Mantle eyes more chemo

DALLAS (AP)--As Mickey Mantle prepares for more chemotherapy to battle cancer that has spread to his stomach and lung from his liver, the disease also may have spread to his bowel.

"They think there is a tumor in the bowel. They have some reason to think so," said Dr. Isaac Djerassi, a Philadelphia cancer specialist who met with Mantle's doctors last week. "There is something there--it's only a shadow" on the CT scan.

Mantle's doctors have refused to discuss specifics of Mantle's illness.

The former New York Yankee is at Baylor University Medical Center, where he is suffering from hepatoma, an aggressive form of cancer. He was listed in serious condition Thursday.

Doctors had planned to start a different type of chemotherapy on Mantle today, said Roy True, a Dallas attorney who has known Mantle since 1969.

At Mantle's request, his doctors have refused to talk specifically about his case.

The New York Times reported Thursday that the cancer had spread from Mantle's liver and right lung to his pancreas and bowel.

Roy True, an attorney who has known Mantle since 1969, said Thursday that the cancer had spread to Mantle's "stomach," but would not elaborate.

Hospital spokeswoman Denise Kile Walton would only confirm that the cancer had spread in Mantle's abdomen, refusing to identify specific organs. Walton said there is no conclusive evidence the cancer has spread to the bowel.

Djerassi said Mantle "looked awful" but was "determined to fight."

"He was very exhausted," he said. "I examined him ... saw what the situation was ... I was very discouraged. More than that, he was discouraged."

Djerassi flew to Dallas last Thursday to consult on Mantle's case.

At least one transplant expert said most patients in Mantle's condition do not benefit from chemotherapy.

"Patients don't live longer as a result of chemotherapy," said Dr. Brian Carr of the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center Transplant Institute.

Hand jammed in door

Ten-year-old Armando Torres Jr., rests after EMS Ed McGinley, right, put a splint on his hand and arm. The youngster got his hand caught in a revolving door at Hereford Aquatic Center Thursday afternoon. Visiting the center at the time, a Hereford volunteer fireman, Donnie Henson, not pictured, soaped the boy's hand to slide it out. Father of the boy, Armando Torres, standing, took his son for further treatment.

Corn, wheat, cotton harvests should be above expectations

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's corn growers should harvest 8.12 billion bushels this fall, the Agriculture Department said today in a forecast that exceeded analyst expectations and the department's earlier projections.

The department also projected higher U.S. wheat stockpiles next year because of higher yields for winter and spring wheat. Strong export demand for the added supplies will keep prices up, the department said, as it noted some further tightening of world grain stockpiles.

The total U.S. wheat harvest was put at 2.23 billion bushels, up from 2.19 billion last month.

The soybean harvest was forecast at 2.25 billion bushels, up 6 million bushels from last month's projection. Though down 12 percent from the record high of 1994, it is forecast up 20 percent from 1993. Yields were put at 36.4 bushels an acre.

The department forecast a 21.8-million-bale cotton harvest, exceeding last year's record by 11 percent. Growers, responding to heavy U.S. and export demand, planted the most acres in nearly 40 decades.

Corn and soybean growers managed to get most of their crop in despite wet weather and flooding this spring, the report noted. Last month, the department put the harvest at 7.79 billion bushels.

Today's report was based on actual field surveys taken Aug. 1, the first of the growing season.

July retail sales decrease

WASHINGTON (AP) - Retail sales unexpectedly slipped 0.1 percent in July after a robust rebound the previous two months, tripped by a big drop in automobile purchases.

The Commerce Department said today that sales totaled a seasonally adjusted $196.5 billion, down from $196.7 billion in June. Analysts had expected a 0.3 percent gain in sales in July.

The report also showed that sales in May and June were even stronger than previously thought.

The corn harvest would still be 2 billion bushels, or 20 percent, below last year's record of 10.1 billion. Yields were put at 125.6 bushels an acre.

It would be the fourth-largest corn crop since 1986.

The higher 1995 forecast will mean lower prices for growers than originally thought, but will ease some of the feed-cost burden on financially stressed livestock producers, who feared prices would edge more closely to $3 a bushel.

Prices should drop 10 cents a bushel, the department said, meaning they should range from $2.45 to $2.85 a bushel.

Erratic weather has made it difficult to guess how the corn crop will turn out. A wet spring delayed corn plantings for much of the Midwest. Record-breaking heat then cooked parts of the Midwest. Late-July rains then helped the crops, although dry spots were left.

Nebraska took a big hit being "too wet, too dry, and too hot during this growing season." Stalk and ear counts were forecast at their lowest since the mid-80s.

The season is still young, and crops could be vulnerable to further harsh weather, including frosts.

Wheat prices were projected at $3.65 to $4.05 a bushel. Soybeans also were unchanged at $5.50 to $6.50.

The department does not publish cotton price projections, but has said export prospects look dimmer and stockpiles should increase.

June sales were 0.8 percent above those in May, rather than 0.7 percent as earlier estimated. And sales in May rose 1.1 percent, rather than 0.9 percent.

The latest report called into question the strength of the economic rebound and fueled speculation that the Federal Reserve might lower interest rates again later this month as a stimulus.

The economy was flat during the second quarter.

Bombing probe narrows leads to three Army pals

McVeigh, Terry Nichols, Fortier indicted in connection with deadly OKC incident

By FRED BAYLES
AP National Writer

The investigation into the Oklahoma City federal building bombing originally cast a wide net that considered international terrorists; foreign drug traffickers and home-grown militias as possible culprits.

In the end, 700 federal agents who pursued thousands of leads constructed a much punier conspiracy: three men linked by an Army barracks friendships, a hatred of federal authority and a love of weapons.

The indictments brought Thursday against Timothy McVeigh, Terry Nichols and Michael Fortier offered more details on how robbery, a string of aliases and scattered storage lockers were used to assemble the bomb that destroyed the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

The April 19 explosion killed 168 people and injured 500.

The indictments don't mark an end to the probe of the worst act of terrorism on American soil. Leads are still being checked and officials talk of other conspirators.

"The grand jury found probable cause to believe that there are others involved," said lead prosecutor Joseph Hartzler. "We will continue the investigation."

Oliver Revell, a former FBI associate deputy director for investigations, said the indictments show authorities believe they have the main players.

However, after months of speculation about darker forces at work behind the bombing, including a noisy debate about government-hating militias, Revell said the public may find it hard to believe a pair of malcontents with few resources could carry out an act of such terrible magnitude.

"People try to match the enormity of the crime with the number of offenders, but there's no balance in these cases," he said.

McVeigh, 27, and Nichols, 40, were charged with 11 counts, including use of weapons of mass destruction, destruction of federal property and killing of federal law enforcement officers. They could get the death penalty if convicted.

Nichols' attorney, Michael Tigar, said he will try to have the trial moved out of Oklahoma and have Nichols tried separately from McVeigh.

Fortier, 26, was charged with conspiracy to transport stolen firearms, interstate transport of stolen firearms, lying to FBI agents about prior knowledge of the plot and failing to notify authorities of a crime. He faces up to 23 years in

'Jane Roe' leaves clinic, joins Operation Rescue

DALLAS (AP)--After months of soul-searching, the woman responsible for the Roe vs. Wade decision to legalize abortion has quit her job at a women's clinic and joined forces with a leading anti-abortion group.

Although Norma McCorvey still supports abortion in some cases, she now has regrets about being the "Jane Roe" in the historic 1973 decision by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"We've had two generations of women--well, almost three generations now--of women who have grown up with Roe vs. Wade," she said Thursday. "They have literally been handed the right to slaughter their own children."

McCorvey was baptized Tuesday night by the Rev. Philip "Flip" Benham, the fundamentalist preacher who leads Operation Rescue. They had become friends in recent months.

She said in an interview that she still believes "a woman has a right to have an abortion, a safe and legal abortion, in the first trimester."

"I will not support a woman's right to choose a safe and legal abortion in the second trimester," she said. Second-trimester abortions are legal, although third-trimester abortions have been outlawed in some states.

McCorvey resigned Saturday as marketing director at A Choice For Women, a Dallas clinic that has been a frequent target of anti-abortion demonstrations. She is now a filing clerk for Operation Rescue, but said she would not participate in its demonstrations.

"Jesus Christ has reached through the abortion mill wall and touched the heart of Norma McCorvey," Benham said.

McCorvey said she was not pressured into her gradual change of heart.

"I didn't get up this morning and say, 'Oh, well I'm just going to be pro-life today and not be Jane Roe anymore. I've been thinking about this for months now,'" she said.

She had become increasingly dissatisfied with what she felt was an undue emphasis on abortion at the clinic where she worked. She also told ABC News that she felt she had been used by abortion rights groups. By the same token, she said she will not allow herself to be used by the anti-abortion movement.

"There will not be any exploitation of my political status," she said Thursday on "Nightline." "I've already been exploited enough to last a lifetime."

Clinic officials did not return telephone calls seeking comment.

Feminist lawyer Gloria Allred, who has represented McCorvey in the past, said the abortion rights movement did treat McCorvey poorly, often excluding her from speaking events. She would not elaborate on why.

Operation Rescue moved its national headquarters March 31 into an office adjoining the abortion clinic where McCorvey worked. At the time, McCorvey said she was "horrified" and concerned about possible violence.

In recent months, Benham and McCorvey became friends. He called her "Miss Norma." She called him "Flipper."

In her 1994 book, "I Am Roe: My Life, Roe v. Wade, and Freedom of Choice," McCorvey chronicles how her life changed forever when she agreed in 1970 to become the plaintiff in a lawsuit seeking to overturn Texas' anti-abortion statute.

She was a 21-year-old carnival barker when she got pregnant for the third time, after a casual affair. The Supreme Court decision came too late for her, however, and she put the infant up for adoption.

Her autobiography also reveals she is a lesbian and details much of her difficult life, including years spent in

Coming in Sunday's Brand

They are just three little words, but they are words which can take the happiest child and sink him into a pit of despair.

Back to School.

For Hereford youth, the days of summer vacation are numbered and preparations are under way for a new school term that begins Aug. 21 in the public schools.

On Sunday, The Hereford Brand takes a look at the 1995-96 school year -- from fashion tips to educational programs, from extracurricular activities to sports -- in our annual "Back to School" section.

In addition, many local businesses help residents get ready for the school year with special deals and necessary goods.

So before you drop your child off at the school door next week, pick up the "Back to School" section.

You'll learn what you need to take to class, what you can't wear to class and what's in store for students this year.

State

DALLAS--The woman known as "Jane Roe" in the landmark abortion decision said she now has some regrets about her role in the case and, after months of soul-searching, has joined forces with the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue.

HOUSTON--What started as a tug of war over money has degenerated into a morbid tussle over a multimillionaire's corpse. "It's very sad, very mean," said Suzanne Kornblit, attorney for Anna Nicole Smith, the 27-year-old former Playboy centerfold embroiled in a bitter fight with the family of her deceased husband.

AUSTIN--President Clinton would not only be vulnerable to a Republican challenger in Texas if the election were held today, he'd also have an uphill battle against a Democratic contender, a new statewide survey indicates.

HARLINGEN--Tropical Storm Gabrielle sent bands of showers into northeastern Mexico and South Texas today, but forecasters doubted that significant rainfall would reach drought-depleted reservoirs of the Rio Grande.

WASHINGTON--The nation's immigration service will be able to strengthen its control of the border, speed up deportation of illegal aliens and better enforce laws preventing the use of undocumented workers under a House-passed spending bill, the agency's leader says.

EL PASO--Gov. George W. Bush came to deliver a message that Marcia Wheatley wanted to hear. When all was said and done, the victims' rights advocate was satisfied--for the most part.

DALLAS--Former Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has turned from the White House to the oil patch with his decision to become the new leader of oil services company Halliburton Co.

DALLAS--As Mickey Mantle prepares for more chemotherapy to battle cancer that has spread to his stomach and lung from his liver, the disease also may have spread to his bowel.

SAN ANTONIO--The University of Texas at San Antonio is coming to the inner-city, a move heralded as opening up higher education to more Hispanics. The university broke ground Thursday for its new campus on an 11-acre site on the edge of downtown.

World/Nation

UNDATED--The investigation into the Oklahoma City federal building bombing cast a wide net that initially considered international terrorists, foreign drug traffickers and homegrown militias with a grudge against the government. In the end, 700 federal agents who pored through millions of bits of evidence and information constructed a much punier conspiracy: three men linked by a tenuous Army barracks friendships and a hatred of federal authority.

WASHINGTON--President Clinton says it was good policy--not politics--that motivated his crackdown on teen smoking. But the move also offers him a prime opportunity to score politically, notwithstanding criticism in the tobacco-producing states.

DALLAS--After months of soul-searching, the woman known as "Jane Roe" in the landmark 1973 abortion case has joined an anti-abortion group, saying women "have literally been handed the right to slaughter their own children."

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia--A miserable band of Croatian Serb refugees followed a trail of sorrow and despair to the Serb heartland, a place more humble and distant than the "Greater Serbia" nationalists promised them. For many of the thousands of refugees crossing the border from Croatia, Serb-led Yugoslavia will be their new home.

WASHINGTON--Completing two sets of congressional Whitewater hearings, Republicans say important witnesses are contradicting each other's stories, while Democrats say the intense scrutiny of the Clintons' real estate venture produced no new information.

FIRE DEPARTMENT
Volunteer firefighters were called out at 4:17 p.m. to a rescue at the Hereford Aquatic Center.
EMS
Ambulances ran on one medical run and one no-transport.

BOMBING

Fortier has admitted casing the federal building with McVeigh. He pleaded guilty to the lesser charges in exchange for his testimony against the friends he made while serving at Fort Riley, Kan.
He was taken into custody after appearing before U.S. District Judge David Russell, dressed in jeans and a light blue shirt. Asked by the judge if he had prior knowledge of the bombing, he said, "Yes sir, I did."
The indictment does not specify a motive, but prosecutors have alleged that McVeigh was angry at the government over the 1993 Branch Davidian disaster at Waco, Texas. The bombing took place on the two-year anniversary of the assault and fire that ended in the deaths of at least 85 cult members.

Commissioner hails INS budget rise

Immigration will be better able to enforce present laws

WASHINGTON (AP)--The nation's immigration service will be able to strengthen its control of the border, speed up deportation of illegal aliens and better enforce laws preventing the use of undocumented workers under a House-passed spending bill, the agency's leader says.
Immigration and Naturalization Service Commissioner Doris Meissner on Thursday hailed the House's decision last week to give her agency some $2.6 billion next year, $486 million more than current levels.
"That is the highest budget mark in INS history," she told reporters.
"These increases follow two years of already unprecedented budget growth and they will enable the INS to continue to advance the administration's multi-year effort to reduce illegal immigration, remove criminal aliens, fix our broken asylum systems and strengthen our system of legal immigration."

Senate appropriators have yet to begin their deliberations over INS' allocation for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. But Ms. Meissner predicted the Senate will also provide more funds.
"We believe that the Senate is sympathetic to this budget," she said, as she outlined details of the House-passed spending plan.
Immigration has been a hot-button issue both on Capitol Hill and among Republican presidential hopefuls, with Congress considering a flurry of bills that would cap legal immigration rates and seek to make a dent in illegal immigration.
More than 4 million people are believed to be in the United States illegally, with some estimates going as high as 5.4 million. Some 1 million people were admitted to the country legally last year.

Ms. Meissner said the increased funding for her agency is translating into improved control of the border. But she stopped short of saying illegal immigration rates have declined as a result of the added funding. She noted that the United States is having to deal with the unanticipated problem of Mexico's economic turmoil, which has sparked a new influx of attempted illegal border crossings.
"It is very difficult to measure deterrence," she said.
INS would be allowed to hire 700 new Border Patrol agents, 400 inspectors and 140 additional support personnel under the House plan to beef up border enforcement and traffic flow.
Another 300 Border Patrol agents already deployed at interior stations would be redeployed to the border. That provision has proved controversial because most of those agents would come from existing border checkpoints in California at San Clemente and Temequila. While INS wants to keep those border checkpoints open, the House is requiring the agency to close them.

The House also approved $130 million to expand INS' ability to apprehend, detain and deport illegal aliens, in part by increasing the service's detention capacity by over 2,800 beds. Included in that total is $40 million to help expand to New Jersey and Arizona a hearing program already ongoing in the five states with the largest numbers of illegal aliens convicted of crimes. The enhanced hearing program allows INS to better identify and quickly deport criminal illegal aliens.
And, the House has approved a hike of $79.5 million to improve INS' enforcement of sanctions against employers who hire illegal aliens and improve worker eligibility verification.

Donation to church

Immanuel Lutheran Church is sponsoring a dinner Saturday, and a drawing will be held for two roundtrip airline tickets anywhere in the U.S. John Cook, left, and Hereford Auto-Center donated the tickets, which were accepted by pastor Don Kirklen. The Mexican stack dinner will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2 for children. A bake sale and "white elephant" sale will be held at the same time.

Jury hears how Simpson got cut

LOS ANGELES (AP)--For the first time, the O.J. Simpson jury heard from a witness the explanation Simpson gave police for his hand cuts: He hurt himself at his house the night of the murders and again after flying to Chicago.
This account by defense expert Dr. Michael Baden generated immediate attention Thursday among jurors, who started taking notes all at once. But how much it will help Simpson, legal analysts said, remains to be seen.
The explanation, which was elicited by the prosecution, helps account for blood with Simpson's genetic markers in his Ford Bronco, on his driveway and inside his house. But it requires jurors to swallow the notion that at almost the same time Simpson's ex-wife and her friend were being knifed to death, Simpson happened to be bleeding as well.
"Basically, the prosecution may have decided to show the jury that explanation is implausible," said Laurie Levenson, a professor at Loyola Law School.
Simpson says he was home alone during the June 12, 1994, murders of Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman outside Ms. Simpson's condominium. The jury has not heard the statement Simpson gave police when he was questioned. Baden, whose testimony was fiercely challenged by prosecutor Brian Kelberg, was to return today for more cross-examination.
The former acting chief medical examiner for New York City disputed the prosecution's autopsy testimony, concluding the victims fought fiercely for their lives and took longer to die than the Los Angeles County coroner contends.

The well-known forensic pathologist said Ms. Simpson probably wasn't on the ground unconscious when her throat was slit and had injuries on her hands consistent with defensive wounds.
"When she received the final wound, she was 18 inches off the ground," Baden said, citing the way blood spurted onto the steps of Ms. Simpson's condominium walkway.
The county coroner testified earlier that the murders happened quickly. He said Ms. Simpson probably was hit on the head and incapacitated, and then her assailant pulled her head back by the hair and slit her throat.
As Baden testified about the wounds, Simpson appeared distressed, rocking in his seat, blowing air in and out of his cheeks and rubbing his eyes. He often averted his eyes from the witness and was comforted by an attorney.
Baden said Goldman's wounds also indicated a struggle, and it could have taken 10 to 20 minutes for him to die--an attack on the prosecution's tight timeline for the murders. He said Goldman's knuckle bruises indicate he punched his killer.
The defense has displayed photos of Simpson's nearly unscathed body in the days after the killings, saying they prove that he didn't commit the murders because the attacker or attackers would have been wounded during the fight.

Prosecution experts, however, contend Goldman was quickly "caged" in a small area outside the condominium and probably hurt his hands while he was flailing about.
Goldman's sister, Kim, cried quietly in her front row courtroom seat as Baden testified.
Baden came under attack during cross-examination for his conclusion that a cut on Simpson's knuckle was caused by broken glass, not a knife. Baden held fast to that opinion, although he conceded that other small cuts could have been caused by the sharp tip of a knife.
Baden said that in a private meeting with Simpson five days after the murders, the former football star said he first cut his hand while trying to retrieve a phone from his Bronco the night of the killings.
"At some point (at home), he noticed some blood coming from his finger," said Baden.
Simpson said he injured himself again in Chicago the next morning, when he smashed a water glass upon hearing of his ex-wife's death, according to Baden.
"He said he squeezed the glass and banded it against the sink faucet," Baden said.
Kelberg then showed pictures of the bathroom in Simpson's hotel suite with a broken glass in the sink but no blood visible anywhere. Baden said he believed the pictures were taken hours after Simpson checked out and suggested the blood could have been cleaned away.
In his police interview on June 13, 1994, Simpson gave a similar explanation. Prosecutors declined to play a tape of that interrogation for the jury.
Prosecutors contend Simpson cut his hand during the murders. Blood with Simpson's genetic code was found near the bodies, prosecution experts testified.

Manmade caves discovered in area of Dead Sea Scrolls

JERUSALEM (AP) - Four manmade caves have been discovered near the site where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found, and hopes are high they could contain more scrolls, an archaeologist said today.
The discovery was a surprise because the entire area has been extensively excavated and surveyed since the Dead Sea scrolls were discovered in the 1950s.
"This is the first time since 1956 that caves carved by humans have been found in the Qumran area," archaeologist Magen Broshi told The Associated Press.
Broshi said chances were good the caves had been inhabited by the Essenes, the Jewish sect that wrote the Dead Sea Scrolls between 150 B.C. and A.D. 40.
Broshi's colleague, Hanan Eshel, an archaeologist from Bar Ilan University near Tel Aviv, discovered the caves about a year ago. To prevent looting, the existence of the caves was kept secret until archaeologists were ready to begin excavating.
Excavation will start in November and hopefully be completed by the end of the year, before control of the West Bank is turned over to the Palestinians, Broshi said.
The exact location of the caves has been kept secret.
The Dead Sea Scrolls include poetry, legal texts and the earliest known sections of the Bible. They were found in 11 caves near the Dead Sea between 1947 and 1956.

Clinton facing battle by Democrats, GOP, latest Texas poll says

AUSTIN (AP)--President Clinton would not only be vulnerable to a Republican challenger in Texas if the election were held today, he'd also have an uphill battle against a Democratic contender, a new statewide survey indicates.
The latest Texas Poll also shows a pair of U.S. senators running neck and neck for the GOP presidential nomination. Thirty-five percent said they'd vote for Bob Dole of Kansas in the 1996 Republican primary, while 33 percent prefer Phil Gramm of Texas.
Voters who said they'd likely vote Democratic in '96 weren't prepared to cast their ballot for the incumbent automatically. Sixty-three percent said they'd consider another Democrat for president.
Among all voters, Dole would draw 46 percent and Clinton 33 percent if they faced each other in the general election. In a Gramm-Clinton contest, 43 percent said they would back Gramm and 39 percent said they would vote for the president.

The results are in line with other recent independent surveys that indicate that the Democratic president faces trouble in Texas next year and that Dole remains competitive with Gramm on his home turf.
The new survey comes as leaders from both political parties--including almost every candidate who wants to be president--converge on Dallas today for a conference hosted by Ross Perot's national organization.
Although Clinton declined an invitation to appear at the Perot forum, White House adviser Mack McCarty was sent as a last-minute addition to the conference speaker's list.
Among fellow Texans, Perot is viewed favorably by almost half of those surveyed. But a clear majority--61 percent--said the billionaire businessman should not make another run for the White House as he did in 1992.
The Office of Survey Research of the University of Texas conducted the telephone survey Aug. 3-9 for Harte-Hanks Communications Inc.
The survey of 485 adult Texans has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points, meaning the results for each response can vary that much in either direction. The margin of error is greater for primary voters.

"The truth is what really matters is what the judges on the Supreme Court think, what people in elected office think and what average citizens think--and I don't think this news about Jane Roe will change one mind," she said.

Worksmart alerts workers to hazards of heat exhaustion, heat stroke at work

Working hard in hot humid weather can cause heat exhaustion or life-threatening heat stroke, according to Gary Phipps, director of WorkSmart, Hereford Regional Medical Center.

"Many people don't realize the danger of prolonged exposure to heat," Phipps said. "Workers who spend a great deal of time in the sun, or in an overheated building need to be particularly cautious." He explains that heat exhaustion can be caused by insufficient water intake, insufficient salt intake, and a deficiency in the production of sweat. "People working in hot conditions need to be very conscientious about taking in at least six, eight-ounce glasses of water a day," he said. Eating a light diet, avoiding alcohol, and wearing loose, lightweight clothes is also helpful in preventing heat exhaustion. WorkSmart, the industrial medicine service at HRMC, works with employers to identify conditions that might be dangerous to workers, including areas where workers might get too hot.

"Part of our job at WorkSmart is to educate employers about the causes of problems like heat exhaustion, and help them find ways to prevent these problems in the first place," he said. Symptoms of heat exhaustion include fatigue, faintness, dizziness, nausea, headache, and sometimes cramps in the legs, arms, or stomach. If someone is suffering from heat exhaustion they should lie down in a cool place and drink a light salt solution, such as Gatorade or water with a little salt in it.

Phipps explained that heat stroke is a much more dangerous condition. "If you suspect heat stroke, you should seek emergency care immediately," he said. "Heat stroke is usually caused by prolonged exposure to the sun, and is usually preceded by heat exhaustion. When the person goes into heat stroke, sweating diminishes, and the skin becomes hot, dry, and flushed. The body temperature rises dramatically."

Phipps emphasized that heat stroke is a life-threatening condition. "If the victim does not get treatment, he or she could lapse into a coma and die," Phipps said. While waiting for emergency help the victim should be wrapped in a wet sheet, or sponged with water and fanned.

"Heat exhaustion and heat stroke can be prevented with a little common sense," Phipps said. "If you're getting too hot, drink some water, or go to a cooler place. Don't ignore symptoms of heat stroke."

Back to school model

Brandy Smith models a plaid walking short outfit for C.R. Anthony's in Thursday's Fall Style Show sponsored by the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce. The show, held at the Hereford Country Club, featured fashions from area merchants which include Balfour Optical, 20/20 Eye Wear, The Pants Cage, Kid's Alley, Etcetera, The Fashion Boutique, Little's, C.R. Anthony's, and Inkahoots.

Fire Department takes part in 'Fill the Boot' campaign

Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, along with firefighters across the nation, will be participating in the "Fill the Boot" program to aid in the fight against Muscular Dystrophy, it was announced this week by Fire Chief David Spain.

Local firemen will be collecting donations for MD at Jubilee Junction Saturday in Dameron Park. The fire department will have a 1928 American La France fire truck on display. The Ladies Auxiliary will be helping at the booth.

The theme of "Fill the Boot" is being used because many firemen will be using their own boots in the campaign, according to Camie Boone, MDA district director of Amarillo. "It's amazing how the loose change from concerned citizens' pockets adds up to benefit the more than 200 families in the Panhandle affected by MD," said Boone. In 1994, the Panhandle collections

Jaggers attends training school

Willie D. Jaggers, volunteer fireman of the Bootleg Volunteer Fire Department, attended the 66th Annual Texas Firemen's Training School held on the Texas A&M University campus July 23-28.

The school was attended by nearly 2,000 students representing about 750 cities from more than 25 states.

Fireman chose their course at the school from a list including fire fighting, fire prevention, fire department officer training, fire department pump maintenance, specialized fire protection, and disaster rescue training.

Jaggers was sponsored by Deaf Smith/Oldham County Farm Bureau and Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies who contributed toward the cost of the school.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading your column for more than 30 years. I was a teen-ager in high school when I first became a fan, and now I am a grandmother.

Of all the letters that have touched me, the one enclosed made the strongest impression. I honestly believe it kept me on the straight and narrow. Will you please run it again for the millions of teen-age girls who need to see it? -- Ellen in Madison, Wis.

DEAR ELLEN: I am glad you asked because it happens to be one of my favorites too. Here it is:

Teen-age Lament
by Nancy Curtis
The new morality -- and freedom!
From classes -- what a drag!
From Mom and Dad -- always arguing.
From homework -- senseless hours.
From discipline -- useless.
From church -- a bore.
From conformity -- a hang-up.
I'm my own woman now.
Made so by one decision.
One hour of love and pleasure.
Free now to look at my cheer-leading sweater hanging in the closet.
My books and basketball schedule resting on the shelf.

My material for a prom formal -- never made -- as it sits amid the remnants of the fabrics left over from my maternity tops.

My medals from band and choir, forsaken in the clutter of a jewelry box.

My friends passing by my window, laughing over the gossip column in the school paper.

And giggling over who will be the next to experience

The new morality -- and freedom!
For cleaning -- what a drag!
For him -- always arguing.
For ironing -- senseless hours.

Literacy training to be offered

Persons interested in helping an adult learn to read are encouraged to attend the literacy training workshop to be held at the Deaf Smith County Library on August 18 and 19.

Trainees will learn how to assist students using the Computer Curriculum Lab and will be certified as a CCC Lab Instructor upon completion of the workshop.

The Curriculum Computer does the testing, recommends the level of course study, creates a series of lessons, and tracks the student's progress as the instructor assists.

No previous computer training or teaching experience is required.

The workshop is sponsored by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

To enroll in the training session, or for more details, pick up an information sheet and registration form at the Library--211 E. 4th-- or call Rebecca Walls at 364-1206.

amounted to $20,849. The funds go to toward purchase and repair of wheelchairs, summer camp, a monthly clinic which includes diagnostic testing and follow-up care, monthly support meetings and much more.

Angel pins received by members

Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met Tuesday evening with 13 members present.

Noble grand Nelma Sowell presided at the business session. Thirty visits to the sick, 44 cheer cards, 11 dishes of food and one flower were reported.

An official visit by Rebekah Assembly of Texas president Betty Dowell was scheduled for Sept. 13 in Hereford.

D.D.P. Mary Lou Weatherford presented installing team members with guardian angel pins. Recipients were Anna Conklin, Peggy Lemons, Rosalie Northcutt, Nelma Sowell and Susie Curtsinger. Dorothy Lundry was not present.

Lemons and Northcutt were co-hostesses for the meeting.

Others present were Irene Merritt, Ily Inman, Lucille Lindeman, Ursalee Jacobsen, Leona Sowell, Jessie Matthews and Tony Irlbeck.

CARING TEXAS FAMILIES SOUGHT

American Intercultural Student Exchange is seeking host families for exchange students arriving in August

Each year, thousands of families across the nation host AISE exchange students. It's an exciting way to meet people from different countries, while opening a young person's eyes to the world around them. Students arrive in August, spend a semester or school year with American families, and return to their home countries with a deeper understanding of the American people. AISE students speak English, have their own spending money and medical insurance, and are eager to become part of an American family. Couldn't your family use a little cultural diversity?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column about not receiving thank-you notes hit home. Our grandchildren were beginning to take our birthday and Christmas checks for granted and failed to acknowledge them. Last Christmas, I decided to try something different. I mailed them a copy of your column instead of the usual check.

Did I get results! From all those backsliders came lovely letters and apologies. Their parents were delighted. I got the message across. - Tutu from Hawaii

9:45 a.m. - Sunday school
11 a.m. - Morning worship
6:30 p.m. - Evening worship

Wednesday
6:30 p.m. - Prayer meeting
There will be a reception Saturday in Fellowship Hall from 4-5:30 p.m. honoring Mike and Brenda Sabo and their children, Jaren Allen and Emily. Mike will be coming in view of a call for Music/Education Director. He will be leading the music for the morning worship this Sunday.

We will have a special called business meeting immediately following the morning worship Sunday.

The family swimming party and cookout will be held at the Aquatic Center on Aug. 19.

ST. THOMAS'

EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"God's Good Creation," a 1957 sermon by Karl Barth will be the homily on The Tenth Sunday after Pentecost. Morning Prayer II is at 11 and there is a coffee hour after the service.

The regular Wednesday Public Service of Healing is at 7 p.m. with the Litany of Healing, the Laying-on-of-Hands with Holy Unction, and Holy Communion. We will use the proper collect, psalm and lessons for the major prayer book feast of St. Mary the Virgin.

Intercessory prayer requests from the community are most welcome. To have them included in the Prayers of the People at all services, please call 364-0146 and leave a message. In case of emergency, or to make appointments for personal conferences, please call Father Wilson in Amarillo at 353-1734.

CHRIST'S CHURCH FELLOWSHIP

Christ's Church Fellowship at 401 West Park Avenue meets at 9:30 a.m. for Sunday School classes for all ages. We have a well-supervised, clean, modern nursery for infants through 3-years.

Adult worship and KIDS CHURCH will be at 10:45 a.m. KIDS CHURCH is for ages 4-years through 6 grade, and is supervised by Shelly McCracken and Deanna Edwards.

The teenagers will meet at 6 p.m. with their sponsors, Jeff and Donnie O'Rand and Steve and Connie Gilbert.

Wednesday activities include Women's PRECEPT Bible Study at 10 a.m. studying the Book of Revelation (Cindy Cole is teacher); and praise and prayer meeting at 7 p.m.

Pastor Otto Schaufele will continue Sunday with a message on the theme of restoration from I Chronicles 13-17.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The pastor, H. Wyatt Bartlett, and the congregation of the Temple Baptist Church, 700 Avenue K, invites everyone to come worship with us Sunday. Whether you are looking for a new church home or just want a change we will welcome you.

Sunday School and Bible Study begins at 9:45 a.m. with the morning worship service at 11. The evening worship service is at 7. The pastor will be preaching at both morning and evening services.

You are also invited to our mid-week prayer meeting on Aug. 16 at 7 p.m. This will also be our business meeting night.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

"A First Century's Pastoral Concerns" will be the title of Garry Eggart's sermon at the Sunday morning service. Gary serves as director of young adult and youth ministries. "The Earth Is the Lord's" will be performed by the Sanctuary Choir and "Outside These Walls" will be sung by Cathy Higgins as special music for the service.

Dr. Ed Williamson and the congregation of First Church invite you to attend Sunday school at 9:30 a.m., morning worship at 10:45, youth activities at 4:30 p.m., and evening worship at 6.

The fall Sunday School Teacher and Worker Kickoff Meeting will be held Sunday from 2-4 p.m. in Fellowship Hall with guest speaker, Francie Pittman, Christian Education leader of Canyon First United Methodist Church. Ms. Pittman will bring her enthusiasm and knowledge of Sunday school work to share and guide toward the goal of the very B.E.S.T. Sunday school program possible. All teachers, workers, administrators, class officers, and other interested persons in adult-through-children's Sunday school classes are encouraged to attend.

A district United Methodist Women mini-school offering classes on Ecclesiastes, the United Nations, and Europe will be held Aug. 12 at the First UMC, Dumas, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Contact Betty Jo Carlson to register.

The public is invited to a Silver Tea and Hat Style Show to honor our teachers and students Aug. 15 at 3 p.m. at King's Manor. The event is hosted by the Manor Auxiliary and prizes will be given for the most unusual hat design.

The senior high UMYF will meet Aug. 16 at 6:30 p.m. in front of the high school auditorium in preparation for a trip to Wonderland Park. The junior highs will meet Aug. 17 at 4:30 p.m. in Gary Eggart's office. A "Back to School" party will be discussed along with regular studies.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

This Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service, the Rev. J. Jeremy M. Grant continues the "Let There Be Light" series on Genesis with "Stay Wardens for God." The portion of scripture upon which this sermon is based comes from Genesis 1:26-28; 2:15 and John 10:11-13.

Our children and youth Sunday school classes are taking a brief break until Sept. 10 when we will kick-off the new school year with educational opportunities for all ages. Our adult class is continuing to meet at the usual 9:30 a.m. time and discuss the book Who Is This Jesus? by Edward Green. Come and enjoy the discussion.

Our youth group will meet Aug. 18 at 6 p.m. for a "Church House Rock" overnight. There will be fun, food, games and free T-shirts to kick off the group's regathering with all new advisors and new ideas. Please contact the church if you would like to know more about this night of fun.

Little Blessings Day Care will enroll children from age 6-weeks through kindergarten (age 5). Little Blessings will be open on Mondays from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. (8 a.m.-5 p.m. for extended session) and Saturday mornings from 8 a.m.-12 noon. Little Blessings emphasizes the education and development of children in a Christian environment. For more information, please call the church off (364-2471) or our director, Janna Murray (364-2939).

Come to church school and join us for our fellowship time at 10:10 a.m. until we go to the service of worship of the Holy and Almighty God. We are known for our friendliness and welcoming attitude!

GOOD NEWS CHURCH

909 Union St.
Pastor David Alvarado and the Good News congregation invite you to join us in worship of our Lord Jesus Christ on Sunday morning.

Our early service begins at 9 a.m. and is in Spanish and our late service begins at 10:40 a.m. and it is in English. Everyone is welcome!

A special invitation is made to those needing healing in their bodies to come to our Healing School on Tuesday nights at 8 where we will pray for the sick.

For additional information or prayer call 364-5239.

Cowboys like Marion at safety

Bowling champs

Hereford's Glenda Hansen (back row, right) teamed with four other women to win the state championship in Division V of the Texas Women's Bowling Association. The competition, held over the summer in Dallas, included about 2,000 teams. Hansen's team, the Bowling Bags, posted a pin total of 2,307. The Bowling Bags also includes Janice Coulter (front left) a former Hereford resident who now lives in Southlake. The other bowlers are from Amarillo: April Cates (front right), Wendy Guinn (back left) and Jo Gambelin (back center). They were recently informed of their championship, and they will be honored at the TWBA Awards Banquet, set for Sept. 9 in Corpus Christi.

Oilers, Redskins showcase QB prospects on same field

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Nearly $50 million worth of talented but still unproven quarterback will take the field Saturday when the Washington Redskins and Houston Oilers play a preseason game at Tennessee's Neyland Stadium.

The Redskins and Oilers are franchises in transition, both hoping they have the quarterback on hand who can stop this 2-14, 3-13, 4-12 nonsense and lead them toward the top. Actually, they're more than hoping. They're betting heavily on it.

Saturday's 7 p.m. game features each team's Quarterback of the Future: Heath Shuler of Washington, Steve McNair of Houston. Both made a run at the Heisman Trophy, both were taken with the No. 3 overall pick in the NFL draft, and both signed a big contract before setting foot on a pro field ($19 million over eight years for Shuler, $28.5 million over seven years for McNair).

Washington, four years removed from its latest Super Bowl, is in its second year of rebuilding under coach Norv Turner, who is trying to nurture Shuler into as big a success as Troy Aikman became under his tutelage in Dallas.

The Redskins dropped their exhibition opener 37-21 last weekend to Kansas City, but Turner says he is not discouraged.

"Heath has made continued and very steady progress," Turner said. "I've been very optimistic and very positive about the progress he's making."

In games tonight, it's Miami at Atlanta, Tampa Bay at Cincinnati, New Orleans at the New York Giants, and Kansas City at Arizona.

On Saturday, it's Denver at Carolina; Houston vs. Washington at Knoxville, Tenn.; Buffalo vs. Dallas at Toronto; Minnesota at New England; the New York Jets vs. Philadelphia at Jackson, Miss.; Indianapolis at Seattle; and St. Louis at Oakland.

Sunday's games feature Green Bay at Pittsburgh and San Francisco at San Diego. On Monday night, Chicago visits Cleveland.

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - A quick study of the Dallas Cowboys' top-ranked defense shows proven experience back at every position except one: free safety.

Gone to the Redskins is James Washington, a bandana-wearing, sledgehammer-hitting trash talker who wasn't afraid to disgrace his own teammates if he didn't think they were measuring up.

Like him or not - and many Cowboys coaches and players didn't - Washington was a big-game player who helped win Super Bowl XXVIII with two key interceptions in a 30-13 defeat of Buffalo.

But the Cowboys didn't panic after his departure. They hardly looked at a list of free agents. They simply went to their special teams unit and promoted Brock Marion, a third-year player known for running wildly downfield and leveling kick and punt returners.

Sure, Marion's $178,000, league-minimum salary is a benefit to the Cowboys, who are less than half a million dollars away from busting their $37.1 million salary cap.

But what about his skills? Most of his defensive backfield experience last year came at the strong safety position when All-Pro Darren Woodson moved to linebacker in the 45 and nickel defense.

No one with the Cowboys seems worried. Coach Barry Switzer, an obvious non-fan of Washington, says the backfield may be even better with Marion.

"We don't need a riverboat gambler back there," Switzer said, referring to Washington's penchant for ignoring schemes and freelancing. "I told Brock I would rather have him be passive than a missile. Missiles get out of position. We are going to be all right at safety. We may even upgrade."

Marion says all the right things. He's glad the coaches have confidence in him. He's just trying to learn the plays and be in the right position. He asks numerous questions of coaches during practice to ensure they are on the same page. And he leaves comparisons of him and Washington to others.

But make no mistake, he's confident.

"I can play," said Marion, who finished in the top three in special teams tackles each of the past two years. "I'll be all right back there."

He has proven himself to defensive coaches in camp. He is the most vocal player on the field, barking out checks and switches as the offense shifts formations.

"He's done a better job than I expected by assuming a leadership role that I didn't really think he would be able to assume at this point," said defensive backs coach Mike Zimmer.

"Brock has got more speed than James, but he is not as big a hitter as James was," Zimmer said. "I expect Brock to be in position a little bit more, and hopefully he will be more disciplined than James was."

Golfers master Riviera at PGA Championship

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It was supposed to be a test of wills matching the best players in the world against proud old Riviera Country Club, where wet kikuyu rough devours stray shots and spiked-up greens make every putt perilous.

It was no contest, though, on an opening day that saw the PGA Championship come under a bombardment unprecedented in its 77-year history. The onslaught left players gaping in amazement at what it might take to win the final major championship of the year.

"You're going to have to make a lot of birdies out here to give yourself a chance on Sunday in this tournament," Greg Norman said.

Michael Bradley came out of nowhere Thursday with an 8-under-par 63 that tied the lowest round ever shot in a major, but others also plundered Riviera's soft greens on a day that saw 57 players break par.

Forty-three of those shot rounds in the 60s, including such notables as Norman, Lee Janzen, Jack Nicklaus, Ben Crenshaw and Nick Faldo. But it was the unknown Bradley who took the lead with a bogeyless round that started with an eagle 3 on the first hole.

The third-year pro had a chance to shoot 62, but missed a 20-foot putt on the 18th hole before only a few hundred fans who stayed around to watch as the last few players in the 150-man field finished in lengthening shadows.

"There is no pressure on me," said Bradley, who had never finished better than third in a PGA Tour event. "If I play bad tomorrow, come Sunday no one is going to remember my name."

Bradley's round was a shot better than the 64s posted earlier by Mark O'Meara and Jim Gallagher Jr. and three shots ahead of Norman and five others at 66. John Adams tied a record with a 6-under 29 on the front side and was alone at 65.

What was meant to be an exhibition of shotmaking looked more like a regular tour stop putting contest as the leaders had little trouble negotiating the course packed tightly into a canyon near the Pacific Ocean.

"Seven-under is an exceptional score under any circumstance, let alone the first round of a major championship," Norman said before Bradley shot a round unequalled even by the 59 he shot in a Canadian tour pro-am a few years back.

Bradley didn't know he had a chance to set a major tournament record until he overheard a fan's remark as he walked to the 18th tee. He put his second shot pin high, but missed the putt by about an inch.

UT WR Adams regains eligibility

AUSTIN (AP) - Veteran receiver Mike Adams has regained his eligibility to play football at the University of Texas by earning A's in two summer school classes, head coach John Mackovic says.

Adams, a junior from Arlington, suffered a season-ending knee injury in his second game last season, but has been cleared to play.

"Mike is all set. I think that's a significant statement. I don't think he needed A's just to make it, but he did it. I think that speaks well of him," Mackovic said Thursday.

Indians repel Yankees in doubleheader sweep

By The Associated Press
 Though the Cleveland Indians practically locked up their division title long ago, they're still having a say in who makes the postseason. On Thursday, they told the New York Yankees to forget about the AL East division title and concentrate on the wild-card berth.

The Indians overcame three home runs from Mike Stanley and a four-run deficit in the ninth inning to win 10-9 in the first game of a doubleheader at Yankee Stadium. They cruised to a 5-2 victory in the nightcap to expand their lead in the AL Central to 18 games over Milwaukee.

And, combined with Boston's 11-1 win over Baltimore, the Yankees fell eight games behind the Red Sox in the AL East.

Rafael Palmeiro of the Orioles, who are another three games behind New York, said the East race is over. "We're not trying to catch Boston. We're trying to catch the Yankees," he said.

Stanley became the first Yankee to hit three homers in a game since Reggie Jackson in the 1977 World Series, and had seven RBIs. But in light of the Yankees' day of failure, it didn't seem to mean much.

"It really doesn't make much of a difference from a personal standpoint if you lose the game," Stanley said. "Maybe with my kids one day. Definitely not for a while."

In the second game, Darryl Strawberry's first homer for the Yankees couldn't prevent the sweep.

Jim Poole (2-3) and Chad Ogea (6-3) earned the victories for Cleveland, while John Wetteland (1-2) and Sterling Hitchcock (5-7) took the losses.

The Texas Rangers lead the race for the AL wild-card spot with a 50-47 record, a half-game ahead of the Yankees and Seattle Mariners.

Rangers 7, Tigers 2

Danny Darwin, making his second start since Texas claimed him off waivers, allowed just two hits in six innings as the Rangers completed a three-game sweep at Arlington.

Darwin (2-9) pitched 218 games for Texas and was 53-51 from 1978-84.

Benji Gil broke an 0-for-18 slump with a grand slam in the eighth off Joe Boever. It was Gil's first career grand slam and his first homer in 31 games.

Felipe Lira (7-8) took the loss.

Red Sox 11, Orioles 1

John Valentin had two of Boston's four home runs to lead the host Red Sox to their eighth consecutive victory.

Boston had 17 hits, including Jose Canseco's three that ended a 1-for-17 slump. His homer, over the screen above the Green Monster and onto the roof of a parking garage across the street, was his 12th of the year.

Rheal Cormier (5-2) allowed four hits in eight innings for his second victory since returning to the rotation. Cal Ripken hit his 12th home run and played in his 2,105th straight game - 26 shy of breaking Lou Gehrig's record.

Scott Erickson (7-9) allowed five runs on eight hits in 3 1-3 innings.

Blue Jays 8, Brewers 4

Paul Molitor had a pair of RBI doubles and Shawn Green had three RBIs as Toronto snapped a six-game losing streak with a victory at Milwaukee.

Pat Hentgen (9-9) scattered nine hits in eight innings and gave up at least one hit in every inning except the eighth.

Steve Sparks (7-6) gave up 11 hits, including four in the third, when Toronto scored three times to take a 3-1 lead.

Royals 5, Angels 0

Jason Jacome won for the first time in over a year, and snapped Mark Langston's eight-game winning streak in the process in Kansas City.

Jacome (1-2), gave up four hits in seven innings. The left-hander, who came over from the New York Mets in a trade, had lost eight straight decisions since beating St. Louis on July 27, 1994.

Langston (11-2) gave up five runs in six innings. His only previous loss was to New York on May 4.

Braves widen lead over Phillies

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
 AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves have opened an Indianesque lead in the NL East.

By beating Cincinnati 2-1 Thursday night, while Philadelphia was losing 5-1 to New York in 11 innings, the Braves opened a 13 1/2-game lead in the division.

The only other major-league division with so large a discrepancy is the AL Central, where Cleveland is ahead by 18 games.

Atlanta's victory on Javier Lopez's two-out RBI single in the ninth gave the Braves two victories in the three-game series against Cincinnati, which has a 7 1/2-game lead over Houston in the NL Central.

"We'll see the Reds again in the playoffs," Lopez said. "Beating them two of three is awesome."

"This is a tough one to lose," Reds manager Davey Johnson said.

Philadelphia, meanwhile, lost its fifth in a row and its 11th in the last 12 games to drop below .500 for the first time since being 0-1. The Phillies are six games back in the wild-card race - a deficit that would be even larger if Houston hadn't lost five in a row.

Braves 2, Reds 1

At Atlanta, the score was tied 1-1 with two outs in the ninth when Fred McGriff and David Justice singled, putting runners on the corners. Lopez then ripped a hit off Hector Carrasco (2-4) between third and shortstop.

"Carrasco just made a bad pitch to Lopez. We told him, 'Don't throw any breaking ball pitches.' Lopez is a breaking ball hitter. I heard Lopez say on TV that he was looking slider all the way," Johnson said.

Reliever Mark Wohlers (5-3) got the victory with one scoreless inning of relief. Braves starter Tom Glavine hit his first major league homer and allowed one unearned run and five hits in eight innings.

Mets 5, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, Rico Brogna singled with one out in the 11th and went to third on Joe Orsulak's single. Jose Vizcaino, with nine hits in his last 14 at-bats, then singled in Brogna to break a 1-1 tie.

Kelly Stinnett and pinch-hitter Chris Jones followed with RBI singles, and another run scored on third baseman Charlie Hayes' throwing error.

Don Florence (1-0), who pitched one hitless inning of relief, got the victory in his first major league game. Heathcliff Slocumb (2-4) took the loss.

Expos 6, Astros 2

Rondell White had a two-run triple and Darrin Fletcher and Moises Alou hit solo homers for Montreal, which swept the three-game series at Houston.

Butch Henry (7-9) pitched eight strong innings, retiring 13 in a row in one stretch and striking out five.

Giants 8, Pirates 7

At San Francisco, the Giants blew a seven-run lead before going ahead in the eighth on Barry Bonds' RBI double. J.R. Phillips homered twice and drove in five runs.

Padres 3, Cubs 2

Steve Trachsel (5-8) won at Wrigley Field for only the second time in 22 career starts, giving the Cubs a split of the doubleheader. The Padres rallied for two runs in the seventh to win the opener.

Marlins 3, Rockies 2

At Miami, the Marlins rallied for two runs in the seventh inning and another in the eighth.

Steve Decker drove in the go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly after Andre Dawson doubled and made it to third on a fielding error. The Marlins have the best record in the NL (18-9) since the All-Star break.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It's OK that the fans at Dodger Stadium were having a ball. It's when they threw balls on the field that their team suffered the consequences.

The Los Angeles Dodgers forfeited a game to the St. Louis Cardinals on Thursday night after some in the sellout crowd of 53,361 on Ball Night threw souvenir baseballs onto the field three times.

The cad came abruptly with one out in bottom of the ninth and the Cardinals holding a 2-1 lead.

The umpiring crew of Jim Quick, Bob Davidson, Bill Hohn and Larry Poncino was unanimous afterward concerning the decision to halt the game. They were also in agreement that Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda was to blame.

The forfeit was the first in the majors since July 12, 1979, when the second game of a doubleheader between the Detroit Tigers and Chicago's White Sox was called off after a raucous anti-disco promotion left the field unplayable.

The last forfeit in the National League was July 18, 1954 - Philadelphia at St. Louis. The last forfeit by the Dodgers was July 18, 1916.

"All seven crew chiefs in the National League would do the same thing," Davidson said. "It's another black eye for baseball."

"It was mine, and I'm not second-guessing myself," said home plate umpire Quick, the crew chief, when asked who made the decision. "I'd do the same thing again. We were in complete agreement."

The game was delayed for about six minutes in the top of the seventh when some fans started throwing baseballs onto the field. And it happened again in the ninth after Dodgers outfielder Raul Mondesi and Lasorda were ejected by Quick.

King Ranch moving into retail, mail order business

Direct marketing of products chosen over building stores across country

By STEVE STEIN
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
KINGSVILLE, Texas - It's high noon on one of the hottest days of the year in Kingsville. Despite the 100-degree heat, many people are glancing through the sunbaked windowpanes of a red-brick building, the restored John B. Ragland Mercantile Building, a tribute to a bygone era.

Inside the historic building at Kleberg Avenue and Sixth Street, which houses the King Ranch Saddle Shop, business is brisk. In the commercial center of the city, the Saddle Shop's colorful retail wares, visually beaded together by the King Ranch's enduring "Running W" brand, beckon to passersby. Kingsville's Sixth Street draws many tourists.

Meanwhile the breakaway play of the King Ranch's new retail strategy is being mapped out coolly a floor above the Saddle Shop, in the mail-order catalog and telemarketing department. King Ranch Inc., the umbrella over a number of business ventures, hopes to be in a position someday to lasso a large chunk of the burgeoning U.S. catalog sales market. The endeavor is being approached with some of the same fervor and determination steamedboat Capt. Richard King summoned in 1853 to start what has become the world's most famous cattle ranch.

Stephen J. "Tio" Kleberg, King Ranch Inc.'s vice president of agribusiness, has taken an active part in planning new strategies for the Saddle Shop and mail-order operation. He sometimes makes decisions on the design of products sold in the Saddle Shop and catalogs, according to Saddle Shop executives.

Kleberg, the great-grandson of the King Ranch's founder, has been described by some of his employees as a Renaissance man with a deep understanding of everything that touches the vast King Ranch empire.

Kleberg said the King Ranch has been testing the retail waters at its second Saddle Shop located in a small space in the Stockyard Station at the Fort Worth Stockyards. The store has a limited inventory, but customers have shown a somewhat surprising willingness to order out of the catalog when the store doesn't have a particular item in stock, Kleberg said.

Retail operations, under the banner of the King Ranch Saddle Shop, account for about $3 million in annual gross sales, a small but growing percentage of King Ranch Inc.'s overall business. For retail sales to continue to grow, the Saddle Shop must expand its retail base.

"Rather than building stores, we think we can do this through mail order," Kleberg said. "Our thought is that we have a good name, but we have to develop new products every year."

Because the number of two-income families is increasing, and more Americans are working longer than 40 hours a week, shopping by catalog is growing in popularity, said Nicole Snyderman, a New York-based spokeswoman for Direct Marketing Association. "People are often too tired or too busy to go out and shop," Snyderman said.

U.S. catalog sales have increased by 61 percent since 1987, to $57.4 billion in 1994, according to the association. More than 98 million Americans ordered merchandise by mail or phone in 1994, about 34 million more than in 1984.

Steve Childers, an El Pasoan with corporate experience in merchandising and store design at both J.C. Penney Co. and Farah Inc., in 1994 was chosen by King Ranch Inc. to bring the Saddle Shop's direct marketing business to new levels. Childers is not afraid to draw a bead on such catalog giants as L.L. Bean and Spiegel. He heads the two retail stores, the mail-order operation and a manufacturing plant.

The manufacturing plant at the King Ranch has about 40 employees and produces goods such as luggage and purses for in-store and catalog sales. Childers supervises the more than 70 employees in the retail operation, including a master saddle maker and his apprentices.

In less than a year in his position, Childers already has pulled off something of a catalog coup. He pitched the idea of joining forces with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to produce a Texas catalog. About 80,000 copies of the catalog were released late last month. (Hint: King Ranch catalog items are distinguished easily by the Running W brand.)

The "Texas Expedition to King Ranch" catalog supports Texas businesses and artisans. Part of the revenue from catalog sales goes toward state park projects such as wildlife preservation.

"We get no money from Parks and Wildlife," Childers said. "However a percentage of what we sell goes to Parks and Wildlife." The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and King Ranch refused to release the percentage that would go to the public agency.

Childers surrounds himself with the history and the culture of the King Ranch. He says there always has been an important link between the ranch's heritage and its lasting power.

Amanda Ramirez, store manager of the Saddle Shop in Kingsville, is a descendant of the original "Kineros" (the men of King ranch). The original Kineros were Mexican cowboys King invited to live on his South Texas ranch, because of their skills with cattle and horses and also to rescue them from the poverty of their Mexican village.

The history of the King Ranch's retail and mail-order operations dates back to these early Kineros. In addition to cattle, Capt. King took great pride in his horses. According to some historians, before the invention of the

Restored 1909 building is home

By STEVE STEIN
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
KINGSVILLE, Texas - One of the most eminent restored buildings in South Texas is serving as the launching pad for the King Ranch Saddle Shop's drive to become a major player in the U.S. mail-order catalog business.

The John B. Ragland Mercantile Co. building at Kleberg Avenue and Sixth Street, which is among the landmarks listed in the U.S. Department of Interior's National Register of Historic Places, hosts both the retail and catalog operations of the King Ranch Saddle Shop.

At a cost of $1.2 million, King Ranch Inc. in 1991 restored the building to the design Victoria architect Jules Leffland conceived in the first decade of this century. The mercantile first opened for business in 1909.

In what is now the Saddle Shop's upstairs office, highlighted by finely crafted hardwood floors, telemarketers busily take orders generated by the recently distributed mail-order catalog "Texas Expedition to King Ranch." Part of the sales from by the Texas Expedition catalog, a joint offering of the King Ranch and Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, will go to state projects such as wildlife preservation.

A floor below these high-tech, direct-marketing operations, a steady stream of retail customers check out merchandise. As they step between merchandise displays, they take time to admire the renewed grandeur of the large brick building which after 1909 earned the reputation as the best clothing store in South Texas, according to King Ranch archivist Bruce Cheeseman.

Shortly before his death in 1908, John Ragland sold the property that was to be the John B. Ragland Mercantile Co. to his brother Sam G. Ragland, the King Ranch's cattle manager. Joining Sam Ragland in this venture were community stalwarts Robert J. Kleberg, Cesar Kleberg and Charles H. Flato Jr.

The store prospered for many years, but in 1934 the Depression and changing times in South Texas forced the John B. Ragland Mercantile Co. to dissolve. Ownership of the building was transferred to Robert J. Kleberg & Co., according to Cheeseman. By 1950 the ownership of the operation transferred to King Ranch Inc., which incorporated the venture into a subsidiary known as the Ragland Mercantile Co.

The 41-year-old building got a new facade, new interiors and an eye-catching escalator. Cheeseman wrote in one of his many articles about the King Ranch. A decline in retail activity in the commercial heart of Kingsville forced the store that South Texas residents had long referred to as "Raglands" out of business in 1979.

But the building, minus the escalator, went back to basics and was reborn in 1991.

One year later, the Texas Historical Foundation honored King Ranch Inc. with its Josiah Wheat Award of Merit for restoration.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A BIBLICAL HATCHET-MAN!

ONE OF THE MOST LOYAL AND INTENSE FOLLOWERS OF KING DAVID WAS BENAIAH, THE SON OF THE CHIEF PRIEST JEHOIADA! (II SAM. 23:20) BENAIAH WAS A MAN FAMOUS FOR HIS VALIANT DEEDS! HE WAS CELEBRATED FOR HAVING SLAIN TWO LION-LIKE WARRIORS OF MOAB AND, ON ANOTHER OCCASION, DESCENDED INTO A PIT, IN THE DEAD OF WINTER, TO KILL AN ACTUAL LION! ON ANOTHER DAY, WHEN ARMED ONLY WITH A WOODEN STAFF, HE MET A GIANT EGYPTIAN IN BATTLE, WRESTLED THE MAN'S SPEAR FROM HIM AND KILLED HIM WITH HIS OWN WEAPON! (II SAM. 23:20, 21) HE WAS IN CHARGE OF KING DAVID'S PERSONAL BODYGUARD AND ALSO COMMANDED THE MILITARY DIVISION FOR THE 3RD MONTH (I CHRON. 27:5, 6) SO DEPENDABLE WAS HE, THAT HE ALSO WAS USED--WHEN IT WAS NECESSARY TO HAVE SOME POLITICAL MURDERS TAKEN CARE OF--HE EXECUTED, BY THE ORDER OF KING SOLOMON, THE ELDER...

...BROTHER OF SOLOMON, ADONIJAH (I KINGS 2: 25) JOAB (VS. 29-34), AND SHIMEI (VS. 46). THE EXECUTION OF JOAB LEFT THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE MILITARY VACANT SO BENAIAH WAS PROMOTED TO THAT SAME OFFICE!!

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

Times	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	15	3.00
2 days per word	26	5.20
3 days per word	37	7.40
4 days per word	48	9.60
5 days per word	59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not in solid word form. Those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are 4.25 per column inch, 3.85 inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Shaun Cassidy is trading wholesome for horror.

The former teen idol created the twisted new CBS series "American Gothic," which makes its debut in the fall.

Cassidy's work include a demented girl chanting "Someone's at the door," cryptic messages in blood and a dead girl in a morgue shedding a tear of blood.

"Certainly, people who think they know me may not know me," said Cassidy, 36, the star of the old "Hardy Boys" show.

"Much of 'American Gothic' is about that: The duality of nature. The duality of people. I had a very clear picture of this show, and it obviously came from a very organic place or it wouldn't have written itself as easily as it did," Cassidy said in Tuesday's Los Angeles Times.

Gary Cole stars in the series as Sheriff Lucas Buck, who vacillates between charming scamp and murderous devil.

"Easy 100.3 is the perfect radio station to listen to - while you work," Brown says as she stands in front of the station's call letters.

The 23-year-old Brown, whose real name is Estella Marie Thompson, was arrested with Grant last month in his white BMW. She pleaded innocent to lewd conduct and faces an Aug. 18 pretrial hearing.

The actor pleaded no contest to the same charge and was fined and placed on probation.

NEW YORK (AP) - At the very least, Julia Roberts' troubled marriage to Lyle Lovett gives her something to talk about.

In the September issue of Ladies' Home Journal, the film star says she has "a very close relationship" with Lovett despite separating from the country singer several months ago.

"It's not going to just go away," she said.

Roberts, 27, is now appearing in the movie "Something To Talk About."

Paul Miller of Alta Loma, California grew the largest mustache ever grown in the U.S. It measured eight feet by March 1993.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Divine Brown's 15 minutes of fame for being arrested with Hugh Grant will last at least another 30 seconds.

The Hollywood prostitute has taped a TV commercial promoting the radio station she claims they were listening to during the encounter.

The 30-second spot for KXEZ-FM - Easy 100.3 - began airing Tuesday in the Los Angeles area.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS STORY

"Everybody Already Knows My Store And What I Carry."

Sound Familiar?

Advertising is news about the marketplace, if you don't advertise, you're telling consumers there's no news from your store. But your competition is fighting for the public's interest with regular ads; if you want to keep your share of the market, you need to be in the same arena, bidding for the business. You need to advertise in the newspaper. Plus, people move out of the area and new people move in. Advertise to bring new customers into the store. Sell your store and your service through newspaper advertising.

NOT CONVINCED?

Newspaper advertising is unlike any other media choice. You're reaching a friendly, receptive audience with your advertising message. So receptive that they pay to have the paper delivered to their home. No wonder consumers consider newspapers the most believable advertising medium.

Newspaper advertising can help your business. It can increase sales and in a competitive market, it can give your business and edge over the other guy.

Don't tempt fate. Join the many successful businesses who know what works for them and what doesn't. Advertise in the newspaper and get results.

Bitter tug-of-war develops over multimillionaire's body

HOUSTON (AP)—What started as a tug of war over money has degenerated into a morbid tussle over a multimillionaire's corpse.

"It's very sad, very mean," said Suzanne Kornblit, attorney for Anna Nicole Smith, the 27-year-old former Playboy centerfold embroiled in a bitter fight with the family of her deceased husband.

The latest wrinkle: Ms. Smith wants the body of late husband J. Howard Marshall II buried, preferably in a mausoleum. That wish puts her at odds—again—with the oil baron's family, especially E. Pierce Marshall, who wants his father cremated.

"This is extremely important to her that he not be cremated... it's a personal wish of hers," Ms. Kornblit said Thursday. "She's adamant about it."

Both E. Pierce Marshall and his attorney, Joseph Horrigan, refused to comment Thursday.

The elder Marshall died in a Houston hospital last week at age 90. Ms. Smith held her own memorial service Monday night, and Marshall's family plans a private funeral, the date of which is closely guarded.

After that, no one is sure what will become of Marshall's remains.

"We still have not heard one way or another whether it will be burial or cremation," said an official at Geo. H. Lewis & Sons Funeral Directors who spoke on condition of anonymity Thursday.

"We hope that it will be resolved soon. We are absolutely caught in the middle and we are trying not to take sides with either side."

Ms. Kornblit said the law is on her client's side. The Texas Health and Safety Code says a surviving spouse has control over a decedent's remains before surviving children.

Tom Moran, an attorney for the funeral home, cited another portion of state code, which says a judge should arbitrate disputes between family members of the deceased.

"We normally would look for the family to come to some sort of agreement amongst themselves," Moran said. "Absent that, we look to the courts. We don't want to be in the middle."

If E. Pierce Marshall presses for cremation, the matter will be heard by state District Judge Jim Scanlan, who is overseeing Marshall's ongoing probate case.

The former jeans model and aspiring actress has fought bitterly with her husband's son almost since her June 1994 wedding to Marshall, 63 years her senior, at a north Houston chapel.

Marshall gave his son power of attorney over his affairs just two weeks after the wedding, and Ms. Smith was soon cut off from her husband's living trust.

Last February, E. Pierce Marshall was named his father's guardian, a motion Ms. Smith did not oppose. But she went back to court in late February, saying she wasn't being allowed sufficient access to her husband. Last month, Scanlan switched the guardianship to Marshall's longtime nurse.

Still to come is the battle over the multimillionaire's fortune, the size of which is uncertain. Forbes magazine reported his assets were $525 million in 1991, making him one of the richest people in Houston.

Ms. Kornblit said Ms. Smith will press for half of whatever Marshall earned during their 13-month marriage.

"She's entitled to that," the attorney said. The probate proceedings have not yet been scheduled.

The entire affair has become monologue fodder for late-night TV hosts David Letterman and Jay Leno. It also has brought a flood of tabloid reporters and photographers hoping for a glimpse of the grieving buxom blonde widow.

Ms. Smith bid her husband farewell at a memorial service that included a white baby grand piano, goose liver hors d'oeuvres and bottled water. She wore a revealing white dress and veil and sang a song to her husband as a small black dog scurried around the funeral home.

She was accompanied by a 9-year-old son, Daniel, from a previous marriage. The boy wore a white tuxedo.

Ms. Smith will not be attending Marshall's private family funeral, her lawyer said.

"She's not invited, just as they weren't invited to the one she had on Monday," Ms. Kornblit said.

King Ranch

automobile, the King Ranch was more recognized by the public for its horses than its cattle. People came from throughout the United States to buy a King Ranch horse. It was the most desirable place to buy a horse in South Texas.

The King Ranch used the finest leather to make saddles that would not rub sores on the horses. And the rough-and-tumble Kineros often needed some sort of tack or saddle repair. So everything was taken care of at the ranch.

Not long after the Civil War, the formal operation of the King Ranch Saddle Shop began, according to historians. Eventually saddles and other gear made at the Saddle Shop were offered for sale through catalogs. So both the retail and mail-order operations, like the ranch, have long traditions.

"Our real history and our real roots is with the saddle," Childers said. "We're not going back to the saddles, but the heritage."

To be sure, the King Ranch still is making saddles and doing other leather work. For now, until apprentices can be trained by the master saddle maker to produce the quality leather work that is the tradition of the King Ranch, only two or three saddles are being made a month, Childers said.

Basic saddles start at about $1,400, he said, but many customers are willing to pay much more than that for special features. Childers talks about the quality of saddles turned out by the Saddle Shop, but he almost cringes if the shop is referred to as a "Western" store, an image he hopes is fading.

"We are a fashion-conscious store that we believe offers true value to our customers," Childers said. As much as Childers looks at the King Ranch's heritage for merchandising strategy, he is looking forward to ways to sustain the momentum of the retail operation in years to come.

"Mail order is where our future lies," Childers says. The annual catalog, featuring nothing but Saddle Shop products, will come out in September, and another large mailout, the Christmas catalog, will come out in November, Childers said. Some of the catalog items will have price reductions from previous catalogs, he said.

"We are trying to cut down our cost, but not our value," Childers said.

Snyderman said that reducing prices without reducing value was an excellent strategy to compete in the increasingly competitive arena of mail-order sales, especially when the well-known King Ranch name already adds value to the retail products.

One of the most popular catalog items is the "Jumbo Journeyman," a $495 luggage piece that, except for the wheels, is assembled at the King Ranch. The King Ranch does not hold the patent on the wheels. Somewhat surprisingly, the King Ranch had not been using hides from its own herds for the leather in its retail operation.

But the Saddle Shop, in part fueled by the expectations of consumers, has developed a new strategy. Leather from King Ranch cattle recently was prepared for the manufacturing process for the first time since the new retail strategy began, Childers said.

These are new times for King Ranch Inc., which recently named 50-year-old Jack Hunt as its president and chief executive officer. Hunt ran the Tejon Ranch in California, another large ranch with a rich heritage and diverse interests. The King Ranch still has 60,000 head of cattle which roam on South Texas ranchlands about equal in acreage to the state of Rhode Island. It planted about 63,000 acres of cotton and milo this year.

But King Ranch Inc. is placing a new emphasis on nonagriculture enterprises, like the retail and direct marketing industries. "This mail-order business," Kleberg said. "It's very appealing."
