Laughlin, Chisum lead peers out of Demo party

Changeover brings number of defections to 31 this year

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas politicians are flip-flopping, but the switch is over parties rather than issues.

Nineteen Democratic officeholders Monday converted to the rival Republican Party, including U.S. Rep. Greg Laughlin and state Rep. Warren Chisum.

GOP leaders, whose party has gained a total of 31 converts this year in Texas, said the swaps are representative of a state that is becoming far more conservative.

"Today is yet another statement that the people in our state recognize that the conservative party in Texas ... is the Republican Party," said Republican Gov. George W. Bush, who joined U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey

Hutchison and other GOP leaders at a news conference announcing the party transfers.

"I think that what we're seeing is a reflection of the way Texans think now," Bush said.

Democrats said the conversions had more to do with personal politics than philosophy.

"What you found here is a handful of people who because of expediency or other personal reasons chose to switch parties," said Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party.

"It doesn't have anything to do with conservative. Conservative is a word that is used far too liberally by Republicans," Martin said. "Real conservatives, people who believe in the little guy, are still a critical aspect of the Democratic coalition in Texas."

Laughlin and Chisum - staunch conservatives in their respective seats - topped the list of Democratic turncoats.

Laughlin, whose district stretches from the western outskirts of Austin east to the Gulf of Mexico, made his announcement in Victoria. His switch gives Republicans a 232-202 majority in the U.S. House and decreases the Democratic lead in Texas' House delegation to 18-12.

With Chisum's switch, the number of Republicans in the 150-member state House rises to 62.

"It's great to be home," said Chisum, who as a Democrat headed the Texas Conservative Coalition for the past three years.

Chisum said he felt he could not advance his conservative agenda as a Democrat. "The Republican Party is the only party that has an agenda for the family. That's where I want to be," he said.

Chisum, whose district includes 16 Panhandle counties, is serving his fourth term as a state House member. His term expires in January 1997.

Also making the switch Monday were Victoria County District Attorney George Filley; five state district court judges from Fort Worth, Houston, Abilene and San Marcos; one county court-at-law judge from Houston; three Panhandle sheriffs; two county commissioners; one justice of the peace; and four constables.

Martin said the changes were not as numerous as Republicans had touted.

"Once again the massive party switch did not live up to its advance billing," he said. "Republicans have been boasting of a half-dozen state House members switching. What it turned out was only one House member switching."

AUSTIN (AP) - A list of the 19 Democratic officeholders who converted to the GOP Monday:

- U.S. Rep. Greg Laughlin, who represents the 14th Congressional District.
- State Rep. Warren Chisum, who represents House District 88 in the Panhandle.
- Victoria County District Attorney George J. Filley III.
- District Judge Randy Catterton, who serves on the 231st District Court in Tarrant County.
- District Judge George A. Crowley, who serves on the 67th District Court in Tarrant County.
- District Judge Linda Motheral, who serves on the 257th District Court in Harris County.
- District Judge John Weeks, who serves on the 42nd District Court in Taylor County.
- District Judge Charles R. Ramsay, who serves on the 22nd District Court for Hays, Comal and Caldwell counties.
- Harris County Court-at-Law Judge Shelly P. Hancock.
- Hansford County Sheriff R.L. McFarlin Jr.
- Ochiltree County Sheriff Joe Hataway.
- Hemphill County Sheriff Billy V. Bowen.
- Montgomery County Commissioner Malcolm W. Purvis Jr.
- Gregg County Commissioner David McBride.
- Harris County Justice of the Peace Molly Maness.
- Harris County Constable Bill Bailey.
- Gregg County Constable King Russell.
- Gregg County Constable Jim Montgomery.
- Galveston County Constable Jodie Raymond Pryor.

Looking over the new van

Hereford police Cpl. Albert Garza checks out the new Special Response Team van that is being built at the police department. The department obtained the vehicle as military surplus about two months ago. It was originally a U.S. Army ambulance that was painted for use in Desert Storm. Once completed it will be used as a mobile headquarters for the eight-man SRT, which is activated in cases involving hostages or similar instances.

Local authorities benefiting from military surplus goods

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Law enforcement officers in Hereford and Deaf Smith County are taking advantage of a program set in motion by President Bush to improve their ability to protect local citizens.

The Hereford Police Department and Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department both have recently obtained vehicles and equipment at no cost through the Operation Alliance program in which surplus military equipment is provided to law enforcement.

Police Chief David Wagner said Operation Alliance was begun under President Bush.

"At one time the Army would go out and blow up stuff like this," Wagner said. Then Bush ordered surplus equipment be offered to police instead.

As a result, both departments have made written application to Operation Alliance and received equipment.

Currently, two Blazers are being used by the Sheriff's Department and a van to transport prisoners, all of which were donated by the military.

The police department is in the process of transforming a Desert Storm ambulance into a mobile headquarters for the department's Special Response Team (SRT).

"Some departments have actually got tracked vehicles like tanks," Wagner said, while Sheriff Joe C. Brown noted with a laugh that "I could have got a helicopter if I'd wanted one."

Brown said his new vehicles are all low mileage, even though they were built in about 1984 to 1986.

In addition to the motorized equipment, both departments have obtained a variety of surplus equipment that they can use on a day-to-day basis.

Wagner said blankets from the military have been placed in the trunks of all patrol vehicles for use at accident scenes.

He also has picked up two portable generators the department can use as needed.

Brown's deputies can bring distant objects close thanks to surplus military binoculars.

Both departments have traveled to area military bases and brought home helmets, jackets, chemical suits, bullet-proof vests and night-vision scopes.

Even though the vehicles have all required some work -- painting at the very least -- to bring them up to department standards, both Wagner and Brown said their costs are around $2,000 per vehicle to make them street ready.

That, Brown said, is far less than the cost of a new four-wheel drive Blazer like the two he now owns.

Wagner said the police department targeted an old ambulance for its SRT van because "we knew what an ambulance looked like" and knew it could be converted for use in hauling equipment, communications gear and, if needed, officers, to crime scenes.

The eight-man SRT is deployed to situations involving hostages, drug warrants, barricaded subjects or the like.

Preparation for painting both departments' vehicles was done by Deaf Smith County Jail trustees.

Animal Control Officer Mark Loyd painted and striped the new SRT van.

Both men agreed that they would not have been able to get their new equipment had it not been for the military.

"I've gotten four vehicles from them that no way I could have bought," Brown said.

Both men also said they will keep alert for future equipment they can pick up free, while at the same time keeping officers safe and protecting citizens -- while saving taxpayer money at the same time.

Chamber 'range war' ends with 60 members signed up

The two-week membership drive of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce ended Friday afternoon with five teams signing up 60 new or expanded members.

"We are almost two-thirds of our way to our goal of 95 new members in '95," said Tommie Weemes, chamber vice president and membership chairman. "The contest is over but the opportunity to participate as a chamber member will stay open, and I have no doubt that we'll reach our goal."

Wes Klett, president, thanked those who participated in the drive and added, "Your chamber appreciates your support and pledges to continue to represent you."

The chamber directors formed five teams and held a mock "range war" to recruit new members. The Boss

Hogg team (composed of past president Wes Fisher and directors Mark Andrews and Wade Easley) won the team competition with 76 points.

Boss Bull (President Klett) and directors Jeff Brown and Scott Hall were runners-up with 71 points. The Decent Townsfolk (Don Cumpston, Jimmy Madrigal, Raul Mariscal) were third with 45 points, and the Town Marshall (Weemes) team finished fourth with 29 points. Finishing fifth were the Local Merchants--Mike Foster, Jeff Carlisle and Dennis Printz.

While his team finished second, Klett took individual honors with 38 points. Cumpston was second with 33; Fisher was third with 26, and Brown and Weemes took fourth and fifth, respectively, with 25 and 23 points.

Deaf Smith County among group getting new welfare, AFDC disbursement cards

AUSTIN -- Beginning Aug. 1, food stamps will disappear in Hereford and Deaf Smith County, according to an announcement by State Comptroller John Sharp.

"Deaf Smith County is included in the largest expansion of the Lone Star card in Texas, and with this roll-out, the Texas attack on bureaucratic bloat and welfare fraud moves into high gear," Sharp said in the Monday announcement.

"In just four weeks, food stamps will virtually disappear in another 90 Texas counties, in the San Antonio, El Paso, Lubbock, Amarillo, Victoria and Beaumont-Port Arthur areas, along with portions of East Texas," Sharp said. "And retailers who prepare early should be ready to accept the card without a hitch."

The Lone Star Card is the cornerstone of Sharp's wide-ranging welfare reform plan, which was recently approved by the Texas Legislature and signed into law by Gov. George W. Bush.

The Lone Star Card replaces paper food stamps with a card resembling a credit card.

It is the largest electronic benefits transfer program in the nation.

The Aug. 1 implementation will affect 300,000 families and 4,000 retail grocery outlets.

Sharp said slightly more than 50 percent of the retailers in the expansion area have signed agreements to provide food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) payments with the Lone Star Card.

The Lone Star Card was first proposed in 1991 and implemented in February in the Houston area. Sharp said retailers accepting the card noticed an immediate increase in food sales when it was introduced.

"Between February and March, food sales rose by $4.5 million, because benefits can be spent on food and food alone, not on crack cocaine or other illegal activities in the food stamp black market," Sharp said.

In June, the card was introduced in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and along the Gulf Coast, Sharp said, adding that it has "been working so smoothly that retailers have rung up food sales totaling nearly $65 million."

Sharp urged retailers to sign up to provide electronic food stamp and AFDC benefits.

Firms interested in doing so may contact Transactive Corp., the Austin-based operator of the Lone Star Card. Their phone number is 1-800-418-8000.

The state comptroller said the new card will cut the cost of offering the benefits.

"This card will trim the national costs of the old food stamp system by $45.4 million for printing, $4.5 million for shipping and storing and $23.1 million for the final processing and destruction of the paper coupons at the Federal Reserve," he said.

In addition, Sharp said, the Lone Star Card has already reduced food stamp fraud.

"By the end of this year, we will have abolished paper food stamp coupons in Texas," Sharp said. "We are returning the program to its original purpose -- feeding hungry children, not feeding a bureaucracy and a black market of fraud."

White House, GOP race for budget deal

WASHINGTON (AP) - With time running out, the White House and Republican congressional leaders are struggling to work out final details on a compromise plan to cut more than $16 billion from already approved spending.

A draft plan circulating on Capitol Hill Monday would restore $724 million to education and job training programs the Republicans wanted to cut, balancing those additions with new reductions in federal administrative and travel budgets, NASA and agriculture programs.

President Clinton on June 7 used his veto authority for the first time in killing the bill to trim $16.4 billion from the budget. He said the bill was unacceptable because it would have sacrificed education and environmental programs while leaving intact federal building projects.

The decision to veto the bill was complicated by the inclusion in the package of $6.7 billion in relief money for victims of the 1994 California earthquake and other disasters, $250 million to support anti-terrorism activities and $275 million in debt relief for Jordan.

Congressional sources said a compromise must be reached this week, before Congress leaves for a weeklong Fourth of July recess. If not, they said it will be too late in the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, to touch some programs slated for cuts.

Republican leaders have warned that failure to take this first step toward reducing the budget deficit will result in even more painful cuts as they put together the budget.

Local Roundup

Thunderstorms linger

After .24-inch of rain Monday evening, Hereford has a 20 percent chance of picking up more moisture Tuesday night from thunderstorms. The low will be near 60 degrees, with south to southwest wind, 10-15 mph. Forecast for Wednesday calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the 90-degree range and wind from the southwest at 10-15 mph. The temperature climbed to 87 degrees Monday and dropped back to a low of 57 degrees overnight.

News Digest

TOKYO - If U.S.-Japan auto talks fail this week and Washington goes ahead with threatened sanctions, Japanese consumers may soon begin asking, "Where's the beef?"

The American beef, that is. Japanese trade officials say Tokyo would likely target American farm products if a trade war were triggered by the Clinton administration's plan to impose 100 percent tariffs on Japanese-made luxury cars.

GENEVA - U.S. and Japanese negotiators find plenty to talk about but no easy answers as they seek to resolve a bitter automotive dispute. U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Japanese Trade Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto report no progress after their first session, with just two days to go until a U.S. deadline for imposing punitive tariffs on Japanese luxury cars.

AUSTIN - Texas politicians are flip-flopping, but the switch is over parties rather than issues. Nineteen Democratic officeholders Monday converted to the rival Republican Party, including U.S. Rep. Greg Laughlin and state Rep. Warren Chisum.

VICTORIA - The head of a Democratic fund-raising committee says Rep. Greg Laughlin should return $79,000 it provided him now that he has defected to the GOP.

CORPUS CHRISTI - A judge has approved a $65 million settlement between Occidental Chemical Corp. and thousands of people who sued the company, claiming they were injured because of 1992 chemical release, according to a published report.

Hair, fiber evidence described by lab witness for prosecution

By JEFF MEYER

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER
LOS ANGELES (AP) - Prosecutors have begun to present hair and fiber evidence against O.J. Simpson through extremely detailed testimony by a police laboratory technician.

In opening statements, prosecutor Marcia Clark said hair similar to Simpson's and fibers similar to the carpet in his Ford Bronco were recovered from the cap found at Ronald Goldman's feet. She also said a hair similar to Simpson's was found on Goldman's shirt, and that both victims' hair was found on the glove at Simpson's estate.

Denise Lewis described Monday how she processed hairs, fibers from Simpson's Ford Bronco and clothing from both victims. She said she didn't handle bloody gloves and a ski cap.

Lewis explained exactly how each piece of evidence was carefully examined, packaged and, in some cases, placed in a freezer.

Clark's detailed questioning seemed to anticipate defense challenges of Lewis' testimony, which will be followed by scientific analysis of trace evidence and dog and human hairs.

Lewis was to resume her testimony today.

The hair and trace evidence could strengthen the prosecution's case, but won't provide an emotional high point on which to conclude, said Southwestern University law professor Myrna Raeder.

"It should be helpful," she said. "But it's not going to be a clincher."

Defense lawyers have already addressed some of the hair and fiber evidence, suggesting that a blanket police took from Nicole Brown Simpson's condominium to cover her body could have contaminated the crime scene. They suggested Simpson's hair and Bronco fibers could have been left on the blanket when he visited her overnight.

Unlike DNA analysis, hair and trace evidence is open to broad interpretation because there is no nationwide database of standards against which findings can be compared, experts said.

Raeder expected prosecutors to present a bigger finish - such as the slow-speed chase after Simpson and his friend Al "A.C." Cowlings fled the day Simpson was supposed to surrender.

"I would be personally surprised if the prosecution didn't end with a bang," she said.

Simpson insists he was home alone on June 12, 1994, when the throats of his ex-wife and her friend were slashed outside Ms. Simpson's condominium.

Also Monday, world-renowned population geneticist Bruce Weir admitted that he made mistakes in calculating genetic frequencies in mixed blood stains, saying his conclusions were "consistently wrong" because of a computer programming error.

His mistakes all involved stains that DNA experts say probably included Simpson's blood. For that reason, the defense contended Weir's errors were biased because they made it appear very unlikely that someone other than Simpson could have contributed to a stain.

Defense attorney Peter Neufeld led Weir through a series of corrections showing it was now about 2( times more likely that someone other than Simpson could have contributed to blood stains found in his Bronco and on the glove found at his estate.

Under redirect questioning by prosecutor George Clarke, the North Carolina State University scientist insisted he did not give special weight to the fact that some of the blood stains had been linked to Simpson and the victims.

'Eavesdropping' gives no indication of aliens

By GEOFF SPENCER

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - They picked up signals from satellites, aircraft, automatic garage door openers and even microwave ovens, but not a peep from an alien.

After five months of electronically eavesdropping on the universe for signs of life, scientists ended a sweep of the southern skies today.

"We didn't find anything, but we learned a lot," said Jill Tarter, project scientist for the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence Institute. "We'll keep looking. The search has only just begun."

The institute, based in Mountain View, Calif., plans to move its Project Phoenix search back to the northern hemisphere.

Starting Feb. 3, scientists used high-tech scanning equipment attached to the Parkes radio telescope, a huge white dish in Outback sheep country, to listen in on billions of radio waves across the stars.

They claim it is the most sophisticated and systematic search ever.

Space is full of natural radio static. The group was trying to find deliberately sent signals that would stand out from the background.

A big problem was signals from human technology.

Special scanning equipment, with the help of the Parkes dish and another nearby radio telescope, cut out much of it. Even so, there were more than 100 false alarms.

Satellites and other space probes - and overhead jets - were the worst culprits, but there were more down-to-earth sources as well.

Remote-controlled garage door openers puzzled the scientists for a while.

"We had to ban the use of microwave ovens in the kitchen because of the signals they produce," said Tarter.

Tarter, like many of her co-workers, once searched for extraterrestrials on behalf of NASA. But Congress axed funding for the U.S. space agency program in 1993 after some lawmakers complained the search was pointless.

The project was later revived as a private operation funded by donations.

Drought, not NAFTA, blamed for decline of U.S. cattle prices

ODESSA, Texas (AP) - Price for beef cattle have plummeted in the last 18 months because of an oversupply among U.S. producers and a flood of Mexican imports, area ranchers said.

"Cattle prices have gone to hell," said Hence Barrow, an Ector County rancher who has a cattle operation. "That's all you can say."

Prices have dropped from a high of $1.25 per pound to anywhere from 62 to 84 cents per pound, according to ranchers, extension agents and marketing specialists.

"A 600-pound calf didn't bring $400," feed store operator Sonny Henderson told the Odessa American. "Ranchers can make some money, but it's not where it was. Five hundred dollar calves were a pretty good boom."

Marketing specialists and economists predicted the drop in cattle prices more than two years ago because of an oversupply in the United States, said Ernest Davis, a Texas A&M Extension cattle marketing specialist in College Station.

American ranchers had 34.6 million beef cows that calved in 1993, and 36.1 million in 1994, Davis said.

Livestock market economists have been telling ranchers to scale back, but they haven't been listening, he said.

"Our ranchers don't like to blame themselves," he said. "We had good prices from 1987 to 1993. Normally we only have good prices for two or three years."

But overstocking is not a problem in West Texas, Ector County Agricultural Extension Agent Jim Word said. "Our ranchers out here are aware of the fragile system, and they know it can take years to recover from overgrazing, if at all," he said.

Davis disagrees with those who blame the North American Free Trade Agreement for the problem, saying Mexican ranchers were either going to ship their herds to the United States or watch them die.

"NAFTA has nothing to do with it," he said. "The drought in Mexico has hurt. They are shipping cattle into the United States that would otherwise just die."

Don't tell that to Ector County rancher Bob Steakley, who is upset about the end of quotas for Mexican cattle imports into the United States.

"That may be true, but if they didn't have 2 million cattle coming in, I guarantee prices would be better," Steakley said.

"The auto industry couldn't stand 15,000 cars a day (in imports)," Steakley said. "There are hundreds of thousands of pounds of processed meat ready for the dinner table in somebody's home or restaurant, and they are just sitting there."

Almost all West Texas counties are eligible for federal feed assistance programs, where they are reimbursed for the money they spend on feed.

Youth win high ratings at Amarillo cattle show

Local youth captured honors this past weekend at the Golden Spread Classic Heifer Show held at the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo.

The show consisted of a heifer show, steer show, and a prospect lamb show.

During Friday's show Ian Isaacson, placed second in the Angus class 2 competition.

In Saturday's steer show several Hereford students grabbed top placings.

Couples honored

Among the couples recognized during the anniversary celebration Sunday at King's Manor were (from left) Rev. Charles and Coise Gates who have been married 63 years, Elbert and Geneva DeLozier, 64 years and Ruth and Miller King, 59 years.

King's Manor residents honored

King's Manor honors couples during anniversary celebration

An anniversary celebration was held Sunday at King's Manor to honor the couples currently living on the campus.

The eleven couples that were honored have been married for a combined total of 661 years.

Seven of the couples reside at King's Manor and four reside at Westgate Nursing Home.

Clint and Edna Hundle were recognized for having been married the longest -- 67 years. Slim and Katherine Wardell have been married the least number of years at 44.

Other couples who were honored are John and Ruby Stevenson, 50 years; Bill and Jean Streu, 65 years; Miller and Ruth King, 59 years; Elbert and Geneva DeLozier, 64 years; Roy and Nell Griffin 64 years; Rev. O.L. and Leota Knowlton, 62 years; Romie and Inez Fults, 63 years; Rev. Charles and Coise Gates, 63 years; and J.O. and Estelle Wheeler, 60 years.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: What is minimum size for postcards sent by mail? I would like to recycle the fronts of pretty greeting cards by using them as postcards. — Joyce Burns, Ponchatoula, La.

This is a wonderful way to save money, recycle and keep in touch. According to the United States Post Office, postcards must be:

- Rectangular.
- Not less than 3 1/2 inches high, 5 inches long, or 0.007 inches thick.

- Not larger than 4 1/4 inches high, 6 inches long, or 0.0095 inches thick.

Postcards require a 20-cent stamp, but if the card is larger than 4 1/4 inches by 6 inches, it is not considered a postcard and you'll need to attach a 32-cent stamp or more, depending on the weight.

If you are unsure if what you are mailing fits the criteria for a postcard, please ask your local post office. — Heloise

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from Bob Kustra, lieutenant governor of Illinois, about teen-agers fooling around with inhalants and just had to write.

My son had asthma as a child. When he grew older, the asthma seemed to clear up although he would still wheeze a little if he became emotional or over-tired.

When he went to boarding school, I warned him that if he experimented with any drugs, especially inhalants, it could kill him. I also told him that if anybody approached him to try something, all he had to say was, "I have asthma, and it could kill me." I could see he was scared by what I said but not quite convinced.

Two years later, my son called me late at night. He was beside himself. A boy in his class had sniffed an inhalant and was dead before the ambulance could get him to the hospital. My son kept saying, "It's trac, Mom. It's true what you said. It can happen. It's terrible. I am so glad you warned me."

So please, people, believe it. Inhalants can kill your teen-agers. Tell them. — A Mother from Vermont

DEAR VERMONT MOTHER: I'm sure many parents have never heard of getting high on inhalants. Thank you for opening their eyes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I became a bit angry while reading those columns from people who want to take away old folks' driving privileges. If young drivers would use a little common sense, we older folks wouldn't always be in their way. Why are they in such a hurry? Where are they going that another three minutes would make such a difference?

The young people on the road scare me to death. I will be 70 next month and would gladly quit driving if someone would provide me with a chauffeured care every time I must go for groceries, a doctor's appointment or to church. My children have families and jobs and aren't able to drive me all the places I need to go. What am I supposed to do? Sit at home and dry up?

Last week, I saw a young person run right through a red light. He was lucky the driver who had the right of way at that intersection was alert. I never exceed the speed limit, but dozens of young people in a hurry keep passing me. Please, Ann, put the blame where it belongs. — Boise, Idaho

DEAR BOISE: Thanks for blowing your top. Your points are valid. Although teen-agers may be responsible for a lot of traffic accidents, seniors are more likely to be involved in fatalities.

According to a recent article in the Chicago Tribune, the rate of fatal accidents per miles driven is higher for drivers over 75 than for teen-agers. In accidents occurring at speeds under 33 mph, 86 percent of occupants over 60 years of age died, compared with none under 40.

A driver's skills can be impaired due to illness, aging or injury. A recent survey by the University of Florida reported that half of all drivers with Parkinson's disease and two-thirds of all who had suffered a stroke or passed out in the last year continue to drive. The older a person gets, the greater the chances are that he or she will have an accident.

Of course, this does not let the teen-agers off the hook. A word to parents: If your child gets citations for a traffic violation (speeding, running a red light, etc.), you should take away his or her driving privileges for two solid weeks, even if the car is his or her own. It could save that child's life.

MEANDERINGS

The annual meeting of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society was held recently at the country home of board member Carmen Flood.

Theresa Artho, president, presided at the business meeting.

Officers elected for a one year term were Jeri Bezner, president; Cindy Cole, vice president; Cheryl Betzen, secretary; and Peggy Hyer, treasurer.

Directors serving a one year term are Cheryl Betzen, Jeri Bezner, Cindy Cole, Troyce Hanna, Sandy Josseland, Betty Kriegshauser, Mary Kay McQuigg and Ella Marie Veigel.

Directors serving a two year term are Judy Detten, Pat Graham, Polly Hays, Claudia McBrayer, Cherry McWhorter who was elected to fill the unexpired term of Lisa Albiar who resigned, Dorothea Prowell, Kathryn Ruga, Teena Reinauer and Mary Zinscr.

Directors whose terms expired as of May 31 were Theresa Artho, Paula Edwards, Carmen Flood, Jan Furr, Kitty Gault, Peggy Hyer, Juanita Koetting and Cyndi Walker. The nominating committee submitted their names for another three year term and they were elected.

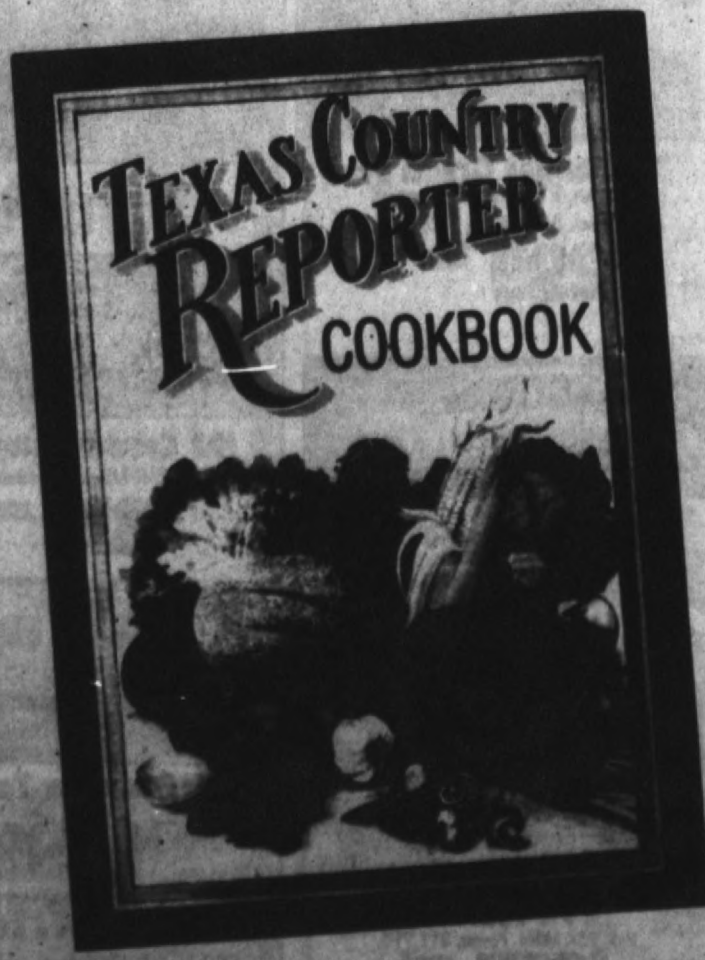

It was reported that 4,000 visitors have toured the museum this last year representing seven foreign countries and 40 states of the United States.

The military exhibit is in place commemorating the 50th anniversary of World War II. The Junior Historians of Hereford Junior High assisted with this display. There is a glass case with artifacts from the South Pacific in addition to a display of uniforms, pictures, etc.

June 1 was the beginning of a new year. This will be the 28th year that the Deaf Smith County Museum has been preserving our heritage for future generations. You can be a part of this by joining the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

Youth rally tournament champs

Oilers eye McMahon, Schroeder

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers, hoping to add a veteran quarterback by the start of training camp on July 20, are looking at Jim McMahon and Jay Schroeder, general manager Floyd Reese says.

Both are free agents who played for Arizona last season.

"The problem is always the same. The (salary) cap, what's it gonna cost you and how that will affect the other parts of the team," Reese told Houston station KRIV-TV on Monday.

Of McMahon, Reese said, "The plus to anyone of that caliber is you have a veteran quarterback who has played in the NFL and won."

Both McMahon and Schroeder have taken teams to Super Bowl championships.

The Oilers GM noted that Schroeder hasn't been as injury-prone as McMahon.

"He hasn't been through that, and he also knows the system a little bit better. He played for (Houston offensive coordinator) Jerry (Rhome) at a point in time in Washington."

Earlier this month, the Oilers cut last year's starting quarterback, Cody Carlson, after he flunked his physical. Oilers coaches have said they will not push No. 1 draft pick Steve McNair into the starting role.

Both McMahon and Schroeder reportedly have expressed a desire to play for the Oilers.

"We are talking with the Oilers," McMahon's agent, Steve Zucker said. "Jim would love to play for the Oilers. (Oilers coach) Jeff Fisher is the main reason. They were teammates in Chicago."

Schroeder's agent, John Macik, said: "Jay would be excited to play for Houston. With the relationship he's had with Jerry Rhome and his knowledge of the offense, it would be a good match for Houston. Floyd Reese and I spoke today, and I expect to hear from them later in the week."

Schroeder started for the Redskins most of the 1987 season, when the Redskins won the Super Bowl and Rhome was an assistant coach there. Schroeder has played for four NFL teams, starting eight games for Arizona last season, including the final six. He is a 12-year NFL veteran.

McMahon started one game for Arizona last season. He has played for five NFL teams and is a 14-year veteran. He was the Chicago Bears quarterback in the 1985 season, when they won the Super Bowl.

First day of Wimbledon play features no upsets of seeds

By STEPHEN WILSON

AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Top-seeded Andre Agassi overwhelmed Australian qualifier Andrew Painter in straight sets today to reach the second round at Wimbledon.

Agassi, the 1992 champion, looked sharp as he cruised to a 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 victory in just one hour, 17 minutes.

Painter, a 19-year-old Tasmanian with a world ranking of No. 530, was playing his first match in a tour-level event. It showed.

Painter committed 17 double faults to go with his 13 aces. In one game alone, trailing 5-1 in the first set, he served six double faults and had four aces before holding serve. In the second set, he double-faulted on all four of his serves in the seventh game to fall behind 5-2.

Agassi was in complete command as he took the ball early and ripped shots cleanly to all corners of the court.

While Painter struggled just to win a game in the third set, Agassi showed no mercy. On match point, with Painter stranded at the net, Agassi moved up on a short ball and drilled a forehand passing shot close to his body.

"I've grown to love it here," Agassi said. "I enjoy being a part of history here ... Every time I come back here, the emotion and the excitement seems to bring out some great tennis."

In women's play, defending champion Conchita Martinez, second-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and No. 5 Mary Pierce all won in straight sets.

Martinez crushed Asa Carlsson of Sweden 6-1, 6-1, in just 47 minutes.

Sanchez Vicario, mixing her strong baseline game with occasional forays to the net, needed less than an hour to beat Katarina Studenkiova of Slovakia, 6-2, 6-1.

Pierce, making her Wimbledon debut, took 57 minutes to dispose of Sandra Dopfer 6-1, 6-2.

"I was a little bit nervous," Pierce said. "I didn't know what to expect, but it was a great feeling playing here for the first time."

Also winning in straight sets was No. 4 Jana Novotna, who defeated Karin Kschwendt 6-4, 6-4.

Top-seeded Steffi Graf was set to play 14-year-old Swiss phenom Martina Hingis.

Sanchez Vicario, a clay-court specialist who has never advanced beyond the quarterfinals at Wimbledon, said she had worked to adapt her game to the grass surface.

"I went to the net when I had a chance," she said. "I played a little more aggressive than I did in the past. Clay is still my favorite, but I want to prove myself on other surfaces."

In other early women's matches today, ninth-seeded Anke Huber rallied for a 6-7 (7-5), 6-1, 6-1, win over Tina Krizan of Slovenia.

Unseeded American Chanda Rubin continued her fine run by beating Ludmila Richterova of Slovakia, 6-1, 6-3.

Rams roll into new St. Louis home

ST. LOUIS (AP) - St. Louis' return to the NFL after a seven-year absence became a reality when the first of 11 Rams moving vans roared through welcoming banners.

The vans, filled with everything from shoulder pads to blocking sleds, are the first in a caravan of 18 vehicles being used to move the Rams from Anaheim, Calif. About 200 people were watching when they arrived downtown Monday.

One of them was Tim Long of St. Louis, who has Rams season tickets and is a veteran team booster. He's attended several rallies and other events.

"I'm glad they're finally here," he said. "It's been a long wait."

After driving through downtown, the trucks headed to Maryville University, where training camp begins July 16, and Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club, the temporary practice facility for this season.

The vehicles began the 1,800-mile trip on Friday. Most of the vans drove east toward Oklahoma, where they headed north to Wichita, Kan., up to Kansas City and on to St. Louis, said Richard McClure, an executive vice president at United Van Lines.

Cramming nearly 50 years of tradition into trunks and boxes proved just about as tough as convincing the NFL to allow the move. After initially saying no, league owners gave the go-ahead in April.

St. Louis is back in the NFL for the first time since 1988, when Bill

Bidwill took the Cardinals to Phoenix.

"We've been planning our move to St. Louis since April, and we're delighted to finally settle into our new home," Rams owner Georgia Frontiere said in a statement.

Knicks interview Ford

NEW YORK (AP) - Fired Boston Celtics coach Chris Ford has talked with New York Knicks general manager Ernie Grunfeld about coaching the team next season.

Ford, who has a summer home in Margate, N.J., met with Grunfeld in New York on Monday after returning from a weekend trip to Bermuda.

Pat Riley resigned as coach of the Knicks on June 15. Ford was fired by the Celtics last month and replaced as coach by Celtics general manager M.L. Carr.

Former Golden State Warriors general manager and coach Don Nelson also is being considered for the Knicks' coaching job.

Riley is reportedly about to sue the Knicks for breach of contract.

Riley, who quit with a year left on his contract, is attempting to get out of that final year so he can coach next season without permission from the Knicks or from having New York demand compensation from any team which hires him, the New York Times reported in today's editions.

Justice, Piazza provide victory with late homers

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

All David Justice wanted was a pitch he could see. All Mike Piazza wanted was a good swing. They both got their wish.

A two-run, sixth-inning homer by Justice carried the Atlanta Braves to their third straight victory, 4-3 over the Montreal Expos.

"I had just struck out twice," Justice said. "I was just trying to get a pitch I could see. I was not thinking about a home run. Fortunately, I hit it well."

Piazza waited a little longer. His three-run, opposite-field shot came in the bottom of the ninth and boosted the Los Angeles Dodgers to their sixth straight win, 8-5 over the San Diego Padres.

"I just didn't want to get cheated," Piazza said. "I wanted to get three good swings and see what happened... Fortunately, I got a pitch I could hit."

In other games Monday night, Florida defeated New York 9-4, Pittsburgh beat Chicago 8-6 and Houston blanked St. Louis 11-0.

Piazza's 12th homer of the season and 72nd of his career was his first winning game-ending shot.

"I had a couple of these in the minor leagues, but obviously this is completely different," Piazza said. "The crowd was really into it. They were fired up and they stayed there the whole game. It's really special."

Padres reliever Brian Williams

(1-5) hit Delino DeShields with a pitch to start the inning. After Jose Offerman walked, Trevor Hoffman came on and Piazza drove his first pitch over the short fence near the right field pole for his seventh homer in his last 47 at-bats.

Earlier, Piazza had a two-run single, giving him five RBIs for the night.

Todd Worrell (1-0), who went into the game with a string of 12 consecutive saves and a perfect ERA, earned the victory with one perfect inning of relief.

Tony Gwynn put the Padres ahead 5-4 with a solo homer in the seventh inning against Pedro Astacio. It was Gwynn's fifth homer of the year, but only his third at Dodger Stadium in 14 seasons.

The Dodgers then knotted the score again in the eighth on a single and three walks by Williams, including a walk to Billy Ashley that forced in the tying run.

Tim Wallach drove in the Dodgers' first run with a leadoff homer in the third - his third of the season.

Braves 4, Expos 3

At Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, the Braves overcame a 3-0 deficit in winning for the 10th time in 13 games and handing Montreal its 10th loss in 12 games.

Ryan Klesko also homered for Atlanta.

The Braves rallied off reliever Luis Aquino (0-2), who yielded a one-out double to Fred McGriff before Justice homered over the center-field fence.

The Expos took a 3-0 lead in the third with five consecutive hits off Tom Glavine (6-4), who gave up nine hits, walked one and struck out six before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Mark Wohlers pitched the ninth for his third save in three games and his fifth of the year.

Astros 11, Cardinals 0

Greg Swindell's six-hit pitching was backed by rookie Orlando Miller's hitting as Houston once again scored a bundle of runs at the Astrodome.

Swindell tossed his first shutout since Oct. 1, 1993, striking out five, walking one and allowing only seven St. Louis baserunners, only three getting as far as second base.

Miller drove in a career-high five runs with three hits, including a three-run homer.

The Astros, who scored a club-record 19 runs Sunday, scored nine runs on five hits in 1 1-3 innings against St. Louis starter Mark Petkovsek (3-2). And by the end of the second inning, Houston led 10-0.

"Things are going good for me now," Miller said. "I've had streaks like this before, but that was in the minors."

Despite the huge lead, Swindell didn't change his pitching style.

"I pitched like it was a 1-0 game," he said. "You still got to stick to your game plan. If you start throwing fastballs, they might come back."

Houston had 14 hits, getting at least one from every starter except Phil Nevin and Jeff Bagwell.

"I let the team down," Petkovsek said. "I've had some pretty good games, but I opened the flood gates tonight."

Marlins 9, Mets 4

Jeff Conine's two-run homer at Joe

Robbie Stadium sparked a five-run sixth inning and powered Florida over New York. Charles Johnson also homered for the Marlins, capping the inning with a two-run shot.

Bobby Bonilla's two-run homer in the first and run-scoring single in the fourth gave starter Bobby Jones (4-5) and the Mets a 3-2 lead. Bonilla also hit a solo homer, his 11th, in the ninth to knock in all of New York's runs.

The loss pushed the Mets deeper into last place in the NL East.

Marlins starter Pat Rapp (3-4) pitched seven innings, allowing five hits and three runs. Rapp's ninth career victory at Joe Robbie Stadium is a Marlins record.

Pirates 8, Cubs 6

At Wrigley Field, Carlos Garcia went 3-for-4 with a homer and extended his hitting streak to 20 games as Pittsburgh dropped Chicago to .500 for the first time this season.

Garcia also doubled and singled and is hitting .365 (27-for-74) during his streak.

"Early in the season I was thinking too much. Now I just go along with the pitch. I'm just seeing the ball good," Garcia said.

Al Martin had three hits and three RBIs as the Pirates had a season-high 16 hits.

Trailing 7-3, the Cubs rallied for three runs in the eighth off reliever Jim Gott. But Jason Christiansen relieved and got Mark Grace to ground out to end the rally.

Steve Parris (1-0) got his first major league victory in his second big league start. Dan Miceli pitched the ninth for his 10th save, while Cubs starter Steve Trachsel (2-6) took the loss.

Royals blow chance to gain on Tribe

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The opener of a big three-game series in the AL Central was a downer for the Kansas City Royals and their largest crowd of the year.

The Cleveland Indians survived two injuries and beat Kansas City 2-0 Monday night to open a 6 1/2-game lead over their nearest challenger in the division.

The Royals had a chance to make baseball's most lopsided divisional race interesting. They were facing a team that was swept in a three-game series at Chicago over the weekend and then lost its sparkplug in the second inning when Kenny Lofton strained his left hamstring.

But by that time, Lofton had already driven in one run and scored another. And no more runs crossed the plate the rest of the night.

"I think he's very doubtful for tomorrow, but we'll just check him day-to-day. We'd better get him back because he's a very important part of our ballclub," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said.

It didn't even hurt the Indians when pitcher Chad Ogea left the game in the seventh inning after a batted ball hit him in the belly. Relievers Jim Poole, Julian Tavarez and Jose Mesa finished off a combined seven-hitter before a paid crowd of 24,296 at Kauffman Stadium.

"Ogea threw a good fastball and changeup, which was tough to read," Kansas City manager Bob Boone said. "The only way to get him was to kill him."

The Royals didn't help themselves, either, leaving 14 runners on base.

So, instead of having a chance to pull within 2 1/2 games of the Indians, the Royals will have to win the last two games in the series to get within 4 1/2.

In other games, Boston beat Toronto 4-3, Oakland beat Texas 4-3, New York beat Detroit 7-3, Chicago beat Minnesota 6-5, Baltimore beat Milwaukee 2-0 and Seattle beat California 7-3.

Red Sox 4, Blue Jays 3

At Fenway Park, the Red Sox blew a three-run lead in the top of the ninth, then came back to win it in the bottom of the inning on Luis Alica's single.

Mike Greenwell scored the winning run after getting hit by a pitch and stealing second. Candy Maldonado fielded Alica's hit off Tony Castillo (0-2) and had a play at the plate, but his throw flew over the catcher's head.

"I was coming as hard as I could," Greenwell said. "Fortunately, he airmailed it."

Stan Belinda (5-0) got the win after failing to protect the 3-0 lead.

Yankees 7, Tigers 3

At Yankee Stadium, Randy Velarde and Wade Boggs had three hits apiece and rookie left-hander Andy Pettitte (3-4) pitched seven shutout innings.

"The way that kid pitched, nobody was going to beat him," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said. "He was outstanding. He was much different than the last time we saw him."

Yankees starters are 5-0 with a 1.97 ERA in the last five games - all wins. Felipe Lira (4-4) had his four-game winning streak ended.

Athletics 4, Rangers 3

At The Ballpark in Arlington, the Rangers blew a three-run lead in the ninth by making two throwing errors. A third bad throw pulled Will Clark off first base on a potential game-ending double play ball.

Terry Steinbach and Stan Javier had RBI singles and Craig Paquette tied it with a double. The winning run scored on Benji Gil's throwing error.

Todd Stottlemyre (6-1) struck out nine in eight innings. Ed Vosberg (2-2) took the loss.

White Sox 6, Twins 5

At the Metrodome, Frank Thomas hit his 17th and 18th homers - both two-run shots - and Chicago got a rare road win.

Brian Keyser (1-2) pitched out of trouble all night before Roberto Hernandez worked the ninth for his 12th save. Brad Radke (3-7) left after 5 2-3 innings, ending a string of 10 games in which Twins starters worked at least six innings.

Orioles 2, Brewers 0

At County Stadium, Jamie Moyer (2-3) took a no-hitter into the sixth and combined with two relievers on a two-hitter.

Rafael Palmeiro and Kevin Bass had RBIs for Baltimore, which dealt Milwaukee its fourth straight loss. Brewers starter Angel Miranda (4-3) reinjured his surgically repaired left knee.

Mariners 7, Angels 3

At the Kingdome, Tino Martinez hit a three-run homer and Luis Sojo and Edgar Martinez also homered.

Salomon Torres (2-3) won his second straight game, going 6 2-3 innings and allowing two runs on six hits. Brian Anderson (1-1) gave up all three homers and seven runs in 4 1-3 innings.

Devils take step toward Nashville

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The New Jersey Devils are leaving their options open in case the Stanley Cup isn't enough to get a new lease from the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority.

Two days after winning the Cup, the Devils took their second legal step in recent months to break their lease and clear the way for a possible move, perhaps to Nashville, Tenn., after the 1996-97 season.

Monday's decision to notify the sports authority that they intend to end their franchise agreement in two years doesn't necessarily mean the team will leave.

Devils president and general manager Lou Lamoriello said in a statement that the team is trying to maintain its legal rights while continuing to negotiate with the sports authority on a new lease.

Gov. Christie Whitman, a close ally of team owner John McMullen, remains optimistic the two sides can agree on a new lease, her spokeswoman said. The current lease, renegotiated in 1991, expires in 2002.

The notice came hours before the Devils announced a Meadowlands Arena rally for Wednesday in honor of the Stanley Cup. The state assembly, meanwhile, unanimously approved a resolution urging McMullen to keep the team in New Jersey.

"We were looking at a celebration, not a termination," Whitman spokeswoman Rita Manno said. "It did come as a surprise, but it may be strictly a legal maneuver on the part of the Devils."

Manno said Whitman supports the sports authority and believes the current lease is valid. The sports authority said its general counsel is reviewing the Devils' termination letter.

"We are not giving up hope," Manno said. "We are nowhere near that level."

Whitman's husband, John, has been an informal mediator in the dispute.

"He is still very much in this and devoting a lot of time to this, and he remains confident this can be worked out," Manno said.

Rodman being sued in Herpes case

ATLANTA (AP) - A lawyer representing NBA star Dennis Rodman says there is no evidence that he has ever had a transmittable form of genital herpes, which a former Atlanta Hawks cheerleader claims she contracted from Rodman.

Lisa Beth Judd, 24, is suing Rodman for unspecified damages. She claims Rodman, with whom she'd had an on-and-off relationship since 1991, gave her herpes on Jan. 14, 1993, when he came to Atlanta as a member of the Detroit Pistons.

Her lawyer, Mark Trigg, said in court Monday that Rodman had told her the night he gave her herpes that he was ready to get serious about their relationship.

"That was exactly what Lisa had hoped he would say," Trigg said in opening arguments to the eight-woman, two-man jury. "Lisa loved Dennis Rodman. Lisa trusted Dennis Rodman."

Trigg said Rodman, now with the San Antonio Spurs, had given herpes to two other women about two weeks earlier.

A Detroit woman, one of two whose testimony was shown to the jury on videotape, said she located another Detroit woman and alerted her to the dangers of having sex with Rodman.

Richard Hines, representing Rodman, told the jury there was no medical evidence that the 26-year-old Detroit woman actually has the disease.

"The evidence will show that this is between two consenting adults," Hines said. "The bottom line is going to come down to individual responsibility for sexual activity in the 1990s."

He said that while a 1993 blood test showed Rodman had herpes, there was no evidence it was ever in an active, transmittable form.

Another Rodman lawyer, Taylor Daly, said Ms. Judd became pregnant three times between the ages of 17 and 20. "She should have understood the risks of unprotected sexual activity," she said.

Ex-Spur arrested in burglary case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Former San Antonio Spurs guard Alvin Robertson has been charged with burglary and other charges after an incident involving an ex-girlfriend.

Robertson, 32, was arrested early Monday outside the woman's apartment complex after her apparent refusal to talk with the former player led to an argument, police said.

Police reports indicate Robertson kicked open her front door, broke some furniture and allegedly roughed up the woman before taking her wallet, police said.

The former player left, but then returned and is believed to have set fire to some newspaper in the woman's living room, police said.

Deaf Smith Red Cross to merge with Castro, Parmer counties

The writing of a new chapter in the 76-year history of the American Red Cross in Deaf Smith County will begin July 1.

That's when the Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer County chapters, at the direction of the national headquarters of the American Red Cross, will merge to become the Tri-County Chapter.

Preparations for the merger have been underway for almost a year, after national Red Cross headquarters informed its chapters throughout the country that delivery of emergency services to every community was a top priority.

"As a result of the high standards for providing the widest variety of services to Deaf Smith County and neighboring Castro and Parmer counties, the board of directors of the Deaf Smith County Chapter felt that their logical choice was a merger with the Castro and Parmer County chapters to form one local chapter. The merger should hopefully improve service and increase the base of volunteers and financial support," says Betty Henson, Deaf Smith County Chapter manager. Mrs. Henson will serve in the same capacity with the new Tri-County Chapter.

The Tri-County Chapter office will remain at the Deaf Smith County Chapter location at 224 South Main. Services for all three counties will be administered through that office.

"Both Castro and Parmer County chapters have been inactive for several years. The Deaf Smith County Chapter has been providing essentially all of the emergency services for those two counties for the past 15 years -- things like family communications and financial help for military personnel, disaster assistance, instruction in first aid, CPR and water safety, and information on HIV/aids. The merger just makes it official. Effective with the merger, we will begin to actively recruit volunteers in Castro and Parmer counties," said Mrs. Henson.

Residents of Castro and Parmer counties who are in need of Red Cross services or information will be able to contact the Tri-County Chapter office in Hereford at 364-3761, or designated persons in their community.

In Castro County, those needing Red Cross services can contact James Killough or Grace Killough.

In Parmer County, residents may contact Lois Norwood at Friona, or County Judge Bonny Clayton at Farwell.

Red Cross volunteers were recently in action in Parmer and Castro counties following tornados June 2 at Friona and Dimmitt.

"Emergency food, clothing and shelter were provided to those in need after the tornados. We visited with folks in both Friona and Dimmitt whose homes and property were damaged, to make sure that their emergency needs were met: We helped a lot of people with food and clothing needs in the aftermath of the Friona tornado. The Tri-County Chapter will soon be raising funds to cover the cost of providing that help," said Mrs. Henson.

Many of the Friona tornado victims traveled to the Red Cross office in Hereford, prior to the merger, to avail themselves of help.

In addition to the recent emergency assistance, the Deaf Smith County Chapter has helped its neighboring counties with life guarding, water safety, first aid and CPR instruction. With the merger, a Tri-County Chapter board of directors will be installed. That board will include two directors from Castro County and two directors from Parmer County. Election of directors for the Tri-County Chapter will occur at a Red Cross membership meeting June 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

In the past, the Deaf Smith County Chapter has absorbed much of the cost assistance to Castro and Parmer counties. Mrs. Henson says she is hopeful that eventually, 50 percent of the Tri-County Chapter's financing will come from Deaf Smith County with Castro and Parmer counties each contributing 25 percent.

Names in the News

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Neil Young went from guest to fill-in at a Pearl Jam concert when singer Eddie Vedder walked off with the flu.

Vedder called it quits after six songs Saturday night at Golden Gate Park. He had been treated at a hospital emergency room a few hours before the show.

"I just went through the worst 24 hours of my life," he told the crowd of about 50,000.

Young played for 1-1/2 hours, mixing classics with new songs from his album "Mirror Ball," due out this week.

There was no mistaking the crowd's disappointment.

"We want to know where the hell

Eddie is," said Lissa Harrison of Dublin, Calif. "We don't care if he's puking. I didn't go to Neil Young. I came to Pearl Jam."

"We're extremely bummed out, kind of like disappointed," added Julie Gerbel of San Luis Obispo.

NEW YORK (AP) - If you're a fan of Mike Myers' coffee talk skit on "Saturday Night Live," you may be in for a regular jolt, with a twist.

The Daily News quoted sources at the William Morris talent agency as saying the new talk show, "Coffee Talk With Linda Richman" is in production.

HRMC nurses complete training to aid victims of sexual assault

Hereford Regional Medical Center is one step closer to having a recognized facility to examine victims of sexual assault, according to Jim Robinson, administrator of the hospital. Three HRMC nurses, Nancy Griego, RN, BSN, Donna Kemp, RN, BSN, and Rose Mary Barrett, RN, recently completed training to become Certified Sexual Assault Examiners.

"The goal of this training is to spare the assault victim any further trauma," Griego said. "We were trained to provide a compassionate and sensitive approach to the victim. We also learned the skills necessary to complete a thorough job of collecting evidence through a medical and forensic examination. Part of the training also prepared us to be expert witnesses in court cases."

A Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner is a registered nurse who has been specially trained to provide comprehensive care to sexual assault survivors, who demonstrates competency in conducting a forensic exam, and the ability to be an expert witness.

"We consider this a vital program to help meet the needs of our community," Robinson said. "We should have the complete program in place in three to six months. Our nurses still must get in clinical time, performing actual exams with assault victims. We also have to complete policies and procedures, and do some public education."

Hereford had more than 120 cases of sexual assault and domestic violence last year, with most of the cases involving children.

"About 30 of those victims were seen in our Emergency Room and then transported to Amarillo for examination, but with this new program in place, victims can be treated locally more quickly," Robinson said. "We feel that it is inhumane for the victim of a sexual assault to spend seven to nine hours on the round trip to Amarillo for the examination."

Robinson said that the hospital board of directors is very supportive of this action. "We all feel that this service fills a void in the community and that every woman has the right to expect her community hospital to care for her in this type of situation," he said. "We've always had great cooperation with the City of Hereford and the Hereford Police Department, and we intend to continue working closely with them."

A portion of the funding necessary for the sexual assault training was donated to the HRMC by Toujour Amis Study Club.

"We are very grateful to the members of 'Toujour Amis' for their realization of the importance of this program," Robinson added.

The training at Northwest Texas Health Care System was taught by Jamie Farrell, Panhandle Emergency Medical Service director, who teaches the class nationwide. Speakers from law enforcement agencies, the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence service, and The Bridge also addressed the group. The course covered adult and pediatric anatomy, nursing diagnosis and treatment of sexual assault victims, collection and gathering of history and information, head to toe assessment, and collection of the evidence for the FBI lab. Students also went through a mock trial to practice giving testimony on the witness stand.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Any help you can give on cutting hard toenails will be appreciated. — Mrs. I.R.
DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am finding it increasingly difficult to cut my toenails, even after a hot shower. Please advise. — K.L.

ANSWER: A shower seldom is the answer. You need to soak your feet. Soak them for about eight minutes in warm water to which you've added a teaspoon of table salt per pint. Then try clipping. If the nails are still resistant, soak again.

Many older people find it difficult even to reach their toenails for trimming. A family member can assist. Sometimes, only the help of a podiatrist will do. A podiatrist also can check for a fungus infection that might be interfering with proper toenail care.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Conservative criticism has little effect, say TV leaders

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Oh, those devilish trick questions, like the hoary "How long have you been beating your wife?"

Or asking folks in the TV industry if the latest assault on Hollywood values, courtesy of presidential contender Bob Dole, will influence the fall season.

The networks flatly refuse comment; they're not wading into that quagmire, one executive helpfully explains.

Some producers are willing to respond. In television's annual ritual of reinventing itself, Dole's complaints about pop culture's sex-and-violence fixation will go unheeded, they say.

They also seek to reframe the query: Is there a problem, who's making the claim and what's being left out of the equation?

Conservative media watchdogs are as eager to broaden the debate: Are criticisms like Dole's or former Vice President Dan Quayle's cumulative in their effect, and is TV becoming more open to rightist influence?

First, from the West Coast, the voice of the Cultural Elite.

"One of the great myths is that there are these pigeon-like flutterings and everybody goes nuts," said Dick Wolf, who has series on NBC ("Law & Order") and Fox Broadcasting Co. ("New York Undercover").

The networks haven't issued a post-Dole call for producers to avoid the bawdy or bloody, say Wolf and others.

What viewers will get next year, based on preview tapes that have started to emerge, is more of what they favored in the ratings this year—saucy comedies like "Friends" and socially aware dramas such as "Law & Order."

Little violence, but a good-sized dollop of comedic sexual banter and antics and a look at such difficult real-life issues as abortion, violence and racism.

What viewers don't like, what they won't watch, gets dumped in this advertiser-driven medium.

"There has been a sea change in the American audience toward violence. The bulk of the country is not embracing the same type of imagery when I was running 'Miami Vice' and it was a top 10 show," notes Wolf.

Attacks like Dole's, he maintains, are politically motivated and a prelude to censorship, despite disavowals.

"The thing that's frightening here is there is a swing psychology toward some form of censorship."

Wolf considers the proposed "V-chip," which would allow the electronic blocking of programs coded objectionable, as a step in that direction.

Hill was struck by the timing of Dole's attack on Hollywood irresponsibility. It comes when Republican lawmakers are seeking to deregulate the broadcast TV industry "and to eliminate the very concept of public interest by the networks," he said.

Hill adds, why should television be told to preach to a national congregation?

"We are not a ministry and should not be presumed to be and should not be encouraged by government to function in such a fashion," Hill said.

Fine with him, responds L. Brent Bozell, head of the Media Research Center, a Virginia-based group that has its radar trained on the media's liberal leanings.

He wants TV to return to the days when there was "no politics, no agenda, no special messages. That's the kind of thing we want to promote."

What he and his group want to see are more shows like "Christy," "Touched by an Angel" and "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman," respectful of religion, sexual responsibility and family.

They want none of the likes of "Roseanne," which Bozell calls pro-abortion and says stooped to a glib discussion of masturbation, and "My So-Called Life," with its teen-age sexuality.

"Gratuitous and teen-age heterosexual and homosexual sex are portrayed with abandon on television now," Bozell said. "The trend somewhat reversed itself a couple of years ago, but it's back with a fury."

He sees cause for hope. Politically, television is more willing to feature diverse viewpoints.

"Murphy Brown," once Quayle's target and tormentor, introduced a conservative character last year who provided a give-and-take balance, Bozell said.

"Chicago Hope" and "Picket Fences" featured credible characters rejecting abortion.

Even more encouraging to him: Network executives who once avoided groups like his are now listening to their concerns, as they've traditionally heard liberal advocates, Bozell said.

His center has established a Parents' Television Council in Los Angeles to further its lobbying efforts. Such pressure, and the accumulated oratory of Quayle, Dole, Bill Bennett and others, are the right's best hope of influencing Hollywood, he said.

"You have to do it through the politics of shame. Then and only then will the industry get the message."

Chief Justice Burger called strong, powerful, visionary

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Warren E. Burger, the retired chief justice who wrote the Supreme Court opinion that forced President Nixon to release the Watergate tapes, was a conservative jurist who also won praise from liberals.

The nation's 15th chief justice, Burger served from 1969 to 1986, the longest tenure this century. He died on Sunday at age 87.

Justice Burger was a strong, powerful, visionary chief justice who opened the doors of opportunity," President Clinton said in a statement issued in Little Rock, Ark. "As chief justice, he was concerned with the administration of the court, serving with enthusiasm and always making sure it was above reproach."

"His expansive view of the Constitution and his tireless service will leave a lasting imprint on the court and our nation."

Burger died at Sibley Memorial Hospital of congestive heart failure, said Toni House, spokeswoman for the court.

A champion of judicial reform, Burger retired in 1986 and devoted full attention to his duties as the unpaid chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

In that post, he led the national celebrations of the Constitution's 200th anniversary in 1987 and the Bill of Rights' 200th anniversary in 1989.

Burger had performed no judicial duties since 1986. In recent years, he suffered from recurring pulmonary problems. He was hospitalized several times with pneumonia.

On the bench, Burger was a politically conservative judge who rarely showed sympathy for criminal defendants and their asserted rights.

But he also wrote numerous opinions praised by liberals. Burger spoke for the court in decisions that inaugurated busing as a tool for the racial desegregation of public schools, expanded public access to the nation's courts and enhanced women's protections against sexual discrimination.

He wrote the opinion that in 1974 forced Nixon—the man who had nominated him to the court—to surrender White House tape recordings and papers for use as evidence in the trial of presidential aides accused of covering up the Watergate scandal.

The ruling was a major factor in Nixon's decision to resign.

Burger also wrote the landmark 1973 decision that supplied the still-used legal definition of obscenity.

He said material is obscene, and therefore not protected by the Constitution's free-speech guarantee, if it appeals to a morbid interest in sex with patently offensive depictions of sexual conduct, and on the whole has no serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value.

At the Supreme Court, he was known as a man with an eye for detail. He chose the carpeting for the court's public cafeteria and much of the building's furniture.

Burger created the Institute for Court Management and the National Center for State Courts and made numerous other administrative innovations. He played a key role in bringing about technological advances and better training for judges and lawyers.

About his many projects for improving the administration of justice, Burger once said, "I didn't initiate them because I loved them; it wasn't that kind of work. I initiated them because they were 30 or 40 years overdue."

A longtime campaigner for prison reforms, Burger said the country should move away from "prison warehouses" and instead build "factories with fences" in which inmates learn a marketable skill so they can earn a living after their release.

He was a collector of antiques and wine, a sculptor and painter of considerable skill, but his customary 80-hour work weeks left little time for those hobbies until the bicentennial commission ceased to exist in 1992.

Burger was also an outspoken opponent of televising federal court proceedings, especially the Supreme Court's public argument sessions in which lawyers present their cases to the justices.

Although most state court systems allow some television, radio or still-photography coverage, federal courts do not.

Aside from the chronic back pain he suffered since contracting polio as a youth, Burger generally enjoyed good health throughout his judicial career.

He began having serious health problems in 1988, when he was hospitalized for three days, suffering from exhaustion and pneumonia.

Burger was born in St. Paul, Minn., on Sept. 17, 1907, to a family of Swiss and German descendants. His father worked as a railway cargo inspector and sometime traveling salesman.

Burger worked days as an insurance salesman while earning his undergraduate degree at night from the University of Minnesota, and later earned a law degree at night at St. Paul College of Law.

He joined a Minneapolis law firm in 1931, and eight years later made his first foray into politics by managing the Minnesota gubernatorial campaign of a young Harold Stassen.

President Eisenhower named Burger to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in 1956.

Thirteen years later, Nixon selected him to replace Chief Justice Earl Warren. Burger had criticized rulings of the Warren court, which enhanced the rights of criminal suspects.

Burger's wife of 61 years, Elvera, died last year. They had a son, Wade, and a daughter, Margaret, and two grandchildren.

Hutchison bill targets undocumented aliens apprehended in U.S.

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Undocumented aliens apprehended in the United States would be permanently disqualified from receiving legal U.S. residency status, under legislation being introduced by Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

The Texas Republican's immigration reform bill, which will be introduced this week, also would beef up border control efforts by adding 6,000 new Border Patrol agents and physical barriers at highly trafficked points.

"The only way to ... effectively reduce illegal immigration is to improve border controls and interior controls," Mrs. Hutchison said. "My bill would accomplish both of these objectives."

In many ways, the legislation mirrors bills introduced by Senate immigration subcommittee Chairman Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., and House immigration subcommittee Chairman Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio.

Electric co-op has proposals on new plant

Golden Spread Electric Cooperative has received proposals totalling 2,555 megawatts from bidders responding to plans to expand generating capability.

The co-op has received approval from the Texas Public Utility Commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity for construction of a new 400 megawatt generating plant for serving peak loads.

Golden Spread also is seeking to evaluate new opportunities within the electric utility industry for alternative power supply resources.

The new plant is scheduled for initial operation in 1998 and will be powered by natural gas.

A final site for the plant has not been made. However, two sites are under consideration. One is in Moore County south of Sunray and the other involves properties east of Denver City in Yoakum and Gaines counties.

The proposals received from other utilities and independent power suppliers for both new capacity and demand side control options could eliminate the company's need for the new generation plant. The bids are being reviewed by a consultant, which will compare them to the generation plan.

Golden Spread currently purchases all of its wholesale power requirements from Southwestern Public Service Co. and from West Texas Utility Co. for resale to 11 member systems.

Among the members systems is Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative in Hereford.

Immigrant-rights groups have denounced the proposals as bowing to prevailing anti-immigrant sentiment.

Mrs. Hutchison's legislation, which she previewed during a March immigration subcommittee hearing, also draws on recommendations by the U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform headed by former Texas Congresswoman Barbara Jordan. The Clinton administration, which this year proposed $1 billion in new immigration spending, has broadly endorsed the commission's findings.

The common thread running through the bills is the need to deter new illegal immigration at the border while detecting undocumented aliens already in the United States.

Some 4 million people are believed to be in the United States illegally, having overstayed their visas or entered the country without authorization. Another 350,000 or so are believed to enter illegally each year.

Like Simpson and the Commission on Immigration Reform, Mrs. Hutchison favors establishment of a national employment verification database using Social Security records. Employers could call the database to verify eligibility of potential employees.

Mrs. Hutchison goes a step further, proposing establishment of a national electronic registry based on birth and death certificates. Such a system would reduce the fraudulent use of Social Security numbers, she said.

One proposal that is sure to prove controversial is her advocacy of a tamperproof Social Security card to verify work eligibility. That recommendation has been endorsed by the U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform and groups that favor tighter immigration controls. But Hispanic and civil-rights organizations contend it's the first step toward a national ID card.

Her legislation, similar to other drafts, also would deny most federal and state public benefits to undocumented aliens.

"We have witnessed the destructive impact of the welfare state on our own citizenry and it has become a magnet for others to illegally come and stay in our country," Mrs. Hutchison said in remarks prepared for delivery on bill introduction.
