Moo-ving classroom

Wayne Setzler, a Dairy Classroom operator with the Southwest Dairy Center in Sulphur Springs, shows off Zeldia the milk cow to a group of students at St. Anthony's School on Wednesday. Setzler has been in Hereford this week with his portable classroom, showing students at schools here how milk is produced and how a cow is milked. He said he wants students to know what they are drinking every time they open a milk carton at lunch. The classroom is one of five operated by the center, which is owned by the Southwest Dairy Farmers.

HISD program meets most requirements

From Brand, AP Reports
The Hereford Independent School District is in "substantial compliance" with federal and state laws governing the education of school-age residents of nursing homes.

The Associated Press on Wednesday reported that, of 58 school districts in Texas that deal with these children, only 22 were found in full compliance with the laws.

However, the only problems found with the profoundly disabled program here are minor, said Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt and do not reflect on the operation of the program itself.

"They felt like we needed to provide more information to adult social service agencies," he said, and the Texas Education Agency -- which conducted the survey -- recommended that one high school-age student in the program -- which is based at Shirley Intermediate School -- be moved to Hereford High School.

Greenawalt said TEA prefers students to be located on the school campus of students their age.

Currently, all of the district's 10 profoundly handicapped students -- which includes those with both physical and mental disabilities -- are housed in a large portable building on the Shirley campus. The building is set up specifically for the program and has two large rooms and its own restroom facilities.

There are three or four high school-age students in the unit.

Greenawalt said the district tried to emphasize that the special unit is located adjacent to the high school on the same piece of district property, but that the state education agency wants the student in the actual high school building.

He said officials will study the situation between now and the start of the 1994-95 school year, but that "I'm not convinced it's in the best interests of the kids" and that the high school is already overcrowded and it would be difficult to find additional classroom space there.

"If we end up doing that, we'll move all the high school severely handicapped students over there," he said, not just one individual.

Greenawalt emphasized that the two criticisms from TEA were not related to how the program works.

On the state level, the AP reported, the survey said that 17 of the 261 children found in Texas nursing homes were not being served by their local districts, despite a federal law that guarantees access to education for disabled children.

Among the most frequent problems found in the TEA report on the status of compliance with special education requirements were failure to provide parents with timely word of their general rights, and failure to provide students with adequate evaluations of their educational needs.

The districts were unaware of the children, according to the report prepared for the Senate Committee on Health and Human Services.

Committee Chairwoman Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo, told the Austin American-Statesman on Monday that the number of unserved children is "absolutely outrageous."

The Texas Education Agency had refused to identify the districts that fell short of meeting the standards, but Ms. Zaffirini released a list of the districts.

Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, a committee member, had said he was concerned "with the failure to give us the pertinent data of who is in compliance and who is not."

"This is the public's business. It concerns the children of this state. It concerns the education system of this state, and the public is footing the bill for that system and they are entitled to know," he said.

Classes for youngsters with severe disabilities may involve sensory stimulation to help them respond to their environment and keep their muscles from withering. Instead of learning to read or add, they may learn to signal their needs to an attendant.

The Senate committee approved reforms in January after the American-Statesman reported that young people in nursing homes were not having their needs met and the state was not keeping track of such children.

The report found that 22 of the 58 local education agencies, or 38 percent, fully complied with 38 requirements, which involve administrative and student assessment procedures and individual educational planning.

Nine of the agencies substantially complied, or 16 percent, meaning they failed to meet four or fewer of the 38 items.

Another 19 local education agencies, or 33 percent, were in moderate compliance.

Eight local education agencies, or 13 percent, had extensive compliance problems, meaning failure to meet at least nine of the requirements.

Man arrested in stabbing incident

BY RICK LANNING

A Hereford man was being held in Deaf Smith County Jail Thursday in lieu of $100,000 bond for attempted murder after allegedly slashing a woman with a knife.

A police report said the suspect, 27-year-old Danny Castillo, taunted officers to shoot him when they stopped him in the 400 block of Avenue B after the incident.

Castillo's former girl friend, Noami Garcia, 21, suffered a six-inch gash on her face that went to the jaw bone, as well as minor cuts to her throat, the report said.

According to Police Chief David Wagner, Castillo went to the victim's apartment in the 600 block of Irving around 7:20 a.m. Wednesday.

Wagner said Castillo argued with the woman and then attacked her with a boning knife.

"She was nursing a 10-month-old baby when she was attacked,"

Wagner added. "When my officers got to the scene, they found the baby covered with blood. They thought the child had been cut."

Police washed off the baby and discovered that the infant had not been injured, said Wagner.

Police, Deaf Smith County Sheriff's deputies and Texas Highway Patrol officers took part in the search for the suspect.

When they found Castillo a short time later, he allegedly told the officers to "come and get me."

As Wagner and another Hereford officer closed in on Castillo with guns drawn, the suspect reportedly shouted they would have to shoot him and that he would not surrender.

Wagner praised his officers for their restraint and added, "They did a marvelous job." He said Castillo came "very close" to being shot.

The police report stated the officers did not know if the suspect was armed even though they couldn't see a weapon.

Castillo finally surrendered and allowed himself to be arrested after a Hereford officer released the safety on his weapon, according to the report.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine arraigned Castillo on charges of attempted murder and set his bond at $100,000.

Garcia was taken to the emergency room at Hereford Regional Medical Center and treated for her wounds. She later was driven by private automobile to Saint Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo for further treatment, the police report stated.

Investigators recovered the knife used in the attack and are holding it as evidence.

Some damage to wheat noted from cold weather

Recent freezing temperatures in Deaf Smith County caused "some damage to wheat, but not as much as we had expected," said Paul Gross, Texas Agriculture Extension Service district director of agriculture for the Panhandle area.

Gross said he has noticed some wheat damage but attributed it to an earlier freeze.

"The latest one hasn't seemed to have hurt the farmers very much because of the moisture," said Gross. "I went around the county and haven't been able to find a lot of damage."

"We'll get a better feel for it in the next few days when the wheat heads out. Right now the damage is spotty and doesn't seem to be very extensive."

Brent Dean, extension agronomist with TAES, said a freeze three weeks ago caused "significant damage" to Randall, Armstrong, and parts of Deaf Smith County.

He added, "We got cold enough last week to affect the wheat, but there was enough moisture associated with it that tended to insulate the wheat heads from damage."

American teen caned

SINGAPORE (AP) - American teen-ager Michael Fay suffered four lashes with a rattan cane across his bare buttocks today for vandalism, climaxing a case that provoked an international debate on crime and punishment.

The Prisons Department said he and nine other prisoners were flogged at Queenstown Prison, where the 18-year-old high school senior completed his fifth week of a four-month prison term for spray-painting cars and other acts.

"The remitted sentence of four strokes was carried out on Michael Fay. He was examined by the prison's doctor after the caning and found to be in satisfactory condition," a brief statement said.

No other details were given, and no official comment was expected from the government.

HJH students get day-long discrimination experience

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The yellow ribbons pinned across the left shoulder told the story for numerous Hereford Junior High School students on Wednesday -- they were Outcast.

In a day-long lesson in what it would be like to live in a totalitarian society that discriminates against elements of its population that are different, an estimated 200 English students at HJH assumed rolls of Outcast, Chosen and HJH Patrol.

The session was designed by English teachers who are teaching "The Diary of Ann Frank," the World War II story of a girl who lived in hiding from the Nazis.

While the teachers wanted the project to be realistic, Myrna Buckley said great care was taken not to aggravate any racial prejudices that may already exist at the school.

The 200 students in the eighth grade English classes and seventh grade PACE program on Tuesday participated in a random draw for their roles on Wednesday.

As a result, Mrs. Buckley said, the various groups cut across racial and religious lines.

Names for the groups were chosen, Mrs. Buckley said, to avoid any reference to Nazi Germany, Bosnia or Rwanda, the two current examples of national discrimination of an ethnic group.

The purpose of the lesson was to show the students what life might be like if they lived in such a society.

The students were given their ribbons Tuesday and instructed to wear them all day Wednesday or face being captured by the "HJH Patrol."

HJH Patrol members were vigilant through the day, making notes of "Outcasts" who went into restricted areas or talked to the wrong people, or of "Chosen" students who talked to "Outcast."

Signs posted around the school warned "Chosen" students to avoid all contact with the Outcast and signs on lockers told the public that an "Outcast lives here."

Students who were good friends, but who wore different-colored ribbons, were not allowed to talk, and boyfriend/girlfriend pairs who were of different groups were separated.

Mrs. Buckley said parents were alerted ahead of time about the lesson, noting that "I knew I might have concerns" about a child participating in the lesson.

Because it was an English class project, teachers of other classes were not obligated to participate. However, she said, most instructors in other subject areas joined in the lesson, setting aside segregated seating areas for "Outcast" students and enforcing the prohibition on contact between the groups.

The cafeteria was segregated as well and the hall in front of the library was off-limits to "Outcast."

English teacher Joanne Bone said she emphasized to her classes that this was similar to a game, stressing sportsmanship to them on Tuesday and encouraging them to play their parts even if they did not like that role.

All students returned to normal on Thursday, and teachers were to discuss with their students what they learned from the exercise.

Names taken by "HJH Patrol" members were to be tallied, as were Outcast "arrests."

Mrs. Buckley said the students would be told that, had they been living in a true totalitarian society, they would be in danger from being caught violating laws aimed at the Outcasts.

Outcast only

Hereford Junior High students learned what it was like to live in a governmental system that discriminates against portions of its population on Wednesday when eighth grade English and seventh grade PACE students observed "Ann Frank Day" by randomly drawing ribbons characterizing them as "Outcast," "Chosen" or "HJH Patrol," similar to class variations in such countries as Bosnia, Rwanda and Nazi Germany. Here, students, from left, Sherry Rogers, Isabel Sanchez, Rachel Coronado and Juanita Escamilla act out the roles of Outcast during their English class.

Local Roundup

Booster Club bulletin

The Whiteface Booster Club announced Wednesday that telephone solicitations for ads on a Hereford High School football schedule are not connected to the booster club or the school. Fritz Backus, booster club president, said he was concerned that local fans might think proceeds were going to the local organization. The club sells ads for its football program in July or August.

Veterans sought for reception

The Hereford Junior High School Junior Historians are planning a reception this month to honor all veterans in the area. The affair will be held May 21 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Community Center ballroom. However, club members need assistance in reaching all veterans. People knowing names and addresses of veterans are asked to call Heath Henderson, 364-0410; Jason Collier, 364-5728; or Carolyn Waters, 364-0596.

Former president sees trends to decline of 'moral emptiness'

MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) - Former President George Bush sees hope for the United States despite such symptoms of "moral emptiness" as teen pregnancy, cocaine and crime.

"As president, if I had the power to give just one thing to the world it would have been the return of an inner moral compass nurtured by the family and valued by society," Bush said, speaking at a suburban Houston school.

"We cannot continue producing generations born in despair, free-falling through society."

Bush noted, however, that he sees hope for the nation in trends where a book about virtues written by his former cabinet member, William Bennett, has surpassed the sales of a sex book written by so-called New York shock jock Howard Stern.

"I worry about recently why American schools have gone out of their way not to teach values ... teaching fundamentals," he added.

"We need a place in the school-room for the values that need a place in our lives - values like decency, fairness, honesty, duty, tolerance, courage, self discipline, respect."

Bush's comments were made to the first graduating class at The John Cooper School, a private non-denominational school in The Woodlands, north of Houston.

The school is named after John Cooper, who was headmaster for 28 years at Houston's Kincaid School, where Bush's four sons attended classes while growing up in Houston.

Station in space due study

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Once again, America's proposed space station is at one of those crossroads where imminent death is a possibility.

The 55 members of the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology, which authorizes NASA programs, were summoned to a closed-door meeting today to discuss the option of killing the station.

The station's latest crisis intensified with reports that the committee's two leaders were wavering in their longstanding support. Without the backing of Chairman George Brown and senior Republican F. James Sensenbrenner Jr., it was doubtful the $30 billion project's funding would survive.

Brown, D-Calif., a strong advocate of the space station throughout its bumpy journeys in Congress, was to present the committee with four options that might come up for a vote as early as next week.

One would be to introduce a new authorization bill that eliminates the station but recommends money for paying off contractors, said a congressional source.

The others:

- Save the station but take money from other space projects.
- Follow President Clinton's proposal to authorize $2.1 billion for the station.
- Make changes in the bill when it gets to the House floor.

Brown has never presented such choices to the committee before. But he signaled a change in his attitude in March when he said if the National Aeronautics and Space Administration budget were cut below the $14.3 billion asked by the administration, "I'm probably going to have to go against the space station."

Recycling set Saturday

Collection of used tires during April was a success, reports the Hereford Beautification Alliance, with 3,396 tires of all sizes turned in.

The free disposal program has ended, reminded an HBA member, although residents may turn in tires for a fee at the City of Hereford landfill. Landfill hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Monthly collection of recyclables will be conducted Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., at the St. Anthony's School parking lot, sponsored by Community School.

Paper, metal and batteries will be accepted Saturday. Glass, which should be separated by color, will be collected by Girl Scouts.

TEXAS LOTTERY

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for your young readers. Please print it. I held my son today while he died from AIDS. There is no pain like the pain in a mother's heart. He was only 28 years old, and now, he is dead.

This wonderful young man will never have a family. He will never again have a chance to do the things he enjoyed so much—water ski, snow ski, travel. He loved Star Trek and music. He loved working for the airlines and traveling all over the world. He was delightful and smart—a computer whiz—could take one apart and put it back together.

He wasted away from a handsome young man to a skeleton—nothing more than skin and bones. His weight dropped from 160 pounds to 80. His hair fell out. His beautiful teeth fell out. Sores broke out all over his body. He couldn't hold down any food, and eventually, he starved to death.

What a waste! No, young people, he was not gay, nor was he a drug user. He just went to bed with a girl he didn't know.

Please, Ann, tell your young readers to stop and think before they do something that could cost them their lives and bring never-ending grief to those who love them.—Mom in Salem, Ore.

DEAR MOM IN SALEM: My heart goes out to you and all others who have lost loved ones to AIDS, the cruelest of all diseases.

I cannot add much to what you have written, but let us hope your letter will come to mind when someone in my reading audience is tempted to engage in a one-night stand.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a newly retired executive who has traveled extensively in South America and Europe, I cannot help but notice that a great number of American women become fat at an early age.

Sometimes I sit at the mall and count the overweight women who walk by. So far, out of 1,000 women, about 70 percent are clearly out of shape.

Other countries do not have this type of female obesity problem. It is sickening to watch American women stuff themselves in restaurants and eat ice cream bars on the street. Please do them a favor and print this letter.—Grand Rapids, Mich.

DEAR GRAND RAPIDS: You sit in the mall and count fat women? I wish I had some of your spare time. Incidentally, there are just as many overweight males as there are females. Do you count them, too?

Studies done at the Harvard School of Public Health found that excess weight can be a financial handicap as well as socially unacceptable. Obese women earn less money, and they are not as likely to marry.

The message is clear: Excess weight can be a financial burden, a social handicap and a health hazard. The solution is not counting calories. It is exercise and a healthy diet. The key is discipline.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Sue" is getting married in June. She has two sisters, "Betty" and "Jill." She has decided not to include Jill in the wedding because one of her legs is shorter than the other and she has a slight limp.

We do not agree with Sue's decision. What do you think?—Oklahoma Parents

DEAR OKLAHOMA: Sue sounds like a self-involved, spoiled brat. She should not be permitted to get away with this shallow, narcissistic garbage.

Do you have questions about sex, but no one to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

MR. AND MRS. VERNON ROWE

Reception scheduled for Hereford couple

Vernon W. (Bill) and Donna Rowe of 100 Beach St. will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary at a reception from 2-4 p.m. Saturday at their home.

Friends of the couple are invited to attend the event which will be hosted by the honorees' children: Deena Rowe, Sherri Mines and Billy Rowe, all of Hereford.

Bill and Donna Rowe, natives of Liberal, Kan., were married in a home ceremony May 2, 1944. They resided in Hayward, Calif. while Bill served in the U.S. Navy where he was stationed at Camp Shoemaker.

Following World War II, the couple operated a youth center in Turner Falls, Okla. During this time, Bill also worked as a paint and body man and later in the insurance business. In 1959, they moved back to Liberal, Kan. where they owned and operated Rowe Auto Sales.

In 1978, the couple moved to Hereford. They opened and are presently operating B & D Auto Sales and Trim.

The couple has five grandchildren and one great-grandchild. No gifts are requested.

Americans don't know of major heart threat

A new Gallup survey shows that older Americans are unaware of a major threat to their hearts—congestive heart failure.

Heart failure is the number one cause of death and hospitalization in adults 65 and over in the United States.

However, the survey of 815 adults aged 50 and over showed that: —more than half—54 percent—did not know the symptoms of congestive heart failure;

—82 percent did not know the medical conditions that could increase their risk.

What is congestive heart failure? Doctors use the term to describe what happens when the heart becomes damaged and isn't able to pump blood as well as it should to permit the body to function normally.

Symptoms can include unusual shortness of breath or fatigue upon exertion and swelling of the feet and ankles.

Heart problems that may increase risk for congestive heart failure are a history of heart attack, disease of the heart valves, heart inflammation or damage caused by infections, and long standing high blood pressure.

More than 2 million Americans, mostly older adults, have congestive heart failure and it contributes to 400,000 deaths a year.

Encouraging treatment news. Recent medical findings have shown that in many people with congestive heart failure, early drug treatment can help maintain energy and control symptoms.

The classic "fast foods," such as hamburgers and hot dogs, were developed in the 1800s. They were much munched at ball parks, where they enabled people to eat without moving their eyes from the game.

Suns take sweep of Warriors

By The Associated Press
The Phoenix Suns and New York Knicks went after first-round sweeps on the same night. Thanks to Charles Barkley, only the Suns got what they wanted.

Barkley, who had never before scored more than 47 points in a regular season or playoff game, had 56 Wednesday as Phoenix completed a three-game sweep of Golden State by outscoring the Warriors 140-133.

The Knicks took a 2-0 lead against New Jersey, but Chris Morris' two free throws with 1.5 seconds left in overtime gave the Nets a 93-92 victory and kept them alive in the best-of-5 series.

Barkley, whose back problems this season led him to say he will not play next season, took advantage of Warriors coach Don Nelson's decision not to double-team him by scoring 27 points in the first quarter.

"Obviously, I was making a lot of shots," he said. "They kind of forced the issue by not doubling me. I hope it's not the last time I see single coverage. I kind of like it."

Barkley's 38 first-half points set an NBA playoff record. He finished the game hitting 23-of-31 shots and grabbing 14 rebounds. His total tied for the third-best in playoff history behind Michael Jordan's 63 in 1986 and Elgin Baylor's 61 in 1962.

Despite Barkley's heroics, Phoenix didn't take control of the game until the fourth quarter. Trailing 107-106 entering the final period, Phoenix built its lead to 125-117 with 7:35 to play when Barkley converted a three-point play and notched his 50th point.

Golden State closed to 131-129 with 2:07 left on a basket by Latrell Sprewell, who had 27 points, but the Warriors got no closer. The Suns missed just three of their 19 shots in the final period.

The Suns will play the winner of the Houston-Portland series, which resumes Friday night in Portland.

West Texas Warriors

The West Texas Warriors, a basketball team of boys who are 12 or younger, won their division in last weekend's Cuby Kitchens Classic in Hereford. They are (front row, left to right) Cody Hodges, Slade Hodges, Nathan King, Steven Northern, (back row) Eric McNutt, Daniel Carnahan, James Miller, Chayse Rives and Landon Martin. They also have won tournaments in Amarillo, Lazbuddie, Pampa and an earlier one in Hereford.

Baylor basketball's Lambert talks to SWC investigators about violations

HOUSTON (AP) - Baylor forward Jerome Lambert, the nation's leading rebounder last season, has told Southwest Conference investigators that a Bears assistant coach helped him obtain a car and an apartment last summer in apparent violation of NCAA rules, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

The 6-foot-8, 215-pound all-Southwest Conference star said the assistant coach, Gary Thomas, helped him finance a 1993 Honda Accord through a Waco bank and also arranged for him to rent an apartment in a complex near the Baylor campus. Lambert said he purchased the Accord with his own funds but relied on Thomas' help in working out details of the transaction.

Lambert came to Baylor last year after two seasons at Westark Community College in Fort Smith, Ark., where he was second-team All-America and two-time league MVP.

Information about the car and apartment were included in testimony he gave SWC investigators probing the Baylor basketball program. Lambert said. The inquiry was initiated in November. It is expected to be completed sometime this summer.

Lambert's role in the inquiry became public last month when he revealed he had told the SWC he was

Cubs upend Reds to end home losing streak

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

One win. Finally. One precious home win.

The Chicago Cubs haven't given their fans many wins to savor in the last 118 years, but Wednesday's victory at Wrigley Field over the Cincinnati Reds has to rank up right up there with the big ones.

The Cubs stopped a club-record home losing streak at 12 games with a 5-2 victory.

Tom Treblehorn, how big a win was it?

"They say one game doesn't make a season, but I say one win a life may have saved," the Cubs manager said. "I never went through anything like this. I'm glad it's over."

Cubs fans all over the country undoubtedly shared Treblehorn's relief. How depressing it must have been for them to see their team winless at home, in the Friendly Confines, one of baseball's landmark stadiums.

Chicago broke a 92-year-old club record Tuesday with the 12th straight loss but avoided the embarrassment of matching the NL record of 14 straight home losses set by the 1911 Boston Braves by winning for the first time at home since last Sept. 22.

"We handled it like men," first baseman Mark Grace said. "We didn't blame anybody but ourselves."

The Cubs pulled out all the tricks. Ernie Banks, a Hall of Famer who may be the most popular former Cub, paraded a goat around the field before the game in a radio station's effort to break a 49-year-old curse. Banishment of a saloon keeper's goat from Wrigley Field during the 1945 World Series prompted the animal's owner to put a famous curse on the Cubs.

Treblehorn juggled his lineup again, returning Ryne Sandberg to the No. 2 spot, starting Eddie Zambrano in right, moving Sammy Sosa from right to center and benching centerfielder Karl Rhodes.

Sosa led off the bottom of the first with a home run and Zambrano also homered.

"That first at-bat set the tone," Reds catcher Eddie Taubensee said.

Steve Trachsel (3-2) allowed two runs and four hits in seven innings, struck out two and walked three. Randy Myers, the Cubs' fourth pitcher, struck out the side in the ninth for his fourth save in five chances.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was New York 7, San Francisco 4; Montreal 5, Los Angeles 4; Houston 7, Pittsburgh 4; Atlanta 3, Florida 0 and St. Louis 6, Colorado 5. San Diego at Philadelphia was postponed by rain.

Mets 7, Giants 4

At New York, Bobby Bonilla hit two home runs, the second a two-run shot in the seventh inning to lift the Mets.

Bonilla, who homered in the sixth right-handed, hit his game-winning homer from the left side off Dave Burba (1-1).

Doug Linton (3-0) pitched two innings of one-hit relief, and John Franco pitched the ninth for his seventh save.

Expos 5, Dodgers 4

At Montreal, Tim Spehr singled off Kevin Gross to drive in the winning run with two outs the ninth inning, giving the Expos their 12th win in 14 games.

Marquis Grissom hit an infield single off Todd Worrell (2-2) in the ninth and took third on Randy Milligan's double.

Gross, usually a starter, came in and struck out Frazier, bringing up Spehr, who hit a 2-2 pitch off the

Astros 7, Pirates 4

At Pittsburgh, Craig Biggio hit a go-ahead triple in the eighth and a two-run single in the ninth.

Scott Servais drove in two runs as Darryl Kile (3-1) withstood his own wildness to beat Pittsburgh for the third consecutive time in the last two seasons.

Randy Tomlin (0-2), demoted to the bullpen because of off days this week, took the loss.

Mel Rojas (2-0) pitched a perfect ninth.

Braves 3, Marlins 0

At Atlanta, Steve Avery pitched eight shutout innings to help the Braves end their worst losing streak in two years.

Avery (2-1) allowed four hits in eight innings as the Braves snapped a four-game losing streak and won for only the third time in 12 games.

Fred McGriff tripled and scored on a wild pitch by Ryan Bowen (0-4) in the seventh inning, and Atlanta added two runs in the eighth on Dave Justice's RBI single and Richie Lewis' wild pitch.

Cardinals 6, Rockies 5

At Denver, Bernard Gilkey hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning off Darren Holmes to cap the Cardinals' rally.

The Cardinals trailed 5-1 entering the eighth but scored three times against a faltering Rockies bullpen, and went ahead in the ninth when Todd Zelle doubled off Holmes (0-3) and Gilkey followed with his second homer.

Willie Smith (1-0), the fifth of six St. Louis pitchers, pitched the eighth for his first major league win. Rob Murphy pitched the ninth for his second save.

COMING FRIDAY 13¢

O's survive Smith's first blown save

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

For once, the Baltimore Orioles saved Lee Smith.

Smith blew a save chance for the first time this season Wednesday night, and still the Orioles wound up with a 4-3 win over the Oakland Athletics in 10 innings.

After Chris Sabo's solo homer with two outs in the ninth off Dennis Eckersley (0-3) put the Orioles ahead 3-2, Smith relieved to start the bottom half. He entered the game with a 0.00 ERA and 12 saves in 12 appearances, but pinch-hitter Troy Neel tied it with a one-out homer.

In the 10th, however, Jack Voigt reached on an error by third baseman Mike Brumley and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Devereaux.

"We're confident when he comes in, he's going to close the door," Devereaux said of Smith. "He did it 12 times in a row, but I don't think there's a pitcher around who could go the whole season without blowing a save."

Smith (1-0) was the winner and Mark Williamson got the Orioles' first save by someone other than Smith this year.

"He's not going to be perfect all year, is he?" Williamson said. "I felt fine, though. I was a little nervous."

It was a one-run game in the bottom of the 10th. We had battled back, they tied it, then we went ahead. I didn't want to give it back."

While Smith remains baseball's career saves leader, Eckersley has blown all three of his save chances this season.

Rafael Palmeiro homered for the Orioles off Todd Van Poppel. Oakland tied it in the eighth on Ruben Sierra's RBI double off Alan Mills.

Angels 7, Yankees 6

Center fielder Chad Curtis made outstanding plays on consecutive batters to stop New York from scoring in the top of the 13th, and Damon Easley singled home the winning run in the bottom half.

The Angels ended their six-game losing streak and their eight-game home losing skid.

Bob Patterson (1-1) was the winner. Donn Pall (0-2) gave up Easley's bases-loaded single with one out.

White Sox 6, Indians 1

Wilson Alvarez won his 13th straight decision in two seasons, pitching a six-hitter as Chicago beat visiting Cleveland.

Alvarez (6-0) is only two shy of LaMarr Hoyt's team-record 15 straight wins in the regular season, set from July 1983 to April 1984. Alvarez also won once in the AL playoffs last October against Toronto.

Alvarez joined Ben McDonald and Bob Tewksbury for the best record in the majors this year. Charles Nagy (2-1) was the loser.

Red Sox 4, Mariners 2

Mo Vaughn and Mike Greenwell homered as Boston beat Seattle for its seventh straight win.

The Red Sox have the best record in the majors at 20-7.

Danny Darwin (5-1) gave up four hits in 7 1-3 innings, and retired the last 13 batters he faced. He left after being hit by Felix Fermin's liner and Todd Frohwirth, called up this week from the minors, finished for his first save.

Greg Hibbard (1-2) was the loser. Reggie Jefferson homered for the Mariners.

Royals 4, Blue Jays 2

Felix Jose hit his first homer of the season, a two-run shot in the 10th inning that lifted Kansas City over Toronto at the SkyDome.

Gary Gaetti singled with two outs and Jose followed with his home run off Darren Hall (0-1).

Billy Brewer (2-0) pitched two innings for the win. Jeff Montgomery got his second save, retiring John Olerud on a grounder with a runner on second to end the game.

Tigers 14, Rangers 7

Lou Whitaker hit a grand slam and a three-run homer, leading Detroit over Texas.

Cecil Fielder hit his 200th career homer, a 475-foot drive that landed on the left-field roof at Tiger Stadium. Alan Trammell had three hits and drove in three runs for Detroit, and Travis Fryman homered.

Jose Canseco, who drove in four runs, and Juan Gonzalez homered for the Rangers. Joe Boever was the winner, while Rick Reed (0-1) and six Texas relievers combined to walk a team-record 13 batters.

Twins 8, Brewers 7

Shane Mack tripled home the go-ahead run with two outs in the ninth inning and Minnesota won in Milwaukee.

Kirby Puckett singled off Graeme Lloyd (1-2) and Mack followed with a line drive that glanced off first baseman John Jaha's glove and rolled into the corner. Puckett slid home, barely ahead of a strong relay.

Matt Walbeck hit a grand slam for the Twins. Darryl Hamilton had four hits and drove in three runs for the Brewers.

Larry Casian (1-2) was the winner and Rick Aguilera got his seventh save.

BAYLOR

given a term paper to use in an English class last spring at Westark by Troy Drummond, who was then an assistant coach at the Arkansas junior college.

Drummond later was hired as an assistant coach at Baylor. He resigned last month, a day after Lambert publicly linked him to the alleged term-paper scheme.

Lambert also disclosed last month he had received a small amount of cash, sneakers and athletic apparel from Thomas. He said he received the gifts when he was enrolled at Westark.

NCAA rules prohibit coaches from arranging financial assistance or other benefits for prospective student-athletes.

"When I showed up (in Waco), they already had an apartment for me to live in," he said.

Lambert said he was able to rent the apartment at the Mark Twain complex, owned by prominent Waco businessman and philanthropist Paul J. Meyer, at a reduced rate of $120 a month, about $100 a month below what other students paid, the Chronicle reported.

Those arrangements were handled by Thomas, he said.

Thomas, citing school policy regarding the SWC inquiry, declined comment on any aspect of Lambert's allegations.

"If your employer gave you a gag order, wouldn't you follow that order?" he told the newspaper. "We (coaches) can't comment. That's what we've been told over and over."

Meyer was a key contributor toward funding of the Ferrell Center, the Baylor basketball facility, and the arena's court bears his name.

Meyer's business holdings also include Advertising and Marketing Associates Inc., a Waco printing company where Lambert worked last summer.

Meyer's executive assistant, Bill Hinson, said it is his understanding Lambert was allowed to stay at the Mark Twain complex for less than the going rate. But Hinson said he could not determine who arranged for Lambert to do so.

The alleged infractions occurred during a two-month period during which Lambert lived and worked in Waco before enrolling at Baylor.

As a result of the conference's interest in the matter, Meyer wrote a letter to Baylor head basketball coach Darrel Johnson. In the letter, dated April 5 and made available to the Chronicle this week, Meyer said he knew of no instance in which a Baylor coach sought special favors regarding his apartments.

Derby favorite's owner wouldn't go to races

By JOHN NELSON

AP Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Jimmy Croll trained Rachel Carpenter's horses for 37 years before she died last August, and she had one superstition.

"She wouldn't come to a stakes race. She felt it was bad luck," Croll said.

So, even if she had lived, she wouldn't have come to THE stakes race, the Kentucky Derby, to watch Holy Bull on Saturday.

"She wouldn't be here," said the 74-year-old Croll, to whom Carpenter bequeathed the likely Derby favorite. "She followed her horses close, but she had that phobia about them. No way she would have changed her mind."

Carpenter, whose horses raced under the colors of Pelican Stable, died early on the morning of Aug. 14. Later that day, Holy Bull made his first career start, winning a maiden race at Monmouth Park in New Jersey.

"Of course, he won that afternoon," Croll said, "and I felt very bad about it. I wanted to call her and tell her how well the horse did."

"Maybe she'll be looking down on him now."

Entries were scheduled for today, and a field of 15 was expected. Track oddsmaker Mike Battaglia made Holy Bull the 8-5 early favorite in his pre-draw line, with Brocco, 1993 Breeders' Cup Juvenile champion, second at 3-1.

Holy Bull won all four of his starts as a 2-year-old, including a driving victory over 2-year-old champion Dehere in the mud at Belmont Park last Sept. 18. He started his 3-year-old campaign by winning the Hutcheson at Gulfstream Park in January.

The only loss of his career came the next month when he got behind horses on an off track in the Fountain of Youth at Gulfstream and, in the excitement, developed a breathing problem called a flipped palate. He folded in the stretch and finished last in a six-horse field.

Five of Holy Bull's victories have been wire-to-wire, and many rivals expect him to try to take the lead immediately in the Derby, too.

"Anybody who stays close to Holy Bull can win the Derby, and the Bull can't be rated," said Nick Zito, who trains Go For Gin. "The only time he was off the pace was a disaster for him."

Croll doesn't necessarily agree, and neither do some of his fellow trainers.

"The Derby is always different," Croll said. "Everybody tries to get up close, and the first quarter is pretty grinding. I imagine somebody will be up there with us. Maybe that horse Ulises. But we don't have to be on the lead."

Holy Bull will be Croll's third Derby horse. Royal and Regal finished eighth in 1973, and Bet Twice was second in 1987.

Holy Bull's sire, Great Above, was a sprinter, and his dam, Sharon Brown, had foaled two grass winners. Ta Wee, an outstanding sprinter also named to the Hall of Fame on Wednesday, is Holy Bull's paternal granddam.

"He is a freak," Croll said. "When I bred him, I was looking for a grass horse or a sprinter, and this is what happened."

Olajuwon: Blazers are being gentle

By BOB BAUM

AP Sports Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - During his dominating performance in the Houston-Portland playoff series, Hakeem Olajuwon has taken some rough pounding from Trail Blazers' defenders.

Nothing has gotten out of hand, though.

"So far it's been clean," Olajuwon said, "which is the way it's supposed to be."

The 7-foot Nigerian, who may be the front-runner to win the NBA's most valuable player award, knows defenders have to play him rough.

"I can withstand that," he said.

But as the Rockets prepare to try wrapping up the series with a victory in Game 4 Friday night, Olajuwon said he is concerned about the trend to more unnecessary violence in the NBA.

To him, it reflects a failure by players to understand the special role they fill in society.

"Sports is supposed to be entertainment, competitiveness, skill, not violence," Olajuwon said. "Your While Olajuwon has been a great NBA player for years, the league seems more interested in promoting newcomer Shaquille O'Neal, whose game is all power.

Olajuwon said he isn't bothered by it.

"I'm not in a popularity contest," he said. "I'm very at peace with myself and my performance."

So he makes his case on the court. Against Portland in the playoffs, he scored 26 points in Game 1 and 46 in Game 2. He had six blocks in each game.

When Portland beat Houston 118-115 in Game 3 Tuesday night, the Blazers' Chris Dudley was praised for his defense against Olajuwon, even though the Houston center scored 36 points.

"He's so good and he gets the ball toughness is your work ethic, your competitiveness, your skill."

"You're a warrior by being competitive, but clean. You work on your skills, not cheap shots, not to destroy somebody's career. To end somebody's career and say you're tough, that's not toughness. That's ignorance."

Newcomers to the NBA, Olajuwon said, seem to feel that they have succeeded because of all the money they make, all the endorsements they have.

"Just by signing big contracts you think you're on top of the world," he said. "That's a big mistake."

Not enough players worry about the impact of their conduct on and off the court, Olajuwon said.

"A lot of players come in from college needing guidance. They don't know what's acceptable, to make a name, for identity, for toughness," he said. "We are supposed to be the role models for kids, so that means professional, sportsmanlike conduct."

so many times," Dudley said. "It's tough when you're guy gets the No. 1 look every time down the court."

O'Neal makes rap records, markets all kinds of merchandise and appears in movies, but Olajuwon avoids marketing schemes.

"They talk about you don't see me in any endorsements or anything. I can't compromise that," he said. "I'm very clean. Moral values are more important than anything else to me."

The league, Olajuwon said, needs to provide guidance for its young players to promote positive aspects of life.

"These are supposed to be role models affecting different lives, so every player in the NBA means so much more and he must understand his value," Olajuwon said. "But we're losing this value because everyone wants to protect his job and his interest."

"We've lost focus, lost what's really important. We're not addressing the issue. Endorsements, commercials? How much money do you need? Popularity? How much fame do you need?"

Mario Andretti prepares for final Indianapolis 500

By STEVE HERMAN

AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The Indianapolis 500 will welcome back one Andretti and bid farewell to another.

Practice for the May 29 race begins on Saturday.

After a one-year absence to compete on the Formula One circuit, Michael Andretti has returned with a new team and a new car.

His father and former teammate, Mario Andretti, is preparing for his final race at Indianapolis before retiring at the end of the season.

The elder Andretti, whose only victory here was in 1969, is one of six former winners entered this year.

The others are defending champion Emerson Fittipaldi and his teammate, Al Unser Jr., who are tied for the series lead after the first three races this season; four-time winner Al Unser Sr.; Arie Luyendyk, second to Fittipaldi last year, and Bobby Rahal, who struggled with a new car and was bumped from last year's lineup with 16 minutes left in qualifications.

Among the dozen or so rookies, there's no one of the stature of Nigel Mansell, the 1992 Formula One champion who as a rookie last year finished third in the 500 and won the Indy-car driving title. But the current crop of first-year drivers includes Brazilian Mauricio Gugelmin, who drove Formula One for five years and is 10th in the Indy standings as Michael Andretti's teammate with Ganassi Racing.

The Ganassi team is using the new Reynard chassis, and Andretti won the season opener in Australia.

Fittipaldi won the second race, at Phoenix, and Unser Jr. won the third race, at Long Beach. Mansell, who has completed a series-high 358 of a possible 360 laps, is third in the standings, followed by Michael Andretti, Stefan Johansson of Sweden and Mario Andretti.

With more available offseason practice time than last year, no significant rule changes to slow the cars and the inevitable advancement in race car engineering and design, speeds during practice this year are expected to make a big jump.

"It could increase considerably," Mike Devin, USAC technical chairman, said Wednesday.

The fastest lap ever run at Indianapolis is Jim Crawford's 1992 practice lap of 233.433 mph, more than 6 mph faster than last year's top speed of 227.118 by Mario Andretti. The track records, which can be set only in qualifications or the race, are 232.618 mph for one lap and 232.482 for four laps, both by Roberto Guerrero in 1992 and more than 8 mph faster than Luyendyk's pole-position speeds a year ago.

The best bets to challenge the records are the Penske cars powered by new Mercedes engines. The Mercedes takes advantage of special stock block rules for the Indy 500 that allow a higher boost of the turbocharger and is rumored to be able to produce up to 1,000 horsepower, 25 percent more than conventional Indy racing engines, with speeds of more than 250 mph.

Car owner Roger Penske won't list a power output because he says he doesn't know yet what it will take to make the engine reliable.

Fittipaldi, Unser Jr. and teammate Paul Tracy all used Ilmor engines for the first three races this season. The only change in the track this year was the widening of the pit area, which will not affect speeds.

"That was for safety (in the pits), and some of it was in anticipation of the (Brickyard 400) stock car race as far as the cement pit areas and so forth, and the heavier walls," Devin said. "But there's no changes on the race track and no changes on the cars."

Pole position qualifying will be Saturday, May 14. Additional time trials will be on May 15 and May 21-22.

Artful Man

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Wide receiver Quinn Early of the New Orleans Saints is artful on the field and off.

A sure-handed receiver playing football, Early used those same hands to earn a commercial arts degree from the University of Iowa. He plans to work full time in art after his NFL playing days come to an end.

Early produced the illustrations for the cover of the 1993 media guide of the Saints and also for the Iowa media guide.

"I'm really into sports art right now, and I'm trying to expand on that and become known as a sports artist," Early said.

Orel Hershiser of the Los Angeles Dodgers set a record with 59 consecutive scoreless innings in 1988.

Argelia Valdez feted with bridal shower

Argelia Valdez, June 11 bride-elect of Johnny Dan Alaniz, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday morning, April 30, at the E.B. Black House.

Greeting guests were the honoree; her mother, Vickie Valdez; and her sister, Violeta Valdez.

Martha Del Toro invited guests to register.

Hostesses served refreshments of sausage balls, fruit plates, miniature pecan pies, cinnamon rolls, fruit breads, miniature quiche, a specially decorated sheet cake, punch and coffee.

The main refreshment table, which was covered with a white lace cloth, was decorated with an arrangement of white silk flowers with hunter greenery placed in a tall crystal vase which was draped in white tulle and white satin rope on which two wedding bands were entwined. Blown-crystal hurricane candles, which were placed in silver candleholders, were arranged in the tulle. Silver and crystal serving pieces and hunter green napkins further enhanced the table setting.

A bedroom ensemble consisting of a comforter, bedskirt and pillow shams, were given to the honoree by the hostesses: Jo Ann Charest, Martha Del Toro, Sandra Saul, Yolanda Chavez, Lupe Sanford, Donna Grady, Carmen Flood, Dolores Foster, Virginia Bodayo, Joan Bookout, Gloria Ellis, Dubelia Ortiz, Elena Trevizo, Kim Buckley, Janie Chavez, Pat Simnacher, Rosie Valdez and Lola Faye Vezey.

Hints from Heloise

RECYCLING HINT

Dear Heloise: When I buy rice or macaroni by the bag rather than the box, storage is a bit more awkward, especially since I would rather buy a couple of bags of each and stock up.

The answer: Take one of the large, clear, plastic cat-food containers (washed thoroughly and dried), label it and fill it with your favorite loose item. Storage is easy, and you can see what it is as well as the amount. Glue any special instructions and recipes on the container. — Terry Sullivan, Mt. Solon, Va

This is a great recycling hint, especially if you own cats and have to buy quite a bit of cat food. — Heloise

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: About eight weeks ago I noticed a slight soreness on top and midway along my penis, where there seems to be a hard spot. It is less than 1/4 inch long and 1/8 inch wide. Lately it has become painful during erection, and I'm beginning to see an upward curve of the penis. I have not gone to the doctor with this problem and was wondering what it is and how serious it may be.

I'm 53 years old and had a heart attack 18 months ago. I took Tenormin and Mevacor for cholesterol control but was taken off Tenormin because of side effects. Your information and advice would be appreciated.

DEAR READER: You have Peyronie's disease, also called the "bent-nail" syndrome. From my mail, I would guess this is much more common than generally appreciated. That hard spot is a "plaque," which is a form of inflammation. It cannot stretch. That is why you have a curvature of the penis when you have an erection. All the other areas expand because they are elastic, but that area cannot. It is a lot like attaching a piece of adhesive tape to one side of a balloon and then inflating it. The balloon will bend toward the side where you put a strip of tape because it can't expand.

There is not much known about this disease, despite how common it is. No one knows why the plaque develops. Sometimes the condition progresses until the penis is so bent that intercourse is impossible. It can also be painful. In other cases, the plaque disappears as mysteriously as it first occurred.

Since spontaneous remissions are common, it is not possible to tell whether improvement is from treatment or in spite of it. Vitamin E has been credited for resolving the problem, but no one knows whether the recovery is from vitamin E or just the course of events.

You might want to see a urologist. In addition to vitamin E, Potaba (potassium para-aminobenzoate) steroid therapy, local injection of the plaque with corticosteroids, radiation treatment and ultrasound have all been used. In severe cases, the plaque has even been removed surgically and a skin graft used. But the plaque may recur after surgery.

For more information, read Special Report 125, Impotence, Premature Ejaculation and Peyronie's Disease, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/125, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 18 years. Recently I noticed one of my testicles has been hanging lower than the other and is somewhat larger. Yet, I have not felt any pain or discomfort. I fear I may have a serious problem, but I am too embarrassed about this to tell my parents. Do I have a legiti-mate worry or am I overreacting?

DEAR READER: You probably just need some information. It is a shame that fear of disapproval causes so many problems regarding sex organs and functions that could be easily solved. One testicle usually hangs lower than the other, usually the left testicle, but in left-handed males it is usually the right testicle. And the testicles are nearly the same size but one is frequently a little larger than the other.

The testicles rise when you are cold and descend when you are hot. That allows for temperature control which is important to reproduction. They may be raised during sexual excitement.

Why not talk to your father? A little comparison evaluation is harmless and could relieve your anxiety.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have become interested in vitamins lately. It is very hard to eat two balanced meals in today's hectic lifestyle. I have also realized that by the time we get vegetables from grocery stores, there is as much as a six-month gap between the time they were harvested and when we purchase them. In addition, all kinds of chemicals have been added to the vegetables so they can last as long as they do. Cooking the vegetables in turn reduces their vitamin content.

For these reasons, what is the percent of vitamins that people really get from their food? Vitamins seem important to supplement our meals, but not to replace them. What are the advantages of taking the recommended daily allowance of vitamins as a supplement?

DEAR READER: I must agree with your comments. While many prepared foods do have expiration dates stamped on them, that is not true of "fresh" fruit and vegetables. You never know how long that head of lettuce has been refrigerated and how much of its folic acid has been lost.

Anyone who is not able for whatever reason to follow a balanced diet that provides all the needed vitamins needs to take a vitamin supplement. These do not provide energy, but they do play an important role in your body's ability to use the food you do eat and release its energy. The advantages of taking a vitamin supplement if you are not on a proper diet is to provide vitamins you need for basic cell function and energy. If you did not get any vitamins, or even any of certain vitamins, health and even life would not be possible.

I can't answer what amount of vitamins are in the fruits and vegetables you consume because storage and other factors are too variable. But I have discussed the range of what you need and what is too much and the role of the various vitamins in my new Special Report 143, Vital Facts about Vitamins, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/143, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Keep in mind you can take too many vitamins for your health. My comments should not be interpreted as an endorsement of megavitamin preparations unless prescribed by your doctor.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Ryan probably could pitch again, but won't

By JIM REEVES
FORT WORTH Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH, Texas - He could have just left it alone, never picked up a baseball again. He could have simply walked away from the game and never looked back.

"Why bother?" he could have said. "What's the point?"

No one would have blamed him. So what if he never threw a baseball again? Who would care? There are the banks, and the ranches, and the kids, and all those vacations he's supposed to take someday.

Maybe some could have done that. Probably some have.

But their names aren't Nolan Ryan.

You're going to get excited to hear that Nolan Ryan is throwing fastballs in the 90s again. That's on his own mental radar gun, of course, but it always has been pretty accurate. Nolan always had a decent idea what his body could and couldn't do.

The first inclination is to tell him to report immediately to The Ballpark in Arlington. Kevin Kennedy, Claude Osteen and the Rangers need you, Nolan. They need pitching so badly, Kennedy has been looking at Osteen's left-handed batting practice offerings with the eye of a starving man on a deserted island.

Desperate isn't the word for it. But let's not be selfish. Ryan is right where he wants to be and where he should be. He was sitting as unobtrusively as a world-renowned figure could sit on the TCU bench last weekend in College Station as the Frogs wrapped up their first outright Southwest Conference title in almost four decades.

Same place he sat the night before. Same place he'll be, if everyone plays their cards right, for another four springs or so after this one.

Assistant baseball coach Nolan Ryan. Restricted earnings coach. Can't pay a part-time guy like that too much, you know.

"Actually," Ryan said, "my earnings got pretty restricted after last season with the Rangers."

Last season, his final one as a major league pitcher, was a painful year for him, capped by an excruciating elbow ligament tear in Seattle, when his career ended once and for all.

Remember his last pitch, smashed over the Kingdome fence for a grand slam by a no-name rookie who isn't even in the big leagues this year? Remember Nolan's last curtain call, his final goodbye? Heart-breaking.

He would never throw again, it was figured. He might need surgery just to be able to live normally. Brush his teeth. Drive a car. Comb his thinning hair.

That's how it would be with a normal man, anyway. How quickly we forget that we're not dealing with somebody normal here.

The elbow has healed, and without surgery. He is working out regularly, throwing again, and throwing hard. Batting practice to the Alvin High School team, where younger son Reese is a senior. More BP to the Horned Frogs where older son Reid is a senior pitcher there and started a game against the Aggies last weekend.

Fastballs. Curveballs. Split-fingered changeups. They're all there in the arsenal, still working.

Could he get major league hitters out? What do you think?

"We'll never know," Ryan said. "I don't know if the elbow could hold up under the stress of pitching in the big leagues. But it feels fine right now."

So, he pitches to the kids and tells them, with a grin, that they probably won't see anything in a game much better than this and if they're not listening, if they're not taking notes and remembering every word he says, then they're as dumb as the lumber they're swinging.

"I sit on the (TCU) bench during games, and if I see someone do something I think I can help them with, I'll call them over," Ryan said. "Maybe it's how they approach a ground ball, or what they should be looking for at the plate, things like that. I'm there for anyone who needs me."

Far too few young Rangers pitchers took advantage of Ryan's vast storehouse of knowledge during his years with the Rangers. A handful did. You'd think every young pitcher would attempt to copy Ryan's every move, every nuance, every workout. Some apparently figured they knew all they needed to know already.

With Reese Ryan already signed to come to TCU next spring, the Frogs could have Ryan's experience and his 90-plus BP heater for several years to come. Can you imagine any better recruiting pitch?

"By the way," head coach Lance Brown tells a pitching recruit, "Nolan Ryan is one of our assistant coaches. He hangs around a little bit. Can't get rid of him."

Ryan says, "I guess I'll come back next year if they'll have me. Best thing about it, they pay me in money I can fold up and put right into my money clip."

You can bet the Horned Frogs never got better value for a dollar spent.

NBA

Elsewhere in the West, San Antonio is at Utah and Seattle at Denver in tonight's games, with the Jazz and SuperSonics enjoying 2-1 leads.

In the East, where Chicago and Indiana advanced with sweeps of Cleveland and Orlando, tonight's only game has Atlanta at Miami. The Heat, who have never won a playoff series, have a 2-1 lead and are trying to become the first No. 8 seed to beat a No. 1 seed.

The prospect of getting a few days' rest for his back was Barkley's incentive to end the series as quickly as possible.

"It's really bad right now, but thank God I've got a couple of days to rest," he said. "But I'm going to play regardless."

Chris Mullin had 30 points for the Warriors, who were swept in a playoff series for the first time since 1967-68, when the Los Angeles Lakers won four straight in the Western Conference finals.

Dan Majerle scored 24 points and Kevin Johnson had 18 points and 12 assists for the Suns.

Nets 93, Knicks 92 OT

New Jersey led by 16 points late in the third quarter, then had to survive a nine-point fourth quarter to beat New York in overtime.

Morris stepped to the free-throw line with 1.5 seconds left and the Nets trailing 92-91. New York had the lead thanks to a basket with 20 seconds left by Patrick Ewing, who had 27 points and 15 rebounds.

Morris, who scored just eight points in the game and hadn't taken a free throw before his decisive shots, was a reluctant hero.

"It was a lot of pressure," he said. "If it happens again, I'll take it, but I'm not looking to be in that situation."

Derrick Coleman, held to 32 percent shooting the first two games, finished with 25 points and 17 rebounds for the Nets, and Kenny Anderson had 17 points and 11 assists.

Juror's refusal to answer questions ends in jail

By LINDA LEAVELL
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Dianna Brandborg is neither a rebellious teen-ager nor a practiced civil rights activist. But when she felt wronged by the judicial system, she stood her ground.

Mrs. Brandborg, a potential juror in a capital murder trial in Denton, refused to answer certain questions that she deemed too personal. A judge promptly sentenced her to three days in jail for contempt of court.

The 48-year-old office manager was stunned - not only that she was sentenced to jail, but that she apparently was fighting a battle few had waged before.

"I think she's a courageous lady. I'm delighted that she's chosen to stand up," said Don Doig, who along with Larry Dodge co-founded the Helmville, Mont.-based Fully Informed Jury Association, which has a stated goal of ensuring that jurors know their rights and powers.

"This is the first (case). I think we'll see some more, though. It's been part of our reform package for some time that jurors' privacy should be respected," Doig said. "This is just a real-world illustration of what we're talking about."

Attorneys often use questionnaires to gather information on potential jurors called for high-profile cases or when the jury pool is especially large.

Mrs. Brandborg answered all but about a dozen questions. She wrote "not applicable" to those concerning her religious preference, the television shows and books she enjoys, her political affiliation, outside activities and income, among others.

"I had served on jury duty before but I had never seen a questionnaire of 100 questions and so many personal ones. I was appalled," she said.

Attorneys, criminal justice experts and civil rights advocates agree that Mrs. Brandborg's case defines the issue of balancing a juror's privilege to privacy with the defendant's right to a trial by a jury of his peers.

Mrs. Brandborg said she has received many supportive letters and telephone calls.

"This has changed my life more than you know," she said. "I'm going to fight the fight just as long as I can."

Her attorney, Rick Hagen, says he can't understand why the issue has been dormant.

Judges usually won't force a potential juror to answer a question they feel uncomfortable about, choosing most times to simply take the person aside privately, Hagen said.

"There's been, at least here locally, an assumption that what happened in the courtroom was 'the law,' and it had to be done," Hagen said.

"It didn't have to be done. Making a juror answer or not answer is discretionary with any judge."

Pat Hazel, a University of Texas law professor who teaches trial advocacy and civil procedure, said most judges will examine whether the objectionable question is "really a relevant matter for the parties to know about."

Then, judges often will allow a panelist to discuss their answers confidentially, he said.

Hazel said defense attorneys must have the right to examine the panelists' backgrounds. But Mrs. Brandborg is raising interesting questions about treating jurors with some sensitivity, he said.

Mrs. Brandborg was fingerprinted and photographed at the Denton County Jail in March. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted a temporary stay of her jail sentence, and she was freed on $100 bail. The case is pending.

Last year, Texas lawmakers passed a statute making all information about jurors, including their names, confidential. The information may be released to the media if the news organization can show "good cause" in seeking it.

Meanwhile, Sen. Jane Nelson, R-Flower Mound, has taken up the juror privacy question as a legislative issue. She says she's heard from former jurors across Texas who support more protection for potential panelists.

"Now that this issue is out in the open and being discussed, I think we will see some legislation that will focus on the rights of the law-abiding citizens in this state," Ms. Nelson said.

EPA expected to issue ban in Phoenix on some tools

By NEIL BIBLER
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency is slapping pollution controls on gas-powered garden tools to clear the air in places like Phoenix, where desert heat and piped-in water make lawn mowing a year-round chore.

The nationwide standards announced Wednesday in Washington are expected to add about $5 to the cost of a mower, leaf blower, weed trimmer or other tool.

But many suburbanites around here refuse to waver at the thought of paying extra to maintain a patch of green.

"To me it's a logical consequence if we're going to go after sources of pollution," said Bert O'Bryan, who'd be willing to pay even $20 or $25 more for his next mower if it would help. "A few years ago, a few little squirts of an aerosol can, nobody thought about it. Now there's a hole in the ozone."

Consumers wouldn't have to turn in their old models or have them upgraded. The emission standards apply to new models.

The EPA estimates that the small engines spew 6 million tons of pollutants into the nation's air each year, or about 5 percent of air pollution.

Running a mower for an hour creates as much pollution as driving a new car for 11 hours, the EPA said. One hour of using a leaf blower equals 34 hours of driving; for a chain saw, 63 hours of driving; for a weed trimmer, 21 hours.

"I didn't realize it was that high, the percent of exhaust from lawn mowers," said Paul Bender, who was pruning trees in his yard.

In Phoenix, conservation chic is prompting more homeowners to landscape with gravel and cactus these days. But a well-tended lawn remains as much a status symbol in many neighborhoods as it is in other parts of the country.

Irrigation systems with water fed by aqueduct have helped make some neighborhoods as green as those in any Midwestern town.

The rules' aim, not their cost, irritated Ed Edwards.

The regulations' first phase, effective Aug. 1, 1996, would set standards for all new small spark-emission engines. The controls are designed to cut hydrocarbon emissions 32 percent and carbon monoxide 14 percent by 2003.

HISD, police department to sponsor DARE camp for youth, July 25-29

The Hereford Police Department and Hereford Independent School District will hold their 1994 DARE Summer Camp this summer, DARE Officer Terry Brown has announced.

The camp will be held from July 25 through July 29 for children in grades six through eight.

The camp will be held at the Hereford Community Center and will include a variety of activities, including swimming, volleyball, softball, arcade games, a National Guard display and classes on drug abuse.

There is no cost and meals for participants will be provided.

Camp will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, with a DARE party set on Friday, July 30, for participants and parents.

The camp is limited to 150 students. Applications are available at Hereford Junior High, any grade school, or at the Hereford Police Department, 212 N. Lee.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

Ryan probably could pitch again, but won't

By JIM REEVES
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas - He could have just left it alone, never picked up a baseball again. He could have simply walked away from the game and never looked back. "Why bother?" he could have said. "What's the point?" No one would have blamed him. So what if he never threw a baseball again? Who would care? There are the banks, and the ranches, and the kids, and all those vacations he's supposed to take someday. Maybe some could have done that. Probably some have. But their names aren't Nolan Ryan.

You're going to get excited to hear that Nolan Ryan is throwing fastballs in the 90s again. That's on his own mental radar gun, of course, but it always has been pretty accurate. Nolan always had a decent idea what his body could and couldn't do.

The first inclination is to tell him to report immediately to The Ballpark in Arlington. Kevin Kennedy, Claude

Osteen and the Rangers need you, Nolan. They need pitching so badly, Kennedy has been looking at Osteen's left-handed batting practice offerings with the eye of a starving man on a deserted island. Desperate isn't the word for it. But let's not be selfish. Ryan is right where he wants to be and where he should be. He was sitting as unobtrusively as a world-renowned figure could sit on the TCU bench last weekend in College Station as the Frogs wrapped up their first outright Southwest Conference title in almost four decades. Same place he sat the night before. Same place he'll be, if everyone plays their cards right, for another four springs or so after this one. Assistant baseball coach Nolan Ryan. Restricted earnings coach. Can't pay a part-time guy like that too much, you know. "Actually," Ryan said, "my earnings got pretty restricted after last season with the Rangers." Last season, his final one as a major league pitcher, was a painful year for him, capped by an excruciating elbow ligament tear in Seattle, when his career ended once and for all. Remember his last pitch, smashed over the Kingdome fence for a grand slam by a no-name rookie who isn't even in the big leagues this year? Remember Nolan's last curtain call, his final goodbye? Heart-breaking. He would never throw again, it was figured. He might need surgery just to be able to live normally. Brush his teeth. Drive a car. Comb his thinning hair. That's how it would be with a normal man, anyway. How quickly we forget that we're not dealing with somebody normal here. The elbow has healed, and without surgery. He is working out regularly, throwing again, and throwing hard. Batting practice to the Alvin High School team, where younger son Reese is a senior. More BP to the Horned Frogs where older son Reid is a senior pitcher there and started a game against the Aggies last weekend.

Fastballs. Curveballs. Split-fingered changeups. They're all there in the arsenal, still working. Could he get major league hitters out? What do you think? "We'll never know," Ryan said. "I don't know if the elbow could hold up under the stress of pitching in the big leagues. But it feels fine right now." So, he pitches to the kids and tells them, with a grin, that they probably won't see anything in a game much better than this and if they're not listening, if they're not taking notes and remembering every word he says, then they're as dumb as the lumber they're swinging.

"I sit on the (TCU) bench during games, and if I see someone do something I think I can help them with, I'll call them over," Ryan said. "Maybe it's how they approach a ground ball, or what they should be looking for at the plate, things like that. I'm there for anyone who needs me." Far too few young Rangers pitchers took advantage of Ryan's vast storehouse of knowledge during his years with the Rangers. A handful did. You'd think every young pitcher would attempt to copy Ryan's every move, every nuance, every workout. Some apparently figured they knew all they needed to know already.

With Reese Ryan already signed to come to TCU next spring, the Frogs could have Ryan's experience and his 90-plus BP heater for several years to come. Can you imagine any better recruiting pitch? "By the way," head coach Lance Brown tells a pitching recruit, "Nolan Ryan is one of our assistant coaches. He hangs around a little bit. Can't get rid of him." Ryan says, "I guess I'll come back next year if they'll have me. Best thing about it, they pay me in money. I can fold up and put right into my money clip." You can bet the Horned Frogs never got better value for a dollar spent.

NBA

Elsewhere in the West, San Antonio is at Utah and Seattle at Denver in tonight's games, with the Jazz and SuperSonics enjoying 2-1 leads.

In the East, where Chicago and Indiana advanced with sweeps of Cleveland and Orlando, tonight's only game has Atlanta at Miami. The Heat, who have never won a playoff series, have a 2-1 lead and are trying to become the first No. 8 seed to beat a No. 1 seed.

The prospect of getting a few days' rest for his back was Barkley's incentive to end the series as quickly as possible. "It's really bad right now, but thank God I've got a couple of days to rest," he said. "But I'm going to play regardless." Chris Mullin had 30 points for the Warriors, who were swept in a playoff series for the first time since 1967-68, when the Los Angeles Lakers won four straight in the Western Conference finals. Dan Majerle scored 24 points and Kevin Johnson had 18 points and 12 assists for the Suns. Nets 93, Knicks 92 OT. New Jersey led by 16 points late in the third quarter, then had to survive a nine-point fourth quarter to beat New York in overtime. Morris stepped to the free-throw line with 1.5 seconds left and the Nets trailing 92-91. New York had the lead thanks to a basket with 20 seconds left by Patrick Ewing, who had 27 points and 15 rebounds. Morris, who scored just eight points in the game and hadn't taken a free throw before his decisive shots, was a reluctant hero. "It was a lot of pressure," he said. "If it happens again, I'll take it, but I'm not looking to be in that situation." Derrick Coleman, held to 32 percent shooting the first two games, finished with 25 points and 17 rebounds for the Nets, and Kenny Anderson had 17 points and 11 assists.

Juror's refusal to answer questions ends in jail

By LINDA LEAVELL
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Dianna Brandborg is neither a rebellious teen-ager nor a practiced civil rights activist. But when she felt wronged by the judicial system, she stood her ground.

Mrs. Brandborg, a potential juror in a capital murder trial in Denton, refused to answer certain questions that she deemed too personal. A judge promptly sentenced her to three days in jail for contempt of court.

The 48-year-old office manager was stunned - not only that she was sentenced to jail, but that she apparently was fighting a battle few had waged before.

"I think she's a courageous lady. I'm delighted that she's chosen to stand up," said Don Doig, who along with Larry Dodge co-founded the Helmville, Mont.-based Fully Informed Jury Association, which has a stated goal of ensuring that jurors know their rights and powers.

"This is the first (case). I think we'll see some more, though. It's been part of our reform package for some time that jurors' privacy should be respected," Doig said. "This is just a real-world illustration of what we're talking about."

Attorneys often use questionnaires to gather information on potential jurors called for high-profile cases or when the jury pool is especially large.

Mrs. Brandborg answered all but about a dozen questions. She wrote "not applicable" to those concerning her religious preference, the television shows and books she enjoys, her political affiliation, outside activities and income, among others.

"I had served on jury duty before but I had never seen a questionnaire of 100 questions and so many personal ones. I was appalled," she said.

Attorneys, criminal justice experts and civil rights advocates agree that Mrs. Brandborg's case defines the issue of balancing a juror's privilege to privacy with the defendant's right to a trial by a jury of his peers.

Mrs. Brandborg said she has received many supportive letters and telephone calls.

"This has changed my life more than you know," she said. "I'm going to fight the fight just as long as I can."

Her attorney, Rick Hagen, says he can't understand why the issue has been dormant.

Mrs. Brandborg was fingerprinted and photographed at the Denton County Jail in March. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted a temporary stay of her jail sentence, and she was freed on $100 bail. The case is pending.

Last year, Texas lawmakers passed a statute making all information about jurors, including their names, confidential. The information may be released to the media if the news organization can show "good cause" in seeking it.

Meanwhile, Sen. Jane Nelson, R-Flower Mound, has taken up the juror privacy question as a legislative issue. She says she's heard from former jurors across Texas who support more protection for potential panelists.

"Now that this issue is out in the open and being discussed, I think we will see some legislation that will focus on the rights of the law-abiding citizens in this state," Ms. Nelson said.

Objectionable questions

- By The Associated Press
- A sampling of questions taken from a juror questionnaire:
- Name, age, address, telephone number, birthplace, length of Texas residence.
 - Place of employment, job description, occupation for the past 10 years.
 - Marital status, spouse's name and occupation, children's ages and occupations.
 - Religious preference, name and location of church or temple, past or present church offices held.
 - Military service branch, rank and duties.
 - What kind of vehicle do you drive? Your spouse?
 - Do you have any bumper stickers on your car? Describe.
 - To what civic clubs, societies, professional associations or other organizations do you belong?
 - Do you contribute services or financially to any charitable organization?
 - Are you or your spouse a member of any type of crime prevention watch organization?
 - What are your hobbies or favorite recreations?
 - What television programs, if any, do you regularly watch?
 - What area newspapers do you read? What sections do you read regularly?
 - What is your political preference?
 - Have you, your spouse, a relative or close friend ever received treatment by a mental health expert or facility?
 - Have you ever read books or articles dealing with psychology or psychiatry?
 - Have you ever taken any courses in the fields of biology or forensic science?
 - Do you support laws that would restrict gun ownership or possession?
 - Have you, your spouse, a relative or close friend been connected with law enforcement in any way?
 - Have you, your spouse, a relative or close friend ever been accused of a crime?
 - Have you ever written a letter to the editor or called a radio talk show? Describe.
 - List five men and five women who are publicly known and who you most respect.
 - How do you feel about the death penalty?

EPA expected to issue ban in Phoenix on some tools

By NEIL BIBLER
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency is slapping pollution controls on gas-powered garden tools to clear the air in places like Phoenix, where desert heat and piped-in water make lawn mowing a year-round chore.

The nationwide standards announced Wednesday in Washington are expected to add about $5 to the cost of a mower, leaf blower, weed trimmer or other tool.

But many suburbanites around here refuse to waver at the thought of paying extra to maintain a patch of green.

"To me it's a logical consequence if we're going to go after sources of pollution," said Bert O'Bryan, who'd be willing to pay even $20 or $25 more for his next mower if it would help. "A few years ago, a few little squirts of an aerosol can, nobody thought about it. Now there's a hole in the ozone."

Consumers wouldn't have to turn in their old models or have them upgraded. The emission standards apply to new models.

The EPA estimates that the small engines spew 6 million tons of pollutants into the nation's air each year, or about 5 percent of air pollution.

Running a mower for an hour creates as much pollution as driving a new car for 11 1/2 hours, the EPA said. One hour of using a leaf blower equals 34 hours of driving; for a chain saw, 63 hours of driving; for a weed trimmer, 21 hours.

"I didn't realize it was that high, the percent of exhaust from lawn mowers," said Paul Bender, who was pruning trees in his yard.

In Phoenix, conservation chic is prompting more homeowners to landscape with gravel and cactus these days. But a well-tended lawn remains as much a status symbol in many neighborhoods as it is in other parts of the country.

Irrigation systems with water fed by aqueduct have helped make some neighborhoods as green as those in any Midwestern town.

The rules' aim, not their cost, irritated Ed Edwards.

The regulations' first phase, effective Aug. 1, 1996, would set standards for all new small spark-emission engines. The controls are designed to cut hydrocarbon emissions 32 percent and carbon monoxide 14 percent by 2003.

HISD, police department to sponsor DARE camp for youth, July 25-29

The Hereford Police Department and Hereford Independent School District will hold their 1994 DARE Summer Camp this summer, DARE Officer Terry Brown has announced.

The camp will be held from July 25 through July 29 for children in grades six through eight.

The camp will be held at the Hereford Community Center and will include a variety of activities, including swimming, volleyball, softball, arcade games, a National Guard display and classes on drug abuse.

There is no cost and meals for participants will be provided.

Camp will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, with a DARE party set on Friday, July 30, for participants and parents.

The camp is limited to 150 students. Applications are available at Hereford Junior High, any grade school, or at the Hereford Police Department, 212 N. Lee.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: In one of your columns you mentioned a lotion to bleach age spots. As a middle-aged woman, I have some pigment on my face. Do you think there is a kind of lotion which would fade it? Are there some side effects to these kinds of lotions? Could you suggest some other methods to bleach the pigment? I feel self-conscious about it.

DEAR READER: It is important to know what the skin spots really are. A scab-like, gray, brown or red area may be actinic keratosis. These are precancerous lesions and should be removed. Liquid nitrogen is often used for this, providing a good cosmetic effect as well. As many as 15 percent of such actinic lesions become squamous cell carcinomas.

Other brown spots are "liver spots." They have nothing to do with your liver. They may resemble a large freckle. They are caused by an accumulation of melanin pigment and are called lentigines. They are common on the backs of the hands and may be on the face. A hemorrhage into the skin may also cause these. If young people only knew how much they will not like such spots, they would help prevent them by avoiding excess sun exposure. Wearing gloves will help prevent these in later life.

Such spots can be removed by freezing the superficial area with liquid nitrogen, leaving normal skin without pigment. Some of the larger lentigines can be malignant, particularly those on the face. Again, freezing can remove them. But that points out why you want your doctor to examine your spots.

If the spot is simply increased pigmentation one can use creams such as Esoterica Medicated Fade Cream, Melanex and Eldoquin that contain hydroquinone. Cover the spots regularly and avoid the sun; that will help fade them in time.

For more information on changes in your skin and its care, read Special Report 129, About Your Skin, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/129, P.O. Box 5637, Riverton, NJ 08077-5637. If a person starts to care for his or her skin early in life many of these problems can be avoided and a person will look younger longer.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please comment on the surgical procedure called an episiotomy. It is time to bring it to the light of day. I have had six children and the procedure was done each time. I believe most were unnecessary. I had six 7-pound babies with normal pregnancies. My last "accepted surgical procedure" has left me with a problem of holding my stool. The doctor cut too close to the anus and I lost control of my bowel movements.

DEAR READERS: Who wouldn't be distressed with a similar problem! However, I do not know if your loss of control is from the incision or whether the incision was not done soon enough to prevent a tear that involved the muscles near the anus. One reason episiotomies are done is to prevent an uncontrolled tear that will cause such problems. Doctors like to wait and see if the baby's head, in particular, can be delivered without a tear, but if they wait too long, the tear is sudden and uncontrolled.

An uncomplicated episiotomy is easily sutured and prevents loss of muscle support.

NOTICE REGARDING POSSIBLE CHANGES IN AVAILABILITY OF ADVERTISED GOODS AND IN QUOTED PRICES. Because this piece is not prepared by this retail dealer, but by its wholesaler (HWI), which has warehouses at Cape Girardeau, Missouri; Lexington, South Carolina; Dixon, Illinois; Medina, Ohio; Woodburn, Oregon and Waco, Texas and because this piece is prepared several months in advance of the actual sale period, some items may not be immediately available on demand at this store due either to sales demand, which will be good for purchase of this particular item at the advertised price when additional inventories of the item are received. Due to unforeseen circumstances certain items may not be available at all, or a substitution will be suggested. This store and the HWI warehouse endeavor to avoid any such changes whenever possible, but sometimes they have no control over manufacturers and their problems. Each HWI store sets its own price. The prices quoted herein are subject to change due to possible printing errors or circumstances unforeseeable at the time of printing. The right to limit quantities is reserved by the retailer. Early shoppers will find the best selection.
