. Breakfast is cereal and fruit. This baby does not get many jars of meat. Also, how much milk should a baby have per day? The veggies are sweet potatoes, squash, green beans, peas, carrots, broccoli, cheese and carrots.

DEAR READER: A 1-year-old child should get at least 23 grams of protein a day. But that may not be enough because the quality of the protein makes a difference. The child must get enough of the essential amino acids in the protein he consumes. These are the amino acids the body cannot manufacture from other proteins or other foods. If they are not provided, the child will be undernourished. Growth, both physical and mental, may be retarded.

With the exception of mature bean seeds — particularly soybeans — cereals, vegetables and fruit do not contain high-quality protein to provide the needed essential amino acids. Vegetarians manage this problem using the right combination of vegetables, such as corn plus mature beans. The best sources of complete protein to provide essential amino acids are the meats (red meats, poultry and fish) and milk. Mother nature's plan is for the young to nurse. A baby calf is certainly a vegetarian, but he gets his complete protein from his mother's milk. He also has a different metabolic system from humans.

The point is, a 1-year-old child must get 23 grams of good-quality protein whether it is from milk or foods from the meat group or from the combined foods in his diet. I note the child does get cheese (listed with the vegetables), which should provide protein and calcium. How much protein he gets in meat will affect how much milk he needs. If milk were the only source of protein (which evidently is not the case), he would need about 3 cups of milk a day to meet his protein requirements.

When you think protein, think amino acids. I'm sending you a free copy of Special Issue 32-12, Amino Acids and Proteins, for more details and tables that space doesn't permit in this column. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-12, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. The child also needs sufficient calories from all sources, otherwise the protein will be used for calories, rather than to build new tissue.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Recently a friend told me that drinking carbonated beverages decreases the amount of oxygen allowed into the body each time you breathe. Is this true? How much will it affect my athletic performance?

DEAR READER: Not true. The only difference from non-carbonated drinks that are similar is that they release carbon dioxide, which produces the fizz. That occurs in the digestive tract and can be a source of unwanted gas. The amount of oxygen your blood can carry depends on how much hemoglobin in red blood cells arrives at the lungs to be loaded with oxygen, and the ability of oxygen to cross the lung membranes. What occurs in the stomach from carbonate beverages does not influence this.

I don't think much of drinking carbonated beverages before vigorous exercise because of the distention that may occur. How much blood the heart can pump to the lungs is the main determining factor on how much oxygen can be delivered in healthy individuals.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 71-year-old female, in good health, but have lost my sex drive. Is this normal, or is there something I can take? My husband is 75 and still going strong. So you can see any help will be appreciated.

DEAR READER: It used to be thought that older people were sexless people and little children were sexless angels. Neither is true. It is usual for older people to continue to enjoy a satisfying sex life as long as their health status permits.

There are many factors that influence a person's sex drive, whether male or female. One of these is hormones, particularly in women. Hormones seem to have a greater influence in animals than in humans, but a low estrogen level can influence a woman's sex drive. Of course, if the vagina is dry and painful because of a low estrogen level, sex loses its attraction.

Some women never really have a strong sex drive and it disappears easily. Others who did, will continue to, if their hormone levels are adequate, they are in good health and they have a partner who is attractive to them.

Woman spends 2 1/2 days trapped in wrecked auto

DALLAS (AP) - A mile from one of the nation's busiest airports, Jamie Peavy sat trapped in her wrecked pickup for 2 1/2 days, rationing mints and using her purse to scoop water from a creek. So sure she was going to die, she used lipstick and jotted a note: "Nobody killed me. I had a wreck."

"Friday night, I ran off the road," she wrote her family. "Saturday and Sunday, there's no one around. My legs are pinned, the door is stuck. 'I love you all.'"

On Monday, a construction worker inspecting a site near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport heard her cry and got help.

"I was walking toward the ravine and I thought I heard somebody say, 'Help me,'" Robert Ryding said.

Miss Peavy had suffered two broken legs, a broken wrist, a broken rib, a punctured lung, cuts, bruises and dehydration.

But she was alive. She was listed in serious condition Tuesday at Baylor University Medical Center, after undergoing surgery.

"Her first words to me were, 'I'm glad to see you,' and 'I thought you were never going to find me,'" said her mother, Martha Peavy.

"This was truly a miracle - a miracle."

Miss Peavy, a 25-year-old cashier from Irving, was driving to a friend's house after work Friday night when she missed her exit. She turned onto the next road, thinking she could turn around. "She was on this road ... it narrowed down into two lanes and I guess one, then all of a sudden there was no more road. That's all she remembers," her mother told reporters.

The pickup plunged 10 feet down a ravine.

"She said she remembers hitting her head before going down in the ravine, and then she doesn't remember landing and then later she woke up," said her sister, Patricia.

Patricia Peavy said that when Jamie woke up, she looked at her clock. It was 12:30 a.m. Four hours had passed since the accident, but it was only the beginning of her ordeal.

For the next 2 1/2 days, she fought to stay alive.

Dressed in jean shorts and a short red top, Miss Peavy suffered through temperatures that neared freezing.

She tied her belt to her purse and used it as a cup, throwing it out the window to capture water from the creek underneath her.

"Then the water got too low where she couldn't get water from her purse, so she took her shirt off and tied that to her belt and let it soak up water, and she would get water from her shirt," her sister said.

When it rained Saturday night, she used a medicine bottle to catch rainwater.

For food, she ate 5-month-old, bloodied mints she found in the bottom of her purse. She had saved the candies stamped "It's a Boy" after the birth of a nephew in October.

When she ran out Sunday, she began eating diet pills that she had in her purse.

During the daytime, she would sleep, trying to reserve some strength. At night, she stayed awake, afraid of the shadows formed by pieces of cement protruding from the ditch.

"She's a very plucky young lady, and I think the fact that psychologically she's been able to try to keep on top of this from the beginning has helped a lot," said Dr. Alex Santos, one of her surgeons.

"I think the fact that she kept her courage up and kept trying and didn't give up is ... going to help her because she is going to have a long rehabilitation period for her leg injuries."

Santos said Miss Peavy would need additional operations to repair the bone and tissue in her legs, and that there is a chance she may never walk again.

Despite her ordeal, Miss Peavy was happy and joking Tuesday, her mother said.

She said her daughter wasn't always a fighter, particularly after her father died a year ago.

"When he died, she said, 'Well my daddy's dead now and I really don't care if I live.' This proves that she really didn't mean that. She does want to live."

Late freeze may have damaged some, but not all, of peach crop

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Spring has hit most of the state, although this week's cold snap damaged some of the peach crop in northeast Texas and the Hill Country, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reported Tuesday.

But Extension horticulturalist Dr. Calvin Lyons of College Station said the late freeze probably won't have much of an impact on the total peach crop.

"The farther north in the state you go, the later the trees bloom," he said. "And south, it's warm, so there's not that much to worry about in terms of losses."

"Even though peaches are grown over a large portion of the state, they're not a big crop because of these early spring frosts we get," Lyons said. "We lose one crop in five every year, so that's not too bad."

But because peach trees usually produce 1,000 peaches, Lyons said, the frost may actually help producers who don't have the capacity to store all of the fruit.

"Generally, 400 to 500 peaches per tree is adequate," he said. "In Texas we have three crops: one we plant, one that freezes and the one we harvest. Right now, we're on the second one."

Jon Zeidler, a meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said the cooler weather for much of the peach regions will remain until the end of the week.

"Because a high pressure system is in the dominant position for the rest of the week, it's going to be pretty cool," Zeidler said.

But he said all agricultural producers should look forward to a warm and sunny weekend.

"This weekend will be a perfect time for producers to finish their land preparation for the remainder of the crops," he said. "The only places that should see rain are El Paso and Midland."

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short to adequate. Unseasonably warm weather and high winds. Cattle good. Cattle making good gains.

Wheat making rapid growth as moisture allows. Land preparation active; fruit trees in bloom.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short to very short. Extremely dry and windy; irrigation continues. Russian wheat aphid and greenbug infestations are requiring treatment in some areas.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate. Wheat conditions good, rangelands beginning to show some growth. Livestock fair; supplemental feeding continues. Prescribed burning continues.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus to adequate. Livestock fair; some supplemental feeding. Cattle market is strong. Corn 100 percent planted. Pastures good to fair. Onions are doing well. Gardens being prepared for spring planting. Insecticide and fungicide spraying of peach trees.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short. Livestock good to poor; supplemental feeding continues due to weather and poor forage quality. Spring windy season began. Moisture needed in many areas. Onions making progress. Some trees are blooming.

First Lady's commodities investments draw scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) - With the help of a well-connected friend, Hillary Rodham Clinton parlayed $1,000 into nearly $100,000 in the cattle futures market as her husband claimed the Arkansas governor's office.

She hit the ground running, turning a $5,300 profit on her first trade.

The White House released the figures Tuesday, along with 21 pages of supporting documents, trying to refute speculation that Mrs. Clinton reaped windfall profits in 1978 and 1979 without investing any money of her own.

But the disclosures raised new questions. The most prominent: How did a novice investor profit a hundredfold in the volatile commodities market?

"It's been done, but it's one-in-a-thousand," said Jeffrey Piper, a broker with Lind-Wallock & Co. in Denver. "In fact, the odds are higher than that."

Several commodities brokers said Mrs. Clinton's first venture into the market appeared to be unusually successful but that such profits were not unheard of at a time when cattle futures prices were in a record upswing because of reduced herds and inflation.

Mrs. Clinton abruptly quit trading in 1980 after her daughter, Chelsea, was born. An aide said Mrs. Clinton found the business "too nerve-racking. She just didn't have the stomach for it anymore."

Aides said Mrs. Clinton never invested more than the $1,000, plus any profits she had accumulated. However, she, like other commodity futures traders, ran the risk of losing substantially more than her initial investment had the market moved against her.

Mrs. Clinton made her first trade in October 1978, less than a month before the Arkansas governor's campaign. At that time, President Clinton was the state's attorney general.

White House officials said Mrs. Clinton made the trades after consulting several people, including Jim Blair, a longtime Clinton friend and chief counsel for poultry giant Tysons Food Inc., an economic and political force in Arkansas.

Questions also were raised about Mrs. Clinton's broker, Robert L. Bone, who had been disciplined by regulators both before and after her commodity trading. He was accused, among other things, of allocating trades to investors after he had determined whether the trades were winners or losers.

There is no evidence that Mrs. Clinton benefited from allocation of profitable trades to her account.

"She had no knowledge of any allocation of trades," said one White House official. The officials, designated by Mrs. Clinton to discuss her trading, briefed reporters on the condition they not be identified by name.

Blair has said Mrs. Clinton did not get special treatment in the investment. He denies that she benefited from the allocation of profitable trades to her account.

Bone worked in the Springdale, Ark., office of the Ray E. Friedman brokerage firm, or REFCO.

The documents suggested that Mrs. Clinton reinvested the principal and proceeds in several transactions, accumulating trading profits of $49,069 in 1978 against $22,548 in losses. Her net gain for 1978 was $26,521.

Letting her winnings ride, she made profits of $109,600 in 1979 and losses of $36,600. Her net gain for that year was $72,996. The White House indicated the difference came in the rounding off of figures.

She closed the account in July 1979 - after making more than $99,000 on the original $1,000. The Clintons combined salaries amounted to $51,000 in 1978 and $74,000 in 1979.

Tax returns for 1977-79 and other documents released by the White House last Friday showed the nearly $100,000 gain but did not list what Mrs. Clinton had paid for the commodities, the date acquired or the date sold.

That raised questions over how much of her own money Mrs. Clinton put into the investment. The White House issued the new material after a Newsweek magazine story suggested Mrs. Clinton did not invest any of her own money.

Newsweek has since backed off its report.

In October 1979, Mrs. Clinton opened a second account with $5,000 she had made in the initial investment, the documents suggested.

She opened it through her stockbroker Stephens Inc. in Little Rock, Ark., which traded commodity futures. Before she closed out this account in March 1980, she lost $560 in 1979 and $449 in 1980, the White House documents show.
