House conservatives gain victory with vote

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Triumphant conservatives say a House vote strengthening the president's ability to force spending cuts is a blow against pork barrel projects that could save taxpayers big dollars.

Deficit-cutting hawks of both parties were exultant Thursday after the chamber embarrassed its Democratic leaders and voted to require Congress to vote on presidential proposals to kill individual spending items or tax breaks in big bills.

"I know of no single process reform measure enacted in recent years that has as much potential to allow us to cut spending and save taxpayers money," said Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, who sponsored the measure with Reps. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, and Tim Penny, D-Minn.

By a 298-121 roll call, lawmakers approved the conservatives' proposal and substituted it for a weaker version put forward by Democratic leaders. Lawmakers then voted 342-69 to give the legislation final passage.

Currently, presidents can propose killing individual spending items in bills. But the proposals, called rescissions, must be approved within 45 days by Congress, and they die if lawmakers take no action. Presidents cannot now cancel narrow tax reductions, targeted at individuals or companies, in revenue measures.

Thursday's vote was probably symbolic because opponents in the Senate, led by Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., have been able to keep similar legislation from coming to a vote.

But it gave the House's fiscal conservatives a rare victory, just as the chamber begins a month of votes on spending cuts and budget processes. It also puts President Clinton in a touchy position.

During his 1992 election campaign, he supported the line-item veto, which would allow the president to kill individual spending items unless Congress refuses by a two-thirds majority. Since then, however, he has supported a weaker version offered by Democrats.

The Democratic alternative would have, for 1994 only, required Congress to vote on a presidential proposal to cut an individual spending item if it is issued within three days of the overall measure becoming law.

Anything stronger would give the president too much power, Democrats argued.

"We should not tilt the balance of the power of the purse so dramatically in the president's favor, no matter who he is or what political party he belongs to," said Rep. Butler Derrick, D-S.C.

Voting to replace the Democrats' measure with the conservatives' stronger plan were 128 Democrats and 170 Republicans; voting no were 120 Democrats, no Republicans and 1 independent.

Democratic leaders allowed votes on the proposals as part of a promise they made to conservative members of their party.

In exchange, the leaders hope the conservative Democrats won't support a drive to force the House to set aside a week to vote on dozens of spending-cut proposals. The unprecedented spending-cut plan is called A-to-Z, named for its chief sponsors, Reps. Robert Andrews, D-N.J., and William Zeliff, R-N.H.

Texas delegation will fight military fund cuts

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas congressmen say they will fight to restore $84 million in military construction funds for Texas approved by the House but not included in a bill being considered by the Senate.

Texas Democratic Senate hopeful Richard Fisher is accusing his Republican opponent, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, of dropping the ball by not inserting the funds in the Senate version.

Mrs. Hutchison, who sits on the Senate Armed Services Committee, retorts that Fisher doesn't understand the Senate's procedures. She says its practice is to omit the House-passed military construction funds in favor of its own projects. The two bills then are then reconciled in conference (See TEXAS, Page 12)

HISD administrator takes Portales post

Scott Turner, a lifelong Hereford resident who has served as Federal Programs Director for the Hereford Independent School District has submitted his resignation to assume a position in Portales, N.M.

The Portales school board on Tuesday approved Turner as new principal of Portales High School.

He joins former Hereford ISD assistant superintendent Richard Souter, who resigned here in June to assume the position of superintendent of the New Mexico town's district.

Turner, who was unavailable for comment Friday morning, has worked with HISD for five years.

He has a bachelors degree in math education and a masters in education administration, both from West Texas A&M University.

He also is an elected member of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors.

"We're pleased for Scott because it's a chance for him to grow," said Nena Veazey, HISD assistant superintendent. "He's lived in Hereford all his life so it was a very, very difficult decision."

Mrs. Veazey said district officials have decided not to fill Turner's position, instead merging it with the vacant special education director position.

The district is currently interviewing for that new position.

The former special education director was Terri Souter, who resigned to move to Portales with her husband.

Mrs. Veazey said the vocational education director -- whose duties had been handled by Mrs. Souter as part of her special education director duties -- will be separated from the new special education post and will be addressed at a later date.

Mike Maloy, interim administrator of Hereford Regional Medical Center, said the board will have to take action on Turner's resignation at its next meeting July 26.

Maloy said the hospital bylaws and state law require the board to officially accept Turner's resignation, then appoint someone to fill out the remainder of his two-year term.

That person will serve until May 1995, which was when Turner's term would have expired anyway.

Maloy said he did not know if the hospital board would take action at the July 26 meeting to replace Turner.

"He's been a good board member," Maloy said.

In addition to his work with the school district and hospital, Turner was a deacon at First Baptist Church.

He and his wife have a 9-year-old son.

Heavy rains batter state

By The Associated Press
Torrential rain spread across a vast area of North Texas during the night, prompting the National Weather Service to issue flash flood warnings for four counties.

A flash flood watch was also issued early today for north central and northeast portions of North Texas. The watch area was northeast of a line from Bowie to Glen Rose to Jefferson and includes the cities of Sherman, Paris, Denton, Greenville, Mount Pleasant, Sulphur Springs and the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

In Denton County, Interstate 35 was closed because of high water at Corinth. Numerous other roads in Denton and Collin counties were covered by water during the night, authorities said.

In Hunt County, U.S. 69 was barricaded and closed between Greenville and Celeste and Texas 380 was closed between Greenville and Floyd.

Flooding was also reported on U.S. 69 in eastern portions of Hopkins County.

The flooding was made worse by the slow movement on strong thunderstorms that moved eastward at 10 mph across northern portions of North Texas.

Forecasters called for a chance of continued thunderstorm activity in North Texas tonight and for a slight chance of thunderstorms Saturday.

There is a chance of thunderstorms in the Panhandle, Edwards Plateau and in western sections of West Texas tonight. Skies will be clearing in West Texas on Saturday.

Showers and thunderstorms are also expected in South Texas through Saturday.

Lows tonight will be in the 60s and 70s in West Texas, the 70s in North Texas and in the 70s and 80s in South Texas.

Highs Saturday will be in the 80s and 90s in West Texas, ranging upward to near 103 in the Big Bend area and in the 90s elsewhere across the state.

Heavy rain fell across western portions of South Texas. The heaviest was from near Laredo northward into central and western portions of the Hill Country where as much as four inches fell.

Hand-made waterfall

Bud Paetzold stands behind the four-level waterfall he recently built in the front yard of his 227 Northwest Drive home. Paetzold said he started with an old gas tank, cutting it apart and using part for the back of the waterfall. He bought flagstones and cemented them together on each level, then powered the waterfall with an air conditioner pump. The windmill was on his farm, he said, and he ran the waterfall's pipes through the middle of the windmill to make it appear the windmill was pumping the water. Paetzold said he enjoys sitting by the waterfall in the evenings.

Cattle producers leery of up-and-down market

OLNEY, Texas (AP) - Cattle producers are still reading mixed signals from a market that has crashed farther and faster this spring than ever before.

"People are kind of leery of the market. They're not buying many calves," said John Haggart, buyer for Donnell Ag Products.

However, about a $7 one-week increase in what slaughter cattle were selling for in the Texas Panhandle and other signs indicate that the worst is over in stocker country.

Haggart told the Wichita Falls Times Record News in Thursday's editions that by this time of year, Donnell's five Texas retail outlets normally are starting to sell medicine and other supplies used to process calves and get them ready for fall and winter grazing.

But Donnell's business is slow this year, especially at the Hereford store in the heart of Panhandle cattle-feeding country, said Haggart. That's where the market crash was most keenly felt.

Donnell, based in Graham, has stores in Wichita Falls, Bowie, Abilene, Marlin and Hereford.

Earlier this year, slaughter cattle plunged from a high in the mid-$70s to $60 per hundred pounds in Texas and $58.50 in the Midwest. The bulk of the loss came in May and June, sending gloom throughout the cattle industry.

But August live cattle futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange have traded up the limit of $1.50 three times in the past week - on Friday, Monday and Tuesday.

The contract closed Thursday up 32 cents, at $69.17 - around a $6 jump in one week. That's recovery from a low of $61.65 on June 28.

In the Texas Panhandle, slaughter cattle were trading $6 to $7 more than

Industrial production notes rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - Industrial production rose 0.5 percent in June as unusually hot weather forced a big surge in utility output, the government said today.

The Federal Reserve said without the higher utility use, production rose a mere 0.1 percent last month, matching the overall increase for May. Production at the nation's factories, mines and utilities has risen for 13 straight months.

Plants were operating at 83.9 percent of capacity in June, up 0.3 percent, after declining 0.1 percent in each of the two preceding months. The June operating rate is the highest in five years, but the Fed noted that the stepped-up output at utilities more than accounted for the gain.

The central bank closely watches the figures for signs of inflationary pressure. The increases in output and operating capacity were larger than expected, but since they were weather-related do not appear to signal the economy is heating up excessively.

Nonetheless, most economists are predicting the Fed will raise short-term interest rates for the fifth time this year no later than Aug. 16, when central bank policy-makers hold their next meeting.

The operating rate matched a peak in June 1989. If it rises too high, it could mean production limits are being reached and shortages will result that lead to higher prices and wages.

Most recent data suggest the economy is in a period of moderate growth after a booming expansion in the final months of last year.

The Federal Open Market Committee, the central bank's policy-making body, declined to boost interest rates when it met last week despite worries over the declining value of the U.S. dollar on currency markets. The dollar has stabilized since then.

The Fed said industrial production in June was 5.8 percent higher than it was a year ago and output grew at a 4.4 percent annual rate in the second quarter, down from an 8.3 percent rate in the first quarter.

The slowdown was due mainly to slower car and truck production, the Fed said.

The output of consumer goods rose 0.6 percent in June after slipping 0.1 percent in May. Business equipment was up 0.5 percent following a 0.6 percent rise. And construction supplies rose 0.2 percent on top of a 0.4 percent advance.

Candidate in town for Friday visit

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Richard Fisher was scheduled to be in Hereford Friday morning for a brief stop in his Panhandle campaign swing.

The visit was scheduled at 11:30 a.m. at Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

He was scheduled to meet with seniors at the center and possible eat lunch with them.

Fisher faces incumbent U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in the November general election.

The stop is part of a two-day Panhandle swing for Fisher.

He will also visit Dimmitt, Plainview, Lubbock, Amarillo, Borger and Pampa.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

Last October, Hereford Independent School District officials received word that two schools -- Bluebonnet and Hereford Junior High -- had test scores below state-mandated levels and gave the district one year to improve performance. This year's scores are in and both schools have shown gains in all testing areas.

On Sunday, see a complete breakdown of where testing increases were found and where there is still work to be done.

SAN JOSE CATHOLIC CHURCH

Our parish Rites of Christian Initiation for Adults (RCIA) process will be resuming in August. Anyone interested in inquiring and learning more about the Catholic church or in joining the church is invited to participate. Any baptized Catholic who would like to become active again and deepen their spiritual life can also participate. Please call the parish office at 364-5053 for more information.

San Jose bingo has added some new games and is paying the maximum allowable for prizes. On Monday, bingo will open a non-smoking room for a four-week trial period to see if there is a definite need for this accommodation.

A training for Eucharistic Ministers will be held Aug. 14 at 3 p.m. in the church. Everyone who is presently carrying this ministry will need to attend.

San Jose pre-school will be holding once-week summer session for any interested three or four-year-old children in Hereford. The session will be held July 25-29 from 9 a.m. until noon each day. This is an excellent opportunity for last year's pre-schoolers to renew their skills and for prospective students to get a taste of what a pre-school is like. The cost of the session will be $5 per child.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The Lord's Supper will be observed during the Sunday morning worship service.

The Texas Warriors, a 12-year-old A.A.U. basketball team from Hereford, is headed for the national tournament in Salt Lake, Utah. The team is trying to raise money to defray expenses for the trip. If you have items you would like to donate to help these boys, please call Sharon Hodges at 364-8002 and she will pick them up.

The prayer committee will be revising the prayer chain and adding anyone who wishes to be included. If you would like to be added, please call the church office.

ST. THOMAS EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"Removing Walls and Other Obstructions" is the title of the sermon by the Rev. Charles A. Wilson on the Eighth Sunday after Pentecost. The Holy Eucharist is celebrated at 11 a.m. and there is a coffee hour after the service.

The regular Wednesday Public Service of Healing is at 7 p.m. with the Litany of Healing, the Laying-on-of-Hands with Holy Unction, and Holy Communion. We will observe the major prayer book feast day of St. Mary Magdalene.

Intercessory prayer requests from the community are most welcome. To have them included in the Prayers of the People at all services, please call 364-0146 and leave a message. In case of emergency or to make appointments for personal conferences, please call Father Wilson in Amarillo at 1-353-1734.

The next parish fellowship event will be an evening party for adult members Aug. 14.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Everyone is invited to join FUMC members in the Sunday schedule of events.

Sunday school begins at 9:30 a.m.; morning worship, 10:45; UMYF snack supper and program by Mary Elaine Williamson, 6 p.m.; and evening worship, 6.

Dr. Williamson's sermon this week is entitled "Bouncing Back Into Action" taken from Job 11:16-19. There will be a volunteer choir at the morning service and all singers are welcome to be a part of this service.

Ceta Canyon is seeking help with their fund raising campaign for a beautiful, new dining hall. Ground breaking is scheduled for Oct. 1. Ceta Canyon is asking groups and Sunday school classes to purchase an engraved brick with your name or group's name and town for the cost of $125. This brick will be placed on one of the interior walls of the new dining facility.

FUMC has been gifted with discount tickets for the theme park, Fiesta Texas, located in San Antonio. Ticket holders can save up to $8 on adult one-day admissions or $5 on child/senior citizen one-day admissions. The coupon is good for up to six discount admissions. The offer is good through Sept. 5. Tickets are available at the church office.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

On Sunday, Scott Simpson will be our guest speaker for the regular Sunday morning worship service. His sermon is titled "One Body" taken from the scriptures Psalm 133 and I Corinthians 12:12-31.

Scott is associate pastor-elect of the First Central Presbyterian Church in Abilene where he will assume his duties following examination and acceptance by Palo Duro Presbytery July 22. His ordination and installation in Abilene will be set at a later date. He is a recent graduate of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Austin having been an inquirer and candidate of our congregation and Palo Duro Presbytery.

Sunday school begins at 9:30 a.m. and the fellowship time begins at 10:10 a.m. prior to the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service. Come and meet with others and share fellowship and refreshments.

Small groups will meet following the morning worship service, each being moderated by one of the elders to discuss questions concerning hopes, dreams and expectations for the church. This will help the pastor nominating committee to develop a church information form which will be sent to prospective minister candidates. A dinner hosted by the board of deacons follows the group meetings. Members whose names begin with A-L are asked to bring salads, M-Z--desserts.

The Women's Bible Study, led by Helen Rose, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Canyon escapes with win over Hereford in Babe Ruth tourney

Hereford's 14- and 15-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars were eliminated from their district tournament Thursday in Canyon as the Canyon stars came out on top 10-9 in a back and forth game.

Hereford's first loss in the double-elimination tournament came on Tuesday, an 8-6 loss to Plainview.

Hereford, playing as the home team on Thursday, matched Canyon run-for-run in every inning but the sixth.

Canyon scored two in the top of the first inning, then Hereford scored two in the bottom. Canyon scored two more in the third; Hereford answered with two in the bottom of the inning. Both teams scored one in the fourth and none in the fifth, but Canyon got two in the sixth and held Hereford to one run in the bottom.

Canyon scored three in the top of the seventh, taking a 10-6 lead, but Hereford kept fighting. Eric Ambold, Dustin Hill and Anthony Lopez each hit RBI doubles as Hereford pulled within one run with one out.

Lopez, representing the tying run, moved to third on a passed ball, but that was as far as he'd get. The Canyon pitcher snagged Jeremy Scott's line drive up the middle, and Lopez had no chance to get back to third. The pitcher threw to third for a game-ending double play.

Cup final matches superpowers

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - The United States' first World Cup will climax with a truly grand finale, a match of storied soccer superpowers.

By the time afternoon shadows begin to drift over the Rose Bowl on Sunday, either Brazilians or Italians can brag that theirs is the only nation to win the World Cup four times.

Italian star Roberto Baggio, who seems determined to play despite a slight hamstring pull, said, "To play in the final is a dream. To play Brazil for the World Cup is the appropriate ending."

"This is the best of all possible finals," said Pele, who led Brazil to all three of its world titles, the last in 1970. "These are two great soccer powers seeking to be the first four-time World Cup champion."

The upstarts of the 1994 tournament - the Romanians, Saudi Arabians, Americans - are gone.

A Sweden-Bulgaria final, which would have been applauded by Swedes and Bulgarians and met by yawns by most others, was averted when Brazil beat Sweden 1-0 and Italy downed Bulgaria 2-1 in Wednesday's semifinals.

Sweden and Bulgaria will meet, but in the third-place game on Saturday at the Rose Bowl.

That leaves Sunday to Brazil, which flaunts its flamboyant, relentlessly attacking style, and Italy, which favors the more defined, disciplined technique common to Europe.

"This is a battle of big dogs," Brazilian midfielder Mazinho said of the match of teams that account for six of the previous 14 World Cup titles.

The game could be relatively high-scoring, since both teams are expected to press the attack, rather than lay back on defense as so many of their outmanned opponents have done during this World Cup.

"We want to play the game to win, and have the other team play to win," Brazilian midfielder Jorginho said.

"Italy feels as good as Brazil, and will play for victory," Italian coach Arrigo Sacchi said. "We think we can control their impressive offense. But there is a major difference between strategy and its accomplishment on the field. Certainly it will be another exhausting game for us."

Baggio's injury could spoil what shapes up as a match of two of the world's finest players and top scorers in the tournament; he and Brazil's Romario each have five goals, one behind Hristo Stoichkov of Bulgaria and Oleg Salenko of Russia.

Baggio, who scored five of Italy's eight goals in the competition, is a questionable starter, doctors said.

"At the moment his chances to play are 50 percent. He will be rested for 48 hours. We hope for a positive solution," Dr. Andrea Ferretti said Thursday.

Sacchi said, "We risk to lose Roberto in the moment we had just recovered him, in the moment he had reached his peak condition."

Gianfranco Zola, who has served a two-game suspension, likely would start if Baggio can't.

The Italians will be without top defender Alessandro Costacurta, who was suspended after getting his second yellow card against Bulgaria, and Mauro Tassotti is also ineligible.

Brazil will be missing defender Leonardo, who drew a four-game suspension for elbowing Tab Ramos.

Amy Northcutt, 8, shows off the two buckles she won at the Moore County 4-H and Youth Rodeo Saturday in Dumas. She was first in barrel racing and third in poles in her age group.

Cowboys open camp with Switzer in charge

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Barry Switzer will have more than just the near-100 degree Texas heat beating down on him as the Dallas Cowboys open their 24th training camp today.

Switzer is only the third coach in their history.

Tom Landry and Jimmy Johnson each won two Super Bowls with the Cowboys. Switzer, who won three national championships for the Sooners, will be considered nothing more than a failure if he doesn't produce a Super Bowl victory.

He knows it. And he's ready. "No coach in the NFL will have more focus on them than I will this year," Switzer said. "That's OK. I can handle it."

Switzer has already been involved in long-range sniping with his predecessor, Johnson, who said Switzer "will be alright as long as he doesn't make any suggestions."

Switzer, who used to coach with Johnson, replied that he didn't appreciate Johnson making catty remarks.

"It's uncalled for," Switzer said. "I understand I'll be second-guessed on how the season goes."

Johnson will serve as an analyst for Fox Television this fall on NFC games.

There won't be the adoration for Switzer in Austin that there was for Johnson.

Switzer's feud with former Texas coach Darrell Royal didn't make very many friends in Travis County.

"That was a long time ago," Switzer said. "We're all working for the same thing now."

The defending champions, who have defeated Buffalo in the last two Super Bowls, report to St. Edward's University and have their first workouts on Saturday. Dallas plays its first exhibition game on July 31, hosting the Minnesota Vikings at Texas Stadium.

It won't take long for a scrimmage. The annual "Blue-White" game will be played on Sunday.

However, don't look for Switzer to use many veterans.

"Training camp is a time for looking at your younger players," Switzer said. "I know what Emmitt Smith can do."

Switzer also will be looking at replacements for eight Cowboys who took a ride down the lucrative free agent highway.

Such starters as placekicker Eddie Murray, linebacker Kenny Norton, defensive tackles Jimmie Jones and Tony Casillas, safety Thomas Everett and offensive linemen John Gesek, Kevin Gogan and Frank Cornish must be replaced.

"We've got a big job to do there, but I think we can do it," Switzer said. "Because of free agency, this team won't be as deep as it was the last two years."

"But we have good young players coming up like Chad Hennings at tackle. I think he can become a premier player and he'll get a lot of snaps."

Fullback Daryl Johnston, special teams star Kenny Gant and wide receiver Michael Irvin will miss work early in camp. Johnston has a cut right foot and Gant had knee and shoulder operations in the offseason.

Irvin hurt his shoulder in an offseason basketball game and is rehabilitating from the injury.

Cowboys bring back Bates

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Veteran Bill Bates, a Dallas Cowboys fixture for 12 seasons, and Dale Hellestrae were signed Thursday to one-year contracts with the team.

The pacts give the Cowboys 69 players under contract on the eve of the team's appearance at training camp. Drills start Saturday in Austin.

"Bill Bates represents the best in all of us," said Cowboys owner Jerry Jones. "He's talented enough and qualified enough to make a great contribution around here for years to come."

No other terms of the contracts were announced.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT IS

...one of the wisest investments a community can make for itself because it attracts new industry. New industry means JOBS and GROWTH for our community.

JOBS bring more people, more businesses, more retail sales, more personal income and a much broader tax base. By supporting this vote for economic development we let others (non-residents) who shop in Hereford help pay our taxes. In addition, every new tax dollar raised as a result of job creation is a dollar of tax

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY!

WE NEED ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

To get it, WE NEED THE 1/2¢ SALES TAX. Based on current projections, the 1/2¢ sales tax would yield some $330,000 per year which could be used only for specific economic development projects as mandated by state law.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

How Will Economic Development Funds Be Managed?

A five member Economic Development Board will be appointed by the Hereford City Council. They will serve WITHOUT PAY. Funds can be used for:

- Business development - recruitment and retention
- Workforce development - education and training
- Infrastructure development - water & waste water, electrical and street improvements for job-related projects
- Facility development - new and existing buildings
- Loans

What Will A 1/2¢ Sales Tax Cost The Average Family?

According to the State Controller, a family with a gross income of $35,000 would pay about 98¢ more per week. The extra pennies are more than offset by savings on your property taxes.

Will All Purchases Be Affected By The 1/2¢ Sales Tax?

NO! A city sales tax does not affect most essentials. You pay no sales tax on medical services, prescription drugs, most food products, rents, mortgages, gasoline, automobiles, or agriculture items which are exempt.

Is This 1/2¢ Sales Tax Permanent?

Only if you, the voters, want it to be. Under state law, what voters vote in, they can vote out.

What's At Stake?

Our very future is at stake. This election is about JOBS, GROWTH, EXPANDING OUR TAX BASE, AND GETTING HEREFORD ON THE MOVE. A VOTE FOR THE 1/2¢ SALES TAX ON AUG. 13th WILL ALLOW HEREFORD TO COMPETE, AND HELP SECURE A BRIGHTER FUTURE THAT WILL BENEFIT US ALL.

Yankees rally past Mariners to stay in 1st place

By TOM WITHERS
Associated Press Writer
The New York Yankees couldn't count on Lee Smith to keep them in first place again, so they did it themselves.
The Yankees, three outs away from falling into second place in the AL East, scored seven runs in the ninth inning Thursday night for a 13-8 win over the Mariners in Seattle.
On Sunday, following a loss to California, the Yankees appeared destined to slip behind Baltimore in the standings, but Orioles closer Smith gave up a two-run homer to Oakland's Mark McGwire, giving the Athletics a victory.
"This was a great win for us," New York manager Buck Showalter said. "We really hung in there."
Paul O'Neill, Mike Stanley and Bernie Williams hit two-run doubles in the ninth for the Yankees.
The Yankees, who earlier trailed 7-1, were down 8-6 entering the ninth against Bobby Ayala. With one out, he walked Don Mattingly, pinch-hitter Matt Nokes and Danny Tartabull before O'Neill tied it with a shot to left-center.

Stanley followed with his double off the right field wall, scoring Tartabull and O'Neill. Williams later doubled home two more runs and Boggs hit an RBI double off Goose Gossage, the Mariners' sixth pitcher.
"You've got to be happy about this game," O'Neill said. "We scored seven runs in the ninth against a guy like Ayala, who has good stuff. He's a good pitcher. You're not going to score seven runs against him very often."
Orioles 3, Angels 2
At Anaheim, Calif., Chris Sabo and Rafael Palmeiro hit back-to-back homers in the eighth inning off Mark Langston, and Ben McDonald pitched eight solid innings.
McDonald (11-6), who lost a 1-0 decision to Langston (5-6) in their last meeting on July 2, allowed five hits, struck out five and walked three.

Smith, who gave up a two-run homer in his last regular-season appearance and a game-tying homer in the All-Star game, gave up a run-scoring single to Greg Myers in the ninth, but earned his 30th save.
Langston shut down the Orioles on seven hits in seven innings before Sabo drove a 3-1 pitch to left for his eighth homer. Three pitches later, Palmeiro hit his 16th homer.
Rangers 7, Blue Jays 3
At Arlington, Dean Palmer homered and doubled in a run and Manuel Lee brought in two with a double in a four-run second inning.
Hector Fajardo (5-5) gave the Rangers an effective start, allowing three runs and four hits in six innings.
Juan Gonzalez started the second-inning rally with a one-out single off Todd Stottlemyre (5-7).

White Sox 6, Indians 3
At Chicago, Robin Ventura's RBI single capped a two-run rally in the seventh.
Alex Fernandez (8-7) pitched a seven-hitter with a career-high 12 strikeouts.
Red Sox 2, Athletics 1
At Oakland, Calif., Roger Clemens threw his 11th career two-hitter for Boston.
Clemens (8-4), who has won three Cy Youngs and an MVP award but never pitched a no-hitter, didn't allow the A's a hit until Ruben Sierra led off the seventh by grounding a single to right.
Clemens was within two outs of his second career one-hitter when Troy Neel hit his 11th homer.
Oakland starter Todd Van Poppel (5-8) is a career 0-4 with a 9.35 ERA against Boston.
Royals 5, Tigers 2
At Kansas City, Mo., Kevin

Appier continued his mastery over Detroit with a two-hitter for eight innings.
Appier (6-6) allowed a leadoff single by Tony Phillips and a two-run homer by Travis Fryman in the first, but did not give up another hit. He struck out eight to improve his career mark against Detroit to 9-1.
Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 15th save.
Wally Joyner, who missed 16 games with a sore shoulder, went 3-for-4 with two doubles and two RBIs in his first game since coming off the disabled list.

Tim Belcher (8-9) fell to 0-4 lifetime against Kansas City.
Brewers 6, Twins 4
At Minneapolis, rookie pinch hitter Jeff Cirillo, batting just .107, hit a two-run double with one out in the ninth.
Turner Ward and Matt Mieske both hit one-out singles off Carl Willis (1-4) before Cirillo, 3-for-28 prior to the game-winning hit, greeted reliever Mark Guthrie with a double to left-center.
Michael Ignasiak (3-1) pitched two innings of shutout relief for the victory.

Strawberry pays off with grand slam

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Associated Press Writer
The San Francisco Giants took a big gamble by signing Darryl Strawberry. It's already starting to pay off.
Strawberry, the 32-year outfielder released earlier this year by the Los Angeles Dodgers after admitting an alcohol problem, hit a grand slam - his first major league homer in more than a year - and drove in five runs to lead the Giants to an 8-3 victory over the Montreal Expos on Thursday night.
"It's going to take a little time for me to get going," cautioned Strawberry, "but the more you play, the more you start relying on your skills."
"The first four games in San Francisco, I was a little jumpy. Tonight, I was little more patient. The more work I get, the more I get back into the zone."

Strawberry's chief skill, hitting home runs, was in evidence at a major league ballpark for the first time since June 8, 1993, when he was with the Dodgers. It was his sixth career grand slam and first since Aug. 21, 1991, also with the Dodgers.
Strawberry's 291st career homer went over the right field fence in the fifth against Pedro Martinez (6-5) and put the Giants up 7-1.
Bud Black (3-0) worked six innings as the Giants won their season-high fifth straight game, all since Strawberry joined them last Thursday.
Black, making his fifth start after offseason elbow and knee surgery, allowed three runs on five hits.
Martinez allowed seven runs on seven hits in five inning. He is winless since June 14, spanning five starts.

Strawberry, who had managed just an infield single in 11 at-bats in his four previous games, also had an RBI single in the first and a leadoff double in the eighth off Tim Scott.
Elsewhere in the National League, it was Pittsburgh 8, Houston 2; Florida 5, Atlanta 3; Chicago 4, Cincinnati 3; and Colorado 8, St. Louis 1. The games between Los Angeles and Philadelphia and San Diego and New York were both rained out.
Pirates 8, Astros 2
At Pittsburgh, Houston pitchers threw two run-scoring wild pitches and the Astros' usually reliable defense broke down in a five-run fifth inning.
Jon Lieber (5-4), a rookie right-hander who was roughed up for 10 runs in 10 innings in his previous two starts, spaced eight hits, including solo homers by Kevin Bass and Ken Caminiti. He struck out a career-high eight and walked none.
Darryl Kile (6-4) took the loss. Bass hit his fifth homer in the second and Caminiti his 18th in the fourth for Houston.
Marlins 5, Braves 3
At Atlanta, Florida scored four times in the first inning and held off the slumping Braves.
Jerry Browne keyed Florida's first inning with his first home run of the season and Benito Santiago capped it with a two-run single off Steve Avery (6-3).

Winner Mark Gardner (3-2) gave up six hits and three runs in 5 2-3 innings. Robb Nen recorded the final five outs for his 11th save in 11 chances.
Cubs 4, Reds 3
At Cincinnati, Mark Parent's two-run homer in the seventh put the Chicago Cubs ahead for good.
Parent's third homer came after John Smiley (9-9) walked Steve Buechele. Parent hit Smiley's first pitch over the left field wall for a 3-2 lead.
Steve Trachsel (8-6) scattered five hits in six innings and improved to 7-0 on the road. Randy Myers got the final four outs for his 18th save.
Rockies 8, Cardinals 1
At Denver, Andres Galarraga hit a two-run homer after a rain delay, helping the Rockies beat St. Louis.
Galarraga's 26th homer - which set a Colorado team record, eclipsing the 25 homers hit by Charlie Hayes last season - came off reliever Mike Perez in the sixth and broke a 1-1 tie.
Perez (2-3) replaced starter Vicente Palacios to start the sixth, after play was interrupted for 1 hour and 19 minutes because of rain. With one out, Dante Bichette collected his third of four singles, and Galarraga followed with his homer to left field.
David Nied (9-4) pitched seven innings, allowing four hits and one run.

Indurain pedals away from rest of Tour field

LOURDES, France (AP) - Three-time defending champion Miguel Indurain is making quick work of the Tour de France this time around.
With 10 days still to go in the prestigious cycling race, Indurain has a lead of almost five minutes. Even chief rival Tony Rominger sounds beaten.
"It's finished for me," Rominger told the French sports daily L'Equipe. "Of course, I am going to continue, but I can't compete with him."
Rominger struggled up the final climb Wednesday, feeling a little sick, and called it "one of the blackest days of my life."
The riders enjoyed their only off-day of this year's race Thursday, but today's 12th stage - a 127-mile leg with two major climbs, the famous Tourmalet (6,937 feet) and Luz Ardidan (5,625 feet) - probably negates the rest.

Most of the riders were still recovering from the first mountain stage, which ended with the relentless Indurain leaving them in rubble behind him.
Among the most damaged was Rominger, expected to be the only real challenger for this year's race. Between the individual time trial on Monday and Wednesday's mountain, Rominger lost more than four minutes to the leader.
Another rider who had a bad day was Italian Claudio Chiappucci, who spat blood on the road and barely finished. At the end of the stage, his Carrera teammates surrounded him to prevent him from officially finishing last.

the par-3 11th, putted up to about 7 feet, missed that one, then lipped out a 12-inch. It was a four-putt and a double bogey. The triple-double disaster dropped him from 5-under-par for the tournament to even in two holes.
Tournament leader Greg Turner of New Zealand also had his problems.
Turner, who set the first round pace with a 65, got to 7-under for the tournament after seven holes, then dropped three strokes on the next two holes.
He was bunkered in two on the eighth, just got out, chipped on and two-putted for a double bogey, then bogeyed the ninth after missing the green.
He reached the turn in 1-over 36 and was 4-under under for the tournament at that point.

Daly has trouble at Turnberry

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) - John Daly worked his way among the leaders - then blew it all in two holes - early in today's second round of the 123rd British Open.
The 1991 PGA champion was 3-under-par for the day and within reach of the lead when he made the turn in crisp, cloudy weather on the Turnberry links.
Then it all went wrong.
Daly, a winner in Atlanta earlier this year, hooked his drive on No. 10 onto the beach and about 100 heavily-bundled spectators immediately poured onto the sands near the Firth of Clyde in search of the ball.
They never found it.
The disgrusted Daly eventually declared it lost, went back to the tee, reached the green with his fourth and then three-putted for triple bogey-7.
But his troubles had only started.
He was just short of the green on the par-3 11th, putted up to about 7 feet, missed that one, then lipped out a 12-inch. It was a four-putt and a double bogey. The triple-double disaster dropped him from 5-under-par for the tournament to even in two holes.

Tournament leader Greg Turner of New Zealand also had his problems.
Turner, who set the first round pace with a 65, got to 7-under for the tournament after seven holes, then dropped three strokes on the next two holes.
He was bunkered in two on the eighth, just got out, chipped on and two-putted for a double bogey, then bogeyed the ninth after missing the green.
He reached the turn in 1-over 36 and was 4-under under for the tournament at that point.

To Your Good Health

Eating disorders are dangerous to health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband is 40. He is overweight, and he snores a lot. My main concern is the nosebleeds he gets almost every night. My medical book says nosebleeds are nothing to worry about. But I do not think it is healthy. Sometimes he has several in one night. Do you know what might be causing them, and what we can do to prevent them? We can't use a humidifier, because the sound wakes him up. — Mrs. J.J.

ANSWER: The first thing you must do is get rid of whatever medical source you are using. The second thing is to find a quiet humidifier to attach to the furnace.

Drying out of the nasal membranes is the most common cause of frequent nosebleeds. The dryness shrivels and cracks the nose-lining tissue to a point where it bleeds at the slightest scratch, rub or blow. Humidification along with a light coating of petrolatum inside the nose usually resolves the problem.

Those are the obvious causes and corrective measures, but you cannot dismiss nosebleeds cavalierly, the way your medical book seems to do. There are more serious causes for frequent nosebleeds. High blood pressure or even tumors can explain them.

And, given the great frequency of your husband's bleeding, I have concern over the state of his blood.

A complete blood test is in order. If you do nothing else, do that.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My fiancée recently discovered genital warts. Her doctor suggested laser surgery. What he didn't tell her, however, is the long-term effects of this condition. Will she have to be retreated? And are there cures on the horizon? Incidentally, I share the same problem, but was told it is not serious in males. — A.G.

ANSWER: Genital warts are a common infection, caused by the papilloma virus. The important point to bear in mind regarding the warts is that the virus involved has been implicated in cancer of the cervix.

With that specter looming over the scene, the advice to remove the warts is well-based.

I don't mean to imply, though, that every woman with genital warts will develop cervical cancer. I do mean to emphasize the wisdom of treating the warts and then reporting back for future exams to keep tabs on any possible recurrence, which is not unusual.

There is no definitive lasting cure for the warts.

It's not clear whether genital warts can cause future problems for the male. But you should get rid of yours. The warts are infectious, and the problem can be passed on to others.

For more information, see my vaginitis report. For a copy, write Dr. Donohue — No. 33, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (32 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had four children and always kept up their shots. One daughter, now 25, has applied to college for her master's degree. She is told by the school that she needs one more measles shot. Something to do with a law passed in 1989. Why? — Mrs. M.C.

ANSWER: Because of measles outbreaks in college settings, new recommendations came down from the health authorities in 1989. The law requires two shots of the measles vaccine, as opposed to the former requirement for just one.

All college students now must have documentation for two doses of the vaccine.

It's hoped that the new guidelines will close off one of the more fertile avenues of measles spread.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

For AP Special Features
Anorexia nervosa and bulimia nervosa, eating disorders most often seen in adolescent girls, can threaten the health or life of a child. But knowing the signs of these disorders can help speed the process of obtaining treatment.

Anorexia nervosa is defined as a refusal to eat enough to keep body weight over a minimal average for age and height. Bulimia nervosa is typified by binge eating - rapidly eating a large amount of food in a short amount of time - followed by purging, induced vomiting, fasting, use of laxatives, rigorous dieting or exercise.

The vast majority of cases of anorexia and bulimia occur in teen-age girls, and the reasons for this are as yet unclear.

Teen-age boys tend to be keyed in to their natural hunger and satiety. But young women are thought to be guided more by body perception and consciousness and are more apt to deny hunger to lose weight.

Anorexia and bulimia do not stem from a single underlying cause, but may be the result of several factors occurring over time and which seem to surface during adolescence.

Teens with anorexia or bulimia often avoid dealing with the emotional conflicts that crop up around puberty. Instead they displace their emotions, making weight loss or weight control the central issue. This can result in the distorted perception that being thin is admirable and that no one can ever be thin enough.

Other contributing factors include internal and parental pressure to be perfect, a disturbance in family interactions and a cultural perception that thinness is desirable.

Red flags that may indicate anorexia include skipping sweets, desserts or meals; a compulsive need for exercise and guilt if that is not accomplished; and complaints about weight, followed by rigorous dieting and weight loss in an already slender youngster.

Parents may also be concerned if a youngster who has lost weight continues to wear baggy clothing. This is a common tactic used by those with anorexia or bulimia to hide what they consider an "undesirable" body. A teen who is bulimic may have all of these symptoms - and in addition may have a ravenous appetite.

Eating disorders can lead to serious medical complications. Anorexia, for example, can result in osteoporosis or loss in bone density through lack of sufficient calcium intake; an absence of menstrual periods; and disorders of the cardiovascular, gastrointestinal and metabolic systems.

Complications from bulimia can lead to an imbalance of salts, known as electrolytes, that are critical to the metabolic functions of the body; trauma to the esophagus; and carotid gland enlargement more commonly known as chipmunk cheeks.

If anorexia or bulimia is suspected, it is important that the child undergoes a complete medical evaluation, followed by treatment for the condition. Treatment may vary, depending on the type of eating disorder and its severity of medical and psychological symptoms.

Treatment focuses initially on stabilizing health, followed by nutritional rehabilitation and therapy. Family involvement is crucial in the goal of helping the teen-ager.

Tips for vacations

When you're planning your family vacation this summer, don't forget to pack books into the adventure. Books offer a storehouse of knowledge and a whole lot of fun for kids and parents in the traveling mode.

"I think more parents are viewing travel as an extension of a child's learning experience," says Linda Riggle, manager of Stop, Look & Learn, a children's bookstore in Houston, Texas.

A pre-vacation trip to your favorite locally owned bookstore can get you rolling in the right direction with travel-oriented books and materials for children and adults. For instance, Frommer Family Guides (Prentice Hall) provide parents with interesting ideas on travel to several major cities.

The Kidding Around series (John Muir Publications) gives a child's eye view of sightseeing in America's most popular tourist towns.

Vacation "edu-tainment" can be as accessible as your glove compartment. A map becomes a math book when children calculate distances between cities. Travel magazines offer opportunities to expand vocabularies and reading skills while offering photographic glimpses into the culture and geography of your travel destination. You can even encourage your children to become reporters and creative writers as they document their experiences in travel journals.

If you're taking to the road, let the kids play tour guide as they read aloud about the sights along the way. Not only do they learn about the land, so do you. Bookstores also feature audio books that can provide an exciting way for everyone to "be read to."

A visit to an independent bookstore can net more than just books for the trip. Often more in tune with area needs, many community-based bookstores sponsor educational programs and summer activities that are like minivacations.

"Many parents are concerned with the maintenance of their child's education during the summer," says Mindy Fenska of Adventures For Kids, a Ventura, Calif., bookseller that custom designs travel bags filled with books, craft activities and games. "When kids are reading, they're learning."

Ask your local, independent bookseller for insightful ideas on how to "book" a vacation packed with education and fun for the whole family.

Spotlight on health

If you're over 40 and you still think that it's necessary to exercise a minimum of 30 minutes at a time to get the full health benefits, you're not alone. Half of those surveyed in a new study thought the same.

In contrast, the most recent health recommendation by leading national groups advises that even moderate activity in short spurts can increase longevity and improve health. This inconsistency between our perception of fitness and the reality may explain why so many people still haven't developed the exercise habit.

The survey also revealed that lack of motivation is one of the biggest barriers to fitness. In addition, this group says the older you are, the harder it is to start. The survey was the first to investigate the psychology of inactivity among the fastest growing segment of America's population, to better understand how they can be helped onto the fitness bandwagon.

The Civil War was the first conflict to be completely and immediately reported, despite poor communications systems which sometimes delayed publication for several days.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to share a success story with your readers. Nine years ago, I married a man who smoked opt and drank like a fish. I didn't like it, but I thought he'd change. After two years, I found Al-Anon, a support group for friends and families of alcoholics.

After I'd been in Al-Anon for four years, my husband hit bottom and finally went into treatment and began attending Alcoholics Anonymous regularly.

Now, I have a husband who is unbelievable. He shares his feelings and thoughts with me, helps around the house, does yard work, cleans and vacuums regularly, does his own laundry and found a job that is teaching him a lot about assertiveness and maintaining a positive attitude.

I can't say enough about how much AA and Al-Anon have done for us. Their 12-step programs work. They saved our marriage. Al-Anon helped me learn how to change the behavior and reactions that were not working for me.

I'd like to urge your readers who are involved with an alcoholic to get into a 12-step program. Even if the alcoholic is not ready, you can do a lot to bring about change. Thanks for giving me the opportunity to give back to others what has so readily been given to me.—Madison, Fla.

DEAR FLORIDA: I can't say it often enough. Support groups have done an enormous amount of good for people who choose to share a life with an alcoholic. Your letter is a perfect example. Thank you for it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I happen to be one of "those old guys" who runs three to five miles at least six mornings a week. As dawn breaks, the streets are littered with roving cats—a minimum of 25. Certainly, it's against the law, but how many cats have you seen on a leash?
The animal control department here does an excellent job on dogs, but who can catch a cat? You can rent a "cat trap" for a dollar, and the city will even come out and remove the cat—if you can catch one. I assume someone is catching them since there's a four-week wait to rent a trap. Actually, it's not a trap, it is more of a cage, but it certainly does the job.

If you catch your neighbor's cat, however, you have made an enemy for life. There are often a few unverbally threats that go along with it. My wife and I have pleaded with these sensitive cat people to no avail. Their response is always the same. "We've had this cat for years, and we have always allowed him to run free. It would be cruel to tie him up."

Ann, cat owners have got to be weird. Who else would keep a pet that carries ringworm and plague, kills 50 million songbirds and 30 million rabbits a year, and does millions of dollars of damage to furniture, carpeting, drapes and upholstery?—Albuquerque, N.M.

DEAR ALBUQUERQUE: Far be it from me to start a global war, but when you call cat owners "weird," you go too far. Some of my best friends

Try to keep off the sidewalks in your new car!
Happy 16th Fele!
From Mo & Gabe I love you! Amy

Cats do not have to be "walked," however—a litter box does very nicely. And best of all, they do not bark and annoy the neighbors. There, I've said it, and I'm glad.

Plaque presentation

Carey Black, right, president of the Hereford Lions Club, presents a plaque of appreciation to Art Gonzales, immediate past president of the club, for his work leading the club during the 1993-94 year. Black took over as president on July 1. The presentation was made during the club's regular meeting on Wednesday.

White House: Crime legislation more pressing than CBC request

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House says getting a major crime bill enacted is more important than passage of a provision supported by the Congressional Black Caucus to let death penalty defendants use statistics to show racial bias. Caucus Chairman Kweisi Mfume, D-Md., countered by threatening Thursday to block the crime bill by voting down a procedural resolution that must pass before the House can consider it. But 10 black mayors dispatched a quick letter imploring him not to do that because the crime bill "includes so many vital provisions for the people of our cities." White House officials and the caucus negotiated for weeks on a compromise to get the provision, known as the Racial Justice Act, into the crime bill, but President Clinton called off the effort Wednesday night. "The president did not believe that there was any time left to do any more negotiating and that we apparently would not reach a compromise," Mfume said. Chief of Staff Leon Panetta told him. Clinton doesn't want the provision, or any other single side issue, to postpone the long-delayed $30 billion crime bill, White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said. "He wants to see this bill completed soon," Myers said, adding that he will sign it with or without the racial-justice provision. As envisioned by the House and Senate Judiciary committee chairmen, the crime bill would devote $10.9 billion to state and local law enforcement. That would fulfill a Clinton campaign promise to put 100,000 more police officers on the street. The bill also would spend $8.4 billion on state and local prisons.

Flood waters in Georgia leaving behind big mess

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
ABBEVILLE, Ga. (AP) - A ridge, Georgia's spine, runs north-south along Interstate 75 between the Ocmulgee and Flint rivers. Ocmulgee waters flow into the Atlantic Ocean, Flint waters into the Gulf of Mexico. Fire Chief Larry Brown was contemplating the cruel impartiality as floodwaters inched back toward the Ocmulgee channel, leaving worms, drowned fire ants and a few snakes stranded in brown slime. "When Georgia gets it, it gets it from both sides," he said. "I guess we should be grateful the river's shape is what it is. Might have been worse, though I don't see how."

As the crow flies - or, in the case of this river, the blue heron or red tail hawk - the Ocmulgee, from its headwaters at Jackson Lake 35 miles southeast of Atlanta, stretches 145 miles to Lumber City. There it merges with the Oconee to form the Altamaha which flows to the sea. But the meanders make the Ocmulgee's actual length about 250 miles. That meant the flood crest all along the river, like the rabbit in the snake's belly, took longer to reach the next town, allowing downriver villages time to prepare.

It also meant the flood lingered longer, delaying recovery. "When we saw what happened to Macon we knew we knew it was going to be worse than anyone figured," said Chad Brown, a 23-year-old farmer from nearby Rhine, no kin to the Abbeville fire chief. "We also knew we had maybe five or six days to get ready." Abbeville is a farm community of 1,500 about 65 miles downriver from Macon. The town consists of the grandly antique Wilcox County courthouse and a handful of businesses on a high hill. Neighbors migrated to the threatened homes of the nine or 10 families nearest the river and began hauling. Furniture, clothes, appliances, every last fork and teacup went up the hill to the lumber yard and the cotton gin, which opened warehouses for storage. Relatives and neighbors took in the refugees. The Methodist church served supper.

"Nobody held back anything," said Fire Chief Brown. "Just the opposite."

The people who lived here when the explorer Hernando de Soto crossed in 1540 called their stream Ocmulgee, "clear water." The irony did not escape residents watching the ugly brown torrent rise steadily.

Across the river from town, peanut fields and pastures stretch eastward. A mile from the riverbank - a very flat mile - is Ira Conley's place. That's where Chad Brown and about 35 others from miles around headed with their trucks and farm equipment. Ira Conley is 71, his wife bedridden. His two sons, Kim and Gerald, and their wives and children had barely reached the farm themselves when the others began arriving.

"I don't even know who some of these people are," Kim said. "But I thank God for them."

"I'm Matt Walker from over at Milan," one arrival said, stepping from a grain truck. "I just came by and saw y'all, thought you could use some help."

Said Chad Brown: "Mr. Ira has helped me all my life. He would do anything for me, and has. And I will do all I can for him."

Plano retailer sues Lottery claiming anti-trust violation

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) - A Plano retailer's lawsuit accusing the Texas State Lottery Commission of several anti-trust violations has been transferred to federal court.

Stan Frenzel, who owns Stan's Discount Beer and Wine, claims in his lawsuit that lottery officials created a monopoly that violates several federal acts. He is seeking more than $370,000 in damages.

Frenzel says lottery officials are effectively denying computer access to selected businesses because the issuance of a Lotto computer terminal is based on the sales of instant scratch-off tickets from each licensed location.

The suit also contends the Texas Lottery is violating the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act by "grandfathering" instant ticket sales from one business that was sold to another.

Finally, the lawsuit claims that lottery officials are violating the Texas State Lottery licensing procedures by allowing licensed retailers with felony and misdemeanor offenses to sell tickets.

Assistant Attorney General Rodney Geer said the office filed a response Thursday denying the lawsuit's claims. Geer said the office asked that the case be transferred to federal court because Frenzel "has made federal claims in the petition."

Frenzel said he views the move as an advantage.

"The federal government has a tendency to be stricter on state issues than the state does, and the federal issue is only one third of the case," he said.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

ONE OF DAVID'S MIGHTY MEN!

ABISHAI WAS A SON OF DAVID'S HALF SISTER ZERUIAH, BROTHER OF ASAHAI AND JOAB, KING DAVID'S GENERAL (II SAM. 2:18). IT WAS ABISHAI WHO STOLE INTO KING SAUL'S CAMP IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT WITH DAVID AND FOUND SAUL AND HIS SOLDIERS ALL ASLEEP! (I SAM. 26:5-9) HE SERVED, ALWAYS BRAVELY, UNDER HIS BROTHER JOAB, IN DAVID'S ARMY (II SAM. 2:18,10:10) AND WHEN ABNER, SAUL'S GENERAL, WHO WAS FLEEING FROM THE BATTLE AT GIBEON AND WAS COMPELLED TO KILL ASAHAI, IN ORDER TO ESCAPE, BOTH ABISHAI AND JOAB PURSUED THEIR BROTHER'S KILLER, HOPING TO AVENGE HIM (II SAM. 2:18-24).

ABISHAI WAS ONE OF DAVID'S MIGHTY MEN WHO HAD "LIFTED UP HIS SPEAR AGAINST 300 AND SLAIN THEM" (II SAM. 23:18; CHRON. 11:20) HE ALSO DEFEATED THE EDOMITES IN THE VALLEY OF SALT, HE AND HIS MEN SLAYING 18,000 AND GARRISONING THEIR COUNTRY (I CHRON. 18:12, 13)

That's a lot of horn

Hereford may be a town with more than its share of cattle, but this Watusi Longhorn cross bull is an unusual variety seen recently in downtown Hereford. The animal is owned by Todd Gudgell of Westway.

NAFTA may bring Alamo flag home

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The Alamo flag captured and retained by Mexico could return to Texas after 158 years in a proposed exchange aided by the free trade agreement, state officials say.

Texas Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, was to meet today with William Gooch, director of the Texas Library and Archives Commission, and a representative of Gov. Ann Richards to discuss how to proceed.

The flag, captured at Texas' shrine of independence in 1836, has been displayed at a Mexico City museum, with the government there having rebuffed earlier requests for its return.

But the North American Free Trade Agreement has prompted a new cooperative spirit that could result in an exchange for three tattered Mexican flags captured after the Battle of San Jacinto.

"In my opinion, current trade relations are at their highest," Truan told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "I am going to be proposing that we ask the Mexican government to look into the possible exchange for any and all Texas flags in their possession."

Truan said there's a sense of urgency since the three Mexican flags in Texas' hands need costly restoration. The Mexican consul raised the possible trade during a recent meeting about a Texas-Mexico teacher-exchange program, he said.

Measuring 45 by 34 inches, the blue "Alamo flag" is made of crude cotton, trimmed in gold and embroidered with a picture of an eagle with a banner in its beak, saying, "God and Liberty."

The banner is also emblazoned with the words "1st Company of Texan Volunteers from New Orleans."

Research will be conducted, however, to determine whether legislation is required. If returned to Texas, the flag could be displayed at the San Antonio shrine.

committee.

Texas GOP Sen. Phil Gramm, who sits on the defense appropriations subcommittee, appears to rely on the same principle.

"If the process works this year as it has worked in previous years, the conference committee will meet, hear the arguments for all the projects and approve funding for the vast majority whether they are contained in the House bill or the Senate bill," said Gramm press secretary Larry Neal.

At issue is some $84 million for Texas above the funding being sought by the Defense Department for military installations next year. The $84 million, known as add-on money, was inserted by nine House members.

None of the $560 million in add-ons contained in the Senate bill is earmarked for Texas.

In an interview Thursday, Mrs. Hutchison expressed confidence the $84 million would emerge unscathed once House and Senate negotiators hammer out their differences. The same scenario, she said, took place last year.

"They will all be funded," she said. "That's always the way it operates."

Asked why she didn't include add-ons of her own, the senator said: "I got no requests because (military officials in Texas) go through the congressmen ... Had we had one, of course I would have put one in."

Fisher accused his rival of hypocrisy for touring defense installations during the Fourth of July recess but not fighting for them in Washington.

"There she is flying around the state and politicizing our defense

Mexican officials have previously said it rightfully belongs in that country because of their victory at the Alamo.

But Truan said Mexican Consul Armando Beteta of Corpus Christi described an increasing interest in Mexico securing the return of the three flags, which were confiscated from battalions from Matamoros, Toluca and Guerrero on April 21, 1836.

The battalions were under the command of General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, who defeated a force of Texans under command of Lt. Col. William Barret Travis on March 6, 1836.

The flag taken from the Texans has been displayed since early this century at Mexico's Museum of the Interventions at Chapultepec Castle.

"I think this is the first time that we are going to be officially discussing this. We're going to follow protocol as best we can," said Truan, chairman of the Senate Committee on International Trade, Commerce and Technology.

The senator said the Matamoros and Guerrero flags are in climate-controlled storage vaults at Austin, wrapped in acid-free paper and kept in darkness.

The Toluca battalion flag is on loan from the state to the San Jacinto Museum of History in Harris County.

Gooch said requests to borrow the Texas flag as far back as 1965 were rejected by Mexico. But he said he believes that the archives commission has the authority to negotiate a trade with Mexico.

Research will be conducted, however, to determine whether legislation is required. If returned to Texas, the flag could be displayed at the San Antonio shrine.

establishments at taxpayer expense, yet at the same time she's not putting her weight into the discussion of how we maintain these facilities so they are combat ready," he said.

Countered Mrs. Hutchison: "He just doesn't understand the process."

"It is premature for him to say that we have lost a Texas project - because we're not going to lose a Texas project," she added. "He's going to have to understand you can't win if you try to break the rules."

A Senate Appropriations staffer, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there are no "hard or fast rules" governing the add-ons. Other Senate aides familiar with the process said up to 20 percent of the add-ons are duplicated in both bills.

A check of the House and Senate authorization shows that 27 of 124 specific projects funded in the Senate bill are also found in the House version. Those projects, from 17 states, total $118 million in the Senate measure.

Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, said it is the first time in his nine years in Congress that Texas has been "skunked" on the Senate side.

"We've never had to go to conference and fight for every single Texas project because the Senate just flat out left it out," said Chapman, who inserted $957,000 in the House bill for an Army National Guard armory in Marshall.

El Paso Democrat Ron Coleman, who is seeking $20.7 million in add-ons for Fort Bliss, said that not having the money in the Senate bill "doesn't make my job any easier."

Grant's paper narrowly escapes auction block when owner found

AUSTIN (AP) - It had been more than a decade since bank officials heard from a woman whose safe deposit box contained a rare Civil War order, but she finally turned up and now the collector's item won't be auctioned off.

More than 132 years after it was written, the military order from Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is attracting attention again.

The order, handwritten by Grant himself shortly after the Battle of Shiloh, also known as Pittsburg Landing, had turned up among unclaimed property taken over by the state and was scheduled for auction Oct. 29 in Fort Worth.

But the rightful owner surfaced Thursday.

The document, whose owner hadn't been heard from since 1980, was discovered last year in a safe deposit box belonging to Mary Ann

Acker at a Jacksonville bank, officials said.

First Interstate Bank of Jacksonville turned the box's contents over to the Treasury, but Thursday afternoon following a query, a bank official remembered about one of Mrs. Acker's relatives, which led to a Troup nursing home where Mrs. Acker works.

"That's a long way around," the bank's customer service manager Mary Gregg told The Dallas Morning News. "But we didn't do anything wrong. We did what we were supposed to do."

They sent Mrs. Acker registered letters letting her know she was delinquent on the rent for her safety deposit box.

Under state law, the contents of such boxes are turned over to the Treasury if rent has gone unpaid for five years or more. The Treasury tries to locate the owners of the property, and money received is held until the rightful owners can be found.

If the owners can't be located, the state is authorized to sell marketable items. Sale proceeds are held for the missing owner in the state's unclaimed property fund.

The state listed Mrs. Acker's name in its publication of unclaimed property owners that it runs statewide in newspapers every March.

Although Mrs. Acker, who has an unlisted telephone number, could not be reached for comment, officials who spoke to her Thursday said she saw her name and called to inquire, but was told that the state did not have any of her property. She said she believed the contents of the safety deposit box were intact.

But assistant deputy treasurer Sarah Marlow said Mrs. Acker told her that she received a postcard from the treasury after her phone call this spring asking her to claim her property, but that she did not know what to do with the postcard after she received it.

The one-page order from Grant, who was elected president after the war, was dated April 18, 1862. That was 11 days after the Battle of Shiloh in Tennessee, one of the bloodiest engagements in the Civil War's western theater.

"It's unique and interesting," said Treasurer Martha Whitehead said. "We have been in contact with a Grant expert who thinks it really is a priceless document ... It's worth as much as someone is willing to pay for it."

Treasury officials contacted John Y. Simon, editor of "The Papers of Ulysses S. Grant" and a professor at Southern Illinois University, who said the document is particularly unusual because it was penned by the Union general himself.

A common practice at the time was for commanders to dictate orders to subordinates, who would write out multiple copies.

The three-paragraph order is written in black ink on faintly lined white paper.
