Lost Stradivarius found; ownership dispute settled

LOS ANGELES (AP) - In 1967, a college musician borrowed an $800,000 Stradivarius violin and lost it from his car while riding between a liquor store and a restaurant.
 It was found last year, but it wasn't until Monday that the question of who owned the 263-year-old instrument--named the Duke of Alcantara after an obscure Spanish nobleman--was settled.
 The University of California, Los Angeles, agreed to pay Teresa Salvato $11,500 for the famed violin, one of 1,200 handcrafted by Antonio Stradivar.

Texas lags in adult literacy spending

State stands second in U.S. in number of undereducated

By PEGGY FIKAC
 Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas spends dramatically less on teaching illiterate and under-educated adults than other states, according to a report by a State Board of Education task force.
 "Available resources to address the adult literacy problem in Texas lag far behind the demand," says the report by the board's Task Force on Adult Education and Literacy.
 The report was presented to a conference of teachers, supervisors and directors of education programs for adults, the homeless and children from low-income families.
 Texas, ranked No. 2 in the United States in the number of under-educated adults, allocates $9 million annually to the Texas Education Agency for adult education and literacy services, the report said.

California, with the highest number of under-educated adults, appropriated $450 million for the 1995-96 fiscal year.
 New York, ranked third in the number of under-educated, set aside $50 million, and Florida, ranked No. 4, $250 million, the report says.
 A 1993 study found that between 27 percent and 28 percent of Texas adults, or 3.5 million people, ranked at the lowest of five literacy levels. They may have been able to do such basic things as identify specific information in a brief newspaper article, but couldn't perform more challenging tasks.
 More than 220,000 people in Texas are served by adult education and literacy programs. More than 90 percent of those who educate adults are part-time workers, the report said.
 The report recommends funding adult education and literacy through the same state program that funds public schools.

 But even some who support increasing adult education funding don't like the idea of the money coming from the Foundation School Program. That includes Senate Education Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant.
 "I'd love to find some more money for adult literacy, but if you take it from the Foundation School Program, then you're going to take it away from K (kindergarten) through (grade) 12. ... I'm not prepared to make the decision that (adult education) is a higher priority," he said.
 Richard Kouri, president of the Texas State Teachers Association, agreed.
 "There needs to be more funding for adult education in Texas. There's no question about it," Kouri said.

 "But given the fact that we don't adequately fund public education in Texas right now either, I don't believe that funding should come from the Foundation School Program."
 The $9 million cited in the report is from TEXA's general revenue fund, said TEA spokesman Joey Lozano.
 In addition, the federal government allocated $17.7 million to Texas for fiscal year 1995-96 for the state's adult education program, and local programs provide funding, the report says.
 The Texas Department of Criminal Justice also administers funds that can be spent on literacy services for people on probation, plus delivering adult education to inmates through the Windham School System.

Broken sewer line creates sinkhole to swallow house

By MARTHA IRVINE
 Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The skies opened up and so did the ground, as a busted sewer line blasted enough water to carve out a house-swallowing sinkhole as deep as a 10-story building.
 Crews worked through the night dumping sand into the hole in an exclusive neighborhood overlooking the Golden Gate Bridge, and diverting water from the broken storm drain, police Lt. Henry Parra said today.

Cliff neighborhood were evacuated, including the childhood home of photographer Ansel Adams, which was built in 1902.
 The city was trying to stabilize the Adams house, owner Peter Winkelstein said. He and his wife, Barbara, were staying with a neighbor.
 Driving rain hampered efforts to shore up the threatened homes and plug the broken sewer line that burst with extra runoff, officials said. Crews placed sandbags and plastic tarps on the sides of the hole, while water was diverted into other sewers before reaching the broken pipe.
 The broken sewer released a gusher of water that undermined the hillside below the houses. The hole quickly grew to about 200 feet by 150 feet and was about 100 feet deep.
 City engineer Todd Cockburn said the sinkhole was the worst he had seen in his 28 years with the city.
 "It's like a water hose on a sand pile," Cockburn said of the water that blasted from the broken sewer onto an ever-eroding cliff of sand and debris.

One house toppled over into the gaping hole Monday and at least 25 others were evacuated. Two houses teetered on the brink of the hole today.
 "There's still one house that could go any second," Parra warned.
 No one was injured Monday when the first house crashed into the hole and flew apart. The owners were on vacation and returned in the afternoon.
 A neighbor's garage, a huge palm and a chunk of the street also dropped into the hole. At least 25 other houses in the swanky Sea

 Hammock said county legal staff had reviewed and approved the policy.
 County Judge Tom Simons said he would contact other counties that have placed concealed weapon policies into effect.
 "I don't want guns in the courthouse, or other county property," he declared. The state law spells out some places, such as courtrooms, where concealed guns are banned.
 However, the statute does not cover the courthouse or other property, Simons said.
 County Clerk David Ruland requested permission to seek proposals on ballot-counting equipment. He said pay out plans of three years and five years are available.
 Commissioner Troy Don Moore of Precinct 2 offered a motion authorizing proposals and Commissioner Castillo seconded. The vote was unanimously in favor of asking for proposals.

 The Dalhart Texan reported Friday that the land options had been terminated. The article quoted Charlie Arnot, PSF director of communications, as saying that nothing had changed with the 20,000 sow production facilities in Dalhart, but the planned expansion was still on hold.
 Arnot added that the 170 jobs and the facilities in Dalhart were secure, but he didn't rule out selling of the facilities "if the right buyer and price is offered."

 Tooley argued, however, that "we hold the final responsibility for what goes on in this district" and that "I don't think we've overloaded anybody with information requests. ... What you're saying is let's give up the only power we have now to get information."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About 20 years ago, you printed a Christmas newsletter from Bruce and Rose Bliven. Unlike most holiday newsletters, I enjoyed that one. I've saved the column and hope you will print it again. -- San Fran

DEAR S.F.: I agree that the Blivens' newsletter is a classic, and I am delighted to share that column with my readers once again. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you and Herb Caen of the San Francisco Chronicle are against mimeographed Christmas letters, I thought you might consider quoting something from Herb's column which my husband and I enjoyed immensely. Here it is:

"I don't care for Christmas letters, but Bruce Bliven's are different. Now 86 (Jan. 19, 1976), the onetime editor of The New Republic (for 30 years) lives with his wife at Kingscote Gardens, Stanford, in England. He wrote:

"At 86, Rose and I live by the rules of the elderly.

"If the toothbrush is wet, you have brushed your teeth. If the bedside radio is warm in the morning, you left it on all night. If you are wearing one brown shoe and one black shoe, you have a pair just like it somewhere in the closet.

"Try not to mind when a friend tells you on your birthday that a case of prune juice has been donated in your name to a retirement home.

"I stagger when I walk, and small boys follow me, making bets on which way I'll go next. This upsets me. Children shouldn't gamble.

"Like most elderly people, we spend many happy hours in front of the TV set. We rarely turn it on."

Sweet, isn't it? -- Your Friend

Blondie in Reno

I responded:
DEAR BLONDIE: Right you are! That's a Christmas letter that warms my heart. Not a word about "Jim's" promotion, the children's stellar achievements, the dog's litter of puppies, Mother's arthritis or the new Mercedes. I hope Bruce and Rose see this and put me on their list for next year.

Well, folks -- I'm happy to report that Bruce and Rose did put me on their list, and here's a condensed version of their Christmas 1976 letter:
"Dear Friends: Rosie and I are now 87. Would we care to try for 174? The answer is no. I'm 46 percent as old as the United States and still can't spell 'seize.'"

"Rosie has aged some in the past year and now seems like a woman entering her 40s. She chides me about the little elf who regularly enters our house in the middle of the night, squeezes the toothpaste tube in the middle and departs. Last May, we celebrated our 63rd wedding anniversary.

"As for me, I am as bright as can be expected. I remember well the friend who told me years ago, 'If your IQ ever breaks 100 -- sell!'"

"I walk with a slight straddle, hoping people will think I just got off a horse. On my daily excursions, I greet everyone punctiliously, including the headrests in parked empty cars. Dignified friends seem surprised when I salute them with a breezy 'Hi!' They don't realize I haven't enough breath for a two-syllable greeting.

"When we are old, the young are kinder to us and we are kinder to each other. There is a sunset glow that radiates from our faces and is reflected on the faces of those about us. But still, it is sunset." -- Rose and Bruce Bliven

Lawlis completes written exam, is certified in internal medicine

Internal medicine specialist R. Stephen Lawlis, MD, is now board certified, according to Jim Robinson, administrator of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Dr. Lawlis successfully completed a written exam in Dallas recently to become certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine.

"This is one of the highest marks of quality that a physician can receive," Robinson said. "The requirements are rigorous, so that when a physician completes this step, he is recognized by his peers as practicing high quality medicine."

Lawlis began his practice in Hereford last summer. As a specialist in internal medicine, Dr. Lawlis serves as both a primary care physician and specializes in adult and adolescent medicine. His specialty makes him an expert in the diagnosis and treatment of systemic diseases, particularly of the heart, the gastrointestinal system, lungs, kidneys, joints, blood disorders, diabetes, and infectious diseases.

A native of Austin, he received a bachelor of engineering science degree from the University of Texas in 1982, and a master of science in engineering from the same school in 1988.

He worked for five years as a civil engineer with Camp Dresser and McKee, Inc. He received his doctor of medicine degree from Texas Tech in May, 1992, graduating in the top five percent of his class. From 1992 to 1995, he completed a residency in internal medicine at the University of North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, N.C.

During his tenure at Texas Tech, he was president of the Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society, and served as a research assistant in the departments of dermatology and pathology. He was also named the outstanding student of internal medicine for 1991-1992.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Much of the mail I receive has my name and address typed on a label on the envelope or visible through a window. Unsolicited applications and offers for various products often have my name and address in two places.

I cut out most of these and keep them to use as ready-made return-address labels. My only expense is the time and effort to cut and paste them.

Using them also eliminates my making a mistake in writing my return address. These are especially useful when paying bills or ordering something, when a more personalized or attractive return address label is not necessary. -- Maurice Smith, New Braunfels, Texas

DIET STRATEGY

Dear Heloise: Trying to stick to a diet is so very hard! To give myself an incentive, I pledged $1 for each pound and each inch I lose to my favorite charity.

We are both reaping the benefits, however slowly. -- Frances Williams, Bradford, Pa.

Herd cagers claim 3rd in I-27 tourney Lady Whitefaces open District 1-4A play tonight in Pampa

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford brought home the bronze from the I-27 Tournament, which concluded Saturday in Abernathy. Both of Hereford's varsity basketball teams won in third-place games played Saturday. The girls blew out Lubbock Cooper, 60-42, and the boys set down Slaton, 69-61.

The Lady Whitefaces' win sends the team into District 1-4A play with a 9-1 record. They play at Pampa (7-3) at 6 tonight.

Hereford's one loss came against Nazareth in the I-27 semifinals, and the Lady Whitefaces learned a lesson from that.

"We made it a point to get off to a better start after the sluggish start against Nazareth," coach Eddie Fortenberry said. "The kids did a good job of concentrating. They pretty much went out and decided to take care of business this time."

Hereford's press led to a 20-10 lead at the end of the first quarter. Hereford led 38-23 at halftime.

"Our press hurt them," Fortenberry said. "They've got great post players and average guards. Our quickness and our pressure hurt them. That led to turnovers, which led to points for us."

"In the second half, they decided to slow it down a little to try to get back into it," Fortenberry said. "That kept us from scoring a lot, but it didn't affect the outcome of the game."

The Lady Whitefaces go into district play on a pretty good roll. They'll need that momentum to compete in District 1-4A - the seven teams have a composite record of 58-29.

"We're going to enter district pretty healthy and pretty confident," Fortenberry said, "which is the way you want to do it."

The girls play two district games before Christmas: tonight in Pampa and Friday against Randall at 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Gym.

The boys don't start district play until Jan. 2. Hereford's boys are off tonight, but they host Coronado at 6 p.m. Friday.

The boys improved to 5-7 with their 69-61 win over Slaton. Hereford led 14-9 after won quarter, then survived a hot streak by Slaton in the second quarter, when Hereford was outscored 25-13.

"They made some three-point shots," Herd coach Randy Dean said. "They had a nice little run. In the last three minutes (of the second quarter) they went on a scoring bend. We had some turnovers that led to easy baskets for them."

Other than that stretch, it was a great defensive performance for Hereford.

"Early in the game, we had real good defensive pressure. Our press was giving them a lot of trouble," Dean said. "In the second quarter, we lost a lot of intensity on defense, and that kind of helped them get something going."

Hereford reclaimed the lead at 48-44 with a 21-10 advantage in the third quarter. Slaton scored 11 points in the fourth quarter going into the final minute, then hit two quick treys to make the game look closer than it was.

"In the entire second half, we regained that defensive intensity and really clamped down on them," he said.

Michael High led the team offensively, pouring in 31 points. High topped 30 points twice in four games in the I-27 Tournament, averaging 20 points a game. Dean said he might be notified later this week of any possible all-tournament selection; in fact Dean said Saturday that he had just been notified that High was named all-tournament at the Wayland Lions Classic in Plainview the previous weekend.

The Herd won three and lost one in the I-27, and Dean called the four games the Herd's "most consistent streak" of the season.

"Hopefully, it's something that will springboard us into the rest of the year," Dean said. "We got contributions from everyone on the team, and that's what it's going to take for us to be successful for the rest of the year."

HJH 7th, 8th A boys win Canyon tourney

Hereford's seventh and eighth grade boys' A teams won tournaments in Canyon Saturday.

The Hereford seventh graders dominated the field, winning three games by a composite score of 224-39. They won the championship game 83-12 over Canyon, as Slade Hodges and Cody Hodges both scored 20 points and Israel Martinez added nine.

Coach Grant Davis said he tried not to run up the score; he took the press off after two and a half minutes.

In the semifinals, the seventh A team beat Westover 70-14. Slade Hodges scored 18, Chayse Rives had 15 and Cody Hodges had 14. In the team's first game Thursday, it beat Dimmitt, 71-13.

The eighth grade A team also dominated, but their scores were a little more believable: 59-26 over Dimmitt; 52-24 over Valleyview; and 56-34 over Canyon in the finals.

Nicholas Whatley led Hereford with 15 points in the finals, and Greg Ewing and Eric McNutt each added 12. L.J. Vallejo scored 16 against Valleyview, while Whatley and Ewing added 14 and 12, respectively.

Against Dimmitt, Ewing had 15, Vallejo had 14 and McNutt had 11.

The seventh grade B team took fourth, losing to Westover A, 59-37 and to Canyon A, 37-33. Eddie Ruiz led Hereford with nine points against Westover and eight against Canyon. Rod Ineugas added eight against Westover.

The eighth B team won its final game, 30-22 over Canyon B, after losses to Plainview A, 42-35, and to Valleyview B, 28-25. Morris Penalber had 12 points against Valleyview and 10 against Plainview. Justin Carroll had eight against Canyon.

All four HJH teams won again Monday at Canyon:

7th A won 72-13. Eric Ramos scored 24, Cody Hodges had 16, Rives had 11 and Slade Hodges had 10.

7th B won 50-17. Ruiz had 10, J.P. Holman had nine, and Eddie Lacey had eight.

8th A won 47-24. McNutt scored 12.

8th B won 27-22. Mike Bedolla scored six.

7th B girls take 2nd in division

The climax for Hereford teams at the junior high girls' basketball tournament held here wasn't the "A" division championship games. It was the last seventh grade "B" pool game Saturday afternoon.

Canyon, which came in 2-1, beat Hereford's previously 3-0 team 19-16 to claim first place in the division. Bethany Williams led Hereford with five points.

Earlier in the day, Hereford's seventh B team beat Dumas, 34-18. Williams scored nine points and Renee Hernandez scored eight.

Hereford's A teams in the seventh and eighth grades weren't in the running for championships Saturday. Both took third in their pools and played against the third-place teams from the other pool.

The eighth grade A team lost 31-28 to Valleyview, despite 15 points from Valerie Guzman. The seventh grade A team fell to Dumas, 18-17, and Ashley Fangman and Holly Schilling each scored four points.

The eighth grade B team lost twice Saturday: 17-12 to Dumas and 28-26 to Canyon. Leslie Torres and Janet Blakely each scored six points against Canyon, and Jennie Rankin scored six points against Dumas.

The HJH teams hosted Canyon Monday. The seventh B won 22-17 and Williams scored 10 points. The seventh A lost 41-14, eighth B lost 27-12 and eighth A lost 27-14.

Switzer takes criticism for call against Eagles

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP)—Barry Switzer says he can take any flak the critics dish out about his bizarre call in the fourth quarter of the Cowboys' 20-17 loss to Philadelphia.

"I'm a thick-skinned SOB," said Switzer when asked if all the criticism bothered him. "I was trying to go win a football game. It was the right thing to do at the right time. I know the pulse of our team."

For the most part, Dallas Cowboys played down the media at Valley Ranch on Monday, although a few brave ones stood their ground and answered questions about Switzer's decision to go for fourth and one twice from his own 29 yard line with the game tied and two minutes to play.

No player publicly questioned Switzer's decision that, when Philadelphia held, led to the Eagles' game-winning field goal.

"If we had made the first down, nobody would have said anything," safety Darren Woodson said.

"I don't think it was the wrong call," quarterback Troy Aikman said.

Switzer, assistant coaches and players met behind closed doors on Monday. The former Oklahoma coach delivered a fiery pep talk.

"I told the team it was us against the world because a lot of people have written us off," Switzer said. "They say we can't get it done."

"I told the team we had two options. We can moan, bitch and point fingers at each other and do all the things that losing breeds like going down the tubes, and roll over ... or we can make history and go out and win the last two games. ... It's us against everybody outside this room."

Switzer said he hadn't heard much about the second-guessing from television analysts, radio broadcasts, and newspapers.

John Madden of Fox Television said of the call: "The Cowboys deserved to lose."

Mike Ditka on NBC called it "dumb and dumber."

Former Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson of Fox said, "I guarantee you, even (owner) Jerry Jones would have punted."

"That's their opinion," Switzer said. "I respect some of 'em."

The Cowboys produced statistics that showed they had made the Smith "load left" with Emmitt Smith running the ball 94 per cent of the time on short yardage goalline and third and fourth down plays.

"That's what our success ratio has been over the last six years," running back coach Joe Brodsky said. "This weekend, we play the New York Giants. Tell them to look for the play."

Switzer said he had no debate from the players or coaches on the sidelines even when Dallas tried the play a second time after it had been ruled the two minute warning occurred before the snap the first time.

"We have the best running back and the best offensive line in football," Switzer said. "The players and the coaches felt the same way. Now we've got to cool our jets and regroup."

The Cowboys can still win the NFC East and get a first round bye if they defeat the Giants and Phoenix in their last two games. Dallas has a 10-4 record and is tied with San Francisco for the best record in the NFC. The 49ers own the tie-breaker because of a 38-20 win over the Cowboys earlier in the year.

"If we win our last two games, we are 12-4 with the same record we had last year," Switzer said. "If we can get to the NFC championship game, we don't care whether it's played in Dallas, San Francisco, the desert or a cow pasture."

Owner Jerry Jones wasn't at Valley Ranch to take the heat on Monday. He was in New York on a business trip.

Switzer had several telephone conversations with Jones.

"Jerry told me we should have gone for it," Switzer said.

Jones, asked after the game if Switzer was a coaching liability, said "there will be no coaching free agency with the Cowboys. Barry will be back next year, absolutely."

Jones had said earlier that Switzer would be back "unless he's shot or hit by a truck."

Defensive end Chad Hennings summed up the Cowboys feelings: "It's like somebody took out our heart and stepped on it."

Dolphins' win takes heat off Shula

MIAMI (AP)—Fans are showering Don Shula with confetti instead of criticism, and he's moving toward the playoffs rather than retirement.

Shula's Miami Dolphins made three defensive stands and forced three turnovers Monday night to beat the Kansas City Chiefs 13-6.

The Dolphins (8-6) posted their second consecutive victory, muting Shula's detractors and setting up a showdown Sunday at snowy Buffalo. Miami trails the AFC East-leading Bills by one game with two to play.

A vast majority of those responding to recent unscientific newspaper polls wanted Shula replaced. But as he left the field after beating Kansas City, he waved to fans who threw confetti on him, then walked through a tunnel and under a sign reading, "Shula is God."

The 65-year-old coach turned feisty at the postgame news conference when it was suggested that he seemed more intense.

"I seem more intense?" Shula said. "Are you depicting me as being more intense? Why don't we take a poll on it?"

No one questioned the intensity of Shula's defense, which stopped

Kansas City on downs three times, once in the final moments after Tamarick Vanover dropped a potential touchdown pass. The Dolphins also came up with their first three turnovers in the past five games.

"Our defense held them when we had to hold them," Shula said. "It was a great effort."

The Chiefs (11-3), who have already won the AFC West, missed a chance to clinch a first-round bye in the playoffs, but still have the NFL's best record.

"You can't turn the ball over and win," Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "That's how you get beat. And if you can't make fourth down and a foot, the other guy should win."

Schottenheimer lost to good friend Shula for the fourth consecutive time in the past three seasons.

"I feel awful right now personally because of the result," Schottenheimer said. "But I think everyone knows how I feel about Don Shula."

Kansas City, 3-0 in overtime this season, had a chance to tie or win the game when George Jamison recovered Bernie Parmalee's fumble at the Miami 36 with 31 minutes left.

But Vanover dropped a potential 9-yard touchdown pass on third down, and Bono's fourth-down pass was broken up by Terrell Buckley with 1:31 to go.

"We didn't make the plays," Bono said.

Buckley said the Dolphins wanted to win for Shula.

"He's our leader, our general," Buckley said. "Any time you mess with our general, you're messing with us. We have to stand up and fight for our general."

Dan Marino threw for just 156 yards and one touchdown, but the Dolphins' defense shut out the Chiefs for nearly 55 minutes. Miami's first takeaways in five weeks set up two first-quarter field goals, and the Chiefs were stopped on fourth-and-1 in the third quarter at the Miami 4- and 27-yard lines.

Tackle Tim Bowens led the charge. He was in on both fourth-down tackles, forced two fumbles and recovered one for the Dolphins.

"People have to learn not to run at Tim," defensive end Jeff Cross said.

Going into the game, the Chiefs had been 14-for-17 on fourth down.

Bono, playing with a bruised throwing hand injured in the Chiefs' previous game, completed just 15 of 37 passes for 180 yards. He threw a 57-yard touchdown pass to Webster Slaughter with five minutes left to cap a 75-yard drive.

"We started terrible and it took us three quarters to get going," Bono said.

After failing to come up with a turnover in the past four games, Miami forced three in the first quarter. Each takeaway gave the Dolphins possession in Kansas City territory, but they converted the chances into just six points on a pair of 33-yard field goals by Pete Stoyanovich.

It took the Dolphins six possessions to get their offense untracked. Then they mounted a 63-yard drive capped by Marino's 3-yard touchdown pass to O.J. McDuffie on third and goal for a 13-0 lead at halftime.

"We're not giving up, even though a lot of people have given up on us," Miami receiver Irving Fryar said. "We've got the talent. We've just got to keep on trucking."

McNair shines in debut with Oilers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Oilers lost the game but Steve "Air" McNair won respect.

After a season-long buildup, McNair finally got to show the fans how he got his nickname and what they'll be missing when the Oilers complete their likely move to Nashville next season.

"He just teased us a little, showing us what was to come," linebacker Michael Barrow said. "With this era of Oilers coming to an end, he showed us what they're going to see in Nashville."

"The Oiler era started off with the Ken Houston and Earl Campbell, and it's going to end with Steve McNair."

McNair played the second half of Sunday's 24-17 loss and after a slow start completed 16 of 27 passes for 203 yards and his first career touchdown, a 39-yard Chris Sanders in the fourth quarter.

"I wasn't surprised how well he did," tackle Irv Eatman said. "Just being around Steve, I know that nothing much rattles him. He handled it the way he handles everything. He's a good quarterback who's going to be great."

Coach Jeff Fisher said he would not make a decision on Sunday's starter against the New York Jets until Wednesday or Thursday after he takes a reading on starter Chris Chandler, who sat out the second half against Detroit because he's battling mononucleosis.

"I want to be in there as much as anybody but it's not up to me," McNair said. "I'll let the coach make the decision."

Fisher was impressed with McNair's first extensive playing time.

"The fact that we lost the game was overshadowed by the performance of our quarterbacks," Fisher said. "I thought they both did a good job considering the different situations they operated under."

Seeing McNair's performance made cornerback Cris Dishman wish next season had already arrived since the Oilers are out of the playoffs with a 5-9 record.

"We've got some good guys on offense with McNair, Rodney Thomas and Chris Sanders," Dishman said. "They're going to be good for a long time. There's still two games left so he's going to get a lot of confidence in those games, confidence that's going to help for years to come."

Report: Tech regent gave free legal help to school's athletes

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)—Red Raider athletes who run afoul of the law have turned to Texas Tech regent John C. Sims, an attorney with expertise in banking and transportation, since at least 1988.

"Tech is a love of life for me," Sims said when Gov. Ann Richards named him to the university's governing board four years ago.

Now a weekend report in the Houston Chronicle has raised questions about whether players paid for the legal advice from the law firm Sims, Kidd, Hubbert & Wilson.

Interviews and documents examined by the Chronicle indicated a practice of providing free legal assistance to athletes. In criminal matters—from rape to traffic tickets—more than a dozen current and former Tech athletes have been represented by Sims or his firm's one-time associate, Marta Rosas Mahoney, the newspaper said.

Former Lubbock County district attorney Travis Ware said his office encountered Tech athletes five or six times during his tenure from 1986-1994.

"The same attorneys always represented them. It was always John Sims or Marta Rosas," Ware said last week. "The only question mark I ever had about any of this was whether he did this pro bono for the athletes. I always wondered who was paying for the legal fees."

Sims, the vice chairman of the Tech regents, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal that he never represented any athlete for free.

He did not return a telephone call Monday.

"I'm not making any comments about that," Ms. Mahoney said.

National Collegiate Athletic Association rules allow an attorney to work pro bono for players only if the attorney also provides such service for other needy students.

Deniece Jones, attorney for students at Tech, maintains a referral list of about 80 attorneys who indicate their availability to work for students, possibly for a reduced fee or on a payment plan. Ms. Jones said Sims and his partners aren't on the list.

Sims was the attorney in 1988 who represented two football players charged with sexual assault. One of his current clients—as Tech prepares to play Air Force in the Copper Bowl on Dec. 27—is quarterback Zebbie Lethridge, who faces a seven-month-old shoplifting citation.

Out of the seven Red Raider football players recently arrested on rioting charges at a party, those contacted by The Associated Press have refused to name their lawyer.

Remember gardeners on your Christmas list

By GEORGE BRIA
 POUND RIDGE, N.Y. (AP) - What would a gardener want for Christmas? Merchants are offering a wide range of gifts, suiting any pocketbook, to give green thumbs.

Starting at the low end, a sure-fire gift is a trowel, always in demand because trowels get mislaid. A quality trowel costs around $12.

Lately, gardening catalogs have been offering sets of trowel, cultivator and fork. Among many displayed, a different-looking pair caught my eye: Japanese creations with 14-inch handles that can be used for digging, cultivating, weeding and chopping. The two-item set costs $30, from Brookstone, 1655 Bassford Drive, Mexico, Mo. 60265-1382, (800) 926-7000.

Another unusual tool I saw, bearing the name Thistle Monster, boasts a huge jaw and sharp brass teeth to pull out by the roots invasive vines like blackberries. A 39-inch handle lets you put body weight into the job. It's offered at $55 by the Natural Gardening Company, 217 San Anselmo Ave., San Anselmo, Calif. 94960, (707) 766-9303.

Watering cans are greatly appreciated by indoor as well as outdoor gardeners. A galvanized French can with a long curved handle is offered by Langenbach, Dept. L5800, P.O. Box 1420, Lawndale, Calif. 90260-6320, (800) 362-1991. It comes in three sizes at $48.50, $54.50 and $59.50.

For a big surprise you could make someone happy with the newest thing in lawn mowers - a cordless, battery-powered model, especially appreciated by elderly gardeners tired of the strain and fuss of some gasoline mowers.

I bought one last summer and was thoroughly satisfied with the instant-start, fumes-free and low-noise performance. They run up to 90 minutes on an overnight charge and need no maintenance except for sharpening the blade and cleaning. Prices go from $400 for a push model to $500 for a self-propelled one.

Ryobi models are offered by Gardener's Supply Company, 128 Intervale Rd., Burlington, Vt. 05401, (800) 863-1700. Black & Decker models are carried by hardware stores and garden centers, with addresses obtainable by telephoning (800) 762-6672.

Gardener's Supply also carries handsome tabletop fluorescent light stands for indoor gardening. A two-tube model comes at $149 and a four-tube at $199. The tubes themselves cost extra, two for $25.95 and six for $69.95.

For something to read, one of the most practical books I've seen recently is "The 400 Best Garden Plants" by horticulturist Elvin McDonald (Random House, New York, 1995, $40 hardcover.) This encyclopedia divides annuals, perennials, bulbs, trees and shrubs into separate sections and features varieties requiring the least work and fuss.

The latest (1995) edition of "How To Grow More Vegetables" by John Jeavons, director of Ecology Action, an environmental research organization, shows how to use bio-intensive methods to raise a year's vegetables for a family of four on 800 square feet or less.

The book, first published in 1970, has become a classic translated into seven languages and used in 108 countries. The paperback is available for $19.95, ($21.18 including tax in California) from Ecology Action, 5798 Ridgewood Road, Willits, Calif. 95490.

"The Private Life of Plants" by David Attenborough, the noted writer and filmmaker, gives intriguing glimpses of unsuspected dramas continuously unfolding in the vegetation around us. The book, published by Princeton University Press ($26.95, hardcover), is based on a six-part BBC program.

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Bria retired from The Associated Press in 1981 after 40 years that included coverage of World War II from Italy.

Quick gifts on a budget

If you are looking for a quick and inexpensive gift-making project, decorating candles is ideal. The basic items for this personalized home-spun gift are a taper or pillar candle and nonflammable odds and ends from around the house.

Whether you decide on taper candles for under a dollar, or larger pillar candles, your child's creativity will shine. When the project is complete, carefully wrap the candle in tissue paper and tie with ribbon or raffia. Make a colorful gift tag cut from last year's holiday cards and write a short greeting inside.

First, help your child make a gift list, which may include a teacher, neighbor, baby sitter and grandparents. Discuss how much money the project will cost, then head off to the store together and let your child choose and purchase the candles.

To decorate pillar candles: Dig through old costume jewelry in the kids' dress-up box looking for metallic beads, fake pearls and shiny jewels from necklaces and bracelets that have come apart. Sort through a button jar or box for interesting and attractive metal buttons, too. Glue the individual items to the candle for a fancy embellishment.

We discovered that pierced earrings, lapel pins and tie tacks work perfectly without glue. Simply poke the items directly into the candle. If you are decorating candles with a group of kids, you may wish to purchase a card of inexpensive pierced earrings, which come in a variety of colors at discount stores. They are easy to handle and look dazzling on candles.

Use pearl-headed pins or short straight pins (available at craft stores) to secure colorful sequins to a candle.

Decorate taper candles: Paint designs or symbols on a candle freehand with fabric paint in squeeze bottles. Or, cut out a small stencil design such as a star on an index card. Tape the stencil to the candle, or hold it in place with one hand. Squeeze paint on a paper plate, dip a small sponge in the paint and then lightly dab the sponge on the stencil design. Gently lift the stencil off the candle. Let dry.

Note: As candles burn down, remove decorations.

Daughter of author fights for new printing of book about life on Outer Banks in '40s

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer
BUXTON, N.C. (AP) - Yes, Carol Dillon lived on Hatteras Island where she had a dog and a horse. No, she did not help capture a German spy during World War II, but her mother did. And no, she wasn't chloroformed and left to burn to death.

That's how it goes with historical fiction like "Taffy of Torpedo Junction," a book published in 1957 and on the verge of going out of print. Some is true, some is based on truth and some is artistic license.

The book is about 13-year-old Taffy Willis, who lived along the Outer Banks during World War II, when U-boats patrolled the coast. Mrs. Dillon - then Carol White - was the model for "Taffy," written by Nell Wise Wechter, who died in 1989. Mrs. Wechter taught seventh grade at Cape Hatteras School and boarded for several years with Mrs. Dillon's mother.

Taffy should be required reading for school children, Mrs. Dillon says. "It depicts a way of life they're not familiar with. Even though it's fiction, it still depicts what went on during the war."

The book's authenticity, including its use of the Outer Banks brogue, has kept it alive for almost 40 years, agreed Marcia Wechter Kass of Pensacola, Fla., the author's daughter.

Alive maybe, but not kicking, according to the publisher, John F. Blair Publisher in Winston-Salem. Sales just don't justify another printing, said company president Carolyn Sakowski.

Mrs. Kass is not ready to give up on "Taffy." She has the page negatives and a nibble from another publishing firm, she says.

"I can't contest their business decision," she says of Blair. "But I also could not help responding emotionally. If there's something I can do to keep 'Taffy' afloat and available to a new generation, I think I should try."

In the book, Taffy, her dog, Brandy, and her friend, Malene, help capture a German saboteur attempting to come ashore.

In real life, Mrs. Dillon's mother, Maude Miller White, was a postmistress on the island who became suspicious of a German man who frequently mailed heavy wooden boxes.

When she would ask what was in the boxes, he would say books or papers. Mrs. White reported the packages to the U.S. government, which followed the man to New York, where he was arrested, Mrs. Dillon says.

In his boxes were detailed maps of the East Coast from Maine to Florida, she says. Her mother received a commendation from the U.S. government.

Mrs. Dillon remembers that the U-boats would surface when area fishermen went by. The German soldiers would ask for any food.

The Germans never bothered the fishermen, saving their torpedoes for the tankers, Mrs. Dillon says.

The local school had windows that went from the ceiling to the floor. When the Germans opened fire, "it would rattle those windows until you thought they were coming out of their sashes."

Eventually, the United States responded to the threat off the Outer Banks. "After we got going we were sinking more of the U-boats than they would be sinking tankers."

Mrs. Dillon sometimes speaks at the island school to children from various parts of the state who are studying North Carolina history. "This is the only book these children ask any questions about," she says.

They are interested not only in U-boats, but also in life along Hatteras Island in the 1940s, when the homes had no electricity and the road consisted of two ruts. Most cars had no license plates; if you left the island, you had to borrow one, Mrs. Dillon says.

New Hillerman novel has Vietnam setting

By RICHARD BENKE
Associated Press Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - Vietnam is a long trek from Navajo Country, but novelist Tony Hillerman says the courage of his latest hero transcends geography.

Hillerman, who usually writes about Navajos, has based the characters for his best-selling "Finding Moon" on people he knew during World War II.

Moon Mathias, a self-effacing Colorado newspaperman and master mechanic, is thrust into the April 1975 evacuation of South Vietnam to find his brother's Amerasian daughter.

"Finding Moon" is dedicated to C Company, 410th Infantry, Hillerman's old World War II outfit, which he recalls was full of soldiers who had scored exceptionally well on intelligence tests and been placed in special training units. With heavy losses in North Africa, the intelligence was moved to the front and given dogface assignments just like everybody else, he says.

"For example, I was a mortar gunner, and a guy carrying ammunition for me was a guy that had made the highest score ever posted on entrance exams for Yale out of Kansas, and here he is, hauling 60-mm ammunition in a sack like a mule."

It didn't matter if soldiers were big, little, dumb or smart when it came to sorting out heroes from their more timid comrades, he says.

"You go over there and get in combat, and you see how people change."

One kid from California looked like the weak end of a Charles Atlas body-building ad but turned out to be the "to-hell-with-it hero kind of guy," Hillerman says. "He was the guy that went in the house with the tommy gun to make sure all the Germans were gone."

"I always thought after the war, I'm going to find a situation where I can write a novel showing the way a guy's personality changes under stress or tension."

He says he didn't want it to be set during World War II because he wanted the hero to be a civilian, not a soldier.

A parallel plot in "Finding Moon" involves an aging Chinese man seeking the bones of his ancestors - a cargo consigned to Mathias' brother's airline.

When the brother dies, the "kam taap," as the reliquary is called, vanishes. Lum Lee is as intent on finding it as Mathias is on finding his niece.

Although Hillerman has never been to Vietnam or even reported about the war, he says that didn't impede the story.

For his Navajo novels he always checks facts with Navajo friends. For "Finding Moon" he checked with his Vietnam veteran buddies.

Does Hillerman have any desire to see Vietnam?

"Not really. I would like to take the train ride from Bangkok down to Singapore," he says, adding that he'd like to see Angkor Wat, the Cambodian shrine.

"Maybe I'd like to see some of those battlefields, but they'd all be grown up with jungle."

He researched the region and period. He especially credits a National Geographic study of the Mekong River.
