Brush quits as police chief

Caydon Brush, Hereford police chief, submitted his resignation Tuesday to City Manager Chester Nolen.

The 58-year-old Brush has served as police chief since 1969 and has been with the department for 31 years.

The resignation is effective July 31.

"It has been my honor and privilege to serve in this capacity and the other ranks before being appointed to this position," Brush wrote in his letter of resignation.

"I sincerely appreciate all that you have done for me along with all of the other officials and citizens before you," continued Brush.

Brush said Wednesday that he had no comment about the resignation, other than his statement in his letter of resignation.

In the letter to Nolen, Brush said, "It is only by the Grace of God that I have remained here this long. I pray that God will give my family and I grace to accept all of this as being from His hand.

"I wish you well, along with the mayor, city commissioners, and all of the citizens of Hereford and Deaf Smith County. May God bless you all."

Nolen said that Police Capt. Pat Michael will serve as senior officer in charge of the 28-person department when Brush's resignation becomes effective. Michael will continue in that capacity until a new chief is chosen, probably about 90 days, Nolen said.

The city manager said a job description will be developed and the position will be advertised. He will begin accepting applications July 1. Currently, the position pays $33,708 annually.

Nolen expects to submit a candidate for the position to the city commission for interview, if the commission desires. By terms of the city charter, the commission must approve the appointment.

Candidates hitting the air like never before

WASHINGTON (AP) - The best place to catch the presidential candidates this summer may be with Oprah, Phil or Larry King. Or even on MTV.

Hoping to cut through voter alienation with politics-as-usual and avoid the filter of the news media, President Bush's two challengers are on the television talk show circuit and are staging their own shows to meet millions of voters at once.

It's a tactic Perot has used to surge to the top of public opinion polls while sitting out the primary season. Clinton used free television to save his campaign when it was troubled by character questions and is using it now to revive it before next month's Democratic convention.

Bush is reluctant to use talk and entertainment shows for fear of seeming un-presidential.

Clinton spent an hour taking calls from viewers Tuesday morning on NBC-TV's "Today" show. Perot takes the same stage Thursday.

"It could be the new major political forum of the 1990s," says political newsletter publisher Stuart Rothenberg.

In the past week alone, for example, Clinton has appeared on the "Arsenio Hall Show," "Larry King Live" and "Today." On Friday night, he's buying the first of several prime-time network slots for a national town meeting, and he's appearing for two hours next week on "CBS This Morning." There are even plans to appear Tuesday on the rock-video cable network MTV.

"To do a talk show instead of beaming 30-second ads at the voters, I think that's a good idea," Clinton said. "People are tired of being manipulated."

"People are tired of being manipulated."
--Bill Clinton

While other candidates sped back and forth across the country wooing voters primary by primary, Perot was a staple on the TV circuit, dropping by "Donahue," "Larry King Live" and C-SPAN, among others, and stole the campaign spotlight.

"Perot has been driving the process just by his selection of programs and by the way he has conducted himself on them," said media consultant Dan Payne. "When people are shopping around the channels by remote control it seems impossible not to bump into Ross Perot."

Perot has tentative agreements to buy prime-time slots on ABC and CBS on his birthday, June 27, and is negotiating with NBC in hopes of locking up the same half hour on all three commercial networks.

So far, the only candidate bucking the trend is Bush.

But wary of the exposure Perot and Clinton are getting, Bush aides say the president likely will accept a few invitations and do more local television interviews.

"Everything is under consideration," said Bush campaign spokeswoman Torie Clarke.

The approach has changed the dynamics of the 1992 campaign as the candidates have appealed directly to voters instead of through a news media they criticize for focusing too much on polls and personalities and too little on issues.

"I think anything you can do to be directly accountable to the voters is a good thing to do," Clinton said after his "Today" appearance.

Clinton started the experiment with technology and television in New Hampshire, distributing 20,000 videotapes to targeted households and twice buying statewide TV time for voter forums when his campaign was struggling.

PEROT

But Perot has waged practically his entire campaign on the air. He raised the idea of running in February on King's program on CNN, setting off a volunteer movement to get him on general-election ballots.

Whether the summer boom of appearances will work is still a subject of debate.

"I have great doubts that people are really all that interested at this point," said Rothenberg. "At the same time, candidates have got to do something to become more visible."

Congress debating Rep. Stenholm's budget amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) - As the clock winds down, backers of a balanced-budget constitutional amendment are trying to frame the debate in terms of the future of the nation and its children.

Standing in front of a collage of photographs of hundreds of children during a news conference Tuesday, a group of supporters said passage of the amendment is crucial to the next generation.

"We are literally mortgaging the future of our country and our children away," said Rep. Chet Edwards, D-Waco.

Backers of the amendment, which was viewed as practically a shoo-in, are making a last push for publicity as lobbying against the measure has increased in recent weeks.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, who crafted the leading version being considered by the House, predicted Tuesday that the amendment would pass the House.

"We still have a solid 290 votes as of now and I do not believe it is going to change," the Stamford Democrat said.

Stenholm had earlier predicted he could rally 305 votes, but downgraded his assessment as pressure from the House leadership and special interests mounted.

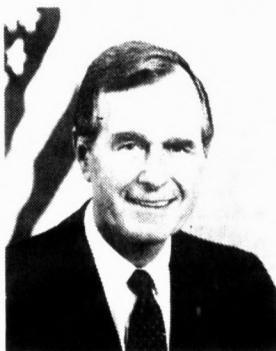

The proposed amendment, which requires two-thirds approval by both chambers of Congress, has drawn the fire of many special interest groups who contend it would do nothing to achieve a balanced budget.

"We are being barraged right now by every special interest in Washington to kill this bill," said Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth.

"I believe now it's going to be a very close call in both bodies."

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., predicted the proposed amendment would find enough votes on Capitol Hill.

"If you don't vote for this, you cannot really stand very tall and say you are for a balanced budget," he said.

BUSH

Balanced-budget amendments have been rejected three times by Congress in the last decade. But its supporters have gained strength this year because of the recession and the anticipated record $400 billion federal deficit.

If Congress doesn't take action to cut deficit spending, the country will have a $6.7 trillion deficit by 2000 - over $2.5 trillion above current levels, Geren said.

Stenholm's plan would forbid the government from spending more money than it expects to collect each year in revenues. Both houses of Congress could approve deficit spending by votes of three-fifths majorities.

The president would have to submit balanced budgets, something never done by Presidents Bush and Reagan, who support the proposal.

Bush, who called a rare primetime news conference last week to tout the amendment, has been telephoning fence-sitters in the House to line up support for the measure.

The amendment, which has become an election-year priority for Bush and congressional conservatives, will be voted on Thursday by the House. The Senate is expected to consider the measure later this month.

County sells 72,000 tickets in first week

Residents of Deaf Smith County averaged buying almost five lottery tickets per person in the first week of the Texas Lottery.

Texas Lottery officials reported today that $72,000 worth of $1 tickets were sold in the first week of the lottery. With the county's population just over 15,000, the average is between 4 and 5 tickets per person.

That is behind the state average of about six lottery tickets per person in the first week.

Other area counties were also around five tickets per person. Oldham County, however, was far above that average with 10,000 tickets sold the first week. Other county totals included:

- Castro County, 41,000 tickets.
- Parmer County, 51,000
- Randall, 318,000
- Potter, 912,000
- Hale, 61,000
- Lamb, 41,000
- Lubbock, 2.4 million.

Ticket sales are expected to decrease somewhat and level off during the course of the "Lone Star Millions" game. In the fall, Texas will have another scratch-off type game along with the lotto drawing.

Air fare wars moving to courtroom

NEW YORK (AP) - The air fare wars escalated into a court battle as Continental filed an antitrust suit against American, characterizing Chairman Robert L. Crandall as an unreformed price-fixer seeking to kill off weak competitors.
 American, the nation's largest airline, denied the charges made public late Tuesday, saying it has been seeking through recent pricing actions to reverse its huge losses and turn a profit.
 Continental, in U.S. District Court in Galveston, Texas, accused American of "predatory acts with the direct intention of eliminating competition from the air transportation industry." American's recent fare moves will not enable it to make money unless one or more rivals are grounded, Continental claims.
 The most recent action by American was a half-price fare sale that ended last Friday but is expected to cost airlines millions of dollars this summer.
 Continental, which filed the suit late Monday, asked for triple damages permitted by federal antitrust law and a court order to stop American from engaging in unfair pricing.
 In its filing, Continental referred to a Justice Department suit in the early 1980s charging Crandall with price-fixing.
 Continental's court papers included the transcript of a telephone conversation in which Crandall, then American's president, told Braniff president Howard Putnam that if

Artists hail ruling for 'free speech' by federal judge

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new court ruling is being hailed as a major free-speech victory for artists - at least in theory. But partisans on both sides of the issue say it doesn't mean the National Endowment for the Arts will have to tear up its canvas and alter its new, conservative design.
 The federal arts agency, long a target of the religious right and congressional conservatives, has become a hotbed of controversy in this election year.
 On Tuesday, a federal judge in Los Angeles struck down as unconstitutional the decency standard mandated for the NEA by Congress. U.S. District Judge A. Wallace Tashima rejected the Bush administration's argument that the standard was needed to help determine which artists should receive grants from a limited pool of money.
 Tashima, ruling in a lawsuit by four performance artists denied grants, said the "general standards of decency" clause violated the First and Fifth amendments to the Constitution by being too broadly worded and too vague.
 Then-NEA Chairman John Frohnmayer vetoed performance artist grants in June 1990 for Tim Miller of Santa Monica, Calif., Holly Hughes and Karen Finley of New York and John Fleck of Los Angeles.
 Finley has appeared partially nude and spread chocolate on her body to symbolize the degradation of women; Hughes concentrates on lesbian issues; Fleck has appeared naked and during one performance urinated on stage; and Miller's performances focus on homosexuality and AIDS.
 But last November, Frohnmayer granted $8,000 fellowships to Miller and Hughes.
 The White House fired Frohnmayer in February after Bush's challenger in the Republican primaries, Patrick Buchanan, attacked the NEA for funding "filthy" art.
 Artists and civil libertarians praised Tuesday's court decision as a victory of art over political pressure. Conservatives said it was illogical and likely to be overturned on appeal.
 Both sides agreed the ruling won't stop the conservative trend set in motion this spring by the new acting chairwoman of the NEA, Anne-Imelda Radice.

Pistol fired after squirt by water gun

NEW YORK (AP) - A man angry about being sprayed with a high-powered squirt gun returned fire with a semiautomatic pistol, wounding a teen-ager and an older friend, police said.
 The gunman fled after the shooting Monday night in Harlem, police said.
 "It was a hot day and we were just having fun," said 29-year-old Maurice Anderson, who was shot twice in the leg. "I don't see why he got so mad."
 Anderson and 16-year-old Richard Cooke, who was shot in the back, were hospitalized in stable condition.
 Police around the country have received complaints of "drive-by" drenchings. Some of the plastic guns can hold almost half a gallon of water and propel it 50 feet or more.
 Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn on Monday called for a ban on one brand, the Super Soaker, after a 15-year-old who walked into an argument that broke out during a squirt-gun fight was slain with a real gun.
 A Boston woman last week told police she and her 4-year-old child were sprayed in the eyes with bleach by two youths with water guns.

Acne advice just for teens

"Zits." The word is guaranteed to strike terror into the teenage heart. Acne is often a part of growing up, but it isn't much comfort for a "victim" to know that a lot of people suffer facial breakouts during their teenage years.

Blame Your Genes. Whether you will develop acne and with what severity is determined genetically. If your parents suffered with acne in their teens, chances are you will too.

Don't Blame Your Diet. What you eat and drink will make no difference to your acne. Acne is affected by changing hormones. The only over-the-counter remedies for acne that may be helpful are those that contain benzoyl peroxide.

Keep your face clean. Wash your face at least twice a day with mild soap and rinse thoroughly. You don't need to spend a lot of money on special cleansers. Soap works just as well as other products to cut down on bacteria.

Committee recommends Mariners' sale to Nintendo

NEW YORK (AP) - A group led by the president of Japan's Nintendo Co. won all but final approval to buy the Seattle Mariners on the condition he stay out of the day-to-day running of the baseball team.

Approval of the $125 million deal would give Japanese investors their first major league sports team in the United States.

Hiroshi Yamauchi, president of Nintendo Co. Ltd. of Kyoto, first made an offer in January, amid a wave of Japan-bashing that followed President Bush's trip to Japan.

Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent said then that he doubted the offer to buy into the national pastime would be approved.

But on Tuesday, a committee of team owners voted unanimously to recommend the sale, virtually assuring approval today. Approval by owners of 11 of the 14 American League teams and 7 of the 12 National League teams is needed.

The committee recommendation came after Yamauchi, who is contributing $75 million to the deal, agreed to give up operating control and accept control of less than 50 percent of the stock, instead of the 60 percent proposed earlier.

Seattle-area investors would run the team's day-to-day business and control its voting stock. Yamauchi's power would be limited to decisions involving the relocation or sale of the ballclub, the baseball commissioner said.

"This venture is not going to be controlled outside North America. This venture is going to be controlled in Seattle," Vincent said.

John Ellis, chairman of Puget Sound Power & Light Co. in Bellevue, Wash., would be the Mariners' chief executive, with final say over budgets, banking and loan agreements, leases, broadcast contracts and baseball operations.

Christopher Larson of Microsoft Corp. and John McCaw, a director of McCaw Communications Cos., would be major shareholders.

Nintendo, the world's largest video-game company, has its U.S. offices in Redmond, Wash., a Seattle suburb.

Yamauchi said in a statement in Tokyo that he would not comment until after the final vote.

Jeff Smulyan, chairman of Emmis Broadcasting Corp. in Indianapolis, put the team up for sale in December, two years after buying it for about $77 million. Of the $125 million, $106 million will go to buy the club and the rest to run it.

Yamauchi's offer came less than a month after baseball owners rejected a proposal to allow overseas investment of up to 37 percent. Canadian ownership is allowed.

City officials feared that if Yamauchi's offer was rejected, the financially troubled team would move to St. Petersburg, Fla. And players were weary of the uncertainty.

"It's great news for the players and the fans," second baseman Harold Reynolds said. "I was a little surprised, but it was a good surprise. It really eases our minds both on and off the field."

"I'm relieved," Smulyan said. "We gave it everything we had. It's time for other people."

Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf said the sale would not guarantee that the Mariners would stay in Seattle.

"Unless this new ownership raises revenues substantially, it will lose a lot of money," he said. "In effect, baseball is telling Seattle: 'You wanted this new ownership. We're letting them in, now support them.'"

The Mariners, last in the AL West, never had a winning season until 1991, and never drew more than 1.4 million fans until 1990 and 1991.

Summer league team blasts Tulia

Turning point

Hereford catcher Russ Watts tags out a Tulia baserunner at the plate after pitcher Ray Hastings picked him off third. Hereford wasn't playing well before the play, but went on to win 12-2.

By JAY PEDEN

Ralph Holguin's bases-loaded double in the first inning chased home three runs and launched Hereford to a 12-2 win over Tulia. The summer league game at Whiteface Field was ended after six innings by the 10-run rule.

Hereford started out ugly. Tulia's leadoff batter scored on three errors, and the second batter reached third on a fourth error. The game turned around when pitcher Ray Hastings picked the runner off third. Third baseman Richard Sanderson had the ball before the runner could even dive. The runner ran for home, but Sanderson threw to catcher Russ Watts, who made the tag for the out. Hastings struck out the next two batters.

In the bottom of the first, Stacey Sanders walked with one out, stole second, went to third on a bad pickoff throw and scored on Jerry Rincon's groundout. With two outs and nobody on, Tab Hathaway restarted the rally with a line drive single. Watts and Sanderson walked to load the bases, setting up Holguin. His towering shot to straightaway left field hit the fence on the fly and missed being a grand slam by about a foot. Hereford led 4-1.

Hereford kept scoring in the second. Chris Brummett led off with a walk, Rene Cano singled and Sanders walked to load the bases. Hathaway walked, forcing in two runs, and Ruben Ramos, batting for Sanderson, singled through the right side to bring two more runs home.

Holguin, Shama Hernandez and Brummett followed with consecutive walks, the last two forcing in runs. Hereford led 9-1.

Tulia picked up another run in the third on a walk and a single. Hereford couldn't score again until the sixth. Watts led off with a single, and Hernandez courtesy-ran for him. Sanderson, back in the game, was hit by a pitch. A double steal put Hernandez in position to score on a balk. Holguin's bloop double to right plated Sanderson, and J.J. Rico's bloop single to the same spot scored Holguin for the game-ending run. Tulia did not get an out in the sixth.

Hastings allowed only one hit in going the distance. He struck out 10 and walked five.

The win was Hereford's first in three games and avenged a loss to Tulia Saturday. Hereford plays Saturday in a tripleheader at Randall. Hereford plays Frenship at 3 p.m. and Randall at 5:30.

A Centennial

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)- The University of Georgia is celebrating its football centennial this year.

The school played its first football game on Jan. 30, 1892. A state historic marker was placed on the north campus to honor the event.

The Georgia Department of Natural Resources provided the marker, which was placed near the university chapel, overlooking the site of the initial game.

Fleming shuts down Rangers for ninth win

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

While Dave Fleming enjoys his amazing run for the Seattle Mariners, the 22-year-old left-hander is starting to wonder how much longer it will continue.

"It's getting a bit ridiculous," Fleming said after beating the Texas Rangers 2-1 Tuesday night. "(Rafael) Palmeiro hit three shots that went for outs. That's how it's been this year and now I'm at 9-1."

That obviously tells part of the story. But the simplest part is the one Mariners manager Bill Plummer likes.

"Fleming has been our stopper," Plummer said after the Mariners broke a four-game losing streak. "When we need a win, he goes out and does it."

"He's been amazing this year. The thing about him is he gets outs."

Perhaps the biggest came on a defensive gem by Seattle first baseman Pete O'Brien. He made a great stop on Palmeiro with the bases loaded to end the second inning.

"OB kept us from winning the game," Palmeiro said of the former Ranger. "That was three RBIs away from us. It would have been a different ballgame."

It almost was because Todd Burns matched Fleming pitch for pitch.

Although he didn't get a decision, Burns allowed just one hit while striking out five and walking one in six innings. He was perfect for the first five innings.

In the game at Arlington, Texas, Mike Schooler, the third Seattle pitcher, got the final out for his 11th save.

Burns, making his first start since 1990, turned the game over to the bullpen in the seventh. Kenny Rogers (1-3) took the loss.

Indians 6, Tigers 1

Glenallen Hill had two homers and Denis Boucher his best major league performance, allowing three hits in eight shutout innings for visiting Cleveland.

Boucher (2-1) walked four and struck out four. Detroit's Frank Tanana (4-5) allowed six runs in 2 1-3 innings on seven hits - including three homers.

Athletics 6, Brewers 1

Kevin Campbell allowed one hit over six innings in his first major league start, and watched Oakland rap out 15 at Milwaukee.

Campbell (2-0), was getting his first start after 20 major league relief appearances. The 27-year-old right-hander had not started since 1988 with Vero Beach in the Florida State League.

Oakland reached Ron Robinson (0-2) for two runs in the first.

Reardon came on in the ninth inning to get his 13th save this season and the 340th of his career.

Baltimore's Jose Mesa (2-6) retired 21 of the first 22 batters he faced. But after Mike Greenwell and Ellis Burks hit consecutive singles to open the Boston eighth, Todd Frohworth came on. Tom Brunansky, Tony Pena and Jody Reed drove in seventh-inning runs.

White Sox 4, Angels 2

Frank Thomas had a homer among three hits and drove in three runs to lead Greg Hibbard and Chicago.

The victory was the third straight for the White Sox, who beat Julio Valera (2-5). The visiting Angels dropped their fifth straight.

Hibbard (6-4) allowed seven hits, walked none and struck out three in 7 2-3 innings.

Hershiser beats Braves, 3-2

By The Associated Press

Neither one was around for the finish. Neither one expected to be - or was particularly bothered by it.

Orel Hershiser, with his strongest performance since reconstructive shoulder surgery in April 1990, pitched 8 1-3 innings in beating the Atlanta Braves 3-2 Tuesday night.

The Los Angeles Dodgers' star pitcher, who hasn't lost to the Braves since Aug. 8, 1987, allowed four hits with three strikeouts and two walks. It was the first time he went more than 7 1-3 innings since returning last May 29 from the surgery.

Hershiser was replaced by John Candelaria with David Justice at the plate.

"I think it was the right call," said Hershiser. "It was uncharted waters for me."

lot, but I expected a lot from myself. It was my concern not to tax the bullpen," Righetti said. "I wanted to keep the team within striking distance and have a chance to win the ballgame."

He didn't. The Giants fell 3-2 as Bill Doran doubled home Hal Morris with the winning run in the eighth off Rod Beck.

At Los Angeles, Hershiser backed manager Tommy Lasorda's decision to bring in Candelaria to face David Justice.

"Justice is one of the hottest hitters on their club right now," Hershiser said.

Justice doubled.

But Roger McDowell retired the last two batters for his ninth save.

Kal Daniels' homer in the eighth won it.

Cincinnati won it after blowing a 2-0 lead.

With one out in the ninth, Morris tripled to right field. Cory Snyder misplayed the ball and originally was given an error, which was changed to a hit after the game by the official scorer. Doran lined a 1-2 pitch off reliever Rod Beck for the winning run.

Padres 5, Astros 4

At San Diego, rookie Dan Walters knocked in three runs and had his first major league homer. He drove in the decisive run with the bases loaded and one out in the eighth.

Walters hit a grounder to third baseman Ken Caminiti, who tried to turn a double play. Walters beat the relay throw to first, allowing Gary Sheffield to score the tie-breaking run.

innings and allowed just one earned run to lower his earned run average to 2.00, best in the National League. But he didn't get the win when the Cubs tied the game in the ninth off Lee Smith, who blew his third save opportunity in his last four chances.

Pirates 5, Phillies 3

At Philadelphia, the Pirates snapped a six-game road slide as Andy Van Slyke drove in three runs with a single and double.

Pittsburgh snapped a 3-3 tie on Van Slyke's two-out, two-run double in the sixth, set up when shortstop Dale Sveum failed to touch second base on a force play for an error.

Phillies manager Jim Fregosi was ejected by umpire Joe West during a vigorous protest of Sveum's error.

Blue Jays 2, Yankees 1

Toronto's Candy Maldonado hit one of the longest home runs in the history of the new Yankee Stadium and snapped a seventh-inning tie with a double.

Juan Guzman (7-1) didn't have his good stuff, but gave up only one run and four hits in seven innings.

Maldonado became only the fifth player to hit a home run into the center field bleachers since Yankee Stadium reopened in 1976 with a 451-foot shot off Tim Leary (4-5) with two outs in the second.

Twins 4, Royals 2

Kent Hrbek hit his 250th career home run and Bill Krueger remained unbeaten as Minnesota ended visiting Kansas City's six-game winning streak.

Mike Magnante (2-5) went eight innings for the longest outing of his career. Krueger (6-0) allowed four hits in eight innings, striking out two and walking three.

Also in a strange place was Dave Righetti, who made his first start in nine years.

Righetti, owner of the major league record for saves by a left-hander with 251, lasted five innings, giving up three hits and two runs and striking out four. He threw 58 pitches, 41 for strikes.

"I don't think people expected a

Reds 3, Giants 2

At San Francisco, Righetti made his first start since Sept. 16, 1983, when he pitched for the New York Yankees. Since then, he made 522 consecutive relief appearances, with his longest outing at four innings on May 1, 1985, with the Yankees.

Cardinals 6, Cubs 5, 11 innings

At St. Louis, Todd Zeile singled home the winning run with two outs in the 11th. Ozzie Smith singled and Bernard Gilkey followed with his fourth hit of the game. One out later, Zeile singled off Bob Scanlan (1-3) to drive in Smith.

Bob Tewksbury pitched eight

Mets 6, Expos 5

At Montreal, John Franco blew a save opportunity for the first time all year as his 15-inning scoreless streak ended when the Expos got four runs in the eighth. But Franco retired Montreal in the ninth after Chico Walker's bases-loaded single provided the winning run.

Ryan still looking for win

ARLINGTON (AP) - At 45, Nolan Ryan still throws 97 mph and he still packs the house.

But this season he is winless and the only distinction he's added to his incredible-career is becoming this century's losingest pitcher.

Getting victory No. 315 has become one of the most difficult tasks in Ryan's 26-year major league career. His next try comes Friday at Oakland when the Rangers face Dave Stewart (4-5).

In his last start, the Twins beat Ryan 6-1 when he allowed five runs on six hits in six sloppy innings. He walked four, struck out five and hit a batter in his first start since June 1, when he left the game with a strained left hamstring after throwing just 10 pitches against the New York Yankees.

"The idle time might have hurt him some," Kelly said. "But he still looked pretty good. And I'd hate to be the next team to face him."

In his loss to the Twins Saturday, Ryan threw a season-high 136 pitches, 52 of which were balls. That was Ryan's highest pitch total since throwing 147 times against Milwaukee on July 31, 1990, his 300th victory.

His highest total last year was a 131-pitch effort against Cleveland on April 26. In his next start, he threw his seventh no-bitter against Toronto.

Ryan, who has never gone this deep into a season without winning, is 0-2 with a 4.65 ERA in nine starts this year.

Texas' overworked bullpen has blown three Ryan leads this season, leaving him winless in 11 starts since Sept. 25, when he beat Seattle.

Saturday's defeat was the 280th of his career, breaking a tie with Hall of Famer Walter Johnson and putting him third on the all-time list behind Hall of Famers Cy Young (313) and Pud Galvin (309), both of whom had some of their defeats in 19th century.

Ryan is showing signs of frustration at going through April and May and into June without a victory.

He argued with home plate umpire Jim Joyce about the size of his strike zone Saturday. But after the game, Ryan refused to say he got squeezed on the low pitches. "I don't have a comment on that," he said.

Minnesota pitcher John Smiley did. "He's been around 20-some years, so maybe he should have gotten some of those calls," Smiley said.

Ryan has been clocked at 97 mph this year, harder than he's thrown in two seasons. The pop in his fastball is still there, only the luck isn't.

"I don't care what his age is, it's still tough to find someone with his kind of stuff," Texas pitching coach Tom House said. "The sample of 45-year-olds that throw 95 miles per hour is a sample of one, and every day I'm around him it's a pretty special experience."

"He had three of four starts there where he threw 100-plus pitches at 95 miles per hour, and kept us in ballgames," House added. "And that's all you can expect from a pitcher."

Trouble is, Ryan's been so good for so long, people have come to expect much, much more.

They used to come to the ballpark wanting to see another no-hitter so they could tell their children they saw a piece of history. And seven times he obliged.

They reveled in his blazing fastballs and hollered for another strikeout. And umpires bellowed "Strike Three!" 5,556 times.

After 26 years, one of the hardest things for baseball fans to imagine is the time Nolan Ryan will walk off the mound and never come back.

They're packing the ballparks across the league whenever he's scheduled to pitch, knowing they may never get to see him throw again.

Forget the no-hitters. Forget the strikeouts. All they want now is to see him win. Another victory, one more they can tell their children about.

Pippen-Kersey matchup pivotal in finals

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Portland's shot goes up and Jerome Kersey prepares to do what he does best - crash the boards. Out of the corner of his eye, however, he sees No. 33 in red, standing on the wing.

Kersey's dilemma: Go for the rebound and risk letting Scottie Pippen run free if the Chicago Bulls come up with the ball? Or suppress his natural instincts and get back on defense?

In the split second it takes Kersey to make that decision, it's too late. The shot is off, Pippen is taking the outlet pass and the Bulls have the offensive advantage against Kersey's Trail Blazers.

"You have to take a look where Pippen is on the court," Kersey said Tuesday. "If you don't get the rebound and they get it to him, it creates a lot of things for their other players."

The Michael Jordan-Clyde Drexler matchup has gotten the ink, but the Pippen-Kersey matchup has been at least as important in the NBA Finals.

Pippen is winning and so are the Bulls, who lead the best-of-7 series 2-1 going into tonight's game.

"I wouldn't say that Pippen is dominating Kersey," Jordan said.

"But I would say he's outplaying him."

Though they're both 6-foot-7 small forwards, Pippen and Kersey play very differently.

Pippen handles the ball more for Chicago than either Jordan or point guard John Paxson does and leads the team in assists. Kersey is the second-leading offensive rebounder in Portland history and a better all-around board man than 7-foot center Kevin Duckworth.

In the Finals, Pippen is averaging 19 points on 45 percent shooting, with 6.7 assists and 8.8 rebounds per game. Kersey's norms are 10 points on 41 percent shooting, 2.7 assists and 9.0 rebounds.

"It's a hard comparison to make because he's going to get a lot more opportunities with the ball than I am," Kersey said. "I'm not the go-to guy on this team. I'm the fourth or fifth option in our half-court offense."

Offensively, Kersey is at his best when the Trail Blazers are running. He fills passing lanes as well as any NBA forward.

But Kersey, who averaged 18.6 points in the previous playoff rounds against Utah and Phoenix, has been victimized by the Trail Blazers' failure to quicken the pace against the Bulls.

"I've been able to do what I want against him, make him catch the ball in uncomfortable positions and make him try to drive," Pippen said. "He's one of the guys who can really spark his team if he gets running. I'm trying not to let him run free."

Said Kersey: "If I could just get into the open court early, maybe get to the offensive boards, it would help me a lot. If we have good ball movement, it makes it easier for me to lose my man and get to the offensive boards. If we're standing around, like we were in Game 3, I'm at a disadvantage."

Defensively, "it's difficult for Jerome," teammate Terry Porter said. "Jerome's not used to guarding the man with the ball," Porter said. "Pippen presents problems that Jerome doesn't usually have to deal with."

Kersey's matchup problem with Pippen is a microcosm of Portland's matchup problems with the Bulls. Except for a brief stretch in Game 2, Chicago has dominated the series by winning almost every individual contest.

Jordan is far more comfortable and accomplished in the half-court game than Drexler is. The Bulls' Horace Grant has battled Buck Williams evenly on the boards. Bill Cartwright and the rest of Chicago's aggressive defense has kept Duckworth from establishing an inside game.

Shea won't follow Bo, Deion

AUSTIN (AP) - University of Texas football recruit Shea Morenz says he will either play quarterback for the Longhorns or baseball for the Toronto Blue Jays.

He won't try both.

In an interview with the Austin American-Statesman published Tuesday, Morenz said he appreciates the fact that Texas football coaches aren't pressuring him to make a quick decision.

"Nobody has to sell Texas to me," he said.

Morenz of San Angelo, is considered one of the nation's top quarterback recruits. A week ago, he was drafted as an outfielder by Toronto in the sixth round. This spring, Morenz batted .507 with seven home runs and 25 RBI and was named the 25th-best prospect in the draft by Baseball America magazine.

There had been speculation he might go higher, perhaps even as high as the top pick in the draft, but his desire to play college football pushed him to the sixth round.

NCAA rules would allow him to play professional baseball and participate in college football if he paid for his football scholarship. But Morenz says it will be one sport or the other.

"It would be really difficult to do (both). I can't try to do both for the simple fact I'd get too far behind. Those guys (in baseball) devote a year to their sport. They play year-round," he said.

Morenz said his father would negotiate a baseball contract for him.

He said he talked briefly with Toronto last week, but he isn't sure which way he is leaning and has no idea what kind of salary Toronto would have to offer to win his signature.

Although Texas freshmen football players are scheduled to report Aug. 7, Morenz said he hasn't set a timetable for a decision.

"I'm not really sure, although I do know that I value my education. It will be hard for me to give up my education and give up football," he said.

"I don't know what I'll do. I don't think there's such a thing as a gut feeling. Everybody has a different opinion. The people close to me just want me to do what's best for me," Morenz said.

If he does choose Texas, Morenz likely will play baseball and football for the Longhorns. He said he has talked with Texas baseball coach Cliff Gustafson.

Some Excuse

ATLANTA (AP) - Lloyd Winston, basketball coach at Emory, has heard his share of excuses from players who were late for practice. But he heard a new one, at least for him, from one of his players, Kevin Viel.

When asked by the coach what detained him, Viel explained: "I had to stop by the lab to fill the electron microscope with liquid nitrogen."

The nonplussed Winston could only comment: "In my day all we ever did in a lab was to see who could make the loudest explosion."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 22-year-old mother of three. At the age of 15, I was physically and mentally abused by my 22-year-old boyfriend. When I was barely 17, I was left alone with two of his children. He has not been seen or heard from since. At the age of 20, I was still a fool, got pregnant again and had a third baby. Of course that relationship didn't last long either.

Recently I met my Mr. Right. He is gentle and kind, and most of all, he understands what I have been through and does everything in his power to make me feel loved and secure. He loves my children as if they were his own. It's been a long time since I have felt this way about anyone.

Sounds wonderful? Well, it is, except for one thing. Before we met, he got himself into a lot of trouble with the law and is now serving a 32-year jail sentence with the possibility of parole in seven years. The sad thing is that there was no violence involved in this crime. He made the mistake of choosing to rob banks as a career.

He is constantly reassuring me that although he would be hurt and upset, I am free to go on with my life. I don't want to lose this man. I am deeply in love with him. Please tell me what to do.--Confused, Nepean, Ont.

DEAR NEPEAN: Since "Mr. Right" cannot get out of prison for at least seven years, you have plenty of time to think about whether or not you want to spend your life with a person who has made a career of robbing banks.

I would urge you not to pass up opportunities to go out with others if something interesting should come along. Good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Fifteen years ago, my husband was divorced from his high school sweetheart. The divorce was a bitter one. She left him for another man. Their parting was pretty awful, but his parents and the parents of his former wife have remained good friends.

This has created a problem for me because my in-laws manage to bring "Melanie" into every conversation. I don't understand why they must keep "Jimmy" up-to-date on everything that is happening to her and her family. He never mentions her name to me and I can't believe he is the least bit interested in what she is doing.

This problem became so upsetting to me that we went for counseling. The therapist said Jimmy was engaging in "conflict avoidance"--that when someone doesn't like something but makes no effort to express his true feelings, the message comes across as "silent is consent."

I love my in-laws but when every conversation is peppered with news of Melanie and her family, I feel angry, alienated and like an outsider. After nine years of Melanie babble, I am about ready to choke. I've pleaded with Jimmy to please say something to his parents, but he insists that he has no right to tell them what to talk about and if they want to talk about Melanie, it's no big deal.

Jimmy and I love each other dearly but the bickering over this matter is making me miserable. Any advice?--Feeling Left Out

DEAR FEELING: Since your husband is obviously a gutless wonder, I feel that you should tell your in-laws, privately, exactly what you've told me. If they truly care about your feelings, they will deep-six the Melanie updates and life will be smoother.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) - Basketball star Moses Malone has agreed to pay $20,000 a month in support for his two sons while he and his wife, Alfreda, divorce, Mrs. Malone's lawyer says.

Mrs. Malone alleges her husband threatened repeatedly to kill her. The 37-year-old Milwaukee Bucks star denies the allegations.

Malone is under a court order to stay away from his wife pending a September divorce trial, said Mrs. Malone's lawyer, Judy Przyborski.

Malone's attorney did not return a call Tuesday.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NONCHALANCE IS THE ABILITY TO REMAIN DOWN TO EARTH WHEN EVERYTHING ELSE IS UP IN THE AIR. — EARL WILSON

William of Normandy landed in England on Sept. 29, 1066, to promote and establish his claim to the English throne. Two weeks later, his forces defeated those of King Harold at the Battle of Hastings. The Normans quickly subdued Britain, and William became the island's first foreign-born king.

In the 1600's, it was a common custom to flavor wine with carnations.

To crack a quantity of nuts quickly, put them into a bag and gently hammer until all are broken open.

Q. I'd like to make a glaze for raisin bread that doesn't get sticky in the refrigerator. Is there a way to match the quality of commercial bakeries? I usually make mine with confectioners' sugar plus water, milk or juice. M.S., Torrance, CA
A. Unfortunately, many commercial bakers' products are not available to consumers. However, there are two secrets to glaze success. Use margarine, butter or shortening along with the confectioner's sugar and milk or water. Stir in water, a teaspoon at a time, until the glaze is fairly thin to drizzle. After drizzling bread with glaze, let stand at room temperature until dry. Carefully wrap and freeze if not used within one to two days.

Hacker sons are Eagle Scouts

Santry Hacker, right, was the fourth son of Joe and Evelyn Hacker to achieve the rank of Eagle Scout when he received the honor recently. His three brothers participated in the program, including, from left, Shelley, Stacy and Stefan.

Santry Hacker awarded Eagle Medal May 31

Santry Scott Hacker of Hereford was awarded the Eagle Medal by Gary Billingsley, Scoutmaster of Troop 50, in an Eagle Court of Honor ceremony on May 31.

Santry is the fourth son of Joe and Evelyn Hacker to receive the Eagle medal.

Santry, a 1992 graduate of Hereford High School, was joined by his three brothers, Shelley, Stacy and Stefan, in the ceremony. They served as honor guards and participated in the Eagle medal lighting.

Santry also received a plaque from Hereford Day Care for his service project, planting grass at the Ruth Warner Memorial Center. Santry is also a member of the Order of the Arrow and was a member of Key Club, band and the golf team. He is a junior deacon at First Christian Church and plans to study mechanical engineering at Texas Tech.

Also participating were George Ochs, master of ceremonies; Eagle Scout Billy Bankston and Matthew Parker. Dr. Alton Tomlin gave the invocation and benediction.

For those wishing to join the unique organization and receive an invitation to the ice cream social, you may contact one of the hostesses. They include Pat and Don Graham, Virginia and Milton Adams, Roberta Caviness, Marie Cline, Karen and Scott Keeling, Glenda and J.L. Marcum, Betty and Don Martin, Ruth and Carroll Newsom, Joyce and George Ritter, Betty and Milton Rudder, Joy and Earl Stagner and Dee Anne and Johnny Trotter.

The Circle of Friends is a non-profit organization founded to support the philosophy and goals of the cancer center.

NEW YORK (AP) - As an author in the 1970s, Stephen King was making lots of money, but he wanted more: He wanted supermarket popularity.

In a 1976 letter to his editor at Doubleday and Co., he wrote: "I want to be a supermarket name ... a name that's recognizable by a large percentage of the American reading public. There's really no shame in that."

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) - Many of the royal heads of Europe were on hand to help Danish Queen Margrethe II and her husband, Prince Henrik, celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Guests at a dinner Tuesday included Britain's Prince Charles - without Princess Diana - King Juan Carlos of Spain, Queen Beatrix of Holland, King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia of Sweden, and King Harald V and Queen Sonja of Norway.

Margrethe, 52, and Henrik, 54, were married on June 10, 1967.

The were to start their day today by being serenaded with songs celebrating marriage by singers gathered beneath the windows of their summer home. In the afternoon, they were to ride in a carriage through Copenhagen.

To marry Margrethe, then crown princess, French diplomat Henri, Count de Laborde de Monpezat, was required by the Danish constitution to change his name to Henrik, his nationality to Danish and his religion from Roman Catholic to Protestant.

Margrethe this year marked her 20th anniversary as head of state. She is head of Europe's oldest ruling monarchy.
