Research kit provides unique tool for students

By GARRY WESNER
 Managing Editor

Grabbing a brightly-decorated cardboard box may not seem to be the best way to start a research project, but for students at St. Anthony's School, that is the best way to go.

The boxes, though, are more than just boxes -- they are KIDS Kits.

KIDS Kits, explained principal Ann Lueb, are self-contained files containing a variety of information on specific topics.

The private Catholic school began KIDS (Kids Interest Discovery Studies) Kits, last year.

Mrs. Lueb said there are seven completed Kits now, with three more scheduled to be assembled this year.

They contain books, film strips, videos, posters, magazine articles, pictures and other items on one subject. In addition, reference cards are included that point children in the direction of additional information that may not fit in the box or that may be contained in a general reference source.

The Kits are integrated into the class according to the teacher's desires, either as a stand-alone unit or in connection with an overall class topic.

For example, Mrs. Lueb said, the sixth grade is currently using the "Human Body" box as part of a lesson on anatomy.

Once a class has begun working with a kit, there is one primary assignment -- "They produce a produce of some kind," Mrs. Lueb said.

That product may be anything -- a report, a model, a film strip, a video or overhead projection presentation.

Sharing what has been learned is an integral part of the KIDS Kits program, Mrs. Lueb said.

The students must assemble what they learn on the Kit's subject into something that can be presented to the rest of their class.

Allowing the students to choose their projects enables them to apply their learning in a way that suits them best, Mrs. Lueb said.

For example, the second grade class soon will take up the "Dinosaur" Box for a series of lessons.

"Maybe one child is more interested in tyrannosaurs than brontosaurus," Mrs. Lueb said. Thus that child can explore his favorite dinosaur, then present a report on that animal.

Notes on additional materials help the child reach out beyond the items found in the Kit box, Mrs. Lueb said.

They then work with the librarian to locate resources in other places of the media center to add information to their presentations.

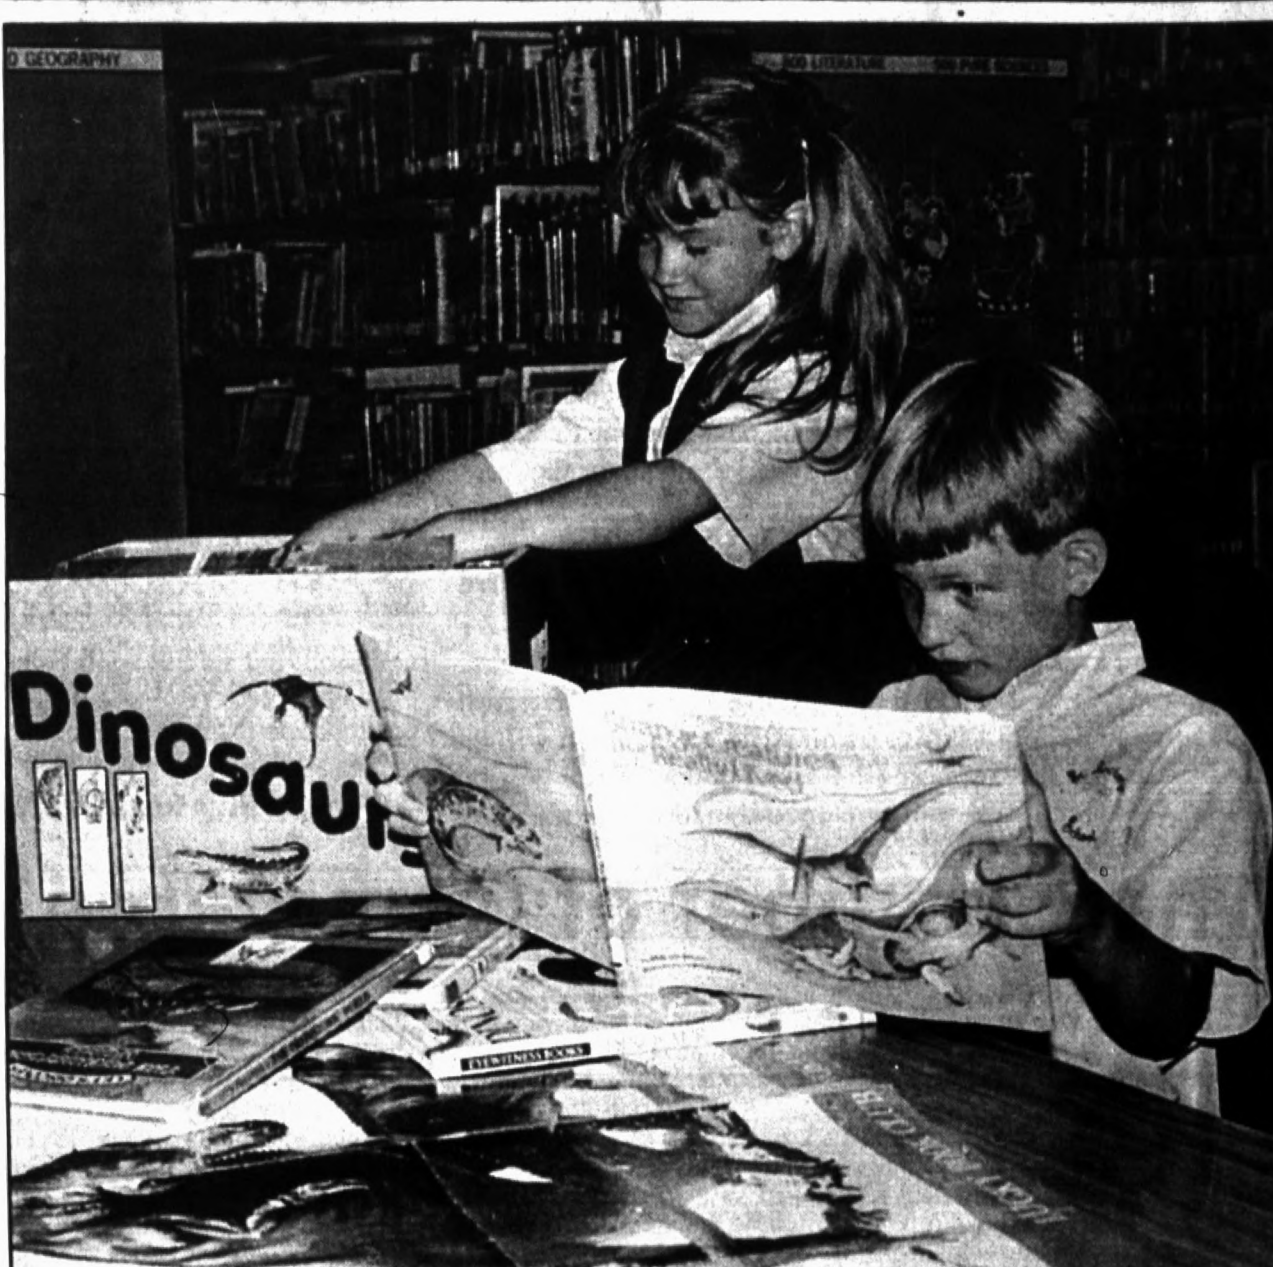

"This is a project of the National Diffusion Network," she said. "We became familiar with it through workshops presented by Region XVI Education Services Center in Amarillo."

Teachers attending workshops on KIDS Kits in Amarillo last year, then the services center sent a consultant to St. Anthony's to do a session here.

"We wanted something that would not only be a challenge to all ranges of children and this seemed to give us something that would meet the needs and the interests of all the different children."

In addition, because the KIDS Kits are assembled using many different books and materials, they are appropriate for use by any children in the school, from first through sixth

 St. Anthony's School second graders Belinda Fangman and Brant Newton look over some of the materials found in the school's Dinosaurs KIDS (Kids Interest Discovery Studies) Kit. The Kits -- which are designed around a variety of educational topics -- contain books, magazine articles, posters, film strips and other educational materials. They enable students to explore a subject, do an in-depth study on that subject, apply it through a project and share that project with classmates. This is the second year the Catholic school has offered the Kits to students and classes.

City man dies after accident

Hereford resident Francisco "Frank" Romo, 60, died Friday from injuries suffered in an industrial accident that morning.

Romo died in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where he had been airlifted following the 8:30 a.m. accident at Gearn Industries in Summerfield.

Romo, a 20-year employee of Gearn Industries, was injured when a rough-terrain fork truck rolled over him, then dragged his body about 20 feet.

The man had been lying on the ground under the vehicle, repairing it, when the accident occurred.

He was removed from the scene by Hereford EMS and taken by ambulance to a point near Dawn, where the ambulance was met by Medivac helicopter from Amarillo.

Pentagon prepares for invasion of Haiti

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon says it will put Army infantry troops aboard an aircraft carrier and another ship in a Caribbean training exercise that could be the prelude to an invasion of Haiti.

The command ship Mount Whitney was due in Norfolk, Va., today and the carrier Dwight D. Eisenhower is to arrive there Monday to pick up soldiers from the 10th Mountain Division and return to the Caribbean, the Defense Department said in a statement late Friday.

U.S. Marines have been training since Wednesday on Vieques, an island just east of Puerto Rico. Officials said thousands more Army infantry troops would probably leave Norfolk late next week.

Should President Clinton order a campaign to oust Haiti's military leadership, the military is working on a schedule involving around Sept. 21 involving some 20,000 troops, several senior Pentagon officials said earlier Friday. All spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Eisenhower would act as the take-off platform for Army helicopters carrying members of the invasion force, one senior military officer said.

Such a combination of forces is a rarity, and a mark of the push toward closer cooperation among the military services amid stiff budget cuts.

A Pentagon official agreed that U.S. forces could remain in Haiti for at least a year to help keep the peace and restore democracy, depending on the extent of the mission they are given.

While an international force is expected to help assist U.S. forces after the initial invasion, the impoverished island will need a new infrastructure to help bolster a return by elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

The military's preliminary plans called for the incursion to be led by stealthy U.S. Army Special Forces units and Marines who would seize vital points on the island such as the airport and main ports.

They would then be followed by airborne Army paratroopers, and within the next five days, members of an Army light division.

"It will be primarily an Army show," said the officer.

An Army light division numbers around 13,000 troops, depending on how it is organized, and there are about 1,800 Marines currently afloat in the Caribbean.

Aircraft are expected to drop leaflets this weekend over Haiti, outlining U.S. warnings about its push to expel the military leadership, a second Pentagon official said.

Fighting fire with fire will be goal in CPR grass blazes

By GEORGIA TYLER
 Staff Writer

Fighting fire with fire is the approach that firefighters hope can be used more and more when fire breaks out on Conservation Reserve Program grassland.

Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District personnel and fire departments in Deaf Smith County are on a mini-campaign to encourage landowners to cut fire breaks on CRP acreage.

"We can set a backfire on the break," said Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain whose crews are in the forefront of firefighting in Deaf Smith County.

Since the first of the year, Spain reported, the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department has responded to 56 fires on CRP land, almost 20 percent of the 291 total calls for all purposes.

Danger of grass fires this year has been high, Spain said, and he doesn't expect any improvement as the year goes on.

An SCS employee, Pat Reily, said his agency is encouraging landowners to help protect their own property by cutting fire breaks 20 feet wide.

"A break won't stop a fire, but it is an area to work from with a backfire," said Reily.

Either plowing or scraping the break is acceptable as long as dry weeds and grasses are removed.

CRP land is more volatile than ordinary rangeland because of the buildup of grasses.

Technically, the fuel-load on CRP is about 15,000 pounds, said Reily, compared with 1,200 to 2,000 pounds on pasture. He said the CRP fire blazes higher and sends a huge cloud of smoke into the air.

Earlier this year, the Hereford VFD decided that fires on CRP land would be contained to prevent loss of property or life, but otherwise would be allowed to burn out.

A situation early in the summer made clear the danger that can overtake firefighters in an instant.

Along with volunteers from Dawn, Hereford men were fighting a blaze that suddenly turned mean. The engine died on a truck being driven by two men across the field and would not start.

The men were treated for smoke inhalation but escaped more serious injury. The truck was destroyed. Firefighters were able to contain the blaze before it reached a house and other farm buildings.

CRP grass is a greater danger than ordinary pasture, said Spain, because the current year's growth is standing up while previous years' grass is building up. Since no grazing or other use may be made of the land, the buildup continues year after year.

Spain fears the conditions will get worse as the "deadfall" becomes deeper and deeper. Dry weather conditions add to the danger.

Some landowners have used a controlled burn to lower the threat of fires, Reily observed.

Traditional firefighting is reversed on a CRP blaze, Spain said. "Normally we fight a fire from the back but with this kind of fire, we have to fight from the front."

Spain said procedure at a fire scene is determined "when we get there."

He said HVFD responds to all calls and, "if we can put it out with a minimum of risk, we'll do it."

Other volunteer departments, such

County to get free fire truck

County officials will formally accept a free five-ton truck and 600-gallon tanks from the Texas Forest Service at a ceremony to be held Friday at 2 p.m. at Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

The county plans to quickly convert the equipment into a pumper unit for use primarily in the county's rural areas. Given the large acreage of grass within the county, Fire Marshal Jay Spain said the additional firefighting equipment "could come in extremely handy."

Spain encouraged area residents to attend the presentation ceremony and "show support and appreciation for county and Texas Forest Service efforts to bolster firefighting capabilities within the county."

Fun Breakfast set Thursday

The next Chamber Fun Breakfast is scheduled Thursday, beginning at 6:30 a.m., with the United Way of Deaf Smith County as co-sponsor. Held at Hereford Community Center, the breakfast is open to all interested residents and tickets are $5 a person. Reservations should be made with the chamber office to assure plenty of food.

With the United Way kicking off its annual campaign, "this will definitely be a big breakfast for you should not miss," said John Stagner, co-emcee along with Charlie Bell.

There will be special activities, entertainment, special guests and lots of prizes to give away, added Bell. In addition to the community announcements, the chamber will introduce new residents and new members who are in attendance.

Special presentations will also include the coveted "Bull Chip" award, which goes to a deserving resident who has contributed to the community "above and beyond the call of duty."

Catering the full breakfast will be Mary Herring and Lois Lemons of "Something Special." Call 364-3333 to make reservations.

Local Roundup

Retirees to host legislators

The Hereford Retired School Employees Association will hold a meeting on Monday, Sept. 12, featuring programs by two state legislators. Sen. Teel Bivins and Rep. John Smithee will speak at the session, which is set for noon in the auditorium of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger. The session is open to the public. For more information call Margaret Lomenick at 364-3305 or Elizabeth De Koster at 364-7280.

Commissioners' agenda posted

Deaf Smith County Commissioners will open bids to sell shop equipment, consider a First Texas Telephone, Inc., contract, discuss an extension of a gas pipeline and talk about caliche policy during a meeting Monday, beginning at 9 a.m. Also on the agenda is a request from the county clerk to hire a replacement for a deputy.

City work session planned

A work session, including discussion of proposed charter and bylaws for the Hereford Economic Development Corporation, will be held by the Hereford City Commission at 5 p.m. Monday. The commission also will review city personnel policy. At 7 p.m., commissioners will go to Jaycee Park for the last in a series of neighborhood meetings on park development. Residents in the area of Central Park also are invited to attend to talk about facilities there.

Sophomore class parents to meet

The parents of Hereford High School sophomores are encouraged to attend a meeting, which will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 12. It will be in Room 112 of the Hereford Independent School District administration office. It will be held to discuss the Sophomore Class Supper, which will be held in October. All parents are encouraged to attend.

The Chamber of Commerce and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

It's Fun Breakfast time!

Mark your calendar right now and plan to attend the next Chamber Fun Breakfast, set Thursday at 6:30 a.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

This will be the first breakfast of the Fall season and there will be lots in store for everyone in attendance. The sponsor for our Fun Breakfast this month will be the United Way of Deaf Smith County.

The UW theme this year is "Reaching Those Who Need Help." According to Sally Nolen, UW executive director, this year's breakfast will offer a very exciting kickoff for our United Way drive for 1994-95.

There's no telling what will happen as co-chairmen Charlie Bell and John Stagner take over. Of course, there will be special games, guests, announcements, and presentations. There will be the awarding of the coveted "Honorary Bull Chip" to a deserving resident.

The Chamber Fun Breakfast is a very enjoyable way to start the day, so call in our reservations Monday morning. Everyone is invited, so ask a friend to join you.

You never know...you might even win a big prize. Plan to join the Chamber and the United Way as we work together in "Reaching Those Who Need Help."

-0-0-0- Details of a very special seminar will be announced this week. The seminar is entitled "How to Win Customers and Reduce Lost Sales." It will be presented by Bill Drury from Dallas, who was with Zig Ziegler for many years.

This seminar is designed for all employees, including management. We urge restaurants and all service related companies to take part along with the retail sector. Special group rates will be available.

A mailing will go out to all companies this week. The date for the seminar will be Sept. 29 at the Hereford Community Center. There will be two sessions--the first from 8:30 a.m. to noon, and the second from 1:30 to 5 p.m. This will definitely be worth your time and investment as we strive to better serve our customers and keep the dollars at home working for Hereford.

-0-0-0- The Chamber's Business Retention committee will hold a monthly meeting Monday, Sept. 19, at 4 p.m. in the Chamber office, reports chairman Jeff Brown. Special guest speaker will be Don Taylor of the Panhandle Small Business Development Center. He also has a column on business each week in The Brand and local newspapers.

This meeting is open to all Chamber members and residents who wish to hear Mr. Taylor. Please plan to attend. You may call the Chamber if our have any questions or need more information.

-0-0-0- Things continue to happen as more than 75 new jobs are being created by the many new businesses opening this month and next month in Hereford.

Welcome to Buddie's Supermarket and new resident Charles O'Corr from Arkansas who will be manager. Another new resident, Wayne Lamb, will be the assistant manager. Buddie's is owned by Taylor & Sons.

Family Dollar, with headquarters in Charlotte, N.C., will open this week at the old Winn's location with John Pope as the manager. This 2,200 square-foot store will offer a full line of general merchandise.

Auto Zone will open in November on No. Hwy. 385 with approximately 10 employees. The auto parts store will be open seven days a week...Godfather's Pizza is set to open in about a week. Located adjacent to Town & Country Store, it will offer full service or take-out pizza.

Dollar General, a general merchandise store, plans to open a 7,200 square-foot store in North Gate Plaza this fall. The chain out of Nashville, TN., has more 1,900 stores nationwide.

The new Tice Grocery on W. Park is a fine addition. It really looks great...Walco International's new location at the former Collier Tire building is going to be a wonderful addition as they expand continue to grow.

Goodin Fuels has begun work at the old Texaco station at Hwy. 60-385 for a new service station...the Fina location on W. Hwy. 60 will also be reopened as new owners have just finalized the purchase...Good luck to roll-America on the opening of Hereford's new roller rink.

Let's all do our part to support all of Hereford's fine business community. Hustlin' Hereford is on the move. Let's work together to help make things happen.

Have an enjoyable week, and don't forget to call in your reservations for the Fun Breakfast!

So far, the school has created five KIDS Kits from the suggested list received during initial training: Dinosaurs, Holidays, Human Anatomy, The Ocean and Weather.

In addition, a Texas kit has been created for the study of the state and, because it is a Catholic school, school staffers created a KIDS Kit on Saints as well.

This year, the school is planning to build KIDS Kits on Birds, Insects and Spiders and The Rain Forest.

Materials for the KIDS Kits not only come from the library, Mrs. Lueb said.

Some items that have been donated by parents and teachers.

FIRE

as Dawn and Bootleg, may reach a fire in their areas before the Hereford crew can get there. However, Hereford volunteers also make all the calls.

The Conservation Reserve Program was put into effect by the federal government 10 years ago. Farmers are paid to take land out of production.

A total of 433 CRP contracts are in force in Deaf Smith County, covering 153,234 acres. Average payment is $39 per acre. Total annual payments in the county amounts to $5,974,729.

CRP administration is being vested in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in the future.

Reilly said the ASCS office should be notified by landowners who decide to cut a firebreak.

Spain said a great danger in CRP grass fires is the loss of property. "We're lucky we haven't lost any homes, but I don't know how many fence posts have burned up," he said.

Cowboy Symposium features life on range

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Pickup trucks and horse trailers were clustered in droves this weekend outside the sixth annual National Cowboy Symposium and Celebration.

Inside was a treat: a smorgasbord of drawled poetry, strummed ballads, western art and tall tales of cowboy life.

Participants wandered Friday afternoon around the Civic Center, where booths featured items the likes of saddles, woodcarvings and cast iron skillet. Hay bales and chuck wagons set the scene.

Dozens of browsers paused to admire a mustachioed duo, stomping their boots as the pair strummed a tune about yodeling.

Vendors described the jeans-and-kerchief crowd as authentic, easygoing cowboys.

"They're doing what they want to do," said Jerry Galloway, a Dumas rancher who peddled custom-made bits and spurs. "They're not uptight about anything hardly ever."

The symposium kicked off Thursday with a daylong trail ride. It ends Sunday with a devotional service, auction and demonstrations of trick roping, cutting competitions and team penning. Performers included about 100 poets, 80 musicians and 30 storytellers, organizers said.

Chortles echoed through one crowded room Friday during a tale involving a butane tank and fighting cocks.

In the next room, a woman recited her poem about a cowboy's wife putting up with thieves, drought and living "second-fiddle to a cow."

The schedule also featured dances, horse demonstrations, a style show and panel discussions. Plates of brisket sandwiches, beans and iced tea sold for $4.

Cheryl Reagan pointed out bonnets and cotton-boll wreaths as top attractions at the booth run by the Ranching Heritage Association of Lubbock.

Then she pointed to a bag of jalapeno pecan brittle. "And it is good," she promised.

Bettye Martin-McRae, a storyteller from Sweetwater who led one of the programs, related antics of her broncobusting father.

"It's our heritage," she said. "It tells more than just a story - it tells how you lived, how you survived."

Besides, "I never let the truth stand in the way of a good story."

Cause of jet crash remains a mystery

By MICHAEL HADDIGAN
Associated Press Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, Pa. (AP) - Twenty-three seconds and 6,000 feet from disaster, the crew of USAir Flight 427 prepared for a routine landing.

Then the plane started dropping. "Oh God," the pilot radioed.

"Traffic emergency. Oh shit. Ahhh." Moments after that desperate scream, the Boeing 737 turned a quiet Pennsylvania hillside into a fiery morgue littered with twisted metal and broken bodies. All 132 people aboard were killed.

Investigators struggled Friday without success to find answers to the deadliest plane crash in the nation since 1987 and USAir's fifth fatal crash in as many years.

The transcript of the crew's final radio transmissions, released by the Federal Aviation Administration, yielded a snapshot of heart-wrenching terror but few clues.

Body parts, pieces of plane, luggage and clothing were scattered over the trees and ground. Officials said it will take days to remove the bodies and the wreckage, and some victims may never be identified.

"We're all very much at a loss to explain this accident," U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena said Friday.

More than 70 federal investigators assembled maintenance records, interviewed witnesses and combed the crash site.

Working in shifts and wearing bulky plastic suits, they picked their way across the steep muddy ravine, stopping to mark positions of victims and major aircraft parts.

"It's a just a horrifying scene of destruction," Gov. Robert Casey said after surveying the scene from the air.

'Reinvention' process starts for SCS agency

TEMPLE -- Nearly 60 years ago, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service was created to address a national resource crisis called the Dust Bowl.

Since then the agency has undergone a number of changes, resulting in the agency now known as the Soil Conservation Service.

"The SCS is at a crossroads and we and our customers have an unprecedented opportunity to anticipate future needs and refocus the agency's mission," said Texas SCS State Conservationist Wes Oneth.

"Predicting the future is a difficult task. However, we believe that one of the best ways to prepare for tomorrow is by looking at the past and by asking our customers and employees what they anticipate will be needed in the future," Oneth said.

Anyone with an interest in natural resource conservation is encouraged to participate in the reinvention process by completing a survey they can get from their local SCS office. They are listed in telephone directories under U.S. Government, Agriculture Department.

Dickson to stay on area council

Bettie Dickson, administrator of Hereford Day Care, has completed one year of service on the Amarillo Area Child Care Licensing Advisory Council.

The council operates under the direction of the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services and was created to provide the department with a sounding board on child care licensing policy, procedures and other proposed actions.

Dickson will continue on the council for another year. She is joined by members representing communities throughout the 26 counties of the Panhandle.

Crime of the Week

The Hereford Police Department is seeking clues into the burglary of a house in the 300 block of Ave. I. The residence was burglarized in the early part of August and then again at the beginning of September. These burglaries are believed to be related. Approximately $1,000 worth of items were taken, including a battery charger, air pump, two electric drills and bits, wrenches, pliers, hack saw, screw drivers, measuring tape, hammer, pipe cutter, three gray metal tool boxes, levels, two trailer balls, a skill saw and other items.

Anyone having information which leads to the arrest and indictment in the Crime of the Week can receive a reward of up to $500. Anyone having information on this crime or any other criminal activity is urged to call the CLUE LINE at 364-CLUE. All callers may remain anonymous by using a code name or number.

Simpson to face life term, not death penalty

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Prosecutors will seek life without the possibility of parole, not the death penalty, against O.J. Simpson in the slayings of his ex-wife and her friend, they said Friday.

In a letter to Simpson's lawyers, Assistant District Attorney Frank Sundstedt, chair of the committee that oversees death penalty cases in Los Angeles County, said a decision had been made not to seek death for Simpson after "consideration of all available aggravating and mitigating ... evidence."

Simpson's lead attorney, Robert Shapiro, said his office did not appear before the committee that made the decision, although he was invited. "Our position was that since Mr.

Simpson has unequivocally proclaimed his innocence, this was not an issue on which we could do any more than provide background information regarding the outstanding career and charitable works of O.J. Simpson," Shapiro said.

Simpson is charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the slaying deaths of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. The multiple murder counts made him eligible for the death penalty.

The district attorney's office said public feelings about the death penalty in the Simpson case did not play a role in the decision.

"While the office is aware that there is deep public concern about whether the death penalty will be sought in a case, the decision must be made independent of this concern," the letter said.

The letter said the ultimate verdict on life or death was left to Sunstedt after he met with members of the committee.

"District Attorney Gil Garcetti reviewed and affirmed Mr. Sunstedt's decision in this case," the statement said.

It gave no reasons for deciding to waive a possible death penalty and said that prosecutors would not make any further statement about the decision until after the trial.

A concern raised earlier in death penalty discussions was a possible perception of inequity between the Simpson case and another high-profile prosecution, that of Lyle and Erik Menendez. The brothers are charged with murdering their wealthy parents. Garcetti is seeking death for them.

"The two cases have absolutely nothing in common," Shapiro said, "since the Menendez brothers have admitted killing their parents."

Simpson insists he is innocent of the June 12 slayings outside Ms. Simpson's condominium.

Garcetti was implored by black leaders not to seek the death penalty in Simpson's case for numerous reasons, including the argument that death is disproportionately sought for black defendants.

Feminists represented by lawyer Gloria Allred had pressed Garcetti to seek death because of Simpson's history of spousal abuse.

Allred contended anything less would send the message that the district attorney was soft on wife abuse.

Simpson lawyer F. Lee Bailey said Friday there were no bite marks on Ms. Simpson's back, contrary to a report that pathologists may have overlooked such a wound.

CBS reported Thursday that a bite was clear in autopsy photographs but was not mentioned in official pathology reports or during testimony at Simpson's preliminary hearing. Bite marks can be used as evidence in court, although they are considered less definitive than fingerprints.

Bailey said the defense team sent autopsy photos to Dr. Robert Fish, a forensic dentist in Tamarac, Fla. An assistant in Fish's office said Friday that Fish had not determined whether the photos showed bite marks on Ms. Simpson.

A grand jury investigating Al Cowlings' role in Simpson's June 17 flight from police met for a rare Friday session.

Two men, identified by their lawyer as friends of Cowlings, testified before the secret panel.

Interested and curious Texans turn out for state Capitol auction

AUSTIN (AP) - Contractors, history buffs, politicians and people just looking for a unique gift gathered Friday to bid on thousands of items from the Capitol that were placed on public auction.

The two-day sale gives bidders a chance to buy doors and transoms with etched-glass, wainscoting, decorative molding, paneling, shutters, door pediments, and flooring from the House and Senate chambers.

"I think it's really neat to have a piece of what was happening," said Beth Gilmore of Austin. "And the Capitol is so interesting anyway, I think it's exciting."

She said she was looking for a gift for her two boys, ages 5 and 9.

But, she said, she may find something for herself. "I'd love to have a door," she said.

The State Preservation Board is auctioning items removed from the Capitol during restoration of the 106-year-old building.

The items were not original to the building, except for the flooring of the House and Senate chambers, which still has the square nails used in the 1880s.

"These things cannot be used in the building, and rather than throw them away we are trying to make a fund-raising effort out of it," said Bekki Lammert, of the Preservation Board.

"There are people who just want a door, they want a piece of the Capitol. They're Texana buffs and they want to have maybe a piece of wood that they can put in their living room that says 'I have a piece of the Capitol,'" she said.

Among the hundreds of people who came to inspect the goods were several current and former legislators.

Rep. Jerry Yost, R-Longview, was looking for an item that was inexpensive and easy to carry.

"The Capitol's gotten a piece of me for 10 years, so I thought maybe turnabout was fair play," Yost said. "It's historic, but what makes it special for those of us who have served, or are serving, is the significance of having been part of the Capitol much the same way that these commodities are part of the Capitol."

There are more than 100 doors, about 50 transoms, 52 skylights from the Senate, a water fountain and piles of piles of woodwork bundled up in the downtown warehouse for the auction.

Ms. Lammert said the Preservation Board doesn't know how much the goods will fetch, but she said contractors get very excited when they see the longleaf yellow pine flooring and some of the doors.

"You just can't find that kind of wood anymore," she said.

— YOUR EYES —

SPORTSVISION

How well you play summer sports may depend on how well you see. Poor performance on the court or on the ballfield may signal vision problems or underdeveloped visual skills.

That may be why you miss easy shots in a pickup basketball game, or why you strike out at the holiday picnic baseball game. Are you swinging at the ball too soon? On the tennis court, do you hit the ball at the "sweet spot" in the center of the strings—or with the frame? Some athletes start out playing well and then get tired, and that is when their game suffers. Extra-tired eyes may come from difficulties in focusing or having to work extra-hard to get both eyes to work as a team. Errors in judgment regarding the location of the ball, its direction or its speed may be caused by diminished depth perception.

Is there a vision-related problem? Your optometrist's complete examination, with sports-related tests, can find out for sure. Vision training or corrective lenses can improve your game.

Hereford Iron & Metal Co.

Recycling issues are weighing heavily on the minds of Americans today. Roughly 80 percent of the trash generated in America is buried in landfills, and landfills are filling up at the rate of two a day. All of us must take an active interest in recycling issues so our children will be able to enjoy an environmentally sound world.

Hereford Iron & Metal Co., located in Hereford on North Progressive Road, phone 364-3777, offers a complete recycling service for the area. They recycle all types of metals, including aluminum, copper, brass, iron, scrap metals and all types of non-ferrous metals. They serve the residential, commercial and industrial needs of the community with top quality service. They can also help your organization, school or civic group start a fund-raising project. Recycling drives are excellent money-makers for any group. Hereford Iron & Metal Co. always pays top dollar for all of your recyclable goods. Businesses are invited to contact them for container rental and pick-up services.

Statistics show that over a lifetime the average American throws away 600 times his adult weight in trash. We can all start making a difference in the growing problems America is facing by visiting Hereford Iron & Metal Co. on a regular basis and making every day "Earth Day."

American Dusting Co. Jim Campbell, Owner

American Dusting Co., located in Hereford, office phone 364-2662, is known for dependable, safe aerial spraying services throughout the area. Their licensed aviators are trained to understand this business, assuring farmers that their land will be properly seeded, fertilized and sprayed for unwanted weeds and pests. These professionals strive to provide unexcelled service in all phases of aerial agriculture.

American Dusting Co. offers farmers an alternative to ground seeding, spraying and fertilizing. Air spray service saves time, is less damaging to crops and less expensive in the long run than ground spraying. Aerial spraying allows the FDA approved chemicals to be distributed evenly, totally covering the entire plant and creating less waste. Farmers can save money on equipment, time and chemicals by contracting with these professionals. Services are available on a one time or regular contract basis at very reasonable rates.

The pilots of American Dusting Co. are licensed and insured and have extensive aerial map knowledge. Their airplanes are maintained and kept in top condition so that their many customers throughout the entire area can rely on dependable and accurate service. Crown Of Texas Hospice Kathryn Acton, RN Hospice is a concept of supportive care offered to terminally ill patients and their families. It focuses on quality of life when the length of life cannot be extended. The primary goal is to provide the patient and family supportive and loving care while allowing the patient to remain at home. Crown Of Texas Hospice offers physical (pain control), emotional, spiritual and social support services.

With a team approach, nurses, home health aides, physicians, therapists, social workers, clergy and trained volunteers meet regularly to plan the best care possible. They focus on individual assessment and care under a physician's direction. They teach family members how to care for the patient, make regular home visits, provide caregiver relief and help determine needed services by listening and responding to the needs of the patient. Volunteers are always needed and are a vital part of hospice. Crown Of Texas Hospice also provides bereavement services and continuing assistance to families for at least a year after death. Hospice services are covered by Medicare, Medicaid and many private insurance companies when possible. Additional services for eligible Medicare patients may include medications, medical equipment and inpatient care.

Crown Of Texas Hospice is located in Hereford at 805 Main Street, phone 364-0190. You may help by making a donation, remembering a loved one with a memorial, becoming a volunteer, helping to raise funds, or scheduling a hospice speech for your group.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says it's better to give than to lend, and it costs about the same.

Few of us can stand prosperity. Another man's, I mean.

It's Fun Breakfast time again, and Thursday's event should help launch the busy Fall season as the United Way serves as the host and kicks off its annual campaign drive.

A lot of folks hardly ever miss one of these breakfasts—if you haven't been to one, give it a try!

With all the activity of school getting underway, reports editor Rick Craig at Hamlin, you may have missed an interesting story in one of the big daily newspapers. According to the article, scientists were studying images taken from a new satellite and were baffled by recordings last Friday.

The scientists were concentrating on the West Texas area when they began to see a pattern developing. As dusk began to settle over the area, small rectangular pockets of lights began to appear dotted across the landscape.

Scientists noted that the rectangular areas were always near a city or town, but that they did not occur at every town. To help determine what phenomena they were watching develop, they increased the magnification on the satellite's camera and pinpointed one of the brightest rectangles in Lubbock.

As it began to get darker, scientists were able to identify blips inside the lighted area. They noted there were two groups of the blips, which would come close together, then pandemonium would break loose and the blips would scatter for 5 or 10 seconds. Then the process would start over again.

Just as the scientists were beginning to theorize on what was happening after about an hour of watching, the two groups disappeared and another larger group of blips appeared on the screen. This pattern of blips seemed to move slower and in a more orderly fashion. They did not run into each other as had the other two groups.

Soon the two small groups reappeared and returned to the previous pattern of scurrying to and fro. Another group of scientists, studying a larger area, noticed that the rectangular lights were beginning to disappear after another hour, and a string of small lights were moving away from the rectangles.

Lights leaving some of the rectangles stopped at the adjacent town, while the lights from other rectangles went through many towns before vanishing. Scientists told reporters they were unable to solve the mystery of the "West Texas Lights."

After reading the story and thinking about how hard these scientists had worked, I just didn't have the heart to call them and tell them it was just Friday night football in West Texas!

Clinton working against clock Democrats seem sure to lose seats

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Clinton is running out of both time and opportunity for scoring wins in Congress with Election Day just two months away. So he's buying himself some political running room with themes not requiring congressional attention.

Thus, "community values" will share the president's agenda in the weeks ahead with a resumed effort for health-care legislation and other measures, aides say.

Clinton is working against an election-year clock in which moving anything through Congress becomes more difficult with each passing day. And while health-care legislation and the crises in Cuba and Haiti clearly will get top priority, the president's fall strategy also calls for him to emphasize broader, loftier themes.

It is an attempt to position himself on the high road heading for an election in which Democrats seem certain to lose seats in Congress.

Clinton was returning today from a 12-day vacation on Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts.

White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers, who accompanied Clinton and his family, said the president plans a busy few months.

She identified health care, congressional endorsement of a new set of liberalized global trading rules, perhaps campaign finance reform and updates to the Clean Water and Superfund laws as major legislative priorities.

And, she added, "He'll ... talk about some of the broader themes he's emphasized from time to time, including community values and how to bring the country together. So I think you'll see an emphasis on the thematic part of his presidency."

It's a way of hedging his bets in case he can get nothing further from Congress after a difficult victory last month on anti-crime legislation.

"I think he's stuck," said Erwin Hargrove, a professor at Vanderbilt University who specializes in the presidency. Hargrove said he doubts Clinton will get much more from Congress this year, and even less over the next two years.

Of course, any forward motion on health care this fall can be trumpeted as a victory for Democrats and for the White House.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine, working behind the scenes with a bipartisan group of Senate leaders in search of some kind of compromise, on Tuesday cited "good progress" in identifying "areas of common interest."

But short of any breakthrough, health care reform remains sidetracked. And the closer the elections get, the harder it will be to get progress on anything.

White House chief of staff Leon Panetta, in a recent interview, conceded it was difficult under the best of circumstances to get lawmakers to focus on legislation "when they begin to try to pay attention to their (election) campaigns."

"You have a situation in which members are basically saying, 'C'mon, let's wrap it up and let's get it done so I can get back to my district and run for re-election.'"

OUT OF BLUE By Garry Wesner

In watching the U.S. Open this past week, especially Andre Agassi as he does his thing, a question has arisen.
Is it just me, or does Brooke Agassi have a funny ring to it?

Then this past week I saw a funny bumper sticker: "You mean you're still a Democrat?"

Did you see the survey the other day about President Clinton, Congress and the like?

Seems most Americans don't trust what Congress is doing and a majority of people want someone else for president.

Gee, I wonder what it was that made them distrust our fine governmental leaders -- was it Travelgate, Genifer Flowers, Joycelyn Elders pro-drug stand, gays in the military, a $33 billion "crime" bill, midnight raises, a Secretary of Agriculture under investigation for corruption, a pending bill that would create a health care bureaucracy, or a First Lady who's more of a man than her husband?

Now I know that we have had Republican presidents who did not sport spotless records (you know, Nancy Reagan and the astrologers, Nixon and Watergate, Bush and the perceived weakness of Quayle, the Iran-Contra situation, etc.), but it seems like there have been many, many more scandals surrounding Clinton in the last year and a half than surrounded Bush and Reagan in 12 years!

The saddest thing to me is that I am afraid we will have a decline in national morale like we did in 1976-80 when Jimmy Carter was muddling around in foreign policy, allowing the Iranian hostage situation and giving away the Panama Canal.

I remember from back in the those years that people seemed to be ashamed to be Americans. I remember clearly how much more pride we had in America when President Reagan took office and began working to improve our country once again.

"Experts" may say one thing, but I think the American people are becoming ashamed of being Americans if being Americans means agreeing with abortion on demand, legitimization of the gay and lesbian lifestyle, government control of education and health care and a president who demonstrated against the United States.

We are indeed fortunate in this part of Texas to have Senators and Representatives who do not line up behind Clinton like ducks, quacking their approval of him without checking with constituents or conscience.

It will be interesting to see what happens in November with the elections. I sure hope the changes coming are for the good of our country, not the good of Bill Clinton.

I didn't mean to get off on a tangent like that, it just happened.

I may get in trouble with this, but I got a newsletter the other day from the International Society for Animal Rights.

They have an article taking exception to a commercial for Pepsi.

They say the ad is supposed to be funny (you know, where the Kramer character from the "Jerry Seinfeld Show" succumbs to a Pavlovian-type experiment, drinks the Pepsi and walks off barking), but that "the dog in the commercial is very stressed." ISAR urges us to register our displeasure with the commercial by contacting Pepsi.

Of course, this is the same organization that published in the same newsletter an obituary for "Natalie" a stray cat that the organization had in its headquarters for years, but which was euthanized when it contracted heart disease.

(Seems kind of contradictory, doesn't it, to jump and shout against alleged mistreatment of animals, then to kill one when it gets sick?)

Well, I guess that does it for this week.

Have a good week and, remember, enjoy your children now (and take care of them by using seat belts in the car) because they will be grown before you know it.

Allow me to introduce my grandmother, a gentler soul never lived, unless she was riled.

But, my memories of her are of a woman who was prematurely white-haired, devoted to her family, her church and the Order of the Eastern Star.

My grandmother cooked and sewed, went to church (helped organize a Presbyterian church in our town) and on specified Thursday nights, went to "Star."

She loved putting on her "formal" for those special occasions at the Eastern Star hall and often spent the afternoon getting her hair and nails done in preparation.

The whole family knew that nothing was to interfere with her Thursday night meetings. No plans were made to involve her on those nights.

Sometime in the '40s, hairdressers came up with a rinse that was guaranteed to keep white hair from looking yellow. And, it did.

But, there nearly always is a trade-off in things like that. The rinse made my grandmother's hair purple. On some, the result was blue, but on her, I swear, it was purple.

If she realized it, she didn't utter a word and none of the family would upset her before her meeting.

The next trip to the beauty shop, though, resulted in a change. Somehow, the term "blue-hair" for a certain segment of the population came down then.

Every year, Eastern Star members from all over the state gather in a city for their Grand Chapter. This was my grandmother's annual trip, without her husband.

Never one to waste a penny, she and friends piled into the best car in the bunch and drove to Dallas, or Houston, or Fort Worth, or El Paso. They saved expenses by sharing rooms and transportation. And, they had fun.

They were like teenagers, getting dressed up and showing off, but they were deadly serious about the business of their organization. My grandmother brooked no criticism of the Eastern Star and was disappointed beyond belief when two of her granddaughters refused to get involved.

She took refuge, though, in the dozens, if not hundreds, of women to whom she taught the "secret work" of the Eastern Star.

Although not a sophisticate in her clothing selection, my grandmother loved pretty things. Her favorite color was red, whether in a dress or a car. Whenever my grandfather bought her a car, he knew not to come home with anything but red. Once, after he died, she bought a green one because the price was better, but she never adjusted to the color.

Although she never "enjoyed" poor health, my grandmother had a variety of physical problems throughout her life. But, her spirit always prevailed and she recovered.

Two examples stand out in memory: When she was 89 years old, she underwent a hip replacement after a damaging fall and then, at age 94, she had surgery to remove a kidney and a cyst the size of a grapefruit.

In neither instance did she require more care than regular nursing.

After the piece of metal was installed in her hip, she recovered remarkably and began talking about making an airplane trip to visit a son in California.

"But, they won't let you on the plane," she was told by a granddaughter, "because your hip will set off the metal detector at the airport."

She often forgot that she was supposed to use her walker at all times. It was not unusual to find her at the kitchen cabinet and the walker two rooms away.

By the time she reached 100, though, the light had gone out in her eyes and the walker was traded for a wheelchair. Just three months before her 101st birthday, she left us for good.

But she left her family and her world better off for having had her.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Recently I had the opportunity to return to Hereford for a very special event—the baptism of our new son at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

I also had the opportunity to play in the VFW Benefit Golf Tournament. I would like the people of Hereford to know the excellent golf course that they have available.

I grew up in Hereford and lived there until February of 1993. I am an ex golf professional and now live in Grand Prairie. I have the opportunity to play numerous courses here in the Metroplex. I have played country clubs and municipal courses.

On my return to Hereford, I heard a lot of complaints about "Ground Under Repair" areas on the course. Golfers have to understand that changes and improvements require these roped-off areas. Dave, his pro shop staff, the superintendent and the grounds crew have the course and the pro shop in great shape!

I have been playing Pitman Municipal since 1969 and have never seen it in such great condition. To play a course of this caliber and shape is truly a pleasure and challenge!

Dear Editor:
I recently got out of Hereford Regional Medical Center. I was there 31 days. I am writing this to express appreciation for the care each and everyone of them gave me.

This includes each and every department. We have a wonderful hospital right here in our town and I felt it should be expressed just how wonderful it is.

Sometimes we tend to forget our nurses and doctors and staff are human beings, too. There is so much I want to say, but feelings are hard to put into words. Thanks for reading my letter.

Mrs. James E. Cupp

Dear Editor:
On the front page of the Sept. 7 Hereford Brand was the headline: "Wife of Ex-Davidian Head Plans to Restart Cult at Standoff Site." Reading on, the article stated that the land is in the name of the General Association Davidians of Seventh-Day Adventist.

As spokesperson of the Hereford Seventh-Day Adventist (SDA), I am writing to inform readers that the Davidians are in no way associated with the original Seventh-Day Adventists.

The Seventh-Day Adventist Church was established in 1863. We are in 150 countries, publish literature in more than 180 languages, and we are approaching 8 million in membership.

How did the Davidians come about? Here is a brief history:
In 1920, Victor Houteff joined an SDA church in Los Angeles. He was disfellowshipped in 1929 because of his views and beliefs. He then formed a following called Shepherds Rod and, in 1935, they moved to a place near Waco which they named Mt. Carmel.

Houteff died in 1955 and his wife, Florence took over. Shepherds Rod split in 1962 and Benjamin Roden took over the new fellowship and took the name of Davidians.

In 1979, Vernon Howell was baptized in the SDA church in Tyler. He was disfellowshipped in 1981 because of his lifestyle and views. Later that year he joined the Davidians. George Roden and Howell fought for control and Howell left to start his own group.

In 1984, Howell established his following in Palestine and changed his name to Vernon Koresch. He travelled to Australia, Hawaii, Canada and England in 1985 to recruit new followers. In 1988, he became the leader of the Waco Davidians, and the rest is history.

From the time the Shepherds Rod was formed in 1930 to the present Davidians, the group splintered six times. We, as Seventh-Day Adventists, don't understand why the Davidians insist on including our name. They are in no way associated with the SDA Church, for their beliefs are not as our.

We do believe in Jesus Christ and in keeping the Ten Commandments. We are an organized church growing in membership. We seek to reach God's objectives by bringing the love and hope of Jesus Christ to as many people as possible.

IT'S BEEN A BUMPY RIDE

The Texas bank and thrift industry has been on a roller coaster since the mid-1990s. Banks and thrifts hit bottom in 1987 and 1988 and emerged from the red in the early 1990s. In 1993, Texas banks earned $2.4 billion and thrifts, $713 million.

Day care standards decision put on hold

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - After three years of considering an increase in Texas' minimum day-care standards, a state board Friday postponed a vote and said it needed more time.

Supporters of increased day-care staffing, training, and personnel qualifications said they were stunned by the Texas Board of Protective and Regulatory Services' decision to delay the vote for about six weeks.

"I'm in shock," said Phyllis Jack, a representative of Corporation Champions, a group of Fort Worth businesses that have banded together to support increased day-care standards.

"It just means those of us in favor of this will have to work harder and get out our legislators here next time to speak," she said.

Texas ranks near the bottom of states in standards for licensed day-care centers. State officials have been considering changes for three years, and have held 53 town meetings and five public hearings, officials said.

On Friday, several day-care center owners and association representatives reiterated their opposition to the changing standards, saying it would be too costly and hurt low- and middle-income families.

State Rep. David Swinford,

R-Dumas, said the Texas Conservation Coalition, a group of 73 state lawmakers, wants to delay the standards.

"This falls disproportionately on those citizens that can least afford cost increases," Swinford said.

The Department of Protective and Regulatory Services estimated the changes would increase day-care costs an average of 7 percent, or $4.30 per child per week.

Supporters of the proposed changes said that was a cheap price to pay to better the environment of children.

Perot: Military action on Haiti requires vote

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer
DENVER (AP) - In a pointed personal attack, Ross Perot said Friday night President Clinton is obligated to get congressional approval for military action in Haiti "since as a young man he declined to risk his life in combat for this country."

Leading a raucous political rally, Perot said there was no justification for risking American lives to oust Haiti's military dictators.

But he added if Clinton decided there needed to be such an invasion "he at least better be willing to ask himself whether he would be willing to die in combat in Haiti."

"They like a dictator in Haiti, I don't know why," Perot said.

Although the administration has promised to consult congressional leaders, the White House has not committed to seeking advance approval from Congress for an invasion. Military force is being considered to restore ousted President Jean Bertran Aristide to power.

Perot said Clinton had an obligation to get congressional approval, "particularly in his case since as a young man he declined to risk his life for his country."

The reference to Clinton's efforts to avoid military service in Vietnam drew hoots and applause from Perot's audience.

The attack on Clinton came at the tail end of a nearly hour-long speech by Perot at the first of 10 pre-election rallies he plans, and just after a bitter denunciation of the North American Free Trade Agreement. Clinton won approval of NAFTA despite Perot's aggressive lobbying campaign against the pact.

Despite government data suggesting it has been a success, Perot insisted NAFTA was costing the United States a factory a day and more than 30,000 jobs. He said the U.S. trade surplus with Mexico was way down because of NAFTA, and that there were major losses of higher-paying technology jobs across the border.

"Washington, watch my lips," Perot said. "I am sick and tired of you lying to the American people."

Otherwise, the speech was full of the folksy slogans of Perot's independent presidential campaign as he urged members of his United We Stand America political organization to emerge as the swing

LET THE PERSPECTIVE BUYER VISUALIZE

To obtain the best possible price for your home, the perspective buyer must visualize their furnishings and themselves in your home. There are a few things you (the seller) can do to help them visualize. Replace the light bulbs with soft white bulbs of the correct wattage. Low wattage lighting will make a room look dull and dingy. If it's a cool gray day, have the fireplace ready to light. So when the agent calls to let you know they will be showing your home, all it will take is a match. The fire makes a home feel comfortable, and also shows the perspective buyer it works. A professional agent often will see the small things that should be fixed and can make suggestions. Obviously, the seller should do a walk through to make sure all needed repairs are made before the house is listed, unless it is being sold as is.

Kids see impact of words in paper dolls

By MELANIE MARKLEY
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON - MacGregor Elementary School counselor Pamela Johnson stands before a class of fourth-graders, holding the simple line drawing of a face. One by one, the children hurl insults.

"You are ugly," says one. "Your hair is nappy," says another. "You probably live in a shelter," growls a third.

With each insult, Johnson crumples a part of the face until, in the end, she holds a ball of wadded paper.

Then she asks for compliments. As each child utters words of praise about prettiness and niceness, Johnson straightens the face until it is flat again. But the face, all realize, is not the same as it was in the beginning.

It is now wrinkled and scarred, giving Johnson the opportunity for her moral lesson of the day.

"When you say something to people because of their skin color, or where they live, or because of their hair," she tells the children, "even though you come back and say something nice, they are hurt. The hurt leaves a mark."

At MacGregor Elementary, as in a growing number of other schools, values are becoming an intrinsic part of the curriculum. Worried about the mounting statistics on juvenile lawlessness, schools are finding that the three R's simply aren't enough anymore.

Five years ago, the Houston Independent School District adopted a character education curriculum that targets the teaching of nine values, one for every month of the school year.

The values, carefully chosen as virtuous but noncontroversial, are self-esteem, honesty, respect, trust,

Values becoming part of school classes loyalty, justice, commitment, self-discipline and self-reliance.

"These are universal values you want a citizen to possess," said MacGregor Principal Patsy Brown, who helped train HISD teachers on how to integrate the values into daily lessons. "They are things you would want to be an integral part of a responsible, productive person."

Teachers, at least the good ones, have for years used children's stories such as "Pinocchio" to teach a moral lesson about the difference between right and wrong. But school districts such as Houston - and most recently Spring Branch and Katy - are taking the issue a step further.

Katy school board members are considering a resolution to emphasize moral values in teaching. And Spring Branch school trustees last month approved a resolution that calls for "the teaching and modeling of values and ethics."

School Board President Mark Ramsey said it is up to each school to incorporate the list of 20 values that the board promotes. He considers it important for the board to make a statement. He said he had heard from teachers afraid to talk about morals without school board backing.

"There is, in reality, a reservation or a resistance in some quarters on teaching these virtues and values," said Ramsey. "And now, in Spring Branch, it's clear that you can."

But, as Spring Branch exemplifies, the issue of teaching and promoting values has its land mines, particularly when some of the values aren't so universal.

Although the list stresses the usual virtues of honesty, integrity, responsibility and citizenship, it also calls for educators to teach and model "life skills" such as curiosity, organization and sense of humor.

Joyce Miller, a teacher at Memorial High School, thinks the trustees go too far when they enforce personality traits as well as values. She worries that teachers, who never were consulted about the board's list, could be reprimanded if they are more creative than organized, or when they fail to model a sense of humor.

"We're not against teaching values; that is not the issue at all," said Miller. "The issue is the process. The issue is the huge list we are not all in agreement on. The issue is, where were the various groups' input? That is what we are questioning."

Also, the body of the resolution says that "sexual abstinence before marriage" is among virtues that are "clearly reflective of Spring Branch as a community."

One parent argued the night of the board vote that sexual abstinence is "a moral and religious judgment" and that such a resolution encroaches on the separation of church and state.

But, Ramsey said, at a time when people are being murdered over tennis shoes and teen-age pregnancy is on the rise, it is important for the board to take a strong stand on some of these issues.

"If you start to abandon the virtues, the values that we have enumerated here, then you are leading your nation or your community or your country into total chaos," he said. "That is what is happening in a lot of parts of America right now."

In HISD, concerns over declining morals prompted a structured character education curriculum that is taught with varying degrees of intensity, depending on the school.

The push for the curriculum came from Jack Bowen, chairman of the board of Transco Energy Co., who contacted former Superintendent Joan Raymond in 1988 and agreed to raise the $2 million needed to get it started.

Bowen was motivated after reading an article that compared student behavior in the 1940s with student behavior in the 1980s. While misconduct in the 1940s most commonly meant talking out of turn or chewing gum, the main behavior problems in the 1980s were drug abuse, rape, pregnancy and assaults.

If youngsters weren't being taught positive values at home, Bowen said, then schools, with their captive audiences, would have to take on that responsibility.

"I believe it's so important we save these kids," he said.

But in this program, as with many others like it, success is hard to measure. A study of the program during the 1993-94 school year could cite only anecdotal evidence to show that the curriculum was making a difference in the schools that had implemented it.

HISD's character education curriculum closely coincides with a variety of other character-building programs, including the police-sponsored Drug Abuse Resistance Education, or DARE, that have been gaining ground in the schools.

Still, the issue of promoting values in schools has been too controversial for the U.S. Congress, which has resisted attempts to include character education in the massive elementary and secondary education bill.

Many congressmen believe the issue is entirely too controversial. Liberals see it as a back-door attempt to sneak religion into the schools. And conservatives fear that it is an effort to spread political correctness.

But educators like Jocelyn Mouton, who administers HISD's character education program, say that values such as honesty and integrity can be taught without treading on people's political and religious beliefs.

And what's more, she said, it is vital that they are taught.

"We can't give up on the kids," she said. "We've got to just keep finding ways and finding things that might work with these kids."

Investigator picked for Espy probe

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal panel on Friday appointed a Los Angeles attorney to investigate whether Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy violated federal law by accepting travel, lodging and sports tickets from companies doing business with the department.

Donald C. Smaltz was named one month after Attorney General Janet Reno requested that an independent counsel undertake the investigation.

Smaltz will determine whether Espy violated any federal criminal laws "relating in any way to the acceptance of gifts by him from organizations or individuals with business pending before the Department of Agriculture," according to the order appointing him.

It is the second time the three-judge appellate panel has appointed a counsel since the independent counsel statute was reauthorized June 30.

Former Republican Solicitor General Kenneth Starr was named to investigate the administration's handling of the Whitewater case.

Espy had been investigated by his department's Office of Inspector General and by the Justice Department for travel and lodging he received in May 1993 from Tyson Foods, Inc., the Arkansas-based poultry giant, which has close ties to President Clinton and his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Here's An Idea That Can Strengthen Your Family

Tonight at the dinner table, read something out loud to your family. Tomorrow night, let another member read something. A news story. A Bible verse. A Robert Frost poem. A cereal box panel. History. Humor. Anything. Each night a different family member can read a selection. Imagine the wide range of subjects your family will read in 365 days. What a stimulating way to have your children develop good reading habits. We have 23 million illiterate adults in America. We wouldn't have one, if each of them had been served reading as part of their nightly diet. It's non-fattening, but enriching. And it doesn't cost a dime.

Team fumble recovery

Guess which team recovered this fumble during the junior varsity football game between Hereford and Palo Duro played Friday in Whiteface Stadium. As Hereford's Sonny Perez (55) and Chris Cathy (68) hold down the PD runner who fumbled, Jerry Garcia (85) Chris Garth (66) and Hector Cavazos (26) converge on the ball. Cavazos won the battle for the ball, and Hereford won the game, 28-26, as quarterback Joseph Artho scored a touchdown in the final minute.

Herd JV comes back to beat PD

The Hereford junior varsity football team scored 21 points in the first half of Friday's game with the Palo Duro JV at Whiteface Field, then scored its only touchdown of the second half in the final minute to pull out a 28-26 victory.

Hereford built a 21-7 lead in the first half on a three-yard touchdown run by Anthony Cervantes, a 22-yard TD run by Hector Cavazos and a 23-yard beauty of a touchdown pass to Ruben Flores from Joseph Artho. Artho ran for the two-point conversion after the second touchdown, and John Marty Galan kicked the point after the third.

Palo Duro came back though. On the kickoff following the third Hereford score, PD returned the ball 95 yards for a touchdown. The kick missed, and Hereford led 21-13 at halftime.

In the second half, PD caught up and took the lead on scoring runs of 25 and seven yards, making it 26-21. Hereford's offense struggled until the final few minutes, when it mounted a 60-yard drive, capped by Artho's one-yard touchdown run.

Baseball's fate remains unknown

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The fate of the baseball season remains unclear. The leader of the owners is unclear, too.

The deadline for canceling the rest of the season came and went Friday. Owners rejected the players' proposal for ending the month-old strike, but acting commissioner Bud Selig postponed until next week a call on whether to give up on one of the most memorable seasons ever.

Selig said no talks were scheduled and went home to Milwaukee. But other management officials stayed behind and the union staff said small working groups would meet today. There were increasing signs of a management split, which Selig denied. Players were confused following the one-hour bargaining session Friday.

"Sometimes when somebody says something, you can see from the faces of the other guys that they don't agree," said Cleveland Indians pitcher Dennis Martinez. "It looks like they have a lot of turmoil among themselves, and there is a lot of controversy around them."

Selig and management negotiator Richard Ravitch said owners won't accept a deal that doesn't include a salary cap. The union says it won't accept a cap.

"If they maintain the salary cap, this will go into the offseason, into next season and as long as there is a salary cap," Texas Rangers pitcher

Galan's kick provided the final points.

"In the second half, (PD) jumped into a defense we hadn't seen before," coach Craig Yenzler said.

"We made adjustments on the sideline and the kids did a heck of a job carrying those adjustments out. I'm real proud of the poise the offense showed after having trouble in the second half. They got the job done."

Kevin Brown said. The Chicago Tribune, meanwhile, reported today that Selig will announce the end of the season on Monday.

"We have to establish a common ground, and tragically we have failed to do so at every level to this point," said Selig, who entered the talks for the first time Friday. "Nobody dreads these circumstances more than I do, or is more dismayed by them."

Selig, who imposed the deadline last week, didn't even mention it in his opening statement to reporters following the one-hour meeting. Then he was evasive about it during the question-and-answer period that followed.

"I said all week long that common sense should prevail," he said. "We'll have no announcement on the season until very early next week."

Some union officials and player agents had speculated that Selig's deadline wasn't firm. If there isn't a deal, Selig said he would take responsibility for canceling the World Series for the first time since 1904.

Boosters to meet Monday

The Whiteface Booster Club will hold its first regular meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building.

Meetings will be held each Monday through football season. Football coach Danny Haney will show and comment on films of each week's games at the weekly meetings.

Football schedules changed

Late changes caused information about Hereford's sophomore and freshmen football games to be wrong in Thursday's Brand.

The sophomore team was to play Palo Duro Saturday in Hereford, but Palo Duro cancelled, so Hereford played the Lubbock High junior varsity Saturday in Lubbock.

The freshman teams' games were scheduled for Saturday evening, but were moved to Saturday morning.

Both changes were announced Friday evening.

Oilers look forward to shot at Cowboys

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The rivalry between the Houston Oilers and the Dallas Cowboys is one-sided emotionally. A victory over the Cowboys can make the Oilers' season. The Cowboys win one and forget it.

"We get excited playing them because they are so successful," said Houston quarterback Cody Carlson. "It's a big challenge."

The two teams—who have training camps within an hour's drive of each other, scrimmage against each other and play an annual preseason game against each other—meet in a rare regular-season game Sunday in Texas Stadium. The Cowboys are 15-point favorites.

"We have a great geographic rivalry," said Houston coach Jack Pardee. "It's special when we play against each other."

In fact, Dallas coach Barry Switzer said he thought Houston was looking ahead to the Cowboys when it took a 45-21 whipping from the Indianapolis Colts last week.

"It would be a natural tendency for Houston to look ahead to us," said Switzer. "I've been guilty of it. I've seen teams practice for one game when they were thinking about another opponent. It happened when we had Nebraska coming up while I was at Oklahoma."

Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman thought so, too.

"Maybe they were looking forward to us, because it didn't look like the real Houston last week," Aikman said. "For us, it basically is just another game in the 16 we have to play."

Dallas owner Jerry Jones said he takes delight that when the Cowboys play the Oilers in preseason, even in the Astrodome, "most of the fans are for the Cowboys. It's a legitimate rivalry."

The Cowboys come into the game off a 26-9 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers where the defense produced nine sacks, including four by Charles Haley.

The Oilers have problems at quarterback, where Cody Carlson is nursing a bruised left shoulder and backup Bucky Richardson is inexperienced. Pardee said it could be kickoff time before he picks a starter.

Pardee, 7-0 against Dallas, including six preseason games, said he doesn't get awed by the Cowboys' talent.

"They've never gone through a season undefeated yet," Pardee said. "Just like anybody, they can be beat."

Dallas leads Houston 4-3 in the regular season, but the Oilers have won the last two regular-season matchups, dating back to 1988. Houston beat Dallas 26-23 in overtime in 1991 after Emmitt Smith lost a fumble to set up the winning points.

"I'm not sure why we always play well against Dallas," Pardee said. "There's no magic. We just make the key plays in the close games. We match up with their players well."

Dallas lost 6-0 to Houston on a muddy field in Mexico during the preseason.

"That game doesn't mean anything," Pardee said. "It was on a different site with different players. Emmitt Smith didn't even play for Dallas."

Smith gained 171 yards rushing on 31 carries last Sunday to kick off his bid for a fourth consecutive rushing title.

"I don't want to carry the ball that many times every game," Smith said. "I only played in two preseason games. I got tired."

The Oilers would like to tire him out early Sunday. They're certain to be very physical against the Cowboys.

"The Oilers will be a little hot, a little upset when they get here," safety Darren Woodson said. "But we'll be ready, too. We didn't have all our guns in Mexico."

Carroll's win streak comes to halt

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer

For seven years, Southlake Carroll coach Bob Ledbetter has been saying his Dragons were beatable. He's finally been proven correct.

Gainesville avenged several recent embarrassing losses to Carroll in a big way Friday night, beating the Dragons 43-21 and ending their state-record streak of consecutive regular-season victories at 72.

"I've dreamed about this every day," said Gainesville defensive lineman Chad Pegues, a member of the teams that lost three games to Carroll over the last two years by a combined score of 153-26. "They pick on you and pick on you, like a big bully. They finally got theirs."

The state's biggest bully of them all also was a loser Friday night as Class 5A's eighth-ranked Odessa Permian was defeated 23-3 by A&M Consolidated in the Tigers' first home game since returning to Class 5A.

Permian, which forfeited several games last season for using an ineligible player, lost on the field for the first time since the 1992 regional final against Amarillo High. Its last regular-season loss was in 1992 at Temple.

"We can play in 5A, even with guys that are proven winners," Consolidated coach Ross Rogers said.

For the second straight week, half of the top 10 Class 5A teams in The Associated Press high school football poll lost.

Joining Permian on the down side were No. 3 Euless Trinity, No. 6 Willowridge, No. 7 Longview and No. 10 DeSoto.

A Garland touchdown with 28 seconds gave the Owls a 28-25 victory over No. 3 Sherman, making the Bearcats the only ranked 4A team to lose.

The only ranked 3A team to lose was No. 5 Vernon, which fell 21-20 to Frederick, Okla. The Lions lost to an Oklahoma team for the second straight week.

The most notable result in the lower two classes was 1A's No. 3 Sudan beating 2A's No. 4 Springlake Earth 18-6 in this weekend's only game between ranked teams.

Yet with all teams playing non-district games that have no bearing on the playoffs, the one result from Friday night that holds real meaning is Carroll's loss.

Besides snapping the humongous regular-season streak, the Dragons also ended an unbeaten string of 48 straight games, including the postseason.

Carroll, the two-time defending Class 3A champion and winner of three titles over the past five seasons, also lost its chance for an eighth straight undefeated regular season, which would have been a national record.

"What happened to us tonight was the best thing that could happen to this football team," Ledbetter said. "We got beat, but now we can strap it back on and get ready for district."

Carroll has been waiting for the streak to end ever since it became noteworthy two seasons ago. He constantly reminded anyone who asked that his team had its weaknesses and could fall any time.

This year's team was lacking the star power the Dragons have had in the past, and many expected them to return to reality, especially because realignment had pushed the school into 4A.

Yet it was a 3A team, albeit one ranked eighth, that ended the streak.

"Everybody has been doubting us, saying we can't beat Carroll. We just had to show them," said Leopards running back Brandon Harrison, who ran for 239 yards and two touchdowns on 24 carries.

Jordan helps close Chicago Stadium

By RICK GANO
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - Michael Jordan said good-bye, probably to organized basketball and for sure to Chicago Stadium. He fashioned the farewell as only he could, mixing his incomparable athletic skills with a sense of drama.

After scoring 52 points in an exhibition game Friday night against NBA players - his first public basketball appearance in 15 months - Jordan knelt and planted a kiss on the red Bulls insignia painted on the center of the floor.

"At the end of the game, there was an opportunity to say good-bye to the stadium as well as to my opportunity of playing in the stadium," Jordan said.

"It meant a lot to me. It's given me a lot, and I think I've given it a lot. It's mutual love and understanding. It's time to move on."

Jordan delighted the sellout crowd of 18,671 that came mostly to see him and to soak up the atmosphere of the 65-year-old stadium one last time. The new United Center will now be home to the Bulls.

"I can still do this," Jordan said after displaying his assortment of drives, dunks and jumpers 11 months after his retirement.

"I just don't have to do it in front of 18,676. I can do it in any gym with any people I want. That's a rare freedom."

Afterwards, Jordan said once again that his days in the NBA were over and that he thought he had made significant strides in baseball after finishing his first season with the Birmingham Barons of the Double-A Southern League.

"The game of basketball has always been a part of me," said Jordan, adding he couldn't see himself as a two-sport athlete. "I never said I'd stop playing the game, I just said I wouldn't play organized basketball."

Jordan, who admitted he'd spent a few days practicing, made 24 of 46 shots as his team won 187-150. He scored one more point than he had RBIs in an entire season at Birmingham.

As the final minutes ticked off, the crowd stood and screamed, "Michael! Michael!"

Jordan, guarded by Scottie Pippen, didn't disappoint. He hit a fallaway jumper and seconds later weaved his way from halfcourt for a layup.

The final seconds became a game of 1-on-1 between Jordan and Pippen, the key players in Chicago's title run of three championships.

Both Pippen and Jordan missed their final shots, then hugged each other as the game ended.

"I don't think he misses (basketball) at all," Pippen said. "He still enjoys the game, and he realizes he's dominant in the game, but I don't think he misses it. He says he enjoys baseball. I'm sure that's where he's keeping his heart."

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) - Women's softball in NCAA competition is on the rise and much of the credit is going to the fact that it will be a medal sport in the 1996 Olympics.

attendance, the inevitable barometer, has risen steadily.

Jay Miller, a member of the NCAA's Softball Committee summed it up:

"The Olympics are part of it," she said. "And the gender-equity movement also is a factor."

SMU's LeVias paved way for blacks in SWC

By KENNY HAND
The Houston Post

HOUSTON - He touched so many hearts on those wonderful Texas autumn afternoons, not only dashing his way to All-America football prominence at Southern Methodist but leaving a positive imprint on the Southwest Conference forever.

Maybe no one has ever thanked Jerry LeVias for the memories. Someone should. So, Jerry, with the 80th and next-to-last SWC season under way, thank you. For you survived four years of loneliness, racial slurs and death threats as the first black player to impact the SWC.

LeVias isn't sure he could live through a repeat performance if he were a college freshman in 1994 and SWC football wasn't integrated.

"They tried to kill me in 1966," he said, referring to the rumors that he'd be assassinated on the field near the end of his sophomore season at SMU. "The way things are today, they wouldn't just try. I'd be dead. Or I'd have to have a lot of security."

But then he laughs softly because there is no trace of bitterness 28 years later in LeVias, who lives in Houston and works as the marketing director for the Janice McKinney Court Reporting Service.

"It crushes me that the conference is breaking up because I had more fun than bad memories from SMU and the SWC," LeVias said. "If we (SWC) had stopped fighting each other, with all those schools getting put on probation, the SWC would have had top teams from other leagues begging to join us."

"Everybody always said a Texan was something different, special. And we were proud of being SWC players. The hatred toward me didn't come so much as it did from the outside."

"I remember once against Texas when one of their players called me a name and (quarterback) Bill Bradley aired him out and then came to me and apologized for the team." LeVias' only regret was that he suspects he led to Hayden Fry's firing as head coach after 1972 because Fry boldly recruited him.

"This guy, I think it was an alum, was telling coach Fry that if he played me, a black, he'd see to it that Fry got fired," LeVias said. "Hayden opened a Pandora's box by signing me. I love that man. He graduated 84 percent of his players. But he didn't coddle me. No sir. He treated me just like every other player."

In fact, LeVias had academic problems his freshman year because he kept staying up until 5 a.m. playing poker with some SMU players. "One day coach Fry says, 'Levi, you're either going to start sleeping and studying, or I'm calling your mother.'"

"I begged Hayden not to do THAT. I made the dean's list every semester from then on."

LeVias' mother, Leura, scrubbed floors for a living. His father, Charlie, was a machinist. They were devout Church of Christ members who taught their son not to hate others regardless of race, to never quit and to believe in people. He remains very close to them.

"My parents never wanted me to make excuses. We didn't know what a dysfunctional family was. Nowadays, a kid gets his butt kicked and he says he came from a dysfunctional family."

LeVias had no idea he was going to be the Jackie Robinson of SWC football, although John Westbrook of Baylor technically was the first black who played in an SWC game, beating LeVias by one week.

"My success came from the yellow streak down my back," LeVias said. "When you're scared, you run fast. Hayden, when he recruited me, didn't tell me there weren't any blacks in the SWC and I didn't know. I was naive. But I didn't think in terms of color and neither did coach Fry. The subject never came up. If it had, I probably wouldn't have gone there."

LeVias received more than 50 offers, including one from UCLA where a cousin from Beaumont, Mel Farr, was the Bruins' ace running back. Sure, LeVias was a two-time all-state running back at Beaumont Hebert, but he also weighed only 130 pounds.

"Interestingly enough, I never got nicked in high school, other than a twisted ankle," LeVias said. "We ran two plays: sweeps and quick-hitters. I outran everyone."

The secret is out: He never weighed more than 155 at SMU. "They listed me at 165 or 170," he said. "Hayden had quite an imagination. But just about every week when I was a freshman, they had to keep the campus medical center open late to treat all my injuries."

"Unfortunately, they didn't have a cure for being spit on."

He made his name with the Mustangs as a remarkable wide receiver, arguably the most dangerous player in SWC history, pound-for-pound, to touch a football. His records (1966-68) have been broken, but LeVias was unique because he affected the outcome of games in ways that one-dimensional stars can only dream.

He returned punts and kickoffs like lightning. Ran reverses. Threw passes off reverses. He could almost outrun the wind and, in the open field, often made a defensive back weep trying to lay a hand on him. And, remember, he played only three varsity years back then.

Jerry LeVias was a true joy to behold, a phenomenal athlete and phenomenal person.

What you might not have known is that he was sickly as a child.

He and his neighborhood friends in Beaumont would fill a sock with rags and use it as a sandlot football, but LeVias was resigned to being a team trainer ("picking up jocks and helmets") until the ninth grade. Kids used to make fun of him because he was constantly in the hospital.

"People thought I had polio," he said.

In the fourth grade a girl named Velma Hicks beat him up and took his lunch money. "I moved to another school because I couldn't face the guys," he said. Some girls are larger than boys at that age, right? "Yeah," he said reluctantly, "but Velma was shorter than I was. Just tougher."

LeVias became plenty tough, winning a game on the final play against Texas A&M in 1967 by amazingly holding onto the pass thrown by 5-foot-4 quarterback Ines Perez. LeVias, see, was knocked unconscious in the end zone.

"Aggie players and Gene Stallings later told me they thought I was a hell of a player. I had a couple of problems with certain players on other teams - a guy on one team gouged my eye and nearly put it out - but most (opponents) were nice guys."

LeVias loved his SMU teammates and loved playing in the games. Away from the field, though, he built a wall around himself. "I lived in a vacuum," he said.

His freshman year, the parents of the player with whom he roomed demanded different arrangements from the school. They didn't want their son rooming with a black. So LeVias tried to adjust to those times when he was lonely.

Billy Bob Stewart, a rough-hewn linebacker from Grand Prairie, prodded LeVias into singing like James Brown during the sessions when they teased the football freshmen.

"But it wasn't a racial thing," LeVias said, grinning. "Billy Bob just really LIKED James Brown. I'd take him and some other players to (Dallas) nightclubs when Otis Redding or Wilson Pickett were in town. We had great times."

The NFL wasn't as kind to LeVias, who played seven pro seasons, including his first two (1969-70) with the Oilers. They weren't great teams. Plus, LeVias finally realized that this was big business. The fun part of football was gone.

To this day, the only football memento he keeps is a red ceramic horse that Fry gave to the Mustang who made the biggest plays for a season. But he's proud of what he accomplished and he should be. Jerry LeVias is a Texas football legend.

"I've never been a failure. I've had setbacks, but I'm doing the best job I can now in the legal service. I'm price-conscious and quality-oriented. I'm happier now because I don't think about making the almighty dollar as much.

"I always speak to people. Even if they don't speak back, I've tried. I've always believed good will overcome evil. I've left my fingerprints in that statement, because I'm hanging on. I still believe in people."

"That might be enough to get me into heaven."

perspective, consider that a team beginning a winning streak this weekend would have to keep winning through the third week of the 2001 season to tie the mark.

Gainesville (1-1) led 28-21 at halftime as Harrison ran for 192 rushing yards and scored both of his touchdowns. The Leopards then tacked on 15 unanswered points in the second half.

A&M Consolidated's victory was just as impressive. The Tigers (2-0) compiled 397 yards of total offense and 20 first downs compared to just 106 yards and five first downs for the Panthers (1-1).

But Permian led 3-0 at the half, thanks to an interception at its 3, recovery of a fumble at its 19 and a missed 40-yard field goal by A&M Consolidated.

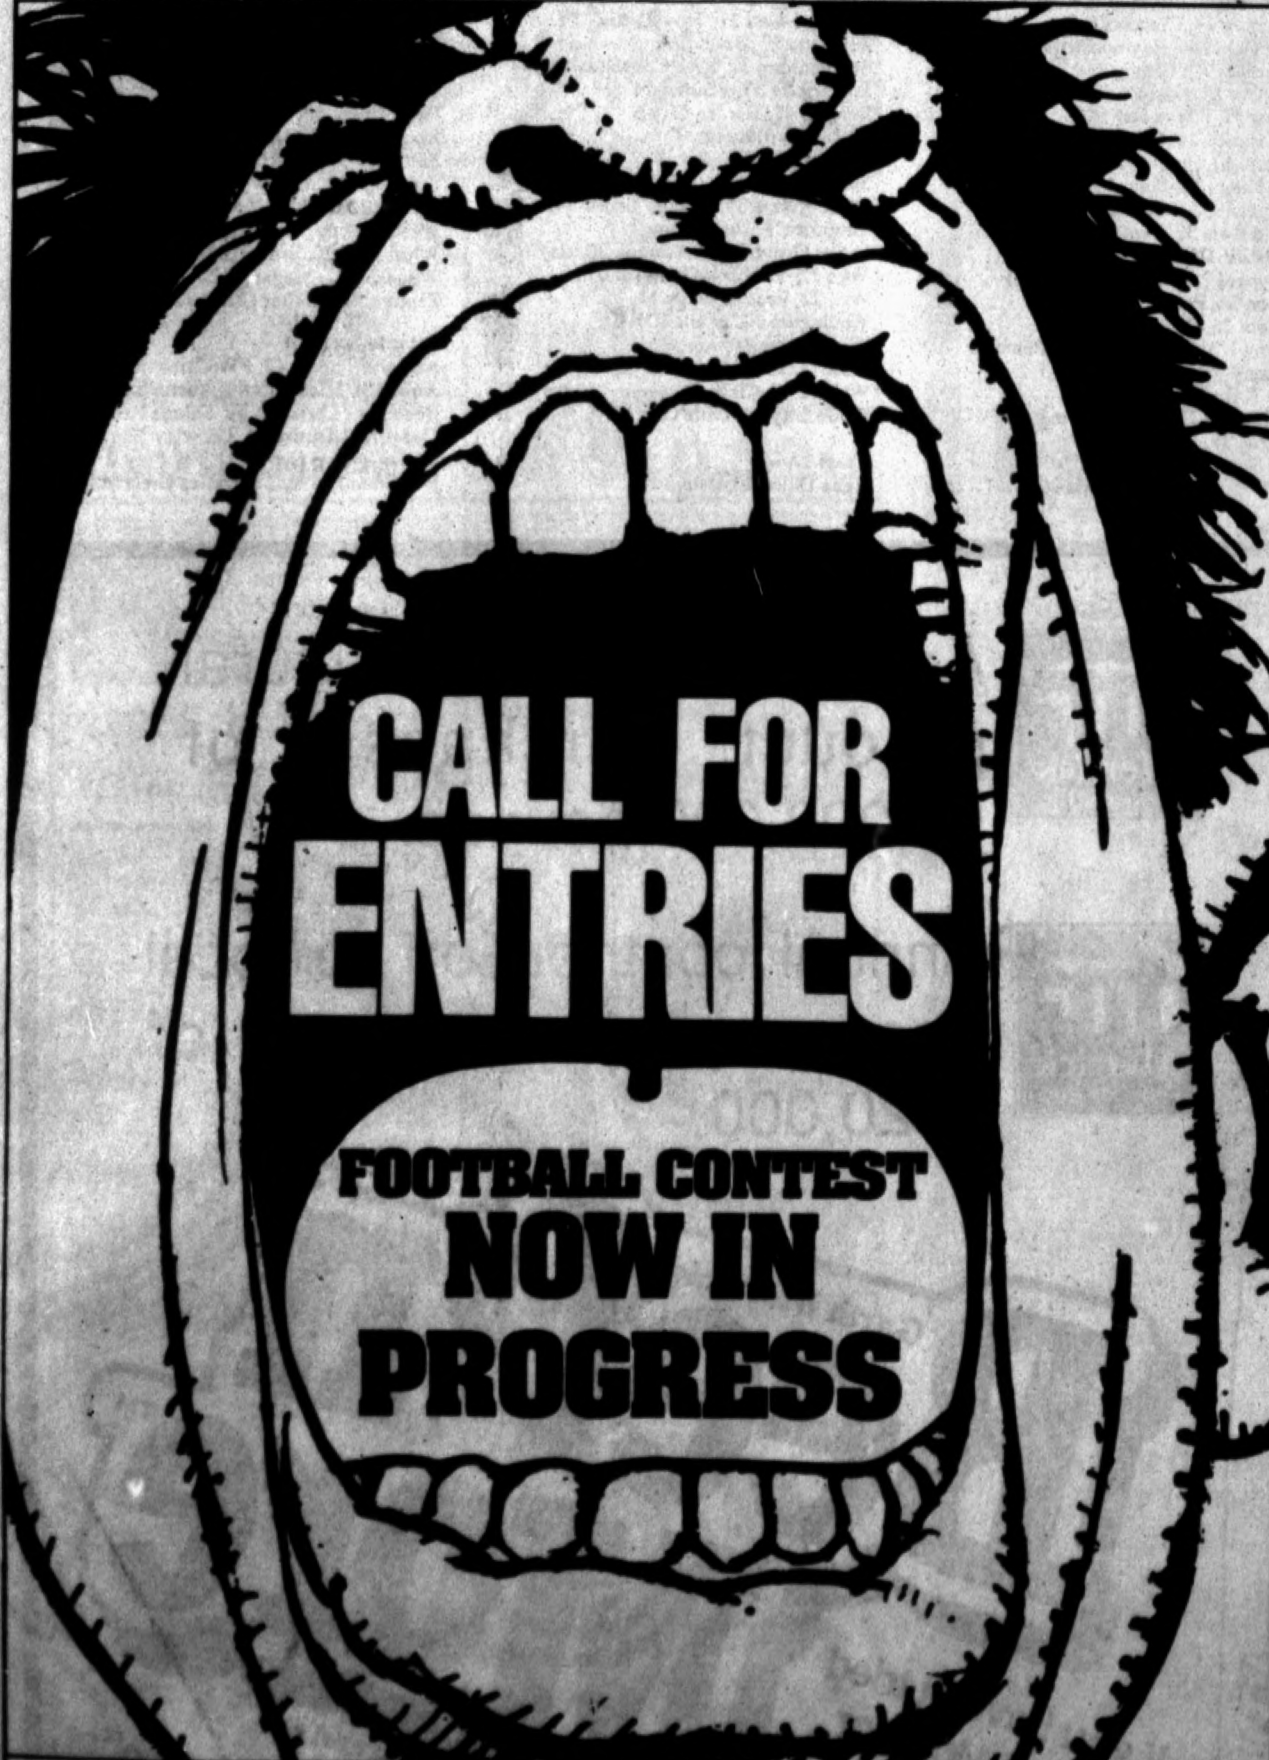

Then everything went A&M's way as the Tigers shuffled between quarterbacks Anthony Hensley and Dan Daniel and wore out the Permian defense.

"We knew that sitting on Consol's offense was like sitting on a bomb," new Permian coach Randy Mayes said.

Grapevine's 24-22 victory over Euleus Trinity was powered by a last-second field goal, while No. 6 Willowridge was flat as it lost 13-0 to Aldine to drop to 0-2 on the season.

Killeen shut out No. 7 Longview 13-0, and No. 10 DeSoto was tripped up 23-6 by Irving Nimitz.

Several 3A teams flexed their muscles Friday night as No. 1 Cuero smeared Bastrop 49-0, No. 2 Sealy crushed Giddings 49-7, No. 3 Jefferson thumped DeKalb 41-0 and No. 4 Sweeny pounded West Columbia 71-12.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WELLS

Now that school has started I'm sure your schedules have calmed down enough to give you some time to relax. Remember our family film night coming September 15th at 7:00 pm. The feature film is "Yours, Mine and Ours" starring Henry Fonda and Lucille Ball. If you haven't seen this movie I encourage you to do so. You will leave with a smile on your face and a warm feeling in your heart.

There is a wide choice of books at the Deaf Smith County Library that includes several new books each week. So if it has been a while since you have been by come in and check us out. This week's new book list includes Tom Clancy's Debt of Honor. Jack Ryan faces his greatest challenge yet. Called out of retirement to serve as the new President's National Security Advisor, Ryan discovers the issues of peace are as complex as those of war. Friends and enemies change quickly and even the forms of conflict do not remain the same. A wealthy Japanese businessman on Saipan Island in the Pacific, a foreign Navy exercise off of Sri Lanka in the Indian Ocean, and an American engineer using a customized computer program, compose the first link in a chain of events that create the next international conflict. It is up to Ryan and CIA officers John Clark and Domingo Chavez to prepare an untested President to meet the challenge.

Lying in Wait by J.A. Jance takes you into the world of homicide detective J.P. Beaumont. J.P.'s first day back at work after his grandfather's funeral took him on a new case on the docks of Seattle. The fire department had managed to extinguish the flames on the commercial fishing boat quickly. The fire had not burned long enough or hot enough for the flesh of the extraordinarily large man to come off bones, but he was no longer recognizable. Why was the victim lying on the table? Then J.P. noticed the handcuffs. Whoever had put him there had meant for him to stay. Else Didriksen Gebhardt, blocked behind the police barricade, demanded to know what was going on; why was she not allowed on her boat; and where was her husband Gunter, his truck was in the parking lot. It isn't until Else has had a chance to I.D. the body from a photo that J.P. remembers her from high school. Thirty years before Else, a troubled teenager had walked out on J.P. Beaumont's life, now what a way to become reacquainted. Detective Beaumont dismisses no suspect as he tracks the killer from briny fishing enclave to the graceful estates of Seattle's high society.

Eye Contact by Stephen Collins is the debut of a "natural story teller." Actress Nicolette Stallings lives for danger. Some of her best performances are off-screen but they must be played by her rules. 1) No names can be exchanged. 2) They'll never see each other again. There he is, the perfect stranger. When their eyes meet Nick can tell he is trying to connect. What Nick doesn't know is that she has met a man that won't play by the rules. And before it is all over Nicolette stands alone accused of murder.

So Far, So Good by Burgess Meredith is the memoir of an accomplished actor and director. Burgess gives the reader a colorful, candid and witty tour through the world of American theater and films. One of the survivors of the Communist witch hunts in the 1950's, Burgess' career spans over half a century in the spot light. "So Far, So Good." is filled with marvelous anecdotes and revealing reminiscences about many directors and actors such as John Huston, Orson Wells, Jimmy Stewart, John Steinbeck, Charles Chaplin, Ginger Rogers, Charles Laughton and many more. "A delightful read."

Audrey Hepburn: An Intimate Portrait by Diana Maychick is a book written with Audrey's complete willingness to share some intensely personal and painful memories. Hepburn and Maychick spent countless hours together in conversation as Audrey shared her childhood, careers and loves. What Maychick didn't know was that Audrey was dying. This is a wonderful personal look at an elegant woman, and a candid look at a painful childhood. Audrey's father, a blatant Nazi sympathizer couldn't protect his family from the deprivation of the war years. Audrey escapes from the Germans by hiding in a rag-infested cellar, nearly starving to death. Later this starvation experience led to a long struggle with food disorders. Audrey also became an Ambassador for UNICEF and worked tirelessly on behalf of starving children. Audrey celebrates her fabled rise from showgirl to film star by seducing Hollywood away from its fixation on blonds, with her beguiling eyes and sophisticated manners.

Story hours being held

Betty Stephan, Deaf Smith County children's librarian, prepares for one of several story hours presented each week at the library. With backdrops of her own creation, Mrs. Stephan presents stories, puppet plays, films and videos for local day care centers and for kindergarten students. Public story time is held each Thursday at 10 a.m. Parents with children three to five-years-old are welcome to attend.

Sorority observes Beginning Day

"Beginning Day" was observed recently by members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. The site of the meeting was The Back Porch Restaurant in Amarillo.

Assembling for the noon meal and business session were Holly Bixler, Deann Harris, Melinda Henson, Peggy Hyer, Ruby Lee, Connie Matthews, Brenda Ramey, Gaye B. Reily, Susan Shaw, Melinda Whitfill and Kay Williams.

Following lunch, President Lee conducted the business meeting beginning with Opening Ritual. Corresponding Secretary Whitfill noted that the Northwest Texas Area Convention is set for Oct. 15-16 at the Radisson Hotel in Amarillo. The 1995 Texas State Convention is planned June 30-July 2 in San Antonio.

In other communications, Hyer noted that the Adult Tutor Training Workshop was held Friday and Saturday at the Deaf Smith County Library. The purpose of the event was to learn to teach adults how to read.

A thank you note from Ruby and Steve Sanders was read concerning the chapter's expression of sympathy for the death of Steve's grandmother, Nadine Hill.

There is always some accident in the best things, whether thought or expressions or deeds. The memorable thought, the pay expression, the admirable deed are only partly ours.

Secret sisters were thanked by: Harris, Shaw, Bixler Williams, Ramey, Henson, Reily and Matthews.

Committee reports began as the ways and means chairman, Melinda Henson, thanked chapter participants for making the summer garage sale a success. Funds raised from the event will go toward worthy local causes next spring. Henson said future fundraisers will include chapter participation in the Crimestoppers Halloween Carnival, the Westway Christmas Bazaar in November and the Lions Club luncheon in April.

Committee Chairman Shaw announced the year's plans: To donate toys to the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross; donate money via a trivia contest to the Christmas Stocking Fund; visit Adopted Sister Billie Brown; help at a Hereford Beautification Alliance clean-up day; and bring collect baby food for Operation Good Shepherd.

The Program and Yearbook Chairman Williams distributed book inserts based on the 1994-94 theme of "Light the Way."

Social Committee Chairman Harris listed tentatively planned events: An after-football-game party this month; a Christmas couples party in December; a Super Bowl party in January; an Alpha Alpha Chapter party in March; a mystery shopping trip in April; and a birthday party in May.

Closing ritual and Mizpah were repeated.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Financial donations are being accepted at the Red Cross office for Southeast states flood relief and Rwandan relief. We are collecting aluminum cans and proceeds from the sale of the cans will be used for disaster relief.

The American Red Cross responds to more than 50,000 disasters every year. Red Cross disaster services helps people for all walks of life, serving them efficiently and fairly. In our area, our chapters disaster services is working to increase the number of trained volunteers available to assist when disaster strikes. Please call our office if you are interested in helping with disaster services.

Classes and programs on AIDS/HIV are available by calling our office. The programs are available in Spanish and English.

Disaster Health Services I and II classes are going to be held soon in Odessa. They are open to anyone interested in working in the health field during a disaster. Call the office for further information. The Deaf Smith County Chapter is a United Way Agency.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Most teachers have had little, if any, training in theater arts; however, any experienced teacher knows that preparation is only a small portion of a day's teaching. The rest is in acting!

To whom it may concern: HJH teams are not leveled according to students' abilities, or the lack thereof. There are no low, middle or high groups, or teams. If you are interested in more proof of this, we invite you to come to HJH and visit a classroom, or spend the day.

Journalism students have been interviewing new teachers for information to be used in their soon-to-be published newspaper.

In "Linking the Past to the Future", Mrs. Drake is having her eighth grade history classes study an 1800's Karl Brodner scenery painting and then describe the same scene nearly 200 years later--today. They are to be tested on geography terms early this week.

Teams are beginning to visit with students who have excessive noon study hall assignments and/or low grades. Progress reports will be prepared this week and will be sent home with the students.

For parents, students and teachers who are interested--there will be a History Day Workshop on Saturday, September 17, from nine until four. This will be held at the Panhandle-Plains Museum. A fee of $10.00 will include the charge for materials and the noon meal. A bus will leave HJH at 8:10 and return by 5:00. Reservations should be turned in to Mrs. Waters by Tuesday, September 13.

Geography Bee participants have received the first of their study materials. They are to report to Room 5 each morning before advisory time to study. They will have at least one test every week to ten days. There are twelve potential Bee members.

Junior Historians will meet Wednesday of this week to finalize their fund-raiser plans. They will also be discussing an upcoming trip to Pampa to a museum there and a trip to Palo Duro Canyon which will include some historical site seeing.

In the process of our teaching, we are striving to impress upon our students that beautiful line, "God made you, and God don't make junk." Seriously, through teaching, "acting", and by example, we want our students to know that they not only are "somebody's" but that they are "somebody special" and we expect no more nor less than their best from them each day.

'MASH' theme used for first club meeting

"Hotlips" didn't know what to expect when she reported for duty Tuesday as Toujour Amis held its opening meeting with a "MASH" theme.

The yearbook committee hosted the meeting at the home of Julia Lang. Members dressed as their favorite MASH character, and a meal was served, mess-tent style.

Entertainment included bedpan relays, blow-up-you-surgical-glove relay, and a five-man stretcher relay.

The "enlisted" attending were Tami Charest, president; Melinda Bridge, vice president; Julia Lang, secretary; Lauri Paetzold, treasurer; Diana Griffin, reporter; Lisa Klett, historian; Trish Brown, parliamentarian; Judy Barrett, Kim Bigham, Cindy Black, Susan Bodkin, Patti Brown, Lisa Formby, Shannon Hagar, Tonya Horrell, Sandy Josseland, Dona Kemp, Sarah Lawson, Leisa Lewis, Kyla McDowell, Kim Porter, Becky Reinart, Jill Savoini, Judy Schumacher, Cindy Simons, Nena Veazey, Donna West and Marsha Winget.

MIAMI (AP) - Jon Secada denies praising Fidel Castro and is threatening to sue an Argentinian news agency that reported otherwise.

"I have never or will ever sympathize with the Castro government," the Cuban-born pop singer said. "I don't give credit to him or ever will."

Secada said Tuesday he did not even remember being interviewed by Carlos Dutil, who wrote the story for the News Agency Telam.

Don't take a pinch instead of a puff

The good news: After decades of negative publicity and anti-smoking legislation, cigarette smoking has declined for the seventh year in a row.

The bad news: Consumption of snuff, the most widely used form of smokeless tobacco, has risen for the fourth consecutive year.

The worst news: In a recent medical journal, a dental researcher suggests that smokers addicted to nicotine who can't quit the habit might avoid most of the habit's health hazards by switching to snuff.

The argument: While cigarette smoke is linked to a host of hazards from heart disease to lung cancer, smokeless tobacco is associated only with an increased risk of oral cancers.

Suggesting this switch is like telling someone to use a rifle instead of an Uzi. Doctors diagnose more than 29,000 cases of oral cancer each year and 8,000 people die from the disease.

Oral and maxillofacial surgeons are all too familiar with the ravages of smokeless tobacco and strongly endorse the American Cancer Society's position that "The use of chewing tobacco or snuff increases the risk of cancer of the mouth, larynx, throat and esophagus and is a highly addictive habit."

Unfortunately, more than 22 million persons age 12 and older have used some form of smokeless. Usage among high school students is as high as 35 percent--19 percent use some form daily.

More shocking--a recent government survey found that smokeless users picked up the habit at the average of nine and more than 25 percent of users start dipping snuff by age five!

Beside warning people not to switch from one poison to another and not to use smokeless at all, for those who do have a smokeless or smoking habit, oral surgeons recommend a monthly self-examination. Look for the danger signals including:

- Reddish or whitish patches within the month;
 - A sore that fails to heal and bleeds easily;
 - A lump or thickening of the tissues;
 - Chronic sore throat or hoarseness;
 - Difficulty in chewing or swallowing.
- To complete an oral examination using a bright light and a mirror:
- Look and feel inside of lips, front of gums;
 - Tilt head back to look at and feel the roof of your mouth;

-Pull the cheek out to see the inside and also the back gums;
-Put out your tongue, look at all surfaces.
-Feel for lumps or enlarged lymph nodes in both sides of the neck and under the lower jaw.

Scholarship recipients are named

Eric Gulley, Brandon Holcombe and Sara Zinck were among 186 West Texas A&M University students enrolled in the Sybil B. Harrington College of Fine Arts and Humanities who were awarded scholarships for the 1994-95 school year. Scholarships totaled $69,773 to selected undergraduate and graduate students.

Gilley is a freshman music major who was awarded the Don Baird Scholarship; Holcombe, a freshman graphic design major, the Levi W. and Margaret T. Cole Scholarship; and Zinck, a sophomore theatre major, the Moody-Northen Scholarship.

New Arrivals

Louis and Brenda Paschel of Hereford announce the birth of a daughter, Mikayla Margaret Elise Paschel.

She was born at 9:06 a.m. on Aug. 24. She weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces and was 20-1/2 inches long.

She has a big brother, Branden, age 2.

Her grandparents are Betty Avent of Canyon and Anthony and Katherine Paschel of Vega. Great-grandparents are Margaret Brorman of Hereford and Fred Paschel of Amarillo.

Consumers like electronic products

Ninety-six percent of consumers think consumer electronics have a positive impact on their lives, a national survey recently found.

Other opinions expressed during the Electronic Industries Association's Consumer electronics Group survey of 1,000 consumers were:

-Ninety-three percent through quality the most important factor in their purchase decision, 92 percent thought reliability important and 75 percent thought price was an important factor.

-One in four would purchase a consumer electronics product if they had $500 to spend, second only to a vacation.

-Eighty-six percent agree with the statement "stores where I purchase consumer electronics products do a good job of helping me understand the product."

Military Muster

Senior Airman Sonia E. Martinez recently arrived in Korea where she will be stationed at Osan Air Force Base for the next 12 months.

Martinez is a life support technician in the Air Force.

She completed basic training at Lackland AFB in 1991 and was stationed at Reese AFB in Lubbock prior to her assignment to Korea.

A native of Hereford, she was graduated from high school in Laredo.

Her parents are Oscar and Blanca Martinez of Temecula, Cal., formerly of Hereford. She is the granddaughter of Zoila O. Gutierrez of Hereford.

Stir-fry cooking is easy in microwave

By NANCY BYAL

For AP Special Features
Stir-fry cooking in your microwave oven is much more convenient than it sounds. For one thing, there's no need to worry about food sticking to the pan. The moisture created by microwave cooking prevents the sauce from sticking. Two more pluses: Microwave stir-frying is fast and it doesn't as much stirring as the regular method. This citrus-flavored chicken dish takes as little as 10 minutes to cook.

Chicken and Broccoli Stir-Fry
3 tablespoons dry sherry
3 tablespoons soy sauce or reduced-sodium soy sauce
4 ounces firm tofu (fresh bean curd), drained and cut into 3/4-inch cubes
8 ounces skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
2 tablespoons orange juice
1-1/2 cups small broccoli flowerets
1 medium carrot, thinly sliced (1/2 cup)
1/2 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel

1/4 cup cold water
4 teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 cup sliced water chestnuts
Hot cooked rice
In a small mixing bowl combine sherry and soy sauce. Add tofu; let stand for 15 minutes.

Rinse chicken; pat dry. Cut into bite-size strips. In a 1-1/2-quart microwave-safe casserole cook chicken, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 3 to 5 minutes or until no longer pink, stirring once. Drain chicken; set aside. Drain tofu, reserving marinade.

Add reserved marinade and orange juice to casserole. Add broccoli, carrot and orange peel. Cook, covered, on high for 3 to 6 minutes or until crisp-tender, stirring once. Remove vegetables, reserving liquid.

In a small bowl stir together cold water, cornstarch and sugar; stir into reserved liquid in casserole. Cook, uncovered, on high for 2 to 3 minutes or until bubbly, stirring after 1 minute, then after every 30 seconds. Stir in chicken, vegetables, tofu and water chestnuts. Cook, covered, on high for 2 to 4 minutes more or until heated through, stirring once. Serve over rice. Makes 3 servings.

Some advances in the quality of life far away can help to make life better right here. For example, there are people in the third world and elsewhere who have access to clean water, electricity and adequate sanitation, the more likely we'll all see fewer epidemics, better care of natural resources and more markets for American exports.

Thank You

Words cannot express our thanks to everyone who called, came by, sent flowers and cards, and brought food when our Mother & Grandmother, Altie Velma Hadley passed away.

A special thank you to the Hereford Care Center and the Hereford Fire Dept. All the loving concern has made our grief easier to bear.

With Love,
Jay & Wanda Spain, David, Marva & Kirk Spain, DeAuné, Trisha & Ashly Spain

Velasquez, White wed in Amarillo

Wedding vows were exchanged by Amarillo residents, Chanda Danielle Velasquez and Marchon Todd White, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 3, in Amarillo's Paramount Terrace Christian Church. The marriage was officiated by the Rev. Roy Wheeler.

The bride is the daughter of Wanda Faught and Ben Velasquez of Amarillo and the bridegroom is the son of Jon and Cynthia Lancaster of Amarillo.

The church was decorated with red, white and blue pew bows, two double-heart candleholders, two blue candleholders, and red, white and blue floral bouquets.

After wedding vows were spoken, the couple walked through an archway of swords presented by a division of the U.S. Marine Corps.

The bride's parents presented their daughter in marriage.

The bride's sister, Crystal Crump of Hereford, served as matron of honor and best man was the groom's brother, Jeffery White of Fort Worth, petty officer first class, Navy.

Tammy Shannon and Angi Drossen, both of Amarillo, served as bridesmaids. Groomsmen, who were attired in military uniforms as was the groom, included Marc Bennett of Amarillo, lance corporal, Marine Corps., and the bride's brother, David Velasquez of Amarillo, private first class, Marine Corps.

Guests were ushered by the groom's brother, Clint Lancaster of Amarillo.

Flower girl was Brooke Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marc Bennett of Amarillo. Ring bearer was Whitten White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery White of Fort Worth.

Amy Lane of Plainview, who was accompanied on the piano by the bride's cousin, Charity Reneau of Amarillo, sang "Here and Now." Also, performed was "I Swear."

The bride wore the traditional bridal gown fashioned with a bow in the back, a straight skirt and a train accented with lace. Her mid-length veil was attached to a bow.

In keeping with bridal tradition, she wore diamond earrings as something old; a white garter, something new; a gold band ring, something borrowed; and a sapphire ring from the groom, something blue.

The bride carried a bouquet of red, white and blue roses adorned with lace and pearls.

Bridal attendants wore red, off-the-shoulder sequined gowns fashioned with straight skirts and bows at the back bodices.

Bethany Bennett of Amarillo invited guests to register at the reception held in the church.

Debbie Newton of Clovis, N.M., served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Charlene Long of Amarillo.

The main refreshment table was adorned with red, white and blue ribbons, blue flowers and matching decorations, the white bride's cake and the strawberry groom's cake.

The bride wore her wedding dress as the couple departed in a limousine for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride attends West Texas A&M University where she has been a cheerleader for two years. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Fraternity.

Lance Corporal White serves in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves. He graduated from Amarillo College/Harrington Cancer Center School of Radiation Therapy.

Wedding guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garner and Sandra Evans, all of Dallas.

You need calcium for a lifetime of healthy bones

Millions of Americans should be consuming more calcium, an essential nutrient for developing and maintaining strong bones throughout life, according to a panel of experts at the National Institutes of Health's (NIH) Consensus Development Conference on calcium.

Optimal calcium intake is most important from childhood through mid-twenties, when bones are growing the fastest and bone mass peaks, and again later in life when bone loss occurs. This loss often leads to osteoporosis, a disease which weakens bones and may lead to painful fractures.

"Osteoporosis affects 25 million Americans and one-third of all women over 50, yet is highly preventable with proper nutrition," according to Gail L. Becker, R.D.

The NIH panels recommends the following daily intakes:

-Children aged one to 10: 800 milligrams

-Children and young adults aged 11-24: 1,200 to 1,500

-Women aged 25-50: 1,000 mg.

-As a result of accelerated bone loss from decreased estrogen levels during menopause, post-menopausal women should consume 1,000 to 1,500 mg.

-Men over 65, whose risk factors for osteoporosis such as low levels of Vitamin D and impaired calcium absorption are similar to those of women, may also need to increase their intake, but 800 mg. is generally recommended for men 25 years and older.

In addition to eating more calcium-rich food sources such as low fat dairy products, broccoli and leafy greens, you should consider calcium supplementation to make up the nutrition shortfalls. "By including an adequate amount of calcium in your diet, which may mean taking a dietary supplement, you may reduce the risk or delay the onset of osteoporosis in later life," Ms. Becker adds.

Absorbability is the most important factor to consider when choosing a calcium supplement. Citracal calcium citrate dissolves readily in liquid and is the only form to be absorbed on an empty stomach, in comparison with calcium carbonate and calcium phosphate.

For these reasons, it also may be the best choice for people who have achlorhydria or low stomach acid. This becomes more common with age, when people are more likely to develop osteoporosis.

The usual signs of food poisoning are nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, fever or cramps. Depending on the type of food poisoning, it is sometimes difficult to diagnose and symptoms may appear anywhere from 30 minutes to two weeks after ingestion of the bacteria.

Cool weather means it's soup time

This soup measures up perfectly to today's taste and health standards. It's hearty, fiber-rich and low in fat. Lean ham replaces the bacon traditionally used in lentil and bean soups. Instead of sauteeing the vegetables in bacon drippings, you simmer them with the lentils, thereby avoiding extra fat. To build full, rich flavor, toss in some lean ham and a few shavings of lemon peel.

Spinach and Lentil Soup

- 1 cup dry lentils
- 5 cups water
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 cup sliced carrot
- 2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon granules

- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel

- 1/8 teaspoon ground red pepper
 - 1 cup cubed fully cooked lean ham
 - 2 cups chopped fresh spinach
- Rinse and drain lentils. In a large saucepan combine water, lentils, onion, celery, carrot, bouillon granules, garlic, lemon peel and red pepper. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 45 minutes.

Add ham; simmer, uncovered, for 15 minutes. Stir in spinach and serve. Makes 4 to 6 main-dish servings.

Note: If you need to watch your sodium intake, use lower-sodium ham and save about 130 milligrams of sodium per serving.

Nutrition facts per serving: 273 cal., 4 g fat, 21 mg chol., 23 g pro., 38 g carbo., 10 g fiber, 1,034 mg sodium.

Peppers are topic of club meeting here

Rice recipes easy to make, nutritious

By DANA JACOBI
For AP Special Features

On the list of cooking challenges, getting rice to come out right seems to be a constant entry. Rather than trying to make perfect rice, how about preparing dishes where you don't have to think about whether your rice will be fluffy?

The following are a trio of rice-based main dishes that are rather forgiving: rice-crust pizza, tuna-rice salad and curried chicken and rice. All use rice combined with other ingredients.

The kind of rice used is more important for each of them than getting every grain separate and cooked just so. Miss a bit on the timing, use too much liquid or forget to fluff the grains of rice with a fork, and most of them will still be fine.

Rice that's a bit gummy is OK for rice-crust pizza since it's blended with an egg and pressed into a crust. Plump-grained Arborio is the best choice. You can substitute a short-grain rice, perhaps even an Asian one.

The texture of the rice in tuna-rice salad won't matter once it's tossed with the other ingredients. In fact, this recipe is a good way to use up leftover rice. The tang in the salad comes from the classic Italian combination of wine vinegar and sugar.

Applesauce gives a subtle hint of sweetness to curried chicken and rice. Use a long-grain rice; Texmati, an aromatic rice grown in the United States, is particularly suitable.

All of these dishes are light and well suited to summer meals. Most of them are also low in fat. Serve with a green salad and fresh fruit for dessert, and you'll have a perfect lunch or dinner.

Rice-Crust Pizza

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 medium green bell pepper, seeded and chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 8 fresh plum tomatoes, seeded and chopped
- 1 teaspoon dried basil
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 3 cups cooked Arborio rice

- 1 egg
- 3/4 cup shredded mozzarella cheese (3 ounces)
- 1/4 cup grated Romano cheese (1 ounce)

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Lightly rub a cookie sheet or an 11-inch pizza pan with oil.

Heat remaining oil in a medium skillet over medium-high heat. Add onion, pepper and garlic. Cook until soft, 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add tomatoes, 1/2 teaspoon of the basil, 1/4 teaspoon of the oregano, 1/2 teaspoon of the salt and 1/4 teaspoon of the black pepper.

Meanwhile, in a medium bowl, combine the rice with the egg, the remaining basil, oregano, salt and black pepper. Mound rice in the center of the prepared pan. Cover rice with plastic wrap; with your fingers, pat out rice under the plastic wrap (which keeps the rice from sticking to your fingers) in a 10-1/2-inch circle about 1/2-inch thick, making a rim around the outside. Lift away the plastic wrap.

Sprinkle half the shredded mozzarella over the rice. Spread evenly with the cooked tomato mixture. Top with remaining mozzarella and the Romano cheese. Bake in a 400-degree F oven until the cheese is bubbly and the edge of the rice "crust" is crisp, 15 to 18 minutes. Cut in quarters and serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

Note: When you want to trim fat calories, substitute fat-free mozzarella cheese and use just the white of an egg.

Tuna-Rice Salad

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
 - 1 medium onion, chopped
 - 2 ribs celery, chopped
 - 2 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
 - 2 teaspoons sugar
 - 8 large plum tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
 - 2 cups cooked long-grain rice
 - 6-1/2-ounce can tuna, drained
 - Salt and pepper
 - Iceberg lettuce leaves, for garnish
- Heat oil in a medium skillet over medium heat. Add onion and celery. Cook, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are soft, 3 to 4 minutes. Do not allow vegetables to brown. Stir in vinegar and sugar.

Remove pan from heat. Stir in chopped tomatoes.

In medium bowl, combine cooked rice, tomato mixture and tuna. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Arrange lettuce leaves on a plate. Top with tuna salad. Serve salad the same day it is made. Makes 4 servings.

Note: When local tomatoes are in season, skip the chopped tomato. In its place, blend a cup of chopped parsley with the tuna and rice. Then scoop out four big tomatoes and and heap in the salad.

Curried Chicken and Rice

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon mild curry powder
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 8 ounces skinless and boneless chicken breast, cut in bite-size pieces
- 1 cup unsweetened applesauce
- 1/2 cup Texmati or long-grain white rice
- 1/2 cup plain yogurt, regular or nonfat
- 1/4 cup toasted, sliced almonds, for garnish (optional)
- 2 tablespoons dried currants, for garnish (optional)

In medium skillet over medium-high heat, melt butter. Add curry powder, flour, ginger and allspice. Cook, stirring constantly, for 2 minutes. Very gradually, add chicken broth, stirring to dissolve lumps. Add chicken and applesauce; cook, stirring occasionally, just until chicken pieces lose their raw look.

Stir in rice and 1 cup water. When pot returns to boil, reduce heat to simmer, cover, and cook until rice is done, about 15 minutes. While rice is cooking, stir mixture two or three times. Remove curry from heat; stir in yogurt.

City homes, business given special recognition by HBA

Five homes and a business have earned recognition from the Hereford Beautification Alliance for their efforts in community beautification. The Keeping Us Beautiful recipients are judged to have spent their time and resources in providing neatness to the premises, free of weed and junk; mowed lawns, flowers blooming in season and absence of junk cars.

Letters acknowledging their contribution have gone to:

- Ernesto and Juanita Garza, 515 Knight.
- Doug and Barbara Manning, 103 Rio Vista.
- Gerald and Juanita Perez, 412 Avenue C.

Water Best 'Sports Drink' for Kids

ATLANTA (AP) - Beverages designed to help athletes replace body fluids and trace minerals after workouts are a bad bet for children, says Margaret Neely, a nutritionist for the Gwinnett Fit Kids program at Eggleston Children's Health Center at Emory University.

The drinks are designed for adults and have more salt, sugar and calories than children need, she says.

Parents are buying the drinks for children to drink every day, she says, and that's not what they're for.

Giving the drinks to babies can be downright dangerous. "When doctors advise parents to give their infants balanced electrolyte solutions, such as Pedialyte, to combat dehydration caused by diarrhea, some parents substitute sports drinks, which are typically less expensive," she says.

Hearty vegetable soup is low in fat, nutritious

By NANCY BYAL
For AP Special Features

So rich, so thick and so creamy is this hearty vegetable soup, that no one will believe it's low in fat and calories (and high in fiber). You cut fat and calories when you skip the traditional flour and butter used for thickening. Instead, you just mash some of the beans and potatoes against the side of the pan, letting their starches thicken the broth. Removing all of the flour doesn't work in this case, because you'll need just a little to help stabilize the low-fat sour cream or yogurt that gives the soup its creaminess.

Potato-Bean Soup

- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 2 medium carrots, shredded
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 teaspoons margarine, melted
- 4 cups chicken broth
- 3 medium potatoes, peeled and cut up (3 cups)
- 2 tablespoons snipped fresh dill or 2 teaspoons dried dillweed
- 15-ounce can cannellini beans or

- great Northern beans, drained
- 1/2 cup lower-calorie dairy sour cream or plain nonfat yogurt
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- Dash salt (optional)

In a large saucepan cook and stir celery, carrots and garlic in hot margarine over medium heat about 4 minutes or until tender. Carefully stir in broth, potatoes and dill. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, for 20 to 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender.

With the back of a spoon, lightly mash about half of the potatoes in the broth. Add the drained beans to the potato mixture; mash some of the beans.

In a small bowl stir together sour cream or yogurt, flour, pepper and salt, if desired; stir into the potato mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 1 minute more. Makes 4 to 6 main-dish servings.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the letter from "Monroe, La.," whose husband unplugged electrical appliances to save money. As you stated in your answer, the potential savings are minimal.

As an insurance adjuster for the past 34 years, I have handled many claims in which fires were caused by hair dryers, curling irons and toasters. Unplugging these appliances, even if it doesn't save any money, can be a good habit to get into. It could save your home or your life.--Deerfield Beach, Fla.

DEAR FLA.: Hundreds of readers wrote to tell me the same thing. I contacted the top authority in Chicago, and this is what he said:

"Commonwealth Edison suggests unplugging all countertop appliances when not in use. This includes mixers, toasters, coffee makers, hair dryers, curling irons and shavers. When these appliances are plugged into an outlet, they still have electrical voltages inside even if they are turned off.

"It is in the best interest of consumers, however, to leave their major appliances (washing machines, televisions and air conditioners) plugged in. While there may be minor savings when these appliances are unplugged, there are other things to consider.

*Frequent plugging and unplugging cause wear and tear on cords and outlets, increasing the chance of electrical hazard and injury.

"2. Many of today's appliances contain computer chips. Plugging and unplugging can damage these sensitive electronic components.

"3. The average television uses 40 kilowatt hours annually while off. This translates into less than $4 a year. Other appliances will use considerably less. For example, a typical LED clock uses about 13 kilowatt hours annually.

"For those who are interested in conserving energy, it is ComEd's recommendation to buy energy-efficient appliances. Many models of refrigerators, washers and dryers are identified as energy-efficient and will save much more over the course of a year than unplugging small appliances.

"ComEd does encourage consumers to unplug devices during electrical storms. This can save appliances from possible extensive damage. Sincerely--James J. O'Connor, chairman, Commonwealth Edison, Chicago."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wonder sometimes if your noodles aren't cooked after so many years of giving advice.

Your harebrained response to the husband whose wife calls him at work 10 to 12 times a day was ridiculous. You advised him to change his number, not give it to his wife and volunteer to phone her three times a day.

As an employer, I insist that anyone who works for our company focus totally on our mission and our goals. This does not include several calls a day to appease a neurotic wife. To coddle the narcissistic needs of a spouse will certainly undermine the morale of an entire staff. Image 333 employees with the same privilege. This would amount to 1,000 personal calls a day.

This man needs to tell his wife to grow up and leave him alone during the day when he is busy earning a living.--Las Vegas Business Owner

DEAR LAS VEGAS: Thanks for the clobber. I think my brain must have been unplugged for the night (as prescribed by James O'Connor of Commonwealth Edison), but I'm OK now.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Five generations gather

Stella Throckmorton, 96 (seated at right), a resident of Hereford Care Center, recently posed for a family five-generation picture. ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) - A stuffed, spotted, two-headed calf stares glassy-eyed out the door. Seventy shrunken heads look upward from a shelf.

Believe It or Not! Vampire-killing kits, skulls, the world's largest ball of barbed wire and an 18-foot-long matchstick replica of an Australian bridge are stored nearby.

Believe It or Not! Nestled in a secluded warehouse of weirdness is a treasure trove of the bizarre and wacky. The cavernous building is the warehouse for exhibits destined for the 22 Ripley's Believe It or Not! museums in several countries.

"We try not to miss a beat when it comes to the crazy or unusual," said Paul Burns, general manager of the Ripley museum in St. Augustine and the warehouse.

The warehouse's contents range from whimsical dinosaurs, made of chopped-up U.S. currency, to human-skin masks to Ripley's latest purchase - what it claims is the world's largest collection of matchstick models.

The 600 pieces in the collection, purchased from Len Hughes, were crafted by the Australian from architectural drawings and photographs.

Included in the collection are a 5-foot-diameter Roman coliseum, a 16-foot model of the H.M.S. Titanic, an 18-foot-long model of the Sydney Harbor Bridge and 331 12-inch replica vessels from the Spanish Armada.

Each model contains between 100,000 and 500,000 matchsticks and took as long as two years to build.

The collection will be parceled out to the 22 Ripley museums, including a new museum in Thailand and a replacement of a Gatlinburg, Tenn., museum that burned.

Ripley's acquires its unusual materials in many ways, Burns said. Each Ripley's manager is charged with going after objects with a "Believe It or Not!" angle.

Auxiliary plans district Legion meeting here

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 192 held its monthly meeting in the Post home recently and discussed the up-coming district convention to be held here Oct. 1-2.

The convention registration will be held at the Post beginning at 9 a.m. on Oct. 1. There will be a health fair which will be open to all area veterans.

President Troyce Hanna called the monthly meeting to order. Clara Trowbridge, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes and gave the financial report. Yearbook chairman Patricia Robinson also gave a report, and Beverly Jesko reported on membership.

Legion and Auxiliary members were served refreshments. Present were Troyce Hanna, Clara Trowbridge, Alta Hudson, Bernice Layman, Anita Wilhelm, Irene Berger, Patricia Robinson, Ruth King, Beverly Jesko and Betty Jo Carlson.

"But 90 percent of the time, people contact us and we follow up," said Burns, who has a degree in accounting and economics from the University of Florida.

A major exhibit just installed at the Ripley's museum in St. Augustine is a two-story, 21-foot-tall moving Ferris wheel made from Erector set parts.

Florida is home to three Ripley museums, in Key West, Orlando and St. Augustine.

The oldest and largest of the Ripley museums, the St. Augustine museum opened in 1950 in the old Castle Warden Hotel, which was once the home of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, author of the "Yearling." The museum still has the original wood and marble work. A Tiffany stained-glass window was discovered behind a wall during a remodeling a few years ago.

The original Ripley's Believe It or Not! cartoon drawn by Robert Leroy Ripley hangs on the wall of the St. Augustine museum. In 1918, while working as a sports cartoonist for the New York Globe, Ripley created a cartoon of unusual athletic achievements and called it "Champs and Chumps."

His editor, however, changed the name to "Believe It or Not!"

Ripley went on to become a world traveler, visiting 198 countries, collecting strange objects and unusual information. He was involved in the planning of the St. Augustine museum, although it opened a year after his death.

Ripley always drew his cartoons from 7 a.m. until 11 a.m., drawing upside down. He collected cars, but never learned to drive. Even though he often used complicated recording equipment for broadcasts, it is said he was afraid to use the telephone for fear he would be electrocuted. According to Ripley's, he also was the first cartoonist to become a multimillionaire.

HELP YOUR HEART RECIPES

American Heart Association

This recipe is intended to be part of an overall healthful eating plan. Total fat intake should be less than 30 percent of your total calories for a day — not for each food or recipe.

Spicy Green Beans

- 1 tablespoon acceptable margarine*
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 9-ounce package frozen, no-salt-added, French-style green beans
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon dill seed
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Place margarine and water in a saucepan over medium heat. Add frozen beans and heat slowly, using a fork to separate. Cover and cook until beans are tender. Add remaining ingredients, toss lightly and heat thoroughly. (Celery and onion should remain crisp.) Serves 4.

* Select margarines that have no more than 2 grams of saturated fat per tablespoon.

Baskets, arrangements are displayed at club meeting

Jan McCreary of Amarillo presented a program on baskets and arrangements for members of the Garden Beautiful Club. The group met recently for a brunch in the home of Jerry Jackson with Marguerite Cole serving as co-hostess.

During the program, the speaker displayed various sizes and shapes of Longaberger baskets.

Vada Axe opened the meeting by reading the poem, "Lake Lime."

Those present included Vada Axe, Marguerite Cole, Audine Dettman, Louise Axe, Helen Spinks, Dorothy Noland, Louise Streun, Jerry Jackson, Leona Andrews, Jeanne Dowell, Ruby Carmichael, Margaret Young and three visitors.

The next meeting, which will include an auction, will be held Oct. 7 with Dowell serving as hostess.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-H.E. PRODUCE PARTICULARS

Here are some answers to those not so common fruit and vegetable questions:

Are prunes being used as a fat substitute? Yes. Prune puree can be used in a one-for-one substitution (1 cup puree for 1 cup butter) in brownie, cake, and cookie recipes. You will cut fat 75-90 percent and boost vitamins, minerals and fiber at the same time.

What can I do with figs? Chop figs and add them to white or brown rice for a deep, nutty flavor. Chop and add them to low-fat fruit or plain yogurt, or slice on top a bed of mixed greens and walnuts with a vinaigrette dressing. To chop figs, use a pair of scissors to cut them. When scissors become sticky, run hot water over them.

When is a cantaloupe ripe? Sweet tasting with vivid orange flesh and lots of juice, a ripe melon is well-rounded and yields to light pressure. It's alright for one side to appear "bleached"; this is where the melon touched the ground. The brown "netting" should be prominent and in tact. A ripe melon will also have a sweet musky aroma.

Should I buy oranges with the deepest color? Blemishes, color, and scars tell nothing about the fruit inside. Some fully ripened fruit even turn green again late in the season. Just look for heavy, firm oranges with smooth skin.

Why do my blueberries change color when I cook with them? Berries often turn red when they come in contact with acids, such as lemon juice, vinegar, and yogurt. Batters containing large amounts of baking soda become more basic, in contrast to being stronger in acid. The blueberries may turn a greenish-blue in such batter. Color changes do not affect flavor.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a pregnant 30-year-old. I tested positive for Group B streptococcus in the birth canal. My doctor now tells me I might need antibiotics at delivery time to make sure my baby will be OK. I had strep throat as a child, so I worry about this. How could I have gotten this strep now? — Mrs. U.J.

ANSWER: As many as 40 percent of all women harbor Group B streptococcus bacteria in their birth canals. The Group B strep bacteria you have now are not related to the kind that caused your childhood strep throat. That was a Group A strep infection.

The Group B strep organism is pretty common, but we still don't understand why it is so often found in the birth canal. In any event, it can pose danger to the newborn, including potential meningitis or pneumonia. Still, it's important to keep in mind that infection is not a given in all situations.

Antibiotic need thus becomes a judgment call, varying with the patient. The attending doctor decides when antibiotics at delivery will afford needed protection based on known risk factors.

Among those factors is any labor beginning before the 37th week of pregnancy. If your water breaks and you go more than 18 hours without signs of imminent delivery, that would indicate the need for preventive antibiotics. Those are just two considerations that can sway the obstetrician toward favoring antibiotics at delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am in dire need of sleep promotion tips. I am getting groggy from sleep lack. — Mrs. R.T.

ANSWER: Your longer letter indicates that you might need more than tips.

There are no guarantees included, but here are things that seem to work in most ordinary insomnia circumstances (their chief goal is establishment of regular patterns of bedtime and wake-up times):

- Make the bedroom sleeper-friendly. Have a steady nighttime temperature. The room should be well-ventilated. Patients often complain that open windows are counterproductive, allowing night noises and dropping overnight temperature to interfere.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Joe Jackson says the family is tickled by Michael Jackson's marriage to Lisa Marie Presley.

And he warned the curious to back off.

"It's nobody's business," the Jackson patriarch said on "The Maury Povich Show" Tuesday.

"They're happily married," he said. "They're the ones who have to live with each other, and we, as a whole family, are happy for them."

Jackson said he has spoken to his 35-year-old son several times since the May marriage and he said Presley-Jackson, 26, is a nice person.

"She complements him by being a good wife."

Actress Marilyn Monroe was found dead in the bedroom of her Los Angeles home Aug. 5, 1962. Her death was ruled a "probable suicide" caused by an overdose of sleeping pills. She was 36.

- Eliminate early-dawn factors by lowering shades.
- Relax briefly before bedtime with nonstimulating tasks.
- If you wake up far before schedule, don't lie there. Get up, repeat the pre-retirement routine and try again. One insomniac I know sets aside nocturnal tasks, such as sorting out a box of buttons or unfiled papers.
- Avoid late-day alcohol, tobacco and coffee.
- Limit pre-bedtime exercise to brief periods of light intensity.

If you must use sleeping aids, do so for brief trial periods. If such steps don't help, be examined so that your doctor can rule out the serious hidden causes of insomnia. My insomnia report discusses causes. For a copy, write: Dr. Donohue—No. 30, Box 5539, River-ton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter, a nurse, got a needle stick while tending an AIDS patient. She said it is not an automatic infection. True? Why not? — Worried mother.

ANSWER: Some recent statistics might be assuring. One study followed up more than 1,000 health-care workers who got pricked with a needle while tending AIDS patients. Four (0.36 percent) had subsequent virus antibody appearance in blood possibly resulting from the needle.

The odds, then, are definitely with the caregiver, although the need for testing remains important.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, River-ton, NJ 08077-5539.

Introducing Beltone's new hidden hearing aid

Beltone has developed an exciting new hearing aid called Invisa (pronounced In-vee-za). Now all the joy of better hearing comes in the tiniest aid Beltone makes.

INVISA

We call Invisa our "hidden hearing aid" because its incredibly small size allows it to hide deeply, yet comfortably inside your ear canal. Out of sight and out of mind.

Of course, the Invisa hearing aid is not appropriate for everyone. The benefits of hearing aids vary by type and degree of hearing loss, noise environment, accuracy of hearing evaluation and proper fit. That's why we feel that a personal evaluation is necessary to determine if the Invisa is right for you.

SEE HOW INVISA HIDES INSIDE.

Only Beltone offers both Invisa and BelCare™, a commitment to customer satisfaction unmatched in the hearing aid industry.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

WHAT'S THE PROBLEM

"What's the problem?" my doctor asked. So I described my aches and pains. "What's the problem?" my mechanic asked. I told him how my car was clicking and grinding. "What's the problem?" I asked a recent small business client. "I don't have any money, and it's really a problem!" the client replied.

What do these three scenarios have in common? In all three cases the "What's the problem" question was answered with a description of symptoms.

Symptoms are visible or discernable indications of problems. They are observable signs, conditions or events. Symptoms can be irritating, painful or confusing. However, they are not in and of themselves the real problem.

You may have chronic shoulder pain because you've torn a muscle, dislocated the joint or have arthritis. The pain is the symptom, the cause of the pain is the problem. Likewise, the grinding noise in my car is not the problem, but rather the result of an impending mechanical failure.

However, when it comes to business, we often translate not having any money as "the problem" When we're broke or experiencing severe cash flow problems we usually seek to borrow money to solve the problem. This is a little like treating a brain tumor with mega doses of aspirin. The symptom of pain may disappear briefly, but the problem still exists.

Looking for the source

The key to finding the real problem is to begin looking for the cause or source of your difficulty. In business, there are two main causes of being cash deficient. The first is not being profitable, the second having cash tied up in inappropriate places.

Let's look at the profitability problem first. The selling price of your product or service must cover all costs. This includes the variable costs (the cost of goods or services sold) and the fixed costs (the operating expenses not directly related to your sales). If your costs are greater than your sales, you will sell yourself out of cash very quickly. The options are to increase your selling price, thereby creating more margin or cut costs which will leave more dollars for the bottom line.

Where cash hides

The second problem is one of insufficient or diverted cash flow. Examine your revenues and costs. If you determine that profit exists, but you're out of cash, then you may have an actual cash flow deficit.

Remember, when you're short of cash, the shortage is the result of other actions, conditions or events. The shortage is the symptom, not the actual problem. The key is to know where cash can hide in your business.

There are three places where cash can be in a business. It can hide as inventory. It can sneak into accounts receivable. It can also disguise itself as fixed assets, such as new vehicles, equipment, furniture and fixtures.

None of these conditions are bad in and of themselves. Growing your inventory may help you increase sales and improve profits. Increasing accounts receivable levels will logically follow improving sales. New equipment or vehicle purchases in order to keep your cash flow in hand.

If you don't discover the root problem by examining profitability, checking inventory and receivable levels and monitoring capital expenditures, there are two other causes for cash shortages. The first is excessive drawing (salary) by the owner or owners, the second is shrinkage or theft. We will deal with these topics in future columns.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, You who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my idea. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen, Thank You for Your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after the third day, your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Wish granted.

Texas produce will fulfill 5 A Day plan, says Perry

AUSTIN - Texans should strive to incorporate at least five servings of fruits and vegetables a day into a balanced diet and do it with Texas-grown produce, declared Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry in calling attention to a national observance.

Perry urged Texans to think the Lone Star Way to a 5 A Day, during national 5 A Day for Better Health week, Sept. 11-17.

"Because of the great diversity of soils and climate in Texas, something is almost always in season," said Perry.

"The advantage of eating Texas-grown fruits and vegetables is the freshness," he continued. "Many items are harvested and in the grocery store or farmers' market within hours of being picked."

"Of course, some of these fine

Texas fruits and vegetables are also canned and frozen. The important thing is to get five servings a day to improve your intake of important vitamins, minerals and fiber."

National 5 A Day Week is designed to create awareness of the health benefits associated with eating at least five servings of fruits and vegetables each day as part of a balanced diet.

The 5 A Day program is a joint effort of the National Cancer Institute and the Produce for Better Health Foundation to increase the average consumption of fruits and vegetables from an average three servings per day to five every day by the year 2000. The Texas Department of Agriculture has been licensed in the program since 1992.

A serving is defined as 1/2 cup of fruit, 3/4 cup of juice, 1/2 cup cooked vegetables, 1 cup leafy vegetables or 1/4 cup of dried fruit. Vegetables and fruits that are high in vitamins A and C and fiber should be included in the diet every day. Cabbage family vegetables such as broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and cabbage should be eaten several times a week.

"Right now, Texas apples are coming off trees," Perry observed. "When you bite into a Texas apple, it will crunch and spray a little juice."

"Most of the apples on sale now from other states are still last year's crop that has been stored all winter. One bite of a Texas apple and you'll search for and demand fruit grown in the Lone Star State."

"Many melons are still being harvested in Texas and fresh vegetables will be available well into the fall. Texans are lucky to have fresh produce nearly year round. This makes meeting the 5 A Day requirement easier and tastier."

Nutritionally, apples are a good source of vitamin C and fiber. Watermelon is an excellent source of vitamins A and C. Sweet potatoes, now being harvested in East Texas, also provide high amounts of A and C and are a good fiber source.

"So instead of reaching for a donut to recharge in the morning, get a bowl of Texas melon. Add carrot sticks and an apple to your children's lunches," suggested Perry.

"Most of us eat three servings a day now so adding a couple more is simple if you just think about it. And reach for Texas grown -- your taste buds will thank you, your body will thank you and Texas farmers will thank you."

The Texas fresh market commercial vegetable production in 1993 had a value of $270 million and fruits, a value of $360 million.

PEACHES

Peaches are grown in many areas of Texas, but the Hill Country is widely known for the fruit's high quality and abundance. Orchards featuring early-maturing, low-chill varieties are making it profitable to grow peaches deeper into South Texas. Low chill peaches are those that need fewer hours of less than 40 degrees to mature and sweeten.

Red meat production increases over year

By MICHAEL LANDWEBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Commercial red meat production totaled 3.36 billion pounds in July, up 1 percent from the same month in 1993, the Agriculture Department reports.

USDA defines red meat as beef, veal, pork and lamb and mutton.

Red meat production for the January-July period rose 4 percent from the previous year to 23.9 billion pounds. During the seven-month period, accumulated beef production rose 6 percent from 1993, veal was up 3 percent and pork rose 1 percent. Only lamb and mutton declined, down 6 percent.

Beef production for July totaled 2.03 billion pounds, up 2 percent from the previous year. Head kill was down 2 percent at 2.82 million. Average live weight increased by 32 pounds to 1,192 pounds per head.

Pork production was 1.29 billion pounds, a 1 percent drop from a year earlier. A total of 7.1 million hogs were slaughtered, a decline of 1 percent. The average weight per hog fell 1 pound to 252 pounds.

Veal production fell 1 percent from the previous year to 21 million pounds. Calf slaughter totaled 95,400 head, a 3 percent increase. Average live weight dropped 19 pounds to 382 pounds.

Setting a record low for July production, lamb and mutton fell 27 percent from the previous year to 19 million pounds. This year's total was 14 percent below the previous record low of 1979. The number of animals slaughtered was down 22 percent, at 318,000 head. Average weight declined 7 pounds to 121 pounds per animal.

Ag chemical conference to be held

LUBBOCK - Environmental challenges will be explored in the 42nd annual West Texas Agricultural Chemicals Conference in Lubbock Wednesday and Thursday.

Concerns common to producers and consumers will be addressed by speakers during the two-day conference at the Lubbock Plaza Holiday.

Keynote speakers Wednesday will focus on environmental legislation and public opinion. Topics for speakers include environmental legislation, agricultural law and current litigation.

Opening the session Thursday will be an update on activities in Washington affecting agriculture, responsible reporting and agricultural literacy.

Participants may earn 8.5 continuing education units toward certification of commercial and non-commercial pesticide applicators.

James Polk, the 11th president of the United States, died in 1849.

FmHA office to be closed

Personnel from the Deaf Smith/Oldham Farmers Home Administration office in Hereford will attend a training session Wednesday, resulting in closing the office for the day.

Regular office hours at the office, 313 W. Third, are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fall brings Spielberg series, dueling sitcoms to prime time

Due South, a new dramatic series airing Thursdays on CBS, stars Paul Gross (left) as a Canadian Mountie who teams up with his canine companion and a wisecracking Chicago cop, played by David Marciano, to solve crimes. The new fall season offers a blend of science fiction, comedy, adventure and even dueling hospital dramas.

BY JOHN CROOK

A new Steven Spielberg series and a face-off between two sitcom favorites look to be among the prime-time highlights of the 1994-95 season.

A night-by-night breakdown follows:

SUNDAY

NBC hopes Earth 2, the new Spielberg series, will help bolster seaQuest DSV, a sci-fi show that may be sinking. ABC's Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman also narrowly won renewal but, like seaQuest, faces new competition from a Fox transplant, The Simpsons. ABC's On Our Own features a real-life family of siblings. Fox offers Mark Frankel (Sisters) in Fortune Hunter, along with two comedies, Wild Oats and Hardball.

MONDAY

Evening Shade is dark, replaced by The Nanny. Otherwise, CBS' Monday night lineup remains intact. ABC opens the night with Coach, followed by Blue Skies, a new Corey Parker sitcom set in a mail-order company. In a controversial move, Fox moves its sexy Melrose Place to an early-evening slot, followed by the sensitive family drama Party of Five. It's business as usual at NBC.

TUESDAY

It's make or break time for NBC, as it takes the very risky tact of moving its Thursday hits Wings and Frasier to this night, where the network hopes to establish a new sitcom beachhead. These two shows will sandwich the new Martin Short Show, said to be in serious creative disarray. But the main focus of the night is the Frasier-Home Improvement showdown. Alison LaPlaca is a new regular on the returning John Larroquette Show. On ABC, Ellen (as in DeGeneres) has a new best friend, played by Joely Fisher.

WEDNESDAY

Margaret Cho becomes the first Asian-American performer to star in her own series with All American Girl. Also on ABC, Robin Riker replaces Diane Venora as the mom on Thunder Alley. New on CBS are the Dudley Moore sitcom Daddy's Girls, Hal Linden and Suzanne Pleshette in The Boys Are Back and Touched by an Angel, a new fantasy-drama starring Roma Downey and Della Reese. Bill Cosby stars in The Cosby Mysteries on NBC. Fox carries Models Inc. over from summer.

THURSDAY

My So-Called Life, a portrait in teen angst by the creators of thirtysomething, leads off the night for ABC, followed by Chad Everett's return to series TV as a wilderness guide in McKenna. Fox offers New York Undercover, a Big Apple version of Miami Vice. Paul Gross returns as a Canadian Mountie in Due South on CBS. NBC plugs the holes left by Wings and Frasier with, respectively, Friends, an ensemble sitcom starring Courteney Cox, and Madman of the People, a comedy starring a diluted Dabney Coleman. The evening ends with dueling hospital dramas ER on NBC and CBS' Chicago Hope.

FRIDAY

On CBS, Under Suspicion, a mystery series, replaces Burke's Law, which is expected to return later this season. Carl Lumbly stars in M.A.N.T.I.S., an adventure series on Fox.

SATURDAY

Harriet Harris may be the breakout star of The Five Mrs. Buchanans, a new sitcom with Judith Ivey. Gene Wilder makes his TV series debut in the comedy Something Wilder, while Melissa Gilbert stars with Cicely Tyson in Sweet Justice.

How many words can you find in the word Ecological?

How can it be?

Certain fish in the arctic ocean have "normal" blood circulation in those icy waters!
When these fish are tested in labs, under arctic temperature, the blood FREEZES!

HOW DO THEY USE THEIR TAILS?

Animals have different uses for their tails. See if you can match the animal on the left with the tail on the right. (HINT: Some may have two answers.)

Sept. 11 - Sept. 17
HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
If you are frustrated by your inability to make decisions, just think how those around you feel. Don't worry so much about trying new things.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
Someone you are close to may have an opposing view about an important matter. This is not the end of the world. You can agree to disagree.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
You will have an opportunity to learn a new skill or hobby that could prove fun and profitable. Keep your mind open when discussing financial matters.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
Your problems may seem insurmountable, but they are not. You must be strong and listen to your inner voice. You know the best course of action.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
Did you let someone talk you into something that wasn't such a great idea? It is time to cut your losses and move on with life.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
You simply don't feel as though you can take on any more responsibilities, but you may have to. You will learn from the experience.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
You may be wasting your energy on an unimportant project. Take a moment to take a step back and get a better picture of what is going on.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
There are times when you wish you could be far, far away, and this is one of them. Give yourself time to adjust to new situations.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
You will begin to come out of a depressed and anxiety-laden state. Do some of the things that bring you the most joy.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
Someone close to you has caused more problems than you would like to think about. It is time to get tough and do what needs to be done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
The wheel of fortune is spinning and it could point to good things for you. Many areas of your life will begin to improve, and you will be happier.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
You are searching for something important, but you haven't really figured out what it is. There is a need to work on your spiritual self.

New Miss America to stand on her own two (bare) feet

There'll be a lot of painted toenails in Atlantic City, N.J., come Saturday, Sept. 17. Among the new wrinkles in the Miss America Pageant is a shoeless swimsuit competition. Producer-director Jeff Margolis explains the, er, unprecedented step with unprecedented logic. "I have never been to the beach in my life and seen a woman walking around in high heels in the sand." There'll be no hairdressers backstage at the pageant, either. That rule was instituted last year in part because of a shortage of electrical outlets. The pageant, with hosts Regis Philbin and Kathie Lee Gifford and musical guest Kenny Rogers, airs live on NBC.

Linda Ellerbee

The Television Critics Awards, never to be confused with the glittering Emmys (though they are now made of Lucite), were handed out a few weeks ago in Los Angeles. The eight awards went to Frasier (best comedy), NYPD Blue (best drama), Nightline (best news or information show), Prime Suspect 3 (best special), Linda Ellerbee (best children's programming), coverage of the 1994 Winter Olympics (best sports coverage), Late Show With David Letterman (program of the year) and Charles Kuralt (lifetime achievement). Tune in to ABC Sunday, Sept. 11, to see how the television industry's own choices stack up against the critical picks.

Busy Emmy nominee Dennis Franz (NYPD Blue) appears Wednesday, Sept. 14, in the TV movie Moment of Truth: Caught in the Crossfire on NBC. Later this season Franz sheds his trademark mustache to play Texas attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes in ABC's Texas Justice, with Peter Strauss and Heather Locklear. Another Emmy nominee, Arnold Schulman, who adapted Randy Shilts' novel And the Band Played On, about the beginning of the AIDS crisis, for HBO, has already won a Humanitas Award for his efforts. Band's 12 other Emmy nominations include acting nods for Matthew Modine, Alan Alda, Richard Gere, Lily Tomlin and Swoosie Kurtz.

Ralph Harris uses makeup, a wig and a lot of imagination to become Aunt Jelcinda, keeping his four brothers and two sisters together in On Our Own, premiering this fall on ABC.

Women's undies underlie ABC's On Our Own

BY JULIE FISHER

Cross-dressers and politically correct urbanites everywhere will cringe at On Our Own, a new sitcom frothing with family values and frumpy dresses on ABC.

The show debuts Tuesday, Sept. 13, with a pilot encore Friday, Sept. 16, before it moves into its regular spot on Sunday, Sept. 18.

Seven orphans, ranging in age from early 20s to a toddler, pull out the stops to stay together and out of the hands of a children's services agency. Alternative family comedies are old hat, though, for executive producer David Duclon, who has worked on Punky Brewster, The Jeffersons and Family Matters. So what did he do to add a little pep to the perpetual yawn of prime time? Enter the wolf in sheep's clothing. Better yet, make that a man in drag.

Comic Ralph Harris plays the eldest brother in the black Jerrico family, as well as Aunt Jelcinda, a sweet-talking relative with a bouffant hairdo and orthopedic pumps.

Harris' slapstick humor and unceasing impersonations combined with the charm and good looks of the Smolletts, six real-life siblings, makes for an entertaining show appealing to a wide audience.

And that audience includes more than just the black community. As producer Bob Boyett points out, this show provides "people something to identify with, regardless of what their race or religion is."

Perhaps that's why this show works. Typical boundaries, including racial and sexual stereotypes, are blurred. This TV family, with the exception of Harris, is a real family.

The Jerricos, complete with their Aunt Jelcinda and "Urkel-esque" neighbor, seem genuine.

"They are unbelievably tight and are caring and considerate of each other," Duclon says.

But, as Boyett suggests, "The way to go about making something authentic is by letting people be who they really are."

Of course, Harris, squeezed into his panty hose and heels might disagree, but this idea has taken hold and seems to be working - all on its own.

Karen Sillas stars as the only woman in a detective squad confronting injustice, both at the police station and on the streets, in Under Suspicion, premiering Friday on CBS.

AT A GLANCE

SUNDAY: Ellen DeGeneres and Patricia Richardson are the hosts of The Emmy Awards on ABC. Earlier in the day, cable subscribers can catch a pair of four-star movies, as American Movie Classics offers Danny Kaye in Hans Christian Andersen and TBS presents the one, the only The Adventures of Robin Hood with Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland and Basil Rathbone.

MONDAY: The Nanny, now in its new night, has its CBS season premiere, as does Dave's World. Blue Skies premieres on ABC, and so does the sensitive family drama Party of Five on Fox. Soprano Hildegard Behrens stars as Richard Strauss's Elektra in a Metropolitan Opera Presents entry on PBS (check local listings).

TUESDAY: PBS concludes its Turner-derived miniseries MGM: When the Lion Roars (check local listings). NBC airs Wayne's World, the box-office smash starring Mike Myers.

WEDNESDAY: Suzanne Pleshette and Hal Linden return to series television in The Boys Are Back on CBS. Flamboyant Harvey Fierstein is in the supporting cast of the Dudley Moore sitcom Daddy's Girls, also debuting on CBS, followed by Roma Downey (A Woman Called Jackie) and Della Reese in Touched by an Angel. A&E's Biography profiles the inimitable Gilda Radner.

THURSDAY: Martin Short and Jan Hooks star in The Martin Short Show, an NBC sitcom said to be in serious creative trouble. In contrast, Frasier repeats one of its wittiest and most audacious episodes ever: the season finale entitled "My Coffee With Niles." Soap opera hunk Antonio Sabato Jr. stars with ex-Beverly Hills, 90210 bad girl Shannen Doherty in Jailbreakers, another entry in Showtime's Rebel Highway series.

FRIDAY: Under Suspicion, a new police mystery, has its two-hour series premiere on CBS.

SATURDAY: Regis Philbin serves as host of The Miss America Pageant on NBC. Ray Harryhausen's special effects are the main reason to check out Mysterious Island on TNT.

Sabato moves ahead to futuristic sci-fi role

BY CANDACE HAVENS

The day Jagger, played by Antonio Sabato Jr., left General Hospital there was a sad sigh across the nation from his fans. The young heartthrob had been playing the brooding character for more than two years.

Like so many other daytime actors, when his contract was up Sabato decided it was time to check out prime-time television and movies. But unlike most of them, Sabato stepped into a full schedule of television movies and series.

Soon fans will be able to see Sabato on a weekly basis, but they will have to go 200 years into the future to do so. Sabato portrays Alonzo Solace, a hot-shot space pilot on the new sci-fi show Earth 2, airing Sunday nights on NBC. But don't look for it to be at the starting gate with the other new fall shows — Earth 2 begins in November.

The show is based on the premise that 200 years from now the earth is overpopulated and many people have to live on space stations. The sterile environment proves dangerous for some of the inhabitants.

Alonzo is part of a team that has been organized to find a new planet to live on. When there are problems, Alonzo is forced to crash-land a spaceship on a distant planet.

"Alonzo is a loner who is always looking for new and exciting things in life," Sabato says. "He has a big heart and a lot of courage in accepting new challenges. In a way, he's a voyager a lot like me, considering I left my country (Italy) for the United States. We also share similar interests. He is a pilot, which I am very interested in."

Sabato says that moving from daytime to prime-time work has taken a bit of adjusting, but he enjoys it.

"It has been kind of weird to go from daytime to this, but I feel pretty lucky to be in this show," he says. "I like being on location (New Mexico) and away from here (Los Angeles)."

When Sabato isn't working he enjoys a variety of activities. He is an experienced horseman. Sabato also rides his motorcycle, deep-sea fishes and scuba dives.
