Residents back curfew at public hearing

Curfew discussion

A public meeting Monday evening attracted approximately 90 citizens to discuss a proposed juvenile curfew ordinance. Wayne Dollar, standing center, addresses the City Commission on his views of the ordinance. On a show of hands, most of the participants indicated support for a curfew. The commission will consider it at a regular meeting on Sept. 19.

An overwhelming majority of Hereford residents attending a public meeting Monday evening raised their hands in support of the city's proposed juvenile curfew ordinance.

During an hour and a half meeting, approximately 90 persons listened to explanations of the proposal, enforcement of the ordinance and reasons for the City Commission to enact the ordinance.

Tenor of remarks made by participants indicated a belief that the ordinance may not go far enough.

"This is the best we can do," said Assistant City Attorney David Red. Mayor Bob Josserand echoed the attorney's statement, saying, "We're treading close to violation of rights. This comes as close as we can.'

The ordinance as written would place a curfew on juveniles age 16 and under.

Curfew hours would be 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday. On weekends, hours would be 12:01 a.m. to 6 a.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Asked about enforcement of the ordinance, Josserand responded, "We want it strictly enforced, applying to everyone, across the board.

Hereford Police Chief David Wagner reviewed statistics on juvenile offenses and said the ordinance is not a "catch-all."

Wagner observed that often, "it's the same kids over and over . . . they travel in groups and probably get in trouble together."

Deaf Smith County pays $7,863 Police officers are hampered in their job now because they cannot allowance up to $5,750. Texas take action when juveniles are found Agricultural Extension Service also on the streets at night.

responsibility on parents and guardians," Wagner said. Police also could respond to calls from store year. They represented 42 states, owners about juveniles on their premises during curfew hours, he

> Red explained the history of the ordinance, noting that it is based on one passed in Dallas.

"It was declared unconstitutional by a federal judge on a suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union,' Red said. "But, on appeal, the Fifth-Circuit of Appeals upheld the ordinance.'

The ACLU filed a writ to the U.S. Supreme Court, but it was denied, Red said.

Questions to Red and the commission ranged from the amount of a fine, if a juvenile is cited for breaking the curfew, to accountability of parents of children cited.

A speaker observed that juveniles who are at home, "taking care of business," will not be affected by the ordinance.

A fine of $75 would be levied on a first offense and doubled on a second offenses, Red reported. On a third offense, juvenile authorites would be contacted.

Fault-finding with provisions of the ordinance centered on penalties for parents whose juveniles children are cited for the curfew violation.

Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons, attending as an interested citizen, answered a question about handling of juvenile offenses.

"Hearing cases on juveniles is very complicated," Simons declared. He added that he believes the curfew "is a step in the right direction.'

Some parents say they can't do anything with their children," said a speaker. "There are parents out there who have no control and want help." Among remarks made by those attending the meeting were:

-- "Some kids will find places to hide and can run faster.'

-- "It's high time we did something.

-- "Parents being hauled in and fined will make a difference."

-- "The only thing wrong is it (ordinance) does not have enough punch.

-- "This won't hurt honest people."

DNA test results give prosecution strong evidence

LOS ANGELES (AP) - DNA test results have armed prosecutors with their strongest evidence yet against O.J. Simpson. Now the question is whether they will be allowed to use it at Simpson's trial.

Tests show that the genetic makeup of Simpson's blood matches the makeup of blood drops that led from the bodies of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman, prosecutors said in papers filed Monday.

With no known eyewitness to the June 12 killings, DNA evidence is crucial to the case against Simpson. That's why his lawyers are fighting so hard to keep the jury from hearing about it.

"We contend that, with regard to all of this evidence, there's a real question that all of it has been degraded or contaminated in some way," defense lawyer Johnnie Cochran Jr. said outside the hearing.

Prosecutors claim Simpson left blood at the murder scene when he cut his finger during a struggle. The defense has provided a variety of explanations for the cut.

Simpson has pleaded innocent to two counts of murder. Jury selection is to begin Sept. 19.

Scientific experts have differed on how to interpret DNA tests, so prosecutors must persuade Judge Lance Ito to admit their results. They also must say what the odds are that the blood came from Simpson and not someone else.

California's appeals courts have been divided on the admissibility of DNA evidence, so the defense has room to maneuver. Simpson's lawyers are expected to challenge the test results at a hearing after jury selection.

Prosecutors said one kind of DNA testing, called PCR, on two samples from the blood trail showed matches with Simpson's blood.

One of the samples also underwent a more sophisticated DNA test, called RFLP, and those results also showed a match with Simpson's blood.

The RFLP test, sometimes called DNA fingerprinting, is based on the position of dark bands of DNA matter on X-ray film.

Experts determine if bands generated by DNA taken from crime scene body fluids or tissue samples appear at the same distance from the top of the film as bands from a suspect's DNA. Once a match is generated, scientists use statistics to help explain how many people might share the pattern. The chances of more than one person's DNA having the same pattern can range from one in a few thousand to one in billions.

The prosecution's motion did not include the statistical odds of the samples matching someone else's blood.

The defense is expected to argue that the population sample used to calculate the frequency of Simpson's blood characteristics could indicate there are other people with the same genetic markers - perhaps even another killer.

The defense already has claimed that the blood samples are inadmissible because they have been compro-mised by mislabeling, cutting, switching and other discrepancies.

Monday's hearing, due to resume today, was scheduled after prosecutors admitted that police had more blood samples than previously disclosed. The defense wants some of those newly disclosed samples to conduct its own tests.

Prosecutors argued in court papers that that it would be useless for the defense to conduct its own tests because the DNA tests conducted so far implicate the defendant

How to make tables into decorative pieces

A table made out of a wagon wheel almost broke up a wedding in "When Harry Met Sally," a popular film of several years ago. The bride wanted to get rid of the wagon wheel, which was one of the groom's most cherished possessions.

It probably wouldn't happen today because unusual tables have come into their own.

Many of today's finest accent tables are made out of things not originally designed as furniture wagon wheels, sleighs or mill stones," says Linda Jones, consultant to the North Carolina furniture conglomerate, Masco Corp.

Occasional tables these days run from the gamut from folksy - a washstand or a table with a painted rural scene - to avant garde - glass nesting tables that can be put together in various ways.

Look also for unusual shapes such as a heart or cloverleaf, tables in steps or tiers, and tables with swing-out extensions for extra utility.

Besides traditional wood and glass and metal, there are tables covered with leather or natural fibers such as straw or rattan.

"The proliferation of designs meets the demand for pieces that express personal style," says Jones.

Table placement has also freed up. Many decorators are designing rooms in which an ottoman substitutes for the coffee table. An ottoman provides a perch for intimate conversations and a resting place for the feet. When the ottoman is needed for serving, a tray is placed on it.

'In a traditional room, I like to use a modern table, and vice versa," says Vicente Wolf, a designer in New

The unexpectedness of the table adds great interest to decor. Recently, he placed an old African stool next to a 19th century Italian chair.

One of Wolf's more unusual ideas the taller table.

In his own bedroom, he has two unmatched tables by his bed. There's a 29-inch-high rectangle in light wood and under it at an angle is an 18-inch-high boomerang-shaped

"On the upper table, I have a telephone, flowers and a display," he says. "On the lower one, I keep a book, a plate full or grapes or whatever.

Another alternative to the coffee table - especially in formal traditional English and American colonial style rooms - is the tea table. It's a little higher than the usual coffee table, which means it works well with traditional sofas which often sit higher than contemporary sofas.

The smaller size of the tea table makes seating more convenient and accessible. A tea cart, which can be moved out of the way when not in use, is another option that's useful for small rooms.

"Many people are opting to use several small tables in place of a larger one," says Jones.

One idea is to bunch four smaller square tables which can be separated when needed in other parts of the room. Small tables that can be picked up are often more useful than a large table which is too heavy to move. A nest of three tables in graduated sizes also adds flexibility.

Placing any table on casters makes it far more flexible. If you do opt for a large coffee table, consider putting in on casters so it can be moved around.

Still, don't write off the coffee table. A sofa with a coffee table in front and lamp tables at either end remains a very functional option.

In a traditional room, a contemporary glass coffee table with a metal base is a good choice. Metal is good because it doesn't look old or new, says decorator Teri Seidman. A glass top allows an attractive area rug to show to advantage.

Glass coffee tables these days involves placing two tables of come in many shapes and sizes and different heights next to each other. bases are quite varied. If you don't He might combine a rectangular table see what you like, be creative and and an irregularly shaped lower table make up your own combination, says set on a slant and jutting out below Seidman. With a glass top use garden sculpture or a Chinese urn.

Gwenllian the Queen felt in her bosom the heaviest agony she had felt since the awful death of her father the King. Here was a great saga of a book that had been written about the newfound continent of larghal--and there was not one person on the continent of larghal who could read!" (from Children of First Man by James Alexander Thom)

Madoc the Welshman had founded a kingdom on the continent of what is now known as America, but building it had required a lot of work, so the young people were not taught now to read, and by the time that fact was discovered, it was too late. So a great kingdom was lost because one generation did not learn how to read. The information was available in the form of sagas, the Bible, and other writings, but it was as inaccessible as if it had all been left in Wales. There a lesson there--for all generations.

On the lighter side...On the bestseller list--and on our new book shelf--is Politically Correct Bedtime Stories by James Finn Garner (no relation to the actor). Subtitled Modern Tales for Our Times," don't look for serious allegory here. In this storyland, dwarfs are "vertically challenged", the emperor is expressing a "clothing optional" lifestyle, and the millers daughter turns straw into gold by thatching the peasants houses, thereby making them happier and more productive. And Henny Penny's reply to Little Red Hen's alarm of the sky falling is...well, it's right up to date anyway, the satire in these tales will be totally lost on little kids, but adults should find the book hilarious. (If you want a similar book that you AND the little one will enjoy, try The Stinky Cheese Man and Other Fairly Stupid Tales by Jon Scieszka.

I had a lot of fun with the Golden K Kiwanis this week. They had asked for a program, and I decided to do something on poetry. Modern poetry, it seems to me, is sort of like drinking a Diet Coke that somebody opened yesterday and left on the counter, so we enjoyed some of the old stuff. In researching the program I discovered (or rediscovered, actually) that some poetry is better read to oneself, and some is excellent to read aloud. (Some should not be read at all, but we won't get into that!) Poetry Out Loud is, obviously, a collection of poems that, in the hand--or mouth--of a good reader can come alive! Some of the old favorites are here--"Casey at the Bat"
"Crossing the Bar," "Oymandius." There are a number of lesser known ones here, and even a few from the third category mentioned above, but generally, this is a fun book to spend time with.

players are making a tour of the area's Class 5A high schools in the early part of the season. They're not doing it to rack up wins, coach Ed Coplen said, they're doing it to prepare for the District 1-4A schedule.

The Herd lost two team matches Saturday in Lubbock. They lost to perennial power Monterey, 16-2, in the morning, then fell to Lubbock High, 12-6, in the afternoon.

We knew when we went down there that we weren't going to win a whole lot of matches," Coplen said. "We needed to play better people so we'll be ready when we get into district.'

The Hereford players showed some improvement just in the span of a few hours.

We played better against Lubbock High than we did against Monterey," Coplen said, "and some of the Lubbock High players we played better against were better than the Monterey players."

Baseball negotiators resort to name-calling

By RONALD BLUM

AP Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) - If progress is too much to hope for in the baseball talks, mudslinging is always a fallback position.

There was no progress Monday as the walkout by players completed its 11th day. But union head Donald Fehr called management negotiator Richard Ravitch a "hatchet man" for owners who shed "crocodile tears" for laid-off workers.

Federal mediators announced talks will resume Wednesday in the first face-to-face meeting between the bargaining teams since players struck Aug. 12. Fehr said he saw no evidence that there could be progress, and Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington said when owners get to the table they will be offering the same salary-cap proposal that caused baseball's eighth work stoppage since 1972.

"We assume that at the first meeting we'll get the management chorus of 'Solidarity Forever' and We Love Dick," Fehr said after meeting with Ravitch and the ors for about 20 minutes to set ek's schedule.

Three owners were picked by the nagement's 12-member pool: Jerry insdorf of the Chicago White Sox.

Jerry McMorris of the Colorado workers laid off because of the Rockies and Drayton McLane of the Houston Astros. Also in the group is Wendy Selig-Prieb, daughter of acting commissioner Bud Selig and the vice president-general counsel of Fehr, in his most testy demeanor launched into repeated attacks on Ravitch's credibility. He predicted owners would sing the "Hallelujah Chorus" at the bargaining table.

"The owners want to drastically lower player salaries," Fehr said.
"Dick's the assigned hatchet man to go and get it done. Dick is not an

Ravitch, in baseball talks for the first time, shrugged off Fehr's

"The last time I found name calling to be meaningful was when I was in grade school," Ravitch said. "I don't think it helps the situation."

Ravitch has said repeatedly he feels for the tens of thousands of

players' strike, which has already forced cancellation of 141 games.

Fehr, pointing out that Ravitch is getting paid his $750,000 annual salary during the walkout while the Milwaukee Brewers, the team her players and union officials are not getting paid, referred to "the crocodile tears Dick cries once in since the strike began Aug. 12, awhile for the people at the stadiums."

Fehr said nothing the union does expect them to.

insisted owners are on a preset schedule, believing that players will crack and accept a salary cap.

"The owners decided a long time ago they are on a clock," Fehr said. "And when the clock gets to the day they want to settle - whether it's this week, this month, next month, next year or 1996 - then they'll talk seriously. Up until then we can't

Fire safety tips for back-to-school season

School days, school days, good ol' fire safety rule days.

As children head back to school, it's a good time for parents and teachers to review fire safety rules. The Texas Commission on Fire Protection offers these tips as the season changes to fall:

Be sure that children are supervised after school. Fire departments report that the number of false alarms and fires caused by children increase in the afternoon, after school is dismissed. Remind older children who stay alone after school that most 911 and other emergency number phone calls can be traced to the phone where the call was made.

Encourage your local school to conduct its first fire exit drill during the first two weeks of school. Teachers should review exit procedures on the first class day.

Begin testing our smoke alarm each month. Check the type of batteries used by your smoke alarm, and buy a supply of that type. Replace the batteries if you have not changed the batteries in the past year or if you cannot remember when the batteries were changed last.

Prepare now for cooler weather. Have a qualified technician check your heating equipment before you need to turn it on. Have your chimney cleaned now.

Take care of "fall cleaning" before cold weather closes in. Clearing dried plants, dead limbs and other rubbish from outside will improve the fire safety of your home. Clean old rags, unused paint and cleaners and other flammable materials from the garage and workshop; take these hazardous materials to an approved disposal facility.

Help high school students plan now for a safe homecoming bonfire. Encourage students to meet with the local fire department before planning the bonfire. Some cities have specific regulations on outdoor fires, so students should plan early to avoid disappointment. Local fire fighters can also help students plan a safe location and supervise the event.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can a person using oxygen equipment travel by air? This has come up in my family. My father wants to join us on a trip across country, but he has emphysema pretty bad. A doctor warns of problems. Can't they be overcome? - Mrs. D.O.

ANSWER: I can't answer your questions without lots of answers regarding your father's respiratory distress and how it is being handled in the home setting.

Certainly, respiratory patients do travel by air every day, but it is something you'd need to check out first. It is not the easiest thing to arrange, and the last thing you'd want would be an unanticipated glitch at the airport terminal.

The doctor would need to approve the flight and indicate such factors as how much pressurization your father can tolerate for what length of time. You'd need to arrange for medical certification and a prescription for any oxygen therapy, should it be

The airline would want to know whether there would be adult care available, since not every airplane can possibly be manned for every kind of medical emergency. Passenger safety is a factor. Does the airline have rules concerning oxygendelivery systems on normal flights? If a patient is traveling with a tour group, the needs of the group might cause difficulty for the ailing member, or vice versa. Sometimes, groups with common problems make joint travel arrangements.

All such concerns apply to bus, train and ship travel as well.

A travel agent can quickly fill you in on a particular carrier's specific travel rules.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I recently had my annual physical, and every thing was fine. The only thing really wrong with me is my 67-year-old thyroid, for which I now take medicine. For some time, though, I have been having peculiar creepy-crawly feelings in my legs, a tingling. I don't experience this when I am up, only when in bed. My legs don't jump around in bed. It's just a tingling. Oh, yes, my circulation is fine. I forgot to mention all this to my doctor. I guess I need a list of things to me in the meantime? — Mrs. L.W. ANSWER: Restless-leg syndrome would be high on my guess list. You ask for the next visit. Can you help have eliminated circulation prob-lems, which would be likely were the switch to "more sensible" shoes symptoms present when up and ones that don't cramp the foot about. Nerve problems might cause perverted leg sensations similar to those of restless-leg syndrome.

Let me give you a little test to try. Stop all intake of caffeine, alcohol and nicotine. If the discomfort improves, you can lay a bet on the restless-leg idea. I would not wait for your next regularly scheduled visit to the doctor. I would turn right around and go back and report your neglected com-

There are some medicines for restss legs, and the doctor can check on the possible nerve-related disorders

FOR L.I.M.: About 90 percent of those infected with the AIDS virus develop a positive test result within 40 days. To allow for some margin of error, repeat testing is done. A test done after three months and repeated at six months after any suspicious encounter can assure reliable results.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Are bunions on the feet inherited? Or are they from the shoes you wear? Should one be operated on to correct things? My son, 50, has had them for a number of years, and his daughter. 15, has developed them too. My daughter-in-law says bunions are hereditary. - A.R.

ANSWER: Bunions arise from the foot bone structure we inherit, a fault exaggerated by the abuse to which we subject our feet, particularly the cramping shoe styles favored by many women.

In areas of the world where people don't wear shoes, bunions are a rar-

Doctors have been trying for many

Where possible, it is best to treat a bunion with simple measures, such as wider box-type toes and soft in-serts to relieve friction. When such measures fail, bunions can be removed surgically, and the offending bone structure can be altered.

For more information, see the foot care material I'm sending you. For a copy of "Relief and Care of the Feet." readers should write: Dr. Donohue No. 11, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a selfaddressed, stamped (52 cents) No.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor said my urine contains a lot of arsenic. I read where there is arsenic in food, such as shellfish, cod and haddock. Could you give me a complete list of foods containing arsenic, so I can avoid them in the future?—S.F.

ANSWER: I could give you a list, but you don't need that. In fact, the arsenic that appears as a natural component of food does no harm. It is

It's the kind of arsenic used in various industrial processes that poisons the system when absorbed.

There is some confusion on this subject, for the ordinary urine test fails to distinguish the harmless from the harmful kind. Discuss the matter further with your doctor and see if he thinks it necessary to begin treatment to help your body rid itself of arsenic.

Your doctor can find an interesting discussion of arsenic in the December 1993 issue of the Mayo Clinic Proceedings. It describes a new test that does distinguish the two arsenics in urine samples.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, You who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my idea. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once ore that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for Your love towards me and my loved ones. HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams & Ed Sterling TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Cost overruns at a youth corrections facility under construction on sinking ground near Beaumont sparked a blame-game between lawmakers and other parties responsible for the project, after a seven-hour hearing last week.

According to Texas Youth Com-mission officials the half-finished Golden Triangle State School project's cost has tripled from the original figure of $126,805 per bed to $380,417 per bed.
Youth Commission officials blamed the Legislature and Beaumont Democratic Rep. Mark Stiles, and Stiles, in turn, blamed architects who planned construction on the 35-acre site in a former rice

The Youth Commission already has spent $18.2 million on the project and is seeking another $10.6 million to complete it, according to a report in the Austin American-Statesman.

Sen. Chris Harris, R-Arlington, chairman of the Joint Interim Committee on the Family Code, (which conducted the hearing) referred to the land as a "swamp," and suggested that the Legislature close the Youth Commission and give its responsibilities to others "who can do the job right."

Stiles, whose concrete company is a contractor in the project, said his company got the contract through competitive bidding.

Jefferson County Judge R.P. LeBlanc Jr. said the county spent nearly $10 million building roads and routing utilities to the site. "That's not a swamp," he told the American-Statesman.

Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush pointed to news of the bungled project, accusing Gov. Ann Richards of "monumental mismanagement" of the project and noted the Youth Commission is overseen by a board controlled by her appointees.

But the Richards campaign said Comer Contrell, a business partner of Bush in the Texas Rangers baseball team, oversaw the project while a member of the Youth Commis-

However, Ron Jackson, who resigned in December from his post as executive director of the Youth Commission, said he would take the blame for going ahead with the plans for the downsized facility.

Baseball Strike Assistance Meanwhile, Gov. Richards has asked the Texas Department of Commerce to lead the Texas Rapid Response Team in assisting stadium and team employees affected by the Major League Baseball strike.

The Department of Commerce contacted employee representatives of the Houston Astros and Texas Rangers, offering workers financial management assistance, retraining, resume writing interviewing workshops, labor market information.

Representatives for both teams said no workers are immediately impacted, according to the commerce department. Lotto Sales Lead Nation

At 26 and a half months old, the Texas lottery topped $5 billion in sales last week, making it the fastest-growing lottery in the nation. Texas reached the $5 billion plateau half a year faster than its closest competitor among lottery states, Florida, which reached the $5 billion mark after 32 months.

About $1.7 billion of the lottery's proceeds have been received by the state treasury, according to Texas lottery spokesman Steve Levine. Costly: Jailed Foreigners

Texas taxpayers are forking out

$74 million a year to feed, clothe, house and supervise 4,760 non-U.S. residents in state prisons, according to a study released by the Criminal Justice Policy Council.

Those costs were included in the immigration lawsuit filed by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales against the federal government. The suit seeks reimbursement to the state for the health care, education and criminal justice costs of undocumented residents.

According to the CJPC study, costs would be reduced if the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service could deport foreign prisoners to their native countries, but noted that the INS does not have the capacity to conduct deportation hearings for the thousands of prisoners.

Insurers Must Fix Roofs

Insurance companies last week were ordered to pay for the removal of multiple layers of shingles when replacing hail-damaged roofs.

Insurers who refuse to pay for the tear-offs could face disciplinary action under the order issued by state insurance commissioner Robert Hunter.

"To deny payment for the re-moval of all roofing materials after a storm is an unfair practice," Hunter

Complaints by consumers were filed when some companies refused to pay for a complete tear-off, contending that they were only obligated to remove only one layer.

In a Dallas Morning News report, Jerry Johns of the Southwestem Insurance Information Service said the order would affect "only a handful of insurers."

Teachers Feel TAAS Pressure Texas State Teachers Association has found that some of its members spend an average of 11 hours a week preparing students for the Skills, or TAAS, and feel pressured Adopted by the state Legislature in 1985, TAAS measures reading, writing, math, science and social studies skills. The Texas Education Agency rates schools and school districts based on TAAS scores. Richard Khouri, president of TSTA, called TAAS a "high-stakes test" and said the state is placing "too much emphasis on a single

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) - Bobcat Goldthwait will atone for setting the set of the "Tonight Show" ablaze by going on TV to talk about the dangers of playing with fire.

Under a plea agreement, Goldthwait agreed to videotape a public service announcement and pay restitution. The 32-year-old comic will plead no contest to one of two misdemeanor counts of illegally setting a fire, Deputy City Attorney Robert Walters said Thursday. He had faced up to a $1,000 fine and six months in jail on each charge.

Goldthwait poured lighter fluid on a chair and set it on fire during a May appearance on NBC's "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno." Leno and guest Lauren Hutton doused the fire with cups of water.

NEW YORK (AP) - Call it closure for tuxedo magnate Harvey Weinstein. Weinstein marked the first anniversary of his release by kidnappers by returning to the 14-foot-deep pit where he was held for two weeks. Weinstein, 69, said he suffers no ill effects from the bizarre ordeal, but he did not want to go to the pit alone. So he asked the two detectives who arrested his kidnappers and rescued him to come along.

"I would have never suggested bringing him back there, but I know he needed to do it for himself," said Detective Ruben Santiago.

Gramm leads group opposing crime bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - With the Senate's debate on crime now in leading a contingent of Republicans who want to take a scalpel to the House-passed crime bill. crime-fighting."

Both Texas se earlier, leaner verified to the continuous crime-fighting.

Following the House's approval Sunday of the $30 billion package, Gramm and other Republicans announced they would try to thwart that plan and offer a version of their

The GOP lawmakers will raise a procedural motion against the bill, forcing Democratic supporters to line up 60 votes to continue debate.

If the 60 votes can't be found, it probably would mean the end of the package that passed the House on Sunday, 235-195.

"I think we can do a better job, not erasing what (the House) did but building on it," Gramm said Monday in a speech on the Senate floor, adding that he wants more money for prisons and police officers, less for social workers.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., argued that failure to pass the House bill would place the whole issue back at square one, reopening a process that has been going on for six years. Gramm said he and other Republicans were devising a 'consensus amendment' that wouldn't kill the bill, but would pare some $5 billion in crime-prevention spending.

The GOP alternative would impose federal mandatory minimum sentences on those convicted of selling drugs to minors or who use a gun during the commission of some state crimes.

The Republican plan also would eliminate a measure allowing some non-violent, first-time drug offenders to avoid five- and 10-year mandatory minimum sentences.

Texas' other senator, Republican would oppose the House-passed bill. "I still think it's not a crime bill," she said in an interview. "They took swing, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm is $3 billion out, but the emphasis is not Both Texas senators voted for an earlier, leaner version of the crime bill last November.

If Senate opponents prevail in their effort to amend the crime bill, the House would have to deal with it once Nine of Texas' 21 House Democrats and all nine Republicans lined up against the six-year package. Eleven of the Democrats supported it. Houston Democrat Craig Washington - whose voting record has taken a precipitous dip since his March primary defeat - didn't vote.

The compromise, crafted after the bill was first rejected by the House, zapped $10 million in funding House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jack Brooks of Beaumont had obtained for his alma mater.

Brook's had inserted $10 million to establish a criminal justice center at Lamar University. Republicans eagerly seized on the money as proof the bill was laden with pork.

Jefferson County Sheriff Carl Griffith, who first proposed the idea of the criminal justice center in 1991, expressed disappointment that the money was lost from the crime bill. But, he added: "I do believe some way we will end up receiving funding. It's a needed training facility.

Also falling by the wayside was $1 million sought by Rep. Charlie, Wilson, D-Lufkin, for a substance-abuse treatment training center at Sam Houston University in Huntsville.

Republicans derided the Lamar and Sam Houston money.

We just found another piece of pork in here, for Charlie Wilson,' Rep. James Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., was quoted as saying.
