Senate spared expulsion vote Packwood steps down in face of recommendation

By JILL LAWRENCE
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Bob Packwood said after he announced he would resign that "an immense weight has been lifted." He might have been speaking for the entire Senate, spared the agony of an expulsion vote and now free to concentrate on the crush of legislative business at hand.

The grave sexual and official misconduct allegations against the Oregon Republican, festering for nearly three years, came to resolution within 24 hours. Packwood delivered his tearful resignation address less than a day after vowing to fight a unanimous ethics panel recommendation that he be expelled.

Just when Packwood would actually leave, however, was uncertain.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., interviewed Thursday night on CNN's "Larry King Live" program, estimated Packwood would remain 30 to 60 days. During that time Packwood might tie up loose ends, stay on as nominal chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and "certainly vote to represent his state."

Glum, red-eyed colleagues praised Packwood on Thursday for his loyalty, integrity and legislative skills, and some questioned the severity of the judgment against him. "This is a moment for grieving," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

The warm floor tributes from Packwood intimates, including Dole, contrasted dramatically with the Senate Ethics Committee' blistering assessment of the senator's behavior.

The committee concluded that he made unwelcome advances toward 17 women; tried to reduce his alimony obligations by improperly asking people with legislative interests to hire his estranged wife; and obstructed the committee probe by altering his diaries.

The diaries matter was forwarded to the Justice Department. Committee Chairman Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said the changes Packwood made as he anticipated a subpoena were "clearly illegal" and could carry a prison sentence.

HPD activity noted in monthly report

By GARRY WESNER
 Managing Editor
 Hereford police in August responded to more than 300 criminal offense reports and arrested nearly 70 people, according to the department's monthly activity report.

In offense reports, one robbery and two motor vehicle thefts were reported in the Part I offense list.

The Part I offense list is called that not because of the severity of the crimes or their importance, but because they are offenses which appear on FBI crime reports.

The number of aggravated assaults reported during the month was twice as many -- 12 -- as were reported in July, while the number of burglaries climbed from 11 in July to 16 in August.

But it was in the area of thefts that the number of reports soared, from 47 in July to 75 in August.

Police Chief David Wagner said officers have begun working security at some local stores and police have increased educational efforts in stores, telling employees what to look for and how to spot shoplifters.

Wagner said the heightened awareness and increased security were credited with the increased number of reports, not necessarily because more offenses actually took place.

Among other criminal offense in the report, 43 other assaults were reported. Also, six cases of fraud; eight drunkenness reports; 13 disorderly conduct; 17 harassment; 20 domestic disputes; 15 warrants; 15 traffic reports; three runaways; one sexual assault of a child; and 38 other offenses.

Heading a large gain in criminal mischief reports was a spree in which more than a dozen victims reported tires slashed at Whiteface Stadium last month.

Overall there were 52 reports of criminal mischief during the month.

Wagner said increases in criminal activity are not alarming, but are part of a seasonal trend.

"Any time you have school cranking up, you have a lot of activity increases," he said, adding that "one type of crime may increase in the summer months, where it may decrease in the winter."

Also included in the August crime report is the number of arrests made during the month, broken down by adults and juveniles and by offense type.

Four juveniles were arrested, two for disorderly conduct and one each for aggravated assault and theft. In July, seven juveniles were arrested on a variety of charges.

In the adult arrest report, 64 adults were taken into custody in August, up from 54 arrested in July.

The largest areas of arrests were

Slow down

Making the way safe
 Crossing guard Herman Benavidez holds his stop sign high as a group of children cross U.S. 385 Thursday afternoon. Benavidez, who has manned the intersection of U.S. 385 and Moreman for the past two years, is one of many crossing guards around town who are responsible for helping students get to and from school safely while crossing congested intersections.

Caution urged around schools

With school having been in session for three weeks now, motorists are reminded to be aware of school zone signs and crossing guards around campuses.

Police Chief David Wagner said flashing school zone signs are turned on at 7:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. for an hour at a time.

Drivers are required to slow to 20 mph in the school zone. Violators are subject to citation.

Crossing guards are posted at intersections along busy streets at or near schools, Wagner said.

"Where it's congested we do have one, Wagner said.

"We listen to our school crossing guards and we tell them every year if they have a problem not to hesitate to call us," Wagner said, noting that officers can be posted near schools to monitor speeds.

In addition, the chief said, some crossing guards have kept records of license plates of people speeding or driving recklessly in school zones and filed charges against those drivers themselves.

The purpose of the crossing guards, he said, is "for the safety of these kids and whatever it takes we're going to do it."

Conservatives reach compromise about moms who have more kids

By JENNIFER DIXON
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) - Conservative Republicans are claiming a breakthrough in their drive to rewrite the party's welfare bill to deny higher benefits to mothers on welfare who have more children, improving its prospects for passing the Senate.

The deal was struck Thursday in a closed-door meeting of Senate Republicans, whose differences over illegitimate births helped stall debate earlier this summer on the party's welfare overhaul, its marquee social issue.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and other conservatives had pushed hard for a family cap - a policy to end the automatic increases in cash benefits that mothers on welfare in most states receive when they give birth to another child.

Gramm said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., his rival for the GOP presidential nomination, had agreed that single mothers should be denied "more and more cash ... for having more and more children on welfare."

Under the compromise, states would be allowed to decide whether to give these families in-kind benefits, such as vouchers for diapers and formula, to care for their youngest children, Gramm said.

Anti-abortion forces had sought the vouchers, based on their fears that ending support would encourage more abortions.

Gramm said the bill would reward states that reduce rates of out-of-wedlock births without increasing the number of abortions. He said the legislation seeks to dismantle the federal welfare bureaucracy as it shifts programs for the poor to the states in lump sum payments.

Dole was not nearly as specific, telling the Senate only, "I think most of the differences have been resolved on our side because we've tried to base our bill on three principles: creating a real work requirement, returning authority to the states and restraining welfare spending."

"We think these are the principles that are necessary if we're going to provide the dramatic reform, to provide hope and opportunity to the Americans in need."

Gramm said the agreement improves chances the Senate will pass welfare reform.

"This is a major breakthrough," he said in an interview. "If we can hold these provisions on the floor and prevent amendments that simply commit us to more welfare, I think we're going to have a very important bill. ... I think we're going to pass this bill."

Gramm said his dispute with Dole on welfare "is now over" although one sticking point remains: whether teen-agers who have children out of wedlock should be given their own welfare check, as some conservatives have demanded.

The negotiations over the family cap marked the Senate's second day of debate on the GOP legislation, which would trim spending on food stamps and other welfare programs by $70 billion over the next seven years and give states vast new powers to design and operate their own programs for the poor.

In the first vote since the debate began, the Senate rejected a Democratic alternative, 54 to 45, almost along straight party lines. One Democrat, Sen. Max Baucus of Montana, rejected his party's bill, while one Republican, Sen. Frank Murkowski of Alaska, did not vote.

Even as their own plan was defeated, Senate Democrats were united in their attacks on the GOP legislation, which they call the "Home Alone" bill, because it does not guarantee child care for the single mothers on welfare who would be required to work.

"We can't expect mothers of babies and preschool children to work if they have no safe place to leave their children. That's just common sense. Any welfare reform plan that ignores the need for child care is a recipe for failure," said Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D.

But Dole was equally critical of the Democratic plan.

"They call their bill 'Work First.' We don't happen to share that view. We think it is weak on limiting welfare dependency and weak on state innovation and weak on savings and weak on real reform," he said.

Garrison resigns HEDC board

Resignation of Shirley Garrison from the board of directors of Hereford Economic Development Corporation has been announced.

Mayor Bob Josseland, who received the resignation, said Garrison cited personal reasons for leaving the board after serving during the first year of existence of HEDC.

"His contribution can't be underestimated," said Josseland, noting that Garrison served on the People Promoting Progress task force that recommended that a half-cent economic development tax be levied in Hereford.

"We went to him when we were trying to get voters to pass the tax," said Josseland, "and told him we needed his help."

"After it passed, we went back to him and said we still needed his help and asked him to serve on the board."

Mike Hatley, executive director of HEDC, called attention to Garrison's contribution to the board during its first year of operation.

"He was a major asset in getting HEDC off the ground," said Hatley. "He was instrumental in the accomplishments of the year."

The half-cent tax for economic development was passed in August 1994. Garrison's appointment was made in September, along with other directors, Rosendo Gonzalez, Don Graham, Jerry Stevens and Cliff Skiles.

In election of board officers, Garrison was chosen first chairman a year ago.

Mayor Josseland said he plans to announce a replacement for Garrison at a regular commission meeting on Sept. 18 and ask the commission to approve the appointment. The appointee will serve an unexpired term of one year.

The annual meeting of HEDC will be held on Oct. 10, in compliance with the bylaws of the corporation. At that time, the new director will be sworn in and officers of the board will be elected.

Garrison, a businessman with interests in cattle feeding, seed production and banking, has been an active Hereford civic leader for a number of years.

Funds for MDA

Susan Hennessey accepts a check for $200 from Dave Kimmel, president of the Hereford Kiwanis Club, during Thursday's meeting. The donation was to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Hereford residents give $2,387 during telethon

Hereford residents last weekend gave more than $2,300 to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, the county chairwoman has announced.

Susan Hennessey said Thursday that local residents gave $2,387 through a variety of events that culminated in the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to benefit MDA.

Mrs. Hennessey said local firefighters raised more than $500 through their nationwide "Fill the Boot" campaign. That money was presented in Amarillo during the telethon.

In addition, another $197 was raised at a benefit dance and another $365 came during "cool and casual" day, where donors gave to MDA for the right to wear casual clothing to work.

The total, Mrs. Hennessey said, does not include $200 she accepted from the Hereford Kiwanis Club on Thursday. The Kiwanians were the only service club in town to give to MDA.

Hispanic caucus wants judge ousted

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus are seeking the ouster of a Texas district judge who ordered an Amarillo woman of Mexican descent to speak English to her 5-year-old daughter.

In a letter Thursday to the executive director of the Texas State Commission on Judicial Conduct, the 11 lawmakers expressed "outrage" over the Aug. 16 ruling of State District Judge Samuel Kiser.

"We request that the Texas State Commission on Judicial Conduct authorize formal proceedings for removal of Judge Kiser," they wrote.

"Denying a mother's right to speak to her daughter in whatever language she chooses raises serious constitutional questions," they added. "We are concerned that Judge Kiser has taken excessive liberty in his interpretation of the law. It appears that he has allowed his personal prejudices to influence his judgment."

Also Thursday, Mary Helen Berlanga, a member of the State Board of Education denounced Kiser's ruling, saying, "This action condemns both parents and children for speaking and hearing the native language of a proud and respected segment of our society."

"If any language is perpetuated as inferior, the culture which is represented by that language will also suffer the stigma of inferiority," Ms. Berlanga said.

Kiser didn't immediately return a telephone message left at his Amarillo office. Nor did a spokesman for the Texas Commission on Judicial Conduct.

But he issued a statement to The Dallas Morning News on Thursday in which he apologized for his "poor choice of words." He said he would relay the apology to the Amarillo Hispanic community at a news conference this morning in Amarillo.

"After prayerful consideration, I realize my choice of words has hurt the feelings of the Hispanic community," Kiser said in the statement.

"The order signed by me was an attempt to explain the important duty of parents in teaching their children English as well as their own native language so they can be truly bilingual," the judge said in the statement.

An Amarillo attorney said the mother, Marta Laureano, welcomes attempts to have Kiser taken off the bench. "She does feel that the judge should be removed," said Mark Taboada, who will represent Ms. Laureano in her upcoming appeal of Kiser's ruling.

The controversy comes amid heightened interest by a growing number of members of Congress and Republican presidential candidates to designate English the nation's official language.

Next month, a House committee will hold hearings on the official

House committee strikes provision for speed limits

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House panel voted overwhelmingly to get the federal government out of the business of setting speed limits on the nation's roads.

The speed limit provision was in a bill designating a 160,000-mile National Highway System that the House surface transportation subcommittee Thursday sent to the full Transportation and Infrastructure Committee.

Subcommittee members clashed briefly over speed limits, with Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Texas, commenting that Congress "can never legislate to protect every fool from themselves."

Rep. Norman Y. Mineta, D-Calif., pressed for keeping the current limits of 55 mph on most roads and 65 on rural interstates, contending that higher speeds lead to more accidents and fatalities.

In the end, the subcommittee voted 26-9 to drop the federal speed limits and let the states make their own decisions. The Senate has voted to drop the current speed limit for cars but keep it in place for trucks.

The subcommittee also amended the bill, by voice vote, to take the highway trust fund out of the federal budget - a move that could lead to conflict on the House floor.

The trust fund, currently holding about $30 billion, is raised from fuel taxes and intended for use on roads, bridges and other projects.

Over the years the fund has built up as spending fell short of income.

While the money can only be used for certain purposes, the surplus makes the federal deficit appear smaller on paper. Taking the fund off budget would make the federal deficit seem larger, but would counter attempts to avoid spending the money just so the budget picture would look better.

Another battle could erupt over a provision in the bill to require reauthorization of the basic highway improvement law, the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act, in 1996, a year earlier than planned.

Distribution of $6.5 billion in highway money to the states starting Oct. 1 is contingent on approval of the National Highway System bill. Subcommittee members said they were confident they could complete action by then and work out differences with the Senate.

The bill is HR2274.

English drive, which is being criticized as immigrant-bashing by Hispanic-rights groups and others. Monday, Republican presidential frontrunner Bob Dole announced his support for making English the country's official language, joining several other GOP candidates.

One House bill mandating that all government business and paperwork be conducted in English has drawn more than 180 co-sponsors. Similar Senate legislation has attracted the support of more than 18 senators.

The Hispanic Caucus letter was signed by Democratic Reps. Kika de la Garza of Mission, Solomon Ortiz of Corpus Christi, Frank Tejeda of San Antonio; Xavier Becerra and Esteban Torres of California; Luis Gutierrez of Illinois; Bob Menendez of New Jersey; Ed Pastor of Arizona; Bill Richardson of New Mexico; Nydia Velazquez of New York; and Guam delegate Robert Underwood.

The lawmakers bristled at Kiser's statement earlier this summer that Ms. Laureano was mistreating her child by only speaking Spanish to her.

"This statement is unfounded," the lawmakers wrote. "Labeling the Spanish language as abuse is an affront to Hispanic-Americans and all who value their cultural heritage. These statements also mock the seriousness of child abuse."

In ordering Ms. Laureano to speak some English to the girl, Kiser had said: "You're abusing that child and you're relegating her to the position of a housemaid."

As an uproar ensued, Kiser apologized to housekeepers but stood by his order. "I do feel it is necessary for parents to facilitate their children's education," he said last week.

Ms. Laureano's ex-husband, Timothy Garcia, raised the language issue during a custody hearing. Garcia said the only English the girl was learning came from him.

Ms. Laureano, who was born and raised in Mexico, speaks English. She said she uses Spanish at home because she wants her daughter to grow up bilingual.

Prosecutors to appeal Ito's ruling on Fuhrman unavailability to jury

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - O.J. Simpson's defense lawyers wanted to rest without putting him on the stand, saying his testimony was unnecessary to answer a state case in "shambles." The prosecution would not let them.

Keeping jurors waiting in a hotel they want desperately to leave, prosecutors derailed the defense's last day in Simpson's murder trial. They promised to file an emergency appeal today of a ruling that jurors would be told that Detective Mark Fuhrman would be "unavailable" to testify.

When the judge summoned jurors into the courtroom Thursday after they spent the day in a holding room, he broke the news that they probably wouldn't be back until Monday. Some clenched their jaws. Some frowned or were grim-faced.

Today's agenda called for a no-frills procedural hearing.

The last time the 12 jurors and two alternates heard testimony was just after lunch Wednesday. After eight months of being sequestered, they have repeatedly sent notes to Judge Lance Ito to tell him they aren't "happy campers."

A whole host of developments unfolded. The most significant was the defense's announcement that Simpson would not be called to the stand.

The defense says Simpson's testimony is not needed given the damage to the prosecution's case from Fuhrman's taped comments about racism and police misconduct. Fuhrman on Wednesday invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Simpson's lawyers have spent the last part of their case tearing into Fuhrman, a man they contend is a racist capable of planting a bloody glove to frame Simpson in the knife slayings of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Buddy Holly exhibit features memorabilia of singer's life

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Buddy Holly's hometown has opened a museum exhibit honoring the rock 'n' roll legend known for his singing hiccup and unconventional strum.

Several hundred fans turned out to glimpse the Fender Stratocaster guitar, tour itinerary, suede shoes and other Holly possessions on display.

"His music to this day does not get tiring," said Lubbock County Commissioner Kenny Maines, a guitar player who attended opening ceremonies Thursday at the Museum of Texas Tech University.

"It's so easy to listen to, whether it's the up-tempo stuff or the ballads," Maines said. "You can listen to Buddy Holly music and not get bored with it."

Memorabilia at the museum comes from a 156-piece collection the city of Lubbock bought last year for $175,000. Officials say it's the largest Holly collection anywhere.

The free exhibit, "Buddy Holly: The Influence," remains on display through May 10.

Photographs and glass-encased letters provide the museum's visitors with clues to the 22-year-old Lubbock native who died in a plane crash Feb. 3, 1959.

Holly recorded more than 100 songs - including "That'll Be the Day," "Peggy Sue" and "Rave On" - during his 18-month career.

A blaze of orange neon spells out Holly's name at the entrance to the exhibit, which includes lyrics written in a looseleaf binder. Other items: a microphone, plaid wool jacket, turntable and smattering of 45-rpm records.

Maria Elena Holly told the crowd she was excited and proud.

"Buddy Holly's not here in person but he's here in spirit," the widow said, her eyes red and teary. "Wherever he is, he is very happy and very grateful for all of you."

Thursday's tribute fell on the day Holly would have turned 59.

Mayor David Langston helped cut birthday cake for the guests and proclaimed the next 12 months the "Year of Buddy Holly" in Lubbock.

Langston said Holly sounded like the guy next door and still managed to influence musicians like the Beatles and Waylon Jennings.

"His music - because of its innovation, because of its creativity and because of its simplicity - it lifted our hearts whenever we heard it," Langston said. "Its beat seemed to beat within our own hearts."

City officials hope to build a Lubbock Center for the Arts and move the Holly memorabilia next year into the $1.5 million facility.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I feel compelled to respond to "A Bystander in Wisconsin," whose mother's marital problems became her business because she was the oldest child. I, too, grew up in a household where my parents fought constantly. They loved each other very much, but they could not live together.

You were right to tell "Bystander" that her parents need professional help. They might also benefit from separating for a while. Our parents did this and finally divorced, but the time apart allowed them to work things out, and they eventually remarried.

As for us kids, divorce was a piece of cake compared to the daily fighting. It is difficult for children to get up and go to school with clear heads when there is so much turmoil at home. Picking up the pieces of your family after each fight is not easy. Now, several years later, we are all close to one another, we lead productive lives, and we're relatively well-adjusted.

Being the oldest, like "Bystander," I certainly remember the pain. It never really goes away. Tell her to hang in there. The future is almost certain to be better than the past. -- Remembering in Utah

DEAR UTAH: I hope parents who fight in front of their children will read this with interest and vow to do better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a never-married older woman with a problem in need of a solution. I hope you can help.

Because I am unable to find someone to accompany me to a church dinner or other public affairs, many times I go alone, hoping to run into someone I know. What I have encountered too many times is deeply discouraging. Here are my depressing dinner experiences:

The person to one side of me turns his back to me the entire dinner. The one on the other side is not interested in conversation. The person across from me is more interested in eating than talking. I try to make pleasant conversation, but I find that no one is interested in dinner conversation with a stranger -- especially an older woman.

I have found myself, throughout an entire dinner, feeling totally alone in a crowd. I don't want to turn into a recluse, but the last charity dinner I attended made me think that perhaps I would have been a lot better off if I had stayed home and listened to some music or read an interesting book.

People may not be aware of this problem, but it is a real one and has made some of us reluctant to go to dinner gatherings alone. A little more awareness on the part of those who are accompanied might make a lonely person's evening a great deal more pleasant. -- Youngstown, Ohio

DEAR OHIO: Obviously, the public dinners you attend are not seated affairs, which means people sit wherever they want to.

If you are unable to arrange in advance for a friend to go with you, arrive early enough to mingle with the crowd in advance of the seating and engage in conversation. You should be able to find someone who wishes to continue to talk. That person should be your seat mate.

Gem of the Day (Credit Reader's Digest): You can make more friends in two months by becoming really interested in other people than you can in two years by trying to get people interested in you.

(NAPS)—Go west young man—or young woman—would be good advice for anyone interested in visiting Federally owned land. About 88 percent of all Federal land can be found in 11 western states. Nevada has more Federal land than any other state, with 60 million acres, a whopping 85 percent of the state. California follows with 47 million acres, which is about 48 percent of the state. Utah is third with 36 million acres, which is 65 percent of the state. Other Western states with large amounts of Federal land are Idaho, Oregon, Arizona, Wyoming, New Mexico, Montana, Colorado, and Washington. The total acreage of land owned by Uncle Sam increased by 3.3 million acres between 1982 and 1992.

Reily presents program for Xi Epsilon Alpha

Xi Epsilon Alpha met Sept. 5 in the SPS Reddy Room.

Prior to the business meeting, a program "Rowdy Raindrop" was presented by Pat Reily. Different water conservation methods were presented in a slide presentation.

President Ruby Sanders presided over the business meeting.

Following the roll call taken by Diane Beavers, correspondence and thank you notes were read.

Nominations for this year's sweetheart will be taken at the next meeting.

A new president will be nominated at the first Beta Sigma Phi City Council meeting. Linda Arellano, current president, has taken a leave of absence.

Peggy Hyer, scrapbook chairman, reported that work was begun on the scrapbook.

The next meeting will be Sept. 19 in the Community Center. The program will be "Famous Quotations." Melinda Henson will serve as hostess with Melinda Whitfill and the membership committee as co-hostesses.

Refreshments of banana split pie, vegetables with dip, assorted nuts, coffee and almond tea were served by hostess Gaye Reily and co-hostess Kay Williams.

Present were Holly Bixler, Deann Harris, Sheri Jones, Carol Kelley, Ruby Lee, Connie Matthews, Brenda Ramey, Beavers, Henson, Hyer, Reily, Sanders, Whitfill, Williams and guest Michelle Brisending.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently, I had an echogram on my heart and was told that my heart walls were thickening and hardening. Obviously, this isn't a good sign. I'm told it is a condition created by high blood pressure. Is there any medicine to help this problem? -- J.R.

ANSWER: If your heart muscle is enlarging because of high blood pressure, good things should happen when you arrest that pressure.

When blood pressure rises, the heart must pump harder against that force in order to circulate blood through the body. The heart is mostly muscle, and muscle that works harder gets larger.

No heart can accommodate high blood pressure forces forever, so in time the heart muscle weakens.

Adopt a program to control the blood pressure—now, while you can yet prevent development of an ever larger, ever weaker heart. You want to prevent an ultimate decline into inefficiency and increasing failure.

Now, you singled out the blood pressure angle. Don't necessarily get hung up on that factor. Many other conditions can cause hearts to enlarge, and they must be ruled out. Granted, high blood pressure is by far the most common cause.

Control of your blood pressure probably will go a long way toward arresting the heart enlargement. A controlled pressure might even lead to a reversal, a return to more normal heart proportions. That is more likely if the blood pressure has not been out of control for a long time. See the blood pressure report I'm sending you. Readers can obtain a copy by sending $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope to: Dr. Donohue—No. 4, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Should a woman stop drinking as soon as she learns she is pregnant? Are the risks real? Be honest. -- Mrs. H.T.

ANSWER: Honestly, the risks to pregnancy are real.

Our scanty information prevents us from setting "safe" drinking levels, ones you might think would avoid the chief negative result: fetal alcohol syndrome. So most experts consistently decree total abstinence throughout pregnancy, and I join them.

A few indicators of relative FAS dangers are emerging. For example, babies born of women who drink early in pregnancy are more likely to have the more serious FAS symptoms. But even mothers who drink only later in their pregnancy do not escape consequences, delivering babies below normal weight or delivering them prematurely.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Years ago, I was diagnosed with sarcoidosis. I had low-grade fever, lost 12 pounds and experienced pain in my joints that doctors said was rheumatoid arthritis. They found a gland in my chest swollen, and so I was put on prednisone. No malignancy. Things were fine, until recently, when the sarcoidosis returned and I went back on prednisone, a smaller dose. I want to know more about sarcoidosis. -- M.H.

ANSWER: Sarcoidosis is not uncommon. It can affect all parts of the body, with the lungs most frequent targets.

Sarcoidosis is marked by granulomas, heaped-up white blood cells, those devoted immune-system warriors that occasionally launch out-of-the-blue kamikaze sorties against the body.

Little drill team camp to be held

Hereford High School band will sponsor a "Little Drill Team, Twirler and Drum Major Camp" Saturday at the high school band hall.

The camp is open to girls and boys in kindergarten through 6th grade.

Registration opens at 8 a.m. and registration forms can be completed at that time.

The camp concludes at 12 noon.

Participants will learn a routine and will perform at the varsity football game on Sept. 15.

The cost is $15, due with registration, and includes a T-shirt and entrance to the game.

San Antonio cultures come together in two very different public spaces

By CHRISTOPHER ANDERSON

San Antonio Express-News
 SAN ANTONIO - San Fernando Cathedral and nearly a decade are about all that stand between Plaza de Armas and Plaza de las Islas, two small plots of ground at the center of San Antonio's history.

Today, City Hall dominates Plaza de Armas, but Plaza de las Islas still affords its visitors a place to pause and reflect under shady oak trees.

Their present utility is surpassed by what has happened in these two very different public spaces, also known as Military and Main plazas, respectively.

"You see the layering of history here - two cultures coming together and that is what San Antonio is all about," said Andrew Perez, a historic architect who is helping develop a new master plan for Main Plaza.

Plaza de Armas developed first in 1722 with the presidio or fort. Settlers from the Canary Islands arrived in 1731, and began building a church seven years later.

San Fernando - now the oldest cathedral sanctuary in America - was finished in the mid-18th century, and was completely restored in 1873. The wall behind the altar is all that remains of the original.

Plaques claim that the remains of David Crockett, James Bowie and William Travis are in the white marble coffin under the church's left bell tower. Remains were exhumed from the cathedral in 1936, but historians reject the notion that they are those of the famed Alamo defenders.

Plaza de las Islas developed along with the church in accordance with the Leyes de las Indias, a set of Spanish rules, derived from Greco-Roman planning principles, for laying out new cities.

For many years, the church's dome was considered to be the geographic center of San Antonio. Interestingly, the church should have been located east of Plaza de las Islas, but instead was situated next to the presidio.

The Plaza de las Islas, a tranquil area with the "Dancing Waters" fountain as its central feature, has seen more eventful days.

In 1749, a peace treaty with Apache Indians was celebrated by the burial of a live horse, six arrows and a lance in the plaza center. The truce didn't last and braves later stormed the Royal Houses, which served as top-level government offices, in an assassination attempt.

Moses Austin asked Spain for permission to settle Anglo colonists in 1820 inside the same offices - which were on the site now occupied by the St. Paul Book and Media Center at Market and Main Plaza streets.

The first decades of the 19th century saw the Spanish flag flying over Main Plaza lowered twice before it was taken down for good when Mexico gained its independence from Spain in 1821.

Mexican forces later retreated to the Alamo and surrendered after fighting the 1835 Battle of Bexar in the vicinity of the plaza, setting the stage for the Alamo Battle the next year. The Union also surrendered its forces in Texas to the Confederacy in 1861.

Public lynchings were done in Plaza de Armas, which, oddly enough, was considered the "liveliest place" in Texas from the 1850s to the 1890s. The plaza was then bordered by variety theaters and raucous saloons, but the big draw was the municipal market where questionable characters, fresh produce and Mexican food for the masses were bountiful.

The market was created after holdover Spanish structures were cleared for a jail and courthouse known as the "Bat Cave," sparing only the Spanish Governor's Palace - which served as home to the presidio's commander.

The Chicago World's Fair inspired the final phase in the plaza's development as City Hall was built with the idea of having a "main civic structure occupy the center of a space," Perez said.

Hereford's Jason Culpepper poses with the car he used to take second place in the summer-long point standings at Route 66 Motor Speedway in Amarillo.

Culpepper ends racing season in 2nd

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's Jason Culpepper capped off a summer of auto racing by finishing second in points for the season at Route 66 Motor Speedway in Amarillo.

Culpepper, racing in the International Motor Contest Association, scored 350 points at Route 66 and was second by only two points to defending champ Shane Elliott.

Culpepper also raced in Lubbock, Lamar, Colo., and Roswell, N.M. He was 18th in points at the Lubbock track and 25th in the region made up of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas.

He competed in about 40 races - sometimes two or three a night - from May through last weekend. Racing in the summer meshes nicely with Culpepper's regular job, teaching and coaching at Hereford Junior High.

He's been racing for seven years, following the footsteps - or tire tracks - of his father, Jim Culpepper.

"My dad used to race late models, which is a higher class than this one," he said. "My first race was at the age of seven months."

That was as a spectator, of course. Jason's first race behind the wheel was when he was 18.

Jim Culpepper is head of Jason's pit crew, which also consists of Jason's mother Marilyn and his wife Kristi.

Watching a loved one speed around a dirt track, squeezing between 30 other speeding maniacs, might be a concern for some, but Kristi got over it.

"I was (worried) until last summer when he rolled three times and climbed out," Kristi said. "Since then, I haven't worried. If (the car) can hold up, and he stays in there - if he doesn't get hurt (rolling three times), he'll be all right. The only thing that worries me is fire, but alcohol doesn't burn very often."

Rolling three times was his worst wreck, Jason said.

"It's a weird feeling, going over and over," he said. "You have no control. You're just in there for the ride."

Cowboys lead Deion derby

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Deion Sanders appears ready to abandon the San Francisco 49ers for the rival Dallas Cowboys.

San Francisco club president Carmen Policy said Thursday the Cowboys had a 90 percent chance to get the nod today from the flamboyant comeback after three teams made lucrative bids to the multisport star.

Policy said it was fourth and long for the 49ers, who wooed Sanders away from the Atlanta Falcons last year, because of a blockbuster money offer from Dallas owner Jerry Jones.

Sanders was in Chicago where the San Francisco Giants were scheduled to play a day game against the Cubs.

Denver joined the bidding war late Thursday but Jones kept one step ahead by getting permission from quarterback Troy Aikman to restructure his contract, adding another $2 million to the pot.

Policy said he got the feeling after making the 49ers' bid to agent Eugene Sanders that his team was

Sampras, Courier make Open semis

NEW YORK (AP) - They fought this one with bludgeons shaped like tennis rackets. Toe to toe. Mano a mano.

And when the men's quarterfinals were finally completed, when Thursday had disappeared just as had so many players in the U.S. Open, two of the biggest sluggers in the game were left standing, ready to rumble for another round.

Pete Sampras and Jim Courier revved up their power games, solved the gusty wind sweeping through Louis Armstrong Stadium and blasted their opponents off the court in straight sets.

It was far from easy. Sampras, seeking to add this crown to his Wimbledon title, knocked off unseeded Byron Black of Zimbabwe 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 6-0. Courier, showing the form that took him to three Grand Slam titles earlier in his career, outfought fifth-seeded Michael Chang 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-3), 7-5.

trailing late in the fourth quarter. "We have not discussed the details of the Dallas deal," Policy said. "But I would have to say my sense of it is it is very significant and probably more significant than the other two deals that were submitted."

"This all boils down to money because I think we have a lot more to offer than Dallas in many other respects," Policy said.

Policy said he expected Sanders to finalize a deal today and held out long-shot hope that the 49ers, who won their fifth Super Bowl with Sanders' help last season, would be able to retain him.

"You never concede. It's never over until it's over. I'm just attempting to be as realistic as I can in dealing with this situation," Policy said.

Parker held talks in Dallas with Jones, who presented the Cowboys' five-year financial package that included a huge bonus expected to approach $10 million. The total package was expected to exceed $20 million.

"We've got this figured out pretty close to the penny," Jones said. "We're confident Deion will come with us."

The 49ers met with Sanders hoping to come up with a package that would please him. He wants to play wide receiver as well as cornerback and kick returner.

Also, the Cowboys were talking to several teams about trading defensive lineman Russell Maryland. Such a trade would free some $1.8 million under the cap.

Sanders, 28, was the NFL defensive player of the year in 1994 although he played in only 14 games after his baseball obligation ended. He had 37 tackles and intercepted six passes.

Sanders tied Ronnie Lott's 1981 team record of three interception-return touchdowns on plays of 74, 93, and 90 yards.

The last two returns established an NFL record of two or more interception-return touchdowns of 90-plus yards. He also set a team record with 303 yards on interception returns.

Sanders has played in five Pro Bowls.

He intercepted a pass off Aikman in the 49ers' 38-29 NFC championship game victory over the Cowboys.

Aikman was ready to welcome Sanders, particularly because he doesn't like playing against him.

"Deion is a presence in any secondary," Aikman said. "He's the best defensive back in the NFL. Who wouldn't like to have him on their side?"

Sanders might need arthroscopic surgery on his left ankle, which he sprained last May playing for Cincinnati. If he plays for Dallas, Sanders will have to run on hard Texas Stadium artificial turf.

Frosh gridders come back for win

The Hereford freshmen A football team spotted Randall 18 points in the first quarter of their game Thursday in Hereford, but the Herd still won, 26-18.

Hereford got four touchdowns runs from Mark Rodriguez in the comeback victory. His first was for 45 yards. The second was a three-yarder set up by a Thomas Suarez fumble recovery, and Suarez ran for a two-point conversion to make Randall's lead 18-14.

Rodriguez scampered 75 yards for the go-ahead TD and later added an eight-yard scoring run.

Randall won the freshman B game, 12-6. Hereford's Jason Bradford ran 35 yards for a touchdown, tying the game at 6-6 in the second quarter. Randall took the lead for good with a TD later in the second quarter.

Hereford's junior varsity and sophomore teams played in Amarillo and Lubbock, respectively, Thursday. Results were not reported.

Freshmen spikers crack Caprock

Hereford's freshmen volleyball team defeated Caprock, 17-15, 15-3, Thursday night in Whiteface Gym.

Kristin Cole and Angie Pena each served for seven points, and Rachel Chavez and Misty Tice each served for six.

The freshmen have two matches in the next four days. They play at Borger at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, then they host Randall at 6 p.m. Monday.

Borger swept the Hereford Junior High volleyball teams Thursday at HJH.

Both seventh grade teams lost three-game matches. The A team lost 10-15, 15-10, 15-7, although April Rocha served for seven points for Hereford. The B team fell 15-6, 11-15, 15-8, and Hereford got four service points each from Lindsay

Davison and Marivel Sanchez.

The eighth grade A team lost 15-9, 15-12, despite Angie Evers' six service points. The B team lost 15-3, 15-3.

It was the third match of year for each Hereford team. Hereford swept Canyon in season-opening matches played Aug. 26, then Hereford won three-of-four from Pampa Aug. 28 (only the eighth B team lost).

The HJH teams next play at Dumas Monday, starting at 5:30 p.m.

Braves finish Marlins in suspended game

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) - The Atlanta Braves took just 21 minutes to KO the Florida Marlins in the first game of a very strange doubleheader. Florida won the nightcap with its own brand of power baseball.

The same pitchers, Pat Rapp of the Marlins and Steve Avery of the Braves, started both games of the time-warped twinbill that started May 4 only to be suspended by rain in the ninth inning.

The game was resumed in a drizzle Thursday night with a Braves runner on third, nobody out and the game tied at 3.

Luis Polonia, who was playing for the New York Yankees when the game began, doubled in the tiebreaking run, and Marquis Grissom added a two-run homer as Atlanta won 6-3.

The Marlins got 6-1/3 innings of no-hit pitching from Rapp and long home runs from Gary Sheffield and Jeff Conine for a 5-1 victory in the nightcap, slowing the Braves' rush to clinch the National League East. The Braves, who a five-game win streak snapped in the nightcap, have a magic number of six.

In the only other NL game on Thursday, it was St. Louis 5, San Diego 2.

Robb Nen, (0-5) who pitched in trouble in May and again Thursday night, took the first-game loss for the Marlins. Brad Woodall got the victory, his first in the majors, although he pitches for Class AAA Richmond. Greg McMichael earned a save, his first this season.

"All kinds of goofy things happened," Marlins manager Rene Lachemann said. "We're playing decent at home now, but at that time it was very rough. It was my birthday, and we hadn't won a home game."

The Braves had rallied for three runs in the ninth inning of the May 4 game before it was suspended after a 1-hour, 17-minute delay. The Marlins were ahead 3-0 when David Justice reached on an error by shortstop Eddie Zosky that was initially ruled a hit. Jose Oliva, who has since been traded to the St. Louis Cardinals, hit a two-run homer to close the gap to 3-2. Pinch-hitter Dwight Smith doubled and Mark Lemke drove a fastball into the right-field corner for a triple.

Then the skies opened. The Marlins took a 3-0 lead on an RBI triple by Andre Dawson and RBIs by rookies Charles Johnson and Quilvio Veras.

In the nightcap, the Marlins played the kind of baseball that's marked their second half - strong starting pitching and clutch hitting. Rapp (10-7), who won his fifth straight decision, was jubilant after the second game.

"That's probably the best control I've had in my life," Rapp said. "I had all three pitches (fast ball, change and curve) going all night."

Fred McGriff broke up Rapp's no-hitter in the seventh with a towering home run to center, his 24th.

Rapp allowed one run on four hits. He struck out five and walked two.

Sheffield's home run, his 10th and fourth in five games since returning from a hand injury, came after Chuck Carr reached first on an infield single.

"When they make mistakes, I make them pay for it," Sheffield said. "They're helping me out, throwing it down the middle."

In the sixth inning, Conine hit his 22nd homer off Avery (6-12) with Carr and Sheffield aboard. Avery, who gave up six hits and struck out seven in seven innings, lost his third straight. The Braves' left-hander has given up 20 home runs this year.

Avery conceded he hasn't quite solved his problems.

Cardinals 5, Padres 2

Ray Lankford drove in four runs with a double, triple and sacrifice fly and Allen Watson pitched six shutout innings as St. Louis snapped a five-game losing streak.

Indians clinch tie for AL Central

Tribe to play in postseason for first time since 1954

By CHUCK MELVIN
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) - It has seemed inevitable for weeks, and the Cleveland Indians are treating it that way.

Forty-one years after their last pennant, the Indians clinched a tie for the AL Central championship Thursday night, beating the Seattle Mariners 4-1.

One more win or one more Kansas City loss will give the Indians the division title outright. They've already guaranteed themselves at least a wild-card berth in the playoffs, their first postseason appearance since the New York Giants swept them in the 1954 World Series.

"For fans, it's very exciting - 41 years of frustration put to rest," general manager John Hart said. "Ultimately, the players have their sights set on something beyond clinching the pennant."

In the only other AL action Thursday night, Texas beat Chicago 2-0.

There was no celebrating in the Cleveland clubhouse after the game, no suggestion that the playoff berth or even the pending division title represented anything more than another obstacle overcome.

"We're just trying to stay focused. Really, our only goal right now is to go into the playoffs with some momentum," said Jim Thome, whose bases-loaded double in the first inning produced Cleveland's first two runs. "Let's face it, this team has played well all year, and we haven't had to look over our shoulder."

Charles Nagy won his third consecutive start, and Carlos Baerga homered for the Indians, winners of 11 straight home games and 13 of their last 15 overall. Their 85 wins are their most in any season since they won 86 in 1968.

The Mariners fell six games behind first-place California in the AL West and one game behind Kansas City in the wild-card race. The Royals play three games at Seattle beginning tonight.

Thome's two-run double put Cleveland ahead in the first, but Seattle closed to 2-1 on Jay Buhner's home run in the fourth, his career-high 28th. Baerga answered with a two-run shot off Chris Bosio (9-8) in the fifth, Baerga's 15th of the year but his first since Aug. 5.

Nagy (13-5) gave up one run and five hits in seven innings, walking three and striking out seven. In his last three starts, he has struck out 26 batters in 20 2-3 innings.

Alan Embree and Julian Tavarez combined to pitch a scoreless eighth, and Jose Mesa - who had blown his previous two save opportunities - worked a perfect ninth for his 39th save in 41 chances.

Bosjo yielded four runs and eight hits in seven innings, walking one and striking out five.

"I love coming here to play these guys," Bosio said. "They have an awesome lineup, and so do we. It's a good matchup. In fact, I'd love to come back here next month against these guys and take our chances (in the playoffs). Now it's time to go home to Seattle and do something about making our way back here."

The Mariners got a scare in the third inning when Ken Griffey Jr. screamed and dropped his bat as he checked his swing. Griffey, who underwent surgery for a broken left wrist in May, flexed his hand and walked around the plate before resuming the at-bat.

He struck out that time up but lined a single up the middle in the sixth inning.

"When Junior checked his swing on his second at-bat, it got a little scary," manager Lou Piniella said. "But he said it didn't bother him the rest of the game, so that's good news."

The Mariners and Indians were playing a one-game "series" that was added to the schedule because of the players' strike.

Rangers 2, White Sox 0

At Arlington, Roger Pavlik threw a three-hitter for his first career shutout as Texas halted Chicago's eight-game winning streak.

Pavlik (8-9) had lost three of his previous four decisions, but he was in command against a hot-hitting White Sox lineup that was batting .342 with a .558 slugging percentage over the eight-game streak, Chicago's longest since 1991. The complete game was Pavlik's first of the season and fourth of his career.

Pavlik struck out five and walked four in outdueling Wilson Alvarez (7-8), who is 0-7 on the road this season.

Texas ended a four-game losing streak and moved within two games of idle Kansas City in the AL wild-card race.

Arizona slashes past Ga. Tech

By MEL REISNER
AP Sports Writer
Arizona's offense was supposed to have caught up to the defense, which has carried the Wildcats to bowl games three straight years.

But it was the defense saved the day against Georgia Tech.

"The defense played great. The offense couldn't get it going until the end," wide receiver Richard Dice said Thursday night after the 17th-ranked Wildcats scored 13 points in the final six minutes to defeat Georgia Tech 20-19.

Dan White and Dice got Arizona (2-0) within a touchdown when they hooked up on a 60-yard pass-run play. Then the defense, torn up most of the game by Georgia Tech tailback C.J. Williams, came through.

Arizona held the Yellow Jackets to three plays and forced a punt. Armon Williams, a reserve linebacker, charged up the middle to block it and recovered at the 4. White scored on a 1-yard sneak three plays later for the final points of the game with 2:21 left.

In the other game Thursday night involving a ranked team, Boston College shaded No. 20 Virginia Tech 20-14.

In Saturday's action, it's No. 1 Florida State at Clemson; No. 2 Nebraska (1-0) at Michigan State; No. 4 Penn State vs. Texas Tech; No. 5 Florida at Kentucky; No. 6 Auburn vs. Tennessee-Chattanooga; No. 7 Southern Cal vs. San Jose State; No. 8 Tennessee vs. Georgia and No. 10 Colorado vs. Colorado.

Also, No. 11 Michigan vs. Memphis; No. 12 UCLA (1-0) at Brigham Young; No. 13 Alabama vs. Southern Mississippi; No. 14 Oklahoma vs. San Diego State; No. 16 Virginia at No. 23 North Carolina State; No. 19 Miami (0-1) vs. Florida A&M;

Non-traditional church has more relaxed atmosphere

By AMANDA DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
PLATTE WOODS, Mo. (AP) - Don't look for a hymnbook, listen for a choir or lower your voice inside the North Heartland Community Church.

Pastor Rick McGinnis would prefer you laugh at the skits, applaud the country-western band and sing along with the lyrics as they pop up on a movie screen.

"This is a church for people who think they don't like church. For people who think church is boring," McGinnis said.

Services at North Heartland are anything but boring. Rousing country and Christian songs are pounded out by a band that would do well in any honky-tonk. Congregation members act out comedy skits with serious messages.

At one service, church member Terry Lamberth spoofed comedian Jeff Foxworthy's well-known bit, "You might be a redneck if..." The day's theme asked why science contradicted the Bible, so Lamberth took a scientific tack.

"You might be a high-tech redneck if you have a remote control to flush your toilet," he said. "You might be a high-tech redneck if your computer cost more than your house."

No pews, no ministerial vestments, no organ, no hymns, no Scripture readings and no chance this would be mistaken for a traditional Sunday service.

The New Mark Middle School theater is perfect for the congregation's needs, McGinnis said.

"For some people, an actual church is a barrier. It's like, 'This is where God lives.' But we're not on our own special turf here," he said.

North Heartland is one of maybe a dozen country music churches in the United States. One of the originals, the Main Place Christian Fellowship in Santa Ana, Calif., began more traditionally but drifted toward a country approach about seven years ago, Pastor Rich Mathisrud said.

"It wasn't something we set out to do. It just sort of evolved this way," he said. "Anybody who likes country music. That's the segment of the population that's coming to church here."

Like North Heartland, people are drawn to Mathisrud's church because of the warm feeling.

"We make them feel comfortable. We know their names, they get a real warm welcome and we don't even taken an offering. If they want to give, they can give at the back of the church," he said.

Both pastors agree they try to break down barriers that keep some people away from church.

"When we began, we listed six values on how we would run the show," said McGinnis, 37. "The No. 1 value is erasing artificial barriers."

Membership at North Heartland is at about 80, but 200 or so attend Sunday services, and many of those are considering membership.

"I think a lot of the attraction is that you feel more relaxed," said Pam Seymour, who has been driving from Kansas City, Kan., to attend services at North Heartland for more than a month.

Seymour visited the first time at the urging of friend Judy Henderson of Platte Woods.

"I'd been going to a more traditional church, but my son told me about this," Henderson said. "She hadn't been going to church regularly, and I thought I could get her to go to this one. And I did."

McGinnis delivered a recent Sunday message in blue jeans, a plaid button-down shirt and hiking boots.

McGinnis has a bachelor's degree in math and a master's in computer science, but after working for Bell Labs as a software engineer for five years, he left to enroll in the Midwest Baptist Theological Seminary. He graduated from the seminary in 1990 and served as an associate pastor at Park Hill Baptist Church.

He took an approach "like any entrepreneur going into business" to the new church. He and a few associates defined a market and looked for customers, partly by advertising on country music station KBEQ.

"If we're talking to people who like country music, we play that up. But we're careful how we promote that, because it could turn some people off," McGinnis said.

"Right now, we are living above our means," he said. "And we have to consider if the congregation will meet the needs."

Long-term, he wants the church to grow to about 800 members and build a permanent facility.

"We'd like to build a facility. But if we did, it wouldn't look like a church," he said. "It would look more like a college campus."

Extra sounds, smells in worship found to affect retarded persons

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer

For centuries, even millennia in some faiths, religious worship has incorporated all of the senses.

In the Middle Ages, rituals, music, stained-glass windows and other devices were the major ways a largely illiterate population were helped to experience the Christian faith.

The Enlightenment led a move toward a more rational religion where faith and sacraments were tied to intellectual assent. But today, particularly as greater sensitivity is paid to people with disabilities, religious groups are showing greater openness to the mystical elements of faith.

A task force on sacramental practices in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America proposed allowing infants to receive Communion, and U.S. Roman Catholic Bishops recently held up the right of church members with mental disabilities to receive the sacraments whenever feasible under church law.

A new study published in the Journal of Religion in Disability & Rehabilitation finds that incense and music can enrich the worship experience of severely mentally retarded people.

In the study, 17 severely retarded people with an average mental age of less than 2 were observed reacting to various stimuli during 15 weeks of Wednesday worship services at a residential center in North Carolina. The participants were selected because of their lack of response during regular chapel services.

What researchers the Rev. Ingram C. Parmley, Rodney E. Realon and Deborah L. Frye found was that when dramatic classical music was played, a 47 percent increase in the amount of attention paid to the minister was noted. When incense was used, a 31 percent increase was noted.

What the researchers also observed on videotape was a greater calmness, focus on the service and looks of pleasure when the incense and classical music were introduced.

The researchers said it is difficult to know precisely how the mentally retarded individuals were affected, but the project suggests the addition of extra sounds and smells to the worship service enriches their experience.

"The bottom line is we can't prove anything, if you want to be cynical," said Parmley, former director of research and training on disability ministry at The Covenant Center in Morganton, N.C.

"As a person of faith, I say this is confirming what we knew all along: God communicates with us in a number of ways."

The Rev. Fred Reed, chairman of the religion division of the American Association of Mental Retardation, said the findings appear reasonable.

Reed said he thinks the severely mentally retarded can develop worship skills and music is a key factor.

"You communicate through music," Reed said.

In many ways, the liturgical experiences that help the mentally retarded are part of a long tradition.

"Part of what we were doing was as old as worship itself ... restoring music and lights and smells," said Parmley, of St. James Episcopal Church in Lenoir, N.C.

When you observe a typical church service today, Realon said, you notice different devices, such as standing and sitting at various intervals and music used to keep the attention of worshippers.

Both Realon and Parmley said it is the church's responsibility to find creative ways to assist the retarded, just as it would for other people with special needs.

"God's house is either big enough for everybody," Parmley said, "or it's not big enough for anybody."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

MICAHIAH'S PROPHECY!

MANY OF THE BIBLICAL KINGS WERE AT ODDS WITH ONE OR MORE OF THE PROPHETS OF THE LORD! KING AHAB OF ISRAEL AND THE PROPHET MICAHIAH WERE A CASE IN POINT! BAD BLOOD HAD EXISTED BETWEEN THEM FROM THE TIME WHEN AHAB HAD DEFEATED THE SYRIAN KING BEN-HADAD AND HAD NOT KILLED HIM AS MICAHIAH HAD SAID THE LORD WANTED HIM TO DO. BECAUSE OF THIS MICAHIAH HAD PROPHESED THE DEATH OF KING AHAB AND BEEN PUT IN PRISON FOR SUCH TEMERITY! WHEN JEHOSEPHAT, KING OF JUDAH, VISITED AHAB, KING AHAB SAID THAT THEY SHOULD JOIN FORCES AND TAKE THE CITY OF RAMOTH-GILEAD FROM BEN-HADAD (1 KINGS 22:3) AHAB GATHERED ALL HIS PROPHETS TO SEE IF IT WAS A GOOD IDEA OR NOT. ALL 400 PROPHETS PROPHESED VICTORY FOR AHAB, BUT JEHOSEPHAT WAS NOT SATISFIED AND ASKED FOR A REAL PROPHET OF THE LORD. AHAB SAID THAT THERE WAS A PROPHET BUT THAT HE HATED HIM, FOR HE PROPHESED EVIL FOR THE KING. WHEN MICAHIAH WAS BROUGHT BEFORE THE TWO KINGS, HE ALSO PREDICTED VICTORY! AHAB WARNED THE PROPHET TO TELL THE TRUTH AND THEN MICAHIAH SAID, "VICTORY FOR ISRAEL BUT DEATH FOR KING AHAB!" MICAHIAH WAS SENT BACK TO PRISON AND PUT ON BREAD AND WATER UNTIL KING AHAB SHOULD RETURN! ALTHOUGH AHAB DISGUISED HIMSELF FOR THE BATTLE, THE BIBLE TELLS US THAT THE KING OF ISRAEL DIED ON THE BATTLEFIELD JUST AS MICAHIAH PROPHESED HE WOULD! THE BIBLE DOES NOT TELL US IF THE PROPHET WAS EVER RELEASED FROM PRISON OR NOT—AND NO MENTION OF HIM IS FOUND AFTER THIS ACCOUNT! (1 KINGS 22)

CLASSIFIED

364-2030
Fax: 364-8364
313 N. Lee

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

Times	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are 4.35 per column inch; 3.65 inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers an additional insertion will be published.
