Balloting smooth, inspector declares

An election inspector who observed voting procedures in Deaf Smith County in the April 12 Democratic primary runoff election found nothing to complain about.

In a report to the Texas Secretary of State, chief elections officer in the state, the inspector described the voting precincts he visited. The report was forwarded to County Democratic Chairman Roddy Allred.

An employee in the Secretary of State's office, James Nino spent the day in Deaf Smith County, visiting six voting sites as well as the early ballot board.

At each precinct, Nino reported, election code requirements were met and no irregularities were observed or reported.

The visit by Nino was the second by a Secretary of State inspector for primary elections this spring.

Another inspector came to Deaf Smith County for the March 8 and reported no special problems in the election.

In each instance, the request for an inspector was made by Deaf Smith County citizens.

County Clerk David Ruland, who is the county's chief elections officer, voiced satisfaction with the report from the Secretary of State's office. "We're pleased that there were no problems," said Ruland.

Teen arrested for homicide in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - A 17-year-old who was on a weekend pass from a Nacogdoches halfway house for the mentally impaired says he shot a dentist to death in order to take her car for some joy-riding.

Anthony Jerome Dixon was arrested at the Nacogdoches facility early today in the slaying of Elizabeth Peavy, 34.

Witnesses said the killer simply walked up and shot the woman in the chest and face six times and took the car after dumping her body in the parking lot of a convenience store Sunday afternoon.

A capital-murder charge was filed against Dixon late Monday. Officers said members of Dixon's family cooperated with police in locating Dixon at the Lakewood Home in Nacogdoches, where Dixon had lived for 2 1/2 years.

Interest rate hike by Fed nets different reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) - Health officials say the appropriate use of three common allergy drugs should not be halted, despite Canadian research that found the antihistamine medications stimulated tumor growth in laboratory mice.

Food and Drug Administration officials said a Canadian study published today is being analyzed and that the agency would conduct research of its own.

But for now, said FDA scientist Dr. Joseph DeGeorge, the relevance to human health of the antihistamine study in mice "is yet to be proven."

Dr. Douglas L. Weed of the prevention division of the National Cancer Institute said that despite the Canadian conclusion, "we find no cause for alarm."

In the study, appearing in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, researchers at the Manitoba Institute of Cell Biology in Winnipeg reported that cancer tumors grew faster and larger in mice injected with loratadine, astemizole and hydroxyzine, three antihistamines.

Two other tested antihistamines, doxylamine and cetirizine, were not found to stimulate cancer tumor growth, said Dr. Lorne J. Brandes, principal author of the study.

Brandes said he would not encourage people to stop using antihistamines, because benefits to patients with severe allergy symptoms far outweigh the risks. But he said patients "should use them for as short a period as possible and only when really needed."

The antihistamines involved are sold worldwide, over the counter in some countries, and used by millions of patients suffering from allergies and hay fever. All are prescription drugs in the United States.

A statement from the FDA said no human clinical studies support the results of Brandes' research.

However, the FDA said it is trying to duplicate the results of Brandes' studies and may conduct epidemiological studies on patients with cancer.

In the Canadian research, Brandes and his associates injected cells for two types of cancer, melanoma and fibrosarcoma, into mice in a lab colony. The rodents were then divided into groups. One group was separated as a control and received placebo shots. Each of the other groups received daily shots of antihistamines.

At the end of 20 days, the mice were killed and their tumors removed and weighed.

In mice injected with loratadine, tumor weights were 150 percent to 390 percent larger than in the control mice. Tumor weights were up to 184 percent larger in mice on astemizole. Only melanoma cancer was stimulated in mice on hydroxyzine and tumors were 171 percent larger than in the control group.

Fourth-graders accused of making up sex claims

CHICAGO (AP) - When 11 fourth-graders accused their substitute teacher of molesting them, authorities were ready to believe them. Even the teacher agreed that children so young rarely lie about such things.

This time, they did lie - prodded, police say, by a classmate who offered them $1 apiece to accuse the teacher falsely.

"What's so scary - and so sad - is that you've got 9-year-old kids sophisticated enough to know they can get a teacher by saying he fondled them," Chicago Teachers Union spokeswoman Jackie Gallagher said.

Albert Thompson told police his class at Fuller Elementary School on Chicago's South Side became unruly during his May 9 assignment. He said some children ran out of the classroom, and he had to stand by the door to keep others inside.

When Thompson threatened to report their misbehavior, a 9-year-old girl offered to pay 10 classmates - nine girls and a boy - $1 each if they joined her in claiming that Thompson fondled them, police said.

Thompson, 43, never was charged.

Hospital board reorganized at Tuesday meet

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors underwent radical changes on Tuesday as three members joined the panel and a new slate of officers was elected.

Mal Manchee was elected chairman of the panel, succeeding John Perrin, who left the board.

Scott Turner turned down a nomination to run for chairman, but was elected vice chairman by acclamation when no other nominations were received.

Turner then turned to Manchee -- who had expressed reservations about taking the chairmanship of the panel -- and said, "Don't die on me," to which Manchee joked that he would simply resign.

The board then chose newcomer Larry Watts as secretary/treasurer. Watts, Dean Crofford and Steve Cortez were sworn in to their new posts by County Clerk David Ruland at the start of the session.

"I know there are some things that have to bring harmony and everything back to the hospital and we will do the best we can," Manchee said after assuming the chairman's seat.

He pledged the board will be "a democratically operated" panel, adding, "I do hope this will be a good year... we've got some problems we need to work through."

With a host of hospital details pressing them -- including establishing criteria for hiring a new chief executive officer, appointments to standing committees and a board orientation -- Manchee set two special meetings during the four-hour regular session.

Directors will meet on May 24 with Jim Wurtz, vice president for regional services with Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. That session will be for directors to plan what type person they want to seek for the top job, including education and experience qualifications.

A work session brought about by requests for committee appointments, the desire by directors to learn more about the hospital and other concerns was set for 6:30 p.m. on June 14, one week before the next regular meeting on June 21.

Finally, in his medical staff report, Dr. Nadir T. Khuri urged the board to begin holding meetings of a joint committee of the board and the staff.

The joint committee, he said, exists in the bylaws of both the hospital board and medical staff.

The board is represented by the executive committee -- Manchee, Turner and Watts -- while a medical staff committee is appointed to that body.

Khuri told board members that the medical staff would like some input on the selection of a new CEO, because "If the chief executive officer doesn't get along with the staff, we have an impasse, like we did before."

Manchee agreed, saying, "The staff needs a tremendously big part, and the board needs a tremendously big part" in the selection of a CEO. He also cited the need for help from Methodist Hospital officials in the work.

Khuri said he wanted "someone we can respect" more than "someone we like."

However, Manchee said, the ultimate decision on a CEO has to be made by the seven board members, although as much input as possible will be sought.

Manchee pledged to Khuri that the joint committee would schedule a meeting soon and would meet at least quarterly in regular sessions.

Changing the subject, Khuri called for board support of the Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation, which raises money for the hospital.

Manchee asked Khuri to make a report on the foundation at the June meeting, noting that the board does not know much about the foundation.

"It's very unfortunate that you do not know" about the foundation, said Khuri, pointing out that Perrin and former CEO Ron Rives represented the board on the foundation board.

"I think you've made your point," Manchee replied, adding that the board has had to support the foundation even though members did not know anything about it.

In other action Tuesday: -- Interim administrator Mike Maloy presented the operations report, noting that there were 154 patients admitted in April, with a total of 455 in-patient days for the month.

The average daily census was 152. Under surgical procedures, Maloy reported, there were 65 in April, including 26 same-day surgeries and four out-patient procedures, which he said is a growing trend hospitals.

In the EMS report, there were 117 total calls, with 88 people transported.

Maloy said collections in EMS are rising, with $39,734.46 billed in April and $31,749.43 collected.

Half-century melts away for ex-missionary, her 'girls'

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Hester Moore's "girls" were giggling Tuesday afternoon, probably much like they did 50-plus years ago when they first met the Methodist missionary in The Philippines.

And, with their laughter, the years and hardships each knew during World War II dropped away.

Four women who knew Mrs. Moore as a nursing teacher in 1942 got together to travel from California to Hereford to see their former mentor and share their memories.

Though Mrs. Moore laughingly calls them "my girls," each one is grandmother now.

Organizer of the trip to Hereford was Trinidad Huang, whose home is in Auburn, Wash. Now 73 years old, she has six children and 12 grandchildren.

Carlota DeGuzman also is 73 and lives in Fremont, Cal. The mother of five and grandmother of eight, she provided the car and was the driver for the trip from Los Angeles to Hereford.

Another classmate in the nursing school where Mrs. Moore taught is Nicolasa Aquino who lives in Cypress, Cal. She has four children and a grandchild.

Luz Uy was two years ahead of her traveling companions in the nursing school in Manila. Now 76, she has five children and seven grandchildren.

They attended the nursing school at Mary Johnston Hospital in Manila, where Mrs. Moore was a teacher and missionary of the Methodist Church.

The students and teacher were separated when the Japanese invaded The Philippines at the beginning of World War II. Mrs. Moore was held in Manila, then moved to a rural area in 1945. American troops rescued her and other Americans and Europeans in 1945.

Until their arrival in Hereford Tuesday, Carlota DeGuzman and Nicolasa Aquino had not seen Mrs. Moore since 1942. Luz Uy saw her in 1944.

The most recent visit was between Mrs. Moore and Trinidad Huang. They renewed their friendship in 1973 when Mrs. Moore and her husband, William Ian Moore, now deceased, went to The Philippines on a visit.

A special bond exists between Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Huang, one that both cherish.

"When Trinidad decided she wanted to be baptized in the Methodist Church, she asked me to be her godmother," said Mrs. Moore. The relationship has stayed with the two women to the present.

Talking about their former teacher, the Hereford visitors seemed to come to an apt description. They agreed, without exception, that she was a "kind teacher."

Carlota DeGuzman remembers Hester Moore for more than kindness, though.

"She kept me from dropping out of nursing," she explained. "Just two weeks before graduation, I was ready to quit. She talked to me and quoted I Corinthians 10:13.

"I graduated."

Nicolasa Aquino said Mrs. Moore, unlike some teachers, was "very approachable and friendly." Mrs. Aquino went into the Army Nurse Corps after finishing her training and then worked for a number of years for the Veterans Administration.

All four of the Filipino nurses moved to the United States because members of their families had come to this country.

Although the visitors could spend only a couple days in Hereford -- "We have to get back to our husbands," said one -- they were given the grand tour of the area.

Hosting their travels around Hereford were Shirley and Mildred Garrison.

The seed may have been sowed for the trip to see Mrs. Moore when the nurses went to Manila in 1992 to join in the celebration of the golden jubilee of the Mary Johnston Hospital nursing school, now the College of Nursing.

"They sent me a picture taken at the celebration so I could see what they all looked like," said Mrs. Moore.

And, that picture stood her in good stead when she learned they would come to see her this year.

"I hadn't seen them, but I could recognize them by the picture," she declared.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Moore took a special precaution.

"You'll notice I put name tags on them," she laughed.

But, Hester Moore didn't need the name tags. She remembered her "girls" very well.

Former students visit teacher

Hester Moore, left, was a nursing teacher-missionary in The Philippines when she met her "girls," who came to Hereford to visit her this week. From Mrs. Moore's left are Carlota DeGuzman, Trinidad Huang, Luz Uy and Nicolasa Aquina.

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip - Palestinian self-rule came to Gaza in an eruption of celebratory gunfire today as the last Israeli troops pulled out under cover of darkness, ending 27 years of occupation.

HANOI, Vietnam - A group of American veterans today handed over battlefield souvenirs to help Vietnamese families locate their own loved ones lost in the war. But the ceremony turned tense for a few moments when a senior Vietnamese military official accused the United States of war atrocities.

he said there were 1,368 total visits for the month.

Mary Ann Treviso briefed board members on business office operations, explaining how in-house collections are done and the procedure for collecting a hospital bill.

She said a notice is sent out within seven days after a patient is discharged that itemizes charges.

Then, 30 days later the first statement is mailed out, with subsequent mailings ever 15 days up to 75 days after discharge.

If the patient has not made financial arrangements by then, the account goes to hospital collectors. If no contact is made by the 135th day, the account is turned over to an outside collection agency or the hospital attorney.

Treviso told board members that 41 percent of the 11,000 open, active accounts at the hospital are self-paid collection accounts.

The business office has been in the new program for six weeks and has received several calls from unhappy customers. The procedures will be adjusted as needed in the future.

Maloy reported to directors that the hospital has 10 bank accounts at Hereford State Bank, all of which list Rives and Chief Financial Officer Paul Fowler as signatories.

Maloy said three of those -- payroll, operations and tax -- need to have that changed immediately so hospital operations can continue, since all checks require two signatures.

The board approved a resolution naming Maloy and Fowler as primary check signers, but named Manchec, Turner and Watts as backups, giving them the authority to sign checks in case one of the other two are unavailable.

Maloy said the whole procedure will have to be duplicated when a permanent administrator is named.

Directors voted 6-1 to approve an interlocal agreement with the city for the new aquatic center.

Cortez questioned binding the board to pay the city $40,000 in two installments next year, noting that "$40,000 seems an awful lot and if we're in such a financial bind, we ought to take care of business first."

JoBeth Shackelford defended the agreement, saying Fowler had explained the payment of bills the hospital incurs and rumors of unpaid accounts are untrue.

Having a pool, she said, will benefit many patients, including arthritics and cardiac rehabilitation patients.

The $40,000 next year -- which is part of a five-year, $100,000 pledge made by the hospital toward construction of the facility -- is reasonable, she said.

The payments are structured to be paid in two installments next year because no money was budgeted this year for the project.

Also, the agreement does not bind the board beyond the 1994-95 fiscal year, although there is a "gentlemen's agreement" that the hospital will pay $20,000 more per year for the next three years.

The interlocal agreement was passed on a 6-1 vote, with Crofford voting against it.

Space station defense being mounted

Orbiting laboratory called 'juicy' target for budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - As House appropriators cast an eye on NASA's budget, looking for possible cuts, the space agency's administrator is mounting a staunch defense of the space station.

The orbiting laboratory, which accounts for one-seventh of NASA's budget, offers a juicy target to lawmakers searching for ways to trim spending. Having squeaked through the House last year by a one-vote margin, the space station is particularly vulnerable this year.

Testifying Tuesday on Capitol Hill, NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin used the largely friendly forum to defend the $30 billion space station against congressional criticism.

Since the space station's brush with death last year, he noted, NASA has redesigned the station, selected a new prime contractor, signed a partnership with Russia and restructured the project's internal chain of command.

Goldin cautioned against cuts, saying any funding slowdown would swell the final price tag.

"If we cut the annual funding for the space station, the only thing that we could do is slip it out in time. Then when you slip the program out in time you then raise the cost," he told the House appropriations subcommittee that allocates NASA funds.

The panel has $72.9 billion to divvy up next year between the space agency and the other agencies that fall under its umbrella, including the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Subcommittee Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, noted that the $72.9 billion is almost $400 million less than the Clinton administration is seeking for the various agencies next year. The administration wants $14.2 billion for NASA, of which $2.1 billion would be for the space station.

"Unfortunately, the space station has not been designed to accommodate anything in the way of reductions," Stokes said. "It's either $2.1 billion or nothing."

Goldin told the subcommittee that the space station can't be built "for a penny less" than the annual $2.1 billion appropriation.

Asked by Stokes where NASA could take a $200 million hit, if required, Goldin replied: "I would feel very uncomfortable today just shooting from the hip answering the question."

While Goldin made it clear he wouldn't want to see any cuts in the space station and space shuttle programs, he asked Stokes if he could give the matter a few days consideration before answering.

To date, the United States has spent more than $11 billion on the project, while its foreign partners have kicked in $4 billion. NASA now estimates it needs another $17.4 billion to complete the project -- a budget Goldin pledged not to exceed.

Appropriations subcommittee member Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, predicted that while NASA's budget may take a nick, the panel will fully fund the space station.

"I really do think it's really too early to be gloomy," Chapman said after the hearing. "Of course, the wheels could come off in May. But at this point at least the weather is clear to do battle -- and do battle on a level playing field."

"And that's all we can ask," he said.

Beginning gardeners

Sixth grade science students at Bluebonnet Intermediate School have recently begun studying plants, earthworms and other garden-related subjects, which they are putting into practice in a flower bed in front of the school. Led by science teacher Sandra Saul, standing at right, the students recently cleaned out the bed, pruned bushes and planted flowers.

Presidential library gets bulk of estate

By JEFFREY GOLD, Associated Press Writer
HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - The late Richard Nixon left most of his estate to his presidential library in Yorba Linda, Calif.

The former president also gave $50,000 to each of his four grandchildren in the will, obtained today by The Associated Press. Three of the grandchildren also get amounts ranging from $10,000 to $70,000 to "equalize" past gifts.

Nixon, who died April 22 at 81, also left his personal diaries to his daughters, Julie Nixon Eisenhower and Patricia Nixon Cox. Had his daughters not survived him, Nixon instructed that the diaries should be destroyed.

The daughters also have first claim to certain personal items.

Nixon spent the last decade of his life living in northern New Jersey, having moved there with his wife, Pat, from his home state to be closer to their grandchildren.

The will was filed in Bergen County Surrogate's Court in Hackensack last week.

Kathleen O'Connor, head of Nixon's office in Park Ridge, said she did not have information about the estate's worth.

Mrs. Nixon died June 22. She left her estate to her husband and daughters. Nixon later declined his share of her estate.

Nixon signed his will Feb. 24. It gave no estimate of the worth of his estate. It mentions, however, that if his $1.2 million pledge to his library, made last year, is not completely paid yet, the balance should be paid first.

Gardening news, notes

Here are some gardening questions you may want to dig into:

1. What is the name of the small tree or shrub found on riverbanks that bears loose drooping clusters of white flowers?

2. What is the loose ring around the stem of a plant used for?

3. What's a fruit dot?

According to the National Gardening Association the answers are:

1. Fringe tree and it's found on riverbanks from Pennsylvania to Texas.

2. It's used to prevent cutworm damage and you'll see them a lot on tomato plants.

3. In botany they are the reproductive clusters of ferns.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know your views on guns and thought you might make use of the enclosed essay. I've named it "The Great American Delusion." No name, please, just--Des Moines

DEAR D.M.: Your message could save lives. A million thanks. Here 'tis: "The delusion persists that a gun is an effective method of self-defense. The fact is, a gun is often useless as a weapon of self-defense.

"Guns are the weapons of choice for criminals because there is no effective defense against the gun. The criminal combines distance and surprise, and bang, you're dead before you can reach that gun you kept handy for self-defense.

"Your fantasy is that when someone threatens harm, you will grab your gun and shoot him. Sorry, it almost never happens that way. The reason it makes the news when an intruder DOES get killed is because it occurs so rarely.

"If possession of guns by law-abiding citizens prevented crime, we would be a crime-free country. So many law-abiding citizens have guns that a criminal should be afraid to enter a home or a business for fear of being shot. But why are they not afraid? Criminals know your gun is no threat. Remember, distance and surprise. Bang, you're dead. You never had a chance to reach that gun.

"Your other fantasy is, if only someone had had a gun when that gunman shot those people in the train, or the school, or the food place! Wrong again. He got his shots off before anyone could react. Remember--distance and surprise. I will guarantee someone close DID have a gun. But the gunman fired and was gone before he or she could get it out of the pocket, the purse, the glove compartment of the drawer.

"All you pro-gun people who insist there should be no restrictions on the sale, possession or ownership of guns and bullets are guilty of enabling criminals to arm themselves. You have put so many guns into the hands of criminals that there is now no hope of reclaiming our country from gun-toting criminals. And not just ordinary guns. You have insisted that criminals have full access to the most deadly handguns and automatics. Arming criminals? You did it. Thanks a lot. The only solution is to stop the sale of guns and bullets."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I like your idea of encouraging people to do acts of kindness.

Last year, I learned of a good way to reduce stress. After an upsetting confrontation with a rude sales clerk, I got in my car to go to the bank. I was so angry I couldn't see straight.

On my way, I passed a donut shop and impulsively stopped. I bought a dozen donuts, took them to the bank and gave them to the tellers for their coffee break. My anger was immediately dispelled, and I felt good the rest of the day.

That was the first time I performed a random act of kindness and have since made it a habit. When I get upset or angry, I change my mood by doing something thoughtful, generous and totally unexpected. The results are magical.--Miss X

DEAR X: Beautiful. I hope it's contagious.

Love That Glove

NEW YORK (AP) - A baseball glove is for catching the ball but pitcher Terry Mullholland found another use for it.

As detailed in Richard Goldstein's book, "You Be The Umpire," in a 1986 game at Shea Stadium, New York, Mullholland was pitching for San Francisco against the Mets.

Batter Keith Hernandez of the Mets hit a bouncer back to the mound. Mullholland gloved it and turned to throw to first. But he couldn't get the ball out of the glove. He ran toward first and finally threw the glove, ball and all, to first baseman Bob Brenley.

Hernandez was out on a close play.

Rockets blow out Suns; Nuggets, Hawks survive

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The Denver Nuggets stayed alive in a heart-stopper.

The Atlanta Hawks stayed alive with some breathing room.

The Phoenix Suns needed to be checked for a pulse.

In three distinctly different Game 5s on Tuesday night, three teams came away with 3-2 leads.

Two of the teams - Utah and Indiana - missed chances to close out their series. Houston, meanwhile, continued its comeback from a 2-0 deficit.

The Nuggets beat the Jazz 109-101 in double overtime, the Hawks beat the Pacers 88-76 and the Rockets crushed the Suns 109-86.

Denver's victory was the most exciting.

Both teams had chances to win before it reached double overtime.

John Stockton barely missed an off-balance 10-footer from the corner at the end of regulation, and Robert Pack clanged a 3-point attempt at the end of the first overtime.

That sent it into a second extra period, and Denver ran off the first seven points to silence the crowd at the Delta Center. Brian Williams scored the first two points on a dunk off a pass from Pack.

"We knew we had the momentum with us," Williams said.

Utah got within four, 103-99, on

Big 12 coaches, ADs recommend two divisions

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - There's going to be a lot of yearning for the good old days before sports fans get the Big 12 sorted out.

As proposed Tuesday by football coaches and athletic directors, the new league will split into North and South Divisions - but only for football and basketball. And maybe baseball. All other sports will compete as one big conference.

Football will have two champions, basketball one. In basketball, each school will meet the others at least once a year. But some Big 12 football teams could go two full seasons without slapping leather.

Oklahoma and Nebraska, one of college football's premier rivalries, may no longer play every year. Then again they may - but not always as a conference game.

Squeezing 12 teams into one season is not like fitting eight.

"We've elevated this whole group of schools to a new level," Colorado athletic director Bill Marolt said on Tuesday, a truly historic day for the 12 institutions. "I think in order to tell our story and to promote and market, we have to have a certain level of consistency."

Everything announced Tuesday is nothing more than recommendations from coaches and athletic directors who were concluding three days of meetings, and must be approved by school presidents.

But it seems nearly certain that Oklahoma and Oklahoma State will join Southwest Conference refugees Texas, Baylor, Texas Tech and Texas A&M in the South Division.

This would leave a North Division composed of the other six members of what will soon be known as the former Big Eight - Nebraska, Iowa State, Missouri, Colorado, Kansas and Kansas State.

As proposed, there will be two more football and basketball seasons before the Big 12 gets going in all sports in the 1996-97 academic year.

Then, in every football season, schools would play every team in their division plus three schools in the other division, a 5-3 ratio that will add one conference game to what Big Eight and SWC schools have been used to. Schools would play the other division teams twice every four years, but not necessarily in successive seasons.

Basketball would have a double round-robin format within divisions and single games each year between non-division foes - 16 conference games, all of which would count toward the championship.

All other sports except possibly baseball would play straight conference schedules.

Baseball will be dealt with later.

The 5-3 football format presents a problem because it leaves less room for non-conference schedule maneuvers. Many had expected a 5-2 arrangement.

"The feeling was it would be important for a competition rotation to take place in the briefest period of time," said Bob Bockrath, Texas Tech athletic director.

"It doesn't mean we're going to play home-and-home in consecutive years," Marolt said. "We're looking at a mix where you might play home one year, but return that game in two years. That way we can offer the greatest exposure and address the question of the big rivalries, and maximize opportunities for television."

Before deciding on a conference playoff, the Big 12 wants to see what develops in the coming months with the bowl coalition and the NCAA's possible vote on a national playoff.

Oklahoma State coach Pat Jones said most coaches would prefer not to have a playoff if they could be assured of keeping two New Year's Day bowls. The Big Eight has had the Orange and the SWC the Cotton.

"There seems to be ... signals being sent that there's a possibility that we could secure six bowls," Jones said. "A lot of that depends on whether ultimately there's a (NCAA) playoff, as well as coalition issues. But it seems that it could happen."

Also tabled for further discussion were such issues as revenue sharing, governance and the site and structure of the men's and women's basketball tournaments.

"We've done an enormous amount this morning," said Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds. "It took a lot of conversation before this morning before we could have these votes. We talked football, we talked basketball, we talked structure, we talked divisions, we talked games."

The north-south structure would not necessarily disrupt such high-dollar football rivalries as Oklahoma-Nebraska. It may be possible for schools to schedule each other every year but not count each time as a conference game.

"We're going to ask coaches' groups and everybody else for feedback," Dodds said. "We're putting this structure out there and saying, 'Is this all right? How can we improve it? This is where we are. You look at it and tell us where you are.'"

Motta returns as Mavericks' coach

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Dick Motta, once again the head coach of the Dallas Mavericks, insists that, at 62, the NBA game hasn't passed him by.

"I wouldn't attempt something like this if I weren't fully confident I could do it with every fiber of my being," Motta said Tuesday after owner Don Carter introduced him at a news conference as the new coach.

"I work out every day. I see with young eyes. I know that I have the energy. That's not a problem. I think the building blocks are definitely in place and it can't go much lower. Three of the four teams that I've had have been at the bottom, and it's fun to watch them develop."

Motta succeeds Quinn Buckner, who was fired on May 3 after a 13-69 record in his only season.

In a record 22 seasons as an NBA head coach, Motta won 856 regular-season games, losing 863. He has lost more games than any NBA coach and is fourth on the career victory list. He led the Washington Bullets to the NBA title in 1978.

His record in seven seasons with the Mavericks was 267-307.

Carter also elevated scouting director Keith Grant to director of player personnel. Grant will assume duties previously held by Rick Sund, whom Carter fired last month as vice president and director of basketball operations.

Motta mended his relationship with Carter after abruptly leaving the team in 1987. Carter brought him aboard as an unpaid consultant last season, and after firing Buckner, Carter asked Motta and Grant to compile a list of possible successors.

As he worked on the list, aware that Carter had given him the OK to put his own name on the list, his competitive juices began flowing again, Motta said.

"I looked at the team and got excited about some of the talent, disappointed at some of the development, and it had to play in my mind, 'What if ... what if?'"

"I wanted to coach again. I felt revitalized. My interest came back. I've been doing this for 40 years, and the instincts are still there," Motta said.

In Motta's first season, he took a ragtag assortment of castoffs from other NBA teams and coached them to a 15-67 record.

The Mavericks then improved their record each season for the next four years, going from 28-54 to 43-39 in 1983-84.

The Mavericks were 55-27 in Motta's last season, 1986-87, winning the Midwest Division for the first time.

Motta walked away without explanation in '87, but now says he wishes he hadn't left.

"If I had a crystal ball, if I'd known things would happen like they did, I'd never have left."

Motta said he took the job with no illusions.

"I know what needs to be done and I'm confident this is the right decision," he said. "I looked at this team, and I wanted to coach. There aren't many people who get a second chance to do something they probably should have done better the first time."

Motta said he'd like to end his NBA career on a better note. He came back into the league in 1990 with Sacramento, but never could get the Kings on track. After a 25-57 record his first season, Motta was fired on Christmas Eve 1991 after a 7-18 start.

John MacLeod succeeded Motta in Dallas in 1987 and led the Mavericks to a 53-29 record. Dallas advanced to the Western Conference finals for the first time, losing to the Lakers in seven games after ousting Houston and Denver.

The Mavericks have nosedived since. Dallas had the NBA's worst record the last two seasons, with a combined 24 victories.

But Motta said prospects appear better now than in the Mavericks' second season, after first-round picks Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman joined the club.

The Mavericks have the best chance for the No. 1 pick in Sunday's draft lottery and can pick no worse than fourth, and they also have the No. 19 pick, acquired from Golden State.

He said those two picks, added to Jamal Mashburn and Jimmy Jackson, the No. 1 picks from the last two seasons, and Roy Tarpley - expected to rejoin the club next season after banishment for drug usage - should make for an exciting nucleus, Motta said.

"I didn't have a bad experience with Tarpley. I had him his rookie year ... and he's great. He's a player," Motta said.

"If you're going to hide your head in the sand and say he hasn't had problems, you're not being realistic. But Tarpley and I never had any problems. He followed the rules, wasn't late to practices. He played a lot on a team that won 55 games."

NBA

Tyrone Corbin's 3-pointer with 52 seconds left, but Jazz players forced their next two shots. Denver made its free throws in the final seconds to close it out.

It was Denver's fifth straight victory in a win-or-go-home situation. The Nuggets trailed Seattle 2-0 in their opening round of the playoffs, then won the next three.

They trailed Utah 3-0 in this series before winning two straight.

"They have a lot of character and they have a lot of heart - they don't know when they're beat," Denver coach Dan Issel said.

Bryant Stith and Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf scored 22 points each for Denver. Pack and Williams added 19 apiece.

Karl Malone had 22 points for Utah, but the Jazz couldn't find another offensive weapon after he fouled out midway through the first overtime.

Game 6 is Thursday at Denver. Game 7, if necessary, would be Saturday at Salt Lake City.

Rockets 109, Suns 86

At Houston, it was over shortly after it started.

The Rockets had a pair of early 9-0 spurts, the second of which gave them a 27-13 lead in the first quarter. They opened the second period with a 10-1 run en route to a 58-37 halftime lead.

By the time the fourth period was three minutes old, the lead was up to 32.

"That wasn't our team out there tonight," Phoenix coach Paul Westphal said. "That's one of the worst games we've played all season and we know we have to play better and we're going to do it."

It was the first victory for a home team in the series.

"It may have been a blessing in disguise when we lost the first two games," Hakeem Olajuwon said. "We forced ourselves to come back together as a team."

Olajuwon and Otis Thorpe each scored 20 points and Kenny Smith had 16 for Houston. Charles Barkley had 30 for Phoenix, but Kevin Johnson was held to 10 points after scoring 38 in both Game 3 and Game 4.

Game 6 is Thursday at Phoenix, and a victory by Houston would make the Rockets only the second team in NBA history to win a best-of-7 series after losing the first two games at home.

Hawks 88, Pacers 76

At Atlanta, the Hawks shut down the Pacers with the kind of intense defensive effort they were missing in Games 3 and 4.

The Pacers shot only 35 percent from the field and were scoreless in the final 2:39 as they failed to get the ball into Reggie Miller's hands. Haywoode Workman ended up 0-for-8 from the field and Byron Scott was 2-for-11.

Atlanta's Mookie Blaylock turned in his second triple-double of the series with 14 points, 13 assists and 10 rebounds. He also had four steals and a blocked shot.

Craig Ehlo came off the bench to score 22 points and Danny Manning added 20 for the Hawks, who pulled away late in the fourth quarter.

"We pressured people tonight," Blaylock said. "The Pacers had to work for their shots. We kept our hands in their faces."

"It was a tremendous win for us," Hawks coach Lenny Wilkens said. "A lot of people haven't given us much of a chance all year, but we're a team that if you want to call us overachievers, that's fine, but we always play hard. I thought the guys came out very determined tonight."

Game 6 is Thursday at Indianapolis.

Football legend Bronko Nagurski once played five positions in one game, end, tackle, guard, fullback and halfback.

Students will be performing solos and duets from the Hereford Junior Music Festival, U.I.L. Contest, Greater Southwest Music Festival and other repertoire learned throughout the year. Family and friends are encouraged to attend.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Add retired Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf to the list of people criticizing Oliver North's candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

"At this time in our nation, I think we need more integrity and more ethics in our government," the Desert Storm commander told the Richmond Times-Dispatch in an interview published Saturday.

North is seeking the Republican nomination for the Virginia seat held by Democrat Charles S. Robb. The retired Marine lieutenant colonel was convicted of three felonies in connection with the Iran-Contra scandal, but the convictions were overturned.

Former President Reagan and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Colin L. Powell, also have criticized North.

Schwarzkopf said North defied a congressional investigation of the Iran-Contra affair. "But the facts came out that he did, indeed, lie, and that disturbed me."

Schwarzkopf said he was not endorsing North's Republican rival, James C. Miller III. He said, though, that he was speaking out at the urging of friends backing Miller.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.28	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.46	9.60
5 days per word	.55	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are 4.25 per column inch, 3.05 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS
 Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.

Diamond buying hints

If the weather has you warming up to romance, you may consider buying that memorable symbol of affection: a diamond.

The American Diamond Industry Association (ADIA) offers these tips:
-Buy from an established jeweler, one who has the experience and expertise to guide you in evaluating some of the factors listed below. However, the most important factors should be your own personal tastes and aesthetic judgements.

-Note the diamond's color. Diamonds come in different shades. In general, the more colorless they are, the more valuable. However, some diamonds do have highly distinct colors--canary, pink, red, green and blue. These are extremely rare, and can also be quite valuable.

-Look at any imperfections, such as spots, bubbles or lines. Diamonds without such "inclusions" are rare, so the fewer the imperfections, the more valuable the diamond.

-The cut of a diamond--its "brilliance," "fire," "life" or whatever you may call the light it reflects into the viewer's eye--is another factor to keep in mind. A stone that is more brilliant may be more desirable.

-Your jeweller can help when you're ready to buy. It's a good idea for the bill of sale to include the number of diamonds.

The reddish-brown color known as umber is so-called from Umbria, Italy, where the mineral from which the pigment is ground was first found.

AXYDLBAAXR IS LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

BOSTON (AP) - After jamming with students, Sting picked up an honorary degree and delivered a commencement speech at the Berklee College of Music.

"Whether you make a million dollars or not one cent, music is a priceless gift," Sting said Sunday. "Music is a religious decision," he said. "There is no cure, no antidote; it is an addiction."

Sting, who got his name from wearing a bee-like striped sweater one night at an English pub, never earned a diploma though he attended college briefly.

He was lead singer for The Police before going solo. The 12-time Grammy Award winner played music with students during a commencement eve concert.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Here are some more great singles hints from Mary B. Kahabka of Seneca Falls, N.Y.

• Use your public library; you won't need subscriptions for magazines or books.

• Do all shopping errands in one trip to save energy, gasoline, time and your car.

• Investigate thrift shops. They are full of nearly-new items.

• Clean and close off unused rooms, especially in the winter.

• If available, hang your laundry out in the fresh air and sunshine and give your dryer a rest. Saves electricity too!

Our thanks to all the readers who took time to write in their favorite singles hints to be included in my book "Household Hints for Singles." Keep an eye out for more. —Heloise

OIL STAINS

Dear Heloise: I have a very simple and plain hint for almost everyone. To remove any oil or grease (food type) stain, simply sprinkle good old baby powder on the stain immediately. The talc lifts oil off the fabric after being brushed away with a clothes brush.

-I know many people who will not take my advice and wind up throwing garments away because of unsightly grease stains. — Mrs. Catherine Ferrara, Highland Lakes, N.J.

Yup, this usually works, especially on fresh stains. Thanks for your letter. I have compiled a pamphlet on quick stain-removal hints for clothing. To receive a copy, please send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to: HeloiseClothing, PO Box 7856001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 7856000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE.

Hutchison releases tax return showing $644,000 income in '93

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and her husband paid taxes on almost $644,000 in income last year, her 1993 tax returns show.

The Republican, who faces re-election in November, on Tuesday released her 1992 and 1993 taxes as well as a financial disclosure statement that all members of Congress must complete annually.

While the disclosure forms are public record, there is no requirement that lawmakers release their tax returns.

Mrs. Hutchison, who has made public her tax returns since 1988, said she was disclosing the information in part because she believes full disclosure is a prerequisite to political reform.

And, she added, "At a time when Americans are disillusioned about the way public policy is conducted, I believe it's important that those who seek the public's trust are as forthright as possible about their sources of income and their personal finances."

Republicans seized the opportunity to call on Mrs. Hutchison's rival, Democrat Richard Fisher, to release his own tax returns.

"The Republicans have set a high standard of disclosure," said GOP chairman Fred Meyer. "Now let the sun shine on Richard Fisher's tax returns so the people of Texas know where Richard Fisher got the money to buy his way to the Democrat nomination for U.S. Senate."

Texas Democratic Party spokesman Joe Cutbirth said the GOP criticism marks the continuation of a pattern seen in previous Hutchison campaigns.

"She has spent two decades letting others smear her opponent while she claimed to run a positive campaign," he said.

Hutchison's staff did alert the state Republican Party last week that she would disclose her tax returns this week.

Fisher spokesman Martin Johnson said the candidate isn't planning on making public his tax returns. Asked whether the public has a right to know where the Dallas financier derives his income, Johnson said, "It's all pretty well spelled out in the Senate ethics report that is public record, all his investments and that sort of thing."

Fisher has filed for an extension for the Senate disclosure form that was due Monday. "We'll release it as soon as it's finished," Johnson said. An earlier filing shows Fisher was worth a minimum of $9.5 million.

On her disclosure form Mrs. Hutchison reported individual assets worth between $634,881 and $1.5 million. Lawmakers aren't required to list their personal residences, furnishings, personal belongings and automobiles.

Her holdings include at least $208,000 in stocks, bonds, money market funds and bank accounts. She also has at least $60,000 in real estate and an aircraft rental trust valued between $50,000 and $100,000.

Listed among her assets is $292,727 in the legal defense fund established to defray the expenses incurred during her prosecution last year on criminal ethics charges.

The most recent defense fund report filed with the Secretary of the Senate shows that she spent more than $900,000 on her successful defense. She was acquitted in February after prosecutors refused to present their case, citing a pretrial ruling that could have kept evidence out of the trial.

The 1993 tax return Mrs. Hutchison filed jointly with husband Ray, a Dallas bond lawyer, shows the couple had adjusted gross income of $643,842 last year and paid $211,942 in taxes. The Hutchisons overpaid their taxes by $17,952, which will be applied to their taxes this year.

Mrs. Hutchison, who was sworn in as senator last June, earned $73,109 for her six months as U.S. senator and $38,180 for her earlier six months as state treasurer. Ray Hutchison reported $454,997 in wages from his law firm, Hutchison, Boyle & Brooks.

The Hutchisons made $800 in gifts to charity in 1993.

The state's senior senator, Republican Phil Gramm, doesn't intend to release his financial disclosure form in advance of its public release on June 14 or make public his tax returns, said press secretary Larry Neal.

Police, Sheriff Reports

Wednesday's law enforcement activity reports contained the following arrests and incident reports:

- HEREFORD POLICE
- Five incidents of criminal mischief, ranging from writing graffiti to smashing windows, occurred in the 300 block of Adelito Calle, the 300 block of North 25 Mile Avenue, the 200 block of Avenue C, the 300 block of North Main, and the 400 block of North 25 Mile Avenue.
 - Two domestic disturbances were reported in the 600 block of Avenue J and the 600 block of Irving Street.
 - Police investigated three reported thefts in the 400 block of Avenue B, the 1300 block of East 1st Street, and the 700 block of La Plata Drive.
 - An assault was reported in the 400 block of Sycamore Lane.
 - A case of disorderly conduct was reported in the 400 block of Barrett Street.
 - An assault and criminal trespass occurred in the 300 block of Avenue D.
 - Criminal trespass was reported in the 200 block of Avenue C.
 - A domestic assault occurred in the 200 block of East 6th Street.
 - A 34-year-old male was arrested for suspicion of parole violation.
 - A minor accident without injuries was investigated.
 - Officers issued 12 traffic violations.

DEAF SMITH SHERIFF

- Deputies are investigating the theft of furniture from a farm. The former tenants allegedly stole three beds, bedspreads, a recliner, washer, and vacuum cleaner.
- A 30-year-old male was arrested for violating his probation for driving while intoxicated.

What a babe?

West Central Intermediate School students on Tuesday were treated to an appearance by "Georgette" Ochs when principal George Ochs had to pay up a challenge to students by dressing as a woman. The "Reading Makes Good Cents" assembly culminated a semester challenge in which students read more than 4,000 books -- well above the 3,600 book goal. This is the second year Ochs has dressed up after students read their way through the semester.

47 percent from $48 billion to more than $70 billion," Bashur said. "And the governor does not mention a $2.7 billion tax increase she signed into law in 1991."

Ad Proposal Draws Fire

An Austin advertising firm's proposal for a $2.2 million campaign to present Texas public schools and the Texas Education Agency in a more positive light has been tabled by the State Board of Education.

The SBOE paid $3,000 for the proposal, but froze short of accepting terms of the costly campaign.

The proposal came on the heels of a fierce clubbing by Bush, who said the TEA should be abolished. The Bush campaign has been using the TEA and public schools as negative examples of the shortfalls of big bureaucracy, which is run by the incumbent administration of Gov. Richards.

Bonner & Tate, the advertising firm that made the proposal, suggesting the words "public" and "agency" from public relations efforts to avoid conveying the idea of big bureaucracy.

The Bush campaign has also made efforts to tie the proposal to Richards, pointing out that Bonner & Tate once was co-owned by Richards campaign staffer Cathy Bonner.

The advertising campaign was meant to be a public relations boost for Richards, said Bush campaign spokeswoman Deborah Burston-Wade. "It is bureaucracy gone berserk in political support of Gov. Richards."

But Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for the Richards campaign, said that tying the ad campaign to Richards was only a scandal created by her opponents.

Teachers: Pay Hike Too Low

A proposal to raise the minimum pay for state public school teachers is inadequate, even though some legislators balked at the idea of hiking the salary minimum, saying it would cost the state about $4 million.

State Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno's proposal to increase the minimum pay scale for teachers by 5 percent was met with disdain by teacher unions including the Texas Association of School Boards, Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Federation of Teachers, and Texas Association of School Administrators.

Meno's proposal would raise the annual minimum salary for a starting teacher to $17,850 and add two levels to the present 10-level pay scale.

Meno said he expects to make final legislative recommendations in June.

Lawyers Shirk Tax

The Texas Comptroller estimates that 11.7 percent of the lawyers in the state have not been paying a $200-a-year occupation tax. That's 4,600 of the 39,000 lawyers in the state.

Since 1992, when the Legislature imposed the tax on 11 professions, the loss of revenue due to non-payment has totaled $1.3 million.

If they don't pay, those employed in the 11 professions, including lawyers, risk losing their licenses to practice. But the only body with the power to revoke lawyers' licenses is the State Bar of Texas, not the state comptroller's office.

However, if a taxpayer delinquent amount exceeds $500, the comptroller can pursue collection. Because the statute is only two years old, shirkers have only $400 to pay. In 1995, shirkers beware.

Other Highlights

■ The Austin city council's program to provide health insurance benefits for the unmarried domestic partners of city employees ended May 9 after voters repealed the policy. Returns showed 62 percent favoring repeal of the program, while 38 percent voted to preserve it.

■ The top vote-getter in a Houston school board race offered to decide his runoff with the toss of a coin. Michael Reyes, who would face runnerup Esther Campos, said the district would save $50,000. But the Texas secretary of state's office does not recognize the legality of a coin toss in an election.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - James Garner's happy he jumped the fence on "Maverick."

Garner played the wisecracking card shark on the ABC-TV series more than 30 years ago.

In Richard Donner's new movie version, he plays lawman Zane Cooper to Mel Gibson's Bret Maverick.

"It's wonderful to see Mel play it. He has such charm and wit," Garner said in Sunday's Los Angeles Times. "He's much funnier than I was."

The comedy, scheduled to open Friday, also stars Jodie Foster.

Shopping? Bring Along a Bag

American shoppers use billions of bags annually. But, if we all use just one less a month, we'll cut that use by hundreds of millions a year. That adds up to a BIG BONUS, because one 20-year old tree makes only 700 or so brown grocery bags. If your purchase is small, think twice about taking a bag. Or, bring a bag from home to use one more time before it's recycled. Washable canvas shopping bags are inexpensive and last for years.

Sign of the Times

Concerned manufacturers and retailers now label products and shelves to help consumers choose products that are GOOD for the environment. Look for symbols or copy advising which boxes and bags are made from "recycled" paper. Other packages may say "recyclable". These use new raw materials, but at least they are suitable for recycling. So-called "biodegradable" plastics never really break down to more than smaller plastic bits under the ideal conditions. Other bags and bottles may use plastics reclaimed through recycling, consuming no new petroleum products.
