Number of Hispanics to jump by 2020

WASHINGTON (AP) - People of Hispanic origin will make up 40 percent of the Texas population three decades from now, according to government projections.

The projections, released Wednesday by the U.S. Census Bureau, indicate that all minority groups except American Indians will constitute increasing percentages of the Texas population by the year 2020.

The state's population as a whole nearly 18 million in 1993 - is projected to grow to 25.5 million by 2020. The government says Texas will surpass New York as the nation's second most populous state sometime this year. California is projected to surpass Texas through 2020.

Whites who made up 85.2 of the state population in 1993, will drop to 61.9 percent by the year 2020, the study said.

Meanwhile, people of Hispanic origin are projected to become 40.3 percent of the state population, up from 11.1 percent in 1993.

Immigration and rapid population growth are expected to make Hispanics the largest U.S. minority by 2020, totaling 51.2 million, or 15.7 percent of the population. That's up from 9.7 percent in 1993.

Under Census categories, people of Hispanic origin can be of any race, so many Hispanics are counted as both white and of Hispanic origin.

The projections estimate the state's white population will increase by 5.8 million during the next three decades, while the number of people of Hispanic origin will increase by 5.4 million.

Texas is expected to gain 2.2 million people through international migration between 1990 and 2020.

Blacks are expected to make up 12.6 percent of the Texas population by the year 2020, up from 12.1 percent in 1993.

The percentage of Asians and Pacific Islanders in Texas is projected to move to 4.2 percent from 2.3 percent during the same period.

The bureau said it expected American Indians to drop from 0.4 percent to 0.3 percent during the same time span.

Shooting investigation

Hereford Police Cpl. Brent Harrison, left, and Detective Esrael Silva confer while they look over a car in which Yanette Salazar, 2, of Hereford was shot on Wednesday at 221 Bradley. The child died from a gunshot wound that apparently occurred when she and a neighbor child were playing with a gun found in the car. The police investigation is continuing.

2-year-old girl dies in accidental shooting

A loaded .380 automatic left beneath the seat of a car resulted in the fatal shooting of a two-year-old Hereford child Wednesday, Hereford Police said.

Police Chief David Wagner identified the victim as Yanette Salazar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Salazar.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine ruled the shooting as accidental and said no autopsy will be ordered.

According to witnesses, the victim and a four-year-old friend were playing in the yard at 221 Bradley Street Wednesday afternoon and found the gun in a parked car. Somehow the weapon discharged, striking the child in the chest. She was pronounced dead at Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Wagner said his department has not yet determined who pulled the trigger and the shooting is still under investigation.

According to the police report, the owner of the gun said he hid the weapon beneath the passenger's seat of the car and forgot about it.

Endeavour back following Earth-watching mission

By JOHN ANICZAK
Associated Press Writer
EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - Space shuttle Endeavour, equipped with the finest Earth-watching radar ever built, brought back a wealth of data that will yield detailed 3-D maps of the Earth's surface.

The space ship and its crew of six landed Wednesday in the Mojave Desert after bad weather at Cape Canaveral, Fla., forced a 10-day country detour.

During the 11-day flight, the crew carried 166 million worth of electronically designed radar equipment on the planet and mapped more than 15 million square miles, or about 13 percent, of the Earth's surface, including forests, deserts, mountains and oceans.

The amount of data and quality of data exceeded the maximum goal we set for the mission," said Manfred Wahl, project manager for one of the radar instruments, the X-Band Synthetic Aperture Radar.

The X-SAR instrument was designed by the German and Italian space agencies to see through clouds and sometimes through barriers such as vegetation, ice and sand.

Endeavour also carried photography and carbon monoxide sensing equipment to measure the distribution of the gas in the lower atmosphere.

The flight had been extended by one day when bad weather prevented a landing in Florida.

NASA prefers to land shuttles in Florida to avoid the expense, risk and delays in having to put the orbiters atop a Boeing 747 and ferry them back to Cape Canaveral.

Study shows heart disease treatment equal for similarly-aged men, women

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer
BOSTON (AP) - Do women get second-class treatment for heart disease? The latest evidence suggests not.

Several studies have shown that men often get more aggressive treatment, such as bypass operations, to relieve chest pain. Critics have argued sexism is at play: Doctors take heart disease more seriously when the victim is a man.

However, many cardiologists deny this. And a report published today backs them up.

It concludes there is another explanation for why men and women are treated differently: differences in age and severity of the disease. Women are typically 10 to 15 years older than men when they develop heart disease.

"When men and women are otherwise the same and the only difference is gender, you find that treatments are very similar," said Dr. Daniel B. Mark of Duke University, who reported the findings in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Doctors are often reluctant to recommend invasive tests to frail, elderly patients who have other health problems besides heart disease.

"You have to compare apples and apples," Mark said. "When you just compare men and women, it's apples and oranges," because of the different ages at which they develop heart problems.

His work was based on an analysis of data collected for a larger study between 1983 and 1985 - well before the controversy over the apparent unequal treatment emerged.

The researchers attempted to examine the thinking of 15 cardiologists who sent 280 men and 130 women to have exercise tests for suspected heart disease. All the doctors filled out questionnaires about how long they thought the patients would live and whether they felt angiograms would find blockages.

Angiograms are X-ray movies that are taken by injecting opaque dye into the heart. They are routinely used to check for blockages and see if patients need surgery or angioplasty, in which a catheter with a balloon at the tip is used to unclog arteries.

In this as in other studies, men were substantially more likely than women to receive angiograms.

Furthermore, on the questionnaires, doctors did just as good a job of predicting the condition of women's hearts as they did men's. If anything, they tended to overestimate the chance that women would be found to have severe heart disease.

Another study in the journal challenges evidence linking heart attack risk with high levels of iron in the body.

Firefighters remember last battle for Booster 3

"We thought we were dead."

That sobering thought came from Bill Watts, a veteran Hereford volunteer fireman who, along with fellow firefighter J.O. Walls, barely escaped from a wind-driven grass fire that destroyed their fire truck on Tuesday.

Both Watts and Walls had their hair singed and suffered smoke inhalation in the blaze that began in the back seat of a 1988 Oldsmobile and eventually destroyed the car, burned 200 acres of CRP grass near Dawn and gutted a shed and corrals owned by farmer Carl Wimberly.

What began as a small grass fire, said Watts, escalated into a life-threatening situation because of tinder-dry grass conditions and a stiff wind.

"It was the first time in my life I thought I was really going to die," said Walls, a respiratory therapist at Hereford Regional Medical Center. "Never, never again will I say it's only a grass fire."

While working the west side of the blaze, the winds shifted and Walls and Watts found themselves and their truck in the middle of the fire.

Heat and smoke caused the engine on the 1973 vehicle to stall, leaving the men stranded in the middle of the blaze, separated by flames and smoke from other firefighters.

"Bill tried to start the truck several times, but the engine wouldn't kick over," added Walls.

For several minutes the men fought valiantly to save the truck, emptying the last of the 500 gallons of water in their tanker in an attempt to keep the flames away from the truck.

Finally, though, they were forced to run for their lives through flames that leapt as high as 30 feet in the air.

"We really hated to leave the truck. It's like shooting your horse," Walls said.

The men said they ran for some 15 or 20 minutes, changing direction several times to escape the flames before a Dawn Fire Department truck picked them up and carried them to safety.

Watts, Walls, and fireman Chad Kriegshauser were treated at Hereford Regional Medical Center for smoke inhalation and heat exhaustion and released.

At a debriefing session Tuesday night, Watts said, Fire Chief David Spain and Fire Marshal Jay Spain agreed that the two men were the best choices to be thrust into such a situation, because between them they have 25 years experience with the department -- experience that may well have saved their lives.

Watts and Walls continued their breathing treatments on Wednesday.

Watts said he has a lingering sensation of burning in his lungs with every breath he takes.

"One good thing that came out of this fire is I quit smoking," Watts said with a laugh as he and Walls headed for the hospital for further treatments.

Medical expenses for the men will be paid by the city's workers' compensation insurance.

Despite their close brush with death, Watts and Walls said they had no intention of leaving the fire department.

"You'd have to shoot us to get us out of here," said Walls, grinning. "It gets in your blood."

In fact, both men wore their red fire department pagers on Wednesday and asserted vehemently that if there (See FIREFIGHTERS, Page 2)

'Violate' prison deal, candidate says

Police chiefs hear Bush stand on concealed weapons

AUSTIN (AP) - Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush says Texas should "violate" a settlement of the long-running prison lawsuit and believes Texans should be allowed to carry concealed handguns.

Speaking to the Texas Police Chiefs Association on Wednesday, Bush said he would have approved a bill that Gov. Ann Richards vetoed last year, which would have let Texans vote on whether they should be allowed to tote handguns.

"I would sign such a bill. I believe certain people ought to be able to carry concealed weapons under strict licensing requirements," Bush said.

On the prison issue, Bush said the state gave away too much in a settlement with inmates in the Ruiz lawsuit.

In December 1992, U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler returned control of the Texas prisons to the state. He had been overseeing sweeping reforms in the state prison system that resulted from a lawsuit filed more than 20 years earlier by David Ruiz and other inmates complaining about crowding and poor living conditions in the lockups.

"I think the state of Texas ought to appeal it, fight it, violate it," Bush said.

The Ruiz settlement "allows a court order to micro-manage our prison system. How can anybody do their job when we're micro-managed by a federal court order?" Bush asked.

By eliminating the Ruiz settlement, he said Texas could use tents to house more than 30,000 inmates backed up in county jails.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales says tents can now be used on a temporary basis to house inmates.

Morales has warned that if Texas violates the prison settlement, it could be limited in how many inmates could be placed in prisons under construction.

But Bush said if the state challenged the settlement it would win at the federal appellate court level.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards' campaign, criticized Bush's positions.

"George W. Bush really does not know what he is talking about," McDonald said.

He said Richards was "proud" to stand with law enforcement groups that urged her to veto the handgun bill.

Additionally, the state would be fined $800,000 per day if it violated the prison settlement, McDonald said, adding that it should be followed because it ended 20 years of federal court intervention in the prison system.

Plano Police Chief Bruce Glasscock said the Texas Police Chiefs Association opposes legalizing concealed handguns.

"We don't think it's an answer to making the streets any safer, it creates a false impression of safety," he said.

Go kiss a pig!

Perfecto Mancha, left, a sixth-grader and president of the Bluebonnet Intermediate School student council, and kindergarten aide Lupe Pesina pucker up to kiss a two-week-old pig during a school assembly on Wednesday. The two "earned" the right to kiss the porker when they received the most one-cent votes in a fundraiser to benefit Texas wildlife and the rain forests. The two raised $60.15 each from students who contributed one cent per vote. Three other students, music teacher Margaret Williams and principal Darla Baggett also were in the running for the pig-kissing prize. Altogether students raised $138.23. Of that, $80 will go toward a group benefitting the rain forests and the rest to the Texas Wildlife Federation.

State reports lottery sales of $1.5 billion

AUSTIN (AP) - Sales of Lotto Texas tickets have reached $1.5 billion since the numbers game began on Nov. 7, 1992.

Texas Lottery officials said a $1 ticket was purchased at a Beaumont liquor store at 1:52 p.m. Wednesday to hit the sales milestone.

"We reached our first $1 billion in lotto sales in a record time of 364 days. But the pace continues to quicken. We've sold this $500 million worth in just 5-1/2 months," said Zoann Attwood, the lottery's deputy director.

Ms. Attwood attributed the increased rate of sales to unusually high jackpots in February and March, which included a state record $77.1 million pot on March 16.

Texas broke the all-time first-year sales record for a lotto game on Oct. 23, 1993, when sales reached $973.6 million and surpassed Florida's previous record of $960.3 million from April 1989.

Total sales for the Texas Lottery, including instant-win scratch card games and Pick 3, have surpassed $4 billion.

AUSTIN (AP) - There were no winners for Wednesday night's $3 million Lotto Texas drawing, Lottery officials said. So Saturday's drawing will be worth an estimated $10 million.

Here are the Lotto Texas winning numbers drawn Wednesday by the Texas Lottery:

AUSTIN (AP) - The Lotto Texas Pick 3 winning numbers drawn Wednesday by the Texas Lottery, 1-6-4, were identical to the numbers drawn Tuesday, Lottery spokesman Steve Levine confirmed late Wednesday.

was a call to a fire, they would both be ready to go.

The firefighters said they learned a lot from their experience, and that the department, in reviewing what happened Tuesday, has made a policy change regarding fighting fires on CRP land.

"Next time we have to fight a CRP grass fire, we're going to protect the structures and property and forget about saving the government grass," Walls declared.

He said the new policy will be to get in front of the fire and keep it from spreading and to protect property and structures in the fire's path.

But as for the grass itself, that part will be allowed to burn itself out.

Watts said quite a bit of equipment is salvageable from the damaged truck, including hoses, the water pump and other items.

Still, said Jay Spain, it will cost some $50,000 to replace the fire truck, although officials are checking to see if the city's insurance will be able to defer some of the cost.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I am writing in reference to your column in The Washington Post. Specifically, I wish to address the question posed by Mary Schiavi of Baltimore, who asked, "Who would I contact to complain about a bad appliance?"

The United States Office of Consumer Affairs publishes the Consumer's Resource Handbook, a self-help guide designed to aid consumers in resolving their complaints.

The handbook, which is published biennially, lists hundreds of corporate consumer contacts, state and local consumer protection offices and Better Business Bureaus. Appliance manufacturers are included in the corporate section. The handbook also provides sample complaint letters and consumer tips on a number of topics. Single copies of the handbook are free to the public by writing Handbook, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo CO 81009. — Michelle Muth, Washington, D.C.

Thanks so much for passing along this invaluable consumer resource. — Heloise

TRANSPARENT PLASTIC BOXES

Dear Heloise: The transparent plastic boxes which contain the prescription steroids given for poison ivy make ideal boxes for keeping loose stamps. Individual stamps or 4 by 4 sheets can be stored in the boxes and quickly located. I keep the box of odd stamps tucked in my envelope box where I can find them when extra postage is needed.

A steroid box can also hold the flat postage scale that slips over your finger and balances the letter held by a clip with the pointer that indicates the letter's weight in ounces and fractions of ounces.

The steroid box lets me keep this small scale in with my envelopes where it is handy and keeps it from being damaged. — Kathleen Wilkowske, Montgomery, Ala.

COUNTER STOOLS

Dear Heloise: I would like to share with all your readers an excellent way to keep counter stools clean.

All you have to do is go to the store and buy toilet-seat covers. You can buy them in most colors these days and you can take them off and throw them into the washing machine.

The covers I had on my stools got very dirty from the day-care I used to run and were easy to clean. — Brenda L. Doty, Waterloo, N.Y.

GET-OUT-QUICK HINT

Dear Heloise: My get-out-quick hint is to always put jewelry you will be wearing the next day in your shoe. — Mrs. Dorothy Betts, El Paso, Texas

Well, you certainly won't get out of the house without either! — Heloise

Dear Heloise: Love your column and I have written to you before.

I stepped in the shower again this morning and fiddled with the faucet trying to get the temperature just right. Then I stepped out in the altogether, found my nail polish and marked the faucet when it reached exactly the temperature that I wanted. — Sue Robertson, Fullerton, Calif.

Texas Tech boosters welcome Bockrath, Dickey

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Texas Tech boosters in Hereford welcomed two new faces to Red Raider Day on Wednesday, as athletic director Bob Bockrath and men's basketball coach James Dickey made their first visit to Hereford.

Bockrath and Dickey led a contingent of about a dozen assistant coaches and athletic department personnel, who joined more than 50 boosters from the Hereford area in an afternoon golf scramble and an evening social hour and dinner at Hereford Country Club.

Head football coach Spike Dykes couldn't make it, but he apparently sent some of his legendary style and wit in the form of Ted Unbehagen, the offensive line coach.

"Boy, the defense better play hard," Unbehagen said, referring to the fact that Tech lost virtually all of its offense. "We've got one guy coming back who scored a point, except for the placekicker."

"(The defense) will have to have a pretty good turnover ratio," he said. "Give the ball to us on the five (yardline) going in, and we're going to be a good offensive team."

But seriously, folks, Unbehagen said the Raiders had some good linemen waiting in the wings, had recruited some good running backs, and had three promising quarterbacks battling for a starting job.

"We've got three quarterbacks who have never taken a snap," he said, "but by the time we line up against New Mexico, they'll be ready to go."

"We will move the ball again," he said.

Meanwhile, the defense is ready to take over as the strength of the football team, defensive backfield coach Dean Campbell said.

"We've challenged the defense," Campbell said. "We've said, 'For the last few years the offense has carried the defense. We've lost a lot of those guys who made all the big plays, so we have to rise up on defense.'"

The defense returns more than half its starters, Campbell said, including three defensive backs, both defensive ends and both inside linebackers. One of those inside linebackers was Zach Thomas of Pampa.

"I don't know if there was a better linebacker in the conference last year than Zach Thomas," Campbell said, "and he was voted the most improved player in the spring."

Dickey was not able to attend last year's Red Raider Day because he was recruiting. This year, with the entire team coming back next year, he apparently had more free time.

Despite two successful seasons at the helm of the men's basketball program, he joked about his status as the second-most successful basketball coach on campus.

"Everywhere I go, people ask 'Why can't you recruit a Sheryl Swoopes? Why can't you coach like Marsha Sharp (the women's coach)?' I got a letter the other day that said 'Marsha Sharp is having a coaching clinic. Why don't you go?'"

"When she has it, I'll go," he said.

Dickey projected success next year, saying he had signed two good point guards, which was the Red Raiders' weakest position last year. And last year they were one victory over Texas A&M away from playing in the post season.

Bockrath spoke of all of Tech's sports, including baseball and women's golf, both of which are in the midst of successful seasons.

He spoke of the women's basketball program in terms of financial success.

Where most college athletic programs have only one or two revenue-producing sports—football and/or men's basketball—which must support the other less-popular sports, Texas Tech now has three with the women's basketball program.

Bockrath said that five years ago, there were 140 season tickets sold for women's basketball. This year, there were 3,600 season tickets sold, which produced $236,700 just from season tickets.

"Hilary (Clinton) couldn't do that good, but Marsha could," he said.

Bockrath called the move to the Big Eight "an incredible opportunity for Texas Tech," and said that league play in sports other than football could begin soon.

In closing, Bockrath invited everyone to come down to Lubbock, to meet the people and see the facilities and, especially, to see the games.

The winners of the golf scramble were Jeff Yates, Tom Simons, Mike

VcVay and Tommy McVay, who combined to shoot a 58. The second place team of Speedy Nieman, Blair Rogers, Cecil Maddox and former Tech basketball coach Gerald Meyers shot 60.

Cuby Kitchens won the longest drive competition, and Robert Neely won closest to the pin.

Master of ceremonies Speedy Nieman recognized Dave Hopper, Cal Mitts, Tom LeGate and John Sherrard for their work in putting together Red Raider Day.

Talkin' about Texas Tech

'Big 12' could start play sooner than first thought

HOUSTON (AP) - The Southwest Conference's demise could occur faster than expected now that three more conference members appear ready to flee.

SWC athletic directors have scheduled an April 29 meeting in Dallas to "discuss how we're going to close down the conference," said Texas A&M athletic director Wally Groff.

It appears Rice, Texas Christian and Southern Methodist are heading to the Western Athletic Conference.

Texas, Texas A&M, Baylor and Texas Tech already have bolted the Southwest Conference for the Big Eight.

Football competition will not begin until 1996, because of scheduling and College Football Association contractual obligations. But several non-revenue spring sports could begin play next spring and basketball could begin after just one more SWC season, the Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday.

Groff said he believes there will be two more Southwest Conference football seasons.

"But we may start with some spring sports next year. And we might like to start all the other sports as quickly as we can get in," Groff said. "Now, with the three schools getting in the WAC, they might want to get on with their business, too."

The latest moves will leave Houston as the lone Southwest Conference school.

Houston athletic director Bill Carr is keeping a low profile in plotting the school's athletic future and won't discuss reports that Houston is trying to work out arrangements with a group of southern football independents.

Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds, an associate commissioner of the Big Eight, said games could be scheduled with Houston even if the other former SWC members begin competition in their new leagues.

"If the three are gone and Houston is the last one left, we can take care of Houston by scheduling them in enough sports for them to be OK with this," he said.

Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis knocked out 54 of his 71 opponents.

Hall of Fame slugger Mickey Mantle signed with the New York Yankees for a $1,100 bonus.

Mark Hardt finished a close second with a total of 7.52 pounds. Robert Bridwell was third with 6.56 pounds.

The tournament was the first of what Bridwell said would be a monthly event. The next tournament will be Sunday, May 22, at Ute Lake in New Mexico. For more information, call Bridwell at 364-2427 or Ronnie Bell at 364-6487.

District 1-4A Track Meet results

The Hereford girls' junior varsity track team earned 36 points at the District 1-4A Track Meet held Friday and Saturday in Dumas, finishing sixth.

Many of those points came from throwers. Clarissa Ramirez claimed second in the discus with a toss of 84 feet, 4 inches, and she took fifth in the shot put with a 27-2 1/2 effort.

Jessica Irish also placed in both: third in discus at 80-3 and fourth in shot at 27-7. Kim Robles took fifth in discus with 78-5.

Christy Haney got fifth in both the 100-meter dash (13.9 seconds) and the 200 (30.1).

Asa Barrefelt took fifth in the 400. No time was available.

Shaq scores 53 to claim lead in NBA scoring race

By The Associated Press
How high will Shaquille O'Neal and David Robinson go in their battle for the NBA scoring title?

O'Neal, trailing Robinson by 0.3 points, took 31 shots and scored an NBA season-high 53 points Wednesday night, leading Orlando to a 121-101 victory over Minnesota.

His career-high and franchise-record performance moved O'Neal into first place with a 29.34 average, just .07 ahead of Robinson with two games left for both players.

The close race down the stretch is reminiscent of 1978, when Denver's David Thompson and George Gervin of San Antonio went down to the final day - April 9.

Thompson, trailing Gervin, scored 73 points, the highest in NBA history by a player other than Wilt Chamberlain. But Gervin, playing a later game and knowing exactly how many points he needed, responded with 63 to win the scoring title, 27.22 to Thompson's 27.15.

"Being the leading scorer wasn't one of my goals coming in," said O'Neal, who didn't play the last 9:13 of the blowout. "My shot's been falling. If I get it, good. If not, I understand."

O'Neal made 22 of 31 shots, nine of 13 free throws and had 18 rebounds.

"I wasn't going to run the risk of him getting hurt to get a scoring record," Orlando coach Brian Hill said when asked about taking O'Neal out of the game. "We just told everybody going into the fourth quarter what the situation was: 'Let's get him the ball in good position where he's not going to get doubled and have to give it up. Let's get him in, get the record, get him out, close up and go home.'"

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Charlotte 117, Washington 111; Indiana 109, Cleveland 98; Milwaukee 103, Detroit 78; Denver 100, the Los Angeles Clippers 85; and Seattle 112, the Los Angeles Lakers 90.

Isaiah Rider led Minnesota with 28 points.

Hornets 117, Bullets 111
Charlotte barely held on to its slim playoff hopes despite trailing visiting Washington by eight points with four minutes left.

The Hornets were behind 109-101 before a free throw by Alonzo Mourning, who had 25 points and 12 rebounds, started the comeback. Two 3-pointers by Dell Curry's made it 109-108 before Muggsy Bogues, who had 14 assists, stole the ball and passed to Curry for a dunk, putting the Hornets ahead 110-109 with 2:40 to go.

Calbert Cheaney responded with a long jumper for Washington, but Larry Johnson and Hersey Hawkins made consecutive baskets for a 114-111 Charlotte lead. Bogues iced the game with two free throws with 15 seconds left.

Tom Gugliotta scored 27 points for the Bullets.
SuperSonics 112, Lakers 90
Seattle swept the season series from Los Angeles for the first time in 27 years behind Shawn Kemp's 23 points and Ricky Pierce's 22.

The Sonics, who have clinched homecourt throughout the playoffs with a 61-19 mark, went 5-0 against Los Angeles this season and have won 15 of 17 games. Seattle also set a club record with its 25th road victory.

Sedale Threatt finished with 28 points for Los Angeles.
Nuggets 100, Clippers 85

Rodney Rogers scored 12 of his 15 points in the first 7:09 of the fourth quarter and Denver outscored Los Angeles 34-9 in the period.

The Clippers led 79-66 after Randy Woods made a 3-point shot with 11:20 remaining. But Los Angeles made only one more field goal in the fourth quarter, and the Nuggets went on a 23-3 spurt to go ahead for good.

The Clippers, who were led by John Williams with 16 points, played without Dominique Wilkins, averaging 26.1 points, and Ron Harper, averaging 20.3. They didn't

Bucks 103, Pistons 78

Lee Mayberry scored a career-high 19 points as Milwaukee snapped a nine-game losing streak and handed visiting Detroit its 11th consecutive defeat.

Cardinals prove Braves are vulnerable with second win

By The Associated Press
Looks like John Smoltz was wrong. The St. Louis Cardinals showed the Atlanta Braves are vincible - at least for two nights.

The Braves lost consecutive games for the first time since last August when St. Louis beat them 8-3 Wednesday night. Atlanta had gone 54 games - exactly one-third of a season - without losing consecutive games.

"I wasn't aware of that," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said. "But I knew we hadn't lost many."

The last time the Braves lost two straight during the regular season was Aug. 19-20 against Los Angeles and Chicago. St. Louis had won 5-4 on Tuesday night.

"We just went out and played hard," said Bernard Gilkey, who had four singles. "We think we're pretty good, too."

After Sunday's win over Chicago, Smoltz sounded like there was nothing left to play for.

"We don't think we're ever going to lose two in a row," he said then.

Tom Glavine, Atlanta's starter on Wednesday night, sounded a lot different.

"They did everything they had to do to win - pitching, defense and hitting," he said.

In other games, Los Angeles beat New York 6-5 in 11 innings, Houston beat Chicago 7-5, Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 5-4, San Francisco beat Philadelphia 5-4, Colorado routed Florida 16-6 and Montreal beat San Diego 4-2.

Glavine (2-1) allowed three runs and eight hits in five innings, struck out six, walked five and stranded 10. Bob Tewksbury (4-0) became the NL's first four-game winner, allowing eight hits in his first complete game since last Sept. 7.

Todd Zeile, just 10-for-50 coming in, hit a three-run homer off Kent Mercker that put the Cardinals ahead 6-2 in the sixth and Ray Lankford added a two-run homer off Mike Stanton in the ninth.

Dodgers 6, Mets 5
Brett Butler tied a career high with five hits, blooping a bases-loaded single over a drawn-in infield in the 11th inning at Dodger Stadium.

Jose Offerman doubled off Dave Telgheder (0-1), pinch-hitter Mitch Webster was walked intentionally and Offerman was safe at third when Telgheder tried for the force on a bunt by Delino DeShields. Butler then singled off Doug Linton for the fourth five-hit game of his career.

Todd Worrell (2-1) pitched two innings of one-hit relief.
Astros 7, Cubs 5

Jeff Bagwell drove in four runs and Craig Biggio had four hits as Chicago dropped to 0-8 at Wrigley Field, matching the Cubs' previous worst start at home in 1957.

Houston scored twice in the eighth off Jose Bautista (0-1) and sent the Cubs to their sixth straight loss overall. Tom Edens (2-0) got the victory in relief.

Reds 5, Pirates 4

Maybe Pittsburgh should be playing at Wrigley Field this week. The Pirates remained the major leagues' only winless road team as Hal Morris drove in five runs, matching his career high.

Clemens shuts out A's to quiet homers

By The Associated Press
The Rocket brought the baseball back to earth in Boston.

Roger Clemens brought a little sanity back to this Year of the Homer, throwing his first shutout in nearly a year as the Red Sox blanked the Oakland Athletics 2-0.

Clemens threw a two-hitter, striking out 10 for his 36th career shutout.

So far, the 1994 season has been characterized by baseballs soaring out of stadiums at an unprecedented pace, and football-like final scores. In the first seven games this season at Fenway Park, 27 homers had been hit.

But, at least for one night, Clemens was able to slow the run-scoring frenzy.

"That was some performance, wasn't it?" Boston manager Butch Hobson said. "That's the first one of those he's had in a long time."

Clemens allowed only a leadoff single to Stan Javier in the fourth and a one-out single by Mike Brumley in the fifth. It was the first shutout and complete game for Clemens since last May 11 at Baltimore. He reached 10 strikeouts in a game for the 55th time in his career.

Clemens (2-0), who got six of his strikeouts on called third strikes, said he was happy to get a complete game.

"I don't know if down the road I'd be afforded the opportunity to finish," Clemens said. "I needed to smell the finish line. I think if I let a guy on in the ninth, I was out of there."

In other AL games, Kansas City topped Detroit 11-6, New York defeated Seattle 7-4, Minnesota edged Cleveland 6-5, California blasted Baltimore 8-2, Toronto nipped Texas 4-3 in 11 innings, and Chicago shaded Milwaukee 8-6 in 12 innings.

Karsay (1-1) matched Clemens in strikeouts and scoreless innings until the seventh, when he allowed both runs. The first scored on Scott Cooper's sacrifice fly, the second on John Valentin's homer.

Karsay, 22, ended up with eight strikeouts and allowed seven hits in eight innings.

Cowboys' scouting director under gun

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - Jimmy Johnson called him the finest football technician he has ever been around. At Wichita State, Oklahoma State and Oklahoma, Johnson learned how to judge football talent under this man. Meet Larry Lacey, who will be on the hot spot for the Dallas Cowboys in Sunday's NFL draft. Lacey, the director of the Cowboys college scouting, will be making recommendations to owner Jerry Jones and new coach Barry Switzer. It's the first time for all three of them to be in the spotlight. "We don't know what's going to happen," Lacey said. "We need help in the defensive line and at linebacker. But we've lost some free agents so we might have to make a call at another position. It should be interesting." Perhaps not as interesting as when Johnson, who split with Jones after a personal feud ran too deep, was calling the draft day shots. Johnson wheeled and dealt, gambled and won, gambled and lost. But Johnson could recognize talent and, more importantly, an athlete's heart and courage. Emmitt Smith was the prime example. He was passed over by 13 teams because of a too slow, too small label. "The other teams didn't measure my heart but coach Johnson did," Smith said. "He knows there is more to football than computer statistics." While everyone will be wondering what Johnson would have done in this draft, Jones gets his chance to be up front and center. Jones had been little more than a sideshow in the Cowboys previous drafts. Now, he'll make the calls based on Lacey's recommendations. Switzer will be there in name only. "I'll be watching and learning," Switzer said. "It will be my call based on all of our information," Jones said. The Cowboys will be taking a long look at defensive linemen like Henry Ford of Arkansas, Sam Adams of Texas A&M, and Joe Johnson of Louisville. Losing tackle Tony Casillas to Kansas City and Jimmie

Jones to the Los Angeles Rams has cut into the Cowboys' depth at the position. Dallas also could use linebackers and they'll be looking at Rob Fredrickson of Michigan State, Jamir Miller of UCLA and John Thierry of Alcorn State. "I feel we are better prepared for the draft than any year since I've been here," Jones said. "But there is no such thing as a safe pick. It's a risky business." And one Jones will have to do without Johnson, his former roommate at the University of Arkansas who had a knack of doing the right thing at the right time on D Day.

Johnson will join Fox

NEW YORK (AP) - Less than a month after his departure from the Dallas Cowboys, Jimmy Johnson is back in football - as an analyst for Fox Sports. Fox Sports has called a 3 p.m. EDT news conference today at the News Corporation Building to introduce Johnson as a member of its pre-game studio broadcast team, Fox spokesman Vince Wladika said. Johnson joins Terry Bradshaw and Howie Long on the show, created after Fox won the rights to televise the NFL's NFC games by outbidding CBS with a $1.58 billion bid for four years. The former University of Miami coach left the Cowboys on March 29 after leading Dallas to consecutive Super Bowl titles. He had an ongoing feud with Cowboys' owner Jerry Jones during his five years in Dallas. Jones bought out the remaining five years on Johnson's contract for $2 million and then hired former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer as his new coach. During the last month, Johnson returned to his home in Florida and was sought by several clubs for coaching jobs. He still is being mentioned as a possible replacement for Dolphins coach Don Shula.

Browns' play for Harper scratched

BEREA, Ohio (AP) - The Cleveland Browns spoke to the Dallas Cowboys about a possible trade for wide receiver Alvin Harper, but the deal was called off. The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer reported today that the proposed trade fell through when Cowboys owner Jerry Jones abruptly changed the terms of the deal late Wednesday. One possible deal would give Dallas the Browns' first-round draft pick - the ninth overall - in exchange for Harper and Dallas' first-round pick, the 28th overall. The Plain Dealer said three sources confirmed that Jones demanded the Browns include their second-round choice, too. Harper's agent, Jimmy Sexton, said Harper still wants to play for the Browns. The agent said a deal was so close that travel arrangements to Cleveland had been arranged. Mike Lombardi, Browns director of player personnel, said the Browns had made plans to create room under their salary cap for Harper.

Coach Bill Belichick refused to say Wednesday whether a deal was done or close to completion. "We've talked. We talk to everybody," Belichick said. The Pittsburgh Steelers also are known to be dealing for Harper - apparently offering the Steelers' first-round pick, 17th overall, in Sunday's draft. SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) - The addition of Ken Norton completes an offseason of change in the San Francisco 49ers' linebacking corps. Norton, who earned a trip to the Pro Bowl while helping the Dallas Cowboys win their second straight Super Bowl, was expected to sign a five-year, $8 million with the 49ers today. He then was to be introduced as the team's newest player during a news conference at the 49ers' Santa Clara headquarters. With Norton in the fold, the 49ers have completed a near revamping of their linebacking corps, maligned as the weak link in a defensive unit ranked last against the run in 1993. Gary Plummer, a durable run-stopper for San Diego, was signed as a free agent by the 49ers three weeks ago and assumes the spot once held by Keith DeLong, who was released.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is 13 years old. His friend, "Brad," is the same age. Brad's parents gave him a .22-caliber revolver as a gift for Christmas.

Brad is a nice boy and comes from a good family. Both parents work, and the child is home alone a lot. We all live in an affluent area in a country setting where there is almost no crime.

My husband and I were horrified to learn Brad has a revolver. We are concerned about our son's safety when he visits in Brad's home. We don't want to jeopardize our son's friendship with the boy. What should we do?—Mequon, Wis.

DEAR MEQUON: Phone Brad's parents and tell them in a low-key, non-confrontational way that since they gave their son a handgun, you are concerned, not only for YOUR son's safety but for theirs as well.

Ask that they get permission from Brad to put the gun away and take it out only when they are at home. If they are offended by your suggestion (and they might be) you must tell your son that he cannot go to Brad's house but that Brad is welcome to come to yours anytime—without the gun, of course.

loved me, and I simply had to get my stuff together and make the marriage work. I went to counseling three times a week for several months. My husband never tried to pry or find out what I talked to the doctor about. After a while, I found myself volunteering the information. We worked together on my problem, and when I got my head on straight, I found myself truly loving this wonderful man. Sign me—Thankful in Idaho

DEAR IDA: What an honest woman you are. And what a great love story. Thank you for it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I read with interest the letter from the couple who loaned a close friend $1,000. The loan was not repaid, and it ruined what was once a very close friendship.

This sort of thing happens a lot. These lines by William Shakespeare are worth committing to memory. They have made it easier for us to say, "Sorry, no."

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be
"For loan oft loses both itself and friend."

Please don't use my name, but do print my letter—Taipei, Taiwan

Dear Taipei: Here it is—anonymous, as requested.

Time to beautify gardens

Now is the time to plant flowers, shrubbery, trees, etc. to prepare for lush, green gardens and lawns. Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: For 15 years I suffered from severe headaches that occurred about three or four o'clock in the morning and usually made me throw up. Any medicine I took came back up. Over the years, I went to several different doctors and had all kinds of tests, including MRIs and CT scans. I was told I had nervous tension, migraines, sinus and food sensitivity headaches. Nothing helped me.

One day I was discussing this with my dentist and he asked if I was a coffee drinker and how much I drank. I told him two mugs in the morning and once in awhile a cup in the evening. He suggested that I might be suffering from caffeine withdrawal headaches. So I started drinking a mug of coffee every evening and I no longer had the headaches. Please tell your readers to try this and also to watch the foods they eat, like chocolate, wine, beer and cheese.

DEAR READER: Thank you for your comment, and I am glad you have found relief from your headaches. It is true that stopping the intake of caffeine, whether it is in coffee, tea, colas or chocolate, entirely can cause a headache. It is part of the caffeine withdrawal syndrome. It is most often seen in the heavy coffee drinker who stops suddenly. But it can occur in people who drink only a moderate amount of coffee. For the heavy coffee drinker, it is wise to taper off when you quit, perhaps a cup in the morning and another in the afternoon, or just enough to prevent headaches. Then decrease it further.

If you really like the taste and want something to drink, you can gradually switch the same way to decaffeinated coffee.

I am somewhat puzzled by your history because that sudden and that severe a reaction in the early morning is quite unusual, even for caffeine withdrawal. I must entertain the other view that you may indeed have migraine headaches.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I loved your response to "Sad in L.A." She said she was married to a man for four years (there was no "sparks") and was so bored she could scream.

The revealing part of her "boring" marriage was that her husband loved her and was faithful and a good provider. Does that dumb broad have any idea how many women would give their eyeteeth for a man like that?

I married a man 18 years ago, and there were no sparks there either. "Howard" knew it, but he still wanted to marry me and be a father to my children, a girl, 11, and a boy, 8.

I was tired of being alone and having relationships that didn't work out, so I married this man for security.

The first year was hell. I knew I needed professional help. Howard truly

Great hairstyles for summer

Hairstyles, like fashion, go through cycles, and with the current trend for shorter hair, the bob once again is the haircut of the moment.

All the rage in the twenties, the bob was the signature style of film star Louise Brooks. In the eighties, Olympic gold medal skater, Dorothy Hamill's wedged version created a sensation. And now, supermodel Linda Evangelista gives the cut a nineties update, topping her auburn bob with Dutchboy bangs.

The versatile cut can be layered, graduated or worn in one length. For styling options, consider these helpful hints from the experts at Velcro USA:

—For volume, spritz bangs and hair ends with a light setting lotion, then roll hair sections under, toward the scalp with Velcro brand Self-Holding Salon Rollers. To give hair extra lift around the face, roll bangs under to one side. Remove rollers and finger comb to fluff or brush smooth.

—To create curls, use Velcro brand rollers on damp hair. For soft waves, use Velcro brand rollers on dry hair.

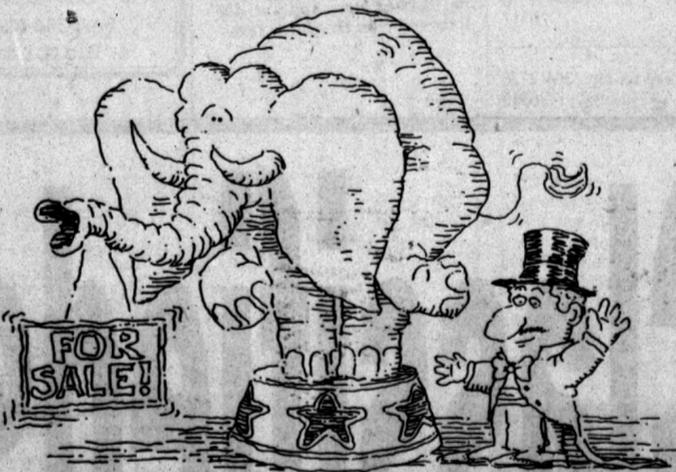

—hair length and style determine roller size. Choose from color-coded Velcro brand rollers: Mini Yellow or Medium Mint for curls, Large Pink for waves and Jumbo Light Blue for body and volume. For long hair, roller sizes include Bouffant Red, Giant Purple and Super-Size Dark Blue.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Muhammad Ali made an appropriate donation to a South Carolina Republican duking it out for a seat in Congress: 10 pairs of boxing gloves.

Van D. Hipp Jr. valued the gloves at $1,000 on a federal campaign finance report, campaign manager Luke Byars said last week.

They are likely to be used as door prizes or donated to other groups in Hipp's run for the GOP nomination in the state's 1st District, Byars said.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Emphasis on immunization

Preschool immunization is drive goal

Health care providers in Hereford and Deaf Smith County are joining in a state and national drive to encourage immunization of preschool-age children.

Leading the campaign here is the Deaf Smith County Health Care Alliance.

Beginning Monday and continuing through the week, the WIC office, South Plains Health Providers and the Deaf Smith Rural Health Clinic will provide immunizations without charge.

Shirley Wilson of WIC reported that only 27 percent of preschool children have received the immunizations considered necessary.

National Preschool Immunization Week will attempt to impress on parents the need for immunizations for young children.

Parents wishing to take advantage of the free immunizations are asked to present records of previous immunizations so there will be no duplications.

Among immunizations recommended for children are diphtheria-pertussis-tetanus, polio, hepatitis and measles-mumps-rubella.

Texas Stock Index is reflection of economy throughout nation

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER and MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writers

AUSTIN (AP) - In suffering its biggest monthly drop in more than three years, the Texas Stock Index showed that the state's economy now reflects the nation's economy, analysts say.

The index, which measures the performance of Texas-based companies, was down 7.4 percent and clearly mirrored the steep Wall Street drop, Comptroller John Sharp said Wednesday.

The drop was the largest monthly decline since January 1990. Every sector was affected, even though stocks for some individual Texas companies rose in value.

The Standard and Poor's 500, which tracks a national sampling of stock prices, fell by 4.6 percent during the same period.

"Forces which have little to do with the economy or investor confidence have been at work in the stock market. It happens from time to time," Sharp said.

The good news, he said, is that stock prices are rising again for Texas companies as well as those nationwide.

"When we update the Texas Stock Index again next month, we expect a rebound," the comptroller said.

In addition, last month's index still stood higher than during the preceding six Marches. The tally was nearly 10 percent higher than in March 1993.

Bernard Weinstein, director of the University of North Texas Center for Economic Development & Research, said the state's once oil-driven economy has diversified to the point where it more closely resembles the nation's as a whole.

"The Texas economy and Texas companies pretty well mirror the structure of the national economy now," Weinstein said.

"We're part of the national economy, like it or not. So if the national economy is having problems, we're having problems," he said.

But oil patch troubles still hurt, especially in recent months, when oil prices slid before recovering somewhat in April.

"The energy sector has been hit, really for the last six months, as oil prices have fallen," Weinstein said.

"Most of the Texas-based energy companies have been laying off people for the last few months in response to lower earnings, and that's going to affect their stock," he said.

The comptroller's index tracks the value of 60 representative companies in the energy, finance, technology and general business sectors.

The index showed that Texas energy stocks fell the most in March. Stock prices in the sector dropped 9.2 percent.

None of the 10 energy stocks tracked by the comptroller's office gained in value. Halliburton Co. stock was down by almost 7 percent, Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. down by 5.9 percent, Tenneco Inc. fell by more than 5 percent and Maxus Energy Corp. dropped nearly 8 percent, Sharp said.

General business stocks fell for the first time in six months, a decline totaling 8.7 percent. Among those companies, Central & South West Corp. fell by 9.6 percent, Continental Airlines dropped by 21.8 percent, and Brinker International Inc. was down 36.5 percent.

Technology sector stocks dropped 6.5 percent. Only one of the 10 tracked, Austin-based Dell Computer Corp., saw the value of its stock rise. Texas Instruments declined 4.6 percent, Tandy Corp. dropped 12.7 percent and Compaq Computer Corp. slipped 1 percent, even though each had good news to report in March, Sharp said.

Texas finance, insurance and real estate stocks dropped by 3.2 percent, the comptroller's office said.

"It's not a sign that investors lost confidence in Texas companies or anything like that. It's just that Texas companies are following the national trend," said Sheila Clancy, a spokeswoman for Sharp.

Kiwanis honors students

The Hereford Kiwanis Club recently honored these Hereford High School students as its Students of the Month for April. Amy Liscano, second from left, was accompanied by her mother, Carmen Liscano, while Joey Garza Jr. was accompanied by his mother, Cecilia Garza. Miss Liscano is in the bank, National Honors Society, PALS and is in the top 5 percent of her class. Garza is a member of the football team and received a four-year Aggie Spirit Award scholarship to attend Texas A&M University.

Witness blurts out guilt, a la Perry Mason show

HOUSTON (AP) - Jay Hileman never dreamed that being a prosecutor could be this easy.

First, Hileman got armed robbery defendant Arthur Hollingsworth, testifying Tuesday in his defense, to admit he was armed and in the Sun Mart convenience store at the time it was robbed Jan. 3.

Then he asked the perfunctory question.

"Mr. Hollingsworth, you're guilty aren't you, and he said: 'No,'" Hileman recalls asking. "I asked him again: 'Mr. Hollingsworth, you're guilty aren't you,' and he said: 'Yeah.'

"I couldn't believe it," the prosecutor said. "I quit after that."

Retired Judge Wendell Odom was equally stunned. He said he'd not seen anything like it in 37 years on the bench.

"They tell you when you're in law school it's not like it is on Perry Mason, that they're not going to jump up and say I did it, but he did," Odom said.

When Hollingsworth's trial resumed Wednesday, he pleaded guilty.

Jurors sentenced Hollingsworth, 18, to five years in prison. They could have given him a life sentence.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - You could say Christopher Reeve travels in style.

The actor leased a four-bedroom home in Hollywood Hills for $9,000 a month while filming the movie "The Rhinehart Theory" on location.

The 4,000-square-foot home has a billiard room, bar, pool, gourmet kitchen, sunken living room and spectacular city views, according to the home owner's representative, Susan Del Prete. Reeve plans to rent for at least two months.

Reeve, 41, who is married with three children, has a farmhouse in Bedford, N.Y., and a Massachusetts estate.

Best known as Superman in four movies from 1978 to 1987, Reeve also appeared in "The Remains of the Day," and "Morning Glory."

NEW YORK (AP) - Pierce Brosnan came with someone else, but Julianne Phillips caught his eye at a celebrity powwow.

They are now an item, People magazine reports in its April 25 issue.

The couple met in January at Marjoe Gortner's Celebrity Sports Invitational in Squaw Valley, Calif., which Brosnan, 40, attended with entertainment reporter Kathryn Kinley.

DeMornay delightfully demented in 'Getting Out'

Ellen Burstyn (left) and Rebecca De Mornay star in the ABC drama "Getting Out." Based on a play by Pulitzer Prize winner Marsha Norman, the film tells the story of a young Georgia woman (De Mornay), recently released from prison, who seeks to gain custody of the son she gave birth to while in jail.

BY JEFF PLASS

There seems to be this aura that surrounds Rebecca De Mornay and everything she does.

It is an aura of darkness, danger and dementia; of delicate natural beauty and smoldering sexual charisma.

As Lana, the runaway prostitute in 1983's "Risky Business," De Mornay left many male viewers reaching for the hyperventilation bags.

As Peyton, the demented, revenge-seeking nanny in 1992's "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle," she took baby-sitters to the same plane as Freddy Krueger, Jason and Pinhead.

What explanation could there be for De Mornay's predilection for these types of roles?

"I'm attracted to characters that don't bore me," the actress says coyly.

There's nothing boring about De Mornay's character in the ABC drama "Getting Out," airing Monday, April 25.

Based on a play by Pulitzer Prize winner Marsha Norman, "Getting Out" is the story of Arlene Holsclaw (De Mornay), a young Georgia woman who is rehabilitated and released from prison after serving time for theft and murder.

What she desires most in the world is a reunion with the son she bore while in prison, who has since been placed in foster care by her mother (Ellen Burstyn).

Valiantly trying to put the pieces of her life together, Arlene faces setback after setback. She is conned out of her prison-release money by a smarmy cosmetics entrepreneur. She finds a job teaching a knitting class, only to become jobless once again when her employer discovers where she spent the last eight years, and her ex-con boyfriend pressures her to come back to the world's oldest profession.

All the while, Arlene struggles to control the base side of her personality, the "Arlie-girl" side, as she unravels the dark secrets of her childhood and the role her mother played in creating those demons.

"I couldn't stop crying when I read it," De Mornay says. "And I just thought, 'I have to do this. I can't believe they're doing this on television.' It was one of the most uncompromising and disturbing scripts I'd ever read."

In Norman's play, Arlene's schizophrenia is manifested in the twin characters of Arlene, who wants to make things right, and the willful Arlie, who simply wants.

"There were two actresses who played the role," says executive producer Linda Welsh. "And the staging, if you saw the play or read the play, was very unique. It took place on two levels.

"Ours, though, has kept the spirit and the character of the play. And thanks to Miss De Mornay, we've captured the two faces of this lady."

De Mornay readily handles both roles, Arlene and Arlie, slipping from one to the next seamlessly. Burstyn also turns in a powerful performance in the pivotal role of Arlene's mother.

Callous, trashy, selfish and petty, Mama Holsclaw is a perfect foil to Arlene's indomitable perseverance.

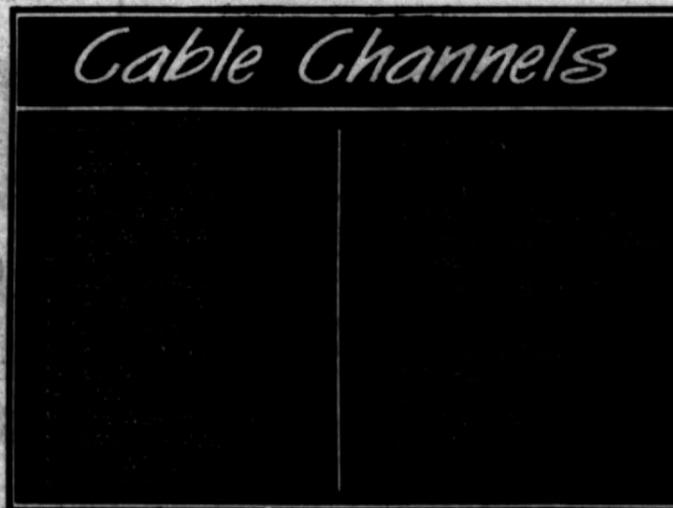

"One of the people I've been reading a lot this year is Carl Jung," Burstyn says, "who said the task of being a human being is to bring the darkness into the light."

"I don't think we can use our creative talents any better than to fulfill that task."

And if Jung's philosophy holds true, Rebecca De Mornay is performing her task as a human being often and well.

Just so long as she doesn't get bored.

LET'S TALK

How 'America's Funniest' host got his start; Olympic outrage in Oregon

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Dave Coulier

Q: I am a big fan of "Full House" and especially enjoy Dave Coulier, who plays Joey on the show. I think he is hysterical on "The New America's Funniest People" and would like some information about him. Where is he from? How did he get his start in show business? What other things has he been in? Where can I write to him? -Dave Cummings, Ballinger, Texas.

A: Coulier (pronounced cool-yay) grew up as the middle child of five in St. Clair Shores, Mich., a suburb of North Detroit.

After discovering he had a knack for doing impressions at an early age, Coulier began doing impromptu stand-up shows in the cafeteria at Notre Dame High School, an all-boys Catholic prep school.

That went over so well that soon he and his friends were putting on a two-hour stand-up and sketch show at a local all-girls Catholic high school for 900 paying audience members.

Heading west, Coulier got a job as a doorman at the Comedy Store and soon became a "regular" comic at the club.

After submitting a tape to Hanna-Barbera, Coulier soon found himself working on the "Scooby Doo" cartoon series.

Coulier has since been the voice of Animal, Bunsen Honeydew, Waldorf, Statler and Bean Bunny on "Muppet Babies" and the voice of Peter Venkman on "The Real Ghostbusters."

Coulier has made appearances on such TV series as "Newhart" and "Family Ties" as well as "The Arsenio Hall Show," "The Tonight Show," HBO's "Detroit Comedy Jam," Showtime's "Laugh-A-Thon" and A&E's "Evening at the Improv."

You can write to him C/O Michelle Marx Inc., 8756 Holloway Dr., Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Q: I am a big fan of "Saved by the Bell: The College Years." I was wondering if Mark-Paul Gosselaar is dead. My friend said he died in a motorcycle accident. Is this true? -Somewhere in New Jersey.

A: Your friend is either misinformed or very cruel. Gosselaar is alive and well, unlike his show.

Q: Could you please help me find the name of a movie? It starred

James Woods and James Garner and it deals with the people who founded Alcoholics Anonymous. I have seen this movie on television and would like to know if I can get a copy of it on video. -A.E., Chelsea, Mich.

A: The film you are referring to is titled "My Name Is Bill W." It chronicles how AA was formed by Bill Wilson and Dr. Robert Smith. Unfortunately it is not available on home video.

Q: Who decides which broadcasting company will carry the Olympics?

I think CBS did a terrible job of covering the Winter Olympics this year. Is it money that buys this honor or is it something that gets rotated around the networks? One would think that if CBS paid for the exclusive rights to carry the Olympics, that they would run it 24 hours a day.

Also, who will be carrying the 1996 Summer Olympics? I believe NBC did them last and did a fantastic job. -M.D., Portland, Ore.

A: With Olympic coverage, it's all about dollars and cents.

CBS paid about $300 million for the rights to the '94 Olympic Winter Games and $375 million for the '98 Winter Games.

And, you'll be happy to know, NBC will once again be carrying the Olympic Summer Games in '96.

TV magic for Siegfried & Roy, Miller as Batista, Carradine as Stewart

Las Vegas showmen Siegfried & Roy are busy taping a prime-time special - complete with trademark tigers - at their 88-acre ranch and Jungle Palace home. The program, to feature post-production special effects, will air on ABC this fall. The pair's live performances have grossed more than $157 million in the four years since their 64-person desert magic act opened at the Theatre Mirage.

Jason John Richter, the young star of last summer's sleeper hit "Free Willy," has signed up to make the sequel and will reportedly receive $1 million for his efforts. ... Susan Sarandon has joined Winona Ryder in the cast of "Little Women," due in theaters at Christmas.

Brandon Tartikoff, the former NBC entertainment chief responsible for "Hill Street Blues," "The Cosby Show" and "Fresh Prince of Bel Air," has since gone into the production business for himself. Tartikoff currently owes programs to both PBS and Fox for the fall. Now he's signed a deal to develop series at the studios of E! Entertainment Television, where his first effort is "Q and E!," a summer series that will feature celebrities answering questions submitted by viewers and staff writers. Tartikoff is also discussing programming deals with The Family Channel and Turner Entertainment.

There's a lot not to like about show business, and comic Dennis Miller still sounds bitter over the failure of his syndicated talk show. "To some extent, I approach show business like (deposed Cuban dictator) Batista," he says. "I stay up in the hills. I come down occasionally and pillage for food." Miller currently forages in a talk show each Friday on HBO.

In the "Yeah, Sure" department: David Carradine has finally revealed the secret to his characterization of Kwai Chang Caine in the original "Kung Fu" series, now airing weeknights on TNT. "Caine was Jimmy Stewart," he says. "In almost every movie he made, Jimmy was humble, didn't want to fight and helped everybody while confronting enormous odds."

MOVIES ON TV

Sunday squeaky clean; Monday murky; Saturday on thin ice in land of TV movies

BY SUZANNE GILL

The only thing dicey about "MacShayne: Final Roll of the Dice," airing Friday, April 29, on NBC, is the plot. Kenny Rogers stars in this second "MacShayne" mystery, playing a reformed con man who's working off what must be a monolithic debt to a Las Vegas casino/hotel. Enjoy the early-establishing scenes of security man MacShayne busting a crooked poker game and do-si-doing with his high-strung female boss, because it's all downhill once the assassin-for-hire plot line kicks in. The ending provides a twist, but only because of some underhanded clue dealing by the writers. Maria Conchita Alonso co-stars.

Goodness prevails Sunday, April 24, with the annual airing of "The Sound of Music" on NBC and the debut of "The Yearling," based on the children's novel by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, on CBS. Jean Smart and Peter Strauss star in the tale set in rural Florida.

Freshman director John Candy didn't live to see his comedy "Hostage for a Day" air, which it does, Monday, April 25, on Fox. George Wendt plays a frustrated husband who makes himself the victim in a fake hostage situation in order to get away from his shrewish wife and head for Alaska with his new love. Rebecca De Mornay stars in ABC's "Getting Out" as a parolee who hopes to claim the child she bore in prison, only to find that her mother (Ellen Burstyn) has placed him in foster care. NBC's "Web of Deception" stars Powers Boothe and Pam Dawber in a knotty tale of sex and murder.

Wednesday, April 27, brings Randy Travis in "Wind in the Wire," a tune-filled original movie on The Nashville Network. Travis plays himself in the tale of an orphan (Nick Banko) who tags along with a film crew.

Cap off the week with ripped-from-the-headlines fun in "Tonya and Nancy: The Inside Story," Saturday, April 30, on NBC. Alexandra Powers ("L.A. Law") and Heather Langenkamp star.

Fan says goodbye to Macdonald Carey

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I was so upset when I heard that Macdonald Carey (Tom Horton, "Days of Our Lives") had passed away. I know it sounds silly, but I have watched him for so long it felt as though someone in my family had died.

I practically grew up watching the Hortons and the Bradys on "Days," and Dr. Tom Horton was always there for his family and friends. My grandmother told me Carey had also been in several movies. Could you please tell me more about him?

I sure will miss my favorite doctor. -J.K. in Alabama.

Dear Reader: Many of Carey's fans share your sentiments: He was like a family member in many homes during his years on "Days." "This is Macdonald Carey, and these are the days of our lives," has been heard by viewers since the beginning of "Days" in November 1965.

Carey won two Emmys as Best Actor in a Daytime Drama for his work on "Days," and he also won six viewer-selected Soap Opera Awards for his role as Dr. Tom Horton on the series.

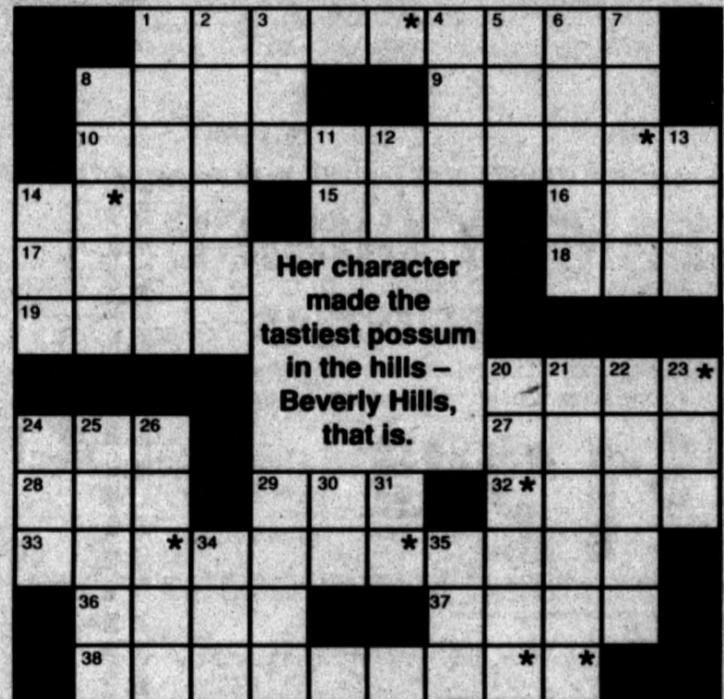

"The Great Gatsby," "Who Is the Black Dahlia?," "Streets of Laredo," "Let's Make It Legal," "Stranger at My Door" and Alfred Hitchcock's "Shadow of a Doubt" are some of the 60 movies in which Carey appeared in before making his way on to the small screen. He also had a successful career in radio and theater. On Broadway, he starred opposite Kitty Carlisle in "Anniversary Waltz" and with Gertrude Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark."

Carey blamed his divorce from actress Betty Heckscher on his alcoholism. He documented the story of his life in the autobiographical "The Days of My Life." He enjoyed writing and went on to pen three volumes of poetry.

In the last decade of his life Carey was a very spiritual man and was active in the Catholic Church. He is survived by six children and six grandchildren.

HSC Branson Tour is set June 14-18

The Hereford Senior Citizens Branson Tour is scheduled June 14-18. Cost for double occupancy is $425 a person. We will leave the Senior Citizen Center at 6 a.m. on a TNM&O Bus and drive straight through. A brown bag lunch will be provided.

We will spend four nights at the Howard Johnson Hotel, Branson's newest landmark. The hotel is located within one mile of 25 music theaters. It has a recreation area with a pool, jacuzzi and a gazebo. There are electronic locks on every room and elevators in every building. They have a luggage service, continental breakfast, and coffee is provided in the hotel 24 hours a day!

We will have a dinner show, "Yak in a Box," with the Russian comedian, Yakov Smirnoff. The other shows we will see are: Shoji Tabuchi, Bobby Vinton, Charlie Pride, Osmond Family, Kenny Rogers and Mel Tillis.

We will tour Silver Dollar City and visit Engler Block Mall. We will return home on Saturday, June 18. For more information, call Margie Daniels at 364-2061 or 364-9=0428.

Safety tips for seniors

Here's good news for older drivers: Your years of driving experience and more mature judgement, help you to be a safer driver. Knowing how to avoid dangerous situations, being more cautious and deliberate are almost second nature to most older drivers.

However, age can bring not only more wisdom but also less visual acuity and other physical changes that mean older drivers may need to pay more attention to the skills needed for safety. Here are a few hints compiled by experts at the AARP Auto and Homeowners Insurance Program, provided by ITT Hartford Insurance Group.

- Always use your safety belt.
- Maintain good health habits.
- Exercise, proper nutrition and regular medical check-ups keep minds and bodies in top condition for driving.
- Stay alert. You must be in control at all times because driving requires quick decisions. Resist becoming complacent just because driving has been a routine for so many years.

Margie's Notes

BY MARGIE DANIELS
Executive Director

The time is flying by! It's lawn and flower bed working time. Is there anyone who knows how to take care of roses and would volunteer to do that for us this summer? If so please call me.

We had a meeting yesterday working out details for the Festival of Trees. The festival will be Nov. 17-20 and there is a lot of planning and work goes on all year. If you can work with us on this exciting event, please contact me. We will be having another meeting Monday, May 9th at 9AM. Please come with any new ideas. We also need to start working on hand crafts for the bazaar. Also if you would like to decorate a tree, you might want to start thinking about your theme and decorations.

The itinere for the tour to Branson is printed in this paper. You need to get your deposit in immediately for your reservations. It's going to be a fun trip and we are looking forward to going.

Thanks to everyone who worked so hard on the garage sale. We will be having another sale in August and if you have anything of value to sell, instead of advertising it on the trading post, why don't you donate it to the HSCA garage sale!

We would like to thank the ladies who quilt everyday for their commitment to the center. They work hard to raise funds for the general operation, and they are also committed to doing beautiful work for the public. We have people from out of Hereford sending their quilts to us because of the excellent work. The ladies would appreciate more volunteers to help them with this program, men or Women!

Have you heard of the Reminisce Hitch? It is a six-horse trip across America honoring Senior Centers, sponsored by the Country's Reminisce. "Country's Reminisce Hitch" is the top team in the nation. Last year, it won more awards at major shows than any other six-horse hitch on the circuit. This is not only the top Belgian six-horse hitch in the country, this hitch is also ranked over any other six-horse teams of Clydesdales, Percherons, Shires or whatever.

They started last April in Maine to go the California, got to Centerville, the floods came and they had to load everything into their hugh trucks and drive to California and head back to Centerville. They are now just east of Santa Rosa, New Mexico heading for Highway 54 for Dalhart. They go ten miles each day and should arrive in Dalhart soon after the first of May. we would like to meet them there and encourage them on. We can have rides with them and see the Belgian team and visit with the crew. The young couple driving the team are very interesting people. If you would like to go meet them, sign up at the center.

See you at the Center

Mature driving training programs such as AARP's "55 Alive Defensive Driving Course" could save your life.

- As much as possible, avoid roads where traffic is heavy.
- Exercise particular caution at night.
- Eighty-five percent of the information needed for safe driving comes through the eyes, and older eyes are often more sensitive to glare, such as from oncoming headlights.

Are the free radicals eating away at you?

These days it seems everybody's taking antioxidant vitamins like C, E and beta-carotene. But the newest free radical fighter is the essential trace mineral zinc.

Free radicals are highly reactive molecules that literally eat away at our cells and genetic material. They are implicated in some 60 age-related diseases, including cancer, heart disease and premature aging.

Free radicals result from exposure to alcohol, tobacco, pesticides, radiation and other pollutants. They are also by-products of normal cell metabolism. If free radicals are produced faster than the body can neutralize them, free radicals become highly toxic.

The body uses antioxidants to detoxify free radicals. The exciting news about zinc is that it not only helps eliminate harmful free radicals, zinc helps prevent them from forming.

Zinc is an essential part of superoxide dismutase (SOD), a powerful antioxidant so important it's the fifth most common protein (of more than 100,000) produced by the body. By preventing oxidation, zinc protects vital bio-molecules called sulfhydryl compounds from turning into free radicals. Further, zinc competes with prooxidant metals (iron and copper) for binding sites, decreasing their ability to form free radicals.

Zinc also helps limit the production of free radicals produced naturally by the body. A recent study at the University of California showed that people taking a zinc monomethionine supplement significantly reduced excess levels of superoxide free radicals produced by white blood cells.

Because our bodies contain a mere one to two grams of zinc, there is a very delicate balance between the amount of zinc consumed each day and the amount that can cause symptoms of zinc deficiency. Mild or even marginal zinc deficiencies can affect the quality of hair, skin and nails, sex drive, taste and smell, and perhaps most importantly, immune function.

While the adult RDA for zinc is 12 to 19 milligrams per day, individual requirements can vary depending on age, sex, diet, climate, stress, infection and level of physical activity.

Unfortunately, current healthful recommendations for diet and exercise can actually deprive the body of zinc. A high-fiber meal can tie up more than 97 percent of the zinc consumed, and aerobic exercise actually increases zinc losses from the body.

Foods rich in bioavailable zinc include meat, liver, nuts, eggs and seafood, especially oysters. Unfortunately these are some of the richest sources of fat and cholesterol. Taking a zinc supplement may be the most prudent and effective way of insuring adequate intake.

Time saving travel tips

It's the night before your long awaited vacation and you're about to begin the dreaded task of packing.

For many travelers, bringing along the comforts of home without overpacking is a challenge.

Here are just a few tips and reminders to help you get organized and ensure a fuss-free getaway.

-Start thinking about packing a few days before your trip. Take the time to make a checklist of items will need. This will eliminate any last minute anxieties.

-Pack only what you can easily carry yourself. Too much luggage slows you down, wears you out and limits where you can go without a porter.

-Select clothes that complement each other. Black, white and neutral clothing work well together--they can easily be mixed and matched. Add an accessory, such as a bright scarf, for color and a new look.

-If you're arriving late at night, make sure the last items you pack are the first things you will need when you arrive at your destination, such as a nightgown or toothbrush.

-Carry your passport, tickets, travelers checks, and hotel addresses in your purse or carry-on bag. If an airline loses your luggage, you have your most important items on hand.

-Check to see if your hotel has hair dryers and irons available for guests to borrow. This will leave more room in your suitcase--not to mention a lighter load to carry.

-Don't let your toiletries weight you down. Bring a multi-purpose contact lens cleaner and disinfectant. Also, take an all-in-one shampoo and conditioner.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: I am 65 years old, retired, and have Medicare hospital and medical insurance. How much will I have to pay in medical expenses before Medicare will start paying health benefits?

A: In 1994, after you have met the Medicare hospital insurance (Part A) deductible of $696 and the $100 medical insurance (Part B) deductible, Medicare will begin paying its portion of the approved charges of your hospital and doctor bills.

Q: There have been a number of mail robberies reported in my section of town recently and I receive my Social Security check at my home. This has me concerned. I'm ready to sign up for direct deposit. What do I have to do?

A: You, like many people, are realizing the benefits of direct deposit. It's easy to sign up--just call Social Security's toll-free number any business day between 7 A.M. and 7 P.M. Or you can call the Amarillo office at 376-2241. When you call, the Social Security representative will ask for your Social Security number, your address, and the name of your bank and your account number, so please have the information handy.

Q: I'm a married woman who works and pays Social Security taxes. A friend of mine told me she'll be eligible for Social Security benefits on her husband's record, even though she's never worked or paid Social Security taxes. That doesn't seem fair. Does that mean that the Social Security taxes I'm paying are wasted, since I could get benefits on my husband's record without ever working?

A: The Social Security taxes you are paying are not wasted. As a married woman who works and pays Social Security taxes, you have advantages by being eligible for your own benefit. You may get a higher benefit when you retire than if your benefit was based solely on your husband's earnings. You can retire before your husband, based on your own earnings, even though your husband continues to work. As a working woman, you earn disability protection for you and your dependent children. Also, in the event of your death, your survivors may be eligible for benefits based on your earnings.

Q: Is the SSI payment for an eligible couple twice that of an eligible individual? And if it isn't, why not?

A: The SSI program currently provides a basic Federal payment of $446 for an eligible individual and $669 for an eligible couple. The payment for a couple is lower than that made to two individuals because married people living together generally share expenses and live more economically than two people living independently.

Healthy aging update

One out of every 25 Americans, mostly women over age 65, live with a serious health problem known as urinary incontinence or lack of bladder control.

Even though this problem is easy to treat, only one in 12 actually seeks help from a health care professional. Must suffer silently because they are too embarrassed by their condition to talk about it, or believe that it is an unavoidable part of growing older.

The truth could not be further from a myth. "Incontinence itself is not a disease, but a symptom of something else happening in the body," explains Penelop Catterall, director of health programs for the non-profit Alliance for Aging Research. "The condition may result from muscle damage during pregnancy, infections, injury, or it can be brought on by certain medications, as well as caffeine and alcohol." She adds that incontinence may cause a person to become depressed, afraid to leave home, stop seeing family and friends, or disrupt his or her sex life.

If you suffer from incontinence, you can and should do something about it. The first and most important step in getting your life back to normal is to see a doctor or nurse for a complete physical examination. Your medical professional will discuss the problem with you, find out what is causing the incontinence, and help you decide on the best treatment.

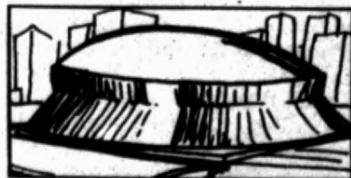

For many people, treatment can begin without the use of drugs or surgery. A doctor or nurse may prescribe such simple measures as changing some of the foods you eat or reducing the amount of caffeine and alcohol you drink. A doctor may also want to change the dosage or eliminate some of your medications.

There are a number of non-surgical and drug-free treatments for incontinence. Bladder training, a simple program over several weeks during which a patient is taught to follow a strict bathroom schedule, is one of the most popular. Another option is a program of pelvic muscle exercises along with biofeedback treatments. In addition, the Food and Drug Administration recently approved the first injectable collagen implant for incontinence, which works by adding bulk to the tissues around the opening from the bladder through which urine passes.

Several prescription medications are also available for incontinence, and in the most serious cases, surgery is sometimes needed to correct the problem. The type of treatment your doctor recommends will depend on what is causing your bladder problems. But you can't be helped unless you take the first step and talk to your doctor or nurse.

The Alliance for Aging Research has just published a new brochure with the most current information available on incontinence. To receive a free copy, write the Alliance for Aging Research, P.O. Box 19090, Department CF, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Macular degeneration most common cause of vision loss

Many of those past mid-life accept declining vision as a natural consequence of aging, but it also may be caused by a serious disease, such as macular degeneration, the leading cause of vision loss in people over 60 in this country.

Macular degeneration involves problems with the macula, the central part of the retina that provides sharp clear central vision. Even mild cases can impair a person's ability to read, drive a car, recognize a face or perform close work such as sewing.

Millions of Americans are diagnosed with some degree of this disease, and it is the leading cause of "legal blindness" in people over 60.

Macular degeneration cannot be reversed, but a very small percentage of people can be helped with laser treatment. It is important to consult an eye doctor immediately when any vision loss occurs.

Those who have lost detail vision in both eyes should consult a low vision specialist for help in maximizing remaining vision and learning about appropriate vision aids. There are a number of aids available including video magnifiers—called closed circuit televisions. This equipment enlarges type, regulates contrast and reduces glare to help with such routine tasks as reading newspapers and books and writing letters and checks.

People who believe they may have

PITTSBURGH (AP)—He's eating, gaining weight and exercising. But perhaps best of all, Gov. Robert P. Casey is sweating.

Doctors examined Casey on Friday and said they could find no signs of the viruses that swelled his glands and sapped his strength.

"He really seems to be doing very well," said Dr. William Follansbee, a cardiologist. "We just feel very positive and very encouraged."

Casey received a heart and liver transplant on June 14 to curtail amyloidosis.

Nutrition Notes

NUTRITION UPDATE 1994 April 1994

A recent seminar was held in Amarillo on NUTRITION AND CARDIOVASCULAR DISEASE with Ronald S. Smith, author of the Nutrition, Hypertension and Cardiovascular Disease (2nd Ed, 1989) the instructor. Smith is a member of The College of Nutrition, a charter member of The International Society for the Study of Fatty Acids and Lipids, and was Professor of Chemistry and Nutrition at Gavilan College, for past 16 years has kept current with the biomedical literature on nutrition as it pertains to cardiovascular disease, immunology and neuroscience at the Stanford and Oregon Medical Centers. He has taught Continuing Education seminars for health care professionals for over 13 years. He now devotes full time to research, writing and lecturing nationwide.

In the next few months of Nutrition Update, this dietitian shall review Mr.

Smith's book on several different topics that relate to hypertension and cardiovascular disease. The topic which will be reviewed this month is SODIUM AND HYPERTENSION.

The topic of Sodium intake and hypertension is assumed to be a well established topic and agreed upon by most professionals. The controversy concerning these subjects have more questions than answers. Consider the issue on salt. Sodium is an essential nutrient. Ordinary table salt, sodium chloride, is the most common source of sodium. Fruits, vegetables, grains and natural plant products are normally very low in sodium. Anyone subsisting on plants, without added salt, would consume between 100 mg to 200 mg per day. Sweating, fever, growth, diarrhea, vomiting, and diabetes can greatly increase this minimum requirement.

Animal products contain considerably more sodium than plant products. The average consumption of the normal Western Diet contains between 1000mg (1 gm) and 2000 mg (2 gm) sodium. (It takes 2.5 grams of table salt to provide 1 gm of sodium.) Add the sodium from industrial processing i.e. bread making, canned goods, potato chips etc. increases the diet to 2000 mg - 4000 mg of sodium consumed per day by the average person before any salt is added at the table or in cooking. If salt or a sodium based spice is added in preparation to eating, the total sodium content could range from 3000 to 7000 mg.

It has been reported that 10% of the sodium intake occurs naturally in foods, 75% is added by manufacturers, and only 15% is discretionary use in cooking or at the table. Even to adhere to 2000mg sodium intake one must use no salt at the table, in cooking and avoid the highly salted foods such as ham, chips, salted nuts and similar snacks. Extremely low sodium diets lower blood pressure in hypertensive and excessive high sodium diets raise blood pressures. In between these extremes, the evidence is much less consistent or convincing.

In order to get below 4000 mg which need major dietary changes; one must avoid dairy products, meats, all processed foods and salt at the table. With these harsh restrictions—who would follow the diet? Moderate cutbacks seem to be in order in most cases. There are other confounding factors necessary for beneficial control of hypertension. Weight reduction necessary when there is an obesity problem is a definite factor in lowering the blood pressure. With the development of effective antihypertensive drugs where the drug was easy to administer and no life style change was needed her in many cases become a more effective method of controlling sodium restrictions.

Some research studies have evaluated the sodium intake in regards as a useful tool in treatment for some hypertensive but do not address sodium as a cause of hypertension. Regardless of the level of salt intake, compliance is a major problem. It is noted that in some cases when sodium restriction is extremely strict the human body develops sodium deficiencies along with multiple nutrient deficiencies in a great many people.

The evidence on sodium is very conflicting. It probably means sodium restriction isn't the most important factor in hypertension. Severe sodium restriction does reduce blood pressure in many hypertensive, but it is difficult to implement. MODerate restriction is easier to implement and helps some hypertensive, especially type II diabetics. Some hypertensive are salt sensitive; they should be identified and put on low sodium diets. We Americans do consume much more sodium than is needed and no benefits are claimed for sodium rich diets.

Parking lot pointers for older citizens

Here's a surprising statistic: Parking lot accidents are a major source of auto insurance claims.

In response, the AARP Auto and Homeowners Insurance Program conducted a national survey of parking lot accidents to try to understand why they happen. Some of the study's highlights include:

-Most of the accidents involved a driver hitting a parked car or being hit by another vehicle while parked.

-Thirty-five percent of the accidents occurred when drivers were backing out of a space.

-A disproportionate number of accidents occur in small lots where there's less room to maneuver.

-The percent of accidents related to a driver's ability to maneuver a car increased with age.

-Some ways to avoid parking lot accidents: Slow down before proceeding across aisle intersections. Turn into an aisle with caution in case there's a car about to back out of a space.

Wellness, and What It Means:

An overall wellness program should include:

Stress management
Weight loss/control
Sound nutritional practices, like low-fat eating
Starting and staying with regular exercise
Reducing dietary sodium
Calculating sugar intake
Making good choices when eating out
Planning healthier meals

...And what being well means:

More energy
Less stress
Enjoying life!

For most normal children, hearing is most acute at about age 10. It takes about 30 to 40 years before any noticeable change occurs. High-pitched sounds fade first. But many people in their 70s and beyond retain the ability to hear a conversation at a normal pitch.

Take charge of health with real solutions

When people feel lethargic or their clothes start feeling tight, they generally start thinking about taking charge of their health.

For most that entails trying to eat healthier foods or beginning an exercise program that usually lasts only a few weeks. It's a battle that many people face every year, and unfortunately does not often get to the actual causes, such as stress or lifestyle.

This cycle seems to repeat itself annually, because the problem isn't only exercise and weight control. Overall health is about much more. It's about "wellness"—being physically and emotionally healthy—and developing habits that eliminate the need for an annual crash diet or exercise program to prepare for wearing warm weather clothes.

Once a person has made a commitment to end the cycle and do something that will eliminate the annual diet-exercise ritual, they should first identify and characterize their strengths and weaknesses in the areas of nutrition, exercise and stress management, as well as evaluating cholesterol and blood pressure levels. Assistance in conducting such an analysis may be available through a doctor.

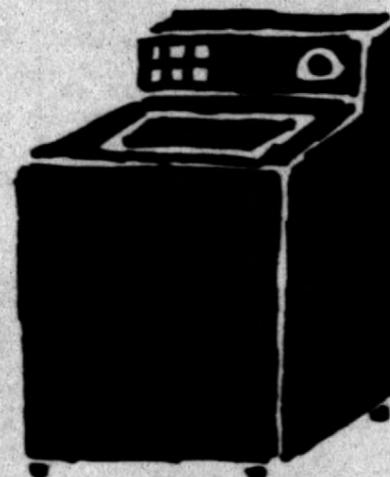

Since many people begin the road to improving their health due to weight problems, another way is to enlist in a structured program that focuses on lifestyle as well as weight control. Unfortunately, many people try liquid and other fad diets that result in only disheartening, temporary weight loss—primarily because unhealthy habits and true causes for weight problems are not the focus, food intake is. A comprehensive approach identifies and assesses health habits and practices. Then good habits can be reinforced and bad habits changed while losing weight.

Recently, such a program, called Real Solutions, was launched by Johnson & Johnson Health Management. This program begins with a questionnaire that goes far beyond diet and exercise and helps to analyze a person's habits and lifestyle. The computerized assessment may, for example, find that a person has basically healthy regular eating habits, but has difficulty coping with stress and eat unhealthy food while under stress. In that case, Real Solutions helps people focus on developing ways to manage their stress and thereby get to an indirect cause of weight gain.

Programs like Real Solutions that combine wellness and weight loss offer an answer for people looking to improve their health and appearance today by developing their awareness of lifestyle habits and their impact on overall health for tomorrow.

Do you know quality of your vitamin, mineral supplement?

There are several key standards of quality that can help you make sure the vitamin and mineral tablets and capsules you may be taking are doing the job they are expected to do in your body.

experts at the United States Pharmacopeia (USP) that you should know:

-Disintegration--how fast a tablet or capsule breaks into small pieces so its ingredients can dissolve. If a tablet or capsule does not break down within a certain time, it may pass through your body without being absorbed.

-Strength--the amount of specific substance in each tablet or capsule. While it is not technically possible to produce each individual tablet or capsule with precisely the same amount of an ingredient, it is possible through current manufacturing capabilities to ensure that each capsule or tablet contains an amount of an ingredient within a limited range that will still ensure sufficient nutrient ingredient strength to perform as expected.

-Expiration date--the date beyond which nutrient ingredients in a bottle or package of supplements no longer are likely to meet USP standards of purity, strength and quality.

HELP YOUR HEART RECIPES

This recipe is intended to be part of an overall healthful eating plan. Total fat intake should be less than 30 percent of your total calories for a day — not for each food or recipe.

Oven-Fried Scallops

- | | |
|----------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Vegetable oil spray* | 2 tablespoons snipped fresh parsley |
| 1 pound fresh or frozen scallops | |
| 1/2 cup low-fat buttermilk | Garnish: |
| 1/2 cup plain bread crumbs | 4 lemon wedges |
| Dash paprika | |

Preheat oven to 500° F. Lightly spray a shallow baking dish with vegetable oil.

Rinse fresh scallops in cold water and drain, or thaw and drain frozen scallops. Pat dry and set aside.

Place buttermilk and bread crumbs in separate small, shallow bowls. Soak scallops in buttermilk and then roll them in bread crumbs. Sprinkle with paprika.

Arrange scallops in a single layer in prepared baking dish. Bake 8 to 10 minutes.

Sprinkle with parsley and garnish with lemon wedges before serving.

A little bit goes a long way

Everyone knows that cheese is an excellent source of calcium and protein—but did you know it can also be a low fat, economical alternative to meat or fish?

The trick, of course, is picking the right cheese...it has to taste great, too.

Take, for example, that increasingly popular, streamlined version of a traditional favorite: Jarlsberg Lite has a mild get distinctive nutty flavor—mellow and deceptively "rich," it melts smoothly in many recipes but is low in calories, sodium and fat.

While this versatile cheese is also perfect for munching, healthful snacks and on-the-go lunches, a small amount can turn plain vegetables into a balanced, nutritious meal. Shred into stir-fried carrots and broccoli or snow peas...dice and combine in a casserole with colorful beans and rice...coarse grate and blend with onion or chive into baked or mashed potatoes...toss with a warm spinach salad...you get the idea.

SEE A COMPLETE CIRCUS CITY ERECTED BEFORE YOUR VERY EYES

Long before the first performance, local residents will be able to witness a spectacular free show as hundreds of men and animals unload and erect America's Last Big Tented Circus. It is a bonanza for camera and video buffs, replete with colorful settings, spectacular situations and thrilling actions.

Carson & Barnes Five-Ring Circus invites everyone to witness this intriguing and extraordinary occurrence. You are welcome to mingle with the circus employees. Parents and grandparents are encouraged to bring the youngsters who may never again have an opportunity to watch a huge old fashioned tented circus set up.

Carson & Barnes Circus is such a big show that it can afford to stay only one day in most of the towns and cities that it visits. It arrives soon after dawn, sets up, provides two nearly 2 hour shows and then tears down. All in one day.

All morning long the trucks and custom vehicles will be flowing onto the circus grounds — more than 80 vehicles! First to arrive are the big diesel-powered vehicles with the tent, the poles and the massive pile drivers which pound the wooden stakes into the ground to hold the big top in the air. The fleet takes several hours to arrive and be parked, but you know the last vehicles have arrived when the mechanics pull on the lot — the fire truck, fuel truck, semi-trailer shop truck and the huge custom wrecker and spare tractors.

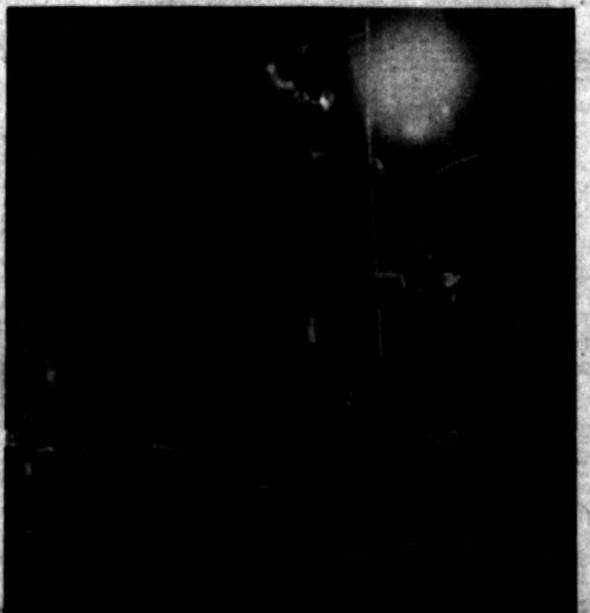

Five semi-trailers are used to carry one of the biggest attractions on the show. This is the largest herd of performing elephants in the world — which includes more than 20 of these massive beasts. These stars of the last big free menagerie still on tour in the United States are unloaded, watered and fed soon after they arrive on the circus grounds.

Simultaneously the specially engineered equine and menagerie trailers are positioned and the grazing animals are led out into the grassy pens, fed and watered. The reinforced rhinoceros cage opened with elephant power, the giraffe coaxed out of its highway home and the big cats cleaned, fed and watered. Visitors to the circus lot in the morning are welcome to view all this for free, plus the other animals among the various species represented. In the afternoon, a circus ticket is also good for admission to the menagerie both prior to and following each performance.

Concurrently, the world's largest circus tent — acres of waterproof and fireproof material — will be spread to its full length of more than a city block. The 400 stakes will be driven and a crew of men, aided by 3 elephants, will push and pull the jumbo structure high into the air. The biggest big top on earth is supported by more than 100 support poles attached by miles of rope, cables and lacelines.

At the front of the showgrounds, the midway tents and equipment will be assembled, the pony and elephant rides set-up, and the offices and concessions readied for the convenience of the public. To one side, the mechanical shop, cookhouse and dining tents and commissary departments will be put into operation to service the fleet and various crews. In the back lot, performers and support personnel of the world's largest tent show will be arriving in their house trailers and motor homes. They will set up their temporary residences, where they will be occupied with normal household chores, while the children play or study their school lessons.

All of the circus morning activity is a show in itself. Bring your family out to witness this seldom-seen spectacle and enjoy yourselves! (And remember, all morning long, it's free!)

BIG CITY SHOW AT SMALL TOWN PRICES

The smell of fresh popped popcorn, the swoop of the acrobat, the smiles of the clowns, the lumbering grace of the elephants — there is nothing like a good circus to send you back to your childhood for a few carefree hours.

Nothing else offers the same nostalgic escape. Carnivals are too shrill, amusement parks are all day ordeals, plays are too demanding and even a good movie is flat by comparison.

But a circus — a circus comes to you, sets up in your town and provides a barrage of color, music and movement that is too much to take in all at once.

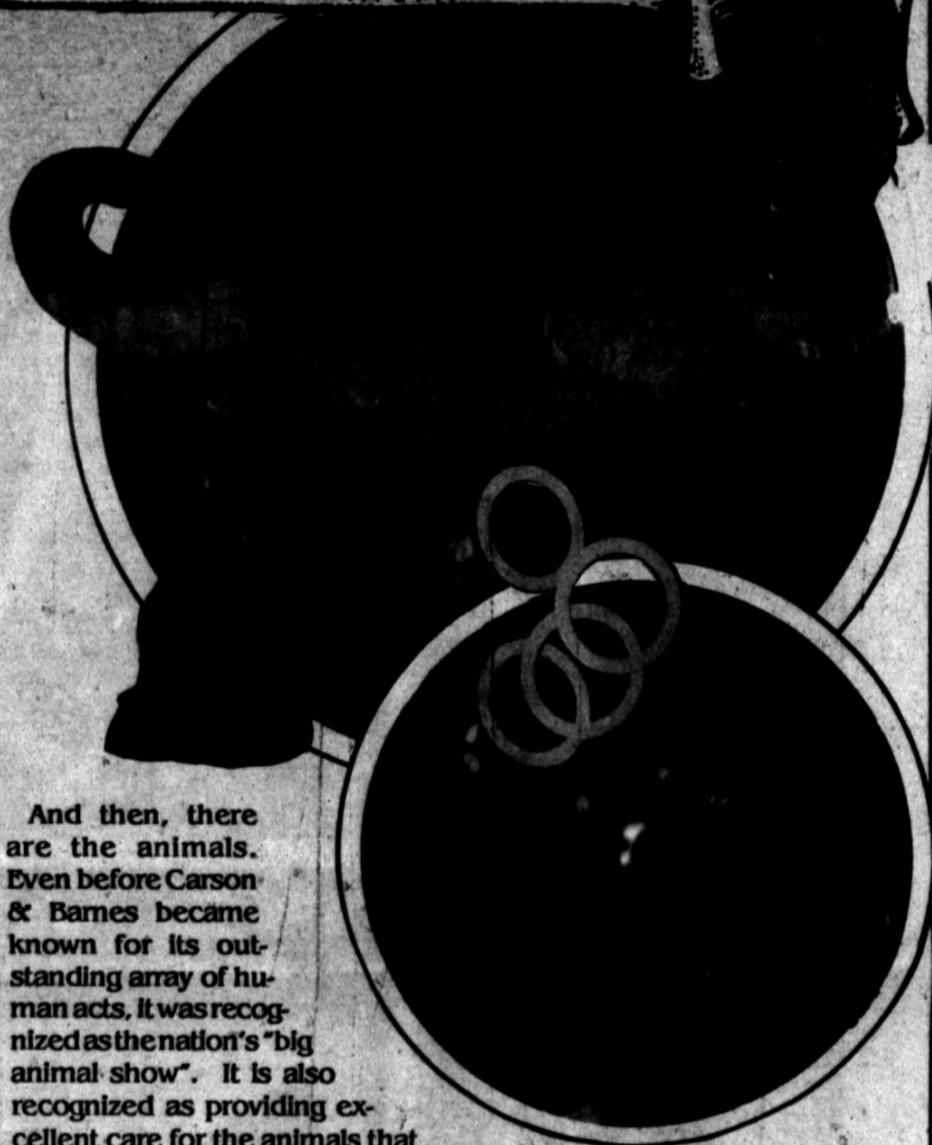

A child's eyes blaze in wonderment and awe — the big top, the animals, the performers are all dazzling to the young and young at heart.

The Carson & Barnes Circus is on the way. It is the last big traditional circus in America — the big top stretching more than a city block long, five rings plus two additional performance areas, the hippodrome track and steel arena, circus music, and a tent full of clowns and extraordinary human and animal performers.

It is so big that it moves every day — visiting a new city or town every 24 hours is the only way the circus can attract sufficient fun seekers to pay its astronomical daily expense. The circus is invited to thousands of towns each year but our schedule only permits us to perform in 240 locations each season. Depending upon the size of the town, some communities can only expect to see the big show once every five or six years.

An almost all-new contingent of performers presents a vast array of acrobatic and aerial tricks, including various flying trapeze performers, wire walking, bareback riding, juggling, trampoline, archery, hair hang, perch pole and many other traditional circus acts.

The show also includes an old fashioned Circus Spectacular, all around the hippodrome track and in all five rings, including a themed 40-person aerial ballet. This is one of the major productions which circus fans have come to expect, only from Carson & Barnes.

And then, there are the animals. Even before Carson & Barnes became known for its outstanding array of human acts, it was recognized as the nation's "big animal show". It is also recognized as providing excellent care for the animals that are true members of this traditional circus family.

Nothing under the big top or in the arena can match the thrilling long mount of more than 20 elephants down the spacious front hippodrome track. In another display, the tent becomes a veritable sea of waving manes and flying tails as the famous Carson & Barnes Liberty Horses perform. Other beasts appearing during the spectacular extravaganza include camels, llamas and the big cats — lions, tigers and a rare liger.

The world renowned Carson & Barnes Circus is coming. Don't miss the biggest entertainment event that has come your way in years and years. Good family fun for the entire community!!

ACLE OF SENSATIONAL SPLENDOR

CIRCUS OWNERS OVER FIFTY-EIGHT YEARS

Circus owners D. R. and Isla Miller and their 20 elephants have an understanding. The Millers provide room, board and plenty of tender loving care and the elephants put up the circus tent, seven days a week, 35 weeks a year, in 240 towns and cities from coast to coast and border to border.

And quite a tent it is, too. Larger than a football field — colorful waterproof and flameproof polyvinyl — acclaimed as the most beautiful big top ever toured. The biggest and the best. But that is not unusual for this family of circus owners — they have quite a list of accomplishments in the record books.

The Miller Family owns more elephants (30) than any other family, tours with the Biggest Big Top on Earth, and has owned circuses for years longer than any other individual in the history of the Circus.

They manage a show that maintains the last free traveling zoo which includes a giraffe, rhinoceroses, pygmy hippopotamus, zebras and a variety of other species.

As Isla Miller points out, "We are also the last big circus that uses local sponsors in each community. They help us with many of the advance arrangements and share in the proceeds. Over the years our circus family has become like a member of the community in many of the towns that we return to."

Other tent circuses claim to be the biggest, but to end the confusion, D. R. Miller lists the shows records:

Millers' circus has more rings (five), more horses and ponies (60), more animals (100), more performers (85), more motor vehicles, more elephants and the longest tent.

The only thing this circus does not have the most of is seats. To ensure that all can see, and that no patron is very far from one of the five rings, there are only 12 rows of seats in every bleacher section — and there are no folding chairs placed in front of the bleachers — every patron has a clear view of the action.

"No big deal," says Miller about not having as many seats as other shows. "I never went to a circus to see the seats."

The elephants, the biggest big top on earth, the one day stands and the traditional family oriented show are what make Carson & Barnes Circus unique.

WHAT OTHERS SAY ABOUT US...

"There's something about a big, big top circus — under a tent — that simply can't be duplicated otherwise. Not even by Ringling Brothers' "Greatest Show on Earth" or by the fabulous Shrine Circus, both of which now play indoors or in a stadium.

...this one has it all. Twenty big African and Asian elephants, swooping acrobats, laughing clowns, daring equestrians, high wire artists, a wild animal trainer."

—Owosso (MI) The Argus-Press

"Overheating even the most severely television-shortened attention spans, Carson and Barnes' five-ring circus kept a tent full of children and their parents in a state of olfactory, aural and visual overload for two hours Thursday afternoon."

—Twin Falls (IA) Times-News

"Over 5,000 ladies, gentle-men and children of all ages were crowded under the world's biggest top to be dazed and amazed and to have their hair raised at an old-fashioned open-air extravaganza."

—New Ulm (MN) The Journal

"Whitney was one of hundreds of youngsters who reveled yesterday in the wonders of the Carson & Barnes Circus, which set up its red, white and blue big top for a one-day stint in Aurora."

—Denver (CO) Rocky Mountain News

"She certainly wasn't alone in getting a thrill at the circus Thursday night. To judge from the loud applause and cheering that was touched off after every act in Carson & Barnes' fast-paced, 100-minute, five-ring circus, everybody in the seats must have had a great time. The show has numerous stars in its performing cast of 90...and each of them is sensational.

—The Milwaukee Sentinel

"When Carson and Barnes Circus says it has the biggest big top on Earth, it's no exaggeration."

—Indianapolis (IN) Star

"A circus is the world's answer to despair and chaos, a place where laughter's release and shared excitement provide an escape back to childhood."

—Concordia (KS) Blade Empire

"And though circuses for the most part may have become a thing of the past, bearing the same quaint, distant quality as a Norman Rockwell painting, the years have treated this particular circus well."

—Loraine (OH) The Journal Tempo
