

Archie Fans Invited To "Duffy's Tavern"

Many radio fans who are already hepped on the word-mangling Ed Gardner (Archie) of airwave fame, will get a good glimpse of that prize prodigy in Paramount's "Duffy's Tavern," star-studded musical comedy today at the Ritz Theatre.

Previewers say fans won't be disappointed. Not only does Archie bring to the screen his own unique talents, but he also surrounds himself with "such gorgeous hunks of punkitude" as Betty Hutton, Paulette Goddard, Dorothy Lamour and Veronica Lake. In addition to all this feminine glamour, there's an assembly of masculine heart-throbs which could "out-sheik" the great Valentino himself. The list includes Alan Ladd, Brian Donley, Sonny Tufts, Arturo de Cordova and Barry Sullivan. Barry plays the romantic lead opposite Marjorie Reynolds. Yes, there's all this bright material, along with Bing Crosby, Eddie Bracken, Victor Moore, Bob Benchley, Barry Fitzgerald and practically every star on the Paramount lot to boot. Then, of course, Ed's got his own gang with him which includes Charley Cantor, the cotton-mouthed "Fingean," Eddie Green, the waiter, and Ann Thomas (Miss Duffy).

time now. The story, scripted by Melvin Frank and Norman Panama, concerns the shenanigans of that wise illiterate, Archie, who takes over Duffy's Tavern, a sixth-rate high class joint on Third Avenue, New York, while Duffy hies himself to the country for a vacation. Archie gets into a jam when he decides to feed fourteen ex-servicemen free-of-charge until they can resume their old jobs at a nearby phonograph factory. In the meantime, the books work up a cash deficit of $1200. To square himself with the law and Duffy, Arch and his pal, that lovable bungler, Victor Moore, raid a New York hotel housing stars in an attempt to round up enough entertainment for a big benefit party. According to preview commentaries, it's all ironed out in the end, but not before the constant action, excitement and laughs leave the audience limp and happy. Hal Walker has given the picture some fast-paced direction.

Price Increases Under New Plan To Be Negligible

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Any price increase under the administration's revised wage-price policy seemed likely today to be "negligible". That's the price administrator Chester Bowles' view of how President Truman's program of permitting price boosts only under rigid conditions will work out. In his statement at a news conference, the wage-price policy would "enlarge the realm of confusion". These were other developments on the hot issue of wages and prices: Secretary of Commerce Wallace said there is danger of another depression "if corporate profits stay up and wages down." He told reporters this could mean four to seven million people unemployed for years, once the expected buying boom is over. Bowles announced that retail price ceilings for new automobiles will be unveiled in four to five days. They are expected to be about the same as 1942 prices. And he hinted dealers would be required to absorb an increase in producers' ceilings. Rep. De Lacy (D-Wash) said in the house that his proposed legislation giving government employees 48 hours pay for 40 hours work would "lead the way to a national goal of higher wages and higher purchasing power." In his statement at a news conference the wage-price set forth by Mr. Truman had served to emphasize the administration's "determination to hold the price line against inflation." The policy permits price increases to balance wage hikes only under these circumstances: 1. Where straight time hourly wages lag behind the cost of living increase since January, 1941. 2. In order to correct inequities. 3. Where additional manpower is needed for essential reconversion industries. In all of these cases, Bowles asserted, "the price increases which may occur will be negligible."

Montez Is Star Of State's Technicolor Attraction

Solid entertainment for the entire family is offered at the new State theatre Sunday and Monday in the lavish Technicolor form of "Gypsy Wildcat," starring Maria Montez and Jon Hall.

It is a gay and exotic creation set against backgrounds of great beauty. So gaudy are the costumes and so picturesque are the elaborate castle settings that the film becomes a brilliant chromatic page from the fictional days of King Arthur and his knights of old. The gypsy life quite naturally lends itself to this sort of treatment. The photography is nothing short of splendid.

While there is no display of dramatic depth and deep sincerity, the film is charged with exciting moments of action for the average movie fan. There are escapes, charging armored soldiers, bows and arrows, stage coaches, moats and drawbridges and dancing gypsy girls in elaborate costumes, not to mention Maria Montez in a fetching black negligee.

Culberson Urges Senate Rejection Of Oil Agreement

AUSTIN, Nov. 3 (AP)—Emphatic rejection of the Anglo-American oil agreement, now before the United States senate, was urged today by Chairman Olin Culberson of the railroad commission, Texas' oil regulatory body.

Culberson said that copies of the agreement signed in London Sept. 24 differed from those originally distributed to the press in just one word which "changes the whole complexion of the agreement by exempting one of the chief British oil holdings, while subjecting all the oil resources of this country to international control and manipulation."

Child Labor Regulations Tighten As Manpower Shortages Easing

"Relaxation of manpower controls and the easing of manpower shortages has tightened restrictions on child labor regulations," Henry A. Clark, local office manager of the USES, said Saturday. He made public a release by Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau of the United States Department of Labor, which announced the revocation of wartime amendments to the child-labor regulations.

Child labor regulation No. 3, controlling the employment of 14 and 15 year old children has been restored to its prewar standards for all industries. Hazardous occupations order No. 5 regarding operation of power-driven wood-working machines will no longer contain the emergency exemption under which 16 and 17 year old minors were temporarily permitted to work on a few of the least hazardous of these machines.

Under the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the minimum age for most employment in establishments subject to the act is 16 years, with an 18 year minimum for specific hazardous occupations.

Look Out Below! Scientist At Work

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
(Substituting for Jack Stinnett)

WASHINGTON—If you saw a group of scientists standing on a rooftop hurling radio tubes at a concrete driveway far below you'd probably say they were wasting time—and tubes.

But it was such antics that helped in the development of the "VT" fuse, the thriller-diller gadget which is credited with helping to turn the tide in the battle of the Bulge and lick the buzz bombs and the kamikazes.

The "VT" is a miniature radio transmitting and receiving set which rides within a shell, bomb or rocket, causing the detonation of the projectile when it comes within pay-off distance of an air or ground target. The target itself, by reflecting the radio waves back to the projectile and causing the triggering of a mechanism, actually brings on its own grief.

When scientists of the Office of Scientific Research and Development began playing with the idea of producing such a "proximity fuse" back in 1940, they were faced with this question:

It is possible to develop radio vacuum tubes tiny enough to be fitted into the nose of a projectile but rugged enough to withstand the strain of being shot from a gun at a force 20,000 times the force of gravity?

First they mounted a conventional-sized radio vacuum tube in a lead block and took a pot-shot at the block with a .22 caliber rifle. The tube didn't even crack.

Then, armed with several types of miniature tubes, the scientists took to the rooftops at the Carnegie Institution of Washington. They immersed individual tubes in wax and then started smacking them down upon the concrete driveway far below.

The results, declares an official report of the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, "were encouraging."

Thus encouraged, the laboratory men betook themselves out to a farm in Vienna, Va., set up a home-made smooth-bore "gun" constructed from cold-rolled tubing, and started shooting projectiles containing tiny radio tubes into the Virginia ozone.

The glass withstood the strain and the rest of the tube components were not badly impaired. From that point on, the invesigators knew the trick could be handled. Various industrial firms were set to work producing "rugged" miniature tubes.

Lloyd Robinson's Pig Rakes In Top Price In Auction

Lloyd Robinson's grand champion pig brought top price of 50 cents a pound on the hoof at the Big Spring auction Saturday morning.

The fair's "Blue Boy" weighed in the neighborhood of 300 pounds. High bidder was Marvin Sewell, who also purchased the top ranking White hog at a record price of 45 cents a pound.

A total of 14 pigs were disposed of by Auctioneer Cliff Wiley, who conducted the sales in the County Warehouse barn.

ATC Passengers May Be Aboard Three Life Rafts

HONOLULU, Nov. 3 (AP)—Twenty-seven passengers and crewmen of an army transport plane were forced down at sea 450 miles east of Honolulu today, but all may be safe aboard three life rafts seen in the area.

The ATC said the rafts could accommodate 21 passengers, including a civilian woman and a WAC, and six passengers of the Liberator-type transport plane.

The transport was bound for the United States west coast when it was forced down at 7:40 a. m., more than four hours after it left Honolulu. The first rescue plane, which reached the scene an hour and a half later, radioed that the transport was still afloat and persons could be seen clinging to the wreckage.

The ATC did not disclose names of transport's passengers and crewmen, but it was believed they all were military personnel, except the civilian woman. There was no announcement as to the cause of the forced landing.

The transport plane went down only 50 miles from the regular route of patrol ships, but surface craft apparently had not reached the scene at the time of the radio report from the search plane.

Enough seaplanes have been dispatched to the area to accommodate 27 survivors, but rescue from the air will depend much upon condition of the sea, the ATC said.

Plan Program To Meet Serious Situation In Oil

DALLAS, Nov. 3 (AP)—The board of directors of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas today proposed a three-point program to meet what it called a serious situation in the oil industry.

The group voted to ask the senate petroleum committee to investigate a "perpendicular trust" situation in the American petroleum industry with a view to divorcing oil production and pipelines from refining and sales.

The directors also went on record as favoring serious consideration of forming an oil co-operative. A committee composed of E. B. Germany, L. M. Glasco and W. L. Dickens was appointed to study the proposal and report to the directors next Friday.

In its third action the board authorized Byrd to request the Surplus Property Board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to delay any commitment to dispose of war emergency pipelines until independent oilmen can consider the proper use of the lines "for the best good of the country in peace time."

"The oil producers of America have been the victims of a price squeeze since the war broke out," Byrd said. "The price of the only thing we have to sell, crude oil, has been frozen at a sub-normal level of $1.22 a barrel, national average, whereas everything we have to buy, such as labor and materials, have risen steadily. Early in the war the costs rose above the cost of replacement."

9,000 bales, or half of the anticipated yield, are in so far. That means a gross of better than a million dollars. Possibly $100,000 in grain has moved to date and this is just beginning to hit stride.

We have a regular Carlsbad Cavern oddity up our way. Of late a host of bats has taken refuge in the tile front of the office. Each evening at about dusk, or from 6:05 p. m. to 6:10 p. m. they swarm out by the hundreds. Quite a sight—and quite a nuisance.

Howard county, less than half way along on the Community Victory chest, is even further away on its Victory Loan E bond quota. At the end of the first week we had accounted for only about 12.8 per cent of our $330,000 assignment. Most of you must be waiting on somebody else.

The migratory farm labor camp was dedicated here Saturday. It is a fine building and already is paying dividends. One crew member told P. H. Villareal, placement assistant, that treatment had been so good here that "we stay 'til the last boll is picked."

EM, the post newspaper for the Big Spring Bombardier school, bowed out last week. To our notion it was better and much different from the average camp paper. Many share our provincial pride in thinking that our post has been, in many respects, better than ordinary.

Fair

enced warm competition from David Newton, Fairview, who was showing Black Monarchs males, and Melvin Griffith, Center Point, displaying white leghorn females. In the home baking contests, the connoisseurs were most impressed with cookies made by Mrs. S. C. Rhotan, cake baked by Mrs. E. T. O'Daniel, and bread mixed by Billie Jean Walker. Prize money, which totaled $570 and which went to first, second and third place winners in all events, was donated by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the annual fair. Attendance remained brisk until Saturday night when it slackened a bit.

Texas Is "New Nevada"

Judges Urged To Protect Children Of Broken Homes

By MARY L. KENNEDY

AUSTIN, Nov. 3 (AP)—Describing Texas as a "new Nevada" and Dallas as "another Reno," trial and appellate judges in session here today concluded that while they can do little to stop the avalanche of divorces they can do much to protect the children of broken or unfit homes from becoming delinquents.

Vigorous and far-reaching measures advocated by the judges in the closing discussion of a two-day meeting to discuss rules and procedure included: 1. Advocating the taking of a firmer stand by judges in divorce cases to see that a wise program is obtained for the future care of the child; opposing if necessary the lawyers contention.

2. Enabling a judge to specialize in welfare cases in order that he might devote full attention to the consideration of divorce, alimony and child placement.

3. Establishment by the state of a home for children whose parents are unfit to care for them—such home not to be a detention or corrective institution in the sense of Gatesville or Gainesville but a place of protection and training.

4. The closer coordination of all agencies in a community devoted to child welfare.

5. More efficient court machinery to handle the apprehending of men who skip to another county and fail to meet alimony payments.

The idea of permitting judges to specialize in welfare work was presented by Judge W. R. Blacklock of Edinburg. He said that as it now is, a judge must shift his attention, for example, from a lawsuit involving millions of dollars to a poor child whose parents are seeking a divorce.

He proposed that judges with a special aptitude for welfare work be permitted to devote full attention to it and the judiciary provide for such "domestic relations courts." In sparsely populated sections of the state, one judge could handle the work of several counties.

Judge Payne Busch of the 68th district court, Dallas, who termed Texas another Nevada and his town a new Reno, said "we will grow another crop of delinquents unless judges take a firmer stand and put child's welfare ahead of any other consideration."

He urged closer scrutiny of adoptions, saying this has been "turned into a racket and people are adopting children in order to obtain their insurance policies." J. Harris Gardner, judge of the 53rd district court, Austin, who led the discussion, said that in the consideration of juvenile delinquent cases it is the parent not the children who should be blamed.

"The worst parents," said Gardner, "are those who exert no control over their children themselves, and stand in the way of anyone else controlling them."

Just A Little Disgusted

Ell McComb Finds Okinawa Typhoon Cold, Miserable

"Your disgusted son." This was the way Ell McComb, SM 3/C, signed his Oct. 18 letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam A. McComb. Well, maybe he was—but not too much—and he had ample reason, for Ell had just been through the big typhoon that practically levelled Okinawa. His description of the fearful blow tells graphically how destruction was wrought on the island. On Oct. 9 the wind was so strong in the morning that already it was blowing ships toward the beach. "We were standing watch, and the old tower was fairly weaving. The wind kept blowing harder, blowing spray from the sea way up over the hill the tower was on. By 1 o'clock we retired from watch and the door of the tower had been blown in. The beach already was lined with ships. Our tents were all blown down. The wind climbed and down came the tower like so much paper," said Ell.

As his party headed for the hills, coats and tents were flying through the air. They found a Jap tomb, and "spent a miserable, cold, stinking six hours." Thirteen were in the place—so part of the group started off again, holding on to each other to keep from falling. All the while pieces of galvanized iron from huts were whipping about, and later Ell learned one man had been "cut in half" by a piece of metal. They headed for a naval base and found an officers' mess, sheltered by a gully, still standing. There they got coffee and something to eat. Two men, who drowned in the surf, were rolled in blankets at one end of the hall. Injured were brought in, but there were no medical supplies but morphine. Later two amputations were performed under trying circumstances. Finally, he lay down on a platform and went to sleep. Next morning he awoke cold, stiff and numb. He and his companions went to the galley, but it had been blown away. They got back to their camp and everything was devastated. Finally, they encountered an officer on a beached reifer and got all the canned fruit they could carry, 35 cans of milk, 75 pounds of coffee and a like amount of sugar, plus some C rations. It was a lucky break, for shortly afterwards the army froze supplies. The men managed to survive off their rations and begged for food from ships, finally managing to get one hot meal. Back at their station they were throwing up quarters when ordered first to restore the tower. This they did, getting it back into operation. Next day inquiry was made about their general welfare. By that time, however, Ell was more or less in the disgusted stage.

Raiders Routed By Rice Owls, 13 To 0

HOUSTON, Nov. 3 (P)—Jess Neeley's rejuvenated Rice Owls, who have discovered that winning is more fun than losing, went on to wrack up the Red Raiders from Texas Tech, 13 to 0, this afternoon at Rice Stadium before some 17,000 spectators.

The Owls, but for an opening quarter threat by big Walter Schlinkman and company, were never in much defensive trouble and pushed over second and third period touchdowns to annex the decision.

The most spectacular play of the afternoon came in the third period when Huey Keeney, that moving little man from Mount Pleasant, Texas, found a hole over the Tech right guard and scampered home free for 70 yards and a touchdown. Nemir's extra point conversion boosted the tally to 13 to 0.

Keeney, who plays football with lots of dash, and he fumbles some, too, uncorked some sensational punting during the afternoon.

Early in the ball game, he pulled the Owls out of a hole when he booted one for 68 yards halfway back to Mount Pleasant. Again, he got off a quick kick for 60 yards and once behind his goal line laid a foot under the pigskin for 50 yards.

George Walsley, toast of the tri-cities, made his appearance and the little Baytown bullet got off some nice runs. Walsley scored the first Owl touchdown from the Tech two in the closing seconds of the first half.

The Owls after the opening minutes were minus the services of Red Anderson, who starred at Texas last week. He suffered a leg injury.

C. W. Pearce, freshman from Ballinger who got his chance when Gerald Weatherly was ill and Tom Murphey was slowed down by a hip injury, played good ball at center.

In credit to Del Morgan's ace, big Walt Schlinkman, the Tech powerhouse was out in good shape. Heavily bandaged, he played only part of the ball game.

R. W. Moyers, big end from Lubbock, played rousing ball in the Tech forward wall while Frank Ottmers, pass catching wingman was also a busy young man.

The reason for Victory Bond Drive is a simple one. Necessity. You must provide Eleven Billion Dollars to hospitalize our wounded ... to re-train them so they can make their own way ... to rehabilitate them ... to give them their chance, as they so nobly gave us ours—for Peace. You must feed and clothe our men still overseas ... furnish transportation for those who at last may come home. Too, you must pay in the future the cost of the weapons of war that brought us victory in the past. War is costly. Certainly Peace is worth the price.
