Fuel spill triggers blaze Fire threatens gasoline tank

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Hereford firefighters were able to dodge a major disaster on Wednesday when they extinguished a fire and cooled off a fuel tank at an East Hereford business.

Firefighters were called to Brooke Pipe and Supply on East U.S. 60 at 4:14 p.m. in response to a call about a fuel spill and fire that sent clouds of black smoke into the sky that were visible all over town.

Firefighter Johnny Amaro said the incident began when a nozzle being used to fill a 500-gallon gasoline tank behind the company's building failed to shut off, causing a small quantity of gas to spill on the ground by the tank.

Fumes from that spill seeped into the building, where a welding torch ignited them, causing a flash fire that caught the actual fuel on fire, which in turn ignited debris around the tank.

Three employees inside the building, including the man operating the torch, were able to escape uninjured.

Amaro said flames from the fire around the tank were shooting 10 feet in the air when fire crews arrived.

The tanker truck driver, he said, had felt the heat from the blaze at his back as he put away his hoses. He was able to move his truck away from the scene safely.

Because of the heat of the fire on the tank, Amaro said, the fuel was expanding inside the tank.

Vapors escaped through a vent in the top of the tank, but ignited from the fire, creating a torch from the downward-pointing vent that blew fire directly onto the top of the tank.

In addition, the fill cap on top of the tank, which had been closed when the tank operator ended his work, popped off and gasoline was bubbling out of the tank onto the fire.

Firefighters, Amaro said, worked to extinguish the fire around the tank, which was fueled by tires, wood and other debris on the ground around it.

They also had to work quickly to cool the tank and keep the vapors from venting and the fuel from spilling from the tank.

After the tank was cooled, firefighters turned their attention to the fire inside the building, quickly putting those flames out as well.

Five trucks -- two booster units and three rescue trucks -- responded to the scene with 20 volunteer firefighters.

In addition, Hereford EMS had crews on stand-by at the scene.

No injuries among company employees or firefighters were reported.

Fire crews remained at the scene until 6:20 p.m. to make sure all flames had been extinguished and the tank was cool.

Cooling things off

Hereford firefighters, right, spray water on a gasoline tank behind Brooke Pipe and Supply on Wednesday after a fuel spill that was ignited by fumes coming in contact with a nearby welding torch caused a fire that threatened to blow up the 500 gallon tank. The fire behind the building and inside the structure was extinguished, but firefighters stayed on the scene for two hours to ensure that the tank had been cooled sufficiently to eliminate fire danger. No injuries were reported from the blaze.

HEDC asked to assist feedyard operator seeking TNRCC permit

By GEORGIA TYLER

A feedyard operator seeking a permit for a new facility asked for help from the Hereford Economic Development Corporation Wednesday, but the board could take no action because the item was not listed on the agenda for the meeting.

"We can't do anything because it isn't on the agenda," Mike Hatley, HEDC executive director, told Jim Nicholson, who appeared at the invitation of Board Member Rosendo Gonzalez.

Nicholson reported that he has been working on securing a permit from the Texas Natural Resources and Conservation Commission for approximately a year, but has been blocked by opposition to his project. He suggested that some kind of support from the HEDC board on the permit process would be appreciated.

Terry Langhehennig, HEDC attorney, advised the board that a resolution could be forwarded by HEDC directors to TNRCC but action could not be taken since there was no agenda item to cover it.

Board Member Cliff Skiles suggested that "we ought to do something." He observed that the $3 million project will provide 15 to 20 jobs.

Nicholson reported the feedyard capacity will be 22,750 head of cattle. He said a hearing is scheduled in Austin Monday.

Langhehennig told the board that there is not sufficient time to call another board meeting before the hearing.

In other business, the board asked

Hatley to work on an employee policy for HEDC, approved a lending policy, agreed to join High Ground and heard a report on tax abatement policy in Deaf Smith County.

Board President Shirley Garrison said such items as job description, sick leave, vacation leave, promotions and annual evaluation of employees should be included in a policy statement.

A lending policy, covering loans from HEDC and guarantees of loans from other agencies for new business and industry, was approved unanimously on motion by Don Graham and second by Gonzalez.

Membership in High Ground, a consortium of economic development agencies, was approved, with annual membership fee of $500. The organization is designed for sharing of information on economic development opportunities.

Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons was a guest at the meeting to explain policies of the Hereford Area Tax Abatement Board. He said the board has guidelines for recommending abatement to taxing entities.

Hatley reviewed prospective projects for HEDC and said inquiries have been answered from several sources.

Action was delayed by the board on securing bonds required by the corporation's bylaws. Directors asked for further information on premiums for the bonds.

All board members, Garrison, Skiles, Gonzalez, Graham and Jerry Stevens, were present for the meeting.

Phil has spoken: Spring is coming

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) - The groundhog has spoken: Spring will come early this year. Of course, in many parts, winter has never really arrived.

Punxsutawney Phil, the world's smallest and furriest weather forecaster, failed to see his shadow as he was hauled from his burrow today, indicating according to legend that spring is just around the corner.

The chubby groundhog was taken out of his man-made burrow by handler Bill Deeley at 7:29 a.m. Deeley kissed the animal and placed him on top of the stump outside Phil's home.

Although they don't like to discuss it, the members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club's Inner Circle actually decide in advance what the groundhog's forecast will be. Nonetheless, a crowd estimated at at least 7,000 cheered loudly as the announcement was made.

It is the 10th or 11th time the groundhog has predicted an early spring since 1887, depending on whose count you believe. The last time was in 1990.

The National Weather Service near Pittsburgh has issued its own prediction of above-normal temperatures for the next few weeks, in keeping with the relatively mild trend this winter.

"We haven't had winter yet. Spring feels like it's already here," said meteorologist Bob Reed.

The Groundhog Day tradition is based on a German superstition that an animal casting its shadow Feb. 2 - the Christian holiday of Candlemas - is an indication of bad weather to come.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Picking up speed, the Republican-led House approved an unfunded mandates bill and is moving on to legislation giving the president authority to stop congressional spending excesses.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said he is looking for passage Monday of the presidential line-item veto bill the House was debating today.

The bill would give the president authority to delete specific programs from spending bills, saving lawmakers the discomfort of cutting expensive projects their colleagues want for their home districts.

Like other items of the House GOP's "Contract With America," the line-item veto is part of the drive ostensibly to make the federal government smaller, more fiscally responsible and less intrusive in the lives of citizens.

Passage Wednesday of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act, which requires Congress to fund many of the regulations it imposes on states and local governments, shows that "we keep our promises," said Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas.

"We clearly are demonstrating our ability to make a big change," said Armey, adding that Republicans are on schedule in their bid to finish action on the "contract" in the first 100 days of the session.

In the first month of the session,

Congress has passed into law a bill making lawmakers liable to the same employment laws that private industry must obey, and the House and the Senate have passed separate versions of the unfunded mandates bill.

The House has also passed probably the most far-reaching of the Republican priorities: a constitutional amendment to balance the budget.

Debate on the balanced budget amendment is under way in the Senate, where supporters expect long and tenacious resistance from Democratic opponents but say they are close to nailing down the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

The unfunded mandates bill now goes to a House-Senate conference to iron out differences before a final bill is sent to President Clinton, who has indicated he will sign it. "We're very close and I don't anticipate there will be a lot of disputes," said Rep. William Clinger, R-Pa., the House manager of the bill.

The bill states that the federal government in the future must pay for many programs that cost states and localities more than $50 million. Federal agencies would have to provide cost-benefit analyses for new regulations costing local governments and the private sector more than $100 million.

Exemptions are made for laws concerning the national security, laws protecting constitutional and civil rights and anti-discrimination laws.

The nation's governors and mayors have pleaded with Congress to make unfunded mandates a top priority, saying regulations coming from Washington without being paid for are bankrupting them.

The 360-74 vote passing it included 130 Democrats, along with all 230 Republicans in the House, but many Democrats also voiced strong concern that the bill would stop Congress from passing vital health, safety and environmental regulations.

The concern is not about unfunded mandates, said Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., who led the debate for the opposition. "It's about destroying laws that protect the average citizen."

Defendants appear in court here

Two defendants in drug cases entered guilty pleas to charges Wednesday in 222nd District Court. Both defendants also were on probation on previous convictions.

Terms of probation were modified on motions to revoke probation of two other defendants.

Benito Rodriguez, 25, previously convicted of burglary of a habitation, entered a plea of guilty to delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine.

Judge David Wesley Gulley sentenced Rodriguez to a 10-year term in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division with diversion to the Special Alternative Incarceration Program. He modified terms of the probated sentence, directing Rodriguez to the TDCJ substance abuse felony punishment facility.

After hearing guilty pleas to two charges of delivery of cocaine by Stoni Rene Malone, 19, Judge Gulley sentenced her to 10-year terms in TDCJ, with diversion to SAIP. In modification of terms of probation on a previous conviction for possession of a controlled substance, Judge Gulley ordered her to a substance abuse felony punishment facility.

On a motion to revoke probation on two convictions for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon against Jeffrey Ray Spence, the judge modified terms of probation and ordered him into intensive supervision.

In another drug case, the court was asked to revoke probation of Michael Dale Deaton, convicted of possession of a controlled substance, methamphetamines. In modification of terms of probation, Judge Gulley ordered him to enter the Brownfield court restitution treatment center and spend three months in intensive supervision.

In a court session Monday, Jesse G. Ortiz was ordered to enter the McLennan County restitution Center, in a modification of terms of probation. Previously convicted of felony driving while intoxicated, Ortiz was serving a five-year probated sentence.

Entering the rain forest

The main hall of St. Anthony's Catholic School has been transformed into a rain forest as part of an all-school project for Catholic Schools Week. Students in all grades made plants, animals, natives and other items found in a rain forest, then teachers assembled the three-dimensional exhibit on walls, doors and the ceilings. The display also was in conjunction with lessons students were having on ecology. It features trees, plants, snakes, birds, other animals and pictures of people who might live in a rain forest. The exhibit will be on display for at least two more weeks. See related photo, Page 2.

Lions camp program reviewed Wednesday for Hereford club

Two summer camps -- one designed for children with physical disabilities and one for insulin-dependent children -- will be sponsored once again this year by Texas Lions Clubs.

Children from throughout the state who meet camp qualifications are eligible to attend at no cost to the campers, Gary Billingsley, a member of the Hereford Lions Club and a camp director, told club members on Wednesday.

Local residents who know of a child who might qualify to attend either camp may call Billingsley at 364-3410 for application information.

Lions Clubs from throughout Texas support the camp with regular monetary donations, special gifts and by sponsoring individual campers to attend.

Lions Clubs have sponsored the camp since it began in 1953. Through the years, some 40,000 handicapped children have participated in the camp, which is located in the Texas Hill Country near Kerrville, with some 1,332 special needs children served last year alone.

Sid Shaw of the Hereford Club, who also is Lions District 2-T1 Governor, told club members Wednesday that the district has 40 slots open for this year's camp sessions. Last year, the district sent 32 children to summer camp.

Billingsley said three children from here went to camp last year.

Children ages 7 to 16 who have visual, hearing and physical disabilities are eligible for two sessions of the camp, held at the Lions Club campsite near Kerrville.

To qualify for camp, handicapped young people must have an IQ of 70 or above and possess some self-help skills in the areas of dressing, eating, using the restroom and bathing.

Recreational activities make camp life fun. Campers are supervised by a trained staff at a ratio of one counselor to every three campers. Activities are adapted as necessary so every child is able to participate.

Children will have the opportunity to swim, ride horses, study nature, fish, participate in field sports, and go on an overnight camp-out.

During the camp for insulin dependent children ages 7 to 17, a medical team supervises children's education about diabetes. Campers learn about their blood sugar and urine analysis, giving their own injections, controlling their diet and monitoring their exercise. The individualized attention in health care encourages good control of diabetes.

Proposed legislation designed to toughen state's penal code

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - The Senate Criminal Justice Committee's chairman says legislation to toughen the new penal code would give Texas the nation's strongest set of criminal laws.

"With these improvements, we're going to have the most modern, tough penal code in the United States," Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, said in unveiling his bill Wednesday.

Backed by all 31 state senators, the legislation calls for longer sentences for state jail felons. The bill also would make it a third-degree felony to assault a public servant - including police officers and teachers.

Whitmire said that improvements in the state's prison and criminal justice systems will allow lawmakers to concentrate on reforming juvenile justice laws, a priority of new Gov. George W. Bush.

"We've got to attack the farm system," Whitmire said.

The Legislature in 1993 overhauled the state's criminal laws and launched a massive prison-building program. By the end of this year, the state expects to have more than 140,000 prison beds available.

A new system of state jails was designed to handle nonviolent offenders, thus saving penitentiary space for violent criminals.

Whitmire said the extra prison space means Texas is able to make it even harder on criminals.

His bill would expand the punishment range for state jail felons from the current six months to two years to a longer period - one to three years. He noted that such sentences are "real time," because neither parole nor good time is awarded in state jails.

The legislation also would allow prosecutors to decide if third-time nonviolent offenders should be shifted from state jails to a penitentiary.

The bill calls for expanding evidence that could be admitted in child sex abuse cases and specifying that the entire state parole board - not just a panel of three - would have to give two-thirds approval to release capital murderers serving life sentences.

And, it would make assault on a public servant a felony. Whitmire said prison guards were among those who had sought such extra protection.

Whitmire said his bill was backed not only by all other senators but also by police officers, prosecutors and victims' rights groups.

Williamson County District Attorney Ken Anderson, who leads the state district and county attorneys association, said the bill would enhance an already improving criminal justice system.

"What we did last (legislative) session meant, literally, hundreds of women were not raped during the last two years, thousands of children were not molested and tens of thousands of Texans went to work and came home to houses not burglarized," Anderson said.

"This continues to improve the toughest and smartest set of penal laws that exist in any state in the union," he said.

Texas Lottery

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $4 million.

However, 94 players matched five of six numbers, winning $1,925 each, officials said. There were 5,376 tickets sold matching four of six, with each ticket worth $121, and 108,862 tickets won an automatic $3 for matching three of six.

The numbers drawn Wednesday night from a field of 50 were: 32, 29, 31, 26, 41, and 19.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $10 million.

Preparations were discussed for the bean supper to be served Saturday from 5-8 p.m. at the I.O.O.F. Hall. Tickets are available for $3 for adults and $1.50 for children.

A planning meeting of the Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will be held Sunday, at 2 p.m. Peggy Lemons served as hostess. Others present were Lucille Lindeman, Leona Sowell, Rosalie Northcutt, Nelma Sowell, Dorothy Lundry, Ben Conklin, Tony Idlbeck, Ursalee Jacobsen, Jessie Matthews, Irene Merritt and Susie Curtsinger.

Names in the News

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - Adam Sandler, the "Saturday Night Live" comic whose specialty is pretending to be obnoxious, returned to his old high school, where his specialty was being obnoxious.

Many mornings during Sandler's days at Manchester's Central High, the intercom blared: "Adam Sandler, report to detention."

The 29-year-old Sandler, who once threw lettuce out the window during Spanish class, roamed the halls Monday reminiscing and making peace with teachers he drove to distraction until he graduated in 1984.

"I was threatening to stencil your name on your chair in detention," Assistant Principal Isabel Pellerin said. "Now I realize you were just rehearsing."

While talking with former teachers, Sandler was trailed by a camera crew, making promo spots for his upcoming movie, "Billy Madison." The film due out next month is about a man who must repeat kindergarten through 12th grade to receive his inheritance.

"I was a wise guy, but I didn't hurt anybody," Sandler said.

Magic show benefits local RC/DV center

The Hereford Police Department will be sponsoring a benefit show for the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center on Feb. 18 at Hereford High School auditorium. Performing will be magician, Dan Summers.

Summers has made appearances in Las Vegas, Atlantic City, Hollywood and Houston. His most recent engagements include two tours of Japan.

Summers will be appearing in his own stage review--MAGIC SPECTACULAR--a one and a half hour full stage magic illusion show. The show features classic levitation, two illusions of Summers' own creation as well as illusions made popular by David Copperfield and Doug Henning, and will close with a twist on traditional magic.

Show time is 6 p.m. The price of admission is $6 for children and $7 for adults. All proceeds from the event will go back to the RC/DV Center.

People who attend the show are asked to bring travel and sample size personal hygiene items to help victims of domestic violence who find themselves homeless and without such items.

The Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center was established because of the high incidence of domestic violence in our area. Through this fund-raiser, the RC/DV Center will be able to continue its mission to provide assistance to victims of sexual assault and family violence. It continues to be the only victim assistance program of its kind in the county.

The RC/DV Center is also known as the Hereford Outreach Center.

WorkSmart sponsors first aid/CPR training

WorkSmart, in conjunction with the HRMC Hereford EMS, is presenting "First Aid in the Workplace" Feb. 8-9 and Feb. 22-23 in the training room at the Hereford EMS building, 314 Bradley St.

The six-hour seminars will teach participants techniques of basic first aid and CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) which can be used in the work place, according to Gary Phipps, director of WorkSmart. "Every person should have this basic knowledge about first aid," he said. "Lives could be saved if we all know exactly how to respond in case of an emergency."

Phipps said the classes are scheduled for 9 a.m. to noon each day, with four hours devoted to first aid, and two hours to CPR. A registration fee of $30 covers the instructor's fee, books and hands-on demonstrations. "Because we want each person to understand every step thoroughly, we are limiting enrollment," Phipps said. Those interested in attending the course should call WorkSmart at Hereford Regional Medical Center at 364-2141, ext. 121 or 124 to enroll.

"This seminar is one of the many services offered by WorkSmart, which is our industrial and occupational medicine center," Jim Robinson, administrator of the hospital, said. "HRMC is committed to our goal of educating the community about methods of staying healthy."

TAFCE offers scholarships

A scholarship for graduating high school seniors and one for college students that have completed 60 hours are being offered by District I Texas Association for Family and Community Education.

The new scholarships are offered on behalf of the members of the Panhandle to help youth further their education. Criteria and applications may be picked up at the County Extension office located on the fourth floor of the Courthouse.

High school seniors may also pick up the forms at the high school counselor's office.

Scholarship applications for college and high school students must be postmarked by March 1.

Further information may be obtained from Beverly Harder, county extension agent, at 364-3573 or Maudette Smith, Deaf Smith County FCE chairman at 267-2210.

Herd golfers return six experienced players

Back for more golf

Karen Manchee is one of several experienced girls who make up the Hereford girls' golf team, which starts its season Friday in San Angelo.

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford girls' golf team, which starts its season Friday in San Angelo, returns nearly all of the girls from last year's team that advanced to the Region I-4A golf tournament.

The only loss was Kelly Kelso, the team's top player last year, but coach Stacey Bixler gets back six girls with varsity experience.

Seniors Karen Manchee, Kristin Calkins and Jana Baird and juniors Jami Bell and Krista Beville all played on varsity last year, as did sophomore Stephanie Bixler.

Those girls got their first varsity experience last year, even the seniors, because of the strong class that was two years ahead of them. Last year was a learning experience.

"It was different. It was new," coach Bixler said. "They played a lot of courses, played a lot of tournaments they hadn't played before. A lot of them last year hadn't played a lot of courses. But now we've got six girls that been through it, been to regionals."

"If you go when you're an underclassman, when you're young, that experience will really pay off down the line," he said.

In addition to the experienced players, Bixler has sophomore Katie Bone and four freshmen: Jacque Bezner, Amy Killingsworth, Jennifer Phipps and Lindsay Ward. Bixler said even the freshmen will be competitive.

Strangely, the girls' team starts its season a month before the boys; they play in San Angelo, then don't play in another tournament until March. The reason is that one of the courses used for the San Angelo tournament--Bentwood Country Club--is the course that is used for the regional tournament.

"The main reason we go down there is to play the course," Bixler said. "And the weather, too. Going six hours south in February helps you."

On Friday, Hereford will play at Bentwood, teeing off at 8 a.m. in a group with Amarillo High and Midland Lee. On Saturday, they'll play at Riverside municipal course.

Bixler hopes that the team will get to go back to San Angelo for the regional tournament in April. The top two teams from District 1-4A get to go, and it looks like Hereford has a good chance to be one of those.

"We played in the fall, in four or five matches," Bixler said. "Every school in the district except Dumas played in those, and we finished second to Berger overall. I think that's a pretty good indicator of how we'll do in district."

Berger won the district last year, with Hereford second. Pampa was a close third. Bixler said Berger would have to be the favorite this year, too.

"Berger didn't lose many; most of the ones they had last year will be back," he said. "Pampa might be weaker, but you've got to figure they'll be competitive. They always are."

Dumas' teams have not been strong in past years, but they return two-time district champion Jamie McInturff, who is now a junior.

"Anytime you have a girl who shoots in the 70s and low 80s, you've got a chance to be competitive," Bixler said.

Bixler hopes the experience the Hereford girls gained last year will help them carry on the Hereford girls' golf team tradition.

"With what we've done the last ten years--going to regionals nine times and state four times--that helps you set goals and priorities," he said. "It gives you something to work for. It gives you a tradition to follow."

Herd cagers set sights on 'Dogs

The Hereford Whitefaces will try to take another step towards a playoff berth Friday in Berger, when they take on the Bulldogs at 7:30 p.m.

Hereford, 6-2, is second in District 1-4A behind Pampa (7-1). Berger is fifth at 3-4 in district and 14-10 overall. Hereford is 17-6 overall.

Hereford blew Berger away 88-61 in the first meeting Jan. 10 in Hereford. Herd coach Randy Dean doesn't expect the game in Berger to be that easy.

"Berger will be playing for their playoff lives, so they're going to come out primed and ready to play," Dean said. "We need a road win sometime in this second half and we're going to try to get one Friday night."

The Hereford and Berger girls will meet in first game of Friday's doubleheader, at 6 p.m. The game will be a rematch of the Lady Whitefaces' 62-57 win in double overtime Jan. 10 in Hereford.

The Hereford girls are 4-6 in district and 16-11 overall, while Berger is 3-6 and 10-17.

Mavs, 76ers pick on weaker opponents

By The Associated Press
Philadelphia and Dallas, two teams with long losing streaks, finally found teams they could handle.

For the 76ers, who had lost five in a row, it was the Washington Bullets. For the Mavericks, who had dropped their last eight, it was the Minnesota Timberwolves.

"We're 1-3 in our last four games and we should have been 4-0," said Dallas coach Dick Motta, whose team had lost four of their last five by five points or fewer.

Two of the losses came on last-second shots, and the other was in double overtime. Against the Timberwolves, though, Dallas jumped out to a big lead early and went on to win 104-83.

The 76ers blew a series of games in the final minute, but a 16-point fourth quarter from All-Star Dana Barros helped them to a 98-89 win over the Bullets.

In other games, it was Charlotte 100, Boston 93; New Jersey 95, Milwaukee 77; Miami 98, Detroit 75; Atlanta 111, Golden State 99; Indiana 101, Cleveland 82; Utah 129, Denver 88; Phoenix 118, the Los Angeles Lakers 109; and San Antonio 111, Portland 107.

Jamal Mashburn made sure Dallas didn't let another close one slip away, scoring 17 of his 32 points in the first quarter.

Mashburn scored 10 of the Mavericks' first 14 points, and Dallas, playing without point guard Jason Kidd for the second straight game, led by 23 points in the second quarter.

"When (Mashburn) gets in gear like that, it's really hard to stop him," Motta said. "He hit from outside, then came inside."

Popeye Jones had 15 points and 20 rebounds and Jim Jackson scored 23 points as the Mavericks won their fourth straight in Minnesota. Three of Dallas' 13 victories last season came at the Target Center.

Minnesota, which was without starting forward Doug West, got 26 points from Christian Laettner. Isaiah Rider scored 17 points despite shooting 7-for-24 from the field.

Irish haul tops nation; Georgia signs triplets

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

Notre Dame was the best and Georgia was the "luckiest" on national signing day in college football.

The Fighting Irish, coming off their worst season since 1986, landed the top recruiting class in the country Wednesday.

"Notre Dame was the clear winner," said Allen Wallace, publisher of SuperPrep magazine in Laguna Beach, Calif. "They got almost everybody they wanted."

Georgia signed the Luckie triplets from Clarkston, Ga. Dustin and Mike are 6-foot-2, 225-pound linebackers, and Miles is a 6-2, 270-pound lineman.

"We probably signed the first group of triplets that I'm aware of anywhere," coach Ray Goff said. "I'm sure it may have happened before somewhere, but never that I heard of."

Notre Dame had a lot of holes to fill following a 6-5-1 season, but the Irish managed to fill them with an incoming freshmen class that includes 19 SuperPrep All-Americans.

"They got the best player in Texas, the best linebacker in California, the best quarterback in Mississippi, the best runner in Florida and the best fullback in Louisiana," Wallace said.

Offensive standouts on Notre Dame's list include linemen Mike Rosenthal of Mishawaka, Ind., and Tim Ridder of Omaha, Neb.; running backs Jamie Spencer of Monroe, La., and Autry Denson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; receiver Randy Moss of Belle, W.Va.; quarterback Jarious Jackson of Tupelo, Miss.; and kicker Kevin Kopka of Hollywood Hills, Fla.

The Irish also signed a strong defensive group, including linemen Antwon Jones of Piqua, Ohio, and Jerry Wisne of Jenks, Okla.; linebackers Jimmy Friday of Sugarland, Texas, and Kory Minor of La Puente, Calif.; and defensive backs Benny Guilbeaux of Opelousas, La., and Mario Strayhorn of Cincinnati.

"I don't think I've ever had a year where we have probably answered as many question marks on paper as we did this year," coach Lou Holtz said.

Holtz said Notre Dame's problems last season helped attract players who knew they would have a chance to play right away.

"If it (helped), I don't want that advantage next year," he said. "I don't want to go through another year like we did last year."

Wallace ranked Florida State as the No. 2 recruiting class, followed by Penn State, Texas A&M, Florida, Michigan, Auburn, Alabama, Colorado, Southern Cal, Nebraska, Illinois, Wisconsin and North Carolina.

Top-ranked Massachusetts loses top players to injuries

By The Associated Press
The No. 1 team lost its No. 1 and No. 2 players.

Marcus Camby and Lou Roe were hurt Wednesday night in top-ranked Massachusetts' 74-62 victory over St. Joseph's. How long they will be sidelined remains to be seen.

The Minutemen (17-1, 9-0 Atlantic 10) extended their winning streaks to 16 overall and 41 straight on campus, both the longest in the nation, but the victory didn't come cheap.

Camby, a 6-foot-11 center who is the team's top shot blocker and No. 2 scorer, will be out at least two weeks with a pulled hamstring. If a re-evaluation today finds a tear in the hamstring, Camby could be finished for the season.

"Marcus will be out two to three weeks. That's what they said now," coach John Calipari said. "It could be worse."

The ailment was later diagnosed as a thigh cramp, but Roe didn't return to the game.

The Hawks (11-7, 4-4) cut the lead to 43-40, but Massachusetts got the next eight points on a basket by Donta Bright and consecutive 3-pointers by Carmelo Travieso. The spurt gave the Minutemen a 51-40 lead with 9:34 remaining. They led by at least eight points the rest of the way.

No. 24 Oklahoma 79, No. 11 Iowa State 78

At Norman, Prince Fowler made two free throws with 4.3 seconds remaining to secure the victory for Oklahoma after Iowa State rallied from a 15-point, second-half deficit.

Dion Barnes scored a career-high 22 points, and John Ontjes had 12 assists. Ernie Abercrombie scored 14 points for the Sooners (16-4, 3-2 Big Eight), who handed Iowa State (17-4, 3-3) its second straight loss.

No. 14 Wake Forest 69, N.C. State 61

At Raleigh, freshman guard Jerry Braswell broke N.C. State's triangle-and-two defense with a career-high 13 points, all of them in the first 6:03 of the second half.

Tim Duncan had 21 points and 14 rebounds for the Demon Deacons (13-4, 5-3 Atlantic Coast Conference). Fuller had 16 points and 11 rebounds for N.C. State (10-8, 2-6).

No. 19 Villanova 78, St. John's 62
At New York, Kerry Kittles had 24 points, 11 rebounds and five assists and Eric Eberz added 23 points for Villanova (14-5, 7-2 Big East), which had a 16-2 run in the second half to open a 70-50 lead.

James Scott, making his second start of the season, led St. John's (9-8, 2-7) with 18 points. Felipe Lopez added 14 on 5-for-18 shooting.

No. 20 Alabama 65, Auburn 63
At Tuscaloosa, Lance Weems of Auburn got off a falling jumper that banked in, but the officials ruled that it came after the final buzzer.

That gave the win to Alabama (15-4, 6-2 Southeastern Conference), which has won 25 of 33 meetings with its intrastate rival.

No. 21 Georgia Tech 80, Clemson 50

Travis Best scored 29 points and went 5-for-6 from 3-point range as the Yellow Jackets (15-6, 6-3 ACC) improved to 11-0 at home this season.

Greg Buckner led Clemson (11-6, 2-6) with 16 points and five rebounds.

In other Top 25 games, No. 5 Maryland beat No. 15 Virginia 71-62, No. 6 Kentucky beat South Carolina 90-72, No. 24 Oklahoma beat No. 11 Iowa State 79-78, No. 14 Wake Forest beat North Carolina State 69-61, No. 19 Villanova beat St. John's 78-62, No. 20 Alabama beat Auburn 65-63, No. 21 Georgia Tech beat Clemson 80-50 and Mississippi State beat No. 25 Florida 70-47.

UMass, which trailed at halftime for only the second time this season, came out aggressively in the second half and took the lead for good, 34-33, on Roe's short bank shot. Roe made nine of 10 shots, scored 19 points and had five rebounds and three blocks.

"Lou Roe was basically unstoppable," Calipari said. "If we could have got him the ball five more times, he probably would have scored five more times."

NBA

76ers 98, Bulls 89

Dana Barros had 12 points during an 18-6 fourth-quarter run that put them in the lead for good.

Barros scored 16 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter. Willie Burton and Sharone Wright each had 18 points, and Clarence Weatherspoon had 16.

Scott Skiles had 17 points and 13 assists for visiting Washington.

Jazz 129, Nuggets 88

John Stockton had 16 assists without committing a turnover to become the NBA's career assists leader, and Utah won its 14th in a row by beating Denver.

Stockton broke Magic Johnson's record of 9,921 with a pass from near the foul line to Karl Malone, who sank an 18-foot jumper from the corner. The shot gave the Jazz a 47-25 lead 6:23 before halftime at the Delta Center.

Malone led the Jazz with 30 points, and Stockton finished with 12.

Denver was never in the game, trailing 35-13 after the first quarter. Bryant Stith's 16 points led the Nuggets.

Spurs 111, Trail Blazers 107

David Robinson scored 34 points as San Antonio ran its winning streak to five with a victory at Portland.

Sean Elliott scored 20 of his 26 points in the second half, 13 in the fourth quarter. His two free throws with 9.1 seconds to play clinched the victory for the Spurs, who have won 20 of 25.

Rod Strickland had 24 points and 11 assists for the Blazers.

Suns 118, Lakers 109

Phoenix avenged the second of its two home losses with a win over Los Angeles.

Danny Manning had 30 points and 10 rebounds and sank a 3-pointer with 1:40 remaining for a 112-101 lead, the Suns' largest of the game.

Charles Barkley had 22 points and 15 rebounds, Dan Majerle had 20 points, and Danny Ainge 18 to help beat the team that snapped the Suns' franchise-record 25-game home winning streak Dec. 30.

Eddie Jones scored 26 points for the Lakers.

Hawks 111, Warriors 99

Mookie Blaylock scored a career-high 32 points, including seven 3-point baskets, as Atlanta handed Golden State its fourth straight loss, all on the road.

Stacey Augmon added 16 points, Steve Smith 15 and Jim Les 14 for the Hawks. Tim Hardaway led the Warriors with 26 points.

Pacers 101, Cavaliers 82

The NBA's best defense couldn't contain Indiana, which beat Cleveland behind 19 points from Rik Smits.

Byron Scott came off the bench to score 16 for Pacers, who took the lead for good in the first quarter and led by 18 in the second.

Good weather conditions help citrus crop

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Texas citrus harvest is progressing better than last year and many producers say they can thank the good weather conditions, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dr. Julian Sauls, Extension horticulturist in Weslaco, said the citrus harvest is under way in South Texas, with producers harvesting oranges, grapefruits and peaches.

"Citrus harvest takes place from September to March, so right now the harvest is well under way," he said. "As of right now, production is up 30 percent from last year and sales are about average."

He anticipates production is up due to the good growing conditions the area has received over the last few months.

Terry Lockamy, county Extension agent in San Benito, said their citrus and sugar cane harvest is under way and things are looking good in his county as well.

"Prices could be higher on grapefruit and oranges, but there are always little inconveniences," Lockamy said. "Everything is running right on schedule and we are getting good yields."

He added that some sugar cane producers could benefit from a little more rain.

Producers also are concentrating on pre-planting irrigation for cotton and grain as well as the harvest, Lockamy said.

Jose Pena, Extension economist in Uvalde, said many peach varieties in the Southwest are progressing right on schedule and producers think some are getting close to blooming.

"Many of the 400- to 500-hour peach varieties are beginning to have bud swell," he said. "If the warm weather continues, we expect the low chill varieties will bloom soon."

He said Dormex, which substitutes for about 100 hours of chilling, is being applied to peaches in the Hill Country and surrounding areas.

"The crisis label to use Dormex expires on Feb. 9," he said, "so producers are really getting a move on to spray their peach trees."

Producers in the Rolling Plains said most crops are looking good, however more favorable weather conditions could be beneficial to dry fields in the area.

Scott Durham, district Extension director in Vernon, said wheat is in good condition with insect activity low. However some areas could use more rain, he said.

"Wheat is looking good in most areas, with limited grazing for livestock in some," he said. "However, if wheat is to make it in the western sections of the district, rain is needed soon."

Jon Zeitler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said the state will be experiencing dry, unseasonably warm weather.

"This week will feel like spring with temperatures in the mid 70s in the Panhandle region and lower 80s in Central Texas and the Valley," Zeitler said. "There is a possibility for a weak cold front moving through Northeast Texas this week, but should bring no rain and have little impact on temperatures."

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges need rain. Lack of moisture slowing wheat growth. Preparing land for spring planting. Cattle in good condition; supplemental feeding continues.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture very short. Pastures, ranges need moisture. Preparing land for spring planting. Dry conditions damaging winter pasture growth. Supplemental feeding for cattle continues.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. Wheat progressing; some insect problems. Livestock in good condition; supplemental feeding continues.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus. Pastures, ranges fair to very poor. Scattered showers throughout week. Wheat progressing. Pecans 98 percent harvested. Vegetables little activity; poor growth.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus. Excess rain damaging pastures, ranges. Pruning, spraying peach trees. Preparing land for spring gardens. Cattle in good condition; grazing conditions plentiful.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges preparing land for spring planting. Wheat progressing. Irrigating onions. Cutting, baling hay. Pruning pecan orchards. Supplemental feeding for cattle continues.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. Wheat progressing; insect population down. Oats good. Pecans in fair condition. Onion planting under way.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Pruning peach trees. Pecan yields, quality low. Wheat fields progressing; some disease problems.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Winter grasses progressing. Supplemental feeding for cattle continues; grazing limited due to wet fields.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Peaches progressing; some disease problems. Preparing land for spring planting. Wheat, oats need rain.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges improving with rain. Some field activities limited due to wet conditions. Peaches blooming. Supplemental feeding for cattle continues.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition. Harvesting sugar cane. Tomatoes, onions, peppers progressing. Preparing land for spring planting.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Open Ear in California," who said parents should pick up the phone and call their kids instead of complaining that "the children never call."

My mother calls me at least four times a day. She phones to tell me she has just taken a bath. She calls again to say she did the dishes. Then she calls to say she took a nap. Later, she'll call to say she is watching TV and then start to tell me all about the program that's on.

I have a business that requires a lot of time and attention. Mom cannot figure out why I can't close the shop and bring her a quart of milk. Or why I need to get off the phone when a customer comes in. She often drives to the door of the shop and honks. If I do not respond quickly enough, she continues to honk until I come to the car and ask her what she wants.

I buy her groceries, take out the trash, bring in her mail and do her laundry. Nothing is enough. My five brothers and sisters have moved out of the area to avoid her. When she goes to visit them for two or three days, they usually ask her to leave early. They say, "She's too darned demanding and not very pleasant to have around."

No, Mom does not have Alzheimer's. She has osteoarthritis and is extremely heavy. Her weight puts a great deal of additional strain on her bones, but she will not diet and refuses to put forth any effort to help herself. She expects me to do everything for her.

So, Ann, the next time some dear elderly woman tells you her children don't do enough for her, please remember this letter. It's just possible that the mom who is complaining is a lot like mine.—A Broken Crutch Somewhere in Missouri

DEAR MISSOURI: Your letter certainly supports the old axiom, "There are always two sides to every story." I'd go a bit further and say "three"—the two involved and the observer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My friend and his family use their answering machine to screen their calls. They pick up the phone only when they know who is calling. It upsets me to think someone is sitting right there and is unwilling to talk.

This friend will call me back half an hour later and tell me he was watching something interesting on TV or ironing his shirt.

To me, a phone is like a door at your house. I would feel offended if I knew someone was home and didn't come to the door when I knocked. Shouldn't this person have the courtesy to pick up the phone and say, "Can I call you back in 15 minutes? I'm busy right now."

I understand there are times when a person may not want to answer the phone and everyone has that right, but isn't it rude when you call someone and can never get a real person on the line even when they're home?—Bothell, Wash.

DEAR BOTHELL: Sorry, I disagree. Simply because you have a person's phone number does not mean that he or she must be available whenever you decide to call.

The telephone, one of the miracles of the age, can be extremely intrusive. I find no fault in using an answering machine to screen calls. It is, in a sense, an electronic secretary. In my opinion, your complaint has no validity.

Gem of the Day: If you want to have a wonderful vacation, take half as many clothes and twice as much money.

Have trouble sleeping at night and don't want to get involved in a novel? "A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day" is the perfect bed-stand mate. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Collection, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $6.25.)

Students display CPR certificates

These students have successfully completed a course in Red Cross CPR and have received their certificates. All are members of Mrs. Hudson's sixth grade class at West Central School. The course was taught by Betty Henson, director of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

DAR Chapter nominates two local outstanding teachers

Nominations for Outstanding Teacher of American History Contest have been announced by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

The program recognizes teachers who are outstanding in the field of American History and related areas such as social studies, government and citizenship education in public, private and parochial schools in grades seven thru 12.

Criteria for selection include incisive knowledge of American history, ability to foster a spirit of patriotism, relate history to modern life and events and possess high academic standards, requiring excellence at all times from students.

Los Ciboleros Chapter were able to send applications for two local teachers in the contest this year, Carolyn Waters, Hereford Jr. High and Joe D. Rogers, Hereford High School.

Both of these teachers are exceptional in their qualifications for this award.

Carolyn Waters demonstrates in the classroom the ability to make history interesting to her students, to relate history lessons to culture, art, music and literature and to encourage her students in research and projects.

Waters was responsible for the first Jr. Historian Chapter to be chartered in the Texas panhandle. Under her direction the Jr. Historians applied to be a World War Commemorative unit and were so designated for the activities they planned to celebrate the 50th anniversary of WW II.

She has enabled the group to take numerous field trips to expand their knowledge of this area.

Mr. Rogers is acknowledged for his knowledge and his presentation of material. He participates in the community through history related activities by presenting programs to civic groups on historic preservation, historic sites and the need to preserve the memory of our heritage.

Rogers has also written articles for The Panhandle Plains Historical Review and Sidesaddle: The Journal of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

The selection process begins at the local level when school principals are asked for assistance in selecting a candidate.

The information is submitted to the Texas State Society who select the State Outstanding Teacher and the winner is then submitted to National Office of Historian General for selection of the national winner.

Waters and Rogers will be recognized and given certificates at the Honors Tea given by Los Ciboleros on April 23, at the Hereford Community Center. State winner will be presented and honored at Texas Conference in March. The National winner will be honored at Continental Congress in Washington D.C. in April.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have read in your column about high potassium, but never about low potassium. If you wrote about it, I missed it. I have low potassium and am taking pills, which has brought it up to normal. I am hoping for some information on this problem. What role does potassium play? Can diet cause the problem? — F.I.

ANSWER: Low blood potassium is called hypokalemia. It leads to muscle weakness and erratic heartbeats.

We don't usually think of the body's electric current, but it's there, and potassium is what generates most of the current the body needs to keep perking.

Hypokalemia can herald other illnesses, such as kidney failure or adrenal gland disorder.

The opposite condition, hyperkalemia, can cause problems of its own.

Only in rare cases is hypokalemia caused by dietary potassium lack. Most people consume ample amounts of potassium. A more likely cause would be loss of potassium through vomiting or diarrhea.

By far the single greatest cause of hypokalemia today is use of water pills. Such pills not only remove fluids and sodium from the body, but other chemicals as well, potassium among them.

The answer is, as you have found, replacement with potassium supplements.

For more information, see the Health Letter special report on body chemicals. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — SR82, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I get a rash on my arms, and my dermatologist told me I have cutaneous lupus erythematosus. Will you explain? I use a cream for it. — Mrs. A.R.

ANSWER: Skin lupus, the kind you have, is called "discoid" lupus. It often does not affect internal organs, the way systemic lupus does. It generally is confined to the skin, producing red patches.

The discoid lupus patient should avoid sunlight.

Your cream probably is a cortisone preparation. That almost always takes care of the problem.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My father was recently diagnosed with polyarteritis nodosa, which came after various other diagnoses, including vasculitis and muscle disorders. Can you explain why there should be so much confusion over this illness? He's doing well now with Cytoxan and prednisone. — Mrs. J.P.

ANSWER: Polyarteritis is a difficult illness to pin down. It has no single outstanding symptom, but a hodgepodge of fever, weight loss, headache, abdominal pain, muscle aches — each common to dozens of other illnesses.

Furthermore, there is no lab test for it. A biopsy provides the only conclusive evidence of polyarteritis nodosa.

One thing is clear: the artery inflammation, which is what "arteritis" means. That leads to blockage of blood flow in the affected vessels.

But the artery location can vary. If it is one that feeds the heart, then symptoms would be there. Just about any organ can be a polyarteritis nodosa target.

I hope that helps explain, in part at least, the apparent confusion surrounding your father's diagnosis.

'86 accident put 'journalist in space' program on hold

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Walter Cronkite thought he might be the one.

Gazing through a space shuttle window at the brilliant blue-and-white planet below, America's "most-trusted man" might have described in that singular authoritative cadence "the way it is" - from Earth orbit. "I was terribly excited about it," Cronkite said recently from his office in New York. "I felt that I had a pretty good chance of making the selection."

Cronkite was among 1,703 journalists who had entered NASA's dream-assignment sweepstakes before space shuttle Challenger exploded Jan. 28, 1986, killing all seven crew members. The victims included Christa McAuliffe, the Concord, N.H., teacher selected to be the first ordinary American in space.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration put the Journalist-In-Space selection process on hold six months later, after Cronkite and 39 others were picked as finalists. It's been on hold ever since, and it's likely to stay there for the foreseeable future.

Ed Campion, an agency spokesman in Washington, said no thought has been given to reviving the program.

"As far as I know, that's not even on the table," he said.

Alan Ladwig, NASA's associate administrator for policy and plans, said such prospects have diminished as the agency prepares to construct the international space station. There's no room on complicated missions, such as this year's planned dockings with the Russian space station Mir, for unnecessary crew members.

"It's going to be more and more in the operations mode of getting ready for the station," Ladwig said. "Extra seats are going to be much harder to come by."

If a private citizen flies aboard the shuttle anytime soon, officials say it likely will be Barbara Morgan, the third-grade teacher from McCall, Idaho, who is designated as the next Teacher in Space.

A top-level agency committee meeting since last summer is preparing a recommendation on whether Morgan should be assigned to a shuttle mission.

Former NASA Administrator James Beggs announced in October 1985 his intention to put a journalist aboard the shuttle "not only to see all and hear all, but also to tell all."

It was something Cronkite, the former CBS anchorman, had waited years to hear.

"It seemed to me it was necessary that the public had a non-NASA-eye view of what went on out there from a trained observer, and that would be a journalist," he said.

That was the idea: a non-biased, non-technical, down-to-Earth account of what space flight is really like.

NASA commissioned a national journalism group to solicit applications. There was no age limit, but the journalist was required to pass a physical and couldn't be married to a current or former NASA employee. Jennifer McGill, executive director for the Association of Schools of Journalism and Mass Communication at the University of South Carolina, still has scores of applications crowding her office.

She said she keeps in touch with NASA officials but has heard nothing about restarting the selection process. Even if she got the word from NASA, the national search might have to start over.

All 40 finalists are living, McGill said, but many either have changed professions or are too old now to endure 7.7 million pounds of thrust while the shuttle thunders into orbit. Finalist Robert M. White II, a former Missouri newspaper publisher who now works as president of the General Douglas MacArthur Foundation, admits he's probably too old now at 79.

"The program is still valid and still should be done," White said. "The public would far better understand the role of the shuttle and the usefulness of it by putting a good reporter, any reporter, on the shuttle."

"It's a great story and I think the public would eat it up."

Beggs, the former NASA head, agreed. "If I were still there, I would certainly consider it," he said.

If NASA ever revives the project, several on the list of 40 said they were still interested, including Cronkite, now 78.

"My biggest problem would have been that I would be disappointed that I was only going into Earth orbit," he said. "I would love to go deep in space, to the moon. I'd like to get out there and get a look at our planet, our little blue planet out there in the sea of dark."

Cronkite application excerpted for release

By The Associated Press

Walter Cronkite, one of 40 finalists in NASA's Journalist-In-Space program, wrote in his 1985 application why he considered it important to allow a journalist aboard the space shuttle. Here is an excerpt from that application, released to The Associated Press with Cronkite's permission:

"I do not agree that the men and women who have gone into space are so inarticulate or so narrowly focused that they've been unable to communicate with us groundlings. ... Even before television's superb pictures, our astronauts gave us an extraordinarily vivid sense of what it is like up there.

"The principal thing the journalist can offer is to free the public of the last lingering suspicion regarding reports from those who are part of the program; to guarantee that what is reported is free from control, or pressure, or even self-interest.

"In this sense the space-flying journalist again will be performing, as have journalists through history, the role assigned him by our concept of a free press. He will be the people's surrogate, their eyes and ears (and nose, for that matter) in a situation in which the people themselves, for obvious reasons, cannot participate."

Teacher looks at space travel as opportunity for education

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - A third-grade teacher from McCall, Idaho, believes she could help refocus the nation's attention on education while pointing children toward the stars.

All she needs now is the chance. Barbara Morgan, 43, is America's designated teacher-in-space should the National Aeronautics and Space Administration decide to revive the program announced in 1984 by President Reagan.

The effort was halted nine years ago, when the space shuttle Challenger exploded less than two minutes after launch. New Hampshire teacher Christa McAuliffe and six crew mates were killed.

Morgan, who trained as McAuliffe's backup and has made thousands of speeches and appearances on behalf of NASA since 1986, remains an adamant supporter of the program and says her space voyage is long overdue.

"It's very important for teachers and students in this country that this happens," Morgan said by telephone recently from McCall-Donnelly Elementary School in Idaho. "This is a way to highlight the good things that are going on in the schools. It gets the public involved in education.

"I also think it's important for us to make commitments and stick to them," she added. "I can't tell you how many times a day I get asked ... 'When's this going to happen?' I tell them I don't know. I hope it does happen."

Morgan might not have to wonder much longer. Top NASA officials, who have discussed the issue periodically in recent years, are again talking about assigning Morgan to a shuttle flight.

NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin appointed a committee to explore the possibility last summer. Alan Ladwig, the agency's associate administrator for policy and plans, said the group is preparing its recommendation for Goldin.

Some NASA officials, including Ladwig, have openly expressed a desire to restart the program, but committee members have refused to discuss the issue publicly since they convened.

They must decide if a teacher can be accommodated within a NASA policy allowing only "mission-critical personnel" aboard the shuttle.

Former NASA Administrator James Beggs, who was in charge when Reagan announced the teacher-in-space idea, said the program came from a desire to foster science and technology education.

"The more we thought about it, the more we thought it was a good idea," Beggs said from his Virginia office.

"Kids have an intense interest in space and we thought a teacher would bring the experience home to them better than anyone. The teachers could come back ... and relate his or her experiences."

If NASA calls on her, Morgan said she's ready to go. She undergoes a physical each year at the Johnson Space Center to renew her flight status and is prepared to move her husband and two children to Houston while she trains.

"I'm hopeful that it happens," she said. "In my mind it's a very easy decision, but I'm sure if you're NASA it's not."
