Clinton gives pep talk to American troops

President tries to gain support of Bosnia action

By RON FOURNIER
 Associated Press Writer
 BAUMHOLDER, Germany (AP) - To lusty roars of approval, President Clinton told American troops headed for Bosnia peacekeeping duty what they wanted to hear today: "If you are threatened with attack, you may respond immediately and with decisive force."

children stood huddled in the cold as Clinton - standing in front of a huge banner bearing the division's "Old Ironsides" nickname - justified his plans to risk American lives for a war in Europe.

Tank crewman Spc. James Lenzer, 23, from Antigo, Wis., and his wife Marina, 24, waited in chilly rain with their 8-month-old daughter Courtney to hear Clinton.

"Well, I volunteered for this job, (but) I don't want to leave my wife, and my baby doesn't want me to go," he said.

His friend, tank gunner Sgt. Howard Baker, 24, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., said, "My main concern is mines and the unknown."

Gen. William Nash, commander of the 1st Armored Division opened the ceremony by declaring, "We are prepared to do our duty."

Clinton's address was a mix of pep talk and presidential reassurances that the soldiers could defend themselves.

Drawing whoops of assent from the soldiers, Clinton told them, "There is no doubt in my mind this task force is ready to roll."

"Your mission: to help people exhausted by war make good on the peace they have chosen," he said.

"It is in our nation's interest and consistent with our values to see that

Incumbent county office holders toss hats in ring for '96 elections

By GEORGIA TYLER
 Staff Writer

Politicking won't begin in earnest for a month or so, but the first shots have been fired by Deaf Smith County's incumbent office-holders, Sheriff Joe Brown, Commissioners Troy Don Moore of Precinct 3 and Tony Castillo of Precinct 1 and Tax Assessor-Collector Margaret Del Toro have confirmed their intentions to seek another four-year term. All four were elected on the Democratic ticket four years ago.

Filing for spots on party primary ballots begins officially Sunday and continues until 6 p.m. on Jan. 2.

The office of County Clerk David Ruland is getting ready for the election year.

Ruland said new voter registration cards will be mailed within a few days. Voter registration cards are not forwarded to new address. Persons who have moved since the last voter registration should contact Ruland's office to register.

Political candidates must file applications for office with party chairmen. Roddy Allred is Democratic chairman, and Fran Tooley is county Republican chairman.

A document also must be filed with the county clerk, designating the candidate's campaign treasurer.

The 1996 political season in Deaf Smith County could be less stressful than the 1992 elections when the four incumbents won their offices.

A major difference this go-round is there is no precinct boundary issue to cloud election of county commissioners.

Re-districting in 1992 was a touchy subject and eventually sent the county into a federal court lawsuit.

The lawsuit, filed after the party primaries in March 1992, challenged precinct boundary lines. In question was whether Hispanic voters were given an opportunity to elect their candidates with the boundary lines of the precincts.

Targeted primarily was Precinct 1. Incumbent Commissioner John Stribling won the Democratic party primary over Tony Castillo, by only 41 votes, 329 to 288.

But the election was thrown into limbo by the lawsuit, Trini Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County, filed within days after the election.

Legal maneuvering by the county's attorney and the plaintiff's attorney ended in a conference that settled the boundary issue. Approximately 1,000 voters were shifted in re-drawing the boundary lines.

And, the settlement called for a new election for Precinct 1 commissioner, overturning the results of the March primary.

In a surprise move, John Stribling filed for the office as a Republican.

Federal Judge Mary Lou Robinson cleared the way for his party change by ruling that candidates in the new election were not bound to run on the same ticket as the earlier election. By the same token, voters could change party primaries, also.

In the Sept. 19 party elections, Castillo won the Democratic nomination, without opposition. Stribling was the GOP winner, unopposed.

Although the turnout in the November 1992 general election was heavier than the primary, the margin of victory was very similar, with very different results, in the race for the Commissioners' Court seat.

Castillo polled 571 votes on the Democratic ticket and Stribling's total Republican vote was 520.

The Precinct 3 commissioner, Troy Don Moore, seeking his third four-year term in 1992, fended off two challengers in the Democratic Primary. He polled 602 votes to 224 for Paul Hamilton and 95 for Roy Dale Messer.

Moore also was the target of a GOP challenger in the general election, but he won over Mike Miller, 1,248 to 897, to return to Commissioners' Court.

Margaret Del Toro was chief deputy in the tax assessor-collector's office when she was appointed in 1988 to replace Nell Miller, who resigned. She won over two opponents in the 1990 election for the two-year unexpired term created by Miller's resignation.

Del Toro was unopposed in 1992 when she was elected to her first four-year term.

Deaf Smith Sheriff Joe Brown began his career in office as an

According to recent survey

Most Texans opposed to action

DALLAS (AP)--Most Texans responding to a survey by The Dallas Morning News oppose sending U.S. troops to war-torn Bosnia.

In a poll published in Saturday's editions, 55 percent of the Texans surveyed said they were against sending the troops, 30 percent support the mission and 14 percent were undecided or declined to respond.

Texans' attitudes aren't much different from those expressed in recent national polls.

"It's not a popular idea in Texas, and in fact is not very popular nationwide," said Micheline Blum, whose firm conducted the poll.

The telephone survey of 813 Texans was conducted Tuesday through Thursday by the New York firm of Blum & Weprin Associates for the newspaper. The poll's margin of error was plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Fewer than a third of the Texans surveyed thought President Clinton's handling of the crisis had helped bring about peace. Almost half, 45 percent, didn't think he had had any effect, and seven percent said they thought the president has hurt the chances for a permanent peace.

In interviews, many said they fear the United States will wind up mired in Bosnia.

Mary Juarez of Brackettville worried that sending troops to Bosnia will create another Vietnam.

"I figure it will be like another Vietnam," said Ms. Juarez, 38, who supervises problem children for the local school district. "I feel like we're getting in too deep in something that is none of our business."

A cousin served in Vietnam, and her brother was among the hostages taken at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran, in 1979.

Woman appeals to CSF for help during holidays

A rural resident of Deaf Smith County who works at a local nursing home is seeking a helping hand this holiday season.

The woman, 30, is the sole support for her 17-year-old brother, who was blinded in an auto accident. She and her brother receive no outside assistance--not even food stamps, and she has had difficulty in meeting their needs on the salary she earns.

This woman has asked the Christmas Stocking Fund for help with food and an electrical bill.

Such needs can be met thanks to the generosity of local residents who donate to CSF. The holiday charity provides assistance with basic needs such as food, clothing, and utility and medical expenses.

Recipients of CSF help are selected by an anonymous committee of volunteers from throughout the community who screen applications and designate the assistance to be delivered.

Donations to CSF can be made in person at The Hereford Brand, 313 Lee, or mailed to CSF, c/o Box 673, Hereford 79045. The Brand will publish listings of donations and report the running total.

Troll and goat on parade

Kindergarten students at Tierra Blanca Primary School hold high their hand-made bridge and troll during a school-wide "Book Parade" held Friday. This class illustrated the book "The Three Billy Goats Gruff," with the third goat seen in the background (the other two having preceded the troll). Every class in the school created a float illustrating a book that class selected. The afternoon activity was the culmination of a month of book-related activities at the school, which recognized National Children's Book Week during November.

CLINTON

this peace endures," Clinton said. "We are counting on you ... to get that job done."

After his remarks, soldiers broke formation and pressed toward Clinton to get a closer look or shake his hand.

Recalling the division's storied history, Clinton said, "Now America calls you again. ... This time, not with a call to war, but with a call to peace."

He promised to "minimize the risks," but said "there could be accidents," given lingering hatred in the Balkans.

Responding to complaints that previous peacekeeping missions were muddled by international bureaucracies, Clinton said, "There will be no confusing chain of command" this time.

To hoots and cheers, Clinton said the U.S. force in Bosnia will be armed and given free reign to defend itself "to make those who might wish to attack think twice."

Clinton arrived in Germany from a triumphant three-day visit to London, Northern Ireland and Ireland, having roused adoring crowds with emotional pitches for peace between Protestants and Catholics.

Clinton flew into NATO's Ramstein Airbase to be greeted by German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and U.S. Army Gen. George Joulwan, commander of allied troops in Europe.

A handful of protesters greeted the president. Among them was a woman holding a baby in one hand and a sign in the other reading: "Draft Dodger Go Home." Another sign read: "Ho, ho, ho. The president who stole Christmas."

A skeptical Congress seemed certain to go along with Clinton's plans, which would take effect after the warring parties in the former Yugoslav republic sign a treaty on Dec. 14 in Paris.

In particular, the endorsements of Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., "will help immeasurably ... to build the kind of bipartisan support that we need to make this an American effort," the president said Friday.

appointee, in 1983, to finish an unexpired term. He was elected in 1984 to a full four-year term, and again in 1988 and 1992.

The 1992 primary race was heated between him and an opponent, Mike Morrison. Brown claimed victory with 1,502 votes to 960 for Morrison. Brown was unopposed in the general election.

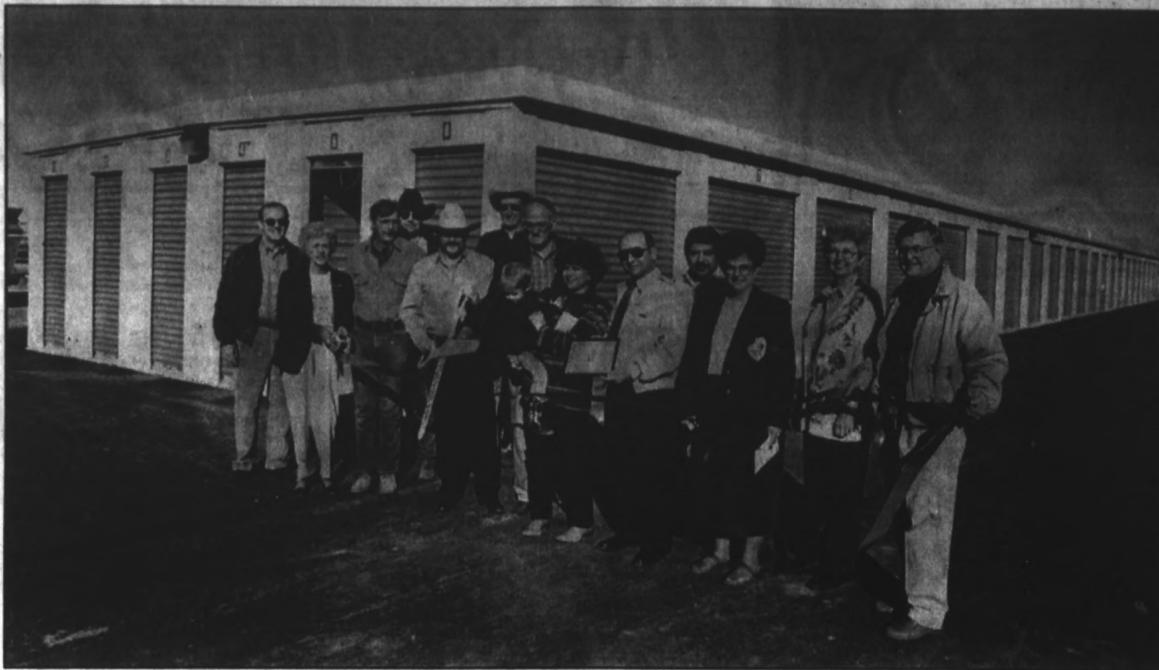

Statewide, there are few offices to be filled in the 1996 election. Seats of all state representatives will up for election, including 86th District Rep. John Smithcoy, who represents Deaf Smith County.

Terms of all U.S. Congressmen expire at the end of 1996, including Rep. Larry Combest of the 19th District.

Both Smithcoy and Combest are Republicans. The 31st District state senator's seat, held by Teel Bivins, a Republican, will not be up for election in '96.

The premier offices to be filled by American voters next year will be President and Vice President. In Texas, Sen. Phil Gramm, who is seeking the GOP Presidential nomination, also will run for re-election to the U.S. Senate. He will take advantage of a state law enacted when Lyndon B. Johnson ran for senator and vice president.

Woman admits to having 2 children by grandfather, plot to kill husband

By SHELIA HARDWELL

Associated Press Writer
NEW ALBANY, Miss. (AP)--It's a story William Faulkner might have written: An 11-year-old girl begins a two-decade affair with her grandfather, bears him two children and at age 30 confesses to plotting to kill her husband.

But it's not fiction to Teresa Hutcheson. She lived it. Now she and her grandfather are going to prison.

Mrs. Hutcheson, 31, and William Douglas Hinson, 71, were sentenced this week to five-year prison terms with no chance of parole for a failed plot to have a hit man kill her husband and make it look like a hunting accident.

They will begin serving their sentences in January.

Jimmy Dean Hutcheson has filed for divorce.

Details of the story have shocked and disgusted residents of this rural community where Mrs. Hutcheson lives with her grandmother and the two children, a 16-year-old girl and 9-year-old boy.

"The old man ought to be castrated," said Clarke Bell, as he sat drinking coffee at Jimbo's Restaurant.

Authorities taped conversations in which Mrs. Hutcheson and her grandfather promised the would-be hit man $25,000 from a $200,000 insurance policy on her husband's life. The man went to police.

U.S. District Judge Neal Biggers, who handed down the toughest sentence allowed by law on Tuesday, said the case was "the most sordid" he had ever seen from the bench.

But relatives and people who knew the family, including Mrs. Hutcheson's husband, knew of the incestuous relationship between grandfather and granddaughter.

"Nobody said anything back then," Mrs. Hutcheson said in an interview with The Associated Press on Thursday. "If people want to bitch about it now, someone should have stepped in long ago. They knew."

Their affair was "something that just sort of came about," she said. "I was a kid and my grandfather was weak."

Hinson has never been charged for his sexual relationship with his granddaughter.

When she was 6, Teresa Hutcheson and her sister moved in with their grandparents after their father died and mother moved away. One child bonded with the grandmother, and Teresa quickly became her grandfather's "pet."

Within five years, Hinson was molesting her, and at 15, she gave birth to their daughter. Their son was born seven years later.

When Jimmy Dean Hutcheson married Teresa in 1992, he knew about the incestuous relationship and the two children born from it. But he loved his wife and blamed her "bad childhood."

He "worshiped the ground she walked on," his stepmother, Marti Hutcheson, said.

Hutcheson, 29, however, said he suspected the affair was not over when Hinson moved in with him and his wife. "The longer we stayed together, the worse it got," he said.

In November 1993, Mrs. Hutcheson and Hinson started plotting to kill Hutcheson, according to court records.

When the hit fell through, Mrs. Hutcheson and Hinson reportedly switched on the electricity while her husband was under the house fixing wiring in May 1994. His hands were burned.

"I never intended to hurt my husband," Mrs. Hutcheson insisted. "If I did anything to hurt him, I'm paying for it. I don't have a life. Everything I worked hard for is gone."

She said the real victims are her children. She has tried to shield them, and declined to answer questions about them or their future.

"They're losing the two most important people in their lives at the same time," she said, referring to herself and Hinson.

"I love my grandfather," Mrs. Hutcheson said, choking back tears.

Tank explosion kills 2, hurts 3 near McCamey

McCAMEY, Texas (AP)-- Authorities say a Shell Pipe Line Corporation tank explosion that killed two men and injured three others was caused by a welder's torch.

The dead and injured were employees of an Odessa welding company under contract with Shell Oil to perform valve work, a spokesman for the oil company said.

Brian Schaible, a spokesman for the Texas Railroad Commission, said the commissioner spoke to firefighters at the scene who indicated that oil was released from an 8- to 10-inch pipe and ignited during repairs.

Robert Leroy Muncy, 40, of Odessa, died at the scene. Liberato Martinez, 23, of Odessa, died Friday night at University Medical Center in Lubbock, according to a hospital spokesman.

Martinez and Jimmie Jimenez, 46, also of Odessa, were airlifted to the University Medical Center burn unit after the blast. Jimenez was in critical condition Friday night with second- and third-degree burns over 70 percent of his body, the spokeswoman said.

Two others were taken to McCamey Hospital with less severe injuries, officials said. Raymond Rejino of McCamey suffered minor burns, friends said.

"He's fine," said the Rev. Stephen Kennelly, who visited Rejino after the explosion. "He's just got some minor burns on his arm, and a little bit in the face." Hospital officials refused to comment on his condition.

The identity and condition of the other man was being withheld by hospital officials.

The explosions occurred at the McCamey Tank Farm, a Shell distribution terminal 1 1/2 miles east of town, 55 miles south of Odessa. Neighbors reported hearing two to seven explosions from the plant.

Texas toddler inspires hot sauce

By MELANIE GERIK
New Braunfels Herald-Zeitung
NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas—It began as an accidental, temporary hot sauce.

Norma Garvey and her husband were adding a kitchen in 1988 to their bar in an old cotton warehouse in Jefferson, a tourist town in East Texas. But they almost forgot one essential ingredient the day before the opening.

"On Wednesday night, we realized we didn't have a hot sauce to go with our Mexican food on our menu," Ms. Garvey said.

Through trial and error, they developed a recipe to use the next day, hoping to tinker with the ingredients later.

But the customers loved it. One couple even brought some back to Dallas in a baby bottle.

Following a divorce soon after her son was born in 1991, Ms. Garvey moved to New Braunfels. Two and a half years later, Ms. Garvey started to sell her own combination of fresh crushed tomatoes, cilantro, jalapenos, onions and cumin at craft shows and out of the trunk of her car.

Now bottles of Max's Hot Sauce can be found at HEB, Guadalupe Pit-Smoked Meats, New Braunfels Smokehouse and Bunkhouse Coffee in Gruene, as well as in natural food stores in Austin.

Ms. Garvey, a native Houstonian, said she spent her summers in New Braunfels as a child. When she moved here with her son Max in 1991, she wanted to create an opportunity for themselves to make New Braunfels their home.

"As Max grew ... I wanted him to have all the joys that New Braunfels has to offer, like I did," Ms. Garvey said.

Instead of looking into opportunities in bigger cities, Ms. Garvey said she wanted to work in New Braunfels and had the support of many of her friends to start marketing her fresh hot sauce.

"My friends got behind me and said, 'Just go for it. Just do it.'" Ms. Garvey said.

Deb Brazle, one of Ms. Garvey's high school friends who now lives in New Braunfels, said she felt that Ms. Garvey had a good product, and encouraged her to sell it in a competitive market full of other hot sauces.

"After tasting her hot sauce, I thought it was the best thing I've ever tasted and my husband won't eat anything else," Ms. Brazle said. "We buy it by the case."

Ms. Garvey's distributor, New Braunfels resident Kristine Schmidt of The Innate Company Inc., said Ms. Garvey's enthusiasm helps make her hot sauce stand out among other hot sauces.

"There are a lot of people out there who don't add the personality that she does," Schmidt said.

Instead of Ms. Garvey slaving in her kitchen as she did in Jefferson to make her "witches' brew," the hot sauce is bottled by Creative Foodworks in San Antonio, and Ms. Garvey said she is working on selling Max's hot sauce to bigger grocery stores and in a mail-order catalog.

But Ms. Garvey said her No. 1 focus is raising four-year-old Max, who sometimes makes cameo appearances to help sell his namesake hot sauce. Ms. Garvey said she wants to find her niche in the hot sauce world, a competitive market, and stay and work in New Braunfels.

Schmidt said based on the responses from the stores that sell the hot sauce, she thinks Max's, which was a finalist in the 1994 Austin Chronicle Hot Sauce Contest out of more than 350 contestants, soon could be the "No. 1 hot sauce in Texas."

"The places that we have it in, the clientele love it," she said.

And, while you're out Sunday, remember the "Country Christmas Tea", sponsored by the Historical Society at Deaf Smith County Museum, 3-5 p.m.

While on the subject of the Yule season, two popular charitable projects are now underway. Project Christmas Card, sponsored by L'Allegria Study Club, and the Christmas Stocking Fund, sponsored by an anonymous citywide committee, are seeking donations for their programs.

Project Christmas Card benefits Hereford Regional Medical Center. Contributors are asked to donate what they would spend on Christmas cards, and the club publishes a greeting message in the newspaper. CSF is the annual program to help needy families in Hereford and Deaf Smith County. An anonymous committee administers the program, screening applications and delivering assistance to those most in need. The Brand publishes a list of contributors and reports on the project.

There has been much debate about changing the federal income tax to a flat tax. Probably not many people know that the income tax started as a flat tax. And, you might be surprised to know that only 2 percent of Americans paid an income tax in the beginning!

Although both the Union and the Confederacy levied income taxes during the Civil War, the federal income tax as we know it did not come into being until 1913. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1895 that a federal income tax enacted in 1893 was unconstitutional because it did not provide for equal apportionment.

To get around that, Congress got the 16th Amendment passed to permit taxation of income without it being in direct proportion to state population.

The 1913 tax was a flat tax at the rate of one percent on income over $3,000 for singles and over $4,000 for joint returns. There was also a surtax of six percent on very high incomes. Because the median individual income for 1913 was $621, only two percent of people in the U.S. paid any federal income tax.

Until the advent of World War I, 90 percent of federal revenues came from excise taxes and customs duties. Back then, individuals were allowed more deductions, too. Deductions on life insurance premiums and dividends were soon done away with.

Beginning in the 1920s, the tax code began to undergo frequent legislative changes as various groups lobbied for tax benefits.

How times have changed!

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We know so many who have shared some very special moments with us this season and so many to thank for helping to create some of those very special moments for us.

First and foremost, we want to express our gratitude and love to our parents who have cared for us and encouraged us to become the best we could be. Their support of and loyalty to our teammates, coaches and dreams has truly been an important factor for the success we have been fortunate to have. They lived every moment with us this season and never once let us down.

To our teachers and school administrators, thanks so much for helping make our success possible. Their encouragement and caring has never been more apparent. We are grateful for the opportunity to represent such a great school. BIG-TIME thanks to all of our classmates who made such sacrifices to be at so many of our matches and wanted our success as much as we did.

Thanks to the Hereford Police Department, Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, and the Department of Public Safety--their escorts in and out of town made us feel like royalty!

Finally, we cannot express how much we appreciate each and every one of our fans. There have been so many kind words and supportive gestures from so many of you. As far as we are concerned, there is not a better town in this state to represent. We were constantly encouraged by the crowds at our matches and we know how rare it is to have so many loyal fans. We also know how difficult it was for many of you to make the trip to Austin with us. It was so exciting to see--and hear--such a great crowd down there.

This has been a season filled with great memories. Thanks so much to all who have shared in them with us.

Sincerely,
HHS Volleyball Team:

Dear Editor:

When the speed limit is changed so we can travel faster, it seems likely there will be more accidents. The concept seems to be on speed rather than a workable system. There are too many other traffic violations to put all the blame on speed.

When our highway patrol is given more radars to watch for speeders, the concept seems to be on money. Yes, I should get a ticket for speeding, but what about the other violations that are never looked for?

The patrolman needs to a patrol officer rather than a radar operator. That would lead us to a workable system and reduce a lot of bad attitudes.

Am I just burdened with the thought we are trying to things right with a concept to make money, caring less for a workable system that would save lives and create a whole lot better attitudes?

Cornfield Philosophy

(Editor's note: The following column, written by G.W. Brumley of Hereford, who died in 1957, was published in The Brand in the late 1920s. It was submitted by Mike Brumley, a grandson.)

CORNFIELD PHILOSOPHY
Over the hill trailed G.W. Brumley behind a mule-drawn plow. The old clodhopper was broadcasting about as follows:

"Bill, you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I am a man made in the image of God. Yet here we work, hitched together, year in and year out. I often wonder if you work for me or I work for you.

"Sometimes I think it is a partnership between a mule and a fool. Surely I work harder than you do. Pleading here we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I do it on two, so mathematically speaking, I do twice as much per leg as you do.

"Soon we will be preparing for a corn crop. When it is harvested I give one-third to the landlord for being kind enough to let me use this corner of God's universe. The other goes to you and what is left is my share. You consume all of yours, while I divide mine between seven children, six hens, two ducks and a banker.

"Well, you are getting the best of me; it isn't fair for a mule, the son of a jackass, to rob a man, the lord of creation, of his substance. All fall and part of the winter the whole family, from granny down to the baby, picks cotton to help raise money to buy a new set of harness and pay the interest on the mortgage on you; and by the way, what do you care about the mortgage? It doesn't worry you a darn bit.

"About the only time I'm better than you is on election day, for I can vote and you can't; but if I got any more out of politics than you do--I can't see where it is."

Some memories of Christmas Past

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

When I was a child, we had an unofficial rule that we didn't notice Christmas decorations until the day after Thanksgiving.

That way, we were able to look forward to Thanksgiving without having that holiday obscured by Christmas.

I well remember one large decoration on top of a fancy clothing store in Albuquerque. It was a brightly-lit yucca that shone in the night.

As we passed the building on the way to and from church, that light served as a beacon -- and as a symbol of Christmas for me.

At the time, the city of Albuquerque decorated Central Avenue (Route 66) with Christmas ornaments as well.

I remember how exciting it was for all of us to go out the night after Thanksgiving and "discover" all the Christmas ornaments.

We would marvel at how quickly "they" (probably the Christmas elves) could get decorations up all over town in one night.

It was at that point that the Christmas season officially began.

Then, around the first week in December, it was time for us to start decorating our own home for Christmas.

On Saturday, we'd strike out and look for a tree.

For several years, our tree was a small one that stood on a coffee table in a corner of the living room (something about my little brother wanting to ingest some of the ornaments or nibble the needles!).

My mom put a border of "chimney" paper around the table, then mounted the stockings to that (thus the line from the poem that "the stockings were hung from the chimney with care" was kept intact).

Later, we were able to buy full-size floor trees, after Dave understood that he was NOT allowed to find out which parts of a pine tree were edible and that decorations looked better on the tree than in his hands.

Stockings were very special in our home.

My mother, an accomplished seamstress and craftswoman, has made Christmas stockings for four generations of our family.

In the years since we have had a real chimney from which to hang our stockings, we have had them to admire and enjoy.

For the men of the family, the stockings were all made in an argyle sock pattern, while the women's stockings are all based on a holly theme. She hand-embroidered each person's name on his or her stocking.

As each of us four kids grew up and moved out on our own, my mother offered to make us adult-sized stockings. We all chose to have those stockings done in the same pattern as our children's ones.

Then, as spouses and grandchildren arrived, stockings were made for them.

Thus this year, my family will have the same beautiful stockings

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

Speaking of Christmas . . .
Decorating a tree has never been a favorite pastime for me. Probably because I hated having to take it all down after the event.

But, I have children and other family who live for the day they can drag the tree from the attic or traipse to the fresh tree lot, and put all those lights, tinsel, etc., on it.

Such is the case with them on the weekend after Thanksgiving. I believe the main reason they enjoy Thanksgiving is because the next thing on the agenda is decorating the Christmas tree, preferably the next day.

The earliest memory I have of a Christmas tree is not too clear. Seems there were some homemade paper chains (probably the result of an art project at school) and other little items my mother had accumulated.

In any event, the tree decorations were nowhere nearly as sophisticated as today's assortment. Flashing lights, musical ornaments, collectible decorations (a real year after year bonanza for the manufacturers) and plastic and glass icicles (instead of the tinsel variety) usually are evident.

Instead of the traditional garland from an earlier era, trees often are draped with ribbon of all sizes. Christmas trees may be decorated with a particular theme. A big bow or artificial poinsettia may be touching the ceiling instead of more traditional touches.

But, icicles are what caused me to start ruminating the other day about Christmases Past (no reference to Dickens' Scrooge) and the fun things that happen.

At a very young age -- probably not more than 1 1/2 years -- my older daughter became a real nuisance as her father put decorations on a small tree.

The size of the tree was dictated by the problem of having to place it at a level that would prevent her from taking it down.

Anyhow, to keep her occupied, her father handed her tinsel icicles, one at a time, to put on the tree. She was intent on her assignment and went about her business, on the opposite side of the tree from him, with unusual quiet.

When he stopped to survey his handiwork, he called to me to come take a look. There, neatly on one tiny limb of the tree, were all the icicles she had been given. Later, I was to learn that this is fairly standard procedure for little ones helping with tree decorating.

But, for many years, the memory was buried in some recess of my brain. Then, recently it popped out as I observed a grandson, not quite five years old, helping his mother decorate the family tree.

Anxious to help get ready for Santa Claus, he was digging in boxes and unwrapping ornaments, unaware that some were fragile until he dropped one and it shattered on the floor.

While his little sister became enthralled with an unbreakable decoration that she found, the boy was hardly slowed by the accident. Finally, his mother found a solution.

She picked out some very sturdy decorations that could hardly be harmed by busy hands. She gave them to him, one by one, to place on the tree. In the meantime, she continued to place with care the breakables, most of them out of reach of the two-year-old.

When the job was almost finished, everyone stopped to admire the well-decorated tree.

In the manner of his mother many years earlier, my grandson had placed all of his ornaments in a neat cluster on about five limbs, right at his eye level.

Just as her father left her contribution to tree decorating when she was a toddler, my daughter saw fit to allow her son's decorating to remain in place.

Just one of those things we all like to remember at this time of the year.

Guest column Rural concerns

BY CARL KING, PRESIDENT, Texas Corn Growers Assn.
While it is easy for activist-minded farmers to become fully engrossed in debate over the Farm Bill, attention should also be focused on the pending telecommunications legislation which is also being tossed around Washington.

Although the industry's reform does not seem like it should share the sense of urgency for farmers and rural citizens, the ramifications could be just as serious. If residents of rural America remain silent on this issue, we have a lot to lose.

Telecommunications is to modern-day farmers what market roads were in the 1940s and 50s. Through new technology, mainstreet America is empowered by phone lines and cable television--giving us access to price trends and weather reports without leaving home.

However, there are some groups in Washington that don't see the necessity for rural America to be drivers on the information highway. Because it's not as cost effective to serve a rural area, the pending telecommunications legislation would allow phone and cable providers to put farmers back on the dirt road.

Both the House and Senate have passed telecommunications reform legislation, and the two bodies are currently trying to reconcile their differences. Unfortunately, neither bill has adequate protections for rural citizens. Both bills repeal the ban on cross-ownership of newspapers and radio/television stations and cable and broadcast systems in the same community. This means rural areas run the risk of having our news and opinion filtered by a few powerful media moguls.

And speaking of monopolies, we have lived with local telephone monopolies for a long time. It would be great if Congress could figure a way to actually enhance competition so that consumers could have more choices. But this bill does not do that. It allows local phone companies to enter the long distance market before they face any serious competition at the local level, and it does not allow the Department of Justice to play its usual role in preventing monopolies from hurting consumers.

That makes it easier for the baby Bells to do things like raise local rates and cut rural services. Right here in Texas, Southwestern Bell is trying to force feed us a 100 percent increase in pay phone rates. Our neighbors to the West are forced to stand by and watch as U.S. West cuts $600 million worth of rural phone lines because rural areas are not profitable.

Washington jawboning about this bill amounts to nothing more than flamboyant speeches and strange political matings. The National Journal recently described the reform as "doing more to line the pockets of lobbyists and lawmakers than any other issue in the past decade."

In an era of dwindling political credibility, our representatives in Congress should think twice about enacting a telecommunications law that leaves rural citizens vulnerable to the agendas of big business, wealthy lobbyists, and political pork.

Capital-ism is alive, well in portions of Texas

By KEN ELLSWORTH
Abilene Reporter-News
ABILENE, Texas—The capitalistic impulse is alive and well in this portion of West Texas, and so is civic pride.

Call your community the capital of something or other and it could lead to cold, hard cash for zero investment--and an improved self-image.

Municipal and county entities in this area are learning quickly your good name, after all, does have value.

Take Coleman County, the self-proclaimed Hunting Capital of Texas, where literal big bucks attract green big bucks.

Years ago the county's populace dubbed themselves the Hunting Capital of Texas. The claim has not been disputed, though Coleman's Chamber of Commerce offers no hard statistics comparing itself to other Texas counties that promote hunting.

But, there is no question that Coleman County attracts a lot of hunters.

"There are so many hunters it is unreal," said Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Mary Griffiths on the eve of deer hunting season. More than 600 hunters, she said, had already inquired at the chamber office about hunting leases in the county.

The estimated annual income related to hunting in Coleman County is $2.7 million, according to the county's extension office, and those are big bucks. In fact, income related to hunting amounts to more than $270 per each man, woman and child living in Coleman County.

The county is also home to several lakes and calls itself the "Land of the Lakes," even more so with the recent development of Lake O.H. Ivie.

But the county wants more. After all, why be restrictive when mere names are free for the taking?

Witness a recent chamber promotion. "We hope you enjoyed your stay in the 'Hunting and Fishing Capital of Texas,'" it says.

Who but the fish would argue? There are at least two world capitals in this area of the Texas that is also known as Texas Midwest. One of them is Knox County--The Seedless Watermelon Capital of the World.

Court pulls judge from bomb trial

By PAUL QUEARY
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The judge in the federal building bombing trial was removed Friday by an appeals court that said his close ties to the deadly attack could raise doubts about his impartiality.

U.S. District Judge Wayne Alley's courtroom and chambers were one block away from the explosion April 19 that killed 169 people. Alley was not in the office at the time, but one member of his staff was injured and his building was damaged in the blast.

"We conclude that a reasonable person could not help but harbor doubts about the impartiality of Judge Alley," the court wrote.

Alley did not immediately return telephone calls to his home for comment on the decision by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver. He has maintained that he could be impartial on the case.

Michael Tigar, the attorney for defendant Terry Nichols, filed a motion to remove Alley because of his proximity to the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building. The appeals court has now directed its chief judge to reassign the case to a judge from outside the state.

"We have also balanced the possible questioning of impartiality by a reasonable person against the relative ease of replacing Judge Alley with an available judge from a very large pool of judges outside the state of Oklahoma," the court said.

U.S. Attorney Patrick Ryan was disappointed with the ruling, but said he would rather the court dismiss Alley now rather than cite him as a factor during the appeal of any convictions in the case.

The defense wants the case moved out of Oklahoma, which McVeigh's attorney Stephen Jones said is a possibility in light of the appeals court ruling. Alley had moved the trial to Lawton, about 90 miles southwest of the bombing site.

"I would anticipate that there would be a hard look at Lawton and I would not be surprised to see that the new judge appointed will change the venue out of Oklahoma," Jones said.

He said Charleston, W. Va., would be his first choice and San Francisco his second.

Jones also said it was likely the trial would not start May 17 as scheduled. "There are other problems that have not yet surfaced that will impact on the trial date," he said.

is truly unique. The county's melons go all over the United States, but their seedless seeds go all over the world. The seeds were developed by Dr. O.J. Eigsti, and come only from Knox County.

Israel is the county's best customer, and last year chamber manager Doris Crowover traveled there.

"I was eating breakfast and they were serving seedless melons," she said. "I was very proud to be able to tell them where those melons came from."

The Israelis must have been duly impressed. After all, they were enjoying the fruits of the labor of a genuine international capital.

Baird, in the midst of a downtown economic revival, laid legal claim in 1993 to being "The Antique Capital of West Texas." The claim is legal because the Texas Legislature in its 1993 session passed a proclamation saying so. Now, no other Texas communities can claim that exact name.

The legislative proclamation is an easy thing to do for your community. Your state representative can probably get "capital" into the official legislative record in the blink of an eye, providing no other community has already laid claim to the exact same idea.

Actually, official community titles do not appear to be of more promotional benefit than unofficial ones, but for Baird there was a positive motive for going to the legislature.

"We (Baird) did it for the additional publicity," said Nicki Harle, executive director of Texas Midwest Community Network, who was correct in surmising that local media would announce the legislative proclamation.

The oldest known area claim to being a capital is Snyder's. At the turn of the century Snyder newspapers promoted the town as the "Capital of Scurry County." That handle passed away long ago. Snyder is now the county seat and the home of the White Buffalo Festival, but it does not claim to be a capital.

The oldest continuous claim in this area to being a capital is probably Throckmorton's. In the 1930s Lee Atkinson, then president of the Chamber of Commerce promoted the moniker "Capital of the Cow Country" and the name stuck, said former County Judge Byrd Thorp, 98.

Today the name appears on local Throckmorton bank checks and chamber literature. Chamber T-shirts also proclaim "Capital of the Cow Country" and show a cow sporting cowboy boots.

A local motel is named the Cow Country Motel, but is not certain how well that name promotes room occupancy.

Gorman has been known as the Peanut Marketing Capital of the Southwest since the end of World War II, said Ross Wilson, general manager of Southwestern Peanut Growers Association.

The title is well-earned. A three-county area around Gorman produces $35 million worth of goobers annually, and peanuts from all over the southwest find their way to Gorman.

That's not peanuts, or chicken feed either. Coleman County might be the Hunting Capital of Texas, but Fisher County would prefer that you come there and shoot at their coveys since Fisher County is the Quail Hunting Capital of Texas.

County extension agent Richard Spencer said quail hunters flock from all over the country, but especially from the southern states, bringing dogs, guns and money to the area.

A quail-hunting cooperative was formed in the late 1980s and the county adopted the quail hunting capital title informally, he said.

The quail capital title is well deserved, Spencer added, since Fisher County usually ranks second in the state in quail population, according to Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife statistics.

But you have to work to keep your good name. "We work on it pretty much year round," Spencer said.

Erath County also capitalizes on being a capital, but just being a capital of Texas is not honor enough. To satisfy a large-as-Texas-itch for prestige, they named their county the "Rodeo Capital of the World," leaving only the universe to conquer.

The name, said Stephenville Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Robert Defer, was first applied about 1990. "Rodeo Capital" derived from the fact that about a half-dozen area cowboys have been competing for several years on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit.

Among those competitors is Ty Murray, who by age 26 had won six consecutive all-around titles before being sidelined by an injury this year.

Stephenville/Erath County also goes by several other names, among them: the Number One Dairy County in Texas; City of Champions, for high school football state championships; and One of the Best Small Towns in America, after being named one of the 100 best small towns in America several years ago.

Apparently, it is an asset to have multiple identities.

Herd cagers whip Abernathy for season's 1st win

Offense and defense both clicked as the Hereford boys' basketball team got its first win of the year Friday in Plainview, beating Abcramby, 61-40.

Hereford improved to 1-5 and moved into the consolation finals of the Wayland Lions Classic. Hereford was to meet Canyon, a 61-57 winner over Dimmitt, Saturday afternoon.

The Herd scored the first 12 points of the game and led 14-4 at the end of the first quarter. Hereford steadily increased the lead as the game went on: 29-16 at halftime and 49-31 after three quarters.

"We came out and played real good defense right from the start," coach Randy Dean said. "We got up 12-0 and it stayed in double digits the whole game. Our defensive pressure really hurt them."

The Herd offense also shot the ball well, which had been a problem through most of the Herd's five losses.

"We shot 48 percent for the game, which is our best shooting percentage for the year," Dean said.

Hereford won despite limited contributions from Isaac Walker (four points) and Johnathan Keenan (five points). Both suffered foot injuries in Thursday's game and both played sparingly Friday.

Michael High took up the slack by scoring 18 points, and Todd Dudley added 11. The rest of the Herd: Bryant McNutt, nine; Cory Schumacher, six; Brian Torres, four; and Ronald Torres and C.J. Kubacak, two each.

Hereford will play Dimmitt at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Dimmitt. The Hereford girls' team, which was to host Littlefield Saturday night, will face Dimmitt at 6:30 Tuesday in Dimmitt.

Area pheasant numbers may be down for 1995

Pheasant hunters in West Texas may be in for a disappointing year if Texas Parks and Wildlife Department survey figures are an indication of actual pheasant numbers.

The department annually surveys the pheasant population in the Panhandle and South Plains by conducting roadside counts along 44 routes during late October and early November.

The pheasant hunt is scheduled to begin on Saturday, Dec. 9, and continue for 16 days until Dec. 24. The bag limit is three cocks per day with a possession limit of six birds.

Mourning whips Hornets, rips Shinn

By The Associated Press
Alonzo Mourning beat his old team, then beat up on its owner.

After getting 21 points, 11 rebounds and four blocks against Charlotte, the team that traded him to Miami on Nov. 3, Mourning declared that he had been willing to sign a new contract with Hornets owner George Shinn.

"I was willing to work with George, but he turned it around and made it seem like I was greedy," Mourning said Friday night after the Heat's 108-101 overtime victory. "I said, 'George, I'll sign for less here and miss the chance to sign for more.'"

In other NBA games, it was

Toronto 105, Philadelphia 102; New Jersey 131, Boston 123 in overtime; Dallas 106, Atlanta 98; Phoenix 111, Minnesota 105; Seattle 110, Milwaukee 99; and the Los Angeles Lakers 113, Vancouver 100.

PHEASANTS

Hunters are required to leave one foot or all feathers attached to their harvested birds until they reach their final destinations.

During the annual survey, each 20-mile route is driven from east to west at 20 mph beginning 15 minutes after sunrise.

Across the Panhandle as a whole, the number of pheasants sighted along the 44 survey routes decreased by 32 percent in comparison to last year. The 1994 pheasant survey showed 14.4 birds per route, while 9.8 birds per route were seen this year.

Pheasant numbers this year also are down 37 percent when compared to the average over the past five years, which is 15.9 birds per route.

Deaf Smith County showed respectable pheasant numbers, with an average of about 18 birds per route on four survey lines.

The same average was recorded for Hutchinson County.

Some of the highest numbers were recorded in the northern Panhandle.

In Dallam, Sherman, Hansford and Ochiltree counties, eight pheasant surveys produced an average of 36 birds per route, with one route in Hansford County showing 65 pheasants.

The other eight Panhandle counties surveyed showed an average of 1.1 pheasants per route.

In the South Plains region -- described as being from Farmer County south to Cochran County, east to Crosby County and north to Briscoe County -- a good year for cotton has meant a less than average year for pheasants.

The Parks and Wildlife Department reports that in general, the more acres that are planted in cotton, the fewer acres there are in grain crops, which are beneficial to pheasants for food and cover.

Based on 24 survey routes conducted in 12 South Plains County, the 1995 census showed 2.8 birds per route. This is an 11 percent decrease in comparison to the 3.2 birds per route recorded in 1994. The 1995 count is 67 percent below the five-year average of 8.7 birds per route for the South Plains region.

The highest concentration of pheasants in northern Panhandle counties this year is probably associated with a combination of dense cover (playa lakes) and irrigated grain crops, which provides not only a good mix of food and cover, but it also provides adequate ground-level humidity critical for nesting success under hot, dry conditions.

For more information about pheasants -- or other wildlife -- or to request free technical assistance on your property, call Calvin Richardson, Wildlife Biologist in Lubbock at (806) 746-6106, or Danny Swepton (District Leader) and Gene Miller (Technical Guidance Biologist) in Canyon at (806) 655-3782.

Cowboys' Bates hates 'Skins--especially now

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - Even in a normal year Bill Bates hates the Washington Redskins. This time, he's really mad at them.

The Redskins ambushed the Dallas Cowboys 27-23 in the fifth game of the season. Bates and the rest of his teammates feel they owe something to Norv Turner's club on Sunday at Texas Stadium.

"It's the team I love to beat the most," said the Cowboys safety-linebacker-special teams star. "We've had some classic games and confrontations with them in the past. I've had a lot of great memories in this rivalry."

But not such a good one back in early October.

"I'll never forget the feeling I had after that game, and I was just happy we had a chance to play them again," Bates said. "This is a big revenge game as far as I'm concerned. But we have to play smart. Just because you're mad doesn't necessarily mean you're going to win."

The Dallas run defense went south in the loss to Washington. It was also the game where Troy Aikman suffered an early calf muscle problem and had to be replaced by Wade Wilson.

Terry Allen rushed 30 times for 121 yards and scored two touchdowns against the Cowboys the last time they met.

"We know Norv (a former Dallas offensive coordinator) will have something cooked up for us again," Bates said. "We're always a little uneasy going up against him. But we'll be OK this time if we can do a good job of controlling the run."

Linebacker Dixon Edwards added. "We owe the Redskins one. They embarrassed us the last time. We don't want anything like that to happen again."

The oddsmakers believe the Cowboys (10-2) will be able to win big with the return of defensive tackle Leon Lett and have made them a 17-point favorite over the Redskins (3-9). The Cowboys can clinch a playoff spot for the fifth consecutive season with a win.

"Our goal is to win three out of our next four games," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer. "If we do that we will have accomplished our goal to have a bye in the first round of the playoffs and the homefield advantage.

It's not how many wins you have, but getting to your goal."

Should the Cowboys sweep the last four games it would give them their best regular-season record.

A win would also give Dallas its 15th season with at least 11 victories.

The Cowboys are 21-6 in games played immediately after the Thanksgiving holiday. Since 1991, the Cowboys are 25-6 in all games played after Thanksgiving.

"I know how tough the Cowboys can be anytime, but particularly the game after Thanksgiving, when they've had 10 days of rest," Turner said.

Turner is trying to get ready for next year by playing quarterback Heath Shuler, the third player selected in the 1994 draft. Turner started Shuler over Gus Frerotte last week. Shuler hurt his right shoulder in the season opener and missed four weeks. Frerotte then started ahead of a healed Shuler until a week ago.

"Offensively we haven't been going good and I don't care who the quarterback is," Turner said.

The Cowboys hope to get a full game of productivity from Emmitt Smith, who suffered a sprained left knee in the 24-12 Thanksgiving Day win over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Smith ran well at midweek in practice and left little doubt rookie Sherman Williams would be on the bench when the game started. Smith is just three rushing touchdowns from tying the NFL record of 24 in a season by John Riggins of the Redskins.

"I'll be all right," Smith said. "We need everybody out there to get after Washington."

Steelers could clinch Central against Oilers

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) - Maybe they should call it the Pittsburgh Steelers' farewell tour.

Last week, it was the Steelers' final visit - at least if Art Modell gets his way - to nostalgic Cleveland Stadium. This week, it's the Houston (for now) Oilers in Three Rivers Stadium. Next week, it's the Raiders, not in Los Angeles, but back in Oakland.

Pardon the Steelers for thinking they're trapped in a time warp; 25 years ago, the Beatles split up and the AFC Central Division came together. Now, the Beatles are again atop the charts and the AFC Central is going its separate ways: Houston to Nashville, Cleveland to Baltimore and Cincinnati to ... check back in March.

This unprecedented franchise movement is unsettling to many, but coach Bill Cowher is more concerned about its effects on a Steelers team that already knows where it is going: To the playoffs.

Winners of five in a row, the Steelers (8-4) can clinch their third AFC Central title in four years by beating the Oilers (5-7) for the fourth consecutive time. Pittsburgh won 34-17 in Houston on Sept. 10 as Andre Hastings and Carnell Lake each scored on a return.

Cowher's concern is that one of these weeks, an opponent will take out its relocation frustrations on the one original AFC Central team that has no thoughts of switching cities.

"When we played Cincinnati, the talk was this was their season," Cowher said. "When we played Cleveland, they had a players-only meeting, and they came out and there almost was a fight at the coin toss.... What you're getting now is Houston. I don't think they're lamed up by any stretch of the imagination. What we're getting is another team that cannot afford to lose."

From the Oilers' standpoint, they don't have much to lose in a stadium where they should be accustomed to doing exactly that. The Oilers have lost 19 of 26 in Three Rivers, but actually have been better on the road (3-3) than in the aging and usually half-empty Astrodome (2-4) this season.

Several Oilers said they will welcome playing in a noisy, enthusiastic atmosphere where the home crowd actually cares about its team.

"We thrive on that type of crowd, because it really gets your adrenalin flowing," linebacker Michael Barrow said. "They're booing, making noise and they're playing football the way it's supposed to be played. You've got to love it."

In Houston, by contrast, it's been "Luv Ya, Blue" ... but, hey, get out of here. Cleveland is in near-revolt over the Browns' impending move, but the Oilers' possible relocation has met with so-what yawns of indifference.

"Our situation is a lot different than Cleveland," coach Jeff Fisher said. "All of this came up on the Cleveland Browns right in the middle of a game week, just out of the clear blue. Our situation really began in the preseason, and it has kind of crept up on us. I had an opportunity in the preseason to deal with it, discuss it and keep the players informed, to let them know the potential for distraction."

The Steelers hope to avoid becoming distracted en route to the postseason. To do so, they will present a considerably different offensive look to the Oilers than they did 11 weeks ago.

Kordell Stewart was nothing more than a fourth-team quarterback then; now, he is a multidimensional passer-runner-receiver capable of throwing for a touchdown or catching one. And Neil O'Donnell has become the AFC's answer to Steve Young, with three 300-yard games in his last five starts and only three interceptions in his last 394 attempts, despite breaking his right hand in September.

"When Neil hurt his (hand), they must have put infrared or something in his hand, the way he's hitting his receivers," tackle Leon Searcy said. "It's strange. A year ago, we'd run the ball to set up the pass. Now we pass to set up the run."

As a result, the Steelers have the rest of the AFC Central on the run. Not that the Oilers mind, however.

"Players like to play in front of people, and our club is looking forward to going on the road," Fisher said. "We're going to be ready to play."

Texas rustlers now taking high-price trees

By KATIE FAIRBANK
Associated Press Writer
LUFKIN, Texas (AP)--Skulking into the piney forest in the dead of night, they pick off their prey and cart it to market. Reminiscent of the cattle rustling once well-known in Texas, these thieves are taking trees.

Where once only cotton was king, 58 percent of all the timber produced each year in the U.S. now comes from Southern states, according to the U.S. Forest Service.

Those same Southerners who own lands graced by forests and smelling of pine needles are facing losses of $75 million each year from stolen hardwoods and Tall Southern Yellow pine, according to Bruce Miles, director of the Texas Forest Service.

The practice has become so rampant that the joke in this part of East Texas is it's gotten hard to see the forest for the thieves.

Rip-off artists have polished their scams because the price of logs has about doubled during the past two years and the number of absentee landowners has increased, said Alan Matecko, spokesman for the National Forests and Grasslands in Texas.

"Where sawlogs were bringing $30 a ton, they're now bringing $60 a ton," said Rep. Billy Clemons, R-Pollock, who lost about $5,000 when unscrupulous loggers harvested more than 50 pines, some hardwoods and a few small pulp wood trees from his land.

"I am a victim," he said, adding that natural disasters have added to the number of thefts. "The price of raw material has increased greatly. It's worth their effort to sneak onto somebody's property and steal some logs."

Retirements leaving many vacancies in U.S. Senate

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Oregon's Mark Hatfield is the 11th senator to announce retirement and, with Sen. Alan Simpson expected soon to follow, there'll be more Senate vacancies in 1996 than in any election cycle for 100 years.

Could these self-imposed term limits mean being a senator is getting to be too tough?

As he announced his plan to end a 30-year Senate career, Hatfield, 73, a moderate Republican in an increasingly conservative party, noted Friday that the price of public office "has been very high."

"There are far more demands," Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who is leaving after three, six-year terms to have more flexibility in her life to enjoy her grandchildren.

Democratic Sen. James Exon, 74, of Nebraska, cited "the ever-increasing vicious polarization of the electorate" as he announced his plans to return to private life.

"I think that sometimes the civility is not quite what it used to be or should be, although the Senate is less rancorous than the House," said Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

Lott's not leaving. In fact, the eight Democratic departures, compared with three, possibly four, among the Republicans, have him licking his chops. He sees the GOP expanding its 54-46 majority by four, maybe seven, seats.

"We are going to be younger and we are going to be more conservative," said Lott, 54, a second-termer from Mississippi, who as Republican Whip helps Majority Leader Bob Dole lead the party in the Senate.

"This is wonderful," said Lott.

The expected retirement of Simpson, a 64-year-old Wyoming Republican, would leave 21 incumbent senators - 14 Republicans and seven Democrats - running for re-election next year. The 100 Senate members' six-year terms are staggered, so one-third expire each election year.

The average age of the outgoing senators is 65 - standard retirement age for most Americans. And while 92-year-old Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., is seeking another term next year, many senators have said the rigors of the job were taking a toll on their lives.

"The fax messages that come through today in volumes, and e-mail. All the instantaneous involvement," said Kassebaum, 63. "The proliferation of committee work. We spend more time on a wide variety of issues than in the early years."

"It keeps us running from pillar to post, juggling all kinds of balls probably we shouldn't even be juggling," said Sen. Fred Thompson, a Republican freshman from Tennessee, who was surprised by the lack of time being a senator leaves for anything else.

Many landowners are easy targets for the crooks because unlike livestock, trees aren't easily identifiable.

Unethical loggers have been known to clear-cut without permission, falsify sale bills and scale readings, break contracts and jump boundaries to cut trees on neighboring land.

"It's easier to get forgiveness than it is to get permission," Miles said of loggers who trespass for trees.

Shelby County timber farmer W.L. Davis, who has been in the timber business for 50 years, says he lost about $3,000 worth of his best trees last year when a logger claimed he didn't know the boundary.

"There's honest mistakes," Davis said, "and then there's mistakes on purpose."

Miles tells a story of a case in Cass County, where a thief stole the trees from a 160-acre tract but left a stand of pines along the perimeter. That way the owner wouldn't know when she drove past her land.

No one is safe. In November, a Louisiana timber buyer confessed to stealing timber from the Sisters of Providence in Indiana. The nuns lost around $100,000 when about three-fourths of their 104 acres was cut and sold, according to Harrison County Sheriff's Deputy Mike Alexander.

A hanging used to be the justice served up for rustlers in Texas. Today, landowners have trouble even getting a conviction for tree theft.

"If you have good documentation of what happened it's not hard, but a lot of times people just go in in the dead of night and cut down timber without a trace," said Assistant District Attorney Art Baureiss, who successfully prosecuted Clemons' case.

So, posses have been forming. Law enforcement, landowners and forestry officials have combined efforts to go after the tree rustlers. That's resulted in numerous lawsuits and convictions in Texas and across the country; three U.S. Forest Service workers being found guilty of stealing timber from the Sabine National Forest; and in March, leaders of 16 environmental groups asking Attorney General Janet Reno to investigate missing timber in the U.S.

Some milling companies, such as Purchase, N.Y.-based International Paper Co., have set up their own inspectors to check on boundary lines and logging sites. They also use surveillance.

"The loggers never know if or when we're doing surveillance, but the possibility that we might be and the paper trail we can follow does deter theft," said Randy Cofield, who handles timber security for International Paper. "... People are usually caught when they get greedy."

Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana have passed laws that make a convicted thief pay the victim three to 10 times the value of the stolen timber. Texas has set up a public education program and Clemons says he'll introduce legislation next session.

Still, the laws won't protect people who don't know the scams.

"If you're ignorant about timber or brain surgery, you ought to have somebody who knows something about it help you," Miles said.

Software for farmers keeps records for crop production, profit margins

By LORI HAWKINS
Austin American-Statesman
AUSTIN - An Austin software firm wants to help farmers keep their records even more orderly than the rows in their fields.

Crop Growers Software has developed software that tracks information such as crop production, pesticide use and profit margins.

Although it's not the first software for farmers, the company - and farmers who have tested it - say the program's ease of use and its detailed color maps of the user's fields provide what competing programs don't.

Using a computer mouse, farmers can click on a section of land and call up information with it. With the program's database, farmers can compile information such as crop yield, soil and fertilizer tests and chemical applications. Farmers can pull up maps of two fields simultaneously and compare which variety of a crop is more profitable.

"Farmers are searching for ways to be more profitable, and this is a tool to help them get there," says Rafe Hargrove, Crop Growers president.

Crop Growers has developed two software programs for farmers and crop insurance agents, and soon will release VisAg, which provides customized color maps of every plot of a farmer's land.

The nation's 1.9 million farmers are looking for every edge they can get.

International trade agreements like the North American Free Trade Agreement and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade have forced farmers to become more competitive with foreign goods, and Congress is expected to drastically reduce crop subsidies.

Today's farmer must be a shrewd financial strategist who knows what's making money and what's not," says Harold Lambert, president of the National Alliance of Independent Crop Consultants in Innis, La.

"With such extremely tight margins, from a business management standpoint, farmers have got to do anything they can to survive," he says. "We're seeing more farmers turn to computers to run their operations."

That's where Crop Growers Software hopes to come in. The company believes the emphasis on the business end will turn farmers into computer users.

Dave Schuler, a grain farmer in Great Falls, Mont., using a test version of VisAg, says it helps. "I can see, field by field, what's producing and what's not," he says. "That's information I need to stay in business."

Crop Software was founded by Hargrove's father, Rafe, and another partner, Sam Scheef, in Lubbock in 1986 as Agriperil.

Crop Growers Insurance of Great Falls, Mont., bought an interest in it in 1990. In 1994, a holding group known as Crop Growers Corp. was formed, and both companies became subsidiaries. Agriperil became Crop Growers Software.

Crop Growers Corp. went public in 1994. It had revenues of $52 million in 1994. The software subsidiary does not release revenues, but sales will double in 1995 compared with the year before, Hargrove said.

Crop Growers Software moved to Austin last June.

"We were growing very quickly and Austin has a bigger job pool of (software) developers than Lubbock," Hargrove says.

In Austin, the company has 35 employees who handle most development and technical support and 50 employees in other offices. Hargrove has hired 10 software developers, testers and technical support members since relocating and plans to hire 10 more by year's end.

Crop insurance agents have been the biggest users of Crop Grower's agricultural software, but the company is hoping that VisAg will attract more farmers.

Whether the software makes hay with farmers depends on how easy it is to use, said Joe Ann Stahel, an industry analyst in Dallas.

"When it takes hours to figure out a new software program and 30 minutes to do the work with a pad and pencil, the computers get turned off real fast," she said. "Farmers are like everyone else, they'll use software if it makes life easier."

In an effort to make the software easy to use, the company creates a custom program for each user.

Farmers send copies of aerial photos taken by government farm agencies, and Crop Growers turns them into a detailed color-coded computer map. Farmers can zoom into a few feet of land, pinpoint lakes and ponds and enter key planting and fertilization data.

The program, which runs on IBM-compatible personal computers, costs $799.

After trying other software programs that require the farmer to create his own map, Schuler was sold on VisAg.

"I've struggled with drawing a map and creating my own databases and ended up throwing away the software," he says. "With VisAg, I installed it and the first thing I saw was a full picture of my fields."

Overcoming that stigma is one of Crop Grower's biggest challenges, Hargrove said. "We've got to lure back farmers who have purchased these programs in the past and realized they had an awful lot of work to do," Hargrove says.

"But once we get them to install ours, we think they'll be amazed at how easy using computer software can be."

Cattle prices reverse in month of November

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cattle prices in November reversed four steady months of declines, helping boost the index of prices farmers received for their raw goods.

Further increases for corn and soybeans also contributed to the 1 percent rise in the index, the Agriculture Department reported Thursday.

Although the increase from October was modest, the index was 10 percent higher than a year earlier, largely due to large increases for wheat, corn and soybeans. Smaller crops and larger exports fueled the increases.

Favorable exports and a lower October slaughter pushed up prices for beef cattle. Prices reached $60.70 per hundredweight, up $1.90 from October, but still below $81 a year earlier.

Hogs fell $5.60 per hundredweight to $40, but were still $12 above last year's level. The department blamed the monthly decline on heavier slaughter and lighter demand for pork.

Soybean prices averaged $6.43 a bushel, up 28 cents from October and $1.07 from a year earlier. Prices for cottonseed, used for oil, also rose because of lower production.

Corn averaged $2.90 a bushel, the highest price in more than 11 years. It was $2.78 a month ago and $1.99 last year.

Lower prices for lettuce, oranges and lemons in addition to hogs dampened the October-to-November increase. Lower prices for cattle, lettuce, calves and broccoli tempered the year-to-year increase.

Computer courses offered

HALFWAY -- During December, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will offer computer short courses for area farmers at the Texas A&M Computer Training Center at Halfway on Dec. 5 and Dec. 7.

Halfway is 14 miles west of Plainview on Highway 70. All the courses are hands-on, one-day courses that start at 9 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m.

The first course Dec. 5 is designed to help current and potential Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) borrowers prepare the financial information necessary to meet the requirement of FmHA loans.

The registration fee of $40 includes a meal, course handouts and a copy of the spreadsheet template used in the course.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent - Ag

In crops such as wheat, cotton, oats, soybeans, etc. which are widely planted from farmer caught and/or farmer sold seed, there are major changes in seed law and new legal interpretations which have the potential of profoundly impacting the way Texas farmers do business.

Under the "farmer exemption" of the 1970 Plant Variety Protection Act, the widespread propagation of protected seed varieties for sale to neighboring farmers was generally accepted, although challenged with limited success by seed companies.

A recent court case (Asgrow Seed vs. Winterboers) and 1994 amendments to the Plant Variety Protection Act will change this practice. Based upon the new law, the previously accepted and widespread sales of seed from protected varieties between farmers as the result of unauthorized propagation will not be accepted as "business as usual".

The following are provisions within the 1994 Plant Variety Protection Act Amendments: 1) prohibits unauthorized sale of protected varieties; 2) requires that protected varieties be sold by variety names under specific exemptions for alfalfa, clover, lawn, turf and forage grasses (this basically eliminates the sale of seed as variety not stated); 3) includes protection for potatoes and tubers; and 4) extends the length of variety protection to 20 years for most crops with 25 years for trees and vines.

The recent Supreme Court ruling on the Asgrow vs. Winterboers case for the first time specifically provides that a farmer may save as seed only that amount of seed of a protected variety necessary for planting his own holdings. This is a new interpretation of the 1970 law that has since been revised by the 1994 amendment. Under the new law, a farmer may sell a protected variety only with the permission of the owner of the protected variety. He may only save for seed, or condition or have conditioned only the amount of seed of a protected variety that is required to plant his own holdings. His holdings are defined as land owned, leased or rented.

This amended act effects not only sale of sacked seed, but also bulk sales of seed. It will therefore have effects on grain elevators, cottonseed delinters, and cotton gins and other that have isolated seed in bulk storage for sale as variety not stated seed.

It is vital that farmers and others that handle seed know and understand this so that they can make effective plans relative to their seed sources and agreements with unauthorized sellers of protected varieties may no longer be reliable or valid.

These changes could especially effect persons that are anticipating catching cottonseed from gins for future delinting and planting. Before catching seed, producers should check to see if the seed variety is a protected variety, and then make the necessary plans for the seed caught.

Producers or others desiring complete information on the new laws and interpretations may call or write to: American Seed Trade Association, 601 13th Street, N.W., suite 570 South, Washington, D.C., 20005, or telephone (202)638-3128.

Local questions may be directed to Dennis Newton, at the Deaf Smith County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573.

Cop trying to bring Chinese community into city life

Thomas Chan grew up in neighborhood he now serves as police commander

EDITOR'S NOTE - In the New York neighborhood where Thomas Chan was born and raised live more Asians than in any city in the United States. Now Chan is Chinatown's top cop. In a maelstrom of culture clash and vague notions of policing, he is making unprecedented headway. Chan knows the language of the streets.

By TED ANTHONY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Two paintings vie for attention at opposite ends of Deputy Inspector Thomas Chan's Chinatown office: a friendly Norman Rockwell policeman chatting up a young boy and a traditional Chinese floral print.

Chan is familiar with the contrast: American cops on one side, Chinese custom on the other. After 16 months as the first Chinese-American police commander in the city with the nation's largest Asian community, Chan is nudging the sides together.

Language diversity, cultural customs, social mores - the intricate nuances that kept Chinatown an enigma to generations of police commanders - all hold keys to Chan's success.

He played ball on this corner, ran around with friends in that alley. He feels toward its citizens the affection of family, and some of them are.

"I pretty much have a home-court advantage," says Chan, 37, the son of Cantonese immigrants. "Chinatown is not always easy to figure out. I don't think I have an inside track on all the solutions to all the problems, but I can see more about the mentality of the community."

For many of the 125 years since Chinese first settled a two-block area on Manhattan's Lower East Side, Chinatown was insular, sharing little with law enforcement except mutual distrust. Older residents tell stories about police extortion, about officers doing nothing while crimes were committed.

Today, residents of a changing Chinatown - brimming with second-generation natives and new immigrants - have higher expectations.

"I think there's a perception of the Chinese community as quiet and uncomplaining - especially about police issues," said Good Jean Lau, who runs the bilingual program at Chinatown's P.S. No. 1. "But that's changing with the younger generation."

Many citizens watch Chan and say that here, finally, is someone on their side rather than an adversary to be avoided.

"This sums it up: We see him when there's nothing wrong," says

Lillian Moy, the senior program director at Chinatown's YMCA.

Chinatown's cramped, angled streets conceal little from Chan, whether he is on foot, in a patrol car or on the motor scooter he rides on sunny days.

"He gets on that scooter and he goes around Chinatown, dropping in on places, making sure things are OK," Ms. Moy says. "He doesn't sit in his office and wait for things to happen."

While outlining big plans, Chan is equally enthusiastic about rectifying small situations that have long nettled residents.

Some examples: The city's Crimestoppers program, a tip network for reporting crimes and suspects, had no Asian officer until this spring. Now the precinct staffs a hot line with volunteers who speak many Chinese dialects, not just the common Cantonese. In addition, the complement of officers (25 of 160 in the precinct are Asian) now includes those also fluent in Vietnamese and Fukienese, which many new immigrants speak.

Indeed, Chinese from outlying boroughs now take the subway to the Fifth Precinct in Manhattan if they need the police because they've heard its officers speak their tongues. The U.S. attorney's office, too, comes calling for help, and many federal and municipal agencies view the precinct as a clearinghouse for Asian resources.

Chan's officers have started to walk unprecedented "vertical beats" in apartment buildings and have stepped up their uniformed presence on gang corners. New businesses, often plagued by gangs, are given crime-prevention surveys followed by visits from the Asian Gang Intelligence Unit.

The outreach approach appears to be effective.

Chan's pride sits on his desk: a black binder containing figures that tell him citizen complaints about police have decreased by more than 70 percent in the past year and the number of robberies has been halved.

"On one hand, we're reaching out to people. On the other, we're getting tough," he says.

The road is not all smooth. Some business owners fall silent when asked about the police. Some community leaders won't discuss them at all.

Last spring two Asian-American officers who worked in Chinatown were indicted on charges of passing information about police operations to gangs. The accusations sullied the police image though the officers were not technically part of Chan's precinct.

"Those indictments were an embarrassment for all Asian law-enforcement officers," said Detective Walkin Chin, president of the Asian Jade Society, a fraternal organization for Asian-American officers. But Chan, he said, has "broken a lot of barriers for us."

— Deputy Inspector Thomas Chan

It took time. The traditional Chinese distrust of outside authority goes back to the days of the Qing Dynasty, China's last, which fell in a 1911 revolution. "Tongs," community groups that are the backbone of Chinatown and often linked to organized crime, were created in southern China to oppose the Qing, which was led by ethnic Manchus from the north. The Tongs helped Nationalist leader Sun Yat-sen build power bases in both China and New York.

Before 1965, tight U.S. exclusion laws made sure immigrants came from the same parts of China and spoke the same dialects. Fearful of outsiders, they often turned to Tongs to settle disputes. Police were out of the loop.

"China has never been a nation of laws. It's whoever decides what's right at the time," says Betty Lee Sung, a retired history professor and expert on the Asian experience in New York.

"There's been a tremendous distrust of anything that is authority. The Chinese community has seen the police as oppressors, not protectors," Sung says. "So the police said, 'Well, the Chinese govern themselves.'"

Language was the biggest barrier. Toisanese was long the traditional dialect in Chinatown, followed in the second half of this century by Cantonese. Now speakers of Fukienese and Mandarin, China's standard dialect, are abundant. Chan is trying hurriedly to find officers who speak new languages.

Chinatown today is a melange. The precinct, which also includes the shrinking Little Italy, is 61 percent Asian. Its 44,500 Asians are joined by 14,000 whites, 9,500 Hispanics and 4,500 blacks. Those are 1990 U.S. Census figures and do not include illegal Chinese immigrants, estimated in the tens of thousands.

Chan's family came to Chinatown in 1936 and lived in his native neighborhood for more than 27 years. His family remains, though he has moved to neighboring Staten Island.

He became a paramedic and studied to be a pharmacist at St. John's University before joining the force in 1982. He rose through the ranks in various precincts and took command of the Fifth as a captain in May 1994. He was promoted to deputy inspector last Aug. 4.

Chan says he doesn't plan to leave until some problems are solved. And they are myriad: Fukienese and Vietnamese gangs are more violent than some of their predecessors; illegal immigrants are streaming in; drug activity is increasing.

But citizens are finally part of the legal process.

"Now there is a link," said Ms. Lau, the teacher. "There's somebody there who understands now."

Above all, Chan wants to draw more Asian-Americans into the force.

In the 1970s, New York City had fewer than a dozen Asian-American officers, and it showed painfully the day one newspaper ran a photo of a white policeman guarding a recently raided gambling den.

Just behind him, a sign in Chinese characters gave an address and proclaimed: "We've relocated here."

Today, some 400 Asian-Americans are NYPD officers. Yet when Chan, on a recent visit to his old school, P.S. 1, asked a mostly Asian roomful of children if they had police relatives, five raised their hands. All were black.

But the most recent round of police applications included 1,100 Asian-Americans. That makes Chan smile.

"In the Asian community, parents may say, 'I want my child to be a doctor, a lawyer,'" he says. "I honestly don't know if there are too many parents who say, 'I want my son or daughter to become a police officer.'"

"If I can say I've changed that a little, if people in the community respect us in some small part because of me, then I've done my job."

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Despite a string of hits and misses, Andy Garcia says he learned years ago not to fret about his acting career.

"It's something I need to do regardless of whether someone is paying me," Garcia said in Tuesday's Daily News.

Garcia's recent lows include the poor box office showing of "Steal Big, Steal Little," in which he plays twins, and his brief casting in "Dangerous Minds," with Michelle Pfeiffer before his part was written out.

Garcia, currently starring as a mobster with a heart in "Things to Do in Denver When You're Dead," was nominated for an Oscar for "The Godfather: Part III."

Wederbrook Post 4818, VFW to celebrate 50 years of service

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Fifty years of service by Roy Wederbrook Post 4818, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be celebrated at a special event Wednesday in Hereford.

A Golden Anniversary Citation issued by Paul A. Spera, Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will be presented to Post Commander Robert J. Kubacak during a reception at the Post home in Veterans Memorial Park.

Special guests will be District Commander Bob Clark and Area Coordinator John Duke.

Post 4818 was chartered Dec. 6, 1945, in the Fireman's Hall of the Hereford City Hall with 29 members.

It was named in honor of the first Deaf Smith County resident killed in World War II, Roy Arthur Wederbrook who died on Corregidor, Philippine Islands, May 6, 1942.

The first Post Commander was Roy Smith and the second was Earl Wood, both deceased.

Earl Stagner, still an active member of the post, was the third commander.

Originally the post was housed in a barracks obtained from the prisoner of war camp which the VFW shared with the American Legion.

The property where the current post home is located was purchased in 1946 and included the land from Main Street to Progressive Road.

Funds to buy the property were raised by selling chances on a Studebaker automobile for $1 each.

In 1948, a three member park board, composed of VFW and American Legion members, was established. They were in charge of selling portions of the land.

The remaining property was divided between the VFW and American Legion in 1965 with the VFW taking the portion with the rock club house which was built in 1933 by the Civilian Conservation Corp.

After the property was divided, the VFW donated land to Deaf Smith County where the Bull Barn is located. And they donated land to the City of Hereford for a park and golf course.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars was organized in 1899, following the Spanish-American War. The purpose was, and still is, to help the widows, orphans and children of deceased veterans.

Currently 147 members strong, Post 4818 helps support the national home for orphans of veterans in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and they contribute to the veterans hospitals.

The Women's Auxiliary of Post 4818 was chartered in 1951. The current president is Betty Boggs.

Members of Post 4818 and Auxiliary invite all past and present members to attend the anniversary celebration at 7 p.m. on Wednesday.

Past and present commanders

Couple exchange vows Saturday

Cami Rebecca Bainum became the bride of Bryan Scott Melugin in a morning ceremony Saturday in the First United Methodist Church in Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Craig and Susie Bainum of Summerfield and the groom is the son of Bill and Helen Melugin of Amarillo.

The church was decorated with two large floral arrangements made by the bride's mother of red and white poinsettias and various Christmas flowers. Two spiral candelabra with Christmas flowers and greenery adorned the front of the church. Christmas bows embellished the candelabra and church pews.

Dr. Ed Williamson, pastor of the church, officiated during the ceremony.

Erin Dunn of Canyon served as maid of honor and Jonathon Maxwell of Amarillo served as best man.

Bridesmaids were Tammy Weaver of Dumas, and cousins of the bride, Alisa and Jennifer Sebastian both of Lubbock.

Chris Maxwell of Amarillo, and the groom's brothers, Terry Melugin of Canyon and Tony Melugin of Amarillo served as groomsmen.

Ashlon Paetzold of Hereford, daughter of Walter and Laurie Paetzold was flower girl.

Justin Melugin, the groom's nephew, served as ring bearer. He is the son of Tony and Debbie Melugin of Amarillo.

Kendra Hicks of Amarillo and Allyson Paetzold of Hereford were candle lighters.

Evelyn Hacker, the organist, and Dee Ann Trotter, the pianist, provided music for vocalist, Lesley Woodard.

Principal selections included traditional Christmas music, Canen in D, Oh Holy Night, Wedding Prayer and the Wedding March.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a white romance satin gown featuring a Queen Ann neckline, trimmed with clear sequins and pearls in a fine braided pattern.

The bodice of embroidered lace narrowed to a basque waist and featured long fitted sleeves and a heart shaped keyhole back.

The semi-cathedral train was heavily beaded and topped with an elongated back peplum. The veil was created by the bride's mother.

She carried a bouquet of red and white poinsettias with greenery and other Christmas flowers.

In keeping with tradition, she wore her great grandmother's gold wedding band.

Her attendants wore emerald green floor length, taffeta dresses. They carried bouquets of white and red poinsettias with Christmas greenery.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The wedding cake was served by Casey Urbanczyk and the groom's cake was served by Leslee Taylor.

Mulled Cider and coffee were served by Ginger Sebastian, cousin of the bride from Arlington.

A silver coffee service, belonging to the bride's late grandmother and grandfather, Geraldine and Delbert Bainum, was used to serve guests. The service was a gift to the grandparents on their wedding day from the bride's great grandfather, Joe Kendall.

The cider was served from an antique porcelain coffee server belonging to the bride's grandmother, Vi Lindley.

Lori Crofford invited guests to register at the reception.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., the couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride is a 1995 graduate of Hereford High School and the groom is a 1990 graduate of Randall High School. He is currently employed by Hereford Bi-Products.

Out of town guests represented Panhandle, Dimmitt, Canyon, Claburne, Arlington, Lubbock, Amarillo, California and Colorado.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am still in tears after reading about an incredible incident that occurred here in Silsbee, Texas. Please help me understand it.

Eleven children between 8 and 14 years of age chased a quarter horse into a barbed wire fence and beat the animal to death with sticks.

According to the county probation officer, the kids were bored and looking for some mischief they might get into. Mischief? When we were kids, mischief was wrapping a few hundred sheets of toilet paper around some bushes in the neighbor's yard. Torturing an animal was unthinkable. This crime has outraged our town.

The horse, named "Mr. Wilson Boy," belonged to Charles Woodard, the football coach at Silsbee High School. Like everyone else, Woodard was baffled and heartsick. Meanwhile, the children laughed about thrashing the horse to death and bragged at school about how cool it was. "They still think it's funny," according to County Sheriff H.R. Holzapfel.

The junior high school students, eight boys and a girl, were arrested on criminal mischief charges after they were overheard bragging about what they had done. Two others were too young to be charged.

The youngsters confessed to chasing the horse into the fence, where he became entangled and broke his leg. A couple of the children started to hit the horse, and one boy shoved a stick up the animal's nostril.

They then beat the wounded horse with sticks until it died. "Mob mentality," said Sheriff Holzapfel. "They aren't even sorry."

Ann, this is frightening. Will you please print this letter and comment? -- Sick at Heart in Silsbee

DEAR SILSBBEE: Since you wrote, six of the children in question have been removed from their homes by the court, according to Clinton Wright, chief juvenile probation officer for Hardin County. There was insufficient evidence to bring the other three to trial.

Any youngster who would commit such a crime has not had decent parenting. The parents or guardians of these children should be made, by law, to attend several counseling sessions.

These children need special attention from mental health professionals as well, and I pray that they are getting it. If beating an animal to death is their idea of fun, Lord knows what they will be doing five years from now.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year, my husband and I bought a duplex. We decided to rent the upstairs apartment to my husband's brother and his wife because they are easy to get along with.

A few months after "Ron" and "Sally" moved in, Sally surprised him with a Great Dane puppy. "Buster" is now bigger than a pony and will soon be the size of a horse. They are crazy about the dog, and we've grown fond of him, too.

The problem developed gradually. It seems Buster sleeps at the foot of their bed, and their bedroom is right above ours. At first, it sounded like someone was sawing wood. Very soon, we were sure either Ron or Sally had started to snore. Now, we are convinced it's Buster.

We told Ron and Sally about it, and they say they don't hear a thing. Question: Can a dog be fixed so the snoring will stop? We'd be glad to pay for it. We need to know before we broach the subject. -- Sleepless in Schenectady

DEAR SLEEPLESS: The answer is yes. Check your vet, and start saving your money. It won't be cheap, but it'll be worth it.

Unit to start at HRMC to assist victims

By CARMEN FLOOD
Hereford Regional Medical Center, under the leadership of Jim Robinson, is beginning a unit of specially trained personnel using special equipment in the effort to assist women and children who are suffering the effects of rape or sexual assault.

These nurses are Donna Kemp, clinical service administrator; Nancy Griego, quality assurance coordinator; and Rose Mary Barrett, emergency room supervisor. They have undergone extensive training in the procedures and counseling techniques needed to help persons who have been victims of these crimes.

In Deaf Smith County, for 1995, nine cases of rape or sexual assault have been reported with only 21 cases actually being prosecuted according to District Attorney Roland Saul's office. Inside the city of Hereford itself, a total of 23 incidents have been investigated by the Police Department and these include 15 which occurred in children or under age adolescent girls. According to Police Chief David Wagner, "We're no more unique than any other community. We've all got a problem." The "problem" only continues to grow, especially when legal recourse is impossible in so many cases. Changing these statistics is part of the goal of the Medical Center team.

Currently, in the Panhandle of Texas, only one facility, North West Texas Hospital, has the capability of caring for and examining these cases.

Very soon, however, here in Hereford, our own Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners will have not only the training, but also the needed equipment, and instrument called a colposcope.

The colposcope is a specially designed magnifying instrument used during the physical examination in the hospital which can detect even microscopic scarring, tearing or bruising, and this evidence is admissible in a court of law. Without this very specific evidence, many of these cases cannot be brought to trial, and purchasing the colposcope is the goal of PROJECT CHRISTMAS CARD for 1995, sponsored by L'Allegra Study Club.

Of equal concern to the professionals involved is the additional trauma to the women and children who have already experienced so much pain when they must be transported to Amarillo for the examination.

Personnel from the Sheriff's office or the Police Dept. must accompany these women or children, and the wait at Northwest Texas Hospital has taken as long as seven hours before the examination takes place, not to mention the trip to Amarillo and back. Cost to the county for the examinations in Amarillo is $450 plus the transport and the personnel involved.

PROJECT CHRISTMAS CARD has been an annual event in Hereford for well over 25 years, having been started by the Hospital Auxiliary, and now continued as a community service by L'Allegra.

In the past, many different items have been provided to the hospital by the project, from operating room lighting to incubators for premature infants. From heart monitors to defibrillators and machines that judge the extent of damage to the heart muscle during a heart attack.

This is the first opportunity to offer equipment which hopefully may help the community from a criminal justice point of view, and the hope is that each person in our area will be as generous as possible to the project. The names of all who support PROJECT CHRISTMAS CARD will be listed in a full page greeting in the Holiday Edition of the Hereford Brand on Dec. 17.

Checking specifications

Jim Robinson, CEO of Hereford Regional Medical Center, and Donna Kemp, clinical service administrator, look over specifications for a colposcope, a specially designed magnifying instrument used during the physical examination following rape or sexual assault. L'Allegra Study Club is sponsoring Project Christmas Card to raise funds for purchase of a colposcope for HRMC.

Extension News

County Extension Agent-FCS

Before you go shopping for any gift, it's always best to have a plan for the gift as well as how much money to spend. These steps can help you become a wiser shopper.

*Budget a set amount for gift buying -- the total amount and the amount for each person's gift. Adjust individual amounts as necessary to stay within your total budget.

*Avoid using credit to buy gifts if at all possible. If you can't afford to buy it this month, how will you afford it later when the bill arrives?

*Focus on the person to receive the gift rather than on the gift alone. What are their hobbies? What would they enjoy that they would not buy for themselves?

*Take a list with everyone's name you plan to buy gifts for, including their clothing sizes. This helps avoid returns.

*Have a place to keep all receipts for gift purchases, in case you need to return items.

*Consider giving gift certificates or money. This works especially well for children other than your own, whose sizes, interests and other gifts you may not know when you're shopping. They can take advantage of year-end sales and avoid being stuck with items they already own or can't use.

*Look at unusual places. Grocery stores, museums, book stores, craft shows, and mail-order catalogs for a wide range of prices and types of gifts that meet the wide range of needs on your list.

*Allow at least three weeks for mail-order purchases. Be cautious in giving credit card numbers for phone purchases from businesses you have not purchased from in the past. Holiday time is not a good time to test their service.

*Give yourself in a special gift certificate. Give an isolated elderly family member a special dinner for the two of you or with your family during a non-holiday time when they will be alone more. Give your children two hours a week to be alone with you to do something they choose to do. Give your spouse an evening a month for you to do something together, or buy season tickets to sports or arts events in the community for the two of you to enjoy.

*If foods are favorite gifts, focus on fruit and fiber foods and avoid high fat and sugar foods. Popcorn, fiber cereal mixes, fresh fruit baskets and gift certificates for meals at a restaurant can help cut the holiday waistline stress.

*Use newspaper, shopping bags and other items from your "recycling stacks" to make enviro-friendly package wraps.

*Make a New Year's resolution to begin now to plan for next year's gifts so you can take advantage of sales and spread expenses for gift purchases throughout the year.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"In writing your memoirs you will find that recording your thoughts is far easier than recording the facts of your life." -Rothman

Students at HJH have been given opportunities to record their thoughts with Thanksgiving lists of what they are thankful for, conservation essays, essay type answers to questions and book reviews. This, too, is probably easier than recording the facts of their young lives!

And speaking of writing...Conservation essays are finished!! We have accomplished one thing before the deadline! There were almost 100 entries with some twenty plus being entered in the competition at the conservation office.

Progress reports will be mailed this week. Additional ones will be mailed to parents if a student's grade "slips" between the first notice and the last week of the semester.

On Thursday, the Honor Roll and Pride Certified students will be honored with a reception. Parents are invited to attend. These will be held throughout the day during teaming periods.

Categories students, Waters' fourth period, are working on Christmas decorations and planning Christmas parties. Some of the decorations include tree ornaments, door and door knob hangings and centerpieces. We need and will welcome donations of material scraps, lace, ribbon, beads and buttons.

A Multi-cultural Neighborhood Fair hosted by Sims/Allen Categories classes will be Wednesday from 4:30 until 5:30. Students will display research and projects. Parents and friends are invited to do so this week as they will be delivered to Pick-A-Pet in Amarillo soon. If anyone would like to adopt one of these hamsters, bring one of your parents and a good cage. Mrs. Cicero will approve the adoption of these cute babies.

The library will host a Book Fair from December 4-8. This will be a good opportunity to purchase books for Christmas or other occasion gifts. Parents are invited to "Come to the Fair" and make purchases, also.

Social Studies departmental meeting will be at 3:40 on Wednesday.

As we are striving to prepare our students for the world of tomorrow, we are finding that students, for the most part, know how to get information, but don't know what to do with it once it's found. They are not successful in applying the material to a new setting -- to transfer it. But with your help, we'll keep on trying!

Bone Marrow screening to aid 4-year-old

The volunteers of the Hereford Regional Medical Center are sponsoring a Bone Marrow screening program to be held in Hereford on Dec. 10, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the new Community Center of San Jose Catholic Church, located at 735 Brevard.

The screening is being conducted to benefit Jordin Arguello, a San Antonio resident. She is the 4-year-old daughter of Frank and Virginia (Bezner) Arguello. Her great-grandparents are Wirt and Irene Albracht of Hereford.

Diagnosed on March 16, with acute lymphatic leukemia, Jordin has yet to be matched with a donor.

Jordin is half Hispanic, and the likelihood of finding a match for her is very slim.

The majority of registered donors

JORDIN ARGUELLO.

(80-85 percent) are Caucasian, therefore, a Caucasian patient has a better chance for a match (60-80 percent).

Donors of all ethnic and racial backgrounds, especially Hispanic and Afro-Americans, are desperately needed.

Choosing to be tested and become a member of the National Marrow Donor Program is a serious decision.

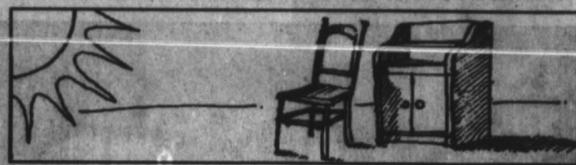

The donation process is simple and free of charge but the commitment to the program is made from the first blood draw.

Once you are entered into the data base, a person somewhere in the world could be counting on you to save their life.

To become a donor, you need to be in good general health and between the ages of 18 and 55 and also complete a brief consent form. A small amount of blood will be taken from the arm.

The screening to benefit Jordin will be conducted by the National Marrow Donor Program at Cook-Port Worth Children's Medical Center.

Mahogany furniture will darken over time if exposed to daylight.

Resource management and conservation. The group discussed the uses and management of cattle and cattle bi-products.

Those in attendance were Josh Hicks, Blake Schilling, Chad Schilling, Shaun Blanton, Jordan Hicks, Claudio, and Greene.

The group will meet with the other 4-H groups in December. Date and time to be announced.

Annual project of L'Allegra continues

Kim Leonard, left, and Jim Robinson examine a display for Project Christmas Card which is being sponsored again this year by L'Allegra Study Club. Similar displays are set up throughout Hereford so that residents may contribute and have their name included in a special full page greeting in The Brand holiday section. Funds raised will be used to purchase a colposcope for Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER
Is it really the last month of 1995? If you promised yourself that you would get a project accomplished this year, better hop to it! A new month always brings new displays as sure as December brings Christmas. Christmas always makes us think of toy trains, and that brings us back to our display - Kyle Moody and model trains!

Kyle is the son of Janet Moody. He is a senior at HHS where he is active as a technician for stage productions. Earlier this year he became an Eagle Scout. His trains weren't on display yet at the time of this writing, but I'm looking forward to seeing them.

He told me that he had one that is about 30 years old. I was impressed until I realized that I do too...only mine was new when I got it!

Children's Librarian and artist-in-residence Betty Stephan has the library decorated for Christmas, and has done a terrific job, as usual. We have also separated out many books that people look for at this time of year - craft ideas, holiday cooking, Christmas stories, and the like.

Three new books relative to the season will go out this week: Christmas Readings to Capture the Wonder of the Season, including selections by Tolstoy, Dickens, and Van Dyke; The Christmas Box, a novel by Richard Paul Evans; and A Christmas Longing, an artistic and literary offering from Joni Eareckson Tada.

To paraphrase a popular comment; "all of our patrons bring us pleasure - some when they come and some when they go." Edna Gault was one of those who always brought us pleasure when she came in with her smile and pleasant attitude. The library has lost another friend. And a personal to Beverly Harder: Congrats on receiving the "bull chip." It couldn't have gone to a more deserving person. Thanks for all you do with 4-H and FCE (or whatever they're calling it this week).

Quick Christmas gift ideas: How about a book bag from the Friends of the Library? These are sturdy canvas bags imprinted with "I love My Library" OR donate a book to the library to honor the "giftee." We will put a special bookplate in it, and send a letter to the honoree stating that a book has been given in his/her name, and who the donor is. A great idea for someone who "has everything."

This Thursday, at 10 a.m., the Friends of the Library will present "Teddy Bear Tea" for local preschoolers and kindergartners. The play features Amy Gilliland as Old-Fashioned Alice, and antique-china doll who likes things well ordered and quiet; Emily Knight as Dolly Dress-Up, a fashion doll who wants to keep peace in the playroom; and some big, ugly guy as boisterous Mr. Teddy, the object of Alice's ire. (We've had a lot of fun working this up--it's just too bad that the audiences have missed our ad-libbed rehearsals!)

Make plans, too, to see this month's Family Film on the 21st. We'll start with a few Christmas cartoons, then move into the main feature - The Best Christmas Pageant Ever. By the way, the book was absent from our shelves for a while, but we have replaced it!

Speaking of which...does anybody do Christmas "pageants" anymore--the kind where the Nativity is reenacted by kids in bathrobes with a doll for the baby? It seems all I ever see or hear of are "cantatas" of unfamiliar music, elaborate productions with real animals and a live baby, and "living" Christmas trees, all performed by adults. It seems our baby-boomer oriented society is leaving the children out of all this. I don't think anything brought home to me the reality of the Incarnation as much as performing in those church and school(!) plays.

Of course, I couldn't have told you that then. All we were concerned about was who would get to be a Birthdays, special days, a year-around remembrance? Send them The Hereford Brand, a gift that reminds the recipient of your love and concern about 255 times a year!

shepherd and who would have to sing in the choir! (And I still remember the time this fledgling "Joseph" knocked over the makeshift manger, and "little Lord Jesus" went rolling across the floor--but, just like the song says, "no crying he (made)." Try doing that with a real baby!)

The home of James and Kyla McDowell at 139 N. Red Cross Update

A CPR class will begin Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Red Cross office. Call the office to register. The first class will cover CPR; the second will cover child and infant CPR and the third will cover first aid.

The Executive Committee will meet at noon Monday at the office.

Toys, new and carefully used, are needed at the office for the Christmas toys program. Last year we gave toys to almost 800 children in Deaf Smith County. This year we expect almost the same number of children to provide toys for. Toys may be brought to the office at 224 S. Main Street during regular business hours. Applications are still being taken for the toys program. Call or come by the office to put in applications.

We are looking for names and stories about people who have used the skills they learned in a Red Cross class to help someone or save a life. Call us at 364-3761 or mail a note to Box 1371.

— YOUR EYES —
IMPROVING NIGHT VISION
Older eyes need more light to see, and they adjust more slowly to changing light conditions. That's why there is controversy about the advantages of driving with yellow-amber or orange-tinted lenses at night: some tints may help increase contrast, but they do reduce visual acuity and may slow recovery from glare. Here are some tips that will help:

- Have anti-reflective coating added to your regular eyeglasses.
- Wear sunglasses for daytime driving, but remove them at dusk. Sunglasses protect against glare during the day and make it easier for eyes to adapt to night-time glare.
- If a car with bright lights is following too closely and the glare bothers you, try to move to another lane, or pull over and let the car pass.
- To improve vision, make sure that windshields, mirrors and headlights are clean and headlights well aligned.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

LESSONS FROM THE FARM

"I've spent nearly half of my life on the farm. I know I can never make a living there again, but I do miss aspects of farm life.

Spring is my favorite season because it's the season of new life. It's the time to plant new crops, nurture livestock babies and welcome the warm and green.

Fall is my next favorite time, because the harvest always means financial reward. It's like the old country song with the lyric that says, "We'll get new shoes come pickin' time."

Because I spent my first 21 years on the farm, most of what I know I learned there. As I grew up and moved to the city, I found that many of those early lessons applied to non-farm activities as well. Most of those lessons work in business, would work in government is used and are sound guides for living a rewarding life.

Therefore, I'd like to share a little farm-based wisdom with you in this column. I hope you're not cowed by a little horse sense. Country wisdom

If you plant corn seed, you'll grow a corn crop. I've never seen corn seed grow into beans, potatoes or milo. This is one of God's laws: You always reap what you sow.

Our actions grow into habits, and through our habits we harvest our destiny. Plant good seeds like honesty, diligence and charity and you'll reap a great harvest.

You can shear a sheep many times, but you can only skin it once. Business owners can learn a lot from this simple lesson.

Our customers are like sheep. If we care for them, they will return and we can shear a little profit from them each time. However, if we skin them (cheat them) we only benefit once.

A bucket of grease is cheaper than a bucket of parts. Maintenance always costs less than repair. Assets are expensive. When we take good care of our assets we save money.

An automobile is an excellent example. My eight-year-old car has more than 198,000 miles on the odometer. It serves me well because I've taken good care of it. I can change the oil frequently, replace worn parts, and keep clean air going into the engine. I reap the benefits in reduced costs.

Go out on a limb, that's where you'll find the fruit. Sometimes we must take risks in life if we are going to gain a reward.

We may be uncomfortable or even fear new ventures or experiences. Yet, picking the fruit or our future may mean starting our own business, changing our career or going back to school for more training.

You can afford to spill a few buckets of milk, but you can't afford to lose your cow. The old saying, "don't lose our cow, we can always milk again."

We must not lose sight of the most important things in life because we spilled some milk. Losing one order or business deal does not break your career. Falling one test does not cost you your degree. We must get up and go on toward success.

The sun always comes up in the morning. No, I can't promise that for sure. However, my experience says it will. I do know that every new day provides a new opportunity. If you didn't get done all you wanted to yesterday, get right after it today.

A good guide is to live your life as if there is no tomorrow, but plan as if tomorrow is a certainty. You can't lose either way.

DUPLEX PLAN BRIMMING WITH FEATURES

Each Unit Provided With A Single Garage

FEATURE HOMES

BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

Each side of this duplex plan is designed with features usually found only in single family homes. Each unit mirrors the other and would be suitable for owner occupancy or upscale rental.

A private entrance is provided to each unit through a country front porch. The great room is almost square, allowing ease in furniture placement. A tray ceiling and fireplace accentuate the friendly appearance.

The kitchen uses angles to create excitement. Instead of the sink looking into a blank wall, it is placed in an angular peninsula cabinet. It has a snack bar below and overlooks the dining area with bay window, and the great room. A laundry closet, pantry and access to the garage for each unit are located alongside the kitchen.

The bedrooms are located at the rear of the plan, creating a quiet zone in the home. A hall bath services two of the bed rooms. The lavish master bed room is accentuated with a tray ceiling, and a private garden bath with double vanity provides stylish livability.

Each side of this duplex home contains 1,270 square feet of heated space for a total of 2,540 square feet. The plan is available with either crawl space or slab foundation and is drawn in accordance with FHA and VA requirements.

W. D. Farmer, F.A.I.B.D. is a member of the National Association of Home Builders and the American Institute of Building Designers, Southern Building Code Congress International, and a Certified Professional Building Designer by the National Council of Building Designer Certification Board.

Low voltage lighting safe for holiday, year-round

As colder weather sets in and days become shorter, there's a simple way to achieve outdoor holiday lighting effects at your home. Called low voltage outdoor lighting, it's also an economical and safe method of illuminating your yard during the rest of the year.

Each low voltage lighting system contains several fixtures, a power pack that converts 120-volt household current to a safe 12 volts and a length of low voltage cable. Homeowners can install a set in about an hour using ordinary hand tools.

The wide selection of low voltage lighting styles includes traditional tier, mushroom, well and floodlight models, plus newer bollard, globe, carriage and crystal lights. The systems can be obtained at hardware stores, home centers, discount outlets, and lawn and garden centers.

"Low voltage outdoor lighting adds an attractive, soft glow of light that brightens the appearance of your home and yard during the holidays," says Phil Kinzer of Intermatic, manufacturer of Malibu brand lighting systems. "It also makes a great holiday gift that can be enjoyed soon after it's opened."

NEW YORK (AP) - The ancient Chinese philosopher Zhuangzi dreamed one night that he was a butterfly. For the rest of his life he wondered: Was he a man who dreamed of being a butterfly, or a butterfly who dreamed of being a man?

It is a story Leonard Nimoy understands - as would Spock, the stoic half-human, half-Vulcan of "Star Trek," who has lived inside Nimoy for 30 years as a cooler, more logical voice always waiting in the wings.

With his new autobiography "I Am Spock" - a rejoinder to a slim, little-known volume he wrote 20 years ago titled "I Am Not Spock" - Nimoy comes to grips with the character by which so much of America defines him.

"He's very real to me," Nimoy says. "I don't think I'm capable of coming up with this idea from whole cloth. I am now capable of dealing with situations more dispassionately and objectively because of him."

In between incarnations of Spock in the original show, six movies and an episode of "Star Trek: The Next Generation," Nimoy has played a string of dramatic characters from Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof" to Vincent van Gogh's brother to Golda Meir's first husband, Morris Meyerson.

Today, at 64, he is respected in the industry as much for his directing ("Three Men and a Baby," "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home") as for his acting. Nimoy wrote "I Am Not Spock" in 1975 just as "Star Trek" was beginning to achieve ubercult status. Though its anti-Spock reflections were gentle - many dealt with his concern at being typecast and denied non-"alien" roles - the title alienated many fans.

His new book's insight and introspection elevate it above most show-business autobiographies. Nimoy examines how the character of Spock and his own Eastern European Jewish heritage melded to guide his career.

In his first play, Nimoy portrayed a boy coming to grips with an Eastern European Jewish past. "When I played this kid and I saw what he was struggling with, I thought, 'This is a good thing to do with the rest of my life,'" Nimoy says. "By the time I got to Spock, I had some experience playing alienated people," he says. "I can't explain how I came to play outsiders - was it something about me? Did I put out a message that said I was right for these roles?"

Nimoy has been a screenwriter, a poet, even a singer - though his mid-1970s album, "The Touch of Leonard Nimoy," is a contender for the Kitsch Hall of Fame if only for its whispered rendition of "Nature Boy."

Of late, he has done several projects with his director son, Adam, including an episode of the updated "Outer Limits" series. He has lent his name to a comic book, will direct a play and is involved in a struggling television series on the Paramount network called "Deadly Games." He's even writing a science fiction novel - something he thought he'd never do.

What pleases Nimoy most is his involvement in a series of Jewish stories on public radio this past summer. He narrated all 13 of them, from "shet" tales (stories about life in small villages in Eastern Europe) to stories about modern Jews in the United States, and hopes the series will continue.

Behind it all, though, the Vulcan remains. Nimoy, who rejected a Spock appearance in the movie "Star Trek: Generations" as too unsubstantive, says he'd never rule out future involvement in "Star Trek."

George Clinton and John C. Calhoun are the only vice presidents who each served under two presidents.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

The Festival of Trees is over for 1995 but the evaluation and planning starts now! There will be a meeting of all who helped in any area on Monday, Dec. 18 at 9 a.m. We want to review what was done this year and new ideas for 1996. Please be here if at all possible. One new suggestion is to have the activities start on Wednesday so our children can have more time. This will give us an extra day for them. We have such a limited amount of time with the schedule as is.

We had three new groups participate this year. We apologize to our children and teachers for having to rush them through. Next year we hope to have more time!

Everyone worked so hard to make our Festival a success and I appreciate each of you.

Remember our Holiday Dinner on Saturday, Dec. 16. Make your reservations as soon as possible. We will be delivering meals to our home-bound also.

I am planning a Christmas-Light trip in December. We will see lights in Tyler, Marshall, Jefferson, and Natchitoches, LA. Please let me know immediately if you are interested. If we have at least 36 to go, we will lease a commercial bus, otherwise we will take only the first 12 in the Senior Citizens van. This will be a four night trip. The cost depends on the number of us going and the mode of transportation.

This is a wonderful time of year. I wish you all a Merry Christmas with family and friends. Remember our party on Dec. 16.

President's Corner

By Gid Brownd, HSCA President

The festival of trees is now behind us. The last few weeks this place was really a beehive of activity. Everywhere I looked there was someone making large red bows, people unboxing and setting up trees, people on ladders hanging decorations and lights, some checking for burned out bulbs, people making dolls and arranging beautiful baskets. There were those finishing up craft projects and some at home baking up goodies to sell.

Many regular activities continued on schedule; line dancing, water exercises, hearing aid people and support groups. And of course we continued with home delivered meals and our own noon meals.

The Henson family with their train display again was a big success. One teacher remarked that it was a great treat for the kids and we surely enjoyed their singing.

The success of the festival was the combined effort of many people, phone calls and a lot of volunteer help. People got tired but kept on working and having fun.

The staff just really out did themselves, working long and hard. There were chairs and tables to be moved and set up again, sometimes late at night to get ready for the next affair. The preparation of food and cleaning went right on.

Margie Daniels was the jewel that made the clock tick. She was all over the place, day and night, with the right idea and the right answer to each question.

All this effort would not mean much without the support of the sponsors, decorators, those furnishing entertainment for special events and the people purchasing the trees. I hope they realize how important this support is to us.

We also need to thank the others in the community who helped us so much; The Hereford Brand, KPAN Radio, Hereford Cablevision, K-BOB's Steakhouse, and the schools. My thanks to each one of you mentioned and any I may have overlooked.

MERRY CHRISTMAS and may God Bless each one of us.

Margie Daniels, right, was assisted by "Twila" at the tree auction during the annual Festival of Trees at the Hereford Senior Center on Nov. 16. Auctioneer was Ted Walling and rumor has it that "Twila" was Henry Reid. This year's auction netted $21,775 for the Hereford Senior Citizen Association.

Retired clothes maker believes staying busy is key to happiness

By DANIEL J. VARGAS

San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO - Sitting at a small wooden table in her living room, Billie Fisher Graebner points to the stacks of items that bring her the most joy and happiness.

She strolls to the dining room and goes through piles of neatly folded clothes. There are 18 pairs of shorts, six pairs of pajamas, 20 shirts and 125 small pillows.

The clothes illustrate the motto she lives by: A happy person is a busy person.

Mrs. Graebner, a retired clothes maker, spends - on the average - about 100 hours a month making clothes and other garments for nonprofit groups and mentoring a student in the San Antonio School District. Last month, she spent more than 130 hours sewing badly needed clothes for groups such as the Salvation Army.

Seeing her enthusiasm and hard work ethic, it's hard to believe that Mrs. Graebner is 85.

"In the first place, no one believes I'm 85," she said. "Even my doctor didn't believe it. I still get around, but I'm not like I used to be. I used to be a live wire."

Her workplace is inside her modest, three-bedroom North Side home. Two of the bedrooms serve as her tailoring studio.

As she walks into one of the rooms, Mrs. Graebner's brown eyes - with the help of eyeglasses - survey a large cutting table that divides the room. Boxes filled with clothing materials tower over her small 5-foot frame.

A narrow pathway among the boxes and material leads to a large factory sewing machine that helps

Mrs. Graebner sew 5,000 stitches per minute. "That's why I have to stay thin - just to get through this room," Mrs. Graebner said, displaying her contagious smile.

Mrs. Graebner's causes include sewing "thousands" of pillowcases and sheets for the Salvation Army over the past 13 years and making clothes for Central Christian Church, which benefits the San Antonio Metropolitan Ministry shelter and the Battered Women's Shelter of Bexar County. She also makes small pillows for cancer patients as part of the women's version of the Optimists Club called the Opti-Mrs. Club.

"I always think about those little kids getting something new," Mrs. Graebner said. "Everything I use is new. We don't use old stuff and they like that, because some of these kids probably haven't had anything new in their life."

"That's one of the things I get a kick out of: To see them when they get new clothes."

For Christmas, she is stitching up

SOCIAL SECURITY

Byron Sansom

"Assistant District Manager"

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: There's a commercial on television about life insurance in which some women are talking about how Social Security only pays $255 when a person dies. Is that all that Social Security pays at death?

A: The commercial you've seen is misleading. When a person, who is insured under Social Security, dies, there is a special one-time $255 death payment that can be made to the surviving spouse or minor children. However, Social Security survivors insurance also pays monthly checks to surviving spouses, divorced surviving spouses, children under age 18, disabled children of any age, and dependent parents. For a detailed explanation of the specific rules, contact Social Security at 1-800-772-1213 and ask for the free pamphlet, "Survivors."

Q: I am 68 years old. When I was 65 I applied for Supplemental Security Income, but my application was denied because my resources were in excess of the legal limit. I remarried last year, after having been a widow for ten years. My husband gets a small Social Security check and a small Veterans pension. Can I reapply for SSI?

A: Yes, you can, and you now may be eligible. The income and resource limits are greater when you are married. You will not know, for sure, whether you are eligible unless you inquire or apply again.

Q: I have a lot of friends who get their Social Security checks by direct deposit. What are the advantages of using direct deposit? What about disadvantages?

A: There are many advantages, but no disadvantages that we know of. People who get paper checks in the mail instead of payment by direct deposit are 16 times more likely to miss a payment. You never have to worry about mail delays or have someone watch your mail on check day if you are away from home. You don't have to take it to the bank or to stand in line at the bank to cash or deposit it. Your monthly bank statement can serve as a record of the exact amount you receive each month.

Q: Does Medicare pay for cervical cancer and breast-cancer screenings?

A: Yes. Medicare Part B helps pay for Pap smears to screen for the detection of cervical cancer and for mammograms used to detect breast cancer.

Q: I am still working some and find it difficult to get into the Social Security office. Often the phone lines for the local office and the 800 number are busy. What can I do to get information on my Social Security?

A: Each weekday Social Security receives between 250,000 and 300,000 calls on the toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213. Service representatives are available from 7 am until 7 pm, Monday through Friday. The phone is less likely to be busy during the afternoon, during the latter part of the week, and during the latter part of the month. The 800 toll-free number also now has an automated feature that allows you to call after business hours to leave a message and/or to get information on routine matters, such as how to apply for a replacement Social Security card or how to request a benefit estimate.

If you wish to have your questions answered in this column, please write to: Byron Sansom, District Manager, Senior Scene, Social Security Administration, 3501 W. 45th, Suite E., Amarillo, Texas 79106.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
RD/LD

You may have wondered what the difference is between salt and sodium. Although the words "salt" and "sodium" are often used interchangeably, they are not the same. Salt is only one source of sodium. Table salt is made up of sodium and chloride, while sodium is found in a number of other forms, as well, such as baking soda and baking powder.

Is salt important in a healthful eating plan?

Sodium, an essential mineral, is found in table salt. It is involved in nearly every body function, including water balance and muscle contraction. Since Americans typically consume adequate salt, most healthy individuals should choose an eating pattern that is moderate in salt.

Where are sodium and salt found? Sodium and salt are found naturally in foods such as milk, meats, and certain vegetables. Sodium adds flavor to foods such as breads, cereals, and prepared foods, like canned and frozen products. Salt helps keep some foods, such as cheese and lunch meats, safe by preserving them.

What is the link between a diet high in sodium and high blood pressure?

The link between the sodium you eat and high blood pressure is unclear. Many factors can affect blood pressure, including, in order of importance, family history of high blood pressure, weight, age, physical activity, alcohol intake, and overall dietary factors, such as intake of potassium, calcium, magnesium, sodium, and fiber.

Also, a person's blood pressure responds differently to different levels of sodium in his or her diet. People whose blood pressure increases when they eat lots of salt or decreases when they cut back on salt are called "salt sensitive." For those who are salt sensitive, an eating pattern low in salt may normalize blood pressure in some individuals. At present, there is no way to determine if a person might develop high blood pressure from eating too much sodium.

Sodium: How much is enough?
According to the Nutrition Facts panel found on most packaged foods, the recommended intake of sodium for healthy Americans is 2,400 mg. Most Americans now consume about 4,000 mg. of sodium.

The best approach to moderating your sodium intake is balancing your food choices over time. When you eat a food high in sodium, later choose from the array of other foods that are lower in sodium. For any food, moderate your portion sizes. That way, you can enjoy foods you like and consume a healthful diet.

Here are some tips to moderate your sodium intake:

- *Select from a wide variety of foods from all the good groups, including at least five servings of fruits and vegetables each day. Food variety contributes to the nutritional quality of your eating pattern.

- *Season foods with fresh herbs, spices, or lemon juice to enhance the flavor.

- *Reduce salt gradually in cooking and baking.

- *Taste before salting foods.

- *Choose from a wide variety of low- or reduced-sodium food products in the supermarket.

Remember, everyone should know their blood pressure. Visit your doctor regularly to know yours.

What is healthy blood pressure?

Optimal healthy blood pressure is 120/80 or "120 over 80." The first number refers to systolic pressure, when the heart is pumping blood. The second number refers to diastolic pressure, when the heart is between beats.

Blood pressure is the force of the blood flow against the inside of artery walls. Blood pressure increases when the heart beats faster or the arteries narrow.

three dozen pairs of new jeans for boys helped by the two shelters, and a dozen new t-shirts for the five children in a family adopted by the Opti-Mrs. group.

"We're stressing clothes more this year than anything else because they're so expensive," she said. "These kids need clothes more than they do toys around this time."

She said she uses leftover material from her business days. She made children's and adult's clothes until the mid-1970s. For the pillowcases and sheets, she uses donated scraps of material from a curtain company.

Irma Mellon, director of social services at the Salvation Army, said Mrs. Graebner calls her often to make sure the Salvation Army isn't running low on baby blankets and sheets for its homeless shelter. She has seen Mrs. Graebner haul in piles of sheets for more than 13 years.

"She is an angel that has been sent to help me with my clients and this facility," she said. "She has saved us thousands and thousands of dollars. If she knows I have an urgency, she will get right on it. I'm totally indebted to her for making my job easier."

Mrs. Graebner said she has always volunteered her time to help others.

She said she learned how to knit at age 7, when she helped her grandmother make socks and scarves for World War I soldiers.

Since then, Mrs. Graebner has used her knitting and sewing skills to help others whenever she could.

"If you look at my life, I'm an organized individual who had a business. It's not much of a chore for me as it would be someone else. It's something I've done all my life."

Barbara Morrison, director of the child care center at Central Christian Church, said she has seen Mrs. Graebner "give so much of herself" during the three years that she's known her.

"She is just so sparkly and always on the go," she said. "Age just doesn't seem to be a factor at all. All someone has to say is that they have a need and she's there."

Mrs. Graebner, who has no children and no family in the San Antonio area since her husband died in 1973, said she has found solace in volunteer work.

She calls Sierra Brooks, a third-grader whom she mentors at Austin Elementary, her "little girl."

"Sierra said she felt sorry for me because I don't have kids," she said. "She's my little girl on Thursdays. To see her big smile when I show up just takes my breath away. It says it all."

Mrs. Graebner said she drills Sierra, who she has mentored for two years, in spelling and reads to her. The two are even designing a shirt together for Sierra.

"Anyone interested in children could do this," she said. "It would be a wonderful thing for the children if more people could mentor."

When she isn't sewing or stitching, Mrs. Graebner will work on crossword puzzles, occasionally watch a soap opera or the news and play with her cats, Princess and Simon.

Although she admits getting tired sometimes, she says she somehow finds the energy to keep helping others.

"If I didn't have anything to do, I'd go crazy," Mrs. Graebner said. "What good would I be to anyone if I just sat around all day? I do this because I want to or because someone needs something."

"Time is the most precious thing we have; we better use it."

Americans who have reached 100 are lean, mean

By CASSANDRA BURRELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Forget about the sunny dispositions, the cherubic smiles and the gentle wisdom of the stereotypical senior citizens giving out syrupy advice on television commercials.

The oldest of the old - Americans who have reached and passed their 100th birthdays - are just as likely to be lean and mean, says psychologist Leonard Poon, director of the University of Georgia's Gerontology Center.

Although it's risky to generalize, most of those participating in a 10-year study of centenarians were found to be experts in the art of survival.

"They tend to be independent, they tend to dominate," Poon said. "They also tend to be suspicious. They won't just take one's word on something. They tend to question what you have to tell them. ... It fits into what a survivor would be."

The group generally scored high for optimism; depression was rare. They scored lower for emotional stability and conformity.

"These patterns may indicate that in extreme old age individuals can be assertive and forceful," the study said. "On the other side, centenarians tended to score higher on emotionality; high emotionality may primarily reflect the diminishing resources available to meet the challenges of the day."

Celebrations of 100th birthdays used to be extremely rare, but the number of Americans that age or older more than tripled to 52,000 from 1980 to 1995, according to the Population Reference Bureau Inc., a private research group.

That number of centenarians may reach 1 million by the middle of the next century, the group said. Today, one out of every 5,000 Americans lives to see his or her 100th birthday. University of Georgia researchers have found no single reason why the study's centenarians have lived so long.

"If you ask 100 centenarians why they have been so successful in getting to be so old, you're going to get 100 answers. There's really lots of variation," Poon said. "There isn't one formula to be a centenarian, so we all have a chance, maybe."

Poon's study began in 1988 with a grant from the National Institutes of Health. In its first phase, researchers compared a group of 100 Georgia centenarians to 100 Georgians in their 80s and a third group of 100 in their 60s. In the second phase, which began in 1992, the research team is measuring participants' changes over time.

Poon wanted to explore the possible reasons for successful aging, so elderly people who suffered from dementia or who were unable to care for themselves were excluded from the study. Once admitted into the study, all participants remained part of the project, regardless of any changes in health or cognitive status.

Researchers looked at a number of characteristics, including family longevity, coping skills, religious faith and cognitive and intellectual functioning. They also examined personalities, diet, physical condition and the amount of emotional support participants received from friends and family.

"One centenarian was writing her autobiography, another published a history of family stories and one other was working from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily as a tour guide at a historical landmark," the study said.

One centenarian continued to manage his own investment portfolio by communicating daily with his stock broker, and another practiced weekly with a chamber music group.

"One, though lacking formal education, raised and sold rabbits to bring his poverty level income into a livable range," it said.

As expected, however, the study revealed that as people age, some functions deteriorate.

"We see decline in health and certainly in physical moving around, in hearing and in vision," he said.

"We're looking at the cream of the crop, but we still find cognitive and intellectual decline."

Three-quarters of the centenarians were female. That was expected since women generally outlive men in the United States.

Participants generally didn't follow low-cholesterol, low-fat diets, but they didn't overindulge either, Poon said. None was vegetarian.

"Because they come from Georgia, they have an eating pattern which is very typical. Southern cooking uses a lot of fat," Poon said. "They do not shy away from it, but on top of that they tend to eat breakfast maybe a little more regularly. ... They tend to maybe eat things in moderation."

Most are lean, and few had major diseases, he said.

"If they did, they would not have lasted this long. And they hardly take any medication. The average number of medications for our group is two," he said.

"They tend to be fairly healthy even if there is kind of the normal and expected decline of the senses," Poon said. "In terms of blood pressure, it was in the normal range."

Bureau suggests gardening gifts for Christmas

By JAMES E. WALTERS
PHOENIX (AP) - The National Garden Bureau is suggesting products and gifts designed especially to encourage youngsters to enjoy gardening.

"Adults will find these products will make good gifts and good sense for the children they know," says the bureau, a nonprofit group based in Downers Grove, Ill.

The idea, of course: If plants have given pleasure to parents or grandparents, how do they interest future generations?

The list, which includes the bureau's disclaimer that no endorsement is intended or implied, ranges from books to children's tools to seed kits. No prices were given. If you're interested, get in touch with the listing company direct for what, in most cases, will be free information.

Among the recommended items: "Guide to kids' gardening," from Territorial Seed Co., 20 Palmer Ave., Cottage Grove, Ore. 97424.

"Children's flower garden mixture," from Ed Hume Seeds, P.O. Box 1450, Kent, Wash. 98035-3450.

"Kidseeds plant starter kit," from NK Lawn & Garden Co., 7500 Olson Memorial Highway, Golden Valley, Minn. 55427.

"Children's garden collection" from J. W. Jung Seed Co., 335 S. High St., Randolph, Wis. 53957.

"Kids' tools," from Territorial Seed and Gardener's Supply Co., 128 Intervale Rd., Burlington, Vt. 05401, and "Kids' gloves" from DeGiorgi Seed Co., 6011 N. St., Omaha, Neb. 68117-1634.

Three books from Storey Communications, Schoolhouse Rd., Pownal, Vt. 05261: "Let's grow! 72 gardening adventures with children," "In a pumpkin shell: over 20 pumpkin projects for kids" and "An apple a day! Over 20 apple projects for kids."

"Window sillies, fantasy garden, pizza garden, garbage garden and popcorn playhouse" from Applewood Seed Co., 5380 Vivian St., Arvada, Colo. 80002-1921.

"Discovery garden seed packets" from Advance Seed, P.O. Box 488, Fulton, Ky. 42041-0488.

"Keepers of life - discovering plants through Native American stories and earth activities for children," from Fulcrum Publishing, 350 Indiana St., Suite 350, Golden, Colo. 80401. "Children's garden collection," from Shepherd's Garden Seeds, 6116 Highway 9, Felton, Calif. 95018-9704.

"Scented geranium plants" from Davidson-Wilson Greenhouses, RR2 Box 168, Crawfordsville, Ind. 47933-9426.

"Fun seed for kids' seed packets," from Burpee Garden Products, 300 Park Ave., Warminster, Pa. 18974.

Organic gardening guru Eliot Coleman suggests eliminating pesticides in order to grow more nutritious crops.

He contends that such a revision is needed "to develop a biologically oriented thinking that sees our agricultural effort as participatory rather than antagonistic vis-a-vis the natural world."

He also suggests that humans consider how their health, vigor and resistance is determined by consumption of plants that are not of the highest biological quality.

"Almost 500 years ago, while contesting the mistaken Ptolemaic concept of an Earth-centered solar system, Galileo realized he would have to 'mold anew the brains of men' in order to establish another understanding," Coleman writes in a newly updated version of his "The New Organic Gardener."

"What I am proposing requires a similar remodeling. But it is a change that will allow us to eliminate all pesticides and simultaneously grow more nutritious crops."

"This isn't a question of whether pesticides, either natural or artificial, are good or bad. This theory bypasses that unwinnable debate by suggesting that pesticides are superfluous; that they were devised to prop up an agro-industrial framework which was misconceived from the start."

Most gardeners will consider most of his techniques a common-sense approach regardless of whether they agree or disagree with organic gardening.

The new version is produced by two Vermont companies, Chelsea Green Publishing of White River Junction and Gardener's Supply Co. of Burlington. The 306-page book is an 8-by-10 softcover and retails for $24.95, plus $5.75 shipping, and is available by calling 1-800-955-3370.

Social Security

By JIM MCDANIEL
Manager in Amarillo

Most people associate retirement benefits with Social Security, but many are not aware of the valuable survivors insurance protection they receive under Social Security. Consider this: For an average wage earner who dies and leaves a spouse and two children, the value of Social Security survivors benefits is equivalent to a $295,000 life insurance policy. The difference is that the Social Security survivors benefits are paid monthly and not in a lump sum.

There are some misconceptions about survivors insurance benefits. This column will answer basic questions about survivors benefits, questions that are most frequently asked.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have gout. Recently, a new doctor started me on allopurinol. Now I have purple spots on my arms, etc. Can you comment? I also take Daypro. — A.R.

ANSWER: Go back to the doctor right away. Allopurinol — which is designed to stop production of uric acid, the gout precursor — can cause skin reactions, some of which can be serious.

Daypro, an anti-inflammatory drug, can cause bruising by decreasing platelets, which take part in clotting.

For more on gout, write for my 13th pamphlet. Send your request to Dr. Donohue — No. 13, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope and $3.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

A hero is no braver than an ordinary man, but he is braver five minutes longer.

How much work do you need for survivors insurance coverage?

The number of credit you need for your family to be eligible for survivors insurance benefits depends on your age when you die. The younger a person, the less work needed to be eligible for survivors insurance. A person who dies before age 22, for example, would need only 1-1/2 years of work for coverage. And, no individual will need more than 10 years of work to be eligible for any Social Security benefit.

Who can get survivors benefits? Social Security survivors benefits can be paid to widows, widowers, children and dependent parents who meet certain requirements.

Widows or widowers can receive full benefits at age 65 or reduced benefits at age 60. Disabled widows or widowers can receive benefits at age 50-60, provided their disability began within a specified period.

Survivors benefits are payable at any age to widows or widowers who have a child of the deceased worker in their care who is under age 16 or disabled and who is receiving benefits on the worker's Social Security record.

Unmarried children under age 18 (or up to age 19 if they are attending elementary or secondary school full time) can receive benefits. A child who became disabled before age 22 can receive benefits at any age as long as he or she remains disabled.

Dependent parents may receive benefits at age 62 or older.

How much can survivors receive in benefits?

The higher the earnings of the deceased worker, the higher the benefits will be. The actual benefit amount is a percentage of the deceased worker's Social Security benefit, and ranges from 75 to 100 percent, depending on the survivor's age and type of benefit.

You can get an estimate of the survivors benefits that could be paid to your family by visiting your local Social Security office, or by calling us toll-free at 1-800-772-1213 and asking for Form SSA-7004 (Request for Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement). The statement will give you an estimate of survivors benefits, as well as estimates of your retirement and disability benefits. You should receive it within four to six weeks after you complete and return the form to us.

There is a limit to the amount of monthly benefits that can be paid to a family. The limit is generally equal to about 150 to 180 percent of the deceased's benefit rate. If the sum of the benefits payable to family members exceeds this limit, the benefits will be reduced proportionately for each family member.

Can a widow(er) receive retirement benefits in addition to survivors benefits?

You can switch to retirement benefits as early as age 62 provided you are eligible and your retirement rate is higher than your widow(er)'s rate. In some cases, a widow(er) can begin receiving survivor benefits at a reduced rate and then switch to the retirement benefits at an unreduced rate at age 65. The rules vary depending on your situation.

You should talk to a Social Security representative about the options available to you.

What happens if a surviving spouse remarries?

Generally, a spouse can't get survivors benefits if he or she remarries. But, remarriage after age 60 (50 if disabled) will not prevent benefits on your former spouse's record. And, at age 62 or older, you may get benefits on the record of your new spouse if they are higher.

Jazz pianist will celebrate 75th with concert

EDITOR'S NOTE - Dave Brubeck, jazz pianist extraordinaire, is about to turn 75 and he's as productive and innovative as ever. How will he celebrate his birthday? By performing, of course.

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) - Happy birthday, Dave Brubeck.

You'll be 75 years old Dec. 6, and you're a jazz man in a hurry.

At the piano, you are the master of time. You change tempo at will. Your compositions blend as many as four rhythms simultaneously. But when your hands fall from the keyboard, time is rushing at you. There is so much left to do.

There are the old quartet pieces, such as Paul Desmond's "Take Five," that you've played so many times, never the same way twice, without exhausting the possibilities. "There's no limit to the number of ways of doing it," you say. "Think how unlimited snowflakes are. There's always a different way to play."

There are pieces commissioned by the Pittsburgh Symphony and the Concord, Mass., Choral Society that must be completed. You showed a new part of the symphony piece to your son Chris the other day. Chris says, "It's really swinging."

There are the unfinished bits of music, scores of them stored in binders in your studio, that demand to be finished. But how can you get back to them with all the new music life keeps inspiring you to write?

When you were a child, the gaits of the horses on your father's cattle ranch in California inspired a multitude of opposing rhythms. Years later, a snatch of 9/8 rhythm overheard on an Istanbul street inspired "Blue Rondo a la Turk." And now, sitting in your car at the Westport train station for a quick interview - because there is no time for a long one - you suddenly point out the windshield. "Look at the birds right there," you say, their song suggesting a melody. These days, such inspiration comes more than ever before.

You feel like you're playing as well as ever, too, despite a disease, Dupuytren's contracture, that would pull the fingers of your right hand into a claw if it weren't under control. The only sign of it is a rare mistake with the little finger of your right hand.

You are recording more music than ever. Your new recording for Telarc, "Young Lions & Old Tigers," includes 11 duets, the rhythm of each original piece inspired by the names of the partners.

And you'll do 85 concerts this year, six weeks of them one-nighters. The bypass surgery six years ago is just a memory.

"There is so much to do," you say, "and I never know what the next phone call is going to be. It might be something I really want to do. I have to figure out how I'm going to find the time."

Others might find a 75th birthday an occasion to look back over a lifetime of achievement, but you haven't the time for such an indulgence.

Chris calls you "a real, original American musician who did a lot of different things," but adds that you are "too humble to think of that." He says you never seem to think about your legacy, about whether people will always play and listen to your music.

Four of your sons, all fine musicians in their own right, think about it, though. Chris, Dan and Matthew plan to play your music and some of their own with orchestras around the country. And Dan has just made a recording with Bill Crofut and Frederica von Stade honoring you as a composer and their mother Lola, your wife of 53 years, as a lyricist.

You have written so much music, including 200 tunes for the quartet, two ballet scores and 10 longer religious pieces. You think you have made 115 recordings, although you have lost count; and that doesn't include the bootleg copies.

You have been a true innovator of polyrhythms and polytonality in jazz.

Pianist Marian McPartland, who has known you since the 1950s and plays some of your compositions, says you have "a thread of originality unlike any other piano player." She says you "get a nice groove going and then destroy it," that you make the music exciting.

Chris finds your originality an undying source of inspiration. "I saw my father become successful doing something everybody told him was nuts," he says. "He was such an example."

You have been one of the great international ambassadors for jazz, America's greatest indigenous art form. "The Real Ambassadors," you entitled a musical you wrote for Louis Armstrong.

You have been a great popularizer, lifting jazz out of the smoky club scene and bringing it to mass audiences at college campuses. You always drew huge audiences and you still do. At a benefit concert in Detroit in November, many had to be turned away.

Your originality and huge popularity provoked the critics at times, especially after Time magazine, in 1954, made you the first jazz musician to grace its cover, and after "Time Out" became the first jazz recording to sell a million copies. One critic, reviewing a polyrhythmic performance by the Dave Brubeck Quartet, complained that the group couldn't even play in time together.

Chris thinks your name should be spoken in the same breath as composers Leonard Bernstein and Aaron Copland. He hopes you "keep living longer and longer; there's more and more appreciation" of you and your work.

So, on Dec. 6, there is a lot to celebrate. How will you mark the day? By performing, of course. Along with saxophonist Bobby Militello and your four musician sons, you will perform in your Christmas oratorio, "La Fiesta de la Posada," in Vienna, one of several performances you plan in London and Austria that week.

In London, there will be a party with all six of your children, including Darius, a keyboardist who lives in South Africa; Michael, a horse trainer who writes poems you set to music; and Catherine, an illustrator. Your nine grandchildren will be there, too. Your only disappointment is that your two great-grandchildren cannot make it.

Happy birthday, dear Dave. Happy birthday to you.

Period details make a charming new Birdie

Marc Kudisch (Broadway's Beauty and the Beast) plays the heartthrob of the 45 rpm set in a new production of Bye Bye Birdie, premiering Sunday on ABC. Jason Alexander (Seinfeld) and Vanessa Williams star, with Chynna Phillips as Kim, the lucky girl who's promised a kiss from her teen idol.

BY SUZANNE GILL

It was a time of bobby socks and Bromo Seltzer, princess phones, peashooters and plastic slip covers.

Bye Bye Birdie, airing Sunday, Dec. 3, on ABC, is strong on these details, if a little weak on casting.

Birdie began on Broadway in 1960, a hit musical inspired by Elvis Presley's induction into the armed forces — an event of cosmic importance, at least to teen-age girls.

A movie version starring Dick Van Dyke and Ann-Margret appeared in 1963, with significant alterations.

Director Gene Saks, whose TV production of Gypsy, starring Bette Midler, was a must-see event two years ago, returns now with Birdie.

Jason Alexander stars as manager Albert Peterson, whose meal ticket, rock 'n' roll heartthrob Conrad Birdie, is about to start a two-year hitch in the Army. Adding insult to injury, Albert's secretary, Rosie Alvarez (Vanessa Williams), thinks she has waited long enough for him to give up show business and make her Mrs. Peterson.

Coming to Albert's aid one last time before she quits, Rosie pulls a card from her file and announces that Kim McAfee (Chynna Phillips), president of the Conrad Birdie fan club in Sweet Apple, Ohio, is the lucky girl Conrad will kiss — on national television, if possible — as a farewell to civilian life.

This stroke of promotional genius inspires Albert, who promises to dissolve his company, marry Rosie and follow his dream to become an English teacher just as soon as Conrad hits boot camp.

The only fly in the ointment is Albert's Mamma, who hates to think of her son in another woman's arms. Tyne Daly, who starred in the Broadway revival of Gypsy, is deliciously domineering in the role, and walks away with some of the best lines.

The score is freshened up with two new songs by the original composer and lyricist, Charles Strouse and Lee Adams: "Let's Settle Down," sung by Williams, and "A Mother Doesn't Matter Anymore," written for Daly.

A third song, "A Giant Step," was written for Tommy Tune's recent touring production. And new lyrics have been written for "Spanish Rose."

The well-known hits are all intact, from the title song and "A Lot of Livin' to Do" to "Kids" and "Put on a Happy Face," in which Alexander, sporting a wayward spit curl, shows off a Gene Kelly side Seinfeld viewers probably never suspected.

Williams, who recently recorded songs for a new album release of West Side Story, is a strong, smart Rosie, though the part cries out for the young Rita Moreno.

Phillips, as star-struck Kim, is several years too old for the part, a fact which might be overlooked on stage, since her singing and acting are fine. Regrettably, though, there is no chemistry between her and Jason Gassney, who plays her hapless steady, Hugo.

Brigitta Dau, as No. 2 Birdie fan Ursula, bubbles irresistibly. Marc Kudisch, late of Broadway's Beauty and the Beast, fills the bill as swivel-hipped Birdie, and George Wendt is good as Kim's exasperated dad, if not as memorable as Paul Lynde in the movie version.

Saks has wisely resisted any temptation to update the script, which peels with period witticisms and the shtick that has become the bread and butter of situation comedy. The choreography, by Ann Reinking, fails to capitalize on a few possibilities, but the production design, by Charles Bennett, is a continual delight.

HOROSCOPES

December 3-9

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Has work been stressing you out lately? Put some of your fire-sign energy into planning a vacation. A warm climate will help you recharge. Something to look forward to helps keep momentum high. Use extra spending money to treat a friend to a night out on the town.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Stop dwelling over recent setbacks, Taurus. It's time to look towards the future. A new love interest sparks an impulsive nature midweek. Don't be shy. Finances pose problems Thursday. Grab the reigns on your tight-lipped ways before you find yourself in the poorhouse.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Thinking about rekindling an old flame? Think again if the object of your desire happens to be a Leo. You may not be the only one on his/her mind. A social gathering proves this on Tuesday. Play it safe. A little overtime this weekend goes a long, long way.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Fight the urge to crawl back into your shell this week. It's easy to play it shy over the holidays, but it's really not wise. Replace your usual holiday gloom with some social graces Thursday. A Libra is sure to take note. Self-indulgence leads to a great weekend.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Budget, budget, budget, Leo. Relinquish your credit cards to a trusted friend, preferably a Scorpio or Pisces. Instead, splurge on creativity at work -- skills needed just happen to be your greatest gifts. Show them off as only a Leo can. A little kindness goes a long way at home.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
It's time for change Virgo and you have to do what you hate most -- make choices. Work situations depend on your logical thinking. But don't resolve matters of the heart using the same means. Follow your feelings to find truth in relationships. Get in touch with your feelings.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Have you lost touch with old friends? You have only yourself to blame. Instead of feeling sorry for yourself, use this week to get in touch. Write letters and plan social activities. Delegate responsibilities at work and treat yourself to a long weekend. A romantic encounter on Saturday kicks off next week right.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Take a break from pressing commitments in the romance department. You're going through the motions lately without knowing what you want. Find out. Use free time to exercise, it will help clear your mind. Money looks great midweek. Social gatherings suit your mood.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Money takes second priority to nothing this week. Quality time at home starting on Tuesday will help replenish your good attitude and keep your cashflow out of harm's way. Have you been putting off household chores? This week's a perfect time to get them done.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
You may as well call your co-workers friends this week, because you'll be spending a lot of time with them in and out of the office. A company party means new introductions. Business lunches invite new opportunities on Thursday. Caution: don't bite off more than you can chew.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Confused about romance? Stop playing games. If you focus on specific goals, you can achieve them. Define new boundaries and don't let a self-involved Leo side-step you out of them. Months of financial planning pay off this week. Don't be afraid to treat yourself.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Hold tight to emotions this week. Your logical business side is in demand. At home, an over-indulgent Capricorn turns to you for some investment advice. Your word becomes law to this lost soul, so share your knowledge freely, but be sure you know all the facts.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

The next 12 months:
It's time for change and you might feel like too many things are flying at you from all directions. Prioritize and you won't disappoint. It's an especially good year at work, and it's wise to take as many new opportunities that come your way. Still, speak up when you need a break, or more than likely you won't get one. A ski vacation is the perfect break in April. Ask a Scorpio to join you and you're sure to make it extra-special. Romance will prove exciting this year, but it's not the best time to enter new, long term relationships. Try dating. By year's end you should have your pick of the bunch.

HIGHLIGHTS

Brian Dennehy plays an attorney who is called in to help his ex-girlfriend's stepdaughter (Fairuza Balk) when she is accused of murder in Shadow of a Doubt. The thriller airs Sunday on NBC.

Shadow of a Doubt thriller boosted by a bravura Balk

BY JOHN CROOK

She may have gotten her first big break as Dorothy in Return to Oz, but make no mistake about it: Fairuza Balk is not in Kansas anymore.

Anyone who doubts that should watch Shadow of a Doubt (Sunday, Dec. 3, on NBC), in which the former child actress gives a complex and disturbing performance as a nymphet accused of brutally murdering her wealthy father.

The TV movie stars Brian Dennehy (who co-wrote, directed and served as an executive producer as well as defense attorney Charley Sloan. Sloan, a recovering alcoholic, is more than a little down on his luck until he takes the case of ex-girlfriend Robin Harwell (Bonnie Bedelia), whose nubile stepdaughter, Angel (Balk), has been accused of murder.

Soon Charley discovers he has become mixed up with two of the most twisted females he has ever met, and his sobriety, if not his very life and sanity, is at risk.

All three stars are in representative (read: first-rate) form here, yet it is the enigmatic Angel, who changes personalities as easily as wigs, who drives the film. While Balk has long been appreciated by serious film buffs for her quirky work in small, independent films such as the acclaimed Gas Food Lodging, she is not a "money name" to most producers.

Still, when he got ready to cast the role of Angel, Dennehy, who had worked with Balk in 1993 on the TV movie Murder in the Heartland, had no doubt whom he wanted to hire.

"When this came up, she was the first person I wanted to play that part and I was lucky enough to get her," he says. "I had to fight for her, quite honestly, to get her. Everybody was a little nervous about her, because she's done these independent parts and she hasn't exactly been a force on television."

"I knew that she was an extraordinary actress and that it was going to take an extraordinary actress to play this part, to do that scene on the stand, which must convince the audience that she is telling the truth. ... Yet she has to have an ambivalence," he explains.

"Boy, she delivers the goods!"

TV PIPELINE

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: Did Lisa Hartman ever play Tabitha on Bewitched? If not, who did? -J.D.M., Danville, Ky.

A: Hartman (Black) played Tabitha Stephens in a Bewitched spin-off called Tabitha, which ran on ABC briefly during the 1977-78 season. On Bewitched, Tabitha as an infant was played by twins Erin and Diane Murphy. Erin later played the role on her own.

Q: Is it true George Clooney of ER starred in a sitcom called ER in the early '80s? -Gary Garcas, Long Beach, Calif.

A: ER, which ran on CBS during the 1984-85 season, starred Elliott Gould and Mary McDonnell (High Society). Clooney played an inexperienced young physician named Ace, but was only a featured player in the large ensemble cast.

Q: Whatever happened to that fine actress, Nancy Marchand, from Lou Grant? -Maurice Steeves, Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada.

A: Since Grant, Marchand has appeared in several plays and diverse films such as Regarding Henry and the original Naked Gun. She is in the new big-screen remake of Sabrina with Harrison Ford and Julia Ormond.

Q: Why was Highlander taken off the air? Where can I write to the production offices? -Hanna Jaeckel, Bridgeport, Conn.

A: Evidently your local channel dumped it, because the show is still airing new episodes. The address is Highlander, c/o Rysher Entertainment, 3400 Riverside Drive, Suite 600, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Q: During what years did Guns, Smokey air? How long was Dennis Weaver on the show? Was Amanda Blake on it from the first? -Mrs. Opal Blakeman, Ashland, Ill.

A: Guns, Smokey premiered on Sept. 10,

Lisa Hartman Black

1955, and ran on CBS through Sept. 1, 1975. Weaver played loyal deputy Chester Goode until he left the series in 1964. Blake played Kitty Russell until she left in 1974, after which Miss Hannah (played by Fran Ryan) took over the Long Branch.

Q: Please tell me the name (and singer) of the Cheers theme song? Was it released commercially? -R.M.J., Burlington, N.C.

A: "Where Everybody Knows Your Name," written by Judy Hart Angelo and Gary Portnoy (who also sang it), was released as a single during the show's run.

A record store that handles special orders can help you find it.

Q: Who sang the theme song from TV's In the Heat of the Night? I say B.B. King, but my friends say Quincy Jones. A dinner is riding on this. -E.L.H., Holly Hills, Fla.

A: Looks as if everyone goes Dutch treat. It was Bill Champlin.

SOAP TALK

John Ingle of GH is living the good life

BY CANDACE HAVENS

There are at least a few men in America who might think a job that required kissing Cindy Crawford wouldn't be all that bad. John Ingle, who plays Edward Quartermaine on General Hospital, is inclined to agree with them.

Ingle, who has a new commercial coming out with Crawford, says those ads can help bridge generation gaps.

"Those lipstick commercials have made me quite popular with my grandson and his friends," he says with a laugh. "In fact, he called me to come to his school and talk on career day about acting. He told me that if I wanted to bring Cindy Crawford with me it would be OK with him."

While his commercial work is a nice financial bonus, Ingle is absolutely delighted with his duties on GH. "Daytime is, I think, one of the best places for an actor to work," he says. "The constant pace and learning the dialogue alone make it quite challenging."

"Edward is this great, bellowing man who is passionate about business and his family," Ingle says. "But he gets no respect. In a scene recently, Edward was making his opinion known and doing it rather loudly. The entire Quartermaine clan turned around and shouted 'Shut up, Edward!' and, being Edward, he was totally unaffected."

For more than 30 years Ingle taught acting at Hollywood High School and at Beverly Hills High School. Richard Dreyfuss, Albert Brooks, Julie Kavner, Nicolas Cage, Barbara Hershey, Stefanie Powers, Swoosie Kurtz, David Schwimmer and Linda

Evans are some of the students to whom he taught acting.

"It is gratifying to know that I helped these people," he says.

With a large family to support, it wasn't until he had retired from teaching that Ingle decided to pursue acting full time.

He says he plans to work on GH for as long as they will let him. "It is such a wonderful place to work. I can't imagine leaving," he says.

Here's a casual clothing collection that the whole

The attitude's decidedly coastal with a hearty dash of the great outdoors in the designs.
The quality's apparent by the heft of the fabrics and the extra sturdy seams. You know it means honest-to-
