HISD tax revenue hearing attracts nobody

Trustees postpone action on settlement in voting lawsuit

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Hereford Independent School District trustees were present, as were administrators and other guests.

The public hearing opened at 6:09 p.m. to get input on a proposed tax revenue increase by the district.

The hearing closed at 6:19 p.m. after nobody had any input.

Tuesday's hearing was the first business for trustees in a 4-1/2-hour session that included a four-hour regular meeting covering a variety of topics.

During the public hearing, Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt explained that the effective tax rate for the Hereford school district has been set at $1.18 per $100 valuation.

The district has decided to keep its actual tax rate $1.239 per $100 valuation, which is the same rate it has used the past two years.

However, Greenawalt said, the hearing was required because the difference between the actual rate and the effective rate was 4.88 percent.

But he explained that taxes would not increase this year unless a property owner's value was increased.

The district is estimating it will receive $5,814,560 in local revenue for the 1995-96 fiscal year, which begins Friday.

The board will meet in special session at noon on Sept. 8 to formally approve the district's 1995-96 budget and officially set the tax rate.

The board's regular monthly meeting began at 6:30 p.m. after the special meeting was adjourned.

Trustees took action on a variety of items, including approving bids for resurfacing the Whiteface Stadium track and for tearing down old Central School.

One action that was tabled until a future meeting will have an eventual impact on the makeup of the board.

Trustees were asked to approve a proposed settlement of a lawsuit filed Feb. 13 by Hereford resident Trini Gamez.

The lawsuit alleges the school board's five-district, two-at-large representative system dilutes minority voting strength.

Board members met several times over the past few months with attorneys representing them in the federal court action.

Tuesday, they were supposed to approve a settlement offer in which the district would change to a seven-district configuration that would eliminate at-large trustees.

However, the matter was tabled when trustees had questions about the wording of the offer.

The settlement as presented to trustees said that candidates only had to live in the school district to run for a single-member district.

However, trustees asked that the wording be changed to say a candidate must live within the district he is to represent. A clause also will be added to say that, if no candidate has filed for a district seat within 10 days of the close of the filing period, a person living outside the single-member district can file for that seat.

If approved by the courts and the U.S. Justice Department, the district would elect trustees from four districts -- 2, 4, 5 and 7, currently held by Jim Marsh, Raul Valdez, Joe Flood and Ron Weishaar -- in May 1996. The other three districts -- 1, 3 and 6, currently held by Cherry McWhorter, Randy Tooley and Roy Dale Messer -- would be up for election in May 1997.

With three-year terms, there would be no board election in 1998, or in the third year thereafter.

Candidates would be elected by a plurality of the vote, not by a majority, which eliminates the need for runoffs except in the cases of tie votes.

The settlement offer will be brought back to the district at a later date.

The fate of Central School was sealed Tuesday when trustees voted unanimously to accept a bid from U.S. Excavation and Mining Co. U.S. Ltd., of Fort Worth to tear down the building, remove the foundation and basement and return the land to original grade.

Cost of demolition and removal of the building will be $24,999,99, while taking out the foundation and basement and filling in the hole will be another $21,900.

The bid was the lowest of five received for the project.

Nobody submitted bids to purchase the building and land.

Greenawalt said the bid was considerably lower than the others received -- which ranged as high as $115,000 -- because company officials told Assistant Superintendent Don

Welcoming the new doctor

Donna Kemp, right, director of nurses at Hereford Regional Medical Center, visits with Hereford's newest physician, Dr. Bruce Clarke, and his wife Melissa during a welcome reception Tuesday held in their honor. The reception for Clarke and his family was co-sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Health and Safety Committee and HRMC. Local residents were given the opportunity to meet the new physician, who has recently opened his practice here.

Study links nitrate levels with fertilizers, manure

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farming causes water to be contaminated with nitrates, with the greatest health risk to families who get water from their own wells, a government analysis finds.

A study released this week by the U.S. Geological Survey found the greatest concentrations in underground water in parts of the Northeast and Midwest, and on the West Coast.

Concentrations generally were lower in the Southeastern states.

Levels were highest in home wells, with 9 percent of the 3,351 surveyed having more than the safe amount set by the Environmental Protection Agency. The figure is higher than the 2.4 percent found by EPA in a 1990 survey of 783 wells, which included those outside farming areas.

Only 1 percent of the public water supplies in agricultural areas had excess levels, even though the water was drawn from wells, the Geological Survey reported. Those wells tended to be deeper. Wells shallower than 100 feet, including those used to water livestock and irrigate cropland, tended to have more contamination.

Fertilizers and manure both add nitrates to the water. Nitrates in drinking water can cause fatal oxygen deprivation in infants. They also can cause algae buildup that chokes fish and clogs pipelines.

"What people drink does depend on what's right around them," said Dennis R. Helsel, a hydrologist and coordinator of the report. "I'm sure that it has been, but it should continue to be a concern for folks in agricultural areas."

More than 42 million Americans got water from wells in 1990, the report said.

The study also found elevated nitrate concentrations in streams, rivers and other surface water below farming areas, but significantly lower levels than in ground water. Concentrations in surface waters rarely exceeded the drinking water standard.

Because nitrates take so long to work their way down into underground water supplies in some areas, the impact of decades of heavy fertilizer use may in fact take three or four decades to be felt, the report said.

The Northeast, including the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia peninsula, has a problem because of heavy application of manure, less pasture in relation to cropland and permeable material, such as sand and gravel, beneath the soil.

Nebraska and California have high amounts of nitrates because of irrigation, high use of fertilizer and large areas planted to row crops.

Appalachia and the Southeast, despite heavy fertilizer use, had generally lower levels in part because there is more woodland and other vegetation to absorb the nitrates.

The Corn Belt states of Iowa, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois had some of the lowest relative pollution. Soil type was one factor. So was the use of drainage pipes and ditches that carried the runoff to surface water.

The Great Lakes states of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin had generally low nitrate concentrations in ground water, mostly because of poor soil drainage. Although typical concentrations were low, 15 percent of the samples had excess amounts.

The study looked at data collected between 1970 and 1992.

Court action noted

Two defendants were sentenced after entering guilty pleas in 222nd District Court Tuesday. Terms of probation were modified for two other defendants during the court session.

Judge David Wesley Gulley sentenced James Dick Biggs, 31, to two years in state jail, probated five years, after hearing a guilty plea to forgery by making.

Richard Ky Kindrick, 18, was granted deferred adjudication probation of eight years on his plea of guilty to indecency with a child.

Terms of probation on two burglary of a building convictions of Leonardo Rios Jr., were modified by Judge Gulley. Originally sentenced to seven years' probation, Rios was ordered to serve another year of probation.

The 10-year probated sentence of Johnny Richard Beltran on conviction for delivery of marijuana was modified. He was ordered to intensive supervision until May 21, 1996.

BOARD MEETING HIGHLIGHTS

Here is a summary of major action taken by the Hereford Independent School District board of trustees at Tuesday's regular meeting and special tax hearing:

- Nobody spoke at a hearing on the district's proposed tax revenue increase.
- Bids totalling $46,000 were approved for the demolition of old Central School.
- A proposed settlement in a voting rights lawsuit filed by Hereford resident Trini Gamez was tabled.
- Trustees agreed to end the practice of extending administrators' contracts each year, instead opting to address multi-year contracts when they expire.
- A request by Steve Wright for use of district gymnasiums for a West Texas Heat fund-raising basketball tournament next year was turned down.
- A new math teacher was approved for Hereford High School, to teach the TAAS math test.

New math teacher to focus on TAAS

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Hereford High School received permission to hire a new math teacher on Tuesday when school district trustees agreed informally to find someone to teach the TAAS math test to sophomores.

Because the matter was on the discussion agenda and not the action agenda, no formal action was taken on the request by Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt, principal Terry Russell and math department head Adelle Clements.

The high school earlier this month was deemed low-performing by the Texas Education Agency after only 18.8 percent of economically disadvantaged students passed the TAAS (Texas Assessment of Academic Skills) exit-level math test, given annually to sophomores.

The school was also found to be low-performing because of a high dropout rate among African-American and Hispanic students, and because of a high absenteeism rate.

Under TEA policy, a low-performing school is required to amend its campus action plan to specifically address the deficiencies. That plan will be voted on at a later date by trustees.

On Tuesday, Clements briefed trustees on the school's TAAS remediation program, which has allowed more than 95 percent of HHS students to pass the test and graduate.

However, first-time passing rates is about 48 percent, she said, which is what TEA considers instead of the end result.

This year, TEA required at least

25 percent of four sub-groups -- Anglo, Hispanic, African-American and economically disadvantaged -- pass each of the three sections of the TAAS test.

Failure to do so was considered grounds for the low-performing designation.

Next year, the passing rate rises to 30 percent among the sub-groups.

Clements said the elements on the TAAS math test are those 13 objectives that are covered through eighth grade.

Currently, juniors and seniors who fail the TAAS math test are placed in special TAAS remediation classes to help them pass, which they must do in order to graduate.

Greenawalt said part of the school's problem with passing the TAAS math test arose when the state eliminated pre-algebra and remedial math classes, leaving eighth-graders no place to go in high school for extra help in basic math.

Clements said the high school tested freshmen last year on their math ability and found 180 students scored less than 50 percent on the TAAS-type test.

The new math teacher, Russell said, will handle as many of these students as possible throughout the day and will work on those elements which appear on the exit-level TAAS math test.

Two years ago, Hereford Junior High School was labeled low-performing because of low passing rates on the TAAS math test involving eighth graders -- the same students who had trouble this past spring on the exit test.

Economic weakening less than anticipated

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The economy slowed dramatically in the second quarter of 1995, expanding at the weakest pace in nearly four years.

But the 1.1 percent annual rate of growth for the April-June quarter, reported today by the Commerce Department, was larger than previously estimated, thanks largely to higher consumer spending.

Analysts said in advance of the report that the economy is not headed for recession and already is shaking off some sluggishness. They predict solid if unspectacular gains in gross domestic product by the end of the year and into 1996.

The government said a month ago that GDP, measuring all goods and services produced in the United States, grew at an anemic 0.5 percent rate in the spring.

In today's updated figures, the Commerce Department said upward revisions in consumer spending and business investment in inventories offset downward revisions for net exports and government spending.

The department also said that, using a new method of calculating growth that it is phasing in this year, GDP expanded only 0.5 percent in the second quarter. The new method will formally replace the older system at the end of 1995 and is designed to measure price changes more accurately.

The economy has slowed markedly since late last year, when it grew at the fastest rate in a decade. GDP increased at a 2.7 percent annual rate in the first three months of 1995 after a booming 5.1 percent pace in the fourth quarter of 1994.

The Commerce Department also said today that after-tax corporate profits grew less rapidly in the second quarter, rising 1.5 percent after increasing 3.8 percent in the first three months of the year.

Inflation remained under control. One measure of the cost-of-living tied to GDP rose 3 percent in the second quarter, matching the gain of the first three months this year.

Today's report is not likely to increase pressure on the Federal Reserve to lower short-term interest rates again to give the economy another shot in the arm.

The Federal Reserve, after seven interest-rate increases since early last year, reversed course in July and cut a key rate for the first time in nearly three years. But the central bank left the rate unchanged at a meeting of its policy-makers last week.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: I am on vacation, but I have left behind some of my favorite columns that you may have missed the first time around. I hope you enjoy them. -- Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If this hadn't happened to me, I would not believe it.
My father-in-law was admitted to the hospital last week for a routine physical examination. He was put in a room with two very sick men. One of the patients died at 1:15 p.m. Friday. My husband and I were in the room at the time. The nurses pulled a sheet over him and left.

That evening at about 7:30 p.m., I called my father-in-law to ask what time we should come and take him home the following day. He said, "As soon after breakfast as possible. I'd like to get out of here." I asked him what was wrong. He replied, "The poor fellow who died this afternoon is still in the room."

Ann, they didn't wheel the dead man out until 8:30 that evening. If it had been a county hospital, where they don't have time to attend the living, much less the dead, I could understand it. But in a private facility, I cannot grasp the meaning of the whole thing. Please explain it. Our entire family is baffled. -- California Reader

DEAR CAL: It shouldn't happen anywhere -- public or private, to the rich or the poor. My question is this: Why did your father-in-law allow the hospital authorities to ignore a deceased patient for seven hours? He should have raised Cain with the floor nurses until the body was removed. I realize many hospitals are short-staffed these days, but the scenario you described is outrageous.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I swear every word of this is true. I am 23 and have been dating a man of 26 for over a year. I always thought it was odd that he never expected me to go beyond a goodnight kiss. Last night, he asked me to marry him but said I'd have to sign an agreement -- no sex. I asked him why, and he said, "I tried it once and don't like it."
This man is good-looking and intelligent and has a promising career. We get along well together. I think we could have a successful marriage, but I am bemused by his request. Do you think I will be able to get him to change his mind after we are married? Help me decide. -- Bewildered

DEAR B.: This guy has strudel in the noodle. If you agree to a sexless marriage in the hope that you can convert him later, you deserve whatever you get -- which, I assure you, will be very little in the line of romance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have two lousy sisters and one rotten brother. My younger sister carried on an affair with my husband behind my back. He finally asked for a divorce and married her. He supports her children by a previous marriage and ignores his own.

My older sister is an alcoholic and has the warmth of a crocodile and the character of a snake. When I was out of the house, she drove our 82-year-old, slightly senile mother to a lawyer's office and got her to sign over everything. I was so mad, I hired an attorney. He sent a constable to my sister's house. She was afraid of the consequences and returned my mother's money.

Of course, my sister is mad at me and says when Ma dies, she is coming to the funeral to raise such a stink I will never live it down. Ma is failing fast, and I need to know if there's any way I can keep my sister out. -- Worried

DEAR WORRIED: You can ask that a policeman be present. If your sister "disturbs the peace," you can have her removed. P.S. Your sister needs A.A.

Have trouble sleeping at night and don't want to get involved in a novel? "A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day" is the perfect bed-stand mate. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Collection, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. To know how to grow old is the master work of wisdom, and one of the most difficult chapters in the great art of living.

Fooling bulbs indoors brings them to bloom

By JAMES E. WALTERS
PHOENIX (AP) - Bulbs such as paperwhites and amaryllis can be easily brought to flower indoors by starting them five to six weeks before the blooms are wanted, says the Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center.

"What you really do is fool the bulb into thinking that winter is over and it's time to flower," the trade group says in describing the technique, known as forcing.

By staggering the start-up times, it is possible to have some bulbs blooming indoors from early fall to late spring.

Paperwhites (Narcissus) and amaryllis (Hippeastrum) are considered the two easiest bulbs to force. They need no special preparation and can be potted and grown as soon as you get them home.

Tulips are trickier. Hyacinths, if bought pre-cooled, are a bit easier. Crocus, iris, muscari (grape hyacinth) and many other spring-flowering bulbs also are possibilities. But the process is more involved.

"Paperwhites are especially easy to grow. They can be bought as loose bulbs or as part of a pre-packaged forcing kit ... and are best grown in a shallow pot or bowl with no drainage holes in the bottom," say the recommendations.

"Fill the pot two-thirds full with gravel, stones or even fun things like colored beads or marbles. Place as many bulbs as will fit on the gravel with the pointed side up. Then fill in gravel around them, leaving the top halves exposed. Add water up to the base of the bulbs and maintain water at this level."

The container should be placed in a cool place. Roots will appear within days. When green shoots appear, move the container to a cool, sunny spot "and in about three more weeks you'll have masses of heavily scented, sweet white flowers."

Amaryllis are normally planted one to a pot since they are very large. Start them six weeks before flowers are desired. By starting a new pot every few weeks, it is possible to have them blooming indoors from December through April.

Any container that is big enough will work but a drainage hole is necessary, along with a saucer to catch the water that drains.

"Choose a pot only slightly bigger than the bulb. Or plant three bulbs together in a pot sized slightly larger than all three positioned in a circle, but not touching," the recommendations continue.

"Add several inches of potting soil and place the bulb or bulbs in the pot, pointed end up, with the neck and bare shoulders just peeking over the top of the container.

"Fill in with soil and gently pat down, leaving the neck and shoulders of the bulb exposed. Water well. Place in a cool sunny spot. Water sparingly at first. After the first sprouts appear (about two weeks), water often."

Exotic-looking flowers of red, pink, white, peach, orange or multi-colors will appear in four to six weeks. Since amaryllis tend to grow tall and top-heavy, the trade group suggests using a lightweight pot placed inside a heavier, decorative container.

Other flowering bulbs take longer and require some storage in a refrigerator or a cool garage since cold starts the flowering process. Caution: keep no ripening fruits in the refrigerator with the bulbs. Fruits can give off a gas that kills a bulb's flower bud.

Hyacinths can be grown without any soil or gravel. Special hourglass-shaped containers are designed to grow them on water alone and are quite popular. The growing roots can be seen clearly through the glass. For holiday-season bloom, start them by early October.

Herd loses to AHS, flattens River Road

The Hereford volleyball team momentarily challenged Amarillo High's long winning streak, but Herd passing problems let the Lady Sandies cruise to a 15-13, 15-2 win Tuesday at Amarillo High.

Amarillo High then put down River Road, 15-7, 15-1, for its 47th straight victory. Five of those wins came against Hereford, including two this season. Amarillo High is 10-0.

Hereford (6-2) beat River Road 15-13, 15-2 in the third match of the evening. River Road fell to 2-7 against a tough schedule.

Hereford started well against Amarillo High, but the Sandies managed to overcome deficits of 8-4 and 12-11.

"We played well in the first game against Amarillo High," Herd coach Brenda Reeh said. "We blocked well and caught Amarillo High standing on several occasions."

"In the second game, our passing and our service receive fell apart," Reeh said. "We couldn't put the ball in front of the 10 foot line, so our setter was always pushing the ball to the hitters from the backcourt."

Notice that Hereford's score against River Road was exactly the same as Amarillo High's against Hereford. The Lady Whitefaces started slowly, then poured it on in the second game.

"We started out a little bit stunned from the match before," Reeh said. "Once we settled down and focused on our skills instead of our frustrations from the Amarillo High match, we executed well."

No individual statistics were available from either match.

The Hereford junior varsity played the same two teams at River Road, with similar results. Hereford beat River Road, 15-3, 17-15, but lost to Amarillo High, 15-3, 15-10.

The hitting and blocking of Sarah Ramey led the JV's surge in the second game against AHS, coach Royce Spies said.

Chargers' Ross released from hospital

By The Associated Press
San Diego Chargers coach Bobby Ross is home from the hospital, five days before the team's opener at Oakland.

Ross, released Tuesday, underwent surgery Thursday to remove scar tissue that was encircling his small intestine. He missed Friday night's exhibition victory over St. Louis.

He was expected back at work today to review the game plan for the Raiders, said offensive coordinator Ralph Friedgen, who filled in as head coach in Ross' absence. "He said he was going to be here," Friedgen said.

Team trainer Keoki Kamau said he's not ruling out Ross making the trip to Oakland, but will keep a close eye on the coach the next few days.

"He feels better," Kamau said. "But one thing you've got to watch is somebody who's feeling good doing too much. It's no different than how we'd monitor a player."

In a play on the NFL's weekly injury report, Kamau said: "He's questionable right now. Tomorrow, probable." Kamau said the scar tissue was from an appendectomy performed some 35 years ago.

Kamau said Ross, 58, responded well to rest and fluids.

Dolphins

Dan Marino's purchase of stock in a company owned by Miami owner Wayne Huizenga may be a violation of the NFL's salary cap rules.

The Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale reported the league is looking into Marino's purchase of more than $390,000 worth of stock in Republic Waste Industries, a company Huizenga purchased in May. Since the purchase, the stock has quintupled in value, making Marino's stake worth nearly $2 million.

The league said the more than $1.5 million gain on the Miami quarterback's investment might be a possible salary cap violation. Coach Don Shula and general manager Eddie Jones also took advantage of Huizenga's offer, but the league said that poses no conflict with NFL rules.

Raiders

With kicker Jeff Jaeger out for the opener and maybe longer because of a sprained right knee, Oakland summoned Cary Blanchard, Dirk Borgognone, Tony Zendejas and Cole Ford for tryouts.

The Raiders signed free agent Joe Nedney of San Jose State to a practice squad contract Monday and coach Mike White said he will be considered along with Tuesday's visitors.

Jaeger was injured on the opening kickoff of the Raiders' exhibition game against New England on Friday night. He injured the same knee two weeks earlier against St. Louis.

Buccaneers
Down to two quarterbacks after the last training camp cut, Tampa Bay re-signed fifth-year pro Todd Philcox.

Philcox, who will back up Trent Dilfer and Casey Weldon, was released when the club trimmed the roster to the regular-season limit of 53. To make room for him, corner-back Tony Stargell was waived.

Rams
St. Louis got some help for its struggling running game by signing tight end Pat Carter. He missed almost all of training camp with Houston, signing last Tuesday. He was waived Sunday.

Carter spent five seasons with the Rams from 1989-93 before joining the Oilers last season. He used to block for Jerome Bettis, who had the first of two consecutive 1,000-yard seasons in '93.

Giants

New York quarterback Dave Brown, who suffered a concussion in Saturday's exhibition loss to Carolina, is on target to start Monday night's opener against Dallas. Brown completed a battery of tests Monday that included an MRI and a CT scan on his neck and head.

Panthers

Carolina signed veteran running back Vince Workman, a day after waiving former AFC rushing champion Barry Foster.

Workman spent four seasons with Green Bay and the last two with Tampa Bay. He rushed for 631 yards in 1992 with the Packers.

Browns

Cleveland signed former New York Giants offensive lineman Eric Moore, the day after trading lineman Gene Williams to Atlanta for a fifth-round draft pick in 1996. Moore played most of his seven-year career with the Giants, winning a Super Bowl ring in 1991. Last season, he started six games for Cincinnati in a season cut short by a broken leg.

Agassi, Courier, Sampras win in first round of Open

NEW YORK (AP) - Ever since their junior tennis days, Andre Agassi, Pete Sampras and Jim Courier have taken turns winning Grand Slam tournaments and becoming No. 1 in the world.

They stepped together into the second round of the U.S. Open on Tuesday, with only Courier needing more than straight sets.

The defending champion and top-seeded Agassi brushed aside Bryan Shelton 6-2, 6-2, 6-2; No. 2 Sampras defeated Brazilian Fernando Meligeni 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, and Courier, seeded 14th, got past Bernd Karbacher of Germany 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

"I have concluded that the thing you want to do, you want to get through each match however you need to get through it," Agassi said. "As long as you're still in the event, good things can happen."

"When you get to the players where you know you need to play your best, you want to raise to that level and hope it is there. But to get through them is the most important thing."

Steffi Graf, top-seeded in the women's field, was pushed to the limit before she defeated South African Amanda Coetzer 6-7 (1-7), 6-1, 6-4. Tonight, Graf will play Rita Grande of Italy for a third-round berth.

"Having to play a tough player in the first round and to have been in a position to have to play key points and to have that behind me, will definitely help me," Graf said.

While Graf will be making her second appearance in the year's final Grand Slam tournament, third-seeded Thomas Muster and No. 5 Michael Chang and No. 8 Michael Stich will be making their 1995 debut as the first round is concluded.

Men's winners included No. 7 Yevgeny Kafelnikov, No. 11 Sergi Bruguera, No. 13 Marc Rosset and No. 15 Todd Martin. On the women's side, No. 11 Anke Huber, No. 12 Natasha Zvereva and No. 14 Mary Joe Fernandez were victorious.

$85 buys Cowboys backers pep talk from Jones, Switzer

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - For $85 at the Dallas Cowboys kickoff luncheon, you got pep talks from Jerry and Barry, a 20-second speech from Tom Landry, and an introduction to the 1995 players.

You didn't get Deion Sanders or Darrin Smith.

A film titled "Ready for Glory" got the less-than-capacity crowd going Tuesday, although the end was a downer for the faithful with the announcement of the score of last year's NFC championship game: San Francisco 38, Dallas 28.

Sanders, of course, helped contribute to the loss with an interception of Troy Aikman.

Owner Jerry Jones has been trying to court Sanders away from the 49ers but made no reference to him before the luncheon crowd.

Jones did allow that he "will go down trying to do anything I can for this team even if it takes conniving and hustling."

Smith is a holdout linebacker who is asking between $300,000 and $400,000 more than Jones is willing to pay. Godfrey Myles will start in Smith's place on Monday night against the New York Giants. Jones has said the contract situation is at an impasse.

Jones has been known for his surprises at the luncheon. In his rookie year, Emmitt Smith stepped from behind a curtain to announce he had been signed.

At least coach Barry Switzer provided some Oklahoma-style emotional fireworks for the crowd, saying, "Most teams wish they could be in Phoenix for the Super Bowl. The Cowboys know they belong there."

This brought rousing applause. Switzer also gave a big pat on the back to his boss. "Don't ever question (Jones') commitment to winning. He is a winner. He's put together the best quarterback, running back, receiver, defense and supporting cast in the NFL."

Jones also pointed out that the team was returning 17 of the 22 players who started in the NFC championship game against the 49ers.

"You can't win on paper but it's a great lineup," Jones said.

Witnessing all this in the audience was former coach Landry, the man

Jones fired to give the job to Jimmy Johnson.

Landry was on hand to receive a "Legends" award from the NFL Alumni Association.

"I have nothing but the best wishes for the Cowboys," said Landry. "I have no question they will be in the hunt before it's all over."

With that short talk, he left the podium.

Astros halt slide; Bucs' Wagner one-hits Rockies

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Talk about unusual twists and turns.

The Houston Astros overcame an early six-run deficit in Atlanta and beat the first-place Braves 11-9 in 13 innings Tuesday night, stopping a team-record 11-game losing streak.

Paul Wagner, meanwhile, just missed pitching one of the most improbable no-hitters in recent times. The biggest loser in the National League this season, the Pittsburgh pitcher was one strike away against the hard-hitting Colorado Rockies when Andres Galarraga grounded a clean infield single.

"I really thought I was going to get it," Wagner said. "It was 3-2, two outs in the ninth and I remember thinking, 'In this situation, the guy swings and misses and everything works out OK.'"

Wagner (3-13) barely missed gloving Galarraga's grounder up the middle. By the time second baseman Nelson Liriano made a back-handed grab way behind the bag and threw, it was too late.

Wagner wound up with a one-hitter and ended the Pirates' six-game losing streak with a 4-0 victory. In other NL games, Chicago beat Florida 10-6, San Francisco stopped Philadelphia 6-4, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 4-1, New York beat Los Angeles 4-3 and Montreal downed San Diego 2-1.

Wagner was trying to join John Candelaria as the only Pirates pitcher to throw no-hitters in Pittsburgh. He came close against the team that leads the majors in home runs and leads the NL in hitting.

Wagner struck out 11 and walked three. The crowd of 7,634, the smallest ever to see the Rockies, was on its feet throughout the ninth inning. When the game ended, Wagner tipped his hat and threw the ball into the stands.

Houston felt like celebrating a bit, too, after its win. The Astros won an odd way for them - they tied a team record by hitting five home runs in a game for the first time since 1977.

"To come back from a 6-0 deficit like that was great," said Craig Biggio, a big victory cigar stuck in his mouth. "We just kept battling back, digging down deep and pulled out a victory."

Tony Eusebio led off the 13th with a home run, and Houston held on to move within one-half game of Colorado and Philadelphia for the wild-card spot. David Justice hit two of Atlanta's three homers.

Cubs 10, Marlins 6

Florida's 14-game home winning streak ended as Chicago scored three times in the first inning and never trailing.

The Marlins lost at Joe Robbie Stadium for the first time since July 27. They had the longest home winning string in the NL since Philadelphia won 16 in a row in 1991.

Ozzie Timmons doubled twice and singled, and Todd Zeile and Rey Sanchez homered for the Cubs.

Mets 4, Dodgers 3

The Dodgers, already upset before the game by the arrival of replacement player Mike Busch, watched New York's Jeff Kent hit a tying homer with two outs in the ninth and Butch Huskey hit a go-ahead single later in the inning.

Kent homered against Todd Worrell, who has blown three of 28 save chances. After a walk and a single, Huskey grounded an RBI single off Worrell's glove for the visiting Mets' ninth win in 12 games.

Earlier in the day, Busch reported to Dodger Stadium to take the roster spot of Tim Wallach, on the disabled list with a knee injury. Busch was the first replacement player to join the Dodgers this season, and several of his new teammates treated him like an outcast. Before this year, Busch was perhaps best known for letting a bat fly out of his hands at Spring training last year, fracturing Delino DeShields' cheekbone.

Giants 6, Phillies 4

Barry Bonds hit a tiebreaking, two-run double in the seventh inning that led San Francisco over Philadelphia at Candlestick Park.

Royce Clayton stole his 20th base, giving the Giants four players with 20 or more for the first time in 80 years. Bonds has 24, Glenallen Hill 23 and Darren Lewis had 21 before being traded to Cincinnati. In 1915, George Burns (27), Willie Doyle (22), David Robertson (22) and Fred Merkle (20) reached the mark.

Reds 4, Cardinals 1

Mariano Duncan, subbing for Ron Gant in left field and batting in Reggie Sanders' cleanup spot, hit a two-run homer that sent Cincinnati to its fifth straight win.

Duncan, acquired this month from Philadelphia, connected in the first inning at Riverfront Stadium. Gant missed his fifth game because of strained rib muscles and Sanders was scratched from the lineup because of a strained right quadriceps.

Dave Burba (9-2) improved to 5-0 since being traded by San Francisco on July 21.

Expos 2, Padres 1

Jeff Fassero beat San Diego for the fourth time this season and won his career-high 13th game. He is 7-1 lifetime against the Padres.

Rondell White stole home for Montreal as part of a double steal. Brad Ausmus homered for the host Padres.

Tribe's Clark shuts down Blue Jays

By The Associated Press

There's no doubt the Cleveland Indians will be playing in the playoffs. There's less doubt now that Mark Clark will be on their postseason roster.

The 27-year-old right-hander threw his first complete game of the season Tuesday night, allowing three hits in a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Clark (8-5) is one of 12 Indians pitchers, and it appears to be coming down to him and Chad Ogea for the final spot when the postseason rosters are submitted Thursday night.

He pitched poorly his last time out, allowing five runs in 4 2-3 innings at Toronto.

"This is no time to say wait until your next start," Clark said after the Indians won their sixth straight to improve the majors' best record to 78-35. "Every one's got to be a quality start. I just want to forget about that start in Toronto. If I throw like this, I'm going to be one of the pitchers."

In other AL games Tuesday night it was Seattle 6, Boston 4; Oakland 3, Baltimore 1; New York 12, California 4; Kansas City 7, Milwaukee 1; Minnesota 2, Texas 0; and Detroit 7, Chicago 5.

Clark allowed a leadoff single to Joe Carter in the second, but didn't surrender another hit until Shawn Green lined a single off Clark's leg leading off the eighth. Paul Molitor hit his 13th homer in the ninth.

"That's by far his best outing of the year, and he needed to do that," manager Mike Hargrove said. "If we're looking ahead to the playoff roster, Clark needed to do that."

Ogea (7-3) pitched Monday night, allowing one run in 5 2-3 innings.

Eddie Murray drove in the game's first run with a single in the fourth, his 1,800th career RBI. Fourteen players have reached that milestone. Twelve are in the Hall of Fame and two - Murray and Dave Winfield - are playing for Cleveland.

Sandy Alomar and Kenny Lofton each drove in runs in the seventh with singles and Alomar knocked in another with a groundout in the eighth.

Juan Guzman (3-10), activated from the disabled list before the game, pitched well, but lost his fifth consecutive decision. He went on the DL Aug. 10 after experiencing pain in his arm during his previous start.

Mariners 6, Red Sox 4

Andy Benes (3-1) allowed four runs on six hits in seven innings at Boston as knuckleballer Tim Wakefield was denied his 15th victory for the third time.

Ken Griffey Jr.'s sacrifice fly in the top of the seventh broke a 4-4 tie for Seattle. Wakefield (14-3) allowed five runs on eight hits in six innings as the Red Sox lost for the third time in four games.

Athletics 3, Orioles 1

Craig Paquette's two-run single in the ninth gave the visiting Athletics their seventh win in nine games. Mike Bordick homered for Oakland.

Carlos Reyes (2-4) worked one inning and Dennis Eckersley got the final two outs for his 25th save.

Bobby Bonilla got three hits and drove in a run in the first with a groundout for the Orioles, who won seven of their previous 10.

Yankees 12, Angels 4

The Yankees scored five in the first, capped by Mike Stanley's three-run homer, then saw California close to 5-4. But David Cone (14-7) allowed just two hits the rest of the way and the Yankees prevailed after having lost nine of 10.

The Yankees scored their first-inning runs off Chuck Finley (13-9) before there were any outs.

Tony Phillips, Tim Salmon and J.T. Snow homered for the visiting Angels, losers of four straight.

Royals 7, Brewers 1

At Kansas City, Johnny Damon's two-out, two-run triple keyed a three-run sixth, and Jason Jacome recorded his fourth straight win. Jacome (4-2), a left-hander obtained from the New York Mets on July 21, allowed seven hits in his second career complete game.

Damon's triple off Ricky Bones (8-10) made it 3-0, and he scored on a single by Tom Goodwin, who had three hits.

Twins 2, Rangers 0

Rookie Brad Radke allowed three hits in his first shutout and complete game. Radke (10-12) struck out three and walked two as he lowered his ERA from 5.48 to 5.15.

Chuck Knoblauch, the league's second-leading hitter at .341, homered and had two doubles as the visiting Rangers lost for the sixth time in eight games.

Kevin Gross (7-13) allowed two runs and five hits in taking the loss. He was the loser in the Twins' only other shutout this season.

Tigers 7, White Sox 5

Franklin Stubbs made the most of a rare start at first base with four hits, including a homer and two doubles, and three RBIs. Cecil Fielder was the Tigers' designated hitter so Stubbs got to play first base.

Sean Bergman (6-8) allowed five hits in 6 2-3 innings to get the win. The visiting White Sox scored two in the seventh and two in the ninth to make it close.

NBA players go to polls today to decide union decertification

By WENDY E. LANE

AP Basketball Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - After receiving a barrage of conflicting faxes, confusing numbers and forecasts of doom from advisers and league officials over the past three weeks, NBA players finally have to decide whether to accept a controversial labor deal or dissolve their union.

The first of two votes took place today; a second voting day is Sept. 7.

The labor mess that threatens to disrupt the season, with the possibility looming that November could see a third pro sport lose games to a work stoppage in less than 15 months. In this tangled dispute, unlike those in baseball and hockey, the players themselves are split, with Michael Jordan leading the group seeking to disband the union and union president Buck Williams pushing for the new deal.

To San Antonio's David Robinson and many other players, much of the blame for the mess lies with the players association for not keeping its members abreast of labor negotiations.

To NBA commissioner David Stern, who locked out the players on July 1, the blame lies with a group of agents he accuses of trying to take over the union.

"This is a mugging that the agents have perpetrated on the union," he said. "The victims will be the fans, the players and our game."

Similar rhetoric has been ringing in the ears of players in the three weeks since the deal was reached. Jordan's faction, the league and the union leadership have been lobbying furiously as they try to sway the divided rank and file.

The proposed agreement, which replaced one nixed by players in June, contains a rookie salary scale and would increase the salary cap from $15.9 million last year to $23 million in 1995-96 and to at least $28 million in 2000-01. The deal retains some important cap loopholes - teams can still re-sign their free agents without regard to the cap - but abolishes others, such as the so-called "balloon payments" veterans like Patrick Ewing and Clyde Drexler have tacked on at the end of their contracts.

Union head Simon Gourdine embarked on a 17-city tour to meet with players and sell the deal.

Jordan's group sent out its own analysis, arguing that the deal would restrict salary increases and player movement. That analysis prompted a rebuttal analysis from the union that was faxed to players last week.

There have been memos from Jordan and Ewing, another leading dissident, an explanatory videotape from Gourdine and phone calls from team officials.

And both sides have lined up big names in support of their stance. Jordan, Ewing, Chicago's Scottie Pippen and Charlotte's Alonzo Mourning have lined up for decertification and are plaintiffs in an antitrust suit they say will end the lockout and force a better deal. Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal, Utah's John Stockton and Karl Malone and Houston's Drexler favor the agreement.

On Tuesday, Robinson, the league's MVP last season, joined the pro-union side, announcing he would vote for the pact "after a lot of review and collecting a lot of propaganda from both sides."

"It was very difficult," said Robinson, who will make $7.3 million next season with the Spurs. "Everybody has a different opinion and something at stake. It was very difficult to determine what people's motives were."

Despite all the politicking, agents acknowledge many players are undecided. And the size of the turnout could determine whether the deal passes or fails. A simple majority is needed to approve either the new agreement or decertification.

Looking for new investment opportunities? Time may be right for real estate in Mexico

By ENRIQUE RANGEL
Monterrey Bureau,
The Dallas Morning News

How would you like to own a condo in Acapulco? What about a cottage by Lake Chapala on the outskirts of Guadalajara? Maybe you want something bigger. If that's the case, how does a hotel in Cancun sound?

No, this is not a sales pitch. But if you always wanted to invest in real estate in Mexico, now may be the time.

Mexican banks and developers are accepting or will soon accept bids for thousands of foreclosed properties throughout the country, from condominiums in beach resorts such as Acapulco and Marina Ixtapa to shopping centers in large metropolitan areas such as Mexico City or Monterrey.

The sale will be handled pretty much the same way that the Resolution Trust Corp. auctioned off billions of dollars of real estate that the U.S. government acquired after the collapse of savings and loans in the late 1980s.

Grupo Financiero Bancomer, the second-largest financial institution in Mexico, is already taking offers for properties in 23 cities worth $25 million. The bank expects to have more listings before year's end.

And Chicago-based LaSalle Partners, representing five of Mexico's largest banks, including Banamex and Banca Serfin, will auction 434 properties in 15 states and in Mexico City worth about $275 million. LaSalle Partners will accept sealed bids between Aug. 29 and 31.

"It looks like there are some good deals," said David Waksman, president of Atlas International Property Group, a New York real estate firm that invests in Latin America. His office has requested information on some of the property for sale.

But Waksman and other real estate investors have a piece of advice for potential U.S. bidders: Get expert and legal advice before purchasing south of the border.

"Real estate laws in Mexico are different than in the United States," said Manuel Espinosa, president of the Mexican Association of Real Estate Agents in Monterrey, Mexico's third-largest city.

Espinosa and other Realtors in Mexico and in the United States say they don't want to scare off anyone, particularly the U.S. investor.

They simply want to advise the potential foreign real estate buyer to be on the lookout for properties that may be defective or whose previous owners didn't pay taxes before defaulting on mortgage payments.

"The government can and will go after a new owner," warns Jose Luis Garcia, a Realtor in the Monterrey suburb of San Pedro Garza Garcia, the wealthiest suburb in Mexico. "That's why it's important that the buyer have a very knowledgeable lawyer."

U.S. investors also need to know that in Mexico, foreigners aren't permitted to own properties on the coast or in border areas because of a law passed shortly after Mexico lost more than half of its territory to the United States in 1848.

However, with the help of a good real estate lawyer, there are ways to acquire properties on the coast and in the border areas, mainly through long-term leases, experts say.

Some of the property may not be as glamorous as potential buyers think.

The bulk of the auction involves family homes in low-income or lower-middle-income neighborhoods, costing between 100,000 pesos and 200,000 pesos, or $16,500 to $31,000 at the current exchange rate.

Once an investor absorbs all that advice, there are plenty of properties worth looking into, experts say.

A 94-page catalog of Mexican properties compiled by LaSalle Partners reveals offerings to inspire pleasant daydreams.

In Acapulco, for example, the condos at the Brisa Diamante complex have a gorgeous view of the beach, a nearby hill and scores of high rises.

At Marina Ixtapa, another beach resort 100 miles west of Acapulco, the condos at Proyecto Isla Alegre have a view of fancy yachts off the water.

Ernesto M. Ure, who is directing the sale for LaSalle Partners in Mexico City, says the firm isn't putting a price tag on individual properties.

"We encourage the potential buyers to do their own appraisal and then submit their sealed bids to us."

LaSalle Partners will then decide whether to accept or turn down the offer.

Grupo Bancomer is following a similar procedure, said Ricardo Cantu, who is directing the sale of 74 properties.

Cantu says some of the properties for sale now were repossessed more than a year ago, long before Mexico devalued the peso. But the Dec. 20 devaluation caused more foreclosures, particularly among lower-middle-income families.

Since the financial crisis, interest rates have skyrocketed. Interest rates for homes, once at about 20 percent, are now averaging 70 percent. In addition, more than 1 million Mexicans have lost their jobs since late last year. The official unemployment rate, estimated at 3.2 percent in December, is now 6.6 percent, though some economists believe that it could be as high as 20 percent.

All inquiries about Bancomer's properties for sale can be answered at the bank's Mexico City number. For U.S. residents, that's 011-525-621-2272.

LaSalle Partners has set up toll-free number in the United States, 1-800-747-3342.

The first savings banks in the country were opened in Philadelphia and Boston in 1816.

If we had no winter, the spring would not be so pleasant; if we did not sometimes taste of adversity, prosperity would not be so welcome.

—Anne Bradstreet

Names in the news

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Looks like "Baywatch" viewers would rather surf past Jason Simmons.

Simmons, who plays nasty lifeguard Logan Fowler on the popular TV show, says fans usually keep their distance. He said that's what happened when he walked through a Pittsburgh area mall recently.

"I don't know if it is because of my character or what, but people look, they'll whisper, point, whatever, but very rarely will someone come up to me," he said.

Mexican Chicken Soup

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 2 cups dried pinto beans or garbanzos   | 1 added tomatoes   |
| Water   | 1 clove garlic, minced   |
| 1 3-pound frying chicken, skinned, all visible fat removed, cut into serving pieces | ½ cup chopped onion  |
| 2 cups canned no-salt-  | ¾ cup canned mild hot California chili peppers, diced (or ½ cup for a milder flavor) |
| 16 corn tortillas   |  |
- Rinse and soak beans overnight. Drain; add fresh water to beans and cook according to package instructions, omitting salt.
- Rinse chicken and pat dry. Place chicken pieces in a large stockpot adding enough water to cover. Bring to a boil over medium-high heat. Reduce heat. Simmer about 25 minutes, or until chicken is tender.
- Remove chicken pieces from broth and remove chicken meat from bones. Return meat to broth along with tomatoes, garlic, onion, chili peppers and beans. Simmer about 15 minutes.
- Transfer soup into individual bowls. Serve 2 corn tortillas alongside each. Serves 8; 1 cup per serving

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion (83.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

Times	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are 4.35 per column inch; 3.65 inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS
Ad rates for legal notices are shown as for classified display.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.

Summer gardens take hit from dry summer weather

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - After a hot and dry summer, Texas producers are recovering from the heat and are trying to sow fall gardens, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said Tuesday.

Randall Upshaw, district extension director in Dallas, said some gardeners in North Texas are having a tough time preparing for the fall after a dry summer.

"Dry weather has dried pastures and is causing severe stress on ranges in Lamar County," he said, "and fall gardens have failed in Bowie County due to heat and drought."

Vernell Akins, extension program aide in New Boston, said Bowie County has not had a measurable rainfall since July 4. He added that temperatures have also been unusually high the past week, and that has halted production of any kind in the area.

"We've had temperatures in the high 90s all week and no rain to speak of," he said. "Nothing's growing out here unless it's watered regularly."

"Most people have peas, beans, and things like that in their fall gardens, but with the heat and drought, everything has stopped growing."

Marty Baker, extension horticulturist in Overton, said home gardeners in East Texas are busy planting both long-term and short-term crops.

"Most people have planted long-term crops that take up to 90 days to mature such as tomatoes and peppers," Baker said. "Also, short-term crops such as greens, cauliflower, broccoli, and brussel sprouts are being planted. But we are telling people to hold off on rooted vegetables such as English peas, beets, radishes, and carrots until it gets a little cooler."

Baker said home gardens have suffered some from the drought, while commercial producers are not suffering as badly because they are irrigating their crops.

Extension horticulturists also are recommending that individuals start harvesting pears.

"It is necessary to start harvesting pears before the bees and wasps get to them," he said. "If the pears are not ready to be harvested yet, put sandwich bags over the fruit to protect them."

Jon Zeitler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said Texans should expect hot and dry conditions to linger over the state a while longer, and there is a possibility of thunderstorms each day from mid-afternoon through early evening.

High temperatures will range from the lower 90s in the High Plains to the lower 100s in south central Texas and southern Texas. Lows will vary from the middle 60s to middle 70s, he said.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture adequate to short. Range grass drying down but still providing good grazing. Cutting silage, baling hay. Irrigation being applied to corn, sorghum. Cotton, sorghum experiencing pest problems. Cattle in good condition.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges need moisture. Very little corn mature. Cotton completed setting bolls; none open yet. Insect activity increasing in cotton. Sorghum heading and turning. Harvesting onions.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate to short. Cotton progressing well. Insect pressure heavy in some fields. Producers scouting for boll weevils, boll worms, beet army worms. Peanuts making excellent progress. Livestock in good condition.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short to very short. Pastures, ranges need moisture. Harvesting pine trees. Baling hay. Harvesting corn, soybean. Preparing land for fall planting. Some fall gardens failed due to heat and drought. Cattle in fair condition.

EAT TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to short. Corn, sorghum harvests complete. Forage volume adequate; quality declining due to moisture stress. Hay baling continues. Fall gardening underway; all areas need moisture. Cattle in good condition.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to very short. Pastures, ranges in need of rain for any fall grass production. Many crops rapidly deteriorating due to dry conditions. Most livestock in good condition; supplemental feeding in most areas.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures showing moisture stress. Peanut vines in good condition. Pecans progressing well. Livestock in good condition. Ranchers shipping calves, cleaning up pastures in preparation for fall.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges in fair condition; need additional moisture. Early cotton yields better than expected. Peach harvest complete. Leaf blight causing peanut loose leaves. Scab becoming problem on pecans.

SOUTH EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Harvesting corn, cotton, grain sorghum, rice. Cattle market steady in some counties, depressed in others. Fall gardens responding to recent light showers.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate to poor. Pastures, ranges in fair condition; need moisture. Cotton harvest continues; good yields. Early estimates indicate an average pecan crop. Peanuts progressing well. Livestock in good condition.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture surplus to short. Pastures, ranges improving due to recent rains. Cotton picking in full swing; yields good where not affected by tropical storm. Livestock market steady; cattle in excellent condition. Preparing for fall gardens.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture surplus to adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition due to recent rain. Harvesting cotton. Field work is at a standstill, fall vegetables delayed due to wet fields. Sugar cane growth is excellent.

Time Warner courting Turner; offers $8.5 billion stock deal

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Turner Broadcasting System Inc. is considering a buyout offer valued at about $8.5 billion from Time Warner Inc. that would create the world's largest media and entertainment company, two sources said today.

The proposed deal would be the third major combination in the industry this summer as program providers and distributors team up on the theory that bigger companies will compete more profitably around the world.

Time Warner wants to bring Turner's array of cable TV networks including Cable News Network under the same corporate umbrella with Warner Music, People and Sports Illustrated magazines, Warner Bros. films and Home Box Office.

Spokesman for Turner Broadcasting and Time Warner had no comment on their reported merger discussions.

But two sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said that Time Warner had proposed buying the Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting for stock worth about $8.5 billion.

The sources cautioned, however, that there was no guarantee that the Turner board would accept the offer even though Chairman Ted Turner was said to like it.

"I have no idea where John Malone is on it," one of the sources said, referring to the chief executive of Tele-Communications Inc., which is a major Turner shareholder and a Time Warner rival in cable TV systems.

TCI owns about 21 percent of Turner's stock, while Time Warner owns about 18 percent. They each have three seats on the 15-member Turner board.

The sources said Time Warner is offering 0.7 to 0.8 shares of its stock for each Turner share making the swap worth about $35 a share.

Time Warner fell 62-1/2 cents a share to $42.37-1/2 a share in trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange, while Turner's widely traded Class B stock rose 12-1/2 cents to $24 a share on the American Stock Exchange.

The proposed deal comes on the heels of Walt Disney Co.'s $19 billion agreement to buy Capital Cities/ABC Inc. and Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s agreement to buy CBS Inc. for $5.4 billion.

Ted Turner has coveted a broadcast network for years, and was believed to be trying to raise the financing for a rival offer for CBS.

Time Warner had until recently been negotiating to sell its Turner stake back to Turner Broadcasting in an effort to reduce its $15 billion debt, and had blocked an earlier effort by Turner to bid for NBC.

Ito faces biggest decision of trial

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Before Judge Lance Ito stands the biggest decision of the O.J. Simpson trial, perhaps the biggest of his career - a ruling with implications beyond the courtroom that will tax the judge's emotions as well as his intellect.

The Mark Fuhrman tapes have not only rocked an already trouble-plagued trial, but aggravated racial wounds in a city that hasn't come close to recovering from the riots sparked by the acquittals of police officers who beat Rodney King.

After hearing impassioned arguments from attorneys Tuesday, Ito indicated he would rule in the next few days on whether the majority-black jury will hear some of Fuhrman's racist rants and chest-thumping tales of a mean cop in a mean city.

"The quality of your arguments... has given me a lot to think about and this is not something I can rule upon from the seat of my pants," Ito told attorneys. "I need to sit down and look at each one of these individual situations and make the appropriate ruling."

The issue is so important that Ito, who has been loath to keep the sequestered, bedraggled jury out of the courtroom, scheduled no testimony for today. The jury also had Tuesday off and was sent on a shopping trip.

"I've got to believe it's one of the most agonizing decisions he's made in his career," Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugsley said. "Both sides have presented very powerful arguments, enough to give Ito a few sleepless nights."

The matter has generated white-hot emotions for all involved, including Ito, who was close to tears earlier this month when he spoke of how he was "wounded" by word that Fuhrman derided Ito's police captain wife on the tapes. To solve a conflict-of-interest problem, those portions were excised before Ito heard the tapes.

At stake is not just Simpson's fate - most legal analysts say Ito's ruling will be pivotal in whether he is convicted of murdering his ex-wife and her friend - but the health of the city. The tapes were the worst blow for the Los Angeles Police Department since King, a black motorist, was beaten by white officers.

Another twist to the racially charged decision is the family history of Ito, the son of Japanese-American internees in a World War II camp.

During Tuesday's hearing, the fiery statements from the prosecution and defense contrasted with the eerily restrained rage in Fuhrman's voice, which filled the courtroom as the defense played portions of taped interviews the recently retired detective gave to an aspiring screenwriter.

It was the same voice jurors heard months ago when the investigator who found the bloody glove on Simpson's property swore under oath that he had not used the word "nigger" in the last 10 years. On the tapes recorded since 1985, he says that word 41 times.

Waiting for a cat

This cat trap is one of several the City of Hereford now owns to combat the problem of stray cats throughout the city. Local residents can request a cat trap if they are bothered by stray cats. When the cat enters and steps on the trigger, a door closes down and latches, preventing the cat from fleeing. The animal has room to move around and is not harmed. Animals impounded as being nuisances or for roaming at large are taken to the animal shelter and held for 72 hours to be claimed by the owner or adopted. Animals not claimed by that time are euthanized.

Comptroller says Texas a 'financial powerhouse' Sharp says state has 11th largest economy in world

By MICHAEL HOLMES
 Associated Press Writer
 AUSTIN (AP) - Add the economy to things that are bigger in Texas. State Comptroller John Sharp says that if Texas were its own country, it would rank 11th among the world's largest economies.

That would put Texas ahead of Russia, Korea, Mexico, Australia and Switzerland, among others.

"Texas is now a financial powerhouse on the international stage, and we are playing an increasingly important role in the markets of the world," Sharp said Wednesday.

Analyzing figures from 1993, the most recent available, the comptroller's office said the value of goods and services produced in Texas had risen to more than $443 billion.

"This places us ahead of the huge Russian Federation, whose gross national product is $348.5 billion, and not far behind China, whose massive economic output totals $581 billion," Sharp said.

The United States led all nations with a gross national product of nearly $6.4 trillion. It was followed by Japan at $3.9 trillion, Germany at $1.9 trillion and France at almost $1.3 trillion.

Sharp said the state's economy, once heavily dependent on natural resources such as oil and gas, has been rapidly diversifying in recent years.

Texas exports to other nations including Canada, Great Britain, Japan and Taiwan are growing. Mexico remains the state's single largest trading partner.

The devaluation of the Mexican peso last December slowed Texas exports to that country in the first two quarters of this year. However, the state's exports to other countries have climbed, and the overall rate of Texas exporting is holding steady to last year's brisk pace, Sharp said.

The petrochemical industry "has fueled much of the growth of the state's economy this year," Sharp said, while sales of computers and other electronic equipment also helped cover the collapse of the peso.

"The Texas economy is increasingly tied to the economies of other countries around the world. That's why it's such good news to see that we rank among the strongest 'nations' in the world," Sharp said.

Andy Welch, a spokesman for the comptroller's office, said 1993 figures for other states weren't immediately available.

New animal ordinance enforcement beefed up

By GARRY WESNER
 Managing Editor

With a stroke of his pen on Aug. 7, Mayor Bob Josseland enacted a city ordinance that expanded enforcement of the city's pet control law to any animal.

Now, the Hereford Police Department is charged with enforcing that ordinance, which went into effect on Aug. 19.

Chief David Wagner said any animal -- not just dogs -- must now be kept in accordance with the ordinance.

Under the law, animals may be impounded for one of two reasons -- running at large or being a nuisance.

The provisions about animals running loose says, "It shall be unlawful for the owner of any dog, cat or other animal to allow such dog, cat or other animal to run or be at large upon any street, alley or public place in the City, or on the property of others than the owner of such dog, cat or other animal, unless such dog, cat or other animal shall be at all times restrained by rope, chain, leash or other means of control sufficient to reasonably control the acts and conduct thereof."

Under the ordinance, there are four classes of unrestrained animals. They are animals which are not:

- "Inside a fenced yard;
- "At the end of a leash controlled by a responsible person;
- "In a house, apartment or in a completely enclosed cage; or
- "Tied or staked upon open or unfenced land."

A nuisance animal is described in the ordinance as one which:

- "Molests or attacks people;
  - "Attacks other animals;
  - "Is repeatedly at large;
  - "Damages private or public property;
  - "Barks, whines or howls excessively; or
  - "Creates an offensive odor."
- With the ordinance expanded to include cats, Wagner said, the department did some minor remodeling inside the animal shelter.
- One quarantine cage was removed and turned into temporary cages for cats impounded by Animal Control Officer Mark Loyd.
- In addition, four more cat traps have been ordered, bringing to eight the department's stock -- "and we keep them busy," Wagner said.
- Since the ordinance went into effect, the chief said, animal control personnel have impounded 46 cats -- an average of nearly six per day since Aug. 19.
- Cat traps are available to residents plagued by nuisance cats.
- They are a cage with a trip step inside that latches a door, leaving the animal with space to turn around freely, but not escape.
- "People will call us and we put these traps out and they are responsible for the traps," Wagner said.
- If a cat is caught in one of the traps, the homeowner must call the police department and have it picked up.
- "I know they're somebody's pet, most of these, but they (owners) need to be responsible" for their animals, Wagner said.
- Any animal impounded under the animal ordinance, Wagner said, will be transported to the animal shelter.
- If the owner is located, he can be issued a citation as being in violation of the law.
- Animals are held for 72 hours in the shelter.
- If after that time the animal has not been claimed or adopted, or if the owner has not made arrangements for payment of fines in Municipal Court, the animal is euthanized.
- For more information on the animal control department, call the police department at 363-7120.

Probe continues in tire vandalism; more victims come forward

The number of tires slashed Monday night has risen to 35 as the number of victims from a criminal mischief rampage near Whiteface Stadium jumped to 17.

Police Chief David Wagner said officers are continuing to investigate the series of incidents, which mostly occurred during the "Meet the Hero" activity Monday night.

Wagner said officers have determined that the tires were not cut with a knife.

"You can't even see the holes, so we're talking about the jack or something similar," he said.

The holes become noticeable when a flat tire is aired up.

While some holes in tires have been repaired, Wagner said one tire was punctured 13 times and another eight times.

Five tires reported to have been punctured were not around the stadium, but have puncture marks consistent with the stadium rampage.

The chief said officers are pursuing leads into the case. However, no arrests have yet been made.

Wagner said the crime will be broadcast to students at Hereford Junior High School and Hereford High School today as part of the Student Crimestoppers program, with a cash reward offered for information.

Anyone having information about incident is asked to call the police department at 363-7120 or the Crimestoppers Clue Line at 364-CLUE. Tips to Crimestoppers may be made anonymously.

Former Realtor president adjusts to new role as manager of local auto parts store

By GARRY WESNER
 Managing Editor

In 1991, she was Leader of the Year for the Hereford Campfire Council. That same year she served as secretary/treasurer of the Hereford Board of Realtors.

In 1992, she was Realtor of the Year and in 1993 served as president of the Board of Realtors.

But now, Diane Beavers can be found walking the narrow aisles of Suit's Auto Supply or plugging away at the computer in her small office behind the counter.

Mrs. Beavers, 35, made the switch from Realtor to auto parts store manager in June, taking the helm of a store that has served Hereford for nearly 50 years.

In the process, she became the first woman to head up the store and kept management in the Beavers family, which has owned Suit's for 25 years.

"I still have my real estate license and I'm going to keep them," Mrs. Beavers said. The licenses also remain with the Mark Andrews Agency, where she worked until June.

"It was a good career opportunity for me and I looked at it as a good challenge," she said.

The store has been without an on-site manager for about five years, although Mrs. Beavers' father-in-law, David Beavers, who owns the store, had managed it while working at the nearby Beaver's Machine Inc., owned by his son, Terry.

"He (David Beavers) knew it would be better if they had an on-site manager," Mrs. Beavers said.

But Mrs. Beavers stressed that her appointment was not simply because she was a member of the family.

"They knew I could do the job," she said.

Mrs. Beavers has lived in Hereford a good part of her life.

She was born on July 29, 1960, and moved to Hereford while in the eighth grade.

It was there that she met fellow student Terry Beavers, whom she married in 1977.

Mrs. Beavers graduated in 1978. The couple has two children, Janet, 17, and Lisa, 15.

As for her foray into the male-dominated world of auto parts, Mrs. Beavers said, "It's a little different than real estate," although she added that the business aspects of the two professions were basically the same.

"I was hoping I could make a difference," she said, adding that there have been a few things adjusted since her arrival.

One big change for the staff came earlier this month when the company added a new phone system.

In the past, Mrs. Beavers said, (See BEAVERS, Page 2)

With school underway, we wonder if some teachers still assign a first-week composition on what one did on summer vacation. As I recall, that was a traditional report back in our elementary school days, but I also remember that only a few classmates really had exciting vacations.

After becoming an adult, I quickly learned the worst thing about a vacation: You have to work twice as hard in order to get away, and then three times as hard to catch up when you get back.

Some folks have been to many places but never on vacation--at least that's what the experts say. If you call back to check on things at the office, it's really not a vacation, according to a vacation professional.

Over the years, we've decided that our staff can do nicely without our supervision. If something drastic happens, there's usually not much we could do about it from a far away place, anyway.

Other vacation observations:

--Taking a vacation trip to a big city actually makes you feel better about where you live.

--In most cases, co-workers will take care of your job while you're gone, because they expect the same when they're gone.

--You can tell a favorite vacation destination by the prices.

--If you worry about how much stuff costs, you probably won't have much fun.

--If you don't worry about how much stuff costs, you might not be able to get home.

--No vacation is the right duration--it's either too short or too long.

--A vacation isn't over until you stop telling co-workers about it.

Taking over

Diane Beavers, former president of the Hereford Board of Realtors, has found a new home in the office of Suit's Auto Supply, where she is new manager. Mrs. Beavers is the first woman to manage the nearly 50-year-old business, and keeps management in the Beavers family, which has owned the store for 25 of those years. With her are Truitt Hardage, left, purchasing agent and assistant manager, and David Kreig, local salesman and counter man.

Local Roundup

No let-up in high temperatures

Hot weather is forecast through the Labor Day weekend, beginning with a high in the mid-90s Friday and continuing in the mid to upper 90s through Monday. Hereford had a hint of rain Wednesday night with .03-inch recorded, along with a 67-degree low Thursday and a 96-degree high Wednesday. The forecast calls for a less than 20 percent chance of thunderstorms Thursday evening, south wind, 5-10 mph and an overnight low in the mid-60s. Mostly sunny skies are forecast for Friday with a south wind, 10-15 mph.

Correction

A story in the Aug. 4 Hereford Brand incorrectly indicated Hereford school trustees approved a series of raises for teachers and paraprofessionals by a split vote. Instead, one motion was made to raise the paraprofessional minimum salary to $5.75 per hour and to give all others a 3 percent raise. That motion passed unanimously. Another motion to give teachers a $1,000 raise above state minimum, $1,500 above minimum for teachers with a masters degree, and $500 raise to other professionals. That motion passed on a 4-2 vote, with Cherry McWhorter, Joe Flood, Ron Weishaar and Jim Marsh in favor and Randy Tooley and Raul Valdez opposed. The Brand regrets the error.

employees would get a parts request from a customer on the phone, put the person on hold and run through the building to find the part as quickly as possible.

If it was not the right one, the customer was destined to another stay on hold while the weary employee raced back to find the right part.

Now, Mrs. Beavers said, the store has come into the 1990s with a cordless phone system in which each counter worker has a phone unit with no-hands speaker and microphone.

While talking to the customer, workers can find the parts needed, check them with the caller and pull them from the shelves -- all without punching the hold button at all.

"We're kind of shifting gears, adapting for the '90s," Mrs. Beavers said, adding that the business itself has changed to meeting the changing needs of agriculture and automotive customers.

"I think the industry has changed a lot," she said.

The store has added a parts delivery service to local garages, has a territorial salesman who sells to shops from Clovis, N.M., to Claude, and makes in-person sales calls to local shops that stock parts.

Next on the agenda, Mrs. Beavers said, is updating the front part of the store, including a paint job and remodeling to put her office out front where she can meet with customers face-to-face.

Suit's Auto Supply was founded in November 1946 by Ray Suit, who coined the motto still used today -- "a good parts number."

Suit, who had no children to pass his business to, sold to David Beavers with the agreement that it keep the Suit's name.

Today, the store not only sells retail parts, but also serves as a warehouse distributing parts to shops as well.

There are eight employees -- Mrs. Beavers; assistant manager/purchasing agent Truitt Hardage; local parts salesman and counter man David Kreig -- whose father, Hawk Kreig, worked for Suit's from 1955 until 1988, including several years as manager; territorial manager John Duke; head counter man Johnny Rickman; office manager Patricia Varner; shipping and receiving clerk Jesse Hernandez; and local delivery man Rudy Valdez.

Next year, Suit's will celebrate its 50th anniversary in business in Hereford.

SEN. TEEL BIVINS

Groups honor state senator, Teel Bivins

State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, has been honored by the Free Market Foundation and the Free Market PAC, according to an announcement by the groups.

Bivins was one of seven area legislators to receive the "Leaders of Excellence" award given Tuesday at a luncheon in Midland. Other award luncheons will be held in Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston.

Also honored were: Sen. Tom Haywood of Wichita Falls; and Reps. Warren Chisum of Pampa, Tom Craddock of Midland, Charles Finnell of Holliday, Bob Hunter of Abilene, David Swinford of Dumas and Gary Walker of Plains.

The lawmakers placed in the upper 20 percentile of the "1995 Texas Conservative Report," a bi-annual report of record votes that is published by Free Enterprise PAC.

This year, 80 House votes and 97 Senate votes were calculated in each legislators' average rating. The votes covered economic, government, education and social issues.

Also at the luncheon, Bivins was presented the "Champion of Free Enterprise Award" and Chisum was given the "Families First Award."

Morales issues legal opinions on concealed handgun statute

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Just days before the state's concealed-handgun law takes effect, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales has ruled that transit authorities and businesses may ban the carrying of guns.

Morales also said that counties may prohibit concealed handguns within county parks, but cities cannot do the same within city parks.

The concealed-handgun law goes into effect Friday. At that time, Texans may begin applying for handgun permits, which won't be valid until Jan. 1, 1996.

Morales' legal opinions, issued Wednesday, were requested by state Sen. Rodney Ellis and state Rep. Ron Wilson, both Houston Democrats. Wilson was a co-author of the concealed-gun legislation; Ellis opposed the bill.

Wilson, who requested the opinion regarding transit authorities and parks, said the rulings "clear up the main concerns that people had" about the law.

"There were a number of questions out there," he said. "I agree with at least most of what (Morales) has opined."

But Sen. Jerry Patterson, the law's chief author, called the rulings "much ado about nothing."

"No matter what a metro does, or no matter what a county does, anyone who has a permit to carry a concealed handgun and goes aboard a metro bus or in a county park has not violated a state law - period," said Patterson, R-Pasadena.

"Only if they're told to leave, then they're in violation of trespassing - a misdemeanor offense," he said.

Wilson sought the ruling on public transportation after the Houston Metropolitan Transit Authority said it would ban the carrying of concealed guns on its buses.

"My own personal opinion is that they ought to be able to carry them on buses, but that is not the law as we wrote it," he said. "It may work out for the best. If it doesn't, we'll go back and address it."

Billy Burge, chairman of the Houston Metro board, praised Morales' ruling.

"We are not against the concealed-weapons law," he said. "But we feel that to secure and maintain safety and efficiency in the operation and maintenance of the transit system, Metro has to be an exception to this law."

According to Morales' opinion, the state transportation code grants transit authorities the right to establish rules "to abridge the right of a citizen to use his private property if the use will endanger public safety in the rapid transit system."

On city and county parks, Morales said the concealed-gun law expressly prohibits cities from regulating the carrying of concealed guns in their parks. However, he said, counties may do so.

Morales concluded that private property owners, under existing trespassing laws, also may exclude permit-holders from carrying guns on their premises. Business owners must post signs stating that concealed guns are prohibited.

Ellis said he requested the opinion after receiving numerous telephone calls from employers who were concerned about their rights under the law.

"Most business people recognize that it would have a detrimental impact on their ability to attract customers if people went into an establishment and had to live in fear that the person standing in line next to them had a concealed weapon," Ellis said.

"As for all those gun enthusiasts who feel much safer packing their pistols, I know that I will rest far more comfortably now that I can go to an establishment that's telling them to leave their shooter outside before they go to dinner," he said.

Wilson said lawmakers always intended to allow employers to prohibit both employees and customers from carrying concealed guns into their businesses.

Dane Harris, president of the 6,000-member Texas Association of Business & Chambers of Commerce, said the opinion backs an employer's right to control the workplace.

"Employers have a responsibility to provide a safe workplace in the interest of all of their employees, and they have a responsibility to provide a safe environment for customers and others," he said. "I think that was a concern, that they be able to fulfill their obligations."

Personal income increases .7 percent

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Led by summertime gains in service industries such as restaurants and retail trade, Americans' personal income jumped 0.7 percent in July - the biggest increase in six months.

The Commerce Department said today that the larger-than-expected rise in income easily outpaced consumer spending, which advanced just 0.2 percent last month.

In another report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits was unchanged last week at 349,000. The less volatile four-week average rose to 342,000 from 335,000 a week earlier.

The growth in income, biggest since an 0.8 percent increase in January, followed a 0.5 percent rise in June.

Spending rose at the slowest pace since April, when it was unchanged.

The latest evidence of moderate economic growth comes just one day after the government reported the economy this spring turned in its weakest performance in nearly four years, expanding at a 1.1 percent annual rate. Still, the second-quarter growth was larger than previously estimated due to a surge in consumer spending.

Today's figures suggested consumers were becoming more cautious even as income was on the rise.

Consumer spending represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity. Analysts said its strength in the spring was the result largely of steep discounts aimed at reducing excess business inventories.

The Commerce Department said disposable income - income after taxes - rose 0.6 percent in July on top of a 0.4 percent gain the previous month.

The combination of incomes and spending meant that Americans' savings rate - savings as a percentage of disposable income - rose to 4.2 percent in July from 3.8 percent a month earlier. The last time the savings rate was this high was in April.

Income was $6.06 trillion in July and spending edged up to $4.89 trillion.

Private wages and salaries, the most closely watched component of income, increased at a $29.3 billion annual rate in July compared to a $23.7 billion rate the previous month. Service industry payrolls soared $18 billion, nearly double the rate of increase in June.

Government wages and salaries rose at a $1 billion rate last month, matching the increase a month earlier.

On the spending side, outlays for big-ticket durable goods such as cars and appliances fell 1.8 percent in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $622 billion. Spending on nondurable goods such as food and fuel rose 0.3 percent to $1.459 trillion. Spending on services was up 0.6 percent to $2.809 trillion.

When adjusted for inflation, spending was up unchanged in July, after rising 0.4 percent in June.

The experts included some other advice:

--Don't use napkin to clean teeth or blow nose.

--Don't talk on your cellular phone during dinner.

--Don't eat off someone else's plate.

Do you know what I am talking about? Are they extinct? Have you every heard of them? Do they now have another name? Please consult a nut expert, and help me prove I am not imagining things. I'll pin your answer up on the bulletin board and say, "I told you so." -- Fran

DEAR FRAN: My nut expert says you are not nuts. The monkey nut is a cousin to the peanut. It comes from the European basswood tree. You and I must be about the same age because I remember monkey nuts from my school days, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for the lady who thought it was ridiculous to bury a person with his glasses on because "people don't sleep in glasses, and death is the permanent sleep."

My mother wore a hearing aid for the last 20 years of her life. No one ever saw her without it. Her aid was one of those old-fashioned models -- clumsy and very visible. When we tried to talk her into a new streamlined model, she'd say, "No, this one works fine."

When Mama died, the mortician called us to see if she looked the way we wanted her to look for the viewing. My sister and I, with one voice, told the mortician that Mama didn't look right. Something was missing. It was, of course, her hearing aid. So she was buried with it on, even though some people said it was ridiculous. We wanted it that way. -- Tennessee Reader.

DEAR TEN: As I said before, it's up to the family to decide such questions, and they should not be concerned with "crowd pleasers."

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Few women and fewer men have enough character to be idle.

America's Drug Problem Is Not As Big As You Think.

It can start as a dare. Or youthful curiosity. Or it may be a way to escape problems at home. Whatever the reason, studies show that an alarming number of young children are trying drugs. Unfortunately, too many parents still do not believe that their children are at risk.

The truth is, it's never too early to start teaching your kids about the dangers of drugs.

If you are not sure how to talk to them, call the Texas Prevention Partnership at 1-800-269-4237 and ask for the free booklet called "Growing Up Drug-Free - A Parent's Guide to Prevention." Call today because if you don't take care of little problems, they can easily grow into big ones.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 261,000 miles) plus just about every city and community in Texas. A&M University Cartographics.

Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing -- county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Herd spikers meet cream of Class in Justin tourney

The Hereford volleyball team will mix it up with some of the best teams in Class 4A this weekend at the Justin Northwest Invitational Tournament. The tournament, set in Justin (northwest of Fort Worth), includes the reigning state champion in Friendswood. In Hereford, Dumas and the host team, it includes the last three programs to go to the state tournament from Region I. Justin Northwest beat Hereford in the regional finals two seasons ago.

Hallsville also went to state two seasons ago, and Hallsville is in Hereford's pool. Hereford (6-2) starts pool play with Green Hill at 2 p.m. Friday, then faces Hallsville at 4. The Herd takes on Coppell at 6:40.

The rest of the 16-team field is littered with perennial playoff teams: Granbury, Cleburne, Denison, Lancaster, Longview, Boswell, Andrews and Mesquite-Poteet.

The junior varsity team will be playing in the Dumas JV Tournament on Saturday.

The freshmen and junior high teams take the Labor Day weekend off, then resume play Thursday: freshmen host Caprock at 6 p.m.; junior high, hosts Borger at 5:30.

Muster, Chang, Stich advance at US Open

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - There was a little bit of football, a little bit of basketball and a whole lot of tennis at the U.S. Open.

"The guy really is an animal," Luke Jensen said approvingly of Thomas Muster. "He plays full-court press on you."

A clay court specialist who is seeded third in this hardcourt Grand Slam tournament, Muster won his first-round match Wednesday with a workmanlike 7-6 (7-3), 6-3, 6-0 victory over Jensen.

Fifth-seeded Michael Chang, No. 8 Michael Stich and No. 12 Richard Krajicek also posted opening-round victories, while fourth-seeded Boris Becker won a second-round match.

Two women's seeds were ousted in second-round matches, but calling the results upsets would be misleading.

Fourteen-year-old Martina Hingis of Switzerland defeated No. 8 Magdalena Maleeva 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. Maleeva was playing in her first official tournament since the French Open in May because of fused disks in her back and a sprained ankle.

No. 15 Helena Sukova fell to Chanda Rubin 6-1, 6-3. Rubin is ranked 16th in the world, just two spots behind Sukova, and would have been seeded 16th if Monica Seles had not returned to the sport. Hingis is ranked 18th.

Seeded players moving into the third round were No. 1 Steffi Graf, No. 3 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, No. 6 Mary Pierce, No. 9 Gabriela Sabatini, No. 12 Natasha Zvereva and No. 14 Mary Joe Fernandez.

While Jensen wasn't that much of a test for Muster, Chang had a breeze, defeating Gianluca Pozzi of Italy 6-0, 6-1, 6-0. It was the most lopsided U.S. Open men's singles match since Ivan Lendl defeated Barry Moir 6-0, 6-0, 6-0 in a first-round match in 1987.

Graf didn't play particularly well, but she had no problem with 96th-ranked Rita Grande, beating her Italian opponent 6-1, 6-3 in 44 minutes.

Katrina Adams is a surprise third-round. Adams has had success in doubles, but until this year had never won a singles match at the U.S. Open. Getting a wild-card entry into the tournament, Adams beat Miriam Oremans of the Netherlands on Tuesday and Karin Kschwendt of Luxembourg 6-2, 3-6, 6-4 on Wednesday.

Oilers will begin season with minds in Tennessee

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - If the Houston Oilers didn't have turmoil, they probably wouldn't be the Oilers.

As they attempt to dig out from last year's 2-14 debacle, the Oilers will be playing in the Astrodome this season and thinking about Tennessee, not a fertile environment for success.

Since the start of last season, the Oilers have dumped the run-and-shoot offense, coach Jack Pardee and offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride and most of the old coaching staff.

Now, owner Bud Adams is trying to dump the city. Adams, just as he did in 1987 with Jacksonville, is threatening to move the Oilers to Nashville if he doesn't get a new stadium for his team.

"Those things aren't a distraction," coach Jeff Fisher insisted. "We're keeping our focus strictly on what we can control. We can't control that other stuff."

While Adams negotiates his team's future playing site, Fisher has done plenty with what he could control.

Fisher kept the 46 defense he helped Buddy Ryan install two years ago, but new offensive coordinator Jerry Rhome has put in a multiple attack. Fisher expects to make fans forget the pass-oriented run-and-shoot.

Football teams scrimmage vs. AHS

Hereford's football players get a last chance to tune up for the regular season tonight and Friday night as they scrimmage against the Amarillo High Sandies.

The junior varsity, sophomore and freshmen teams all scrimmage today in Amarillo. The sophomores and junior varsity are at Bonham Junior High, while the freshmen are at Amarillo High itself. All of them start at 5 p.m.

The varsity squads meet at 6:45 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Stadium. The scrimmage will start with four 24-play segments - 12 each offensive and defensive. Next will be two eight-play sessions from the 35-yard line, then two eight play goalline sessions - one each for offense and defense. Finally, the teams will play a full quarter in game situations.

Whiteface Stadium also will be the site for a scrimmage today. Dalhart and Levelland are meeting halfway, and they'll scrimmage in Hereford, starting at 5 p.m.

Hereford will start the year with 36 seniors and eight juniors on its varsity roster. They are listed below.

Seniors: Marquise Brown, Jacob Moreno, Todd Dudley, Stephen Wright, Dwayne Thomas, Josh Bullard, Michael Garcia, Todd Radford, Ronald Torres, Armando Zambrano, Hector Cavazos, Job

Skiles, Tanner Murphey, Josh Urbanczyk, Brian Betzen, Bric Wall, T.J. Robbins, Ted Peabody, Michael Kriegshauser, Ralph Moralez, Samuel Berryman, Pedro Vanegas, John Messer, Brack Bryant, Johnny Delgado, Joseph Martinez, Lorenzo Martinez, Martin Martinez, Jeranimo Ruiz, Kip Smith, Robert Tamez, Raymond Gonzales, David Hicks, Roger Flores and Tracy Montano.

Juniors: Adan Tarin, Jeremy Reiter, C.J. Kubacak, Joseph Artho, John Marty Galan, Josh Alvarado, Chris Garth and Trip Robison.

Williamsses are key to Cowboys win

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The fate of the Dallas Cowboys in Monday night's opener against the New York Giants could well rest on the play of their two question-mark Williamsses: Erik and Kevin.

Erik, the 6-foot-6, 320-pound offensive tackle who is bouncing back from a devastating car wreck last October, has to give Troy Aikman time to throw.

Kevin, a 5-foot-9, 190-pound wide receiver, must take up the slack created by the departure of Alvin Harper to Tampa Bay.

Erik is back a full two months quicker than anybody predicted.

"I thought it would be mid-October before I got him back," said coach Barry Switzer. "It's a blessing and a big plus for us to have him in the lineup. I hope he can go a full 60 minutes. He's in better shape than a lot of guys and is tough enough mentally to fight through anything. We'll watch him closely."

Erik isn't as good as new, however.

Trainer Kevin O'Neill said Williams' damaged knee will "never be as good as God made it."

But the Pro Bowl player proved last Saturday in an exhibition game against the Houston Oilers that he still has it.

On one play, Williams swatted Oilers defensive end Anthony Cook to the ground like a bothersome fly.

"He's our spiritual leader," said guard Nate Newton. "He brings intensity to the field."

Williams played 17 plays against Houston and Switzer pronounced him fit enough to play against the Giants. He will be going against Robert Harris, a free agent acquisition from Minnesota, and Coleman Rudolph.

Williams is still stiff-legged and Switzer isn't sure about his stamina.

"I'm not sure how long he can go," Switzer said. "I hope he can hang in there a long time because (backup) Ron Stone was injured in the Oiler game. Erik also could have a little trouble against speed rushes."

Williams has preferred not to talk about his comeback. He had off-the-field problems during the summer when he and a friend were no-billed on a rape charge.

"It's great to be back with my teammates," was all Williams would say about the Giants game.

Kevin, the Cowboys' best kick returner, made steady progress during training camp although he's not the tall target Harper presented.

"I thought Kevin had a great camp," Aikman said. "I have all the confidence in the world in him."

Williams has the speed to get deep and stretch defenses.

But his special love is special teams.

"I know the only way I'll get more recognition is as a receiver," he said. "But I do love special teams. They would be hard to give up."

Williams ranked third in the NFC in kick returns and sixth in punt returns last season. He's the only Cowboy ever to score touchdowns four ways, a run from scrimmage, pass reception, kick and punt returns.

"It's a heck of a load to do it all but I say load me up, whatever it takes to put the Cowboys on top," Williams said.

"He has a big heart. This boy can play," wide receiver Michael Irvin said.

Cowboys' Brown dealing with son's premature birth

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys cornerback Larry Brown has more on his mind these days than whether he could lose his job to Deion Sanders.

Brown is trying to prepare for the season opener Monday night against the New York Giants while his newborn son is fighting for his life.

Christopher Brown, the second child born to Brown and his wife, Cheryl, arrived 15 weeks premature over the weekend. Cheryl and Christopher remain in Fort Worth's Harris Methodist Hospital.

"I'll be all right," Brown told The Dallas Morning News for Thursday's editions. "I'm not trying to let this distract me."

Brown, who is spending all his time away from the team with his family, said he'd rather not further discuss the matter.

When Brown is at practice, defensive backs coach Mike Zimmer tries to keep him preoccupied with football.

"I think we're trying to be sympathetic about what is happening off the field," Zimmer said. "But when he's on the playing field, I think you almost have to be on him more so he stays focused. So I keep on his butt."

Brown learned of his wife's condition minutes before last Saturday's preseason game with the Houston Oilers in San Antonio. Cowboys owner Jerry Jones allowed Brown to use his plane to immediately return to Dallas.

Larry and Cheryl Brown have been through this trauma once before.

Their first child, daughter Kristen, weighed only 2 pounds when she was born almost three months premature in 1993. Kristen is fine now as she nears her second birthday.

Program brings scientists into school classrooms

By JOAN GOESSL
Associated Press Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - A dozen pair of eyes are focused on Lynn Ritchie as he blows up a blue balloon and rubs it on his shirt. He keeps rubbing as he launches into an explanation about electricity, explaining the difference between the static and current kind.

"How do you use electricity?" the Sandia National Laboratories scientist asks the class -- first-, second- and third-graders at Navajo Elementary School.

"Turning on the TV?" asks one youngster.

"That's right," Ritchie replies. Other kids chime in: "Turning on the fan?" "Turning on the toaster?" "Turning on the computer?"

Yes, Ritchie says, good answers. He moves on to the less obvious: "Ever go anywhere in a car?"

"Yes," one boy responds. "I was going to say that."

Ritchie sticks the balloon on the chalkboard as he explains how little particles called electrons cause the static electricity that keeps it from floating to the floor.

A quality engineer at Sandia, Ritchie is among dozens of chemists, engineers, physicists and other scientists who participate in the Science Advisors Program, a 5-year-old education outreach project run by the U.S. Department of Energy lab.

The program's two-pronged approach gives students hands-on math and science lessons - everything from arithmetic to weather - and also helps teachers improve their math and science education through in-service workshops, according to Sandia's Sheri Martinez, a program coordinator.

"We really want kids to be engaged in science learning," Martinez says. "We find people learn best by 'doing' science. ... Many teachers hadn't done science that way. That's kind of where we come in."

The program's hands-on approach is apparent in Ritchie's lessons, where besides a balloon he uses such props as a comb, batteries and a flashlight bulb.

"Kids do better if you have something for kids to do," says Ritchie, a 61-year-old father of five and grandfather of 12. "I value the opportunity to share with them my excitement about science. I think sometimes it is not shared in an exciting way."

The Science Advisors Program - SCIAID for short - doesn't believe in boring lectures. Its basic tenet is that if children are going to develop an affection for science, it has to be through stimulating, interesting, hands-on demonstrations and projects.

Consider, for example, the first-graders who learned how mammals use their senses by pretending to be baby and mother animals, each carrying around a cotton ball with a different scent.

The program offers a resource center at the lab and loans kits, videos and other materials to participating schools. One elementary school teacher doing a lesson on the human body borrowed an apron with detachable body parts, letting students see what organs look like and where they're located.

SCIAID participants include about 110 Sandia scientists, two DOE employees and some 60 retirees from the lab, DOE, Honeywell Corp. and the military, among other places.

The program is available to kindergartners through high school seniors; it served 194 schools around the state during the last school year, Martinez says.

Ritchie, a mathematician and computer scientist, and other participants visit the same schools weekly during the academic year. Each school customizes the program to meet its needs.

But for all the program's popularity, Martinez says its future is not bright. Funding for the DOE's education outreach programs is in jeopardy as Congress looks for ways to cut federal spending.

San Antonio park has distinction of being second oldest in nation

By CHRISTOPHER ANDERSON
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO - The year was 1709 when Spanish missionaries, venturing north from what is now Mexico, topped a white-ledge rocky hill to discover two pristine springs bursting with "enough water to supply a town."

Nine years later, San Antonio was founded with the establishment of Mission San Antonio de Valero - which later would become known as the Alamo - near San Pedro Springs along the tree-lined banks of San Pedro Creek.

King Phillip V of Spain declared the grounds surrounding the springs in 1729 to be an ejido, or public land; hence San Pedro Springs Park is considered to be the nation's second-oldest park, behind only Boston Commons.

It would take more than a century, however, for the land around the springs to take on the appearance of a modern-day park.

The area was used by friendly Payaya Indians as their ritual grounds, and later by the Comanches to launch attacks on settlers after they emerged near the springs via a natural trail.

The Camino Real, or Kings Highway, paralleled that trail and linked early Texas settlements. Three companies of the Second U.S. Dragoons camped near the springs in 1845 - marking the first time federal troops were deployed in San Antonio.

The first recorded recreational event in Texas was held southwest of the springs in 1844 as Texas Rangers competed in an exhibition of horsemanship and marksmanship with Comanche Indians and local caballeros.

The "first rodeo" in the state is claimed by both Pecos and Canadian. In both cases, they were held 40 years after the San Antonio riding event.

The city took its first step to preserve the natural beauty in the park when it marked off a 46-acre-square parcel of land in 1851. It would take another seven years before the land was reserved "for the sole use" of residents.

San Pedro Springs Park quickly emerged as a favorite spot for church picnics, political speeches and military celebrations, but its emergence as a favorite retreat was stunted when Confederate soldiers used it as a prisoner-of-war camp.

One of the more intriguing structures is an old stone fort with vertical slits believed to be openings for weapons to help defend the building. The date of the fort's construction has not been firmly established, although some argue it may be the oldest structure in Texas.

The city is planning to restore the original lake near the springs as the centerpiece of a multimillion dollar improvement project, and parks officials say that the springs might even once again feed the lake.

Events around region provide fun, education

Amarillo

Amarillo Little Theatre will host a production of A.R. Gurney's "Love Letters" starring Wilford Brimley and Amanda McBroom. The production will be presented on ALT stage Sept. 8 and 9 at 8 p.m.

Audiences will know Brimley from numerous film and television roles. He is best known for his roles in "Cocoon" and "Cocoon: The Return" as well as spokesman for Quaker Oatmeal. He makes his home in Utah.

McBroom, a Texas native, received world-wide attention when Bette Midler recorded "The Rose", a song that McBroom composed. She has a background in dramatic and musical theatre and has also appeared on television, most notably in "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

Tickets are $15 for the general public and $12 for ALT season members. A Priority Seating package including a post-show reception with the cast is available for only $35 for the Sept. 9 performance. Reservations may be secured by dialing the ALT box office at 355-9991.

Adding a new 'chill' to this year's Amarillo Tri-State Fair culinary action is the addition of a Homemade Ice Cream Contest. The contest will be held on Family Fun Day, Sept. 17 at 2:30 p.m. in the Art and Agriculture Building on the Tri-State Fairgrounds. After the completion of judging, fairgoers will have the opportunity to taste these old fashioned delights.

The National "Best Spam" Recipe Competition returns to the fair for its second year. The Spam contest will be judged at 6 p.m. on Sept. 16.

The VIP Cherry Pie Contest, Sept. 19, requires a standard two-crust cherry pies. They will be judged at 6 p.m.

Also new to the 1995 Fair is the addition of the "Bread From A Bread Machine Contest." Judging will be Sept. 22 at 6 p.m.

Further contest information may be obtained by contacting the Tri-State Fair, P.O. Box 31087, Amarillo, TX 79120 or calling 806-376-7767.

Canyon

"Forensic Anthropology at the Smithsonian: Bones Tell Tales" will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Douglas Owsley in the Panhandle-Plain Historical Museum's Hazelwood Lecture Hall at 7 p.m. on Sept. 14.

Dr. Owsley is a forensic anthropologist at the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C. In a slide-illustrated lecture, Dr. Owsley will discuss the investigation of three complicated cases in order to show the secrets that can be revealed by studying the human skeleton.

Tickets for the lecture at $3.50 in advance and $4.50 at the door. For reservations, send $3.50 (non-refundable) to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, WTAMU Box 967, Canyon, TX 79016.

The last in a series of three basic methods workshops on archeology and paleontology will be offered on Sept. 16 at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum starting at 8:30 a.m. The all-day workshop will cover paleontological laboratory and field methods.

The workshop will be co-led by Mr. Charles Finsley, Earth Sciences Curator at the Dallas Museum of Natural History, and Dr. Gerald Schultz, Paleontology Professor at West Texas A&M University. The workshop is designed for individuals from the 8th grade through adult.

Registration fee (non-refundable) is $10.50 for members of Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, Museum Auxiliary or students and $12 for non-members. Reservations are due by Sept. 4. For additional information and/or reservations, please contact the coordinator, Ms. A.J. Taylor, at 806-656-2259 or Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, WTAMU Box 967, Canyon, TX 79016.

Special bookmark

Ben Coneway shows off the bookmark he designed as part of Deaf Smith County's "Once Upon A Planet" Summer Reading Program. Ben was presented with several copies of the bookmark to distribute to his family and classmates in Tricia Sims' 3rd grade class at Northwest Elementary.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 15 years old, a girl, pretty. I have such a big problem I wish I could die. When I think the teacher will call on me to read, my heart beats so hard I sweat. I am so unhappy, and hope there is some way to help myself. Is there? — G.Z.

ANSWER: Performance anxiety is common. Although their demeanor may betray it, some of the most experienced professionals harbor some reluctance to expose their reputation to the critical review of strangers. Memoirs of famous stage stars relate how they cringed in fear in their dressing rooms, awaiting the dreaded stage-curtain rise.

So you're not alone. Does your school have a counselor? Perhaps some program of situation desensitization can be worked out. Confidence can be built up gradually to disarm the panic under less-troubling settings.

Some professional performers have been prescribed beta blocker drugs to calm themselves before appearances. They are non-addicting drugs more medically familiar for their role in controlling blood pressure, slowing hearts and easing muscle tension.

At 15, you might be considered a bit young to resort to such drug therapy. I'm sure your doctor would prefer that you work things out with teachers or a school counselor. They might agree to have you called upon selectively—for a prepared response at a specific time, for example.

Find out if your area has a Toastmasters-type organization, some group dedicated to training public speakers. A member might be able to offer some practical advice.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I did not feel a lump in my breast, but a suspicious area showed up on my mammogram. It was a small cancer, which was removed in mastectomy. No lymph glands were involved. Then my doctor prescribed Tamoxifen. I think it is an experimental drug, and I am curious about it. I hear it puts a woman in menopause. I am 69, and I need menopause again like I need a bad-hair day. What is Tamoxifen really? — T.M.

ANSWER: Tamoxifen is far from being an experimental drug. It is used for many breast cancers to lessen the odds of recurrence. It's a safety edge, even when the cancer appears not to have spread.

Tamoxifen is an anti-estrogen drug, meaning that it blocks the natural action of estrogen on the breast tissue. Estrogen can facilitate the growth of some breast cancers.

Even after thorough breast surgery, a few cancer cells might remain in the breast area. Tamoxifen keeps those remnants in check by preventing the action of estrogen on them.

Most women report pretty good tolerance of Tamoxifen, but some older women get hot flashes.

WEST TISBURY, Mass. (AP) - Fans of Carly Simon and James Taylor say nobody does it better.

The two singers - who were divorced in 1981 - appeared onstage together Wednesday night for the first time in 16 years.

Their benefit concert on Martha's Vineyard raised $200,000 for the local Agricultural Society's new barn.

Simon let Taylor know there were no hard feelings about their breakup, according to Sara Edwards, a reporter for Boston television station WHDH who attended the concert. Cameras and working media were kept outside.

"This is how I feel about James Taylor," Simon reportedly said, breaking into a version of her hit song "Nobody Does it Better."

Fans gave the show a thumbs-up. Simon and Taylor are longtime residents of the island, a favorite retreat of the rich and famous.

Dykes testifies to threat of thunderstorms, sports

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Sports enthusiasts know the dangers of violent, fast-moving storms. Just ask Texas Tech football coach Spike Dykes.

Dykes, a veteran of coaching football in areas where freak storms are reminders of nature's devastating potential, says it takes more than just being careful to avoid problems with lightning.

"You've got to be lucky," he said Wednesday. "You can go practice all the safety you want and still be hit."

Such was the case Tuesday afternoon in Forney.

Coaches said the otherwise hot, humid and hazy day provided no warning of foreboding conditions. They said the first sign of inclement weather was the powerful bolt of electricity that felled nearly three dozen players and coaches on the football practice field at Forney High School.

Sophomore Clay Jones, 15, went into cardiac arrest on the field and was listed in critical condition late Wednesday at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas.

Another player's condition was upgraded Wednesday night to fair from serious, Baylor spokeswoman Dianne Hollon said. The strike sent more than a dozen players and coaches to hospitals in Dallas and Mesquite, about 20 miles to the west.

Doctors say cardiac arrest is the ultimate killer in most lightning cases, but it can cause damage ranging from superheated flesh to broken bones to brain damage.

Lightning sometimes can reach out ahead of the clouds and strike with little warning. National Safety Council statistics indicate about 100 Americans die of lightning strikes a year.

Numerous participants in high-profile sporting events have been victimized by electricity over the years, including:

-The 1975 Western Open, where Texan Lee Trevino was injured along with fellow pros Jerry Heard and Bobby Nichols. All recovered from their injuries.

-Last year's Alabama-Mississippi game in which an Ole Miss assistant coach and two ABC employees were injured by a bolt.

-In an event similar to Tuesday's strike, 60-year-old coach Robert Johnson was killed on a rainy Florida football field as he watched his high school team practice in 1991.

-The 1991 U.S. Open and PGA Championship, each of which had a spectator die after being struck.

Since 1991, the pro golf tours have stepped up the use of devices that detect atmospheric electricity.

Golfers must be their own judges of perilous weather.

"All we can do is warn golfers going out about the weather," said Bruce Haddad, head golf professional at the Gabe Lozano Sr. Golf Center in Corpus Christi.

"We've got golfers that put away their clubs and take off their (metal-spiked shoes) at the first sign of trouble," he said. "But there are some that just go out anyway."

Jim Ashmore, athletic director for the Houston Independent School District, said coaches are tutored every August on weather safety, including the risks of lightning.

"When there's lightning we take the teams inside and get the fans out of the stands, which are metal," Ashmore said. "When the situation passes, we take a look at it."

Dykes said a Midland Lee High School player was struck dead a couple of years before he took over there. He said he also lost a friend who was hit by lightning while riding a bicycle in Colorado.

At Tech, a trainer with a portable phone is responsible for ensuring the Red Raiders aren't threatened by potentially deadly weather situations, Dykes said.

"We've always taken off as soon as there's any kind of indication of lightning," Dykes said. "We're always in constant communication with weather people."

Chenoweth blasted for role in meet

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - A property rights conference has opened to charges that its backers are tied to militia supporters, leveled by a group formed to oppose the "far right" and led by former Gov. Ann Richards' daughter.

"The Future of Property Rights" conference was blasted by the Texas Freedom Alliance, a group that describes itself as aiming "to educate the public about the agenda of the far right and to coordinate mainstream Texans to provide an alternative."

"It's nonsense," responded Dan Byfield, president of the Farm Credit Property Rights Foundation.

"There's no hidden agenda."

"All we are are seven trade associations that are putting on a conference to discuss constitutional rights, to discuss legislation, to discuss what's going on across the country and the state of Texas" with regard to property rights, he said Wednesday.

The Freedom Alliance focused in part on conference keynote speaker U.S. Rep. Helen Chenoweth, R-Idaho. Among her proposals is a bill that would require federal agents to register their weapons with local law enforcement officials.

Idaho militia leader Sam Sherwood has said his group supplied volunteers to Chenoweth's campaign.

On Wednesday, Chenoweth said, "If members of the militia volunteered on my campaign, I didn't know who they were. I was just thrilled with the huge amount of grass-roots support that I received from across Idaho."

Cecile Richards, executive director of the Freedom Alliance and daughter of former Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, said: "In the past, Texas property rights activists have portrayed themselves as small landowners, representatives of the average Texan."

"We were quite alarmed to learn of this link between the Texas property rights community, radical right foundations and extremists such as Congresswoman Helen Chenoweth," she said.

Chenoweth - who prefers the title congresswoman, which she considers "gender neutral" - said, "I have never even been invited to a militia meeting."

But she added, "The concept is that these are people who gather together out of a common interest to protect the 2nd Amendment right to keep and bear arms."

Chenoweth said of the Freedom Alliance's statement, "People like this feed on fear. They are able to, by using exaggerated statements and by instilling fear in people, generate more support for their own personal organization."

She said while there's "a sense of growing anger" against government in the country, she doesn't consider herself to be bashing government.

Woman lawyer began career as volunteer in New York City office

61 years later, Edith I. Spivack has retired, but still serves as unpaid, parttime adviser

By JERRY MARKON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - When Edith I. Spivack began working for the city, Adolf Hitler was chancellor of Germany, John Dillinger was robbing banks and a new dress cost $8.95 at Bloomingdale's.

It was the Great Depression, and hardly anyone could get a job. Prospects seemed especially grim for a married, Jewish female lawyer who insisted on keeping her maiden name.

But the new mayor, Fiorello LaGuardia, was willing to hire women. Spivack started as a volunteer in the city's Corporation Counsel's office and soon became a city lawyer - at half salary.

Today, Spivack is a legal institution. After a 61-year career, she retired last month from the counsel's office and is believed to be the longest-serving city employee.

"I never thought of myself as a pioneer," says Spivack, a petite woman with a thick shock of white hair. "But I did hope that if I had a good career, I could prove that women could be accepted in the profession without any problems."

At 85, Spivack still answers questions crisply and directly. She drills an interviewer with queries of her own, and hurries him along by looking at her watch.

Occasionally, she is even abrupt. Describing her difficult job search in the early 1930s, she says: "There was a Depression. I assume you've heard of it."

Spivack's lawyerly precision - combined with her determination, negotiating skill and pure knowledge of the law - explain her longevity, colleagues say.

"She was very effective in presenting the city's position and doing it in a very classy way," says Frederick A.O. Schwarz Jr., one of the 21 Corporation Counsels Spivack worked under.

"As a living piece of city history, she is unique."

Spivack's work ethic was forged by the obstacles of her early years. When a fifth-grade teacher convinced her not to be a teacher, Spivack and a friend decided they would grow up to be lawyers.

"We were going to help people solve their problems," Spivack says. After graduating from Barnard College in 1929, Spivack enrolled at Columbia University Law School. Her parents were supportive. So was a third-year student named Bernard H. Goldstein. They began dating.

Graduating as 1932 class president, Spivack ran into the sexism and anti-Semitism of her times. She couldn't get a clerk's job - required for admittance to the bar - and was forced to work as a camp counselor.

"I knocked on doors. I went to see everybody I knew. Being Jewish and a woman was kind of limiting," she recalls.

Finally, a Columbia alumnus hired her. She passed the bar and married Goldstein. But after her honeymoon she was fired - her boss wouldn't employ a married woman.

And Spivack insisted on keeping her own name, highly unusual at the time. "My parents were courageous to let me go to law school, so I felt that if I did anything creditable I'd like the credit to go to my family."

After another frustrating job search, Spivack began volunteering in February 1934 for the Corporation Counsel's office, which represents the city in civil matters. Five months later, she was hired for $1,700 a year, half of the usual $3,500.

When she left the payroll 61 years later, her salary was $105,305.

During her career, Spivack became an expert on property taxes and won millions in delinquent levies, including $93 million from the Penn

Central Railroad in the 1970s. She also helped negotiate the $2.3 billion federal loan that saved the city from bankruptcy in the 1970s.

From 1976 until her retirement, Spivack was Executive Assistant Corporation Counsel, overseeing the certiorari and condemnation and commercial tax divisions.

"She's been a role model to many people," says Judith R. Greenwald, assistant chief of condemnation and certiorari. Greenwald calls Spivack a "peerless" editor of legal briefs with a "tremendous skill at advocacy and persuasion."

Though retired, Spivack continues to work as an unpaid, part-time adviser. But she no longer has to get up at 5 a.m. to catch the 6:19 train from her home in Port Washington on Long Island.

She plans to spend more time with her husband (who still practices law), two daughters and four grandchildren. She'll also "stay active in civic affairs."

Massachusetts candidate writes book to explain 'plan' to voters

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - Charlie Ryan, the plain-talking mayor from 27 years ago, is back in the running with a challenge not to read his lips, but his book.

Ryan has dusted off a venerable political weapon less popular in these days when Television-Is-All: the campaign book. With a plain blue cover, the first of 8,000 copies of "My Plan for Springfield" have hit the streets in this city of 160,000 residents.

You probably won't hear excerpts on the evening news. But some are embracing the 65-page manifesto and the 67-year-old lawyer who wrote it as maybe just what Springfield needs today.

Ryan, father of City Councilor Timothy Ryan, left the mayor's office in 1967 after serving six years.

"When I got through his book, one of the things I saw was that Charlie Ryan seems to be a visionary," said Ronald Crochetiere, the 27-year-old owner of a downtown sandwich shop. "If he holds to his principles, that's a lot of what we lack - especially the politicians."

Ryan said in an interview he meant to lay bare the breadth of his ideas in his book. "I never really liked stealth candidates who really don't say who they are and what they're for and talk about apple pie and motherhood," he said.

He announced his surprise candidacy in December after leading a campaign against a casino gambling question. Voters took Ryan's advice, rejecting gambling by a 52-48 percent margin.

But he was asked at the time, "If not casino gambling for Springfield's future, then what?" It was a valid question, he says. Enter Ryan, the recycled candidate.

An uncommonly plain-talking lawyer with 11 children and 25 grandchildren and crow's feet to prove it, Ryan immediately began traipsing about the city, catching up on the latest twist to issues he once dominated.

Then he sat down to write a position paper on the schools, and he wrote - and wrote and wrote. Twenty pages later, he realized it was either cut and compress, or write a book. Within two weeks, it was ready for the printer, though Ryan had never previously written anything much but legal briefs.

Some aides and supporters thought the idea of a book was, well, a bit out of date. "If I were half my age, they would have said it. But at my age, they just kind of rolled their eyes and figured I didn't know any better," he says.

Ryan estimates that it has cost his campaign about $13,000 for the 8,000 copies he had ordered. He plans to enlist merchants who back his candidacy to distribute copies for free at their stores.

The book promotes a mixture of common and less common political insights and solutions. They include more civilians on desk work to free police officers for street patrols, a crackdown on school truancy, free parking for downtown shoppers and diners, a venture capital fund for small businesses, a downtown improvement taxing district and heavier development and use of the Connecticut River.

Ryan also repeatedly espouses a traditional ethos of hard work, hard choices, and horse sense. "There are no simple answers or magic wands that can instantly restore this city to its former greatness," he writes.

In the Sept. 19 nonpartisan primary, Ryan faces City Council President Michael Albano, a handsome, energetic politician with a flair for the camera, and the less colorful incumbent, Mayor Robert Markel, a former government professor who can also lecture on more than one or two ideas of his own. He'll also face lawyer Frederick Hurst and activist Chelan Jenkins.

The top two vote-getters will face off in the Nov. 7 general election.

Markel says Ryan's ideas are more old than new. "There's some of both. A lot of what I say is as old as mankind in that it's... just plain common sense," Ryan answers. "I think the question isn't whether they're old or new. The question is whether they work."
