Hereford police officers hope senior memories last lifetime

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The statistic mounted on the side of the bright green wrecked car sitting on the grass at Hereford High School is a sobering one -- "In the U.S., DWI kills one teen every 90 minutes."

But the wreck and its warning are on the high school grounds for a special purpose -- to try and keep any of those teens from being Hereford High seniors celebrating the end to 12 years of compulsory education.

Hereford Police Officers Carol Murray and School Resource Officer Randy Stribling placed the wreck on the grounds last week as the first wave in a battle to try and reduce the number of HHS seniors who drink and drive going to and from graduation-related events.

As of Friday, the car was still there.

The sign, however, was gone -- taken by someone who literally ripped a door handle loose to get the wooden message off the side of the vehicle.

Still, the officers' efforts will go on.

The two said Monday will mark the beginning of a week-long effort aimed at increasing awareness of the dangers -- and consequences -- of drinking and driving.

"Beginning Monday we are starting a pledge that the students sign not to drink and drive" on the nights of the Senior Banquet and Prom and on Graduation Night, said Murray.

Efforts to get the pledge into the hands of all seniors are being coordinated by the officers and several co-sponsoring agencies -- FHA, Student Crime Stoppers and the HHS Student Council.

The pledge, called a "Contract for Life," simply states that the student who signs one agrees to "celebrate prom, banquet and graduation 1995 clean and sober. I realize that mixing drinking (drugs) and driving is dangerous and can lead to my death or the death of my date or others that I may be with. In order to have enjoyable memories that will last a lifetime, I pledge to have a safe, sober and drug free prom, banquet and graduation 1995."

The officers said students signing a pledge card will be rewarded.

Murray said those students will be given coupons from a variety of local merchants.

In addition, they will be given a small card to carry with them that simply says, "HHS Seniors Memories Last a Lifetime. Please don't drive drunk or ride with a drunk driver."

Those cards will be numbered and, during the week, numbers will be called at random during morning announcements at school. The students holding that card will receive a prize.

Another activity that begins Monday will cast a less pleasant light on the subject of drinking and driving.

"Starting Monday we are pulling a (senior) student out of class every 30 minutes and marking them with a black ribbon and sending them back to class," Murray said.

The black ribbon signifies that student just "died" in an alcohol-related accident.

The student will then be asked not to talk to anybody else the rest of the day -- and hopefully the rest of the week.

The "Ghost Out," Stribling said, will be "from auto shop to honors history" and will affect all seniors in the class, regardless of race, gender, class standing, social activities or whatever.

By the end of the week, 56 students out of a graduating class of some 250 teens will have "died" in alcohol-related accidents.

On Friday, May 19, those students will be separated when the senior class meets for a special assembly to complete the week-long lesson in sobriety.

Colbern also shares McVeigh's trait of bad-mouthing the government, acquaintances said.

In Oklahoma City on Friday, the death toll in the April 19 bombing rose to 168, including 19 children.

John Youngblood, a 52-year-old safety inspector hospitalized since the blast, died of smoke inhalation.

Prosecutors have suggested the federal building was bombed to avenge the Branch Davidian cult disaster at Waco, Texas.

At the same time, investigators are looking into a possible link between Colbern and Timothy McVeigh, one of two men charged with the bombing, a senior federal official, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press in Washington.

Federal agents walked into the Oatman Hotel on Friday afternoon and showed a photo to owner Ted Tonioli and his bartender. The men told the agents they recognized Colbern, who had been in this northwest Arizona hamlet four or five months and worked as a prep cook and dishwasher.

"I walk outside and lo and behold, there he is," Tonioli said.

He signaled federal officers as Colbern bought a newspaper outside a store.

Colbern tried to pull a .38-caliber revolver from his jeans, and officers wrestled him to the ground, said Tom Nixon, chief deputy in the marshal's office in Phoenix. One marshal was slightly hurt when he fell on the sidewalk.

"The arrest of Colbern is part of a search for an associate of McVeigh who might help us clear up the mystery of John Doe No. 2," the senior official in Washington said. "We are NOT saying he is John Doe No. 2."

Investigators have a letter from McVeigh addressed to "S.C." and Colbern is thought to have used McVeigh's mailbox address in Murrah Federal Building 15 or 20 minutes before the blast, asking questions. Federal officials refused to comment.

SPS seeks PUC approval of Panhandle acquisitions

Southwestern Public Service Co. Friday filed a settlement agreement with the Public Utility Commission of Texas that supports SPS's acquisition of properties in the Texas Panhandle currently owned by Texas-New Mexico Power Co.

SPS is seeking PUCT approval of the acquisition. In the settlement, the intervening parties agree to either support approval or agree to not oppose approval. Intervenors include the staff of PUCT, the affected cities, the City of Amarillo, the State of Texas, TNP, and El Paso Electric Co.

SPS and TNP announced late last year an agreement to sell the Panhandle properties to SPS for $29.2 million. The communities involved are Spearman, Perryton, Booker, Follett, Higgins and Darroutett.

The communities involved requested the sale because of the disparity of rates between TNP and other area suppliers of electricity. As part of SPS's purchase, rates to the affected communities will immediately be reduced by 10 percent. Other rate decreases would follow over a 10-year period until the new customers are at the same rate as SPS's other customers in its Texas service area.

SPS's Gerald Diller, a vice president, said he is hopeful final approval from the PUCT can come within six weeks. The final regulatory step before the transaction can be completed is approval from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Diller said he hopes that comes before mid-summer.

SPS is a regional electric utility that primarily provides electric service to about one million people in a 52,000-square-mile area.

TEC to host farm labor training meet in Plainview

The Texas Employment Commission will host West Texas' first Farm Labor Training at the Ollie Liner Agriculture Center in Plainview on Wednesday and Thursday.

The training brings together representatives of the Texas Department of Agriculture, Internal Revenue Service, Texas Workers' Compensation Commission, Texas Department of Human Services, Texas Department of Health, the Department of Labor's Employment and Training and Wage and Hour divisions, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Stribling said those people will be placed in separate seating on stage, so that the students' peers can see who "died" in their class.

The assembly, Murray said, will start off with remarks from the officers.

"We're going to talk to them a little bit about drunk driving," she said.

After that, several students will perform skits for their peers about drinking and driving, including one about a young man and a baby killed in an alcohol-related accident.

The presence of the officers will be felt in person all week, as Murray said. "Both of us will be in the school all week for this."

The co-sponsorship by FHA is part of that group's year-long work in the school community.

The national FHA program is called FACTS, for "Families Acting for Community Traffic Safety."

The extra effort to address drinking and driving at graduation is being done, Murray said, because "Hereford doesn't think that happens here. ... But it really does."

The local labor force data will contribute to the national employment and unemployment picture to be released June 2 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This month's survey will include questions on race and ethnicity. One issue this supplement will research is whether a "multiracial" category should be added to current standards for the collection and classification of Federal data on race and ethnicity.

The training is open to employers, workers and the public. Cost to attend is a $5 registration fee.

Census Bureau to collect data

The U.S. Census Bureau will collect data on employment and unemployment from area residents the week of May 14-20, according to Alfonso Mirabal, director of the bureau's Dallas regional office.

Douglas M. Kelley, local census worker, reported this is an ongoing survey. The survey is conducted each month during the week of the 19th.

The Chamber and You

One of the highlights of the two-day training is the "Train the Trainer" course for contractors who must teach workers about pesticide handling and field re-entry laws. The Environmental Protection Agency's new Worker Protection Standards Law requires certification in this area, which can be obtained at this event.

The seminar will begin at 8 a.m. Wednesday. It will end at 5 p.m. and reconvene from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

The training is open to employers, workers and the public. Cost to attend is a $5 registration fee.

The seminar will be held in the Hereford Community Center to discuss the "Smart Jobs of Texas" program. This job force training program provides a funding source to local companies wishing to provide specialized training for existing or new job opportunities.

Mr. David Dennis, the executive director, will be here to conduct a meeting. The Panhandle Area Alliance will host the seminar with help from the Chamber of Commerce, Job Service Employer Committee, HEDC and the Texas Employment Commission.

Everyone is invited to attend. For more information or reservations, please call the Chamber office at 364-3333.

The Chamber would like to congratulate McCaslin Lumber Company on their recent presentation of the "National Small Business Achievement Award." We want to express our thanks and appreciation to the McCaslin family, to Manager Tom Lange, the entire staff and the past management for all the support and help they have provided our community. Telecommunications bill gets past Senate

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A bill to ease regulation of Texas' telecommunications industry and potentially open the door to competition for local telephone service was approved Friday by the state Senate.

The measure, which earlier passed the House, was approved on a voice vote. It returns to the House for action on Senate amendments.

"With this bill, we will be ushering in a new era in telecommunications in the state of Texas," said Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, Senate sponsor of the measure.

He said it would strengthen competition and provide a "smooth transition from a highly regulated environment to a free-market environment."

Sen. Peggy Rosson, D-El Paso, was the only one to register a vote against the measure.

"I believe Texas had a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to assume a leadership role in the world of telecommunications technology and the creation of a robust competitive telecommunications market," she said.

"Unfortunately that opportunity was lost, buried under an onslaught of special interest lobbying unlike anything seen before in Austin," she said.

During debate, Ms. Rosson decried one amendment that she said would give one company unwarranted special treatment: "It is one of these stinky, stinky, stinky little very special interests that so permeate this bill."

Ms. Rosson said the bill "purports to encourage competition, but in fact raises the barriers to entry by competitors so high that the incumbent monopolies have achieved the best of both worlds."

"They are free from the regulatory oversight of the state and free of the checks and balances that competition would provide in its stead."

Jance Briesemeister of Consumers Union also expressed disappointment in the measure, saying, "Texas now has the distinction of being the most pro-Bell and anti-competitive state in the nation."

The bill allows big long-distance companies to enter the local telephone service business if they build their own phone networks. They may buy access to the existing telephone network for only up to 40 percent of the area they serve.

Those restrictions would be eliminated if Congress allows Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and GTE Southwest Inc. to get into the long-distance business, Sibley said.

The measure would free local telephone companies from limits on their profits and loosen other regulations, while requiring them to cap basic local rates for four years.

Telecommunications companies would have to spend $1.5 billion over the next 10 years to improve the telecommunications network for schools and hospitals.

In addition, Southwestern Bell and GTE would have to install a fiber-optic network between schools and hospitals.

"I believe that within 10 years, we will have the most modern telecommunications system throughout our whole education system as exists in the world," Sibley said.

Ms. Rosson said the latter two requirements are "redeeming features."

The bill also would continue for six years the Public Utility Commission, which regulates utilities, and the Office of Public Utility Counsel, which represents residential and small commercial ratepayers.

It passed only after initially being stalled by a disagreement over affirmative action: Republicans had opposed a proposed requirement that utilities make a good-faith effort to contract with businesses that are at least 51 percent owned by minorities or women.

They finally agreed to a provision requiring utilities to report on their use of such businesses, and saying the PUC has authority to require regulated utilities to make an effort to "overcome the underuse" of such businesses.

The provision says PUC rules can't be used to discriminate against anyone, and that it wouldn't create grounds for a lawsuit.

The affirmative action dispute also had stalled a bill to partly deregulate the electric industry.

That measure by Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, passed on a voice vote after the affirmative action provision was removed. Armbrister said since the provision was in the telecommunications bill, it wasn't needed in his measure.

Armbrister's bill now goes to the House for consideration.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said the highly technical utility regulation issue was a difficult one for lawmakers.

"I don't know just how well-equipped we were, very frankly, to comprehend all of the ins and outs of these bills," he said. But he added, "I think it's a step ahead. ... The Legislature will be watching very closely now to see that the promises are kept."

Texan captures title of Miss Universe in Africa

By SEAN KELLY
Associated Press Writer

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) - Miss USA, a 21-year-old college student whose national costume honored the right of women to vote in her home country, was chosen Miss Universe 1995 early Saturday.

Cheisi Smith, of Deer Park, Texas, won over 81 other contestants in the first Miss Universe pageant held in Africa, which was broadcast to more than 600 million viewers worldwide.

Miss India, 21-year-old Manpreet Brar of New Delhi, was first runner-up and Miss Canada, 20-year-old Lana Buchberger of Calgary, Alberta, was the second runner-up.

The pageant winner receives cash and prizes worth $220,000, including an African elephant named after her. Namibian officials hope the pageant will bring global recognition and tourism worth much more than the millions of dollars it cost the cash-strapped nation to host the event.

The 44th annual Miss Universe pageant was an elaborate two-hour program featuring African imagery that included a concrete elephant, giraffes and a waterfall on stage with flashy dance numbers.

Sweden's Petra Hultgren was voted Miss Photogenic in preliminary judging Monday, while Maria Reyes of Spain won Best National Costume. Miss Nigeria, Toyin Enitan Raji, won Miss Congeniality.

Last-minute set construction brought complaints of excessive dust and noise from organizers and some of the 82 contestants. At the preliminary judging, guests picked their way through construction rubble and sat on plastic chairs in front of the elaborate stage to be used for the television program.

Happy Mother's Day to all the moms out there! We hope "your day" is made special by those you love.

Since Mother's Day is Sunday, it means Father's Day will come along in about a month. Both parents make unique contributions in the development of a child. Sometimes, there are conflicts when a parent insists that his or her approach is "right."

We ran across a book review which outlines the gender differences in child rearing. Written by Tine Thevenin, "Mothering and Fathering" explores the way mothers and fathers approach parenting, and it is designed to help parents work together in raising happy and well-adjusted children.

The author says mothers are the Nurturers, usually content to allow young children to be more interdependent. They treasure intimacy, closeness, and being connected. Fathers are the Encouragers, usually striving to encourage children to be independent, to challenge themselves and the world.

For example:

When a child cries:

*A mother will usually pick them up, teaching them to experience intimacy.

*A father will more often wait to see if a child will stop on their own, teaching them to experience independence.

When a child is climbing a tree:

*A mother is more apt to caution him or her to "be careful," teaching them to take care of themselves.

*A father is more apt to say, "I'm right here. Can you go one limb higher?" teaching them to challenge themselves.

When a child is trying to accomplish a task:

*Fathers are more likely to instruct children, teaching them how to take directions.

*Mothers are more likely to make suggestions, teaching them how to solve problems on their own.

When a child converses:

*A mother's general style of communication, stressing interaction and closeness over content, teaches children to use conversation to connect emotionally.

*The father's style of conversation, more geared towards the exchange of information, teaches children how to use verbal communication to convey a specific idea.

When a child plays a game:

*The father will often ask, "did you win?" or "did you play well" teaching the child to value success and achievement.

*The mother will often ask, "did you have fun?" teaching the child to value fun and enjoyment over competitiveness.

So, celebrate your mother or father's unique contribution this year on Mother's Day, Father's Day...and every day!

To prove that some things may not be what they seem, we pass along an article we borrowed from another editor's column:

It seems this guy walked into the doctor's office and told the receptionist he had shingles. She took his name, address, medical insurance information and had him take a seat.

Later, a nurse's aide came out and asked him what he had.

"Shingles."

She gave him a blood test, an electrocardiogram and took his blood pressure, and he was told to take off all his clothes and the doctor would be in shortly.

Finally, the doc came in and asked what he had.

"Shingles."

The doc asked where.

"Outside in the truck. Where do you want 'em?"

Cockleburs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

Driving down a country road in Texas can be an exercise in finger-wagging.

It's a friendly gesture on rural roads to raise two fingers in salute to approaching vehicles. Even if you don't have the slightest idea who is in the car or pickup, it's just neighborliness to raise two fingers off the steering wheel and wiggle them.

That's tantamount to saying "Howdy." And, it isn't unusual for complete strangers to voice that greeting.

Going into or out of stores, when you come face to face with another human being, it just seems the friendly thing to do. To say hello.

Friendliness is supposed to be a personality trait peculiar to Texans. The very name of the state evokes friendliness.

For those who have forgotten, the word Texas is an offshoot of Tejas, the Spanish pronunciation of a Caddo Indian word meaning "friends."

That learned book of information, Texas Almanac, provides this insight into our heritage. Even the word "Texan" was derived from "Texian," which was the way early-day settlers referred to themselves.

And, the state's motto is "Friendship."

Some years ago, there was a move afoot to put a derivation of the state motto on vehicle license plates. You know, like "The Grand Canyon State" on Arizona plates; "Land of Enchantment," New Mexico; "The Peach State," Georgia, or "Oklahoma is O.K."

Anyhow, with the suggestion that "The Friendly State" be inscribed on Texas license plates, a hue and cry was heard across the land. It wasn't a real friendly situation.

Frankly, I thought it would be just fine. Our license plates had been so blah for so long that I thought anything would be an improvement.

The time frame for all this is hazy in my memory (you know the saying, the mind is the first thing to go) but it has not been too many years ago.

The upshot was whoever plumped for The Friendly State was shot down by the Lone Star State faction and that's where we are today.

Even with the emigration of Yankees to Texas, especially during World War II and later as northerners sought warmer climates, friendliness has continued to be the norm. First generation Texans gradually catch on.

Searching back in my memory again, it seems to me that the two-finger wave was basically the prerogative of the menfolks during my childhood. Riding to the farm with my father or grandfather was a treat because we saw so many different people they could wave to.

Every car we met had a driver who either initiated or responded the two-finger wave. Inevitably, I asked who the other driver was. I was perplexed indeed when the answer was "I don't know."

Interestingly, I don't remember ever seeing a female member of the family wagging fingers at oncoming motorists. Further, I don't think I ever asked why they didn't. Somewhere in the recesses of my mind, there must have been the conclusion that only men could wave at people they didn't even know. Maybe it was too "forward" for women to wave that way.

To this day, I have observed the custom on rural roads. Apparently, the practice has been handed down from generation to generation in the country.

Of course, it's hard to say if the custom has split over to the state's super highways.

One of the problems with wiggling fingers of greeting is the four-lane highways separate us from approaching vehicles.

If you can't see the drivers, why wave?

...And you thought parachuting was tough!

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Now I don't have to parachute, hike the Amazon or climb Mount Ararat.

Well, on to other things.

This came across the AP wire the other day and I'm sure you'll react much like I did.

Seems some lobbyist for the Motion Picture Association of America has found the cause of all America's ills.

No, it's not the bombardment on television of messages about sex, smoking, drinking, lack of respect, or whatever.

And, no, it isn't a decaying of moral values brought on by an attitude of "I want what I want when I want it."

And it is not because of the removal of moral values from society.

No, what Van Stevenson says is that the sexual revolution, riots and campus unrest of the 1960s that has led to the morally-bankrupt climate of today was caused by those horrible televisions shows of the 1960s and 1970s -- you know, such terrible things as "Captain Kangaroo," "Father Knows Best," "The Donna Reed Show," "Ozzie and Harriet" and others.

This genius claims that there is no evidence that taking sex and violence out of movies would have any impact on society, and that, in fact, the generation that watched those shows as kids went on to be rebels of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Absolute drivel, right?

Completely insane, right?

Something that no individual in his right mind would believe, right?

Wrong!

The California Legislature apparently read this man's letter, then watered down a bill criticizing violence in children's programming.

The bill that passed just asked the TV industry to take "positive steps" to reverse the current trend of sex and violence on TV, rather than a full ban.

Unfortunately for him, waiting there were police officers, who traced the call to his cellular phone and arrested him.

Just another example of what to do when you turn your brain off for the afternoon!

Well, that's it for this week.

Have a good week and remember, just because you don't agree with a law is no reason not to obey it.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

With or without the Premium Standard Farms plant, Hereford and Deaf Smith County is a good place to live. As a relative newcomer here, I can say that with a degree of objectivity.

There are good people here with good ideas and a desire to make life better here. Sure, there are problems to be solved. But there is no evidence that I can see that would deny the want or the need to improve life in Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Now is the time for good people in a good place with good ideas to take the time and make the effort to reconcile the past and move forward.

This particular spot in the Texas Panhandle is special now. It's greatest asset is its people. Count your blessings!

Betty Wolle

Dear Editor:

A total of 62 boys' and girls' basketball teams, representing approximately 850-900 athletes from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Colorado, competed in over 140 games in the 4th annual Cuby Kitchens(AAU) Basketball Tournament, April 27-30. With more than 90 youth from Hereford participating, the tourney was the largest to date, and unfortunately more than 30 teams were refused entry due to gym availability ad scheduling time.

A tourney of this magnitude was not successful without the support of Hereford Independent School District and the two athletic directors-Danny Haney and Brenda Reeh. The Hereford Sports Association also extends a special thanks to the YMCA board and Weldon Knabe for the privilege of using their facility.

HSA is indebted to High Country Chevrolet dealers, especially Stevens Chevrolet-Olds for their corporate sponsorship of this year's tournament.

A heartfelt thanks is also offered to the Chamber of Commerce, to parents of the Hereford players, and to all Hereford basketball fans who volunteered their time to keep a scorebook, keep time, or work at an admission table.

HSA appreciates the businesses who had ads in the program, and Dennis Hicks and XIT Cellular for providing phones at each location. The tourney promotion by the Hereford Brand and KPAN was appreciated and the coverage has been and is always valued.

Again, HSA sincerely thanks Hereford and the individuals for the support that this tourney has received in the past four years.

Hereford Sports Assn., Steve Hodges, President

Dear Editor:

It comes to mind that we could improve the image of the hospital by simply making the business one that is customer oriented and not run like a government bureaucracy.

If Wal-Mart had a sign in the parking lot like our hospital has, "Employees only, all others will be towed," I don't think Sam would be proud of the message it sends. I believe most businesses actively seeking the consumer do not give preferred parking to the employees and ask the customers to park blocks away.

The best parking and best service should go to the guests and customers. They pay the bills. Let's change our attitude about those who use the hospital and treat them like the valued customers they are.

Start with the parking and follow throughout the organization. People have a choice when it comes to health care and it could make a difference.

Thank you,
Tim Gear

House TV getting less-than-rave reviews

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - When House officials unveiled a plan to provide tax-funded news programming to TV stations, the idea was touted as a way to help Texans keep an eye on what lawmakers are doing.

Four months into the project, many stations aren't using the programming, and critics contend taxpayers are footing the $52,000 bill for a needless service.

Others, including some television executives whose stations have used the service, say tax money is being used to subsidize the news business.

"As a TV news director, I'm all for it (the service). But as a taxpayer, I say it shouldn't be subsidized," said Kevin Lovell, news director for KVIA-TV in El Paso.

John Bender, director of the House communications division, said the broadcasts are designed to help TV stations expand legislative coverage, particularly smaller stations or those located far from Austin.

"We want people to understand what goes on in the Legislature, and the best way to do that is making it easier for the news media to do their job," Bender said.

The House has offered news programming via satellite since the Legislature's opening day on Jan. 10. The daily, 30-minute feed is produced, narrated, written, filmed and edited by House staffers.

It consists mostly of video footage of committee or floor action, but it also includes stories on specific issues. The stories are reported by Debbi Head, a former Houston TV reporter and anchor now on the House payroll.

The House budgeted $52,500 to cover the cost of the satellite time and Ms. Head's salary, prompting criticism over the use of tax money for the project.

"They're doing a half-hour satellite feed every day, and the taxpayers of Texas are paying for it. It's ridiculous," said Jim Moore, Austin bureau chief for Houston's KHOU-TV. "I find myself having to compete against state government when I'm covering a story."

His station, which does not use the service, keeps a crew in Austin year-round. For the five-month legislative session, the cost of maintaining a crew is about $200,000, Moore said.

Moore said he also was concerned about objectivity since the programming features only lawmakers and their viewpoints.

"We essentially have a Legislature covering the Legislature," he said.

Bender said all sides of an issue are brought out through video of the floor debates. "There's no one trying to influence what goes on," he said.

Ann Arnold, executive director of the Texas Association of Broadcasters, said the House service is similar to the government issuing a written news release, which also would come out of taxpayers' pockets.

"In terms of the benefit of open government, it's certainly something that I feel is a valuable activity for government to do," she said.

Ms. Arnold, who worked with House officials in developing the programming, said it is needed to help inform the public about the goings-on of state government.

"Seven out of 10 Texans get their news about what's going on from broadcasting ... Most cannot afford to have a crew down here actually covering the Legislature," she said.

Ms. Head, who worked in commercial television news for 12 years before joining the House staff, likened the television service to a wire service.

"It is a news service, just like any others ... only it's for broadcasters," she said, adding that criticism is expected with any new idea.

More than 130 stations have access to the broadcasts and may use them at no cost. In addition, stations may pay a $500 fee for special requests, such as interviews with hometown legislators.

Bender said his staff surveyed 65 television stations and found 30 had used programming.

Seventeen stations paid the $500 fee for special requests, but not all have used the service, according to station officials.

Nine of the 17 satellite subscribers were interviewed for this story. Three had never used the House footage or requested an interview. Four said they used the material five times or fewer, and two stations said they use the footage about once a week.

El Paso's Lovell said his station has used the service five times and only to request interviews. The other material hasn't even been monitored, he said.

Martha Solis, news director for KWEX-TV in San Antonio, said her station hasn't used the programming because it arrives between 4:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. - too late for the 5 p.m. newscast.

"We haven't used it at all because of that reason, receiving it too late," Ms. Solis said. But, she added, "I think it's a great source for stations such as ourselves."

Of the nine stations, Lubbock's KLBK-TV reported using the House material most often - about once or twice a week. News Director Sally Post said the service helped the station improve legislative coverage.

"I think we have run more than if we just had straight (written) copy," Ms. Post said.

The stations that had used the footage used either raw video or had requested interviews. Just one station had used a news package. Bender said that of the 65 stations his staff interviewed, most also were using straight video rather than the reporting packages.

Station officials said they liked the service and didn't mind paying the $500 interview request fee because it's inexpensive compared to hiring a freelancer or dispatching their own crews to Austin.

But the rate concerned others.

John Gudjohnsen, news manager for WFAA-TV in Dallas, said the $500 fee is "an extremely cheap rate." He said hiring a freelance crew consisting of a cameraman and production assistant would cost about $600 a day.

"Someone is subsidizing the balance of that, and I'm afraid it's the taxpayers of Texas," said Gudjohnsen. "I understand the budget limitations of small stations, but it's an equity issue and it's who's toting the note."

Gudjohnsen said WFAA has used the House footage as a backup source. The station is not one of the 17 subscribers.

John Marshall, an Austin freelance photographer who has covered the past three legislative sessions, said he has lost at least one job to the House TV service.

"With the tax dollars that I pay, I'm financing my eventual demise," Marshall said.

Bender said the interview fee was set low because, "It was a new service. Broadcasters didn't really know what to expect."

Bender said he didn't know whether the service would be offered during the 1997 session because House officials are looking into televising floor debates live on cable stations statewide. The live broadcasts began this month in Austin.

"We went into this knowing this was just an initial step toward making coverage of legislative sessions more available," Bender said. "It was a small interim step in that direction."

UT professor gets task of defending bombing suspect

By KEVIN O'HANLON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - A University of Texas law professor named to represent Oklahoma City bombing suspect Terry Nichols on Friday promised a "vigorous" defense for his client.

"I took an oath as a lawyer that says when I'm appointed, I should respond," said Michael Tigar of Austin. "The case should be vigorously defended so the truth can come out."

Tigar, 54, is a professor of constitutional law and a death penalty specialist at the UT School of Law.

Tigar was appointed to defend Nichols by U.S. Magistrate Ronald Howland of Oklahoma City after two Kansas public defenders who had been appointed to the case asked to withdraw.

Tigar said he will meet with Nichols in Oklahoma City on Monday and expects to help the court choose a second defense attorney, which is required in federal death penalty cases.

"I would expect we'll have another lawyer in board by next week," he said. "I've been talking to some folks with whom I have had some experience" about acting as co-counsel in the case.

Tigar, who finished first in his law school class at the University of California at Berkeley, declined to say which colleagues he had talked to.

Tigar, who has tried some nationally renowned cases, said he will not succumb to the crush of media attention surrounding the Oklahoma City bombing.

"The justice system does not benefit from lawyers who try their cases in the media," he said. "I don't expect to try this case in the media."

Tigar has helped win acquittals of defendants as diverse as revolutionist Angela Davis in the slaying of a California state judge and U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, a Texas Republican charged with abusing her former office as state treasurer.

He also represented John Demjanjuk, who was accused of being "Ivan the Terrible" at a Nazi death camp.

Tigar also helped file a lawsuit on behalf of the Philippine government against former President Ferdinand Marcos for allegedly using his government's money to purchase properties in the United States.

He also helped represent the "Chicago Seven," who were accused of trying to disrupt the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Twain book comes together once more in Buffalo library

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - At last, the Twains have met.

After a century-long journey almost as strange as Huck Finn's odyssey down the Mississippi, the handwritten manuscript of Mark Twain's great American novel found a home Friday.

Separated for more than 100 years, the two halves of the manuscript for "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" were reunited as the centerpiece of the Buffalo and Erie County Public Library's Mark Twain Room.

The library had hoped to open the Twain memorial a year ago, but budget and construction problems delayed completion of the $190,000 exhibit.

Twain, who worked in Buffalo as a newspaper editor from 1870 to 1872, sent the manuscript's second half to the library shortly after the novel was published in 1884 in response to a request from library trustee James Fraser Gluck.

The Mark Twain Room opens to the public Saturday, with parts of the 1,361-page manuscript on display.

Herd tennis pairs fall at state meet

Both of Hereford's doubles teams which competed in the UIL State Tennis Tournament in Austin lost in the quarterfinal round Friday.

The Hereford girls pair of Paige Robbins and Natalie McWhorter played three sets before falling to Leann Trewit and Kara Koenig of West Columbia, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

The Hereford boys duo, Pete Vargas and B.J. Lockmiller, fell 6-1, 6-1 to Tyler Lee and Travis Lee of San Antonio Alamo Heights.

Both Hereford entries went to Austin as the runners-up in Region I. The Lees from Alamo Heights were the champions of Region IV, and the West Columbia girls were the champions of Region III.

West Columbia is located about 60 miles south of Houston.

Another player from District 1-4A who was competing at the state tournament, Emily Johnson of Dumas, also lost in the quarterfinals. She bowed out to Jill Brasseaux of West Columbia, 6-2, 6-3.

Included in Mickey Mantle's 536 home runs were six inside the park.

The distance from a major league dugout to the foul line has to be at least 25 feet.

Hereford kids excel at rodeo

Several Hereford area youngsters did well at a junior rodeo recently at Acuff.

Amy Northcutt, Rodey Wilson and Monty Lewis all earned reserve all-around status in their respective age groups.

In the 8-under girls division, Northcutt won the pole bending event and took third in the barrels.

In 9-12 boys, Wilson won the calf touching and steer stopping events and was sixth in breakaway roping.

In 13-15 boys, Lewis captured second place in two events: ribbon roping and breakaway roping.

Other Hereford youngsters who places were:

Ike Blasingame, fifth in breakaway roping in 13-15 boys.

Kip Kendrick, third in team roping in 13-15 boys.

David Merrell, second in team roping in 16-19 boys.

Dallas Thomas, fifth in goat tying and 10th in poles in 8-under girls.

Ryan Thomas, 10th in both barrels and goat tying in 13-15 girls.

Jennifer Merrell, third in breakaway roping in 13-15 girls.

John Wilson, fifth in pole bending in 16-19 girls.

Bowling champions

A quintet of Hereford bowlers won the 54th annual Amarillo Bowling Association City Tournament. The victorious bowlers (left to right) are Steve Brock, Gary Ruckman, Roy Blevins and David Green. A fifth member of the team, Lowell Rusher, is not pictured. Ruckman's scratch series of 806 was the highest, and he won a belt buckle for that. Green won first place in all-events with a handicap score of 2,074.

Orlando fights back for victory over Bulls, takes 2-1 series lead

By RICK GANO
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - The United Center was thunderous at the beginning. Michael Jordan, back in familiar No. 23, flouting league rules, had the crowd charged and frenzied by hitting his first five shots.

It was just like old times. So it seemed.

The Orlando Magic, a young team in its first-ever best-of-7 series, fell behind in those early stages - but never apart.

Keeping their composure and later playing like the more experienced team in the final minutes, the Magic produced a 110-101 victory their general manager sees as the biggest in franchise history.

"I don't know if you can mature overnight or between games, but this was a step in the right direction," said general manager Pat Williams.

"I think we'll look back years from now and see that this was a unique and special game."

Orlando's victory put the Magic back ahead 2-1 and restored the homecourt advantage squandered in Game 2. Game 4 is Sunday in the United Center.

"We've matured a lot," said Orlando's Nick Anderson, who scored 22 points. "We showed a lot of poise. They came out blistering, but we stayed with it and we stayed in it. It's a good sign for us."

The Bulls thought it was a good sign when Jordan scored 31 points in the first half while wearing No. 23 for the second straight game and risking more fines for the team.

Jordan wore No. 23 while leading the Bulls to NBA titles in 1991, 1992 and 1993, but switched to 45 after coming out of retirement.

After a poor performance in Game 1 of this series, including two crucial turnovers in the closing seconds, Jordan changed back to No. 23, the number that was retired last November, and scored 38.

The league fined the Bulls

$25,000, saying Jordan couldn't change uniform numbers on a whim without prior approval and promised to impose more sanctions if Jordan didn't switch back.

He didn't. And he didn't score much in the second half, either, getting just nine points to finish with 40.

And as in Game 1, he had trouble in the stretch, fouling Anfernee Hardaway on a 3-point field goal attempt with 1:38 left, losing the ball 15 seconds later to former teammate Horace Grant and then missing on a drive when he was apparently fouled, but didn't get the call.

The Magic scored the final nine points, all on free throws.

Shaquille O'Neal had 28 points and was 8-for-10 from the free throw line. Jordan finished 15-for-31 from the field after making seven of his first nine attempts.

Bob Bigson of the Cardinals started 303 consecutive games from 1965 to 1975.

In a 1970 game, Frank Robinson of the Orioles drove in eight runs in successive innings.

Vince Lombardi was 45 when he got his first head coaching job above the high school level.

Balanced Laker attack overwhelms Robinson

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - The Los Angeles Lakers featured Nick Van Exel popping from outside, Vlade Divac scoring and rebounding inside, and Cedric Ceballos finally making his shots.

The San Antonio Spurs had David Robinson, and not much else.

Van Exel scored 25 points and had eight assists, Divac contributed 14 points and 13 rebounds, and Ceballos added 22 points Friday night as the Lakers beat the Spurs 92-85 to trim San Antonio's playoff lead to 2-1.

Robinson was practically a one-man show for the Spurs, scoring 34 points and grabbing 13 rebounds. Sean Elliott had 16 points, but the other three starters scored a combined eight points - three each by Dennis Rodman and Avery Johnson, and two by Vinny Del Negro.

The fourth game of the best-of-7 Western Conference semifinals is at the Forum on Sunday.

"I think the rest did us good," Lakers coach Del Harris said, referring to the days off after Monday's overtime loss at San Antonio. "Now we play again in 36 hours, but so do they, so it's an equalizer. That's fair."

The Spurs got off to a miserable start, scoring just 11 points in the first quarter to trail by 17 at the end of the period. They got no closer than six points the rest of the way, and every time they threatened, the Lakers spurted away again.

"They put us back on our heels and we just couldn't get in it," San Antonio coach Bob Hill said. "We didn't shoot the ball well. We'll be doing a lot of shooting in practice and see if we can't do better on Sunday."

The Spurs, 5-for-20 in the first quarter, shot 38 percent for the game to the Lakers' 44 percent.

Robinson said, "We're not doing what we need to do. ... We need to play as a team. Dennis Rodman needs to get 20 rebounds, and we need shots from outside."

"If we win Game 4, they're in a lot of trouble. If they win, we have our work cut out for us."

Els moves up to second in Byron Nelson Classic

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Ernie Els had modest expectations.

"I just wanted to make the cut," he said Friday. "I was 1 under in the first round and I knew the cut would be lower than that and I'd have to play pretty well."

"I just wanted to go out and play a good round. I just wanted to give myself some opportunities."

He did much better than that, producing a score that has been bettered only 11 times in the history of the PGA Tour.

His bogey-free, 9-under-par 61 at Cottonwood Valley lifted the rangy

South African into a share of the 36-hole lead in the $1.3 million GTE-Byron Nelson Classic.

At 130, 10 under par after playing one round on Cottonwood and another at the TPC at Four Seasons, Els shared the top spot with Robin Freeman.

Freeman also played his second round at Cottonwood under the format that has the field playing one round on each of the two courses before the final two rounds at the TPC.

Freeman, who has yet to win in a 5-year career, also played without a bogey and posted a 5-under-par 65.

Dodgers' Nomo struggles in error-filled game

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

If success is measured by fewest hits allowed, Hideo Nomo had a great debut at Dodger Stadium. If it's measured on a broader scale, Nomo was so-so.

The Japanese right-hander had a no-hitter through four innings Friday, but it certainly wasn't a thing of beauty. Nomo walked seven, threw a wild pitch and had a balk, yet there was still a big "0" on scoreboard where the St. Louis Cardinals' hits were totaled.

It stayed that way until the sixth inning, well after Nomo had been lifted for a pinch-hitter, and the Los Angeles Dodgers went on to beat St. Louis 8-4 Friday night.

Nomo's first start at Dodger Stadium was anything but an ordinary night. There were 175 media credentials issued, including 85 for the Japanese press, and the game was televised live back to Japan.

"I was never strained, even though tonight was my debut. Because of our clubhouse, it's a good atmosphere and a lot of fun, so I wasn't nervous at all," he said.

The first pitch Nomo threw in warmups sailed over the head of the catcher and slammed into the screen behind home plate. Nomo's control improved very little after that, and the Cardinals scored their first three runs without getting a hit.

Nomo's wildness must have had an effect on the fielders, too, as the teams combined for 12 errors. Two of them came on one play that gave Los Angeles the lead for good in the fourth.

"This was, I hope, the ugliest game I've ever seen. I don't want to see another one like it," Cardinals manager Joe Torre said.

In other games, Colorado beat Florida 10-6, Philadelphia beat Houston 5-2, Cincinnati beat Atlanta 5-4 in 11 innings, Montreal beat New York 9-6, Pittsburgh beat San Francisco 9-4 and Chicago beat San Diego 8-4.

Nomo ended up with his third straight no-decision. He struck out five and threw 94 pitches. His only at-bat resulted in a strikeout. Todd Williams (2-0) earned the victory with two scoreless innings of relief, allowing just one of St. Louis' five hits.

Los Angeles went ahead 4-3 with two outs in the fourth. Delino DeShields walked and stole second before Danny Jackson's (0-3) pickoff throw went into center field and the return throw by Ray Lankford sailed past third base, allowing DeShields to cross the plate.

The Dodgers broke the game open with two runs in the fifth and another two in the sixth on Raul Mondesi's fifth home run.

Rockies 10, Marlins 6

At Miami, Vinny Castilla went 4-for-5 with two home runs and six RBIs, giving him 18 RBIs in his last 21 at-bats and a .536 average over the last seven games.

Larry Walker homered for the fourth time in five games for the Rockies, who won their fourth straight game. The Marlins dropped their sixth in a row and fell to 0-8 this season at Joe Robbie Stadium.

Bill Swift (1-0) scattered six hits over five innings and left with a 6-2 lead. Florida starter Mark Gardner (0-4) lasted five innings, giving up six runs and nine hits.

Phillies 5, Astros 2

At Houston, Curt Schilling (3-0) shut down an offense that averaged eight runs per game on its recent nine-game road trip.

Schilling struck out eight, scattered seven hits and walked two in 7 2-3 innings, and Heathcliff Slocumb pitched a perfect ninth for his sixth save.

Darren Daulton hit a two-run double and the Phillies had 12 hits to win for the eighth time in their last 10 games.

Doug Drabek (1-2) took the loss for the Astros, who gave away all 34,350 tickets for free. Only 30,828 people showed up.

Expos 9, Mets 6

At New York, Jeff Fassero (4-0) became the first four-game winner in the NL, scattering nine hits in six innings with two walks and six strikeouts.

The Expos had eight extra-base hits, seven off Jason Jacome (0-3). One of those was a three-run homer by Mike Lansing, his first of the year.

Bobby Bonilla had two home runs, one batting lefty and one righty.

Reds 5, Braves 4, 11 innings

At Atlanta, Ron Gant hit a home run in the 11th inning of his first game against his former team, giving the Reds their sixth straight victory.

Tigers' Groom gets first win vs. Texas

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

They say that everything in baseball balances out eventually. That must be, because how else to explain Buddy Groom and Mike Butcher?

Groom finally earned his first major league victory Friday night. It took a long time, too - exactly 77 games and 119 2-3 innings.

"It's a weight off my shoulders. Now, I need to string a few together," Groom, who'd been 0-9 in his career, said after pitching the Detroit Tigers past Texas 6-1.

Butcher, meanwhile, got one out in California's 3-2 win over Kansas City and got credit for the victory. That made him 4-0 this season - and he's pitched a grand total of seven innings.

"He's a vulture," joked Angels starter Chuck Finley, who went seven innings and wound up with a no-decision. "We're going to get a couple of telephone poles and strike a wire across them for Butcher to sit on until the next time he pitches."

In other games, Seattle stopped Chicago 6-4, New York beat Boston 12-2, Cleveland downed Baltimore 3-2, Milwaukee defeated Toronto 14-5 and Minnesota beat Oakland 9-5.

Groom was winless in his first 11 starts and 65 relief appearances. The Tigers stuck with him, however, and he showed why against the Rangers, holding them to one hit in 5 2-3 scoreless innings.

The win came a day after he left the team and returned to his Dallas home to be with his wife, Angela, for the birth of the couple's second child. Groom (1-1) rejoined the Tigers when they came to Texas.

Kirk Gibson went 2-for-4 and drove in two runs for the Tigers.

Kevin Tapani (0-3) failed in his fourth start to win his first game in the AL. He walked six of the 19 batters he faced. Overall, Texas pitchers have walked 44 in five games.

Brewers 14, Blue Jays 5

Milwaukee scored 10 runs in its last two innings and blew past the visiting Blue Jays.

Joe Oliver had his first four-hit game since 1989. He hit an RBI single during a five-run seventh that made it 9-4, and doubled during a five-run eighth.

Jose Valentin tripled, doubled and singled, and Darryl Hamilton drove in three runs. Toronto's Devon White homered off the first pitch of the game, the 26th leadoff home run of his career.

Mike Ignasiak (2-0) was the winner and Danny Darwin (1-1) was the loser.

Twins 9, Athletics 5

Even with Kirby Puckett and Chuck Knoblauch going a combined 1-for-10, Minnesota had too much for Oakland at the Metrodome.

Rookie Scott Stahoviak had three hits and Marty Cordova had a two-run double during a four-run third inning that finished Dave Stewart (2-2).

Kevin Tapani (1-1) got the second win by a Twins starter this season. The rotation began the day with a 1-8 record and an 8.48 ERA.

Angels 3, Royals 2

Pinch-hitter Spike Owen blooped a two-out double in the ninth that drove in the go-ahead run at Kansas City. California sent the Royals to their fourth straight loss, their longest skid since they began 0-5 in 1993.

Gary DiSarcina and Tony Phillips drew walks in the ninth from Billy Brewer (0-1). After Rusty Meacham relieved, Owen batted for Damion Easley and dropped a double down the left-field line. Lee Smith closed for his sixth save.

Tim Raines of the White Sox tied an AL record with his 32nd straight successful steal. He matched the mark shared by Willie Wilson and Julio Cruz; Vince Coleman holds the major league record with 50.

A throwing error by shortstop Craig Grebeck led to three unearned runs in the first inning.

Mariners 6, White Sox 4

Randy Johnson struck out 11 in seven innings as Seattle stopped Chicago's eight-game winning streak at the Kingdome.

Johnson (3-0) gave up one run and five hits. He has a 1.04 ERA this season. Edgar Martinez and Tino Martinez homered for the Mariners, who had lost three in a row.

Rookie Ray Durham had four hits and drove in three runs for the White Sox, who had won three straight.

Red Wing fans bring octopus tossing to Texas

By DAN SHINE

The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS - Cubs' fans at Chicago's Wrigley Field toss back an opposing team's home-run ball.

Florida State football fans do the "tomahawk chop," Texas A&M students kiss their dates after touchdowns, and Texas Tech backers sling tortillas.

But fans of the Detroit Red Wings - who play the Dallas Stars on Thursday night at Reunion Arena - may have the oddest tradition: Red Wings rooters throw a dead octopus onto the ice for good luck during playoff games.

"We've had a lot of fun with it over the years," said Detroitite Pete Cusimano, who threw out the first octopus 43 years ago. "It's become a big thing. People are throwing them all over."

The mollusk toss has landed in Dallas before. At a Red Wings-Stars game last season, seven of the tentacled creatures splattered onto the ice during the game. This year, a couple of more have appeared.

That count will probably rise Thursday, when the first-round playoff series resumes at Reunion. The Red Wings' battle cry for the post-season is "A Call to Arms." (Get it?)

Transplanted Detroit fans are sure to answer the call and let the octopi fly. And when they do, Michael Handal will be there to clean up the mess.

Handal is on the Reunion Arena ice maintenance crew, known affectionately as the "rink rats."

"I had a ball last year at that Detroit game," Handal said of his octopus retrieval. "I twirled it over my head. It was a thrill."

The tradition began during the 1952 playoffs between Detroit and the Montreal Canadiens. Before the National Hockey League expanded, it took only eight victories to win the Stanley Cup. In 1952, the Wings had already beaten Toronto four straight and had won the first two games against Montreal.

"At the time, my brother Jerry and I were in the fish business and we were rabid hockey fans," Cusimano said. "We were putting out a display of seafood and my brother said, 'Pete, why don't we throw this octopus out on the ice tonight. Eight legs, eight straight.'"

So after the Wings scored the first goal in Game 3 of that series, Cusimano gave the octopus a heave-ho iceward. The significance was not immediately apparent to the crowd, players or referees.

"The linesman reached down to pick it up, and he pulled back and said, 'What the hell is that?'" Cusimano said with a laugh. "Then one of the Wings hit it with his stick, and it kind of moved, and the guy jumped. He thought it was still alive."

If some thought Cusimano's octopus idea was half-baked, they were wrong. It actually was half-boiled.

That's the best condition for flinging, he said. Otherwise, the slimy cephalopod is difficult to grip.

"If you boil it, the tentacles roll up and harden, and it changes color from an ugly gray to a nice maroon," he said. "Then you fling it sidearm, like a guy throwing a hand grenade in those old war movies."

So far, 21 octopi have rained down on the Detroit ice in the first two games against the Stars. All but one of those enlisted to scoop up the octopi have done so with their bare hands. The one who used a paper towel Tuesday night was booted.

Handal has handled most of the octopi and squid (an acceptable replacement if the grocery store runs out of octopus) that have landed on the Reunion ice. And he does it with bare fingers.

"I'm not squeamish with that a bit," said Handal, a 23-year-old student at the University of North Texas. "It's fish. It's gooey and smells like hell, but it's just fish."

The few grocery stores around town that carry the sea creatures have not noticed a rush on octopus or squid. The going rate for octopus is about $3.68 per pound, retail.

Before you rush out to the store, remember that if you toss an octopus, Reunion security may toss you.

"Technically, if you throw something on the ice, you're removed and are subject to arrest," said Jeff Cogen, the Stars' vice president for advertising and promotion.

But Cogen said that unless an octopus-tossing fan endangers a player or fan, he or she may simply get a stern lecture by security.

Because the toss from the upper deck of Detroit's Joe Louis Arena is more difficult than it was at the Wings' old home, some in the front rows have been hit by an octopus thrown by a weak-armed fan.

And although fans in Detroit love the tradition, the Red Wings' management has not always embraced the rite.

One Red Wings' coach contended that the bombardment sapped his team's momentum in a crucial playoff loss. A Detroit newspaper even printed some recipes for squid and octopus in an attempt to get fans to hang on to the mollusks.

In previous Reunion games between the Stars and Red Wings, Detroit fans usually waited until late in the game to throw their cephalopod of choice. That way, even if they got kicked out, they saw most of the game.

"I would not have wanted to be sitting next to those guys for the whole game," Handal said. "When we'd go pick them off the ice, we'd put them in a bucket and - oh, my gosh - they were stinking. They were horrible."

Cusimano is pleased that his tradition has caught on in Dallas. He said he enjoys the notoriety that goes with being the originator of the octopus toss.

He is the subject of a Trivial Pursuit question, and there is a T-shirt with his likeness on the body of an octopus.

"I never figured that it'd be around for 43 years," Cusimano said with a laugh. "or that it'd be this big."

Cusimano wondered whether Dallas had developed a hockey tradition during its two years in Texas. When the Stars were based in Minnesota, a fan threw a mackerel - that state's official fish - onto the ice.

Hmmm, let's see. An armadillo has nine bands ...

Cowboys on media's back burner

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - We've been much too busy lately dodging tornadoes, hail, and lightning to fret about the Dallas Cowboys, haven't we?

Other things have occupied the worry chambers of our cerebral process.

There's been the big sweat of trying to get the Houston Rockets into the second round of the NBA playoffs, wondering if the Dallas Stars were going to make the NHL playoffs without their star center, Mike Modano, and taking bets that David Robinson will take the San Antonio Spurs to the top.

Texan Ben Crenshaw won the Masters and former Southern Methodist star Payne Stewart earned his first victory in three years by taking the Shell Houston Open. Up next, the Byron Nelson and the Colonial National Invitation. There's been a lot of golf to think about.

Then the baseball season opened with the Houston Astros and Texas Rangers finally getting on the field to boos and mixed reviews. We had to see what was going on with these two teams.

Then came a game of avoid the thunderstorm, an annual rite of Texas in the spring.

The Cowboys have been working in mini-camps without hardly anyone paying attention. They went to Oklahoma City for a day to boost the morale of the relief workers but for the most part there has been limited coverage of the running soap opera at Valley Ranch.

Dallas is still the glamour team of the NFL as television ratings and sales by NFL Properties will attest.

And professional football has become the most popular sport in the United States no matter what baseball, golf and basketball junkies think.

So what's the latest from the ranch?

Troy Aikman feels the Cowboys have a window of just two or three years to stay at or near the top of the NFL before they fall amongst the also-rans. He says the franchise needs to display a sense of urgency.

"It's very important we get back to the Super Bowl in the next two or three years because it's going to be difficult to hold this team together," Aikman said, citing free agency as the breaker-upper of team stability.

Aikman is still irked at the 38-28 NFC Championship loss to San Francisco and is demanding his teammates step it up a level.

There was still time for some fun.

Aikman's charity golf tournament was a big success. Both former coach Jimmy Johnson and owner Jerry Jones, the cat and dog of the NFL, played but never ran into each other. It showed discretion by the person who made the pairings.

The draft picks and free agents went through their paces, and running back Sherman Williams, the Cowboys first draft pick, showed some flashes of being the best backup to Emmitt Smith they've ever had.

What Williams does is catch the ball very well and could provide some third down relief coming out of the backfield. Anyway the Cowboys felt they got a steal by getting this Alabama product in the second round. Indications are they may have.

Fourth-rounder Eric Bjornson, a wide receiver from Washington, is projected as a Jay Novacek-type tight end for the Cowboys and he was drawing some accolades from Aikman.

Then there was mirth over the birth of Nate Newton, who weighed in slightly less than the battleship Texas at somewhere just under 400 pounds. Newton said he weighed 367 but Cowboys coaches said it was much, much more.

Newton blamed his problems on too much banquet food at personal appearances. So, off he goes again to Florida to sweat away and try to get into some kind of reasonable shape before training camp starts.

Newton usually gets down to somewhere just over 300 pounds, give or take a chocolate malt. Someday he's not going to make it and the Cowboys are going to be looking for a guard who can play hard for more than a quarter.

Training camp starts a week later than usual for the Cowboys on July 20 at St. Edward's University in Austin. They play their first game just nine days later against Buffalo at Texas Stadium.

The last game is on Christmas night at Phoenix.

There. Now you're caught up. Didn't miss much did you?

Title IX spells end for Blinn track program

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

On a cool spring afternoon in a nearly empty stadium, Andy Kokhanovskiy whirrs, grunts and heaves a discus high into the blue sky.

The metal disk lands with a thud 210 feet, 8 inches away in the green infield grass, breaking a national junior college record and launching Blinn College to an easy dual-meet victory over San Jacinto College.

Another day, another record, another victory for Blinn, a small school in Brenham that over the past eight years has built a powerful men's track-and-field team.

Since 1987, Blinn has won a remarkable 19 National Junior College Athletic Association team championships in indoor, outdoor and cross-country competitions.

With a mixture of athletes from the United States and abroad, the Buccaneers have beaten some of the best Division I college programs and some of the best independent clubs, including Carl Lewis' famed Santa Monica track club. Eleven former Blinn runners competed in Barcelona, Spain, during the 1992 Olympics, including gold medalist Darnell Hall.

Some say Brenham, a rural town 75 miles northwest of Houston, is famous for two things: Blue Bell ice cream, which is made there, and Blinn track.

Simply put, there probably has never been a better junior college track program. And after May 20, when the NJCAA Championships end in Odessa, Blinn track will be no Blinn's board voted 6-1 in January to eliminate men's track and add women's volleyball and softball teams. School officials said the move was a voluntary effort to comply with Title IX, a 1972 law that requires schools to offer equal opportunities for men and women or risk losing public funds.

The decision stunned supporters of the track team, its first-year coach and the 38 freshmen and sophomores who rely on the sport as a means for an education or to hone their athletic skills.

School administrators say athletes on scholarship may continue their educations, but few, if any, plan to remain at Blinn.

Kokhanovskiy, a towering, muscular Ukrainian, said he has opportunities at other schools and might even try out for the NFL's Buffalo Bills, though he has never played football. He hopes to qualify for the Ukraine's 1996 Olympic team.

Ramon Clay, a 400-meter specialist from Nashville, Tenn., and Blinn's best runner, said he has received offers to attend other schools next year, but he's concerned about teammates who haven't had time to develop.

"I have plenty of options," Clay said recently before winning the 400-meter race at San Jacinto. "It's the other guys I'm worried about. We became teammates in August and now they're just left out in the dirt."

"A lot of them will just be left out in the cold. Then they have to get a job or be out in the streets somewhere."

The reasons given for eliminating track at Blinn depend on who you ask. Blinn President Don Voelter and other school officials cite Title IX and the costs of a team that often must travel out of state to compete. Only two other Texas junior colleges have track teams.

The school says track was allotted $85,000 last year and spent more than $140,000, mostly because of travel and lodging costs. The former track coach accuses officials of inflating the figures to make him and the team look bad.

The new women's sports are expected to cost a combined $102,000 during their initial year. Softball begins this fall and volleyball starts in fall 1996. Then, Blinn will be close to achieving gender equity in athletics, with men's teams in football, baseball and basketball and women's teams in basketball, softball and volleyball.

But ask most members of the track team why they think the program is being dismantled and they unabashedly say it's racism.

"If there was 30 white guys on the team, I don't think there would be any problem there," said Silvey, who admits being "very bitter about the situation."

Blinn athletic director Don Wilhelm called Silvey, who is white, a "disgruntled former employee." He noted that if racism were the goal, he might have canceled the football program, which has 57 black players and only 18 whites.

"That was the furthest thing from my thoughts and the furthest thing from anybody's thoughts," Wilhelm said. "We were looking at budget constraints and gender equity."

Members of the Blinn track and field team have little use for the economics and legalities of the situation. Their only worry is what to do next. Track scholarships will be hard to come by for all but the most talented.

"I feel sorry for the walk-ons, the kids who live within 50-60 miles (of Brenham)," said Lester, naming Johnson as a prime example.

Johnson, a sprinter, grew up in Waller about 40 miles down Highway 6 and said he passed up other schools last year to run for Blinn. Now he doesn't know what he'll do.

"I heard more about Blinn College than I heard about Division I schools," Johnson said. "I said if Blinn offers me something, I'm going to jump on it. That's where the best come from."

Clay said he fears some teammates will give up on college altogether.

"A lot of them will because to a lot of them it's almost like they just took out their fire," Clay said. "They'll just say forget it, I can do something else, stay at home instead of going to another school. Something like this might happen at another school."

Kenny McDaniel, a 20-year-old freshman hurdler from Longview, said he will attend Kansas City Community College this fall. As for Blinn, he won't be sad to leave Brenham for good.

"I was hurt for a while. Now I've just put it all behind me," McDaniel said. "It doesn't matter. Wherever we go we're going to be happier anyway."

Spurs form special bond with teenager

By MARTY SABOTA
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO - Basketball aficionados won't find Joseph McAllister's name in any sports record books.

In fact, he'd never made a basket until San Antonio Spurs center David Robinson lifted him off the ground for a slam-dunk at a Spurs youth camp.

Even so, the physically and mentally challenged teen-ager has inspired the team for years.

"I see Joseph, and suddenly I forget all my little problems and pains," said former Spurs camp director Nevin Shed, who forged a lifelong bond with the youngster.

"He's my medicine."

The casual observer might miss it, but the Spurs always find ways to let Joseph know he's a special little guy.

It's there in the secret "I love you" sign the Spurs coyote mascot flashes the 14-year-old's way each game.

Before he left as a free agent, Antoine Carr always thrust a "hello" index finger in Joseph's direction.

The two share an especially close relationship, so tight that Joseph once asked the power forward to be his dad.

Joseph's mother, Diana McAllister, who has reared her son alone, recalled the touching moment:

"Antoine just teared up and said, 'Joseph, that is the greatest compliment you could ever give me.'"

Another fond memory - and there have been many - is of 4-year-old Joseph on his first of many trips to the locker room reaching up and tapping hoops megastar George Gervin on the knee to get his autograph.

"If not for the Spurs, Joseph wouldn't have had the encouragement to go on like he has," the teen's mother said. "They're like family."

Like family, the Spurs have been there from the terrible beginning and never wavered in their devotion.

It began 11 years ago at Santa Rosa Children's Hospital, where the Spurs were doing charity work.

That's where they found little Joseph in the intensive care ward, more dead than alive.

They heard the terrible tale of how a belt rack at a mall clothing store had fallen on him. Its metal prongs jabbed into the tender flesh over the child's right eye and side of his head, shattering bone and ripping into his brain.

The accident left Joseph partially paralyzed on one side and suffering from a form of diabetes that forces him to urinate constantly. Without a thrice-daily medication from Sweden, his body would continuously empty of fluids until he dies.

That fateful January, Joseph lost his sense of smell. He does not feel hunger or thirst. His natural body thermostat has been damaged, which necessitates a refrigerated jacket at camp to keep him from overheating.

And although the San Antonio poster child for the 1986 Children's Miracle Network Telethon should be a high school freshman, his special education teachers say his third-grade skills are probably the best he will achieve.

Basketball became an instrumental part of the McAllister family's lives when, at the end of Joseph's three-month hospital stay, the Spurs gave Mrs. McAllister and her only child tickets to a home game.

"After that, Joseph was hooked," she said.

The Spurs also gave the child something less tangible but more important.

"I think Joseph wouldn't have accomplished as much physically and mentally if not for the Spurs," she said.

Of course, the love affair works both ways.

"He's my buddy," brags Shed. "He's one of the most colorful, articulate, high-energy young men one could ever meet."

Joseph quickly captured everyone's heart at camp, although a few admittedly were ready to throw in the towel after the youth's first day - a trying time punctuated by outbursts and crying fits.

But when mother and staff began discussing whether they might have

Farm and Ranch

AgriTalk features farm, rural topics

AgriTalk, a daily, radio ag talk show broadcast out of Kansas City, Mo., is now reaching listeners in the Hereford area every weekday morning at 10 a.m. on Amarillo station KDJW, 1010 AM.

The show is unique among farm radio shows in that it explores a wide range of issues that affect both farmers and rural Americans. Among the issues AgriTalk has covered are divorce on the farm, women in agriculture, and now, every other Friday, the 1995 Farm Bill.

Since going on the air in August 1994, AgriTalk has gained listeners on more than 110 radio stations across the nation.

AgriTalk has received high marks from listeners, who call in almost every show to comment, and from policymakers, who have joined in the debate over the Farm Bill. Every other Friday, AgriTalk hosts "Farm Bill Fridays" when a lawmaker or Capitol Hill staffer working on the Farm bill discusses legislation and answers called-in questions from farmers and ranchers.

"AgriTalk has brought the debate to the people the laws affect, and for once lawmakers are listening to farmers instead of farmers listening to lawmakers," said Mark Vail, executive producer of AgriTalk.

The show is part of KDJW's new morning ag lineup, which starts off every morning with "Southwest Daybreak," a four-minute, fast-moving news summary, at 6:30 a.m. AgriTalk comes in at about 10 a.m., and noon farm and ranch report kicks off lunchtime ag coverage.

"AgriTalk fits perfectly into our agricultural lineup because it uses a different and more interesting approach in covering the world of agriculture," said Bob Haschke, KDJW general manager. "Like AgriTalk, we want our ag coverage to be different and fresh."

Animal Fair held

4-H News

By VANCE CHRISTIE

Deaf Smith Co. CEA-AG School will soon be out for the Summer once again. Kids will have extra time on their hands to relax, hang out with friends, swim, and enjoy the summer. However, even with all of these activities, there is still time for young people to get involved with new projects. Why not use some of this free time to learn more about yourself and others. There are many 4-H activities for the summer that provide educational experiences that teach leadership, responsibility, team work, recreation, and life skills.

-- The 4-H Bucket Calf Project is starting during the month of May. Newborn calves for the project may be purchased from now until May 26. In this project kids between the age of 5-12 raise a newborn calf on a bottle throughout the summer. These calves are then shown at the Town and Country Jubilee in August. The kids are judged on record keeping, cooperation with the agent, showmanship, and oral interview.

-- The Rabbit Project is ongoing through the summer. There are shows coming up later in the summer and throughout the fall. The Rabbit Project is an excellent animal project that is inexpensive, but still teaches the basic animal care skills learned in the larger animal projects. A local rabbit show is being planned and may be held during Town and Country Jubilee.

-- The Shooting Sports Project is currently starting. Participants in the Shooting Sports Project learn gun safety while competing in trap shooting competition. 4-H shooters have the opportunity to shoot at area contests, compete in a statewide postal league, and attend the State Shoot in Waco.

-- Beef Bash is an educational event centered around the beef industry in Deaf Smith County. This project will include tours of local cow-calf operations, stocker programs, feedlots, slaughter facilities, and retail markets.

-- Camp Opportunities are available during the summer months for a variety of project areas and age groups. The Texas 4-H Center in Brownwood holds several different camps throughout the summer. Electric Camp is held near Cloudcroft, N.M., and provides leadership and recreational training for youth. Several showmanship camps are held during the summer to train youth in showing livestock.

-- The Horse Project Group will attend shows, rodeos, clinics, and other activities during the upcoming months. Members in the horse group receive instruction in showmanship, horsemanship, grooming, and judging. There will be shows on the local, district, and state levels for these 4-Hers to participate in. Show classes include; halter, showmanship, western pleasure, western riding, reining, calf and team roping, barrels, poles, flags, and other events.

-- Town and Country Jubilee is a busy time for the 4-H clubs. 4-H prepares a float in the parade each year. Bucket Calves are judged during Jubilee, and participants in the 4-H Rabbit Project will exhibit their bunnies.

-- Swine, Sheep, and Beef Projects also take place during the summer. There are several shows throughout the summer months that provide youth with experience and knowledge in raising and showing animals. Now is the time to buy show steers for the 1995-96 show season. The deadline for ownership is July 1, 1995. Also, we have started purchasing lambs to be shown this summer and through next Spring.

This is a brief listing of the major 4-H projects planned for this summer. There are also many recreational activities that will be held. If you are interested in making your summer fun and enjoyable while participating in worthwhile activities, you might want to consider joining one or more of the 4-H summer programs. If you would like more information about any of these 4-H projects or the 4-H program in general, contact Vance Christie at 364-3573. Educational programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to all citizens regardless of race, color, sex, age, religion, disability, and national origin.

Producers push for drop on milk charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's milk producers want Congress to drop the government's special charge on milk sales in exchange for removing government price supports for nonfat dry milk and butter.

In its legislative proposal for the 1995 farm bill, the executive committee of the National Milk Producers Federation also is asking for changes in the way milk is priced.

The proposal could increase prices for drinking-quality milk and milk used in ice cream, cottage cheese or yogurt. As a result, the proposal could spark a debate over what is a fair price that will keep farmers in business without overcharging consumers.

Under the proposal, people who produce milk for cheese, butter and dry milk products would get less. But proceeds from the higher-priced milk sales would be redistributed to those areas, such as Minnesota and Wisconsin, where more milk is sold for manufacturing.

Producers, through a pool formula, would share in any losses caused by ending price supports.

The Milwaukee-Minnesota pricing series, based on a survey of 160 dairy manufacturers in the two states, would no longer drive the price of more expensive milk used to make drinking milk, cottage cheese, ice cream and yogurt. Prices are now based on that series plus a differential.

Instead, a basic price for the more expensive classes would be set. Quarterly changes would be determined by the wholesale markets for butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk.

The key proposal calls for a repeal of the special assessment on producers used to reduce the deficit. That assessment was recently raised to $18.23 per hundredweight for the rest of 1995.

In exchange for repeal, the government's Commodity Credit Corporation no longer would have to buy butter and nonfat dry milk when market prices fell.

Cheese would remain a supported commodity. Because of favorable prices, the government has practically stopped buying surplus cheese. The price level at which the government would step in would remain $10.10 per hundredweight.

Taking butter and nonfat dry milk off the government price support program would allow those products to be exported without violating subsidy limits under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The farm bill proposal calls for continued funding of dairy export subsidies to the maximum level allowed under GATT. The global trade agreement says that the Dairy Export Incentive Program may subsidize no more than 1.5 billion pounds of milk exports in 2000, down from 2.8 billion in 1995.

Dairy manufacturers, under the proposal, would be eligible for low-interest government loans to store their nonfat dry milk and butter in order to manage their inventories through seasonal supply changes.

In contrast to crop loans, the manufacturers would be unable to surrender the products in exchange for keeping the payment.

Separately, the group wants the Agriculture Department to hold hearings on possibly merging some of the 38 existing marketing orders, which govern area prices, in favor of larger regional orders.

America's best legitimate advertising buy is still the local newspaper that is involved in your community. Junk mailers don't contribute a dime to the betterment of Hereford. They take and don't give back.

Armadillo, longhorn now state mammals

AUSTIN (AP) - If you listened closely, you could hear the Beach Boys singing in the background.

Some Texas House members were true to their school Friday as the chamber considered a resolution naming not one, but two "official state mammals."

The resolution by Reps. Bob Hunter, R-Abilene, and Warren Chisum, D-Pampa, designated the longhorn as the official large state mammal and the armadillo as the official small state mammal.

Hunter called it "The Great Compromise of 1995."

He said half of the state's school children surveyed on the issue voted for the armadillo and half voted for the longhorn.

Some legislators, however, seemed concerned about the measure.

Rep. Todd Staples, R-Palestine, a

1984 Texas A&M University graduate, asked, "Isn't it true that longhorns are pretty unintelligent animals?"

Rep. Frank Corte, R-San Antonio, also an A&M alum, asked if the resolution could be amended to include an Aggie as the official medium state mammal.

Others wondered aloud whether other entities or institutions would be allowed to use the likeness of the longhorn if it became the official state mammal.

The Aggie is the A&M nickname. The longhorn is the University of Texas symbol.

The House tentatively approved the resolution Friday on a voice vote.

The House also gave preliminary approval to a resolution naming the monarch butterfly as the official state insect.

Lotto winner picks up $4.9 million winnings

AUSTIN (AP) - For 20 years, Howard Behrens Jr. has been building million-dollar mansions in wealthy Houston neighborhoods.

After winning a $4.9 million share of the last Texas Lotto jackpot, he has enough money to move into one himself.

Behrens, who collected a first-installment check for $242,637 on Friday from the Texas Lottery Commission, said his daughter had a premonition that he was going to win.

"The day of the drawing, my daughter's biology teacher told her no one ever wins the lottery," Behrens said. "That night, however, she had a dream that I won."

He said he had to get confirmation before believing that he won.

"I ran outside and showed the ticket to my son and a man working on my car and he said, 'Hey, you just won the lotto,'" Behrens said.

Behrens bought his ticket at a Handi Plus convenience. He said he picked the winning numbers - 13, 14, 15, 24, 25, 31 - at random.

For the next 19 years, Behrens will receive an annual payment of $243,500.

The total jackpot for Wednesday's drawing was about $9.7 million.

The second winning ticket was purchased in Waco.

Badmouthing veggies illegal

AUSTIN (AP) - There shall be no more bad words about broccoli. It's the law.

Gov. George W. Bush, without signing the legislation, has allowed a bill become law that provides for civil penalties against anyone who makes false comments about the safety of vegetables and other agricultural products.

The measure takes effect Sept. 1.

British junk mailers trying to remove dead from lists

By DIRK BEVERIDGE
AP Business Writer

LONDON (AP) - If you're dead, don't read on.

That's always been a sticky problem confronting junk-mail purveyors, who peddle offerings that range from new cars to dream vacation homes. The trouble is, their mass-mailing lists don't distinguish the living from the deceased.

Grieving survivors are offended. The senders are embarrassed. Moreover, they've wasted postage.

In Britain, where junk mail is something of a novelty, direct marketers are trying to do something about it. In an effort that could set a precedent for junk mailers elsewhere, they're seeking government permission to get computer files identifying everyone who dies.

Then they can routinely cleanse their files, leaving only the living.

This will require a change in British law, which now permits inquirers to obtain information on births and deaths only if they ask about people by name. Seeking a wholesale list of everyone who has recently died is forbidden.

The Direct Marketing Association, a national group of 500 direct mailers, says the extent of the problem remains uncertain. But with around 650,000 Britons dying annually, and 2.5 billion pieces of junk mail going out, an embarrassing overlap is inevitable. It often takes years before the dead can rest in peace.

"We don't think it happens all that often," said Colin Fricker, the marketing association's director of legal affairs.

It was a big enough concern for the direct marketers, including roughly 100 British insurance companies, that they want to persuade Parliament to change the rules.

"Particularly if they're offering a pension plan or life insurance, it does cause a certain amount of distress," Fricker said. "We don't want to be tarred with that brush."

Fricker insists the main goal is to avoid hurt feelings. But the direct marketers acknowledge they'll save money on postage and obtain more valuable customer databases.

Psychologists agree it's a good idea to delete the dead from mailing lists. Grieving survivors often find that mail addressed to the dead stirs memories.

"It's something they probably could do without," said Professor John Archer, a bereavement expert who teaches at the University of Central Lancashire in Preston.

Naomi Sollas, a receptionist at the British Geriatrics Society, said she formerly worked at a law firm where one partner died several years ago but kept getting junk mail.

"It wasn't very nice, seeing a dead person's name on it," Sollas said. The direct marketers recognize that if they are going to get lists of the dead, it will raise concerns about how they use this information. Namely, it would be seen as bad taste to target the newly bereaved.

U.S. direct marketers say such a list would be vulnerable to unscrupulous use.

Big-city folks find home in small-town Texas

By MIA B. MOODY
Waco Tribune-Herald

MART, Texas—When Norman and Milet Hopping moved to Mart, population 2,500, two years ago they knew it wouldn't have as many murders, robberies or drive-by shootings as a large city, but they weren't ready for what they found.

Moving to Mart was like entering a time warp, said the two who left Washington State in search of a life free of crime, traffic jams and unfriendly neighbors.

Like many rural towns, Mart, located 19 miles east of Waco in Central Texas, is a place where neighbors welcome new people with pies and home-grown vegetables. Where you had better be on your best behavior because if you're not, the whole community will know. And where children can play outside without the fear of reckless drivers.

"Here my neighbors are thrilled to hear about my daughter's 'A' in school," said Milet, a social worker at the Waco Housing Authority. "In Washington, I would have been afraid to let her go next door."

Milet said the Mart education system is a dream: Larger school districts may have more amenities and after-school programs, but Mart has something better: trust.

"Teachers aren't afraid to hug students," said the mother of three children ages 7, 6 and 5. "Classrooms have about 15 students per teacher, compared to a 1 to 28 ratio in Washington."

The thought of large cities brings with it visions of bright lights, first-rate restaurants and lots of action. But city life is not what's made out to be, according to people like the Hoppings, who left large cities in search of the comforts of small-town life.

Cindy McCann, who moved to China Spring, a town of 180 people 11 miles northwest of Waco, from Salt Lake City, Utah, said shortly after they moved here, neighbors brought over goodies and invited her children to various events. They were so friendly, in fact, it scared her at first.

"All I had heard about this area was it had Branch Davidians, so I was on guard," she said. "People were so friendly that I kept expecting them to bring over some pamphlets."

And traffic jams are unheard of, said McCann who works at Hercules Inc.

"The worst thing we get behind in the morning is a tractor," she said. "We don't have to leave an hour early for a 15-minute drive."

Small towns also have more conveniences than larger cities, said McCann. For example, they have convenient airports where you can park without paying, get in and out of your car in record time and call ahead if you are running late and they will consider holding the plane.

But the thing that impressed her the most was the postal service in China Spring, McCann said. Postal workers pick up envelopes without stamps and leave people notes telling them how much they owe.

"It's like having your neighbor deliver the mail," she said. "In Salt Lake City, I didn't even know who my postal carrier was. Here, people actually leave cookies for their mail carriers."

Bill and Karla Reynolds, friends of the Hoppings who moved to Mart last June from Washington State, said people tend to be more reserved in larger cities. You have to earn your position in the community before people make friendly overtures, they said.

"When we moved in, a lady came over with a cantaloupe and said, 'We heard you were new and we wanted to welcome you to Mart,'" said Bill, who is a reporter for the Mart Texan. "It is pretty gratifying actually getting to know your neighbors."

The Reynolds, who have three children ages 2, 6 and 7, said small towns are much more family-oriented than larger cities.

"In larger cities, most activities cater to adults," said Karla. "There were plenty of art exhibits, museums and nice restaurants, but you have to leave the kids at home."

And if you were lucky enough to find activities for the children, you would probably be too tired from working a couple of jobs to enjoy the event, said Bill who worked as a varsity baseball coach and an editor of a newspaper in a city about an hour north of Seattle.

"In Washington, there was no way that we could have afforded a home," he said. "Most people worked two jobs just to make ends meet while they lived in an apartment."

In search of a safe place to raise a family, Susan and Tom Pagel moved to Woodway, a town of 8,900 six miles southwest of Waco, from San Francisco Bay about nine years ago. If they hadn't moved to a smaller town, Susan doesn't think their children, ages 7 and 9, would even know their father, who is president of the label division at Rittenhouse.

"With his 45-minute commute from work in San Francisco, he did not get home until around 8 p.m.," she said. "Today, it only takes him six minutes to drive to work. He has time to coach Little League and spend quality time with his sons."

One of the main reasons they decided to move to Texas was for its friendly colleges and real estate, said Deborah and Steve D'Annunzio, who moved to Hewitt, a town of 9,900 6 miles southwest of Waco, two years from San Diego, Calif.

Homes that cost $70,000 to $80,000 in a small town, would cost $250,000 in San Diego where land is sold by the square inch, Deborah said.

"If you had a house, it was usually passed down by your parents or financed in part by them," said Deborah, who is a student and financial aid officer at Baylor University.

"A down payment would run about $50,000 and that's a substantial chunk of money unless you have someone who can help you out."

The Hoppings agree. They said because the cost of living is so low in Mart, they were able to find a four-bedroom house for $30,000. In Washington State, where they were paying around $600 a month for a two-bedroom apartment, it was impossible to save for a home.

And once you buy a house in a small town, you will probably want to stay, said Norman, who teaches fifth grade in Mart. He said small towns are usually made up of a close-knit group of people who are working toward the betterment of the community.

"Even with the differences of opinions that residents have, we are all working in the same direction," he said. "The future of any community is the children and in Mart they seem to place an emphasis in the right place."

Nursing at Hereford Hospital was different in days when babies were born at home

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

The fact that the new Hereford Hospital was in need of nurses was brought to Marie Carroll's attention by a doctor at the hospital in Champagne, Ill. That doctor had received the information in a letter from a fraternity brother in Texas.

Marie had recently completed her training as a registered nurse, so she said, "Sure, I'll go to Texas."

Thus, in 1928, she became one of the first nurses at the Hereford Hospital.

"It was certainly different then," said Mrs. Carroll. "There were beds for ten patients on the second floor and the hospital employees lived on the first floor."

Employees had their own bedrooms, but they shared the kitchen, dining room and parlor. There were eight or nine employees at the time, according to Mrs. Carroll.

There were two nurses who worked six days a week, eight hours a day. Their pay was $50 a week, plus room and board.

The hospital had a delivery room and operating room, but neither was used very often.

"Babies were born at home in those days," said Mrs. Carroll. The father-to-be would usually come to town and tell the doctor his wife was about to have a baby. Then the doctor and a nurse would follow him home and deliver the baby there.

"For years, youngsters would run up to me on the street and say, 'Marie, you borned me,'" said Mrs. Carroll.

There were two doctors at the hospital, but still the operating room remained unused most of the time. The operations that were performed there were done by surgeons who came from Amarillo. If patients who needed surgery were able to travel, they went to Amarillo, recalled Mrs. Carroll.

Residents announce sons engagement

Joe and Sylvia Daniel of Tyler are proud to announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Darci Daniel, to Chadd Jackson of Palms, Calif.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Thomas and Deborah Jackson of Hereford.

The couple plan to wed August 5 in the Charnwood Hill Inn in Tyler.

Miss Daniel is a graduate of R.E. Lee High School and is a candidate for graduation in May from North Texas College where she will receive a degree in Fashion Merchandising.

Jackson is a graduate of Waco High School and is currently serving in the U.S. Marine Corps. and is stationed at 29 Palms, Calif.

After working at Hereford Hospital, she was public health nurse in Clovis, N.M. during the 1930s, then traveled to Coos Bay, Ore., where she worked in a doctor's office.

"I went to Coos Bay because I had asthma and someone told me the air up there would cure it. All signs of the asthma went away and never recurred," Mrs. Carroll said.

When she returned to Hereford, she worked at the hospital again for about a year, then began working in doctor's offices. She worked in nine different offices before becoming school nurse in Friona. She worked there from 1956 until her retirement in 1967.

"And now I knit and crochet," said Mrs. Carroll. "I do it as therapy because the doctor told me it would help keep arthritis out of my wrists that had been broken."

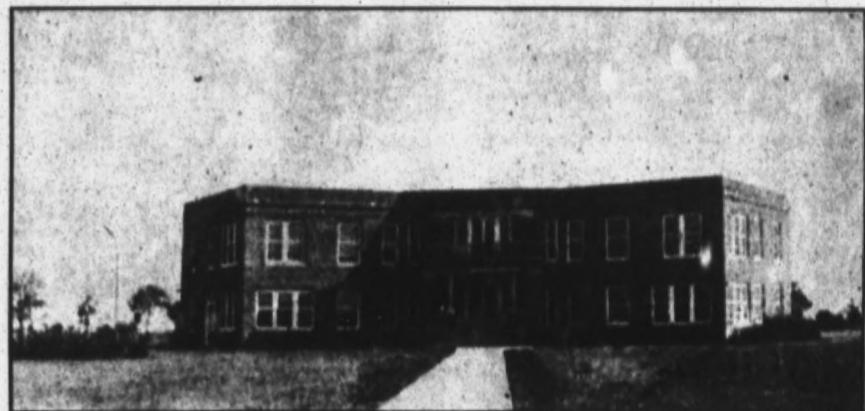

The therapy was effective. Mrs. Carroll, who will be 93 in October, entered an afghan in the "Art is Ageless" craft show sponsored by the Texas Association of Homes and Services for the Aging. Her afghan was a winner and will be on display at the State Capitol from May 20-22.

The statewide winners will be judged again and if her afghan places in the soft craft division, it will be pictured in a calendar published by TAHSA.

The afghan will be on display again October 30-November 2 at the San Antonio Convention Center when the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging holds its national convention.

Mrs. Carroll combines her hobbies with her lifelong desire to help others by crocheting houseshoses that are donated to Veterans Hospitals.

When God Created Mothers

BY ERMA BOMBECK

When the good Lord was creating mothers, He was into his sixth day of "overtime" when the angel appeared and said, "You're doing a lot of fiddling around on this one."

And the Lord said, "Have you read the specs on this order? She has to be completely washable, but not plastic; have 180 moveable parts...all replaceable; run on black coffee and leftovers; have a lap that disappears when she stands up; a kiss that can cure anything from a broken leg to a disappointed love affair; and six pairs of hands."

The angel shook her head slowly and said, "Six pairs of hands...no way."

"It's not the hands that are causing me problems," said the Lord. "It's the three pair of eyes that mothers have to have."

"That's on the standard model?" asked the angel.

The Lord nodded. "One pair that sees through closed doors when she asks, 'What are you kids doing in there?' when she already knows. Another here in the back of her head that sees what she shouldn't but what she has to know, and of course the ones here in front that can look at a child when he goes up and say, 'I understand and I love you' without so much as uttering a word."

"Lord," said the angel, touching His sleeve gently, "Come to bed. Tomorrow..."

"I can't," said the Lord. "I'm so close to creating something so close to myself. Already I have one who heals herself when she is sick...can feed a family of six on one pound of hamburger...and can get a nine-year-old to stand under a shower."

The angel circled the model of a mother very slowly. "It's too soft," she sighed.

"But tough!" said the Lord excitedly. "You cannot imagine what this mother can do or endure."

"Can it think?"

"Not only think, but it can reason and compromise," said the Creator.

Finally the angel bent over and ran her finger across the cheek. "There's a leak," she pronounced. "I told You that You were trying to put too much into this model."

"It's not a leak," said the Lord, "it's a tear."

"What's it for?"

"It's for joy, sadness, disappointment, pain, loneliness and pride."

"You are a genius," said the angel.

The Lord looked somber. "I didn't put it there."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I enjoy reading your column every day and would like to share this idea with your readers.

When I have a nice box or carton with print on the outside, I carefully take it apart at the seams, reverse it (turning the printed side to the inside), then I glue the seams and tape the bottom.

This gives me a nice clean box with no print on the outside. They are great for shipping packages to my children and grandchildren. This way I recycle the boxes and it saves me a trip to the packaging shop. — Phyllis Giroux, Omaha, Neb.

Other uses for the red plastic mesh bags which hold oranges:

- Fill with suet (messy, but the birds love it).

- Save dryer softener sheets, stuff the bags and peg them in closets.
- For a gift bag, fill with goodies and other small items, then finish off with a bow.
- When potpourri has faded but still keeps its perfume, stuff the bags and peg in closets.

• Keep onions, potatoes, etc. in the bags and hang in the garage so air can circulate in the vegetables.

CLIPPING ARTICLES

Dear Heloise: I like to be the last person to look at any magazine or newspaper so that I can cut out any good cartoons, articles and recipes.

I enjoy sending them to friends and family, and I keep them organized with filing folders that have been taped along the sides. Each person has a folder and I simply drop the clipping in that person's folder and it is ready for my next letter. — Kathleen Pendygraft, Perryville, Ky.

— YOUR EYES —

THE KID WHO DOESN'T LIKE TO READ

When a child has difficulty learning to read or, later, reads as little as possible, the problem may not be lack of ability or stubbornness, but a vision problem.

Even the child who comes out 20/20 on a school vision screening—just a rough test of distance vision—may have trouble with the near vision skill so vital for reading. A child who has difficulty focusing on small print may take a long time to finish a simple reading assignment and become impatient with the task.

It's wise to get help early. Some years ago, working with adult illiterates, testers discovered some 70 percent of them who had never had their eyes tested before—and could not see well enough to read.

A child who is reluctant to read should have prompt optometric attention. If examination reveals a vision-related problem, the eye professional may treat it with corrective lenses, vision training or a combination of both.

Red Cross Update

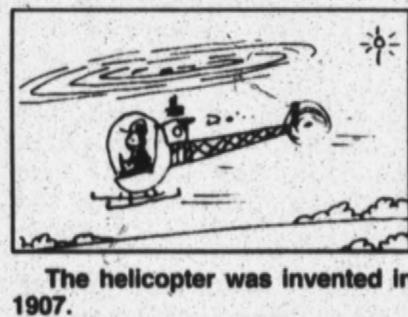

David Wiltse, Disaster Specialist for Texas and Job Director for the Texas Panhandle Spring Storms Disaster Relief effort, reports there were 60 affected homes after the storm Saturday night. The affected area includes the Umberger, Amarillo and Borger areas. The American Red Cross is helping with emergency food, clothing, shelter and medical needs. In addition to local volunteers and staff, 6 Texans have arrived in Amarillo to help in meeting the needs of our disaster victims. The American Red Cross will spend tens of thousands of dollars meeting the needs of victims of the storm front that passed our way Saturday. That weather front has caused four disasters in Texas, one in Oklahoma and is causing massive flooding in Louisiana.

The damage assessment of the Amarillo, Borger and Umberger area shows that out of the 60 affected homes, no houses were destroyed, several disaster services classes this next month. Please register for these classes by calling the office at 364-3761 to register for the class.

Special thanks to everyone for their help with all of the disaster relief efforts we have been involved in this past several months.

The Board of Directors will meet Tuesday April 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Red Cross office.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Would you please print this beautiful essay by Wanda Beal? It appeared in the Farmer's Almanac, and I thought it was terrific. You have printed it in your column before. Will you do it again? — Topeka Reader

DEAR TOPEKA: Thank you for asking. It's the perfect column for Mother's Day. And relevant, too. Not much has changed since 1978, when I last ran it.

What's a Mother?

by Wanda Beal

Mothers look different from other women. Their hair isn't always done in the latest style, and sometimes, it isn't done at all.

A mother is a woman who can bake a cake with six other hands helping her and still have it turn out fine.

Mothers frequently have runs in their stockings. Likely as not, Junior didn't park his trike off the sidewalk.

A mother is different. She likes chicken wings and backs and the hamburger that is slightly burned -- things the kids and Daddy don't care for. She never takes the last chop on the plate, and she always saves the candy from her tray at the club to bring home to the children.

A mother may not have ulcers, but she has versatile tears. They show anger, weariness, hurt or happiness. Once, when Daddy forgot an anniversary, Mother cried. One Saturday, he brought home chocolates when it wasn't her birthday or anything, and she cried then, too.

A mother is someone who can repair the kitchen sink with only her hands -- after Daddy has spent a lot of time trying with tools and plenty of cuss words.

When a mother dies, she must face Him with her record of accomplishments. If she's done a good job of caring for her children, she'll get the most sought-after position in heaven, that of rocking baby angels on soft white clouds and wiping their celestial tears with the corner of her apron.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter is a student at a medical center nursing school. Recently, she told me of a situation that is troubling her. I am unsure what, if anything, I should do about it.

A guidance counselor at the school, a married woman, is having an affair with a male instructor -- also married. The evidence is irrefutable and was confirmed by several sources. The affair is being widely discussed among the students.

I raised my daughter to be a

Names in the news

LONDON (AP) - Princess Diana's former riding instructor, James Hewitt, says he was blackmailing into ending a five-year affair with her.

The 37-year-old former army major told The Sunday Times he was warned by a senior officer that intimate conversations between him and the princess had been taped.

Hewitt said that shortly before Diana and Prince Charles separated in 1992, he was told that unless the affair ended, the tapes would be made public.

"Effectively, it was blackmail," said Hewitt, who published a book last year about the alleged affair.

Newspapers published excerpts from the tapes after the separation.

Sexual harassment rates on increase in military

CHICAGO (AP) - Nine of 10 female veterans younger than 50 said they were sexually harassed in the military and one-fourth reported they were victims of rape or attempted rape by co-workers or supervisors, a study said.

The sexual-assault rates were about 20 times what has been reported for women in other government jobs, researchers said in the May issue of the Archives of Family Medicine, published by the American Medical Association. Researcher Dr. Maureen Murdoch and co-author Dr. Kristin L. Nichol, both of the Minneapolis Veterans Affairs Medical Center and the University of Minnesota School of Medicine, questioned 333 women treated at the center in 1992-93.

Women discharged from the military within the previous year were twice as likely to have been victims of sexual harassment, rape or attempted rape as women discharged a decade before, the researchers found.

Harassment may have increased because more women have entered traditionally male jobs and have increasingly reported to men and worked alongside them, the researchers said.

Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon said officials had not studied the report. But based on a news account of the study, he said the findings were "completely out of line" with a 1988 Pentagon survey.

In that study of 10,750 active-duty women in all four services and the Coast Guard, 5 percent reported "some type of sexual assault" while 64 percent reported sexual harassment, ranging from being teased to being cornered, he said.

Ingrained in our society is a belief that being overweight is caused by overeating. This belief is expressed in an endless array of calorie-restricted diets, diet books, chemical appetite suppressants and other weight loss aids. However, we know from experience that low-calorie diets alone rarely work.

Research shows that those who are successful at losing weight, more than 95 percent will regain the weight lost within a year.

Exercise and physical activity go hand-in-hand with weight management. Why? What's so important about exercise? Here's a list of very good reasons to make exercise one of your lifestyle choices.

* The more calories your body burns, the more weight you can lose. Every time you make a choice to move rather than sit or lie around, you use more calories.

* If you exercise daily, a higher proportion of the weight you lose will come from fat deposits.

* Exercise has an effect on appetite. If you exercise hard before a meal you will decrease your appetite.

* Physical activity speeds up your metabolism while you are exercising.

* As you lose weight, your body will feel firm because your muscles are toned.

* Your cardiovascular system will improve its ability to respond to stress and exercise.

* Physical activity added to a dull routine will relieve some of the boredom and loneliness that can make you want to eat.

* You will be in a better mood and have more fun and enjoy life more.

It is a misconception that training causes body fat to turn into muscle and that when you stop training for a while the muscle turns back to fat. Muscle and fat cells are completely different, structurally and functionally. However, weight training can help you lose body fat by burning calories -- a nonstop half-hour workout burns about 200 calories.

In addition by building muscle you increase the rate at which your body burns calories (metabolic rate) since muscle is very active tissue that requires lots of energy. Thus, as you gain muscle through weight training, you may lose body fat if you maintain your normal calorie intake -- a desirable change in body composition that will make you look trimmer whether or not you lose weight.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

MAKING CONNECTIONS

(First of Two Parts)

Trade shows, conventions and business exhibitions can offer great opportunities to find new customers, meet new suppliers, locate manufacturers and distributors and build your business. The best part is they also provide opportunities for conducting cost effective market research, analyzing your competition, learning about merchandising and displaying and making solid business connections.

There are two methods you can use to take advantage of these opportunities. First, you can become an attendee and visit a variety of shows and conventions. Second, you may want to become an exhibitor, set up a booth to sell your wares and promote your business.

The purpose of this two-part series is to give you some tips for using both methods to build your business. We'll begin this week with some helpful suggestions for exhibiting at trade shows and fairs. In part two we'll offer several tips for attending shows and exhibits and for "learning by walking around."

Becoming an exhibitor

There are several steps you should take before you spend the time and money to become an exhibitor at a show or convention. First, attend any show you may consider as a potential target to ensure the customer types you wish to reach are there. Next, make a list of what you want to accomplish. This list may include making sales, getting leads, boosting your visibility, demonstrating your product or service to a certain number of prospects, etc.

The next step is to count the costs. Consider direct costs such as space, booth or display rental and services. You should also consider the indirect costs such as, time to set up and tear down, follow up and the time away from your normal activities. Finally, start early. Plan a year or more in advance, if possible. Consider your displays, product samples and handouts carefully. Get copies of the show rules and contracts to avoid surprises.

Once you commit to setting up a booth, list the supplies you'll need to take. For example, you'll want a good supply of business cards, brochures, flyers, order forms, pens and special giveaways if you have any. Also, take scissors, scotch tape, duct tape, an extension cord, markers, a knife, a hammer, a pair of pliers and other hand tools.

Here are some additional tips that successful exhibitors have shared with us:

- Be visual. Have something unusual to catch the attention of those passing by. Working models, product displays or photographs may do the trick.

- Have a single, central theme in your booth or exhibit. What you offer should be obvious.
- Keep your booth open and uncluttered. Stand up, make eye contact and greet everyone you can. Make it easy for attendees to interact with you.
- Wear comfortable shoes. I take two pairs and change during the day.
- Have relief help to cover the booth when you have to be away. Never leave your booth unattended.

Last minute opportunity
Business Connection '95 is an annual trade show and business conference hosted by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce and several other pro-business sponsors. This year's event will be held at the Amarillo Civic Center on May 23, 1995.

Although the show always sells out, there is a good possibility there will be a few last minute cancellations. If you call Sylvia Frisbie at 373-7800, you might just get lucky enough to secure a booth.

West Texas A&M University's Small Business Development Center will be cosponsoring several excellent business development training workshops again this year. The topics include: Marketing Fundamentals, Business Writing, Building a Better Banking Relationship and a special array of computer seminars.

We'll be in booth 149. Please drop by and visit us.

Although I was never an Elvis Presley fan, I do like this quote attributed to him, "Envy someone and it pulls you down. Admire them and it builds you up. Which makes more sense?"

What a busy week ahead.... Monday is Awards Assembly Day with the eighth grad program beginning at about 8:20 a.m. The seventh grade portion of the program will begin at approximately 9:20 a.m. Parents and friends are invited to attend this special occasion for our youth. The Annual Signing Party will begin at 1 p.m. on Monday. Those who failed to purchase an annual may have a chance to do so on Monday, but they must have $14 ready and go to the Yearbook room after the other books have been delivered.

On Wednesday, seventh grade Yellow Team, and any others who are interested, will have an opportunity to see firsthand, a chuck wagon, mules and gear. They will be able to see the importance of this wagon on a traildrive. Connie Walker, Wayne Walker and Donnie Fangman will present the program. Yellow Team student, Daniel Fangman, has been in charge of setting up this project.

Thursday will be Wonderland Park day for at least 285 HJH students who have been Pride Certified for at least four of the six six-week periods. Buses for the trip will leave HJH at 8:30 a.m. and will return in time for the afternoon bus runs. Each student is to bring their own sack lunch and drinks for the day.

Several teams have team field trips planned for this rapidly ending school year, which will be three days shorter than the calendar shows due to waiver days being granted. Teachers will be involved on these three days with making plans for the '95-'96 school year. Team meetings, work on thematic units and the general improvement of our school to prepare our students for a brighter future are items on the agenda.

The end of school always seems to come before we're ready. Mr. Farr remarked that his classes had set a speed record in fighting the Civil War. It just didn't... cross Five Aprils this year!

TAAS test time has come and gone. We feel that our students will receive a good score this year. It seems that most of them spent more time on the tests and were more sensitive to doing a good job. It is a tiring time for both students and teachers, so make this "Give a Hug" week when you can lift some spirits with a hug!

Let's teach our children that it's good when people recognize you, but it's better when they recognize that you stand for something!

The music is everything in NBC's story of the Judds

BY CYNTHIA MCKINNEY

Often truth can be stranger than fiction, but sometimes it can be boring, too.

A case in point is the two-part NBC film Naomi & Wynonna: Love Can Build a Bridge, based on the lives of the popular country music duo the Judds. The slow-moving film revolves primarily around the relationship between Naomi and her daughters, Wynonna and Ashley. Appropriately, Part 1 airs May 14, Mother's Day. Part 2 follows on Monday, May 15.

The movie opens with a re-enactment from the Judds' farewell performance as a duo, after Naomi's surprise announcement of her retirement for health reasons. Flashbacks then recount her struggles to overcome obstacles that might have stopped a less determined woman in her tracks.

Naomi, co-executive producer of the four-hour movie, says, "The intention of this project is very much like the Judds' music. It's from the heart and it's truthful."

Much of what shaped Naomi's life — teen-age pregnancy, the death of her beloved brother, abuse, rejection and betrayal — can be seen in other, and better, weekly network dramas. Kathleen York makes a credible effort in her portrayal of the resolute matriarch, but viewers may occasionally wish they could fast-forward through the film.

The tumultuous relationship between determined Naomi and fiery daughter Wynonna (Viveka Davis) forms the centerpiece of this mostly bland effort. However, some of their confrontations are believable and even a little funny. One in particular has mother Judd in slippers, an ugly bathrobe and morning hair yelling at rebellious party girl Wy, while the rest of the entourage climbs out of the bus to eavesdrop. The crew's Keystone Kops scramble to pile back into the motor coach upon being caught might elicit a laugh or two.

The outstanding feature of the film is, naturally, the music. No one can deny the truth of the Judds' talent, especially the lyrical beauty of their harmonies. Even those who normally do not count themselves as country music fans will find appeal in tunes like their first hit, "Mama He's Crazy," the award-winning "Why Not Me?" and the sweetly sentimental "Grandpa (Tell Me 'Bout the Good Old Days)."

The Judds recorded six songs for the TV movie. Executive producer Jordan Kerrer (Fried Green Tomatoes) relates how he tried to get the Grammy-winning singers to sound like they did when just starting out.

"We tried to coach them a little bit so they weren't perfect the first time," Jordan says, "you know, then a little better the next time, and then a little better. And then they became themselves."

Both York and Davis say they were pleased to be involved in a biopic that had the subjects' approval. Though sometimes in awe of having Naomi herself looking over their shoulders, both found her guidance and support helpful. Naomi and Davis found themselves especially drawn to each other. The celebrated singer-songwriter says she found an uncanny resemblance to the real Wynonna in the growly voiced actress.

Those looking for family entertainment could do worse than watch this film. It depicts how decency, faith and values can surmount life's hurdles and provide a platform for success.

It almost sounds like a good idea for a country song.

Thicke (Dennis) having last laugh...at himself

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Alan Thicke is having the last laugh - at himself. And clearly savoring it.

As "Hope & Gloria's" Dennis Dupree, a talk show host who refuses to let scant success deflate his ego or his hair, Thicke borders on mockery of some of the lesser moments of his own career.

He's also getting the kind of critical strokes for his skillfully smarmy performance in the NBC comedy that can take the ache out of such comparisons.

Maybe that's why Thicke so readily accepts the parallels. In fact, he notes them himself with a Zen-like calm that forestalls any criticism as unenlightened. Uninformed. And rude, to boot.

"I've been Dennis Dupree. I have lived this life," Thicke, 48, says during a break on the set of "Hope & Gloria," which stars Cynthia Stevenson as Dupree's producer, Hope, and Jessica Lundy as neighbor Gloria.

"I'm aware and having some fun with the fact there's an element of self-parody. ... I'm the guy who all through the '80s emceed everything (Bill) Cosby wasn't available for. And who hosted every parade and pageant that Dick Clark wasn't available for," Thicke said.

"Actually, I probably had the career that Dennis would aspire to," he finishes, wryly.

Thicke hosted a popular daytime TV talk show in his native Canada, was a successful TV producer and writer for Cosby, Flip Wilson and others, is a songwriter, movie scriptwriter and, of course, had a seven-year run on the ABC sitcom "Growing Pains."

Thicke earned two Emmy nominations for writing and producing the slyly satirical "Fernwood Tonite" and "America 2-Nite."

He is even a film star: "I have a blockbuster movie career, which means they go direct to video."

And just eight months ago he took a beauty queen bride, former Miss World Gina Tolleson.

Then there's the circa 1983 Hitler that Came in the Dark. Also known as "Thicke of the Night," it was a syndicated talk show which positioned itself as a threat to Johnny Carson and ended up a brief TV blip.

Thicke verbally squirms as he recalls the bravura promotional campaign introducing an unknown Canadian to American viewers as the man who would be late-night king.

It left an odd, oily sheen of arrogance and flop sweat that Thicke had to overcome. And which he now uses in conjuring Dupree, Pittsburgh TV's "host who cares the most."

"Certainly everything I needed to learn about failure, struggle, damage control, career rehabilitation and ego bashing I learned in that," he says.

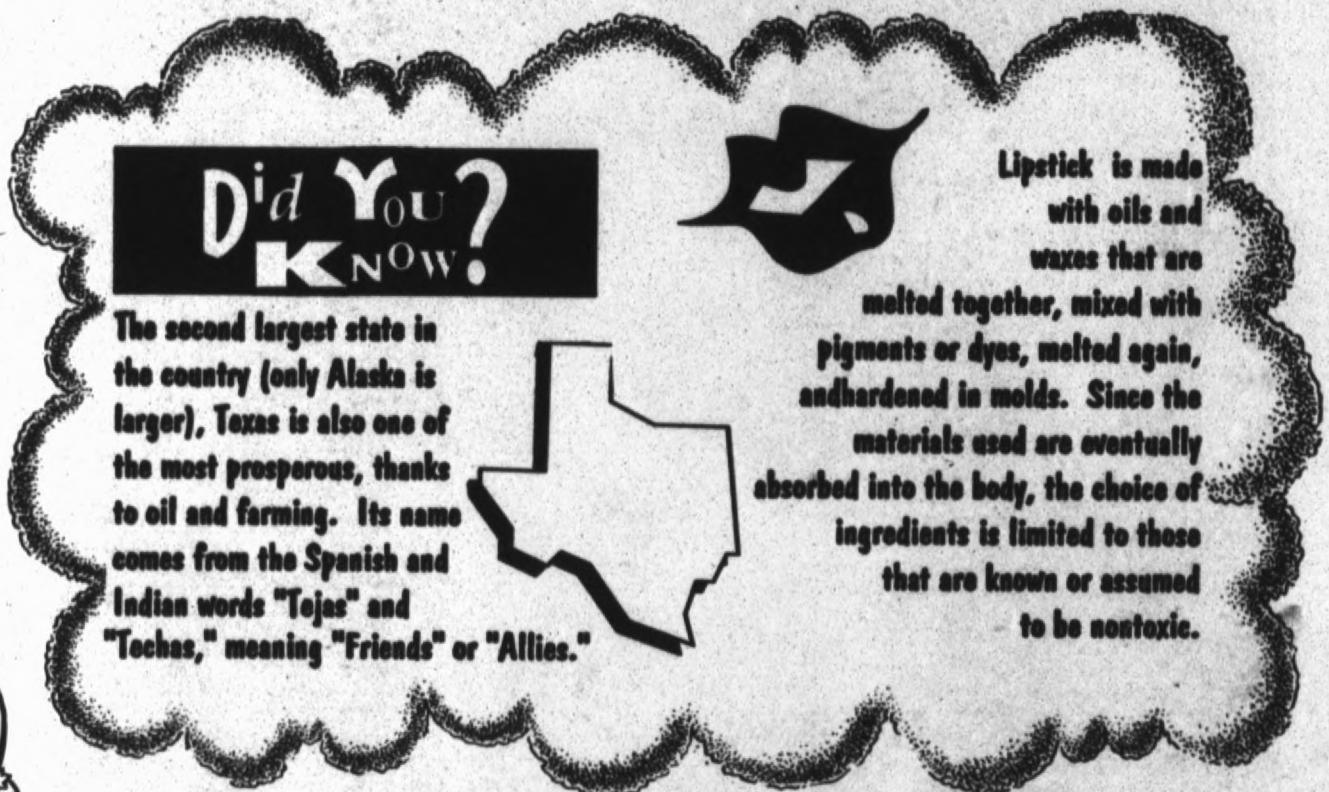

Thicke also acknowledges Dennis' deeper television roots. He's part of a loosely knit clan of what Thicke calls "on-camera dunderheads," starting with Alan Brady (Carl Reiner) in "The Dick Van Dyke Show" and including Ted Baxter (Ted Knight) in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"This guy is kind of an all-purpose threat - and I mean threat to your artistic sensibilities," Thicke says. "He acts, he charms, he schmoozes."

With Thicke, expert comic actresses Stevenson and Lundy and sharp writing, "Hope & Gloria" has toted impressive ratings since its midseason bow and seems a shoo-in to return next year.

That creates a welcome comfort zone, says Thicke, one that allows him to concentrate on his new wife and his family, including sons Brennan, 19, a film student, and Robin, 17, a rhythm-and-blues singer.

"Can't complain," Thicke says, taking stock. He knows Dennis Dupree wouldn't.

SOAP TALK

BY CANDACE HAVENS

It is an evening for daytime stars to shine their brightest during prime time as NBC airs the 22nd annual Daytime Emmy Awards on Friday, May 19.

The competition is stiff, and all the nominees deserve to win.

After 13 consecutive nominations, Susan Lucci was left out of the fold last year. But she is back with a bang, and perhaps missing a year will bring her luck this time.

This year, voters were allowed to vote for as many performers as they deemed worthy of a nomination. Also, the qualifying age for the younger actor and actress categories was lowered from 25 to 21.

Here is a selected list of nominees: Outstanding drama series: All My Children, Days of Our Lives, General Hospital and The Young and the Restless.

Outstanding actor: Peter Bergman (Jack, Y&R), David Canary (Adam, Forrest Gump, which has earned more than $300 million at domestic box offices, has done nearly as well abroad — $276 million to date.

AMC), Justin Deas (Buzz, Guiding Light), Brad Maule (Tony, GH), Michael Zaslow (Roger, GL).

Outstanding actress: Leslie Charleton (Monica, GH), Marj Dusay (Alexandra, GL), Maeve Kinkaid (Vanessa, GL), Susan Lucci (AMC), Erika Slezak (One Life to Live).

Outstanding supporting actor: Ian Buchanan (James, The Bold and the Beautiful), Keith Hamilton Cobb (Noah, AMC), Rick Hearst (Alan-Michael, GL), Roger Howarth (Todd, OLTL), Jerry Ver Dorn (Ross, GL).

Outstanding supporting actress: Jean Carol (Nadine, GL), Melina Kanakaredes (Eleni, GL), Sydney Penny (Julia, AMC), Rena Sofer (Lois, GH), Jacklyn Zeman (Bobbie, GH).

Outstanding younger actor: Jason Biggs (Pete, As the World Turns), Bryan Battin (Bill, GL), Jonathan Jackson (Lucky, GH), Tommy J. M ichaels (Tim, AMC).

Outstanding younger actress: Sara Michelle Gellar (Kendall, AMC), Kimberly McCullough (Robin, GH), Rachel Miner (Michelle, GL), Heather Tom (Victoria, Y&R).

Outstanding writing: AMC, GH, OLTL, Y&R.

Richard Dawson, an English comic, got his start in the United States in Hogan's Heroes and later went on to host Family Feud.

Myst was the top Macintosh game in 1994, and Doom II led among PC users. The games rank No. 1 and 2, respectively, on CD-ROM.

Walt Disney cast Fess Parker in his TV serial Davy Crockett after seeing Parker in the 1954 horror film Them!

What you should know about our Pricing* Policy: Not all items in this publication are on sale. Percent and dollar savings are off regular prices on in-stock items. Selection may vary by showroom; some items may not be available through Mail Order. An item's reference retail price, indicated by the † symbol, is your guide to its regular selling price at department stores and similar retailers. It is not our present or former selling price. It is either the retail price suggested by the mfr. in this publication's distribution area or our own determination of full retail price based on customary retailer markups for similar merchandise. Best Values are exceptional regular prices. Appraised values represent an IGI appraiser's determination of insurance replacement values. Rain Checks: available, unless an item is marked Clearance, Limited Quantity or Special Purchase, except for some seasonal merchandise. Clearance Merchandise: limited quantities; may not be available thru Mail Order; selections may vary by store. We reserve the right to limit quantity purchases.
