World/Nation

NEW YORK - Americans overwhelmingly reject the notion that Dr. Henry Foster is unfit to be surgeon general because he performed abortions and gave different accounts of how many, an Associated Press poll finds.

Only 22 percent of the 1,008 adults in the poll think the abortions themselves should disqualify the Tennessee obstetrician from serving as the nation's chief advocate for public health.

WASHINGTON - President Clinton wins one in the House when Republicans join with Democrats to defeat a GOP proposal to develop a national missile defense system.

WASHINGTON - Nothing focuses the congressional mind like a national debt of $4 trillion and growing. The Republican panacea is a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget. The rationale is spare the rod, spoil the child - or in this case, the federal government.

WASHINGTON - House Republicans turned back charges that their welfare reform plan is an experiment "that uses America's children as crash-test dummies" and pushed the overhaul through a key panel.

LOS ANGELES - One of O.J. Simpson's most important witnesses has disappeared.

Defense lawyers disclosed Wednesday that a maid who lived next door to Simpson apparently has gone to El Salvador, perhaps for good, to escape harassment from the media and others.

Rosa Lopez had told defense attorneys she saw Simpson's Bronco in the street outside his estate at the time of the killings, and heard loud voices at his estate long after he left for Chicago.

HUNTSVILLE - An 11-time loser who spent most of his adult life behind bars was put to death early today for killing a Dallas-area school cafeteria worker during a robbery nearly 12 years ago.

HOUSTON - A $5.2 million jury award has for the first time ever tied Dow Chemical Co. to faulty implants made by its corporate child, Dow Corning Corp. Pending a judge's approval, the verdict awarded to a 57-year-old retired Texas nurse, forces Dow Chemical to pay 20 percent of that damage award and Dow Corning, 80 percent.

DALLAS - Men are regularly given a more sophisticated pacemaker than women, a choice that may affect a patient's survival, the author of a new study says.

AUSTIN - Gov. George W. Bush's budget aides will be joining legislators as they put the finishing touches on a $77.7 billion state spending plan. The governor, who took office a month ago, won't be submitting his own budget proposal. But he told lawmakers his spending priorities include more state money to public schools, more money for juvenile detention facilities and limiting how many new employees state agencies may hire.

AUSTIN - With the Texas Lottery's business booming, a state legislator says it may be time to make serving on the game's oversight commission a full-time job.

AUSTIN - One senator proposing term limits for state officeholders says he has some concerns about the idea. Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, says there's a danger of turning over too much power to bureaucrats.

AUSTIN - Despite opposition from consumer groups, a bill has sailed through the Senate that would limit the monetary damages Texans could collect from individuals or companies punished for wrongdoing.

DALLAS - Texas police were busy last year, reviewing nearly 300,000 applications for pistol purchases as required by the Brady Law, which still fuels debate after nearly a year on the books. The DPS says authorities performed 275,945 mandatory criminal background checks on handgun buyers between Feb. 28 and Dec. 31.

But not all programs are fun and games.

Mrs. Daniels said there also are health screenings each month, and education and driving classes are offered.

The center has "all sorts of physical fitness classes," she said, including line dancing and water and aerobic exercise.

Lunch is served each day, including meals that are delivered by volunteers to homebound seniors.

Activities also take place away from the senior center -- like the garden tour set to begin April 17.

The tour -- which was set up by the center -- will include stops in such places as Nashville, Tenn.; Asheville, N.C.; Atlanta, Ga.; and Natchez, Miss.

Another tour will go to Branson, Mo., later this year, and Mrs. Daniels said plans are under way for a tour in the fall to the northern U.S.

In addition, the Braschler Music Show from Branson will be here on March 10 for two performances.

Mrs. Daniels said the center opened in March 1975 and will celebrate its 20th anniversary next month.

That also will be the 10th anniversary of the center itself -- the building was dedicated on March 11, 1985, although the wing containing the auditorium and pool was added in September 1990.

There are more than 1,000 members of the senior center, but residents don't have to pay the $12.50 per year membership dues to take part in activities.

Mrs. Daniels said the center is non-profit and the by-laws stipulate that major decisions be made by a vote of the membership.

The minimum age to join senior citizens is 55, and the meal program -- which is available each weekday for a donation -- is open to those 60 and over.

For more information call the center at 364-5681, or stop by 426 Ranger.

Bill to limit damages sails through Senate over consumer protest

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite opposition from consumer groups, a bill has sailed through the Senate that would limit the monetary damages Texans could collect from individuals or companies punished for wrongdoing.

In a unanimous vote on Wednesday, the Senate approved a bill by Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, that would cap punitive damages.

Those damages are meant as punishment and are awarded to a plaintiff in addition to damages for actual losses or for pain and suffering.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock praised Sibley for his work, which included lengthy negotiations with business lobbyists.

Sibley said two provisions most strongly opposed by consumer groups were removed from his original bill in response to emotional public testimony during committee hearings.

He told fellow senators that reaching agreement with business groups was as difficult as "playing pick-up sticks with your butt cheeks."

"There has been abuse of the judicial system," Bullock said. "The bill was carefully crafted."

The measure, part of a package of tort reform legislation that Gov. George W. Bush has made an emergency priority for lawmakers, now goes to the House for consideration.

"This is a good bill and it's one that I can wholeheartedly support," Bush said.

But consumer organizations sharply criticized it.

"This bill is dangerous to anybody who buys an automobile or consents to medical treatment involving a product like a breast implant or heart valve," said Tom Smith, state director of the government watchdog group Public Citizen.

"There will no longer be incentives to stop manufacturing products that injure or kill people," Smith said.

Tim Curtis, of Texas Citizen Action, said the bill "protects the worst, most irresponsible corporations that do business in this state. They are no longer trying to fix junk lawsuits. They are trying to fix legitimate claims, so that we can't file any."

Sibley defended his measure, saying the legislation "will give business people and employers their day in court."

"Right now they feel they are denied their day in court because they are afraid they will have huge punitive damage losses or liabilities," he said. "Rather than run that risk and possibly lose everything, now they will know that their liability is on punitive damages."

Sibley said more businesses will come to Texas if the bill is passed.

But Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said that never should have been a concern.

"If we are serious about taking care of each other and we are serious about averting tragedy, why put caps on them (punitive damages)?" Barrientos asked. "We talk about businesses coming to Texas, but businesses have been coming to Texas."

Under Sibley's bill, punitive damages would be capped at twice the amount of actual losses, plus no more than $750,000 for non-economic damages such as pain and suffering.

Currently, punitive damages can't exceed four times the amount awarded for actual losses.

Sibley's bill maintains current law for smaller punitive damage cases. If the actual losses and non-economic damages awarded in a case are less than $200,000, then punitive damages would be capped at $200,000.

The measure toughens the standard for a plaintiff trying to prove a punitive claim.

Plaintiffs would be required to show "clear and convincing evidence" that a defendant acted with "malice" or "fraud."

Under current law, a plaintiff must only show a "preponderance of evidence" that the defendant acted with "gross negligence."

A jury verdict of at least 10-2 would be required to award punitive damages, and employers wouldn't be liable for punitive damages for the criminal acts of an employee in most cases, according to the bill.

State lawmaker seeking increase in speed limits on Texas rural roads

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - A North Texas lawmaker has introduced a resolution that would ask Congress to increase the speed limit to 65 mph on rural Texas highways.

Rep. Charles Fennell, D-Holliday, filed the resolution this week and asked other lawmakers for support. The measure was sent to the state House Transportation Committee Wednesday for consideration.

In the resolution, Fennell says that the change would be good for rural Texans who suffer under the 55 mph speed limit because they must drive long distances for work, shopping, medical care and other necessities.

"Higher speed limits are essential for promoting rapid ground travel in rural areas of Texas, many of which are not served by rail, air or any other mode of transportation," the resolution reads.

Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox said the DPS will not take sides on the issue.

"Enforcement-wise, we would abide by whatever the Legislature passes," Cox told The Corpus Christi Caller-Times on Wednesday.

"Historically, data shows that the faster a vehicle is traveling, the more likely the occupants are to be killed in a collision," Cox added. "But that is a law of physics, not a law of man."

In 1991 Congress established a 65 mph speed limit on rural sections of interstate highways.

"That doesn't do a lot of good for people in my 12-plus counties," Fennell said, "where there is not one inch of interstate highway."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For years, I've wondered whether my uncle was sexually abusing his daughters. My aunt makes jokes about the younger girl wearing tight pants to please her father. He caresses the girl at family gatherings in a way that makes them look more like lovers than father and daughter. The girl is 16 now.

Her sister, who is a few years older, weighs over 400 pounds and has had a lot of trouble in school. She's bright, but unmotivated. Both girls seem to love their father, but the whole situation sets off alarms in me.

I feel like a coward for not discussing this with my aunt, but I'm scared of being wrong -- or worse, being right. Even if it were true, my aunt and uncle would probably deny it. I'm afraid to stir up a hornet's nest by asking my cousins to confide in me. I was molested by my own stepfather, so I know about the damage that secrecy, silence and guilt can do.

Even if the family needs counseling, I doubt that they would go. Should I do anything about my suspicions or remain silent for the sake of peace and harmony? -- Concerned Cousin in Springfield, Mass.

DEAR CONCERNED COUSIN: There may be nothing going on, but I suggest that you get friendlier with your cousins and encourage them to confide in you. Tell them about your experience with your stepfather. If necessary, urge them to speak to their mother, an aunt, an uncle, the family doctor, a clergyman -- someone.

You cannot stand by and remain silent and do nothing. A young girl who weighs 400 pounds did not get that size for no reason.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have a grandson who is probably two or three years behind his peers. This child is not retarded or brain-damaged. The problem is that "Terry's" mother refuses to allow him to interact with other children. She would not allow him to start school until the age of 6 because she believed he would not be able to handle it. He used a pacifier until he was 5 years old.

Terry is afraid of his own shadow. On the other hand, his mother, my daughter, allows him to eat what he likes and go to bed when he pleases. She limits his contact with the rest of the family -- her brother and sisters and us, his grandparents. In my opinion, Terry's mother is crippling him in a way that could impact the rest of his life. His father thinks he is a sissy and a mama's boy and has little contact with him. He works until late in the evening and leaves early in the morning.

Our whole family is sick about this. Terry's mother is setting up her son for victimization, bullying and dependency. She reads your column faithfully and gets her education on child-rearing from every letter you run that supports her behavior. In fact, she clips and saves them.

I believe this mother should let go of this child and get a life. What say you? -- Heartsick Grandmother

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: The boy's father needs to have his eyes opened and get involved. think carefully about the individual who is best qualified to tell him this.

The mother needs counseling. Surely Terry's mother needs counseling. Surely Terry's teacher must be aware of any unusually childish behavior. Does the boy's pediatrician know what goes on in that family? some professional should rescue this pathetic young person before the situation becomes irreparable.

Expansion teams go for youth

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The Carolina Panthers and Jacksonville Jaguars weren't star struck in the NFL expansion draft.

Instead, pro football's newest franchises generally went for young, inexpensive players, ignoring such Pro Bowl talents as Chris Doleman, Michael Dean Perry, Mark Rypien and Gary Clark.

"We felt both Carolina and Jacksonville would compete for the same player pool, and that was the way it was for quite a few picks," Jaguars coach Tom Coughlin said. "The players we had evaluated with the highest grade were not necessarily the most expensive players."

Some big names were selected. The first overall choice, by Jacksonville, was quarterback Steve Beuerlein, whom Arizona Cardinals coach Buddy Ryan benched last season. Beuerlein, an eight-year veteran who was a backup to Troy Aikman on Dallas' 1992 championship team, will earn $2 million this year.

That didn't scare off the Jaguars, who recognized the importance of an experienced leader at the position.

"To win in this league, I don't think anyone can do it without being solid at the quarterback position," Jaguars offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride said. "This guy gives us that. I think a lot of people feel he is a legitimate NFL starter for an expansion club."

He's a starter who figures to be on the run an awful lot, operating behind an offensive line populated by such expansion picks as guards Tom Myslinski of Chicago and Jeff Novak of Miami, center Mark Tucker of Arizona and tackle Eugene Chung, a bust in New England.

"One of my claims to fame throughout my career is that I've always been able to take a hit," Beuerlein said. "I'm sure that won't be any different going down to Jacksonville."

If Beuerlein, 30, gets any time, he does have 1991 Heisman Trophy winner Desmond Howard and his big-play potential at receiver. He has Reggie Cobb, a one-time 1,000-yard rusher with Tampa Bay, in the backfield.

Carolina's familiar names included Pittsburgh cornerback Tim McKyer, a two-time Super Bowl winner with San Francisco who was beaten in the AFC Championship game for the deciding touchdown; nose tackle Greg Kragen of Kansas City, who played for three losing Super Bowl teams in Denver; Cleveland receiver Mark Carrier; and Jets quarterback Jack Trudeau.

McKyer is an active talker, sometimes to his detriment. Carolina coach Dom Capers, who worked with McKyer last season as Steelers defensive coordinator, said McKyer's reputation is misleading.

"He's got the ability to know how to practice and how to prepare," Capers said. "Your best assessment of players comes when you spend as much time as you can with them."

Capers will be spending time with only 14 defensive players, even though the Panthers claimed they would concentrate on defense in the expansion draft. The secondary, with McKyer and Rod Smith of New England - Carolina's first pick - might be the least leaky position.

The Panthers kept spending to a minimum, so much so that they had to make four more picks than Jacksonville in order to get to the $14 million salary minimum required of both teams. The Jaguars took 31 players, one over the requirement.

Of the first 36 players chosen, 24 made under $200,000 last year. Jacksonville changed directions with its 26th through 29th choices: New England tackle Eugene Chung ($1.12 million), Green Bay running back Cobb ($1.05 million), Washington's Howard ($1.73 million), and receiver Kelvin Martin of Seattle ($1.06 million).

Among the ignored veterans were defensive end Doleman, who made $2.7 million from Atlanta, where he had a mediocre season. Defensive tackle Perry, who has feuded with Cleveland management, was paid $2.86 million. Arizona receiver Clark earned $1.4 million, while quarterback Rypien, the MVP of the 1992 Super Bowl, had a $917,000 salary with Cleveland.

Doleman was pulled back by the Falcons after they lost receiver David Mims to Carolina.

Pittsburgh was the first team to lose the maximum three players when Jacksonville took wide receiver Charles Davenport on the 19th round. Atlanta was the last team to have a player selected when Mims went on the 60th pick.

The Dallas Cowboys lost wide running back Derek Lassic to Carolina and receiver Willie Jackson and defensive back Dave Thomas to Jacksonville.

The Houston Oilers lost defensive back Michael Davis and linebacker Le'Shai Maston to Jacksonville, while Carolina took Oiler defensive tackle Mike Teeter as the last selection in the draft.

The presidential custom of throwing out the first ball of the baseball season began under William Howard Taft in 1910.

Three presidents hold golf summit at Hope Classic

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP)—Three men who answer to "Mr. President" and comedian Bob Hope found a round of golf can produce as many bloopers as feats of athletic brilliance.

And when they had finished, George Bush had hit two spectators and Gerald Ford one.

"Three presidents and a hacker," Hope said before they started.

It didn't take long for things to go awry.

Ford hooked his first drive into the crowd, but apparently it didn't hit anyone. Seven holes later, his ball glanced off a woman's finger.

Bush ricocheted his second shot off a tree and into the face of an elderly woman who required stitches. He later bounced a shot off another spectator.

While President Clinton kept his drives out of the gallery, he didn't necessarily keep the ball in the middle of the fairways.

"Oh no!" the president of the United States said as his ball planted firmly in a sand trap.

At least he didn't hit anybody. The historic group, including defending champion Scott Hoch, also produced some respectable shots on the first day of the Bob Hope Classic tournament. They also seemed to have a great time as they worked their way around the course at Indian Wells Country Club, political differences notwithstanding.

Clinton promised he and Bush would play "political golf."

"We're not going to go too far right or too far left," he said. The promise went largely unfulfilled.

"I would advise people they should stay behind us," Ford told NBC-TV before they started. It was one of the few times during the day he was right on target.

The group hit more than its share of shots into the galleries, and shouts of "Fore" rang out with regularity.

"It's the funniest thing I've ever seen," Geoff Russell of Golf World magazine declared midway through their front nine. "They're doing reecealy bad."

They did improve somewhat as the game progressed, in keeping with Clinton's pregame description of his golf pattern.

"Half the time out here it takes six holes for me before I calm down and start thinking about what's going on," Clinton said while warming up. His mission was no doubt further complicated by the throngs of onlookers and armada of Secret Service agents in golf carts that tracked the team's every move.

The game offered a demonstration of the differences in style between the three presidents.

Clinton, known for his leisurely pace, took multiple practice swings at every hole and attributed his love for the game to "the same reason a lot of people don't like it. It takes so long."

Bush, known for the fast pace of his game, practically pounced on each ball.

Ford, known for his spectator-hitting shots at celebrity tournaments, seemed to have the most trouble with wild drives into the galleries. On the eighth hole, his second shot hit Geraldine Grommsh of Fargo, N.D., on the finger.

"It was a pretty long day, but I really enjoyed it," said Hoch, who finished with a 70 and was seven shots off the pace. "It's something I wouldn't trade for anything."

The round also marked the first time Hope, 91, has played all 18 holes in his tournament since 1987.

Clinton's unofficial score at Indian Wells Country Club was 93, one shot behind Bush and seven shots better than Ford in the pro-am.

Meanwhile, Kenny Perry, playing on another course, shot a 9-under-par 63 for the first-round lead.

Young Lakers stop Supersonics

By The Associated Press
Once again, the Los Angeles Lakers slowed down the SuperSonics. But not even the loss of Charles Barkley and Danny Ainge could slow down the Phoenix Suns.

Beating the young Lakers has been a problem for Seattle this season, and the Sonics' third loss to Los Angeles snapped their club-record 10-game road winning streak.

"Their trash talk really motivates us," said the Lakers' George Lynch, who scored 15 points and made an important three-point play late in Wednesday's 102-96 victory over Seattle.

Eddie Jones and Nick Van Exel had 19 points apiece, overcoming a 24-point effort from Seattle's Gary Payton.

The Suns finished a 120-113 overtime victory over Portland without Barkley and Ainge, who were both ejected.

In Phoenix, the Suns made up a 17-point deficit in the final 17 minutes against Portland.

Ainge sprained his knee midway through the fourth quarter in a tangle with Portland's Chris Dudley and got so angry he slapped Dudley and was ejected. Then Barkley, who had 35 points and 14 rebounds, was tossed in overtime after picking up his second technical foul.

"I'm not going to complain, but I do wish we could win an easier game," coach Paul Westphal said. "You see how depleted we are, and it seems like we lose somebody else every game."

The Blazers lost their second straight following the trade of Clyde Drexler and Tracy Murray to Houston. Rod Strickland had 26 points, a season-high 18 assists and 11 rebounds for Portland.

Lakers 102, SuperSonics 96
The last road loss for the SuperSonics was a 96-95 defeat by Los Angeles at the Forum on Dec. 29.

Shawn Kemp had 20 points for Seattle and Detlef Schrempf 17.

The Lakers outscored the Sonics 28-17 in the third quarter as the Seattle made just five of 25 shots from the field and trailed 87-72 going into the final period.

Although they threatened in the fourth quarter, the Sonics never got closer than six points.

Cavaliers 100, Magic 99, OT
Orlando has the NBA's second-best record, but the Magic have hit a rough spot in the road.

Terrell Brandon scored a career-high 31 points and sank the two winning free throws with 21.8 seconds left in overtime as Cleveland sent the Magic to their third straight road loss.

The Cavs improved to 5-1 in overtime games and made Mike Fratello the 24th NBA coach to reach 400 career victories.

Shaquille O'Neal led the Magic with 26 points. Dennis Scott had 19, including a 3-pointer with 12.3 seconds to play in regulation that sent the game into overtime.

Timberwolves 101, 76ers 97
Minnesota overcame the early ejection of Isaiah Rider to beat Philadelphia behind Doug West's season-high 33 points.

Donyell Marshall added 17 points and 11 rebounds for Minnesota, which won for only the sixth time in 25 games. It was the Wolves' seventh road win this season.

Rider drew two early technicals and was ejected only 6:16 into the first period after drawing a second technical foul for taunting.

Pacers 114, Pistons 88
Reggie Miller scored 31 points on 10-of-15 shooting as Indiana Pacers broke a two-game losing streak.

Joe Dumars led Detroit with 25 points, 16 in the first half. Pistons rookie Grant Hill had 18 points on 7-of-11 shooting, 10 rebounds and two blocked shots.

Miller had seven points during an

10-2 fourth-quarter run that allowed the host Pacers to open up a 99-81 advantage.

Bulls 107, Bullets 92

Scottie Pippen showed just why getting fair value for him in a trade would be so difficult for Chicago. He had 24 points, eight rebounds and six steals to lead the Bulls over Washington.

Toni Kukoc had 22 points and a career-high 12 rebounds and Steve Kerr added 11 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter.

Chris Webber and Juwan Howard scored 22 points each for the visiting Bullets, who lost for the seventh time in their last eight games.

Celtics 116, Warriors 115

A coaching change hasn't changed much for Golden State.

The Warriors lost for the 31st time in 38 games when Dino Radja hit a layup with 1.9 seconds remaining to spoil the home debut of interim coach Bob Lanier, who replaced Don Nelson.

Latrell Sprewell, whose 28 points led the Warriors, shot a running jumper from the lane at the buzzer, but the ball bounced off the rim.

Dominique Wilkins' 30 points led the Celtics, who have won five of their last seven games.

Wake Forest upsets No. 7 Maryland

By The Associated Press
Think Wake Forest and you think Randolph Childress and Tim Duncan, one of the best outside-inside combinations in college basketball.

Coach Dave Odom doesn't look at his 14th-ranked Demon Deacons the same way, and he was proved right Wednesday night in a 63-54 victory over No. 7 Maryland.

"That's been the story all year long," Odom said of Wake Forest's revolving hero success, which hasn't been all Childress and Duncan.

"When we've had a big win like that, we've had guys who ... stepped forward."

"It's one of those things. You don't know going in who it's going to be. You just search and say, 'Well, it's him tonight.'"

The latest "him" is freshman Tony Rutland, who came up with a big second half as Wake Forest (16-5, 7-4 Atlantic Coast Conference) kept the Terrapins (19-5, 9-3) from taking over first place in the ACC.

Rutland was inserted as the Demon Deacons' point guard so Childress could roam on the perimeter.

Rutland responded by scoring all 14 of his points in the second half, 12 in a six-minute span where Wake Forest took a 53-41 lead with 8:41 to play.

In other games involving ranked teams Wednesday night, it was: No. 8 Michigan State 68, Illinois 58; No. 10 Arkansas 86, No. 18 Alabama 80; No. 16 Virginia 64, Duke 58; No. 17 Stanford 83, California 70; No. 20 Georgia Tech 85, North Carolina A&T 81; No. 22 Oklahoma State 71, No. 21 Iowa State 69; Iowa 74, No. 24 Minnesota 70; and No. 25 Purdue 71, Penn State 51.

Maryland did close within 58-54 with 3:36 left, but the Terrapins didn't score again.

"We let them decide the tempo. We didn't play defense, we didn't execute on offense," said Maryland center Joe Smith, who had 17 points. "We played their game."

No. 8 Michigan St. 68, Illinois 58
Shawn Respert had eight 3-pointers among his 35 points as the Spartans (18-3, 10-2 Big Ten) held first place in the conference. Respert, the Big Ten's leading scorer, had 24 points in the second half in his sixth game this season with 30 or more points. Michigan State led by 17 at halftime and Illinois was able to get within nine points only once.

Freshman Jerry Gee led the visiting Illini (16-8, 7-5) with 11 points.

No. 10 Arkansas 86,
No. 18 Alabama 80,
No. 16 Virginia 64, Duke 58

Scotty Thurman had 29 points and Corliss Williamson added 24 as the Razorbacks (20-5, 8-4 Southeastern Conference) evened the season series after the Crimson Tide beat them at home earlier in the year. Arkansas broke a 66-66 tie with a 12-0 run that included 3-pointers from Thurman and Clint McDaniel. Eric Washington led Alabama (17-6, 7-4) with 16 points, 12 on 3-pointers.

No. 16 Virginia 64, Duke 58
Curtis Staples, coming off a school-record nine 3-pointers three days earlier against UNLV, was 5-for-8 from beyond the arc and finished with 19 points to help the Cavaliers (17-6, 9-3 ACC) win their fifth straight game and complete their second season sweep of Duke in three years. Cherokee Parks had 15 points and 14 rebounds for the visiting Blue Devils (11-13, 1-11), who tied the 1982-83 Duke team as the losingest in school history in conference play.

No. 17 Stanford 83, California 70
Brevin Knight had 16 points and a school-record 12 assists as the Cardinal (16-5, 7-5 Pac-10) ended a season-high two-game losing streak and swept the Golden Bears. Stanford broke it open early in the second half with a 13-1 run as California (12-9, 4-8) went over seven minutes without a field goal. Monty Buckley, Anwar McQueen and Jelani Gardner each had 15 points for the visiting Bears.

No. 20 Georgia Tech 85,
North Carolina A&T 81
The Yellow Jackets (16-8) struggled without injured starters James Forrest and Drew Barry and didn't wrap up the home victory until freshman Matt

Harpring made two free throws with 12 seconds left. Travis Best led Georgia Tech with 27 points and Harpring finished with 21 points and 11 rebounds. John Floyd led the visiting Aggies (10-12) with 27 points on 11-for-13 shooting and also grabbed nine rebounds.

No. 22 Oklahoma St. 71,
No. 21 Iowa St. 69
Bryant Reeves scored 22 of his 25 points in the second half and dominated down the stretch as the Cowboys (17-7, 7-2 Big Eight) moved within one-half game of league-leading Kansas with the road victory. Iowa State (18-7, 4-6) rallied from a 10-point deficit over the final two minutes and trailed 70-69 when Hurl Beechum hit a 3-pointer with 10 seconds left. Scott Pierce made one of two free throws one second later, but the Cyclones were unable to capitalize as Julius Michalik's 3-pointer bounced off the front of the rim at the buzzer. Fred Hoiberg had 20 points to lead Iowa State, which has lost five of six.

Rencher leads 'Horns to 91-65 rout of SMU

By The Associated Press
Terrence Rencher says the defense made the difference, but his offense spoke for itself as the Texas Longhorns held onto a first-place tie in the Southwest Conference race with an easy victory over Southern Methodist.

Rencher hit 13 of 17 shots from the field and wound up with 27 points Wednesday night as he led the Longhorns to a 91-65 win over the Mustangs.

Texas Tech kept pace with Texas with a 98-72 victory over the Houston Cougars. In the only other conference game, Rice defeated Texas A&M, 75-69.

Rencher said it was tough for the Longhorns to get up for the Mustangs following an earlier 100-59 win over SMU.

"We knew they would come here loose, and they had nothing to lose. That's when teams are most dangerous. It was tough to shake them at first, but we got the defense going," Rencher said.

It was the 23rd straight home victory for Texas (16-5, 8-2 SWC). The Mustangs (5-16, 2-8) got 13 points from Matt Timme, while Jabari Hearn had 11 points and 8 rebounds.

Carl Simpson added 13 points and 10 rebounds for the Longhorns. Texas used a 17-2 run early in the second half to put the game away.

The Longhorns took a 45-33 halftime lead behind a persistent defense that produced 17 SMU turnovers, both off the press and in the halfcourt.

Lance Hughes scored 29 points, including a school-record seven 3-pointers, to lead Texas Tech past Houston, 98-72.

Texas Tech is 14-7 overall and 8-2 in conference play. Houston (7-14, 4-6) got 21 points from Tim Moore.

Hughes put the Red Raiders in front with a 3-pointer just 13 seconds into the game, setting off a 20-6 run in the first eight minutes from which the Cougars could never recover.

Jason Sasser added 24 points for the Raiders, and Mark Davis contributed 11 points and 10 rebounds. For Houston, Kirk Ford backed Moore with 17 points.

Tech led 49-28 at the half and built a 31-point lead, 82-51, with 7:52 remaining. Reserves on both teams played the last several minutes.

Shaun Igo scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to give Rice the 75-69 victory over Texas A&M.

Rice (11-10, 6-4) went on a 14-4 run in the first half to break away from a 12-12 tie and led the rest of the way.

No rain hurting Rolling Plains; too much hurting Dallas area

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Dry weather conditions are taking their toll on parts of the Rolling Plains and producers are wondering what will happen to their parched fields, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Randall Boman, Extension agronomist in Vernon, said precipitation is badly needed over most of the Rolling Plains region.

"High winds and warm conditions continue to reduce available moisture," he said. "Producers are beginning to add soil amendments to wheat, and in order to assure reasonable crop response, rainfall is quickly needed."

Boman adds that wheat producers are beginning to pull cattle off wheat pastures due to lack of growth.

Jose Pena, Extension economist in Uvalde, said although moisture in the soil profile is good due to excellent fall and early winter rain, the weather has been dry since early December.

"Soil surfaces are dry and this past weekend's windy weather further aggravated the dry soil surface," he said. "Some roadside grass fires have been reported but damages so far have been minimal."

Pena said that although temperatures dropped to the low 40s over the weekend, very mild winter weather continues.

"Pastures and ranges are only semi-dormant," he said. "Winter weeds and grasses are providing above average forage availability for this time of the year and livestock remain in good condition."

Not all parts of Texas are suffering from lack of rain, with many producers near Dallas wishing the excess moisture would just go away.

Randy Upshaw, district Extension director in Dallas, said ranchers in North Texas are depending on supplemental feeding for their livestock because the fields are still too wet for the cattle to graze.

"The pastures have improved quite a bit over the last week due to the recent dry conditions," Upshaw said. "However, more dry conditions are needed."

"Warmer temperatures and fertilization would benefit the ranges as well," he added.

Spring planting continues throughout the area, he noted, with onions and other early season vegetables being the main focus. Some of the planting has slowed down because the fields are too wet to work in.

Jon Zeitler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said rainy conditions will continue through Thursday, but fair skies are on the way for the weekend.

Disturbances moving along the subtropical jet stream will produce cloudy skies, fog, and scattered showers and thunderstorms through Thursday," he said. "However, high pressure will bring fair skies and warmer conditions over the weekend."

Zeitler noted that the best chances for precipitation and the largest amounts will be in Central and East Texas.

"Rainfall totals will average from one-quarter to three-quarters of an inch," he said, "although some spots in East Texas may receive up to three inches of rain by Friday night."

Zeitler said next week's outlook calls for near normal temperatures in the Rio Grande Plains and the Lower Valley, while above normal temperatures are likely for the rest of Texas. Also, above normal precipitation may occur in the Lower Valley next week, with near normal rainfall in South Central Texas and little or no rain north of Interstate 10.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges dry. Lack of moisture slowing wheat growth. Land preparation, fertilization, herbicide applications underway for spring planting. Cattle in good condition; supplemental feeding continues.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture very short. Small grains, pastures, ranges need moisture. Land preparation, herbicide and fertilizer application, pre-irrigation continues. Supplemental feeding of livestock required.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short to very short. Wheat producers pulling cattle off wheat pasture due to lack of growth. Livestock in good condition; some supplemental feeding. Pastures provided good to excellent forage. Fall, winter calving near completion.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus to adequate. Pastures, ranges good to poor. Wheat good to fair. Supplemental feeding of cattle. Preparing land for spring planting. Onions, early season vegetables planted where good drainage. Pruning peaches.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. Ryegrass, clovers progressing. Planting onions, potatoes. Pruning, spraying peach trees. Cattle market steady.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short. Pastures, ranges fair to very poor. Supplemental feeding of livestock continues. Preparing land for spring planting. Planting onions. Cutting, baling alfalfa hay. Peach buds swelling.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair condition. Preparing land for spring planting. Early wheat providing ample grazing. Late wheat progressing slowly. Shearing goats. Supplemental feeding for cattle continues. CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Winter pastures providing good grazing for livestock; hay consumption reduced; lice infestations beginning to appear; livestock markets steady. Onions, potatoes being planted. Peach trees being pruned.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Cattle market strong; livestock in good condition; cattle feeding continues. Preparing land for spring planting, fertilization. Some blooms on peach trees. Mild temperatures with little to no rain.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to poor. Pre-irrigating spinach, southern greens, cabbage, other winter vegetable crops due to lack of moisture. Livestock good; some supplemental feeding. Forage good. Preparing to plant sorghum, corn.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges good. Livestock excellent; market steady. Weed spraying, other land preparations. Some haying, feeding supplements continue. Peaches blooming. Spring gardens being prepared.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges fair to good. Harvesting sugarcane. Pre-plant irrigation underway. Livestock in fair to good condition. Tomatoes, onions, peppers progressing well. Grain, sorghum planting under way.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What causes gynecostasia in a teen-ager? Is this common among teens? Other than breast surgery, liposuction and such, what treatment is there for it? — J.R.

ANSWER: About half of all boys develop breast enlargement during puberty. That's the gynecostasia to which you refer.

Pubertal male breast enlargement usually peaks between ages 13 and 14, after which it generally begins to regress. It is a pattern related to a changing balance between male and female hormone production during and after puberty. It can take a few years for the imbalance to correct itself completely and for any excess breast tissue to leave.

Unrelated pubertal weight can add to gynecostasia's generally unpleasant appearance.

Simply allowing nature its course is often the best advice.

I am not at all opposed to surgical answers. In some cases, a boy might be so self-conscious of the breast enlargement as to delay desired social or athletic activities. Removing excess tissue surgically has restored self-esteem in many cases.

Many parents ask whether gynecostasia can be a sign of trouble. Only rarely is that so. It can, however, indicate a tumor of the testicle or the adrenal glands, matters that can be quickly ruled out. Marijuana use is another modern cause of gynecostasia in young males, and that, too, can be tested for.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How can I suspect gallbladder disease? Is constipation a symptom? What tests are there? — E.W.C.

ANSWER: Take the gallbladder attack itself ... please! — as the stand-up comic jokes.

A gallstone attack leaves no doubt of its origin, with a steady severe pain either in the upper right side — just below the rib cage — or at middle of the abdomen. The pain often travels to the shoulder blades. You feel sick and may vomit then and there.

Concern is for symptoms short of that, before such a dramatic situation presents itself. There might be warning signs, such as stomach distress after eating, particularly after a fatty meal. But such symptoms are common to so many nongallbladder problems that they are not reliable.

The best way to identify gallstones is through ultrasound of the gallbladder.

Constipation is not a common symptom of gallbladder disease.

For more information, see the gallbladder report I'm sending you. Others can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 40, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I just had a knee tapped and a cortisone injection given. Are such injections harmful? It helps relieve the pain and it has lasted a week. — M.B.

ANSWER: The shots aren't harmful. Overuse of them can be.

You can count on your doctor being informed about the guidelines for frequency of use. Besides, if the single injection helped so much, you might not need another.

The cortisone works by quieting the inflammation that caused the joint fluid accumulation and resultant pain.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Bicycle enthusiasts encouraged to wear approved safety helmet

Bicycles are seen by many people as toys for children or exercise equipment for adults. Without proper protection, however, bicycles can be dangerous or even deadly.

Each year in the United States, an estimated 1,000 people die from bicycle-related crashes. Of those deaths, 62 percent are caused by head injuries. Thousands of young bike riders are treated in emergency departments each year for head trauma; of the 500 children who die each year riding bikes, 80 percent are victims of head trauma.

Most of these tragedies can be prevented by the addition of one simple piece of equipment: a bicycle helmet. The likelihood of head injury is reduced by about 85 percent by using a bike helmet. In fact, universal use of bike helmets could save one life every day and prevent one head injury every four minutes.

Given these statistics, why don't more adults and children wear bike helmets? Some people find them too heavy and uncomfortable, and they may be viewed as too expensive. Especially for children, wearing a bike helmet is not the "cool" thing to do.

Texas Medical Association, 13 of its component county medical societies, and the TMA Foundation have joined together for a bicycle helmet safety campaign, Hard Hats for Little Heads. This initiative will provide helmets free of charge to children who need them. In December, 1,600 helmets were distributed.

When choosing a bike helmet for your child or yourself, follow these guidelines:

*Be sure to purchase one that meets the standards set by either the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) or the Snell Memorial Foundation, which are more demanding. These private organizations have standards based on impact protection and strap system strength.

*Make sure the helmet has a snug, but comfortable fit. Most helmets come with foam pads that can be used to "fine tune" the helmet's fit.

*Check the helmet for a chin strap and buckle that will stay securely fastened. The straps should be adjusted for a snug fit, so the helmet covers the top of the forehead and does not rock back and forth or side to side. The helmet should be level.

*If the helmet is for a child, make sure the child likes it. Convincing children to wear a helmet is easier if they helped choose it.

Once you have the helmet, getting your child to wear it may be a different challenge. Insist that children wear a helmet any time they ride a bike. Accidents can happen on sidewalks or bike trails as well as streets. Start the helmet habit at a young age: Children who receive a helmet with their first bicycle may view wearing the helmet as a natural habit. Finally, if you ride a bicycle alone or with your child, always wear a helmet yourself.

The fourth graders at Shirley Intermediate School have completed a unit of study on Texas Indians.

The unit recognized Indian culture, traditions and historical contributions. A highlight of the study included a presentation by Jerri Bezner of the Deaf Smith County Museum.

The culminating activity required students to create visual displays to reflect their achievements. Their display may be viewed at Deaf Smith County Museum for the next month.

Higgins shares letter with club

La Afflatus Estudio Club heard a presentation from Alberta Higgins based on a letter from Dale West, director of the American Cultural Center in Romania.

The cultural center consists of a library, exhibit gallery and auditorium for explaining U.S. society, policies, laws and culture to the Romanians.

The Club met Feb. 7 in the home of the president, Louise Streun, who presided over the business meeting.

Emily Suggs led the club collect. There were reports from various committees and correspondence from Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

Refreshments were served to Virginia Beasley, Annie DeLozier, Opal Elliston, Marie Harris, Higgins, Aileen Montgomery, Della Stagner, Streun and Suggs.

The next meeting will be Feb. 21 in the home of Suggs.

Rominger challenges proposed subsidy cuts

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A Republican proposal to cut crop and export subsidies by $15 billion over five years was challenged Thursday by the Clinton administration as too much, too fast.

"I think that is a faster glide path than we would propose, and I think it is faster than would be safe for the American economy," acting Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Rominger told reporters after a hearing by the Senate Budget Committee.

The committee had just heard Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., describe his plan to lower the congressionally mandated target prices which help determine the level of subsidy payments received by corn, wheat, cotton and rice farmers. It also heard the first serious debate on farm policy in 1995, the year that a new farm bill must be written.

The plan by Lugar, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and a possible presidential candidate, also calls for cutting subsidies paid to exporters of wheat and other farm products.

Combined, the cuts would take a $15 billion bite out of the projected $50 billion in spending for price and income supports, crop disaster aid and farmer conservation plans through 2000.

Lugar told the committee, "My intent is a gradual glide path out of subsidies."

Even after the cuts, he said, target prices will be high enough to give farmers an income safety net. The export program he wants to cut, the Export Enhancement Program, has outlived its usefulness, Lugar said.

Although the administration has yet to say how it will do so, it says it plans to cut $1.5 billion from the farm program fund over three years starting in 1998. An expected return to normal corn yields and a reform of disaster payments will cause a $1.5 billion decline in 1996 without changes in the law, the department estimates.

Keith J. Collins, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, said after the hearing that the cuts would cause serious losses to farm income and food production, especially in the northern Plains, southern Plains and Delta states. Direct government payments account for 10 percent or more of farmers' cash receipts in those areas.

Lugar's chief adversary at the hearing was Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., a member of both the Budget and Agriculture committees. Just as Lugar has taken the lead in advocating a serious review of farm spending, Conrad has stepped forward as its chief defender.

"If we dismantle our agriculture policy, we will lose jobs," Conrad said, explaining that 20 million people work in the food and fiber industry.

Even though a global trade agreement forces a cut in government farm spending, Europe will still outspend the United States on subsidies after six years. Cutting U.S. programs "is unilateral disarmament," he said.

The American Farm Bureau Federation also criticized the proposal, saying it would send "severe shock waves" through the rural economy. "We'd experience a downward adjustment in farm real estate values, which could cause a debt repayment problem," said the group's president, Dean Kleckner. "Those costs would far outweigh any savings realized by Sen. Lugar's proposal."

The Lugar plan received a cautious welcome from fellow farm state Republicans.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, praised Lugar's willingness to cut from programs in his own committee's jurisdiction, but added, "Your work could come to naught if other committee chairmen fail to follow your lead."

Grassley also said he was worried about cuts in export spending.

The plan also received cheers from two members of the House. Reps. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., and Dick Zimmer, R-N.J., issued a joint statement calling for farm subsidies to be eliminated.

"These are welfare programs, pure and simple, and should be eliminated in an orderly manner," they said.

Schumer is an urban lawmaker and frequent critic of the Agriculture Department. Though from a semi-rural part of New Jersey, Zimmer is a fiscal conservative.

It's tax time again

Diana Yzaguirre, an employee of the Deaf Smith County Library, replenishes supplies of Internal Revenue Service tax forms that can be found on a table in the library. A variety of basic forms can be picked up at the library, while less common forms can be found in a book there and photocopied at the library.

Fifteen indicted here

Fifteen indictments, four on drug charges, were returned Thursday by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury.

Names of four defendants listed on three indictments were not released, pending their arrest.

Joe Angel Martinez, 19, of 828 S. Texas, Apt. 3, was named on two indictments for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine.

Martinez and Enrique Alberto Chavez, 38, of 208 Norton, are subjects on two additional indictments for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine. Chavez also is known as Henry Chavez.

Both Martinez and Chavez are in jail, in lieu of bond.

Felony driving while intoxicated indictments were handed down against Reese Allen Dawson Jr., 42, of 504 W. Fourth, and Juan Antonio Martinez, 32, of 131 Avenue K. Dawson is free on $650 bond and Martinez posted a $2,000 bond.

Mickaela Garcia Villarreal, 28, was indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. She is being held in Minnesota on a Deaf Smith County warrant. She has waived extradition and will be returned to Hereford.

Indicted for sexual assault of a child, Chris Vallejo, 19, of 333 Avenue G, is free on bond of $2,500.

Rogelio Guevara, 26, indicted for aggravated assault, is in jail in lieu of bond.

Tomas Lamas, 36, of 210 Boston is being held in jail in lieu of bond, on an indictment for sexual assault.

Indicted for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, Elias Tovar, 19, of 908 S. Main, posted bond of $5,000.

Held in Deaf Smith County jail, Pablo Mata, 23, was indicted for bail jumping and failure to appear.

AUSTIN (AP) - Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock says chances appear favorable for Senate passage of a bill to require notification of parents before a minor could obtain an abortion.

If that happens, a leading abortion opponent predicts that the House also will pass the measure and send it to Gov. George Bush, who supports it.

"After 22 years of waiting, to see legislation like this actually have wheels on it and be lined up to roll onto the floor of the state Senate is really miraculous," said Bill Price of Texans United for Life.

Abortion rights advocates are pledging a fight.

"The only thing that these laws really create are dangerous situations for young women in Texas," said

Pauline Cashion of the Texas Abortion Rights Action League.

The bill's author, Sen. Florence Shapiro, R-Plano, said Thursday that her measure to require at least 48 hours' notice has 18 co-sponsors in the 31-member Senate.

The bill wouldn't require young women to obtain parents' permission for abortions, she said, but it would make certain parents or legal guardians know what was happening.

"We're not forcing them to do anything other than make sure that the parents are well-informed about what is going on in their child's life. And that is a very, very important part of what I believe in," the senator said.

Ms. Shapiro described herself as "pro-choice with restrictions," adding that notification of parents is "one of the restrictions I am adamant about."

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who also is pro-choice on abortion, said, Ms. Shapiro "has the votes, in my opinion, to pass her bill."

Price said Senate approval would break a longstanding legislative deadlock on abortion.

In 1981, he said, the more conservative House passed a bill requiring parental consent for abortions. "But it never even got a hearing over in the Senate," he said.

"Since then, the attitude on the House side has been, 'We're not going to deal with this 'til you can demonstrate you can get it through the Senate.' I don't have any question, really, that we can pass it in the House."

House Speaker Pete Laney didn't comment directly on Ms. Shapiro's bill, but he noted, "Always before, most of the bills have died in the Senate."

Ms. Shapiro's bill calls for at least 48 hours' notice to parents or guardians before an abortion could be performed on a minor. The senator said she wants to allow victims of incest or child abuse to go to court and avoid notification.

"They can go to a judge if it's incest, if it's a child abuse case, if the child feels they cannot go to the parent as a result," she said.

Ms. Cashion said most young women already consult with their parents.

"What happens when young women face a crisis pregnancy, 75 percent are able to talk to their parents about this," she said. "All this bill does is jeopardize 25 percent of the young women who cannot, for one reason or another, talk to their parents."

Lawmakers propose unusual bills

How about "Three strikes, you're dead" for repeat felons in Oklahoma? Or naming a lonely Nevada road "Extraterrestrial Alien Highway"? Or putting wolves in New York City's Central Park?

Scouring the country for this year's offbeat legislative proposals, Associated Press statehouse reporters found plenty. Like the one from a seven-term Indiana state representative who wants retiring lawmakers to take their $500 slate-blue leather and wood chairs with them when they leave office. Or the request by a Minnesota lawmaker to adjourn his legislature when he'd rather be fishing.

Perhaps jolted by last year's Revolt of the Angry Voter, many of this year's more unusual bills address Americans' gripes with a creative vengeance.

The Oklahoma bill may be the object of ridicule, but state Rep. Bill Graves is serious. His legislation proposes lethal injection for anyone convicted of three serious felonies, such as arson or armed robbery.

"People are fed up with violent crime and want something done about it," Graves said.

The same impetus produced an Arkansas bill, since defeated, to bring back public hangings.

Still viable, however, is a bill to flush out rude Maine state employees with a toll-free complaint hotline and regular evaluation for "manners," and one in Oregon that would cut welfare to people who keep vicious dogs illegally.

A Texas measure would make candidates pass drug tests to get on the ballot.

Spanking proposals are the rage. A Mississippi bill would offer the paddle instead of prison. One California bill would lift a 1986 ban on corporal punishment in schools. New York and California may decide to paddle teen-age graffiti convicts;

Tennessee might cane burglars.

Louisiana dentists who exploit teen-agers would risk a year in prison and a $500 fine under a bill to bar them from putting gold teeth, fillings or crowns in the mouths of babes under 18 without a parent's consent.

Baseball fans sick and tired of the baseball strike provoked many legislators to pitch bills banning ballpark funding, strike breakers and even games.

If the Chicago White Sox use replacement players, some Illinois lawmakers want to withhold the estimated $24 million in taxes collected annually to pay for Comiskey Park.

Maryland's state-owned Camden Yards and New York's Yankee and Shea stadiums would shut out teams on which less than 75 percent of players were in the major leagues last year.

And legislation in Maryland, New York and Washington states would throw the book at teams that advertise a "major league" game in which fewer than 75 percent of players played in the majors last season.

Some lawmakers did offer bills from the lighter side of the aisle.

Minnesota state Sen. Bob Lessard introduced a measure to ban lawmaking on the first weekend of the walleye fishing season. "All you have to do is look at the taillights leaving the Twin Cities area, and I want to be one of those taillights," Lessard said.

One of Wisconsin Rep. Tom Ourada's constituents hit a deer landing his airplane and was dismayed to learn he couldn't take the animal home and eat it. So Ourada drafted a bill allowing pilots to keep the carcass if they run into a deer on a runway.

Even slowpokes on two-lane country roads had better beware.

A Louisiana bill would require trucks carrying oversized loads to pull over every 10 miles and let traffic pass. The bill doesn't say for how long.

Probation of man revoked

A defendant in 222nd District Court Thursday was ordered to serve a prison sentence on revocation of probated terms on two previous convictions.

Judge David Wesley Gulley assessed six-year terms for Ricardo Rivas and ordered him to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Special Alternative Incarceration Program. He was serving seven-year probated sentences on two convictions for burglary of a motor vehicle.

On motions to revoke probation of Ricardo Oliva, Judge Gulley modified terms of probation on two convictions for felony driving while intoxicated. Oliva was ordered to enter the Brownfield Court Restitution Center.

Another defendant, Stephen Flores Torres, 20, entered a plea of guilty to felony driving while intoxicated. He was given a five-year probated sentence and fined $500 on the conviction.

Terms of Torres' probation on a prior conviction, for burglary of a motor vehicle, were modified and he was ordered to enter the TDCJ Substance Abuse Punishment Facility.

Fire scene

Smoke from a grass fire west of Hereford on Thursday fills the air, while a dirt road in rural Parmer County divides burned grasslands at left from unscathed fields at right. Hereford firefighters assisted their Friona counterparts in battling the afternoon blaze, which consumed most of a section of land and was fueled by ultra-dry conditions and strong winds.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

Two years ago, Hereford Independent School District trustees, concerned about the nearly $500,000 a year expended for energy costs, enacted a plan to reduce the amount of electricity, gas and water used in local schools.

To date, the district - led in its efforts by Energy Manager David Morris - has saved thousands of dollars in energy costs, through such efforts as installing programmable thermostats, training employees to turn off lights when leaving rooms and lowering building temperatures as soon as school dismisses.

On Sunday, learn how the energy program works and how much the district has saved since it began.

Also Sunday, important information will be presented regarding this spring's city commission and hospital and school board elections.
