Johnson and Wallace carried directly to the Executive Council their complaint against such internal sabotage as the October Bulletin contained.

The Executive Council decided that no federal department was to issue interpretive statements on business conditions without first submitting them to the Central Statistical Board.

Its chairman, W. W. Riefler, took over office space just down the hall from E. A. Goldenweiser, Federal Reserve Board economist in charge of compiling the offending bulletin.

THE GREATEST NEED IS FOR BETTER HOUSING

It is reported in Washington that the huge federal public works program is going to get another shot in the arm. All the $2,500,000,000 fund originally voted for this program will be recovered by Jan. 1.

administration will boost it to a total of $5,000,000,000. This being so, the next question to decide is for what shall the money be used? We certainly need few more public buildings, such as postoffices and courthouses. Highways and waterways received a huge slice from the original program. So did naval construction.

This, of course, is the field of housing. There are in American cities today some 9,000,000 homes that belong in or close to the slum classification. No program that we could finance now could replace all of them with decent dwellings, but it is at least evident that we can not take too big a bite for the size of problem involved.

Now, spending money on housing is one of the most direct of all ways to promote a business revival. It puts a great many men to work, it restores realty values, it stimulates trade in many basic raw materials and semi-finished industries.

Even in prosperous times, money put into slum clearance would be money well spent. It is hard to build a healthy society when a large part of the society is housed unhealthfully. Slums breed crime, disease, vice, and poor citizenship generally. They cost us infinitely more than the cost of replacing them. They are perhaps the greatest single drag on democracy's feet.

SENATORS QUIZ SINCLAIR ON GIANT OIL POOL

Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the board of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, is shown as he was sworn in by Senator Fletcher (center) of Florida, chairman of the senate stock market committee, to testify regarding a Sinclair stock pool which brought $12,000,000 profits to participants. Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, is at right. (Associated Press Photo)

If the public works fund is to be boosted, the administration will do well to pour every dime available into a housing program.

STOP THE CHISELERS

One of the commonest criticisms of the NRA program is that the authorities are not "cracking down" with sufficient speed and firmness on chiselers. Talk to any small tradesman who files the Blue Eagle and you are apt to hear him voice this complaint; that he is doing the best he can, but that certain of his competitors flagrantly are disregarding the conditions under which they got their NRA emblems.

A similar complaint was made the other day by the 1275 members of the Indiana Restaurant Operators' association, who complained that the NRA authorities have failed to drive the chiselers out of that field. These men proposed outright withdrawal from the NRA unless conditions are corrected. These are perfectly valid complaints and Washington would do well to act on them promptly and decisively. The man who chisels on his Blue Eagle is the meanest kind of cheat, and deserves summary treatment.

At Austin

AUSTIN, (UP)—Texas appears doomed to endure a political "talkathon." For many years, April 21, San Jacinto Day, was considered the earliest proper date for announcement of state candidacies. Modern politicians have broken the precedent. Pat Neff had his first race for governor virtually won by San Jacinto Day.

Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, started the 1934 campaign with his announcement for attorney general. Joseph Weldon Bailey of Dallas, congressman-at-large, declared himself in the race for United States Senator. Attorney General James V. Allred is to make his intentions on the race for governor clear on Dec. 15.

Dallas for treatment at Baylor hospital. The elder Woodward, now 79, a district judge for 25 years, has been in ill health several months.

holder to be considered a candidate for a second term until contrary declaration.

Like the Walkathons, the "talkathon" will start off with an easy schedule. Many of the starting contestants will drop out early. There will be a big weeding on June 4. Before that day is over a candidate must have given official notice of intention to run. Some will drop out when the campaign assessment must be paid. County candidates can remain in their local race unofficially until June 16.

A first primary to be held on July 28, will narrow the contest down to two in each race. The run-off will be on Aug. 25.

Former Governor Ross S. Sterling, who became a multi-millionaire in oil and poor in politics, is again taking a fling at the oil game. He has a crew at work southeast of the Hankamer Oil field near Liberty.

Mrs. Alex Adams of San Antonio still aspires to be Texas' first Congresswoman. This time she will run in the new 20th Texas district which comprises Bexar county alone. Mrs. Adams left the recent convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, here planning to announce her candidacy. Her prominence in club affairs can not be used in her campaign, under a rule of the State Federation.

States of the Texas Centennial Committee, appointed by order of the state legislature, is in doubt. Some contend it automatically passed out of existence upon filing its report with the 43rd legislature.

Centennial plans also are unsettled. A combined movement by this legislative committee, the committees of the American Legion and leaders in the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is in the negotiation stage. The Legion has the practical start of an authorized Centennial Half dollar sale for finances.

State Auditor George B. Simpson has recommended to the governor the creation of an investment bureau for the State Board of Education. The Board has a permanent school fund of more than $40,000,000 and invests about $2,000,000 a year. Simpson also recommended the board quit buying refunding bonds. Refunding a bond seldom makes it better than the original bond, Simpson says.

Criticism Of Hopkins Must Stand Undeleted On Commission Record

AUSTIN (UP)—Criticism of Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins by Dr. Aubrey Williams, federal contact man with Texas, was ordered to stand undeleted in the minutes of the Texas relief commission here.

Williams will be permitted to add any explanatory remarks that he may desire.

The criticism was made in the closed session of the Texas relief commission here Nov. 3. Hopkins' methods of giving information to the press in Washington was the topic.

Suggestion that the minute reading be deferred until Williams had an opportunity to edit the account of his remarks as made by a stenographer brought a sharp protest from Carl Estes, Tyler.

"I think they need editing," said Estes. "Some of his remarks might be embarrassing to him in Washington—coming down here and reading the riot act to us. He treated us as so many telephone poles or puppets."

A snappy afternoon session was in prospect. "There are some serious things in this relief commission that I am going to fight about if they don't clean up their households," said Estes.

Mrs. M. R. McCoy, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ches Anderson, plans to leave with her granddaughter, Miss Mildred Broughton, Tuesday for Whitewright for Thanksgiving.

Two Railroads, Two Bus Operators Named In Court Petition

WACO—James Allred, attorney general of Texas, today filed suit against four transportation companies for penalties approximating $1,000,000 and for an injunction restraining operation of the Texas and New Orleans railroad bus between Waco and Bremond.

Besides the Texas and New Orleans, the companies named were the Southland Greyhound Bus Lines, the Southwestern Greyhound Lines and the Southern Pacific railroad.

Judge Sam R. Scott granted a temporary restraining order and set hearing for the injunction for Dec. 4.

Allred alleged that the Texas and New Orleans line was operating without a permit from the state railroad commission on strength of a permit granted the Southland and sold No. 1 to the Southwestern. He said the line was operating under a "lease or some sort of agreement" with the Southern Pacific.

He further claimed that the bus lines and the Southern Pacific were aiding and abetting the Texas and New Orleans and claimed a violation of both the motor bus law and the motor carrier law by carrying passengers and freight.

J. L. Mauldin Praises Display At Post Office

J. L. Mauldin, pioneer bus operator and motor route mail carrier, voiced his appreciation of the window display arranged at the post-office with the statement that "the ultimate has been attained." He ventured, in a letter to The Herald, the opinion that should Roosevelt or Farley see the display which appeals for early Christmas mailing and present the development of the mail service, the postmaster's "stand in" with the highest authorities would certainly be benefitted.

How Cardui Helped Lady Get Stronger

"I was in a weak condition when I started to use Cardui," writes Mrs. Oscar West, of Dayton, Texas.

the sin, that he may stand before God as if he had never sinned. Sin separates man from God, 'behold, your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you that he will not hear,' Isa 59:2.

"But what is sin? Let God define: 'sin is the transgression of the law,' 1 John 3:4; 'All unrighteousness is sin,' 1 John 5:17; to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin,' James 4:17.

"Jesus Christ," continued the speaker, "answers every need and demand. To God, Jesus is the propitiation for sin, the covering of man's sin before Him, 'being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: whom God set forth to be a propitiation, through faith, in his blood, that he might himself be just, and the justifier of him that hath faith in Jesus,' Rom. 3: 24-26.

Homer H. Norton, New Aggie Coach, Breaks Precedent

SHREVEPORT, La. (UP)—Homer Norton, stockily built, soft-spoken southerner, has broken precedent.

Faced by seemingly insurmountable odds, he has during his eight years as head football coach at Centenary College here demonstrated that a one-time all-around college athletic star may quickly become one of the leading coaches of the country.

Norton is ending his eight year reign as coach at Centenary this year to succeed Matty Bell as head football coach at Texas A & M College, Southwest conference school.

The Norton-coached football teams have been the first to Southwest conference foes for a college generation. Year after year his eleven have bowled over rivals, attaining a record of undefeated games unmatched this year in the Southwest.

The teams have been molded despite handicaps which would have made most coaches weary. A few of these follow: The enrollment at Centenary, a Methodist co-educational school, has averaged around 600 students, half of whom are boys.

Norton has been able to draw only the "leftover" of football material for the school is not a conference member, has no large alumni body to assist in bringing or interesting prospective football stars to Centenary.

Homecoming last week his team had played 18 games without defeat. Southern Methodist University of Dallas, a leading Southwest conference member, lost 7 to 6, to be the 18th consecutive team to be unable to defeat the Gents.

From 1927 to 1932 inclusive Centenary scored 1,973 points to its opponents' 896.

In 1930 Centenary lost one game, that by a 7 to 6 score to Texas Aggies. Revenge was had against three other members of the Southwest conference including Texas, Baylor and Arkansas.

In 1932 the Centenary Gents were undefeated. They romped to victory over Texas, Ole Miss, Southern Methodist University, Texas Aggies, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Baylor and S. M. U. were defeated this year and scores ties were played with Texas and Texas Christian University. Louisiana State was also tied.

This the football honors which Centenary followers ever should give the school national rating is not a hollow one. The Southwest Conference teams play a brand of football that needed no apologies anywhere.

Centenary outplayed the Southwest eleven in ever engagement in the past three years. Centenary boosters, also insist the teams' records since Norton took charge are evidence that the coach himself is something of a precedent breaking man.

Norton came to Centenary as an academic instructor and part time coach he was 21-years old and had been graduated from Birmingham Southern, where he was awarded the school's medal as the best all-around athlete. He had won letters in four major sports—football, baseball, basketball and track.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an unadulterated cod liver oil preparation. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.

Postmaster's Display Urging Early Christmas Mailing And Illustrating Progress Of Service Wins Applause

Big Spring has what a postoffice inspector called the best exhibit he has ever seen in the whole nation for encouraging early mailing for Christmas and displaying the progress of the mail service.

Those who have been by the postoffice this week know what he was talking about. Nat Shick, local postmaster who conceived and arranged the window display, says it represents 80 years of progress of the postal system.

Four systems of mail transportation are shown. At the extreme right, leaving New York is the stage coach, which took 45 days to make the trip from New York to San Francisco. Next is shown the pony express, whose riders carried the mail from St. Louis to San Francisco in ten days.

In order that the display would be of interest at night Mr. Shick used lighting methods that fitted in with the four different systems. Beside the stage coach glows a camp fire. The train has a rear light, also a powerful headlight showing up the canyon into which it is entering. The airplane is lighted.

The different shrubs used in the display outline roughly the change from east to west, ranging from leafless trees to cedars and cacti. A background of ferns gives privacy to Mr. Shick's office and adds an outdoors effect to the window.

The display has drawn an unusually large number of people already. They say at the postoffice that on Monday 100 stopped to look in an hour. Mr. Shick asks that as people stop to enjoy this pictorial representation of the advance with civilization of the United States mail, they remember the postal clerks inside and in other postoffices, and do their shopping and mailing for Christmas as early as possible.

sin, that grace may abound? God forbid. We who died to sin, how shall we any longer live therein? Or are you ignorant that all we who are baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? Romans 6:1-7. In baptism, the sinner is buried into Christ's death, and raised to live a new life.

The cross, then, becomes the drawing power of God, 'And I if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto myself. But this he said, signify by what manner of death he should die,' John 12:32-33. Drawn by the cross, men come unto God through the sacrifice of Jesus, finding redemption and forgiveness in Him and now, 'For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ,' and 'God hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places in Christ,' Gal. 3:27; Eph. 1:3. Baptism is the act of obedience that puts one into Christ, where are found the blessing of His sacrifice," concluded the speaker.

Sweeping the World

An old teacher of mine used to say: "When you take to prophesying, remember that while a seven-year-old boy grows up to be a seventy-pound man, the process does not go on forever; two hundred pound men do not grow up to be two-thousand-pound giants." My teacher said it some years before the war when it was the fashion to believe that representative government, as we know it in the United States, was destined to sweep the world and bring the universal peace.

Things then we have lived through at least three distinct seasons in which it was believed that a particular form of society was going to be adopted by all mankind.

The first of these seasons may be called the Wilson period. It lasted approximately from April, 1917, to Christmas of 1918. In this season democracy was supposed to be conquering the world and it was held to be only a question of time—a short time at that—when everybody, Russians, Germans, Chinese, Indians, would become Jeffersonian Democrats and Gladstonian liberals. This springtime of idealism was succeeded by the Lenin season. This lasted from about 1919 to about 1922. Communism was about to sweep the world. The Communists thought it would and the non-Communists feared it might. We have almost forgotten now how hysterical we were about that menace. But somehow a new season set in. It was known in America as the Coolidge era. The new marvelous, dazzling capitalism was to sweep the world and to sweep the moment millions of persons are spellbound by the new universal doctrine, and Signor Mussolini who is nobody's fool, has just permitted himself to indulge in a speech prophesying a universal future for the nations he happens to be applying in Italy.

Wilson did it in his season, Lenin in his, even Coolidge in his, so I suppose Mussolini has to do it in his. But there is no reason why any one who can remember the day before yesterday should be unduly impressed.

There is a disposition in the human mind to believe that in the newest and most spectacular political movement there is some kind of irresistible and limitless energy. But it seems to me that when we look into the history of great movements of thought and feeling, aspiration and action, we find that they are not irresistible and not limitless. They do not sweep the world. Even when they are successful within certain parts of the world, there was a time when Europe believed that Islam might sweep the world. It got to the gates of Vienna and no further. We speak of the Rise of Capitalism, and when we are in a hurry, feel that it conquered the world. In the past three centuries capitalism has made great progress in Western Europe and North America. But it never did bring the whole world under the capitalist order; the greater part of Asia, Africa, South America and even Central and Eastern Europe has, in the main, known capitalism only as an external intrusion, through the operation of imperialism, rather than as the normal method of its life. There are capitalists and corporations in Mexico, for example, but Mexican life is, on the whole, not capitalist at all. Russia, which overthrew "capitalism," never really had it. The same might be said for a large part of Italy, most of the Balkans and great tracts of Central Europe.

The Reformation was one of the great movements of modern times. But it did not sweep Europe. The American and the French revolutions were the signals for the advance of democratic doctrines. But those doctrines never did make any lasting impression east of the Rhine or south of the Alps, and outside of Europe anywhere except where the English-speaking people had settled.

No one of these movements has been universal. The world is still composed of people professing all the religions, living under all conceivable political systems, and under many different kinds of social order. The power of any doctrine is limited by deep underlying habits, by circumstances of geography and by the accumulated force of the past. The world is too varied, mankind is too deeply set in its ways, to make it possible for any one set of ideas to become universal. The world never became wholly capitalist, or wholly democratic, and it will not become wholly communist or wholly fascist or wholly anything else.

It is the parochial mind which looks upon its idea as the one and only idea. It was parochial of us to think that we could impose democracy on the world and make the world safe for democracy. It was parochial of the Russians to think that when they took over the ruins of Czarist feudalism they had overthrown capitalism. It is parochial of the Italians to think that a form of dictatorship which seems to suit a country that has known only a feeble imitation of democracy for 50 years is going to suit countries inhabited by people who have been evolving democratic institutions for seven hundred years.

It should not be too astonishing to any one that liberalism is officially declared dead in Russia, Germany and Italy. When, in heaven's name, was it alive in those lands? Liberalism will be dead when it is abandoned by the people who make liberalism and have lived under it, and they and their ancestors before them. To say that the Russians accept what they have always accepted. To say that the Germans have set up a defied ruler is not really so astonishing when you recall that they got rid of William II only fifteen years ago. To say that Mussolini is a successful ruler in Italy should surprise no one who remembers the long line of his Italian predecessors.

But in France, in Switzerland, in Scandinavia, in the British nations, in the United States, there are peoples with a very different history and, therefore, with very different habits. It will be for them to say what is the future of liberalism, how it is to be preserved and where it is to be modified. It is not for nations which have never known it, or, having tried it for a short while, failed to live by it, to instruct the liberal peoples about the future of liberalism. So if it is communism men wish to examine, they must go to Russia. If it is fascism, they must go to Italy; but if it is liberalism and democracy they must go to France, to England, to Canada, to Australia and to the United States. For that is where they will find the people who know what liberalism and democracy mean.

Ex-Ranger Tells Committee His Sergeant Plotted Triple Killing To Collect Dead Robber Rewards

House Investigators Hear Man Quote Ranger As Saying Superiors Told Him To Drop Investigation Into Alleged Job-Selling

AUSTIN—A committee of the Texas house of representatives Monday heard testimony of a plot, allegedly framed by a ranger sergeant to kill 3 bank robbers, collect a $5,000 reward on each and divide it among the sergeant and two officers working under him.

A testimony was given by C. B. Shelton, of Dallas, a former ranger who left the service October 19 last. He said he "supposed" he was discharged because of "politics."

Sergeant's Plan
Shelton said the ranger sergeant approached him with the plan about two months ago. He quoted the sergeant as saying four paroled convicts were going to rob a bank at Edna.

The plan called for the killing of three of the robbers, Shelton testified. The sergeant, Shelton swore, said the fourth man, who would be wearing a gray suit with a handkerchief in the pocket was not to be killed. The rewards were to be split three ways, Shelton testified. The State Bankers association has a standing reward of $5,000 for "dead" bank robbers.

Shelton and another ranger were to do the shooting, Shelton told the committee.

Says He Refused
Shelton said the plot fell through when he refused to have anything to do with it. He said he had not discussed it further with the sergeant and that he had not reported it to Adjutant General Henry Hutchings, commander of the rangers.

J. B. Kirk of Dallas testified that Ranger Bert Whisand told Kirk that he had conducted an investigation of job selling and had obtained sufficient evidence to warrant indictments. Whisand told Kirk he took the evidence to Austin where he was advised at ranger headquarters to let it rest for the time being and that the rangers had more important things to attend to, Kirk testified.

Kirk said that as far as he knew nothing was ever done about it.

Additional testimony on transactions in East Texas involving offers to sell jobs was given the committee.

More Job Sales
C. A. Triddle of Kilgore testified that a man now reputed to be under indictment for swindling in connection with job sales, had offered to sell him a job as member of the board of pardons and paroles for "$250 in advance." Triddle said he demurred at the advance payment and that the deal was dropped.

C. W. Howth, Beaumont attorney, whose name was brought into the investigation several days ago by Art Mondt, Beaumont wrestler, when Mondt was detailing his efforts to obtain a wrestling permit, testified.

Howth was a supporter of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson in the last campaign.

Howth in Denial
Howth denied having told Mondt that it had cost $200,000 to elect Mrs. Ferguson and that it had to be gotten back somehow. Mondt attributed the statement to Howth when Mondt sought Howth's recommendation for a wrestling permit.

with the A. F. of L. only since the fall of 1932. Before that the National Federation of Federal Employees held the charter.

Being older in the field the National Federation, under leadership of Luther Steward, has 33,000 members and is more powerful. It broke from the A. F. of L. in 1931 when its appeal for support of a bill reclassifying salaries of government employees was turned down by the annual convention.

The A. F. of L. promptly organized the American Federation and put E. Claud Babcock at the head of it with Steward's old charter. Dues are about the same in both but so far Steward's organization has the edge in membership.

Nesting— Consequently it was significant that two employees of the Labor Advisory Board of NRA should suddenly charge the Blue Eagle with neglecting its own nest and spread handbills about for a mass meeting at which President William Green of the A. F. of L. was principal speaker.

Plenty of good publicity accrued from the move. It was true NRA employees had worked long hours in getting the Recovery bill rolling. Also, some injustices had been done in a reclassification of salaries (although not many).

Any final credit for betterment of working conditions will be claimed by NRA Local 91 of the American Federation of Government Employees. This will pave the way for a membership drive.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

Chase—

Pecora's investigation of the Chase—which seemed to have reached final stages—is likely to get fresh impetus from an entirely new angle. Several former employees of the Chase and the Harris-Forbes organizations have decided to open up on the question of employee loans.

While Wiggin and associates were selling Chase stock short his Metpotan Corp. saged a "confidential drive" among employees of Chase security affiliates to sell stock to customers. Pressure was also used on these employees to buy Chase stock for their own account and they were told that Metpotan would accept installment payments.

The employees believed that they could not sell the stock for five years even if they bought it outright. Many of them are still paying off their debts to Metpotan on the basis of $300 a share. They drew the inference that refusal to do this would cost them their jobs and their equity besides.

One of the former Harris-Forbes key men has concentrated on gathering evidence to substantiate this story and persuading fellow employees to testify frankly when asked and if called. Among the material in his possession are several confidential circulars by E. J. Hynes which were later recalled and ordered destroyed by Chase executives.

Evasion—

Treasury officials are about to receive documentary evidence to prove that a certain New York bank not only advised its customers how to avoid paying income taxes but prepared outright tax-evasion manuals for the use of its sales force. The idea was to maintain customer good-will and to keep the salesmen busy during a period when there wasn't the slightest chance of selling securities.

Bond Pool—

Dissolution of the so-called bond pool sponsored by New York bankers was not intended as a slap at the government's monetary policy. The pool had accomplished its purpose of accumulating bond profits and there was no further point to its existence.

The last thing the bankers in question wanted was to stir up trouble for themselves in Washington but they are beginning to wonder whether they have done so. Impartial observers comment that their timing wasn't quite bright.

Flight—

The panicky capitalists who worked such ingenious devices for shipping their funds to England need not have worried about the government hounding in on their names. Local experts point out that the more sterling exchange they bought the higher the pound went against the dollar—which was Washington's aim. There was no object in stepping on them when they were unwittingly helping the play.

But the time will come when they have to transfer the money back again at a loss. If they expect any sympathy for their plight from official quarters they are super-optimistic.

Inside estimates of capital exports in the past few weeks run to about $700,000,000. That's one reason why the stock market has been sluggish.

Play-Up—

A recent New York visitor to Washington reports that the East's terror of the gold purchase policy has been deliberately played up to please the West and take its mind off its own difficulties. There is evidence that the strategy has brought results in the form of diminished farm unrest. A letter received here says "It must be O. K. if you Wall Street slickers don't like it."

Flat—

Several New York banks have found a way to disseminate anti-inflation propaganda without committing themselves to join an organization. They are joining wide distribution to a pamphlet by Andrew D. White—written years ago—on "Flat Money Inflation in France."

The pamphlet was got out first by the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency—closely associated with certain partners in J. P. Morgan & Co.—but the banks took it up with zest. One of them has sent over 50,000 copies out. Now they are getting requests for it.

Gunshoes—

The government evidently wants to know who socked the bond market in the nose. Certain agents have been gunshoeing around among the bankers asking leading questions.

It's - Up To You -- And To Me

The Government can't put over the N.R.A. Program of Recovery. Industry can't put it over. Labor can't put it over.

Unless You and I Do Our Part

My part and your part, if we are employers, is to sign and live up to the N.R.A. My part and your part, if we are consumers, is to buy from stores that display the N.R.A. emblem and live up to its requirements; to buy as much as our incomes allow so that the stores and factories, the employers of labor, can pay the increased wages and give the larger employment that will bring a return of better times.

Money is useless except when in motion—passing in exchange for goods to the storekeeper, who in turn pays it out both to his own storeworkers and to the factory, which again in turn passes it on to the factory workers and the producers of raw material which go into factory products.

In this way money goes from one individual to another, each of whom is benefitted. Only when money keeps flowing in the free and profitable manner from one worker to another, can the people prosper.
