Testing the wood

Cameron Gulley takes a whack at a tree in Belize, learning that the wood of trees in the rain forest is extremely hard.

Hereford man spends 30 days on 'dig' in rain forest

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Although six months have passed since Cameron Gulley spent 30 days on an archaeological dig in Central America, the recent college graduate continues to savor his summer experience.

Gulley went to Belize, a country smaller than either New Hampshire or Vermont, where he joined in a dig conducted by the field school of the University of Texas-Austin.

He was one of three Trinity University students among a full crew of 26 to 28 students and faculty at the Dos Hombres site in the Programme for Belize, Nature Conservation Reserve.

"We stayed at the H.D. Carver Research facility which was a 30-minute pickup ride and another 30 minutes on foot to the dig," Gulley explained.

The site -- Dos Hombres -- is an old Mayan city; artifacts from the area have been dated back 1,000 to 1,500 years, he added.

Mounds, also called pyramids, in the rain forest usually are targets for research digs. The mounds are about 25 feet in height, said Gulley.

Unfortunately, as in many archaeology-rich areas, looters have reached some of the pyramids, which has made security and secrecy very tight.

Gulley's summertime was marked by high heat and humidity and little wind, a far cry from his home town.

"There was no air conditioning where we stayed. Humidity was high, about 90 percent, and there was no wind," he reported.

Gulley received a scholarship from an endowment to the Trinity University anthropology department for the dig. A business administration major, he had a double minor in biology and anthropology. He received his bachelor of science degree from Trinity in December.

Belize formerly was administered as British Honduras and was granted full independence in 1981 by Britain.

"Until recently, there still was a sizeable Brit military presence, though," Gulley said, explaining that Guatemala had for many years claimed the territory but has not pressed the claim in recent years.

The country is nestled against Guatemala and the Mexican Yucatan Peninsula, on the Gulf of Honduras. Estimated population is only 180,000 people. Although the capital is Belmopan, the largest town is Belize City, with population of about 60,000.

The Programme for Belize is operated by the Massachusetts Audubon Society and covered a preserve of about 210,000 acres.

Gulley said he and his colleagues rode in the back of a pickup over an unpaved road for 25 to 30 minutes.

"Then, we got out and hiked through the rain forest another 30 minutes," he continued. "We carried our lunch with us."

Before leaving his living quarters every morning, Gulley prepared a lunch of tortillas spread with beans or, very often, peanut butter.

"We couldn't put jelly on it because the insects would get in it," he laughed.

An archaeological dig is, in fact, a dig. "We dug with everything from shovels to dentist's picks," said the student archaeologist.

During the 30 days, he and his co-workers found several pieces of pottery, but no burial sites.

Digging in the dirt is an ages-old pastime of children, especially little boys. Cameron Gulley says he's just a big boy who still enjoys digging in the dirt.

"It was fun -- digging," he admitted, with a chuckle. He described the soil as rich but dry at the time he was in Belize.

Diggers take special care at sites, he explained, when obsidian is spotted.

"It's a volcanic glass and is sharper than a knife," added Gulley. He has a photograph of a pit that had a good supply of pottery and obsidian blades buried in the soil.

On a weekend to the coast of Belize, Gulley was impressed with the quality of seafood he and friends caught.

"I got a snapper and we took some lobsters," he said, showing pictures of their catch. They hired a boat for the expedition on the water.

Gulley found the Belize population that he met "very nice" and friendly. A colony of Mennonites has lived in the country for a number of years, along with the British left over from the colonial days and the native population.

Drug raid nets four suspects, big bucks

In what officers termed one of the largest drug busts in years, four Hereford men were arrested Friday afternoon and charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

The drug raid was made at a residence at 208 Norton St. where officers found 18.36 ounces of cocaine and seized $18,545 in cash.

Gene Gerringer, investigator for the DA's office, said the case involved about four months investigation and the raid was a combined effort of the DA's office, Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department, and the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Trafficking Task Force.

Four suspects were arrested at the scene and a fifth man was turned over to another law agency. The four arraigned in JP Johnnie Turrentine's office this morning were Enrique Alberto Chavez, Rueben Guerrero, Joe Angel Martinez Jr., and Jessie Moya.

Bonds were set at $250,000 for Chavez, $150,000 for Guerrero and Martinez, and $100,000 for Moya. The four were in the county jail Saturday morning.

Gerringer said officers had 57 minutes to execute the raid after getting a go-ahead Friday afternoon. Officers converged on the house at 4:14 p.m. Friday and arrested the suspects outside the house without shots being fired and no one was injured.

After executing a search warrant, Gerringer said officers began a search of the suspects, the residence and vehicles. He said officers found over an ounce of "coke" on Chavez and the rest was concealed in the house. Cash was found wrapped in tinfoil in a freezer, in a hidden bank bag, and $4,000 was found in a vacuum cleaner bag. Another $1,140 was found in a van.

"It was a great job by all officers involved," said Gerringer. He praised the sheriff's office, Hereford Police Department, the District Attorney's office, and members of the regional task force.

Gerringer said he understood the county had made a larger narcotics seizure before, "but it may be one of the largest cash seizures that we've had."

Gerringer said the DA's office will determine whether to file forfeiture proceedings in connection with the cash seized in the raid. The individuals involved in the arrests are tied to other drug dealers in the Panhandle, he said.

Gerringer said the wholesale value of the cocaine was estimated at $20,000. "But when it's cut and goes on the street for sale, that value could reach about $350,000."

Gerringer credited Bill Blacksher, narcotics agent for the sheriff's office, for playing a key role in the case. Others assisting the operation include Sheriff Joe Brown and officers David Castillo, Herman Lopez and Pat Hagermeier. Police officers included Pat Michael, Israel Silva, Brent Harrison, Benny Barrick, Emilio Valdez and Robin Ruland. K-9 dogs Buddy and Ricky from the sheriff and police departments also assisted.

Lawyers argue race issue, tempers flare in O.J. trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)--Tempers flared as a black defense lawyer and black prosecutor exoriated each other for playing the race card--and using "the n-word"--in the O.J. Simpson trial.

Accusations flew. And then Simpson wept.

The sharp words and tears came Friday as prosecutors tried to stop defense lawyers from arguing that Detective Mark Fuhrman, a key witness, has a history of using racial epithets and expressing hatred for blacks and interracial couples.

In another development, Superior Court Judge Lance Ito decided to dismiss two jurors, the Daily News of Los Angeles reported today.

As both sides sparred over the issue of race, Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden pleaded with the judge to prohibit defense lawyers from using the "the n-word."

"It is the dirtiest, filthiest, nastiest word in the English language," Darden said. "It'll upset the black jurors. It'll issue a test, and the test will be: 'Whose side are you on, the side of the white prosecutors and the white policemen, or are you on the side of the black defendant and his very prominent and capable black lawyer?'"

Defense lawyer Johnnie L. Cochran taunted Darden by reading from documents that quoted Fuhrman using the word "nigger." He called Darden's objections insulting to the eight blacks on the jury, which wasn't present for the hearing.

"African-Americans live with offensive words, offensive looks, offensive treatment every day of their lives," Cochran said. "And yet they still believe in this country."

Simpson is charged with murdering his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. Simpson is black; both victims are white.

Impassive for the most of the hearing, Simpson wiped tears from his eyes during an exchange between the two lawyers about his ex-wife.

Darden suggested that Simpson "has a fetish for blonde-haired white women," but said the prosecution wouldn't bring that up at trial because "that would inflame the passions of the jury."

Cochran berated Darden for such a suggestion, calling it "perhaps the most incredible remarks I've heard in a court of law in the 32 years I've been practicing."

"How outrageous is this?" (See SIMPSON, Page 2A)

Research reports highlight annual sugarbeet meeting

By SHELLY SCHILLING
Staff Writer

Roger Hill, president of Holly Sugar, complimented the Hereford Sugar Beet Growers Association on their high quality research results during remarks at Friday's Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association annual meeting.

The research reports were given by Charles Schlabs, a local beet grower, and Dr. Steven R. Winter and Dr. Charles Rush with the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Bushland.

Hill said that the research presentation was one of the best he has seen.

The Association was to conclude its annual meeting Saturday Night at the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Annual Banquet where the Top growers and "Ag Man of the Year" were to be announced.

Board president Bill Cleavinger presided over Friday's meeting which also included remarks by American Sugar Beet Growers president, Craig Anderson.

Anderson spoke on the benefits of talking to the "grass roots" of the organization. He also praised Hereford on its diversified agricultural community.

For an industry which is subject to the actions of Mother Nature, "we have to educate the users of sugar on how tough it is to produce and how important we are to the food chain," said Anderson. "We need to let them know that we operate at no cost to the taxpayers and actually put money back into the general fund...we're not getting much credit for that."

During the meeting the organization elected three directors: Bill Cleavinger, Wildorado; Troy Christian, Farwell; and Dave Thomas, Friona.

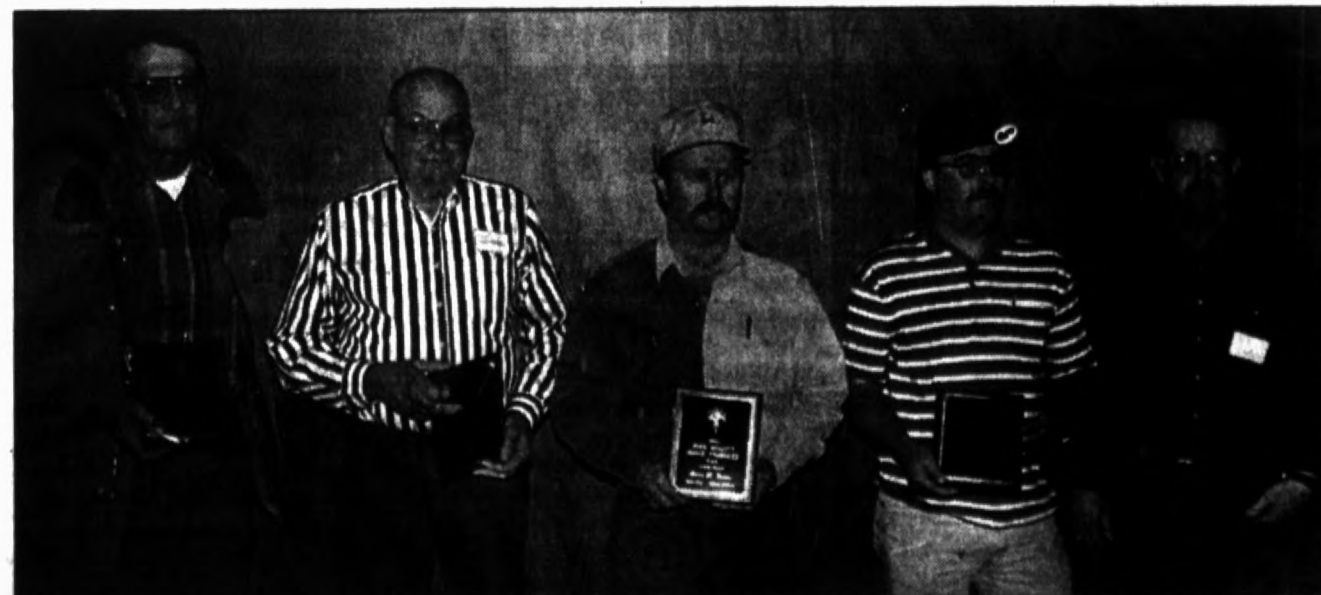

Also recognized were the 1994 High Quality Growers. They were: Albert Meyer, Factory Northwest; Kenneth Taylor, Factory Southwest; Marion and Suzy Hicks, Dawn; Mike and Debra Beauchamp, Friona; David Norton, Bovina; A.H. Brorman Farms, Farmers Corner; Mason Farms Partnership, Wildorado; 6 R Land & Livestock, Dimmitt; Steve Albracht, Nazareth; and Steve W. Foster, Kress.

The High Quality Growers are those growers who have the highest sugar content with at least the average yield for that station. There is one High Quality Grower chosen per station.

Hospital board meets Tuesday

A regular monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors is scheduled Tuesday, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the board room at Hereford Regional Medical Center. Agenda items include an open forum time; discussion of a tax abatement proposal; the administrator's update; and financial, operations and medical staff reports.

The Chamber and You

By F. MICHAEL CARR
Executive Vice President

The new year of 1995 is off to a fast and great start for Hereford and Deaf Smith County. There is new activity and plans under way for more growth in our community.

Let's all do our part to keep Hustlin' Hereford on the move. Your Chamber of Commerce is busy every day responding to inquiries for potential new residents and new businesses interested in Hereford.

Thanks to all of our membership for their help and support!

-CofC-

The Chamber would like to alert our residents of the importance to check out all agencies and firms soliciting donations. This time of the year, you will receive requests for financial support through the mail. Many of these are very legitimate, but some might not be worthy of your support.

The Chamber keeps a list of charities and maintains a rating that is compiled by the National Charities Foundation. If you have a question about one of these, please feel free to contact the chamber. We will be glad to assist you.

Currently, the March of Dimes is doing a fundraiser in Hereford and the Rape Crisis and Domestic Violence Center is selling tickets to support its Magic Show that will be held Feb. 18. Both of these are approved and worthwhile endeavors.

-CofC-

The Christmas season in Hereford was very successful in our community. The town was festive with all the Christmas lighting. The Chamber would like to express appreciation to everyone who helped make the "Lighting Project" a big success. We could not do it without your support.

A special thanks to the Whiteface Kiwanis Club, to Tom George at Hereford Electric, to Southwestern Public Service and to Bill Bankston of Bankston Electric for their help. We also appreciate Chamber President Wes Fisher and Barrett-Fisher Produce for their support of this project.

The "Christmas Lighting Project" is possible because of the financial support of our community.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and its board of directors would like to salute the following firms and individuals who have donated to this program. A big "thanks" go to: A to Z Tire; AzTx Cattle Co.; AgriPro Seeds Inc.; Arrowhead Mills; B&R Thriftway; Balfour Optical; Charles Bell Insurance; Mike Betzen; Big T Pump; Billie's Beauty Shop; Mr. and Mrs. Ivan L. Block; Boots and Saddle; Budget Motor Inn; CattleTown Inc.; Cavin Crop Insurance Agency; Caviness Packing Co.; City of Hereford; Colville and Wilson; Cowser, Line and Langenhennig; Crossed Keys Package Store; Custom Cleaners and Hereford Uniform.

Also, Deaf Smith Aero; Deaf Smith County; Family Medical Clinic; Federal Land Bank; First American Bank; First National Bank; Wes and Pat Fisher; Foster Electronics; Frito-Lay; Gebo's Distributing Co.; Gililand Insurance Associates; Goodin Fuels; H&R Manufacturing; Hereford Cablevision; Hereford Parts and Supply; Hereford Regional Medical Center; Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union; Hereford Travel Center; Hereford Welding Supply; Insurance Solutions Inc.; K-Bob's Steak House; KPAN Radio; Scott Keeling and Bar K Cattle; Keeling Cattle Feeders; La Plata Study Club; Little's Fashions; Lone Star Agency; Lone Star Study Club; Mr. and Mrs. Doug Manning; McDonald's Restaurant; Carroll and Ruth Newsom; Newton Trucking; and Nutrition Services Associates.

Also, The Office Center; Oswalt Livestock Products; Pants Cage; Plains Ford New Holland; Poarch Brothers; Poarch's Furniture; Rix Funeral Directors; Schlabs Farms; Alex Schroeter, P.C.; Jerry Shipman Insurance; Earl and Joy Stagner; Stevens Chevrolet-Olds; Suit's Auto Supply; A.O. Thompson Abstract Co.; Top Properties; Vasek Service and Equipment; W.T. Services; Dr. Kent Walker; West Texas Rural Telephone; White Implement; Whiteface Aviation; and Winget Pump Co.

Again, we thank you for making this project possible.

If you would like to donate, please send you check in any amount to: Christmas Lights, P.O. Box 192, Hereford Texas 79045.

-CofC-
Have a good weekend!

SIMPSON

Cochran said. "If this man loves somebody who is purple, he has the right to get married. ... His first wife was African-American. That's the beauty of America. That's what people have fought and died for."

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito was clearly disturbed by the bickering.

"This is the one main unresolved problem of our society," Ito said. "And for those of us who grew up in the '60s and had hoped this would kind of go away, it's a big disappointment to still have to read this stuff."

It was not immediately clear when Ito would rule. Opening statements are scheduled for Thursday.

Fuhrman is the detective who discovered a bloody glove at Simpson's estate the day after the killings. The glove matched one found at the crime scene. Defense lawyers have tried since summer to brand Fuhrman a racist cop capable of planting the evidence to frame Simpson.

Cochran read into the record several statements from Fuhrman, Fuhrman's psychologists and a woman who claimed she heard him make racist statements.

Kathleen Bell said in a sworn affidavit that Fuhrman told her: "If I had my way, they would take all the niggers, put them together in a big group and burn them." Fuhrman has denied ever meeting Bell.

Louis Braille, inventor of a reading system for the blind, was born in 1809 in France.

Pyramid in the rain forest

Barely discernible among the trees of the rain forest of Belize is a pyramid, or mound, of a long-lost civilization. Cameron Gulley took this photo while on an archaeological dig last summer.

GULLEY

of Belize is tourism, Gulley pointed out. "Eco tours are getting very big down there. People are interested in the country and, especially, birds," he added.

Insects also are plentiful in Belize, he said and pose a continuing problem. "I'd catch a praying mantis or two and put in my bed at night to eat the other bugs," he laughed.

Gulley and his co-workers grew accustomed to carrying anti-venom kits with them at all times.

"I was in my bunk one night and heard a whacking sound," he recalled. "The next morning I found out that a fer-de-lance snake, highly poisonous, had been killed." He has a picture of the snake to prove it.

Dr. Fred Valdez of UT-Austin was director, providing Gulley with a "good experience" in his first archaeological dig. Because of the good experience, Gulley would be interested in another dig, as an avocation.

In the meantime, he intends to launch his business career in the next few weeks with a San Antonio firm, with an eye to entered graduate school later on.

But, he has his summertime experience to remember and relish.

"There's something almost mystical about digging where people lived so long ago ... to re-create a three-dimensional life. It's not just finding things but seeing the relationship."

Police, Emergency Reports

Southwest will build facility in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)-- Southwest Airlines will build a $10 million reservations center in Oklahoma City, eventually employing more than 1,000 people and ending the city's drought of attracting such facilities.

Gov. Frank Keating's announcement Friday ended weeks of secret negotiations between Oklahoma leaders and airline officials.

The reservations center will be built near Will Rogers World Airport, on 12 acres of land owned by the Oklahoma City Airport Trust. Southwest will lease the property from the trust.

"Southwest Airlines is known throughout corporate America as being an employee-oriented company, a company which sincerely cares for its personnel," Keating said.

"In our economic development efforts, this is exactly the kind of company that we are seeking for Oklahoma."

Keating said he and Mayor Ron Norick met last month with Southwest President Herb Kelleher to discuss prospects of putting the center in Oklahoma.

John Denison, executive vice president for corporate services, said the center is scheduled to open in May, with 100 to 200 employees initially. That number will grow to more than 1,000 as each training class of employees graduates, he said.

Denison said the annual payroll when the center is fully operational would be at least $15 million. He also said the company planned to hire local contractors for the construction.

The new center will be Southwest's ninth in the United States. The airline recently announced a reservations center for which Oklahoma City was in the running. That 900-job center, set to open Jan. 24, went to Little Rock, Ark.

Denison said growth was a factor in Southwest's decision to expand.

"Southwest Airlines is perhaps the fastest-growing airline domestically, maybe in the world, and we have a need for additional reservations capacity."

The successful wooing of Southwest Airlines largely was due to a package that included incentives from Oklahoma City, Oklahoma's Quality Jobs program and the state's vocational-technical school system, Keating said.

"The only thing they asked for was a traffic control signal on 54th Street, and for a thousand jobs, I'll do that any day," Norick said.

Norick is a veteran of negotiating with big companies with big promises of lots of jobs.

Several years ago, a bidding war developed when Oklahoma City competed with other cities for a job-rich United Airlines maintenance center. Indianapolis won that contract.

"The only thing that we did different, if anything, was that we learned off of United," Norick said. "We've gone through a bunch of these."

Lottery won't pay illegally bought ticket

AUSTIN (AP)--Texas Lottery officials say they won't pay $10.4 to a New Jersey police officer because he purchased the winning ticket through an unlicensed out-of-state dealer.

Scott Wenner, 37, of Riverside, N.J., held a ticket matching the six numbers drawn on Nov. 23 for the Lotto Texas drawing.

Nora Linares, lottery executive director, said Friday Wenner's claim was being denied because it was a violation of state law when he purchased the ticket through an unlicensed out-of-state dealer.

"I sincerely believe our law-abiding lottery players will fully understand and support us in this decision. I assure you it was made to protect the integrity of the Texas Lottery games," Ms. Linares said.

Wenner presented the ticket to the lottery on Dec. 15, seeking the jackpot that totaled $10,465,443.

Dale Ossip Johnson, an Austin attorney who represents Wenner, said they would file a lawsuit in an attempt to collect the winnings.

"The bottom line simply is there will be a suit filed and it will be filed very shortly," Johnson said.

The decision had nothing to do with the fact that Wenner lives outside of Texas, Ms. Linares said. She said it was the sale, through Pic-A-State Lottery Service of Lakewood, N.J., that was illegal.

"Every day, thousands of residents of Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico and visitors from other states cross the border to purchase Texas Lottery tickets from retailers who have legally licensed to sell those tickets," she said.

"What makes this claim different is the involvement of an unlicensed, out-of-state company."

No one disputed that Wenner's ticket displayed the winning numbers. However, Wenner made the purchase through a Pic-A-State's outlet in Pennsylvania. The $1 lotto ticket was sold for $2.

The Texas Lottery also said it wouldn't pay a 1 percent bonus -- $104,000 -- to the Texas retailer which generated the contested ticket. That was Heart's Discount Liquor in Houston, lottery spokesman Steve Levine said.

Ms. Linares, citing the threatened legal action, declined to answer any questions about Friday's decision.

North Texas woman claims $5 million pot

AUSTIN (AP) - A North Texas woman has finally come forward to claim her $5 million co-share of last Saturday's Lotto Texas game.

Florence Krol of Dallas and Shaun Pyle of Hugo, Oklahoma, were the only two winners of the Dec. 7 Lotto Texas game, which had rolled over to $10 million.

Ms. Krol requested minimal publicity before being presented Friday with a check in Austin for $257,044. She will receive payments of $252,000 every January for the next 19 years.

Pyle picked up his first payment Tuesday.

Lotto Texas Saturday night is worth an estimated $11 million.

Lottery refuses to pay New Jersey man's ticket

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Friday the 13th proved very unlucky for a New Jersey police officer when Texas Lottery officials denied him a $10.4 million lotto jackpot.

The Texas Lottery Commission said it won't pay Scott Wenner, 37, of Riverside, N.J., who held a ticket matching the six numbers drawn on Nov. 23.

Nora Linares, lottery executive director, said Wenner's claim was being denied because he purchased the ticket through an unlicensed out-of-state dealer.

"I sincerely believe our law-abiding lottery players will fully understand and support us in this decision. I assure you it was made to protect the integrity of the Texas Lottery games," Ms. Linares said.

Wenner presented the ticket to the lottery on Dec. 15, seeking the jackpot that totaled $10,465,443.

Immediately after Friday's decision was announced, Wenner's lawyers said they would file a lawsuit seeking to collect the winnings.

"The bottom line simply is there will be a suit filed and it will be filed very shortly," said Dale Ossip Johnson, an Austin attorney representing Wenner.

Ms. Linares said the decision had nothing to do with the fact that Wenner lives outside of Texas. She said it was the sale, through Pic-A-State Lottery Service of Lakewood, N.J., that was illegal.

"Every day, thousands of residents of Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico and visitors from other states cross the border to purchase Texas Lottery tickets from retailers who we have legally licensed to sell those tickets," she said.

"What makes this claim different is the involvement of an unlicensed, out-of-state company."

No one disputed that Wenner's ticket displayed the winning numbers. However, Wenner made the purchase through a Pic-A-State's outlet in Pennsylvania. The $1 lotto ticket was sold for $2.

According to the legal findings by lottery commission official Linda Cloud, Texas law appears to have been violated in several ways.

The lottery said Pic-A-State is not a licensed Texas Lottery retailer; the ticket was purchased over the phone; the ticket price was higher than its face value, and the purchase occurred at a location other than a licensed sales agent.

Wenner's lawyer, Johnson, said the lottery's dispute should be with Pic-A-State, not with Wenner.

Ms. Linares, citing the threatened legal action, declined to answer any questions about Friday's decision.

Supreme Court takes on religious-speech question

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court set the stage Friday for a key religious-speech ruling, agreeing to resolve a dispute over a cross erected by the Ku Klux Klan near the Ohio Statehouse as part of a Christmas display.

The court's decision, expected by July, could help clarify a murky area of law: the right of private citizens to display religious messages on public property.

The justices voted to review a ruling that required Ohio officials to let the Klan display the cross in a public park near the Statehouse in downtown Columbus during the Christmas 1993 season.

A federal appeals court ruled in the case that in any public forum "the religious content of private speech is absolutely irrelevant" and cannot violate the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

Other federal appeals courts, however, have disagreed.

In other cases Friday, the high court:

-Agreed to decide in a case from Maryland and Pennsylvania whether federal defendants should get credit for the time they spend "under conditions of jail-type confinement" while on bail awaiting sentencing.

-Said it will decide in a California case whether disability benefits for a longshore worker can be reduced or canceled if the worker later finds higher-paying work.

The Supreme Court has provided less-than-lucid guidance in past rulings on religious speech.

In 1985, the justices split 4-4 when the court tried to decide whether a religious group could place a Nativity scene in a small Scarsdale, N.Y., park where political and other messages often were displayed.

The confusion in lower courts stems from two distinct lines of cases interpreting the Constitution's First Amendment. One line involves government's relationship with religion; the other involves government's duty to be impartial in allowing the use of any public forum.

One such forum for decades has been the 10-acre park in Columbus known as Capitol Square, adjacent to the state's Capitol building.

In recent years, the square has been decorated with a Christmas tree and menorah in December. In 1993, the Ohio Realm of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan sought a permit to erect a 10-foot cross as a Christmas display - its effort to put Christ into Christmas.

The public agency that regulates uses of the square refused to issue a permit. The Klan sued and won the right to display its cross.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected the state's argument that a cross - "the principal symbol of Christianity" - located so close to the Statehouse would lead most reasonable people to think the state was endorsing that religion.

No cross was displayed on Capitol Square last month. The Klan did not seek a permit to erect one.

Pope welcomes Chinese Catholics in Manila

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) - The Vatican on Friday welcomed Catholics from Communist China who came to see Pope John Paul II in a sign Beijing's rift with the Holy See may be nearing an end.

Two separate groups, 24 people from the state-sponsored Chinese Patriotic Association and an unannounced number of underground Roman Catholics loyal to the pope, have arrived in Manila, papal spokesman Joaquin Navarro said.

"They are welcome as Catholics," Navarro said of the state-sponsored group that ordains its own clergy. "The Vatican is anxious not to politicize their presence."

It was possible that several Chinese priests would celebrate Mass with the pope on Sunday for World Youth Day.

The Vatican insists they first make a profession of faith that includes a pledge of loyalty to the pope. Church officials have suggested several priests may do so.

One hurdle was resolved when the Vatican said only its flag and that of the Philippines will be flown from the altar Sunday, and none from the other nations represented.

With a large delegation of Catholics from Taiwan coming Sunday, Vatican officials were concerned that the mainland Chinese might insist that only their flag represent China.

The pope's hope of resolving the church's dispute with China seems closer to being realized. He is anxious to visit China and is expected to make a radio address Saturday expressing his respect for the Chinese people.

China bans worship except in state-sponsored churches. The Communists broke ties with the Vatican shortly after seizing power in 1949 and ordered Catholics to disregard papal leadership.

The Vatican estimates that 5 million to 8 million Catholics there remain loyal to the pope.

Contacts have been stepped up in recent years. Manila Archbishop Cardinal Jaime Sin, the son of a Chinese immigrant, has made several trips there and reportedly helped to arrange the visit by the Chinese.

On Friday, John Paul celebrated Mass for 300 delegates to the youth meeting and urged them to spread the faith in Asia, home of two-thirds of the world's people but where Christians number only about 3 percent. He called the continent "the largest mission land in the world."

The Philippines, 85 percent Catholic, is the church's Asian bastion. Catholics are a minority in the other countries on the pope's 11-day itinerary: Papua New Guinea, Australia and Sri Lanka.

Two people have been arrested in an alleged plot against the pope, the defense secretary said, refusing to give details. Newspapers reported police were searching for about 20 foreigners in the alleged conspiracy.

Earlier the week, the Philippine government said it had uncovered a plot to bomb an American airliner over the Pacific during the papal visit.

Dying wish granted -- 115 years late

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Captain Moonlite, one of Australia's most infamous criminals, had his last wish granted Friday, 115 years after his execution.

About 300 people came to see the remains of Moonlite - real name Andrew Scott - reburied beside two cohorts in a graveyard at Gundagai, 180 miles southwest of Sydney.

"We've set history right," said Sam Asimus, who helped organize the ceremony, which began with the casket being taken to the gravesite by a 120-year-old horse-drawn hearse.

Moonlite was a bushranger, the Australian term for the bandits who terrorized the Outback last century. He was hanged in 1880 in Sydney for the murder of a policeman who was shot when his gang held up a Gundagai ranch.

Just before the noose was placed around his neck, he pleaded eloquently to be buried next to his friends who were killed in the shootout.

His request was ignored and his body was instead placed in an unmarked grave in a suburban Sydney cemetery.

The grave was identified in 1987 by researcher Roy Parker.

Whiplash Can Be Helped With Chiropractic Care

Victims who feel pain or discomfort immediately after an accident often seek out chiropractic care, but there are other cases where the cervical damage done by the thrust is not noticed for some time. This is not unusual, as sometimes symptoms may not present themselves until as much as two years after the trauma has occurred. And in some cases, the effects may be felt in some other body area than the neck region.

The sudden force of an accident whiplashes the head, often causing nerve, tissue and vertebrae damage in the neck. Sometimes even a fast start or stop, or a simple rear-end tap, can cause a whiplash injury.

Should you be involved in an auto accident, it is wise to have a health examination to make certain you have not suffered whiplash or some other structural injury.

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says never argue at the dinner table; the one who's not hungry always wins the argument.

There are only two occasions when Americans respect privacy, ...Those are prayer and fishing.--Herbert Hoover, 31st president.

Moses wandered the desert for 40 years. My wife says his journey did establish a precedent: It was the first recorded instance of a man refusing to ask for directions!

The early months of each year bring some important community meetings, banquets and programs. The annual Sugarbeet Banquet was this weekend; the Vegetable Conference is set Tuesday; and the Junior Livestock Show is Jan. 24-28. The annual Corn Growers Conference will be held in Dimmitt Jan. 27, and the date of Hereford's annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet is still to be set in February or March.

An interesting article entitled "The Hog Revolution", in the January issue of Progressive Farmer magazine, was brought to our attention by a reader. It details the striking change in the hog industry, "a change on such a scale that the very survival of independent, family-size hog farms is in question."

The article compares the change in pork production and processing to that of the poultry industry in the 1950's and the cattle-feeding industry in the 1970's.

The article also mentions Premium Standard Farms, briefly describing its operations in Missouri. It also quotes two farmers who complained about offensive odors from the company's sow production barns and waste lagoons.

Before PSF selected Hereford for the site of a new processing plant, we toured the company's operations in Missouri. We really didn't detect a bad odor, either at the barns or at the processing plant. Maybe it's because we, in Hereford, have grown accustomed to what some folks call "bothersome" odors.

It makes us wonder if there is more than odors in the air when you hear uncharacteristic complaints from farming. We called the publisher in Dalhart to ask if he had heard complaints about the stink around the finishing barns. He tells us it is not a factor in that area.

On our tour to Missouri, a company official said they had received a small number of complaints about odor around the sow operations, but none from the processing facility. He pointed out the company had issued a six-figure grant for odor research.

We have no way of knowing for sure about the number of complaints in Missouri. Only two were specifically mentioned in the magazine article. Maybe what one man calls a stink, another calls the smell of money. Who knows? Maybe some folks have reason to complain at times; maybe they have more to do with change; maybe they would feel different if the company had bought their land.

Nevertheless, the magazine article is interesting and speaks primarily to the interests of independent hog producers. It gives tips on how to be a survivor in that business.

Remember the guy who got rich with "Kids Say the Darndest Things" on the air and in books? Well, I'd like to do the same with "kids do the darndest things."

For instance, I have an almost-four-year-old grandson whose stomach invariably hurts when he's told to eat something he doesn't like, or simply doesn't want to eat.

His parents ignored his tummy aches and insisted he eat, even resorting to poking the food in his mouth. But, the other day, he told his mother his stomach hurt . . . she didn't believe him, until a few seconds later when the look on his face confirmed his problem.

They were in a restaurant and she barely got him outside in time. For once, he was telling the truth about a tummy ache.

As a child the mother in this little vignette was not a malingering about going to school but she was known to fudge a little once in a while. Her problem was she stayed up too late and had trouble getting out of bed in the mornings.

On the other hand, her younger sister was the kind of kid everyone ought to have -- she hit the floor running and didn't stop until bedtime.

At least one time that I know of, she exercised mind over matter and went to school sick while her big sister spent the day in bed (The rule was, if you didn't feel like going to school, you didn't feel like watching television).

To tell the story, let me describe the position of the doors to their bedrooms -- one was at the end of a hallway and the other was at a right angle.

When I went down the hall to wake them on the morning in question, I found that one had been sick, obviously, during the night. There was no way to visually determine which one.

When I called their names, the younger one jumped out of bed and started getting ready for school. The other burrowed deeper into the bedclothes. I assumed that she was the sick one so I said, "You'll have to stay home today."

Neither one offered to correct my misguided conclusion.

The older one spent the day in bed, reading, listening to music and generally enjoying a day off.

The younger one went to school, seemingly in fine health. That evening, though, I observed that she was noticeably listless. She fell asleep on the floor while watching a favorite show. I assumed she was coming down with the ailment that had attacked her sister earlier.

All night long, I waited to hear her call for help, but none came.

The next morning, at the wake-up call, she hit the ground with her characteristic enthusiasm. And, her sister got up with more alacrity than she commonly exhibited.

The whole incident was forgotten, as far as I was concerned. Only years later, when they were well into their teens, did the truth come out.

"Remember the time you thought I was sick in the hall one night?" asked daughter No. 1. Of course.

"Well, really, I wasn't sick at all. It was Janet."

Their conspiracy of silence extended to other areas, as long as one wasn't getting ahead of the other.

One Christmas, their mother wasn't as smart as she thought. Presents were slipped into the house and stashed in a closet which was unused, for the most part. There was no reason, as a general rule, for either girl to prow through that particular closet.

Staying at home alone until their mother came in from work offered plenty of dead time -- they weren't allowed to have the neighborhood in the house, or run around outside, while babysitting each other.

Anyhow, Christmas came and went. It didn't seem to generate quite the excitement on Christmas morning as we expected. Santa's gifts were ho-hum and wrapped presents were opened desultorily.

Again, many years later, the truth came out.

"We found all the presents before Christmas. We even unwrapped some and wrapped them up again." The joint admission was a surprise.

They only did this once.

Even as they giggled over the gullibility of their mother, they confessed, "That was the worst Christmas we ever had."

OUT OF THE BLUE

By Garry Wesner

Well folks, you never know what's going to appear in the mail bag on a given day.

This past week I received something special from one of our faithful Brand readers.

If you recall, last week I made veiled reference (or not so veiled, actually) to the fact that it was just six months until my birthday.

Well low and behold, in Tuesday morning's mail was a blue envelope.

Inside I found the cutest birthday card, with a short note from Vira W. Jones, who lives in Dumas and reads the Brand.

Mrs. Jones was wishing me a "Happy premature natal day."

I enjoyed the card and got quite a chuckle from her thoughtful wishes. Thank you very much Mrs. Jones for the first "half-birthday" card I've ever received!

Well, on to other things.

This little jewel appeared my "column fodder" basket (that's right, a real basket now, not just a pile!) several weeks (maybe months, I really don't remember) ago.

It's from the Texas Department of Health and talks about popular names of children in Texas.

During 1993, the 10 most popular girls names in Texas were: Ashley, Jessica, Sarah, Taylor, Samantha, Stephanie, Brittany, Amanda, Victoria and Emily.

For boys in the same year, the favorites were: Michael, Christopher, Jose, Joshua, David, Matthew, Daniel, John, Jacob and Jonathan.

(Interesting isn't it that nine out of the 10 top boys names are Biblical.)

Equally interesting is the racial breakdown among names.

Only one name -- Michael (or Miguel) -- appears on the most-favorite names lists for Anglo, black and Hispanic children.

In comparison with the previous year, the Health Department found few changes -- Jose and Jacob replaced Justin and James on the boys list and Taylor, Victoria and Emily replaced Elizabeth Lauren and Jennifer.

Anyway, if you had a child in 1993 and named him or her any of these names, don't be surprised if your child is given a nickname at school or called by last name, or something like Jose L. or Victoria G. (or whatever).

It just shows that delightfully unique name you picked may have been delightful, it just wasn't unique.

Digging on through the Column Fodder basket I found an Associated Press story from the other day that I find interesting.

Seems State Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, wants to make some education changes.

He wants to cut down on state testing of students and he wants to make all exams administered only in English.

Both notions make a great deal of sense to me.

After all, the purpose of a child's education is not to teach him how to pass a state exam, but to teach a broad range of information necessary for survival in society.

From what I've read, it seems like teachers are having to spend more and more time teaching the children the TAAS test, which does virtually nothing for their future, but only ensures they will graduate with the limited information required on the test.

Giving in English only also makes sense. After all, while English may not be the official language of the United States, it is the most used in business and professional dealings.

Students are taught English from the first day they walk into kindergarten to the last day of high school.

I don't doubt that many children come into our schools not knowing English because of their family heritage, but to accommodate their language needs in testing seems to defeat the purpose of teaching them English in the first place.

I'm always saddened to hear of young people who lose the language of their fathers (most often Spanish, but other languages as well), but just as sad are children who never learn English because they are not required by schools or society to speak the language of the country they call home.

Well, there's lots more Column Fodder in the basket, but it'll have to wait until another time.

That's it for this week.

Have a good week and remember, children who are not raised with discipline will not pick it up as adults.

Demos pushing class, labor issues

By JILL LAWRENCE
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Leading Capitol Hill Democrats are defining themselves lately as the party that wants to raise wages for "people that work at Wal-Mart" and block tax breaks for "high-rollers selling yachts."

Class and labor issues appear to be making a comeback even at the White House, where President Clinton is considered likely to embrace a liberal cause - an increase in the minimum wage. He also named a liberal, Connecticut Sen. Christopher Dodd, as national party chairman.

The past is also echoing in the Democrats' mounting offensive against the balanced-budget amendment Republicans hold dear. The administration and Hill Democrats contend, as they did on the campaign trail, that the amendment would require devastating program cuts. They're demanding details up front.

The time-tested, champion-of-the-underdog themes appear to fly in the face of one common interpretation of the Republican electoral sweep, that Democrats hadn't made enough of a break with their liberal past.

The Clinton administration, backed sometimes grudgingly by congressional Democrats, has moved in a centrist direction on some issues - freer trade, deficit reduction and a smaller government, for example.

But those moves were eclipsed by two liberal Clinton initiatives that came to symbolize his first two years: his attempts to end the ban on gays in the military and completely overhaul the nation's health-care system.

Which makes it especially galling to moderates that Clinton may press for a minimum-wage increase. Even if it's a minor item in his State of the Union address, Republicans will do their best to see that it overshadows Clinton's call for middle-class tax breaks and other attractive proposals.

The $4.25 minimum wage was last raised four years ago. House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, leader of the GOP opposition, says a raise would "tear the bottom rungs off the occupational ladder" for low-income workers.

However, recent studies are prompting economists to re-examine the theory that wage boosts cost jobs. Some Democrats are confident a raise would be good for workers and for the party.

"It is right and just, and it is recognized by a large majority of the American people as right and just - particularly the kinds of people that Democrats need to have vote Democratic," said party strategist Geoffrey Garin.

Centrist and conservative Democrats are dismayed. "To me, it's seen as pandering to the AFL-CIO," Rep. Mike Parker, D-Miss., said in an interview.

Will Marshall, head of the moderate Progressive Policy Institute, called the minimum wage proposal obsolete. He said Democrats should not become "the party of nostalgia" at a time when "the whole country is looking for signs that the Democratic Party has new ideas."

Furthermore, Marshall contended, the move won't necessarily attract low-income voters. "Lots of working people have been voting Republican on social, cultural and international issues," he said. "They are not single-issue on the economy."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter to ask the athletes, parents of athletes, and fans to help each other in supporting our programs here in Hereford.

This support does not only mean attending their events but also supporting the coaches who give their time and talent to the sport as well as your child. Praise them instead of constantly putting them down. You do this for your child, why not also do it for the coach.

How many of you come home after going to church on Sunday and curse the preacher because he said something you didn't agree with? Well, the same is true with a coach--you are not going to agree with everything he does, but you need to support him. Your attitude toward coaches has a direct effect on the attitude your child has toward them, which he/she then takes to practice the next day or to the game that evening.

We have built our basketball proram in Hereford. We have a strong girl's team and a strong boy's team. We have two excellent coaches and we need to try and keep them. If we lose them, how do you know who we'll get to take their place?

Ask yourself that question next time you want to gripe at the coach because your son or daughter is not getting "equal" playing time or they had their feelings hurt because of something a coach said during the heat of a game.

Kids should know not to take these things personally. The coaches' jobs are on the line and they are coaching, which is what they were hired to do.

So, parents, support your teams and their coaches. We have some good ones. Let's keep them.

Charlene Sanders
Booster Club President

Dear Editor:

Happy "New" Year to America in 1995! What about that historical first day of the 104th Congress in Washington? The Contract With America promised much-needed reform of how the House of Representatives operated for the past 40 years. Each and every one of the reforms were passed overwhelmingly by both Republicans and Democrats.

Apparently everyone received the same message of the Nov. 8 elections loud and clear. No longer will the American people tolerate the liberal agenda: if it moves, tax it; if it still moves, regulate it; if it stops moving, subsidize it!

We have unequivocally stated through the powerful vote that we want a smaller bureaucracy of government workers (with their outlandish benefits and pensions).

We want term limits; privatization of public schools, Medicare and Medicaid; real crime punishment; a massively reduced welfare state; and no Social Security benefits going to drug addicts and alcoholics while honoring the government's pledge to provide for the present elderly who have paid a lifetime into the system.

Social Security should be made voluntary for the young, and deficit spending must stop with the passage of a Balanced Budget Amendment! We want tax relief for the "rich", middle class and poor Americans; less government intrusion into our individual rights--including unborn citizens; parental rights; property rights; gun rights; business owner rights; and the 10th Amendment, sovereign state rights.

I personally thought the message was abundantly clear: socialism--no; capitalism--yes; constitutional rights--absolutely!

Clinton and the remaining defenders of the old order in Congress will not ignore the will of the people. If they persist, the great tsunami revolution of 1994 will envelop more liberal incumbents in the elections of 1996, including the presidency.

Austin readying for governor's inauguration

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Hotels are booked. Restaurant reservations are made. Black ties are back from the cleaners. Country music's cued up.

A former president is coming. So are several past governors, actor Chuck Norris and former big league pitcher Nolan Ryan.

George W. Bush is having a little party, and organizers say as many as 50,000 folks may attend.

At noon Tuesday, Bush will be inaugurated as Texas' new governor. And two days of inaugural festivities are on tap to celebrate.

Combest to be vice chair of secrecy commission

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, has been elected Vice Chairman of the Commission on Protecting and Reducing Government Secrecy.

The commission's two-year mandate is to examine the implications of reducing the volume of classified information in order to strengthen the protection of legitimately classified information.

Combest began service on the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence in 1988 and was ranking Republican in 1992 before his appointment as chairman at the beginning of the 104th Congress.

"We must judiciously guard the secrets that guard our nation," Combest said. "The commission will examine not only the scope of what government now classifies but how we effectively manage keeping those secrets from enemies who would do us harm. I want us to look at what is being newly classified and why we have six million new secrets in 1993. I will approach the subject not from just the numbers, but from the impact on government's ability to ride herd on classified information. If a smaller amount of truly sensitive information were classified, the information could be held more securely."

In creating the commission, Congress estimated that private businesses spend more than $14 billion each year implementing government-mandated regulations for protecting classified information.

According to the National Security Council's Information Security Oversight Office, the total of all classified actions reported in 1993 increased 1 percent to 6,408,688. The office's March 23, 1994, report on fiscal year 1993 found that the Defense Department accounted for 58 percent of all classification decisions; CIA 25 percent; Justice Department 13 percent; State Department 3 percent; and all other agencies, 1 percent.

The ceremonies also will honor Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who takes his oath for a second term.

"It's a new beginning. It's an inspirational moment," said Karen Hughes, Bush's press secretary.

"It's a celebration of one of the most fundamental ceremonies of our freedom - that we the people can choose our leaders and watch a peaceful transfer of power," she said.

Bush, the Republican who ousted Democratic Gov. Ann Richards last November, takes office a week after the 1995 Legislature convened. Bullock already will be at his post presiding over the Senate, having held that office in 1991.

Bush has invited his parents, the former president and first lady. They'll attend most of the events, but are leaving before Tuesday night's inaugural balls, organizers said.

The theme for the Bush-Bullock inaugural is a carryover from Bush's campaign: "What Texans can dream, Texans can do."

Midland businessman Donald L. Evans, who chairs the inaugural committee, said the two elected officials instructed planners "to make this an open, accessible, happy and indeed historic occasion for all Texans."

The noon swearing-in ceremony will be the centerpiece, but there will be a lot of things going on, Evans says.

"To me, the focal point of the inauguration is the swearing-in ceremony at 12 noon. We're trying to create a moment right then that all Texans will remember," he said.

Glenn E. West, president of the Greater Austin Chamber of Commerce, says the inaugurals are memorable events for Austin hotels, restaurants and taverns.

"I think you'll find hotel space, particularly in downtown Austin, is quite tight," West said. "I think next week will be very busy as we have a lot of visitors here."

The inaugural has created one new business: a downtown gift shop selling souvenirs that range from key chains and belt buckles to tote bags and glassware. Evans said the committee awarded the concession to a private bidder this year because souvenirs have been money losers in the past.

The first official event is a Monday night "gala" at Austin's Frank Erwin Center, a musical program that will feature mostly Texas performers.

Tuesday's events include a 10 a.m. prayer service for family and friends of Bush and Bullock; an 11 a.m. reception for former governors, lieutenant governors and other dignitaries; the noon swearing-in; a barbecue lunch on the Capitol grounds; a 2:30 p.m. parade through downtown Austin; a 4 p.m. event for children, and three evening inaugural balls featuring everything from the Dixie Chicks to Johnny D and the Rocket 88s.

Evans says 15,000 to 20,000 people are expected for the swearing in, 40,000 for the parade and more than 12,000 for the inaugural balls.

"The balls are all equally grand and fun. They all have great music," said Jeanne Johnson, executive director of the inaugural committee.

Besides the official events, she said, a number of private parties also are expected. And while no lesser authority than Liz Carpenter, former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson, has bemoaned the idea of turning Austin into a Republican town, the inaugural's Ms. Johnson says a good time will be had by all.

"Texans always find a way to party. A lot of people are coming. They're gathering at whatever their favorite watering hole is in Austin, they're headed to Sixth Street, they're headed to a hotel where they're having a gathering of their own," she said.

"Austin will be alive and hopping in all corners."

The Hereford boys' basketball team outlasted the scrappy Caprock Longhorns for a 72-69 win Friday night in Amarillo.

The Herd remains undefeated (4-0) in District 1-4A with two games left in the first round of district play, including the Herd's next game Friday at Pampa (3-1, 17-6) that is now a showdown for the district lead. Hereford is off Tuesday, while Pampa hosts Caprock, which fell to 1-2 and 3-18 Friday.

Hereford improved to 15-6 overall Friday. Also Friday, the Hereford Lady Whitefaces got over a slow first quarter to trounce Caprock 63-31, evening Hereford's district record at 3-3. Hereford is 15-8 overall, while Caprock dropped to 0-5 and 1-21.

The boys' game went down to wire, as Caprock had the ball with five seconds left trailing 72-69, but a three-point shot missed and Hereford's Ashley Noland grabbed the rebound.

Hereford led only 19-17 after one quarter and the Longhorns outlasted Hereford to earn a 38-31 halftime lead, Hereford coach Randy Dean said.

"(Caprock) played awfully well in the first half," Dean said. "They did a good job of outlasting us, and they beat us bad on the boards. In the first half, they were a step quicker than we were."

Dean added that Caprock hit 12-of-13 free throws in the first half.

Hereford outscored Caprock 22-10 in the third quarter to turn the lead around to 53-48 in the Herd's favor.

"We turned the game around with our defense," Dean said. "Somebody told me we held them scoreless for the first five minutes of the second half. We played much better defensively in the second half, and that turned us around offensively as well."

Caprock never gave up. Hereford went up 66-55 on two buckets by Michael Brown, the second a three-pointer with four minutes left. Caprock held Hereford to four Benton Buckley free throws over the next three and a half minutes, and a 6-0 run brought the 'Horns back to within 70-69. Brown hit another bucket with 20 seconds left, ultimately forcing Caprock to go for--and miss--the last second three-pointer.

The keys to the game, Dean said, was free throw shooting. The 3-18 Caprock team stayed with Hereford in part because of a stellar 17-of-19 free throw shooting performance. Hereford won in part by also shooting well from the line: 12-of-14.

"I thought we showed a lot of character," Dean said. "We had a lot of adversity in the way they (the 'Horns) played and things not going our way. But we came back in the second half and established that we had a good ballclub and got back in the game."

In the girls' game, Caprock actually led 9-8 after one quarter, but Hereford got over it and outscored Caprock 21-8 in the second quarter on the way to a rout. Hereford led 29-17 at halftime and 42-22 after three quarters.

"We were real sluggish in the first quarter," coach Eddie Fortenberry said. "We turned the ball over 10 times in the quarter. We cut our turnovers in half in the second quarter, and that helped us on offense. That woke us up after the first quarter. The kids were kind of surprised it was close."

"The defense really did a good job in the second half," Fortenberry said. "Holding a team to 14 points in a half is pretty good against any competition."

HERD SCORING

Boys: Benton Buckley, 31; Michael High, 12; Michael Brown, 11; Isaac Walker, 9; Ronald Torres, 5; Todd Dudley, 4.

Girls: Britney Binder, 11; Julie Rampley, 10; Mindi Davis, 8; Tarabeth Holmes, 8; Danielle Cornelius, 7; Heather Hodges, 7; Misti Davis, 6; Kari Barrett, 2; Catie Betzen, 2; Julie Cole, 2.

Hereford actually took a five-game sweep from Caprock Friday in Amarillo, as three sub-varsity teams won.

The Hereford sophomore boys won in overtime, 62-60. According to Dean, a Caprock player went to the free throw line to shoot three shots with one second left in overtime--he could have tied the game--but he hit only one of the three shots.

The game was tied at 52-52 at the end of regulation. Hereford trailed by one with one second left, but Stephen Cloud hit 1-of-2 free throws to send it into overtime, Dean said. Trip Robison led Hereford with 31 points, Curt Sherrod had 11 and Jeremy Reiter had eight.

The boys' junior varsity won 58-47, getting 18 from Johnathan Keenan, nine from Cory Schumacher and eight from Brian Torres.

The girls' JV blitzed Caprock, 58-15. Cassie Abney led Hereford with 12 points, Crystal Mercer added nine and Christina Kuper and Kendra Wright each score eight.

Cowboys' Irvin doesn't care about betting line

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have learned another hazard of playing the NFC title game on the road.

Their three-hour trip to San Francisco took four hours on Friday, courtesy of the wind that has been pushing all torrential rains from the Pacific into California.

An omen of Sunday's NFC championship game?

"No," Michael Irvin said. "I know the experts think we're going to lose, but who are these 'experts'? Some fat guy in Vegas? Why don't they call him 'John' or something and give him a name. He's just a guy getting crazy people to bet."

At the press conference Friday preceding Sunday's showdown between the Irvin and the Cowboys and the San Francisco 49ers, the Cowboys were on defense, the 49ers on offense. That reflected the seven-point spread set by "John" or whatever his name is, and reinforced by the bettors, crazy or not.

So the questions for the two-time Super Bowl champions kept coming up: Do you worry about being underdogs?

No, said coach Barry Switzer, Troy Aikman, Irvin and Darren Woodson, the three players who stood up before a Super-Bowl sized media that's assembled for a game that many people assume is the real Super Bowl.

"I don't think our guys got on a plane and told their kids: 'We're going to lose and we'll be right back,'" Irvin said.

The San Francisco contingent - coach George Seifert, Steve Young, Brent Jones and Deion Sanders - agreed.

But they also exuded a sense of confidence that seemed real.

"We got together at the beginning of the year and set goals for the offense," said Jones, the tight end.

"I was sort of surprised that we set it so high because I didn't think we could take it much higher. But we've done it. This is THE best offense I've played on and I thought I'd never see a better one than we had in 1989."

Maxwell's shot lifts Rockets

By The Associated Press
Vernon Maxwell hit another buzzer beater and Hakeem Olajuwon had his biggest game of the season and it was still barely enough for the Houston Rockets to beat the San Antonio Spurs.

Maxwell hit a 3-pointer with 0.4 seconds to play and Olajuwon scored a season-high 47 points as Houston beat San Antonio 103-100 Friday night.

"This is as good as I've ever seen him," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "He was really smooth, taking the open shots. It was a really great effort." Houston's victory, its eighth in nine games, snapped San Antonio's six-game winning streak. The Spurs have won 13 of their last 15 games.

The game appeared headed for overtime when Sean Elliott hit two free throws with 3.4 seconds to play, tying it at 100-100.

But after a time out, the Rockets quickly got the ball to Maxwell, who coolly hit the game-breaker.

In other games, Minnesota beat Detroit 104-92, Sacramento beat Chicago 89-79, Utah beat Boston 95-93, New York beat Milwaukee 91-88, Orlando beat Atlanta 101-96, Seattle beat the Los Angeles Clippers 108-101, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Golden State 115-104, New Jersey beat Philadelphia 113-99 and New Jersey beat Philadelphia 110-101.

YMCA adds fitness director

The Hereford YMCA has added a new health and fitness director. Kurt Hasley, a former football player at the University of Nebraska and Peru State College, was hired recently.

Hasley can set up a fitness program for YMCA members at no extra charge. The YMCA offers programs in athletic weight training, body-building weight training, circuit weight training, cardiovascular training, weight reduction and physical fitness.

Aikman thrives under pressure of playoffs

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - Troy Aikman isn't sure when it will all end. He's had so many concussions, separated shoulders, and knee injuries he knows his career could be over on any down.

Yet, if he survives the blitzes and hits he's on target to go down as one of the greatest quarterbacks of all time because he plays his best when the pressure is the greatest.

January playoff pressure means it's Troy's Time.

He isn't on the same level yet with Joe Montana or Terry Bradshaw in Super Bowl ring jewelry.

But he's won more Super Bowls than Dan Marino and John Elway combined. He's yet to lose in an NFL playoff game he has started (7-0). He's been a Super Bowl MVP. The Pro Football Hall of Fame should be calling some day.

Aikman knows how quarterbacks are judged. He's 7-0 in playoff games.

"Championship criteria is used to judge quarterbacks and great players," Aikman says. "That's why there is so much pressure in a game like Sunday against San Francisco. I have to produce. Great players produce in championship games and Super Bowls. It's what I get paid to do. I get paid to win Super Bowls."

That sum will reach $4 million next year.

"(Owner) Jerry Jones doesn't pay me to throw for 6,000 yards but not win Super Bowls," Aikman added.

In playoff games, Aikman has 15 touchdown passes and just four interceptions. He threw two touchdown passes, including one for an NFL record 94 yards to Alvin Harper, against the Green Bay Packers on Sunday. Aikman's throw to Harper carried 55 yards in the air, a testimony to his arm strength.

Aikman has won two NFC championship games and two Super Bowls. On Sunday in Candlestick Park, he leads the Dallas Cowboys against the 49ers and a quarterback, Steve Young, who hasn't won a Super Bowl.

"I know the heat's on Steve," said Aikman. "I'd like to see Steve win a Super Bowl but some other time when I'm not in the championship game against him."

Young and Aikman are good friends and have the same agent, Leigh Steinberg.

"I'll have to kid Steve about what he did when we played them during the regular season," said Aikman. "Remember the little dance he did after a touchdown? Maybe I'll do one of those Sunday."

The 49ers beat Dallas 21-14 and Aikman had a terrible day, throwing three interceptions.

"I didn't have a good game," Aikman said. "But we're still the champs and they have to knock us off. If San Francisco beats us on Sunday then my hat is off to them. Until that happens I'm not conceding anything."

Aikman will be using a radio helmet in a championship game for the first time after giving it a good test in Sunday's 35-9 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

Aikman hates the radio helmet. But he did it because of possible signal stealing.

"Things got suspicious when we played Cleveland," Aikman said. "They seem to know when we were going to run and when we were going to pass. They didn't miss. Same thing in the game against the New York Giants. My teammates thought we needed the helmet so I changed."

Aikman also will be wearing a half-inch clear, the longest the Cowboys own, to combat what Dallas figures will be a soggy Candlestick Park. He prays it won't rain.

"I grip the ball tight and I have trouble with a slick ball," he said.

He'll still have a brace on his left knee because of a sprained ligament. Aikman has taken a physical beating this year, suffering a concussion, a cut tongue, and the knee ligament injury.

"It has been, physically, a very difficult year for me," Aikman said. "It seemed like as soon as I got over one thing, something else came up. The knee was the toughest of the injuries I've had this year. But I'm getting accustomed to the knee brace."

And something else he has grown accustomed to accomplishing - winning playoff games.

St. Louis may have to cope with Rams

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

St. Louis football fans who put up with Bill Bidwill and the Cardinals all those years may have to put up with even more once the Rams finalize their move there.

There's the owner, Georgia Frontiere and her front man, John Shaw, who couldn't survive in the nation's second-biggest market.

There's Steve Ortmyer, the general manager in waiting. As GM of the Chargers, he once traded Jim Lachey, one of the decade's best offensive linemen, for a fat bust named John Clay and draft choices.

And there's a "who's-the-coach" sideshow with Mike Ditka, Gene Stallings, Ernie Zampese, Barry Alvarez and Rich Brooks all in the mix.

Ditka and Stallings are the names and are being courted by the St. Louis minority owners. Ditka's appeal is to central and southern Illinois fans. Stallings was popular when he coached the Cardinals, and desirable because he won a national championship at Alabama and because he couldn't get along with Bidwill, one of the least popular people in St. Louis.

Zampese, the Dallas offensive coordinator, is Ortmyer's candidate, presumably because he's a career assistant who's been passed over often and may be happy where he is. But if he takes the job, he may be a front for Ortmyer, an Al Davis protégé who probably figures he can imitate Davis and coach from the GM's box.

Alvarez and Brooks are the young comers, college coaches who turned Wisconsin and Oregon into winners.

Alvarez's situation could be complicated if George Steinbrenner ends up with the Bucs and hires Lou Holtz, who bombed as the Jets' coach. That would make Alvarez the leading candidate at Notre Dame.

OFF THE AIR: The TV cameras at Sunday's NFC title game are sure to find Dallas' Jerry Jones. If they don't, Jones will find them.

But don't look for shots of Eddie DeBartolo and Carmen Policy, the 49ers' brain trust. They've made sure they stay off camera by darkening the glass over their box at Candlestick to make sure the cameras can't pick them up.

ON THE AIR: The dismissal of Pete Carroll as the Jets' coach demonstrates the power of sportsbabble, also known as talk radio.

When Leon Hess, making a very rare public appearance, dismissed Carroll after one year for Rich Kotite, he said he wanted just what Jets' fans want - immediate victory. That's just what was being carried over the airwaves in New York, where professional fans made it clear that they were tired of the "same old Jets."

The fact is that while the Jets essentially quit after blowing the Miami game when they were 6-5, it may not have been Carroll's fault. He was a first-year coach who tried to lead by being one of the boys. It didn't work, so he was dispatched without being given a chance.

Who's to blame?

Hess, Steve Gutman and Dick Steinberg went out and got senior leaders like Ronnie Lott, Boomer Esiason and Art Monk so they could lead. Instead, they collapsed, the fans filled the airwaves and Rich Kotite is now the coach.

Kotite has a track record, a winning one until the last seven games of this year.

Will that help? Not if the sportsbabblers start yelling "same old Jets" after the first 9-6 loss to the Colts.

DRAFT PREVIEW: Now that Ki-Jana Carter has heeded Joe Paterno's advice and will start getting paid a year early, the top of the draft is becoming clearer. Once again most of the high picks will be underclassmen.

But the order remains jumbled. There could be five quarterbacks taken in the first round, the most since 1983, when there were six chosen.

But different teams like different quarterbacks, with Penn State's Kerry Collins, Brigham Young's John Walsh and Alcorn State's Steve McNair topping the list. None appears to be as sure a thing as Drew Bledsoe or Rick Mirer two years ago, although Houston, which picks third, may go for Collins, and Buffalo loves McNair as a possible successor to Jim Kelly.

Carolina, which picks No. 1, may not take a quarterback. "I wouldn't want a rookie playing behind the offensive line we'll have," says general manager Bill Polian.

One possibility: Warren Sapp, the Miami defensive tackle whom Polian compares to Cleveland's Michael Dean Perry. That makes sense, because the Panthers' non-coach is defensive guru Dom Capers, on hold by order of commissioner Paul Tagliabue until after Pittsburgh's season ends.

But those could be the usual smokecreens.

Take the top running backs: Carter, Michigan's Tyrone Wheatley and Colorado's Rashaan Salaam, the Heisman winner. One scout compares Carter to Emmitt Smith - balance, vision, desire, the whole package. Others like Wheatley.

But others say Carter might fall because the last Penn State running back taken high was Blair Thomas and he was a bust. But what about Curt Warner, Franco Harris, Lydell Mitchell, and such competent lesser lights as Leroy Thompson, Richie Anderson and Steve Smith?

Overall, Penn State running backs have a very good pedigree, but Penn State quarterbacks don't. So if Carter is downgraded because of Thomas, why is Collins rated highly?

In fact, no Penn State quarterback has ever had more than a cup of coffee in the NFL and the only real bust from the class of '83 was the Nittany Lions' Todd Blackledge. Paterno made him the first-stringer over Jeff Hostetler, who transferred to West Virginia instead of being moved to linebacker and will enter his 11th NFL season next year.

And they haven't even played the major all-star games or held the scouting combines yet. That's when the real fun starts.

Baltimore's Brooks Robinson and Carl Yastrzemski of the Red Sox both played a record 23 years with their clubs.

Zampese, Davis have opposite personalities

By KEVIN SHERRINGTON
The Dallas Morning News
IRVING, Texas - The Cowboys' Valley Ranch offices are dark, save for the glow in a hallway. The light is coming from what amounts to a closet, where Butch Davis is sitting with another man. Out in the hall, Ernie Zampese is connected by cables.

The man in the closet turns to Davis and tells them they're on. "It's showtime," Davis says, putting on his headset.

From a restaurant across town, local sports anchor Dale Hansen makes the introductions. He used to do the Cowboys' coordinators show with Dave Wannstedt and Norv Turner, the predecessors to Davis and Zampese. But Wannstedt and Turner left to become head coaches, which is what Cowboys coordinators have become of late: head-coaches-in-waiting.

For Davis, the defensive coordinator, this is good. He burns to be a head coach. He was one at 27 and never got over it. At 43, he has learned not only how to coach the game, but how to play it when the media come calling.

"What can I help you with?" he had asked, hand extended.

And then there was the reaction of Davis' alter ego, Zampese, the offensive coordinator. He and Davis seem as different as, well, offense and defense. He does not want to be a head coach. He was one at 28, and he never got over it, either.

He does not like to play the game anymore. Asked two days ahead of time for 45 minutes of his time, or 30, and a look between shock and despair clouded his 58-year-old face, as if he had been asked for an internal organ.

"Oh, noooooo," he had said, his soft voice fading to silence.

A compromise was reached: 15 minutes on Thursday night, when most of his and Davis' preparation for Sunday's playoff game with Green Bay would be done. A few incidentals would be left, but they basically had hit the wall by the time they settled in Thursday evening for an hour of radio talk. At that point, two men who watch more than 50 hours of film a week and study hundreds of pages of computer printouts to learn something so innocuous as what the Packers might do on a second-and-six must answer to anyone who has the sense to dial a telephone.

Coordinators are focal points. The upside is that it often leads to a head coaching job. The downside is the inherent criticism, which you learn to take with a smile if you want to be a head coach some day.

And, if you are Ernie Zampese, and you don't want to be one, you just take it.

A few seconds before they go on the air, Rob Geiger, KRLD's man in the closet with Davis, tells Zampese something he heard Thursday afternoon on another radio station. A host said the Cowboys' offense is "predictable," Geiger says, chuckling.

"Well, we're gonna change that this week, right Ernie?" Davis says, beaming from his seat in the closet. Zampese, looking down, says nothing.

"We're gonna throw the kitchen sink at 'em," Davis says.

Out in the darkened hall, Zampese studies his feet.

Carlos in Denton wants to know why the Cowboys don't use any trick plays.

"Before you hang up," Zampese asks, "what do you mean by trick plays?"

You know, the caller says, a wide receiver throws to another wide receiver who throws it downfield.

"We don't have that play in the playbook," Zampese says, sounding tired. "When we use that play, bad things seem to happen. Every time we've tried something like it, it's just been a horrible-looking play."

He means in other places, not Dallas. He coached for a long time in other places before he got to Dallas this season. This is what Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin means when he talks about all the knowledge Zampese has accumulated "in those 200 years he's put in the league."

Zampese has been coaching so long, he worked with John Madden before Madden became the country's most famous bus rider. Madden recommended him to become head coach at a California junior college called Hancock. It was Zampese's dream, to run his own show, be out front.

And his dream turned into a nightmare. He said he hated it all - the responsibility of dealing with the media, standing up in front of his players, being the center of attention.

"I was very uncomfortable in the position," he said before the radio show Thursday, polite and accommodating once cornered in his office. "I figured out my preference was to be in a little room, watching tapes and coming up with ideas."

His ideas came from the game's best minds, starting with Don "Air" Coryell. Coryell was the San Diego Chargers' coach when he told Joe Gibbs, his offensive coordinator, that he wanted to make Zampese the receivers coach. Gibbs resisted. He had trouble thinking of Zampese, the Chargers' secondary coach, as anything but a defensive coach. But Coryell persisted.

"Two weeks later," Gibbs would say, "Ernie knew more about the offense than I did."

His players and bosses loved him. Dan Fouts, his quarterback with the Chargers, said players respected him for his honesty and accountability, not to mention his football knowledge. Coryell called him the best offensive coordinator he had ever been around. John Robinson, his boss with the Rams, said he has one of the five best offensive minds in football.

Fouts said his old friend "was always pushing the edge of the envelope in the passing game. He's still at the top of his game... It's good to see Norv do so well with his offense."

That is what the Cowboys and their fans wanted when Zampese was hired: Zampese's offense. Only they were under the impression it was Turner's. When Emmitt Smith didn't win another rushing title and Troy Aikman looked "rusty" and Alvin Harper was making all of Irvin's catches - and then Harper wasn't making any - the fans wanted to know what went wrong.

The callers this season haven't talked much about injuries to Smith, Aikman, Irvin, tight end Jay Novacek and tackle Erik Williams, the team's best offensive linemen.

Fans do not want excuses.

"I want to make a comment to Butch, and I have a question for Ernie," says Donna from Bonham. "Butch, I just want to tell you how much I really appreciate you as a coach and respect you as a person."

"Thank you very much, that's very nice," says Davis, who is coaching the No. 1-ranked defense in the league.

"Now, Ernie," Donna says, changing directions, "what kind of blocker is Emmitt?"

The slight, intended or not, was not lost on Hansen. He notes quickly that Donna was not implying she didn't respect Zampese, too.

"I hope not," Zampese says, smiling.

From her end of the line, Donna is silent.

The differences between Davis and Zampese are more than just career goals and fan perception. Davis, a former University of Arkansas defensive end, is tall and almost imperious for a man with a face full of freckles.

Zampese is a caricature of the obsessed assistant. His close-set eyes are puffy, perhaps from watching so much film and smoking 2 1/2-3 packs of Winstons a day. He taps them fiercely into his palm before lighting up. He carries three pens with him and rolls them over each other in one hand, the click-click-clicking a small incessant reminder of his nervous energy. Captain Queeg with his ball bearings, Fouts called it.

The pens are rolling as Zampese sits for the radio show. From the closet, Davis is a picture of composure. For most of the show, he browses through a post-season media guide as he listens to the callers.

He can be animated when necessary. Cowboys safety Darren Woodson called him the type of coach who "likes to get in your face... he likes to get your engine started."

"But he's not the old-style coach who's got to beat you into submission," safety Bill Bates said. "He's really upbeat, positive."

Bates said Davis grew into his position this year, his second as the defensive coordinator. Last season, he also coached the linebackers. Losing that responsibility helped him to better understand the scope of the defense, Bates said.

The defense became better even with the loss of free agents Ken Norton, Tony Casillas, Thomas Everett and Jimmie Jones. Because of his success, Davis outgrew the shadow of Wannstedt and Jimmy Johnson.

Johnson plucked Davis from Tulsa Rogers High School, where he was the head coach. He would accompany Johnson to Oklahoma State and the University of Miami and finally the Cowboys, and his ambitions grew along with his resume.

His name has come up for head coaching jobs at the University of Miami, Arkansas, Texas, even the Cowboys. Nothing official, he said, but interest, nonetheless.

"I'm gonna look at every single opportunity," he said before the radio show Thursday.

He won't take just any job. And he is ready for the best, he said, because he has worked hard for it.

He could not have been more convinced than when he made his debut last season as the Cowboys' defensive coordinator, in what would be the two worst weeks of his life.

In the season opener, in a game played on ABC's Monday Night Football, Washington blew out the Cowboys, 35-16.

The two weeks before that game, Davis finished each day with a trip to the hospital, where his infant son, Drew, was being treated for an unknown respiratory ailment. Every night, he slept on the floor of the hospital room. And every morning a nurse would wake him at 4:30 so he could go back to work.

His son is healthy now. He said the experience also strengthened his relationship with his wife, Tammy, and changed his outlook on football. "We got blown out by Washington," he said, "but, knowing that my son was gonna be OK, I had a sense of serenity. I didn't like getting beat. But nobody died from it."

"It changed my perspective on a lot of these players. They have families, too. You spend way too much time with these guys not to have a great deal of love for each other."

"If you don't get along, it's the most miserable job on the face of the Earth."

This is what the callers can't see. Behind the headsets and markers and video tape machines are people with emotions, problems, families.

In that sense, Davis and Zampese are alike. Zampese and his wife Joyce have four children, from 32 to 19. A favorite hobby of Zampese's in the off-season - besides going to the track or the craps tables - is babysitting his five grandchildren.

The players see this side, even if the fans and media don't. Like Davis, Zampese believes it is important to develop player rapport. Backup quarterback Jason Garrett said Zampese entertained his players last week with tales of his youngest son, John, who is everything his father isn't. Cool. Hip. Brazen.

He wants to be a rock star. The irony - Ernie Zampese, father to a rock star - is high comedy to the Cowboys.

Zampese takes it, like the fans' criticism, with a shrug.

"John and his friends came over to the house not long ago and did some jamming," he says.

He looks up, lost. "All I heard was loud noise."

The real-life "Old Gray Mare" was named Lady Suffolk, who raced in the mid 1800s, mostly on Long Island, New York.
She raced in flat events under saddle, in trotting races and she even pulled a four-wheel wagon. At the age of 12, the marvelous mare set a world record for trotters.

Dietary staff makes donation

Program on Texas trees given at club

The Bud to Blossom Club met Thursday in the home of Louise Hall. The roll call was given, and answered by members with "The condition of my yard."

The treasurer's report was given and it was decided to continue with the same officers for 1995-96, with the exception of Louise Hall who will serve as reporter.

A report on Famous Trees of Texas was given by Patricia Robinson. It included the fashion in which someone can tell the age of a tree by the number of rings it has in its cross section.

The Smokey the Bear story was recited by Phyllis Brown. Recycling dates were reviewed.

A video entitled, "In These Ancient Trees" was presented.

A brunch was enjoyed by members and served by hostesses, Ursalee Jacobson, Brown, Mildred Fuhrmann, Naomi Hare and Robinson.

County spelling bee planned for March 2-3

The annual Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee has been scheduled for March 2-3, it was announced this week by Speedy Nieman, county bee director.

The two-day event allows for separate competition in the Junior Bee—4th and 5th graders—and the Senior Bee—grades 6 through 8. The bees will be held at Deaf Smith County Library.

County schools will hold elimination contests to determine entrants for the county bees. Spellers cannot have passed the eighth grade and must not reach his/her 16th birthday on or before the national finals in late May of 1995.

The Hereford Brand is sponsor of the county bee, and local businesses provide prizes for some of the top spellers. The county champion advances to the Regional Bee, sponsored by The Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas A&M University. The 47th annual Regional Bee will be held April 8 on the WTA&M campus. The regional champion receives an all-expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C. to compete in the National Spelling Bee. Awards will go to each county finalist, and special awards go to the top eight contestants.

Extension News

4-H Project Show set here Jan. 21

by BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent/H.E.

Parents have traditionally used household chores as a tool to teach children responsibility. However, with increased demands on families and time, children helping around the house is becoming more of a necessity.

Many parents today are both working out of economic need. Children are taking on more responsibility in response to parents need and expectation. A 1992 study found that families with children between the ages of 5 and 18 had children being relied upon to do tasks at home. The tasks children were assuming were those traditionally defined as homemaker's responsibilities.

While girls tended to do more of the commonly perceived "women's jobs" such as laundry, dishwashing, cleaning and cooking, boys were no longer exempt. Children of both sexes spent approximately 78 percent of the time doing jobs previously designated as "women's work". Outdoor activities such as yard work accounted for only 15.1 percent of the time and a mere 2.4 percent was spent on car maintenance. Time spent doing chores averaged around seven hours per week.

"Initially, children may resist helping around the house, yet one finds that working as a team strengthens family relationship," states Dr. Sarah L. Anderson, family life specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Besides increased responsibility, oftentimes there is greater appreciation of what others do around the house. In the long run, children doing chores can be very beneficial."

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Clubs will hold a 4-H Project Show on Saturday, January 21, 1995. The show will be held at the Little Bull Barn. Lambs, Hogs, and Rabbits will be exhibited by 4-H members from Deaf Smith County. The public is invited to come out to the Bull Barn and show their support for local 4-H members and their activities. Educational programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, disability, religion, age, or national origin. The Hog Show will begin at 10:00 a.m., followed by the Lamb Show at 1:00 p.m., and the rabbits will be evaluated immediately following the lamb show.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Year after year, your generous readers have opened their hearts to America's hospitalized veterans by participating in your Ann Landers-Valentines for Vets program.

Last year, as in years past, your column resulted in almost 1 million cards and letters for our veterans. Our 171 Veterans Affairs hospitals received an average of 3,000 valentines each, and an additional 400,000 were sent to the Hines VA Hospital in Chicago and were redistributed among our hospitals.

Cards and letters came from faraway places--Guam, Australia, Germany and Canada to name just a few. Once again, many teachers used your column to provide a history lesson for their students. It gave them the opportunity to talk about veterans and who they are. Sunday school students, scouting groups and social organizations also supported the program generously.

In some areas, the students delivered their valentines in person. It was touching to see how young children brightened the lives of elderly veterans with their colorful valentines. One youngster wrote, "Warning! This card will make you happy. It might even make you smile."

We in the Department of Veterans Affairs believe in emphasizing a commitment to caring and courtesy by putting veterans first. It is an honor and privilege to fulfill VA's mission of serving those who have given so much to this nation. We are committed to meeting the ever-changing needs of our veterans, especially the 61,000 brave men and women who are hospitalized on any given day.

The National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans is just around the corner--the week of Feb. 12-18. We hope your readers will again let our veterans know they are appreciated. We look forward to another successful year of Ann Landers-Valentines for Vets, and I know our veterans do, too.--Jesse Brown, secretary of Veterans Affairs.

DEAR JESSE BROWN: I've always known that my readers are the most warmhearted, responsive people in the world. When I ask them to do something, they come through like champions.

It's time once again to let our veterans know we appreciate them. It won't cost much, and it's sure to bring enormous pleasure to our vets, to whom we owe so much.

There are approximately 61,000 veterans hospitalized in 171 Veterans Affairs medical centers nationwide. These men and women served in World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam and the war in the Persian Gulf. They represent every race, color and creed. We can never repay these valiant vets for the sacrifices they have made, but we can do something to cheer them up and let them know that they have not been forgotten.

Teachers, I'm depending on you once more to make this a class project. Those handmade valentines are real heart-warmers. When I passed them out personally at VA Lakeside Medical Center in Chicago last year, those were the most enthusiastically received of all. Please encourage your students to be creative, and let them learn firsthand the satisfaction that comes from doing something for others.

And cheers again to the North Shore Hilton in Skokie, ILL., for this year's beautiful cake and 5-foot valentine.

The veterans would be thrilled if you could drop off your valentines in person, or you can mail them to your local VA hospital. Look in your phone book for the address or phone number of one close by. If there isn't one, send them to: Ann Landers-Valentine Vet, Hines VA Hospital, P.O. Box 5000, Hines, Ill. 60141-1489.

I know of nothing you can do that would cost so little and bring so much happiness to those who deserve to be remembered. Thank you and God bless.--Ann Landers

Local lady honored on 80th birthday

The family of Wilma Goettsch honored her with an 80th birthday reception on Jan. 8 at the First United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Goettsch was born Jan. 10, 1915 in Izard County, Arkansas. She came to Texas in 1932 and married Bill Goettsch on January 12, 1933. She and Bill lived in Happy and Dawn until 1939 when they moved to Hereford. The Goettschs lived one mile south of Hereford and farmed a section of land 15 miles north of Hereford for about 10 years.

They then owned and managed the Elm Court Motel on W. Highway 60 from 1956 until 1979.

Bill Goettsch died on Jan. 5, 1987.

Mrs. Goettsch has been an active member of the First United Methodist Church for many years, where she is currently a member of the Carrie Black Circle and the Friendship Sunday School Class. She is a member of the Lone Star Study Club and the Cultural Extension Club. She also serves as vice president of the King's Manor Auxiliary.

Mrs. Goettsch has two daughters, Phyllis Goettsch of Alamosa, Colorado, and Billee Landrum of Hereford; two grandchildren, Justin and Kara Landrum; and one son-in-law, Mark Landrum, also of Hereford.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: My little girl has more stuffed animals than a department store! She loves every one of them and will not give one away. The problem was not having enough space to store them.

My husband came up with a brilliant idea--hang them from chains! He bought two 6-foot-long chains with large loops and hung them from hooks in two corners of her room. We bought pretty ribbon and made collars for all the "pets." They were easily attached to the loops of the chains by putting the ribbon through the loops and tying bows.

Taylor learned how to tie them back on (as high as she can reach) and loves to keep her room clean. — Jodi Baker, Houston, Texas

Now, that's an organized solution. I bet they really look cute too! — Heloise

STRAY KITTENS
Dear Heloise: After a stray cat gave birth to two kittens in the lid of a garbage can and did not return for them, I undertook the task of caring for these newborns.

To make things easier, I placed the newborns on a blanket and old towels in a wicker basket to keep them warm. I placed the basket in a spare playpen in my room. This made caring for them extremely easy, knowing they would be in a safe, confined area until they were big enough to climb out of the playpen.

I placed a shoe box full of litter in the playpen, which enabled them to use it by the time they were barely 2 months old.

After 4 months old they took it upon themselves to "graduate" from the playpen by climbing out, and by this time they were litter-box trained.

They are now 14 months old and well-behaved like our other two older cats. — Robbin Wolf, East Windsor, N.J.

114-year-old advises dip of snuff, little coffee, no alcohol for old age

RALLS, Texas (AP) - For Emma Massey, the keys to a long life have been a dip of snuff every now and then, some coffee here and there, but not much alcohol. That formula has worked for nearly 114 years.

"Oh honey, Mama would have beaten our behind if we" drank alcohol, said Mrs. Massey, who celebrates her birthday Sunday.

In the Welsh language, the letters W and Y are sometimes used as vowels, the ll is pronounced like the th in athletics and the dd like the th in this.

Mrs. Massey was born in 1881 during James Garfield's presidency, began dipping when she was 9 and has been a coffee drinker since she was 15. She married the first of three husbands the year the Spanish-American War began.

These days Mrs. Massey, who is two years younger than the person the Guinness Book of World Records calls the oldest living American, rides around the Ralls Nursing Home in a wheelchair.

"Oh, I have been around for a while; I'll be here as long as God wants," she said.

Mrs. Massey's secret to her longevity is pretty simple, as taught by her parents.

"Now, I am going to tell you something, and this is the way it is," she says, leaning over. "I have learned to tend to my business and leave other people alone. My mama and daddy taught me the right road, and, oh Lord, I have followed it."

Her mama also taught her about tobacco.

"Well, you see my mama would be ironing or something and she would say, 'Get me a dip of that snuff', " she says, a pinch of snuff secured in her lower lip. "It wasn't before too long I tried it myself."

Mrs. Massey has become somewhat of a celebrity at the nursing home. Still, she stays focused on what's important to her.

"Each night before I lay down to sleep," she says. "I ask the good Lord to keep me, guide me and help me understand what tomorrow is going to be."

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Even though everyone cannot win, every one is made richer through experience with educational competition.

And speaking of competition, a group of seventh graders will be working on a "Build the Capitol" project. This entails building a model of the state capitol and composing an essay on "What the Capitol Means to Me." Fifteen to twenty-five students will form the group to present their work in competition at Southwest Airlines in Amarillo. If they are winners there, the entire group will be flown to Austin for the dedication ceremonies of the newly renovated capitol. We'll keep you posted on their progress.

Junior Historians have provided World War II bookmarks for Deaf Smith County Library and for the HJH library. Using the "A Grateful Nation Remembers" logo, some of Bill Mauldin's work, period music and World War II posters, there are twenty-three different bookmarks available. Samples of these will be included in a Commemorative Community report. Other activities reported are the parade float and the reception for veterans which was held in May, 1994.

A report on the HJH faculty visit to Amarillo schools to research block scheduling will be given soon. If parents or other interested patrons have a concern, questions or input on this subject, you are welcome to join us for a day-long session on Monday. We hope that school board members will plan to join us, as they must be involved in this decision as whether or not to begin block scheduling at HJH.

Pride Certified recognition was Thursday morning, due to our having no classes on Friday, the intended date.

While "cleaning out" my collection of clippings, I found one worth sharing from a 1978 copy of the Leaguer, the UIL newspaper: "A youth is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is going to sit where you are sitting and, when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are important. You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they are carried out depends on him. He will assume control of your duties, states and nation. He is going to move in and take over your churches, schools and businesses. All your books are going to be judged, praised or condemned by him. The fate of humanity is in his hands. So it might be well to pay him some attention."

Old...but yet so timely!

Between the Covers

Come one and all to the Family film this Thursday Jan. 19th at 7:00 p.m. The feature film is Lost In The Barrens. An upper class youth is forced to leave boarding school and live with an uncle in the Canadian American youth on a hunting trip. When the two boys become separated from the hunting party they must overcome their prejudices and learn to trust each other in order to survive.

There is a variety of subjects as well as titles to be found among the new books this week, beginning with Schindler's Legacy by Elinor J. Brecher. The list of survivors appeared at the end of the movie "Schindler's List". In this book the survivors tell human spirit can endure and overcome. The experiences that each person suffered in their day-to-day fight for survival and the ultimate triumph which allowed them to reclaim and rebuild their lives and families. These memories are recorded for future generations of all nationalities and religious affiliations. Some emerge as the lone remnant of their families while others survived with parents, siblings and children. Oskar Schindler gave these people a second chance at life and in Schindler's Legacy we have the opportunity to see what was done with that precious gift. This is an opportunity to see what a difference one man can make, even when helping when mankind was not his original motive or purpose.

"She is the greatest actress of our time," says Tennessee Williams when speaking of Vanessa Redgrave. In Vanessa Redgrave: An Autobiography the story begins "I was born in the middle of a snowstorm on Saturday, January 30, 1937. Mother was in a maternity clinic in Blackheath, London, at the same time, about six o'clock in the evening, and my father was fighting a duel with Laurence Olivier at the Old Vic. Laertes versus Hamlet," someone in the wings signaled "It's a girl!" and during the curtain call Olivier announced to the audience "Ladies and gentlemen, tonight a great actress has been born, Laertes has a daughter." Three years later Vanessa remembers the sound of the first air-raid warning and the nights that she and her brother Corin spent lying on the mattresses on the floor while her mother Rachel, sang them to sleep. At the age of six Vanessa remembers being very ill with scarlet fever. Alone in the isolation ward in Middlesex Hospital when a voice on the other side of the partition asked if Vanessa would be her mate.

When her new friend was dismissed Vanessa was lonely again. The stay in the hospital isolation ward was extended when chicken pox was discovered as she dressed to go home. The next friend she met through the partition was an airman who made a hole in the partition with his "clasp knife" so they could pass pictures back and forth and see each other until the nurse discovered the gap and had it sealed shut. This autobiography is a very pleasant, uplifting, read that will leave a smile on your face.

The President's Daughter by Barbara Chase-Riboud will be enjoyed by those who are intrigued by historical fiction. The main characters are Sally Hemings, Thomas Jefferson and Harriet Hemings. Sally is Thomas Jefferson's mistress, mother of his children, and the only slave he would never set free, even when the scandal threatened to cost him the presidency. Harriet is the beautiful and headstrong daughter that Thomas allows to run away from Monticello and pass for white, as he promised Sally. Harriet experiences the turbulent events leading up to the Civil War as a white lady while her brother Madison lives on the black side of the "color line." Harriet begins to suspect that someone in her entourage knows she is indeed the president's daughter, which makes her wonder how much her own husband knows.

For those who find the suspense of the unknown exciting look for The Door to December by Dean Koontz and Necroscope by Brian Lumley. Necroscope a novel of man's unending battle against "black hearted, shape-shifting, bloodthirsty vampires." Harry Keogh, the Necroscope, is a man who can talk to the dead, learn the secrets of each grave, and travel through time and space to destroy the vampires that threaten all humanity. Harry is a young man in love and is just beginning to understand and use his powers. Harry is the only person who knows about Thibor Ferenczy a vampire long buried in the mountains of Romania but still a part of the un-dead. Boris Dragosami, the insane son of Thibor, rips information from the souls of the dead and only Harry knows how to stop him from organizing his army of warriors.

Melanie was kidnapped at the age of three. At the age of nine Melanie was found wandering the streets of L.A., blank eyed clutching the dark secrets of those years so tightly that she dare not even whisper them to anyone. The Door to December is the story of a loving mother working with the police in a desperate effort to save Melanie and themselves from the dreadful evil that has invaded their lives.

Book at DS County Library

'River of Sorrow' is intricate whodunit that delivers goods

EDITOR'S NOTE: "The River Sorrow" is available from the Deaf Smith County Library.

By YURI KAGEYAMA
Associated Press Writer
TECUMSEH, Mich. (AP) - In need of some quick money, Craig Holden set out to write a schlock hit, planning to get to "the good stuff" later.

It ended up being a four-year struggle of writing and rewriting, grappling with characters he grew to know and working out the twists and turns of a riveting mystery thriller.

As far as he's concerned, "The River Sorrow," Holden's first novel, is his good stuff.

"I realized fairly quickly that if I was going to write books at all, they needed to be good books," Holden said in a recent interview at his home in Tecumseh. "I don't ever want to write a book that's not a very compelling story."

Throughout the unraveling of the intricate whodunit, the 35-year-old Holden manages to slip in gritty literary flair, wild scenes that verge on parodies of the genre and the earnestness of a writer producing his first serious work.

"This is one thriller that delivers the goods. It thrills," said The New York Times, echoing other reviews. Especially telling was the critic's contrasting Holden with "brand-name authors who seem to be merely going through the motions."

"I think what happens with these established writers is exactly that: You know, it's a business," said Holden, a chunky man with a boyish, clean-cut face. "Like any business, you got to keep the production going. And it just ends up being that you get on the word processor and do the same thing over and over. And I don't ever want to fall into that."

"My goal essentially is to do both - to do well-written books which also have enough muscle and enough drive behind them to rise up and to sell some copies."

About 43,000 copies are in print of "The River Sorrow," released two months ago. It's set to be out in 10 foreign countries. No film deals yet, but Holden is waiting.

From the first few lines, when a helicopter brings in a half-dead charred man to the hospital where Dr. Adrian Lancaster works, "The River Sorrow" doesn't let go.

The plot takes the reader to Ann Arbor, Detroit and a fictitious Michigan town called Morgantown.

Wedding information must be submitted by 5 p.m. Monday to be included in the next Sunday Brand. Wedding information forms, as well as those for engagements and showers, are available at the news office, 313 N. Lee.

uncovering along the way a drug ring centered on a synthetic heroin with the street name Fang. The pushers keep showing up dead.

Lancaster, whose past as a heroin addict is central to the story, becomes a prime suspect.

Holden, a pre-med graduate of the University of Toledo, says working as a lab technician came in handy. But he is not a former junkie, Holden assures with a laugh.

"This book's not autobiographical. And I think that's an important thing for a writer to do, to finally stop writing about himself or herself and to start writing fiction," he said.

At first, he knew only that he wanted to write about a doctor. Lancaster's past as a junkie came as a flash of inspiration.

"As soon as I thought that, I knew it was a very intriguing, interesting, loaded situation."

The story spirals toward a climax with a gun-slinging, blood-splattering showdown in the snow.

"Partly it's insecurity. It's the first book I'm writing. I want it to have as great an effect as possible, so you throw everything into it but the kitchen sink."

& Skilled Nursing & Compassionate Care In Your Home

Lisa Formby, R.N.

Hereford Home Health Care was founded in 1991 with a mission of providing competent and compassionate health care in the comfort of an individual's own home.

And our growing success and strength as a home health care provider can be measured on face value—the portrait of our skilled staff of professional nurses who tender quality care every day.

This week, we proudly introduce Lisa Formby who joined our staff full time in October. She had worked at Hereford Regional Medical Center for the last 13 years in a variety of nursing positions including the Emergency Room, Intensive Care Unit, Infection Control and Quality Management. She received her LVN certificate in Amarillo College in 1982 and her Diploma in Nursing from Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing in 1984. She has worked her entire career in Hereford because she wanted to make a difference in the Health Care that the people of Hereford received. She chose to work at our agency because, "She wanted to work with the best, to work with those that provide the highest quality of care to the people of our community."

Boerne's Main Street retains turn-of-the-century look

By JOE FOHN
San Antonio Express-News
BOERNE, Texas - On paper, a city whose major civic buildings qualify for historical markers might seem a dim prospect for an economic growth model.

Bypassed by Interstate 10, Boerne's Main Street retains a turn-of-the-century look even as another century approaches, and Wal-Mart and H-E-B stores on the city's fringes would seem to portend a less-than-vibrant downtown.

However, the real Boerne isn't paper unless one considers it as a textbook for other small towns seeking economic development and downtown revival in the sprawling shadows of San Antonio.

In fact, city leaders say preserving or restoring old buildings and a timeless ambience have been the keys to a conscious campaign that's paying off both in sales-tax receipts and in population growth.

And far from withering in the face of chain-store competition, downtown Boerne remains open for business. Today more of it is tourist business.

"When I got here, Main Street closed at 1 p.m. on Saturdays," said Christopher Turk, the city's planning officer. "Now they're open Sundays and late on Saturdays."

Turk, who arrived in Boerne in 1983, said perhaps one-third of downtown buildings were empty at that time.

"The big change was the evolution to a tourist-oriented Main Street," he said.

There's been a tradeoff to the change, however.

While H-E-B and Wal-Mart are Nos. 2 and 4, respectively, among Boerne's top 10 taxpayers, some small locally owned businesses have closed, and traffic problems have worsened in some parts of town.

And while the city-created Main Street Historical District was intended to help attract tourism-related business, it's being challenged in court by Catholic Church officials over the denial of a permit to demolish a picturesque but cramped church building on Main Street.

Still, one imagines that all things considered, most San Antonio urban planners would love to have Boerne's problems.

"Last year, the sales tax averaged 15 percent higher than the year before," Turk said. Sales of city-owned utilities increased by about 7 percent from the previous year.

The city's tax base increased about 12 percent due to commercial and residential growth, and hotel-motel tax receipts perhaps spurred by the nearby Fiesta Texas theme park increased 20 percent, Turk said.

After a boom in the early 1980s, growth slowed dramatically, and in 1987 and '88, annexations and new subdivisions virtually came to a halt.

Even with the recent economic recovery, comparatively few new subdivisions are being created within city limits.

Rather, said Turk, "There's been a whole lot of in-fill."

Mayor Patrick Heath, a San Antonio native who holds a graduate degree in urban planning, said the city council in November passed a resolution declaring that Boerne's population has surpassed 5,000. That sets the stage for creation of a city charter commission that eventually could lead to home rule for Boerne.

Home rule would mean greater extraterritorial jurisdiction and the authority to annex new land on the city's initiative not just in response to a landowner's request to be annexed, as is required for general-law cities, officials said.

"We are not seeking home-rule status just so we can go annex everything in sight," Heath said.

With a careful city council, home rule allows a city to control growth around its fringes, keep the tax base stable, avoid being surrounded by other incorporated cities and control environmental quality, he said.

If residential developments are to continue around Boerne, it's better that they be on public water and sewers than for each to drill a well and sink a septic tank, Heath said.

Meanwhile, San Antonio continues its northward march along I-10. While the city-limit sign currently stands somewhere around The Dominion, San Antonio's extraterritorial jurisdiction has already surrounded Fair Oaks Ranch and leaped Cibolo Creek in an arc that approaches the commercial strip along the interstate just south of the main exit to Boerne.

Directing growth along I-10 is a concern for Boerne's economic future.

Heath said being bypassed by a major highway has hurt some towns' downtown business district, but added, "That hasn't happened here."

The city can direct growth along I-10 to some extent through its sale of city-owned water and utilities, and in the future it also could try to secure a viable business corridor to link any new development along I-10 with existing businesses in town, Heath said.

As for Boerne's internal growth strategy, Heath said the downtown economy has evolved from service-oriented businesses that cater to locals, to retail stores oriented toward visitors.

"There has been a net increase in commercial presence on Main Street. The central business district has grown linearly, to the north and the south, from the core," he said.

Utility and telephone poles are being removed and antique-replica streetlamps installed in the 5-to-6-block core of the downtown zone.

Meanwhile, business owners in the Main Street historical district must submit plans for any visible change to their building, down to a change of paint colors, for review by a city commission.

At the very heart of the city the downtown intersection of Main Street and Blanco Road is what Heath calls Boerne's "crown jewel." It's not a commercial building at least, not anymore. It's the Boerne Public Library.

"It's a kind of an icon here," Heath said of the two-story limestone structure also known as the Joseph Dienger Building. He noted that while Boerne claims just over 5,000 residents, the library has about 6,500 card-holders.

Following the banking crisis of the 1980s, the city obtained the structure, once owned by San Antonio Savings Association, for about $550,000. With an additional $275,000 in certificates of obligation plus cash from a public fund-raising campaign, the former office building has been remodeled into a 10,000-square-foot library which, Heath said, "We're already beginning to outgrow."

Another serendipitous sidelight to the '80s bank bust involves one of Main Street's biggest corporate citizens, Benefit Planners Inc.

Benefit Planners pulled up its San Antonio roots in 1993 and relocated to Boerne after being unable to expand at its former location on I-10 near Huebner Road, said President and Chief Executive Tom Cusick.

Cusick, who lives in Kendall County, said he noticed a for-sale sign on the former NBC Bank building on Main Street, but decided to poll the firm's 95 employees on whether they'd approve a move to Boerne.

"We had a vote, and it was about 80 percent 'Let's move,'" Cusick said.

Moving has meant buying a 16-passenger bus to haul employees from San Antonio, and it hasn't really curtailed Cusick's own travel into San Antonio to visit clients.

"Looking back, we'd do it all over again in a heartbeat," he said.

The former bank building, less than 10 years old, not only is nearly three times bigger than the old office, but it also is cost-effective and offers "a real relaxed atmosphere," Cusick said.

The firm has its own phone system that allows local calls to San Antonio clients, and employees who commute to Boerne from San Antonio are going the opposite direction on I-10 from the notorious rush-hour traffic toward downtown San Antonio.

Boerne also has benefited from Benefit Planners. Although most of the 95 employees still live in San Antonio, they shop and eat lunch in Boerne, Cusick said.

Other businesses have been on Main Street much longer than Benefit Planners, but they also play a part in the downtown renewal effort.

Randy Bergmann, owner of Bergmann Lumber Co., said his store building dates back to 1902, but that sometime in the 1930s or '40s its owners attached a black-glass facing onto the limestone structure.

That facing was removed a couple of months ago as part of a restoration that began with repairs to a porch over the sidewalk.

"When we started this, we tried

Thomas Drought, attorney for the archdiocese, said the suit challenges not the historical ordinance as a whole, only its application to the church. The suit claims that under the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993, a law cannot hamper free exercise of religion unless there is a compelling state interest, according to published reports.

As Boerne has grown, so to some extent has the rest of Kendall County.

As a neighbor to Bexar County, much of the population growth has come from San Antonio, and many Boerne residents have jobs in the Alamo City, said Paul Kirtley of the Boerne Chamber of Commerce.

Boerne's school district is often cited as a reason for relocation by families, he said.

On the other hand, most new homes that are being built are in the $125,000-to-$140,000 range, which means that first-time homebuyers or entry-level workers may find it harder to relocate to Boerne, said Kirtley.

While Kendall County is 75 percent the size of Bexar County in terms of land area, its population is only about 17,500, according to a chamber document.

"Really, you're looking at a pretty sparsely-populated county, 30 miles from the Alamo," said Kirtley.

However, the separation between the two counties grows increasingly blurred.

Just as many Kendall County residents work in San Antonio, extended-area telephone service has meant that for a flat fee Boerne businesses or individuals can have what amounts to a San Antonio telephone to go back to as much of the original state as possible," Bergmann said.

He said the local economy has turned around in the past couple of years. At the lumber company, which serves a 15-20 mile radius around Boerne, Bergmann said, "We're having quite a lot of new people coming in."

The business went to city officials for approval of the renovation plan, and Bergmann said, "They were well pleased to hear what we were going to do."

Heath said that, in general, "We've had excellent compliance." But there are exceptions, notably the matter of St. Peter's Catholic Church and its expansion plan.

A Jan. 17 trial date awaits in a Midland federal district court on the dispute between Boerne and the Archdiocese of San Antonio over proposed, partial demolition of St. Peter's Church to make way for a new structure that would triple the capacity to 750 people.

Most of the 70-year-old rock structure, situated high on a hill along Main Street, was proposed to be demolished except for a twin-towered facade that somewhat resembles San Antonio's Mission Concepcion. The facade, the only portion of the building inside the historical district's boundary, was proposed to be preserved and incorporated into the new building's design.

However, the district's review board turned down the demolition proposal and City Council later upheld that decision after an appeal by the archdiocese.

number. "If you're in business, that means a lot," Kirtley said.

Ken Muller, a real estate developer and former Kendall County judge, said the county's population has grown by perhaps 3,000 to 4,000 people in the past five years. His Ranger Creek subdivision, along I-10 just outside Boerne's city limits, already has more than 1,000 residents. He added that five years from now Kendall County growth areas may extend all the way to Comfort.

"The city under Mayor Heath has really kept up," Muller said, referring to municipal improvements with additional sales-tax receipts.

"The city is doing a magnificent job. The schools have done a real good job," he said.

As Boerne begins to explore a possible home-rule charter, Muller said, "It's going to be a very dynamic time as this settles out."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Listen close, Ella Fitzgerald: Stevie Wonder has some sweet words just for you.

"I just want for her to know that wherever she is ... that Steveland Morris ... who was blessed to become Stevie Wonder ... truly loves her, truly, truly loves her," Wonder said in a recent interview.

Wonder, Whitney Houston and Aretha Franklin were on the bill Monday night for a tribute to Fitzgerald in Universal City, Calif. A publicist for the 76-year-old jazz legend said she couldn't make it.

Fitzgerald had both legs amputated in 1993 because of complications from diabetes.

NEW YORK (AP) - Spitting in a little girl's face made Charles Barkley wise up.

The pro basketball star says he took a look at himself after accidentally hitting the girl while aiming at a heckler during a 1991 game.

"What does that say about me that I let a basketball game - a game! - get to me so much that I want to spit on any other human being?" the Phoenix Suns forward said in the February issue of Vanity Fair. "After that I started to be a better person."

Barkley, expected to retire after this season, said he still plans a 1998 GOP campaign for Alabama governor.

— YOUR EYES —

WHAT CAUSES NEARSIGHTEDNESS?

Continuing research by scientists at M.I.T., Cornell University and elsewhere is looking into the causes of nearsightedness, or myopia. There is some agreement that the tendency is genetic, yet there is evidence that myopia is largely the product of the environmental influences of close work. The scientists note that myopia is extremely rare in illiterate societies.

Researches found that many babies in their studies are myopic or astigmatic in their infancy and yet have normal eyesight by age 1. They are able to start school seeing well but, at about age 10, they become myopic again.

What's important to remember is that myopia is not "curable," except with experimental surgery, but it can be corrected. In addition, the rapid progression of nearsightedness can be slowed. Children can be coached, too, into proper reading, computer-use and TV-watching habits that protect their eyes. Ask your optometrist for help.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

NAME YOUR PRICE

Recently, a client explained how he sets prices for his products and services. "What my suppliers charge me determines how low I can set my prices. My competitor's prices establish the ceiling. Generally, I try to be somewhere-in-between," he said.

I've watched small-business owners for nearly 30 years. In that time, I've found that this "somewhere-in-between" pricing policy is a common practice. I feel that using this system ignores some of the most important elements you should consider when making pricing decisions.

In this column I'd like to help you take an objective look at your pricing strategies. Are your prices helping you grow a successful business? Or, are they steering you toward the poor house?

The fundamentals

There are four fundamental factors you must consider as you evaluate your pricing strategy. They are:

1) Cost. You can't build a successful business without knowing all about your cost structure. Your price must cover both direct and indirect costs. I find that few small-business owners factor in all costs when they set prices. Most owners consider cost of goods sold and operating expenses when they establish price levels. I believe you also need to consider your income (opportunity cost), a return on your business investment (money costs) and future cash needs for growth and renewal (longevity costs).

2) Value. Regardless of costs, your customers are the ultimate judge of value. If your customers feel that your price is too high, it is. They don't care about your costs or your longevity.

If this is the case in your business, you have three choices. You can lower costs so you can reduce prices, lower prices and give up profits or find customers less sensitive to high prices.

Not long ago, I visited a very successful small business in Texas. The owners told me they had refocused their marketing efforts to attract a different customer base after new price competition came to town. "We targeted and went after customers who care more about quality and service than price," one of the owners told me. The refocusing strategy is working. "Our sales are up 20 percent this year and we're having our best profit year ever," the owner said.

3) Competition. Yes, competitors do play a role in fundamental pricing policies. However, they should not set an artificial ceiling for your business.

You should be aware of competitor's prices for obvious reasons. You may choose to compete on price or you may decide to add value for your customers and not worry about having the lowest price.

I recently consulted with a business owner who chose to "out value" his prime competitor. He studied his craft, acquired new knowledge and skills and raised his prices by 50 percent. (Yes, I said 50 percent!)

What happened? Did he lose customers? Did he price himself out of the market? No, because of the newly acquired knowledge and skills, customers feel that they are still getting a bargain. Through word-of-mouth promotion only, his business had doubled.

4) Overlap. We need to realize pricing impacts many areas of business performance. The pricing overlap affects marketing decisions, sales levels, financial factors and profit. You need to consider the overlap factor when you set goals for this year. Will a price increase slow sales or increase profits? If we reduce prices, will we increase market share and drive out competition or just lower margins?

Keep these four pricing fundamentals in mind as you establish your pricing policies this year. Remember, there are two foolish positions in which you can find yourself: Priced too high or priced too low. You lose something either way.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has had trouble with pseudomonas infection. Last winter, he had his usual prostate exam and urinalysis. It showed the germ. He had antibiotic injections. Then six months later, he showed the bacteria again. How does a man keep contracting this urinary-tract infection? He has been having regular prostate check-ups over the years, and we are even beginning to suspect it is the exam itself to blame. Comment, please. — A.R.

ANSWER: The Pseudomonas bacteria lurk all over the place, including the urinary tract. Any functioning tract easily flushes itself clear of such germs.

Thus, tracking down reasons for recurring infections is important. For example, obstruction to urine flow and its pooling may permit germs in the tract to multiply and cause infection. Such a setting provides a germ-friendly stagnant pond.

A second consideration in males is enlargement of the prostate gland, which can interrupt flow at the adjacent urinary bladder outlet, permitting urine puddling.

A third factor in any recurring urinary-tract infection in males may reflect the staying power of some prostate infections. Sometimes, the gland itself affords safe haven for germs, rendering them unreachable by ordinary medicines, such as antibiotics. The result is an incompletely treated infection and greater likelihood of flare-up.

So the first order of business for your husband is learning which of those potential factors is behind his chronic problem.

But be advised that a doctor may not always feel bound to treat a patient who merely shows presence of bacteria. He may forgo immediate treatment in a man who has none of the troublesome symptoms — urinary burning, urgency, fever or pain. That is especially so in an older patient.

The prostate gland report I'm sending you discusses such things. Other readers may order a copy by writing:

Dr. Donohue — No. 26, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I wish you would give some thought to how you respond to some questions from young females asking about weight loss. Typically, you suggest sensible programs. So far, so good. But how do you know these girls or young women need to lose weight? As a university health educator, I know that many young women who ask for weight loss assistance are at or near normal weight for their bodies. Some actually already binge, purge or starve themselves. I realize you do not have space to say everything you may want, but I hope you will appreciate the impact your words have. You might want to ask such a writer if she really needs weight loss or if her goals are realistic for her height and nutrition needs. — J.A.

ANSWER: Your letter stands without need for comment, except to say I agree with you entirely and thank you for your input.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am worried when I contemplate that our brains shrink as we age. Is it true? What effect does it have? — L.Y.

ANSWER: Yes, our brains do shrink with age. Fortunately, we come equipped with so many excess brain cells that most of us remain unaffected. We do not become dumber.

Besides, aging accords humans advantages to make up for the few brain cells lost along the way. Older people are brighter, more friendly and enjoy a propensity to sagacity and good judgment. I could go on. I find such ideas more pleasing, the closer I get to the senior-citizen category.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have an embarrassing problem, and I would like some direction in handling it. This started a year ago and has gotten worse. I would get nervous when my husband and I would entertain clients, taking them out to dinner. I would get stomach cramps and have to use the ladies room. Since women tend to travel in pairs to the bathroom, my situation is quite embarrassing. Is there some over-the-counter medicine I can take beforehand for this, so I can enjoy it instead of dreading it? It's easier to write about this problem than speaking face-to-face with a doctor. — C.

ANSWER: I know of no over-the-counter medicine that would help you. I do suggest you open communications with your doctor. If you are having trouble expressing the problem, just clip out your letter as it appears and bring it in with you.

You have developed what appears to be a debilitating phobia, one that is affecting your digestive tract. It is not that unusual.

A mild tranquilizer taken before the evening out might be all you need. And you might not need that crutch forever. You should in the process learn to decondition yourself to the anxiety-provoking situation.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 44-year-old woman of average height and weight. I had an ultrasound recently after complaining of menstrual irregularity. It showed ovary cysts. My doctor said the cysts are not serious. Can ultrasound tell if cysts are harmless, or do I need other tests? — K.D.

ANSWER: Most ovarian cysts are not serious matters. Most don't cause pain and most do go away in time. Ones that remain or that enlarge are removed.

Ultrasound of the ovaries can almost always tell a serious cyst problem from a harmless one. So your doctor has good sources for making judgments regarding the matter.

Beyond that, I am at a loss. I really cannot blame your cysts for all the bodily complaints you tell me about in an edited portion of your letter.

At this point, I suggest you start again from scratch. Have an examination, which for the moment will take the focus off the cysts, but rather focus on other sources of such pain.

I don't mean to imply that cysts can be ignored. I do mean that when you reach one blind alley, it is time to get back on another route toward diagnosis. Meanwhile, your doctor can keep the cysts in mind and monitor them to see when and if further treatment or surgery is appropriate.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Do guys who are not circumcised have a higher risk of getting AIDS? Please answer this question, which is of interest to many males. — O.D.

ANSWER: Not being circumcised is a risk factor for catching acquired immune deficiency syndrome. But there are a great many other risk factors, and most are more important and more directly related. I am thinking of great risks, such as promiscuous and unprotected sex.

The question of circumcision's protective role in preventing transmission of AIDS is not a fully explored one. Most say that any imputed protective value is probably not great, although it's one that should be respected.

19-year-old celebrates new year with...life, new heart

By STEFANIE ASIN

Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON - Kyle Bennett celebrated the new year in a most spectacular way - without champagne, confetti or fireworks. The hospital would have frowned upon such behavior.

He celebrated with life. Long before midnight on Dec. 31, the 19-year-old high school valedictorian got a new heart.

"Words cannot tell you how happy I am that this child will be allowed, Lord willing, to live a normal life," said Beulah Bennett, Kyle's mother. "What a way to end the old year and bring the new one in."

Bennett is recovering from heart transplant surgery at Texas Children's Hospital after receiving a heart from a Florida man killed in a boating accident. Bennett was on the transplant list for 13 months and has been hospitalized since August as his heart condition deteriorated.

In the early afternoon on Dec. 31, the news came. Bennett would get his chance for a new life.

"I just went to pieces. I was so happy. I started crying," the mother said.

Bennett, who has had a pacemaker since he was 8 days old, was born with his heart turned backward. He had total blockage between the upper and lower chambers of the heart, his mother said.

For 18 years, Bennett lived a normal life, earning straight A's at Sam Houston High School and becoming the school's valedictorian. But last summer, his heart started failing and the situation grew desperate.

Like other transplant patients, Bennett waited nervously for word about a matching heart. For the past year, nearly every phone call startled the Bennetts.

At 8:30 a.m. on the last day of the year, doctors told him about the man in Florida. When no patients in Florida could use that heart, Bennett, who was high on the transplant list, got the chance he had been waiting for, said Kent Guida, marketing manager of LifeGift Organ Donation Center.

In Houston, 680 people await organs - mostly kidneys - for transplantation, Guida said.

Bennett, the youngest of five in his family, could come home from the hospital within the next couple of days. Soon, he will have a biopsy to check to see if the heart has been rejected.

Bennett spent the holiday season in the hospital. For a few months he will have to be careful about exposure to possible sources of infection and cautious about his activities. For the rest of his life, he will be heavily medicated and visit many doctors.

But he will be alive.

And for that, the Bennetts are thankful to a donor they know little about. They are thankful that some good came from a tragedy. For months Barnett's mom faithfully has worn a button that reads: "Don't take your organs to heaven, because heaven knows we need them here."

Strategies for vegetable production to be explored in annual conference

Strategies to assure profitable production and marketing of crops will share the spotlight with the latest information on safety and vegetable research during the annual High Plains Vegetable Conference here Tuesday. "Opportunity Knocks" is the theme. Among those scheduled to speak are local businessmen Richard Barrett of the High Plains Growers and Shippers Council and Charlie Prater, President of Breedlove Dehydrated Food, Inc.

The conference begins with registration starting at 8:30 a.m. at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Avenue C at Park Avenue.

Sponsors are the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Tech University, Deaf Smith County Extension Vegetable Development Committee, Deaf Smith County

Chamber of Commerce and Texas Department of Agriculture.

The program has been approved by TDA for five continuing education units for restricted use and private pesticide applicators. Applicants are required to obtain five CEUs of training each year to retain certification. The $25 registration fee includes lunch.

"The conference goal is to improve the competitive position of Texas vegetables and to increase family farm profitability and sustainability," said Dr. Roland E. Roberts, Extension Service vegetable specialist at Lubbock who has coordinated the conferences since 1971.

"Speakers will present research-based information which will help growers and shippers enhance productivity, comply with laws and provide a safe working place for themselves and their workers," he said.

A special focus this year will be environmentally conservative practices which increase grower profits. Other sessions will stress worker protection standards for labor-intensive vegetable crops, how irrigation scheduling influences crop diseases, and current and pending legislation.

The luncheon will include a report from the South Plains Food Bank on its new Breedlove Dehydration Plant. The plant will go into full operation this spring and will process an estimated 20 million pounds of High Plains vegetables to supply food banks across Texas and the nation.

CRP renewal requests to be considered in '95

WASHINGTON --The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced recently that during the 1995 calendar year, the Department will consider requests from CRP participants to be released from their CRP contracts or to modify their current contracts to reduce the amount of acreage subject to it.

The Department will also request and consider bids from producers to enroll new acreage in the CRP program subject to new 10 year contracts. Only the most environmentally beneficial acres would be selected for new contracts. In addition, the amount of new acreage which may be enrolled will not exceed the maximum amount allowed under law.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized under the provisions of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 to offer, beginning in 1996, CRP participants the opportunity to modify and extend their CRP contracts for another 10 years. This applies to 10 year contracts entered into prior to the enactment of the 1990 Act on November 1990.

Participants would also be able to request adjustments in the acreage covered by their contracts. CRP participants would be able to choose to keep all or a portion of their current contractual acreage under the extended contract.

Foundation offers trees

Ten free trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during January 1995. The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten trees are the Sugar Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Pin Oak, White Pine, Red Maple, Birch, American Redbud, Silver Maple, Red Oak, and Colorado Blue Spruce.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between February 1 and May 31 with enclosed planting instructions.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to TEN FREE TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by January 31, 1995.

USDA weeds out Texas field offices

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will move 74 field offices in Texas and close 34 in a five-year restructuring period designed to cut federal spending. When complete, 35 Texas counties will be without field offices. The remaining 219 one-stop service centers will include the offices of the Farm Service Agency as well as the Natural Resources Conservation Service. The USDA will save an estimated $2.3 billion nationwide when restructuring is complete.

The following counties will see their USDA offices close: Bandera, Borden, Camp, Dallas, Franklin, Glasscock, Gregg, Grimes, Hardin, Irion, King, Kinney, Marion, McMullen, Montgomery, Morris, Newton, Rains, Real, Rockwall, Sabine, San Jacinto, Tyler, Ward and Zavala.

Financial crisis may be clouding rosy picture of exports to Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) - Mexico has been the largest and fastest-growing market for U.S. frozen foods, especially vegetables and consumer-ready products, with exports to south of the border recently projected to climb to $337 million by 2000.

But Mexico's financial crisis may cloud this rosy trade picture for U.S. producers. The devaluation of the peso, which has lost more than one-third of its value against the dollar since Dec. 20, makes U.S. products more expensive in Mexico.

"It's premature to be discussing the impact (on U.S. agricultural trade) at this point," Tom Amontree, deputy press secretary at the Agriculture Department, said Wednesday.

USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service "has a team in Mexico assessing the situation and we'll know more after their study," he said.

An overview of U.S. frozen food exports to Mexico, which was written for the January issue of the service's AgExporter magazine before the fall of the peso, outlined "excellent opportunities" for U.S. exporters.

Mexico imported $81 million worth of U.S. frozen vegetables, frozen prepared meals and frozen desserts in 1992. This figure was expected to more than quadruple to $337 million by the turn of the century, the article said.

Among the reasons cited were Mexico's demographics. About one-third of Mexicans live in urban areas and 39 percent of urban Mexicans "can afford to buy consumer-ready products, while 22 percent have the desire to buy imported consumer-oriented products," the article said.

Also, it said, Mexico's economy was expected to grow by 1 percent this year, Mexico was phasing out its tariffs on frozen foods over the next five to 10 years under the North American Free Trade Agreement, and the number of supermarkets in the country was growing rapidly.

U.S. frozen corn, green beans, spinach and mixed vegetables dominate Mexico's import market for frozen vegetables, and so far the market has been "small but growing," as such foods increase in popularity among middle- and upper-income Mexicans, the article said.

But it noted there is increasing competition from Mexican frozen vegetable processors, Mexico's transportation is often inadequate, local refrigeration facilities are often unavailable and exporters can it difficult to get reliable distributors.

Cotton production sets record: 19.7 million bales

By ROBERT GREENE AP Farm Writer.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cotton is shaping up as one of the big success stories in American agriculture.

A record 19.7 million bales are being harvested, and prices in December reached the highest in more than three years: 71.3 cents a pound, compared with 69.3 cents in November and 56.5 cents a year earlier.

The high prices mean cotton users will be able to import additional cheaper cotton through April. But world supplies are so tight that only small quantities, if any, will be imported, the Agriculture Department reported Thursday.

The department also expects another record crop for 1995, with a harvest of up to 21 million bales. Cotton is competing well in the United States against synthetics because of the love affair with blue jeans, fleece (as sweat shirt material is called) and home items such as towels.

Cotton textile exports also have risen - 20 percent higher in October 1994 than in the previous October. Overseas mills are faced with dwindling supplies from other sources.

Americans shift gears in diet habits

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Call it the dinner table tradeoff.

Americans are cutting back on red meat in favor of chicken and fish, eating fewer eggs and more vegetables.

Then, they're rewarding themselves with, for example, a bowl of ice cream and a cup of coffee-cream and two sugars, please.

Most Americans are trying to clean up their dietary act, the Agriculture Department says in a new report comparing today's eating habits with diets of 1970. But they have a way to go.

"Americans are slowly, and with fits and starts, shifting their eating patterns toward more healthful diets," the department's Economic Research Service says in the report. But "a considerable gap still remains between public health recommendations and consumers' practices."

The government says to use fats, oils and sweets sparingly. Fats are blamed for clogged arteries and cancer. Sugars add calories but nothing else.

The government also suggests eating about five servings a day of fruits and vegetables, and even more breads and whole grains, to get enough vitamins, minerals and fiber to keep the body working and help avoid cancers.

People ate 20 pounds less beef, pork, lamb and other red meat per person in 1993 than in 1970, the report said. They ate 27 pounds more chicken and poultry, 3.2 pounds more seafood.

The average American ate 76 fewer eggs than in 1970, down to 233, reflecting the knowledge that cholesterol is a problem.

Americans also ate 61 more pounds of vegetables per person, 54 more pounds of grains, 48 more pounds of fruit in 1993. But the amounts still fall short of giving most people their healthy doses, the report says.

Besides, Americans added 23 pounds of sugars - for a record 147 pounds per person - 12 pounds of fats and oils, and washed it all down with 22 gallons more of soft drinks.

They drank half as much whole milk and twice as much skim milk. But they couldn't say no to pizza and are more frequently choosing cheese-filled Mexican dishes.

"Virtually no one is just saying across the board, 'I'm going to eat everything that's healthy,'" said Tom Dydahl, a researcher for Prevention Magazine. "They're saying, 'I know I've got to limit fat, so because I like cheese I'll drink skim milk, or because I like premium ice creams, I'll use non-fat salad dressings.'"

They swap bacon and eggs for cereal, gaining needed fiber, but sugar, too.

They choose calorie-light salads, then add fat-laden dressings.

Salad dressing is the biggest source of dietary fat for women, noted Bonnie Liebman, director of nutrition for the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a consumer group.

"They think they're doing well by eating salad, and then you tell them they're getting too much fat from their salad dressing," she said.

So what's a person to do?

Terry Nagle, spokesman for Land O'Lakes, a supplier of butter and cheese, suggests what he calls the "grandma rule" of moderation.

Others suggest ignoring the guidelines and scientific studies. Those who follow that advice would have plenty of company.

An estimated 40 percent of Americans just don't watch their diets; they have their cheeseburgers and eat their cake, too.

Agriculture Briefs

Hereford was represented in the 1995 Roll of Victory (ROV) National Angus Show during the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colorado, last week.

Local exhibitors that participated were Olson Cattle Company, Joanna Olson, Moriah Olson, and Sy Olson, reported Richard Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

Some 403 exhibitors, who are members of the American Angus Association with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo., entered a total of 648 head to compete for top honors at the national ROV event.

Richard S. Parrill, former Hereford resident, has been named district manager at its sugarbeet processing factory in Sidney, Mont.

Parrill joined Holly in 1971 as a technical advisor trainee at Holly's factory in Hereford.

Prior to his reassignment to Sidney, Parrill had been serving as district manager at Holly's Worland, Wyoming, factory.

Production expected to rise, cause lower meat, poultry, egg, milk prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - Production of red meats, poultry, eggs and milk is expected to continue rising this year, and as a result push down producer prices, the Agriculture Department says.

While cattle, hog and egg prices fell last year, export demand and a larger domestic appetite boosted prices for poultry and milk, according to the Economic Research Service's latest issue of Agricultural Outlook.

Here is USDA's outlook for the livestock, dairy and poultry industries:

-- PORK: Record pork production in the final three months of last year and large supplies of other meats pushed down pork prices sharply. This quarter, pork production is expected to decline nearly 8 percent from the previous quarter, but supplies are expected to remain record high through the spring quarter.

Hog prices, which have dropped about 30 percent since August, averaged $30 per hundredweight - the lowest in two decades in 1994's fourth quarter. They are expected to remain at that level this winter. Retail pork prices, however, dropped just pennies, to $1.95 per pound in November. USDA says prices need to reach about $35 per hundredweight for most producers to cover their cash outlays.

-- BEEF: With average retail choice beef prices at their lowest level in four years, Americans last year increased their annual beef consumption for the first time since 1985 and beef exports rose nearly 24 percent from the previous year. Per capita beef consumption rose in 1994 by about two pounds, to 67.5 pounds.

Increased production is expected to continue this year, which will maintain pressure on prices. Fed-cattle prices are expected to remain through the winter at November's average in the upper $60s per hundredweight. Retail choice beef prices are expected to hold around $2.80 per pound this winter.

-- BROILERS: Production was up about 7 percent last year over 1993, and output is forecast to grow in the range of 5 percent to 6 percent this year. The main reason is a large hatchery supply flock for broiler-type eggs.

Expanded production is expected to cut whole-bird prices this year about 3 cents to 4 cents below last year's average of 55.6 cents per pound. Exports, which climbed to a record 2.8 billion pounds last year, are expected to continue growing, especially in the Pacific Rim and Mexico. Exports to the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe are more uncertain.

-- TURKEY: A double-digit increase in production is forecast early this year, which along with large supplies of competing meats is expected to put pressure on prices. Turkey prices were relatively high last year - estimated to average 65.4 cents per pound. If exports continue to grow, wholesale turkey prices this year could be held to 4 cents per pound lower than 1994's average.

-- EGGS: Production is forecast to increase about 1 percent for the entire year, with higher gains occurring in the first half of the year. The gain is expected to reduce prices about 2 cents below last year's average of 67 cents to 68 cents per dozen. Exports are expected to drop 8 percent this year because of U.S. compliance with the GATT world trade accord, which will lower subsidies.

-- MILK: Production is expected to increase 2 percent to 3 percent this year, mainly because of the expansion of low-cost dairy farms and substantial gains in milk per cow. With the growth in milk output expected to outpace commercial use, prices are forecast to be an average 6 percent to 8 percent lower in 1995.

Census shows American farms are fewer but more productive

WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of U.S. farms is shrinking but those that remain are more productive, a long-term structural trend Agriculture Department economists believe is likely to continue into the next century.

The decline in numbers of farms continued into the early 1990s and at a rate similar to that of the mid-1980s when farming was straddled by a severe financial crisis, according to USDA's Economic Research Service.

As the economy recovered, many expected the loss of farms to slow, but the decline continued unabated between 1987 and 1992.

"This suggests that much of the decline in farm numbers over the past decade was part of a long-term structural trend, rather than simply a response to short-run financial conditions," says an article in the latest issue of the ERS publication Agriculture Outlook.

New Census of Agriculture figures show a total of 1.93 million farms in America in 1992, down from 2.09 million in 1987 - a drop of about 32,500 farms a year, the research service said.

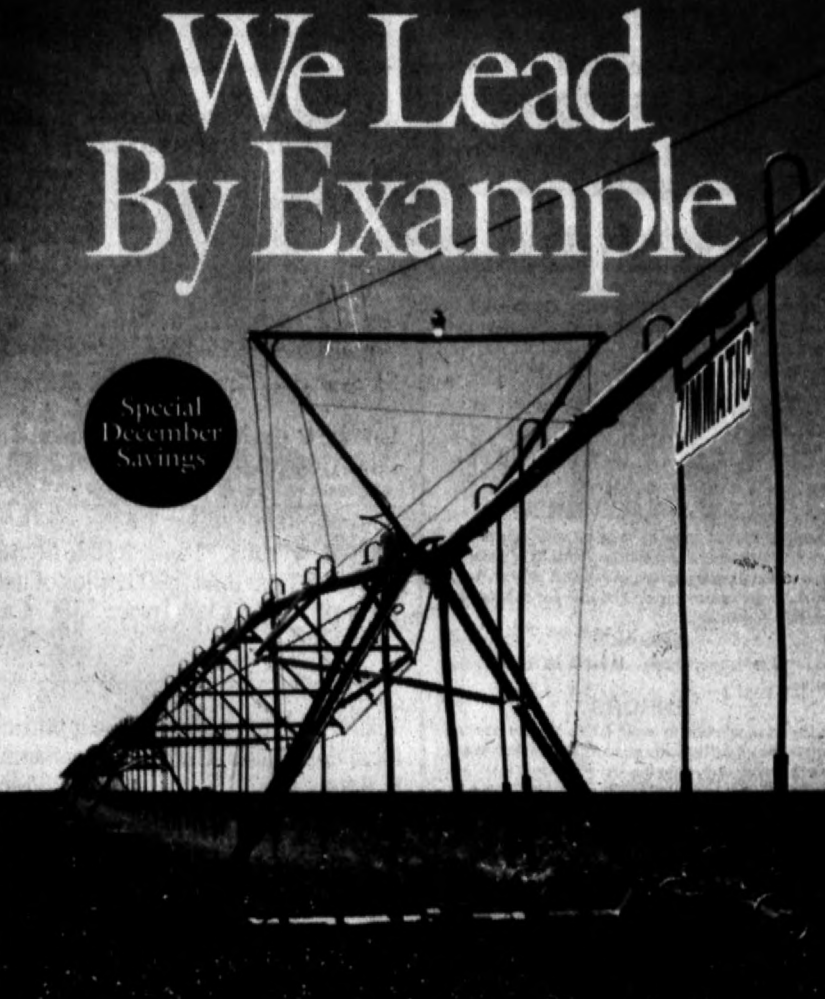

If the pattern holds, the number would fall to 1.73 million by 1997, and to 1.54 million by 2002. The net loss would grow to about 38,000 per year between 1992 and 1997, and to around 39,000 between 1997 and 2002 and then begin to slow, the figures show.

The figures also show that the exit from farming has been greatest for those under 35 years old, and the research service said the reasons were low prices for many commodities, higher borrowing costs, rising land values and lower birth rates since the early 1960s.

The average age of principal farm operators rose from 52 years in 1987 to 53.3 years in 1992 and if the current trend continues, it would be 55 in 2002, the data show.

"The substantial decline in the rate of young people entering farming and the growing number of farmers nearing retirement have generated concern about the future of U.S. farming," the research service said.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

Times	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	15	3.00
2 days per word	25	5.20
3 days per word	37	7.40
4 days per word	48	9.60
5 days per word	59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $4.35 per column inch; $3.65 inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS
 Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.

DESIGN FOR REAR SLOPING LOT WITH A VIEW

Two Huge Rooms for Entertaining

FEATURE HOMES

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

This home plan provides you with a full range of possibilities. The basement level of the plan could be finished later, as you need the space, or you can utilize your sloping lot for adding the square footage you need now.

The front door with glass side lites leads you directly to the open floor plan of dining area, activity room and kitchen. There is a corner fireplace in the activity room and the vaulted ceiling extends over the kitchen.

The kitchen is superlative in its arrangement of counter top work surface, built-in appliances and snack bar. Double garage entry and a large laundry room are accessible from here.

There are two bed rooms on opposite sides of the main level of the home. The master suite includes two walk-in closets and a garden bath. The other bed room includes a private bath with shower. A half bath is thoughtfully placed for daytime use.

The basement includes three bed rooms, a second master being isolated from the other two, a large play room and a future kitchen with sitting area. The second master suite includes an astonishingly large walk-in closet and a shower bath.

The two bed rooms on the other side of the house share a central hall bath and closets are plentiful.

The exterior of this home is constructed of horizontal siding. Decorative windows and multiple gables create a home that would be in harmony with other homes in most neighborhoods. Plan number 696 includes 1,685 square feet of heated space on the main level, and an additional 1,685 square feet in the basement.

This is a computer generated plan and drawn in accordance with FHA and VA standards and includes special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information on plan Number 696, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

Baranski loves warm wit of her Cybill character

Cybill Shepherd (left) stars as Cybill Sheridan, a two-time marital loser and struggling actress who turns to best friend Maryann Thorpe (two-time Tony Award-winner Christine Baranski) for moral support in Cybill, a new adult sitcom airing Mondays on CBS.

BY JOHN CROOK

Christine Baranski hopes Cybill viewers won't let their opinion of the show be impaired by alcohol — the booze she imbibes in character, that is.

Baranski steals scenes on a felonious scale as Maryann Thorpe, the best friend of actress Cybill Sheridan (series star Cybill Shepherd), in the sophisticated Monday comedy that premiered Jan. 2 on CBS. The show audaciously derives laughs from Maryann's abundantly evident drinking problem.

"I don't look at the page and say, 'Oh! I'm playing an alcoholic!' I really don't," says the actress of her gimlet-guzzling character. "I do think I'm playing someone with a great sense of humor. That's what attracted me to the role."

Indeed, Baranski takes a character that could deteriorate into a cartoon lush and imbues her with depth and even poignancy. Maryann is a woman, she says, who keeps her ironic wit even while her life lies in shambles.

"Listen, the woman's just been through a divorce where the guy leaves her after 25 years of marriage without giving her a reason why," Baranski points out. "Although she's got a lot of money, she's just been stranded. In the pilot, that's pretty fresh information; it's pretty much just happened. So she's recovering from a huge life trauma."

That subtext lends complexity to Maryann, who usually has a cocktail of some type within easy reach.

"Most of the time, she's got a drink in her hand, probably, but you should never be quite sure whether she's tipsy or not," Baranski says. "There is one episode when she's at a party and she clearly drinks too much. But I would like to see this character never fall into tastelessness. I don't see why she should. Why would Cybill have a best friend who's a drunk?"

Instead, the two-time Tony winner (for Tom Stoppard's The Real Thing and Neil Simon's farce Rumors) says the pulse of the show derives from the warm and genuine friendship between Betty Ford Clinic alumna Maryann and Cybill, a twice-divorced, struggling fortysomething actress and mother. That warmth was evident when she read the first script, she recalls.

"I thought it was great to see two women in their 40s who were pals, who really adored each other and were enjoying life — that it was about them and about women in that decade of their lives," she says. "You don't see it that often. You don't see a buddy show between women right now on TV, much less women in their 40s."

"The pilot, really, is just the tip of the iceberg. I just think we were doing a map. I've heard from people who think the pilot's great, but already they're giving me — the third episode is really great, and I think it's just going to grow."

While filming, the actress reluctantly is apart from her husband, Matthew Cowles (formerly of All My Children), and two children back in Connecticut, but she admits that the harsh economic realities and dwindling opportunities in New York theater made Cybill an opportunity she couldn't pass up.

"The turf in New York is getting very difficult," she says ruefully. "Last year at this time I was doing a perfectly splendid play and my take-home pay was $400 a week. That's not even enough to pay your monthly bills, let alone put money aside for college."

"I can't imagine a better role for me in American television. It makes use of so much of what I can do."

Wacky Weather Facts

Imagine temperatures heating all the way up to 135 degrees, or dropping way down to 128 degrees below freezing. Well, such intense weather extremes are just part of the wild oddities nature has to offer. Here are some more:

- Since temperature differences affect the jet stream, you can fly faster from California to New York than the other way around.
- The worst flood known happened in China in 1931 when the Yellow River overflowed and killed 3.7 million people.

- Because there is no technology able to withstand the wrath of a tornado, nobody knows a tornado's exact top speed. Experts estimate 400 miles per hour.

- The climate of many big cities is altered by the building of large skyscrapers.

- Sunny days can induce migraine headaches in some people, while dark, overcast days can bring on depression.

- A single lightning bolt can reach up to 50,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

- A hurricane can carry as much as 2 billion tons of water a day.

Did You Know?

CHEMISTRY IS NOT A NEW SCIENCE. IN FACT, ITS ROOTS GO ALL THE WAY BACK TO PREHISTORIC TIMES WHEN PRIMITIVE HUMANS USED FIRE TO PRODUCE SUCH CHEMICAL TRANSFORMATIONS AS THE BURNING OF WOOD, THE COOKING OF FOOD AND THE FIRING OF POTTERY AND BRICKS.

Sports shorts

Even if you're not a sports fan, you'll be intrigued by these fascinating facts:

- Eddie Goedel was the shortest major-league player ever recorded. At 3 feet 7 inches tall, he weighed a mere 65 pounds.

- The earliest book on checkers was written in 1547. In some countries the game was called "Draughts."

- During the mid-19th century, golf balls were made of feathers stuffed into a little leather bag and sewn closed.

- In early water skiing, the rope was attached to the skier, not the skier. It was not until the 1930s that it changed.

- Bowling can be traced back to items found in the tomb of an Egyptian child who was buried around 5200 B.C. The game was believed to have been played by setting up nine vertical stone shafts as pins and rolling a round stone ball to topple them.

LET'S TALK

Banderas sank fangs into Vampire role; reader lobbies for SB soap reunion

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Antonio Sabato Jr.

Q: I am a big fan of Antonio Sabato Jr. of Earth 2. Does he play the vampire Armand in Interview With the Vampire? I have read all the books in Anne Rice's The Vampire Chronicles and Armand is one of my favorite characters. —Jean Daniels, Mebane, N.C.

A: Wrong Latin hunk, Jean. Armand is played by Antonio Banderas, whose star is rapidly rising thanks to his acclaimed work in Vampire and Philadelphia (he played Tom Hanks' lover in the latter). He appears next in Miami Rhapsody, a romantic comedy co-starring Sarah Jessica Parker.

Q: Several weeks ago you wrote that Santa Barbara would not be back. Since Charles Pratt, who wrote for SB, is one of the creators and writers of Models Inc., and since New World Television is/was associated with both Models and SB, I don't see why it would be so hard to have a reunion. —P.A. Turner, a devoted ex-SB viewer in Canada.

A: First, let me advise all readers that your unedited letter, which ran to two handwritten pages, was filled with convincing evidence that you have really done some homework on this subject.

However, you unintentionally glossed over the main point here: SB perished because it had about the lowest viewership of any soap then on television. A network exec would be justified to believe that a reunion would pull comparably low ratings.

While I am the farthest thing from a soap fan, I thought the show was pretty kooky and enjoyed the few episodes I saw. Why not write to Pratt yourself and state your case? I've yet to meet a writer who can't find time to listen to someone telling him how wonderful he is.

Write to him C/O Models Inc., Fox Broadcasting Co., 10201 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90035.

Q: I would love to be pen pals with Queen Latifah of Living Single and Tisha Campbell of Martin. —Cris Harmon, Beaumont, Texas.

A: Write to both C/O their shows at the Fox address immediately above. Whether they are in the market for a pen pal and write back is, as I keep pointing out, up to them.

Q: As a Lee Horsley fan, I think if you check you will find his last series was Bodies of Evidence, not Paradise as you reported a few weeks ago. —S.L., N. Huntingdon, Pa.

A: The Complete Directory to Prime Time Network TV Shows 1946-Present, my reference for questions such as this one, contains no mention of Bodies, which co-starred George Clooney (ER), but you are correct. Thanks.

Q: I am looking for a video of The Last Frontier starring Linda Evans. I am a big fan of hers. —Theresa Sonnenberg, Paint Rock, Texas.

A: Like the majority of made-for-TV movies, this 1980 title is not available on home video. Sorry.

Q: My friend thinks David and Mark on Roseanne are brothers. I say they're not. We have a bet on this. —Ron Sorenson, Longview, Wash.

A: Sorry, Ron. You lose.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS: Macaulay Culkin and Sharon Stone have left the ICM agency, in case any fans have had letters there returned. As of this writing, Stone hasn't signed elsewhere, but Big Mac can now be reached C/O The William Morris Agency, 151 El Camino Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. I appreciate readers letting me know when an address I've given is now obsolete, but unless you see a note like this one here, please do not assume I automatically have another address handy.

Putting a little English on Double Rush; songwriter nods give Gill a double edge

Robert Pastorelli

Robert Pastorelli has known TV writer/producer Diane English for about eight years. In 1988, English wrote the part of house painter Eldin Bernecky in her series Murphy Brown for him. And now Pastorelli says he can see English's persona in the character of Zoe, one of the bicycle messengers on the new CBS series Double Rush, in which Pastorelli plays the lead. Actress Corinne Bohrer plays the highly bred Harvard graduate eager to make her mark on the world but biding to pay the rent.

"Yeah," Pastorelli says, "I think she described her character one time as Diane English meets Murphy Brown with a Janis Joplin dismount."

A trio of Turner productions have been handed 1994 Parent's Choice Awards. Turner Home Entertainment's video releases The Borrowers, with host Richard Lewis, and The Halloween Tree, an adaptation of a Ray Bradbury tale, were cited, along with Richard Attenborough's Antarctica: Life in the Freezer, a presentation of TBS' National Geographic Explorer.

No Winter Olympics this year? Viewers can still tune in for studio hosts in ski sweaters - on MTV. For three weeks starting Saturday, Feb. 4, the music channel goes to Colorado's Aspen/Snowmass ski areas for Mt. MTV. The slopes will serve as a backdrop for four hours of daily programming segments with VJs Bill Bellamy and Daisy Fuentes, plus special celebrity and musical guests.

Wednesday, March 8, brings the Music City News Country Songwriters Awards on The Nashville Network, and the titles of the 10 featured songs are already out. Competing for song of the year honors are "Does He Love You," "Don't Take the Girl," "How Can I Help You Say Goodbye," "I Swear," "Independence Day," "Summertime Blues," "Thinkin' Problem," "Your Love Amazes Me," "Tryin' to Get Over You" and "Whenever You Come Around." The last two, by last year's winner, Vince Gill, make this the fourth consecutive year Gill has been a multiple nominee.

TV FOR KIDS

Puzzle Place picks up pieces of new Henson tradition

Part of Jim Henson's legacy is an army of puppeteers, some still in their 20s, who came under his influence. The Henson ripple effect has produced a proliferation of children's shows with Muppetesque moppet characters and kinder, gentler points of view.

The Puzzle Place, debuting Monday, Jan. 16, on PBS (check local listings), is the heart-and-brainchild of Kevin Clash, who operated Sesame Street's Elmo and Baby Sinclair on ABC's Dinosaurs. Clash has developed the weekday series for 2 to 6-year-olds to celebrate humankind's diversity as well as its common ground.

The Puzzle Place features six main characters of different backgrounds, from various parts of the country. Through a bit of TV magic, they get together each day after school.

Kiki Flores, from San Antonio, speaks English and Spanish. Leon MacNeal, of Manhattan, N.Y., loves science. Skye Nakaiye, an Arizona Apache, spends special time with his grandfather. Ben Olafsen, of Renner, S.D., is a farm boy. Jody Silver, of Cincinnati, enjoys his Jewish heritage. And San Francisco's Julie Woo is a natural and sympathetic leader.

A typical episode combines imaginative play and conflict resolution with a challenging game or puzzle - all in a nonclinical atmosphere of music and affectionate fun.

HOME BIJOU

Script is sometimes pretentious, but Reality Bites showcases several promising young talents

BY JOHN CROOK

Reality Bites, director Ben Stiller's 1994 comedy about a group of recent college graduates in Houston, seems to want to present a kaleidoscopic look at the so-called Generation X of twentysomethings.

It doesn't quite succeed, but what a pleasure it is to find a filmmaker who fails because he tries too hard.

Actually, "fails" is too harsh a word, because Stiller - whose too-short-lived Fox series showed him to be a skillful satirist - keeps Reality spinning along nicely, despite some bumps in Helen Childress' screenplay, which reduces its characters to types.

The principal quintet is made of Lelaina (Winona Ryder), valedictorian and video-maker wannabe; her roommate, Vickie (Janeane Garofalo), a wisecracking Gap manager; Lelaina's best friend, Troy (Ethan Hawke), a sensitive, artistic slacker; his gay best friend, Sammy (Steve Zahn), a character so poorly developed that one suspects Childress just had a coming-out speech she wanted to include; and Michael (Stiller himself), a driven young TV executive pursuing Lelaina.

Garofalo, who is such an original that Hollywood seems to have no idea what to do with her, turns in the most fully realized characterization as the promiscuous-but intellectual Vickie. Childress gives most of the characters lines that seem too knowing for them, but Garofalo's Vickie really does seem like the kind of person who would notice and point out that Evian spelled backwards is "naive."

Ryder, as always, has a tendency to go all whispery and gaga at big dramatic moments, but overall this is one of her more successful outings. Hawke is even better at fleshing out his role, while Stiller's acting is a bit too hyper, even for a fast-track junior exec.

Reality Bites is best when it's at its least profound, as in one hilarious video montage - a network "enhancement" of Lelaina's video work - that remorselessly skewers MTV's often-pompous The Real World.

Arye Gross, who plays Adam on the ABC sitcom Ellen, says he would like to see his character find a "degree of adventure in his life" that would "really fuel his sense of drama." The actor says he and the writers are considering using Adam's stagnating photography career as the catalyst. "We're toying around with the idea that Adam may get some work taking pictures for a detective agency - philandering husbands, unfaithful wives, that kind of thing," he says. "And possibly Adam would be needed to fill in on a stakeout."

Gross notes some significant changes in his character during these first two years of the series.

"Last season, Adam was more of an ironical, wry slacker," he says. "This year the character's emerged as actually somewhat more vulnerable, wears his heart on his sleeve and gets really, really intensely worked up about things, issues that most people might consider to be minutiae."

Adam and Ellen are longtime friends who are both seeking a "meaningful relationship," and Gross feels they may not have too far to look.

Readers want couples to pair off differently

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I have watched Days of Our Lives since it started. I love the way things are going, but I really wanted to see Bo end up with Hope, not Billie. I like Billie but they need to find someone else for her.

I was really shocked to see Jennifer's mother in bed with Jack. I would like to see Jennifer get back with Jack.

I love Days. It makes me laugh and cry, and I think all of the characters are terrific. -Helen Maehrer, Jim Thorpe, Pa.

Dear Reader: When the producers announced they were bringing back Jack, they mentioned he would be involved with another woman. But who would have imagined it would be Laura?

The affair throws a wicked twist into the situation. If Jennifer ever finds out who her mother is sleeping with, there will be fireworks that would put the Fourth of July to shame. The strangest thing is that Laura has never even seen a picture of Jack to know what her ex-son-in-law looks like.

Dear Candace: My favorite soap opera is The Bold and the Beautiful, and the best characters on the show are Ridge and Taylor.

I am so disappointed in the way the story is going now. I watch this show religiously, and when I'm not home I tape it.

Don't the writers know that Ridge and Taylor belong together? Ridge and Brooke have never had any chemistry, and they certainly do not have the bond that Ridge and Taylor had.

How could Taylor possibly want to marry a man who kept her a prisoner in his home? She also let Ridge continue his marriage with Brooke, which makes Taylor and Ridge bigamists.

Two of my friends have stopped watching the show, and I may also if this is allowed to continue. -Jean Flasco, East Liverpool, Ohio.

Dear Reader: This is no time to stop watching B&B; it is really going to get good in the next few weeks. Give it some time before you decide to stop watching.
