Hospital district tax rate to remain same

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District voted unanimously Tuesday night to retain a tax rate of 22.4 cents per $100 valuation for 1995-96 and set dates for a budget workshop and a public hearing.

Although the tax rate remains the same as the past year, the district will benefit from an increased tax base and reap approximately $67,106 more in tax revenue. That reflects a 7.54 percent increase over the district's effective tax rate.

In other business Tuesday night, the board discussed intergovernmental initiatives which pertain to Medicaid; heard a report on long-range planning; approved an updated employee handbook; appointed Raul Valdez and John Stagner to the Hereford Health Clinic board; approved monthly financial and operations reports; and held a brief closed door session to discuss a personnel matter.

The financial report, presented by director Dean Crofford, showed an operations loss of $99,511 for July and a net loss of $353 after tax revenues are included. He noted that employee bonuses of approximately $80,000 last month affected the bottom line for July.

Administrator Jim Robinson

reported that admissions (101) and patient days (400) were slightly lower than the same month a year ago, however the year-to-date totals are higher in both areas. Numbers were up on outpatient visits, emergency room visits and laboratory tests.

Director Larry Watts presented a report on the Hereford Health Clinic, which showed a loss of $4,777 for July and a loss of $2,700 for the year-to-date. Office visits totalled 308 in July, compared to 366 a year ago. The year-to-date total was 3,510 compared to 4,464 a year ago.

Valdez and Stagner were appointed to this board, and another at-large member is to be appointed to enlarge the board to six members.

During the administrator's report, Robinson announced that a reception will be held Aug. 29 to welcome Dr. Bruce Clarke and his family to the community. It will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Hereford Senior Citizen Center.

Hereford Regional Medical Center has welcomed two new department managers, said Robinson. Dick Mason is the new maintenance department manager, and Carolyn Simpson is the new manager of Deaf Smith Home Health Care.

Robinson announced that all board members are invited to participate in the 1995 Lubbock Methodist Hospital

Leadership Retreat Sept. 15-16. He reported that HRMC volunteers donated 187 hours of work to the hospital in July. The volunteers will be holding their annual jewelry sale on Oct. 27.

Fred Fox, chief of the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District, appeared at the meeting to outline the work of his office and give a brief history of how the appraisal district was formed. Prior to legislation in 1979, the county had a tax office for each governmental entity. Each office had different valuations and different assessment rates.

Fox said the groups always worked together here, but that was not the case across the state. The Pevejo bill changed the laws to bring everyone to 100 percent market values, and appraisal districts were formed. That helped taxpayers avoid confusion and gave them one board of review at which to take complaints, instead of several different tax offices.

Last year, reported Fox, the local district was rated as one of the most efficient appraisal districts in the state.

All board members were present—Mal Manchec, Boyd Foster, Jo Beth Shackelford, Larry Watts, Dean Crofford, Steven Cortez and Scott Keeling—as well as HRMC staff members and Jim Wurts, Lubbock Methodist system.

Scientific inquiry

With the first day of school past, sixth-grade students at Nazarene Christian Academy on Tuesday got down to some serious study, examining Newton's Third Law that says "For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction." Here, Kali Hall, right, holds a length of fishing line while classmates Clayton Blacksher, left, and Matthew Northcutt tape a balloon to a straw mounted on the line. The pair then released the balloon, which expelled its air, shooting the balloon across the room. The experiment was a preliminary step in the class's ultimate lesson on rockets and propulsion.

SPS, Colo. utility plan to merge

Southwestern Public Service Co. and Denver-based Public Service Co. of Colorado announced today that they have entered into a definitive merger agreement to combine the two utilities and form a new energy-services holding company that will cover one of the largest geographic areas in the country.

This "merger of equals"—which is subject to approval by shareholders of both companies and various regulatory authorities—was unanimously approved by both company boards in separate meetings Tuesday.

Bill D. Helton, SPS chairman and CEO, and Del Hock, PSCo chairman and CEO, said the new company will build on the strengths of each partner.

Helton said the two companies are a natural fit and complement each other in many areas. "As both companies considered whether a merger was the right move, both wanted to ensure joining with a company with low rates. We found that in each other."

"We are extremely pleased with the natural synergies and resulting savings of combining our two companies," Hock said, "and we will be very well positioned to succeed in our changing electric utility industry."

Based on fiscal 1994 results, the new holding company will have combined annual revenues of approximately $3 billion and total assets of approximately $6 billion. The companies expect to save about $770 million in the first 10 years after the merger is completed.

Upon completion of the merger, holders of PSCo common stock will receive one share of the new holding company stock for each share of PSCo stock. Holders of SPS common stock will receive 0.95 shares of the

Infants saved in 'Baby Lift' gather for 20th anniversary

Young adults thank adoptive parents at meeting, renew ties formed in Vietnam War orphanages

By DEBORAH MENDEZ
Associated Press Writer

FRASER, Colo. (AP) - Their cribs stood side by side in wartime orphanages, and they would crawl over the bars to comfort each other in sleep. During the day, they obediently sat in circles on woven mats, wearing clothes and diapers sent from their future mothers and fathers.

Now, the orphans of Operation Baby Lift, whisked out of the Vietnam War into loving arms, are coming of age.

"As cribrates, you were bound to be soulmates," Sister Mary Nelle Gage of the Colorado-based Friends of Children of Vietnam told about three dozen orphans Tuesday at a 20th anniversary reunion.

They came from 18 states and as far away as Britain to renew old ties, discuss their double heritage, grieve over a lost birthplace and thank the people who saved their lives. They also remembered those less fortunate, such as the 70 orphans and six American volunteers who died when their Air Force transport plane crashed 12 minutes after takeoff from Vietnam.

"It's finally our turn to say thanks to you guys," Zach L. Hill, 21, a student at Auburn University in Montgomery, Ala., told a group of parents.

An emotional Christopher Johnson, 21, said meeting other Vietnam orphans made him feel he had recovered a missing link in his life.

"Maybe I was missing something, but it's here," said Johnson, a psychology major at Northern Illinois University.

In 1975, as the North Vietnamese Army closed in on Saigon, volunteers hurried to get hundreds of sick, orphaned infants and toddlers out of the country.

Some had been abandoned on roadsides, other given up by desperate mothers who knew they would have better lives in the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Europe.

Foreign volunteers, led by Rosemary Taylor, an ex-nun from Australia, placed them in five French villas that had been converted into orphanages. They nursed the babies and toddlers, whose "rice bellies" protruded from malnourished bodies afflicted with salmonella, parasites and scabies. Swimming pools were used to strengthen wasted limbs.

Before South Vietnam fell, 2,003 children were airlifted out.

Hundreds were adopted by Americans. Their family photos became palettes of skin hues running from porcelain white to deep brown, with towheaded toddlers shown gazing wide-eyed at their new brothers and sisters from across the Pacific.

More recent snapshots show the young Vietnamese-Americans in prom gowns and tuxedos. One is a martial arts expert who trains bouncers for Kansas nightclubs; another will soon begin postgraduate work at Oxford University.

"It's remarkable, as parents, to see them," said Carol Burns of Chicago, who adopted David, now 22. "We know what bad shape they were in when they came. To see them as thriving, young American adults is truly a miracle."

Feeling split on Clinton's teen smoking proposals

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Although most Americans want tobacco companies to help battle teen-age smoking, they oppose a ban on marketing cigarettes through colorful ads, T-shirts and sporting events, an Associated Press poll found.

With the goal of cutting teen-age smoking in half, President Clinton on Aug. 10 ordered the Food and Drug Administration to strictly regulate cigarette sales, advertising and promotion. The FDA could begin writing the regulations in November unless stopped by a tobacco industry court challenge or Congress.

According to the poll of 1,007 adults taken Aug. 16-20, 73 percent support Clinton's proposal that the tobacco industry be required to spend $150 million a year on a campaign to discourage teen-age smoking. Even 65 percent of smokers support that idea, which the tobacco industry is fighting as an illegal tax.

But 58 percent reject a ban on tobacco brand names on T-shirts or in sporting events such as auto racing's Winston Cup or the Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament. And 53 percent oppose allowing only black-and-white text - no color or pictures - on tobacco billboards and in cigarette advertisements in magazines that many young people read.

People on both sides of the volatile issue found encouragement in the poll results.

"The president and the FDA commissioner both said very clearly and loudly that they believe this advertising is targeted at kids," said Walker Merryman, vice president of The Tobacco Institute. "Well, apparently, the public is not ready to buy that assertion."

FDA spokesman Jim O'Hara said: "What these numbers do show is a solid base of support for reducing the appeal of these products to our children."

Americans are sharply divided over the premise behind the proposed regulations. Forty percent believe tobacco companies actively use advertising and promotion to try to get youngsters to start smoking, while 45 percent adhere to the tobacco company argument that ads are mostly aimed at promoting brands to people who already smoke.

Eleven percent think ads get people to start smoking, but are not strictly targeted at the young.

The telephone poll was conducted by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants. The margin of error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The percentage of those surveyed who said they had smoked in the past week was 25 percent, almost unchanged from the last time the AP poll asked in 1992.

HISD trustees to meet

Tax hearing scheduled prior to start of regular monthly session

A public hearing on a proposed tax revenue increase by the Hereford Independent School District will be held at 6 p.m. Thursday, preceding the board's regular monthly meeting.

The hearing will be held in the school board room, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue.

Following completion of the hearing, the board will enter regular session at 6:30 p.m., also in the board room.

Both meetings are open to the public. Handicap parking is available and the building is wheelchair-accessible.

Included for consideration during the regular meeting is a 10-item action agenda.

Trustees will be asked to vote on a variety of issues, including action on a lawsuit against the school district.

In addition, they will consider bids for replacement of the track at Whiteface Stadium, plus bids on demolition or purchase of Old Central School.

Trustees also will be asked to vote on a plan to videotape board meetings, will consider campus improvement plans and will consider a request for use of the district's gymnasium and a report from a city/school committee regarding an auditorium.

Also on tap is a six-item discussion agenda including talk about administrators' contracts, agenda format, neighborhood schools and a proposed tennis facility.

Items on the discussion agenda may not be considered in a board vote, but may be moved to the next month's action agenda on consensus by the board.

The meeting also will include general reports, public comments and assistant superintendents' reports.

Local Roundup

County to conduct hearing

A public hearing will be held Thursday, beginning at 7 p.m., by Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court, on the budget and tax rate for the next fiscal year. Commissioners propose to increase the tax rate to 52 cents, a two-cent hike. The budget for the year beginning Oct. 1 will be reviewed. The public is invited to attend the hearing in the county courtroom in the courthouse.

HEDC slates planning session

Members of the Hereford Economic Development Corporation board and staff will take part in a strategic planning session Thursday under leadership of Hereford Independent School District personnel. The session will begin at 7 a.m. in the HISD administration building.

Mostly clear skies

After a 91-degree high Tuesday and a 65-degree low Wednesday morning, Hereford residents can look for more of the same. The forecast calls for a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms Wednesday and a low in the mid-60s. Thursday should be sunny with a 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms and a high in the low 90s.

Parents meeting time changed

The Thursday meeting of the parents of Hereford High School seniors has been changed to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Mary Beth Messer has announced. The meeting will be held in the HHS library. On the agenda will be discussion of the Senior Class Supper, which is a fund-raiser for future activities, including the prom. For more information call Messer at 364-8415.

Clinton eyes list of people to take place of diplomats killed in Bosnia

By BARRY SCHWEID

AP Diplomatic Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton, interrupting a Wyoming vacation to attend a memorial service for three American diplomats killed in Bosnia, is considering a list of recommended replacements who could return to the Balkans by week's end.

The president and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton were making a round trip today to participate in the service at Fort Myer, Va., for Robert Frasure, Joseph Brasole and Air Force Col.

Samuel Nelson Drew. En route aboard Air Force One, Clinton was getting a report from his national security adviser, Anthony Lake, on a meeting that his senior foreign policy aides held Tuesday at the White House.

The key house was to go ahead with a seven-point plan designed to end the war in Bosnia through a negotiated settlement. The former Yugoslav republic would be divided into ethnic zones with some semblance of sovereignty maintained for the Muslim-led government.

Then they were content to eat hot dogs, ride horses and roughhouse with each other. This time, they played basketball, discussed social issues and compared notes on recent visits to Vietnam.

Jessica Medinger, 20, of Ashland, Ore., said visiting Vietnam this spring was at once perplexing and enlightening.

"In our eyes (the war) was a

Ethan Brady, 22, of Fort Collins, who publishes a newsletter for the Operation Baby Lift survivors, urged the group to keep in touch.

"We've begun a journey," he said. "We are at a stage of exploration, of discovering who we are, and finding things out about ourselves."

Erdmann being tried in Washington

By PEGGY ANDERSEN

Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) - An infamous Texas pathologist, under indictment for perjury and tampering with evidence in a 1992 case in his home state, went on trial Tuesday for possession of a machine gun.

The gun, a black Colt M-16 A-1, was among more than 100 rifles recovered in May from two storage lockers rented by Dr. Ralph Erdmann in Kirkland, an east Seattle suburb near his home in suburban Redmond, Deputy Prosecutor Lynne Kalina told Superior Court jurors.

The weapon is fully automatic, Kalina said, which means that when a clip full of bullets is loaded, "one pull of the trigger fires everything that's in it."

Possession of a machine gun is a felony in Washington state, with conviction carrying a maximum prison term of 12 months, Kalina said outside court.

Defense lawyer Jennifer Holmes did not present an opening statement, reserving the right to do so after the prosecution has rested. She declined to say whether Erdmann would testify.

Erdmann, 69, was brought into the courtroom in handcuffs.

As testimony began, the defense focused on whether the gun met the legal definition of a machine gun - firing at least 5 rounds per second - at the time it was seized.

The gun was fired shortly after its seizure by three officers, to determine that it was operable, said Redmond Detective Robert W. Hales, who oversaw the search and handled the police case.

Last Friday, he testified, it was taken to a firing range, where it was found to fire a 20-round clip in 1.7 seconds - well over the 5-round-per-second standard.

Prosecution witness Thomas Christensen, Dye of Dumas, Texas, who sold Erdmann the weapon in the mid-1980s, said the gun is a military weapon that goes from semi-automatic to fully automatic with the flip of a selector switch.

The gun can fire 800 rounds per minute, he said, citing M-16 specifications.

Dye said he bought the gun new for $600 in 1983 from a dealer in his hometown "to more or less collect it. To own one."

Dye said he decided to sell the gun in 1984 or 1985, due to concerns he shared with his wife about having the gun in a home with two small children.

He was then working at an Amarillo, Texas, lab, next to Erdmann's office, and sold the gun to Erdmann for $500, he said. Federal law required registration of the gun, and Erdmann - a retired Army reserve colonel - promised to handle the paperwork, Dye said.

"I never saw him, never heard from him again."

Outside the courtroom, Dye marveled at the fallen fortunes of Erdmann, who was a well-known, widely respected pathologist for dozens of Texas counties at the time of their transaction.

Jurors were shown a videotape Hales made of the firing-rate test. Only one test was allowed by the range, the detective said.

In addition to challenging the condition of the stopwatch and video camera, Holmes questioned Hales' ability to narrate the test while he filmed it with one hand and held the stopwatch before the lens with the other.

She also stressed that the weapon's rate of fire was not tested immediately after it was seized, and noted that Hales had no special training for testing the rate of fire.

During cross-examination, Hales said he had never fired an automatic weapon, and did not pick up shell casings ejected by the gun during the test.

Erdmann was arrested May 3 for investigation of being a felon in possession of a weapon, but that charge applies in Washington only to felons convicted of a violent crime, Kalina said.

Erdmann remains under probation in Texas, and officials there say possession of firearms constitutes grounds for revoking his probation.

The guns came to official attention by chance when Redmond police went to his home on an unrelated matter.

Erdmann moved here after pleading no contest in 1992 to seven felonies concerning falsified evidence and botched autopsies in Lubbock, Texas. He surrendered his medical license and was sentenced to 10 years' probation, ordered to perform 200 hours of community service and required to repay nearly $17,000 in autopsy fees.

In June, he was indicted in Amarillo, Texas, for his conduct during the capital murder trial of Johnny Lee Rey, who had been sentenced to death in the case but was granted a new trial earlier this year.

new stock for each share of SPS stock.

According to Hock and Helton, according to $770 million savings during a 10-year period will allow the operating companies to provide "very competitive" electricity rates in both service areas for many years to come.

According to Helton, PSCo adds a faster-growing service area economy, natural gas utility operations, and innovative approaches to information technology and energy services. SPS brings strong generation and engineering, diversity of power plants and fuels, and success with wholesale markets and non-regulated generation projects.

Hock noted that customers also would benefit from the adoption of the "best practices" of each company, the sharing of generating capacity and increased leverage in purchasing. "We will have lower fuel costs for generation; we can defer additional generating capacity; and we can reduce total inventories," Hock said.

The new company will be a registered public utility holding company, which will be the parent company for both PSCo and SPS. The corporate offices of the holding company will be in Denver, with significant operating functions in Amarillo. Each will maintain company headquarters in Amarillo and Denver.

The board of the new holding company will consist of eight current directors from PSCo and six current directors from SPS. Upon completion of the merger, expected in early 1997, Hock, 60, will retire and Helton, 56, would become chairman and CEO of the new company. Helton plans to retire in 2001. Wayne Brunetti, 52, will become vice chairman and chief operating officer, and would move up to chairman of the board when Helton retires.

The new company will serve approximately 1.5 million electric customers in Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Kansas. It will also provide natural gas service to 933,000 customers in Colorado and Wyoming.

Caribbean island looks at volcano

By MICHELLE FAUL

Associated Press Writer
PLYMOUTH, Montserrat (AP) - In a pre-dawn radio broadcast, the governor ordered residents of this Caribbean capital to flee what could be a major volcanic eruption. By daybreak, even the police station was closed.

Scientists gave the Soufriere Hills volcano, two miles northeast of the capital, a 70 percent to 80 percent chance of a major eruption, said Gov. Frank Savage.

He ordered the complete evacuation of the southern half of the island by 9 a.m., and said when scientists believe the eruption is imminent, the entire island will be evacuated.

Speaking over Radio Montserrat at 2 a.m., Savage said the scientists' "worst case scenario" was a burst of molten lava. So far, the volcano has spewed only ash, steam and gas.

The evacuation began on Monday after the volcano shook and roared and blackened the sky with the biggest eruption of ash and noxious gases since the long-dormant mountain came back to life July 18.

This morning, skies were overcast, obscuring the view of the volcano from Plymouth. A light rain fell and a whiff of sulfur was in the air.

All stores and government offices, even the police station, were closed. Streets were nearly empty as the last of Plymouth's 2,500 residents fled north of the Belham Valley, about four miles from the capital.

Montserrat, a British colony with a population about 10,000, is a 7-by-11-mile island, only slightly larger than Washington, D.C.

The airport remained open. Karney Osborne, general manager of government-run Radio Antilles and Radio Montserrat, said in a telephone interview that the government had arranged for extra flights to help evacuate residents who want to leave now.

The government's contingency plan in the event of a major eruption includes flying people to the nearby islands of Antigua and St. Kitts.

Lottery

AUSTIN (AP) - Christopher M. Tull of Weatherford has claimed half of the $53.7 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawn on Saturday night.

Tull, who will receive $26.8 million, presented one of two winning tickets from Saturday night's drawing to lottery officials on Tuesday.

Tull, who requested minimum publicity, received a check for $1.34 million on Tuesday. It's the first of 20 annual installments.

A second winning ticket from the drawing was purchased in Harlingen with the six numbers - 2, 7, 9, 15, 29 and 41. Lottery officials said the holder of that ticket hadn't yet redeemed it.

Pilot Club hears presentation on benefits of massage therapy

Jody Keese, registered massage therapist, presented the program at the regular meeting of Pilot Club Tuesday morning.

After a brief personal history, Keese explained that the body has over 600 muscles and described the different factors in a massage including trigger points, range of motion, reflexology, psychological stress and others. She brought her chair and gave a demonstration.

Pilot Club's Bicycle Safety Roundup will take place Saturday at Sugarland Mall from 9:30 a.m.-12 noon. Boy Scouts from Troop 50 will assist with this event.

Pilot Club will have a Pilot "information share" meeting Aug. 29 at 7 p.m. in the lounge of the Hereford Community Center.

Special guests at the meeting were Jana Baird, recipient of Pilot's scholarship, and her grandmother, Mrs. Vestal from O'Donnell.

Paintings place in art show

Two oil paintings by Sidney Hamer placed second and third in the Jamboree of the Arts sponsored by the Amarillo Fine Arts Association Aug. 18-20. Paintings entered in the Gallery Exhibit were for sale and 10 percent of these sales were contributed to Area 16 Special Olympics.

Massage demonstration

Jody Keese, registered massage therapist, demonstrates some massage techniques on Merle Clark during her presentation at the Pilot Club meeting on Aug. 22.

Business Briefs

Joan Coupe, Hereford Travel Center, has just returned from an extensive, four-day series of professional workshops, training sessions and cruise ship inspections in Miami.

Coupe joined cruise industry leaders and professional travel agents from throughout North America in attending the 13th annual Cruise-A-Thon conference. They learned of the cruise vacation opportunities available during the coming year.

"For anyone thinking about taking a cruise," said Coupe, "we have the first-hand experience to guide them to the right ship, the right cruise vacation, and at the right cost."

As a result of the workshops and training sessions, Coupe was named a "Master Cruise Ship Inspector."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your flip answer regarding doctors billing for telephone time was not appreciated by the insurance-battered physicians here in Texas or anyplace else. You said the doctor who charged $45 for a three-minute phone consultation should hang up her stethoscope and work for AT&T.

Yes, some physicians DO charge for telephone time. My husband refuses to, although after spending nine hours at his office and another two at the hospital, he comes home and settles down with the telephone for another three hours, relaying test results and discussing problems.

Lawyers charge dearly for telephone time. So do accountants and other professionals. My plumber charges waiting time. Time is money. You are paying for the professional's expertise. I don't blame a physician for doing this. Insurance companies are trying to pay physicians less and less, steering patients away.

Naturally, if people don't go to the doctor, the cost of medical care will diminish. Most HMOs refuse to pay physicians for interpreting lab reports. They are booting new mothers out of hospitals 24 hours after labor. Doctors have to practically stand on their heads to get an insurance company to approve charges for surgery.

If Americans want Marcus Welby, it's too late. Dr. Welby didn't have to worry about review committees checking his diagnoses and the number of hospitalizations he recommended each week. He didn't need a computer and five office staffers to pre-certify patients who are totally unaware of what their insurance plan covers. (Sometimes it doesn't even pay the doctor they are seeing.)

I'll bet Marcus Welby WOULD rather work for AT&T -- great executive pay, stock options and no house calls. -- Wife of Telephone-Toting Texas Physician

DEAR WIFE: You've made a superb case for physicians. The cheering you hear in the background is the chorus of physicians' wives on three continents. They are thanking you -- and so am I.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband, "Andy," told me he has been having an affair with another woman for almost a year. He says he isn't worried about getting AIDS or any other disease. He doesn't seem to be willing to end the affair and talks to this woman constantly on the phone in my presence.

Andy thinks it's OK for him to live at home and go as he pleases. The children are beginning to resent him, and they are becoming angry because he practically ignores them.

Maybe I'm crazy, but I still love my husband and want to keep my marriage together no matter what. Don't tell me to "get professional help." Ann, I'm now seeing a therapist. I have a hunch Andy is trying to drive me to a nervous breakdown so he can say I'm crazy and impossible to live with and then leave.

There must be other women out there who can relate to this situation. Any suggestions? -- N.J.

DEAR N.J.: There is no way I can help a woman who is willing to put up with such crass disrespect and outright abuse. Since you are already in therapy, I hesitate to make any suggestions. I will say, however, that you and your children are living in a war zone and such an environment is most unhealthy for all of you.

Herd spikers sweep Brownfield, Monterey

The Hereford volleyball team improved to 2-1 Tuesday with a sweep of Brownfield and Lubbock Monterey in Brownfield.

Hereford, which opened the season Saturday with a loss to defending Class 5A champion Amarillo High, had a much easier time Tuesday. Hereford started with a 15-0, 15-6 win over Brownfield, then took out Lubbock Monterey, 15-3, 15-1.

"Offensively, we really took advantage of the smaller blockers from both Brownfield and Monterey," Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said, comparing Tuesday's opponents to Amarillo High.

"Nearly everything we ran offensively, worked," she said. "We got the opportunity to get quite a few free balls coming back at us, and as a result, we were able to hit what we wanted to."

Reeh didn't get to see much of her defense, because neither opponent was able to mount much of an attack. However she was pleased at how the Herd put the wins away.

"I was pleased with the fact that we pressed hard all the way through," she said. "I was pleased we didn't slow our offense down just because Monterey and Brownfield played slow. We played out type of match."

Danielle Cornelius led Hereford with six kills against Brownfield. Heather Hodges added five and Catie Betzen and Tarabeth Holmes had four each. Hodges also led the team with six digs.

Hodges led the Herd with eight kills against Monterey, and Cornelius added seven. Kari Barrett led the team in digs with five.

The Herd served particularly well in the Monterey match, Reeh said. Aimee Alley had four aces on 11 good serves; Krista Beville had two aces on 11 good serves; and Britney Binder had three aces on five good serves.

Hereford's junior varsity also improved to 2-1. Hereford beat Brownfield's JV 15-4, 15-7, then defeated Monterey's JV, 15-2, 15-5.

Moreno, Jace West, Francisco Vasquez, Jeremy Reiter, Josh Bullard, C.J. Kubacak, Ruben Flores, Kip Smith, Arturo Nava, Navarro Mariscal, Todd Radford, Raymond Gonzales, Robert Tamez and coach Joe Cabezuela.

Running backs and quarterbacks

coach Craig Yenzer, ball boy Tyler Yenzer, Joseph Artho, Heath Kirkeby, T.J. Robbins, Josh Urbanczyk, Todd Dudley, Dwayne Thomas, John Marty Galan, Manuel Reyna and coach J.R. Compton.

Cowboys cut 17 players

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The John Davis experiment is over.

Davis, a tight end who was taken in the fifth round of last year's supplemental draft out of tiny Emporia State, was among 17 Dallas Cowboys cut on Tuesday to get the roster down to 30 players.

The 6-4, 257-pound Davis, who had caught four passes for 50 yards in the preseason, and safety Darren Studstill of West Virginia, a sixth-round draft pick in 1994, were the only players with any experience cut.

"We gave Davis an opportunity," coach Barry Switzer said. "We took him out of a small college because we thought he had the speed and athletic talent to make it. But he didn't improve better than the guys we brought in and we can't keep four tight ends."

Rookies Eric Bjornson and Kendall Watkins beat out Davis.

"Maybe Davis will be a player someday but we had him in a camp, then for a season, and then in camp," Switzer said. "He had his at-bats."

Studstill's biggest impact on the team came last year in practice before the NFC champion game when quarterback Troy Aikman hurt his thumb on Studstill's helmet.

"He's a good kid and a hard worker but he didn't arrive at the spot where we wanted him to arrive," Switzer said. "He didn't make plays."

Others cut included linebacker Wayne Dickson of Oklahoma, defensive tackles Demetrius Edwards of Fresno State and Josh Evans of Alabama-Birmingham, wide receivers Rodney Harris of Kansas, Jeff Thomas of Georgia and Oronde Gadsden of Winston-Salem, running backs Roger Graham of New Haven, Michael McClellon of Northern Alabama, and Dominique Ross of Valdosta State, center Mike Gruttaduria of Central Florida, tackle Jim Hmielewski of Kansas State, cornerback Artis Houston of California, guard John Jones of Kansas, linebacker Odell Parks of Navarro Junior College, and quarterback Scott Semptimpfelter of Lehigh.

Ben Hogan, one of the all-time greats of the sport, became a golf professional at the age of 19 in 1931.

Gwynn's grand slam sinks Phillies

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

After almost 7,000 at-bats in almost 1,700 games covering 13-1/2 seasons, Tony Gwynn had never hit a grand slam or reached 73 RBIs.

He took care of both milestones with one swing of the bat Tuesday night.

Gwynn hit a grand slam in the fifth inning, lifting San Diego to a 5-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies and keeping the Padres three games back in the NL West.

The major leagues' leading hitter and five-time NL batting champion said it was the first grand slam he ever hit - in the minors, in college, in high school, in Little League, etc.

"To hit a grand slam after 13 years is like getting a big monkey off my back. I've never hit one since I've been playing. I've had opportunities, I've just never delivered. I wasn't even thinking about it, and even when I hit the ball I wasn't sure it was going out because of the way the wind was swirling," he said.

It was San Diego's eighth grand slam of the season, tops in the major leagues. The NL record is nine, held by the 1928 Chicago Cubs, and the major league record is 10 by the 1938 Detroit Tigers and 1987 New York Yankees.

The victory, San Diego's 11th in 15 games, moved the Padres within 1-1/2 games of second-place Colorado in the NL West - the only division in the majors with a tight race.

San Diego trailed 3-0 going into the bottom of the fifth, but Brad Ausmus, Andujar Cedeno and Bip

Roberts singled to load the bases with two outs. Gwynn then connected on a 3-1 pitch off Tommy Greene (0-3) for his eighth home run of the season.

"I felt pretty good, but I put a 3-1 pitch in Tony Gwynn's wheelhouse and he knows what to do with pitches like that," said Greene, who was making his third start since coming off the disabled list Aug. 2.

Fernando Valenzuela (3-3) pitched 2-2-3 scoreless innings of relief to even his record.

Philadelphia loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the ninth before Trevor Hoffman got pinch-hitter Gary Varsho to pop out and Mickey Morandini to ground out. Hoffman earned his 25th save.

Pirates 10, Rockies 1

At Denver, Esteban Loaiza remembered what he did wrong the last time he pitched there. This time, he corrected it.

"I pitched here in June, got the ball up and gave up a couple of home runs," Loaiza said. "I maintained the ball low and that was the key tonight."

Loaiza (8-5) scattered 10 hits, struck out one and walked none.

"They hit some rockets that might have been home runs if they'd gotten them up in the air, but Esteban kept the ball low and they hit it on the ground and not out of the park," Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland said.

Orlando Merced, Jay Bell and Mark Parent homered and Jeff King had a two-run triple as Pittsburgh won its sixth in a row.

Dodgers 7, Expos 4

At Montreal, Eric Karros' RBI

single in the 11th broke a tie, and Roberto Kelly added a two-run single.

Raul Mondesi and Mike Piazza both homered for the second straight night.

Todd Worrell (3-0) pitched 1-1-3 innings for the victory, getting out of a bases-loaded jam in the 10th by getting Tony Tarasco to foul out.

Mondesi initially didn't appear to realize he had hit his 20th homer, strolling back to the box. But umpire Bill Hohn ruled the ball fair, drawing a vehement argument from Montreal starter Carlos Perez.

Perez twice bumped Hohn while arguing and got ejected.

"We all make mistakes, but that was a costly mistake for a lot of teams," Montreal manager Felipe Alou said. "That was an obvious call."

Braves 6, Astros 4

At Houston, Chipper Jones had the play of the game in the seventh.

After the Astros scored two runs on a pinch-double by Derrick May, they had the bases loaded with two outs when Tony Eusebio hit a hard grounder down the third-base line. Jones dove and stabbed the ball, got to his feet and threw out Eusebio.

"That's as good a play as I've seen in a long time. If Chipper doesn't make that play, we lose," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said.

Steve Avry (6-9) allowed five hits in six innings and struck out three. Doug Brocail (4-2) took the loss for the Astros, who have dropped six in a row to tie their worst skid of the season.

Cardinals 7, Reds 3

At St. Louis, 22-year-old rookie right-hander Brian Barber (1-0) allowed just one run in five innings and Pete Schourek (13-7) was foiled in his bid to become the first National Leaguer to win 14 games.

Marlins 8, Cubs 6

At Chicago, Florida ended a five-game losing streak as Steve Decker hit a two-run homer and Jeff Conine had a two-run double in a four-run second inning.

Giants 5, Mets 1

At New York, Mark Leiter (9-7) pitched his sixth complete game of the year, a four-hitter.

Red Sox outslug Angels

By The Associated Press

There weren't any fights, and only a reserve infielder was ejected. Still, the Boston Red Sox and California Angels had a good old-fashioned beanball war.

Instead of fists, home runs followed hit batters and close pitches Tuesday night as the Red Sox prevailed 6-4.

"We've had a lot of things go right for us this year, and this is just another example," said designated hitter Jose Canseco, who hit a two-run homer one pitch after being brushed back by Mike Harkney in the fifth inning, giving Boston a 5-2 lead.

That followed Chili Davis' homer in the fourth that brought the Angels to just a 3-2 deficit, just three pitches after Roger Clemens hit Tim Salmon in the side with a pitch.

Clemens (5-4) started the head hunting in the second when he threw a pitch behind Garret Anderson and hit his bat. In the fourth, Harkney (7-8) hit Mike Macfarlane in the back of the neck, and pitchers, managers and benches were warned.

"I don't think either of those pitches were intentional, but I didn't want anything to go any farther or anyone to get hurt," home plate umpire Tim McClelland said. "So I put a warning out that any further retaliation would result in an ejection."

The only player ejected was Spike Owen from the Angels dugout.

The Angels closed to 5-4 in the eighth on a run-scoring double by Salmon, but Lee Tinsley had a homer for Boston in the ninth.

"When I miss at a guy out behind his head, that's a mistake," Clemens said. "But I'm going to continue to pitch guys in. I've got to, especially to a few of their guys. My most important pitch of the game was my second brushback pitch, because then the hitter knows the first one wasn't a mistake."

Athletics 6, Yankees 2

Geronimo Berroa broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth with his 18th homer and lifted his average against New York this season to .406 (13-for-32). Todd Van Poppel (3-4) allowed two runs and four hits in six innings as Oakland won its third straight. The visiting Yankees lost their fourth straight and dropped to 53-54 for the season.

Twins 9, Rangers 4

Kirby Puckett drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double as Texas had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Puckett's homer in the sixth made it 4-3. Mickey Tettleton tied it in the bottom half of the inning with his 24th homer.

Puckett, who also had a single, keyed a five-run eighth with a run-scoring double.

Blue Jays 5, Indians 4

Joe Carter scored from first on third baseman Jim Thome's throwing error in the bottom of the ninth to cap a three-run rally in the last two innings.

White Sox 15, Tigers 7

Robin Ventura had two of Chicago's five homers and drove in four runs, and the Tigers gave up a season-high 15 runs. Ventura is 10-for-23 with four homers and 11 RBIs in his last six games.

Brewers 8, Royals 1

Jeff Cirillo hit his third homer in two nights and Milwaukee used a seven-run fifth inning to defeat Kansas City.

Jamie McAndrew (2-2) scattered six hits in eight innings and became the second former replacement pitcher to win for the host Brewers in two nights.

Orioles 2, Mariners 1

Mike Mussina tied for the major league lead in wins as Bobby Bonilla's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning broke the final tie at Seattle.

Life not all easy for Lotto Texas multimillionaire

Husband's illness, grandson's automobile accident temper $3.6 million winnings

By LISA ADDISON
San Antonio Express-News
ALICE, Texas--You might say Genevive Mata is one of the luckiest people in the world.

She is a multimillionaire, after all. You also could say, however, she's one of the unluckiest people in the world.

Ever since Mrs. Mata, 75, was visited by Lady Luck in the form of a $3.6 million win in Lotto Texas, she has had more than her share of difficult times.

Her husband, Tony, 78, has had several surgeries due to complications from diabetes. His left leg recently was amputated just below the knee, and he's been fitted with a prosthesis and is starting to walk again with the help of a walker.

"No, it hasn't been easy," Mrs. Mata said. "And we wouldn't have been able to make it without the lottery money. The hardest thing was the day that the doctors told us they would have to amputate."

"It was hard for me to hear that because I was hurting for Tony. But he took it just fine. He told them to do whatever they needed to do. Things are getting better now. We'll make it. We always have."

Mrs. Mata also has helped to care for a grandson who recently was involved in an automobile accident. He was temporarily paralyzed and is slowly recovering from his injuries.

"I can't do as much as I'd like because I'm with my husband a lot now," Mrs. Mata said. "But I'll bring my grandson baskets of fruit and candy and other goodies. And I call him every day to see how he is."

Mrs. Mata almost didn't buy a lottery ticket on the day she won the Lotto Texas jackpot. After all, she only had four quarters in her pocket.

But she soon reasoned that the jingling coins were just enough to buy a single Quick Pick at the corner store.

"I handed my quarters to the girl behind the counter at the Economy Food Store," Mrs. Mata said. "And I told her that I felt like I might win."

"I tend to forget where I put things. ... What if I hid the lottery ticket and forgot where I put it? I gave it to my daughter-in-law for safekeeping until we could go to Austin to claim the winnings."

Genevive Mata

"Then I headed for home. I checked my numbers on the news that night and I thought I was a winner. I checked them again just to be sure. Then I called one of my daughters to tell her I thought I had won."

Her daughter told her she was probably mistaken. Only she wasn't.

The day she became an instant multimillionaire was Nov. 21, 1993. The lucky numbers on the $1 Quick Pick were 8, 12, 23, 29, 39 and 44.

It was late in the evening when Mrs. Mata realized she had won. She tried to wake her husband to tell him the good news.

"Well, he wouldn't wake up," she said. "I kept telling him I had won the lottery. And he would just say, 'Yeah, sure,' and he'd go back to sleep. Well, the next morning he asked me why I hadn't told him I had won. And I said, 'Well, I was trying to.'"

She couldn't help but fret about her winning ticket.

"I tend to forget where I put things," she said. "What if I hid the lottery ticket and then forgot where I put it? I gave it to my daughter-in-law for safekeeping until we could go to Austin to claim the winnings."

Mrs. Mata and her husband have been married 48 years. They constantly tease each other, finish each other's sentences and argue good-naturedly over the niggling details of daily life.

When Mrs. Mata talks about her plans to have an extra-nice Christmas

"Don't count your chickens until they hatch."

Her comeback? "Oh, they're hatching, all right. You better believe it."

Mrs. Mata is full of life, laughs often, embraces people she's just met, waves her hands in the air to make a point and still flirts with her husband.

She's philosophical about the twists and turns her life has taken since she won the lottery. Despite her family's troubles, she considers herself blessed. And the most important thing in life to her is her family.

Mrs. Mata's love of family is evident at every turn in her modest home. Photos of her five children, 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren cover many of the walls.

A framed quote from Lord Byron hangs in a prominent spot in her living room: "Without hearts there is no home."

Heart is one thing Mrs. Mata has plenty of. Her children can attest to that. When she won the lottery, her five kids became winners as well.

"They didn't ask for a penny," Mrs. Mata said. "They never approached me to find out what they might be getting."

"But I went to a lawyer and had him draw up an agreement where each of them would get $20,000 a year for the next 20 years."

Which means that, after taxes, Mrs. Mata and her husband's portion is $31,000 a year for the next two decades. And how did her kids react when they found out they would be getting yearly checks?

"A couple of them cried," Mrs. Mata said. "You could say they were pretty happy and surprised."

Even though she could easily afford a new home, Mrs. Mata said she never considered moving from the house she has lived in for 20 years.

"Oh, I couldn't do that," she said. "My husband and children built this home with love. Tony did the original diagrams for the house."

But she did make two big purchases with her winnings.

"I bought a Ford Escort and a GMC truck," she said. "The best thing about it was that I walked in and I bought the vehicles with cash. That was a good feeling, let me tell you."

Mrs. Mata also had her kitchen remodeled. She takes a visitor by the hand and gleefully leads the way to the room she's so proud of.

She runs her hand along the shiny new countertops and gazes lovingly at her new cabinets. Mrs. Mata said she and her husband plan to purchase a new refrigerator and freezer in the next year or so.

"I spend more time in this room than in any other room in the house," she said. "Every Sunday my family goes to church together and then we

Doctors, pharmacists doubt safety of products formerly available on prescription-only basis

By CHARLOTTE HUFF
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas - Over-the-counter and safe are not necessarily synonymous. That's the overriding message from doctors and pharmacists as an increasing number of formerly prescription-only products line the shelves at neighborhood pharmacies and grocery stores.

This year alone, three new medications have been approved for over-the-counter use - including two popular medications for patients prone to acid indigestion. Waiting in the wings, dependent upon FDA approval, are medications that will help with everything from growing hair - Rogaine - to using gum to kick the smoking habit, according to the Nonprescription Drug Manufacturers Association.

Other possibilities: more antacids, some antihistamines, an anti-inflammatory and a cholesterol-lowering drug. More than 600 of today's products - running the spectrum from Imodium A-D to Aleve - now use ingredients or dosages available only by prescription 20 years ago, according to the association.

Responsible patients who read labels can benefit from the trend, avoiding time-consuming and costly physician visits, doctors and pharmacists say. "There is a growing trend, I think, in the country to self-treatment," said Paul Davis, executive director of the Texas Pharmacy Association.

"As health care costs go up, more and more people are treating themselves first or seeking other care than going to the doctor. I think there is a demand for access to these products. And I think it's clearly an issue where you have large portions of the public that are uninsured or in areas that are medically underserved."

The over-the-counter market also is lucrative for manufacturers, Davis said. One of the recently approved antacid medications - marketed under the brand name of Tagamet - is a great example, he said. "Tagamet was the first billion-dollar drug in prescription drug history. It will probably surpass that in the OTC (over-the-counter) market," he said.

But patients, particularly those taking several drugs, should realize that complications can develop, doctors and pharmacists say. Also, easy drugstore access can encourage some patients to treat themselves at above-average doses or for too long without consulting a physician.

Primatene Mist, an over-the-counter asthma inhaler, underwent heavy public scrutiny in early July after a 17-year-old model collapsed in her parents' Florida home two hours after using the medication. She died an hour later. The medical examiner later ruled that it was unclear whether the medication played a role, since bronchial asthma alone could have caused her death.

Most people are responsible users of over-the-counter medications, said Dr. Randy Fuentes, a local internist. But not all medical problems are as easy to diagnose as they first appear, he said.

"For example, not everything that causes abdominal pain is an ulcer. And not every ulcer is benign. There are some cancers of the stomach that can mimic ulcer pain," he said. Recurrent yeast infections could be a symptom of diabetes, he said. Wheezing is not always indicative of asthma. "I saw a woman who had lung cancer, causing her to wheeze, and she had been self-medicating with the OTC (over-the-counter) asthma medications for months. That's something that we would have been able to treat her for earlier."

Eddie Carrillo, a local Eckerd pharmacist, has noticed an upswing in questions in recent years from people who are self-medicating. "A lot of people are taking three or four drugs at a time and they want to take something over-the-counter for a cold and they get concerned about whether their drugs are going to interact with each other."

But, he added: "There's a time when you need to realize that you need to see a doctor. I think doctors and pharmacists are concerned that people will go beyond that as more drugs go over the counter."

He recalled one customer several years ago. "He said, 'Tell me what I should take. I'm coughing up blood,'" Carrillo said. "I think at that point he should be at a doctor. He just wanted to buy something. These are the kinds of patients we are concerned about - that they will not seek the proper medical attention when it's needed."

Two drugs - marketed under the brand names of Tagamet and Pepcid AC - received FDA approval this spring to be used for heartburn and acid indigestion. Unlike other over-the-counter antacid medications, such as Maalox, the new products are designed to prevent the production of stomach acid, rather than neutralizing it once it is produced. Pepcid AC already is on local shelves, and pharmacists say they expect the arrival of Tagamet any day.

A third medication - an ibuprofen-based product for children sold under the brand name of Children's Motrin IB - has been approved and will be available by year's end.

Two other medications are in the offing - another antacid medication and a dandruff shampoo, according to a July 28 newsletter published by the Nonprescription Drug Manufacturers Association. The FDA will not discuss pending drug applications, but the association and individual manufacturers keep close watch on potential contenders.

The year of 1995 is a busy one, given that the FDA approves an average of 2.6 new nonprescription drugs each year, said Frank Rathbun, the association's deputy director of public affairs. The group represents 75 U.S. manufacturers of nonprescription drugs who are responsible for more than 90 percent of the market.

Nonprescription drugs are not only good for the industry, but also the consumer, Rathbun said. A typical over-the-counter medication costs about $4 compared with about $25 for a typical prescription medication.

"I don't think there's any question that the switch trend will continue," he said. "It really does give consumers greater access to low-cost health care alternatives."

But medications do not leave the pharmacist's office without undergoing a strict review process by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, he said. The federal agency does not just review whether drugs are safe, but also ensures that a safety margin exists because it can be used without a physician's oversight. Often drugs are approved for general use at lower dosages than the prescription version. The label, he said, is the key. Detailed information is listed to inform the consumer not only on dosages, but also on possible side effects and other cautionary warnings. He made available a list of 11 national consumer studies, showing that consumers utilize the information.

One 1992 survey for Prevention magazine found that 92 percent of consumers read the label the first time that they use an over-the-counter medication.

"They are serious medicines to be taken seriously, but the bottom line is that the FDA will not approve a medicine for the OTC status until they are convinced that the product can be used safely based on information provided by the label," Rathbun said.

But not everyone reads the label, doctors and pharmacists say. And those who do read the label may not follow the dosage, Eckerd's Carrillo said.

"I think all of us are guilty sometimes of taking a little bit more than what it says on the packet. But try to use good judgment and be reasonable about how much you take and how often you take it. (People) have to be aware that all drugs have side effects, and the more you take of the drug, the greater the chance you'll have side effects."

The U.S. consumer also would benefit from waiting a bit before jumping at the latest product, said Dr. Michael Dulancy, a local pediatrician. Dulancy, for example, is not enthusiastic about the pending addition of Children's Motrin IB to the pediatric pain and fever drug market. He recommends acetaminophen - more commonly known under the brand name of Tylenol. The medication has stood the test of time, he said.

"Ibuprofen is new on the market and I've just been not very enthusiastic to jump on the bandwagon. But Americans tend to always go for the new product - that seems to be a cultural characteristic," he said.

Patients, particularly those who are older, can unknowingly double up on over-the-counter medications, said Dr. John Pettigrove, a local internist. A common pitfall exists among the sea of aspirin-like medications. The group, which includes naproxen, ibuprofen and aspirin, treats pain and inflammation. But the medications also can cause serious stomach damage when taken in large quantities over a long period of time, doctors say.

"I will see older people coming to my office with problems and they will be on four nonsteroidal, anti-inflammatory medications," Pettigrove said. "They don't realize it's the same class of drugs. I think it's one of the major problems we see is massive GI (gastrointestinal) hemorrhaging from those drugs - from people who are taking a number of the nonsteroidals."

Primatene Mist is a textbook example of why over-the-counter medications should not be viewed lightly, said Dr. Wesley Stafford, a local allergist. Both the inhaler and the tablet form contain ingredients that stimulate the heart and central nervous system, he said. Prescription drugs, in recent years, have been able to attain the same goal of relaxing the airways without stimulating the heart.

Veterinarian's book is result of suggestions from friends

By RHONDA MORAN
The Brazosport Facts

ANGLETON, Texas - When veterinarian F.M. "Merl" Ward came to Angleton in 1952, he first set up his practice in a former army barracks. Eight years later, when he went into debt to build a new office and animal hospital, he was brimming with pride at the grand opening.

"People brought flowers, and we served coffee, punch and doughnuts," Ward recalls. "I got all of my dogs and my neighbors' dogs and put them in my new galvanized and glazed tile cages. I hired 12-year-old Nicky Rhodes, a very handsome young boy, to pose as my kennel boy in his white clinic jacket."

"In the course of the Saturday morning, a client came in with an old, old dog he wanted to put to sleep. So this accomplished, I gave Nicky a shovel and told him to go out back on my two acres of sandy soil and bury the old dog's remains."

"A little later, another client came in and recognized Nicky, and said, 'Why, hi Nicky. What do you do here?'"

"Nicky said, 'I bury dogs.'"

The anecdote is one of many included in Ward's newly published autobiography, titled, "Reflections of a Veterinarian: or (Don't Follow Me, I Stepped in Something)."

Ward spent about $5,000 having 800 copies of his book published by a company in Waco. The finished version sells for $12.50 plus tax and is currently available only at Ward Animal Hospital, 1026 S. Highway 288-B in Angleton.

"They've been selling like hotcakes," says Ward, whose promotional poster for the book features a bit of marketing bait that's likely to be irresistible in any small town: "You might want to buy a copy to see if you are in it!"

The first half of the book is an overview of his childhood and early life, often from Ward's perspective of being an identical twin. There are stories about horses Ward has owned and/or worked with over the years, as well as poems written by Ward or his twin, Earl.

The rest of the book features anecdotes from Ward's veterinary practice - the wierd, the controversial and downright funny things that have happened since he graduated from Texas A&M University and went to doctoring animals of all kinds.

When a story might be hard to believe, Ward has included photos of X-rays to back up his facts. One such anecdote follows:

"One day at about 10 minutes till noon, a lady came in with a chow dog that she said wasn't acting right," Ward writes. "He walked in a very stilted manner, so I put him on my exam table and began to palpate him. I discerned a crepitation in his pelvic area and opined that he must have a pelvic fracture. I told her we would have to X-ray the pelvis, and since respiration was a little labored, we would also X-ray his chest."

"Most X-rays on animals require an anesthetic, because if the animal moves as the picture is made, obviously the radiogram will be ruined."

Ward's assistant helped him anesthetize the dog, then left the room. On her way out, though, she said, "He's got a wound up by his jaw, but it doesn't amount to anything."

"So I took the X-rays and developed the thoracic picture first," Ward writes. "I thought, 'My God, what's that pipe running through him?'"

"Then I developed the pelvic picture and realized that he had been shot by an aluminum target arrow that had entered just behind the jaw, gone down the neck, between the lungs, over the heart, had missed all the big blood vessels, his liver and kidneys and the tip had lodged just at the wing of the ileum."

"I slit the skin and grabbed the tip of the arrow with forceps and pulled it out, with about a six-inch hank of hair ... This dog awoke from his anesthetic uneventfully and suffered no ill effects from his injury. He didn't even miss supper!"

Among Ward's other adventures are accounts of his brushes with rabies, delivering calves by Cesarean section at night in remote pastures, treating a circus elephant for pneumonia and a Lake Jackson eccentric's lions for ulcers. Ward also explains how he got run over by a bathtub dragged by the late J.B. Maynard's panicky mare.

One of the funniest segments of the book deals with things children have told Ward over the years when they accompanied their pets to the doctor. A sampling:

"A little girl came in with her mother and their little dachshund. The lady placed the dog on my table and her little daughter pulled on her skirt to get her to bend down so the girl could whisper something to her. 'The lady just about died laughing ... her little girl had told her, 'I thought the dog doctor would be a dog.'"

"A little boy in with his family gazed at me as if in awe. The scrutiny went on about 10 minutes. Finally, he said simply, 'Your hair's gone.'"

"A little girl, Leslie Carol, just told me a joke. She asked, 'Doctor Ward, do you know what one flea asked the other?'"

"I give up."

"Shall we walk to take a dog?"

At 72, Ward has no plans to retire, but he has scaled back his practice to companion animals only. He still handles emergencies, but he doesn't have to cross fields and streams to get to his patients.

In his book, Ward looks back philosophically on his life, and he likes what he sees.

"I know that going around town in Levis and cowboy boots has detracted from my professional demeanor, and thus my earnings, but I've lived the kind of life I enjoyed," he writes. "And after doing the same job for 47 years. I'm not burnt out, don't throw instrument trays against the wall and fire everybody in the place."

"I can't wait to get to work every morning to see what interesting medical problems I will see."
