Pair bring out complaints at county budget meeting

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A budget hearing for Deaf Smith County attracted only four citizens Thursday night but two of those attending were highly vocal in their criticism and demands.

The county's budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 will be adopted at a regular Commissioners' Court meeting Monday at 9 a.m. A two-cent

Walcott tax rate stays at '94-'95 rate

Walcott school trustees on Thursday approved a district tax rate of $0.9757 per $100 valuation, keeping the rate stable for a second year.

Superintendent Bill McLaughlin said the tax rate was the third lowest in the Panhandle last year, behind only Silverton's $0.96 and Turkey-Quitaque's $0.97.

Walcott School serves grades K-5 through sixth, with 91 students enrolled this year.

McLaughlin said construction is on-going now on a project to reroof the school gymnasium.

Trustees approved the project last month, and construction is expected to be completed within a week.

McLaughlin said the next phase in the gymnasium project would be to repaint the walls and install new lights.

The walls will be painted glossy white to better reflect light inside the gym.

Walcott School is located 31 miles northwest of Hereford in rural Deaf Smith County.

tax increase is projected for the deficit spending plan.

Elmer Carlson told commissioners, "you know you haven't cut back on expenditures. If we have to cut down, why don't you cut back?"

Carlson was critical of the pay for commissioners, observing "city and school don't pay the commission and board."

Judge Tom Simons defended the general operations budget of $3.5 million, saying, "The budget basically is the same as last year."

However, revenue was reduced significantly -- approximately $400,000 -- by the loss of income for housing state prison inmates, Simons explained. He called the loss "devastating" to the budget.

He also pointed out that insurance costs rise every year and costs of paper and supplies have increased.

Carlson said, "You got a raise," a claim Simons immediately refuted.

"There was a five percent raise in the current budget but none for the next year," he declared.

Addressing Carlson, Simons continued, "If you think everyone in this courthouse hasn't tried to bring down the budget, you're mistaken."

Simons mentioned several items taken out of the budget, including $70,000 for a new elevator for the courthouse and new vehicles for the sheriff's department.

Another citizen, Wayne Betzen, asked the commission why services couldn't be cut to bring the budget down and eliminate the need for a tax increase.

"Take extension," said Betzen, "for the number of people participating, the dollar per person is high."

"Do you think it's a lot of money for extension. If you have to buy a pickup, why $21,000 instead of $12,000?"

Simons said the vehicle is used frequently to transport youth to activities.

"The parents can haul kids. I don't think it's our job to haul kids. The kids can pay their way."

Betzen also insisted that "services can be cut without adverse effects."

He insisted the county library could be cut by 10 percent without "adversely affecting anyone."

Simons said $15,000 already had been taken out of the library budget for new carpet.

"I got a call from the librarian (Rebecca Walls) the other day," he said. "She told me the carpet won't last another year."

Simons said the carpet has not been replaced in the library since it was built, "it must be 20 years old."

Betzen also asked about pay of employees and drew a response from Simons.

"You try to keep employees," Simons said. "What's really happening is county employees are subsidizing county government."

Betzen returned to the question of costs of extension service, asking if the county reduced salary supplements, would the state make up the difference.

"No," replied Simons. "Are we required to pay," questioned Betzen.

"Yes, we are," said Simons.

Betzen then asked if the commission knows what the total salary is for Agriculture Agent Dennis Newton.

Simons said the county does not have figures on agents' state salaries.

Commissioner Troy Don Moore of Precinct 3 said the commission "arrived at a fair budget" for what we are accomplishing.

"Do you think residents would be happy if services are cut," Betzen questioned.

"I don't know that we could," said Moore. "Services are pretty basic now. I don't know which ones could be cut."

Betzen insisted that the library and museum could be "cut 10 percent" and suggested that reductions be made in extension.

"If a majority of county residents want to cut back, wouldn't that be a guideline?" Betzen continued.

"We're elected to do the best we can for the county," answered Simons. "We can't have a vote every time we do something."

The proposed county budget for the next year projects general fund expenditures of $3,556,244 and road and bridge expense of $874,200.

On a tax base of $498,896,788, revenue generated by a 52-cent tax rate is estimated at $2,594,500. With other income of $1,075,450, total revenue will be approximately $3,353,585.

Burr fire continues to burn

A cotton burr fire has been burning just east of Hereford for three weeks, prompting calls to officials about the blaze.

However, Fire Marshal Jay Spain said Friday morning, the fire department has worked on the fire repeatedly.

"We've been out there about six or seven times and you can't put them out," Spain said. "They just re-ignite."

Spain said spontaneous combustion keeps the ground burrs burning.

"It's just going to sit there and burn up," Spain said, because the fire department does not have the manpower, water-handling capability -- or the water, for that matter -- to completely extinguish the slow-burning blaze.

"We just don't have enough water and can't haul enough water out there to put it out," he said.

To date, Spain said, firefighters have put in 18-1/2 hours on the blaze, translating to nearly 200 man-hours considering the number of firefighters called to the scene each time.

Spain said the federal Environmental Protection Agency has been out to the scene and will deal with the situation.

As for the fire, he said, "It'll lay there and it'll smolder a couple more weeks and then it'll go out -- we hope."

He said the fire poses no dangers except for the bothersome smoke in the air and the accompanying odor.

Forecasters hoping for spending resurgence in fall

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The economy, after grinding to a near standstill, will be revived this fall by a resurgence in consumer spending on big-ticket items such as houses and furniture.

That's the hope, at least, of economic forecasters. But they concede that the risk of a recession is still very real if, for some reason, consumer confidence begins to wobble.

The most pessimistic forecasters are contending that a glut of unsold products will force more cutbacks in factory production and virtually guarantee a recession next year.

The pessimists got support for their views on Thursday, when the government reported that orders to factories for big-ticket durable goods skidded 1.7 percent in July, the fifth decline this year.

Elliott Platt, chief economist at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities in New York, saw ominous signs in the factory orders report, particularly in the component that measures orders by businesses for new capital goods such as computers

"This report may very well mark the beginning of the end of the expansion that began in March 1991," and machinery. Strength in this category has been a driving force behind the current expansion.

"This report may very well mark the beginning of the end of the expansion that began in March 1991," Platt said. He said the economy would probably be in a downturn by this time next year, certainly an unappealing prospect for a president facing re-election.

But other economists insisted that they see no recession storm clouds on the horizon yet and forecast that the economy, which slowed to an anemic

Licenses can be taken if payments not made Morales issues warning about new support law

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas officials are ready to use a new state law designed to keep deadbeat parents from driving.

On Thursday, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales announced that 50,000 Texans who owe back child support would be receiving a letter warning them about the new law, which allows suspension of driver's, professional and recreational licenses.

Roughly $1 billion in back child support is owed in Texas. The state expects to collect $500 million from cooperating parents this year, said Assistant Attorney General Charles Childress, director of the state's child support division.

Morales touted the measure as a tool to help recover an additional $20 million annually for Texas children.

"There are some who believe this is an extreme and drastic measure. I don't believe it is," Morales said. "I believe it's an extreme and drastic situation to have children who need adequate food, clothing and shelter and parents who seemingly don't care."

The law goes into effect Sept. 1. In most situations, deadbeat parents will receive a first notice, informing them that they are candidates for license suspension and allowing them to devise a payment plan for what they owe.

A second notice will follow about a month later, detailing which licenses will be suspended.

If the parent fails to respond in 20 days following the second notice, license suspension occurs.

"Our goal is not to collect licenses," Morales said. "Our goal is to collect back child support."

Some have criticized the law, saying a parent won't be able to pay back child support without being able to drive or perform licensed work.

Others have said it may unfairly punish parents who are unemployed or have missed work because of illness and simply don't have the money to pay.

"Thousands of Texans have fallen behind in their support obligations because of catastrophe," said Stuart

A. Miller, a spokesman for the American Fathers Coalition in Washington. "It is akin to tyranny when government agencies steal money from sick and downtrodden citizens."

Morales said, "Everyone will have the opportunity to arrange a payment plan. Only if they refuse to pay child support will they lose their licenses."

Man stabbed twice in late-night fight

An 18-year-old Hereford man is in stable condition today at Hereford Regional Medical Center after he was stabbed twice in an altercation Thursday night.

Police were called to the 500 block of Whittier at 11:46 p.m., where they were told the victim, Juan Munoz of 512 Brevard, had been taken to the hospital by private vehicle.

Capt. Pat Michael said police met with a witness to the incident and with the victim to determine what happened.

A witness told police Munoz and a 14-year-old male got involved in a fist fight. Munoz had been visiting at 509 Whittier, but got into the fight at 511 Whittier.

The witness said the suspect pulled a large knife and stabbed Munoz in the stomach and the back, then fled through her house and away from the scene.

Munoz told officers the stabbing and fight were part of an ongoing feud between his family and the suspect's family.

Munoz suffered a stab wound just above his navel and one in the lower right back.

He was in stable condition on the HRMC medical-surgical floor Friday morning.

Michael said the suspect had not been apprehended as of Friday morning, and that a police investigation into the incident is continuing.

"While the jury is still out on how strong the rebound will be, I see no real recession signs out there."

-TRADE. A widening trade deficit has been a drag on the economy through most of this recovery and analysts see no chance that will turn around this year. With the economy still reeling in Mexico, which had been America's third largest export market, most analysts are predicting the United States is headed to its worst merchandise trade deficit in history, a gap of possibly $188 billion.

-GOVERNMENT. The government sector also has been a drag on overall growth for the past three years, reflecting the big cutbacks in defense spending. With the Republican-controlled Congress intent on shrinking domestic programs to achieve a balanced budget in seven years, analysts believe this trend will continue.

-EMPLOYMENT. The government reported Thursday that new claims for unemployment benefits climbed by another 10,000 last week, reflecting continued weakness in labor markets. The unemployment rate edged back up to 5.7 percent in July as job growth slowed dramatically. Through July, payroll jobs have been rising at a monthly average of 133,000 this year.

Coming in Sunday's Brand

Just imagine being able to walk the halls of Congress, to meet with U.S. Representatives and to experience first-hand how our American government works.

That is just what Nathan Diller of Hereford did for part of this summer, when he served as a congressional page in Washington D.C.

The job, under the sponsorship of U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, was the culmination to a summer that saw Diller experience government at both the state and national levels.

On Sunday, meet him and learn about his unique trip.

Also, city officials are hoping to make the Hereford Aquatic Center park a showplace that was created through the cooperation of every citizen of the community.

With its winding walking path, fishing pond and planned playground, the park has become a priority for the commission.

On Sunday, Georgia Tyler looks at the project, what officials hope will be included in it and how citizens can help put it together.

Harry Wu hailed for bravery in China

Government releases human rights activist after sentencing

By CATALINA ORTIZ, Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - After risking imprisonment to expose human rights abuses in his native China, Harry Wu returned home to a hero's welcome and praise from those grateful for his bravery.

"All the papers should have a headline saying, 'Thank you, China. By freeing Harry, you proved he was right,'" said Wu's friend Ignatius Ding.

Wu, who spent 19 years in Chinese labor camps before emigrating to the United States and becoming a citizen, was detained in China two months ago. He was expelled Thursday after being convicted of spying and sentenced to a 15-year prison term.

He will have to serve the sentence if he is caught again in China, said Jeff Fiedler, director of the Laogai Research Foundation founded by Wu.

Wu, 58, told reporters outside his home that he is proud to be an American. While being detained, he said, Chinese officers sometimes told him "America can do nothing."

"I think they can only destroy man but I don't think they can defeat them," he said in his heavy Chinese accent. "I quite remember what Ernest Hemingway said - that man is made not for defeat."

Wu's speedy expulsion could help improve U.S.-China relations, which have sunk to their lowest level since diplomatic ties were established in 1979. Resolution of his case also opens the door for first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton to attend the United Nations' Fourth World Conference on Women, which begins Sept. 4 in Beijing.

Her attendance would be a feather in China's cap, but she has delayed a decision on whether to attend.

Supporters said Wu's ordeal could focus world attention on China's poor human rights record. He was arrested during his fifth clandestine trip to China to expose abuses in the laogai, or "reform-through-labor," system.

Dozens of supporters, many carrying "Welcome Home" signs and yellow roses, crowded around Wu's wife, Ching-Lee, as she waited to greet her husband at San Francisco International Airport.

But they did not get to see Wu because his wife met him on the runway and they immediately left for their home in Milpitas, 40 miles southeast of San Francisco.

Wu, born Wu Hongda, was a student when he was imprisoned in labor camps as a counterrevolutionary several years after denouncing the Soviet Union's 1956 invasion of Hungary. In the camps, Wu's arm was broken in a beating to punish him for hiding Western books, his back was broken by runaway carts in a coal mine and he weighed an emaciated 80 pounds.

He came to this country in 1985, and began his secret trips to China in 1991 to research, document and film abuses in the laogai system.

His television documentaries showing widespread use of prison labor to manufacture exports and the transplanting of organs from executed prisoners earned him international attention. He became a frequent witness at congressional hearings on China's human rights abuses.

Wu was taken into custody June 19 as he attempted to enter China at a remote border crossing with Kazakhstan. His trial was not open to foreign news reporters and was not publicly announced in advance.

Wu reportedly had trouble standing unaided during the trial, and Mrs. Wu worried about his health before his arrival. But airport spokesman David Wilson said Wu declined a wheelchair and walked on his own.

Wu underwent a quick medical exam before leaving the airport.

Mrs. Wu would not discuss her husband's possible plans. But she and his friends were certain Wu would continue to fight for human rights.

"Harry will keep on doing what is good - what he thinks he should do," Mrs. Wu said.

No proof, lawyer says, in Erdmann gun case

SEATTLE (AP) - A former Texas pathologist who lost his job for faking and botching autopsies did not really possess a fully automatic weapon that was found in his storage locker, a defense lawyer says.

Nor did prosecutors prove the M-16 owned by Ralph Erdmann was a machine gun as defined by Washington state law, defense attorney Steve said.

Both claims are absurd, deputy prosecutor Lynne Kalina argued before the machine gun possession case went to a King County Superior Court jury Thursday.

"This is a machine gun and there's no doubt about it," Kalina said. Conviction carries a maximum penalty of a year in prison.

Witchley said Erdmann forgot he had brought the gun into the state and questioned whether he "possessed" it - as far as the law was concerned - when it was in a storage locker four miles from his home.

Judge Patricia Aitken told the jury Erdmann should be found innocent if he "did not know the gun was in his possession."

The case is the latest blow to Erdmann, 69, once well-known for handling autopsies and related forensic work in more than 40 counties in west Texas.

Three years ago he was placed on 10 years probation after he pleaded no contest to fabricating a few autopsies and bungling others. In one case, a murder charge was dropped because Erdmann lost the victim's head, which contained the fatal gunshot wound.

His troubles did not cease after he moved to Washington state.

On May 23, 20 days after police investigating another matter at Erdmann's home in suburban Redmond found 122 weapons, he was indicted in Canyon, Texas, on charges of evidence-tampering and aggravated perjury in a capital murder case.

After the M-16 and other weapons were found, Erdmann was arrested for investigation of being a felon in possession of a weapon, but that charge applies in Washington only to felons convicted of a violent crime.

Texas officials said possession of firearms is grounds for revoking his probation, and Hockley County District Attorney Gary Goff said he would seek the return of Erdmann for consideration of that issue.

Parents' role important in helping toddlers deal with going to school

By MIA B. MOODY
Waco Tribune-Herald
WACO, Texas - Your toddler has been going to school for a week now, but he still cries each time you drop him off. Sound familiar? It's not uncommon.

The back-to-school jitters are something that almost every toddler experiences during the first few weeks of school. It's hard for youngsters to leave familiar surroundings behind and adapt to new environments.

It's the parents' role to stay calm and make the transition as comfortable as possible. To do this, honesty is the best policy, said Laura Middleton, parent of a 4-year-old son and a teacher at Waco Montessori School.

What works for her son, Brent, is letting him know exactly what to expect, she said. It's important to mention school casually without harping on it. Let the child know you will not be separated forever, Middleton said.

I tell Brent, "I'm going to work, but I'm coming back," she said. Once you get to school, make the goodbye short and sweet, she said. But don't duck out when the child is not looking. Say something like, "Goodbye, I love you and I'll be back."

It is also important to be positive, said Gloria McFarling, a nurse at Waco Christian School. Let children know that school is fun and educational and don't use it as a punishment.

Nutrition is another important factor, McFarling said. If children eat before they go to school, they have one less worry.

"Children interpret hunger in different ways," she said. "If their tummy hurts, they may associate that pain with going to school."

McFarling said parents should also make sure their children get enough rest at night. If they wake up grumpy, that's a sign that they need to go to bed earlier.

Grumpiness will only complicate the transition from home to school, she said. Children are easier to get dressed and off to school if they have had enough sleep.

Betty Murphy, principal and a teacher at Waco Christian School, said parents of children who are really having a tough time adjusting to school may try sending a favorite toy or stuffed animal with the child.

It is not as traumatic for children if they are able to sit with something with which they are familiar, she said. They can also discuss the day with their special friend once they get home.

Murphy recommends that parents tell children what time they are going to come back and suck to it. If children are too young to tell time, parents can give them a frame of reference such as a few minutes after nap time or right after lunch.

Parents of usually criers should remember that it is usually not as bad as it seems, Murphy said.

"Parents who stand outside the door and look in on the child through two-way mirror, will discover that they usually stop crying as soon as they leave," she said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was growing up in the '50s, my mother and the other women in our neighborhood would good-naturedly joke every August about how happy they were that school was about to begin again. I have three children, but if I joked about such a thing today, I would be made to feel like a terrible mother.

Most moms today will say, "The summer went by so quickly. I'll miss the kids when they go back to school." I find these statements absolutely hilarious since these are the same mothers whose children knock on my door at 9 a.m. all summer.

Their children help themselves to drinks from my fridge, eat lunch here, play "treasure hunt" and "search for dinosaur bones," a game I made up for my own kids. Sometimes they are here eight hours straight and not one parent will call to see where their children are or ask how they're doing.

I've put bandages on cuts, ice on bruises, broken up fights, listened to silly jokes, made cookies and removed gum from hair. But I'm not complaining. I realize I'm fortunate to be able to stay home and raise my kids myself. The families I'm talking about can also afford the luxury of having one parent stay home, but they choose not to. They either work or go to club meetings or play tennis or golf, and hire nannies and baby sitters to care for their kids.

To be perfectly frank, I'll be happy when school begins, not because I want to be rid of my children, but because I've seen a little too much of the neighbor's kids. -- Midwest Mother

DEAR MIDWEST: You sound like a great mom, a good neighbor and a valuable friend. I suspect, however, that your sweet disposition has made it too easy for people to impose on you. Toughen up, honey.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in response to the woman who signed herself "Too Tall and Hate It." She could never find any clothes that fit. I also am 6 feet tall and have had my bad moments, such as not dating in high school and being asked how the air is up there. At age 63, I am still being asked by total strangers how tall I am.

However, I CAN find clothes. I shop a lot from the Penney's Tall Catalog. They even have Ultra Talls. Also, I get a wonderful catalog from New Jersey called Long Elegant Legs. (I had to shorten the sleeves on a blazer I ordered from them.) There are other catalogs that feature clothes I can wear if I am careful about the waistline.

I attribute my pride in my height to my mother, who is 5 feet 8 inches tall, and was considered very tall in her generation. By example, she taught me to be happy with what I had, and it didn't hurt to hear her say that we tall people can eat anything we want within reason and not get fat.

My husband, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall, and I will celebrate our 40th wedding anniversary in June. We have three lovely daughters, none of whom is quite as tall as I am. They can all wear "real people" clothes, including pants.

Isn't there an organization for tall people? None of us can do a thing about our size, so I just enjoy it. -- West Virginia

DEAR W. VA.: Thanks for the input on behalf of all the long-stemmed beauties you helped today. There is indeed an organization for tall people. It is Tall Clubs International, P.O. Box 13, Stafford, Texas 77497, or call 1-800-521-2512, and leave a message. (For teenagers, ask about Skywriters.)

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Ty Boggeman of Hereford won a go-round of breakaway roping in his age group at the 19th Annual Gray County 4-H Youth Rodeo, which was held earlier this month in Pampa.

Boggeman won the first go-round in the 15-18 age group.

Cowboys pick up Scott Case

IRVING, Texas (AP)--The Dallas Cowboys have added veteran defensive back Scott Case, but made it clear the 11-year Atlanta Falcon veteran isn't a threat to Brock Mariani for the starting free safety position.

The 6-foot-1, 188-pound Case agreed to a one-year, incentive-based contract for close to the minimum $178,000 salary. He improves the Cowboys defensive depth, solidifies third-down defense and can impact special teams.

But secondary coach Mike Zimmer emphasized that the strong safety's job belongs to Marion.

Griffey hits homer for Seattle victory

By MIKE FLAM
Associated Press Writer

If the first game-ending home run of Ken Griffey Jr.'s career wasn't enough evidence that his broken wrist is healed, the high-five he dished out and received should prove it.

The first 181 times Griffey homered in his seven-year career, his teammates waited until he reached the dugout before they congratulated him. But when his two-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning Thursday night rallied Seattle to a 9-7 victory over the Yankees, they mobbed him at home plate.

The Mariners, who were 0-43 when trailing after eight innings, rallied for three runs in the ninth off relief ace John Wetteland. The loss was the Yankees' sixth straight, their longest skid since September 1992.

"That's a heck of a way to finish a ball game," jubilant Mariners manager Lou Piniella said.

In other American League games, Boston beat Oakland 13-6, Milwaukee beat Minnesota 5-3, California beat Baltimore 6-4 and Kansas City beat Texas 5-3.

The Mariners trailed 7-6 entering the ninth inning, but Joey Cora's RBI single off the glove of Yankees shortstop Tony Fernandez with two outs tied it.

Griffey hit the next pitch into the second deck in right field for his 10th home run, and third since returning to the lineup from a broken left wrist.

Jeff Nelson (5-1) earned the Mariners' sixth victory in seven games against the Yankees this season.

Red Sox 13, Athletics 6
Boston won its sixth straight and 20th in its last 22 games by scoring all its runs in the first three innings at Oakland.

John Valentin homered and drove in five runs, Mo Vaughn hit his 32nd homer and Jose Canseco homered against his former team as the Red Sox expanded their lead in the AL East to 15 1/2 games, their largest margin since Sept. 10, 1946.

Vaughn took over the major league lead in RBIs with 99 and tied Frank Thomas of the Chicago White Sox for the major league lead in homers in support of Erik Hanson (13-4), who won his fifth straight game.

Steve Ontiveros (8-5), who had not pitched since July 15 because of a sore right elbow, allowed 10 runs in 2 1-3 innings.

Brewers 5, Twins 3
B.J. Surhoff homered twice and made two nice catches in left field as host Milwaukee pulled within 2 1/2 games of Texas in the wild-card race.

Ricky Bones (8-9) scattered seven hits in eight innings. Mike Fetters got the final three outs for his 20th save.

Brad Radke (9-12) allowed five hits in seven innings. Only 39 of his 112 pitches were balls.

Angels 6, Orioles 4
J.T. Snow ruined Cal Ripken's 35th birthday by tying his career highs with four hits and four RBIs in Anaheim, Calif.

Snow broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh with a two-run single off Arthur Rhodes (2-5), helping the Angels increase their AL West lead to 8 1/2 games and giving Marcel Lachemann his 100th victory as Angels manager.

Chuck Finley (13-8) won his third straight decision.

Ripken played in his 2,119th consecutive game. He is 11 games from tying Lou Gehrig's record for consecutive games played.

Royals 5, Rangers 3

Brent Mayne, who missed the three previous games with an injured left hand, singled in the go-ahead run in the fifth, and Tom Goodwin's two-run single gave host Kansas City a 5-2 lead.

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

This time, Chris Jones knew there was no doubt. On Wednesday, an umpire's call cost Jones a game-tying homer with two outs in the ninth inning. On Thursday night, he came up again with two outs in the bottom of the ninth and came through with a pinch-hit single that drove in the winning run.

"I guess I'm even now," Jones said after the New York Mets beat the San Diego Padres 5-4. "I was really trying to get yesterday out of my mind, but I couldn't."

In other NL games, Philadelphia beat Los Angeles 7-6 in 11 innings, San Francisco stopped Montreal 5-3, Colorado defeated Pittsburgh 8-6, St. Louis downed Cincinnati 6-5 and Chicago beat Florida 6-2.

A day earlier, Jones thought he'd tied the game with a solo home run, but the ball--which replays showed nicked the foul pole--was called foul by umpire Gary Darling. Jones struck out on the next pitch, finishing a 3-2 loss to San Francisco.

"I didn't get to bed until 3:30," Jones said. "Every channel I turned to had the play and I guess I must have seen it 38 times. I figured maybe after 20 or 30 times, somebody was going to say the decision was reversed and that I got the homer."

There was no dispute, though, after his RBI single to right capped a three-run rally in the ninth. A wild pitch by Trevor Hoffman (4-4) allowed one run to score, and Ryan Thompson tied it with a single, moving to second on left fielder Bip Roberts' throwing error. Jones singled off Doug Bochtler.

Phillies 7, Dodgers 6

Charlie Hayes, after waiting 10 minutes for Rudy Seanez to warm up to relieve injured Pedro Astacio, homered with two outs in the 11th inning at Veterans Stadium.

Astacio was hit in the knee by Darren Daulton's grounder, but made the play for the second out. After throwing a ball to Hayes, Seanez was forced to leave.

The Phillies won for the seventh time in eight games. Earlier in the day, Los Angeles had its appeal of this month's forfeit at Dodger Stadium denied by NL president Len Coleman.

Giants 5, Expos 3

Deion Sanders' daring baserunning helped set up Glenallen Hill's two-run double in the eighth inning as San Francisco sent Montreal to its sixth straight loss.

The Giants rallied for three runs in the eighth for their third consecutive win. Sanders singled to start the inning and took third on Barry Bonds' single.

The Expos had Bonds picked off, but Sanders broke for the plate, drew a throw and scrambled back to third while Bonds made it to second base. After an intentional walk to Matt Williams loaded the bases, Hill doubled off Mel Rojas.

Rockies 8, Pirates 6

Larry Walker broke the day in a slump and on the bench. He ended it with a homer in his first pinch-hitting appearance of the season, a three-run shot in the seventh inning at Coors Field.

Walker had only three hits in his previous 26 at-bats when he came to the plate with runners on first and second and no outs. After joking to Rockies manager Don Baylor that he should bunt, he connected against Jason Christiansen for his 28th homer.

Vinny Castilla hit his 30th homer for Colorado. Paul Wagner (2-12) lost again for Pittsburgh.

Cardinals 6, Reds 5

St. Louis, with the worst record in the NL, capped a 5-2 homestand against division leaders Cincinnati and Atlanta. The Cardinals won consecutive series for the first time since the All-Star break.

Ron Gant homered twice for the Reds, who overcame an early five-run deficit. Ray Lankford singled home the go-ahead run in the sixth for St. Louis.

Cubs 6, Marlins 2

Sammy Sosa hit his seventh home run in seven games as Chicago won at Wrigley Field. Florida finished a 2-9 road trip.

Sosa has 27 homers and 91 RBIs. His two-run shot in the seventh inning came after Brian McRae's third hit of the game.

Trainer Woody Stephens won the Belmont Stakes five years in a row, 1982 through 1986.

Eagles, Colts winners in preseason games

PITTSBURGH (AP)--Gary Anderson came back. Once again, the Pittsburgh Steelers offense didn't.

Anderson kicked three field goals despite missing twice and the Philadelphia Eagles, his new team, beat the Pittsburgh Steelers, his old one, 16-6 to complete their first unbeaten preseason in 34 years.

While a standing ovation and a few "Welcome Back, Gary" signs in Three Rivers Stadium were meaningful to Anderson, he insisted the preseason--even a perfect one for the Eagles (4-0)--really meant nothing.

The Steelers, who scored only 13 points in their final two exhibitions, certainly hope it doesn't. They finished 1-3 and still haven't had a winning preseason since 1988.

"It's fun. It's exciting," Anderson said Thursday. "But you've got to be careful not to make too much of it. It's only the preseason."

Regardless, new Eagles coach Ray Rhodes has found winning just as easy in Philadelphia as he did with the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers, whom he served as defensive coordinator.

However, the games don't count until Sept. 3, and the opposition's best players will be on the field in the fourth quarter, not just the first or second. And the Eagles still resemble the team that lost its final seven regular season games in 1994 more than they do Rhodes' old 49ers.

"We're still trying to put it together," Rhodes said. "We have to crawl before we can walk."

In the only other game Thursday night, Indianapolis beat Chicago 29-7.

Tonight, it's Cleveland at Arizona, Denver at Jacksonville, Atlanta at Buffalo, the New York Jets at Cincinnati, Washington at Green Bay, Detroit at New Orleans; Miami vs. Tampa Bay at Orlando, Fla.; New England vs. Oakland at Stanford, Calif., and St. Louis at San Diego.

On Saturday, it's Kansas City at Minnesota, the New York Giants at Carolina, Dallas vs. Houston at San Antonio and Seattle at San Francisco.

Rhodes' players, many of whom were unhappy under former coach Rich Kotite, are pleased to see a team that ended 1994 in disarray and confusion get off to a running start.

"We have depth and good coaching," said Randall Cunningham, who feuded openly late last season with Kotite, now coach of the New York Jets. "Now that we know we have good backups and we can play together, it makes a big difference. The offense doesn't lean on Randall Cunningham any more."

One backup, Charlie Garner, ran for 94 yards and the game's only touchdown, a 5-yarder in the third quarter, as the Eagles completed their first unbeaten preseason since 1961.

"We've worked a lot on our running game this preseason, and the passing game is going to click naturally, because we're going to do a lot of different things that we haven't done yet," Cunningham said.

Steelers quarterback Neil O'Donnell, only 3-for-10 with two interceptions, also expects a different offense when the starters begin playing more than a quarter. Of course, it can only get better for the Steelers, who are a combined 2-6 over the last two preseasons.

Bam Morris ran off 52 yards in the first quarter, for example, but didn't play again as the Steelers' only offense came from new kicker Norm Johnson, Anderson's heir apparent. He made both of his field-goal attempts, from 27 and 34 yards, after signing only three days before.

Hello, Norm Johnson. And, most likely, goodbye Dean Biasucci, who was 0-for-4 Saturday in the Steelers'

20-7 loss to Tampa Bay.

But while the Steelers may have found a kicker, getting their offense back might not come as easily. They threw three interceptions and, just as they frequently did last season, especially in their AFC championship game upset loss to San Diego, they self-destructed inside the 20-yard line.

Michigan loses star players, Wheatley, Collins go to NFL

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

Michigan will have a new look when it opens the college football season against Virginia in the Pigskin Classic.

Star players Tyrone Wheatley and Todd Collins have gone to the NFL. So has former coach Gary Moeller, hired as a Cincinnati Bengals assistant after Michigan forced him out following a drunken outburst at a restaurant.

But the losses haven't lessened expectations in Ann Arbor, where anything short of a Big Ten championship and trip to Pasadena is considered a disappointing season.

"Anyone who writes this team off does so at his own peril," said Lloyd Carr, who was promoted from defensive coordinator to head coach after Moeller's resignation.

The 14th-ranked Wolverines, who were 8-4 last season, should have another strong running attack despite the loss of Wheatley. His replacement, Tim Biakabutuka, gained 783 yards as a backup last season and averaged 6.2 yards per carry.

Replacing Collins at quarterback could be harder. Redshirt freshman Scott Dreisbach will make his first start against No. 17 Virginia.

"The thing I like about Scott is his toughness," Carr said. "He's not afraid to make mistakes."

Despite his inexperience, Dreisbach should have confidence throwing to Amani Toomer, Mercury Hayes and Jay Riemersma, the Wolverines' three top pass-catchers last year.

"I have the best situation coming in," Dreisbach said. "I look one way and see a great tight end. I look the other way and see two great wideouts lined up. That's pretty comforting to a guy in my situation."

Virginia, once a doormat in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has become a consistent winner under coach George Welsh. The Cavaliers were 9-3 last season, their eighth consecutive year with at least seven victories.

With 15 starters back, the streak should continue.

Quarterback Mike Groh, the ACC's leading passer last season, returns along with the team's two top rushers, Kevin Brooks and Tiki Barber.

On defense, seven starters return from a unit that intercepted more passes and allowed fewer rushing yards than any team in the nation.

Groh said the Cavaliers are looking forward to playing in historic Michigan Stadium on Saturday.

"Most of our guys have seen that stadium on TV and heard that fight song," he said. "I think it will be exciting to play there."

The Cavaliers won't be excited when the game's over. Look for Michigan, a 7-point favorite, to give Carr a winning debut as head coach ... MICHIGAN 24-14.

The following day, No. 12 Ohio State meets No. 22 Boston College in the Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

Ohio State's offense will feature Bobby Hoyle, who tied a school record with 19 TD passes last season, and Eddie George, who rushed for 1,422 yards. Anchoring the defense are junior ends Matt Finkes and Mike Vrabel, who combined for 23 sacks in 1994.

Boston College, a 3-point underdog, has Mark Hartsell back at quarterback but must replace defensive standouts Stephen Boyd and Mike Mamula.

Both teams have brutal schedules, so an opening victory would be a nice confidence builder. ... OHIO STATE 21-14.

Texas Little League team going to finals

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)--Spring, Texas, is headed to the championship game of the Little League World Series.

The team from the Houston suburb beat Yorba Linda, Calif., 3-1 on Thursday behind the pitching of Michael Cepeda, who threw a two-hitter and struck out 13.

On Saturday, Spring will face Taiwan, which beat the Dominican Republic 1-0 in seven innings.

Kyle Foster, a 4-foot-9 shortstop, went 2-for-3 with two doubles for the Texans. He had an RBI and scored the run that put the Spring ahead in the bottom of the fifth.

"This is the opportunity I've dreamed about my whole life," said Foster, 12. "I can't wait."

Taiwan is the heavy favorite to win its 16th Little League championship, but that doesn't bother Foster.

"We've got a heart as big as Texas and that wins ball games," he said.

Against Yorba Linda, Foster led off with a ground-rule double, advanced to third on Christopher Conway's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Cepeda.

After sliding headfirst, which will be illegal in Little League next year, Foster high-stepped into the dugout, exchanging high-fives and hugs with everyone within reach.

Manager Don Turley encouraged his players to relax after Wednesday's 12-1 loss to Arden Hills, Minn.

"He came in the room laughing and smiling," Foster said.

Dominican manager Eduardo Sosa was too distraught to discuss the loss.

"He's really having a hard time," said interpreter Micah Rogers, who has been with the team all week. "The pressure to win on a team from a country like the Dominican Republic is greater than it is on the Americans."

With one out in the bottom of the seventh, Bens reached on an error, but he was forced at second. Soriano then stole second, but the game ended on Cesar Alcantara's strikeout.

"This is the first time Taiwan has been involved in such a tough game," Taiwan manager Tzyy-Tsan Wang said. "This is the very first time in the World Series that I thought I might lose a game."

Cotton Bowl confident in new sponsorship

DALLAS (AP)--The Cotton Bowl is confident it will tie the knot with a new corporate sponsor but is in no rush to get to the altar, according to a bowl official.

"We're not going to go diving off a cliff," John Crawford, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, said Thursday. "One of the things we want to do is make sure we make the right choice and not just take somebody or anybody."

The fate of the 59-year-old Cotton Bowl Classic has been uncertain since Mobil Corp. withdrew its sponsorship in March.

"If somebody was to call us and say, 'We want to be your sponsor for one year, we wouldn't do it,'" Crawford said. "We want somebody who's interested in sports marketing and what the Cotton Bowl represents."

Crawford said the bowl has talked with or has scheduled meetings with several potential sponsors, whom he declined to identify.

The Cotton Bowl, which paid $3 million to each team last Jan. 1 with Mobil's support, will pay each team $2 million for next year's game, he said.

By then or soon thereafter, the Cotton Bowl hopes to have a new sponsor to help sweeten the pot.

Adding to the Cotton Bowl's recent woes was the decision last August by college football's Tier 1 Bowl Alliance to award what is hoped will be the national championship game to the Fiesta, Orange and Sugar bowls on a rotating basis for three years.

After that, a new arrangement will be negotiated.

"That's really the bottom line," Crawford said. "Nothing's going to happen for three years. It gives us some time. And we think we might have a chance to draw a seat back up at the table" with the other major bowls.

The chances of doing that will be enhanced with a major sponsor, Crawford said.

Two pitchers have won 40 games or more, Jack Chesbro of the Yankees in 1904, when he won 41, and Ed Walsh of the White Sox with 40 in 1908.

Anniversary of Ludwig's birth raises interest in how he died

By TERRENCE PETTY
Associated Press Writer
BONN, Germany (AP) - Did a power-hungry uncle murder Ludwig II, Bavaria's 19th century "mad king" who was accused of dining with his horse and conversing with statues? Or did insanity drive Ludwig to drown himself in an alpine lake?

With Ludwig's 150th birthday coming up on Friday, a real-life whodunnit that stretches back to his death in 1886 has been revived by newspapers, magazines and TV programs that are speculating on the cause of his demise.

Ludwig came from a report by psychiatrists who never examined him, but were ordered by politicians and members of his family to make the diagnosis used to dethrone him.

That report says Ludwig spoke of wanting to fly across the sky in a chariot pulled by peacocks. Witnesses were quoted as saying he ordered young servants to play children's games with him, had his favorite horse at the table while dining, and discoursed out loud with a marble bust of one of his ancestors.

Ludwig was a patron of Wagner, and often had performances of the operas staged for himself alone.

1912. His own son became the last king of Bavaria, losing the throne at the end of World War I.

In 1986, the Wittelsbach family, descendants of Luitpold, let a Munich prosecutor have a look at papers it had kept secret since Ludwig's death. The prosecutor concluded that Ludwig committed suicide.

But that hasn't stifled suspicions of foul play.

Some people believe Ludwig's death was engineered by Luitpold or someone else in the royal house. Ludwig's obsessive castle-building was carried out with state money guaranteed by the Wittelsbach family's personal funds, according to the official guides at the castles.

"Ludwig's death was never cleared up. I think it was murder, and most people in Bavaria agree," says Hannes Heidl, the leader of a King Ludwig fan club in Munich.

The mystery is like a Shakespearean tragedy, complete with conniving relatives, suspicions that Ludwig's true father was his grandfather, and foreign agents who might also have had a hand in Ludwig's death.

Ludwig is loved in Bavaria, where many people call him eccentric, not insane, and the sad victim of political intrigue. Gala dinners, alpine fairs and other celebrations are planned in Bavaria for his birthday.

Still, Ludwig was highly popular with the locals. He was a dandy over whom women swooned, and although he was briefly engaged to a cousin, he never married. The royal court did all it could to hush up Ludwig's homosexuality.

On June 8, 1886, Ludwig was judged insane by a royal court commission and ordered off the throne.

He was taken to Castle Berg, and soldiers went from house to house nearby, ordering citizens to stay in their homes. This action unleashed rumors immediately after Ludwig's death that he had been murdered.

Immediately after his death, the castles were opened to tourists to recoup the money.

But, German recent news reports say Ludwig got up to 6 million marks ($4 million in today's money) from Prussia's chancellor, Otto von Bismarck, in exchange for the Bavarian king's allegiance. Bavarians don't like to talk about the Prussian connection because of a centuries-long rivalry, but fears of Prussian control may have been another reason why locals wanted Ludwig dead.

Others think Ludwig was murdered by assassins from Prussia, possibly because of his support of democratic ideas opposed to the ideal of a Greater Prussia ruled by the Kaiser.

Some believe that Gudden was also involved in the plot to kill Ludwig and the two drowned in a struggle, or that the psychiatrist was killed because he knew too much.

Ludwig's body was found in nearby Starnberger Lake on June 13, 1886. So was the corpse of Bernhard von Gudden, a psychiatrist who had helped write the report declaring Ludwig insane.

The two men were last seen alive as they left the castle to take a walk. According to one report, Gudden, who was assigned to care for Ludwig, had waved back two watchmen whose job it had always been to follow the king when he went out.

Ludwig's brother, Otto, was also judged mentally ill. Ludwig's uncle Luitpold was named prince regent and ruled Bavaria until his death in

More than 900,000 copies of The Hereford Brand were distributed in 1994. If your advertising message was not included in many of these issues, you need to call Mauri Montgomery or Julius Bodner, 364-2030, and let them put together an advertising schedule to fit your budget.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

FIRST BISHOP OF ROME!

LINUS WAS AN EARLY CHRISTIAN IN ROME, A FRIEND TO BOTH ST. PAUL AND TIMOTHY. HIS NAME IS MENTIONED BUT ONCE IN THE BIBLE, BY ST. PAUL IN HIS LETTER TO TIMOTHY (II TIM. 4:21). THAT THE FIRST BISHOP OF ROME, AFTER THE APOSTLES, WAS NAMED LINUS IS ACCEPTED BY ALL THE ANCIENT HISTORIANS. THE ASSERTION BY IRENAEUS, AND CORROBORATED BOTH BY EUSEBIUS AND THEODORET IS SUFFICIENT PROOF THAT THE BISHOP AND ST. PAUL'S FRIEND WERE ONE AND THE SAME! THE DATE OF HIS APPOINTMENT AND THE LIMITS OF HIS AUTHORITY ARE POINTS THAT ARE OBSCURED BY TIME AND HISTORY, ALTHOUGH EUSEBIUS STATES THAT HE BECAME BISHOP OF ROME AFTER THE DEATH OF ST. PETER. THE DURATION OF HIS OFFICE IS GIVEN BY EUSEBIUS AS A.D. 68-80! IT IS PRESUMED THAT LINUS WAS BISHOP IN ROME ONLY OF THE CHRISTIANS OF GENTILE ORIGIN, WHILE AT THE SAME TIME ANOTHER BISHOP HAD AUTHORITY OVER OLDER JEWISH CHRISTIANS! NO LOFTY PRE-EMINENCE WAS ATTACHED TO THE OFFICE. IN THOSE DAYS, IN FACT, IT WAS DOWNRIGHT DANGEROUS AS ALL CHRISTIANS WERE LIABLE TO BEING HUNTED DOWN, PERSECUTED AND MARTYRED! AND IN FACT, THIS WAS THE WAY LINUS' LIFE DID END - AS IT DID FOR SO MANY OF THE EARLY CHRISTIANS!

Granddaughter of Korean immigrant could become First Lady of United States

By CALVIN WOODWARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wendy Lee Gramm's grandfathers emigrated from Korea to Hawaii to work in sugar cane fields. Her father became vice president at the company that farmed those fields. She became chief of a federal agency regulating futures trading in the sugar and other industries.

Each generation climbing higher up the ladder, the classic story of coming to America and making it. Mrs. Gramm may make it bigger still.

If her husband, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, wins the Republican presidential nomination and then the White House, this granddaughter of an indentured immigrant laborer and his Korean picture bride would become America's first first lady of Asian descent.

"My grandparents were not extraordinarily brilliant," she said in an interview. "They were ordinary people coming for a better opportunity. ... This is a story of an average American family, and it's a system that allows people to combine the talents ... to make a better life."

It's a neatly packaged account, one of several pieces of lore the Gramms have told repeatedly, with enthusiasm and political calculation, during his 17 years in Congress and her climb as an economist up the Washington bureaucracy.

"Now, I'm not sure that even Norman Rockwell could have captured that story in a painting," the senator told an audience.

He has used his wife's ethnic background as proof of Americans' open-mindedness, even as he supports immigration controls that might make it harder for unskilled laborers like her forebears to come to America today.

Mrs. Gramm, 50, refuses to entertain a suggestion that Republican positions on immigration may be a sour note in the Gramms' polished tale of an America enriched by and open to people like her family.

Along with wanting to shore up the borders, the senator backed the California ballot initiative to cut aid to illegal immigrants and he favors withholding welfare from legal immigrants.

"The vision of what brought my grandparents to this country, and the opportunities they had, is a vision that is very much worth fighting for,"

Mrs. Gramm said. "Most people recognize this is a country of immigrants."

But "we do have a system of rules," she said. "If you don't abide by the rules, there's a system of reward and punishment, and that's what we're getting away from."

Years ago, Gramm's strategists decided it "would help soften the senator's image" for the couple to appear together at major televised events, as a memo put it.

The 53-year-old senator has been called meaner than a junkyard dog. But his wife says he's "a lot of fun to be around. He's very affectionate."

She's an inveterate in-line skater, an activity that put her in the hospital for two nights in July with heat exhaustion suffered while skating 105 miles in a tour of steamy, hilly western Maryland. A few days later, she flew to California to campaign.

She takes five-minute power naps and can come across as a "bright, shiny person," as one friend says, but one with a focus and ambition no less strong for being less apparent.

Mrs. Gramm denies any interest in being a politically active partner in a package deal, saying, "Make no mistake about it - Phil is the one who's running. He's the candidate and I don't want ... a real job."

The two married in 1970 after a brief courtship while they were on the faculty of Texas A&M University. It's his second marriage. They have two sons, Marshall, named after British free-market economist Alfred Marshall, and Jefferson, after Thomas Jefferson.

After they moved to Washington with Gramm's first election to Congress in 1978, she carved out a powerful if arcane career in regulatory policy.

Mrs. Gramm became an assistant director at the Federal Trade Commission, a gatekeeper of federal rules for the Reagan White House and head of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission from 1988 until the end of the Bush administration.

It was there that she oversaw trading in futures and options in commodities such as sugar, and where she resisted efforts to expand government intrusion in financial markets.

Her firm free-market philosophy made her President Reagan's "favorite economist." She prides herself on having cut red tape and has recalled approaching distasteful compromises with the thought, "Do I have to kiss this pig?"

Educated at Wellesley College, she earned her doctorate in economics at Northwestern University before getting a teaching post at Texas A&M.

Mrs. Gramm glosses over questions about confronting racism, saying only that she was not held back by it professionally and it never "created a real problem."

"She's willing to be a traditional first lady," said Thomas Saving, head of an economic think tank at Texas A&M and a family friend for 25 years. "I don't think she wants any task force. But she'll have a huge influence on ... whatever she decides to tackle."
