Education board retains firms to manage money

Contracts call for $8.4 million to invest Permanent School Fund

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas is changing the way it handles its $12.2 billion public school trust fund by hiring private companies to invest part of the money and venturing for the first time into international markets.

Three companies are expected to receive $8.4 million annually to manage $3.5 billion of the fund, according to figures obtained by The Associated Press under the Texas Open Records Act.

The move is touted as a way to boost the return on the Permanent School Fund while improving its management by diversifying its portfolio and tapping into outside expertise.

But some are wary of the change, saying the state is tampering with success.

The State Board of Education approved the contracts - with Capital Guardian Trust Co. of Brea, Calif., Boston-based Wellington Management Co. and Harbor Capital Management Co. Inc., also based in Boston - after a study of the way the fund's assets are handled and with advice from investment experts.

The private companies will manage a portion of the $3.5 billion beginning this year, then more next year, subject to state oversight.

Of the total, $1.2 billion is to be invested in international markets.

The Permanent School Fund was created in 1854 with $2 million in U.S. indemnity bonds from settlement of Texas boundary claims against the United States. Public lands also were dedicated to the fund, which grows through oil and gas revenues from those lands and through capital gains from investments.

The hiring of outside managers isn't the only change being contemplated in the handling of the 141-year-old fund, which is expected to provide nearly $1.3 billion to school districts over the next two-year budget period.

The Education Board in September plans to consider a separate proposal to contract with a nonprofit corporation to manage the trust fund. Both the nonprofit corporation and external investment managers were allowed in the 1995 Legislature's rewrite of education laws.

The nonprofit corporation is being contemplated in order to remove Permanent School Fund staff from a Texas Education Agency employee cap and to allow them to be paid higher, more competitive salaries, according to board and staff discussions.

Backers say the proposal wouldn't decrease the State Board of Education's oversight of the fund.

They say it's part of a more active investment strategy and will allow the state to retain trained staff who typically leave to make more money in private industry.

An active investment management strategy, based on historical data, can be expected to yield as much as $64.2 million more annually than a passive strategy on an investment of $2 billion, according to Texas Education Agency figures.

Farmer's market

Denise Andrews of Andrews Produce, center, discusses this year's vegetable crop with potential customers at the Farmer's Market held Saturday. The market will be open every Saturday, Tuesday and Thursday starting at 5 p.m. at the west side of the Gibson's parking lot. An assortment of vegetables such as squash, corn, potatoes, onions, melons, and tomatoes will be available for purchase as they come in season.

Farm-state group active in Farm Bill

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The farm-state coalition in the House proved it is still a force to be reckoned with in the debate over agriculture spending for next year, House Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Roberts said.

"We are alive, we are well and we are kicking," Roberts, R-Kan., said of the farm-state group.

The "aggies," as the loosely defined bipartisan group of House members is known, fought to prevent the Appropriations Committee from slashing more money than the Agriculture Committee had expected for next year. Over seven years, the total cut could have reached $3 billion, including $400 million next year.

The farm-state group also turned back efforts at imposing reform through the annual agriculture spending bill, such as an amendment that would have cut off farm payments for anyone with $100,000 or more in off-farm income.

Roberts had hoped to have the farm bill on the House floor by the end of July, but the appropriations turf battle changed that. He now hopes to have the reauthorization of farm programs ready for floor consideration in September.

While savoring the votes over the spending bill, Roberts said he expects many farm program critics to again attempt major changes in the farm bill.

"We have a very tough challenge on our hands," Roberts told reporters

Monday. "I think we're going to have to have an effort at least as significant and aggressive if we're going to pass a farm bill."

The shape of that farm bill is still very much in flux. Consideration is being given to having the 1995 version cover seven years instead of the traditional five years, in keeping with Republican plans to balance the federal budget by 2002.

"We haven't made a final decision on that. For simplicity purposes, perhaps seven is a better number," he said.

WTPA convention held in San Angelo

Brand news, advertising departments win awards

The Hereford Brand walked away from last weekend's West Texas Press Association annual convention with four awards.

Publisher Speedy Nieman represented the Brand at the meeting held in San Angelo.

The newspaper's advertising department, headed by advertising director Mauri Montgomery, captured second place in the advertising composition division.

The news department captured three awards, including a second place honor in photography and third place finishes in feature writing and column writing.

The award for photography was presented based on entries last year, on Dec. 11 and Dec. 13.

The feature writing award was for two stories published during 1994 in the Brand -- one last October by Georgia Tyler on Holly Sugar and one last December by Garry Wesner on Ruth Black and her Santa Claus dolls.

The column writing award was for Wesner's weekly column "Out of the Blue."

In addition, the Brand was one of five newspaper participating in the general excellence competition. The Plainview Daily Herald won that award, with the Stephenville Empire-Tribune coming in second and the Pecos Enterprise winning third.

Depleted commission hears review of budget

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Deaf Smith County Commissioners, in a regular session Monday morning, appointed two election judges, approved bills and reports, and heard reports from Bobby Hammock of the Loss Control Committee, and Lou Serrano, county juvenile probation officer.

Commissioner Troy Don Moore presided at the meeting in the absence of County Judge Tom Simons. Commissioner Lupe Chavez was also out of town, leaving Moore and commissioners Tony Castillo and Johnny Latham to conduct business.

Moore called on County Auditor Alex Schroeter to "go over some of the big chunks" in the funding requests presented in the preliminary 1995-96 budget. In the last meeting in July, Schroeter had reported that budget requests totalled $3,724,847, or $238,954 more than budgeted for the current year, which ends Sept. 30.

Judge Simons, at the last meeting, had asked commissioners to consider cuts that might be taken in order to balance the budget. Schroeter said most of the department heads and elected officials' requests were not too far off the current budget, except for equipment, maintenance and computer upgrade requests.

The auditor suggested that commissioners need to decide if some of the current equipment is adequate, or if it was requested simply because taxpayers usually can provide the funds for better equipment.

Moore asked commissioners to pick out items that might be discussed, as to the need and priority, with department heads and elected officials. He set a tentative date of Aug. 3 to hold a workshop on the budget cuts.

In another report requested at last month's meeting, Commissioner Castillo outlined some cost estimates on making improvements on County Road 4. Ed Barrett has asked the county to consider improvements, saying the road was too narrow for trucks using the road.

Castillo said the road, covering 3.9 miles between US-60 and SH-1057, was 18 feet wide, but the shoulders are in poor condition "and something should be done." His cost estimates ranged from $22,458 to $73,223.

Castillo said a three-foot shoulder of caliche, delivered to the site and with county employees doing the work, would amount to about $22,000. Adding a two-foot asphalt strip on the caliche base and a seal coat would push the cost to $73,000. Moore said the commission would consider the proposal during the budget process.

Hammock, who attended a recent safety meeting in Austin, reported that county must have a random drug-testing policy for its commercial driver's license drivers by Jan. 1. He said his safety committee had started meeting to discuss ways to be in compliance with state laws.

Before proceeding, Hammock said his committee needs to know how far the commission wants to carry the drug and alcohol testing programs. Moore said the commission would discuss the matter, but would probably restrict the testing to CDL drivers at this time, "due to budget restraints."

Serrano's report concerned funding for his department and the Youth Home for juveniles, and was presented primarily to keep commissioners informed. He said his budget might be from $5,000 to $10,000 in the red this year, primarily due to out-of-town residential care.

Along with funding from the Texas Youth Commission and grants, the city and school help with the finances but the county's share was more than anticipated.

Others attending the meeting included Randy Evers, a local Boy Scout, who is working on a Merit Badge, and O.G. Nieman, Hereford Brand.

Bush says he will take look at affirmative action plans

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush says he will examine affirmative action programs in Texas to see whether they are fair and inclusive for the people they aim to help.

"I think what Texas needs to do, which I intend to do, is to address what ... we expect out of a program that tries to be inclusive," Bush told reporters Monday. "Is it an economic development device or is it a preference toward people who have already benefited from the system?"

"I don't think people in Texas like the idea of a few benefiting at the expense of others or that there be reverse discrimination," Bush said. "I think we ought to address that."

Bush said he would work with members of the General Services Commission, which oversees large contracts for state agencies, to look into race- and gender-based programs such as the historically underutilized business program.

State law requires agencies to make a "good-faith effort" to spend 30 percent of purchase and public works contract budgets on businesses owned by women and minorities, known as historically underutilized businesses or HUBs.

"If the affirmative action programs are meant to be helpful to start-up companies ... then we ought to design them so they're that way," Bush said. "If in fact there are a few people that are getting all of the affirmative action business at the expense of others, then I think Texas ought to address that."

When asked if he supports the concept of affirmative action, Bush responded: "I believe in the concept of being fair and having an inclusive society.

"I do not believe in reverse discrimination, I do not believe in quotas, and I do believe in clearly defining what the goals are of any program that's inclusive," he said.

Rep. Sylvester Turner, D-Houston, an outspoken advocate for minorities, said if Bush wants to look into affirmative action programs such as the HUB program it should be with the idea of determining how to strengthen them.

The debate over affirmative action grew testy in Texas after state Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, proposed a constitutional amendment during the legislative session to discontinue such programs. The Legislature did not take action on the proposal.

Wife of prominent Panhandle rancher killed in copter crash

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - A helicopter crash that killed the wife of a prominent Panhandle rancher may have been weather related, a relative said.

Jeanne Whittenburg, 60, was killed and her husband, J.A. "Jimmy" Whittenburg III, was injured when their helicopter crashed in a field just north of Amarillo, about 20 miles east of Amarillo.

Whittenburg, 62, was in critical condition Monday at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The cause of the Saturday night crash still was being investigated Monday. However, the Whittenburgs' son-in-law, Bob Latimer, theorized that high winds played a role.

"I would bet it was weather-related," Latimer said. "The winds were blowing upward of 50 to 60 miles per hour. It wasn't raining, but there was turbulence. That turbulence, upward and downward bursts, upturned the craft."

The Amarillo couple, who had flown together regularly since 1952, were flying to their Turkey Track Ranch, northeast of Borger, when the 6 p.m. Saturday crash occurred.

Carson County Sheriff Loren Brand said the Bell Jet Ranger exploded on impact, and Whittenburg tumbled from the wreckage to a road a quarter-mile away, where an oil-field worker picked him up.

Whittenburg was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo in critical condition, then transferred to the Parkland burn unit late Saturday.

A memorial service for Mrs. Whittenburg is scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Amarillo.

Senior winners for the Deaf Smith County Lamb workshop held Monday were from left, first place, Truett Schlabs; second place, Ted Peabody III; third place, Julie Schlabs; and most improved, Becca Gillis of Randall County.

District lamb workshop winners named

Deaf Smith County hosted a district wide lamb workshop Monday at the Hereford Bull Barn.

Along with Deaf Smith County Agent Vance Christie, Chuck Walton of Potter County and Dale Dunlap of Collingsworth County conducted the workshop for area 4-H and FFA students who are interested in the lamb feeding industry.

Topics covered during the workshop were selection, feeding, exercise, grooming, show preparation, and the 1995 Lamb Validation

Program.

After the workshop a showmanship contest was held and winners for the senior, intermediate and junior divisions were announced.

Winners were awarded various prizes for their efforts. First place received a lamb blanket, second and third place received a bag of lamb feed, and most improved received feed buckets or halters.

Opponents take shots at insurance proposal

AUSTIN (AP) - Consumers advocates are blasting a proposal by the Texas Department of Insurance that they say would give insurance companies nine months to increase rates before a proposed rollback goes into effect.

"In other words, companies raise rates now and cushion any rate rollback in the future," Rob Schneider of the Southwest Regional Office of Consumers Unions said Monday.

The rollback proposal, submitted for public comment on Monday, is the result of a law approved by the Legislature requiring Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer to determine across-the-board rate reductions for liability insurance.

The law aims to pass to consumers some of the savings that insurers will see due to changes in the state's civil court system.

However, Schneider said the insurance department's proposal does not reflect the intent of the Legislature.

Under the agency's proposal, the rollback would affect rates after Jan. 1. The Legislature's mandatory rollback, which kicks in only if the commissioner fails to enter a rollback order, would reduce rates that were in effect on April 1.

"The proposal falls short of making the insurance industry return the savings it promised to consumers," Schneider said.

Bomer disagreed, noting a final decision on the amount of the rate reductions and method of implementation is not due until Oct. 1.

Signs point way to marriage proposal

HONOLULU (AP) - Eva Kawasaki saw signs - many signs - of her boyfriend's intention to propose.

Denny Carlos posted a series of one-word signs last week on a line of utility poles. They read: "Eva - Will - You - Marry - Me! - Denny."

Carlos drove Kawasaki past the signs, then pulled over on the shoulder of the road, getting down on one knee and repeating the question aloud.

On Saturday, Carlos put up a new series of signs, reading: "Eva Said Yes. Oct. 12, 1996."

Garage-junk becomes useful new inventions

By RIVKA GEWIRTZ
The Brazosport Facts
LAKE JACKSON, Texas - Many people would rid their garage of the clutter that a broken copy machine and pieces of old tubes and motors bring.

But James Wampler, a Lake Jackson man, makes order of his backyard chaos. So far, his pile of garage-junk has been metamorphosed into a gleaming World War II-style motorcycle that sits out in front of the Wampler's house like a prize.

The hard-tail, diesel bike, complete with Army-green fenders and an American flag painted on the side, looks good, but more importantly, it gets 130 miles to the gallon - mileage an old war vehicle could never attain.

"People stop me all the time, like at Stop-N-Go, and say, 'I haven't ridden on one of those things since World War II,'" said Wampler. "They always ask me where I got it."

But they never believe him when he says he got it in a junkyard. Wampler frequents junk shops where he picks up old sheets of metals and motors from various machinery. In fact, the bike's motor is reincarnated from an old farming vehicle.

"I did some work for somebody who owed me some money and I just asked him to give me that old motor. That's really how I started building this thing," said Wampler.

Wampler's goal was to see how economical he could make the bike and what kind of design he could create. The bike has two tanks which hold a gallon and a half of gas and are designed to use alternative kinds of fuel.

"I arranged it so I could run it on alternatives like peanut oil and french fry grease. But, they have to be heated up before I could use them," said Wampler. "The way I had to build the frame, the design would look like a bulky old machine anyway. I already had a head start, so I thought I may as well make it look ancient."

Wampler works in his garage to the sound of a loud, buzzing police scanner, which he said picked up during the '70s as part of his interest in radios. By trade, he does electrical and mechanical work on a freelance basis, and along the way, whatever extra materials he picks up he turns into something interesting.

One of the inventions is a haircutter that enables one to orchestrate a trim without the expensive help of a beautician. The gadget has a spinning blade that juts out through a hose which restricts how much length will be cut from the hair. On the other side of the blade is a motor which is recycled from a record player. A tube sticking out of the bottom of the motor attaches to a vacuum cleaner that sucks out the excess hair as it is being sheared.

"It came to me in a dream, believe it or not," said Wampler, adding that he went to a patent lawyer who convinced him to give up on his idea of mass-producing the product. Two years before the item appeared on late-night television commercials, Wampler said his lawyer told him that nobody would want to use the contraption. However, Wampler sticks to his invention and has stopped asking his sister to trim his curly locks.

"More than half the people will tell you it (your invention) can't work," said Wampler. "If you're poor enough it will work."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I recently purchased a home. My 21-year-old sister, "Lily," asked if she could rent a room so she could go to college. We agreed that she would pay us $200 a month, which would include meals and utilities.

Since then, Lily has made no attempt to go to college, and her rent has never been on time or in the full amount. She just told me she is two months' pregnant. She is not married, and the father of the baby is nowhere to be found.

Lily has decided to keep the baby and continue to live with us until she finishes school in four or five years.

Ann, I have a 4-year-old son and am looking forward to having him start school. I do not want another child in my home. My sister's irresponsibility should not have to mess up my life.

If I ask Lily to move out, my family would consider me a terrible person. If she stays, I will be raising another child, something I am not prepared to do. I want to give Lily a hand, but I'm not sure how to do it. Please give me some help. -- A Mom Again in Tampa

DEAR TAMPA: Has Lily applied to a college? Urge her to do so, and suggest that she apply for a student loan as well -- one that will cover her tuition and living expenses. Then help her find an apartment, and move her out.

Where are your parents? Are they able to help? Every effort should be made to locate the father of Lily's child. He is legally responsible to pay support and should not be let off the hook.

I agree that you should not allow your sister to mess up your life. Don't weaken and let her stay with you, no matter what. Insist that she take responsibility for herself. It's about time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I beg you to print this letter in your column for the benefit of all mothers and children who have birthday parties in their homes.

Unless everyone in the class is invited to the party, please put the invitations in the mail. There is nothing more humiliating for a child of any age than to watch party invitations being handed out in class and not receive one.

Ann, you would be amazed at how often this happens. If you can spare even a handful of kids from being hurt by printing this letter, you will have performed a valuable service. - No Name, No City Please

DEAR N.N.N.C.: Here's the letter. However, I cannot understand why a teacher would permit this to happen. Surely teachers must be aware of the hurt feelings of children who are left out.

Thank you for calling attention to a situation that could save a lot of unhappiness.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 15-year-old guy who has taken saxophone lessons for six years, and I'm good at it. The trouble is, we have too many sax players in the school band and the director switched me to drums.

Mom won't let me practice at home because she says it gives her a headache. Will you please help me? -- Arnie in Chicago

DEAR ARNIE: Practice in the music room at school. And P.S.: Give serious consideration to switching to the piccolo. Piccolo players are in short supply, and they do not cause headaches.

CONFIDENTIAL TO STILL BLEEDING IN LITTLE ROCK: Bind up your wounds, and go on from here. Time wounds all heels, and he'll get his, honey.

Reception will honor former exchange student from Sweden

A reception honoring Elisabeth (Brummer) Hornsey will be held Aug. 5 from 1 p.m.-5 p.m. in the Ted Sumner home.

Hornsey, a native of Alfta, Sweden, was an exchange student in Hereford High School in 1956-1957 at which time she resided with the Sumner family.

Hornsey and her family will be traveling throughout Texas the week of July 24-30 along with several members of the Sumner family. Then they will visit in Hereford the first week in August.

The reception is planned as an opportunity to renew old acquaintances.

The Sumner home is located on County Road 8, 3/4 of a mile east of Hwy. 385 N.

Trojans split 1st two games at national AAU tournament

The Texas Trojans boys' basketball team split its first two pool games at the national 12-under AAU tournament in Salt Lake City.

The boys lost 54-52 to the Atlanta Hawks on Monday. The Hawks, the No. 4 seed in the tournament, hit the winning shot with three seconds left, coach Steve Hodges said.

"It hit every part of the rim, and it goes in," Hodges said.

The three Hereford boys on the team - the others are from Amarillo - had good games. Cody Hodges scored 16 points while Slade Hodges had 14 and Chayse Rives had six points. Rives and Cody Hodges each grabbed seven rebounds.

The Trojans won their first game on Sunday, a 56-44 win over a team from Philadelphia. The game was tied at 44-44 with three minutes left, but the Trojans scored the last 12 points of the game.

"We went into a delay game, and we got six points on layups and six points on free throws," Steve Hodges said.

Cody Hodges led the way with 22 points and Slade Hodges added 12. Rives and Cody Hodges led the team with nine rebounds each.

The Trojans were to play their third game today against a team from Tennessee. A win would put the Trojans into the championship bracket.

The Brand has received no report from Indianapolis, where a team which includes Hereford girls is competing in the girls' 14-under national AAU tournament.

Booster Club plans Scramble

The Whiteface Booster Club is providing a chance for anyone to meet the Hereford school coaches at a nine-hole golf scramble on Thursday.

The scramble starts at 5:30 p.m., and hot dogs and refreshments will be served afterwards.

Wilson wants to retire in Dallas

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - When Wade Wilson saw his role turn from starter to backup, he decided to see if the team he idolized was interested in him.

"Why not back up the best?" Wilson asked of his new role behind the Dallas Cowboys' Troy Aikman.

Wilson, who is beginning his 15th NFL season after stints with Minnesota, Atlanta and New Orleans, was first courted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1993. But he wanted another chance as a starter and took a two-year, $4 million deal with the Saints.

He started the 1993 season and led the Saints to a 7-7 record before suffering a knee injury. He lost the starting job to Jim Everett last year and thought about retiring after the season.

But he asked his agent to see if the Cowboys were still interested. For Wilson, it was the perfect opportunity - he's a lifelong Cowboys' fan who has made his home in Dallas since graduating from East Texas State in 1980.

And then there's the shot at a Super Bowl.

"At this point in my career, if I am going to be a backup, I want to finish up here," Wilson said. "I have accomplished a lot of things in my career, and the Super Bowl is the thing that I lack. I would love to have that."

In 11 years with Minnesota, Wilson led the Vikings to three playoff berths, including the NFC championship game in 1987.

"We tried for two years prior to this to get him in here," said Cowboys owner Jerry Jones. "He is a proven big-game winner who has won big playoff games."

"He's got a big arm and certainly knows how to make some good decisions out there, so we couldn't be happier. This is the best shape our quarterback situation has been in since we've been here."

The Cowboys' backup quarterback position has been a revolving door in recent years. There was Steve

McNair, Oilers working to finalize deal's details

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The Houston Oilers would love to have Steve McNair at practice today. First, there's a little matter of a few million dollars.

The Oilers hoped their top draft pick would be signing his contract worth nearly $30 million and arriving at the Trinity University campus Monday, but last-minute contract details lingered Monday night.

Oilers general manager Floyd Reese characterized those details as minor.

"A comma here and a change of a word there," Reese said. "If you change a sentence in a clause that's worth a couple of a million dollars, everybody wants to make sure the words are just the way they should be."

McNair, the quarterback from Alcorn State who was the No. 3 overall draft pick, reached an agreement in principle Saturday with the Oilers.

The pact reportedly will pay $28.4 million over seven years, including a $5.3 million signing bonus and an additional $4.3 million in guaranteed money. Incentives could make the contract worth almost $30 million, the richest rookie deal in NFL history.

McNair traveled from his home in Mount Olive, Miss., to Houston to review the contract with his agents Sunday night.

"We decided there's no need him being here if the contract's not with him. There's nothing he can do. We're trying to time it so that he and the contract get here about the same time," Reese said.

McNair was expected in San Antonio today, though team officials said it was unclear whether he would make it in time for a morning practice.

On Monday evening, Oilers coach Jeff Fisher was talking about McNair playing in Wednesday's scrimmage with the Dallas Cowboys in Austin.

"We'll just have to evaluate and see how he is mentally and what he's done since he left minicamp," Fisher said. "I'm quite confident he'll be able to go in and play some plays."

The Oilers planned a "fairly physical" practice this morning and a special teams practice in the afternoon. The Oilers will practice one more time Wednesday morning before heading to Austin later in the day.

While McNair's contract has been grabbing most of the attention so far at Oilers training camp, the team's starting quarterback has been on the field working on Fisher's new multiple offense.

Fisher plans to use eight-year veteran Chris Chandler as his starter this season, with Will Furrer and Bucky Richardson vying for backup and McNair playing some in the preseason and at the end of some games.

Chandler said McNair's negotiations haven't been a distraction, though he noted it will be good to have McNair's deal done and him in camp.

"We're putting in a lot more stuff each day. The guys are doing a good job picking it up," Chandler said, adding that it will be up to McNair how fast he catches on.

Jimmie Henderson was 12th in average in bareback riding. He had a score of 136 after getting scores in only two of the three rounds.

Portugal fails to pay off for Reds

By VINCENT CINISOMO
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) - Cincinnati Reds fans probably wish their new No. 21 would play another sport - right now.

Pitcher Mark Portugal put on Deion Sanders' number, then the Padres did a number on him Monday night as San Diego outslugged the Reds 10-8.

Portugal, acquired from San Francisco on Friday night in an eight-player trade that saw two-sport star Sanders go to the Giants, gave up 11 hits and nine runs in just 3 1-3 innings.

Portugal (5-6) was jeered by the home crowd as the Reds' winning streak ended at five games.

Cincinnati reluctantly gave up Sanders to get Portugal because they needed someone to fill in for the injured Jose Rijo.

"It wasn't exactly the way I envisioned it when I got here," Portugal said. "I just have to put it behind me and go get the next one."

The next Reds pitcher was Dave Burba, another player involved in the trade. Burba gave up a two-run single to Eddie Williams that completed a six-run fourth inning. At that point, one fan behind home plate yelled loudly: "Nice trade!"

Portugal has lost his last four starts and his last six decisions. The right-hander has failed to go five innings in three of his last four starts and has a 7.25 ERA since his last win June 18.

Andy Benes (4-6) relied heavily on the early lead. He gave up seven hits and five runs in 6 1-3 innings, and is 4-1 with six no-decisions in his last 11 starts.

"I was lucky we scored a lot of runs," Benes said. "It was one of those games where I didn't have a whole lot. I wouldn't classify it as one of my better efforts."

In other NL games, Colorado routed Philadelphia 11-3; Chicago beat New York 5-3; San Francisco topped Florida 8-3; Los Angeles edged Houston 6-5 and Atlanta nipped Pittsburgh 3-2.

Giants 8, Marlins 3
Deion Sanders was upstaged by a rookie teammate when both made their debut for visiting San Francisco.

Jamie Brewington pitched seven strong innings in his first major-league game, earning the victory.

Sanders, acquired from Cincinnati in a trade Friday, batted leadoff and went 1-for-6. He singled home a run in the seventh.

Greg Colbrunn and Charles Johnson homered for the Marlins.

Rockies 11, Phillies 3
Rookie Bryan Rekar overcame a pinch-hit home run by pitcher Omar Olivares to lead visiting Colorado.

Rekar (2-0) pitched the Rockies' first complete game this season in beating the Phillies for the second time in six days.

Olivares became the first pitcher to connect as a pinch-hitter since Don Robinson for Pittsburgh in 1990.

Jason Bates, Andres Galarraga, John Vander Wal and Joe Girardi homered for Colorado.

Dodgers 6, Astros 5
Chad Fonville drove in three runs as Los Angeles won in Houston.

Ramon Martinez pitched his second complete game despite allowing a three-run homer to Derrick

May in the ninth.

Martinez (10-6), who pitched a no-hitter on July 14, allowed eight hits.

Greg Swindell (6-4) had his four-game winning streak stopped.

Cubs 5, Mets 3
Mark Grace's two-run double highlighted a four-run fifth inning as host Chicago snapped a seven-game losing streak.

Jim Bullinger (7-2) pitched seven innings, giving up two runs and seven hits.

Randy Myers got his 23rd save despite allowing a run.

Mets rookie Bill Pulsipher (2-5) pitched his first complete game, allowing six hits and five runs.

Braves 3, Pirates 2
Ryan Klesko's home run to straightaway center field broke a ninth-inning tie and carried visiting Atlanta to its 17th victory in 21 games.

Klesko's drive was only the second homer off Dan Plesac (3-2) this season.

Brad Clontz (5-1) pitched a scoreless eighth inning for the victory, and Mark Wohlers finished for his 11th save.

British Open sets standard for PGA

By RON SIRAK
AP Sports Writer
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) - Three major championships and three compelling winners. How can the PGA Championship next month keep pace?

And don't forget that it's a Ryder Cup year. What surprises does it have to offer?

John Daly in the British Open. Corey Pavin in the U.S. Open. And Ben Crenshaw in the Masters. And beyond those great individual stories there was also the collective story of Americans winning all three major championships this year.

It was only last year that foreign golfers swept the four majors for the first time.

"Before the playoff a lot of Americans came over, including some of the players, and they were right behind me," Daly said after beating Costantino Rocca on the Old Course Sunday to win the British Open.

"Brad Faxon just said, 'Hey, just go get him. Bring it back home,'" Daly said.

Daly's victory was only the second in 12 years by an American in the game's oldest tournament. Crenshaw's victory in the Masters was only the second by an American there in eight years.

"We haven't won the British Open since 1989 when Mark Calcavecchia won," Daly said. "Winning it makes me happy but I also know it makes people back home happy."

Daly's victory after his battles with alcohol and suspensions for behavior problems was a stirring struggle in which he had it won, had it grabbed away and took it back again.

It was a moving triumph for Daly, made even more so by Rocca's incredible 65-foot putt from the Valley of Sin to force the playoff.

The putt was even more unbelievable because Rocca had horribly chunked the chip shot before. Remember, this was the same guy who spit the bit down the stretch in the deciding match at the 1993 Ryder Cup.

A winner overcoming his personal demons. A loser battling demons of his own. That's the way it's been this year.

Crenshaw wasn't battling demons at the Masters but he did win it one week after Harvey Penick, his lifelong golf teacher, died at age 90.

Just a week before Penick's death, he had given Crenshaw one last putting lesson. Crenshaw then went 72 holes without a three-putt on the slick green of Augusta National.

And he closed out the tournament with clutch birdie putts on the 16th and 17th hole.

The U.S. Open looked like it might be the major championship Norman finally won on U.S. soil. Especially after he struggled mightily and turned what could have been an 80 into a 74 in the third round.

On Sunday, Norman couldn't hit the par-3 17th green with a 6-iron. Pavin was lining a 4-wood 228 yards within 6 feet of the flag on the 18th.

A great shot. Finally, Pavin had his first major championship.

Wakefield earns 10th win vs. Twins

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
The New York Yankees can only hope they have as much success with their reclamation project as the Boston Red Sox have had with theirs.

While Darryl Strawberry was hitting two more home runs in the minors Monday night and waiting to be called up by the Yankees, the Red Sox were watching Tim Wakefield win again.

Wakefield, cut by Pittsburgh in spring training after losing 15 games in the minors last year, leads the majors with a 1.63 ERA. The knuckleballer has gone 10-1 since being plucked off baseball's scrap heap by Boston.

"I've been through a lot the last couple of years," Wakefield said after pitching the Red Sox past the Minnesota Twins 4-1. "That's helped me stay calm and stay as humble as I can. This game can jump up and bite you."

Strawberry, meanwhile, is still wondering when he'll jump back to the big leagues. The eight-time NL All-Star homered twice for Triple-A Columbus, but contract problems have delayed his return to New York.

The Yankees haven't needed him lately, though. They tied a season-high with their sixth straight win, beating Texas 5-4.

In a game that could be a preview of a postseason matchup, Cleveland downed California 9-7 in 10 innings.

In another game, Milwaukee defeated Seattle 6-4.

Wakefield won his sixth straight game, striking out seven and walking one in 7 1-3 innings at Fenway Park.

"Tim's been our most consistent pitcher," catcher Mike Macfarlane said. "You can't pattern your swing for a knuckleballer. ... Guys are coming up every at-bat with a different bat, a heavier one, a longer one, a shorter one."

Rick Aguiera finished for 18th save, and sixth in six tries since being traded from the Twins to Boston.

Indians 9, Angels 7
Manny Ramirez doubled home the tiebreaking run in the 10th at Anaheim Stadium, and Cleveland tied its longest winning streak of the season at seven.

The Indians won the opener of a three-game series between division leaders and improved to 7-0 in extra innings. Albert Belle and Sandy Alomar homered for Cleveland.

Jim Edmonds connected for California, and extended a team record by scoring in his 13th straight game.

Tonight, Cleveland's Orel Hersher pitches his first game in Southern California since leaving the Dodgers in the offseason.

Yankees 5, Rangers 4
Mike Stanley singled off the center-field wall with one out for the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning. Texas lost its season-high eighth in a row.

Don Mattingly went 2-for-2 with a home run and two sacrifice flies, and raised his batting average to .304. When fans in New York haven't been discussing Strawberry, they've been debating about Mattingly's production - he has just four homers and 27 RBIs this season, but has two home runs and five RBIs in his last two games.

Brewers 6, Mariners 4
Fernando Vina hit two triples and Jose Valentin homered as Milwaukee won at the Kingdome. Edgar Martinez, leading the majors in hitting at .366, homered twice for the Mariners.

Vina led off the game with a triple and the Brewers went on to score four times in the first inning. Warren Newson, traded to Seattle by the White Sox last week, dropped a fly ball in left field, setting up the burst.

COWBOYS

Beuerlein, Hugh Millen, Bernie Kosar and Rodney Peete.

Wilson, who has completed 1,276 of 2,236 passes for 15,960 yards in his career, signed a three-year, $1.4 million contract, and says the Cowboys are his last team.

"The guys who preceded me kind of used the job as a stepping stone for bigger and better things," Wilson said. "But I am very content to finish up my years here as a backup. This is my last stop. Whether it's one, two or three years, it's as far as I am going."

Dallas coach Barry Switzer says Wilson has impressed him.

"He is a true professional and a veteran in this league," Switzer said. "He brings a lot of knowledge to our team."

Wilson could be essential. Aikman has missed 15 career starts because of injuries.

Aikman, who has repeatedly stated he doesn't care who backs him up, said, "From a team perspective, Wade certainly brings in some stability."

"Hopefully nothing will happen to me, but if it does, I'm confident that he'll be able to come in and do a good job."

Philadelphians swapped slumping stars last Tuesday when outfielder Andy Van Slyke returned from the disabled list, allowing Gregg Jefferies to move from outfield to first base.

Whiten, 28, was a disappointment after a spring training trade brought him and pitcher Rheal Cormier from St. Louis.

Phils, Sox swap slumping stars

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Boston Red Sox traded outfielder Mark Whiten to the Philadelphia Phillies for Dave Hollins on Monday in a deal involving two players having subpar seasons.

Hollins, who plays first base and third base, was batting .229 in 65 games. He was tied for the Phillies lead with seven homers and tied for third in the National League with 53 walks.

Hollins, 29, started the season with a .262 average and 60 homers in six seasons. He was Philadelphia's regular first baseman this year until last Tuesday when outfielder Andy Van Slyke returned from the disabled list, allowing Gregg Jefferies to move from outfield to first base.

Whiten, 28, was a disappointment after a spring training trade brought him and pitcher Rheal Cormier from St. Louis.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Some time ago, I heard of a calorie formula to help a person stay at his normal weight once he has achieved it. Do you know of it? — L.F.

ANSWER: I have a love-hate relationship with formulas. They're fun, but I can't stand them.

For a woman to maintain her ideal weight using a basic calorie formula, she should multiply the weight in pounds by 13. A man multiplies his ideal weight by 15. In either case, the result is the daily calorie need to support ideal weight.

But things never stay that simple. Another formula takes in the matter of varying physical activity. In that, if you multiply desired weight by 10, you arrive at the number of calories to keep your body going. Call it your "basal" calorie requirement. If you lead a fairly sedentary life, multiply the desired weight by three and add that result to the "basal" calorie number. If you exercise moderately, the addition to the basal number is five times the desired weight goal. If you exercise strenuously, multiply the desired weight goal by 10.

Example: Say your desired weight is 120 pounds. You would need 1,200 calories to support that. But say you start moderate exercise. Then you would multiply the 120 by five. You would add the resulting 600 calories to the 1,200, indicating you would need 1,800 calories a day to support your desired weight.

But please take formulas with a huge grain of salt. Most people are wiser to keep a daily diary of calorie intake. You can quickly learn to avoid foods that pile on calories and pounds.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Just another comment on your recent musings about tender, loving care from medical people, and how much it is needed. My daughter had a difficult labor session. All night, the nurses were impatient with her, making her feel so guilty. This went on an on. Finally, the shift changed. The new nurse, a middle-aged woman, was so kind and comforting that it was a new world for my daughter. She calmed things, and there was peace for the first time during the ordeal. The baby came soon after. Few people realize what the human touch from a nurse or a doctor can mean. Keep emphasizing this. It takes so little effort. Patients often do comment on this or that doctor, and how kind he or she is, how tender, how compassionate ... — Mrs. J.E.

ANSWER: Your letter needs no comment.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister, who is 58, has been told she has ataxia. After many tests, they think she has multiple sclerosis. Please explain ataxia. We had never heard of it. — A.L.

ANSWER: You leave me with a formidable task.

Ataxia (uh-TACK-see-uh) is uncoordinated muscle movement. You see it most readily when the legs are affected, because walking becomes so erratic and visible. The patient cannot keep a steady gait or walk a straight path.

A person who overindulges in alcohol provides an instructive example of one ataxia.

Medical causes of ataxia are many, including multiple sclerosis. The cause can originate in the brain's cerebellum—the part where muscle coordination controls reside—or in the spinal cord.

Your sister's doctor is probably trying to find precisely where her problem lies, and if something can be done to ameliorate it.

Many times, ataxia has no cure. Mechanical aids can come to the fore in therapy.

Please write again with details.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Why don't they put "MD" after your name? We have an argument. Let us know that you are definitely an "MD." — A.R.

ANSWER: I am a doctor of medicine (M.D.), and many newspapers do use that tag after my byline.

Holders of other medical disciplines are doctors, too—doctors of osteopathy, for example, or doctors of dentistry.

The academic world confers literary and scientific doctorates. Those people also are called doctors. It's a big umbrella that accommodates us all.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Hats on for summer fun

Hats off to summer entertaining. Vel Simpson, left, and Cindy Cole, inspired by a Southern Living article, created a luncheon setting with a truly southern theme. The ladies who attended wore their favorite hat or a vintage hat and gloves. The table from which a summer menu was served was decorated with a collection of heirloom hat boxes, gloves, a strand of pearls and handbags.

There is often less danger in the things we fear than in the things we desire.

—John Churton Collins

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

Times	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are 4.35 per column inch; 3.65 inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

All rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.

Koresh's attorney charges FBI failed to honor proposal

By MARCY GORDON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The attorney for David Koresh, who took part in the edgy negotiations between the Branch Davidian leader and the FBI, told lawmakers today that FBI agents failed to pursue a plan to have Koresh surrender to the Texas Rangers.

Sometime after the bungled federal raid near Waco, Texas, in February 1993, "I proposed to David that he surrender to a Texas Ranger," attorney Dick DeGuerin said in written testimony for the fifth day of hearings by two House subcommittees.

DeGuerin said a senior Texas Ranger, Capt. Maurice Cook, "was agreeable, but cautioned me that the authority for that must come from the FBI." He said he then proposed the surrender plan to two FBI agents, "but did not receive an enthusiastic response."

"In fairness to them, they did not reject it, either," DeGuerin said.

Sources close to the congressional investigation said the Texas Rangers were to be asked about reports that Davidians offered on three occasions to surrender to them if the FBI was not involved. The sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said the Rangers told a television reporter that they forwarded the offers to the FBI but received no response.

After grilling top Treasury Department officials on Monday about the failed raid, Republican lawmakers leading the Waco hearings are turning to the FBI's role after the February 1993 assault.

Several FBI agents and Texas Rangers officers were to testify today about the negotiating phase of the law enforcement operation. DeGuerin and Jack Zimmermann, the attorney who represented cult lieutenant Steve Schneider, also were to appear.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, a division of the Treasury Department, directed the raid on the compound near Waco, Texas, that left four ATF agents and six Davidians dead. After the raid failed, the FBI took over chief responsibility for negotiating with cult leader Koresh and taking further action against the Davidians.

Following a 51-day standoff, Koresh and 80 of his followers — including 18 children — died April 19 when fire swept through the compound during an FBI tear gas attack.

Looking toward the FBI agents' testimony, Justice Department spokesman Bert Brandenburg said, "We're going to lay the facts out again. ... The FBI negotiators on the scene bent over backwards to try to work with David Koresh."

Brandenburg said the handoff of authority from the ATF to the FBI was made in the expectation that, because the ATF had directed the deadly raid, Koresh would deal more constructively with negotiators from another agency.

But DeGuerin said, "I believe that the final tragedy could have been avoided had the FBI and the Justice Department not resorted to the tank and tear gas assault, but had waited until David and his followers came out voluntarily."

DeGuerin said he told FBI agents on April 14 of Koresh's plans to surrender once he completed a manuscript revealing the contents of the Seven Seals, which are referred to in the Bible's Book of Revelations.

Two days later, FBI agents warned that they wouldn't wait forever for Koresh to give himself up.

Another of today's scheduled witnesses, J. Phillip Arnold, a religion specialist at the Reunion Institute in Houston, said "it is startling to discover that the Branch Davidian belief system was not effectively researched, understood and factored into the negotiation strategies."

"My research has not identified one person in law enforcement who seriously studied David Koresh and Branch Davidian beliefs," Arnold said in written testimony.

At Monday's session, Treasury Undersecretary Ronald Noble and ATF Director John Magaw faced lawmakers for five hours.

Noble sharply rejected the allegation by Dan Hartnett, who was the ATF's deputy director for enforcement, that a Treasury Department report on what went wrong with the Waco raid was an attempted coverup by Noble.

Noble told the subcommittees there was no coverup, and that the only people who criticized the report were those who were disciplined.

He also acknowledged that he initially opposed the raid, but gave his approval after his questions about preparation were answered and he was assured the raid would be called off if agents lost the element of surprise.

Magaw, the former Secret Service director who took over the ATF after the raid, said he was committed to correcting mistakes that were made there. But he cautioned Congress against using the raid as an excuse to go against the agency. "I strongly believe that only the criminal will benefit from weakening ATF," he said.

Adult Hearing Tests

Ask yourself these important questions:

1. Do you hear people speaking, but have difficulty understanding the words? Yes No
2. Do others ever feel you turn up the radio or television too loud? Yes No
3. Are you asking people to repeat? Yes No
4. Are you favoring one ear or straining to hear? Yes No

Even one yes answer may mean you should have your hearing tested. Make an appointment for a free hearing test. You'll be glad you did!
