1995 offered wide variety of news stories

Pork plant, volleyball team, Aquatic Center among top headlines of year

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
One year ago, The Hereford Brand reported that an announcement by Premium Standard Farms to bring a pork processing plant to town was the top news story of the year.
In 1995, PSF once again was one of the year's top news stories -- this time with a different announcement, that land contracts for the proposed facility were being terminated.
The PSF story, which was almost exactly a year in the making, was one of many news stories reported on the pages of The Brand during 1995.
With elections held during the year, new faces stepped to the forefront of governmental agencies; residents were honored during the year in a variety of ways, including awards and having parks named for them; and the city, county, school district and hospital district boards all made a variety of decisions.

In addition to the PSF story, other top stories of the year, presented in no particular order and based on perceived reader interest, include:
-- The Hereford High School girls' volleyball team vaulted to prominence this year when they reached several milestones.
The Lady Whitefaces ended the district portion of the regular season undefeated -- including a victory over the Dumas Demonettes on their home court and a season sweep over their long-time nemesis -- and claimed their first-ever outright District 1-4A championship.

During much of the regular season, the Lady Whitefaces were ranked No. 1 in the state.
After playoff road wins, the team headed for Austin and the state tournament. The Lady Whitefaces defeated Magnolia in the first round, but lost the state title match to Red Oak.
Even in defeat, three members of the team were named to the all-tournament team.
Team members were given special recognition at the regular Nov. 30 chamber Fun Breakfast.
-- Hereford recreation entered a new era on Aug. 5 when the Hereford Aquatic Center opened for business. The million-dollar facility, built with funds from the city, county, school district, hospital and other sources, boasts two pools, including a domed pool for year-round use.

A "pool party" helped formally open the pool.
The ribbon was cut on the facility in conjunction with the annual Town and Country Jubilee.
-- The face of the Hereford ISD board of trustees changed in September when the board approved a court settlement in a voting rights lawsuit brought against the district earlier in the year.
In February, Trini Gamez filed the voting rights suit against HISD in U.S. District Court alleging that minority voter strength was diluted by the system of five trustees elected from districts and two from at-large positions.

Under the settlement approved in September, the district adopted a 7-0 format, with all seven trustees to be elected from single-member districts, beginning with the May 1996 elections. The action did away with the at-large positions.
-- The Hereford City Commission and HISD board of trustees underwent personnel changes during 1995 as elections and resignations brought new faces to both panels.
Dennis Hicks resigned from the City Commission in February, even as Mayor Bob Josseland and Commissioner Silvana Juarez were preparing for re-election bids.
Scott Hall was appointed to the commission later in February, and in May, he, Josseland and Juarez were all elected to full terms on the commission during the regular city elections.
Also in May, two new faces joined the HISD board of trustees, as one incumbent trustee chose not to run again and another was upset.
Cherry McWhorter and Roy Dale Messer joined the board when Mrs. McWhorter upset board president Steve Wright and Messer won the right to replace Mike Veazey.
Jim Marsh was later elected president of the school board.
In December, Joe Flood stepped down from the school board so a relative could be hired by the district. He was not replaced.

Later in the month, City Commissioner Nancy Griego resigned her seat after she was called up for active military duty. Action on a replacement for her had not been taken by year's end.
-- For decades, Hereford residents had known the name First National Bank.
But in June, that name became obsolete, as the holding company of the bank announced it was changing the name of FNB -- and the other banks in the group.
New signs for FirstBank Southwest went up in August as the name change became effective.
-- Hereford without the cattle?
Not even remotely possible, as the annual Fed Cattle Survey released in June by Southwestern Public Service affirmed Deaf Smith County's position as "Cattle Feeding Capital of the World."
In the 1994 report, Deaf Smith County came in with 862,887 head of cattle fed -- the second highest total on record.
-- The names Colby Christie and Jessica Smith appeared -- then appeared again -- as the Hereford Young Farmers sponsored their annual Junior Livestock Show in January.
Christie claimed Five-County Grand Champion honors in the steer competition one day, then Miss Smith grabbed Grand Champion honors in both the hog and sheep competitions through the rest of the event.
Overall, total sales at the annual event were $125,000.
-- Building permit applications both for the entire year of 1994 and for the first six months of 1995 were reported at a brisk pace.
For the previous year, the city reported 124 building permits valued at more than $3.4 million were issued, including one for $1.2 million for construction of the Aquatic Center.
Then, for the first six months of 1995, the city reported that more than $2 million in permits were issued.
That included permits for eight

Clinton vows he will work with Congress on budget

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - In a pair of New Year's resolutions, President Clinton vowed today to work with the Republican Congress to balance the federal budget and reopen the government without gutting Medicare and other programs he wants to protect.
"We are making real progress," Clinton said in his weekly radio address, delivered just minutes before the opening of his second face-to-face negotiation in two days with House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.
Dole agreed that progress was being made, though some of the toughest problems have yet to be discussed. "So far, so good," he said this morning in remarks prepared for the Republican radio address. "We've exchanged a lot of views on different issues raised yesterday and we've had no big problems so far. But let's face it, we haven't gotten to the big issues."
"We know that our work is not done," Clinton said, speaking of the tough and contentious issues that remain to be resolved. "We know we have much to do so the American dream will stay alive for every citizen and so that we may come together as a people, so that America can remain the strongest force for peace the world has ever seen."

"So on this New Year's let's resolve that we will balance the budget but that we'll do it in a way that will keep our country growing and will be true to our basic values," the president said.
"Let us resolve to reopen the government and do it now," Clinton said. "Let us resolve to act without rancor or partisan bitterness."
After more than three hours of budget talks on Friday, presidential aides and congressional leaders said the prospects for a settlement had improved.
Dole recorded the Republican response to Clinton's radio address, praising the 1995 record of Congress and calling for New Year resolutions to "finish the job of balancing the budget," save Medicare, reform welfare and cut taxes.
Dole told a brief session of the Senate this morning that he is working with Democratic leaders, seeking agreement on a fast-track procedure for Senate consideration of a budget agreement when one is reached.
"I hope we can resolve this before the day is finished," he said.
Meantime, more than a quarter-million federal workers began their third week on layoff as many government parks and services remained shut down.

Handgun law takes effect on Monday

DPS says troopers will ask drivers to see concealed handgun permits

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - The next time you deal with police or other law enforcement officers, you might be asked for your identification and concealed handgun permit.
Beginning Jan. 1, Texans who have applied for and received licenses can carry concealed handguns. Lawmakers approved a concealed carry law during their 1995 session.
It is illegal to carry a visible handgun or other weapon.
At of Friday, about 1,200 concealed carry permits, which cost $140 for each four-year license, had been issued in Texas. More than 36,324 Texans have applied for those licenses.
Sherri Deatherage Green, a spokeswoman for the Department of Public Safety, said DPS troopers will start asking motorists and other people they deal with if they are licensed carriers.

"They will ask you if you have a concealed handgun license, and if you are, they will ask if you have the gun with you and where it is," Mrs. Deatherage Green said. "They will have the discretion to disarm permit holders if they feel there is some threat to their safety or the safety of others. But that won't happen all the time."
Mrs. Deatherage Green said the department has been making preparations since law hit the books on Sept. 1. But she said little will change from current caution and awareness with which troopers approach traffic violators or other people they encounter.
In other law enforcement agencies, the reaction to the guns legally hitting the streets apparently won't change much.

"The officers are going to continue doing their traffic stops as they are now," said Joe Gamino, a spokesman for the Houston Police Department. "There are a lot of people carrying weapons illegally now."
Gamino said all law enforcement officers are trained to approach any situation with the idea that weapons could be involved. And he said many of the places where police interact with people will be off limits to legally concealed guns.
But he added that officers always are aware of illegal weapons.
"They can take the weapon until they determine that the person is a licensed person and then return it if they have not violated another law," he said.

As for the general public, law enforcement officers say people should not have to act differently or be overly concerned since few permits have been issued, and legally carried weapons will be concealed.
San Antonio Deputy Chief of Police Gilbert Sandoval said the people getting concealed handgun permits are responsible, law-abiding people for the most part.
Those carrying guns legally are advised to take some precautions. The first is to make sure the weapons are secured and the second is to make any law enforcement officer aware of both the permit and gun.
The DPS has issued a videotape informing permit holders and other people how to react during a traffic stop, one of the most common interactions between police and general public.

YOUR EYES

ABOUT SKI GOGGLES

In recent years, science has learned more about the dangers of ultraviolet radiation, damaging not only to the skin but to the eyes as well. Indeed, exposure to the sun's dangerous rays has been linked to earlier appearance of cataracts.

Ski goggles used in the harsh light of ski slopes need to offer the same UV protection as sunglasses, with other safeguards as well. Some brands of goggles come with interchangeable lenses to cope with varying light conditions; others are equipped with photochromatic lenses that adjust automatically.

Amber-colored lenses that filter out blue light are extra-important on the slopes, especially in hazy, foggy or overcast weather when scattered blue light obscures vision.

Look for wraparound frames that keep out gusts of wind and errant rays of the sun. Good goggles will help the skier look good on the slopes while seeing well enough to ski more safely.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says when you look at your troubles, your eye becomes a microscope, enlarging things to a thousand times their real size.

Not to know is bad. Not to want to know is worse. Not to hope is unthinkable. Not to care is unforgivable.

Teenager pointing to crumpled fender on family car: "Great news, Dad! You haven't been paying all those insurance premium payments down the drain!"

I liked my mother-in-law from the start, and it's no wonder--she sided with me instead of her daughter! Seriously, Alma Stewart was what I like to call "a good'un."

We buried her Friday but she left her mark on our lives. We'll remember her wit, her loving nature, her even disposition and her love of family.

She was a small lady with a soft voice. Alma didn't have a degree, but she graduated from the school of hard knocks, and she lived to make things better for her two daughters.

She kept her sense of humor almost to the end. Staff members at Hereford Care Center would tell me, "Alma is always coming up with something...you've got the funniest mother-in-law!"

Several months ago when I went to visit, an aide was cleaning her dentures. She immediately pushed her button and told the aide to bring her teeth, explaining "My son-in-law is here and I need to chew on him!"

Our son, Craig, went to visit one day and parked his "new" car--a used BMW--on the parking lot where she could see it from the window. "I have a BMW, and I want you to go to the window and see it," he told her. "Do you know what a BMW is?"

"Well," she responded, "I know what a BM is, but I don't know about the 'W'!"

Soon after Lavon and I were married, we had a little misunderstanding. Lavon told me later that she went to see her mother, seeking advice, but mostly sympathy.

"I don't know what you're doing over here," Alma said. "You've got the best guy in the world, now get back over there and straighten things out!"

Alma said her mother gave her some good advice, and she passed it on to Lavon. We found it written down on a note in her Bible: "A rebellious son is a calamity to his father, and a nagging wife annoys like constant dripping."--Prov. 19-13

Even as a young man, I'd heard mother-in-law jokes and tales about them butting in and never thinking you were good enough for their daughter. It never happened with me. All I ever experienced was a second mother who expressed love and appreciation for the two of us.

Alma grew up on the Brazos River in Stonewall County. She was baptized in that river. Alma talked with Lavon one day about final preparations. The only request I remember was that the song, "Shall We Gather at the River" be sung at her funeral. Lavon made sure it was.

A lot of good ones pass through this world. Alma was a good'un!

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

Oh joy! O ecstasy! Driving along the highway at 70 miles per hour. As often happens when a silly law is overturned, the government goes too far (in my humble estimation) in an effort to right a wrong.

All these years, we've driven 55 mph (well, that's what the signs said) and now, suddenly, we're confronted with a 70 mph speed limit on many, if not most, decent highways.

Thinking back to the pre-55 days, when Lyndon Johnson was in the White House, I recall the media making a big thing about LBJ driving 70 on roads around his ranch. Most of those guys (and some gals) didn't bother to find out that he was within the law.

The fact is, the eastern media looked for any opportunity to criticize LBJ. He played into their hands often. Remember when he grabbed the dog by the ears and raised it off the ground? He claimed the dog didn't feel any pain. The press made the incident very painful for him, though.

In the early days of radar enforcement of speed limits, there was a courtesy extended by drivers to traffic approaching a highway patrol car parked beside the road.

Any trooper car so stationed there was a radar unit at work. So drivers frantically flashed lights at oncoming traffic to send the alert. Obviously highway patrolmen were not foolish enough to think that all the traffic was adhering to the speed limit.

When cruise control was added to automobiles, there was a general belief that speeding tickets would not be as easy to come by. After all, you could set your speed and not worry about the radar trap down the road.

What we didn't realize is that speeders will be speeders, regardless of the speed limit.

Out in the wide open spaces of West Texas, speeding has been a way of life for some drivers. It's a long way from Point A to Point B, we've told ourselves. But, even in heavily populated areas speeders nudged the needle ever upward. Or, as the CB radio buffs used to say, "put the pedal to the metal."

As the country returns to 70 mph driving, states are making their own rules. Isn't it Montana that will go the German Autobahn route -- set no limit, at all, on certain roadways. I don't think I'm ready for that.

One of the things I've engaged in the aging process is I'm not as interested in high speeds. Unless I'm in an airplane, of course. The old 55 was too slow but 70 may be too fast.

Out on the highway for the first time under the new regime, I found I was psychologically unable to push that old speedometer up to 70, at least at first.

On an interstate highway, I already had learned to drive with the traffic or risk being run over. But, on the plain four-lane divided highways, there didn't seem to be an urgency. Set the cruise between 65 and 70 and relax.

Then, I realized that it doesn't matter what the speed limit is, there always will be speeders who flaunt the law.

Example: As I tooted along at a speed of about 67 mph, a car passed like the proverbial bat out of hades. A couple miles down the road was a 70 mph sign.

And, a couple miles beyond that sign, the car that passed me was sitting on the shoulder with a highway patrol car nudging the back.

Since that incident, I've wondered if the Texas Highway Patrol intends to exercise a "zero tolerance" for speeding.

Whatever... if traffic is going to pass me at 70 mph, it's okay.

I still think I'll set the cruise at 67 mph and keep my eyes on the road in front of me, instead of constantly looking behind me for the THP.

An ode to Christmas (just) Past

'Twas the week after Christmas and all through the town, The old year was ending and the new was in sight.

The wrappings were tattered and thrown in the trash As visions of sugarplums danced in dentists' heads.

Mama in her winter coat and I with my cough Had just settled down to recover our breath.

When out in the mall there arose such a clatter, I sprang to my van to see what was the matter.

I sped up to 70 and raced down the street, Bounced into the parking lot and slid in a space.

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

When what to my wondering eyes did appear, But a mass of humanity, shopping again!

More rapid than eagles, these bargainers they flew, And they whistled and shouted, "Get of my way!"

"To the top of the sale racks, to the top of the piles,

"Now buy away, buy, away, buy away all!"

Then I exited my car and was just walking out, When one of the shoppers bargained past my headlights.

She was dressed all in fleece from her head to her toes And her Nikes were tied on to give her feet strength.

A stump of a pencil she held tight in her teeth And a shopping list dangled from the purse on her sleeve.

A glare in her eye and a set in her jaw, Soon gave me to know I had EVERYTHING to fear.

She spoke not a word but went straight to her work, Then maxed out her charge cards and turned with a jerk,

And laying a finger aside of her purse, Past the security guards she ran with her loot.

And I heard her exclaim ere she drove out of sight, "I beat you this year to the post-Christmas Sales!"

Simpson trial helped turn focus onto problem in judiciary of 'bench stress'

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - By title, job description, the solemnity of the black robe, the authority of the gavel, judges are cast as figures a step beyond everyday behavior. But they aren't immune from job stress that can build to the point of angry outbursts from the bench.

"Bench stress," the American Bar Association journal calls it in an account suggesting a growing recognition of the problem and the need to redress it when it happens.

The marathon trial and acquittal of O.J. Simpson have put a focus on what's happening in American courtrooms. Compared with conduct described in the ABA study, Judge Lance Ito was a judicial saint.

In the study, Pamela Coyle tells of an angry Philadelphia judge who threw a glass of water at a lawyer and one in Louisiana who told a witness that in his courtroom he was God.

A Long Island judge sent unsigned letters and faxes ridiculing and at times threatening an attorney with whom he'd had political differences.

With confidence in the judicial system shaken even before the Simpson trial, conduct described as "black robe fever" by the president of the National Judicial College in Reno, Nev., can only worsen the problem.

"This whole area of demeanor is so important," Judge V. Robert Payant told Coyle. "There is a growing recognition by the judiciary that if we are going to improve the image of justice ... one group of major players is going to have to be judges."

Another may be a growing movement to watch the way judges act, and to open lines for complaints about their conduct, with people who are neither lawyers nor judges playing an increasing role.

While the number of formal complaints has been growing, there still are relatively few, in part because lawyers and the people they represent are wary of retaliation from the bench, Coyle reports in the ABA Journal. She is a reporter for the New Orleans Times-Picayune, and was a fellow in legal journalism at Yale University.

There was a 40 percent increase in the number of complaints lodged against federal judges between 1990 and 1993, with a similar trend in the states. At least 90 percent of the complaints ultimately are dismissed, as unfounded or due to the difficulty of differentiating between cases in which the losing side is griping and those in which there really has been injudicious conduct.

With caseloads increasing while staffs are not, there can be extra pressure on judges. The stress is heightened by the fact that they are always on duty, their words recorded, conduct and even moods closely observed.

The trappings of judgeship can add to the mix: "A few people think 'your honor' means them rather than their office," Payant observed.

There is a reverse side to all this. "There are judges who behave impeccably in the courtroom and issue dreadful decisions," said Lynn Defente Schafra of the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund in New York.

In another appraisal of courtroom conduct and confidence, an academic adviser to the American Enterprise Institute suggests that American judges ought to have more authority. James Q. Wilson of the University of California, Los Angeles, suggests the English model as an answer, saying judges there have retained control over their courtrooms while many U.S. judges have lost it.

English judges select jurors, often question witnesses, and summarize and evaluate evidence, Wilson said. "American judges typically let the lawyers choose the jurors and do all of the talking."

He said American criminal trials should be simpler and less adversarial, not "lengthy, lawyer-dominated soap operas in which the search for truth has been subordinated to the manipulation of procedures."

In contrast to the English system in which a prosecutor in one case can represent the defense in the next, high-profile American trials have become "mortal combat" between prosecutors and defense attorneys whose roles do not change.

"The rewards can be great," Wilson writes. "votes, money, prestige and book contracts."

Much of that was on display during and after the nine-month spectacle of the Simpson trial. And it has at least raised the level of discussion and the exchange of ideas on the long-building problem of confidence in the courts.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) - It pays to be wealthy when making a royal body buff.

Princess Diana spends $1,215 a month on a thorough fitness regimen that includes a personal trainer, acupuncture and massages, Fitness reported in its January-February issue.

At least three times a week, the princess swims, plays tennis, works out with her personal trainer, and takes a one-on-one step class, the magazine reported.

She also adheres to a special diet that discourages eating protein and starch in the same meal.

With a lonely Christmas behind her and the prospect of tough divorce negotiations with Prince Charles ahead, the princess took her newly toned body out of Britain on Wednesday for a Caribbean vacation.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) - There will be plenty of rich people in Robin Leach's new cookbook - just no rich food.

Leach, star of the TV show "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous," says celebrities don't always sip champagne and feast upon caviar. In "Robin Leach's Healthy Lifestyles Cookbook," readers will find such recipes as Fabio's chickpea soup and Ivana Trump's nutritious pasta.

"We wanted to prove that, most of all, these are healthy people, and you don't have to be rich and famous to be healthy," Leach said.

The newly released book also features photos of celebrities, including Susan Power from infomercial-fame whipping up egg-whites while sitting on her kitchen counter.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

It has been many years since I've seen a Hereford newspaper. I'm not even sure it is still The Hereford Brand. I'm enclosing $1 for the last issue.

My family spent from last August 1937 to January 1943 in and around Hereford. I attended three different schools there. One had eight grades, divided in two rooms and my teacher's name was Imogene Robinson. Then my brother George and I attended Ford School, and the next year we rode the school bus to St. Anthony's School.

In 1940, we moved to what we knew as the Fink place and farmed there. Our neighbors included the Gallagers, Kuykendalls and the Bromans.

My twin brothers, James H. and Gerald F. Peters, were born in the Hereford hospital Nov. 23, 1939. My youngest brother, William B. Peters, was born there in 1942.

George, sister Alberta and I went to St. Anthony's until we moved to White Deer in 1943 to help Grandpa Peters with his dairy. We moved to Arkansas in 1944 because Dad and Billy were having trouble with the dust storms.

If possible, I would like to locate some of my old classmates -- just to hear from them and how they are doing. James I'm trying to locate include James (Junior) Albracht, Juanita Albracht and her brother, Johnnie. Also Catherine Broman, Annie, Harry, Joseph, Louise and Pauline Broman.

My parents were Albert H. and Phillamena (Minnie) Peters, now deceased. Would appreciate it if anyone would get in touch with me.

Ministry records more than 2,300 episodes of 'Unshackled'

Old-fashioned radio program -- billed as longest-running of its kind -- endures for 45 years

By DEBRA HALE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) - On this cold, windy day, Pacific Garden Mission is home to more than the homeless. Tourists and radio buffs join them to pack an auditorium along a part of South State Street known as "Tramp's Trail" to hear program No. 2357 of "Unshackled," billed as the longest continuous-running radio drama still on the air.

The program was first broadcast Sept. 23, 1950, with the story of the life and conversion of evangelist Billy Sunday. Forty-five years later, it still re-enacts true-life stories of people who through Christianity have overcome hardships from alcoholism to promiscuity.

Standing before a microphone and a huge sign declaring, "He (Christ) made peace through the blood of his cross. Col. 1:20," the radio announcer reads from his script.

"The scene is the same all over the world, whether in small town or big city, young people and some not so young drawn to the local hangout," announcer Bob O'Donnell says. "They drink and joke and go home empty-hearted, each one looking for something, someone, some answer to their loneliness. This is what Sheila Harris found and how she was 'Unshackled!'"

The 30-minute program is recorded before a live audience every Saturday at Pacific Garden Mission, a homeless shelter. More than 1,000 stations broadcast it to listeners in six continents.

A committee verifies facts of stories offered by listeners by contacting references such as neighbors and relatives.

The production is a scene from the past. A sound-effects man re-creates the sounds of a bar with clinking glasses, of children catching tadpoles by splashing water in a bucket. An organist provides scene transitions, sometimes with a soft melody, sometimes a crescendo of ominous chords.

The program originally focused on alcoholism and drugs, but problems like child and spousal abuse and meaningless lives are now common. "We're not restricted to Skid Row stories," says O'Donnell, wearing a gold unshackled handcuff pin on his lapel.

This program, to be broadcast in February, focuses on a woman whose life was marred by booze, beatings and the wrong man until she met the right man who led her to Christ.

The story tells how this woman, portrayed by Judith Easton, searched for love "in all the wrong places."

"She found what she was seeking," the announcer says, "when her mind and heart and life were unshackled."

Ms. Easton is among about 150 actors who perform for "Unshackled." Some, but not all, are religious. Earlier this year, she portrayed herself, a woman who had fought addictions to alcohol, drugs and sex.

"God was not a big part of my upbringing," she says. "I had a perception that only stupid and weak people believed in Jesus Christ."

She was starting to get her life under control when she went to work for "Unshackled." It was only a job, and she resisted the mission's Gospel message. Then a medical problem left her face half-paralyzed, and increasingly that message and the "Unshackled" stories touched her. In 1993, she was baptized at a Mennonite church.

Michael Kinard, a small, unshaven man who like hundreds of other homeless people is spending this frigid night at the mission, joins the program's audience. "The actors... let me know that there is hope and God is real," says Kinard, who attends the mission's Bible classes.

David Sonear, the mission superintendent, agrees. "Giving soup every day or a sandwich every day is nice, but you don't give the people any direction off this homeless merry-go-round," he says.

Spiritual help, he believes, provides that direction.

"We try to reach people when they are in the depths of their despair," Sonear says.

Times Square ball gets new look in time for start of '96

NEW YORK (AP) - Out with the old and in with the new - a new Times Square ball that is, full of glitz, glitter, lasers and even a fog machine.

The refurbished 500-pound, 6-foot-tall sphere was unveiled atop One Times Square on Thursday, ready and waiting to dazzle the world this New Year's Eve.

"We've given it a facelift. We have made it smart and beautiful," said Gretchen Dykstra, head of the Times Square Business Improvement District.

The ball now has strobe lights, halogen lamps, a fog machine and 12,000 rhinestones. Add two powerful lasers, originally designed for Star Wars (the defense system, not the movie), an estimated 300,000 revelers, 20,000 mylar pom-poms, 20,000 balloons, 3,000 pounds of confetti and you've got a PAR-TY!

The ball will make its descent from its 77-foot pole via a mechanical winch, replacing the six men who usually lower the sphere using a pulley.

The ball, a Times Square tradition since 1907, hasn't had a facelift since 1965, Dykstra said, and even then it's been, well, a low-tech marvel.

The ball used to be nothing but an open aluminum cage dotted with 188 ordinary, household lightbulbs. The $75,000 in improvements changed all that.

"It will be highly technical and highly theatrical," promised Broadway lighting specialist Barry Arnold, who will run the show.

But just in case, the six guys who used to lower the ball will be standing by.

Population of world jumped by 100 million

WASHINGTON (AP) - The world's population grew this year by 100 million people, to 5.75 billion, the largest increase ever, a population research group said Wednesday.

Ninety percent of the growth is in poor countries "already terribly torn by civil strife and social unrest and where all too many people live in brutal poverty," Werner Fornos of the Population Institute said.

Fornos, giving the institute's "1995 World Population Overview," told reporters that effective birth control policies and practices could stabilize world population by 2015 at about 8 billion. But unless family planning is promoted actively, he said, there could be an increase to as many as 14 billion people.

At present growth rates, Iowa will need a century to double its population of less than 3 million. But Fornos estimated that Bangladesh will double its 128 million people in less than 30 years.

HHS sports teams end 1995 on a roll

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

With the way things are going lately for Hereford sports teams, it's a shame 1995 has to end.

The Hereford High School basketball teams are hot. The boys won the Canyon Rotary Classic by beating Clarendon Friday night; they're 11-7 and are on a seven-game win streak. The girls were to play Saturday night for the championship of a tournament in Littlefield; they're 14-2 and are on a four-game streak.

However, the basketball teams have a way to go if they're going to keep the Herd on the roll started by the fall teams.

Hereford teams made the fall of '95 a season to remember as the tennis team and girls' cross country team had their best seasons in several years, and the Lady Whiteface volleyball team had its best season ever.

The volleyball team finished the season just a few points short of a Class 4A championship. Hereford lost to Red Oak, 16-14, 15-10, Nov. 18 in the state finals in Austin.

While the loss was devastating for a senior class that seemed destined for a championship, the season left many things to be remembered:

--The first outright District 1-4A championship, with a 12-0 record, including a sweep of bitter rival Dumas.

--The program's second-ever UIL state tournament appearance, and the first-ever finals match.

--A 29-4 record, the best in Hereford history.

--A No. 1 ranking in Class 4A for most of the year.

Individual honors rolled in for the Lady Whitefaces.

--Seniors Brittney Binder and

Heather Hodges and junior Danielle Cornelius were named to the first team of the Texas Sports Writers Association's Class 4A All-State team. The Herd trio made up half of the first team, while senior Tarabeth Holmes gained honorable mention.

--Binder, Hodges and sophomore Julie Rampley were voted to the all-tournament team at the state tourney.

--The all-district team was nearly all-Hereford. Cornelius was picked as MVP, while coach Brenda Reeh was named Coach of the Year. Holmes, Binder and Hodges made the first team; Aimee Alley and Kari Barrett made the second team; and Cassie Abney and Catie Betzen earned honorable mention. Rampley was selected as the Newcomer of the Year.

The volleyball players weren't the only Lady Whitefaces shining on a state-wide level.

The girls' cross country team finished 10th at the state meet held Nov. 11 in Georgetown. The Hereford girls were second at both the Region 1-4A Meet and the District 1-4A Meet. Leading the way for Hereford at the district meet were Jamie Harrison (3rd), Bethany Townsend (7th), Erica Delgado (17th) and Teresa Lopez (19th).

(The Canyon girls won district and regionals, then finished third at state.) Hereford, coached by Martha Emerson, won meets in Levelland and Sundown. Harrison won the individual race at Sundown.

The boys' cross country team was overshadowed by the girls, but the boys also had its best season in several years, finishing third at district and narrowly missing joining the girls at regionals.

Herd survives Clarendon comeback, wins tourney

The Hereford boys' basketball team won the championship of the Canyon Rotary Classic, but it wasn't as easy as the boys thought it would be.

A Clarendon rally turned a Herd rout in Friday's finals - it was 40-24 at halftime - into a nailbiter. The Whitefaces woke up in time to pull the win out, 56-55.

"We played a real good first half," Herd coach Randy Dean said. "Our defensive pressure had the tempo where we wanted it, and we got lots of turnovers and converted them in points."

"In the second half, we went stone cold," Dean continued. "We didn't play with the same intensity. We allowed Clarendon to get back in the game. We were very, very fortunate to win the game."

Clarendon's 8-0 run to start the second half helped them close Hereford's lead to 47-40 at the end of the third quarter. They got a three-point play with 4:50 left to pull within 47-45, then closed it to 53-52 with a minute left.

The teams traded missed free throws until Hereford's Ronald Torres hit one. He missed the second one, but Brian Torres grabbed the rebound with nine seconds left and was fouled.

For the second game in a row, Brian Torres hit two free throws with nine seconds left to seal the victory

Comebacks dominated 1995

By STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
Tyson II. Jordan II. Seles II.
Everyone came back in 1995.
The 49ers. UCLA. The Beatles.
John Daly. Mario Lemieux. Ernie
Irvan.

Even Northwestern, stuck in the library since 1949, is Rose Bowl bound.

It was a year of revivals and sequels, records and memories. A year when a quaint old pastime brought back something called the World Series. And right there, too, were the Cleveland Indians, of all teams, back in the Series for the first time since 1954, losing painfully once more.

The year had a pleasing familiarity, as if we'd seen it all before though not quite the same way, a Yogi year-deja vu all over again.

We'd seen Cal Ripken Jr. play and play and play, but it wasn't until he did it for the 2,130th consecutive time to the Lou Gehrig record, and then played again to set his own, that the nation stopped to applaud his professionalism.

We'd seen Jerry Rice make catches in Super Bowls when Joe Montana was throwing from the right, and last January we saw him do it again with Steve Young throwing from the left. This season, Rice even caught passes from Elvis to lead the 49ers toward another playoff. (Elvis Grbac)

We'd seen Pete Sampras and Steffi Graf win Wimbledon and the U.S. Open before, only this time they did it to cap a year of emotional traumas so painful it brought tears to their eyes.

We hadn't seen the UCLA Bruins win the Final Four since former coach John Wooden won his 10th in 1975, but there they were in April, Jim Harrick prowling the sideline and Wooden looking on happily, as they beat Arkansas in the Kingdom.

"He was always a champion in my book," Wooden said of Harrick. "Now it's time for others to recognize it."

We saw Hakeem Olajuwon rule the basketball court with the dignity of a king to bring Houston a second consecutive NBA title. And we saw Greg Maddux dominate the diamond to capture a fourth straight Cy Young and lead Atlanta to a World Series championship at last.

We came to expect greatness of them, and they delivered this year when we needed it most, when we were still mired in 1994's problems: Tonya & Nancy mess, O.J.'s arrest, and the baseball strike.

This year had its share of farce: The O.J. trial. The Don King trial. Most of all Mike Tyson's re-entry to the ring, an 89-second fiasco.

The year was more memorable for the honest, sometimes courageous comebacks of athletes we missed most.

We could all admire Pittsburgh Penguins Mario Lemieux's challenge for the NHL scoring title after an 18-month absence due to back pain, fatigue, anemia and a bout with Hodgkin's disease.

"I worked hard during the offseason to become one of the best players in this league," Lemieux said recently, "and although I'm not 100 percent healthy, I'm getting stronger."

Ernie Irvan got behind a wheel again and started racing a year after he nearly died from head and chest injuries in a crash. First he wore an eye patch, then glasses that gave him more peripheral vision, and now he's shooting for Daytona in February.

Ron Gant of the Cincinnati Reds worked himself back near the top after breaking both bones in his lower right leg in a dirt-bike accident last year.

John Daly overcame alcoholism to capture the British Open in a playoff, acknowledging at St. Andrews, "I don't think I would be here today if I were still drinking."

Monica Seles won her first tournament back, the Canadian Open, and reached the final of the U.S. Open as she overcame the physical and psychological scars left from the knife attack in Germany in 1993.

Michael Jordan gave up his quixotic quest in baseball and returned home to hoops. He did himself no discredit even if he didn't make the majors and couldn't quite take the Chicago Bulls back to the title right away. In the new season, he's off flying again, leading the league in scoring, the Jordan of old, not merely an old Jordan.

"It's a personal motivation," Jordan said. "It's a pride thing. I want to be on top."

That "pride thing" is perhaps what linked them all and endeared them most to us. They chose to play on, to overcome injury and illness, weakness and fallibility. In cynical times, they offered a touch of class.

'95 was last year for SWC football

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

The kids on college campuses these days weren't born when Kern Tips broadcast Southwest Conference games on the Humble Radio Network or when Darrell Royal's Texas Longhorns won the Big Shootout in 1969.

They've only read about the great names and games the SWC produced. They probably know the league gave birth to the Run-and-Shoot and may have heard that the Wishbone was born here, too.

What they probably know most about the Southwest Conference are the problems of the last two decades. The various schools on probation. The various coaches forced out for fear of such punishments. The death penalty.

When they were growing up, playing for an SWC team wasn't very glamorous. Out of state schools could provide more exposure on television and a better chance of avoiding probation.

A generation earlier, there was nothing better than sipping a Dr Pepper, listening to Tips' eloquent play-by-play and dream of being asked to play for an SWC school.

Sure, pro football teams in Houston and Dallas began siphoning some fans away in the 1960s, but the league was still going strong. Then, the crooks took over.

The spiral of the 1980s wasn't improving when college football hit a crossroads in the early 1990s. Realizing things weren't likely to improve any time soon, Arkansas bolted for the Southeastern Conference.

Soon, Texas and Texas A&M wanted out. To do so, the Aggies and Longhorns had to help initiate a divorce that would be amicable to all parties.

Eventually it was decided that on June 30, 1996, the SWC would fade to black. The next day, UT, A&M, Baylor and Texas Tech would be in the Big 12. Rice, SMU and TCU would be in the Western Athletic Conference. Houston would be in Conference USA.

That left this past fall as the final football season for the grand old league.

What began with high hopes for Texas A&M ended up being a resurrection of sorts for Texas. Still, it came down to a final day matchup between those schools for the 81st and final title.

Now, it's all over. SWC football died Dec. 2, 1995, at 7:10 p.m. when a fan flipped a switch at Rice Stadium and "turned out the lights" on the grand old league.

In a voting of newspapers and broadcasters across Texas, the passing of Southwest Conference football was named the top sports story of 1995.

Another passing was a close second: the death of former New York Yankees legend Mickey Mantle following a lengthy battle with cancer in a Dallas hospital.

The saga began on Memorial Day when Mantle, complaining of stomach pains, checked into Baylor University Medical Center.

Within weeks, Mantle was diagnosed with liver cancer, made worse by a case of cirrhosis (traced easily to the years of heavy drinking by the recovering alcoholic) and a long-dormant dose of hepatitis.

All of a sudden, it wasn't so funny to hear Mantle say that if he knew he was going to live this long he would've taken better care of himself.

A transplant was the only way for Mantle to keep living and a donor organ was quickly found. Some wondered aloud whether Mantle's fame - and few people have ever been more most celebrated than "The Mick" - helped move him past other people who needed livers.

Mantle reappeared on a July 11 news conference, the same day baseball's All-Star Game was in nearby Arlington.

It was a sad sight. Once known as the strongest, swiftest, best looking guy he had, Mantle was gaunt and frail. He had lost more than 40 pounds, causing a championship ring and watch to dangle around his finger and wrist.

But his words that day were as strong as ever: "Here's a role model: Don't be like me."

That speech and Mantle's promotion of organ donations, especially a posthumous campaign by his family that was promoted at ballparks nationwide, were later called "Mickey's greatest home run" by one of his doctors.

Mantle, however, couldn't fight off this pitch. The transplant couldn't rid his body of the disease and the new liver was soon filled with cancer. Several other organs also were ravaged.

Finally, early on the morning of Sunday, Aug. 13, Mickey Charles Mantle died.

Not everything big was sad in 1995. The Houston Rockets celebrated a repeat championship after making a popular but presumably unwise Valentine's Day parade for Clyde Drexler, and Jerry Jones triumphantly signed Deion Sanders to a seven-year, $35 million contract to play for the Dallas Cowboys.

Those two stories finished third and fourth on the list, followed by Jones' NFL-pricking deals with Pepsi, Nike and American Express to pay for Sanders.

But Prime Time wasn't enough to keep Dallas from losing to his old team, San Francisco, in November. There was a deja vu feeling to the loss as early turnovers and questions about Barry Switzer's decision-making in that game followed the same script as the Cowboys' January loss to the 49ers. Dallas' problems with its new arrival was Texas' No. 7 sports story.

Sixth was Bud Adams' decision to move the Houston Oilers to Nashville. His adopted home town didn't want to build him a new stadium so Adams took his team to the Music City. A series of stipulations must be met for the deal to be 100 percent complete, but Tennesseans have done their part so far and Houstonians are resigned to the team possibly being gone already.

The other main tenant of the Houston Astrodome also talked about leaving, providing top sports story No. 9.

Astros owner Drayton McLane seemed ready to sell his club to people

Cotton Bowl hopes to live without SWC

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Call it the Nostalgia Bowl.

When seventh-ranked Colorado plays 12th-ranked Oregon in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day, it will be an attractive matchup of two potent offenses.

But the day will be marked as much for what is missing and what is about to pass into history as by the players and teams on the field.

For the first time in 55 years, a Cotton Bowl will be played on New Year's Day without a Southwest Conference representative. Colorado comes from the Big Eight, soon to be the Big 12 as it absorbs teams from the old league; Oregon hails from the northern reaches of the Pac-10.

It's an emotional goodbye to an era when the SWC provided the host team for the Cotton Bowl. Texas, Texas A&M, and Texas Tech played in other bowl games this year. Baylor didn't but will join the foursome in the new Big 12 Conference.

Other SWC teams such as SMU, TCU, and Rice will play in the Western Athletic Conference. Houston joins Conference USA.

"It won't have the same feeling, it won't be the same game," said Jim Brock, former executive director of the Cotton Bowl. "It's kind of sad to see the end of an era. It was always great to have a Texas team as the host. We had some great, great games."

"But life moves on and the Cotton Bowl will put on some good games. It's too bad they didn't get into the Tier I coalition. But maybe they will someday."

The Cotton Bowl in future games will match the runnerup in the Big 12 against either the Pac-10 runnerup or the WAC champion.

Without the traditional local draw, attendance is down for Monday's game. Officials have sold some 59,000 tickets for the 69,000-seat stadium.

Ten of the last 11 Cotton Bowls have sold out.

Both teams, particularly Colorado and coach Rick Neuheisel, have done their best to hype the game, which has lost its title sponsor, Mobil, but still has its CBS television contract for two more years. Mobil gave the Cotton Bowl a $1 million buyout at the end of last year's game.

"As far as ticket sales are concerned, I'll just say this," Neuheisel said. "That if folks are interested in the advent of the Big 12 Conference they should be excited to come and watch Colorado, who hopefully will be a big player in the Big 12 and watch us get after Oregon who is obviously a top-flight team."

"I think folks in Dallas who come out to the game will have a great time watching both of these teams. We both have high-profile offenses. We both throw the ball well. We both mix up formations really well. I know (Oregon coach) Mike Bellotti will have some trick plays for us. And I'm going to oblige on our side of the ball. It will be exciting football."

Neuheisel even wrote a song about the Cotton Bowl, while his 3-year-old son, Jerry, displayed outstanding knowledge of NFL quarterbacks.

"Jerry, who is quarterback of the Raiders?" his father asked. Answer: "Jeff Hostetler."

"How about the Cowboys?" Answer: "Troy Aikman."

And on it went as the kid named the quarterback for almost every NFL team. Dad didn't try him with Jacksonville or Carolina.

Aikman, of course, played under assistant coach Neuheisel at UCLA. Aikman dutifully showed up for a Colorado practice. More snapshots. More film.

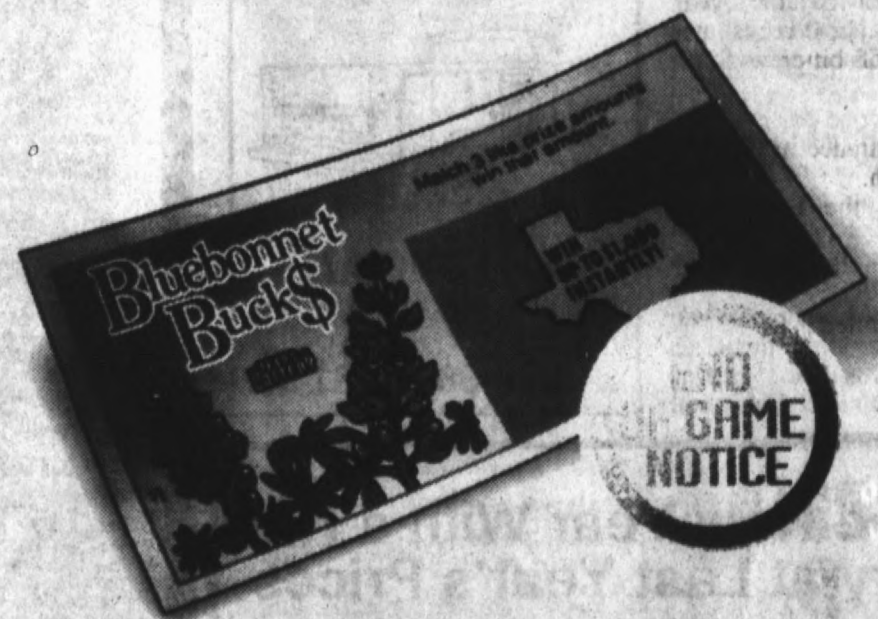

Oregon coach Bellotti has been no match for Neuheisel on the publicity front but has helped the hype as much as possible.

"I understand the evolution with the bowl picture, and I have been reading about all the great games they have had in the Cotton Bowl with the Southwest Conference teams and visitors," Bellotti said. "The Cotton Bowl people have indicated that they are excited to have a couple of highly ranked 9-2 teams."

Then he quipped, "The longer we stay in Texas the closer we get to saying 'y'all.'"

Both coaches are in the first year as head coaches.

(he did the same thing Thursday against Palo Duro). Hereford needed that four-point cushion, because Clarendon hit a three-pointer at the buzzer for the final point.

Hereford improved to 11-7, and the win was the Herd's seventh in a row. The team is hot at the right time: they open District 1-4A play at Canyon Tuesday. The boys play at 7:30 p.m. in the CHS gym; the girls open the district doubleheader at 6 p.m. Junior varsity games also are scheduled: boys at 6, girls at 7:30.

The Hereford girls reached the finals of the Littlefield Tournament, which was to be played Saturday night, with a 65-34 pasting of Idalou Friday night.

Hereford will face Littlefield on its home floor for the championship.

Everything went right for Hereford, which improved to 14-2.

"It was 30 minutes of really good basketball - finally," coach Eddie Fortenberry said of the Idalou whipping. "We played well enough to beat a lot of people in this game. They allowed us to play up-tempo basketball, and that helped us. For two games of this tournament, we've executed our offense better than we have all season."

The previous game was a 68-50 win over Petersburg, but that game was costly. Senior guard Brittney Binder injured her ankle in the third quarter and did not play against Idalou. Fortenberry said he hopes it is just a sprain.

Hereford's junior varsity, which is playing in the varsity tournament, beat Lubbock Roosevelt, 51-35. Briar Baker led the way with 13 points and Jamie Marquez added 11.

HERD SCORING
Girls: Katie Betzen, 17 (including five three-pointers); Misti Davis, 10; Heather Hodges, 10; Julie Rampley, 9; Mindi Davis, 8; Julie Cole, 7; Kari Barrett, 2; Tarabeth Holmes, 2.
Boys: Isaac Walker, 14; Michael High, 14; Brian Torres, 10; Cory Schumacher, 8; Todd Dudley, 7; Jonathan Keenan, 2; Ronald Torres, 1.

YEAR-END

Most schools would be thrilled to claim two teams among the top 10 in the state, but Hereford High School had three.

The Herd tennis team swept through a tough district with a 6-0 record, then won three matches at the Region I-4A Team Tournament before falling to powerful Wichita Falls in the finals. Only one team from each of the four regions advanced to the state tournament, so the Herd should consider itself tied for fifth.

An all-district tennis team was selected, and Hereford got its share, including boys' player of the year B.J. Lockmiller and coach of the year Ed Coplen. Lockmiller made all-district in singles, where he was undefeated, and in doubles with partner Andrew Carr. Paige Robbins (also undefeated) made it, as did Pete Vargas and Rob Reinauer in doubles. Getting honorable mention were Natalie McWhorter, Scott Shaw, Annie Hoffman and Amanda Kriegshauser.

Although the tennis team missed a trip to Austin in the fall, it did send four players to the state tournament in the spring, when singles and doubles championships are decided. Vargas and Lockmiller in boys' doubles and McWhorter and Robbins in girls' doubles went to state, where both teams lost in the quarterfinals.

While the tennis, volleyball and cross country teams have achieved similar success in recent years, few Hereford fans could have predicted the breakout season the boys' basketball team had in 1994-95.

The Herd started 1995 with a bang, opening District 1-4A play with a 79-78 overtime win over Canyon Jan. 3 in Hereford.

After road losses in Pampa, Canyon and Borger, the Herd needed a win against powerful Pampa on Valentine's Day to keep its playoff hopes alive. Sophomore Isaac Walker provided maybe the biggest play of the year in all sports with 13 seconds left in overtime: driving for a tying layup, getting fouled, then hitting the free throw for a 68-67 win.

A week later, Hereford defeated Canyon, 62-57, in Amarillo's Cal Farley Coliseum, in the game to decide the district's second playoff representative.

The win gave Hereford its first basketball playoff team since the 1970s; an area round win over El Paso High provided the program's first playoff victory since the 1950s. The amazing run finally ended with a 78-68 loss to Wichita Falls High in the regional semifinals. Hereford's final record was 22-10.

Walker was named first-team all-district, as was senior Benton Buckley, who set a new HHS record with 566 points in a season. Junior Michael High gained honorable mention.

Randy Dean was named Coach of the Year in District 1-4A, and more honors followed. The Amarillo Globe-News made him the coach of its Super Team, which covers all classifications in the area - Buckley made the Super Team second team. In October, the Amarillo Chapter of referees honored Dean with the Kenneth Cleveland Sportsmanship Award.

The girls' basketball team finished the 1994-95 season with an 18-11 record, placing fourth in the district at 6-6. Mindi Davis made first-team all-district, and Julie Rampley was the co-newcomer of the year. Rampley also was named Freshman of the Year on the Globe-News Super Team.

The girls' golf team finished second in the district and the boys finished third. The girls, led by seniors Karen Manchec and Jana Baird, went on to a fifth place at the regional tournament.

The Hereford track teams sent two runners to the regional meet, as Marquise Brown won district crowns in the 100- and 200-meter dashes and Marie Crox took second in the 300 hurdles. At regionals, Crox was fourth and Brown was fifth in the 200 and seventh in the 100. Michael High also competed in the high jump as an alternate at regionals, finishing seventh.

The Herd baseball team recorded a 7-17 record, 4-8 in district. The team claimed four second-team all-district selections: third baseman Michael Marquez, centerfielder Homer Hamilton, shortstop Ronald Torres, and pitcher Eric Ambold.

The Herd football team finished 3-6-1 and in a tie for fourth in district at 2-3-1. The wins came against Palo Duro (54-7), Dumas (42-14) and Caprock (42-0), but losses to Pampa, Borger and Randall and a 28-28 tie with Canyon left the Herd out of the playoffs.

Senior tailback Marquise Brown capped off a stellar career with 1,301 yards rushing and 21 touchdowns. A three-year starter, he finished his HHS career with 3,260 rushing yards, beating Matt Bromlow's career mark set in 1990 by more than 300 yards.

Brown was named first-team all-district at tailback and safety. Ronald Torres was a first-team pick at receiver and second-team at defensive back. Defensive tackle Michael Kriegshauser made the second team, while the honorable mention list included linebacker/tight end Armando Zambrano, quarterback Todd Dudley, defensive end David Hicks and offensive lineman Brack Bryant.

Sports in Hereford revolves around Hereford High School, but several Hereford residents and former residents made it big on the national scene:

Latin custom transforms girl into woman

By KAREN AUGE
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
 BEDFORD, Texas--The first clue that this is not a typical day in Guillermina Rubalcado's home is the white satin gown, hanging phantom-like from a ceiling fan in the living room.

And her dining room is a veritable sea of fuchsia.
 Boutonnieres and hair decorations of fuchsia netting and white roses--representing weeks of work by Rubalcado--lie by the dozens in neat rows. Piles of fuchsia Mylar sheets fill dining room chairs. Lace gloves dotted with fuchsia rosebuds adorn the table. Dresses of fuchsia satin trimmed in white hang in groups of two and three on chairs against the dining room wall. And a Styrofoam head stands on the table like a macabre centerpiece, draped in a fuchsia-trimmed white-net veil.

Urgent feminine voices, mingling Spanish and English in exhortations and laughter, fill the house. It is Friday morning, and the Rubalcados' four daughters--Sandy, 20, Nancy, 15, Jeannette, 13, and Jessica, 8--should be working or in class.

The reason for the upheaval in the Rubalcado household is profound and simple. The next day, with tender ritual and great fanfare--and at no small expense--the Rubalcados' second-eldest daughter will be transformed, according to Latin custom, from a girl into a young woman.

The next day is Nancy Rubalcado's quinceanera.

And Nancy, a Trinity High School sophomore, has been steeped in preparations.

"I guess I'm all grown up," Nancy says as she sits on the floor of her parents' family room, in sweat pants and a Trinity T-shirt, cutting squares of fuchsia netting that her sisters are fashioning into 50 centerpieces.

To join in celebrating this milestone in Nancy's life, her parents have invited 500 people. They have rented Grapevine Convention Center, hired a band and a disc jockey, and booked a church and a Dallas VFW hall for dinner.

The quinceanera, a sort of coming-out party steeped in religious and cultural tradition, is more prevalent than ever in the Fort Worth-Dallas area.

Some attribute the resurgence of the custom to growing cultural pride within the Hispanic community. Others say it reflects the growing immigrant population, and still others point to a combination of the two.

But there are rumblings of discord within the Hispanic and Catholic communities about where that popularity is taking the quinceanera, and calls for uniform guidelines to help parishes prepare girls spiritually for the rite.

Ideally, a quinceanera should give a girl a sense of who she is and what gifts she can bring to the community, says Kevin Prevou, youth ministry director for the Catholic Diocese of Fort Worth.

But, critics say, some families view it as a chance to invite friends to a big party or to display their financial success.

"Unfortunately, that second part of the ceremony has become a competitive and very expensive part of the quinceanera," says Lucy Serenil, who with her husband, Benito, coordinates quinceanera preparations at St. Matthew Catholic Church in Arlington.

"That is an American evolution. We try to tell them that it can be a beautiful ceremony without worrying about limos and bands," she says.

The symbolic coming of age of the quinceanera dates to long before the Spaniards brought their language and religion to this continent. Its roots date to a time when native people commemorated a young man's readiness to become a warrior and a young woman's readiness to become a wife.

Since then, the quinceanera has been folded into Catholicism to become a rite of passage that is a reaffirmation of faith and a forsaking of childhood.

On the day before her quinceanera, Nancy is tackling the jitters about the spiritual and material aspects of the rite. But they can mingle harmoniously, she says. "It's kind of a party, but it's a church thing, too," Nancy explains. "It's like both."

For Guillermina Rubalcado, who grew up in Mexico as the oldest of 10 children, it's a blessing to be able to give her daughters the quinceanera she didn't have.

For a time, Nancy wasn't sure she wanted to share that blessing.

"When 1995 started, I didn't want one," Nancy says. "But when I turned 15, I did." Attending several cousins' quinceaneras and "standing up" as an attendant in four or five helped her change her mind.

There is no such hesitation for the next-oldest Rubalcado daughter, Jeannette, 13, is already planning her own "15."

"I'm going to have it at the Holiday Inn in Irving. It's going to be big," the Harwood Junior High eighth-grader says as she sits next to Nancy, jamming fuchsia pipe cleaners into soft drink cans to form the core of the centerpieces. "I'm going to start working on it this summer."

But first, there is much to do for Nancy's celebration.

Before Nancy can officially begin life as a young woman, centerpieces and headpieces must be finished. To shave dollars off the quinceanera's cost, her mother--who has stayed at home to raise her daughters and who now tends Sandy's 11-month-old son--decided to make many of the adornments.

There are rented tuxedos to retrieve, and beans, rice, coleslaw, potato salad and a page-long list of other food to secure from Sam's Club. For those chores, Rubalcado recruits her husband, Refugio, who has come home early from his job as a supervisor at the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport post office.

Then, Nancy must go to confession, a cousin flying in from Florida must be picked up from the airport and the 17 teen-agers serving as Nancy's court must rehearse their half-dozen choreographed dances one last time.

The 12-hour day that marks Nancy's ascent from childhood officially begins at 2 p.m. Saturday in the brown-brick sanctuary of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church in Dallas. Her mother chose this church because Nancy's grandmother lives nearby, and because Spanish-language masses are a regular feature.

The ceremony begins as eight young women and eight young men walk two by two to the front of the church. Tradition calls for 14 young women, each representing one of the years leading to the quince años. But Nancy has economized, inviting only eight cousins, sisters and friends to be her damas.

Nancy is the last to walk up the aisle, her father in a black tux on her right, her mother in a fuchsia dress on her left. Nancy is wearing a white Cinderella gown decorated with silk fuchsia roses--a gown made so wide by hoops that a four-door car had to be rented because teen-ager and dress couldn't squeeze into the family's two-door car.

As the three pass through the heart-shaped trellis of fuchsia and white flowers, her mother arranges the massive hoops so Nancy can kneel at the altar.

The Rev. Ignacio Cizur begins reading in Spanish from the gospel of St. Luke. Next, he asks Nancy to reaffirm her faith, which she does in English.

Then her mother hooks a necklace around Nancy's neck and a bracelet around her wrist. The gifts from relatives, presented at the altar, symbolize that she is ready for adult trinkets. In preparation for this day, Nancy has attended Catholic education classes and has helped tutor younger students.

Across the Fort Worth-Dallas area, however, quinceanera preparations are as varied as the parishes that conduct them.

At St. Matthew Catholic Church, for example, the quinceanera preparation spans two years and includes at least 20 hours of community service and instruction on social responsibility, Lucy Serenil says.

At St. Francis Catholic Church in Grapevine, the Rev. Baltasar Szarka has led three quinceaneras this year--more than in any previous year. The reverend, whose 2,200-family congregation is about 20 percent Hispanic, has not instituted specific requirements.

The differences may change soon. Members of the Fort Worth Diocese are working on broad guidelines outlining what the ceremony should be--and what it should not be. "I think everybody feels quinceanera is an important cultural experience," Prevou says, "and it can be an important faith experience if we parishes do some good preparation."

Szarka says he would welcome such guidelines, because he expects the growing Hispanic population in Grapevine to spark an increase in requests for quinceaneras.

Others have already seen that increase. "About eight years ago, it wasn't as often that you would see" quinceaneras, says Lee Saldivar, a community activist and owner of Jamil's Formal Wear. "Now, people are going back to their Hispanic culture, because I'm assuming they don't want to lose it."

Saldivar says his daughter, like Nancy, was initially reluctant to have a quinceanera. "She didn't understand it at first, but when she got excited about it," he says.

His daughter's excitement ultimately cost him $3,000, and friends and family acting as "sponsors" contributed several hundred dollars more.

But cost was a minor concern. "It's a very strong tradition that needs to continue," Saldivar says. "I felt it was important to do for my daughter."

Trudy Dehoyos, a Dallas photographer hired to record Nancy's quinceanera, has been booked solid for the past two years with increasingly elaborate quinceaneras.

"I've seen people actually spend more on this than on weddings," says Dehoyos, who charges $400 to $500 to photograph a quinceanera and its post-ceremony party.

The Serenils, who are working with 15 girls preparing for their quinceaneras, fight to keep the focus of the girl and her parents on the spiritual meaning of the event. They are concerned that some families feel pressured to compete with friends and family when planning a quinceanera.

But Prevou says the same can be said of weddings. "I think the concern is always toward balance," the youth ministry director says.

"One beautiful thing about this experience of quinceaneras is that the family comes together and everybody participates in some way," Prevou says. "It's not just one family who goes for broke. It's a larger extended family who pitches in. I see real value to that." The party starts at 8:30 Saturday night.

For Nancy, the difficult part, the part that made her nervous, is over. She has paraded up and down the church aisle and stated her reaffirmation without catastrophe. Close friends and family have gathered for dinner.

Now, as cars pull into the parking lot of Grapevine Convention Center and disgorge gift-bearing partygoers, the infectious, amplified rhythms of a Tejano band fill the three rooms that the Rubalcados have rented for about $1,000.

Nancy stands alone in the convention center foyer, looking regal and expectant and a bit like a bride without a groom.

"Are you having fun?" she is asked.

"Not yet," she responds. Just then, a group of Trinity High friends walks up to Nancy, who obligingly twirls for them in a gown that couldn't be more different from her usual school attire. Amid a chorus of giggles, she introduces the girls to her appointed escort for the day, the son of her godparents.

Most of this group have never been to a quinceanera, and only a couple have more than a vague idea of its meaning. "All we knew is that it's a huge party," says Jennifer Plummer, who, like Nancy, is a student trainer for Trinity athletic teams.

And outside the ballroom, Refugio Rubalcado, his ceremonial obligations likewise behind him, stands alone in front of the framed portrait of his second child. His gaze takes in the enlarged photo of Nancy in the white gown that symbolizes her ascent from childhood.

He smiles softly.

Black-eyed peas bring luck in coming year

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Have you eaten your black-eyed peas? This question will undoubtedly be asked many times on New Year's Day.

Eating black-eyed peas on New Year's Day for good luck is a tradition observed in the South.

"I am from Nebraska and I never heard of eating black-eyed peas until I came to Texas. Peas were used as feed for cows," said Grant Hanna.

Hanna operated the restaurant in the Jim Hill Hotel from 1969 through 1972.

"I'd say probably 80 percent of the folks in this area eat black-eyed peas on New Year's Day," said Hanna. "It's just something they grew up doing."

The origin of this tradition is questionable, but most Southerners will tell you that eating black-eyed peas on New Year's Day will bring good luck in the coming year.

African-Americans claim the tradition was introduced by their slave ancestors. Black-eyed peas, or cowpeas, were native in Africa and are still used in many ways by cooks there.

"Some people eat black-eyed peas at midnight on New Year's or have them with bacon and eggs as an early breakfast shortly after midnight," said Hanna.

They are also included in the noon meal on New Year's Day in various forms. One popular recipe is "hopping John"—black-eyed peas and rice.

This recipe lends some merit to the claim that the tradition came from the slaves as they introduced the cultivation of rice, as well as black-eyed peas, to this continent.

Black-eyed peas are good, healthful food and combining them with rice makes them even better. Separately, rice and beans each lack certain different amino acids. When combined, they complement and supplement each other, providing a very high-quality protein.

The recipe for "hopping John," which includes ham hocks, also helps support other New Year's Day eating customs.

One of these customs states that you are supposed to eat pork on New Year's Day because a hog roots forward, unlike a chicken which scratches backward.

If this tradition is new to you perhaps you should try fixing "hopping John" yourself.

HOPPING JOHN

Steps: Black-eyed peas

1. Empty a 1-pound package of black-eyed peas into a colander, rinse thoroughly in cold water and remove pebbles and defective peas.

2. Place two smoked ham hocks in a pot containing about 3 inches of cold water. Cover the pot and place it over very high heat.

3. Once the water begins to boil add the rinsed black-eyed peas. Lower heat. Season to taste with salt, bay leaf, cayenne pepper, black pepper, garlic powder, Cajun spice. Replace lid.

4. Stir periodically, add small amounts of water as needed. Cook until done.

Steps: Steamed rice

1. Empty 2 cups of white rice into a colander, rinse thoroughly in cold water and remove defective grains.

2. Place rinsed rice in pot and cover with cold water.

3. Cover pot with lid and place over high heat. Once steam appears, turn off burner and let rice steam until cooked.

Serve with one large chopped onion, hot sauce and cornbread.

This recipe serves 6 to 8 New Year's Day celebrants.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must respond to your advice to "The Coach's Wife in New York." You missed an opportunity to educate your readers and promote understanding among sports fans everywhere.

My husband has been a football coach all our married life. He started at the high school level and now coaches an NFL team. I agree that Coach's Wife needs to toughen up and let the insults roll off her back, but when people scream obscenities at your husband, you resent it.

What most folks don't realize is that coaches work 12 to 18 hours a day, seven days a week, often eight months a year. They miss their children's birthday parties and school plays, and their own sons' football games. They have the most precarious job security of any profession in the country. Too many losses and they're fired. The coach's work is judged by thousands of fans, and if you include TV viewers, it could be millions.

Fans pay their money, and they have a right to express themselves, but personal attacks on coaches and players can cut to the bone.

So before you scream insults, think how you would feel if it were your son or brother out there. And be aware that the coach's kids may be sitting two rows down and that's their father you are cussing out. -- A Coach's Wife

DEAR C.W.: I received hundreds of letters from women whose husbands, sons and brothers are coaches, all pleading for understanding. I hope this column helps.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A month ago, my husband and I were invited to a surprise 30th birthday party for a longtime friend. The invitation came from her husband, "Terry." We accepted, assuming it would be at their home.

The next day, Terry called to say the party would be at a restaurant some distance from where we live. I was impressed that he chose such an expensive place but not surprised because he's fairly well off.

Many brought lovely gifts, and we all had a great time. When the bill came, Terry announced that each guest owed $30. For my husband and me, that meant $60. Times are tough for us right now, and it made quite a dent in our budget. You could see the faces drop around the room. Most of us had to charge our share because we didn't bring that much cash along. Terry didn't even pay for any drinks while his wife opened presents at the bar.

We have yet to receive a thank-you note for our gift. Should someone say something to this cheapskate? -- Broke in Chicago

DEAR BROKE: Unfortunately, you can't lop off the clod without lopping off his wife, and this isn't quite fair. Give them both a pass this time, but be alert to this freeloader's technique.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our college-educated daughter, "Molly," is living with her fiance. She has an engagement ring, but no wedding date has been announced. They are buying a house and have two cars, a cat and a dog. She is also six months pregnant.

I'm not one to pry, but I did ask when they planned to marry. Molly replied, "Oh, Mother, this is the '90s!" Will you please inform me, Ann, regarding this '90s phenomenon about which I know nothing? -- Perplexed in Pa.

DEAR PA.: I checked with the Illinois Department of Public Health, Center for Health Statistics, and was told that 39,471 marriages were performed in Cook County last year (1994), so people are still getting married. Please inform Molly of this Midwestern phenomenon.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Celebrate golden anniversary

J.C. and Nadine Caster celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Friday with a surprise family dinner at Sirloin Stockade. The couple has resided in Hereford most of their lives. They have two daughters, Tonna Gutierrez of Kempner and Darlene Hinds of Fletcher Okla., six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

It is only possible to live happily ever after on a day to day basis.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent/FCS

As you face year-end expenses of holiday, property taxes and the thought of income taxes, reflect over your spending habits. Consider how many of the top 10 money mistakes that distract young adults from reaching their financial potential that you have avoided. Ask yourself which ones you will resolve to avoid in the future.

Thomas Garman and Raymond Forgue, authors of the financial education text Personal Finance, have identified the 10 ways people mess up their personal finances most easily:

1. Not borrowing money to finish college when the best jobs of the future will require high technology expertise.
2. Not contributing to a tax-deductible retirement plan with money that otherwise goes to the IRS for taxes.
3. Buying overpriced credit life insurance when taking out a loan. Shop for the lowest term life available if insurance is required.
4. Not joining a credit union, which pays high interest on savings and charges less for loans.
5. Getting too deep in debt for too many years, often by paying only the minimum required payment for as long as credit terms will allow, and thinking you can afford more credit because you can afford more monthly payments at the lower payment rate.
6. Using high-interest credit card debt instead of paying bills in full each month with savings that are repaid as quickly as possible to the savings account.
7. Failing to telephone and comparison shop for the best insurance rates. In Texas, the Texas Department of Insurance publishes lists comparing rates for every type of insurance for each region of the state. Call for the list you need.
8. Buying life insurance prior to the birth of your first child.
9. Taking a five-year new car loan instead of buying a more affordable used car, thus always driving a car worth less than the amount owed.
10. Failing to pay self first by saving on a regular basis.

Red Cross Update

I would like to thank everyone for helping with the toys program. We will have a number for the program next week. We especially appreciate the West Texas Rural Telephone Company and staff and the Big T Pump Company and staff that helped deliver toys and food.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Marilyn Monroe was queen of the stamps in 1995, but Elvis is still king.

The Monroe stamps were the best-selling single stamp this year with 46.3 million sold.

But Monroe's transformation from celluloid to adhesive couldn't quite match Elvis' success as a postal phenomenon. The post office has sold 124 million Elvis stamps since it came out in 1993.

Other big-selling commemorative stamps for 1995 include the World War II stamp, 32.5 million of which were sold; the jazz musicians stamp, 30 million; and Great Lakes Lighthouses set, 26.2 million.

NEW YORK (AP)--They'll be there for you--everywhere. The cast of "Friends" just hopes you won't get sick of them.

"Sometimes I worry about overexposure," Courteney Cox, who plays Monica, told Entertainment Weekly in its Dec. 29-Jan. 5 issue.

The theme song for the NBC hit sitcom is all over the radio, computer groupies are discussing their favorite episodes on the Internet, and Entertainment Weekly just voted the cast Entertainers of the Year for 1995.

David Schwimmer, who plays Ross, quips that he's the only one in the cast "who doesn't have a personal assistant yet."

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Look at everything as though you were seeing it for the first or last time. Then your time on earth will be filled with glory." Betty Smith, A Tree Grows in Brooklyn.

Input from faculty members when the calendar committee meets soon will help to determine whether this year's schedule, that of not returning to classes until Jan. 8, meets favorably with the majority. The calendar will provide for secondary students to have a more-balanced semester for the one semester classes. (...and more football games and shopping the after-Christmas sales and...).

History Day participants will have an opportunity to work together on their projects and performances on Wednesday, Jan. 3, at the county library. Those with projects should have their display boards and plans by this date. Students, please contact me at 364-0596 about details for this workday.

On Jan. 8, the day that classes resume, students at HJH should report to their first semester first period class in order to receive their schedule for the new semester. Most core classes do not change, but the elective classes will cause some schedule changes for many students.

Many students are going to have to make and follow some New Year's resolutions about following directions as some teachers have made resolutions that those students who continue to not follow directions will find themselves "doing their work over." Since following directions is such a vital part of being successful, surely our junior high students can be expected to do no less. Parents, this is an area where your help and support is needed!

Good reading for the holidays can be found in Gail Caissey's Early Adolescence-Understanding the 10 to 15 Year Old. If you think about it, very little has been written about this age span. There's much written about the "little folks" and much more about the "teens", but not so much about the in-betweeners! Also, Gene Shelburne's The God Who Puts Us Back Together and Max Lucado's A Gentle Thunder are worth the time spent to read. A visit to our own county library would prove invaluable for both you and your family...lots of good reading there! Also, visits to area museums, including Deaf Smith County Museum, would be time well-spent for you and your family.

This quote from the late Ronald Reagan from one of his old movies is still quite timely, "Who you are and where you are from isn't as important as what you are and where you're going. It's not the accident of birth that makes you what you are, it's what you become that makes the difference."

Five generations

Five generations of the Candemosa family were represented at a Christmas Eve birthday party for Lupe Flores. Virginia Candemosa is seated holding her great-great-granddaughter Samantha Hastings. She is surrounded by, from left, Tina Perez, her granddaughter, Lupe Flores, her daughter and Gloria Hastings, her great-granddaughter.

Wit consists in seeing the resemblance between things that differ, and the difference between things that are alike.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

Did you ever notice on your calendar that the day after Christmas is listed as "Boxing Day?" That's because after several days of too much food and too much company, you're ready to punch somebody!

That's what I think, but Chase's 1995 Calendar of Events says it is a bank holiday in the UK and Canada, traditionally a day when Christmas gift boxes were "regularly expected by the postman, the lamplighter, the dustman," and others who provide services.

According to the same source, it is St. Stephen's Day (on which Good King Wenceslas looked out), the second day of Christmas (turtle dove day), No Resolution Day, and You're All Done Day...and Albuquerque celebrates a Noon Year's Eve Party for those who can't stay up until midnight. It's also Check the Smoke Alarm Day, an idea that has some merit.

If you've never spent any time in Chase's (as I hadn't, until preparing for this column) you ought to. In addition to the obvious, it's full of tidbits such as recent Grammy winners, Presidential proclamations, and hurricane names.

Today, the last Sunday in the year, is also the time we try to mention just a few of the things we're thankful for, and some for the things we look for in the coming year.

We continue to appreciate the support of the County Commission. We had hoped to get desperately needed carpet this year, but we understand why we didn't, and hope for better in the future.

Our volunteers have made work a lot easier...those who help during the summer reading program, who fold newsletters, who stack books, who "ramrod" during children's programs, who sell popcorn at the Family Film, who tutor...and a thousand other things that don't come to mind right now.

We are thankful for those teachers who tell us in advance about an assignment, so that we can be prepared to help the students when they come in...and for students who are reasonably quiet, mind their manners, and have some idea of what the crazy teacher expects of them!

Some of the outfits you never see or hear from help us a lot, too--the Texas Library Association (TLA) and the Texas Panhandle Library Association (TPLS) are a couple of our best friends, providing workshops and behind-the-scenes assistance, and Harrington Library Consortium (HLC) provides all our technical support and tries to teach us how to use equipment we're too stupid to learn about.

We appreciate folks who bring their books back on time...or amiably pay their fine when they don't. We don't much care for those who steal books, damage them, or mark their place with used tissues or lollipop sticks.

We are highly thankful for the local media. The Hereford Brand, KPAN, and Hereford Cablevision are so gracious to give us time and space to promote our programs.

And thanks to my wife, off of whom every idea is bounced, every frustration is aired, and who employs all of her creativity to make me look like a butcher, a baker, a candlestick maker, or what-have-you.

And for 1996? We're still hoping for new carpet (though we DON'T look forward to moving everything). All of the old programs will be available, and I hope to add one about Deaf Smith for March, Texas History Month.

Our Summer Reading Club then will be "Ready...Set...Read!", but beyond that, we don't have a clue. Our talking book and video sections have grown by leaps and bounds this year, and they will continue to expand in '96.

We should have a public access computer with CD-ROM sometime this year, but don't hold your breath. The machine is being provided by the TPLS and negotiations with suppliers are underway.

...and we will continue to have books. This week: The Sea of Galilee

A man had rather have a hundred lies told about him, than one truth which he does not wish should be told.

—Samuel Johnson

Boat. Of course, no one could ever say that Jesus sat in this boat...but it is of the correct time and place that no one could say with certainty that he didn't. Author Shelley Wachsmann is a nautical archaeologist, and expert on seacraft of the ancient Near East.

His subject is a recent discovery and authentication of a fishing boat from the time of Christ. What could be a dry, "studious" book looks to be quite well written, informative, and entertaining.

And now we're out of space. We wish you all the best in 1996!

Granddaughter to perform

Michelle Shattles, granddaughter of Grant and Troyce Hanna of Hereford, will be one of 1,500 participants in the Orange Bowl halftime entertainment on the night of Jan. 1.

The Perryton High School senior is the daughter of Cynthia Shattles. She is a two year member of the Lone Star Ladies dance team, serving as a lieutenant this year, and one of six from Perryton who will perform in the Orange Bowl.

Miss Shattles other activities include historian for NIKE, section editor of the yearbook, member of FCA, FHA, 4-H and UMY at the Methodist Church.

She has been named NIKE Girl of the Month and to Who's Who Among American High School Students.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

AN I FOR AN I

The little letter I bats ninth in the alphabet line up, but it is a very important letter. I, is indeed a letter we incorporate into our writing with incredible regularity. I could not write well without it.

In some circles, I is the most commonly used letter. For example, where would politicians be without it? Envision a world without, "I promise...", "I sponsored...", "I voted...", "I am...", well, you get the idea.

Just think of all the items we wouldn't have without the letter I. Could you imagine living without, income, ice cream, ink, inches, icing, improvement, illustrations, instructions, iron and islands. Of course you couldn't, because without the I you wouldn't have any imagination.

Yes siree, the innocent letter I is important. I've included

78 of the little rascals in this column already. However, this column is not about counting I's. I just want to inform you about some pretty incredible I words. I hope you'll include them in your increasingly illuminated vocabulary.

Incredible I's

Here are a few of my favorite I words:

• Integrity. This important I word has two very valuable meanings. Integrity means: The quality or state of completeness; sound, and in perfect condition. It also has a "people only" meaning of being honest and possessing upright moral principles. Integrity is a critical element of leadership. We could use more of it in our nation today.

• Industrious. It seems to me that this word is one of a former generation. When I was young we used industrious to describe someone who put forth earnest, steady effort. We admired workers whose work was skillful, diligent and ongoing. We associated industriousness with persons of value, intelligence and character. No longer do we admire industrious persons. Today, many people are content to do only what they have to do to get by.

• Improvement. This word should be the key word for government, educational institutions, and businesses. It means achieving an increasingly higher level of excellence continually. Our nation might become great again if our politicians focused on improving the system, rather than playing partisan political games. Our colleges and universities would become first rate again if we focused on improving the educational excellence of our students instead of devoting efforts to tenure and funding. There would be no Wal-Marts if independent business owners had concentrated on serving customers more efficiently and effectively. Every institution, group and individual needs continuing improvement.

• Income. Please take note. Income and profit are not dirty, four-letter words. Income is the gain or benefit we receive from our labor or investment. In a free enterprise system, income is both a reward and a method of keeping score. A desire for profit is the motive; income is the result. Income is an excellent incentive. Just contrast America's standard of living with that of other countries. There is no better system than one which allows personal income.

• Immediately. This is a word for the future. It means occurring without losing time; instant and direct. We are becoming increasingly intolerant of waiting. We want what we want and we want it immediately. This provides many opportunities for businesses and individuals who can eliminate delay and provide for our needs immediately.

• Ideas. I would hate to live in a world where people place no value on ideas. Our ideas - formulated thoughts, opinions, plans and designs - can lead to wealth, change our lives and revolutionize the world. New ideas are the fuel of change. Ideas can illuminate new paths, improve our present and future and increase our happiness.

So grab a handful of I words and get busy. I encourage you to innovate, improve, implement, influence, intensify, invigorate, instruct, inform and initiate. It is inspiring.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: My brother's parakeet died, not because he was ill but because Alan really didn't know much about the care and feeding of birds. He was so upset to find out little Tweety starved to death.

He mistook seed shells for seeds and thought Tweety had plenty left because he saw him eating them off the bottom of the cage.

I talked with my veterinarian and he said that it's quite common with first-time bird owners. Birds remove the shell from the seeds, which can fall back in the seed dish or on the bottom of the cage.

If you don't check the dish, it may be full of shells and not seeds. It's very important to fill the seed cups every day with fresh seeds.

Hopefully this letter will help other bird owners avoid an experience like my brother's. — Mildred, Houston

Owning two cockatiels, I know that dishes of seed shells can look like full dishes of seeds and it can be confusing. Always check. Thanks for writing. — Heloise

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For several years, my blood tests have come back indicating I have "normocytic" anemia. My doctor says not to worry since it is barely below normal. It has been for some time. I feel more tired than I think I should be. I am 47 and work out vigorously five days a week. If my test got up to normal range would I have more energy? If so, how can that be done? — L.S.B.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I wonder if I need iron. Some years ago I was told I was borderline anemic. Isn't that iron deficiency? — J.W.

ANSWER: Defective quantities of red blood cells are behind all anemias.

Some patients might think it always means a lack of iron. That is a factor in but one kind of anemia: iron-deficiency anemia.

With so many forms of anemia, we try to differentiate types by red cell size. Smaller than normal red cells constitute what we call "microcytic anemia." Larger than normal, "macrocytic anemia." L.S.B. has normal-size red cells: "normocytic anemia."

Each type of anemia has its own secondary causes. Lack of vitamin

B-12, for example, leads to macrocytic anemia.

The causes of normocytic anemia are many. It can be found in those who have chronic illnesses, such as arthritis, kidney or liver disease or problems in bone marrow, which is where red cells are made.

If L.B.'s red cell count were higher, certainly her energy level might rise accordingly. If it is borderline, she probably would not notice.

The question is: What is causing the dearth of red cells. Without knowing that — and it can be difficult to ascertain — L.B. might have to settle for the "don't worry about it" diagnosis.

For more information on anemia, see the Health Letter report on that subject. To order, send $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope to: Dr. Donohue — SR152, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

The brighter you are, the more you have to learn.

SMALL SCALE LUXURY Design Offers Pleasures for the Whole Family

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

This small home plan combines modern space planning with convenience and comfort. The luxury home entrance is through a high impact recessed entryway. The great room is accentuated with a 9' ceiling that soars even higher with its octagonal tray ceiling. A central fireplace is also indicated.

The dining room is open and adjacent to both the great room and kitchen. The area is expanded by a bay window. An exceptionally large kitchen for a home of this size borders the dining room and there is a convenient snack bar adjacent to the dining room and kitchen.

An oversized laundry room also provides access to the rear sun deck, the large double garage, the basement stair and an optional hobby room. The plan is also available with a crawl space or slab foundation.

The bedrooms are secluded at the other end of the home providing a quiet zone for the family. The front two bedrooms are spacious and one of them boasts a bay window that intensifies the open feeling. A hall bath services these bedrooms.

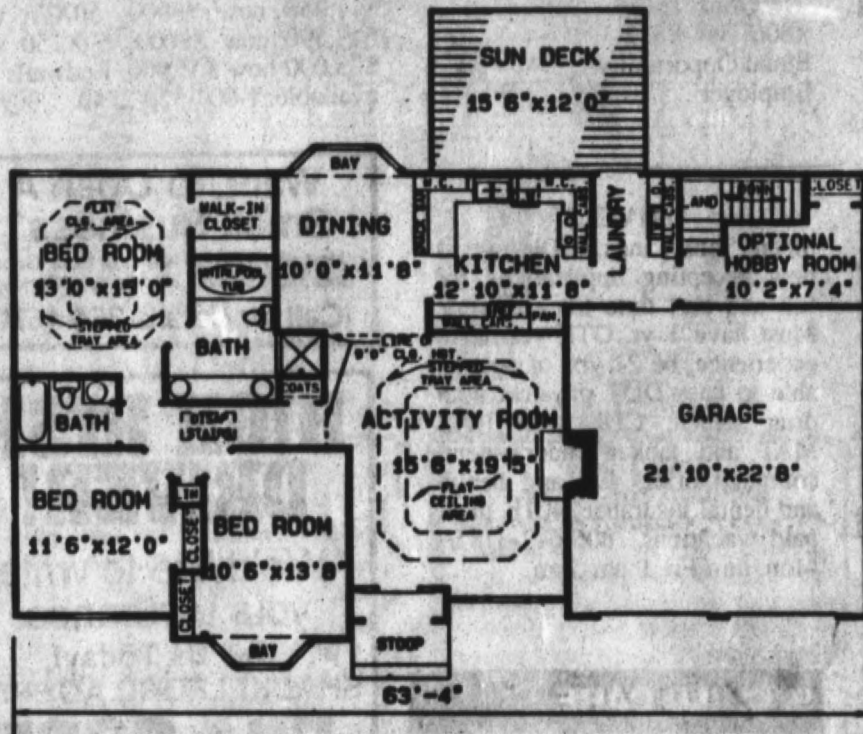

The master suite is elegantly appointed and also includes an octagonal tray ceiling. The garden bath is a lovely retreat. It features a separate shower, garden tub and double vanity. A large walk in closet is also indicated.

The exterior finish is designed for a combination of stucco and stone. Double gables face the front. Arch top windows, an arched entry and a bay window create an unparalleled look of elegance.

Plan number 485 includes 1,492 square feet of heated space and the optional hobby room will add 143 square feet if it is finished. All W. D. Farmer plans include details necessary for FHA or VA financing.

W. D. Farmer, F.A.I.B.D. is a member of the National Association of Home Builders and the American Institute of Building Designers, Southern Building Code Congress International, and a Certified Professional Building Designer by the National Council of Building Designer Certification Board.

Leaking faucets can waste shameful amount of water

By POPULAR MECHANICS

For AP Special Features
The toughest part of fixing a leaking faucet is getting to the job, but you shouldn't put it off. Only one drop a second will waste a shameful amount of water - 2,300 gallons a year.

And the repairs after a year of leaking will be no easier than when the leak was first noticed.
The tools needed for faucet work are a large adjustable wrench, flat-blade screwdriver, Phillips screwdriver and pliers. If the faucet you are working on is a tub-shower faucet, you may need a set of special socket wrenches that cost about $10.

These reach behind the wall to remove the packing nuts so you can remove the valve stems. With the stem out, tub-shower washer service proceeds as with smaller faucets.

The first step is to turn off the water supply. If you're fixing just one side, hot or cold, of a dual-handle faucet and the fixture has handy shut-off valves beneath it, you need to turn off only the side to be worked on. Lacking under-fixture shut-offs, you'll have to turn off the branch water supplies or the main house supply.

To remove the faucet handle, loosen the Phillips-head screw that holds it to the stem. Sometimes this screw is located beneath a decorative trim cap in the center of the handle.

The cap either unscrews or can be snapped off by prying it with a putty knife. Handles lift or are pried off of the upper end of the stem. If you have old faucets that are badly corroded, you may want to consider replacing them. Also, it may be advisable to replace the entire faucet assembly. As you identify parts in the following description, keep this alternative in mind.

Remove any old packing from around the stem and examine the stem. If it shows areas that are badly rusted or corroded, replace it if possible. The seat washer is probably the source of the leak or the drip. Check it for a flattened appearance or a groove.

It may also be ragged or cracked because it has become brittle with old age. Replace this washer whether it appears to be in good shape or not. It is secured with a screw. If the screw is rusty, replace it with a brass screw.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

I can't believe another year is gone and new one beginning. Things are changing fast and furious. With the budget crisis, everything seems so uncertain. Please pray for our National Leaders. They really need to agree on a budget soon!

We have several good programs scheduled at the center the first quarter of the year. Check the calendar. You need to get your tickets as soon as possible.

I am working on the Spring Tour. The date is April 15. We will be going to see the sites from Tennessee to Washington, D.C. I will need 40 people to go, so get your reservations in soon. I will have more details for you in a couple of weeks.

It has really been hard again this year losing so many of our Seniors. Yet it has been a joy and a pleasure to have been involved with each one. I am now thinking of Mr. Perrin. Not many of our Senior Centers get to have birthday parties for members at 107 years of age. We have been privileged knowing him and Mr. Walser, 107.

Come to the Center to help celebrate New Year's Day. We can eat lunch together and play games!

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

DANGEROUS DON

President's Corner

By Gid Brownd, HSCA President

It's been grandsons, dogs, horses, Christmas presents and lots of good food for us lately in Mossy Rock, Wash. We had a wonderful Christmas and hope all of you did too.

The New Year will bring new needs and challenges. Our transportation needs to be updated, so we can continue with Home Delivered Meal Service and other needs.

We have one van that is pretty old. The repair cost is high and we need to replace it. We already have a fund started, donations from members. If you can help with any size donation it will certainly be appreciated.

Activities offered at Senior Center

By PEGGY MAXWELL
Activities Director

The holiday season was a joyous time of year. I know you and yours had wonderful family gatherings, exciting gift exchanges, and delightful Christmas meals.

We at the Senior Center, are entering the New Year in a happy, joyous mood. We appreciate the many ways the community has supported the Center during the year. All Seniors are invited to the Center to enjoy the meals and activities during 1996.

Our activities are planned to meet your needs and enhance your pleasure. You can join the group in the exercise class, pool exercises, or line dancing. These classes will keep you limber and help you shed the extra pounds we gained during the Holiday.

If you want a less strenuous activity try quilting, ceramics, painting, doll making, crafts, or games.

Our "Young at Heart Choir" will start Jan. 18, under the direction of Mr. Mike Sabo. We are very fortunate to have such a talented director.

Come be a part of the Senior Choir at 1 p.m. on Thursday. We will blend our voices together and fellowship. It will be a very uplifting activity. If we don't offer an activity you would like to participate in just come out and give us your suggestions.

We wish all of you a Very Happy New Year!!

March was the first month of the ancient Roman calendar. Julius Caesar moved the year's beginning to January.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Byron Sansom

"Assistant District Manager"

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: I'll be 62 years old next year, and I don't know if I should retire at 62 or wait until I'm 65. How do I know what retirement age I should choose?

A: Choosing when to retire is not easy. To make the decision that is best for you, there are several things to consider. The amount of your monthly Social Security payment may be critical in your decision. If you retire at 62, your monthly payment will be about 20% less than at age 65. Once you choose the age 62, reduced amount, you will not be able to change to the full payment at age 65. We suggest you call the Social Security toll-free number (1-800-772-1213), and ask for an estimate of benefits for age 62 and age 65. You may even choose to retire sometime after 62, but before 65. Social Security can give you an estimate for any possibility.

Q: I think I'll owe some income taxes on my 1995 Social Security benefits. Will Social Security send me a form that shows my total Social Security benefits for 1995?

A: Yes. Each year you will receive a "Social Security Benefit Statement" (form 1099). The form tells you how much you received from Social Security. You can use this form for tax purposes.

Q: I turned down the doctor's bill part of Medicare when I turned 65. Now I think that was a mistake, and I want to enroll. How do I sign up?

A: It's a good thing you asked now because most people in your situation can sign up for Medicare Part B (what you called the "doctor's bill part") only during January through March of each year. Contact the Social Security office between January 1 and March 31 to sign up; this only takes a few moments. Your coverage will then be effective on July 1, 1996.

Q: I keep getting mail from a company that appears to be working for the government which says it will keep my Social Security from being cut—if I send them some money. My daughter tells me not to do this and that there are laws against this kind of thing. What can I do to prevent this mail from coming?

A: Individuals or groups who purposefully mislead the public about Medicare or Social Security services are subject to stronger penalties under legislation that became effective in 1995. The Social Security Administration responds to consumer complaints and inquiries from Congress about mail received by members of the public that appears to be misleading advertising. If it finds that such mailings violate the law, those who sent it may face prosecution by the U.S. Inspector General's Office. If you believe you have received such advertising, you can report it to:

Braschler Music Show scheduled to perform

The Braschler Music Show is not your typical country show. With its wide variety, there is something of enjoyment for everyone.

There are country and gospel tunes, featuring solos from nearly every member of the group, beautiful duets, a quartet and even some five-part harmony.

The Braschlers have been featured on the Nashville Network's premier show, Nashville Now, and are considered one of the top attractions for family entertainment in Branson, MO.

The band backs up the group on drums, piano, guitar, fiddle, steel guitar and banjo, but a fast paced instrumental features the somewhat unique additions of harmonica, trumpet, saxophone and even the kazoo.

Homer Lee, the comedian of the Braschler Music Show, has appeared on the nationally syndicated television show, Hee-Haw. An avid people watcher, Lee is a bumbling, but lovable character, whose pre-show monologue is guaranteed to tickle anyone's funny bone. His side-splitting antics during the performance entertain and amuse not only the audience, but keep the rest of the group guessing as well.

The Braschler Quartet is comprised of Cliff Braschler, patriarch of the group, who sings tenor, plays harmonica and plays straight man for Lee; Paul Braschler, who sings baritone and plays bass guitar and trumpet; Johnny Walters, who sings lead and plays piano and saxophone; and Brad Bacon, who rounds out the quartet with his deep bass voice. Add a pretty lady, Dee Schrock, and you've got a winning combination for great entertainment.

Members of music show

The Braschler Music Show will perform at the Hereford Senior Center on March 8. There will be a Gospel Show at 6 p.m. and a Variety Show at 8:30 p.m. Both shows will be completely different. Tickets are $10 per person for one show or $18 per person for both shows. A meal of croissant sandwiches or beef stew will be served at a cost of $5.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
RD/LD

It is no secret—Chocolate is one of America's favorite flavors. And chocolate can be part of a healthy eating pattern if you balance your food choices using the Food Guide Pyramid.

It is an extra bonus to be able to reduce the fat in chocolate desserts and treats without sacrificing taste.

The market place offers many commercially prepared reduced-fat chocolate desserts and treats. During the past holidays many people have no doubt created their own homemade goodies.

Consumers can reduce the fat in their favorite chocolate recipes by substituting traditional lower-fat ingredients or by taking advantage of new reduced-calorie and reduced-fat products on the market.

Fat reduction—the old-fashioned way

Here are some quick and easy tips for reducing fat in your favorite chocolate desserts:

- Use unsweetened cocoa, with just one (1) gram of fat per table-spoon, in place of baking chocolate for chocolate flavor with less fat in some recipes.

- Replace some of the oil or shortening with fruit purees - apple, prune, or banana. Purees also add moisture to recipes.

- Use a reduced-fat spread in place of some of the stick margarine or butter. You may need to adjust the recipe to compensate for additional water contained in the spread.

- Use reduced-fat or nonfat dairy products - milk, yogurt, sour cream, cream cheese, cottage cheese, whenever possible.

Fat and calorie reduction - the new-fashioned way

New products are making it easier than ever to reduce the fat content of your favorite recipes. While people are interested in lowering the total fat in their diets, most are not willing to sacrifice taste. Fortunately, technology has helped manufacturers produce reduced-fat products that taste good.

Reduced-fat baking chips

One such product is reduced-fat baking chips that has half the fat and 25 percent fewer calories than traditional semi-sweet chocolate chips. By using this product and traditional substitutions in special recipes, one can reduce the fat content of your favorite treats.

For example, one can try Chocolate Chip Cookies - 50 percent Reduced Fat or make a coffee cake with fat-free sour cream and reduced fat baking chips.

How is the fat reduced in the baking chips?

The reduced fat baking chips contain a reduced-calorie fat, salatrim. Salatrim is made from components commonly found in foods such as vegetable oil, vinegar, aged cheeses, and other dairy products. Your body can produce all the components of salatrim.

Unlike traditional fats, the body digest and uses only a portion of salatrim and eliminates the unused portion. Because not all of the salatrim is used by the body, less fat and fewer calories are available to the body. Traditional fats provide 9 calories per gram, while salatrim provides 5 calories per gram. Food products made with salatrim, such as reduced-fat baking chips, also provide less fat and fewer calories to the body.

Chocolatey Chip Cookies - 50 percent reduced fat

- 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup 60% oil spread
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 3/4 cup packed light brown sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups (12 ounces) reduced-fat semi-sweet baking chips
- 1. Heat oven to 375 degrees F.
- 2. Stir together flour, baking soda, and salt.
- 3. In large bowl, beat spread, granulated sugar, brown sugar, and vanilla with electric mixer until creamy.

- 4. Add eggs, beat well.
- 5. Gradually add flour mixture, beating well.
- 6. Stir in chips. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 8-10 minutes or until lightly browned.

7. Cool slightly; remove from cookie sheet to wire rack.

To make softer, chewier cookies, add 1 or 2 tablespoons unsweetened applesauce to the egg mixture.

Makes 5 dozen cookies. Nutrition information per cookie: 70 calories, 2.5 grams total fat, (2.0 grams available total fat). A classic chocolate chip cookie contains 4.5 grams total fat.

Pulitzer Prize winner euphoric over vehicle

By DEBORAH BAKER
Associated Press Writer
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Bill Mauldin was close to euphoric.

Not at the prospect of telling a visitor his life story, or of showing off the Pulitzer Prizes on the breakfast room wall.

And not at the opportunity to autograph books for the appliance repairman who showed up at the front door with three copies of Mauldin's classic World War II cartoons.

Nope, it was the impending delivery of an automobile engine that had Mauldin in high spirits.

A brand-new, straight-from-the-catalog, 350-cubic-inch, V-8 engine was on its way, and he couldn't wait to drop it into his '73 Buick.

The lineup in Mauldin's driveway also includes a '72 Chevy pickup truck, a '67 Clark Cortez motor home, an '83 Volvo and Mauldin's signature vehicle, a '46 Willys Jeep.

"I grew up in a family of grease monkeys," said Mauldin, a native of Mountain Park, N.M., near Alamogordo. "I usually manage to get 20 years out of a car."

The Jeep, complete with snowplow and tire chains, was ready for winter.

"I bought it off the showroom floor — paid 1,300 bucks for it," Mauldin recalled with fondness. "They're indestructible if you take care of them."

Mauldin developed his affinity for Jeeps during World War II, when he was assigned his own to chronicle the war in Europe.

One of his most famous cartoons depicts an old-time cavalryman shooting a Jeep that has a broken axle. Mauldin in recent years did a small sculpture of the scene; it sits outside his front door.

After a half-century career in cartooning, Mauldin retired in 1991.

He had injured his drawing hand in an accident while trying to attach the snowplow to the Jeep.

"The hand now is perfectly OK. But I decided I've had enough deadlines, so I'm staying in retirement," said Mauldin, 74, who spent nearly 30 years with the Chicago Sun-Times and its syndicates.

Only rarely does he draw a cartoon now. He did a cover for the New York Times Book Review for an issue that featured D-Day books.

"I'm always thinking of stuff to bash (President) Clinton with these days," Mauldin said.

A surprising statement from a man who emerged from retirement in 1992 to help Clinton get elected.

At that time, Mauldin was angry that President Bush was making Clinton's avoidance of Vietnam service an issue. Today, he fears Clinton is "getting us involved in a goddamned Balkan war" to curry favor with the military.

"I mean, basically I'm anti-war. I always have been," Mauldin said.

Some wars need to be fought, he added.

War made Mauldin famous. He was an infantryman in World War II, with a unit that suffered hundreds of casualties fighting its way north from Sicily. His drawing skills eventually landed him at Stars and Stripes, the overseas Army daily newspaper.

He told the story of war through the poignant observations of Willie and Joe, two grubby dogfaces, a nickname for enlisted infantrymen.

Mauldin was hugely popular — although not with Gen. George Patton, who complained that Mauldin's cartoon characters made soldiers look like bums and were bad for morale.

Mauldin won his first Pulitzer Prize at age 23, when he was still a sergeant in uniform. His second came in 1959, for a cartoon on the fate of Soviet novelist Boris Pasternak.

Along the way there were numerous other honors, awards and prizes. He covered Korea and Vietnam, wrote magazine articles, published 15 books, learned to fly a plane. He married three times and had eight children.

Today, retirement suits him fine. "I'm having a ball. I'm up to my elbows in grease," Mauldin said during a recent interview at his Santa Fe home, where he lives with his wife, Chris, 47, and their 9-year-old son and 17-year-old daughter.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A relation in another state has primary sclerosing cholangitis, a liver problem. She says it's incurable. How does it progress, and can it be helped? What are the symptoms? She has no pain, but a lack of strength. She's 65. Is it painful? — E.J.

ANSWER: Some diseases once thought rare have been found to be not so rare after all. Body structures once hidden from view are today explored by new devices.

Better ways to visualize the liver's bile ducts have altered our view of the incidence of primary sclerosing cholangitis.

PSC is inflammation of the liver's bile drainage ducts. The cause remains a mystery. But signs of it are clear: liver scarring — cirrhosis — from the bile backup.

The cirrhosis takes an unpredictable time to happen. Seven years is a ballpark estimate.

Fatigue is a prominent symptom, as is itching. The skin takes on a yellow tint. The patient feels uncomfortable, but severe pain is not a major feature of PSC.

For now, we have no cure, no way to reverse the process, but many medicines have been used to stop or modify it. Your relative is probably taking one or more of them.

She needs supplements of vitamins A, D, E and K, the ones we absorb from fats. A bile lack causes a decline in fat and hence of those vitamins.

Even when drugs fail, modern medicine offers new options. Liver transplantation is considered when that organ teeters on the brink of failure.

One way or another, the PSC patient usually can look forward to a much better future today.

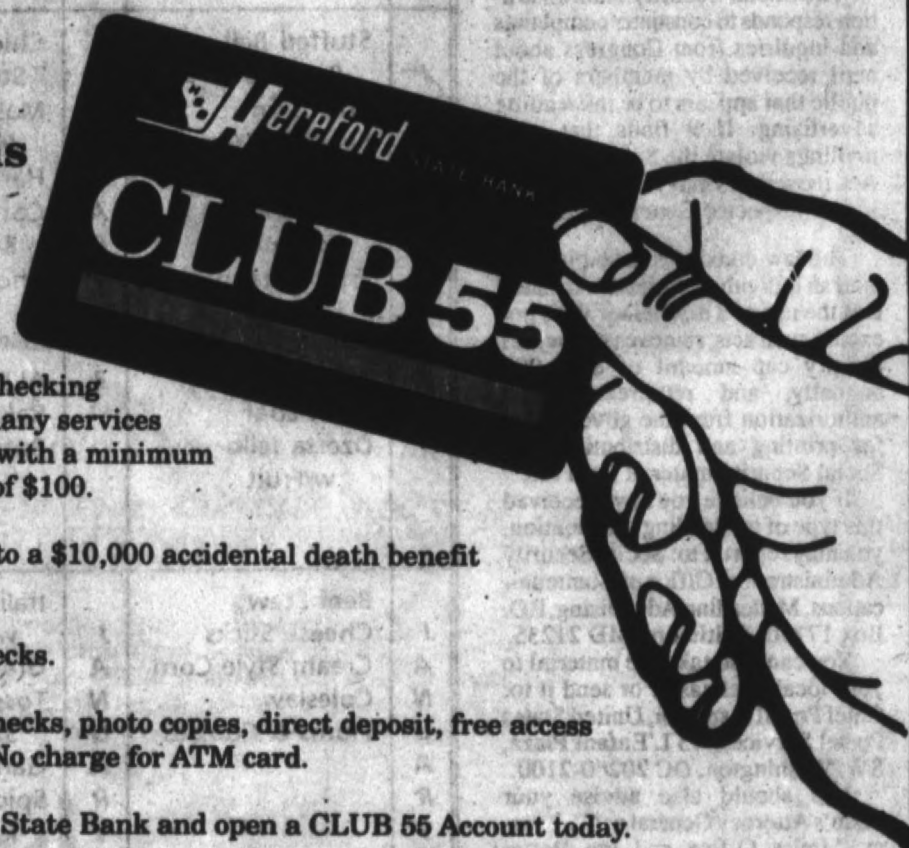

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please shed some light on chronic bronchitis. — S.F.

ANSWER: Bronchitis is inflammation of airway passages, the bronchi. "Chronic" means it is there most of the time. To qualify technically for chronic status, the inflammation should be present at least three months for two years in a row.

The bronchitis cough is an attempt to clear the excess mucus caused by the irritation of the air passages.

Social Security

By JIM MCDANIEL
Social Security Manager
in Amarillo

Because Social Security touches the lives of everyone, directly or indirectly, it has generated a number of scams from those who recognize that many people simply are not aware of their rights and responsibilities under the program. They become prime targets for those who pitch convenience and economic security to sell them services they can obtain free from Social Security.

Typical scams are those that use "official" letterhead stationary offering to provide a replacement for a lost or stolen Social Security card, have a name changed on a Social Security record, or get a Social Security number for a child for a fee. These services are not only free from Social Security, but they can generally be obtained just as easily as they can from the advertiser.

A number of these misleading ads are aimed specifically at the elderly and cause great consternation and hardship. Many older people end up sending money in response to appeals to keep Social Security and Medicare afloat or to protect their benefits. What they don't realize is that they are being deceived if they think the appeal is coming from an official body of the government.

Individuals or groups who purposefully mislead the public about Social Security or Medicare services are subject to stronger penalties under current legislation that became effective in 1995. The new law makes such misrepresentations more difficult to carry out and increases fines that can be imposed.

The Social Security Administration responds to consumer complaints and inquiries from Congress about mail received by members of the public that appears to be misleading advertising. If it finds that such mailings violate the Social Security Act, the senders may face prosecution by the Inspector General's Office.

The law considers each piece of mail an individual violation. It states that the use of a disclaimer does not excuse such acts, removes a previous penalty cap amount of $100,000 annually, and requires written authorization from the government for printing and distributing any Social Security material for a fee.

If you believe you have received this type of misleading information, you may report it to: Social Security Administration, Office of Communications, Misleading Advertising, P.O. Box 17740, Baltimore, MD 21235.

You can also take the material to your local postmaster or send it to: Chief Postal Inspector, United States Postal Service, 475 L'Enfant Plaza, SW, Washington, DC 20260-2100.

You should also advise your State's Attorney General or Consumer Affairs Office and the Better Business Bureau in your area that you have received this offer and who sent it.

Children are charades their parents are called upon to solve.

West Texas town of Chalk memorialized

By RICHARD MIZE
Wichita Falls Times Record-News
CHALK, Texas - Rest in peace,
Chalk.

Amen.
Nothing but the wind lasts forever on the dry, sandy plains of West Texas.

The town of Chalk was a line drawn literally in the swirling dust by settlers just after the turn of the century.

It became home to scores of farmers after rancher W.Q. Richards, facing drought, carved up the territory and turned from cattle raising to town building.

Richards was a booster. His pamphlets, promising deep wells, "sweet water" and fertile soil, drew people from all over, many from East Texas.

But another unstoppable wind, the fickle one of change, erased all of it in less than a century.

On a recent Saturday, Chalk was laid to rest, after four score and 10 years, with the unveiling of a historical marker with the blessings of the Texas Historical Commission.

The name, and now the sign, are all that's left—not even the remnants

The observance, which opened with the prayer of a Baptist minister and closed with the prayer of a Methodist, harkened to the glory days of a place that now is a desolate roadside spot well off the beaten path in Cottle County.

Memories of Chalk are mixed with thoughts of other old Cottle County of an original house or storefront are left.

But the community's spirit is alive and thriving among the survivors, people like Nelda Fields, Patsy Kinney, Doris Glidewell, Brenda Fell and Don Hutchinson.

The Chalk natives, who worked four years for the marker, now live 14 miles away in Paducah, about 115 miles west of Wichita Falls.

Chalk's soul survives in the memories of others, too, including 100 or so other Paducah residents who were present for the ceremony, held Dec. 2 under a warm sunny sky that yielded a cool wind.

The numbers are telling. This place has a hold on people. Not many sign dedications can draw such a crowd, said John Preston of Childress, a member of the state historical commission.

towns now gone but not forgotten.

Forest Creamer, 77, lived here until 1980, when he moved to Paducah, lock, stock and barrel.

"I picked up my house and moved to town. It was down between here and Hackberry. I was born about two or three miles from here and I went to Shinnery to school the first three years. Big Shinnery was over here," he said, pointing. "Little Shinnery had the school."

The simple roadside marker was shrouded by a "friendship quilt," with townspeople's names stitched in, made in 1932 by Edith Roy, who was the grandmother of Nelda Fields. The revealed sign was welcomed with applause.

Creamer said it represents complex feelings held by many who called Chalk home.

Lots of towns have come and gone in Texas' history. But many places still have a smattering of elderly residents, maybe a church open on special occasions or a cemetery to give silent witness to what was.

But in Chalk, there is only the historical marker.

"Since everything else has moved away, this is all we've got to go by," Creamer said. "And this used to be a lively little community down here."

Among themselves, the old friends who drove out to Chalk talked about square dances, parties, births and deaths, droughts, cotton crops and sand storms—the stuff of life in small-town West Texas.

"We had several churches and schools, but it's all gone now," said Ruth Berry, 82, who ran the Chalk post office for 35 years until it closed in 1986. "But it's sure good to be back here on my old stomping grounds."

The state of Texas claims that 45 people live in Chalk.

"There's not but five people who live in what was called the town," Fields said. "I don't know what they would consider the boundaries of the community."

But those five, Department of Public Safety Trooper Carl Holloway, his wife, Connie, and their children, Grady, Cody and Kaylee, aren't natives, someone pointed out.

A few oldtimers, in fact, joked about the "foreigners" in their midst—people who only lived here for 30 years or so. But every single person with roots in Chalk has moved away, so even the newcomers were welcome.

Like roadside markers in other Texas ghost towns, the one here serves as a headstone to all who pass by:

Here lies Chalk.

"Chalk will not be just a place in the country where nothing exists that was," said Brenda Fell, one of several who stood and shared their thoughts, some choking back tears. "It will also be a place in our hearts."

Retired man takes job for $500 tax deduction

By CAROLYN THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
CHELMSFORD, Mass. (AP)—For years, 72-year-old Patrick Swanberry watched, frustrated, as the town raised his property tax while his fixed income held steady.

So it didn't take much convincing for the retired corrections officer to take Chelmsford up on its offer of a $500 tax break earlier this year. Even if it meant postponing a round or two of golf and going back to work for a while.

For 100 hours over the summer, Swanberry stood guard at Freeman's Lake, keeping the out-of-towners away from its sandy beach and shade trees.

His $5-an-hour "pay" wasn't quite on par with his pre-retirement salary, but then the gate-crashers he ran into probably weren't as ornery as those he encountered at the Middlesex House of Corrections.

Chelmsford is one of a growing number of Massachusetts cities and towns dangling $500 tax rebates in front of older people with the hope they'll tackle some of the jobs town employees can't seem to find time to do.

Seniors are put to work collecting tax payments, delivering meals, putting books on library shelves or any number of other tasks.

"There are jobs that are important that are No. 101 on the priority list of the 100 things you need to do," said Chris Gaffney, who coordinates the program for Hopdale. "They're jobs you just can't get to."

Job placements are based on questionnaires which ask about past work experience, interests and physical limitations.

"We're not going to have them up on ladders or buildings or carrying heavy things or anything like that," said Tracy Blais, who administers the program in West Newbury, where she is finance director.

For Swanberry, his hours on the job seemed more like, well, a day at the beach sometimes.

"I more or less enjoyed the job, work-wise," he said. "It was no task whatsoever as far as the 100 hours go. I would have liked to even stayed."

And the tax break "was a tremendous help," he said.

Cap'n Bill helps introduce new stamp

By ED SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — When the Postal Service went looking for someone to help introduce a new stamp commemorating America's riverboat history this fall, it didn't have to look past the St. Louis levee. Captain William F. Carroll, known locally as Cap'n Bill, was a natural

1995 statements to show benefits

In January, Social Security will send you a statement showing the total benefits you received in 1995. The statement is designed to help you determine if you need to pay tax on a portion of your benefits based on your taxable income.

If you file a federal tax return as an "individual" and your combined income (your adjusted gross income as reported on your Form 1040 plus nontaxable interest plus one-half of your Social Security benefits) is between $25,000 and $34,000, you may have to pay taxes on 50 percent of your Social Security benefits. If your combined income is above $34,000, 85 percent of your Social Security benefits above $34,000 is subject to income tax.

If you file a joint return, you may have to pay taxes on 50 percent of your benefits if you and your spouse have a combined income that is between $32,000 and $44,000. If your combined income is more than $44,000, 85 percent of your Social Security benefits above $44,000 is subject to income tax.

The SSA-1099 statement you receive includes an IRS Notice 703. You'll know whether you need to pay tax on your Social Security benefits after you complete the five steps on the notice. For 1995, Social Security estimates that about 18 percent of beneficiaries will need to pay tax on their benefits.

For more information about taxable benefits, call the Internal Revenue Service toll-free at 1-800-829-3676. Ask for Publication 915, Tax Information on Social Security Benefits (and Tier I Railroad Retirement Benefits); and IRS Publication 554, Tax Information for Older Americans.

for the job. He has been active on the river here for more than 50 years and is known to several generations of St. Louisans who cruised aboard the old riverboat Admiral, a downtown landmark.

Although the art deco Admiral is now a landlocked casino sitting on concrete piles next to the Eads Bridge, Carroll still plays a role in the management of Gateway Riverboat Cruises. At 75, he still works nearly every day in the excursion boat end of the business.

Carroll signed on with Streckfus Steamers as a jack-of-all-trades after being discharged from the Army in 1945. It didn't take him long to fall in love with the Mississippi and its history.

"I did all kinds of work, including general labor," he said. "But eventually, and probably inevitably, I began to spend a lot of time in the pilot house of the Admiral, watching Captain Jim (Brasher) run the boat. "Once in a while, he let me steer while he sat behind me in a recliner chair and offered advice. He didn't want the boat flopping around out there, so he taught me how to ease into the wheel. 'Easy now, easy,' he would say. You stayed in your marks with him. No throwing your rudder down hard. No flopping around."

The experience convinced Carroll he wanted to live his life on the river. But there was a lot of work involved. "Finally, I took and passed the examinations for mate and captain," he said. "My first boat was the Huck Finn, a smaller boat that takes passengers out for a one-hour cruise of the St. Louis riverfront."

His fondest memories are linked to his long career as skipper of the 374-foot Admiral, which took up to 4,400 passengers on each of two cruises a day during the season. The day cruise gave its passengers a different view of the city and an ongoing patter from Carroll, who called attention to points of interest and had an anecdote for every one. When he first started, Carroll said, someone in the company had developed a series of cards from which the commentator could read over the loudspeakers.

"But all it talked about was how many tons of coal the power plant used, or how many bushels of grain a barge would hold or how many gallons of water the waterworks turned out," he said. "By the end of the first week of doing that, I thought I would go crazy. There was no soul in there. It was all numbers."

"So I went to the Missouri Historical Society and the Mercantile Library and started what has turned into a real love affair with the history of the river, the city and whole area."

Carroll has amassed his own library and filing system at his home and has talked about writing a book on St. Louis and its relationship with the river.

He credits the cruise boats with keeping the St. Louis riverfront alive through the years until the Arch, Laclede's Landing and, most recently, gambling once again made it a popular gathering place.

"In the 1950s and 1960s, the Admiral was THE riverfront attraction," he said. "There was nothing else here. Back then, when visitors came to town, you took them to Forest Park or the Central West End. Now, their first outing is to the riverfront to see all the sights."

"It does my heart good to see the levee alive with people again."

Cole keeps up the devilry on CBS' returning Gothic

The critically acclaimed drama American Gothic, starring (clockwise from left) Paige Turco, Gary Cole and Lucas Black, returns to CBS this week in a new Wednesday berth, where the network is hoping a new audience will discover the show.

BY JOHN CROOK

Sheriff Lucas Buck can arrange to get you out of any jam. That's the good news.

The bad news is, he also can arrange the jam.

Lucas, played with relish by actor Gary Cole, returns to wreak havoc on the people of Trinity, S.C., in a new time slot starting Wednesday, Jan. 3. CBS hopes it can pump new life into the critically acclaimed but low-rated drama created by former TV Hardy Boy Shaun Cassidy.

For the uninitiated, Cole's character is the relentlessly charming and utterly ruthless lawman who runs Trinity with an iron fist. Most of the townspeople willingly accept the "benevolent" advice Lucas bestows on anyone who shares his perspective: "Do what I say and life will be beautiful."

At odds with him are the orphaned 12-year-old Caleb Temple (Lucas Black); Caleb's cousin, journalist Gail Emory (Paige Turco); and the town's new physician, Dr. Matt Crower (Jake Weber), who Sheriff Buck knows is a recovering alcoholic even before he hangs up his shingle.

Lucas' revenge on those who cross him is terrifying to contemplate. To date, his methods of dispatch have included sending a traumatized adolescent to her reward by breaking her neck with his bare hands.

Cole, however, says he lets the special-effects wizards handle the supernatural devilry and plays Lucas for his down-home charm. In the pilot, he whistled the theme song to The Andy Griffith Show while strolling to confront an adversary.

"When someone is perceived as a bad guy — and certainly that is the way some people will perceive this character — you (as an actor) want to be careful," Cole explains. "You don't want to 'play' bad or evil or villainous. You want to make something human of the character."

"Shaun's invention of this guy is that he just perceives things differently. He says so, and it's explained in the pilot, where Ben (Deputy Ben Healy, played by Nicholas Searcy) says to him, 'You don't have a conscience,' and (Lucas) says, 'Well, conscience is just the fear of getting caught.' It's the way he looks at things that makes his slant on everything different (from) everyone else's."

The actor, perhaps best known for his stint as Jack Killian in Midnight Caller, says much of the pleasure in his new CBS gig comes from sharing many scenes with Black, the superb young actor who plays Caleb — who, according to persistent hints, is really Lucas' illegitimate son. (The similarity between Black's name and that of his TV nemesis is coincidental).

"He is a pretty stunning kid in a lot of ways, not just on camera," Cole says warmly of his co-star, who had a supporting role in The War. "He's totally 'undamaged' by any kind of acting training, which he has had none of. This is just him behaving in front of the camera. It's amazing."

"You're not waiting for him to do anything. He's just there. I haven't seen that kind of wisdom register on a kid's face in front of a camera before. And it works beautifully. That's really what his character is. You know that there's much more lurking underneath than a 12-year-old boy."

Regardless of the ultimate fate of Gothic, Cole says he loves this job.

"It's a lot of fun to do, because it's really the opposite of what a television hero would be," he says. "It's everything in reverse, almost."

Animal Expressions
 "Talking turkey" means getting down to business, but where did the expression originate?

Some say it comes from an exchange that took place during a hunting expedition taken by an Indian and a white man.

According to the legend, they caught a turkey and a buzzard.

The white man turned to the Indian and said: "You may have the buzzard and I will take the turkey. Or, I'll take the turkey and you have the buzzard."

The wise Indian listened quietly, and then replied: "You never once said turkey to me."

Chuckle Time
 Willy: "Doctor, Doctor, I was just bitten by my neighbor's dog, and I think it has rabies!"

Doctor: "Just sit down and stay calm; I'll be right with you."

Willy immediately starts to write on a piece of paper.

Doctor: "Don't worry, son, rabies is treatable nowadays. You don't have to make out your will."

Willy: "This isn't my will, Doctor. It's the list of people I'm going to bite!"

Food Fact
 White pepper comes from black pepper.

On the vine, a peppercorn is neither black nor white. As it ripens, it turns red.

For black pepper, the berries are picked before they turn red, and are dried until the skin turns dark.

White pepper is left to mature on the vine. After harvesting, it is soaked to remove the dark outer skin, and the white peppercorns are then dried.

A Reason To Celebrate
 Winnie the Pooh will celebrate his "70th birthday" on October 16th.

Tired of rehashing past mistakes? It's time to let go of problem relationships. New-found love brings more than just good times. Self-reflection on Friday helps you see the truth. A quiet weekend is just what the doctor ordered. New introductions bring financial opportunities.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
This is a great week for fitness, Cancer. If you've been putting off a trip to the gym, stop making excuses and go. A good workout on Wednesday will help clear your mind of tensions developing at work. Remember to think before you speak at a social function Friday evening.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Romance is in the air for you, Leo. And if you're a bit less impulsive than usual, you're sure not to blow it. When confusing situations arise early week, remember there are two sides to every story. An unexpected financial bonus eases financial strains as the week ends.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
What's holding you back from going after what you really want? Nothing, except maybe you, Virgo. Destiny is in your hands this week. Be frugal where free time is concerned and give 100 percent to things that mean the most. Romantic relationships need nurturing.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Stop blaming those around you for social troubles and take some responsibility. A blowout with a Gemini on Tuesday brings important questions to the surface, but it will take courage to answer them. Your Libran charm works wonders on the romantic front over the weekend and may even get you out of some tight spots.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Having a hard time getting someone from the past off your mind? Perhaps it's time to let bad feelings go and lure him/her back into your life. If social scenes have got you down, look to a Leo for help. Finances are a bit tight, so be creative in your plans.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Work is terribly demanding this week, Sagittarius. Give it your all. Your talents take you far in your boss's eye, but a good and flexible attitude will take you even further with colleagues. Use free time to burn off steam at the gym. Exercise is key in keeping stress levels down.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Work out problems with family members this week. Putting it off will only cause more damage. Have you said somethings that you regret? Swallow your pride and ask for forgiveness. Your gentle side flows over into other areas, too. Don't be afraid to bend the rules.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Stop looking to outside sources to cure inner conflicts. Trust yourself to find long-awaited answers to romantic dilemmas. Overtime at work during the week makes the weekend extra special. Spend it with a close friend. A phone call brings shocking news about an Aries.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Friends in need will find themselves parked on your doorstep this week. Be careful to stay neutral in matters of the heart that don't involve you, or you'll just be adding flames to the fire. Sit tight with finances, you never know when the extra cash will come in handy.

TV PIPELINE

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Peter MacNicol

Q: My husband and I enjoy Chicago Hope on Mondays. We are shocked that Alan was killed in a November episode. He was fantastic on the show. --J.L., Westville, N.J.

A: Peter MacNicol signed on to play Alan Birch, the hospital's legal counsel, because he was impressed with the stunning scripts on courtroom themes that Hope creator David E. Kelley had crafted for such shows as Picket Fences and L.A. Law. This season Kelley turned his attention to a new series he's creating for Fox, leaving MacNicol concerned that "The Eel" (Alan's nickname) would become a marginal character -- so he left. You can catch him in Mel Brooks' latest, Dracula: Dead and Loving It.

Q: While visiting my son in Los Angeles, I heard that my favorite show, Northern Exposure, was canceled due to the furor over the gay wedding. Even coming from the Midwest, I find this hard to believe. --Peggy Hensin-Neff, Salem, Ind.

A: And it isn't true. While Exposure may have ruffled some feathers with those unconventional nuptials, the show ran for another season after that episode aired on May 2, 1994.

Ratings plummeted only after CBS moved it out of its Monday berth in favor of Chicago Hope. That audience fall-off, coupled with series star Rob Morrow's decision to quit, was the reason for the show's demise. If you miss it, I invite you to sample the similarly eclectic Due South Fridays on CBS.

Q: What has Alan Autry been doing since In the Heat of the Night was canceled? --Lyle Elwood, Livermore, Calif.

A: Heads up, Lyle! Autry is a new regular on ABC's Grace Under Fire. Q: My brother-in-law thinks Cybill Shepherd played either an Angel or an Angel's sister on Charlie's Angels during the latter years of that show. I disagree. Also, I love Cybill, but is there any chance it might move to another time slot? --Cinda Wiegand, Sarasota, Fla.

A: Shepherd, who was never an Angel's cast member, is pulling in decent numbers (ranking 43rd for the season to date) in her Sunday time slot. Shuffling CBS shows these days is like rearranging deck chairs on the Titanic, but anything is possible.

Q: I haven't seen Charlie Grace since before the World Series. Will it be back? --Harold Thomas Freeman, Charlotte, N.C.

Q: What happened to The Monroes? It was on three or four times, then it disappeared. --Mrs. Dorothea Craig, Mansfield, Ohio.

A: These two shows were among the first casualties of the new season because of low ratings and, in the case of The Monroes, some deadly reviews.

SOAP WORLD

Kristian Alfonso extends Days stay

BY CANDACE HAVENS

For a while it looked as though poor Bo (Peter Reckell) would have no one to love on Days of Our Lives. Billie (Lisa Rinna) left him last summer and it looked as if Kristian Alfonso (Hope) was going to be leaving in the spring.

A very excited Ken Corday, executive producer, says that is not so. "We are thrilled and excited that Kristian has agreed to re-sign for two years when her current contract is completed in April 1996," says Corday. "The character of Hope is one of Days' most loved, and we are happy to be able to continue the tradition of her being part of the fabric of the Horton and Brady families."

The story is quite different for Melissa Reeves, who played Jennifer on Days. Fans are still reeling from the sudden departure of the actress. No news yet on exactly why Reeves decided to leave so suddenly. She cites an immediate family crisis as her reason. Stephanie Cameron has taken over the role of Jennifer.

Fans of Monti Sharp (ex-David, Guiding Light) will find him on The City beginning Jan. 9.

Dear Candace: I watch several soaps. I tape All My Children, One Life to Live and GL every day. On my days off I watch The Young and the Restless, Another World and General Hospital.

The reason for my letter is to applaud all the actors. I realize how hard these people must work every day. I love the way the characters on GH rallied around Stone (Michael Sutton) and gave him a wonderful Christmas party. Stone's story line was fantastic. It absolutely kept me in tears the whole time. I also hope that Brenda (Vanessa Marcil) is the one who helps Sonny (Maurice Benard) get on with his life. -Rita Mills, Charlotte, N.C.

Dear Reader: If you really want a good cry, read Robin's Diary by Judith Pinsker. Talk about a tearjerker. The book is a diary of Robin's (Kimberly McCullough) last days with Stone. It is available in bookstores.

CHITTER - CHATTER

NEW YORK (AP)—Peter Jennings almost jumped from his ABC anchor spot to take a job on CBS' "60 Minutes" two years ago, producer Don Hewitt says.

"It came down to the wire with Peter Jennings," Hewitt says in the year-end edition of "TV Guide." Hewitt added, "I don't have any openings, but I'd make room for him."

The 28-year-old newsmagazine has lost some big interviews—including Christopher Reeve and Colin Powell—to competitors. It came under fire recently for backing off a story critical of the tobacco industry.

Other on-air regulars also are looking to make some changes. Correspondent Mike Wallace is said to be lobbying for CBS reporter Bob Simon to join the staff. Commentator Andy Rooney says he'd like the show to air live.

But Hewitt said the program won't stray from its proven formula. "I'm not looking for Michael Jackson," he said.

The first Rose Bowl game was played in 1902. Michigan beat Stanford, 49-0. Stanford returned in 1925; Michigan's next appearance came in 1948.

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles' detractors, listen up: Some Anglican clerics say it's time to stop meddling in his business.

"It is not for interfering churchmen to tell him who he should have relationships with," said Trevor Beeson, the dean of Winchester Cathedral.

Charles, who is heir to the throne, said last week he is ready to divorce Princess Diana after three years of separation. The princess has cited his relationship with Camilla Parker Bowles as the major factor in the breakup.

He has said he had no intention of remarrying, a nod to the Church of England, which allows divorce but frowns on remarriage. As king, he would be the secular head of the Church.

Last week, some clergy said his declaration is not enough. Dissenters answered: It's too much talk, too soon, at least until he becomes king.

Dallas was the highest-rated TV show for five years in the 1980s. The Cosby Show was on top for three years.
