Talk about a fishbowl. Diane Smith knows every move she makes will be watched — and probably discussed in public at the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board meetings.

On Nov. 29, Smith assumed her duties as director of the Hereford Health Clinic, and is charged with turning the former rural health clinic around financially. The health clinic has been the topic of many conversations at the hospital board because it has been consistently losing money for several months. One of the recommendations of a hospital consultant was that the board hire a full-time clinic director who would be responsible for putting the clinic's fiscal house in order. That task falls on Smith, a

Hereford native who returned to her home town around the first of November.

As a native of Hereford, Smith knows that in her small home town, unlike Ventura, Calif., where she had been living, everybody pretty much knows what everybody else is

Because she knows her every move as health clinic director is being watched, "I have to make sure I do what I said I can do," Smith said.

"We've identified some areas (of clinic operations) that need to be worked on, and we're working on them now," she said.

Smith, who returned to Hereford from Ventura, Calif., is a graduate of Hereford High School. She earned a bachelor's degree in business administration, with a major in marketing, from Texas Tech University.

Before moving to California, she worked for 10 years at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, holding a variety of positions. Her most recent positions at UTMB were in the surgery department, where she was medical business manager for five years and the department's billing coordina-

She held several positions in the health care industry in Southern California, including regional accounts manager for Abbey Infusion Services in Santa Barbara; territory manager for Modern Health in Ventura, where she was responsible for marketing, developing new accounts for home infusion therapy, and developing professional relationships with health care professions in the community.

Diane Smith is new director of the Hereford Health Clinic

One Health Plan of California in Glendale.

In that position, Smith was responsible for developing networks and contracts for Southern California; preparation of contracts for providers, including medical groups, individual physicians, hospitals and ancillary services.

Smith decided to quit her

Candidates seek spots on ballot

From Staff Reports

Candidates who want a spot on the March 14 primary election ballot have until Jan. 3 to file. Filing began Dec. 3. The last day to register to vote in the primary is Feb. Early voting in the primary elections will be Feb.

28-March 10. The State of Texas has issued new voter registration certificates. The cards, which are changed every two years, have had a color change from baby blue, which was used the past two years, currently to yellow. The cards are automatically mailed to registered voters. Any business, such as any changes needed to be made to the certificate or to register to vote, can be dealt with at the County

Also, prayer will get mixed in with politics on the GOP primary ballot.

State party officials have voted to place a non-binding referendum on the GOP ballot next March that asks voters: "Shall student-initiated prayer be allowed at school sporting events?"

The referendum responds to recent court rulings banning student led-prayer before football games and gives Texans a chance to express their "outrage," said Susan Weddington, state chair.

Shippers expect to break recor

DORAVILLE, Ga. (AP) - As delivery driver Scott Johnson examined the package labels in his brown United Parcel Service truck, he could see why his and other shipping companies expect to break records this

"About half the packages have some sort of dot-com on them," Johnson said Friday while delivering packages in suburban Atlanta. "Seems like everybody's ordering something online nowadays, and I'm about twice as busy as usual."

Atlanta-based UPS said it was expecting to make 18 million deliveries Friday, near its one-day record of 18.1 million set during the holidays five years ago. Final shipping numbers from Friday weren't immediately avail-To put it in perspective, UPS makes average about 12.5 million deliveries per day. The boom in online retailing - expected to be about $6 billion this year - is being partially credited for the increase.

Following the record in 1994, the company began asking shippers to get their packages out early to avoid the holiday crush. That strategy has been wiped out by Web shopping.

"So any new possible record shows the impact of ebusiness and the booming economy," UPS spokesman Norman Black said.

Last year, about 55 percent of online businesses used UPS for their deliveries.

Federal Express expects next Wednesday to be its busiest day, with 4.5 million shipments. That would be an increase from last year's busiest day of 4.2 million shipments. "I can't attribute it exactly to the Internet, but I'm sure that plays a large part," FedEx spokeswoman Carla Boyd said, adding that the Memphis, Tenn.-based company's peak was later than UPS because FedEx specializes in overnight shipments.

FedEx doesn't track how many shipments come from the Internet, but Ms. Boyd said 70 percent of all FedEx orders are done electronically — either via the Internet or by FedEx software which its largest customers use.

School board to meet

The Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees has called a special meeting for 6 p.m. Monday regarding public comments on the AEIS report.

Immediately following the special meeting, board members will meet for the regular scheduled meeting.

Agenda items include approval of minutes, ratification of bills and approval of the AEIS report.

Board members will discuss the update of several local and state policies; cabling proposals on vocational building 2; a purchase agreement with Region XVI; and the appointment to the juvenile Probation Board.

Elizabeth Superintendent Abernethy, is expected to present a curriculum report.

The board will meet in the board room at the Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

County extends deadline

Deaf Smith County Social Services has extended the deadline for toys and donations to the Christmas for Children toy drive until the end of business Tuesday.

Items for teens are especially needed.

Donations may be dropped off at First National Bank, FirstBank Southwest, Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union, or Stevens Chevrolet. Donations may be made anytime before close of business on Tuesday.

Staff and volunteers will distribute the toys next week.

Old name, new bank — More than 50 people were present Friday when First National Bank of Hereford officially opened its doors for the second time in Hereford's long history. The newly-chartered bank, located at the downtown corner of Lee and 3rd Streets, was organized a year ago by a group of Hereford and area cattle/agri-businessmen, including bank President and CEO Wade Easley (above) who cut the grand opening ribbon on the venture during a ceremony hosted Friday morning by the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Hustlers. A Hereford native, Easley began his banking career as a loan officer at the original First National Bank of Hereford; at that time Hereford's oldest financial institution. He was serving in that capacity at FNB prior to the bank's merger with Perryton-based banking group, FirstBank Southwest. Initially chartered under the operating name of La Plata Organizational Group, the new FNB is now owned by an investor-owned holding company, La Plata Bancshares. First National Bank of Hereford directors include Chris Cabbiness, Easley, Scott Hall, Scott Keeling, Barry Josserand, Jim Marsh, Joe Perrin, John Perrin, Don Oppliger of Farwell and Gilbert Tijerina.

Bradley planned a rally of his own today before preparing to meet Gore again Sunday, on NBC's "Meet The Press," a one-on-one format that promised an even more direct exchange between the rivals.

Show off spirit; join the parade

Dallas weather and the Texas City Stingarees rained on our parade a week ago during the Herd's first-ever appearance in a state championship football game at Irving's Texas Stadium.

But Hereford football, volleyball, girl's cross-country players and coaches and members of the Hereford High School rodeo team are going to get a parade anyway if the Whiteface Booster Club and Hereford Independent School District have anything to say about it.

The booster club and HISD have announced plans to honor athletes and coaches representing those four sports programs with a "Parade of Champions" Tuesday, December 21.

Plans call for the parade to begin at 4:45 p.m. at Hereford High School, proceed west on Grand to 25-Mile Ave, north to Moreman St, and then west to Whiteface Field where, at approximately 5:10 p.m., athletes and coaches will be introduced and recognized for their many achievements this fall.

In addition to the introductions of players and coaches, special presentations will also be made to each head coach, and plans for a "Season of the Century" project will be unveiled by the booster club.

The parade is a very fitting tribute to the young men and women who have electrified the community and its Whiteface fans in so many ways.

We encourage the entire town to make plans to line the parade route, follow the procession afterward and help organizers honor all these young men and women who continue to honor us through their sportsmanship, personal pride and determination.

It's been a banner year for Hereford sports thus far, and the second half has only just begun.

Let the "Parade of Champions" begin, but don't take down all the decorations.

enough for us.

On New Year's Day, 1994, Annette and I decided we were going to run a marathon, tentatively shooting for one in December in Alamagordo, N.M. Nearly every running magazine that we read advised training for a year before attempting that first marathon.

Nine months after we started, we completed the Duke City Marathon in Albuquerque, N.M. Now, we've decided we'd like to try it again, and we're starting a low-key running program to prepare us for the Duke City event next Septem-

When we started training for what would be our first marathon, we lived in New Iberia, La., and I guess we became a common sight as we jogged alongside the Bayou Teche, beside sugarcane fields and through the city streets.

We'd been training for five months when we moved to Roswell, N.M., renting a house on the former Walker Air Force Base. The base, which had shut down in the late 1960s, was best known for its alien connection. One of the hangars on the base reportedly was where the military was supposed to have taken the bodies of the aliens recovered from a crash site on a ranch northwest of the city. The former base, which now was home to the Roswell airport, an industrial park and a branch of Eastern New Mexico University, still was enclosed by fence and a road encircled it. It was 18 miles from our house around the perimeter of the base - perfect for our longdistance training.

We developed a training routine that seemed to work pretty well for us.

I was working nightside at the Daily Record. getting home about 1:30 a.m. and generally tumbling into bed about 2 or 2:30. Annette worked days, so every day we'd get up about 5:45 a.m. to take our short run, usually 3-4 miles. On Sundays, we'd get up early, put on our backpacks with plenty of water and run the perimeter of the base. Of course, we used to stop and walk now and then, but as the weeks passed, we found we were able to make the whole distance without stopping and we decided to shoot for the Duke City Marathon

't's not New Year's Day, but it's close we tested ourselves by running a half-marathon in Roswell. We were ready. with water stations every mile or so and plenty of portable restrooms along the course, which looped through downtown Albuquerque, past the University of New Mexico to the zoo and along the Rio Grande and back to the central plaza in downtown.

It took Annette slightly more than 5 hours to run the course; it took me about 51/2 hours.

We both felt a tremendous sense of accomplishment when we crossed the finish line. We had shown self-discipline and willpower, and had achieved our goal.

However, we learned a couple of important things:

· Don't ever run a half-marathon less than a week before running a marathon. It takes about a week or so for your legs to recover from a long run and six days just isn't enough

· Make sure the motel room you've reserved is on the ground floor. After running a marathon, your legs are bit shaky and it's hard climbing the stairs to the third floor.

I guess we decided to start training for another marathon because we missed the camaraderie that we found at the road races. In all the years we participated in running events, we found there were none of the normal class distinctions that divide us. In running shorts and T-shirts, you can't tell the bank president from the sanitation worker, the school superintendent from the plumber.

There are no political differences; no one cares if you're a Republican or Democratic, conservative or liberal, anarchist or monarchist. The only thing that matters is doing better than you did in the last run.

It is very competitive, but most of runners compete against themselves, striving to achieve personal bests in each run. In the runs Annette and I participated in, we found the atmosphere to be one of friendliness, as runners pass each other on the course, you hear shouts: "Looking good!" "Keep it up."

We missed that sense of community — and now we've decided to regain something we'd

When it rains in Dallas, it pours in Texas Stadium.

- A conversation between two of the 11,480 fans that found a semi-dry berth in Texas Stadium prior to Hereford's duke-out with Texas City Saturday, Dec. 11 in the Division I Class 4A state championship football game.

Hello, Hereford.

s Christmas wishes go, I missed the mark when my Hereford Whitefaces lost 27-14 to the favored Texas City Stingarees in this year's state Class 4A bowl game.

But these days I'm often reminded that I better not pout, better not cry.

I could have cried oceans while on the sidelines and no one would have been the

Like football players and others whose station was on the sidelines that night, I learned something new about the laws of physics as they apply to Irving's illustrious Texas Stadium — (A) the volume of rain falling through the stadium's open skylight is multiplied 50 times around its rim, (B) the rim encompasses 95 percent of the sideline

I laughed when I watched the reruns of the game the other night.

Tom Simons, "The Voice of the Hereford Whitefaces," noted that it appeared to be sprinkling at times while he and Hereford Brand Sports Editor Yuri Soto were choking down hot dogs and other press box hospitality during the game.

Sprinkling? By night's end, my underwear and boots could have been listed as two of the area's newest water reservoirs.

Granted, it was my fault that I chose not to buy a 5th really good poncho that I never have when I am in most need of it. Instead, I chose a $3.99 K-Mart special - heavy-duty Saran Wrap with a hood — and paid dearly for my frugalness. After it tore and then . became a cape, I had my son throw it in the trash. Five drenching minutes later, I had him retrieve it.

"Don't make me do that Dad," he whined and pleaded, "people are going to think I'm a homeless boy, digging around in the trash.

"Right now Kanen, we are homeless. Most homeless people have sense enough to get out of the rain. We're wet and homeless.

Please get the cape."

But the drenching we absorbed only added to a weekend full of frustrations.

Here's the Top 10 list:
(1) They said I had no reason to talk, but I still wager that the Southwest Airline pilots who flew us from Amarillo to Dallas last Friday had to apply a great deal of hydraulic trim and muscle to offset the weight displacement caused when my press foreman and sports editor sat on the same side of the Compressed between their substantial profile and the window, I spent the flight enjoying the rhythmic patterns of fog my breath played against the sunlit glass.

(2) Size became an issue again when the rental car agency announced the Blazer we had rented for the weekend was not designed for Sumo wrestlers. The SUV would seat six normal-sized human beings and their accompanying luggage. Since they had no buses left, we settled for an upgrade to a less cozy

(8) Why is it that east always looks like it is supposed to be west in Dallas? We got lost as soon as we left the car rental lot.

(4) Wilson World (aptly named) on Highway 183 will never have to worry about becoming a five-star hotel. When we arrived to check in, the joint was hosting a pajama party in the lobby in response to a fire alarm.

"You're in room 425 next to the exit," the clerk screamed over the alarm. When the elevators were reactivated, my wife caught my glance and admitted she was thinking of the Embassy Suites next door when she made the arrangements. "Silly me, I remembered the place next door because this one had such a weird name," she said.

(5) Dinner, the first real opportunity to unwind for the evening, was, too, an experience. After listening to every one in the van (at least my immediate family) describe what they weren't hungry for, we chose a steakhouse. A further pall clouded the evening when a female patron passed-out, hit the floor in the entrance, and no one "Yeah, she didn't seem to be feeling all that well earlier," our waitress yawned after we expressed our concern. "Bless her heart now, could I please take your drink orders?"

Presidents revel as peace-makers

History often remembers presidents for wars that occur on their watch, but presidents usually strive to be remembered for the peace agreements they help put in place.

President Clinton hopes to leave a legacy as the American president who helped bring peace to the Middle East, just as former President Carter is remembered for the 1978 Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel.

"We have a truly historic opportunity now," Clinton said in advance of today's meeting at the White House between Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa.

The best reaction probably came when we worked our way around to the north side of the complex where the families live.

Long before we reached the family units, we could here loud, angry voices emanating from the second-story apartment.

Among the giggling kids, the embarrassed teen, and the growling dog, we finally started in on a favorite carol. Despite the odd assortment of off-key voices, suddenly the arguing stopped. Little kids hung over the balcony, while adults and teens came out to see who could possibly make that atrocious racket: Surely the fire department would have fined someone for excessive occupancy. I never knew that many people could be in one small apartment.

Believe it or not, those angry voices subsided and at the end of the song, we were applauded. Not only did they clap loudly, but they also asked us to sing another.

These people had to be desperate for something good to come into their lives. On my best day, I wouldn't want to listen to myself sing one song, never mind a second.

At the end of the song, that extended family invited us in to join their family celebration. Considering how they sounded when we arrived, we declined. Never

If the get-acquainted talks succeed, and particularly if they lead to a wider peace agreement, it will cap Clinton's earlier accomplishment of coaxing Israel and the Palestinians to the bargaining table.

Many presidents have generous — perhaps exaggerated — opinions of their ability to influence world events through personal dealings, said Fred Greenstein, a political science professor at Princeton University.

In Clinton's case, self-assurance and an apparent be-lief that he can talk anyone into nearly anything works to his benefit, Greenstein said. "He's full of skill and savvy," Greenstein said. "He's got the presidency at his disposal, and it doesn't involve having to cut deals with Congress."

As a peacemaker, Clinton also can point to his administration's role in the 1998 Northern Ireland peace initiative and the 1995 Dayton, Ohio, accords that ended civil war in Bosnia.

Throughout the expiring 20th century, U.S. presidents have tried often to use their persuasive powers to further

VIEWPOINTS

President Theodore Roosevelt could boast of winning the 1906 Nobel Peace Prize for helping mediate an armistice that ended a war between Russia and Japan.

Later, President Woodrow Wilson threw himself into efforts at world peace with his proposal for a League of Nations. His persuasive powers failed, however, when it came to the U.S. Congress, and the United States stayed out of the organization its president created.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt believed he could avoid the Cold War by charming Soviet dictator Josef Stalin. Historians view it as a major misreading of Stalin's charac-

Similarly, Lyndon Johnson suggested he could end the war in Vietnam if only he could reason privately with Ho Chi Minh, the ideologically driven strategist who commanded communist-led forces in Vietnam. It was another historical misreading by a U.S. president.

Carter saw his final year - and campaign - shadowed by the Iran hostage crisis, and he lost to Ronald Reagan in a 1980 electoral landslide. But Carter made his major foreign policy mark with the 1978 Camp David accords, and he still works at international mediation as an ex-president.

Reagan trusted his instincts when he put aside his "Evil Empire" rhetoric to reach out to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in an overture that helped thaw the Cold War and led to a series of major arms-reduction agreements.

And George Bush, a former U.N. ambassador, CIA director and envoy to China, made extensive use of his relationships with world leaders to help nurse alliances that helped hasten the end of the Cold War.

Lame-duck presidents, particularly ones like Clinton nearing the end of a second term, "are pragmatic. They are a spent force in many ways in regard to their domestic programs," said former Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., onetime chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Their best chance of making progress is in the foreign policy area," Hamilton said.

He said he finds it interesting that Clinton came into office expecting his national security team at the time -Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Defense Secretary Les Aspin and National Security Adviser Tony Lake - "would handle foreign policy for him."

"He quickly learned that American presidents can't do that," Hamilton said. "He had to focus on foreign policy him-

Thinks photo negative Dear Editor:

The run for the football state championship by the Herd had a very positive telling effect on our entire community. This event has helped the young boys of our town believe that winning a state football championship is a real possibility. This whole experience has been positive, starting with the biggest cog in the wheel, the young men who made this epic event work. The class and character these young men dis-played on and off the field is a tribute to the young men, their parents and the coaches in Hereford. With that said, I would like to pose a question to the Hereford Brand sports editor. Why would you print a picture that shows the ball being stripped from the Hereford receiver by a Texas City defender?

How could you take an event this positive and taint it with such a negative picture? I am sure that you could have found a great picture of our touchdowns, kickoff returns, or pass receptions to print on the front page of the sports pages.

To end this positive season with a loss is grief enough, but to have the Hereford sports editor print this negative photo frankly makes me sick to my stomach.

One other question that I would like to ask concerns the article about the game. Who in Hereford, Texas, cares what the Texas City coach and players thought about their victory?

I think the Hereford Brand should get on the bandwagon like the rest of our community by being positive about this great experience.

Editor's Note: Answers - The picture you're referring to was a telling moment in the game. The picture was chosen by the publisher, not the sports editor. This newspaper takes great pains to cover an event from both sides of the fence, not only from the Hereford perspective. Residing within our ar-chives are also many past issues which depict our interest in covering all community events whether positive or negative, good or bad, in victory or in defeat. While we share your belief that this year's edition of the Whiteface football team is full of winners, that still does not remove our obligation to report the score, which "on that given night" indicated the Whitefaces played a better team.

We believe our entire coverage of the state playoff game was objective. And we also believe the Hereford Whitefaces have been able to put the disappointment of this loss in its proper perspective better than some fans have been able to.

Herd made some friends Dear Editor:

What a delightful time we had last Saturday watching the Herd go all out in an attempt to bring home a state football championship. They truly played with the heart of champions and represented Hereford very well.

However, the highlight of our trip there may have been when a couple beside us asked where we were from. When I told her we were from Hereford, she told me they were there to support the Herd. They were from (Waco) Hewitt Midway and had a son who played on their team. She said they were there because he felt that the Hereford team was very friendly and the best sports they had

When you can pick up supporters from your opposition, you really are the champions. Congratulations to the players, coaches and parents of these fine young men.

Bush: Questions about intelligence just 'phase'

WASHINGTON (AP) -Questions about his intelligence are just "another phase" in his quest for the presidency and will soon pass, Texas Gov. George W. Bush believes.

"I just ignore it, because I know I've got confidence in my capabilities. I love to be underestimated," the Republican presidential front-runner said Thursday on CNN's "Larry King Live."
Bush said he was similarly underestimated in 1994, before he stunned incumbent Democratic Texas Gov. Ann Richards and won the first of his two terms in office.

"They ignored the fact that I went to Yale and Harvard, and said my intelligence was (not) heavy enough to handle the job, and I won," Bush said. "It'll pass, and there'll be another phase. But I'd rather be underestimated in politics than not."

Most recently, the governor has faced the questions about his intellectual heft after confusing the names of some foreign countries and leaders, and relying on scripted answers in his first two presidential debates.

On other topics, Bush: · Refused to answer questions about whether it was hypocritical to have people in prison for the same offense that a governor committed.

Bush said that King was trying to get him to talk about reports Bush may have used drugs, a question the governor has refused to answer except to say that he has not used drugs since 1975.

"Here's what people need to know about me: that I'm going to bring honor and dignity, that I've learned from mistakes made, that I am prepared to send a message of personal responsibility, and that's what I'm going to do,"

"I interpreted it to mean who had the most influence on my life. Christ has," Bush said, explaining that he was not saying that people who are not Christians are less worthy. "I was saying, "This is what George W. Bush is about and if you really are interested in knowing about me, this is important for people to know about me," he said.

The exhibition, "Isabel Robinson: Show Me West Texas," includes about 50 watercolors, oils, drawings and prints drawn from the museum's holdings and several private collections. The exhibition also has a section devoted to paintings by Robinson students who became artists and her artistcompanions.

Robinson, whose favorite medium was watercolors, taught more than 30 years at the Canyon school. She was born in western

Adair County, Mo., in 1894. She studied at Northeastern Missouri Teachers College at Kirksville and later at the University of Missouri. She continued her art studies throughout her life, but received a master's degree from Teachers College at Columbia in 1925. She also studied at Boothbay Harbor, Maine; Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles; Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center; Cranbrook Art Academy, Michigan; and the Chouinard School of Art, California.

She taught public school in Missouri before teaching interior design at Guilford College in North Carolina and at Columbia, and art at Ohio University. She was interim head of the art department at West Texas State Teachers College in 1925, then art department head at Pennsylvania State Teachers College in Bloomburg in 1926. In 1927, she returned to West Texas State and taught in the art department until 1960. She returned to Kirksville in 1974 and died there two years later.

She was a member of the Southern States Art League and the College Art Association and numerous art, art education and wildlife organizations. She was listed in "Who's Who in the Southwest," "Women of Distinction of America" and "Leading Women of America."

Robinson exhibited at the South States Art League, Radio City Music Hall in New York, the Texas Centennial Exposition in 1936 in Dallas: the Annual Texas Artists Exhibition in Fort Worth; the Annual Texas Print Exhibition: Michigan State University and the University of Alabama.

In 1936, Robinson orga-nized the Palo Duro School of Art. Held in Palo Duro Canyon under the auspices of West Texas State, the 12week college-credit school lasted for six consecutive summers through 1941, but it was not revived after World War II. Students lived in a tent village, with community kitchen and showers, and meals were often held at Coronado Lodge on the rim of the canyon. Robinson brought in visiting artists to teach courses in the canyon.

The Robinson exhibition will remain through March 13, 2000.

saw the light earlier this month while helping make deliveries for the Eveline Rivers Christmas Project, which provides holiday gift baskets for underprivileged children. Seeing the "light" in a young person's eyes is the ultimate reward for Petty, assistant to the provost/vice president at West Texas A&M University and the December recipient of the WTAMU President's Community Service Award.

"To see the light in those little kids' eyes makes all the effort, all the times I go out to solicit funds, worthwhile,"

Petty said. "The kids don't know what to say other than a very soft 'thank you,' but you can see in their eyes what it really means to them. It's so rewarding."

Petty, the only person ever to hold her present position at WTAMU - it was created in 1995 — works hard on behalf of both the university and the surrounding commu-nity. She serves on boards of directors for the Buffalo Sports Association, the Canyon Lions Club and American Heart Association's Amarillo/ Canyon division.

With the Buffalo Sports Association, Petty helps raise funds to support WTAMU student athletes. The Lions Club, meanwhile, performs its fundraising to benefit such community causes as the Boy Scouts and Canyon Public Library building fund. The Lions most recently operated the concession stands at some high school football playoff games and earmarked some of the profits for the library.

A snow skier and amateur artist - she enjoys painting in oils and water colors -Petty received her master's degree from WTAMU in 1996. She and her husband, Arlie Petty, have a son Steve, and a daughter, Leslie Steffey.

Reum to action

Boys basketball team return starters on time to shut up and shut down Canyon Eagles, 59-52

There was supposed to be some rusty play on Friday between the Hereford Whitefaces and the Canyon Eagles.

Instead, the Whitefaces played a physical and intense game against their rivals from the east and looked in midseason form, defeating the Eagles 59-52 on Friday at the Whiteface Gymnasium.

"It was good team effort," Hereford coach Randy Dean said. "I thought everybody got in there and pulled together, had a lot of support for one another and the guys had fun on the floor."

But there were some signs of rust in the Whitefaces early. After committing six turnovers, three off steals by Matt Allen and Burton Shepard, Slade Hodges missing three easy layups, Canyon led the Whitefaces 16-13 after one period.

Cody Marsh led the Herd with four points after one period. The Hodges duo was struggling early to score, going 5-for-11 on shots.

Hodges kept things close for the Whitefaces with four points in the second period off fast breaks. Jump shots by Steven Northern and Chayse Rives kept the Eagles lead close. The Eagles were paced at the time by Derek Turner's 11 first-half points and inside

But Slade Hodges and Cody

The Eagles held a narrow 26-24 lead at halftime.

Another tough obstacle fac-ing the Whitefaces was the tough physical play and the trash talking poured in by the

"This was a big rival game because we knew coming in it was going to be a big game because of what happened in football," Slade Hodges said, who finished with 15 points. Lady Whitefaces lose to state-champ Vega, 53-51

By Yuri Soto

It was supposed to be one of the biggest games for the Hereford Lady Whitefaces.

They were going to host the defending Class 1A state champion Vega Lady Longhorns.

So what did Hereford do? They played without the intensity they are known for.

Using the inside play of Kyla May, the Vega Lady Longhorns came in to the Whiteface Gymnasium on Friday and defeated the Lady Whitefaces 53-51.

'We didn't come out with any intensity," Hereford coach Key Harrison said. "I don't know what we were expecting. It's hard to turn it up without the intensity."

May was taking advantage of Hereford's baseline double teaming. The 6-footer took advantage of Shyla Martin and Ashley Fangman's double-team help and scored eight points in the first quarter on the Hereford could not get anything going as turnovers led one period.

But the Lady Longhorns kept the ball rolling their way, thanks to a three-pointer by Laura Perrin, four points off inside baskets by May and key outside jumpers from Dondi Richardson, Kaylee Meyer and Stacy Schenk. The Lady Longhorns had a 29-20 lead at halftime.

"Coach kept telling us that we did not come out with intensity. And he's right, we didn't come out with it." said Tori Walker, who led the Lady Whitefaces with 12 points. "They're a 1A school, so we expected to beat them and you can't come out and do that."

Yenzer credits seniors, commitment and positiveness to '99 success

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

The success of the Hereford Whitefaces in 1999 can be measured in many ways.

It could be their quickness and determination on the field to make a play.
It could be the defensive and offensive play of each player.

It could be that the 31 seniors who played football since putting on pads at Hereford Junior High wanted to make a difference in the program and wanted to accomplish many goals. It could be just that.

'It was a great season for our football team and it was a culmination of our senior class and that they decided to go to Texas Stadium," Hereford coach Craig Yenzer said. "They decided to do that worse than anything and I remember a lot of them telling us when they were sophomores and we were 2-8 that they weren't going to let this happen when they were seniors.

The seniors did just that, despite their 27-14 loss to the Texas City Stingarees at the Class 4A state championship Same philosophy. Different players and motives.

"It's really true that us as coaches didn't really do anything different back then," Yenzer said. "We had a group of kids that wanted to do something about it. They wanted to win and wanted to get the respect back."

Respect is something they did not really start the season In the beginning, they were picked to finish second place in the district behind Borger.

Not many people respected Hereford, not even their chances to make a long playoff run after their 1998 area round loss to Plainview.

The main ingredient for that successful run through the season could be said that it was the seniors' determination to go for a state championship. But it also had to do with where the motivation came from.

That aspect points directly to Yenzer's influence.

"There weren't any books written on this, but I've had some good high school coaches when I was playing," Yenzer said of the positive atmosphere he brings to the Hereford program. "I learned a lot of positive things from them and as an assistant; I've had some good head coaches that I've worked under, and through it all how they've handled the situations, and put some things that I have read and I've seen.

"I just developed a philoso-phy," he added. "The No. 1 thing" is that you have to make it fun. So we've tried to do that.'

With having fun in a football program, there's a catch. But Yenzer's catch is very easy to

"Character, commitment and trust are three words that we have tried to build this thing on, and the kids have bought into that and I appreciate that," he said. "It's important that they buy into our philosophy. When you have trust, character and commitment, you have a lot of things going for you."

So what can be expected for next year?

Maybe the seniors from next year can carry the torch of their departed teammates. One of them even said on Monday that he expects the underclassmen to "bust their butts.".

That attitude, Yenzer pointed out, comes from observation from previous years' experi-

"Time teaches lots of lessons and these guys have been through lots of lessons," he said. "Some of the classes before them were not successful. On the other hand, time has let them see success.

"What they are saying is a thing that they don't want to be a part of and something they want to be a part of and I think it's a very neat deal that they have been able to experience both sides of the spectrum," he added.

Despite the loss, Yenzer said the lessons learned from the loss to Texas City can be used as positives for players that come and go through the Hereford football experience.

"I think back to the game Saturday night and it reminded me of the playoff game against Plainview last year, our first playoff game since 1992 and we struggled in the playoff game in '98 because it had been such a long time," Yenzer said, "and we struggled in the state championship game because we've never been there.

"You know, having been there is important," he added. "Having learned from being riod with a layup ending on a foul by Matt Allen with 5:50 left in the third.

Cody Hodges also turned in a three-point play by shoot-ing inside and forcing a foul on Thiel with 3:30 left in the period.

Slade Hodges shot a threepointer with a minute left in the third. The Whitefaces outscored the Eagles 17-10 in the third.

"That's what we are going to do, that's how we are going to play, that's how we are going to play, that's how we are going into this year," Slade Hodges said. "The shooting was off tonight, I missed some layups at the beginning and that's kind of bad. But we are just going out there as a team and just play our hardest on the court and lay it on the line."

While Canyon kept talking, Hereford kept playing. Free throw shots by Cody Hodges, McNutt, Mike Bedolla and Marsh put the Eagles away, Slade Hodges drove to the basket and finished off Canyon.

"These guys have played a lot of basketball in the summer time, on AAU teams, and they have played a lot," Dean said. "They haven't played since last summer, so they were a little rusty at the beginning of the game, but they know and we know that every minute they're on the floor, they're going to get better and closer to where they were this time last year."

The Whitefaces have gotten a piece of revenge for the Canyon loss in football, but the Whitefaces will consider that a basketball victory rather than vengeance.

"Football and basketball are two different things," Cody Hodges said. "They sure were hanging to that football score, but we'll let them do that. We are in basketball and we'll see what happens."

Now that they got back into the court, the Whitefaces feel they can do anything. They have the experience of playing together.

"We played the summer together and played in 18 summer camps and I think that helped us jolt as a team," Cody Hodges said. "Once we got used to each other after the hype in the first period, we settled down, relaxed and we played and I think that was good. We all played together and we just have confidence to play better."

Spurs spike

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — This was not what the NBA had in mind when it implemented new rules on fouls.

When it was finally over after a 50-minute, foul-filled fourth quarter, the San Antonio Spurs had a 103-94 over the Boston Celtics on Friday night.

Sixty fouls were called, 23 in the final quarter as Boston cut a 19-point lead to

The Celtics, who have won only one of nine road games this season, used a pressing defense to come back against San Antonio's reserves, who played most of the fourth quarter.

Spurs coach Gregg Popovich was forced to go back to his star frontcourt of Tim Duncan and David Robinson to seal the victory in the last minute.

San Antonio earned its third straight win by hitting 7 of 10 free throws in the final minute, a fitting end to a game in which the Spurs hit a season-high 42 of 54 foul shots.

Tim Duncan, who scored 22 of his 30 points in the first half, hit four foul shots in the last minute. He finished 16-for-18 from the line, while the Celtics were 14for-22.

"The guys played great defense, it was one of our better games," said Popovich, who was upset after his team's lethargic 83-77 win over Houston on Wednesday night. "We kept people off the free throw line and made them hit jumps shots, rather than layups."

Popovich was glad to see his reserves work against a press they don't usually see, even though the game got close at the end.

Boston attempted 27 more 17 rebounds.

field goals than the Spurs, but connected on just eight more. Too many were perimeter jumpers, while San Antonio worked the ball inside.

"They did a good job of forcing jump shots by playing a come-to-us style defense, said Boston forward Antoine Walker, who had just eight points before being ejected in the fourth quarter after jawing with San Antonio's Malik Rose, who was also tossed. "They pose a lot of problems for us defensively. Our guys did a good job of pressing and getting us back in the game late.

Boston committed 37 fouls as Eric Williams, Tony Battie and Calbert Cheaney fouled out. But the Celtics almost fought their way back with a 16-6 run down the stretch.

"I was ready to go back in to finish it if I needed to," Duncan said. "Boston had nothing to lose. We put a lot of our guys in an odd situa-tion. We had a big lead and they were pressing."

Dana Barros led Boston with 18 points, Battie added 16. Walter McCarty 15 and Adrian Griffin 13.

Boston lost its fourth in a row after keeping it close, until San Antonio went on a 26-9 run spanning the last four minutes of the first half and first four of the third quarter.

"We have to get high-percentage shots against a great defensive team like this one," Boston coach Rick Pitino said. "We didn't do that, got down and it's always a struggle to catch up on the road."

Duncan carried San Antonio in the first half as the only player scoring in double figures, including 10-for-12 at the foul line. He finished with

Notre Dame placed on probation

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) Notre Dame was placed on probation for the first time today, with the NCAA imposing light penalties on the most storied school in college football.

The Irish football team received a two-year probation from the governing body of college sports and will also lose two scholarships.

Notre Dame remains eligible for postseason bowls and its multimillion-dollar TV contract with NBC is not affected.

The penalties stem from the relationship between Irish players and a former booster who lavished them with gifts, money and trips.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions said it found the violations to be major because of the length of time during which they occurred, the extravagant nature of the gifts and the competitive advantage gained by Notre Dame. The NCAA charged members $25 for a called the violations "neither isolated nor inadvertent."

The university was expected to respond to the report after a morning conference call with committee chairman Jack Friedenthal.

The announcement ended an almost two-year investigation into the relationship between up to a dozen Irish players and former booster Kimberly Dunbar. She admitted she embezzled more than $1.2 million from her former employer and spent some of the money on players.

The university had argued the gifts were not infractions because Dunbar was romantically involved with several of the players, including former player Jarvis Edison with whom she has a child. The NCAA ruled Dunbar became a representative of the university in June 1995 by joining the now-defunct Quarterback Club, which series of weekly luncheons.

The committee also said Notre Dame could have avoided the infractions if it had been more vigilant in monitoring its players.

The report said former coach Lou Holtz learned in 1994 that Dunbar had taken a player on a weekend trip to Las Vegas, later identified in court documents as former Irish receiver Derrick Mayes.

The university dropped the matter after finding out he was dating Dunbar, but the committee said a "more complete investigation at that time might have precluded what later became a significant problem."

The committee said an assistant coach had a similar opportunity to uncover the violations in 1997 after discovering that Dunbar had paid for a trip to Las Vegas for herself, two players and a player's girlfriend.

It did not penalize the program for lack of monitoring because some effort had been made to investigate the incidents, though it called those efforts "inadequate."

The NCAA also included violations the university reported in September in its findings. Among them were reports that a player paid a part-time tutor to write a paper for him; and that a player provided his girlfriend, with free football press passes.

He served as artistic director of "Chamber Music at Port Townshend" on the Olympic Peninsula in Washington for 25 years. His chamber music recordings have been issued on the Nonesuch, Delos and Finland's Kuhmo Festival recording labels.

He released a solo CD in November on the Equilibrium label entitled "Four American Piano Sonatas." He has had a distinguished career as a composer and was chosen as a Guggenheim Fellow.

According to Denise Parr-Scanlin, WTAMU instructor of music, it is rare today for a classical pianist to also be a composer and performer. Most pianists today perform other composers' works, but Doppman writes and composes his own music. In 1992, Doppmann began a set of four solo piano fantasies loosely based on extended one-movement works of Chopin. He has completed three of the projected four. Doppman will perform Fantasy I "Winter Dreams" at the WTAMU recital. The piece looks to Chopin's "Polonaise-Fantasy," opus 61, for its impulse and inspiration.

The program also will feature works by Scarlatti, Mozart and Chopin.

Doppman will devote the second half of the performance to Chopin in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the composer's death.

He also will present a lecture and master class 9:30 a.m.-noon Feb. 2 at the Amarillo College Concert Hall.

The Doppmann performance and master class, which his sponsored by WTAMU 2000, Amarillo College, Amarillo Music Teachers Association and Tolzien Music Co., is free and open to the public.

Should we forget about inflation?

hould old inflation be forgot, or should we instead be prepared to take arms against the threat of rising prices?

That, essentially, is the nation's economic dilemma. Is inflation tamed, or is it lying low in its lair, ready to spring if we lower our guard?

The question has some of the best economic minds in a dither.

For at least three years, Federal Reserve chief Alan Greenspan has worried about incipient inflation, based largely on a declining jobless rate. Why? In the past, a shrinking labor supply meant rising costs and higher prices - the first twist in the spiral.

But it hasn't happened. Business has been able to keep both costs and prices down. So far this year, the core rate of consumer inflation is an acceptable 2 percent.

the three interest rates raises engineered by the Fed, but maybe not. Increases in the efficiency of production, the highest in years, have swallowed a lot of costs.

And then there's been increased global competition. And the low costs of goods imported from nations whose economies aren't very strong. And fewer strikes. And the end of the Cold War.

Whatever, even Greenspan conceded it has been "an exceptional year." And Fed member Fred Myers, often described as an inflation hawk, said he would at least listen to socalled new economy propo-

In a Deutsche Bank newsletter, economist Edward Yardeni described the differ-

"In the Old Economy, booms led to higher inflation, causing the Fed to tighten, which eventually triggered a bust. In the New Competitive Economy (NCE), global competition keeps a lid on inflation, and forces companies to cut costs to boost productivity.

In turn, he continued, this encouraged consumers to offer better goods and services at reasonable prices, and sell more units, especially as wages rose faster than prices. He contrasts the NCE's competition, which he says has reduced inflation while lowering unemployment, with the Old Economy, where noncompetitive markets' boosted inflation and raised unemployment.

The two views of the economy coincide on very few details.

Traditionalists maintain Perhaps it was because of that more so than ever, no nation has full control of its economy. The rules of the game remain the same, they say. Hidden weaknesses could erupt, maybe from abroad.

Proponents of the new economy feel traditionalists are paranoid over inflation and fighting yesterday's war. They urge them, to "get with it," to join the age of technology and competition.

Amid an economic boom that has made questionable some of the old economic ideas, it is easy for the new economists to assemble their evidence and argue their

Viewpoints shift, and gradually, as perhaps now, the ingredients change too. Each side in the economic debate knows an inaccurate reading of evidence can mean calamity. There is little cer-

NEW YORK (AP) - Winnie Madikizela-Mandela, the firebrand anti-apartheid activist, was detained briefly at Kennedy Airport on Friday after customs officials found she had no valid entry visa, authorities said.

The former wife of Nelson Mandela arrived aboard a South African Airways flight, said Steve Coleman, a spokesman for the Port Authority that operates the airport.

"She was briefly held while we interviewed her to determine her admissibility to this country," said Mark Thorn, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Ser-

She was admitted about three hours later after immigration officials called the State Department, which authorized her entry into the United States, Coleman said.

HRMC's Rehab

Services...

Hereford Regional Medical Center believes that patients should not have to travel far to receive quality healthcare, especially when recovering from surgery or injury.

After all, the best medicine should be close to home.

The Rehab Department at HRMC provides you with complete physical, occupational and speech therapy services. Our physical therapists treat patients with wounds, broken bones, sports injuries and provide therapy both before and after surgery. Our occupational therapists provide various hand and shoulder therapies and other treatments to nursing home residents and home health patients. And we have speech therapists available to treat a variety of speech conditions.

Also at HRMC is the DBC Active Spine Care Clinic. This program allows therapists to customize rehab programs to help reduce back and neck pain.

Hereford Regional Medical Center is committed to offering quality and convenient rehabilitation to patients in a friendly, caring environment.

This commitment reinforces our belief that the best medicine is close to home.

True spirit of Christmas

Helen Caraway, Green Thumb employee in the local Red Cross office, finds that her job gives her a real sense of satisfaction during the Christmas season.

Being able to help others

By Becky Thorn

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor Christmas is a time for giving and for helping others. Helen Caraway has found that being in a position to help others makes the true spirit of Christmas real for her.

Caraway is the voice you most often hear when you call the office of the Tri County Chapter of the American Red Cross in Hereford.

She is actually an employee of Green Thumb, Inc., an organization that places older workers in local non-profit organizations, such as senior centers, ries, museums, schools and day centers.

Three years ago Green Thumb placed Caraway in the Red Cross office and she has been there since, having seen numerous chapter managers come and go in that length of time.

"I read about Green Thumb in the Hereford Brand. My husband has been dead seven years now and I live in the country. Even though my son lives next door, I'm a person who has always worked and it got a little bit lonely out there. And this work is so interesting," Caraway said.

She claims there is "never a dull moment" and she has learned a great deal about the workings of the Red Cross since she has been

"And I have learned how to use the computer. I didn't even know how to turn one on," she laughed.

The Red Cross has updated its computer program and Caraway said she and Deanna (Edwards), chapter manager, are both trying to learn it.

For the past several years, the local Red Cross has sponsored a toy drive for local children. But according to Caraway, they are not conducting a drive this year since county social services has decided to have the "Christmas for Children" toy program.

The Red Cross collected toys throughout the year, new and gently used ones, and distributed them to area children.

"I had a bunch that I had taken home and washed and mended, so I sent them to my daughter who teaches school in Fritch. The toys were given to children there, so they are still doing good," she said.

"Our big thing locally right now is giving coats away," Caraway said. "Covenant Family Health Care Center is taking in coats, having them cleaned and bringing them down to us. Anyone in need of a coat can get one free.'

The Red Cross also provides shoes, clothes and other items to those in need who simply cannot afford them.

"Working here during the Christmas season gives me a real sense of satisfaction. st a monetary thing. You feel like you're really doing someone some good.

"I feel more like the Christmas spirit in the last three years than I have in a long time. I just rushed around to get this one and that one a gift and I have found there is a whole lot more to it than that. When you help people you really have done a lot. That's what I feel good about.

"Sometimes you feel so sad that you just don't have everything they need. But we just can't have it all."

The local chapter is short on many household items currently, Caraway said, due to having assisted three families who lost their homes to fire in Dimmitt during the last five months.

Donations of household items, clothes, shoes and coats are welcome at the Tri County Chapter office, but they do ask that people not leave these things in front of the warehouse door. Green Thumb, Inc., through which Caraway is employed, is a non-profit organization whose mission is to strengthen families, communities, and our nation by providing disadvantaged and older individuals with opportunities to learn, work and serve

Dates for county spelling bee announced by Hereford Brand The Deaf Smith County Spelling

Bee for 2000 will be conducted March 8-9, it was announced Friday by The Hereford Brand.

The county bee has been held in conjunction with the regional and national bees for many years, and The Brand has been the local sponsor since 1985. Brand publisher Mauri Montgomery will serve as county bee director.

Plans are underway for the annual Regional Spelling Bee, with The Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas A&M University as sponsors once again. It will be held April 15 on the WTAMU campus.

The two levels of competition in the 2000 Spelling Bee are junior (for students in grades five and below) and senior (for grades eight and below).

Awards will be presented to local winners in the Junior and Senior Bees, and the country champion will go to the Regional

The contest is open to students in public, private, parochial, charter and home schools. A contestant cannot be higher than the eighth grade or older than 16 by the date of the national finals. May 31, 2000.

Landers of the most important. Please pay atten-

Dear Ann Landers: The Federal Trade Commission and the nation's attorneys general need your help in warning consumers about unscrupulous telemarketers who pitch ex-pensive "protection" against credit-card loss.

We recently sued a number of scammers who were telling consumers, often senior citizens, that thieves can get their account information from the Internet, and ring up thousands of dollars in unauthorized purchases. The scammers have also been telling older people that the Y2K glitch might cause unauthorized charges to be placed on their accounts. They are offering "insurance" against such losses.

Here is the message we want to get across to your readers: If you get one of these calls, don't fall for the pitch - and don't buy the loss-protection insurance. If you didn't authorize a charge, don't pay it. Follow the procedures of your credit-card issuers for disputing charges that you have not authorized. According to federal law, your liability for unauthorized charges is limited to $50.

For more information about your credit rights, tell your readers to call the FTC tollfree at 1-877-FTC-HELP (1-877-382-4357), or visit our web sites at www.ftc.gov, or www.naag.org. They can also call their state attorney general. - Jodie Bernstein, Director, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C., and Drew Edmondson, Attor-ney General, State of Oklahoma

Dear Ann Landers: Like millions of others, I have grown up reading your column, but I never thought I would need to write to you. Today's incident, however, has changed all that.

As I sat in the doctor's waiting room, in walked a woman who smiled pleasantly and took a seat next to me. Within a minute, I thought I'd pass out. She had on enough perfume to asphyxiate an army.

First, I should tell you, I'm a smoker, but I do try to be respectful of others. I obey all no-smoking signs, and never light up in a no-smoking area, nor do I smoke in a group without asking permission. My complaint is about women who douse themselves in perfume. After being around them, I get choked up to the point where I CANNOT breathe, and I lose my voice. This is exactly what happened to me in the doctor's waiting room.
I know I can't be the only person in the world with this problem, so please, Ann, print my letter in your column. It would be a tremendous service to millions of readers. -D.P., Somewhere in Texas

Dear D.R: Here's your letter, and for whatever comfort it may be, you have a lot of company. I have received hun-dreds of letters from both men and women who cannot tolerate perfume, cologne or men's after-shave lotion. Some have written, "My throat closes up." Others have said, "I break out in hives."

I hope your letter will alert millions of readers to the fact that a dab of perfume behind the ears is fine, but please, don't drown in it.

Dear Ann Landers: I've learned a lot from your column. The most valuable bit of advice was the counsel given by my grandmother when I married. It was this:

"Don't look for perfection in your mate. You will not find it. And it's just as well. Living with a saint can be tiresome. Learn the wisdom of compromise. It is better to bend a little than to break."

- Norfolk, Va., Reader

Dear Va.: Words of wisdom not only for newlyweds, but for all of us. Remember Couple is wed — Don and Judith Rieves were wed Nov. 26 in Wesley United Methodist Church with Rev. Tammy Passmore officiating. Gene and Charlene Brownlow and Gene and Geraldine Scott were honor attendants. Helen Brown is the mother of the bride. The couple is making their home in Hereford.

The Other Side of Christmas

By Charlie Rosenkranz

The Other Side of Christmas is a tale no one knew, Of good friends of Santa, what we did, where we flew. Santa kept it a secret for these many years, But we'll tell you it now, so perk up your ears. Each winter Santa's elves work hard way up north; Their toys, each Christmas, Santa proudly brings forth. But it would not do to pluck a toy from his pack, And leave it by the tree in an old paper sack. For gifts to thrill children from their heads to their toes, Presents must have paper, ribbons, boxes and bows. His helpers were too busy to make bows themselves; He counted little heads; there weren't enough elves! A frown buckled his forehead; he had not a clue How to make his eyes shine, as they so often do. For help with his problem, he sought an old friend, His cousin, a great man, on whom he could depend. Saint Plumpernickel's his name, for short, Plumpernick. He's a very big guy, but quite jolly and quick. He and his helpers labor hard through the year, So gifts will look lovely, and no child shed a tear. And where's this secret place, you may want to ask, Where Plumpernick lives, to accomplish his task? Not up north, somewhere else, does he fulfill his goal, But think now, indeed, Earth does have one more pole! And who does he speak to, and what does he say, After he floats like a feather, up to his sleigh? With a twinkle in his eye, the words boom from his mouth. "It's time to go now; where we're headed is south!" In front there is Lydia; beside her is Sue. Next you will see Ruthie, and then Sheila too. Ophelia and Mary fly, like hawks let loose. Vivian and Nicole then bring up the caboose. You see, we're all female, but that's half the news; We bright magical girls, well, we're all kangaroos. With a leap to the heavens, how we do soar, Pulling a sleigh is not just for boys anymore! We soon crested the horizon, with legs unfurled, Headed south to a town we call "Top O' The World". It's a beautiful place, though quaint it may seem, That looks like a fairy tale, feels like a dream. Southern helpers are plenty; by hundreds they came; Their leader is a penguin, and Peter's his name. They all came to help, but in flocks, not in herds, For these little fellows are wonderful birds. The penquins are all grounded, don't know how to fly; If given a chance, they would certainly try. They make all the wrappings elves put on each gift; They brighten young faces and give spirits a lift. Nowhere else on the Earth is there quite a space With the joy and the magic of this secret place. Close your eyes and imagine; your mind takes you there. To this place of wonder, absent worry or care. Your thoughts will transport you to Earth's other end, A world opened by Santa, to you, his good friend.

Unlucky Jim: A Christmas story of unselfish love

he very best stories are those worth retelling. The story of Unlucky Jim is a Christmas tradition in this column and definitely worth sharing again.

Unlucky Jim is a sad little story my mother read to me when I was small. It's about a little boy named Jim whose family was very poor. His little sister wan an invalid and spent most of her days in bed. Christmas held no hope or joy for either of the children.

As he trudged home from school each day, Jim would stop to look at the toys in the bright store windows. More than anything, he wanted a little red fire engine. Jim knew he would never be lucky enough to get one. In fact, his only marble had rolled down a storm drain the previous week. He felt that he was the unluckiest boy alive.

Then, one night before Christmas, Jim received an invitation to a Christmas party for the poor children in the neighborhood. A nice lady from a nearby church mission promised Jim a special gift. Jim grew excited as he drew near the mission. He couldn't believe his eyes when he saw the Christmas tree. It was covered with lights and surrounded by toys. Jim saw a bright red fire engine just like the one in the store window.

When it came time for each child to pick out a gift, Jim's heart nearly stopped. He was afraid that someone else would pick the fire engine. Fortunately, when his turn came, the little red truck was still under the tree. As Jim reached for the engine, he thought of his frail little sister at home in bed. He stopped and turned to the mission lady. He asked softly if he might pick two gift, one for himself and one for his sister at home. The lady shook her head sadly and told Jim there were only enough presents for one for each child.

Jim looked longingly at the little fire engine. Then he picked out the prettiest doll under the tree. It had blue eyes and curly blond hair just like his little sister. As he returned to his seat with the doll, the other children began to laugh and make fun of him. Unlucky Jim clutched the little doll and ran from the mission. He stopped crying by the time he reached home.

Jim began to feel better when he saw the look of surprise and delight on his sister's face. As she hugged the doll and cried with joy, Jim didn't feel so unlucky after all.

Later, as Jim sat by his little sister's bed watching her play with her doll, someone knocked on the door. When he opened it, the mission lady was there. She gave Jim a neatly wrapped package and explained to him that the children were sorry they had laughed at him. They had not known about his sick little sister. After she told them why Jim had chosen the doll, the children asked her to bring him a present. To Jim's delight, the package contained the most beautiful red fire engine he'd ever seen.

Jim's unselfishness should be our model all year long. Christians celebrate Christmas to remember the birth of Jesus Christ. Whether or not you're a Christian by faith, Christ's life of giving, sharing and caring is a good example for all men.

I found the book

After years of searching, I found the book this story was remembered from. The title is "Uncle Arthur's Bedtime Stories." The author is Arthur S. Maxwell. The book was published by the Review and Herald Publishing Association, Tacoma Park, Washington, D.C. It contains the story of Unlucky Jim and about 20

Some Books Worth Reading

By Rebecca Walls

I watched the "West Wing" on TV last night and was impressed that the President portrayed on the show chose to do his Christmas shopping in a rare book store.

This year my daughter even asked that one of her gifts be a book. No just any book, she wanted "Jane Eyre," a classic.

She is getting so well educated and cultured. My son still prefers auto repair manuals for his reading material. However, he did read half of a novel this past summer. I shouldn't speak badly about his working order.

Jerry(my husband) and I took a day off to celebrate his birthday and to do some Christmas shopping last Tuesday. We were to meet the daughter in Amarillo and go out to eat before she had to take her last final.

By the time we arrived in Amarillo, we weren't sure traveling that day was the wisest decision. As one of my Amarillo friends put it, it was snowing sideways at 60 mph.

As our lunch ended the weather began to ease up so we did stay and complete our Christmas shopping. We did go by the book store and I was amazed and pleased to see others there buying books. It makes my heart proud to know that in this time of technology there is another generation that enjoys holding a book in their hands. relaxing and enjoying the art of reading.

rogram monitors beef cattle performance

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)

— Twenty-nine head of cattle at a feedlot north of Ulm have been plucked from their herds to take part in a program designed to measure their performance in the feedlot and, ultimately, on the dinner table.

The "Beefability" project is sponsored by the Montana State University Extension Services which has similar experiences.

vice, which has similar experiments in Miles City, Willow Creek and Ronan.

"We as producers have to provide the consumers with a consistent quality product," said rancher Greg Gould, who's helping run the local program. "We have to guarantee that the steak you get this week is the same as the steak you'll get next month."

All but 2 percent of the 1.59 million cattle produced in Montana each year are trucked to feedlots hundreds of miles away and then to slaughterhouses, where their identities vanish in the mix.

Without knowing precisely where their beef winds up, ranchers often are left to wonder about the quality of the end product.

That's where the Beefability project comes in. By tracking a select number of their cattle through finishing and processing, participating producers can discover which lines performed best and which left something to be desired.

Ranchers have always been able to track their product if they really wanted to, said Cascade County extension agent Wade Crouch, who set up the local Beefability program. He knows producers who have traveled to the Chicago feedlot where their calves were being fed to see for themselves how well the cattle were doing.

The incentive to track their however. product is increasing, however. By one estimate, ranchers who go out of their way to breed cattle for tenderness and other desirable characteristics can net an additional $40 to $75 a

Now in its third year, the Willow Creek program already has yielded some surprising results, according to the county extension agent from Big Timber, who has coordinated the project.

For one thing, "A lot of guys thought, being that the calves were slaughtered at 12-13 months, they would all be tender. Some of them aren't," Marc King said.

Many ranchers hadn't realized that young calves kept just 110 days in a feedlot could produce choice-grade beef. They thought a calf had to be 16 to 18 months old before it could achieve that higher grade.
The Ulm experiment began

Nov. 5 when a half-dozen local ranchers hauled a handful of calves each to Harold Polich's Butte View Angus Ranch, where Gould and his wife, orthopedic surgeon Aimee Hachigian, lease a feedlot.

Each calf got an eartag so it could be tracked all the way through processing. Each got a booster vaccine. A parasiticide was poured onto each calf and each was weighed. The average calf weighed 633 pounds.

For the first few weeks, the calves were fed 5 pounds of oat-based weaner pellets a day. This week they'll switch over to a corn-based ration. They're also fed a vitamin-mineral supplement and all the hay they want.
The goal is to add an average of 3.5 pounds a calf a day, enough so the cattle will finish out somewhere between 1,000 and 1,300 pounds apiece. Gould said.

This winter the calves will undergo ultrasound testing to measure, among other things, external and intramuscular fat when available.

and the size of their ribeye and loin areas. They'll be slaughtered around April, not as a group - which is stan-dard practice - but at the right time for each calf.

The cattle are being cared for according to national Beef Quality Assurance standards, a laundry list of do's and don'ts regarding injections, feed and handling.

And, unlike cattle at large feedlots, the Ulm calves will be given no hormonal implants, no vaccines beyond the prescribed shots and no antibiotics unless they've just been weaned or gotten sick. Hachigian said her medical experience has convinced her that antibiotics alter the taste of beef.

"When a person is on antibiotics you can smell it in their perspiration and their urine," Hachigian said. "To us, it's a no-brainer" to avoid their over-use.

American firms resume shipments to Mexico

Officials continue search for permanent resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) -Mexico has agreed to temporarily allow 17 American plants to resume shipments of meat and chicken while Mexican and U.S. officials attempt to resolve a dispute over foodsafety regulations.

Mexico banned imports from the facilities Nov. 26 following visits to the plants by its in-spectors. In a letter released by the Agriculture Department Tuesday, the Mexican govern-ment agreed to allow shipments to resume until the end of January.

The letter, dated Monday, insisted that there are "serious concerns for the deficiencies of good hygiene practices and preoperational sanitary pro-cedures" in the plants.

USDA officials contend that the plants are safe.

The problems the Mexicans cited included high bacteria levels, poor supervision, puddles of water in the plants and lack of equipment for workers.

The 17 plants includes fa-cilities in Texas, Arkansas and Kansas owned by some of the country's biggest meat processors, including IBP Inc., ConAgra Inc., Excel Corp. and Tyson Foods Inc. They are among 1,400 U.S. facilities eligible to ship meat and poultry products to Mexico.

The Mexican action followed a USDA ban on meat imports

Arabidopsis has long been a favorite subject for the study of plant genetics, because its genome — the complete col-lection of its DNA — is relatively small. It is also an ideal model for gaining insights into 180,000 other flowering plants, including corn, wheat and rice.

Two research teams, one in the United States and the other in Europe, published the results of their work in today's issue of the journal Nature.

Earlier this month other scientists announced the first sequencing of a human chromo-

Researchers are working to the sequence entire Arabidopsis genome.

"By sequencing Arabidopsis, you can use that information to infer the basic set of genes that make up any plant," said Michael Bevan of the John Arabidopsis chromosome 2 was sequenced by a team at the Institute of Genomic Research in Rockville, Md.

Scientists expect to sequence all five Arabidopsis chromosomes by next summer. That will be an important trial run for the sequencing of bigger plant genomes, like those of corn and rice, which should contain many of the same

"It is not only a trial run, it has almost the same list of parts," said Elliot Meyerowitz, a biologist at the California Institute of Technology who was not involved in the newly reported Arabidopsis work.

Deciphering the genome of agricultural plants could lead to new genetically engineered strains with improved nutri-tional value and resistance to disease and pests. The issue of genetically altered food has sparked controversy in Europe and elsewhere.

For both Arabidopsis chromosomes, about half of the genes uncovered during sequencing have no known func-tion. That is about the same percentage of mystery genes being found in human and animal genomes, said J. Craig Venter, chairman of the Rockville-based institute.

Venter said the large number of Arabidopsis genes with unknown jobs means "we know only a small portion" of plant biology.

Genes governing such basic processes as cell division are almost identical in plants and animals, strongly suggesting that both descended from the same ancient one-celled or-ganism that lived about 1.5 billion years ago, Venter said.

"Some people like to think of evolution as a theory, but all you have to do is look at the DNA level to see that these are real events that took place," he said.

Hog farmers use alternative markets

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) -Mike and Kate Yankauskas are beating the hog crisis by sell-ing and delivering their pork directly to the people who eat

Their direct marketing approach, and the right-to-yourdoor delivery service, brings more money into a family farm that a couple of years ago was in real danger — more money, at least, than they'd get if they sold the hogs at market along with everyone else.

"When hogs dropped to eight cents, we just thought, "What else could we do?" Mike Yankauskas said. "I could have gotten an outside job. Kate could have too. We just didn't want to."

So the Groverton couple took two hogs to a local meat packer and had them pack-aged for sale. They told friends, neighbors and relatives about the business.

Word spread fast, and now Kate and her sons deliver bacon, hams and other cuts from 24 hogs a month to customers in a refurbished mail truck fitted with a freezer and painted with the company name — The Pork Shop.

Delivering pork is not just a timely idea for the Yankauskas family.

Farmers are grappling with record-low hog prices and a two-year market free fall that is forcing some pork produc-ers to quit the business. Prices for all varieties of crops and livestock are floundering.

Mike Yankauskas, his wife and three sons, one of whom is now a student at Purdue University, run The Pork Shop themselves - and it's keeping the small 2,500-head hog farm afloat.

The Yankauskas are finding it rewarding too.
Compliments for the meat, usually delivered within days of being cut, abound. People buy it, like it and buy again.

Then they tell others about it.
"We can handpick the best 10 percent of our hogs based on the kind of cut we know we're going to need, whereas the grocery store kind of has to take what it gets,"

The Pork Shop is beating the local grocers' price too, with the added bonus of the family who raised the hogs delivering the meat to your

Greg Gunthorp of LaGrange is another farmer who's selling his pork products himself, but in different ways. He and his wife, Lei, are raising their hogs out of doors and without the aid of any chemicals. The all-natural pigs are drawing a lot of interest and generating a lot of new rev-enue for the farm, especially from high-end restaurants across the Midwest.

And they're marketing their meat with a concession-stand style catering service at events in their area — getting paid to serve crowds. That's be-come a free advertising tool because diners learn they can buy the meat from the Gunthorps.

They too have learned to go around the resellers. They could sell a hog at market for $80. But by selling to consum-ers and retailers directly, they could get $400 a hog.

Writing want ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

preferred). Relocation allowance for qualified applicants. Must possess HS diploma/GED; Excellent benefits including 401(k) w/company match. college preferred. Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.

Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.

Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise. It's an integral part of our lives.

Food for thought: Santa is a woman

The following is recently received email which is seasonally appropriate. I offer no comment. I am just including it as food for thought.

I think Santa Claus is a woman.

I hate to be the one to defy sacred myth, but I believe he's a

Think about it. Christmas is a big, organized, warm, fuzzy, nurturing social deal, and I have a tough time believing a guy could possibly pull it all off!

For starters, the vast majority of men don't even think about selecting gifts until Christmas Eve. It's as if they are all frozen in some kind of Ebenezerian Time Warp until 3 p.m. on Dec. 24th., when they - with amazing calm call other errant men and plan for a last-minute shopping spree.

Once at the mail, they always

seem surprised to find only Ronco products, socket wrench sets, and mood rings left on the shelves. (You might think this would send them into a fit of panic and guilt, but my husband tells me it's an enormous relief because it lessens the 11th hour decision making burden.)

On this count alone, I'm convinced Santa is a woman. Surely, if he were a man, everyone in the universe would wake up Christmas morning to find a rotating musical Chia Pet under the tree, still in the bag.

Another problem for a he-Santa would be getting there. First of all, there would be no reindeer because they would all be dead, gutted and strapped on the rear bumper of the sleigh amid wide-eyed desperate claims that buck season had been extended. Blitzen's rack would already be on the way to the taxidermist.

Even if the male Santa DID have reindeer, he'd still have transportation problems because he would inevitably get lost up there is the snow and clouds and then refuse to sop and ask for directions.

Add to this the fact that there would be unavoidable delays in the chimney, where the Bob Vila-like Santa would stop to inspect and repoint bricks in the flue. He would also need to check for carbon monoxide fumes in every gas fireplace, and get under every Christmas tree that is crooked to straighten it to a perfectly upright 90-degree angle.

Other reason why Santa can't possibly be a man: Men can't pack a bag.

· Men would rather be dead than caught wearing red velvet.
• Men would feel their masculinity is threatened having to be seen with all those elves.

· Men don't answer their mail. · Men would refuse to allow their physique to be described even in jest as anything remotely resembling a "bowl full of jelly."

· Men aren't interested in stockings unless somebody's wearing them.

· Having to do the Ho Ho Ho thing would seriously inhibit their ability to pick up women.

· Finally, being responsible for Christmas would require a commitment.

I can buy the fact that other mythical holiday characters are men. Father Time shows up once a year unshaven and looking ominous. Definitely a guy. Cupid flies around carrying weapons. Uncle Sam is a politician who likes to point fingers.

Any one of these individuals could pass the testosterone screening test.

But not St. Nick. Not a chance. As long as we have each other, good will, peace on earth, faith and Nat King Cole's version of "The Christmas Song," it probably makes little difference what gender Santa is...

I just wish she'd quit dressing like a guy!!!

Contributions to Project Christmas Card can be made through Dec. 22 at canisters like this one at Billie's Beauty Shop, shown by Billie Kelley. Canisters have been placed at numerous locations in Hereford by L'Allegra Study Club, who sponsors the project each year. Residents are asked to contribute the amount they would normally spend sending individual Christmas cards and their greeting to the entire community will be published in the Christmas Eve edition of the Hereford Brand. Proceeds from the project will be used for a recovery room bed for Hereford Regional Medical

With sincere thanks and best wishes to our many fine friends and neigbbors.

The Night Before Christmas

By Clement Clarke Moore

Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;

The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there; The children were nestled all snug in their beds,

While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads; And mamma in her kerchief, and I in my cap, Had just settled down for a long winter's nap, When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,

I sprang from the bed to see what was the matter. Away to the window I flew like a flash, Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.

The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow Gave the lustre of mid-day to objects below, When, what to my wondering eyes should appear, But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer, With a little old driver, so lively and quick, I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.

To the top of the porch! To the top of the wall! Now dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!"

As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly, When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,

So up to the house-top the coursers they flew, With the sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas too.

And then, in a twinkling, I heard on the roof The prancing and pawing of each little hoof. As I drew in my hand, and was turning around,

His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,

Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound. He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot,

And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot; A bundle of toys he had flung on his back, And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.

His eyes -- how they twinkled! His dimples how merry! His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!

And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow;
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly,
That shook, when he laughed like a bowlful of jelly.

He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf, And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself;

A wink of his eye and a twist of his head, Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread;

More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name;
"Now, DASHER! Now, DANCER! Now, PRANCER and VIXEN!
On, COMET! On CUPID! On, DONDER and BLITZEN!

What I got last year didn't work

Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread;
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose;
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of the thistle.
But I heard him exclaim, as he drove out of sight,
"HAPPY CHRISTMAS TO ALL, AND TO ALL A GOOD-NIGHT!"

A guiding star. A heavenly chorus. The Wise Men's search. The Shepherds' awe. And, in the manger, the newborn King.

As the sacred story is told anew, may the boundless blessings of Christmastide bring comfort and joy to you and your loved ones. Rejoicing too, we warmly send glad tidings and heartfelt thanks to all our neighbors. Noel!

Christmas Memories As we experience the warmth and wonder of this festive season, may all that ears ago, there was a very wealthy man who, with his devoted son, shared a passion for art collecting. Together they traveled around the world, adding only the finest art treasures to their collection. Priceless works by Picasso, Van Gogh, Monet and many others adorned the walls of the family estate. The widowed, elder man looked on with satisfaction as his only child became an experienced art collector.

As winter approached, war engulfed the nation, and the young man left to serve his country. After only few short weeks, his father received a telegram. His beloved son was missing in action. The art collector anxiously awaited more news, fearing he would never see his son again. Within days, his fears were confirmed.

The young man died while rushing a fellow soldier to a medic.

Distraught and lonely, the old man faced the upcoming Christmas holidays with anguish and sadness. The joy of the season – a season that he and his son so looked forward to, would visit his house no longer.

On Christmas morning, a knock on the door awakened the depressed old man. As he walked to the door, the masterpieces of art on the walls only reminded him that his son was not coming home. As he opened the door, he was greeted by a soldier with a large package in his hands.

was the one your son was rescuing when he died," said the soldier. "May I come in for a few moments? I have something to show you.

As the two began to talk, the soldier recalled how the man's son had told everyone of his, and his father's, love of fine art. "I'm an artist," said the soldier, "and I want to give you this." As the old man unwrapped the package, the paper gave way to reveal a portrait of the man's son. Though the world would never consider it as a work of genius, the painting featured the young man's face in striking detail. Overcome with emotion, the man thanked the soldier, promising to hang the picture above the fireplace.

A few hour later, after the soldier had departed, the old man set about his task. True to his word, the painting went above the fireplace, pushing aside thousands of dollars of paintings. And then the man sat in his chair and spent Christmas gazing at the gift he had received. During the days and weeks that followed, the man realized that even though his son was no longer with him, the boy's life would live on because of those he had touched. He would soon learn that his son had rescued dozens of wounded soldiers before a bullet stilled his caring heart. As the stories of his son's gallantry continued to reach him, fatherly pride and satisfaction began to ease the grief. The painting of his son soon became his most prized possession, far eclipsing any interest in the pieces for which museums around the world clamored. He told his neighbors it was the greatest gift he had ever received.

The following spring, the old man became ill and passed away. The art world heard the news and anxiously awaited word about a possible sale of the man's art treasures. Unmindful of the story of the man's only son, but in his honor, it was announced that the painting would be sold at a public auction. According to the will of the old man, all of the works of art would be auctioned on Christmas day - the day he had received his greatest gift.

The day soon arrived and art collectors from around the world athered to bid on some of the world's most spectacular paintings. many would claim: "I have the greatest collection."

The auction began with a painting that was not on any museum's list. It was the painting of the man's son. The auctioneer asked for an opening bid. The room was silent. "Who will open the bidding for one hundred dollars," asked the auctioneer. Minutes passed and no one spoke. From the back of the room, a man responded: "Who cares about that painting? It's just a portrait of the man's son. Let's go on to the works of art!" just a portrait of the man's son. Let's go on to the works of art!"

Many voices echoed in agreement.

"No, we have to sell this one first," replied the auctioneer. "Now who will take the son?" Finally, a friend of the old man spoke.

"Will you take ten dollars for the painting? That's all I have, but I knew the boy and I'd like to have it."

"I have ten dollars. Will anyone go higher?" asked the auctioneer. After more silence, he said, "Going once, going twice. Gone." The gavel fell. Cheers filled the room and someone exclaimed, "Now we can get on with it and bid on those treasures!"

The auctioneer looked at the audience and announced the auction was over. Stunned disbelief quieted the room. Someone spoke up and asked, "What do you mean it's over? We didn't come here for a picture of some guy's son. What about all these paintings? There are millions of dollars of art here! I demand that you explain what's going on here!"

The auctioneer replied, "It's very simple. According to the will of the father, whoever takes the son... gets it all."

Puts things into perspective, doesn't it? Just as those art collectors discovered on that Christmas day, the message is still the same. It's about the love of a Father, a Father whose greatest joy came from his Son, who went away and gave His life rescuing others. And because of that Father's love, whoever takes the Son...gets it all.

Is There A Santa Claus?

We take pleasure in answering at once and thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the is a Santa Claus. He exists as friends of The Sun:

"Dear Editor: I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus.

Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun it's so."

Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus? Virginia O'Hanlon 115 West 95th Street"

Virginia your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intelas measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life it's highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if would be as dreary as if there were no Virginia's. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might ing. get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but the heart of childhood.

lect, as compared with the that is no sign that there is no boundless world about him, Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the there was no Santa Claus! It baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abid-

No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad

... And Many Thanks!

From all of us, to all of you, go our warm wishes for the brightest holiday season, ever! Thank you for brightening our year in your friendship.

In a week that counts down to Christmas Day, actors, musicians, athletes and other Hollywood personalities assemble to urge viewers to give foster children A Home for the Holidays.

The one-hour special, which includes musical performances by country singer LeAnn Rimes, pop group 'N Sync and R&B star Brian McKnight, premieres Thursday, Dec. 23, on CBS.

Stu Schreiberg (Lifetime's Beyond Chance), one of the show's executive producers, says CBS approached him and his colleagues to put together the show after Wendy's founder Dave Thomas, himself an adoptee, got behind the idea for this holiday special.

'They wanted to do a show that would raise the consciousness and awareness of adoption in this country." Schreiberg says. "The question then was how do you make it entertaining and yet still deliver on that message?

"We decided to create an intimate concert that would honor people who have adopted recently. In a setting in the round, we invited 'newly created' families from the first year or so, then tell some of their stories interspersed by musical numbers."

Five personal stories are related during ject.' the special, Schreiberg says, including that of a woman who decided not to chronicles four orphaned siblings who kler and Andy Garcia. pleaded their case to be adopted togethwilling, albeit somewhat nervous, couple who had been planning to adopt a single child.

Each of the stories reveals a different aspect of adoption, accompanied by one of five musical numbers. Rimes performs two songs, "Amazing Grace" and "How Do I Live," while 'N Sync reprises the chart-topping "God Must Have Spent a Little More Time on You."

Stevie Wonder, a surprise last-minute guest, performs "You Are the Sunshine of My Life," while McKnight sings "Back at One," accompanied by violin virtuoso Amanda Burr, who is profiled in one of the adoption stories.

Schreiberg says that, apart from scheduling conflicts during the holiday taping period, the producers found celebrities lining up to participate, including director Steven Spielberg and his actress wife, Kate Capshaw, both passionate advocates of adoption, as well as foster parent Jamie Lee Curtis and actor Ray Liotta, himself an adoptee.

Few participants were as enthusiastic, however, as former Olympic gold medal figure skater Scott Hamilton, another child of adoption.

'We invited him to do a taped segment talking about his personal experience, but he said, 'No, I want to come to the actual event," Schreiberg says. "Scott embraces his adoption, because he had such a wonderful family experience with the people who adopted him. He is just a major proponent on the sub-

Other performers participating in various capacities during the hour include wait for "Mr. Right" before starting her Candice Bergen, Morgan Freeman, family by adoption. Another account Rene Russo, Rhea Perlman, Henry Win-

"The idea of the show is to show how er on a daytime talk show and found a many kinds of adoption are going on right now," Schreiberg says. "Emptynesters are adopting, and so are gay couples and single moms. It's opened up quite a bit."

> And if this special gets its message across, maybe a few more homes will open in time for the holidays next year

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - Take comfort and pride in your strong bonds with family and friends. You need alliances to spread your influence. If your relationships are not ideal, at this time, it may be a good time to try to resolve these difficulties. Try to reflect on positive influences rather than the negative ones.

TAURUS - Time to show how grown up you really are. You'll be able to take care of current business. Freedom will come when you're in tune with friends and peers. If you have any doubts about where you stand --make sure that you ask the right questions and insist on getting answers.

GEMINI - Even though discipline is not one of your favorite subjects, it could be the key to success. Your sense of self-worth could go for a roller coaster ride. Part of the time you feel great, look good and you're able to be comfortable with anyone, in any situation. Unfortunately, you'll also be aware of your smallest flaws.

CANCER - Positive flow from member of the opposite sex will set you into motion. Your motives could be challenged by those in authority. Keep your cool, don't waste your effort, focus your energy on finalizing agreements, contacts and promises. Your rewards are long overdue.

LEO -Try to remove excess stress wherever possible, your loved ones will notice the difference, if you do. You're not a great fan of detail but you need to focus your time properly. You could feel frustrated, or even feel criticized. Help an overworked colleague any way you possibly can.

VIRGO - Your universal appeal will make you very popular. You may find yourself in the public eye. Make plans, follow through and put your power behind your presence. Take the initiative and you'll be able to deal with any situation this week.

LIBRA - You need to make a stand and insist on input in scheduling plans. With a little extra effort, your goals will be attainable. Some of your imaginative thinking will give you some structured, serious, goal-oriented ideas.

SCORPIO -You willingness to confide in others could get you in a little trouble. Think twice before sharing information. Set your goals and focus on them at full force. Help will arrive from existing networks.

SAGITTARIUS - Conversations with neighbors and siblings could test your patience, remember, you are not required to fix all problems you hear about. Don't allow your high spirits to stop you from the discipline and attention to detail necessary to make your goals a reality.

CAPRICORN - Allow changes you make now, to give you the freedom that you ultimately seek. The thought of getting away from it all can be very attractive this week. Put your effort into showing more compassion and understanding towards others.

AQUARIUS -Your professional life may enjoy a breath of fresh air. Current domestic situations may become the stepping stone for your future plans. If you really enjoy what you do, continue on your path. Now you can take time to plan for the future.

PISCES - Loved ones will lend much support to your needs. It's better to be a little pushy than to be forgotten. You push just a little, but you get a powerful reaction. Your personal magnetism and sex appeal will give you a real edge this week.

The 1953 wedding of John F. Kennedy and Jacqueline Bouvier is just one of numerous nuptials featured in Weddings of a Lifetime XVII: Kennedy Weddings, airing Monday on Lifetime.

Lifetime goes down the aisle of Kennedy Weddings

By Josh Greene oTVData Features Syndicate

Promise unfulfilled.

To some, it's a recurring theme running through the Kennedy family.

True, they weathered their share of tragedies, but a new Lifetime special proves the Kennedys had more than their share of triumphs, too.

Weddings of a Lifetime XVII: Kennedy Weddings, airing Monday, Dec. 20, takes a refreshing look at the matrimonial side of the family many consider to be the U.S. version of royalty.

"It's the Kennedy family story told through all the happy events in their lives," co-executive producer Jay Mulvaney says, commenting on their key to survival. "They focus their attention on these happy events, and that's what helps them get through the horrible times. They are real people, just as we are, with real feelings and aspirations."

From Rose Fitzgerald and Joe Kennedy's 1914 nuptials up through the joining of John F. Kennedy Jr. and Carolyn Bessette in 1996, still photos, home movies and interviews paint the pictures behind the gala and sometimes private events surrounding three generations of Kennedys.

It's a shame JFK Jr. and Bessette had to resort to their secret wedding to evade the public's prying eyes, but for all those involved, it only added to the night's magic.

"The beauty is the sheer happiness that radiates from their faces," Mulvaney says. "It was a bittersweet moment. It was so beautiful."

In a way, it was reminiscent of John F.
Kennedy and Jacqueline Bouvier's 1953

"That partnership was truly a match between equals," Mulvaney says. "The hope and promise they brought is alive 40 years later."

Eight-five years worth of images forever capture a family at its happiest, believing a timeless dream that every day would be Camelot.

"We know what happens to these people," Mulvaney concludes. "They don't know. They're caught in this moment where they're at their happiest. Their hearts are filled with hope and love and promise, and they have their whole future ahead of them."

SOAP TALK

Burton and Hove say goodbye to GH

oTVData Features Syndicate

This time the rumors were true. Steve Burton (Jason Quartermaine/Jason Morgan) is leaving General Hospital.

The actor wanted to depart to pursue other interests, but his contract didn't expire until Dec. 4. He had to turn down several film roles because of scheduling conflicts. Burton's appearances will continue to air on GH through mid-Jan-

Anders Hove (Faison) also is leaving GH at the end of the year. The actor says he will return to Denmark to spend more time with his family,

Fans of James Kiberd (Trevor Dillon,
All My Children) will be disappointed to hear that he is leaving daytime, too.
Kiberd was without a decent story line for several years and could not come to terms with the network on his contract.

Dear Candace: I was wondering if soap opera stars work during the holi-days. They always have those great holi-day shows, but I wanted to know if they film the shows earlier. -Rhonda Baker

Dear Reader: Most of the daytime dramas shoot about a month ahead. Most shows are dark for two weeks during the holiday season so the actors and crew can vacation.

Dear Candace: I'm an avid fan of All My Children, but lately I've been disappointed. There is no continuity with the characters. Liza (Marcy Walker) is constantly contradicting herself. Adam Contradicting herself. (David Canary) - supposedly brilliant - is making stupid choices. I don't suppose anyone noticed Mateo (Mark Consuclos) is mentally abusing Hayley (Kelly Ripa)? Tad (Michael E. Knight) turned into a major hypocrite. I don't even know what to say about Ryan (Cameron Mathison).

I feel like I don't know the show anymore. I would fret when I missed an episode, but now I don't even care. It's like they are writing down to the audience. -Becky Phillips, Garden City.

Dear Reader: All shows go through a lull, but this one on AMC seems to be lasting a bit longer than usual. It doesn't help that the writers don't seem to have a grasp of the key characters in the dra-
