State tries to block Pantex being named as Superfund site

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards and other state officials are trying to block the Pantex nuclear weapons plant from becoming marked as a Superfund cleanup site.

Texas leaders say they fear increased oversight, delays and costs at the facility where U.S. nuclear bombs are dismantled.

But other people say a Superfund designation could strengthen regulatory authority over Pantex, located 17 miles northeast of Amarillo.

Richards wrote a letter May 24 to Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Carol Browner, asking the EPA to reconsider.

"Designating Pantex as a federal Superfund site will not result in a cleaner or healthier facility," Richards wrote. "It will, however, threaten the state's ability to oversee and participate in the remediation."

"State oversight is essential to assuring the public that ground water in the area will not be endangered by Pantex's continued operations."

Superfund, a program that encompasses the nation's most contaminated toxic-waste sites, has drawn fire over mounting legal costs and slow cleanups.

Tom Walton, an Energy Department spokesman, said Pantex has not received official notice about becoming a Superfund site.

However, EPA officials told the Amarillo Globe-News that the designation will be formalized today.

When the plant was proposed for the Superfund about three years ago, Pantex officials contested its hazard ranking scores.

"It's based on evidence," said Beverly Gattis, president of Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping, "and if the evidence supports the (hazard ranking) scores, then sure I think it's fair and right that people should know that this is an important cleanup that needs to be done."

Pantex is in the process of determining the extent of contamination at the 16,000-acre plant.

Solvents, gasoline components, chromium and high-explosive contamination have been found in an aquifer that sits above the Ogallala Aquifer. Depleted uranium, a low-level radioactive material, also has been found near a Pantex firing site.

But officials said no contamination has been detected in the Ogallala, which provides water for much of the High Plains in West Texas.

The governor's letter said stringent federal cleanup standards already are in effect at Pantex.

Richards said she fears the Superfund designation could impose a new layer of procedural requirements and drive up costs for cleanups.

"Designating Pantex as a Superfund site ultimately will cost taxpayers as much as an additional $50 million - without providing any additional increment of safety or environmental quality at the site. This money can and should be better spent on other urgent environmental problems."

In 1991, when the EPA sought Superfund designation for Pantex, the agency cited practices including burning chemicals in unlined pits, burying wastes in unlined landfills and discharging wastes into on-site surface waters.

Memorial Day celebrated in variety of ways in Texas

By The Associated Press

Although Memorial Day began in 1868 to remember those killed in combat, some Texans used the day to honor others.

In the East Texas town of Gladewater, the Wild Bunch motorcycle gang continued its 11-year tradition of escorting JoAnn Biglow to the grave of her son, Jerry Smith.

The gang rode in formation Monday with their headlights on, following Mrs. Biglow's family's cars to the cemetery where Smith is buried. Small American flags were attached to motorcycles and cars.

An arrangements of cloth roses and a wreath were placed by the grave of Smith, who founded the gang a year before his death.

"I've tried to keep his memory alive, and the boys in the motorcycle club have helped me do that... so now I say I lost one son but that I've gained many," Mrs. Biglow said.

Also in East Texas, Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush spoke at a Tyler ceremony. Bush, a former Air National Guard pilot, recounted veterans who inspired him - including his father, former U.S. president and Navy pilot George Bush.

Elsewhere around Texas, veterans and their friends and family members gathered at ceremonies to honor those killed during wartime.

The future site of the Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans Memorial was dedicated in Midland. It will honor 220 killed or missing residents from the area.

Organizers hope the star-shaped memorial, featuring U.S., Texas and Vietnam POW-MIA flags, will be completed by Veterans Day.

In Dallas, the county historical society unveiled a marker at Freedman's Cemetery, a lost black graveyard that recently was rediscovered during highway construction. About 1,000 bodies were found at the 19th century burial ground, and officials are relocating the bodies.

In McAllen, retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Walter Baxter spoke to about 40 American Legion members at Roselawn Cemetery.

"We must maintain a strong nation," Baxter said. "As General (Douglas) MacArthur said, only the dead have seen the end of war."

A 21-gun salute and the mournful sounds of "Taps" concluded the service.

In Abilene, William O. Beazley escorted a white, riderless horse around the flower-laden graves of Elmwood Memorial Park to commemorate those who died.

Most at the ceremony were older citizens, but some parents brought their children to teach them about Memorial Day.

Hundreds also gathered at Fort

Sam Houston National Cemetery in San Antonio.

After the Monday morning service, World War I U.S. Army veteran Frank Gable of Bandera was honored with a medal commemorating the war's 75th anniversary. The honor came on Gable's 94th birthday.

At a Corpus Christi ceremony, Rick Schmitt said, "You feel like a part of you is gone." Schmitt, a 24-year-old Navy veteran, had to identify 23 American sailors who died when a ferry capsized off the Israeli coast during the Persian Gulf War.

In Cross Plains, residents spent Memorial Day trying to remember what their town used to look like.

Two tornadoes ripped through the West Texas town of 1,900 Sunday night, shredding roofs, uprooting trees and scattering debris everywhere.

Not all donations from fundraiser reported on Clinton reports in 1986

By JOHN SOLOMON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - When Bill Clinton's gubernatorial campaign filed its May 1986 report, it disclosed only some of the donations it collected at a controversial savings and loan fund-raiser hosted by Clinton's Whitewater business partner.

Missing from the report - the only one on the public record detailing Clinton's 1985 activities - is any mention of four donations totaling $12,000 from the fund-raiser that now are under investigation by the Whitewater special prosecutor.

Federal S&L investigators have alleged in a criminal referral - a recommendation by investigators for possible prosecution - that those donations were diverted illegally from an Arkansas S&L owned by Clinton's Whitewater partner, James McDougal. Most of the donations were in the form of cashier's checks.

The existence of the May 1986 report has not been reported since the Whitewater real estate dealings gained prominence in 1992. And the fact that Clinton's campaign appears to have reported some donations from the fund-raiser and not others is also new.

The Associated Press reported Monday that investigators alleged in a criminal referral last year that McDougal used a complex loan transaction at Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan to divert money to

Defiant Rostenkowski pledges to fight charges

By LARRY MARGASAK

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A defiant Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, one of the top deal-makers in Congress, is rejecting any plea bargain with prosecutors and gambling that he can win an expected trial on corruption charges. "I am confident that I will be vindicated," he says.

The feisty chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee virtually dafed federal prosecutors to indict him Monday, relishing the chance to "fight to regain my reputation in court." Rostenkowski said he would temporarily leave his chairmanship, remain in Congress and run for a 19th term in November.

Prosecutors were prepared to oblige Rostenkowski's challenge: U.S. Attorney Eric Holder scheduled an afternoon announcement concerning Rostenkowski and could obtain a grand jury indictment as early as today on charges that the congressman defrauded taxpayers of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Holder had given Rostenkowski until today to accept or reject a plea bargain offer that would have allowed him to plead guilty to a felony, serve a short jail term and resign from Congress.

If Rostenkowski surrenders his gavel, Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., would be likely to take over the committee as it struggles with President Clinton's health care reform bill.

Rostenkowski, 66, would be forced to vacate his post anyway under House Democratic Caucus rules - which demand that a chairman step aside if indicted for a felony carrying a prison term of two or more years.

Rostenkowski said he would help his colleagues with the committee agenda, but defiantly predicted the outcome of the case: "I am confident that I will be vindicated and I look forward to the return of the gavel."

In fact, defiance was the hallmark of Rostenkowski's written statement. In a message aimed at prosecutors and the public, he said:

"I did not commit any crimes. My conscience is clear and my 42-year record as an elected official is one I am proud to once again run on."

"Fighting the charges "is a far more attractive option than pleading guilty to crimes that I did not commit."

"I will present a compelling case to the jury which will, I am confident, find me not guilty."

"This will be a difficult fight. The government has vast resources at its disposal. But truth is on my side."

"I know my committee colleagues can handle today's challenging agenda regardless of who is in the chair and I expect to help."

The agenda right now is health care and it could later turn to welfare reform. Gibbons, the committee's second-ranking Democrat, is an expert on neither matter. His area is international trade.

But Gibbons has assured Clinton that he stands ready to move a health care measure. Nonetheless, some lawmakers have worried that Clinton's already troubled reform measure is doomed without Rostenkowski's skills.

Poll shows Clinton's approval rating falls

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton's job-approval rating dropped this month to its lowest level since August 1993, a poll indicates.

Forty-two percent of Americans now give Clinton a positive rating, down from 48 percent in early April, according to a Harris Poll released Sunday. His negative rating, meanwhile, rose this month to 56 percent, from 51 percent in April. Clinton has had worse poll numbers, but the figures are strikingly low for a period of economic growth, said Humphrey Taylor, president of Louis Harris and Associates Inc.

Clinton's positive rating in June 1993 was 35 percent; it was 41 percent last August.

Taylor said the drop this month might be attributed to Clinton's Whitewater and sexual harassment cases, although most people claim they are not affected by those issues. Another possible explanation, the pollster said, was a perception of indecisive leadership on foreign affairs.

The poll, which had an error margin of plus or minus 3 percentage points, indicated that several groups that are normally strongly Democratic, such as those with low incomes and little education, are giving Clinton low marks. Only 40 percent of respondents with incomes of less than $7,500 gave him a positive rating; 41 percent with no high school degrees approved.

The findings were based on a survey of 1,253 adults May 23-26.

Personal income up some, spending dips

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans' income rose a moderate 0.4 percent in April but spending slipped 0.1 percent, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported that consumer spending, which represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity, was down for only the second time in the last 13 months. It climbed a revised 0.7 percent in March.

But disposable income - income after taxes - slipped 0.2 percent in April after a 0.6 percent increase. Income before taxes also rose 0.6 percent in March.

The Commerce Department said the April drop in disposable income resulted from higher tax payments due that month under a new law that applies to high income families.

The combination of incomes and spending meant that Americans' savings rate - savings as a percentage of disposable income - was 3.5 percent in April, slipping from 3.6 percent the previous month.

The figures for spending and income were in line with economists' expectations and may reflect an economy that is growing at a slower pace. The economy expanded at a 7 percent annual rate in the final three months of 1993 but slowed to a 3 percent rate for the first quarter this year.

Wages and salaries, the most closely watched component of income, increased $10.5 billion in April after a $13.9 billion rise in March.

Spending on long-lasting items such as cars and appliances was down to $581.1 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate in April from $588.8 billion in March. Spending on non-durable goods such as food and fuel declined to $1.395 trillion from $1.399 trillion, and spending on services was up to $2.619 trillion from $2.614 trillion.

Incomes rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $5.66 trillion in April from $5.63 trillion.

WASHINGTON - Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, one of Congress's top deal makers, is rejecting any deal with prosecutors and gambling that he can win an expected trial on corruption charges. "I am confident that I will be vindicated," the House Ways and Means Committee chairman says, virtually daring prosecutors to indict him.

RIVERSIDE, Calif. - The man accused of shooting a former Nation of Islam spokesman Khalid Abdul Muhammad was an expelled minister in the church who police say had armed himself heavily before going to the auditorium where Muhammad was speaking.

SALT LAKE CITY - Ezra Taft Benson, an unflinching guardian of orthodoxy as president of the Mormon Church since 1985, is dead at 94. A former agriculture secretary under President Eisenhower, he was closely identified with the right-wing John Birch Society and railed against "creeping socialism and godless communism."

WASHINGTON - OK, it looked like an about-face on China policy. According to President Clinton, it wasn't. It was evolution, he said, on a problem position that was George Bush's fault anyhow.

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip - The sick, the unemployed and farmers desperate to market their crops besiege the gates of the Palestinian National Authority daily, seeking but not finding permits to leave Gaza.

All 13 post offices are shut. The 34 tax employees cannot find their own office telephone numbers, and no one knows who will meet the police payroll.

Publicly, Palestinian officials blame 27 years of Israeli occupation for the mess. But privately they echo complaints heard from people in the street that PLO leader Yasser Arafat is idling in his Tunis headquarters.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. - Every June for 40 years, members of the Faust family have watched their very own springtime light show from a darkened cabin porch in the Great Smoky Mountains. Some of the fireflies flash simultaneously, on-and-off, five or six times, then stop for 15 or 20 seconds. Then they start over. On-and-off, on-and-off, all together. So Lynn Faust was a little scornful when she read a magazine article saying the Western Hemisphere had no synchronous fireflies.

WASHINGTON - No pity the contestants in this spelling bee. Not only did they have to spell brainbusters like "metagnomy," "olericulture" and "empleomania," but they had to do it under the gaze of the best spellers in the land - their children.

Though Muratore is no Kirk, the room he captains might be even better. COLLEGE STATION - A hefty new tax being considered by Congress could cut cigarette consumption in the United States by up to 35 percent, a researcher says.

AUSTIN - Over the last century, the male Attwater's prairie chicken population has shrunk from more than 1 million along the coastal prairies of Louisiana and Texas to an all-time low of 158 earlier this spring.

LITTLE ROCK - Odds are, Arkansans will get to vote on more than one gambling proposal on Nov. 8. Four groups have until July 8 to round up about 70,000 signatures each to get proposals on the ballot.

HOUSTON - Over a bank of azaleas in front of the tidy, southwest Houston home where Martha and Palmer Jenkins have lived for more than 50 years, the view is marred by the broad midsection of their most unpopular neighbor. Looming over residential Bradford Place is a 50-watt cellular phone tower on a lot that abuts houses on either side. A cement-block shed squats beneath the tower and the property is surrounded by a chain-link fence. Residents displeased with this tower of babble are trying to use the occasion of new construction at the site to convince city officials of the need for tougher regulations.

Senate candidate seeks support of backers of former Demo rival support to Fisher. Now it's up to the candidate to get the backing of the entire party at the Texas Democratic state convention.

"There's a lot of curiosity about Richard," said former Democratic state Sen. Hugh Parmer, who supported Mattox over Fisher in the primary and April runoff.

"There's obviously some concern about some of his non-Democratic political activities, but the kind of hard-core Democrats who attend these conventions are more than willing to give this guy the benefit of the doubt," Parmer said.

Fisher, the former foreign policy adviser for the 1992 Ross Perot presidential campaign, will get his chance to campaign in front of about 9,000 members of the Democratic Party. The two-day convention runs through Saturday at the Fort Worth-Tarrant County Convention Center.

He said he expects a warm but cautious welcome from the group as he tries quelling questions about the depth of his party loyalty, the degree of his support for President Clinton and his views on key federal issues.

"There are people in the group who will be unhappy with his selection, but overall, he is the Democratic nominee," Mattox said. "Hutchison is the real enemy."

Fisher, a millionaire Dallas businessman, predicts he will convert doubting Democrats, appeal to those outside the party and ultimately beat Mrs. Hutchison come November.

"My job is to excite the troops and lift them out of their seats. I know I'm capable of doing it. I'm just pouring my heart into this thing," Fisher told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

David Beckwith, a spokesman for Mrs. Hutchison, told The Associated Press Monday that he didn't want to comment.

In weeks past, Fisher has been contacting key delegates and attending party-related meetings and receptions.

New tax may cut cigarette smoking

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - A hefty new tax being considered by Congress could cut cigarette consumption in the United States by up to 35 percent, a researcher says.

The proposed $1.25 increase in the tax on a package of cigarettes could cut consumption, but also could be more dangerous for consumers, said Dr. Thomas Blaine, a Texas A&M University consumer economist.

Blaine, a specialist in leisure-related consumer spending and an expert in domestic cigarette consumption, said smoking has been on the decline for years.

"But with this tax, the government could do in one fell swoop what the health trend would take 10 or 15 years to do," he said. "If some people are hoping we get to a smokeless society, this tax may just help do it."

Blaine said a tax hike might cause increased risk from cigarettes, which are currently taxed at 24 cents a pack.

"While consumers purchase fewer cigarettes when prices rise, there is a substantial reason to believe they will also smoke each cigarette to a lower point, where tar and nicotine are in the highest concentration," he said.

"This may be the most compelling argument against using taxes to reduce smoking."

Blaine estimates that for every 1 percent increase in price, there is a half-percent decrease in consumption.

His current estimates are based on a per-pack cost of $1.80. A $1.25 tax increase would cause prices to rise about 69 percent, with consumption likely falling almost 35 percent.

Any tax increase on cigarettes probably would be passed on to the consumer, because manufacturers already cut prices by some 40 cents a pack in fall 1993, Blaine said.

President Bill Clinton originally proposed an additional 75-cent tax, then Congress increased the proposal to an additional $1.25 a pack.

The tax increase was proposed by the House Subcommittee on Health to pay for changes in national health care proposed in House Bill 3600. The bill should be considered by the House Ways and Means Committee in June, a committee spokeswoman said.

About 25 percent of the adult U.S. population smokes, officials say. That makes the average per-capita consumption among smokers some 466 packs per year, or about 1\packs per day.

Consumption could immediately fall to a pack a day among smokers with a 75-cent increase and to 16.5 cigarettes a day if the $1.25 raise is adopted.

Area oilman dies Monday

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Former Canadian mayor and member of the Texas House of Representatives Malouf Abraham died Monday. He was 78.

Abraham, who had made millions as an oil and gas man, apparently died from an aneurysm, his grandson Jason Abraham said.

Abraham made most of his money leasing mineral rights throughout the Anadarko basin in the eastern Panhandle and western Oklahoma.

A son of Lebanese immigrants and one-time toad salesman, Abraham was known throughout the Texas panhandle for his philanthropy.

In 1992, Abraham and his wife Iris gave $1 million to the Amarillo Area Foundation to establish a scholarship fund. They also established a $100,000 endowment at West Texas A&M University in Canyon and a $150,000 endowment at Texas Tech, where Abraham attended for three years during the Depression before dropping out.

"Conditions weren't too brisk" in 1933, Abraham had told the Amarillo Globe-News.

After dropping out, Abraham sold insurance, then moved to Dallas, where he sold horned toads and ran a coat check service at the State Fair of Texas.

He later opened a restaurant and then joined the military. After his discharge, he devoted himself to the oil business in the 1950s.

In 1953 and again in 1955, Abraham was elected mayor of Canadian. He was elected of the Texas House in 1965, and served two terms.

Thirty-five members of the Hereford Educators Association met recently in the Shirley Intermediate School library for their final meeting of the school year.

New officers, who will serve two-year terms, were introduced. Those officers are Terry Zimmerman, president; Merice McWethy, president-elect; Mark Stokes, secretary; Tony Calkins, treasurer; Shelia Straughn, membership chairman; and Carolyn Waters, grievance chairman.

Mauri Montgomery, representing The Hereford Brand, was presented with the Distinguished Service Award in appreciation of his sustaining interest in and contribution to public education and educators.

Julia Arrendondo reported on the insurance committee's findings and that they will continue their research and report to the group later. The membership report included news that five new members have been recruited and that Shirley School is striving for 100 percent HEA membership and that the goal has almost been reached.

Members are encouraged to support those businesses that advertised in support of National Teacher Week, a NEA-TSTA-HEA endeavor.

Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter conducts year-end meeting

A tropical, swashbuckling theme of "Treasure Island" was featured when members of Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority recently held its end-of-the-year meeting at the new office Newton Trucking Co.

President Linda Arellano was presented with a club scrapbook and a chapter gift as a token of appreciation for her job as president the past year. Incoming president Ruby Lee announced committee assignments for 1994-95.

Decorations of tropical plants, leis, swords, eyepatches and sailor hats were featured, and a light meal of chicken salad and croissants, potato salad, fruits and dip were served. Games were played to end the club year and prizes were awarded.

A brief business meeting followed

Bob Moore, UniServ director from Amarillo, reviewed recodification and simplifying of the current education code and its effect on educators. He answered questions about various concerns voiced by members.

HEA will continue working on increasing membership throughout the summer and will have a membership drive in September and October.

the opening ritual, which was led by President Arellano and repeated by 13 other members: Peggy Hyer, Melinda Henson, Deann Harris, Kay Williams, Charla Edwards, Connie Matthews, Holly Bixler, Gaye Reily, Susan Shaw, Brenda Ramey, Carol Kelley, Melinda Whitfill and Ruby Lee.

Guests includes former member dona Hendrickson; Billie Brown, the chapter's adopted sister; and Megan Harris, infant daughter of Deann Harris.

Local Junior Historians group honors veterans with program

Veterans of World War I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam were honored on Armed Forces Day by members of the Junior Historians Chapter 755.

The event began with Laurie Gilbert playing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" on the piano. The colors were presented by Grant Hanna and Lester Wagner who represented the American Legion Post 192. Justin Landrum led the Pledge to the Flag, followed by a prayer led by Joe Don Cummings.

After brief remarks by Junior Historian Sponsor Carolyn Waters, the program was directed by Chapter President Heath Henderson. He introduced Robin Bell and Kris Friel who presented "What Is A Veteran?" in verse; Jason Cillier recited "What

It Means To Be An American"; Clay Brown, "In Flanders Field"; and Adriana Alonzo, "America's Answer."

Cummings introduced the guest speaker, Marion Ginn who related tales from his boyhood days in a cowboy poet style. Included in his presentation was a poem about his family and patriotism which he had composed for the occasion.

Emily Curtis led the approximate 145 guests in singing "God Bless America." Guests were served punch and cookies by chapter members from tables decorated in red, white and blue.

As guests visited, they were invited to view displays of old newspapers, flags of the branches of service which had been shown as each branch of the service was introduced, posters and personal mementos from servicemen and their families.

Underdog Pacers tie Knicks in series, 2-2

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The Indiana Pacers, underdogs ever since the NBA playoffs began, refuse to step aside to let the New York Knicks move into the championship finals.

Indiana, a team which never before had made it out of the opening round of the playoffs, is all even with the Knicks as the teams prepare for Game 5 in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference final.

The Pacers tied the series with an 83-77 victory over the Knicks on Monday, giving each team two victories on its home court. The fifth game will be Wednesday night in Madison Square Garden, where the Knicks have won 11 straight over Indiana.

Game 6 is scheduled Friday night in Market Square Arena, where the Pacers have won 10 straight, including all six of their playoff games.

"We're going to win, that's it," said New York's Patrick Ewing, whose 25 points and 13 rebounds wasn't enough to overcome his team's 26 turnovers and 37.7 percent shooting (26-of-69).

"They did a great job, they took us out of what we wanted to do," New York coach Pat Riley said.

"Everything can be fixed, we just have to come in more focused," Ewing said. "We just have to go home and regroup."

Riley isn't surprised both teams have had trouble scoring.

"You've got the two best defenses in the league going after one another to the nail," he said. "We have to execute with more force. ... We get a lot of credit for being a physical team, but they're one of the most physical teams in the league."

With the game on the line, Indiana gave the ball to Reggie Miller and he relished the attention with 10 points and an assist during a decisive 12-2 spurt that turned a two-point deficit into an 80-72 lead with 2:20 left.

"I knew when they tied the score with two minutes left, someone was going to have to step up," Miller said. "I tried to be a little more creative, just try and look for my shot more."

A non-factor most of the series, Miller tormented New York's defense down the stretch. When he wasn't hitting jumpers, he was being fouled. Miller, second in the league with a 91 percent free throw mark this season, made the Knicks pay for the fouls by hitting 17-of-19 attempts while scoring 31 points.

"To be successful against the Knicks, we've got to win one there. We've got to play the same way, win or lose," Miller said. The Pacers can win the series, he added, "as long as we play aggressive, and play the same type of defense that we played here."

"They thoroughly whipped us in New York. There were some guys on our team who had doubts that we could beat them," said Rik Smits, whose jumper off Miller's pass put Indiana ahead to stay 72-70. "It's a new series. We have shown now that we can beat New York. ... When you beat a good team like New York, it really pumps you up."

Smits, not known for being physical underneath, has been challenging Ewing at both ends of the court with plenty of support from his teammates. Smits helped hold Ewing to a career-playoff low of one point in an 88-68 victory on Saturday, the lowest output for a playoff team since the league began using the 24-second clock in 1954.

Rockets can finish Jazz tonight

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Houston reserve center Earl Cureton doesn't want to repeat the hollow feeling of blowing a 3-1 lead in the NBA playoffs.

Cureton played for the 1981 Philadelphia 76ers, who took a 3-1 lead over Boston and then lost three in a row in the Eastern Conference final.

It's Cureton's job to make certain the same fate doesn't befall Houston in tonight's Game 5 of the Western Conference final against the Utah Jazz.

With a 3-1 series lead, the Rockets are one victory away from their third NBA title series unless the Jazz can mount a miracle comeback.

Cureton knows it can happen. "It was the worst feeling in the world going into the locker room after that last loss," Cureton said. "We had them 3-1 and lost three in a row. That's something that we have to think about."

The Rockets are acutely aware of the quirky nature of the playoffs, especially after the wild ending to Sunday's 80-78 victory over the Jazz when the timekeeper forgot to start the clock for the final 13.5 seconds.

Utah got almost 10 extra seconds to tie or win the game but the Rockets held on. Now they're trying to hold on again and close out the series.

Cureton doesn't have a difficult assignment in warning the Rockets of an improbable collapse.

"Sometimes you're just one game away and you catch yourself looking past it," forward Otis Thorpe said. "We have to block that totally out of the way and go take care of this game."

Utah almost became the first team in NBA history to blow a 3-0 playoff lead before nipping Denver's three-game comeback with a 91-81 victory in the final game of the semifinals.

Guard Kenny Smith, whose outside shooting helped the Rockets through the rough moments in Game 4, expects the same defense and better offense in Game 5.

"When you're 8, 9 years old, this is what you talk about, going to the championship," Smith said. "Now that we're here one game away, we won't let it slip by."

Houston's defense was as confining as ever in Game 4. The Rockets held Utah to 19 and 10 points in the second and third quarters but had difficulty on offense and Hakeem Olajuwon scored a playoff-low 16 points.

"We can say all the right things but we still have to go out and do it," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "We've got to do it again with defense."

"If we hold them to 78 points in their gym, we need that same effort in our gym and our offense should be better at home."

The Jazz have their frustrations to forget, too. Tom Chambers, who missed a 4-foot jumper on Utah's final shot on Sunday, expects better in The Summit.

"We didn't play well," Chambers said. "The Rockets weren't playing very well either. We were playing good defense just to keep ourselves in the basketball game."

"But in the NBA, you should be able to score more than 31 points in a half. That's kind of frustrating for us. Maybe, in fact, that's why we ended up losing the game."

Smith, who scored 25 points, was the only consistent scoring threat for the Rockets in Game 4. Thorpe had six points and guard Vernon Maxwell only five as the Rockets shot only 39.7 percent.

Cureton hopes the Rockets can get an early lead and remain comfortable. He remembers losing the last three games to the Celtics by a combined five points, including a 91-90 loss in Game 7.

"They were all good tight games, and they pulled them out," Cureton said. "We want to close it out now and not get into any situation like that."

Price captures Colonial in playoff

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - In a decade on the American golf circuit, Nick Price of Zimbabwe has won 11 tournaments, including four in 1993, when he was the PGA Player of the Year.

But nothing quite compares with his triumph in the storm-ravaged Southwestern Bell Colonial.

For starters, he came from seven shots back with a 6-under-par 64 to overtake former U.S. Open champion Scott Simpson and seize the trophy with a birdie in sudden-death.

Because of an overnight rain suspension, he was forced to make up the final two strokes with birdies on two of his five regulation holes Monday.

Simpson had a final round of 71, including seven pars Monday.

But figure this:

Because of rain delays, Price played 13 holes Thursday, 5 Friday, 36 Saturday, 13 Sunday and 6 Monday, counting the playoff at the 18th green.

It counted up to 65-70-67-64--266, 14 under par on the water-logged Colonial Country Club course, called "Hogan's Alley" in honor of 5-time winner Ben Hogan.

Penske's engine may be banned

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Was the Mercedes-Benz engine a one-race wonder or the prototype for the racing engine of the future?

The engine that powered Al Unser Jr.'s second Indianapolis 500 victory and produced the biggest prize in the history of the sport had a huge advantage over the competition, everyone agrees.

So the question now is whether the U.S. Auto Club will close the loophole in its rules that gave Team Penske such an overwhelming edge.

"It hasn't even been discussed at this point. I'm sure that there will be some discussions this summer about it, though," USAC president Dick King said Monday night.

The Mercedes was allowed a higher turbocharger boost because of its stock block-type, push-rod construction. The extra boost meant some 150 more horsepower than conventional engines, giving the Penske cars driven by Unser and teammates Emerson Fittipaldi and Paul Tracy significantly faster straightaway speeds.

The number of sports in the Summer Olympics increased from nine in 1896 to 25 in 1992. Aqueduct race track in New York opened its doors for the first time in September 1894.

Mitchell steals spotlight from Deion

By TOM WITHERS
Associated Press Writer
Before the game it was Deion said this, Deion's wearing that. Once play got underway, though, it was Kevin Mitchell, Kevin Mitchell.

Mitchell homered twice Monday night to help Jose Rijo get his 100th career win as Cincinnati defeated the Montreal Expos 7-3 in Deion Sanders' debut with the Reds.

Sanders, traded to the Reds on Sunday in a deal that sent Roberto Kelly to Atlanta, arrived at Riverfront Stadium wearing his usual assortment of jewelry and stated during a pre-game news conference that he was ready to show Cincinnati fans his talents.

"I'm ecstatic to be a Red," he said, with owner Marge Schott at his side. "This is the best thing that's ever happened to me. I'm going to make this work."

Sanders, wearing No. 12, went 1-for-4 with a single. He did receive the loudest ovation he was introduced for the first time as a Red.

However, the night belonged to Mitchell.

Mitchell hit a two-run homer off Ken Hill (8-3) to start the Reds' comeback in the fourth, and the Reds' other Sanders - Reggie - homered two pitches later to tie it at 3.

Mitchell hit a solo homer, his 14th, in the seventh.

Not bad for a guy playing with a sore wrist and hip that sidelined him most of the last 10 days. The Reds were 2-8 without him.

"When they see me hitting, maybe it will catch on," Mitchell said.

Rijo (3-3) escaped threat after threat to get No. 100 on his fourth attempt. He gave up six hits, walked four and hit a batter in six innings, but forced the Expos to strand nine runners, six in scoring position.

Rockies 12, Mets 2

At New York, Andres Galaraga hit his second grand slam of the season to pace the Rockies.

Colorado loaded the bases with no outs in the sixth against Mauro Gozoff (2-2) and Galaraga homered off Mike Maddux.

Kevin Ritz (1-0) was the winner.

Astros 4, Marlins 3

At Houston, Craig Biggio drove in two runs, including the game-winner with a two-out single in the ninth.

Chris Donnels led off the ninth with a single off Robb Nen (2-3) and took second on a sacrifice by Scott Servais. After Sid Bream walked and James Mouton struck out, Steve Finley drew a walk to load the bases for Biggio.

Tom Edens (4-1) pitched two perfect innings.

Braves 4, Giants 3, 11 innings

At San Francisco, Jarvis Brown hit his first major league home run in the 11th.

Brown had been 0-for-7 since being called up from Triple-A Richmond on May 4. Known for his speed and defense, he got into the game in the ninth as a pinch-runner for outfielder David Justice, and won it when he drove a one-out, 1-2 pitch from Rod Beck (1-3) into the left-field bleachers.

Brown's homer made a winner of Greg McMichael (2-2).

Cubs 3, Phillies 0

At Chicago, Willie Banks held Philadelphia hitless for 7 1-3 innings.

Banks blanked the Phillies until Kim Batisse grounded a single to left with one out in the eighth. Banks (6-4) allowed only one hit and struck out six in eight innings. He was hit in back of the hip by a pitch from reliever Bob Wells in the sixth, and left the game after the eighth with tightness in his back. Randy Myers completed the combined one-hitter, pitching the ninth for his 12th save. Bobby Munoz (0-1) took the loss.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 5

At Los Angeles, Mark Whiten homered and doubled, helping Vicente Palacios to his first major league victory in two years.

Palacios (1-2), who pitched in the Mexican League last year, allowed three runs and seven hits. Mike Perez got his 10th save.

The Cardinals scored a run in each of the first three innings against Orel Hershiser (3-2).

Padres 10, Pirates 2

At San Diego, Tony Gwynn had a career-high five RBIs and Andy Ashby pitched a four-hitter for his first win of the season.

Gwynn hit a two-run homer and a three-run double, and pinch-hitter Craig Shipley hit his first career grand slam.

Ashby (1-5) struck out eight in his first complete game in 48 starts.

Ravelo Manzanillo (1-1) was the loser.

M's Johnson twirls shutout vs. Twins

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

A few more games like this by Randy Johnson and the Mariners and maybe Ken Griffey Jr. will want to stay in Seattle.

A day after Griffey criticized some of his teammates for lack of desire and claimed the team's constant losing "is killing me," the Mariners routed the Minnesota Twins 12-0 Monday.

Johnson pitched a two-hitter and struck out 10 for his second straight shutout. Keith Mitchell hit his first two homers of the season, doubled and drove in five runs as the visiting Mariners ended a three-game losing streak.

Johnson was surprised to hear Griffey's remarks.

"I don't really want to comment, but I'm kind of shocked that Junior would say that sort of thing. I look around here today and I'm proud of a lot of these guys, especially after the way they played today," he said.

Johnson (6-3) won his fourth straight start.

Rich Amaral had an RBI triple, two doubles and a single. Mike Blowers also had four hits for Seattle and Edgar Martinez homered. The Mariners got 17 hits, 10 for extra bases.

Carlos Pulido (2-5) began the day with a 4.93 ERA, best on the Twins' staff. But he lasted only 3 1-3 innings, allowing four runs and five hits.

Tigers 5, Orioles 3

Tony Phillips hit a tying, two-run homer off Lee Smith in the ninth inning, and Detroit wound up winning in the 11th at Camden Yards.

Smith had converted 20 of 21 save chances until Lou Whitaker led off with a walk and Phillips homered. Baltimore blew a chance to win it in the bottom of the ninth as Tim Lulett struck out and Brady Anderson flied out with the bases loaded.

White Sox 7, Yankees 2

Surprise starter Scott Sanderson pitched seven strong innings and Chicago won at Yankee Stadium.

Sanderson (4-0) was moved up a day to pitch in place of Alex Fernandez, who felt ill. Sanderson allowed four hits, including Daryl Boston's solo home run, and walked none.

Indians 10, Angels 2

Charles Nagy came within one out of a shutout, and Cleveland beat California for his 10th straight win at Jacobs Field.

Nagy (4-3) struck out nine and walked five. He gave up two-out RBI singles in the ninth inning to Jorge Fabregas and Gary DiSarcina.

Rangers 5, Brewers 4

Jeff Frye and Manuel Lee singled home runs in the ninth inning as Texas rallied to win in Milwaukee.

Frye had three hits and drove in three runs. Lee tied the game with one-out single and Frye put the Rangers ahead with a two-out hit off Mike Fetters (0-3).

Kevin Brown (4-7) gave up 11 hits in eight innings.

Red Sox 6, Royals 5

Damon Berryhill doubled home the winning run in the 10th inning as Boston beat visiting Kansas City.

The Red Sox tied it in the eighth on solo home runs by Andy Tomberlin and Mike Greenwell. In the 10th, Scott Cooper and Tomberlin singled and Berryhill doubled off the left-field wall against Hipolito Pichardo (0-2).

Athletics 6, Blue Jays 2

Brent Gates doubled home the tiebreaking run in the ninth inning and Oakland went on to score five times to win at the SkyDome.

Astros set to release 'Wild Thing' Williams

NEW YORK (AP) - "Wild Thing" is washed up with the Houston Astros.

Mitch Williams, who recently said he thought the Astros would release him, was right. He will be put on waivers today, The Associated Press learned Monday night.

Williams was told of the team's decision during a meeting Monday with Astros management, sources told the AP.

"We met and I have a decision, but I'm not going to divulge it. We'll announce it tomorrow," Astros general manager Bob Watson said after Houston beat Florida 4-3 Monday. "We met and came to a conclusion. It's been a distraction. We're here to win games. As of today, he is a Houston Astro."

Williams was not in the clubhouse after the game for comment.

Williams' stay with the Astros was a brief one. He was traded to Houston last Dec. 2 for pitchers Doug Jones and Jeff Juden, a deal that the Philadelphia Phillies said they made for his own good after Williams gave up a World Series-ending home run to Toronto's Joe Carter.

Unfortunately for Williams, who saved 43 games for the Phillies last year, he lived up to his reputation as "Wild Thing" for Houston.

Williams is 1-4 with six saves - and two blown chances - and a 7.65 ERA. He has given up 21 hits and walked 24 in 20 innings.

Williams lost his role as the Astros' closer early in the season, and recently had watched as rookie John Hudek took over as the relief ace. Manager Terry Collins said he understood Williams' frustration at not pitching more often in close games, but became more reluctant to stick with the struggling reliever.

Last week, as Williams prepared to return to Philadelphia for the first time since the World Series, he said he thought the Astros would release him shortly. He originally said he believed the move would be made Monday, but then revised that prediction to Tuesday - the day the National League offices reopen after the Memorial Day holiday.

Astros owner Drayton McLane said last week that he would make the final call on what to do with Williams.

"We're going to have to reach a conclusion because we think we have a very competitive team," McLane said.

The Astros are tied for the NL Central lead with Cincinnati.

Williams, 29, has a contract for $2.5 million this season. If any team claims him off waivers in the next three days, it must pay him the rest of his salary. If Williams works out a deal after that period, the Astros are still responsible for most of the money.

Williams was successful on 43 of 49 save chances last year, going 3-7 with a 3.34 ERA. He was 2-0 with two saves in the NL playoffs against Atlanta, and 0-2 with one save in the World Series.

He has 192 career saves. He had 102 saves for the Phillies, one behind the team mark held by Steve Bedrosian.

Graf, Pierce continue to dominate French Open; they'll meet in semis

PARIS (AP) - Top-seeded Steffi Graf and record-setting Mary Pierce set up a semifinal showdown in the French Open with decisive victories today.

Pierce, seeded 12th, routed Petra Ritter of Austria 6-0, 6-2 and has lost only six games in five matches, the best showing ever in the tournament.

Graf, who beat Ines Gorochategui of Argentina 6-4, 6-1, has reached at least the semifinals in every French Open since 1987, when she won the first of her three titles.

Krzyzewski to stay at Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said today he's happy there and will remain at the school.

He has coached Duke to two national basketball titles and got the Blue Devils into the NCAA Final Four seven times in nine years.

Krzyzewski last week issued a terse statement confirming that he was exploring other job offers.

But some had warned that learning to run a team the NBA way would be difficult.

"The game is different. The rules are different. It's almost a different sport. So, he's got to experience that, and that's a huge adjustment," former Portland coach-turned-broadcaster Jack Ramsay said in a telephone interview Monday.

Krzyzewski had some exposure to the NBA as an assistant coach with Dream Team that won the men's basketball gold medal at the 1992 Barcelona Olympics.

Ask Dr. Lamb

It would not be possible to discontinue writing my column without saying good-bye to the millions of readers who have read "Ask Dr. Lamb" since it first appeared, September 1, 1970. I have always regarded the column as an opportunity to help people improve their health and to better understand many common medical disorders.

My interest in health and preventing disease was kindled early in my career, in the late 1940s, when it was first suspected that cholesterol played an important role in the heart attack epidemic of that era. It was strengthened during the years I headed the program to provide medical support for the U.S. Air Force flying personnel and the team to do the medical examinations for the nation's first astronauts and was consultant to NASA and to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. Still later, as professor of medicine at Baylor College of Medicine, I saw the ravages of advanced disease in patients undergoing open-heart surgery, and witnessed the first days of heart transplants and artificial hearts.

These 45 years of experience as a physician have helped me to offer state-of-the-art information to my readers. You have continued to stimulate my curiosity with nearly every medical and health problem in existence over these 24 years that you have written to me. Some of these letters have been from those who had medical problems which could not be corrected by what we know today. Some have been rare disorders, but many more have been those related to the common discomforts people experience that are often not addressed.

I have seen the public grow in their knowledge of health and medical problems, which has been very gratifying. Many of our most common health disorders are a direct result of what we do. In 1900, the leading causes of death were infectious diseases that modern medical sciences have largely conquered. The medical miracles we have today did not exist then. Heart attacks in living people were essentially unknown, because people's lifestyles were different. They ate differently and were more active physically, and cigarettes were not commonly used.

The truths that have been learned that you can profit from are rather simple and fundamental. At least 80 percent of lung cancers and probably 25 percent of all cancers need not occur if no one smoked. Think of it: We spend millions to find cures for diseases that can be prevented inexpensively if people were willing to do it.

Tobacco, bad diets and lack of exercise are the three main factors that everyone can control to markedly decrease cancer, heart disease and strokes. Don't leave out alcohol abuse as a cause of liver deaths and early senility. Much of the high cost of medical care in this country is a direct result of the bad lifestyle people follow. Which leads me to paraphrase a famous saying, "Ask not what your doctor can do for you; ask what you can do for yourself." Of course, though, you can't solve every problem.

The three frontiers I think will eventually improve the quality of life further are: effective treatment of virus diseases similar to what has been accomplished with antibiotics for bacterial diseases; the genetic aspects of health and how to correct faulty genes; and unraveling the intricacies of brain chemistry that affect brain function.

HELP YOUR HEART RECIPES

This recipe is intended to be part of an overall healthful eating plan. Total fat intake should be less than 30 percent of your total calories for a day — not for each food or recipe.

Marinated Steak

- 2 pounds top sirloin steak, all visible fat removed
- 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1/4 cup acceptable vegetable oil*
- 3 tablespoons dry white wine
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh rosemary
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh sage
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Place steak in an oblong glass baking pan and set aside. Combine all other ingredients in small bowl. Pour marinade over steak and turn to coat evenly. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight, turning meat occasionally. Preheat grill. Grill marinated steak over hot coals. Serves 6.

* Canola, corn, olive, safflower, soybean or sunflower oils.

Parents spell while kids watch at National Bee finals

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pity the contestants in this spelling bee. Not only did they have to spell brain busters like "xyloglyphy," "coccygeal" and "ichneumon," but they had to do it under the gaze of the best spellers in the land - their children.
The parents of the kids in this year's National Spelling Bee battled into the wee hours of the morning in an orthographic showdown of their own.
It ended at 1 a.m. when a trio of parents snared the crown - and $750 each in cash and other prizes - by spelling "xyloglyphy."

"Is it from the Greek, 'glyphen,' to carve?" Dr. Steve Urban, an internist from Amarillo, Texas, asked the judges in the 13th and climactic round.
Assured that it was, the doctor rattled off the correct spelling of the abstruse word for an artistic wood carving. His partners were Runi Niyogi of Willingboro, N.J., and Dorothy Leong of Littleton, Colo.
Most of the 238 children who will compete this Wednesday and Thursday had long since retreated upstairs to their hotel room beds when the inaugural "Parents of Champions" contest drew to a close. The children must compete alone, but the 192 parents willing to brave their first spelling bee in decades vied in threesomes. It took six hours and 241 words to sort out the winners.

The very first team bombed out on fieriness, meaning full of emotion.
"We had lots of different ideas, none of which were correct," said Jan Van Oort of New Prague, Minn.
With money at stake, the adults gave it their all, badgering the official pronouncer to repeat words, read them in sentences and give the language of origin.
Most of the parents breezed through opening rounds with such easy words as nefarious, precipitately, convalesce and rhetorical.
One team got tripped up by "bureaucracy."
"I can't believe you got it wrong," Suyun Hong, 13, of Primos, Pa., upbraided her mother, Chris Hong.
"I really did not want to do this," laughed Ellen Friedman of Teaneck, N.J., after bowing out on "saboteur."
"I love you anyway," consoled her 13-year-old daughter, Leyna.
A.M. Faizullah of Midland, Texas, was disconsolate when he flubbed "enunciator" by leaving out the second 'n'. "That word should be right," he apologized to his teammates.

AUSTIN — Property-poor and property-rich school districts, after years of battling each other over funding, urged the Texas Supreme Court last week to reject the state's new school finance law.

Although their reasons are different, both sides of the funding case contend that the 1993 law is unfair and should be thrown out by the high court.

Attorneys for the state told justices that the new funding formula is the fairest yet devised by the Texas Legislature and will work if given a chance.

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter, representing the state, defended the law, saying that funding is equalized for 85 percent of the 3.5 million students in Texas. A funding advantage exists only for students in the high-wealth districts, she said.

But Al Kauffman, attorney for a group of property-poor districts, said many of the districts have suffered severe cuts in state aid this year, while high-wealth districts continue to enjoy a financial advantage of several thousand dollars per classroom.

"There is no reason why the Legislature had to pass a bill that took money away from poor districts..." said Kauffman, a lawyer for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

Justice Raul Gonzalez asked Kauffman whether current law is the best that can be crafted given state budget constraints, a no-new-taxes pledge from state leaders and the state's heavy reliance on property taxes.

"How do you respond to some of those legislators who say, 'this is the best you are going to get'?" Gonzalez asked.

Kauffman answered by pointing out that the current law, while making progress, still allows some wealthy districts to raise 28 times more money than poorer districts. "The gaps in this bill are simply too great," he said.

'Unconstitutional State Tax'
Lawyers for property-rich districts said the five options in the law amount to a statewide property tax. "It's an unconstitutional state (property) tax because it is imposed by the state and the state collects it," said lawyer Bob Luna, who represents property-rich districts.

Justice Lloyd Doggett said Luna was making basically the same argument the court rejected five years ago in a 9-0 decision.

Last week's hearing marked the fourth time since 1989 that the Supreme Court has reviewed the 10-year-old case. In three previous rulings, the court overturned finance laws and ordered lawmakers back to work.

A lower court has upheld most parts of the 1993 law, and the Supreme Court is considering appeals of that decision.

State District Judge Scott McCown approved the law in December, supplementing it with an order to the Legislature to take action to help low-wealth districts with construction costs.

Prison Expansion OK'd
A court-appointed special master says the state prison system's expansion should not be held back by an inmate's legal claims that the construction project unjustly displaces a softball field.

W. David Arnold indicates in his recommendation that recreational needs at Amarillo's Clements unit will be met because the softball field is being replaced with basketball and volleyball courts.

Last month, U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler ordered Arnold to investigate the effect of the construction at Amarillo and other locations on the recreational needs of inmates.

$187 Million to Texas Bases
The U.S. House has approved $8.8 billion in military construction funds for next year, including $187 million for improvements in Texas defense installations.

The House bill, which must be approved by the Senate, includes funds for:

- Fort Hood near Killeen: $47.8 million;
- Fort Bliss near El Paso: $42.7 million;
- Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio: $17.1 million;
- Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio: $16.5 million;
- Naval Station Ingleside near Corpus Christi: $14 million;
- Dryfus AFB near Abilene: $12.4 million;
- Corpus Christi Naval Air Station: $11.8 million;
- Brooks AFB in San Antonio: $6.5 million;
- Lackland AFB in San Antonio: $5.2 million;
- Sheppard AFB near Wichita Falls: $3.3 million; and
- Naval Air Station Kingsville: $1.5 million.

Interstate Link Study
The Texas Transportation Commission has approved a feasibility study of adding a Rio Grande Valley link to a proposed new interstate highway.

As currently envisioned, Interstate 69, the proposed four-lane highway across the central United States, would run from Indianapolis, through Memphis to Shreveport, La. to Houston and then to Laredo.

A group of political and economic leaders from the Rio Grande Valley have asked that a leg be built that would extend to McAllen or Brownsville.

Women's letters about war offer different perspective

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Half a century ago, Gysella Simon wrote from England to her parents in Cleveland, trying to describe the dramatic departure of allied troops for the treacherous D-Day landings ahead.

"In the dead of night they sailed away and now the world knows the story," Simon, a Red Cross club director, told her parents. "I shiver when I think of the boys who won't come back."

"The port was filled with ships of all descriptions, and to see the boys going aboard, grim and determined, was a sight which will live with me for the rest of my time."

Simon's letters and those of other women recalling the events of the war have been compiled by historian Judy Barrett Litoff of Bryant College in Smithfield, R.I.

Litoff and David C. Smith of the University of Maine have published the letters in two books: "We're in This War Too: World War II Letters From American Women in Uniform," and "Since You Went Away: World War II Letters From American Women on the Home Front."

More than 8,000 members of the Women's Army Corps served in Europe, along with Red Cross club operators and Army nurses.

Pearl Brubeck, another Red Cross club director in England, recalled helping the soldiers fill their time in the tense days before the invasion.

"The men were like caged creatures, and we made every effort to be of service to them," she wrote.

"We shopped in town, picked up their PX rations, brought stamps, mailed packages home, sewed and mended, fed them at all hours, danced when they wanted to dance, sang when they wanted to sing, wrote their families, read to them. ... It was an exhausting business."

Hesper Hutchinson watched the armada's departure from the Red Cross club in Bournemouth:

"Hanging out of a top floor window, just before dawn, we noticed a new sound, the throb of ships' engines; then slowly and deliberately the entire convoy turned south and steamed away. No sirens, no steam whistles - but it was obvious to those of us who witnessed their departure that D-Day had arrived."

Nurses followed the troops to France within days.

"For nine days we never stopped ... 880 patients operated ... gunshot and shrapnel wounds, numerous amputations, fractures galore, perforated guts, livers, spleens, kidneys, lungs etc., everything imaginable. We cared for almost 1,500 patients in those nine days," wrote Army nurse Ruth Hess.

"I have never worked so hard in my life," Army nurse Aileen Hogan wrote. "I can't call it nursing. The boys pour in, get emergency treatment, penicillin and sulfa, and are shot out again. It is beyond words."

On the home front, women's feelings were a muddle - joy at the long-awaited invasion, dreadful fear for loved ones sent to Normandy.

"I can't explain the feeling I had when I first heard of the invasion ... I was stunned. We all knew it was coming and were happy that it had started, so it can all end soon," Barbara Sanz of Valparaiso, Ind., wrote to her future husband, Lester McClannan, who was stationed in England.

"Please don't do anything you don't have to," pleaded Ethel Wiggins of Florence, Ala., to her husband, Herbert, who had already participated in battles in North Africa and Italy.

"You've already done more than your share as it is, darling. Precious, I'm just sitting here holding my breath until you get home." He returned to her in the fall of 1945.

Red Cross club members followed the invasion by only a few weeks, bringing Gysella Simon to the scene of recent battle.

"To have seen what my eyes have seen; destruction and devastation far above and beyond the scope of your comprehension; casualties and survivors; hunger and privation," she wrote.

"I have had the great experience and honor of working with heroes who come from every walk of life."

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — The Eagles opened their reunion concert tour after 14 years of separation with a tribute to where it all began, "Hotel California."

The West Coast group's three-hour show kicked off Friday night with Don Henley, Glenn Frey, Joe Walsh, Timothy Schmit and Don Felder playing in front of electric blue lights.

"I never thought I'd see them in my lifetime," said Bobbi Clement. She attended the concert with her teen-age daughter, Veronica Sturm, who said she has been an Eagles fan all her life - and then some.

"I've listened to them ever since I was in her stomach," Sturm said. "My dad used to play it to me."

Legal scramble still continuing in cases worked by pathologist

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — It's been more than a year and a half since the last of numerous questionable autopsy reports was filed by Dr. Ralph Erdmann. But the legal scramble continues.

Erdmann worked as a pathologist for about 40 West Texas counties before suspicions arose that he had faked some autopsies. He has pleaded no contest to charges he falsified documents and tampered with evidence, and moved from West Texas.

But the controversy surrounding Erdmann has provided fodder for convicted capital murderers seeking to avoid the death penalty.

At least six death row inmates in Texas and Oklahoma have appealed their convictions, claiming that Erdmann made errors in their cases.

Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney Travis Ware said much of the "hullabaloo" over Erdmann has been stirred up by death penalty opponents.

"It does appear to be the case, in terms of Lubbock County homicides, there was much ado about very little," Ware said. "I think the (Texas) Court of Criminal Appeals can see through this kind of stuff."

But criminal defense lawyers remain adamant in their criticism of Erdmann, who they say tailored his "expert" opinions to prosecutors' theories.

"Dr. Erdmann undermined the credibility in every case in which he testified," said Atlanta lawyer Millard Farmer. "What he was doing is taking the worst case scenario that law enforcement officers and prosecutors were giving to him."

Lubbock attorney Floyd Holder said: "The man was a witch doctor. He's not a professional. He's not even competent."

However, Holder said he does not expect the courts to grant the appellants' wishes in their capital murder cases. To preserve the public's confidence in the criminal justice system, Holder predicted, the courts will find that Erdmann's mistakes constituted a "harmless error."

Last week, the criminal appeals court denied a motion for rehearing in the appeal of Damon Richardson, who was given the death penalty for the 1987 slayings of three Lubbock residents following an apparent dispute over drugs.

One point raised in Richardson's appeal disputes Erdmann's testimony that the three victims - Vivian Webb, Quinnie Smith and Napoleon Ellison - were killed at the same time and then shot again after they died.

Richardson was charged with capital murder because the three slayings were considered a single criminal transaction, not the result of separate shooting episodes.

Mike Brown of Lubbock, Richardson's attorney, said the Erdmann issue will not be raised in a coming appeal but could resurface later.

A writ of habeas corpus petition filed in a Lamesa court challenges Erdmann's findings in the Aaron Lee Fuller capital murder case. Fuller faces death by lethal injection for the 1989 slaying of Loretta Christine Stephens during a burglary of her apartment.

Erdmann's autopsy of the 68-year-old victim indicated she had been sexually assaulted. At the 1990 trial, Erdmann also rebutted Fuller's contention that Stephens was killed with an iron pipe wielded by an accomplice.

Holder, who previously served as Fuller's attorney, said there was no scientific basis for Erdmann's assertion that the blunt object blows could not have been inflicted by an iron pipe.

Appeals in two Amarillo area capital murder cases also raise questions about Erdmann's work.

One was filed by Farmer's client, Johnny Lee Rey, who was sentenced to die for his part in the 1990 bludgeoning death of Hilton Merriman Sr.

Rey contends Erdmann never performed an autopsy on Merriman and committed perjury.

Randall Haldahl was given the death sentence for gunning down Amarillo police Sgt. James Mitchell following a 1985 traffic accident.
