Dedicated for economic development City voters approve 1/2-cent sales tax

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer
Voters in Hereford have agreed to levy a half-cent sales tax to help expand business and industrial development in the city.

By a comfortable margin -- about 62.5 percent in favor -- the tax received the approval of voters in the special election last Saturday.

Hereford Mayor Bob Josseland expressed his satisfaction with the election result.

"I hope those who voted against it will be glad in the future that it passed," he declared.

The tax proposal was made by a community task force, People Promoting Progress, appointed to study ways to improve the business climate of the city.

Shirley Garrison, who co-chaired the People Promoting Progress committee with Jeff Carlile, said he was "elated that voters approved the proposal...we think it's a positive step toward getting the ball rolling on an aggressive economic development program."

He added that he and Carlile wanted to express appreciation to all the people who served on the task force. "Their input was invaluable in helping educate voters on the importance of the election. Now that voters gave us the okay, the hard work begins."

When all ballots were tallied Saturday, the count was 857 in favor of the proposal and 513 opposed. The City Commission conducted the official canvass and certified the vote Monday evening.

Approximately 6,900 persons were eligible to vote on the issue. With 1,370 votes counted, the percentage of voters going to the polls was approximately 19.85 percent.

On a percentage basis, 62.5 percent of all voters were in favor and 37.5 opposed.

In the early vote, the percentages were nearly identical, 47.4, or 62.9 percent in favor, and 28.0, or 37.1 percent opposed.

State law on the economic development tax specifies that a five-member board be appointed. A non-profit corporation will be formed, also, as the framework through which the board works.

Expenditure of funds collected by the tax is subject to approval of the City Commission.

Retail consumers will begin paying the additional half-cent on Jan. 1, said City Manager Chester Nolen.

The state sales tax amounts to 6 1/4 cents per $1. The city receives one-cent for general purposes and Deaf Smith County receives a half-cent from sales, for a total of 7 3/4 cents at present.

When the new half-cent levy is implemented, shoppers in the City of Hereford will pay a total sales tax of 8 1/4 cents per $1.

Nolen estimates that the half-cent should produce revenue of more than $325,000 annually.

The mayor and the City Commission are charged with appointment of board members, who, in turn, will employ an executive director.

Board members will be appointed in the next few weeks.

The tax's sponsor, People Promoting Progress, maintained that Hereford could not compete with area cities for new economic opportunities because of lack of funds.

Most cities, the committee said, have implemented the half-cent tax to provide financing for economic projects.

Last Saturday, voters in an area city, Dalhart, approved a one-cent sales tax with half for economic development.

Best theme was Hereford State Bank.

The bank also won first in the commercial division; XIT Cellular was second and Golden Plains Care Center won third.

In the Religious Division, Hereford Church of the Nazarene came in first; St. Anthony's Catholic the Justice Department in the face of initial opposition within the RTC.

Such actions are common when employees' work performances are being evaluated, and can be the prelude to termination. Within the last year, for example, former RTC investigator Michael Kozola was terminated several months after he testified at a Senate Banking Committee hearing on waste, fraud and abuse within the agency. He had been on paid administrative leave for more than six months when he was terminated.

The move drew immediate reaction from Capitol Hill.

"I'm sure the RTC wouldn't take this step lightly, but this would appear to be a blatant effort to discredit the work product of a criminal investigative unit that has embarrassed the powers that be," said Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, who has led his party's probe of Whitewater in the House. "Beyond that, it's a little early to say."

Cotton candy was just one of many food items available during the annual celebration, which attracted hundreds of people of a day of games, food and music. The above photo is the first of two dozen celebrating Jubilee 1994. Additional photos are on Pages 2, 5, 6 and 7.

Hereford residents turn out for variety of Jubilee events

Scores of local and area residents turned out to Dameron Park and other parts of town on Saturday to celebrate the annual Town and Country Jubilee and to enjoy a wide variety of activities.

The day began with the Greg Black Memorial 10K, 2 Mile Fun Run and 2 Mile Walk at the YMCA.

But that wasn't all.

Softball was on tap all day at the Jubilee Softball Classic and Jubilee Home Run Hitting Contest, both held at the Nazarene Church Softball Complex.

The annual Jubilee Parade kicked off at 10:30 a.m. at Hereford High School.

It took approximately 45 minutes for the parade to pass a given spot on the route, as paradegoers got to see Miss Hereford Lexi Sciombato, Miss Top of Texas Sona Solano, the Mighty Maroon Band from Hereford High School, floats, antique cars and much more.

Overall winner of the float competition was the offering by Panhandle Community Services, which capitalized on the overall Jubilee theme of "The Future is Ours."

Best theme was Hereford State Bank.

The bank also won first in the commercial division; XIT Cellular was second and Golden Plains Care Center won third.

In the Religious Division, Hereford Church of the Nazarene came in first; St. Anthony's Catholic Church was second; and Immanuel Lutheran Church was third.

Panhandle Community Services won the Service Club Division; with the Deaf Smith County 4-H in second; and Hereford Senior Citizens in third.

S.C. Brewton drove to first place in the Antique Car division; Warren Brothers Motor Co. was second; and Beef 'N More was third.

There was a tie in the Open Division, with Sugarland Mall and Walker's Chuck Wagon coming in first. Second place went to the United Way of Deaf Smith County and Riley Barbic Car was third.

After the parade ended downtown, it was off to Dameron Park for Jubilee Junction and a day full of food, fun and games.

Numerous civic clubs had food and game booths set up and there was a wide variety of music available on the stage.

Hereford EMS reported only two medical problems during the day; a boy was treated during the parade for a broken arm he suffered when he fell off a bicycle, but he was taken to Hereford Regional Medical Center by private vehicle; and a young woman was transported to the hospital by ambulance for a medical problem that she suffered at the park.

While voters stopped by the west end of the Community Center to vote, Jubilee participants walked over for the Hereford Senior Citizens quilt show and the Jubilee of Arts.

In addition, Hereford High School

Classes of 1964 and 1974 took advantage of the Jubilee to meet for 30- and 20-year reunions, respectively.

Finally, 19 children brought their favorite pets to the park to take part in the annual pet show sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

All entrants in the show received an award during the competition.

Awards and winners were: Raul and Raquel Vasquez and Harry, most unusual markings; Abigail Wilks with Cocoa, best behaved; Teresa Zimmerman with Brutus, best personality; Taylor Tankersley with Ugly, best dressed; Hannah Williams with Holly Christmas, best pedigree; Bethany Williams with Flower, longest tongue; Michah and Contessa White with Chance, most freckles; Kristen and Devin O'Rear with Sebastian and One Blue Jay, smallest feet; Elice Guerrero with Elmer, softest hair.

Also, Colleen Kelley with Rascal, most likely to serve time; Roger Rocha with Wrinkles, master most trained by pet; Tamarah Martinez with Ceara Beara, fluffiest hair; Tamarah Martinez with Sassey, most likely to be a movie star; Jason Martinez with Kudyak, most colorful fur and tongue; Joe Russell with Bob, hardest to catch; Derek Haysom with Smiley, waggiest tail; Bianca Riley with Sweetie, youngest pet; and Jamie Riley with Samantha, prettiest eyes and best facial expression.

Hearing on curfew planned next week

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Citizens of Hereford will have an opportunity to express their opinions on the need for a juvenile curfew at a special meeting next week.

The City Commission agreed at Monday's regular commission meeting to conduct the hearing at 7 p.m. next Monday in the Community Center.

In other business on the agenda, the commission heard from citizens about a notice they received about weeds in the yard; adopted a resolution on waste oil collection centers; appointed a member of the building code board of adjustments and appeals, and approved cancellation of the meeting scheduled on Labor Day, Sept. 5.

During discussion of the proposed juvenile curfew, Police Chief David Wagner reviewed statistics on juveniles involved in certain offenses, dating back to 1989, in some categories.

A marked increase in total crimes involving youths was noted for 1994.

Wagner pointed out that 262 were investigated in 1993, but "with 4 1/2 months still to go in 1994, there have been 369."

Another indicator of problems, as seen in Wagner's statistics, is the time of day offenses occur.

From last September to August this year, the number of juvenile suspects checked between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. was highest in the 11 p.m. to 12 midnight slot, the figures showed.

Felony crimes attributed to juveniles in 1993, Wagner's report showed, stood at 103. "There have been 66 so far this year," he said.

A proposed city ordinance, drafted by City Attorney Terry Langchenning, based on a Dallas ordinance that has been tested in the courts, was reviewed briefly by the commission.

The ordinance would allow police officers to issue citations to juveniles, age 16 and under, who disobey the ordinance.

Hours of the curfew would be 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and from 12:01 a.m. to 6 a.m. Saturday (Friday night) and the same hours Sunday (Saturday night.)

A fine may be levied on an offender in Municipal Court. The fine would not exceed $500.

Wagner told the commission that parents would receive copies of citations issued to offenders.

After two offenses, he continued, the juvenile may be referred to Deaf Smith Juvenile Court, under provisions of the Texas Family Code, the chief added.

Commissioner Dennis Hicks said he hopes citizens will understand that a curfew ordinance is directed to parents.

On the suggestion of Mayor Bob Josseland, the commission agreed to invite public opinion by setting the meeting next Monday.

Hearing from a Hereford couple about a notice they received on cleaning up their property, the commission decided a communication problem had occurred.

Timothy Dawson complained that he received a notice from the city in accordance with an ordinance related to weeds, junk and rubbish in yards.

"The letter we got said 'weeds' and we don't have weeds -- we have tomato plants," Dawson declared.

He suggested that the city wasted money in postage and stationary in sending the notice to his home.

Dawson told the commission that some items in his front yard had been removed after he visited with Commissioner Dennis Hicks.

Dawson's wife, Joyce, suggested that the city look at other property in the area for disregard of the ordinance.

The commission's resolution on waste oil collection was passed in response to a request from Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Funding for the project will be provided by the state. Four collection centers will be operated in Hereford.

Re-appointment of Bill Dirks to a four-year term on the building code board of adjustments and appeals was unanimously voted by the commission.

Because of the Labor Day holiday on Sept. 5, the regular meeting to be held on that date was cancelled, by unanimous vote of the commission.

RTC investigator, administrators placed on leave by federal agency

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A trio of federal regulators whose initial investigation led to the criminal probe of Whitewater have been placed on administrative leave by their agency.

Resolution Trust Corp. investigator L. Jean Lewis was placed on paid leave for 14 days Monday, along with her boss, Richard Iorio, and another top manager in the agency's Kansas City, Mo., office.

The RTC confirmed the administrative action after The Associated Press obtained an agency electronic mail message detailing the move.

"They have been placed on leave, and I have no further comment," said Jane Jankowski, a spokeswoman in the agency's Kansas City office.

However, an agency official in Kansas City, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the three will be under investigation "for certain matters pertaining to their job performance." The official declined to elaborate.

Lewis wrote the nine criminal referrals - requests for criminal investigations - that are at the heart of the Whitewater affair, including one that named Clinton's 1984 gubernatorial campaign as a beneficiary. Some $12,000 in Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan Association funds were deposited in the campaign fund's account at another bank.

Those conclusions were being probed by special counsel Robert Fiske, who was replaced last week by former Reagan and Bush administration official Kenneth Starr.

Starr is expected to investigate those matters, and whether depositor funds were diverted from Madison to Whitewater Development Corp., which was owned by the S&L's owner, James McDougal, along with then-Gov. Clinton and his wife.

Lee Ausen, who supervises both Iorio and Lewis, also was placed on leave, the computer document said. All three were instrumental in forwarding the criminal referrals to the Justice Department in the face of initial opposition within the RTC.

Such actions are common when employees' work performances are being evaluated, and can be the prelude to termination. Within the last year, for example, former RTC investigator Michael Kozola was terminated several months after he testified at a Senate Banking Committee hearing on waste, fraud and abuse within the agency. He had been on paid administrative leave for more than six months when he was terminated.

One-third of teaching time used for TAAS

DALLAS (AP) - Teachers are spending an average of 11 hours a week preparing students for a state achievement test, according to a teachers union straw poll.

That would be a third of their class time preparing specifically for the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills, said Richard Kouri, president of the Texas State Teachers Association.

Kouri said a straw poll of some of the group's membership found that nearly all "feel pressured to 'teach to the test.'"

Sixty percent said improving test scores was "the most important factor in shaping curriculum," he said.

The test replaced a basic skills test adopted after the Legislature's wave of education reforms in 1985.

Kouri would not say how many teachers responded to the questionnaire, although they are in more than 100 school districts statewide.

Although he conceded the canvass was unscientific, he insisted it "is fairly reflective of what is going on around the state."

According to the Texas

Education Agency, the test measures skills and critical thinking in reading, mathematics and writing. In some grades, science and social studies skills are also evaluated.

The teachers union is not campaigning against the test, Kouri said. It only wants to warn parents about its limitations, he said.

"Texas is placing entirely too much emphasis on a single number produced by the TAAS (test)," he said. "Single numbers are nice, but they don't tell the whole story."

School board sessions set

The Hereford ISD Board of Trustees will hold two separate meetings this week to discuss the budget and work on strategic planning. The first session will be held at 6 p.m. today, with another meeting at 6 p.m. on Thursday. Both sessions will be in the school board room, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue. They are both open to the public. Both agendas call for work on the 1994-95 budget and strategic planning.

High school office to close

The main office at Hereford High School will be closed on Wednesday and Thursday, so that employees may take part in staff development activities. Students who still need to pick up schedules, or anyone else needing to conduct business at the high school, may do so between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Friday. Students also are reminded that they are required to bring their

Park talks continue

Residents in the Ironwood Park neighborhood are encouraged to take part in a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, at the park, to provide input on park development. The meeting is the third in a series of neighborhood meetings being conducted by the City Commission to gather information about park development.

Walcott party rescheduled

Walcott School will hold its annual Back to School Party at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the school, which is one day earlier than previously announced. The party is open to all parents, students and faculty members of the school, located 31 miles northwest of Hereford. New students must bring their birth certificates and immunization records, said Superintendent Bill McLaughlin, "and everyone bring a Hershey Bar" for S'Mores.

Sunny, warmer Wednesday

Hereford recorded a high of 77 Monday and a low of 56 this morning, reports KPAN Radio. Tonight, clear with a low in the lower 60s. Southwest wind 10 to 15 mph. Wednesday, mostly sunny with a high in the mid 90s. South wind 10-20 mph and gusty. Hereford recorded .07 of an inch of rain Sunday morning, and the high of 76 that day was the coolest maximum on record for Aug. 14. Monday morning's low of 57 tied the record low set in 1920.

HPD sets citizens academy

The Hereford Police Department will sponsor its third Citizens Police Academy beginning Sept. 1 and running through Nov. 10. The academy will meet every Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the HISD administration building, 601 North 25 Mile Avenue. The academy is designed to give the public a working knowledge of the department, said Capt. Pat Michael. Several officers from the department teach the course, which covers such topics as Texas law, drugs, gangs, street survival for the police officer and criminal investigations. Interested people must be 21 years old and reside or work in the Hereford city limits. A short application must be filled out and returned to the police department. They are available at the department or city hall, 212 N. Lee. For more information, call Michael at 364-2323. The Citizens Police Academy is a public information program and not a recruitment program for police officers or reserve police officers.

Round and round he goes...

Curfews may deal with problems

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
DIMMITT, Texas (AP) - This Texas Panhandle town, fringed by corn fields and bisected by train tracks, typifies any rural scene. Banners across the main drag promote an annual harvest festival. Downtown boasts just one stop light and a myriad of giant grain elevators. Teen-agers congregate in Mr. Burger's parking lot. Furthermore - in a move increasingly typical for Texas towns - Dimmitt police make those teens go home at curfew. More and more places like Chillicothe (population 816), Sterling City (1,096) and McCamey (2,493) have implemented curfews in an effort to curb juvenile crime. Officials credit Dallas and Austin with paving the way. And they insist that small towns need curfews just as much as cities do. "There's nothing for them to do," Police Chief Dewayne Haney said of the teen-agers in Dimmitt, population

4,400. "The only thing they can do is hang out. And when you've got two or three hanging out (late at night), that brews nothing but trouble." Dimmitt and other towns that adopted curfews this year claim problems with teen vandalism - graffiti, in particular. But Haney said vandalism has dropped markedly since March, when the curfew went into effect. It requires those age 16 and younger to get off the streets by 11 p.m. if they have school the next day, or by 1 a.m. if it's Friday or Saturday. Dimmitt police have written 21 violation reports, Haney said. Teen-agers grumbled. "They were wondering why if all we did was hang out and talk to each other, and we weren't doing anything wrong, why we had to go home," said Brad Beck, a 14-year-old sophomore. Jay Jacobson, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Texas, said small towns don't have the crime to justify curfews. "Somebody in the next town sees it, and says that's an inexpensive way to say, 'I'm tough on crime,'" Jacobson said. Teen curfews have even evolved into an issue in this year's race for governor. Gov. Ann Richards' first TV campaign commercial debuted last week with this warning to Texas youth: "You're going to have to have a curfew. You're going to have to have a specific time when you're going to have to be home." Her Republican challenger, George W. Bush, has said he believes in curfews but that they should remain a local option. Police in small towns, meanwhile, claim an edge over their big-city counterparts: more time to enforce curfews. And they usually already know the offenders and their parents. The curfew in Stinnett gave police the authority to head off nighttime problems from teens who walk the streets or play football on the Hutchinson County courthouse lawn, Chief Randy Hooks said.

Study shows HUD monies not expended

DALLAS (AP) - Of $61.6 million in "modernization" money allocated to the Dallas Housing Authority over the past five years, officials spent only 11 percent, the second-worst performance of 29 cities studied, a watchdog group says. According to the group's study, thousands of people are living in slums because public housing officials haven't spent federal money that was set aside to upgrade their apartments. The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, or ACORN, found that officials in the 29 cities spent only about one-fourth of the billions in federal dollars allocated to upgrade public housing. A housing official in Dallas said the study failed to take into account local problems that hampered Dallas' performance. But ACORN said all cities in the study were measured on the same basis. The nation's top public housing official said Monday that he agrees with the chief concerns that ACORN raised.

Joseph Shuldiner, assistant secretary over public and Indian housing at HUD, said the agency is moving quickly to fix the problem. "I am in complete agreement that the money isn't being spent fast enough, but we are improving it," Shuldiner said. Where Dallas spent just 11 percent of the money available to it, Baton Rouge spent 90 percent. ACORN's study showed that the 29 housing authorities examined spent just 28 percent of the $3.76 billion allocated to the. ACORN said the study is based upon an analysis of computer records it obtained through the federal Freedom of Information Act. Shuldiner said HUD doesn't dispute those numbers, but he said the overall performance would have improved to 65 percent if a slightly earlier period, 1988-92, is used.

Driver leaves car before train hits

A Hereford man escaped injury early Sunday morning when his Ford Bronco was struck by a train. Preliminary police reports show that the 1987 gray vehicle was driven by Carlos Gamez, 30, of 112 Avenue H, Apt. 23. The Santa Fe Railroad train's engineer was M.E. Gill, 39, of Amarillo. The Bronco was reported destroyed, but Gamez was able to get out of the vehicle before the accident. Additional information, including a narrative of what happened and any charges that may have been filed or citations that may have been written were not available. A police investigation is continuing.

Foundation discussed at auxiliary meeting

Sylvia Khuri presented the program on the Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation when members of the Hereford Regional Medical Center Auxiliary met recently in the dining room of the hospital.

Khuri explained that the foundation is the logical answer to the problems in health care finances. Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation will give a stable financial basis for health care in Deaf Smith County.

The speaker said that it is likely that hospitals will be asked to provide more care with less funds because of health care reform on the national level. The foundation is a non-profit organization that is in the process of establishing an endowment fund. The goal of the fund is to reach $200,000 within two years. The foundation hopes to ensure financial security and to improve, enhance and strengthen health care services in our area.

The services offered are funding for the following: New equipment; scholarships for health care professionals; recruiting health care professionals; to give the hospital a financial cushion; cardiac rehabilitation and specialty clinics; and patient transport services.

Deaf Smith County Health Care Foundation is a tax exempt organization and is free to accept donations and memorials. The "Tree of Life" is an outstanding recognition of donors to the foundation. It is located in the main hall of the hospital near the front entrance. The "Tree of Life" memorials are a way of saying thank you to philanthropic businesses and individuals in our community.

The HRMC Auxiliary was pleased to present a check for $5,000 to the Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation Executive Director Sylvia Khuri.

Jim Robinson, interim administrator, was introduced to the auxiliary. He spoke of the importance of the auxiliary to the hospital and expressed appreciation for the work that is volunteered.

HRMC Auxiliary President Margaret Daniels presided over the business meeting and roll was called by Nell Culpepper.

The minutes of the June meeting were read and accepted as presented and Lupe Cerda gave the treasurer's report. Grace Covington announced that baby books were distributed to 21 new mothers in June and 19 baby books had been presented in July. Bonnie Sublett announced that the Auxiliary had recorded 130 1/2 volunteer hours in June and 126 1/2 hours in July.

Correspondence was read about a meeting scheduled Sept. 23 in Lubbock at the University Medical Center. Auxiliary members were urged to attend.

Monta Cochran, assistant clinical administrator, gave a short address on updates of nursing on the medical/surgical floor.

Members present were Elizabeth Fowler, Bonnie Sublett, Lupe Cerda, Nell Culpepper, Grace Covington, Margaret Daniels, Mary Williamson, Edna Reinart, Baxter London, Jo Lee, Quintna Waits, Gladys Cavness and Mary Jane Burrus.

Monta Cochran, Sylvia Khuri and Jim Robinson were welcomed as guests.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: The past two summers I have had what friends called "sun spots," white patches on my back. I am at the beach a lot, and it gets more noticeable as the summer passes. Is there something I can do to stop them? Can I spread this? — B.L.N.

ANSWER: Don't blame the sun. It's actually a common fungal infection — tinea versicolor.

Most of us harbor the skin fungus involved. Why some get the spots and others don't is a mystery. Predisposition to tinea-versicolor infection might reflect a skin chemistry that favors sudden surges in fungal population.

We know also that moisture, oils and heat in general favor such growth.

Usually, the tinea versicolor rash takes shape as circles of pale skin, most noticeable against a darkening background of tanned skin.

Some patients report itching. What medicines have you tried? There are applications of selenium or zinc and some oral medicines that help.

Prevention is a strong suit when you're dealing with tinea versicolor. You can buy a bar of ZNP soap and use it once a week. It would be wise to use preventive steps the year round, since you cannot predict when the skin fungus will burgeon.

It can take more than a month for fungus-infected skin to repigment in response to the medicines mentioned. You cannot spread the problem.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I was raised much earlier in this century, at a time when drinking water during or after exercise was verboten, with dire forebodings of stomach cramping and other problems. What is the modern view? Also, do you have a list of your reading material? — S.B.K.

ANSWER: The view of exercise and water has changed. Now we emphasize replenishment of body fluids lost during exercise.

On a hot day, you can lose up to 2 percent of body weight in half an hour, and most of that is fluid loss. Fluid loss quickly translates into circulation slowdown, and that in turn reduces the flow of blood to exercising muscles. Fatigue results, even perhaps some cramping.

The negatives of fluid loss don't end there: as the blood flow to the skin lags, internal body temperature rises.

So drink liberally when exercising in hot weather. Water is a great replacement fluid. You don't need or want salt tablets. The body takes care of that balance.

When you end your exercise, look around for a fruit snack to replace any potassium loss. Bananas, raisins, oranges and dried apricots are fine.

You can get a copy of available booklets by writing: Dr. Donohue — List, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In regard to exercising for muscle development, is lifting 10 pounds 10 times in a row the same as lifting 100 pounds only once? — S.C.G.

ANSWER: I've tried a hundred ways to answer this one.

Lifting the lighter weight many times increases your endurance. Lifting the heavier weight fewer times increases muscle strength. The two goals are distinctly different.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am an average woman, 44 years old. I jog and lift weights. I eat low-fat foods, including fruits and vegetables. My problem is that I am always fighting anemia, for which I take iron supplements. When I started having menopause signs, flushes and sweating, my doctor put me on birth-control pills. I have always avoided putting contaminants into my body — not even aspirin. Shouldn't we just age as God ordains? And what is your opinion about the birth-control pills for menopause? — Mrs. N.G.

ANSWER: If we possess a solution to a problem, why not use it when the need arises and it doesn't conflict with religious beliefs? When our bodies sound medical alarm bells, we need to respond to them.

Birth-control pills contain estrogen, which helps ease menopause symptoms. And just as important, the estrogen protects bones against osteoporosis, a clear concern in a woman who has entered menopause at a young age.

The average menopause onset age is 51. The earlier the menopause, the greater is the need for estrogen-replacement therapy.

Your reference to anemia raises other questions. How has that been established? Have you been bleeding excessively? You should have some clear reason before taking iron tablets. Not all anemia requires iron, and taking unnecessary extra amounts is risky.

For more on menopause symptoms and treatments, see my menopause report. Readers can order one by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 21, Box 5539 Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope.

Ralph Barndt was honored as the best Hereford Toastmasters Club speaker during the organization's meeting held Thursday morning at the Ranch House.

Linda Minchew and Chris Leonard tied for best evaluator and Linda Minchew was honored as best topic speaker.

Ralph Barndt spoke on "Here Moose, Here Moose," evaluated by Linda Minchew; Esther Frazier, "Hereford's Lost Gem," evaluated by Chris Leonard; and Joe Don Cummings, "The Baseball Strike," evaluated by Ed Gilbert.

Clark Andrews led the pledge and Rick Jackson gave the invocation. Joe Don Cummings presided over the business meeting and welcomed guests, Dan Bartlett and Adolfo Del Toro.

Dr. Milton Adams served as Toastmaster; Joe Weaver, timer; Dan Hall, "ah" counter; Wayne Winget, grammarian; Dave Kimmel, wordmaster; and "minimize" was the chosen word.

Topic speakers included Rick

Jackson, Linda Minchew, Dave Kimmel and Jigger Rowland.

Jim Clark served as general evaluator and Margaret Del Toro told the joke.

Restaurants offer healthy choices

Fettuccine alfredo has it. Enchiladas have it. Kung pao chicken has it. And movie theater popcorn has lots of it.

That's right — FAT GRAMS. Those dreaded words of the healthful nineties have invaded all the foods we love to eat, whether we're at the movies or in our favorite restaurant. So what's left to satisfy our hunger away from home? What choices do we have?

Fortunately, there's good news for Americans who want to maintain healthy diets — even when someone else is doing the cooking. Many restaurants are adjusting their menus to fit everyday eating habits, reflecting the healthier lifestyles of their customers, while others are beginning to provide nutritional information as a service to their guests.

One challenge restaurants continually face is meeting customers' expectations with regard to both taste and nutrition. People watching their diets want to reduce their intake of fat and calories, but don't want to sacrifice good taste.

Meeting this challenge is particularly important as busy lifestyles prompt many people to use restaurants as their primary kitchens. In fact, Americans today spend half of all food dollars eating in restaurants, compared with 40 percent in 1980.

Consumers are beginning to realize that they cannot continue to eat the high-fat meals that traditionally have represented the standard fare at restaurants, Brooks said. But with menu additions and alterations to existing items, healthy alternatives are available.

According to Georgia Kostas, M.P.H., R.D., director of nutrition for the Cooper Clinic at The Cooper Aerobics Center in Dallas, eating low-fat foods is important throughout the entire day, whether at home or in a restaurant. But, she says, eating healthy foods does not have to mean sacrificing taste.

"Choose restaurants with a widely varied menu so that you can select foods that you enjoy and that are included in your healthy, low-fat eating goals," Kostas recommends.

"Frequent the same restaurant, when possible. A regular customer knows the menu and knows what foods can be prepared in special ways to avoid extra calories and fat."

Brent Clum, a restaurant industry analyst with the investment firm T. Rowe Price, also notes a trend toward maintaining a more regimented, low-fat diet.

"More people are health conscious today than in the past, and many are particularly concerned about their fat intake," Clum said. "The trend of eating low-fat foods is here to stay."

Lady Whitefaces down Dons in season opener

Take this

Hereford's Heather Hodges (11) powers a volleyball through the Palo Duro blockers in the Herd's 15-4, 15-8 season-opening win Monday in Whiteface Gym. Hereford's Tarabeth Holmes (between the PD blockers) looks on, ready to play the ball if it was blocked.

The Lady Whitefaces opened the volleyball season with a 15-4, 15-8 win over Palo Duro Monday in Whiteface Gym.

The teams—particularly Palo Duro, a Class 5A playoff participant last year—showed occasional sloppiness, but no more than should be expected in the season opener for both.

"Overall I was very pleased, especially with our passing; that's one area where we really had the jitters," Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said.

Hereford had ironed out some of the kinks in a full day of scrimmaging Brownfield and Lubbock High Saturday in Brownfield.

"I think seven periods of scrimmage on Saturday made a positive difference," Reeh said. "We were terribly nervous for the first two sessions Saturday, but once we settled down, we played very well. I think that helped us in this match."

Sophomore middle blocker Danielle Cornelius got the early team lead in a few statistical categories, recording eight kills and six stuff blocks Monday. She set the tone for the match, as four kills and three stuffs came in the first few minutes, and Hereford built a 5-0 lead.

The Herd stretched that to 10-0 before Palo Duro got two points on three straight kills. Both teams scratched out a few points among numerous sideouts, making it 13-4, but Brittney Binder ended the game with two serves for aces.

Reeh substituted liberally and Hereford took several rotations to build a 7-4 lead. Hereford got five quick points on two kills each by Heather Hodges and Crystal Kelley and an ace by Kelly Jowell. After two side outs, PD was caught in the net for a Hereford point, then Binder got a kill on a beautiful dump set to make it 14-4.

Palo Duro capitalized on five Hereford mistakes for four points in a row, making the score 14-8, but Cornelius ended the match much the same way she started: with a stuff block for a sideout and a kill for the 15th point.

The Herd looked very good at times but not so good at others, but Reeh said she wasn't worried.

"We had done a lot of substituting, so some kids weren't comfortable at those positions on the court," she said. "It's early in the season, and that's a good learning situation for us."

The kills in the match, past Cornelius' eight, were spread out, Reeh said. Binder totalled three aces on nine good serves, and she had four digs.

The Herd will play in the Lubbock Invitational Tournament Friday and Saturday at Monterey High School in Lubbock.

In Friday's pool play matches, Hereford will meet Lubbock Coronado at 9 a.m., Perryton at 3 p.m. and Canyon at 7 p.m. If the Herd makes the championship bracket, it would play at either 10:30 a.m. or at noon Saturday. The championship match is set for 8 p.m. at Monterey.

Hereford's junior varsity also opened the season with a win Monday, downing Palo Duro 15-7, 15-5. Julie Rampley served for seven points in the first game, and Raquel Villarreal served for seven points in the second game.

112,000 show up to watch Cowboys, Oilers play dirty

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) - The largest crowd in NFL history got a bad game. The Houston Oilers and Dallas Cowboys got a bad field.

So it went as the NFL played an exhibition game in Mexico City on Monday night at Azteca Stadium with the Oilers posting a 6-0 victory.

Al Del Greco kicked field goals of 37 and 26 yards in the first half for the only scoring, but that didn't seem to matter to the crowd of 112,376 fans.

They enjoyed the entire production from start to finish and most of them were still in the stands when the final seconds ticked off in the stadium where they usually come to watch major league soccer.

Heavy rain before the game turned the stadium surface into a muddy mess.

"We should have been planting corn instead of playing football," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said. "It's really hard to give a solid evaluation on how we played, because it was a wet track."

But the constant blaring of loud mariachi and rock-and-roll music kept the fans entertained even when the action didn't.

"When I hear NAFTA, I wish that it stood for 'North American Football Trade Agreement,'" Cowboys fan David Ibarra said. "We've been waiting years for this."

The Oilers extended their success against the Cowboys to 11 victories in their last 12 meetings, including a 2-0 record in the regular season.

Cody Carlson, who completed 11 of 16 passes for 120 yards and played the first half, guided the Oilers to the Cowboy 20, highlighted by a 19-yard pass to Pat Coleman, prior to Del Greco's 37-yarder.

Oilers cornerback Darryl Lewis, recovering from knee surgery that cut short last season, stopped a Cowboys drive at the Oiler 17, setting in motion a drive to the Dallas 9 and Del Greco's second kick.

"The field was in pretty bad shape but both teams have to play on it," Oilers running back Gary Brown said. "It's been exciting. The Mexican people really deserve something like this. We want the crowd to go away and be happy."

Brown played most of the first half but Switzer kept running back Emmitt Smith out of the game because of the poor condition of the field.

"I talked to Coach (Barry) Switzer after warmups and we both felt that the footing wasn't going to be good enough," Smith said. "I'm really disappointed because I was looking forward to finally playing some."

Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman played into the second quarter before turning the game over to Rodney Peete.

Chris Evert won 18 tennis championships in Grand Slam events.

Shockers hang on to win Jubilee Classic

The Arrowhead Mills Shockers survived to win the Fifth Annual Hereford Jubilee Softball Classic held over the weekend, but not without a late challenge by the Blue Sage A's.

The Shockers came into the game undefeated, while the A's had one loss--to the Shockers--in the double elimination tournament. In Sunday's final game, the Shockers led all the way, getting two line drive homers from J.D. High and one towering shot from Rodney McCracken.

The Shockers led 20-14 going into the top of the seventh and last inning. Richard Wilbanks brought the A's much closer with a grand slam, and Ernie Suarez followed with a solo homer to make the score 20-19. Two A's were on base when the final out was recorded on a line drive.

La Placita of Dumas took third in the 11-team tournament, and Beef N More of Hereford was fourth.

French tennis star Suzanne Lenglen was able to hit the ball and make it land on a coin.

Plant flowers that require less care

If the dog days of summer are causing more flower maintenance than you'd like, make up a list of flowers to avoid next year.

Start with those that require dead-heading, the regular removal of fading blooms to stimulate new flowers.

Such removal is required for the best floral displays from many annuals, including marigolds, zinnias, cosmos, dahlias, geraniums, petunias and verbenas.

They will bloom much less if ripening seeds.

With large flowers such as zinnia, just pinch or cut to the next branch. With others, such as verbenas, shearing works best. Never remove more than a third or so, however.

But while it keeps the garden looking neat and more flowers coming, dead-heading can become quite tiresome, particularly when temperatures are in the 100s.

Some flowers - such as grandiflora petunias, snapdragons and zinnias - also will require pruning or pinching to keep them from becoming spindly or leggy.

Chrysanthemums and asters need a lot of pinching to promote bushiness. Sometimes the taller ones need staking, too.

But other attractive flowers - among them ageratum, sweet alyssum, begonia, portulaca and catharanthus (vinca) - do not require such treatment.

So it's often just as simple to select from a lower-maintenance, easier-to-grow group. Make the choice before planting seeds or setting out transplants, of course.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) - Clint Eastwood will be crossing "The Bridges of Madison County" with Meryl Streep.

Streep will play lonely Iowa farm wife Francesca Johnson, who has a brief affair with the rugged photojournalist Eastwood will play in the film version of the popular novel by Robert James Waller.

Eastwood will direct, and Steven Spielberg will be executive producer, Warner Bros. announced Friday.

Monk parakeets are the only members of the parrot family that build community nests in trees. They live among bundles of twigs that form an apartment house for the birds.

The lower-maintenance group will also include African daisy, celosia, cleome, coleus, dusty miller, flowering kale, lobelia, nicotiana, phlox and salvia.

They won't appeal to everyone, or do well in every climate, so check locally if you are not sure.

And be sure that you are not trying to grow a warm-season flower in a cool-season environment, or vice versa. With hot weather, cool-season flowers will set seed quickly and deteriorate, for example.

So understand when a specific flower is in season.

And don't plan to grow shade-lovers in sun or sun-lovers in shade. Group them by cultural needs. Do they like moist soil or dry conditions? Do they prefer regular fertilization or refuse to bloom where soil is too rich in nitrogen? Check the possibility of using slow-release fertilizers to cut application time.

Many flowers are low-water users. Where possible, it makes sense to opt for those that don't require regular watering to look good. Such a list includes longtime favorites, such as achillea, centaurea, coreopsis, gaillardia, gazania, oenothera, rudbeckia, salvia and statice.

Regardless of selection, flowers will need more frequent watering when younger without fully developed root systems. Always apply sufficient water to wet the root zone thoroughly. Such deep watering develops a deep root system. Shallow root systems are vulnerable to drying out.

An easy test: insert a long screwdriver. It's hard to push through dry soil. Be a good observer.

Some flower seed is produced through open pollination. If you planted hybrids, which usually carry designations such as F-1 or F-2, the resulting plants seldom match the original and will not be worth saving, even if they germinate again.

Portulaca (moss rose) is a notable exception. It comes true to type most of the time. So observation from one season to the next is the only sure way to tell about self-sown seeds. I haven't planted portulaca seed in 15-20 years and annually get a bumper crowd of gorgeous doubles which need little maintenance.

Annual coreopsis (calliopsis) is another that self-sows easily and looks great. But it requires dead-heading.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Would you know of any way to clean my hard plastic lawn chairs? They seem to have mildew stains deep down. I have used abrasive cleansers, baking soda and all-purpose household cleaners with no luck. I also tried bleach. — Agnes Mudd, San Antonio, Texas

Usually a mild solution of bleach should be enough to do the trick, but it sounds like the abrasive cleanser you used might have "etched" the plastic. If dirt gets ground in these small scratches, it will be very difficult to clean.

Next time, mix one cup of bleach and a squirt of liquid dishwashing (not dishwasher) detergent to one gallon of water. Using a rag or soft brush, wipe the chairs down, then rinse well and dry.

White vinegar might also be effective in getting the chairs clean. Just make sure to rinse and dry thoroughly.

Vinegar is such a versatile cleaner that I have compiled a pamphlet containing many useful and money-saving hints for it. Send your requests to: Heloise/Vinegar, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. Please enclose $2, along with a self-addressed stamped (52 cents) business-sized envelope.

TAPE TIP

Dear Heloise: When using sticky tapes, especially the wide, clear mailing tape, put a paper clip on the end that's left or turn under the corner. It's much easier to start the next time. — Suzanne Young, Geneva, N.Y.

SMELLY DISPOSAL

Dear Heloise: My garbage disposal had such a terrible smell that even baking soda was no help. I asked my husband (who is a maintenance man) if he had any suggestions, and here's what he told me.

Put ice cubes in the disposal, then turn it on. Run cold water and add a small amount of liquid dishwashing detergent. It really worked. It churned all the built-up gunk off the blades and from around the edges. No more smell! — Debbie Robertson, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Yep, an old standby, but our experts suggest turning it on while running the water, then dropping the ice cubes in. — Heloise

FLOATING FLOWER

Dear Heloise: With no smoking in my home, it's a shame not to use the large beautiful ashtrays, so I use them for floating flowers. It takes very little water for one bloom, and if I trim the stem short it will float. I use one large bloom. — Margaret Parker, Clinton, N.C.

Dear Heloise: My daughter carries an empty bag in her book bag. On swimming days, she puts her wet suit and towel in the bag and ties it up. — Phyllis Laske, Canandaigua, N.Y.

Dear Heloise: Here is way to cover school books very inexpensively. A store in Florida donated its outdated wallpaper display catalogs of samples to the elementary school my son attends. Several of the PTA members and the school libraries covered many, many worn and soiled books and returned them to circulation. I thought this idea was worth passing on. — Dorothy Bennett, La Belle, Fla.

BASEBALL CAPS

Dear Heloise: My husband collects baseball caps and when it comes time to wash them, I spray them with a laundry prewash and set them on the top rack of my dishwasher. This cleans them and still keeps them in shape. — C. Grayson, Dallas, Texas

Be sure to use a clothespin to secure it! You don't want that cap flying into the outfield. — Heloise

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) - Billy "Crash" Craddock blames poor publicity for wrecking a steady gig at the Myrtle Beach Opry.

"If Billy Graham came to Myrtle Beach and no one knew about it, people wouldn't come to see him," said Craddock, who is suing the opry's owners for canceling 103 of his shows, which were scheduled to run through October. He's seeking $120,000 plus punitive damages.

Opry co-owner Jack Gregory says it's Craddock's fault for never selling out a single show during almost a dozen performances in May.

"We made a major blunder bringing in an artist who hasn't had a hit in 20 years," Gregory said. "He's a has-been that did not draw."

Craddock's career peaked in the 1970s with a string of hits that included "Knock Three Times," "Ruby Baby" and "Easy As Pie."

Mississippi civil rights leader Medgar Evers was shot to death in 1963 near his home.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it. This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

AUSTIN — Republican gubernatorial challenger George W. Bush, U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and her Democratic opponent Richard Fisher of Dallas are alike in this respect: they did not answer a questionnaire by Project Vote Smart.

The Oregon-based nonpartisan group that informs voters about candidates' views on key issues via toll-free number 1-800-622-SMART, did, however, get answers from Gov. Ann Richards to questions on issues such as crime, health care, taxes and abortion.

Richard Kimball, president of Project Vote Smart, said 42 of the 86 candidates in Texas running for governor or Congress answered the survey.

Hutchison's campaign said the senator did not receive the questionnaire, while Fisher's campaign said answers were being prepared for mailing. The Bush campaign said it mailed position papers to Project Vote Smart but is now answering more specific questions.

The original deadline for candidates to complete the questionnaire was April 25, but the deadline was extended to mid-August.

Tougher Sentences Endorsed
Gov. Richards last week endorsed proposals by the Greater Dallas Crime Commission to step up prevention against youth crime and to toughen sentencing.

The commission is working on a legislative package that includes:
 ■ Establishing a system that makes the punishment fit the crime;
 ■ Enacting teen curfews;
 ■ Holding parents responsible for their children's failure to make court-ordered restitution payments;
 ■ Expanding determinate sentencing, which would require youths to serve full sentences; and
 ■ Allowing law enforcement agencies to share juvenile records.

But Bush, who has proposed lowering the age at which juveniles can be tried as adults to 14, said the governor's endorsement of the reforms are "too late and not tough enough."

A November 1993 Texas A&M poll showed crime as the number one concern of voters. Last week, the Richards gubernatorial campaign began airing television commercials focusing on juvenile crime.

Bullock Needed Over Aide

Tex Lezar, the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock's campaign aide Jim Warren is a gambling lobbyist and renewed earlier charges that Bullock has been "bought" by gambling interests.

Bush joins TV fray with crime message

AUSTIN (AP) - Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush joins the TV commercial battle today, airing an ad that promises to get tough on crime.

A week after Democratic Gov. Ann Richards began TV advertising, Bush returned fire with a 60-second spot airing statewide.

Besides fighting crime, he pledges to overhaul welfare. He outlines his background as an oilman and managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team.

The spot, previewed by his campaign Monday, concludes with a line familiar from Bush's stump speeches: "I do not want Texas to look like New York, California or anywhere else. I want Texas to be Texas."

The commercial brought protests from the Richard campaign, which called it misleading.

"George Bush fails to meet the truth test either on the front end or the back end of this ad," spokesman Chuck McDonald said. "He misrepresents what's happening in Texas in the battle against crime. He really inflates his business record. His comments on welfare are a fantasy."

McDonald said the crime rate in Texas is down and paroles are at the lowest level in 10 years. He said welfare is among the lowest-paying in the nation and is driven by federal

In pointing out that Bullock has received some $150,000 in campaign contributions from casino promoters, Lezar told The Dallas Morning News, "Bob Bullock says he's personally against casino gambling. But with a casino lobbyist as his official mouthpiece, don't bet on it."

Bullock, however, said Lezar's complaint about his aide may be rooted in the fact that in 1990 Warren helped state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, defeat Lezar and others for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Death Row Fast Track

Gov. Richards on Aug. 4 called for speeding the appeals process for inmates on Texas' death row, whose wait averages 10 and a half years.

"If someone has been wrongly convicted, we should find out as quickly as possible. If not, we should carry out the sentence imposed by the jury and move on," the governor said in a news release, the day after the death penalty was carried out on three men on Arkansas' death row.

Richards also called for setting a deadline for filing habeas corpus petitions in state court; and requiring that judges set an execution date after such petitions are filed.

But Bush, Richards' opponent, interpreted the governor's comments as political and having nothing to do with criminal justice.

AG: Complaint Has 'No Merit'
Attorney General Dan Morales says former Assistant Attorney General Gary Bledsoe's racial discrimination complaint against him has "no merit."

Bledsoe filed the complaint with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission after he left his job in January, saying he was ordered to resign or be fired. Bledsoe, who is president of the NAACP's Texas chapter, had been with the attorney general's office for 15 years, overseeing cases involving civil rights, elections and open government.

In September 1993, state Republican Party officials accused Bledsoe of conducting NAACP and Democratic Party business while carrying out his duties for the state. Morales placed Bledsoe on paid administrative leave and ordered an investigation.

Bledsoe resigned in January, and two months later, the Travis County District Attorney's office, which conducts ethics investigations, cleared Bledsoe of any wrongdoing.

Other Highlights
 ■ James Granberry, former chairman of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles, was sentenced to six months in a halfway house after pleading guilty in April to lying to parole consultants. U.S. District Judge Walter Smith ordered Granberry to spend nights and weekends in the Smith County Rehabilitation Center. He also received five years of probation.

requirements for Medicaid. He said Bush's business experience was helped along by friends of his father, the former president.

Bush's campaign said the commercial, which will run for two to three weeks, calls attention to Richards' failings and introduces Bush to voters.

"The status quo is no longer acceptable. The status quo does not take us in the direction that Texans want to go," Bush campaign manager Joe Albaugh said.

The advertisement reignited the debate between the Richards and Bush camps over crime.

The commercial says 7,700 criminals were released early from prison in the past three years. Bush spokeswoman Karen Hughes said the Republican will end early releases and prohibit parole for sex offenders and child molesters.

"George Bush does not believe letting criminals prey on the people of Texas is good public policy," she said. "People do not feel safe in Texas today."

Karl Rove, a Bush consultant, said a drop in the crime rate per 100,000 people, which takes population growth into account, isn't as important if the total number of violent crimes is higher than four years ago.

Stiles defends his role in site selection for juvenile prison

By CHIP BROWN

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A state legislator whose concrete company is a subcontractor in the construction of a youth state school being built on sinking ground near Beaumont has defended his role in the site selection of the facility.

State Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, said Monday that he had only an intermediary role in introducing Texas Youth Commission officials with leaders in Jefferson County, which ultimately received the project.

The Joint Interim Committee on the Family Code Monday conducted a hearing to investigate why the Golden Triangle State School for youths was being built on a former rice field near Beaumont at a cost to taxpayers of more than $10 million in overruns.

Ron Jackson, former executive director of the Youth Commission, said he would take the blame for going ahead with plans to build a downsized facility on sinking ground despite being over budget.

"I know you are looking for someone to point the finger at," Jackson, who stepped down last December after leading the TYC for 20 years, told the committee.

Jackson said he had received support for the facility's location from Stiles and state Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, despite sinking ground that afflicted the construction of a state prison less than a mile away from the state school.

Jackson said there "was no formal site selection process." He said the facility's location was based on a statement by Stiles that Jefferson County would be willing to donate the land and support the project.

"We never considered another site," Jackson said.

A ready-mix concrete company headed by Stiles is one of the subcontractors assisting in the construction of the youth facility. The company, Transit Mix, is also a subcontractor in a half dozen state prison projects.

Stiles defended his company's involvement in the project and said his company's assistance with the youth facility had nothing to do with the site selection.

State leaders, including Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, have said that during the 1995 Legislature they will investigate conflict-of-interest laws pertaining to lawmakers based on Stiles' business with the state.

"We have been through this for the past five or six years," Stiles said. "The contractor is free to use whatever subcontractors they want to use. Sometimes we get those jobs. Sometimes we don't."

Stiles said his only involvement in the site selection was putting Jackson in touch with Jefferson County officials who have been supportive of attracting prison projects because of economic woes in the area's petrochemical industry.

"Other than hooking the county up with Mr. Jackson, I didn't have a great deal to do with the facility," Stiles said.

Both Stiles and Parker said cost overruns for the youth facility could have been avoided if local architects and engineers with expertise in building on the marshy grounds of the Texas Gulf Coast had been hired.

Estimates for the youth facility failed to factor in $5 million needed for fill-in dirt to keep the youth state school from sinking, several TYC officials told the committee.

Attempting to stay within a $20 million budget approved by the Legislature, Jackson said he approved a new design that reduced the 144-bed youth facility down to 48 beds. It is expected to be completed in July 1995.

Youth Commission officials say they will need another $10 million to complete the original design of 144 beds.

"Pennies are starting to add up to tens of millions of dollars where we could have had some more prison beds and had bad people locked up instead of building in a swamp," said state Sen. Chris Harris, R-Arlington, co-chairman of the committee looking into matter.

"This state cannot afford to be wasting this kind of money," he said.

Similar structural problems have occurred at the Stiles Unit, a prison named after the state representative and located just down the road from the youth facility.

Taxpayers had to ante up an additional $6 million two years ago to keep the prison from sinking.

When Jackson was asked why the youth state school was being built in an area where the state has had problems in the past, Jackson said, "Nearly every site we have built has had problems."

Jackson said the site was good because the facility is located near resource centers like Lamar University. He said other advantages include Jefferson County's support for the project and the facility's proximity to Beaumont and Houston, two cities that have a large number of juvenile offenders.
