Justice Department eyes special counsel for Cisneros probe

By SONYA ROSS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department is looking into whether an independent counsel should conduct a criminal probe into reports of possible improper activities by HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros.
Cisneros acknowledged Thursday that he made around $50,000 in payments to his former mistress, Linda Medlar, on three occasions after he took over the Department of Housing and Urban Development in January 1993 - something he denied two months ago. He said he used proceeds from the sale of assets he relinquished to take the government job.
Justice Department sources, quoted in today's Washington Post, said the department was reviewing allegations that Cisneros misled FBI agents during background interviews as part of his Senate confirmation.
In a written statement, the Justice Department said it "is proceeding as the law requires" after getting information related to material broadcast Sept. 12 by the syndicated television show "Inside Edition."
The sources told The Post that the Justice Department is expected to examine all tapes or transcripts from the program to determine whether other matters should be investigated.
In response to questions from Attorney General Janet Reno, the Justice Department said later Thursday it is proceeding under the Ethics in Government Act to determine whether information it has received about the payments to Medlar "warrant a preliminary investigation."

"Obviously I'll cooperate with any interviews," Cisneros told The Post. "I look forward to explaining this to the Justice Department."
Medlar sued Cisneros for fraud and breach of contract in July, alleging he reneged on a verbal agreement to pay her $4,000 a month until her teen-age daughter graduated from college. She sought $256,000 and unspecified punitive damages.
Cisneros, the former mayor of San Antonio, denied having an agreement with Medlar, a former San Antonio political consultant who now lives in Lubbock, Texas. He said he gave her money out of compassion.
Medlar's attorneys have said Cisneros has already paid close to $200,000. Cisneros did not dispute that sum in an interview Thursday with The Associated Press.
The ethics law requires the attorney general to seek the appointment of an independent counsel by a panel of three federal appeals court judges if information about alleged violations of federal criminal law "is specific enough and from a sufficiently credible source."
Investigations by two such independent counsels are now underway into the financial affairs of President and Mrs. Clinton in Arkansas and related matters known as Whitewater, and travel by Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy.
Cisneros wife, Mary Alice, had filed for divorce after the Medlar relationship was revealed. She eventually withdrew the action and the couple reconciled.
All of the money Medlar received came "purely out of my personal resources," not from friends or political acquaintances, Cisneros said.

In a statement in July about Medlar's lawsuit, Cisneros said he hadn't paid her since January 1993, although her suit contended the last payment was in January 1994.
On Thursday, Cisneros said Medlar last received money in June 1993, and that he had erred in the earlier statement. "I didn't say it very well," he said. "I was saying I did not intend to provide further assistance."
He told Medlar he would not be able to continue the aid in late 1992. "She expressed concern that she didn't have a job and so forth. I told her I would work out a way to assist her," Cisneros said.
Cisneros said he enlisted the help of friends in finding Medlar a job. Among the friends was Morris Jaffe, 71, a San Antonio businessman with holdings in oil and real estate who gave Medlar a $5,000 loan.

White House shuffle may be delayed

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - An 11th hour meeting with President Clinton may have scrambled a White House shakeup plan, perhaps leaving press secretary Dee Dee Myers in her job for several more months rather than replacing her immediately.
Myers had been widely expected Thursday to be replaced by State Department spokesman Michael McCurry. However, that switch was left in doubt after Myers met with the president late in the day and presented her case for revamping her office, officials said.
The idea was that Myers, the most visible woman in the White House, be given an opportunity to serve for a time in the restructured press secretary's role, officials said. In any event, she would leave the White House by year's end, clearing the way for McCurry to take over.
Clinton is said to still feel he needs someone older and with more Washington experience than the 33-year-old Myers, a transplanted Californian and veteran of Clinton's presidential campaign.
Nearly 10 weeks in the making, the staff shakeup is intended to remove a cloud of confusion from Clinton's White House, instilling more discipline in the staff, clearing up lines of authority and assigning specific responsibilities.
White House chief of staff Leon Panetta has concluded the White House needs a sharper focus and keener sense of responsibilities. And Clinton, sagging in the polls and concerned about likely Democratic losses in November elections, feels the administration has done a poor job of telling Americans about its achievements.
A central element of the shakeup is the separation of the communications office and the press office, where the lines of authority have been blurred.
Mark Gearan, currently the communications chief, will be given a new job under Panetta to oversee strategy, planning, communications and the honing of Clinton's message, officials said.
The press secretary will get the prestigious rank of assistant to the president and move into Clinton's inner circle of advisers. Myers' lack of access was a source of frustration both for her and for reporters seeking information.
Myers has told associates she would resign rather than take a lesser job. The resignation of a high-profile woman could be troublesome for Clinton since at least two other women are leaving in the shakeup.
Senior adviser Bruce Lindsey will get a clearer mandate, perhaps moving to the counsel's office. And counselor George Stephanopoulos is working under Panetta.

Getting her balance

Aryell Rodriguez, 2, daughter of Tracy Rodriguez, took advantage of Thursday's clear, but cool, weather to join babysitter Olga Leal and her child at Dameron Park. Aryell spent some time on the suspended bridge on the playground equipment, first getting a feel for the free-swinging platform, then slowly rising to her feet, then standing in triumph at her accomplishment. Friday is the first full day of Autumn, with September winding to a close and winter on the horizon.

Beet harvest to begin

Harvest of 26,000 acres of sugar beets is scheduled to begin Oct. 5, reports the growers association.
In the September issue of "Texas Sugar Beet News," a potential of "above average" quality is forecast.
Throughout the region, the sugar beet crop looks good.
"Our sugar content is about one percent higher than normal and could be the best ever," Dennis Printz, agricultural manager of Holly Sugar Corporation said.
"We have the potential for our overall quality to be much above average," Printz added.
This year's overall crop will include production from 400 acres of beets in the Artesia, N.M., and Roswell, N.M., areas. This year's crop in southeastern New Mexico is the first ever.

"There is excellent water available for irrigation in that region," said Printz.
Beets from New Mexico will be processed at the Holly plant in Hereford.
Printz reported that eventually, Holly hopes the Artesia-Roswell production will enable the Hereford plant to run a few additional days prior to the delivery of beets in this area.

Fall arrives to cool weather

By The Associated Press
Much cooler weather has ushered autumn into Texas.
Fall officially arrived early today, but from all appearances, it began Thursday, one day ahead of schedule.
A strong cold front moved across the state, dropping temperatures to record lows in some Texas cities and near-records in several places.
Though cooler temperatures are normal in September, weather watchers said it's rare to have the first big cold front move in within hours of the equinox.
"It's just one of those things. The timing couldn't have been any better," Brian Curran, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Fort Worth, said Thursday.
"It usually doesn't start getting cool around here until October or so. And it's kind of unusual for this storm to be this powerful and this far south, but it's not unheard of."

The National Weather Service said skies should be clear across most of the state today with temperatures in the 70s and 80s.
By early last night, the cold front had passed completely through West Texas, leaving cooler temperatures and clearing skies, but brisk winds, in its wake.
Gusts near 40 mph blew the front into North and East Texas about dawn Thursday, dropping temperatures nearly 10 degrees in just a few hours. A brisk northerly wind blew between 10 and 20 mph with gusts over 20 mph at a few locations.
The temperature at Junction was 30 degrees colder than the day before, while Austin was 18 degrees colder and San Antonio was 17 degrees colder.
Temperatures were in the 40s across the state Thursday night, threatening the all-time lows in many cities.
The front was located between Corpus Christi and Brownsville by 8 p.m., and a few isolated showers were reported in South Central and Southeast Texas. But by day's end, the front had pushed well offshore, and with its passage, precipitation had all but ended except in the Gulf area.
Most parts of Texas, while feeling the cooler temperatures, had partly cloudy skies but no rain.
The last time temperatures in the Dallas-Fort Worth area dipped into the 40s in September was 1983, the same year a freeze gripped the area for 12 straight days that December, NWS meteorologist Skip Ely said.

Traffic accident results in 'mooving' violations

DALLAS (AP) - Rush-hour motorists were warned "there are cattle all over downtown" today as deputies on horseback rounded up livestock spilled from an overturned truck.
The truck spilled some 110 head of cattle in the 4 a.m. wreck near here Interstate 35 and Interstate 30 merge, said Sgt. Jeff Teurman of the Dallas County Sheriff's Department.
Rush-hour traffic was snarled as authorities closed off eastbound Interstate 30 for about half a mile and rerouted vehicles from the portion of Interstate 35 that merges with 30.
Four hours later, authorities had rounded up about 50 cattle, but others continued to roam across a vast area around downtown Dallas, Teurman said.
"We gotten about 50 so far, but there's still a bunch loose downtown that they're trying to round up now," Teurman said.
About half of the cattle were either killed or had to be euthanized by veterinarians at the scene, authorities said.
Dallas County sheriff's deputies on horseback, Dallas police and some inmates from the Lew Sterrett Justice Center, the county's jail, pitched in to help remove dead and live cattle from the overturned truck, Teurman said.

Some cattle were reported miles away from the accident scene, near Baylor University Medical Center, Fair Park, in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas and in east Dallas as well as at numerous intersections in downtown Dallas.
Deputies built an emergency cattle pen in the middle of Interstate 30 so that cattle could be kept there as they were rounded up. Live cattle taken from the overturned truck were hauled to a sheriff's station in another cattle truck.
Dallas police officials asked radio stations to broadcast warnings to motorists that "there are cattle all over downtown Dallas."
Teurman said it appeared the truck driver had gotten in the wrong lane at the highways' intersection, then overcompensated as he tried to change lanes and the vehicle toppled over.
"He may have been going a little too fast. The trailers tend to be a little top heavy anyway and trying to handle one is not so easy, especially when they're loaded with cows," Teurman said.
The cattle spill was the second in two months in Dallas. On Aug. 11, a trailer carrying 75 cattle overturned during rush hour. Eleven of the animals died; the others were captured.

Administration revamps nuclear policy to keep 'hedge' for future

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Clinton administration, in rethinking U.S. nuclear arms policy, has decided not only to play the same disarmament hand it inherited from the Bush administration, but also to slip a nuclear ace up its sleeve.
In describing what he called a new way of thinking about nuclear weapons, Defense Secretary William Perry said the key feature was flexibility - being willing to shrink the nuclear arsenal as planned but at the same time keeping in store the expertise, materials and facilities to reverse the cutbacks if need be.
"It's prudent to provide some hedge," he told a Pentagon news conference Thursday.
One form of that "hedge" concerns the U.S. nuclear warheads being taken out of active service in order to comply with the 1991 Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty and its sequel, the 1993 START II deal. Instead of them all being destroyed, some will be put in a kind of reserve so America can rearm fairly quickly in case the prospect of nuclear confrontation arises again.
The START treaties require that long-range missiles be destroyed, but not their warheads.
Perry says this approach is necessary in light of the Clinton administration's view that Russia's efforts to convert to democracy may fail, and that a regime in Moscow may arise that is hostile to the United States.

Perry noted in a speech this week that with 25,000 nuclear weapons still in its possession, Russia remains the only nation capable of destroying the United States. The United States has about 8,000 nuclear weapons.
Some nuclear strategists outside the government think Perry's approach is badly flawed, arguing that it is evidence that the administration is not ready to accept that nuclear arms have lost most of their usefulness.
"The policy might more aptly be labeled 'Cold War Lite,'" said Stan Norris, a leading nuclear specialist at the Natural Resources Defense Council, a research group that advocates faster nuclear cuts and greater nuclear safety.
An eight-year probated sentence was assessed Chris Guerrero, 18, who entered a plea of guilty to indecency with a child.
Terms of probation of Marie Gonzales, previously convicted of tampering with government records, were modified and extended a year. Her original sentence was eight years' probation. She was placed on intensive supervision for six months.
On a motion to revoke probation of Joe Nadier Cera, Judge Guiley signed an agreed order to modify terms of probation. Cera was placed on intensive probation for six months. He originally was sentenced to 10 years' probation for sexual assault of a child.

Nurse wins $41.7 million

HOUSTON (AP) - A 64-year-old registered nurse holds the lone winning ticket from Wednesday's $41.7 million Texas Lotto drawing. Not only that, she bought another ticket worth $1,700.

"I'm thinking, 'Am I going to live to collect? I am so excited!'" Jean Graham of Houston said Thursday night.

Lotto officials said Mrs. Graham is the largest single winner since the game began nearly two years ago. The previous record was $41.5 million, paid to Houston bus driver Wanda Wilson after the Feb. 23 drawing.

Mrs. Graham picked the winning numbers - 7, 10, 16, 17, 23 and 47 - by picking family members' birthdays and the number of years she has been married, minus one.

Discontent spreading on USF&W proposals

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) - Another shot has been fired in the spreading battle over property rights.

Between 300 and 400 farmers, ranchers and politicians attended a Wednesday night meeting where complaints were aired about the Endangered Species Act and other federal laws they say violate landowners' rights.

They accused the federal government of land-grabbing and violating the Fifth Amendment, the constitutional provision that says property can't be taken without due process of law or without compensation.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry called on the audience to continue fighting for property rights.

"It's not a critters, birds, bees, foxes, jaguars issue. It's about land control. You've got it, and (the federal government) wants to control it," Perry said.

"Farmers and ranchers and rural property owners across the state are finally standing up against the federal government and environmental extremists and saying, 'Enough is enough,'" Perry said.

The gathering echoed similar sessions held over the past two months in Dripping Springs, Llano, Austin and Fredericksburg.

The meetings have been triggered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's study of a proposal to identify 800,000 acres in parts of 33 Central Texas counties as critical habitat for the golden-cheeked warbler, an endangered songbird.

No one from the Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Interior Department or Environmental Protection Agency attended the Georgetown meeting.

One speaker, Floy Lilley, chairwoman of the Free Enterprise Institute at the University of Texas, said, "I will do to my deathbed day all possible legal things in order to restore our Constitution and take back not just Texas, but America."

Jean Hawbaker, an environmentalist from Cedar Park, said many people misunderstand the species protection efforts.

"If land is identified as endangered species habitat, it doesn't mean property owners lose all use of the land. Opponents of the act have been off-base about that for a long, long time," she said.

Fightin' Aggie Band celebrating 100th birthday

By MELINDA RICE

Bryan-College Station Eagle COLLEGE STATION, Texas - In an institution chock-full of traditions, the Fightin' Texas Aggie Band emerges head and bass horns above the rest.

The band is the most visible and enduring tradition at a university that also boasts the 12th Man, the Corps of Cadets, bonfire and a winning football team.

"The fact is, the Aggie band is probably the most visible element outside the university," said Ray Toler, director of the band since 1989. "When the band takes the field, that IS A&M out there."

The maroon-and-white musical fervor will reach a new high this weekend as the band prepares to celebrate its 100th anniversary with more than 1,200 pairs of marching feet in a reunion band.

More than 900 former band members will join the 1994-95 band's 350 cadets at Kyle Field on Saturday to form a 120-yard letter "T." The big block letter has been the band's signature formation since 1929.

But the band's history predates its signature march by 35 years.

A bugle-blowing bootmaker led 12 musical men into the pages of Aggie history in 1894 when he formed the first Fightin' Texas Aggie Band.

Joseph Holick was a cobbler who repaired boots for A&M cadets. He lived on campus and, at night, he often played his clarinet. The school's commandant offered Holick a pay raise if he would learn to play the bugle and call reveille and taps for the cadets.

Holick took the offer one step farther and asked to form a band. He returned to bootmaking once the band was up and marching, but he often filled in when A&M needed a bandmaster.

In 1924, A&M hired Lt. Col. Richard Dunn, an Army bandmaster and veteran of the Spanish-American War, who would become one of the Aggie band's most revered leaders, said Don Powell, coauthor of a book about the band.

Dunn wrote music for the band, including "The Aggie War Hymn," and "The Spirit of Aggieland" - the fight song and alma mater played today. He also introduced the intricate marching style that has made the Fightin' Texas Aggie Band nationally famous, including the trademark block "T" and the now-famous bugle rank - a row of bugle-toting seniors who march in front of the rest of the band. The buglers were added to provide leadership and make the ranks look good.

"The bugles actually don't even play," said Toler. "The trumpets actually sound the recall."

Besides the marches, Dunn jazzed up the uniforms. During his tenure as band director, band membership increased by more than 300 percent.

By World War II, A&M and its 250-man band were famous enough to attract the attention of Hollywood. Film makers arrived at Texas A&M in 1943 to shoot "We've Never Been Licked," starring Robert Mitchum and Ann Gwynne. Memorabilia from the movie, including the drum major's baton, are displayed on campus in the Sam Houston Sanders Corps of Cadets Center.

"It's very patriotic. It's very pro-Aggie. It's very pro-American," said center curator Joe Fenton about

"We've Never Been Licked."

Richard Dunn retired from the band directorship in 1946 after drafting one of his former students, E.V. Adams, to take up the baton.

"When I was a sophomore, Col. Dunn used to tell me to keep up my work on the cornet. He would say, 'One day I want you to direct this band.' I thought he was bullying me, but I went to music school after graduation just in case he wasn't," the late band director has been quoted as saying.

Adams fine-tuned the band's marching style, putting in place the system still used today. Each band member takes 30-inch steps. Every sixth step lands the member on a yard line.

"Colleagues are in awe of our formations," said Toler.

After the band's performance during halftime at this year's football game against Louisiana State University, the LSU band director told Toler, "The Aggie band just seems to get better and better."

The band performs a different marching routine every week - a routine it learns in seven one-hour practices.

"They don't want to do the same drill two weeks in a row," said Toler. "They'd be very upset with me if I suggested it."

The Aggie band is the only major university band that marches with military precision - a holdover tradition from the days when Adams was band director.

His successor, Col. Joe T. Haney, concentrated on writing and improving the band's music. When he took up the baton, he pledged to leave the band's style unchanged.

Toler, Haney's successor, has done the same.

The original dozen-member band has grown into a 350-member national phenomenon. In 1989, the band marched in the shadow of the U.S. Capitol during George Bush's inaugural parade.

"The Aggie band always gets a standing ovation - even from hostile crowds," said Powell. "Even in this day and age, people appreciate quality."

In the beginning, all the band members - like all A&M students - were male and earned military commissions.

At today's Texas A&M women are admitted as students, and Corps membership is optional - most students opt out of it. Of 43,000 students at the university this fall, only about 2,000 joined the Corps.

Many of those who joined did so only to join the band, said Gen. Thomas Darling, commandant of the Corps of Cadets.

"If we didn't have the band, I think there would be a lot less interest in the Corps," he said.

Chad Lewis agrees. The senior cadet already had a four-year scholarship to Baylor when he visited a friend at A&M. He heard the band, and that was it. Four years later he is a member of the bugle rank and wouldn't be anywhere else.

Circus slates performances in Hereford

Circus Reno International will be coming to Hereford for two shows Saturday at 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. The circus will be located north of the Kids, Inc. Field on East 15th Street.

Circus Reno is appearing here under the sponsorship of Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers. Brent Harrison said the appearance will help provide funds for the Crimestopper program.

Circus Reno International is a two-hour extravaganza of family entertainment, featuring animals, acrobats, jugglers and continuous excitement.

Featured acts include The Globe of Death, in which two men ride high-powered motorcycles in a race inside a 12-foot steel globe, reaching speeds of 60 mph. Another crowd pleaser will be The Wheel of Destiny, a gravity-defying act performed 40 feet above the ground.

On the program will be elephants, gorillas, dogs, horses, ponies, acrobats, trapeze artists, clowns, skating acts, magic, balancing and juggling.

Half-price coupons are available at many Hereford stores. Patrons will be able to purchase elephant rides prior to each performance.

"There are a lot of groups that talk about tradition - we live tradition," he said.

The band members, women and men, live in the same dorms. They live together, get up at 5:30 a.m. together, eat together, practice together and study together. The average grade-point average in the band is 2.7.

"It's the strength, the camaraderie and the dedication of the members of the band that make it succeed," said Toler.

He said the same thing will make

Saturday's reunion march succeed.

The combined 1,000-plus band will have one practice session before the performance at half-time during the football game against Southern Mississippi. But Toler isn't worried.

In fact, he's looking to the future. "We're enjoying this, but like anything else, it's time for the celebration to be over," he said.

Toler is already busy planning for the band's next 100 years.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Everyone is welcome to join FUMC members in the following Sunday schedule of events: 9:30 a.m. - Sunday school; 10:45 a.m. - morning worship; noon - Teachers Recognition Luncheon; 6 p.m. - evening worship; 6 p.m. - UMYF Snack Supper and program.

Dr. Williamson's sermon is entitled "Turning On A Light In A Cold, Dark World," the scripture is taken from John 1:1-5.

During the morning worship members of Mrs. Simpson's and Mrs. Sliney's Sunday School Class will be gifted with Bibles. The red letter edition of the New Revised Standard Version Children's Bible is being given to each child as a symbol of their spiritual as well as educational growth in Sunday School. Those receiving Bibles are: Josh and Jordan Hicks, Will Johnson, Brandon Trotter, Jimmy Cook, Linzy Woodard and Wendy Haun.

Immediately following the morning worship service, there will be a service of consecration and noon luncheon for elementary, youth, and adult Sunday school teachers and their families as directed by the education committee chaired by Dee Anne Trotter.

Former FUMC pastor and district superintendent, Dr. Clifford Trotter, has been invited to speak to the teachers and family members at the luncheon.

CENTRAL CHURCH OF CHRIST

Come worship at the Central Church of Christ. You will find a friendly group of people trying to restore New Testament Christianity. Using the Bible only as our guide, we seek to worship as the early church worshiped. We will teach only those things they taught, and we will try to live by the principals in God's word. We have thrown away all denominational ideas and creeds of men. We simply want to be Christians, followers of Christ.

In God's word we find the church to be a family. A place where people get involved in each others lives and love each other. Together we work to proclaim the good news of Jesus Christ to a lost world. We strive to study God's word and to grow spiritually.

We would invite everyone to come and study with us. If you would like to study in your home we will be happy to do so. We have study courses that can be taken by mail. If you will send us your name and address we will send you a course free.

We worship Sunday at 10:25 a.m. and 6 p.m. We have bible study Sunday at 9:30 a.m. and Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The title of the sermon to be given at the Sunday morning worship service by the Rev. Don Shepherd, interim pastor, is "The Wilderness Ahead." The scripture lessons are Exodus 32:12-23 and John 17:6-22.

Sunday school begins at 9:30 a.m. and Don Shepherd teaches the adult class.

Fellowship time is held between Sunday school and the worship service in the large fellowship hall. Come and meet with old friends and make new ones while enjoying refreshments.

The youth groups will meet Sunday evening. The junior highs will meet from 5-6 p.m. and the senior highs from 6:30-7:30 p.m. The two groups meet together for refreshments and fellowship from 6-6:30 p.m.

Prayer group meets Monday at 6 p.m. at the church.

Choir practice begins at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

CHRISTIAN ASSEMBLY CHURCH

Pastor Don Cherry and the church congregation invite the public to attend all services at the church located on S. Main St.

We have dismissed Sunday school for the time being and changed our Sunday morning worship service time to 10:30. The Sunday evening service will remain the same (6 p.m.) as will the Wednesday night service at 7.

Herd freshmen destroy Canyon

Henry Hernandez ran for four touchdowns, many set up by a staunch defense, as the Hereford freshmen football team routed Canyon 48-12 Thursday in Whiteface Stadium.

On the road in Wolfforth Thursday, the Herd junior varsity and sophomore teams both lost to Frenship teams: the JV 37-6 and the sophomores 30-26.

In Hereford, the Herd freshmen took an 8-0 lead in the first quarter on Hernandez' 17-yard run and Jeremy Urbanczyk's two-point conversion run.

Hereford scored four touchdowns in the second quarter, as the Herd defense kept Canyon on Canyon's side of the field nearly the whole quarter.

Jacob Gonzalez gave Hereford its second touchdown, running 50 yards despite being facemasked after only 10 yards (Hereford declined the penalty, of course). Urbanczyk ran for another two points.

Hernandez scored consecutive touchdown runs of 1 yard and 16 yards—one set up by Canyon snapping over the punter's head. The pass for two failed on both TD's.

Canyon fumbled on a kickoff return, setting up a 26-yard touchdown run by Tate Head. Hereford led 36-0 at halftime.

Canyon scored twice in the third quarter, both on short runs. Between the Canyon scores, Hernandez broke loose for a 65-yard TD run, and the run for two failed.

Hernandez recovered a fourth-quarter fumble, setting up Hereford's seventh touchdown, a three-yard run by Daniel Tijerina.

In Wolfforth, the Herd JV just had a bad game, coach Craig Yenzler said.

"We're going through a learning process," Yenzler said. "We've got to learn to prepare for games—that's what JV is for."

The Frenship JV jumped on Hereford early, building a 24-0 halftime lead. Hereford scored in the fourth quarter, when Joseph Artho hit Ruben Flores for a 36-yard touchdown pass. Artho threw to Tripp Robison for the two-point conversion.

"We've got to learn from our mistakes and get better on the way," Yenzler said, "and I believe we will."

After blowout losses in its first few games, the Herd sophomore team's 30-26 loss indicated significant progress.

Frenship jumped out to a 22-0 lead, but Hereford got on the board before halftime on Freddy Jimenez' two-yard run, and Adan Tarin kicked the extra point.

In the third quarter, Hereford's Heath Kirkeby ran one yard for a score and the kick failed, and Frenship answered with a touchdown and two-point conversion to make it 30-13.

Kirkeby had a 47-yard run for a touchdown, with Tarin's kick, and Stephen Cloud returned an interception 52 yards for a touchdown (the kick failed).

Frenship's lead was cut to only 30-26, but neither team could score in the fourth quarter.

Tennis match set for 10 a.m.

Hereford's team tennis match with Canyon set for Saturday in Hereford will start at 10 a.m., Herd coach Ed Coplen announced today.

Frenship favored over Hereford

Hereford will be an eight-point underdog to Frenship, according to the Harris Rating System, when the football teams meet at 7:30 tonight in Whiteface Stadium.

Hereford jumped 23 spots in Harris' Class 4A rankings after its 24-21 win Friday over Coronado, which Harris had as a 16-point favorite in that game.

Hereford is now ranked 63rd with a power rating of 183. Frenship is ranked 28th with a rating of 194.

Borger is the top team from District 1-4A, ranked 35th at 191. Pampa is right behind: 36th at 190. The other teams in 1-4A are: Randall, 55th at 184; Hereford, 63rd at 183; Canyon, 132nd at 170; Dumas, 148th at 165; and Caprock, 175th at 156.

In other games involving area teams, Harris picks: Pampa by 12 at Andrews; Randall by 7 over Levelland; Tulia by 12 at Caprock; Borger by 4 over Estacado; Littlefield by 7 over Canyon; Dumas by 18 at Sanford-Fritch; Palo Duro by 6 over Tascosa; Amarillo High by 9 over Monterey; Plainview by 17 at Lubbock High; River Road by 24 over Dimmitt; Friona by 8 at Dalhart; and Sunray by 16 over Vega.

In the Battle for Odessa, Harris picks Odessa High by 7 over Odessa Permian.

Congress could save baseball season

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Baseball players promised angry congressmen that taking away the league's antitrust exemption would end the baseball strike.

Union head Donald Fehr told a House subcommittee Thursday that the walkout would end before next season if lawmakers enact legislation that would allow players to sue owners and let a court decide if a salary cap is an illegal restraint of trade.

"If the bill is passed, it will bring baseball back," testified Los Angeles pitcher Orel Hershiser, wearing a double-breasted Navy suit instead of Dodger blue. "The players will return to the field. It's a promise."

Fehr said there was an outside chance the World Series could still be played this year if Congress acted quickly on the antitrust bill and President Clinton signs it. Clinton said last week that baseball's antitrust exemption must be reexamined, although he didn't commit himself to a position.

"I don't like this room; I want to be on the dirt," said Cecil Fielder of the Detroit Tigers, among the eight players attending the hearing.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig defended the owners' antitrust exemption, created by a 1922 U.S. Supreme Court decision that was reaffirmed in 1953 and 1972. The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 10-7 on June 23 against a blanket repeal of the exemption, but the bill discussed Thursday would amend the law in two ways:

- Players could sue owners if the

UCLA, USC continue through tough schedules

By The Associated Press
UCLA and Southern Cal have something to learn about making schedules if this is their idea of breathers.

Coming off games against nationally ranked Tennessee and Nebraska, No. 18 UCLA probably would like to have an easy one for its Pac-10 opener. So who do the Bruins invite into the Rose Bowl this weekend? Washington State, which is 2-0 and ranked 22nd.

Across town, No. 19 USC, coming off tough outings against No. 17 Washington and No. 5 Penn State, did only a bit better than UCLA. The Trojans opened the door to Baylor, which is unranked despite starting 3-0.

The UCLA-Washington State game is one of five matching ranked teams. The showcase of the five is No. 7 Colorado, which routed No. 16 Wisconsin last week, calling on No.

4 Michigan. Also No. 13 North Carolina is at defending national champion and third-ranked Florida State. Washington is at No. 6 Miami and No. 25 Indiana is at Wisconsin.

The rest of the Top Ten features No. 2 Nebraska at home to lightly regarded Pacific, Rutgers at Penn State, No. 8 Arizona at Stanford, Purdue at No. 9 Notre Dame and East Tennessee at No. 10 Auburn.

In other games involving ranked teams, Tulane is at No. 11 Alabama, Southern Mississippi is at No. 12 Texas A&M, No. 15 Texas is at TCU, Houston is at No. 20 Ohio State, No. 23 Tennessee is at Mississippi State and Western Carolina is at No. 24 North Carolina State.

No. 1 Florida, fresh from a 31-0 thrashing of Tennessee at Knoxville, and No. 21 Oklahoma are idle.

Last season, UCLA knocked out Washington State, which knocked out

Bruins quarterback Wayne Cook, to no avail.

"I'm looking forward to playing a full game against them," said Cook, who went out in the first quarter of a 40-27 victory because of a bruised kidney.

"Somebody said they were going to knock me out of the game and they ended up doing it. I don't think it was anything dirty."

A very large part of the arsenal returns this week for the Bruins. J.J. Stokes, who caught two TD passes against Washington State last year, has been out with a bruised left thigh. He's expected to see limited action.

"I'd like to see our offense with all its parts. I can't wait until that happens," said Cook, who is 60-for-95 for 716 yards and three touchdowns with four interceptions.

Washington State coach Mike Price agrees with that. "It's been awhile since we've given one up. We're working real hard to keep the slate clean. UCLA will be a real challenge," Price said.

But the Cougars aren't pushovers, UCLA coach Terry Donahue warns. "They have tremendously improved the speed of their defensive team over the past three or four years through their recruiting," he said. "They really are athletic and very fast. They're very good."

Baylor coach Chuck Reedy isn't about to ballyhoo the Bears for national honors just for beating Louisiana Tech, San Jose State and Oklahoma State. USC likely will tell him where his team really stands.

"Obviously they're the most talented team we've played this year, without question," Reedy said. "I doubt there's anybody better we'll play all year."

But after last week's 38-14 loss to Penn State, in which Rob Johnson was sacked six times, USC is taking nothing for granted.

"They're a good team," coach John Robinson said. "It's hard to tell much on their first two games, but in the last game (14-10 over Oklahoma State), they did some things. Their defense looks very good."

"You're going to be surprised when you see them. They have a physical presence that sort of reminds me of North Carolina."

Speaking of North Carolina, the Tar Heels are up against it facing Florida State, which has yet to lose a league game since joining the Atlantic Coast Conference three seasons ago. The Seminoles, 3-0 in the ACC already this year, could take a stranglehold on a third straight league title by making North Carolina league victim No. 20.

"It could be the championship, but I think there are too many teams who haven't declared themselves out of it yet," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said. "I would say whoever wins this ballgame, their odds are going to jump way up."

UT gets Pinkney back in time for TCU game

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Texas coach John Mackovic finally has all the elements of his high-flying offense intact.

Lovell Pinkney, a star receiver for the 15th-ranked Longhorns, was cleared Thursday by the NCAA from a two-game suspension and will play in Saturday's game at Texas Christian.

Mackovic said Pinkney, who caught 47 passes for 686 yards and five touchdowns in 1993, won't start against TCU (2-1), but will play.

"We have been very supportive of Lovell throughout this matter and are happy with the decision of the NCAA," Mackovic said.

Pinkney was suspended for Texas' season-opening victory against Pittsburgh along with receiver Mike Adams for accepting free use of a rental car from a friend, which is a violation of NCAA rules. Adams was reinstated Sept. 8.

Pinkney, a junior from Washington, D.C., was then held out of the Longhorns' victory Sept. 10 over Louisville while attorneys hired by the school investigated whether Pinkney took a trip to Los Angeles in May to visit a sports agent.

Pinkney initially told school officials he didn't take a trip to Los Angeles.

A UT faculty committee, headed by UT law professor Charles Alan Wright, a former chairman of the NCAA infractions committee, determined that Pinkney did take the trip, but didn't meet with an agent.

"The committee found that Lovell was not originally forthright in talking to us about the Los Angeles trip," said university president Robert M. Berdahl. "For that, the committee recommended that he miss a second game."

Pinkney wasn't available to comment due to a team policy that prohibits players from talking to the media after Wednesday of game week.

Pinkney, at 6-5, 245 pounds, is of towering importance to the Texas offense. His size and speed often create mismatches in the secondary and bring double coverage.

Mackovic praised his team for staying focused despite the off-the-field problems involving Pinkney and Adams.

"I am very proud of our team because they have hung together through all of this and - despite what could have been big distractions - we are 2-0," Mackovic said.

For Pinkney, making his season debut against the Horned Frogs will be a chance to avenge a poor performance at TCU in a 23-14 loss in 1992.

That loss marks the only game in which Pinkney has played that he didn't catch a pass.

Virginia Tech whips W. Va.

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) - Virginia Tech linebacker George DelRicco sat in a corner of the locker room, smiling as he listened to his teammates being grilled about what's wrong with the Hokies' offense.

"I really think you guys are making too much out of this," DelRicco said after the 14th-ranked Hokies rolled to a 34-6 victory over West Virginia.

Indeed, Thursday night's game showed that no matter what's bothering Virginia Tech's offense, the Hokies' defense seems to be capable of making up for it.

While senior quarterback Maurice DeShazo struggled, the Virginia Tech defense put the clamps on the slumping Mountaineers.

BASEBALL

teams impose unilateral work rules, such as a salary cap.

Unilateral work rules wouldn't take effect until lawsuits were decided and appeals were exhausted.

"I'm optimistic we will reach an agreement with the union in 1994," Selig said.

He said fighting the players in court wasn't preferable to the strike, baseball's eighth work stoppage since 1972.

"That's like asking whether you want to have a problem with your pancreas or a problem with your liver," he said after the hearing.

The sides have met just three times since the strike began Aug. 12 and not at all since Selig announced Sept. 14 that there wouldn't be a World Series for the first time since 1904. Owners are insisting on a salary cap, and players say they never will accept one.

"Unlike Mr. Selig, I am not even remotely optimistic there will be an agreement in the short term," Fehr said. "Spring training is in imminent peril."

The bill, introduced by Rep. Mike Synar, an Oklahoma Democrat, faces several problems, including Congress' desire to adjourn by Oct. 8. Similar legislation was blocked in the Senate.

"I really think both sides have acted like spoiled children arguing over a billion-dollar honey pot," said Synar, who introduced the bill along with Rep. Jim Bunning, a Kentucky Republican who pitched a perfect game for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1964.

Jack Brooks, the 71-year-old Texas Democrat who chairs the House Judiciary Committee, said for the first time he would support the bill. He said if the Senate adopts the language as an amendment to another bill, he would push for the House to follow.

Brooks called the strike "a national disaster," and joked that 91-year-old Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina was the only person in Congress who could remember when the World Series wasn't played.

Grilling meals add zip to dinners

By The Associated Press
From side dishes to salads to desserts, today's grillers are preparing entire meals on the grill. For a backyard barbecue, serve slow-roasted pork loin topped with a mustard-dill sauce. To complete the meal: grill-roasted garlic, skewered potato salad and soft dinner rolls. Add steamed green beans and cherry tomatoes, if you like.

Quick-Cured Pork Loin
3-pound boneless pork loin roast, rolled and tied
1/4 cup vegetable oil
3 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons coarse salt
Mustard-Dill Sauce (recipe below)
Place roast in a large, 2-gallon self-sealing bag. Add oil, garlic and salt; rub over pork, coating roast well. Seal bag; marinate at room temperature 1 hour or overnight in the refrigerator.

Prepare medium-hot, banked coals in a kettle-style grill. Remove pork from marinade; place on grill over drip pan. Lower grill hood; grill for 1 to 1-1/4 hours until internal temperature is 155 degrees F. (Internal temperature will rise about 5 degrees F.) Remove to serving platter, let stand 10 minutes, slice to serve. Serve with Mustard-Dill Sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Mustard-Dill Sauce: In a small bowl, combine 1 cup fat-free mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard, 1/2 cup snipped parsley, 3 tablespoons fresh dillweed or 1 tablespoon dried dill; mix thoroughly until smooth. Cover and refrigerate up to 24 hours. Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

Nutrition facts per 3-ounce serving of pork: 182 cal., 26 g pro., 7 g fat, 68 mg chol., 380 mg sodium.
Nutrition facts per 1-tablespoon serving of mustard-dill sauce: 9 cal., 4 g carbo.

Grill-Roasted Garlic
2 large whole unpeeled heads of garlic
Olive oil
Rub garlic heads with oil; wrap each in foil. Cook over hot coals, turning three or four times, until cloves are very soft when lightly pressed and outer skins are browned, about 45 minutes. Unwrap and arrange on serving plate with a thin sharp knife for removing cloves from head of garlic. Squeeze each clove gently to release sweet creamy garlic paste. Makes 8 servings.

Nutrition facts per serving: 33 cal., 3 g carbo., 2 g fat.

Skewered French Potato Salad
32 small new potatoes, washed and dried
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup olive oil
6 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
1 teaspoon dried thyme
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 minced shallot
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoon minced chives
Rub potatoes well with vegetable oil. Skewer four potatoes each onto 8 metal skewers, leaving some space between potatoes. Grill over moderately hot coals, turning once, for about 20 to 25 minutes, until potatoes are tender.

Meanwhile, whisk together remaining ingredients. Arrange skewers on serving platter, twist each potato open slightly with a fork and drizzle with the dressing, turning each skewer to coat potatoes well. Makes 8 servings.

Nutrition facts per serving: 165 cal., 10 g carbo., 1 g fiber, 13 g fat, 324 mg sodium.

Quality care for people in nursing homes depends to a great degree on the adequacy of nurses and nurse aides. Yet current law is vague and inadequate on the subject of staffing. For Medicaid recipients, all the licensed nurse requirements can be waived by the states.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Irate in Washington, D.C.," who complained about parents who let their kids eat food off the shelf in the grocery store.

Some years ago, my son knocked a glass jar off a grocery shelf. Broken glass and jelly were everywhere. We went immediately to the checkout to pay for it. The cashier said, "Never mind. It's OK." I calmly told her that I pay for things my children break. She insisted that the store would get credit for the jelly from the manufacturer.

I wanted to scream. I firmly restated my position and told her to ring up the jelly twice—once for the one we bought and again for the one my son broke. My son also apologized for the mess.

If I had let the manufacturer absorb the cost of the breakage, who do you think would have paid for the jelly? Everyone—including the cashier. Wake up, retailers! Don't make it harder for moms who try to teach their children honesty. Today, if you ask my 3-year-old, "What's the shopping rule?" she will tell you loud and clear, "It's not ours until we pay for it."—Connie in St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR CONNIE: I salute you. You're setting a splendid example for your children, and it will pay handsome dividends. Thanks for an uplifting letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband recently became a truck driver for a company that allows him to take a passenger alone after a certain period of time and a good driving record. I accompanied him on one of his runs, and we delivered a variety of goods through 11 states.

This experience certainly heightened my admiration and appreciation for the hard work all truck drivers do. That respect was greatly diminished by the profanity and filthy conversation I heard broadcast over the CB radio. There were times when we needed the CB to get directions or listen to road conditions up ahead, and I was appalled at what I heard.

There are many drivers who take their children with them, especially during the summer. Hundreds of youngsters could be listening to your conversations over the CB. Please consider this before you speak—Over and Out

DEAR O. AND O.: I have printed other letters over the years about dirty talkers on the airwaves. One more won't hurt.

I appreciate the caveat—and so will the thousands of truckers who read this letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently, a woman wrote about how a toothpick changed her life. Her high school boyfriend always had a toothpick in his mouth. Her father never liked the guy and said he was no good so she decided not to marry him. Eight years later, his picture was in the paper because he'd robbed a bank.

A toothpick changed my life, too. I began smoking when I was 14. I quit four years ago and started chewing toothpicks. I don't have one in my mouth constantly, but I often do when I'm at work, in the car or shooting pool.

I figure if I can quit smoking after 15 years, I'll substitute whatever works. I'd rather have a piece of wood stuck between my teeth for the rest of my life than a cigarette. I've never had the slightest urge to rob a bank, and

NOBODY calls me "Toothpick." By the way, I'm a woman—Ohio Toothpick Lover

DEAR O.T.L.: Congratulations on kicking the nicotine. Nothing succeeds like success.

NEW YORK (AP) - Meryl Streep hasn't pursued the big commercial roles like contemporaries Glenn Close in "Fatal Attraction" or Sigourney Weaver in "Alien."

"I never aimed for that," she said in an interview by The New York Times Magazine published Sunday. "It's not part of the thing that makes you feel good. It buys you a house. It makes your value come up in studio discussions, I suppose. But I've never been interested."

The 45-year-old actress, who stars in "The River Wild," didn't go after her next part, which promises to be a blockbuster: lonely farm wife Francesca Johnson in "The Bridges of Madison County." Director and co-star Clint Eastwood sought her out for that one.

Streep told the Times that while she didn't care for Robert James Waller's novel, the screenplay of "Bridges" by Ron Bass and Richard LaGravenese was first-rate.

She added that she has no game plan for her career.

Jamaica became an independent dominion within the British Commonwealth in 1962.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE ISRAELITES AND THE RED SEA
LED BY MOSES, THE ISRAELITES ENCAPMED BY THE SEA AT PI-HAHIROTH IN THEIR ESCAPE FROM EGYPT. BUT THE LORD HARDENED THE HEART OF PHARAOH AND HE PURSUED AFTER THEM — WITH 600 CHOSEN CHARIOTS! (EX. 14:7-8)
