Sanders turn fish hobby into successful business

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

At first thought, High Plains Coral Reef would seem to be a contradiction in terms.

Coral reef on the High Plains? Yessiree, about two miles west of Hereford on Harrison Highway, there's a coral reef. More than one, in fact.

But it's all in giant glass "tanks" where Judy Sanders nurtures exotic salt water fish. There are examples of coral, anemones, mushrooms, all as alive as the fish.

She operates her business, High Plains Coral Reef, for wholesale and retail sales. Nearly anything the aquarium-lover needs or wants, she can supply, or find, as the case may be.

She became interested in exotic fish as a teenager in Norfolk, Va. She also met her husband, Kit Sanders, who was a U.S. Navy flyer, there.

After he spent 10 years in the Navy, he switched to commercial airlines as a pilot and flew with Pam Am from 1967 to 1991. Then, he joined Delta and flies international routes out of New York City.

"We could live anywhere but we want to live right here," said Kit Sanders, who calls Hereford his hometown.

While the saltwater reef tanks are spectacular, Mrs. Sanders also deals in the more recognizable, but still colorful, freshwater fish that are popular with home aquarium owners.

"We're raising angelfish, now," she explained, showing several tanks full of fish, divided according to size.

Mrs. Sanders also is hoping for success in raising Discus fish, but so far has been disappointed. She has two pairs in separate tanks and she admits that it isn't easy to determine the sex of the fish.

"I'm about to decide that we have two males in one tank," she laughed. "In the other, we know there is one female because we've seen the eggs. But apparently, the male is not mature enough to do his part."

Because the Discus fish come from the Amazon River where rain continually provides fresh water, Mrs. Sanders said she changes 50 percent of the water in the Discus tanks daily.

Through this process, she tries to re-create the natural habitat as much as possible.

Surprisingly, the fish most common in home aquariums some years ago, the guppy and molly, are not as prevalent as they once were. Mrs. Sanders said fish-raisers at some time allowed salt in ponds where guppies and mollies were breeding. "They got used to salt water and then when people put them in freshwater tanks, they couldn't live," she explained.

The wide variety of freshwater fish certainly would catch the eye of a beginner or a veteran with aquariums. Barbs, cichlids of many kinds, tetras with names such as lemon, red-eye and bleeding heart; you name it, you may see it in the Sanders stock.

And, while she's looking to a healthy wholesale business with the angelfish breeding and, hopefully, the discus in the future, Mrs. Sanders also wants to expand her horizons.

One possibility is leasing and maintaining aquariums for professional offices and businesses, in Amarillo as well as Hereford. Since a daughter, Kari Sanders, recently joined her mother in the business, this possibility is nearing reality.

A reef aquarium is a spectacular display of fish and living plants, thriving in conditions made to be as near their "native" areas as possible.

Besides the day-to-day maintenance with equipment, the salt water aquarium gets a monthly dose of new water.

"In this 135-gallon aquarium, we change 20 percent of the water once a month," said Mrs. Sanders. A synthetic salt is added to tap water for the replacement.

"We just siphon off some and add the new water," she explained.

Coral offered by shops such as the Sanders establishment is picked up in several areas of the world, such as the Gulf Coast of Florida and in the Indian Ocean.

But, collectors of the ocean materials are required to gather loose pieces, and never to chip coral or other growth from reefs.

Looking at the 135-gallon salt water reef that Mrs. Sanders arranged five years ago offers a mini-lesson in marine life. The fish are vivid in color and the plant life is vibrant.

Swimming around the elegant coral, leather coral, ocean mushrooms and other water plants are fish as colorful as their names, Hawaiian Yellow Tang, Mandarin Goby and Hawaiian Flame Angel.

As fascinating as they are, though, a Percula Clown takes the prize as it swims in and around an anemone.

"He's the only fish that really gets very close to the anemone," said Mrs. Sanders. "The plant won't sting the Percula Clown because it has some kind of protective coating that the others don't have."

Even as she explained, the little fish would dart in and out of the anemone while others took a wide berth.

The saltwater tank's fish are long-lived, said Mrs. Sanders, because they are able to exist with each other.

"We don't have any predators in it, so they are relatively safe," said the fish owner.

Only since 1985 have saltwater reefs been available in the U.S., said Mrs. Sanders, and they're gaining in acceptance. Only drawback may be in the equipment needed to maintain the tanks successfully.

Once in place, though, the tank is like a living picture on the wall with everything in balance.

A home or business aquarium may be as simple or exotic as the pocketbook may bear.

The most expensive fish in the Sanders collection is a Scribble Angel, a native of Australia, priced at $149.

Mrs. Sanders has kept the fish for 10 months and admits that she will sell it only in a certain situation. "I'll be very careful about who takes it home," she said.

MUSK THISTLE CONTROL AREA DO NOT MOW

Don't even think of mowing here

A patch of ground in the median in West U.S. Highway 60 is being tested for musk thistle control. The pesky weeds with the pretty purple flowers first cropped up here in 1987. A team from Texas A&M University is testing two herbicides, Transline and Escort; two patches have not been sprayed. The plots were sprayed April 21 and will be mowed August 21, according to Gary McPherson of the State Department of Transportation.

Man caught in act of firing gun by police on patrol; faces two counts

A 22-year-old Hereford man is in Deaf Smith County Jail facing $10,000 bond on each of two counts of attempted murder.

Johnny Quiroz, 22, of 909 E. 13th, was arrested by Hereford police officer Ronnie Lyons after Lyons, on routine patrol, saw Quiroz fire into a pickup. No one was injured.

Police said Lyons was driving along East Park Ave. at 1:35 a.m. Saturday on routine patrol. Lyons said he saw several persons standing around a pickup at Seventh and Schley, near the city swimming pool at Dameron Park. Lyons said he went to investigate the crowd when he saw a muzzle flash from a gun. Police said Quiroz ran from the scene but was caught by Lyons after a brief chase through Dameron Park.

Quiroz was arrested on two attempted murder charges at the scene and taken to DSC Jail. Police on Saturday morning said they were not sure why there were two charges filed.

Entries needed for parade, park activity

Entries are now being accepted for the annual Town & Country Jubilee Parade and for Jubilee Junction in Dameron Park.

The celebrations will be held August 15.

Theme for the parade is "Making It Happen." The parade is sponsored by the Whiteface Kiwanis Club of Hereford. Jim Ward and Robert Chavez are parade co-chairmen. The parade will be held at 10:30 on the Saturday morning.

Entries in the parade may include floats from businesses and organizations; vehicles; bikes; and other appropriate items. Parade entry forms have been mailed to all organizations; additional forms are available at the chamber office at Seventh and Main.

Jubilee Junction will be held in the park and will feature food and game booths and free entertainment. Organizations will be charged a minimum of $10 and are expected to pay 10 percent of what they make to the Town and Country Jubilee Organizing Committee. Groups wishing to establish booths at the jubilee should make reservations with the chamber as soon as possible.

Businesses may have "free" booths to promote their firms. Businesses may not compete with non-profit organizations. Non-profit groups should fill out applications and file them at the chamber as soon as possible, since organizers will try to prevent duplication as much as possible.

Kerrville area law officers search in vain

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
KERRVILLE (AP) - Juliana Kenney watched a nighttime intruder bludgeon her husband and daughter, knowing he would come for her next. But she could not escape. A stroke victim, Mrs. Kenney was unable to run for help. "She couldn't do anything but watch him kill her husband and daughter and then walk over and begin beating her brains out," says district attorney Ron Sutton. "It was the most horrible crime site I've ever seen."

Local Roundup

Police arrest seven Friday

Seven persons were arrested Friday by Hereford police: two men, 18 and 19, for public intoxication; a man, 17, for minor in possession of alcohol and no driver's license; a man, 20, on warrants; a woman, 27, for driving while intoxicated; a man, 17, for minor in possession; and Johnny Quiroz, 22, on attempted murder charges (see front page).

Reports included theft of service in the 300 block of N. 25 Mile Ave. and 300 block of Eighth; theft of bikes in the 700 block of Irving and 400 block of Blevins; domestic violence assaults in the 700 block of Ave. G and 100 block of Ave. E; and a domestic disturbance in the 300 block of Ave. C.

Police issued six tickets and investigated two accidents Friday. Hereford firefighters responded to an accident call on S. Progressive and a leaking propane tank on East U.S. Highway 60.

City Commission to meet Monday

A public hearing on proposals for city park improvements will be conducted at 7 p.m. Monday by the Hereford City Commission. The hearing fulfills a requirement for a Texas Parks and Wildlife grant application. Regular meeting of the City Commission will begin at 7:30 p.m. Among agenda items are review of bids of purchase of a new vehicle for the fire department, authorization for specifications to be prepared for a flow recorder, third and final reading of telephone company franchise ordinance and a presentation by Davis Ford, representing the Hereford beautification alliance.

DSGH board will meet Tuesday

Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors will meet at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The agenda includes medical staff, administrative and operations reports; appointment of a new board member and committee appointments; a nurse call system and transfer agreement; physician recruitment update and ratification of contracts with three physicians; and an executive session to discuss property acquisition and litigation.

Perot wants to become political power broker

By SCOTT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Ross Perot left the door open to an 11th-hour electoral gambit Friday, saying he could assume the role of a power broker able to deliver a decisive "swing vote" in the presidential election.

Perot said he would meet here Saturday with leaders of his grassroots organizations and begin hammering out a new political movement, bankrolled by himself, that would ask congressional as well as presidential candidates to endorse its platform.

"We can do more in this posture than we could if we are just trying to push one independent candidate," Perot said. "Here now we've taken on the whole system. We have the ability to influence both parties."

Returning to the television show where he had launched his abortive bid for the White House, Perot noted that he retained the "leverage" of still being on at least 24 state ballots, and probably many more if his volunteers can provide.

"We can continue the swing vote as to who gets to be the next president of the United States," Perot said on CNN's "Larry King Live" program. "Stay the course as a united team," Perot told his supporters.

"Now then, if we stay together we can force the Democrats and the Republicans to do the right thing for the country."

In Dallas, several Perot volunteers had already gathered at the hotel meeting site and watched him on television.

"What I've heard thus far tonight is what we wanted all along: a grassroots movement from the people," said Ken DeLamar of Mena, Ark.

The Dallas billionaire dropped out of the race Thursday, saying he had determined that his campaign would prove divisive and drive the election into the House of Representatives.

But on Friday, Perot said if neither Democratic nominee Bill Clinton nor President Bush "has responded to the will of the people, well, I'm going back to my volunteers. We will meet again."

He called a successful protest vote for him a "very, very, very long shot."

"I would say, let's be pragmatic here. Do you want to take a long shot, or do we want to try to capture (the) mind and heart of the person who could best lead the country?" Perot said.

"I won't quit. I just love being involved in this cause," Perot said, adding later that he "concluded this (being a presidential candidate) is not the best route. I think I can convince the volunteers when we sit down and talk that there's a better way."

On ABC-TV's "20-20," meanwhile, Perot said he had given supporters "everything I have" and didn't believe he had let them down by bailing out of the presidential campaign.

On that program, he made no allusions to a possible role as a power broker, saying he would "vote quietly" in November.

But he said he will meet with leaders of his independent movement in Dallas on Saturday in an effort to decide whether his name should be removed from the ballots in states in which he has been certified as a candidate.

"It's not appropriate for me unilaterally to take my name off," said Perot, who earlier urged supporters to keep him on the ballot to pressure Bush and Clinton, the nominee of what Perot acknowledged was a "revitalized" Democratic Party, to move toward his still-ambiguous agenda.

At the never-declared candidate's headquarters, workers began moving out unopened computer boxes and loading trucks with equipment while diehard volunteers staffed a still-hot phone bank. But no assistance was offered to the state organizations trying to stay united and maybe even organize a nationwide strategy session without Perot, a spokeswoman said.

Perot did note that one volunteer group has planned a mass march for Washington on Labor Day, and that both major-party candidates will be invited to address them.

Perot said he had heard the anger directed at him after his Thursday announcement to quit the presidential race, on ground that a three-way race was sure to be decided against him in the House of Representatives.

"I don't care what people call me. I don't mind being cut to pieces for a good cause," Perot told ABC.

To his disappointed supporters, Perot said, "I gave them everything I have. I've given the every minute of my life ever since the day we started. I didn't let them down. The point is we wanted to do the right thing for the country."

On politics: "Well, it's interesting but it's irrelevant. The political process to select a president has nothing to do with picking a good president. It has everything to do with keeping people who might be qualified from ever wanting to get within a thousand miles of it because of the nature of the process."

He said again he wouldn't endorse Clinton or Bush. "I will vote quietly in November," he said.

Asked if he would reword anything of the past month, he referred to his musings at a NAACP convention one week ago that black leaders termed offensive and insensitive. Their chief complaint was his reference to "You people."

"Well, certainly," Perot said. "I love people, and I would never say anything to hurt or offend anybody. ...I have spent most of my life helping other people. So the evidence is pretty strong there that I really care about other people and I wouldn't hurt them for anything."

For Perot, it was a return to the airwaves from which he sprang. He was interviewed by ABC's Barbara Walters Friday and planned to appear on CNN's "Larry King Live" - the cable television show that sparked his revolt in February with an offer to run if volunteers got his name on November 5th or 50 states.

"He wants to address the volunteers specifically in these two forums," spokeswoman Sharon Holman said.

Aides said they hoped Perot would agree to release his almost-finished economic plan soon, despite his decision not to run for the White House.

Close Cover Before Striking

EDITOR'S NOTE - Consider the matchbook. It was 100 years ago this year that a Philadelphia lawyer invented paper matches and ignited what would become an advertising frenzy. And for many Americans today, matchbooks are treasures to be collected and hoarded, even if it means adding an extra room to the house.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Surely, when the historians get around to summing up the really important developments of the last 100 years, they will pay due deference to the humble matchbook. The matchbook, you say?

Of course, that fragile thingamabob that was so ubiquitous that the phrase "Close Cover Before Striking" became the most-printed phrase in the English language.

That little accessory has recorded foibles of the nation; its products, its candidates for office, its recreation, its sports heroes and movie stars.

Now the matchbook is celebrating its 100th birthday, one of the most popular advertising mediums of all times, as well as the fiercest chronicler of each passing decade.

Think of it and somewhere, sometime, it was probably advertised on a matchbook.

A book of matches is not only handy for lighting cigarettes, it provides emergency toothpicks and a place to write down the phone number of the girl or the fellow on the next barstool.

In World War II they carried patriotic messages, like the one with matches shaped like little bombs and you struck them on Hitler's derriere. One issue advertising Vicks salve had free samples attached.

Phillumenists, or lovers of light, are the collectors of matchbooks, and for the most part the historians.

The paper matchbook was invented by Joshua Pusey, a Philadelphia lawyer, who also invented the roller coaster and a coin-operated device to attach to opera glasses.

Pusey sold his invention to the Diamond Match Co. for a reputed $5,000, a rather princely sum in those days, and was paid an annual retainer of $5,000 until his death in 1906.

Mark Bean, president of the American Match Council and head of the D.D. Bean and Sons, one of the world's largest manufacturers of paperback matchbooks, says it would be virtually impossible to guess at the number of matchbooks ever produced.

"Trillions and trillions," guesses Bean, whose grandfather Delcic began Bean in 1938 in Jaffrey, N.H.

The industry is now on hard times, hit harder by the disposable lighter than the anti-smoking sentiment, although the latter is reflected in President's Bush's refusal to have his name engraved on the official White House matchbook.

Bean says probably 30 billion matchbooks were produced in 1976, a bumper year, or 120 million a day. Today, there are probably five billion produced annually, or 20 million a day.

There were once 30 or 40 small match companies. By World War II, these had been consolidated into about 20 companies and today there are only four in the United States and one in Canada, Eddy of Pembroke, Ont., which essentially produces for the American market. In fact, it produced the official White House matchbook until some sharp-eye noticed "Made in Canada" in small print.

Besides Bean, the other U.S. companies that actually produce paper matchbooks today are Lion Match in Chicago, Atlas Match Corp. in Euless, Tex., and Bradley in Frankfort, Ill. Other companies, such as Superior, a former manufacturer, now sell and distribute paper matches, as does Diamond, the largest manufacturer of wooden matches in the United States.

The first known use of the matchbook as an advertising medium came in 1896 when the Mendelssohn Opera Company had no money to advertise its performance at Carnegie Hall in New York. The troupe was enlisted to snip out pictures of the two stars, paste them on the outside of 200 matchbooks and print the information about the engagement. The hall sold out.

There is only one of these matchbooks in existence and it is held in the Franklin Mint and insured for $25,000.

The matchbook is 100 years old

The success of the ad was not lost on Henry C. Traute, a matchbook salesman for Diamond. In 1902, Traute sold 10 million matchbooks to the Pabst Brewery after he had a lithograph put one of the Milwaukee beer company's ads on a cover. The next time out he didn't fare so well. A tobacco firm gave no dice, but a rival, Bull Durham, said Traute an order for 30 million matchbooks.

Traute's next bright idea was to have the proprietor give the matches away, with the prospect of doubling tobacco sales.

There are probably 3,000 to 5,000 serious matchbook collectors in the country, people who attend conventions, auctions, belong to the 30 or so clubs, trade with each other, specialize in types of covers, as well as their homes, and take over rooms in which they have organized their treasures.

There are probably another million collectors who don't know they are collectors. They're the folks with brandy snifters and fish bowls full of matchbooks, souvenirs really, atop the dining room furniture. Many a serious collector started out that way.

Bill Retskin, editor of Front Striker Bulletin and a man who wrote his master's thesis on matchbooks, says the average collector is usually a blue-collar man, between 55 and 60, "a real middle-America type."

There are few matchbooks remaining from before the 30's and that makes many of the early ones valuable.

plane spotters, and the recycling efforts.

Boyle says that during the Vietnam War the closest the industry came to admitting there was a war on were covers in enlisted men's clubs warning about venereal disease.

Bill Thomas of Winter Park, Fla., former navy pilot and collector of military covers, says the men in the Korean and Vietnam conflicts had matchbooks promoting their units or squadrons and in Vietnam there were a lot of girlie matches welcoming the GIs.

None of the collectors are aware of matchcovers surfacing during the Persian Gulf War. The GIs did bring back matchbooks from some of the fancy hotels in that Middle East, but there seems to have been nothing produced that said "Desert Storm," or "Desert Shield" or "Gulf War."

Collecting did not get into full swing until the late '30s or early '40s when two national clubs began. Only Rathcamp survived and the first regional club, the Empire Matchcover Club, was formed in 1945.

There are also specialty clubs for those who collect specific categories: hotels, restaurants, war ships, bridges, etc. Others collect types of covers, midgets, jewels, contours, novelty matches, etc.

Boyle, 48 and president of Empire, is considered a newcomer by those in the 70 to 90 age group, the men and a few women who lived through the eras the matchcovers reflect.

Even collectors with millions of covers grab handfuls at restaurants, funeral homes, girlie clubs. Even the

"This was someone who knew what he was doing," says Boyle. An artist, Boyle belongs to about six other clubs besides the Empire. He collects old diners, girlies, World War II, and many covers he just finds aesthetically attractive. Boyle, because he specializes, has about 30,000 covers.

DeGennaro, a 46-year-old CBS executive, specializes most strongly in World's Fairs and early radio and television in his collection of about 40,000 covers. He has covers promoting famous old radio serial "The Shadow," and Disney, along with a lot of World War II and historical covers. He has about 40,000 covers.

DeGennaro, who lives in a two-bedroom apartment with his wife and son - neither of whom share his interest in the hobby - stores most of his displays under the bed. He has built three cabinets in his living room to hold his albums, as well as all the awards he has received, blue ribbons as well as pieces suitable for hanging, the most recent replete with a clock. He admits it drives his wife crazy.

Obituaries

GRADY WILSON

July 16, 1992

Grady Wilson, 99, of Sturgis, S.D., former Deaf Smith County resident, died Thursday, just 11 days before his 100th birthday.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Sturgis Church of Christ with burial in Sturgis.

Born July 27, 1892, in Jackson, Miss., Mr. Wilson came to Texas in 1894 with his parents. He married Maude Johnson in May 1913 and they moved to Hereford in 1920. They farmed in the Westway community until moving to South Dakota in 1950. He was a member of the Church of Christ. Mrs. Wilson died in 1979.

Survivors are four sons, Elvin Wilson of Hereford, Donald Wilson of Denver, Colo., Larry Wilson of Faith, S.D., and Grady Wilson Jr., of Sturgis; four daughters, Estelle Hopson, Pauline Block and Sue Keffeler, all of Sturgis, and Gertrude Millard of Rapid City, S.D., and more than 100 grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to Hereford Senior Citizens or Deaf Smith County Museum.

MARGIE SCHLAFER

July 16, 1992

Margie Schlafer, 39, of Port Orchard, Wash., died Thursday in Port Orchard. She was the daughter of Walter and Teresa Paetzold and the sister of Joni Coleman and Walter Paetzold Jr., all of Hereford.

A vigil service will be at 8 p.m. Sunday at Rill Chapel in Port Orchard. Services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Gabriel Catholic Church in Port Orchard. Burial, under direction of Pendleton-Gilchrist Funeral Home, will follow at Haven Rest Cemetery.

Mrs. Schlafer was born April 24, 1953, in Hereford, where she was raised and educated. She attended college at West Texas State. She married Nicholas Schlafer on June 24, 1978, in Phoenix.

Survivors include both parents; her husband; a son, Nicholas Schlafer and two daughters, Marjorie Schlafer and Teresa Schlafer, all of Port Orchard. Survivors also include another brother, Stanley Carl Paetzold of Galveston; and three other sisters: Wanda Champ of Houston, Loretta Dryden of Canyon and Donna Juetz of Dallas.

J.J. McDONALD

July 16, 1992

J.J. McDonald, 66, of Farwell, died Thursday. He was the brother of Leroy McDonald of Hereford.

Services were scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at Lazbuddie Church of Christ, with Condy Billingsley of Clovis, N.M., officiating. Burial will be in Lazbuddie Cemetery by Ellis Funeral Home of Muleshoe.

Mr. McDonald was born in Brownfield and moved to Lazbuddie in 1946. He married Anna M. Crane in Lazbuddie, where he was a farmer and a member of Lazbuddie Church of Christ. He was an Army veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Donna Kim McDonald of Amarillo and Pam Wassenaar of Frisco; two other brothers, Don McDonald of Muleshoe and Bill McDonald of San Antonio; and a granddaughter.

The family requests memorials be to New Mexico Children's Home; Bethel Road; Portales, N.M. 88130 or Children's Home of Lubbock; P.O. Box 2824; Lubbock, Texas 79408.

The most valuable is the 1927 Charles Lindbergh cover. It was believed to have been set out at a dinner for 200 select guests at the Astor Hotel in New York to honor the aviator after his trans-Atlantic flight.

One Lindbergh was auctioned for $4,000 in Cleveland a year ago, but among collectors that's a joke. They say a Lindbergh will never fetch that kind of money again. For years it was believed there were only two Lindberghs in existence, then six, later 10, and now they "are coming out of the woodwork," says Joe DeGennaro, president of the only national matchcover organization, the Rathcamp Matchcover Society, founded in 1941.

Retskin believes that while the collectors have millions of covers, they probably represent about 2 percent of the matchcovers stuffed in attics or old furniture.

Despite the early Pabst and Bull Durham, there is a dearth of early covers. There is a 1920's cover honoring a homecoming at Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute, a 1923 cover for the USS Sirius, a Navy transport ship, and a handful of others from that era.

Many credit the 1939 Chicago World's Fair with really sparking the hobby. The variety, the sets, and the quality were so good that people took them home and kept them.

The men of World War I also mostly used the wooden matchboxes from Europe and it was not until World War II that the War Department, as well as other advertisers, pushed the patriotism angle and armed the GIs with paper matchbooks.

The most valuable of the World War II covers, one owned by DeGennaro, is one dropped behind enemy lines in the Philippine Islands with a picture of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the immortal words: "I shall return."

In addition to the matches produced by the War Department and recreation departments of individual units, the advertisers were also firmly behind the patriotism sweeping the country. A typical cover might say "Joe's Haberdashery" on one side and Buy War Bonds on the other.

Another has a big shoe coming down atop caricatures of Mussolini, Hirohito and Hitler. Match covers stressed security of factory workers, most sophisticated, who may not bend over to pick up a discarded matchbook.

The condition of the cover counts, even among the rarest. Although the collector "shucks" the cover by taking out the matches, one where the striker, the friction part, has been repeatedly used is less valuable than one grabbed years ago by a non-smoker and never touched.

The details of the old covers are striking in visualizing an era. One from the McAlpin Hotel in New York, presumably from the 30's, advertises a room for $2, $2.50 if you want dinner. The Plymouth Hotel, also in New York, has a similar cover: two nights for $4.50.

The specialty clubs have their own rules and regulations. Take the girlie club, for instance. A pretty face alone just won't do it. And no copping out with a mermaid's tail. Not to fear, mermaid lovers. There is a specialty for that, too.

Even the girlies are subdivided. There are those done by two famous artists of the day, George Petty and Alberto Vargas, and they were used to advertise all manner of products. There is also some hard porn, the 900 number collections.

Ralph Arnold, historian for the Rathcamp Society, says there are probably more than 1,000 specialties. "Your imagination is your only limit," he says. Some people collect matchbooks with their names on them, some collect dogs, others collect only Scotties and still others collect only miniature Scotties.

Collectors also have their own vocabulary, words such as manumark and saddle, striker and feature, midgets and contours, jewels and jewelites, shucking and bobtail.

Barnes, who has more than 1.5 million covers, has knocked down one wall in his house to enlarge his hobby room. He remains circumspect when the only daughter still at home inquires about the fate of her room when she moves out.

The woman with the largest collection is Evelyn Hovious of San Francisco. She is in her 90's and other collectors say she has well over 5 million covers. She once bought a new house because she needed more space for storage.

Once her garage was burlarized and the robber knew which albums were valuable and which were not.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading that dumb letter from "University Park" who complained about the drinking at Penn State, I had to send my two cents' worth.

I'm a 19-year-old junior at Westchester University. My beverage of choice is beer. I'm an alcoholic and I know it. I also know that this is a phase and I will quit when I'm ready.

I've been told that my grade point average of 3.2 would go up to 4.0 if I quit drinking. But there is no way I am going to give up the most fun I have for a few lousy percentage points.

I'm tired of hearing "concerned citizens" complain about what alcohol is doing to the youth of today. Twenty-five years ago, they were doing the same thing. What's more, the '60s college generation experimented with LSD and other drugs and survived with no serious after-effects. In fact, today those people are lawyers, doctors, corporate executives and college professors. We need to get this out of our system and when we do, we're going to be just fine.--XXX

DEAR XXX: Some of those experimenters of the '60s didn't survive. They ended up with fried brains. Others died. Alcoholism is not a "phase." It's a serious illness that requires lifelong vigilance. When you discover you can't quit on your own, try Alcoholics Anonymous. Keep reading for more responses to "University Park":

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had to laugh when your University Park correspondent wrote, "Many of these students are juniors and seniors who should have outgrown the immature party animal phase."

How does one accurately measure maturity? Age certainly is not a criterion. For example: Check the behavior of so-called adult males at pre-nuptial stag parties, country club affairs and all-night poker games. By no stretch of the imagination could they be considered "mature"-Anonymous in Gary, Ind.

DEAR GARY: You'll get no argument from me. Thanks for a Hoosier's point of view. Read On:

DEAR ANN: I graduated from Penn State in 1987 and it was great. I attended some "wild" parties, but I'm sure they weren't any worse than the parties 20 years before or the ones they'll have next year.

Drinking alcohol has become one of the rites of passage into adulthood. Most students go through the party animal stage because they're away from home for the first time and want to try everything. I know because I was one of them.--minneapolis

DEAR MPLS.: Here's an upbeat letter from a Wake Forest University parent:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year, Wake Forest in North Carolina offered freshmen the opportunity to have substance-free housing. Those students had to sign a contract saying they would not drink any alcoholic beverages on campus.

Over 300 freshmen (nearly 50 percent of the class) signed up for the 40 available spaces. We thought that was pretty terrific.--Mom and Dad

DEAR MOM AND DAD: So do I, but the concept isn't unique. Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. has the same deal and it, too, is overwhelmed with applications. I believe today's "younger generation" is smarter than we were, better informed and a lot tougher. They look pretty promising to me.

Gem of the Day: A college degree conferred on a person with no knowledge is like an embroidered saddle on a jackass.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 58-year-old widow who has been dating a wonderful 61-year-old man for the last three years. We are extremely compatible and so happy together we are like teenagers.

"Stan" was separated from his wife when I met him. After our first year together, she filed for divorce. It took two years for them to work out the financial details and sign the divorce settlement.

Meanwhile, we've made plans to move into an apartment together while our new house is being built. We are splitting the cost 50-50.

Although I would like to marry him, Stan is against it because of the failure of his marriage. He says often that he wants us to be together for the rest of our lives and that we don't need to make it legal. I have gone along with this. Yesterday, Stan shocked me. He said he is rethinking his divorce because he and his children would be better off financially if he stayed legally separated.

It would kill me to throw away this wonderful relationship. Where would I ever find another one at my age? I need an objective opinion.--Gladwyne, Pa.

DEAR GLADWYNE: It is obvious that the moral aspect of living with this man without benefit of clergy does not bother you, so perhaps you should take a look at the legal ramifications, especially where finances are concerned.

The law varies from state to state, but a wife usually has a claim to any property her husband owns. This includes the new house you are building. If Stan becomes critically ill and there is a question as to whether or not he should be put on life supports, it will be his wife who will make the decision—not you. My advice is to see a lawyer.

Discover Catholic schools

Reasoning that a good education requires not only academic excellence but a strong moral background, a growing number of Americans of all faiths are discovering Catholic schools, where—in addition to plenty of reading, writing and arithmetic—there's a fourth "R"—what's right—that forms the basis for a unique, values-based, education.

An education rich in values is the foundation of all Catholic schools—and that's important to many parents at a time when public schools are rife with crime, drugs and other problems. Catholic schools are also renowned for their academic excellence—their students get higher national scores than other students in government-sponsored math, science and reading test. Fewer drop out of school—just three percent, compared to the national average of 14 percent. Plus, 83 percent of Catholic high school student go on to college. One reason catholic schools may be so successful, says the National Catholic Education Association (NCEA), is the high degree of parental involvement. Some 91 percent of Catholic high schools say parents are active in school activities. Another reason for the success of Catholic education is the fact that the schools are focused on student outcomes—not bureaucratic duties.

HEADACHES AREN'T "NORMAL"

If you're in reasonably good health, you have a right to wonder why you suffer from headaches. Among the causes of persistent headache are problems with the cervical vertebrae, the spinal bones in your neck. If they are out of alignment, this could cause headaches until you get the treatment you need.

KNOWLEDGE IS ALWAYS BEST

Lets say you want to sell your home. Can you imagine yourself picking up the yellow pages and calling the first real estate office listed and saying "come to my house this afternoon, I want to list my home." In this case one important factor is missing, knowledge. Before purchasing or selling a home you should want to know more. As a home buyer, you would look to your agent for information about construction of the home, available financing and other significant factors which might affect its value. As a seller, you would look to your agent's knowledge of past sales in the neighborhood. What homes have sold recently, at what price and how does your home compare to others on the market? When selecting a sales agent look closely at the individual's depth of knowledge and thorough understanding of the marketplace. You will definitely benefit from the knowledge that a professional real estate agent can offer.

Paying the price

Two years ago you defeated, rather soundly, the half-cent sales tax for economic development.

How much sense does it make now?

There are two very significant opportunities for new large industry in Deaf Smith County. Through efforts of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, grassroots groups and individual efforts, we are closer to landing a "big one" than we've been in a few years.

Just because we have a big one hooked doesn't mean we have it in the frying pan. Why?

--Because many people don't care. Apathy is a huge enemy of many projects in Hereford.

--Misplaced priorities. If we had the $72,000 spent the first week of the lottery, given to economic development, we'd already be in the cheese business. If we gave $5 a person to ED, we could have all hit the jackpot by now. Instead, we gave $5 a person to the lottery just during the first week.

--Too much anti-chamber sentiment. To paraphrase John Kennedy: Ask not what your chamber can do for you, ask what you can do for your chamber. If more people would devote half as much energy to working with the chamber as they expend in unknowing badmouthing, we would have an even more tremendous chamber of commerce.

--We have no seed money. We have very little money in the till for getting an option on land; surveying land; research and development; searching for new prospects.

What makes things even worse for us is that we subsidize Amarillo's economic development so well. Amarillo saw a good thing two years ago and passed the half-cent sales tax for economic development. Of the $15.7 million pulled in through the first six months of the year, almost $4 million is going straight to economic development. There's no way to know exactly how much, but I would bet a cheese plant that at least $200,000 of that comes from Deaf Smith County.

It's time for us to put our money where our mouth is and support economic development with our time and our dollars.

THE TEXAS LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY:
A NEW WAY TO DO BUSINESS

For many years, a person starting a business had the choice between forming a corporation, entering into a general or limited partnership or operating as a sole proprietorship. The choice depended on the nature of the business and the type of risk that a businessperson wanted to take.

Now there is a new form of business in Texas. The 1991 legislature enacted the Texas Limited Liability Company Act. A limited liability company looks a little like a corporation and a little like a partnership.

The persons associated with a limited liability company are known as "members" or "managers." As members or managers, persons associated with a limited liability company are not personally liable for the debts of the company. This aspect is like a corporation.

The limited liability company is run by either its members or managers. A member or manager can be given the same powers as a partner has in a partnership. This aspect makes the limited liability company look like a partnership.

Historically, the IRS has considered four primary factors in ruling whether a particular business is a corporation or a partnership. These are (1) whether there is centralized management, (2) whether there is free transferability of ownership, (3) whether the entity has an indefinite business life and (4) whether the owners have limited liability for the actions or debts of the entity. Generally, at least three of the four factors must be present for the IRS to classify the entity as a corporation.

The significance of whether the IRS classifies an entity as a corporation or a partnership involves limited liability and double taxation. A corporation is independently subject to income taxation, but it shields its stockholders from liability for corporate torts and debts. A partnership is not subject to double taxation, but the partners, or at least one partner, is personally liable for all partnership torts and debts. The limited liability company act provides for a company with limited liability that is not subject to double taxation.

The legislature intends for the limited liability company to be attractive to investors and for those investors to choose to locate their businesses in Texas. The limited liability company may be a good option for businesses. However, nothing in this article should be taken as specific advice.

I wonder how many millions (or billions) of our dollars it took to get Manuel Noriega in the pen for 40 years?

Yes, maybe we taught him a lesson. He certainly won't be down there in Panama City dealing drugs or whatever.

But was it worth the cost? Was it worth it to risk the lives of thousands of our soldiers so we could bring this man to justice?

I'm not sure.

Many of you probably remember the face or voice of Tom Higley. He was on Channel 4 a long time ago, and was news director at KZIP for many years.

Tom is now publishing a couple of papers in Oklahoma and helping his dad, Morris, at the Childress Index.

Childress has gained attention, most of it unfavorable, from a story in Texas Monthly. The magazine has a story about the mysterious deaths of Tate Rowland and Terri Trosper in the Childress vicinity.

The story is rife with speculation about devil worship, satanism and cults. The story quotes several people, including "the editor of the Childress Index."

"We're still trying to figure out which editor of which Childress Index they talked to," Tom told me last weekend.

Many of the Texas Monthly writers, like Gary Cartwright, are highly-respected professionals. After hearing about the holes in this story,

I wonder if the magazine is slipping?

There too damn much cursing in America.

That's the subject of a new book, Cursing in America, written by Timothy Jay.

Among the maledicta in the book: --In the original script of Gone With The Wind, the final line read, "Frankly my dear I don't care." The producer had to pay a $5,000 fine to change it.

--Female graffiti makes fewer sexual references than male graffiti.

--Dirty words account for eight percent of college student conversations at leisure, three percent of adult conversations on the job and 13 percent of adult leisure conversations.

Democrats euphoric, just like '88

An AP News Analysis
By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Once again, a Democratic nominee and his running mate held arms aloft and stood before a convention hall brimming with euphoria and confidence. It was a familiar tableau.

Four years before, Democrats linked arms with the same balloons-and-music, happy-times faith that the White House was within their grasp.

Michael Dukakis was 17 points ahead in the polls. Republican George Bush seemed to be reeling on the ropes. And Dukakis' selection of Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as his running mate was widely trumpeted as a masterstroke.

The rest is history.

This year, nominee Bill Clinton's surge in the polls, the rare unity of the party and the bombshell withdrawal of independent challenger Ross Perot from the race created tremendous Democratic bliss.

Delegates and party officials insist things are different this year than in 1988 - and that they've really got the best shot at the White House in years. Maybe so. But analysts say the Democrats shouldn't put too much importance on the exhilaration that swept through the convention that ended on Thursday night.

"I think it's always a false euphoria," said University of Pennsylvania political scientist Kathleen Jamieson. "The people with the highest stake in victory are all assembled in one place, all energized."

Although Clinton might get an initial surge from Perot backers, the final destination of Perot supporters was much less clear.

"I think it's a lot harder for Democrats in a two-way race. But I don't think it's a cakewalk for Bush because he has alienated so many people who voted for him before," said Earl Black, a political science professor at the University of South Carolina.

Neither Democrats nor Republicans wasted any time courting the deserted Perot supporters, though Perot did not endorse either candidate.

Addressing his remarks to Perot's "army of patriots for change," Clinton said in his convention speech: "Join us and together we will revitalize America."

Bush, from a far less lofty podium, echoed an identical appeal.

"We share the same principles with many of these people," Bush said at a hastily arranged news conference that interrupted a fishing vacation in Wyoming.

Over the next weeks, "We will make a concerted effort to appeal to the Perot voters," Bush campaign spokeswoman Torie Clarke said. "We'll say, 'Look, we know where you're coming from.'"

"I think there will be a short-term bump for Clinton and a long-term gain for us," Clarke added.

Democrats vowed to work to extend that bump through the election.

"I've always viewed the Perot voters as gettable. They're discontented with Bush. They've seen Bush and they've moved away from Bush," said Phil Angelides, chairman of the California Democratic party.

A delegate from California's San Fernando Valley reacted swiftly to events with a sign Thursday night that said "Welcome to All Perot Supporters - If You're Still Sore, Vote Clinton-Gore."

Perot's withdrawal was generally expected to help Bush in the South, in Texas, in Florida and in the smaller Western states. At the same time, Clinton should get a bigger boost in California and the Northeast, particularly in New York and Pennsylvania.

A key battleground will be the suburbs. Perot had been making inroads in these areas among Reagan Democrats and baby-boomers not associated with either party.

"The suburbs have been our bedrock vote in the last three elections and I think they will be again when we get the election properly framed," said Republican consultant Roger Stone.

The lessons of over confidence and false euphoria weren't lost on one subdued spectator at Thursday's conclave.

"I know a good convention does not necessarily win the election," said 1988 nominee Dukakis.

"I don't think you will see Bill Clinton and Al Gore making that same mistake."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Tom Raum has covered national conventions for The Associated Press since 1972.

Papers react to Perot's decision

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion on Perot's announcement from Texas newspapers Friday:

San Antonio Express-News:

Either the Texas billionaire really meant it when he said at the outset of his campaign that he did not want to be president, or he found that being a hugely successful businessman did not automatically mean that he would be a marvelous politician...

Ross Perot did have an effect on the campaign. He enlivened a dull political year and probably encouraged the Democratic Party's move from the fringe left to the center, at least in its platform. He also offered, briefly, a hope for the disaffected and disenchanted voters.

"The Democratic Party has revitalized itself," he said, as if to take credit for Bill Clinton's recent rise in public-opinion polls. Moreover, he said, if his candidacy were to throw the race into the House of Representatives, that would be "negative and disruptive."

"I have an obligation to do the right thing," he said. Perhaps, but if he had really wanted to do the right thing from the start, he would have come through on his promise to provide an issues-oriented platform for his campaign instead of leaving a legacy of angry complaints, few constructive criticisms and millions of angry volunteers.

Waco Tribune Herald:

It's a good thing Ross Perot got out of the presidential race. The country doesn't need a quitter as president.

When the going got tough, Perot got out. The going wasn't even that tough, but Perot didn't know better. The average county commissioner takes more guff from the public than political virgin Perot ever had thrown at him.

It's better that Perot picked up his toys and went home now rather than quitting in the midst of any of the myriad sensitive difficulties he would have had to face as president. Running for president remains one of the best qualifying tests yet devised for the job. Perot flunked by quitting before the tests were even handed out...

Perot's brief unannounced candidacy had a salutary effect on both established political parties. It showed the depth of public discontent with the status quo. But his abrupt abandonment of his millions of followers made him look like a selfish jerk.

By quitting, this pint-sized Pied Piper of change may have derailed the hopes of the Democratic Party he called "revitalized" and handed the election to Bush and his do-nothing status quo accomplices.

Perot is giving a bad name to billionaires.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram:

Certainly a portion of the Perot mania that swept the country in the weeks immediately after his "nonofficial" entry into the race can be attributed to the force of the man's personality. He is charismatic, refreshingly blunt and possessed of the ability to turn a memorable phrase.

But, in reality, Perot was only the catalyst that transformed a smoldering fire into a blazing inferno, whose flames are licking at the very door of the political counting house.

American voters are fed up with a political system that thrives on empty promises and rewards those elected officials who practice ineffective leadership with what amounts to a lifetime sinecure, the wages for which are sucked in increasingly large amounts from a shrinking public treasury.

Perot offered voters hungry for a genuine commitment to national excellence and a greater role in the drafting of public policy the hope that such a "constitutional revolution" could succeed in halting the erosion of the American dream.

'Made in the USA' list has some 'foreign' goods

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Baseball, apple pie and Chevrolet. They're so all-American. Or are they? Better take a second look, says "Made in the USA: The Complete Guide to America's Finest Products."

Sure, baseball's the national sport, and the balls themselves are sold by big U.S. companies like Wilson, Rawlings and Spalding. But where are they made? In Haiti, says the sourcebook for the patriotic consumer.

As for the Chevrolet, the Beretta is fine: It's assembled at a plant in Wilmington, Del. But don't be fooled by the Lumina. They put that one together in Ontario, Canada.

The apples should be OK. They're probably from Washington or New York state. But read the supermarket signs, too. Imports are everywhere.

These are the conclusions of the third annual handbook published by the Made in the USA Foundation, a non-profit, grassroots organization founded in 1989 to educate consumers about how and why to buy American.

"There are a lot of myths out there that nothing's made here anymore," said Joel D. Joseph, the foundation's founder. "We want people to know there are good things made here."

With chapters on everything from toys and games to cars and trucks, the handbook provides a brand-by-brand survey of high-quality American-made products. It also includes statistics after statistics to underscore its point.

From 1986 to 1990, imports of footwear rose 412 percent, for instance. And since 1980, nearly 581,500 jobs have been lost in the U.S. fiber, textile and apparel industry. As for toys, Americans spent about $13.13 billion on the 150,000 items on U.S. toy store shelves in 1990. But as many as 75 percent of those toys are imported.

"To help retain this way of life we all enjoy, we must continually invest in it, and buying American is one way to do so," the book says.

But the foundation researches the products it mentions, and chooses only those of high quality, Joseph said.

In almost every category, from clothing to musical instruments, it lists a wide selection of choices. All are manufactured and assembled in the United States, although many include imported parts.

"Rest assured that in every case we list the best, most 'all-American' products we could find," the book promises.

But even the foundation has to admit that in some areas, there are no American-made products to be found.

Forget American-made television sets. That era ended in March when Zenith closed its last U.S. assembly plant in Springfield, Mo. The large-screen TVs once produced there are assembled in Mexico.

Zenith still makes TV components here, the book says. But only foreign-owned companies assemble them here. Goldstar of South Korea has a U.S. assembly plant. So does the Japanese company JVC. And so, for that matter, do Matsushita, Mitsubishi, Sanyo, Sharp and Sony.

The foundation boasts 50,000 members. It also has a lobbying wing to push for government policy more conducive to American business. And consumers can telephone an 800-number to get tips on what to buy. The Made in the USA Foundation's toll-free telephone number is 1-800-ASK-MUSA.

KERRVILLE

There have been no arrests since the March 29 slayings of Clayton Kenney, 83, his wife, 75, and Mrs. Kenney's daughter, Adrienne Arnot, 44, a former Houston magazine publisher.

Miss Arnot had moved to the Texas Hill Country less than a year earlier to help care for her mother.

The intruder left behind few clues in the blood-splattered home, although investigators did recover the murder weapons: a stick of cedar firewood and a butcher knife.

Still, investigators believe the victims knew the killer. And though they describe the case as "weird" and "baffling," they have a suspect.

"All we're doing now is digging and following up leads, trying to find the missing piece of the puzzle to fill it all in," said Texas Ranger Joe Davis of Kerrville.

"We need that one piece ... and I feel confident we'll get it."

But after nearly three months, there is concern among residents of this picturesque resort and retirement community that the killer is still on the loose.

On the night of March 29, a Sunday, the Kenneys and Miss Arnot were eating chili and watching television when the assailant appeared at their secluded home north of Kerrville.

The native-rock ranch-style residence, with its unique bell tower, is nestled among the cedar and live oak that blanket the Scenic Hills area.

Kenney, a native of Ohio, had designed the house and done much of the interior woodwork himself after moving here in 1970 from Cleveland, where he was a commercial artist.

His son, Bryan Kenney of Atlanta, Ga., told the Kerrville Daily Times the home has been featured in national decorating magazines.

"He came down here because my mother's brother and his wife had lived in Kerrville, and they were impressed with the serenity and beauty," the son said.

The elder Kenney, a widower, married Juliana Arnot, a widow, in 1978. Friends described her as active and vibrant until partially paralyzed by a stroke in the early 1980s.

Money was no problem, according to Sutton, the district attorney from Junction, who says the couple's estate exceeded $1 million.

He said Mrs. Kenney inherited a "considerable" amount of money from her mother and "more than $100,000" was still expected from that estate. Additionally, an inheritance check for several thousand dollars was found in Miss Arnot's purse.

"The daughter also had a copy of her mother's will in her purse," said Sutton, which he described as unusual. The will was dated in the 1970s.

Miss Arnot's Houston friends say she made a lot of money publishing a magazine called "Living," but it folded in the 1980s when the real estate market turned sour.

Afterward, Miss Arnot, an honor graduate at Duke, couldn't find a job to match her talents, friends said. So she decided to move to Kerrville.

"Why not?" one friend quoted her as saying. "They need me. I'll just move up there for awhile until the economy gets better. I've got nothing to lose."

A small-town prosecutor with a big-time reputation, Sutton said he has not established the succession of heirs but that obviously somebody stands to gain substantially by the three deaths.

Yet, the lone suspect is not a relative and there is no apparent motive for the slayings, including robbery.

"Another interesting thing," Sutton said, "is that the killer used a weapon of convenience instead of a weapon of choice. That's baffling to me."

The intruder apparently used a piece of firewood from the Kenneys' home to beat his victims, then took a knife from the kitchen and stabbed them in the neck.

"Somebody knew damn well how to make sure they were dead," said Sutton, referring to the manner in which the killer wielded the knife.

An autopsy report says Kenney was struck six times in the head and his wife five. Each was stabbed once in the neck. Miss Arnot died from 12 blows to the head but was also stabbed twice.

Investigators believe Kenney met the killer at the front door that night and when Miss Arnot heard or saw them argue, she ran to help. Her body lay across his, indicating Kenney was bludgeoned first.

"It was like shooting ducks in a pond, once you got the first duck," Sutton said.

Davis said Mrs. Kenney was sitting in an easy chair in front of the television.

"I don't know if she could actually observe everything," he said, "but she definitely heard it. She no doubt saw him coming ... but there was nothing she could do."

"She couldn't get out of that chair." Davis has been working the case night and day with Kerr County Sheriff Frances Kaiser and her deputies since the Kenneys' maid discovered the bodies the morning of March 30.

"We feel like the people knew who killed them," Davis said. "We believe it was a grudge deal and not so much robbery, although some things were taken."

"A lot of valuable items in the home were left behind."

Because there was no forced entry, and since the intruder did not bring his own weapon, Davis believes the killings may not have been premeditated.

"It says to me he didn't intend to kill them when he came there," the Ranger said. "An argument ensues and apparently gets pretty bad. The person got real mad, lost his cool and went ahead and killed them."

Regardless of how and why it happened, Davis insists he will find the missing piece of his investigative puzzle.

"We haven't had any luck at all yet," he said. "And you've got to have a little luck on these things. I'm confident we'll solve this thing. I just can't say when."

"But nobody's going to get by with a triple murder in this community."

HSB parent group posts huge gains

First Abilene Bankshares, Inc. parent company of Hereford State Bank, reported net earnings of $5.4 million for the first six months of 1992, a 32.2 percent increase over the first six months of 1991.

Earnings for the second quarter were $2.81 million, a 33.5 percent increase over the second quarter of 1991.

Per share earnings were 84 cents for the quarter and $1.61 for the six months ending June 30. Kenneth T. Murphy, chairman and chief executive officers of the company, said higher net interest income came from higher deposits and better interest margins.

Assets of the company on June 30 were $795.4 million, compared to $769.1 million on June 30, 1991. Shareholders equity of $77.49 million was 9.7 percent of total assets and was 10.2 higher than in 1991. The company's nonperforming assets on June 30 were also significantly lower: $6.03 million, or 1.83 percent of loans and foreclosed assets, compared to $7.18 million, or 2.33 percent, a year ago.

The Abilene-based holding company is also the parent of First National Bank, Abilene; First National, Sweetwater; Eastland National, Eastland, and First National in Cleburne.

YMCA drive is continuing

Volunteers are continuing the Hereford YMCA's annual sustaining campaign, with a goal of $30,000 by August 3.

Funds raised during the campaign will be used to help supplement youth programs and scholarships.

Dave Hopper and Nena Veazey will lead the Major Division, and Cindy Simons and Linda Fitzgerald will head the Teams Division.

Each year, the Hereford YMCA has over 1,500 youngsters participating in programs. Many are able to participate only through YMCA scholarships made possible by volunteer dollars raised during the campaign. As long as the campaign is successful, no one is turned away from YMCA youth programs.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the campaign may call the Hereford YMCA at 364-6990.

YOUR EYES

How Good Are Vision Screenings?

Widescale vision screenings offer some benefit to the community. They do catch some eye problems. But they should never be confused with complete eye examinations by an eye professional.

School vision screenings, for instance, most often test a student's ability to see 20/20 on a distance eye chart. This may serve to identify the youngsters who cannot see the blackboard, but it does not test for near-vision acuity, the use of both eyes together, tracking a line of print and other visual tasks. Often, an alert teacher's observations of a child's difficulty may be more important in spotting a problem than are the formal screenings.

Whether in school, factory or a mobile health unit, a screening is not likely to include internal and external examination of the eye and tests for all the skills that go into vision. The best way to protect eyes and your eyesight is through a complete examination by your optometrist.

Faldo leads Brit Open; Daly hacks up course

STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

GULLANE, Scotland (AP) - Nick Faldo showed the perfect way to play Muirfield. John Daly showed the way not to.

Faldo took a 12 under par, three-stroke lead into the third round of the British Open Saturday, and hadn't even stepped on the course when Daly was done with a wild 80 that put him at 10-over, 223.

"Links golf just doesn't fit my game," lamented Daly, the power-driving 26-year-old who stormed to the PGA championship last year on the far different Crooked Stick course in Indiana. "It's a totally different type of golf. I'm not going to remake my game. It's very hard for me to punch shots. I haven't learned how to do it."

Someone asked Daly how many bunkers he'd visited on his strange tour of the links on this gusty day.

"How many have you got out here?" he asked.

Told there were 147, he replied. "Well, I was in about 132 of them. I'm glad I didn't break my wrist out there."

Daly said he may never play another British Open unless he finds one on a course that fits his game. He'll have a hard time doing that, because all the courses are of the links variety.

For his final round Sunday, Daly figured he'd just treat it like a day of practice.

"I'll most likely be a 'onesome,' so I'll probably finish in an hour and 10 minutes," he said.

His third round began with trouble on his 4-iron second shot, which he pull-hooked en route to a double bogey.

"I heard a 'fore' on my backswing, and that's how my day went," he said.

The worst it got was on the par-four 12th, when he triple-bogeyed, courtesy of a wedge shot into a bunker and three putts, the last one left-handed.

Still, he was pleased to be playing when he and many others thought he'd be gone by now.

"My main goal was to make the cut, and if I got lucky the top 15," he said. So far, it doesn't look as if he'll be quite so lucky.

While Faldo waited to begin his third round, and the winds began blowing harder by midday, Hale Irwin posted a 67 to go to three-under for the tournament. Defending champion Ian Baker-Finch shot 72 for the day and was one-over.

It might take a gale, though, to stop the "new" Faldo.

In a rare moment of fallibility

Friday, he reverted to his annoying habit of standing on the fairway working on his swing.

Whoosh! ...

He swung at an imaginary ball from the spot where he had just lofted a 5-iron into the rough in front of the 17th green.

Whoosh!

He swung again. And again. And again.

His playing partners had moved on, the gallery had moved on, the TV cameras were gone. Still, Faldo stood there working on his stroke when he already was 12 under par, three strokes ahead of the field and about to post the lowest 36-hole total, 130, in British Open history.

It was that old obsession for perfection that kept him there, the very thing he has been trying to shed, and it took a few more swings before Faldo walked away apparently satisfied he had corrected a glitch that led the ball astray.

Faldo could have blamed the wind - a lot of others did on this breezy day at Muirfield that claimed Fred Couples, Davis Love, Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Seve Ballesteros and Curtis Strange, among others, before the cut.

Instead he blamed himself for pushing too hard at that point, getting confused and not doing "all the right things" with his 5-iron.

Wherever the blame lay, Faldo still had a three-stroke lead on American John Cook and Scotsman Gordon Brand Jr., who shot 67 and 68, respectively, for 133. Steve Pate, co-leader with Ray Floyd at 64 after the first round, dropped to fourth at 134. Floyd was in a group another stroke back.

"I am trying to lessen my perfectionist tendencies," Faldo said. "I am trying to cope with it better. Striving for the best is what we should all strive for in every walk of life. I am committing myself to that, and before I was too hard on myself and could not do it."

"This is probably the best round I've played in the Open," he said. "It was amazing. I had this different feeling. I felt whatever I was doing would come right. I got a feeling about a putt, I gave it a good whack and it went in."

It went in from 20 feet on the eighth green, from 15 feet on the 12th, 20 feet again on the 14th and 15 feet on the 15th. For that, he credited his golf guru, David Leadbetter.

"I've got a new stroke, a new tempo, a new swing straight from Lord Leadbetter," Faldo said with a wink. "It's top secret. It's code-named Basil."

Southwest Outdoors

with Mel Phillips

Poor Texas Parks and Wildlife--after catching some heat for the poor bass fishing conditions in our part of the world, both the regional biologist, Joe Kraai, and the number one guy for Inland Fisheries, Phil Durocher, repeatedly promised that TPW would "stock significant numbers of bass" when the lakes in West Texas show a major increase in lake levels.

The good news--Mother Nature did her part by providing some unusually heavy spring rains that have benefitted virtually every lake in our region.

After nearly five years of low water, Lake White River is up 13 feet. At last, it is full and the amount of newly-flooded cover is simply unbelievable.

Lake Meredith enjoyed its fifth-largest rise in the last 20 years when the level increased a full six feet to 86.72 feet. Virtually all water over the 82-foot level contains perfect largemouth cover: lots of flooded trees, brush and even laydown logs.

On June 26, I couldn't stand it anymore and placed a call to Mr. Kraai, just to confirm that bass were on their way to our lake. Visions of lakes full of both water and bass danced in my head. B-U-T, Kraai was on vacation.

No problem. I also know the powerful Mr. Durocher and was sure that he was privy to when that first convoy would arrive from the hatchery.

The bad news--Guess who is out of bass. Durocher flatly stated that "no additional bass stocking is planned for any panhandle lakes" in 1992. He reported that "TPW hatcheries simply have no bass."

Just our luck. The Panhandle finally gets some water and the only people who can legally stock fish are out of bass and can't figure out how to get any until next year.

As someone slowly getting used to the thinking at TPW, I appreciate their problems, explanations and finger-pointing. Mother Nature is going to have to shape up and provide those rain showers on a schedule that is more convenient.

Playa Pete is less kind to TPW: "I will gladly trade a boatload of those paper-shuffling bureaucrats for just one dedicated state employee who recognizes the need to do some old-fashioned horse trading and get us some bass."

Saddest part of this story is that if no fish are stocked until 1993, the lake levels will probably be lower and any stocked bass-face both a lower survival rate and much slower growth rate.

Mel Phillips is an avid hunter, a tournament fisherman and host of a Wednesday evening talk show on KGNC-radio (710 AM). He is also an award-winning member of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association.

O's shut out Rangers

By The Associated Press

Baltimore's Mike Mussina didn't pitch well Friday night. Then the game started.

The right-hander, who struggled in warm-ups, was nearly perfect in an 8-0 victory over the Texas Rangers. Mussina (10-3) struck out 10, walked just one and surrendered only Kevin Reimer's fifth-inning double on the way to his fourth complete game.

"This is probably the best game that I have thrown since I've been in the majors," the 23-year-old said.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Milwaukee 4, Chicago 3 in 11 innings; Kansas City 4, Cleveland 3; Minnesota 3, Boston 2 in 10 innings; California 12, New York 4; Seattle 8, California 6, and Detroit 4, Oakland 3.

In Houston, John Smoltz did most of the work, pitching eight impressive innings as the Braves beat Astros 5-0 for their seventh straight victory.

Smoltz (11-6) struck out 10, walked none and gave up five hits. Kent Mercker finished up in Atlanta's second consecutive shutout and its 15th of the season, most in the majors.

In other NL games, Philadelphia beat Los Angeles 11-3, Cincinnati stopped St. Louis 8-1, New York edged San Francisco 1-0, Chicago defeated Pittsburgh 2-1 and Montreal beat San Diego 3-0.

Conklin to serve as noble grand

Anna Conklin was installed as noble grand of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening by District Deputy President Ruby Green of Muleshoe with assistance from Deputy Marshall June Green, Ona Berry, Patsy Chance and Dorothy Browning.

Appointive officers were Mary Lou Weatherford, conductor; Marie Harris, chaplain; Ben Conklin, color bearer; Tony Irlbeck, banner bearer; Peggy Lemons, R.S.N.G.; Ann Werner, L.S.V.G.; Rosalie Northcutt, inside guardian; Irene Merritt, R.S. to chaplain; Nelma Sowell, L.S. to chaplain; Shirley Brown, junior past noble grand; Faye Brownlow, R.S.P.N.G.; and Ocie Bolton, L.S.P.N.B.

A salad supper was served preceding the meeting. Others present were Susie Curtsinger, Lydia Hopson, Connie and Gene Ivey, Erma and Jim Loving, Dorothy Lundry, Gail Nelson, Willa Mae Reynolds, Sadie Shaw, Dora Lea Howell, Dennis Brillhart, and Connie and Michael Altieri.

Lifeguarding class scheduled

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a lifeguarding class beginning at 9 a.m. Monday at the City Pool. Kamille Urbanczyk, center, will instruct the class. Among the students who plan to participate include Randy Eaton, Justin Scott and Cady Auckerman, at right.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. I've always used the area of the pilot light on my gas range for letting bread rise. My new gas range is ignition lighted. How do you suggest I let breads rise now? Mrs. M.C., Racine, WI.

A. The hot water method will work fine for you. Place bowl of dough on a rack over a bowl of hot water, covering it completely with a towel. This gives you the ideal temperature for dough to rise: 80 degrees to 85 degrees F.

Q. What happens if I use only egg whites or egg substitute in pecan pie? S.W., Tacoma, WA

A. When only egg whites, egg substitute or even fewer whole eggs are used in place of the recipe's amount of eggs in a pecan pie, the mixture will boil vigorously and over on to the oven floor. This is caused by the lack of thickener supplied by egg yolks. For best results use recipes formulated for fewer eggs or egg substitutes.

TIP OF THE WEEK: To make a spring buffet easy, choose a main dish that can be made at least partly ahead. The chicken mixture in the following Chicken and Shrimp Shells recipe can be prepared the day ahead and refrigerated. Simply heat and serve with patty shells.

Water safety instructor class to begin Monday

A water safety instructor class will begin at 7 p.m. Monday at the Red Cross office. Cost of the class will be $28.

Participants must be at least 17 years old and be a good swimmer. The purpose of the water safety program is to help people learn to be safe when they are in, on, or around water. The program covers skills and knowledge in a logical progression for aquatic skill development. Water safety instructors teach all levels of swimming including basic water safety and emergency water safety.

Ronny Sanders is the instructor trainer for the local Chapter. He will be teaching the instructor candidate orientation section Friday evening and start the water safety instructor class Saturday.

A lifeguarding class will begin Monday at 9 a.m. at the City Pool. Kamille Urbanczyk will be the instructor. The class will cover topics ranging from preventive lifeguarding to sanitation and operational safety. The basic skill needed to begin the class are: Swim 500 yards continuously using each of the following strokes for at least 50 yards, crawl, breaststroke, elementary backstroke and sidestroke. Other skills include surface diving and bringing a 10-pound brick to the surface, swim underwater for 15 yards and tread water for one minute. Cost of the class will be $8 for the book and $5 for the pool fee.

A swimmers class will begin Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the City Pool. Dalene Burns will be the instructor for this one hour class. Those taking this class must have passed the intermediate class or have good swimming skills. This class improves on the sidestroke, back crawl, breaststroke and crawl stroke. The class includes diving and turns. Cost of the class will be the $6 pool fee. Register for these classes by calling the Red Cross Office at 364-3761.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Singer Dionne Warwick led an all-star cast in a farewell to retiring NAACP chief Benjamin Hooks.

Among others who paid tribute to Hooks at the Thursday night gala was civil rights heroine Rosa Parks.

"We must always know the struggle continues," she said. "And as we continue to struggle, we will never forget the struggle of Hooks."

Among the celebrities on hand: actors Malcolm Jamal-Warner, Ossie Davis, Ruby Dee and Dawn Lewis and musicians Isaac Hayes and Al Jarreau.

The gala ended the 83rd annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. It was Hooks' last convention before he retires in April 1993.

Military Muster

The soldier, a combat engineer, is the son of Mirasol Martin and stepson of Cornelius Martin of 2102 N. W.S. Young Drive, Killeen.

His wife, Virginia, is the daughter of Lupe Flores of Hereford.

The academy is a four-year educational institution, charged with the task of training young Americans to become professional Army officers.

The lieutenant is scheduled for assignment to the Field Artillery Division at Fort Sill, Okla.

Brown is the son of Davis L. and Kay Brown of Adrian.

The officer is a 1988 graduate of Adrian School.

Army Cadet Kile D. Brown has been commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation and awarded a bachelor of science degree here.

NEW YORK (AP) - Donald Trump says he was puzzled by the disappearance of up to 200 pairs of shoes from his girlfriend Marla Maples' apartment. But now police say the mystery's been solved with the arrest of her publicist.

Chuck Jones, 49, of Greenwich, Conn., was arrested Wednesday and charged with stealing dozens of pairs of high-heeled shoes from Miss Maples' Trump Parc apartment, police said.

"She was just missing shoes," Trump said Thursday on the tabloid TV show "A Current Affair." "They were gone and they were taken in vast quantities and always having to buy shoes, and not being a clothes hog, I said, 'Are you Imelda Marcos?'"

Jones was charged with burglary, possessing stolen property and possessing three unlicensed handguns. He was expected to post $5,000 bail today.

We're into the seventh inning stretch for the year at the library. School is still a few weeks away, and the Summer Reading Program has just concluded. About seven hundred kids, all told, signed up for the program. It was a lot of fun visiting with the kids during the week, seeing them accomplish reading goals, and finding out what they liked to read. Thanks...to all of you who participated...to all of you who helped...and to all of you who paid your fines last year, as that is where the funding for the Summer Reading Club comes from.

CONGRATULATIONS to Austin Whitlow and Riley Hall! Part of the Summer Reading Program is the "bookmark contest" in which the kids are encouraged to draw a bookmark representing the theme. Two winners from each public library in the Panhandle are chosen, and their drawings are printed onto real bookmarks. These are then distributed by the libraries throughout the area. Austin, 13, was the local winner in the older division. He is the son of Jimmy and Carol Moore and will be in seventh grade this year at Hereford Junior High. His favorite book is Spiderman.

Riley, winner in the younger division, is the son of Scott and Lori Hall and will be a fifth grader at Nazarene Christian Academy. He is ten years old and his favorite book is John Paul Jones.

By the way, we still have the other entries. If you would like to have your child's, you may pick it up at the library.

It has been several months since I last introduced a library staff member. I put it off as long as I could, but I guess it's time I mentioned LaJuan Fowler. LaJuan's job title has some sort of technical name that none of us use and I can't remember, but the important thing is that she knows how to use the computer. She can tell you when a book was acquired and how many times it has been used. (This information is necessary to determine whether a damaged book should be repaired, replaced or discarded.) She is responsible for the processing of new acquisitions and she keeps up with the overdues. Her work is vital to the efficient operation of the library (but that doesn't mean she's going to get a raise).

Stephen King's latest - Gerald Game - will be released for checkout this week. Liner notes say this is King's "most ambitious work yet" a novel of brilliant intensity, excruciating suspense, and uncanny insight into the dark corners of the indomitable female psyche. Not surprisingly, there is already a waiting list, so if you want to read it, come in (or call) and sign up.

Other fiction includes light romance, science fiction, mystery, and I think maybe a western.

There's a lot of variety in the non-fiction this week, perhaps the book with most relevance to more people is Bringing Out The Giftedness In Your Child by a bunch of doctors (none of them MD's). This book offers practical advice and suggests activities, based on decades of research, to bring you and your children closer, and to help them realize their potential. Disregarding the "popular" definition of "gifted," this work deals with finding and nurturing the gifts in every child.

Beyond the Storm: A Gulf Crisis Reader is a collection of short articles detailing goings-on in the Persian Gulf from early history to recent times.

And for Civil War buffs...Bloody Dawn by Thomas Goodrich, a rehashing of Quantrill's raid on Lawrence, Kansas.

Don't forget that the library has plenty to keep you entertained, informed, or busy this summer!

Congenital heart defects leading cause of mortality

Congenital heart defects are a leading cause of infant mortality throughout the world. Deborah Heart and Lung Center in Browns Mills, New Jersey reaches out across the nation and the world to help children in need.

Through its Children of the World program, each year Deborah treats over 500 children from the United States and 100 foreign children for critical heart anomalies, at no cost to their families.

Deborah also undertook a humane medical mission to the former Soviet Republic of Georgia. The hospital transported a 44-member medical team and 15 tons of medical equipment and successfully operated on children who would have otherwise died.

Deborah's Children of the World program also provides training opportunities for medical personnel from other countries. Foreign doctors serve three-month rotations observing diagnostic, medical and surgical techniques and care at Deborah. They then return home to put into practice the new methods they have learned.

Deborah Heart and Lung Center is a specialty teaching hospital that concentrates on the diagnosis and treatment of heart, lung and vascular diseases in adults and acquired and congenital heart conditions in children.

Williams, Rohland united in marriage

First Baptist Church of Amarillo was the setting for the marriage of Dallas residents, Cody Ann Williams and Christopher Rohland, Saturday afternoon, July 18. Rev. Paul Land of First Christian Church of Canyon officiated at the marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arvell Williams of Amarillo and is the granddaughter of Zoe Williams of Hereford. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Rohland of Redmond, Wash.

The church altar was decorated by six candelabra and a unity candle. Pews were marked by floral cascades.

Mandi Goodwin of Amarillo served as maid of honor and Christopher A. Hall of Weatherford was best man.

Bridesmaids included Amy Clawson of Fort Worth, Barbie Sisson of Lubbock, and Holly Johnson and Brent Crutchfield, both of Amarillo.

Serving as groomsmen were Eddie Skaggs of Houston, Greg Loudermilk of Dallas, Marc Mousseau of Hilton Head Island, S.C., Sam Gowdy of Stafford and Paul Montgomery of Richardson.

Escorting guests were Chad Williams of Amarillo, Eric Rohland of Dallas, Ga., Andy Rohland of Lubbock and Jon Rohland of Redmond, Wash.

Elizabeth and Steven Williams, children of Mr. and Mrs. Randy Williams of Victoria, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Justin Glenn of San Antonio lit candles.

Jane Wilson-Reagan of Amarillo was vocalist and was accompanied by Janice Davis of Amarillo, pianist; Dan Knight of Amarillo, organist; and Mike Burt of Amarillo, trumpet. Wedding selections included "The Lord's Prayer," "The Wedding Song" and "Trumpet Voluntary."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a candlelight satin gown styled with princess sleeves with fingertip lace and pearls, a high lace Victorian collar with pearls and sequins, a straight satin skirt and cathedral-length train.

She wore an elegant pearl tiara and layers of netting and pearls.

She carried a large cascading arrangement of peach and ivory colored roses, lilies, ivy and baby's breath accented with pearl strings.

Attendants wore forest green floor-length backless suit-styled dresses with princess sleeves. They carried peach and ivory flowers in brass baskets.

Teri Kennedy of Amarillo served cake at the reception held in the church's Grand Room. Marla Westphalen of Kiron, Iowa and Angie Williams of Victoria poured punch and coffee.

The four-tiered ivory cake was decorated with ropes of pearls and sterling silver cake pulls. It was topped with cherubs.

Following a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple will make their home in Dallas.

The bride, a 1991 graduate of Texas Tech University, received a degree in international trade. She is currently employed by The Heritage Organization in Dallas as a travel coordinator and recruiter. She is a member of Alpha Phi Sorority and Delta Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

The groom, a 1990 graduate of Texas Tech University, is presently employed by Belo Cooperation as an account executive. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity.

The bridal couple were honored with a dance and barbecue following the ceremony and reception at the Williams & Webb, Inc. Sale Facility in Amarillo.

Gospel musical to be featured at BE center

CHANNING, TEXAS -- A gospel musical, "The Greatest Star of All," at 7 p.m. will cap a family-oriented "Day at the Park" starting at 1 p.m. at New Beginnings Christian Retreat Center on Saturday, Aug. 15, director Jim Jones announced today.

"The Greatest Star of All," based on the parable of the prodigal son, comes to New Beginnings through New Life Ministries of Cary, N.C. The musical takes place in a circus setting, complete with clowns, stage animals and a ringmaster. The tale that unfolds offers fun and education in a creative presentation of the gospel of Jesus Christ, Jones said.

The musical begins at 7 p.m. in the courtyard of the New Beginnings lodge, culminating the retreat center's first "Day in the Park." From 1 p.m. until show time, adults and children will be able to frolic at Lake Genesis, the four-acre lake, complete with six islands connected by bridges, located at the New Beginnings retreat and conference grounds.

In addition to fishing, canoeing and paddle boating, participants will be able to ride and miniature train around the lake, relax in the train depot and avail themselves of food and beverages at the concession stand. Members of Classic Clowns of Amarillo will be on hand to entertain, make balloon animals and to offer face painting.

Cost of the "Day in the Park," including the presentation of "The Greatest Star of All" is $5 per person. Hot dogs, nachos, chips, candy and soft drinks will be among concessions available in the park at Lake Genesis. Picnic lunches will not be allowed.

New Beginnings, in its second full year of operation, is located on Farm to Market Road 722 halfway between Dumas and Channing, about 45 miles north of Amarillo.

The musical, presented by the national touring company out of North Carolina, features a script written by Greg Gully and music by Gully and Lenny LeBlanc, formerly with the pop rock group Lynryd Skynyrd, until he gave his life to Jesus Christ.

To make advance reservations for "A Day in the Park," or for more information about the event, contact New Beginnings Christian Retreat Center at 935-5598.

In case of inclement weather, "The Greatest Star of All" will be presented at First Baptist Church at Fifth and Bliss streets in Dumas at 7 p.m.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A charity food drive that rap star Hammer has made part of his "Too Legit to Quit" tour collected 10,000 pounds of canned goods during two concerts here.

Fans brought 2,000 pounds of food on July 10 and 8,000 pounds the next day. The food was given to The Seedling, a South Central Los Angeles food pantry, spokeswoman Maureen O'Connor said Thursday.

Food drives are part of selected concerts on Hammer's tour and are done in partnership with USA Harvest, a volunteer food distribution organization.

Designated "Hunger Relief" concerts include shows this month in Denver, in August at Atlanta, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, Little Rock, Ark.

Car safety tips for you, your infant

Fastening the seat belt before going anywhere by car is a routine practice for most people. But often, when a woman becomes pregnant, she begins to wonder whether a seat belt will do more harm than good in a collision.

To date, we have no evidence that seat belts increase the chance of injury to the fetus. The leading cause of fetal death in automobile accidents is the death of the mother. Since the mother is better protected in a crash if she is using a seat belt, doctors strongly recommend that all pregnant women routinely buckle up, including on the way to the hospital.

Getting the belt around your growing abdomen may seem a little awkward at first. But with some minor adjustments, you will have the same comfort and protection as always. Place the lower part of the lap-shoulder belt under your abdomen and against your upper thighs. Never attempt to fasten the lap belt over your abdomen, as this could cause injuries in a collision. Pull the shoulder strap across your chest and between your breasts. Always make sure both belts are snugly fastened.

Once your baby is born, you will have to worry about his or her safety in the car as well. The safest way for a baby or young child to travel is in a child safety seat. All 50 states and the District of Columbia now have child passenger protection laws requiring their use.

Plan to bring a safety seat to the hospital with you. Many hospitals will not allow you to take your new baby home without one.

The best seats are those with straps that hold the baby's body at each shoulder and hip and between the legs. This design spreads the impact, should a collision occur. There are different types of safety seats for children of different ages. A "convertible" seat can be adjusted to fit children up to 40 pounds. Choose the style that best suits your needs and is simple to use.

The back seat is the best place to install the safety seat. For younger infants, the seat should be facing the rear. Never attempt to hold a child on your lap or buckle him or her in with you, as he or she could get tossed or crushed in an accident.

Even if you think you are a very good driver, you can't count on other drivers being as careful as you may be. To keep you and your baby safe at all times, always buckle up and use a child safety seat for each child.

Birds rank as the fastest of all animals with flying speeds as high as 180 miles per hour.

MRS. DAVID BRORMAN
 ...nee Vicki Lee Voigt

Voigt, Brorman wed Saturday in Vega

Lubbock residents, Vicki Lee Voigt and David Wayne Brorman, were united in marriage Saturday evening, July 18, in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Vega. The ceremony was officiated by Monsignor Di Benedetto.

The bride is the daughter of Kenneth and Peggy Hoffman of Lockhart and the bridegroom is the son of Tony and Dorothy Brorman of Vega.

Brandy Wood served as maid of honor and Bryan Wood was best man. Bridesmaids included Darla Williams, Cynthia Reed and Christie Kirk. Groomsmen were Roger Brorman, Jeff Brorman and Bob Backus.

Keith Brorman lit candles. Troy Skarke, accompanied by Martha Brorman, sang "Perfect Union" and "Wind Beneath My Wings."

Serving as reader was Angie Williams. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white matte taffeta designer's gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, embroidered lace fitted bodice, double-bubble sleeves and a full skirt which swept into a semi-cathedral-length train. The back of the gown was marked by a designer's bow and the hemline was finished with delicate scalloped lace. The waist-length tulle bridal veil with pencil edging formed a pouf at the crown which was designed with delicate white flowers, pearls, sprays of lily-of-the-valley and loop of ribbon.

Bridal attendants were attired in black print dresses which featured burgundy and rose flowers.

Sandra Brorman invited guests to register at the reception held in the church's social hall.

Joy Muller, Susan Bell and Shelli Hawkins served cake, and Karla Dillard poured punch and coffee. Also, assisting was Mandy Voigt.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Inn of the Mountain Gods in Ruidoso, N.M., the bride wore blue, green and white plaid city shorts and jacket. The couple will make their home in Lubbock.

The bride is a graduate of Texas Tech University where she received a bachelors of science degree in human development and family studies.

The groom received a bachelors of science degree in agricultural economics from Texas Tech University.

Smart teens know that healthy eating isn't hard

If the mere thought of eating healthy makes you cringe, here's some good news: eating right doesn't have to be hard. Some simple changes in your everyday food choices can give your health a big boost.

Think lean. When it comes to protein, opt for fish or poultry, rather than for heavier, fattier meats. "Eat the red; leave the white" is a good reminder to trim the visible fat off any meat.

Forget frying. Frying adds fat and calories to any food. Instead of french fries, go for a baked potato (but go easy on the butter and sour cream). Instead of eating fried chicken, have it baked or grilled.

Be picky. When you go out to eat, pick milk over a milkshake, a salad over a hamburger, fruit juice or water over a soft drink. Instead of potato chips, choose snacks like low-salt pretzels or bagels.

Know less is more. Take smaller portions. You don't have to completely eliminate traditional teen goodies from your diet if you just reduce your helping size. Instead of consuming half a pizza, just have a slice or two.

Don't be fooled. Foods like dried fruit, raisins, nuts, granola bars, and peanut butter are nutritious, but they're also high in calories and can be fattening. Between meals, snacks like raw vegetables and fresh fruits are a better health choice.

Bite worse than buzz

The itchy season has begun. Those little annoying mosquitoes that buzz and bite their way into our summertime fun each year have officially arrived.

Researchers and health officials across the country predict this year's mosquito season to be big blaming the infestations on a mild winter and wet spring. Some states have already identified dangerous encephalitis-carrying Asian tiger mosquitoes in their neighborhood which makes prevention from bites imperative.

Dr. Dan Lawson, a research entomologist advises to make friends not enemies with the buzzing insects by taking these proper precautions against the potential disease carriers:

-Remove standing water from all areas around your home.
 -Use a deet-containing insect repellent. The Federal Environmental Protection Agency recommends using Deet on skin and clothing for protection from mosquitoes, ticks and other biting insects.

-Match the length of time you need protection from biting insects with the appropriate level of Deet concentration.

-Hold can about six inches away from yourself when spraying using a sweeping motion. Lightly moisten all exposed skin with spray and spread evenly with your hand. Use your hand to apply product to race.

-Never use repellents over cuts, wounds or irritated skin
 -On children, adults should apply repellent sparingly and in low concentrations. Refrain from applying repellent to children too young to keep treated body parts out of their mouths or eyes.

-Stay indoors during twilight and late-night hours when mosquitoes are most active.

-Wear light colors; dark clothing may be more attractive to biting insects.

-When possible and in heavily mosquito-infested areas, wear long sleeves and pants.

Practicing these simple protection tips allows outdoor goers to tolerate the buzz of mosquitoes without fear, for it's just their way of saying "summer is here!"

For a fresher flavor, thaw frozen fish in milk.

Barrera, Saenz wed in Amarillo Saturday

Diana Barrera and Joseph Saenz, both of Amarillo, were married Saturday afternoon, July 18, in The Wedding Chapel in Amarillo. The Rev. Bryson Binion officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Castillo Sr. of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Manulita Saenz of Midland and the late Margrito Saenz.

Decorating the chapel were two brass corolabera, mauve and ivory flowers and ivy leaf. Pews were marked by white bows.

Estalla Alaniz Morgan of Amarillo served as matron of honor and the groom's brother, Johnny Saenz of Midland, was best man.

Ushers were the bride's nephews, Michael Castillo and Robert Castillo Jr. of Amarillo.

Flower girl was Krystal Castillo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Castillo of Amarillo. The bride's son, Alfredo Barrera III, was ring bearer.

Candles were lit by the bride's daughter and son, Christie and Christopher Barrera.

Wedding selections included "The Wedding March," "Color My World" and "Everything I Do, I Do For You." The groom sang "More Than Words" and Audrie and Henry Hernandez of Hereford sang "Anillo de Compro Miso."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length ivory satin wedding gown. It was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, Bishop sleeves, fitted bodice, basque waistline and a full skirt which flowed into a cathedral-length train. The gown was accented with white pearls and a deep fuchsia bordered the hemline of the gown and train.

The five-tiered bridal illusion veil with pencil edging formed a pouf at the back of a pearl headband.

She carried a bouquet of mauve and white roses and ribbon streamers. Her jewelry consisted of tear-drop pearl earrings and a matching necklace.

Bridal attendants were attired in white dresses accented with mauve ribbons. The flower girl wore a pearl headband and carried mauve silk flowers.

The bride's nieces, Susan Castillo and Valerie Ulibarri, both of Hereford, invited guests to register at the reception held in The Wedding Chapel.

Cake was served by Mary Howard of Midland, the bride's sister, and Stella Mireles of Brady. Noelia Ulibarri of Hereford, the bride's sister, poured punch and coffee.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and held the three-tiered cake decorated with mauve roses and white wedding bells. It was topped by two crystal doves holding wedding bells.

Following a honeymoon to Seven Falls, Colo., the bridal couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride is employed by Greg and Marsha Lair of Canyon and the groom is employed by Paul Lyons Builders Inc. of Canyon.

Out-of-town wedding guests included Mary Howard, Johnny Saenz, Liz Saenz, Lewis and Christie Puckett and Ruben and Paula Saenz, all of Midland; Joe Castillo of Dallas; Vicky Camacho of Divine; Stella Mireles of Brady; and guests from Houston.

MR. AND MRS. STANFORD C. KNOX
...to celebrate anniversary

Reception planned for local couple

In observance of their golden wedding anniversary, a reception is planned for Mr. and Mrs. Stanford C. Knox of 341 Stadium Drive. The event will be held from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, July 26, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

All friends are invited to attend the reception which will be hosted by the couple's children, spouses and grandchildren. The couple requests no gifts please.

Stanford Knox and Ruth Owen Stenger were married May 20, 1942, in Alexandria, La. The couple previously resided in Arlington and Riverside, Calif. while Mr. Knox was serving with Special Services Army Band during World War II.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox, who are both retired, have resided in Hereford for 46 years. They owned and operated a television and music store in Hereford for 30 years.

Mr. Knox serves as a deacon at Central Church of Christ where both are members and also holds membership in the Whiteface Kiwanis Club. They both belong to the Hereford Senior Citizens Association where Mr. Knox is a member of the Young at Heart Choir and his wife is a member of the HSC Line Dancers. Mrs. Knox is an active board member serving on the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association and is actively involved in the DAR, Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR.

The couple's children are Kathleen Berry of Irving, Steve Knox of Los Alamos, N.M. and Bryan Knox of Dallas. They also have five grandchildren.

The Brand welcomes news of friends, relatives, grandkids. Send to The Brand, Box 673, or call us. We're interested in local news!

District Fashion Show held recently

Panhandle Junior High school was the fathering place for all members of the Panhandle District I 4-H Fashion Show groups as they practiced their skills by "Tumbling Into Texas Style".

The seven top winners will represent the districts' 20 counties at the state 4-H Fashion Show to be held in Houston, July 30, 31 and Aug 1, at the Marriott. Senior winners and their sections in the construction division were: Karon Harder, Deaf Smith County, active sports and specialty wear; Laura Williams, Gray County, evening wear; Holly Abbott, Gray County, non-tailored daywear; Regina Britten, Carson County, tailored daywear.

Seniors representing the district in the buying categories are: Stefan Harden, Carson County, active sports and specialty wear; Shawn Burrow, Randall County, Evening wear; and Juanita Diaz, Potter County, non-tailored daywear.

Lorena Taylor of Dallam County was named best senior model; Shelly Chism, Oldham County, won the senior cotton award, and Regina Britten, Carson County, won the best wool category.

Senior construction division alternates in the four clothing categories included: Anissa Morton, Moore County, active sports and specialty wear; Teresa Unruh, Dallam County, evening wear; Shelly Chism, Oldham County, non-tailored daywear; Buffy Ellison, Sherman County, tailored daywear. Senior buying division alternates were: Stephanie Wilson, Deaf Smith County, active sports and specialty wear; Kirk McDonald, Gray County, evening wear; Kim Archibeque, Moore County, non-tailored daywear.

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers netted wins in intermediate category with Erin Auckerman having to score in casual daywear.

Junior Top Four Winners from Deaf Smith included Emily Parker in Junior active playwear, Janae' Schlabs in dressy daywear and Staci Betzen in junior buying.

Other junior, intermediate and senior competitors included Robin Bell in casual daywear, Cindy Harder in intermediate buying, Kinann Campbell in senior non-tailored daywear, Lori Urbanczyk in senior non-tailored buying and Jennifer Hicks in senior evening wear buying division.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Many children appear knock-kneed at three for four, but the condition corrects itself by adolescence.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

COWS, CUSTOMERS AND CULLS (Part II of a three-part series)

Last week we drew an analogy between culling poorly producing cows from a dairy herd and running a profitable business. The point we made was that some customers may not be worth keeping. Most businesses have customers who consume too much time, cost too much money and may lower worker morale.

I am aware that customer culling is a departure from the conventional "all customers are good customers" wisdom. However, it is critical to recognize that not all cows are good cows and not all customers are good customers. With selective culling, you will have more time to spend on developing quality customers and providing good service to them.

The first step is to analyze your records to determine which customers are profitable. Try to find out what products or services they buy, what volume they purchase and with what frequency.

Cull or Change
Careful analysis can identify customers that are robbing much needed profit. For example, Joe is in the fuel delivery business. One of his steady customers is a retired farmer who lives 20 miles out of town. This farmer orders 100 gallons of fuel for delivery about every 3 months. He has been a customer for five years and he always pays for the fuel on delivery. Joe feels that this is a good, steady account.

By analyzing his records Joe knows that he averages 20 cents per gallon in gross profit on the fuel. The delivery truck costs about $1 per mile to operate and it can deliver 500 gallons each trip. The driver's wages and benefits cost Joe about $10 per hour and it takes one hour to make the delivery.

Therefore each 100 gallon delivery earns Joe $20 in gross margin. (20 cents times 100 gallons.) However, his direct costs are $50 per delivery. (40 miles times $1 per mile plus $10 for the driver.) Should Joe keep this customer?

The records show that Joe is losing $30 on each delivery. That adds up to a total loss of $120 per year. It would appear that Joe should cull this customer. However, there may be a better way. Joe might offer a small discount to encourage the farmer to purchase all 400 gallons at one time. One delivery would still cost $50, but the gross profit from a 400 gallon sale would equal $80. If Joe offered a two-cent per gallon discount, the annual profit would be $22 as opposed to a $120 loss.

Out of Balance
Ralph owns a small front-end alignment and repair shop. Business has been a little slow so he offered a $10 wheel balance special to attract new a business. The $10 just covered his direct costs on a one-time balance.

The day after Ralph's newspaper ad ran he began to receive calls and make appointments. That afternoon an elderly woman came by and Ralph agreed to work her in.

Her tires were nearly new and the balance was pretty good. He added one small weight and moved another slightly to make the balance perfect. He thanked her and sent her on her way.

Two days later the woman returned to complain about the wheel balance. Ralph checked each tire and everything was still perfect. Together they road tested the car and the customer said, "feel that," "feel that," but Ralph could feel no vibration.

The customer came back the following day. The balance was still perfect but the customer "felt something." Ralph decided enough was enough. He apologized for not fixing the problem and cheerfully refunded the customer's money. Ralph couldn't afford this customer.

Next week we will point out more potential culls. Don't miss Cows, Customers and Culls Part III.

SPECTACULAR DESIGN INCLUDES ALL ALLURING COMFORTS
 Four Full Baths and Two Half Baths, Office And Exercise Room

The main floor of this expansive plan encompasses three large bedrooms, four full baths and two half baths, formal living and dining rooms, separate laundry room, a breakfast room, a large kitchen and a breezeway to the double garage.

The master suite includes a luxury bath and the two remaining bedrooms have a private full bath each. Closets are plentiful throughout and the kitchen is shown with an island cabinet. A beautiful bay window is provided in the large breakfast room.

An office, compartment bath, walk in closets, an exercise room and a large storage room are finished on the lower level.

The traditional exterior design is enhanced by a steep hip roof design, stucco finish and numerous multiple lite windows.

The plan is Number 3513. It includes 3,502 square feet of heated space on the main floor and an additional 1,573 square feet of heated space on the lower level. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

The largest denomination bill now being issued is the $100, but bills worth as much as $10,000 are believed still to be in private hands.

Question/Answer

Q. Our 2-year-old house is fairly energy efficient. However, we have two large return air ducts in the attic with about only 1 inch of insulation on them. I feel that I may be losing quite a bit of heat through them, but contractors don't think so. I also think that air-conditioner ducts suffer similarly but in the opposite direction by warming the cold air instead of cooling the heated air. Am I right?

A. I agree with you. Contractors were using 1 inch of insulation on ductwork before the 1973 oil embargo as standard practice. Since then, everyone has become conscious of the need to conserve energy. Attics that were insulated with 3 inches of fiberglass for an R-value of R-11 back then are now being insulated with 6 to 9 inches of fiberglass for R-19 to R-30, or two to three times as much.

The more insulation on a duct, the less heat loss there will be in winter and heat gain (for air-conditioning ducts) in summer. However, because the law of diminishing returns applies to insulation effectiveness, there is a break-even point beyond which the added cost of the insulation exceeds the savings in fuel, so adding more may not be cost-effective.

There are so many variables involved - including degree days in your area, the efficiency of the heating system, the number of hours it operates per day at different temperatures, the velocity of the air moving through the ducts, and energy costs for heating the air through the system - you would need a computer to determine the optimum amount of insulation needed. And, even then you might go wrong by leaving out some factor like interest rates or local labor costs.

Communities across America are finding ways to make a positive difference in the lives of their elderly citizens.

What was that you said?

What is the difference in sending a Valentine's Card or simply saying, "I love you"? The spoken word has little staying power. With Valentine's Day only coming once a year, a few words is not enough to last. The card, however, is something you can hold on to, refer back to, carry with you, read again and again, save in your scrapbook forever. The card is a lasting record and a part of your personal history. The same can be said when comparing radio to newspaper. Notice which one can be held, referred back to, carried on shopping trips, and found in libraries for generation after generation.

Newspaper vs. Radio

- Radio copy depends on word imagery and it is limited to 30 or 60 seconds, not enough time for complex issues.
- Average recall for a 1/2 page newspaper ad is 32%; for a 1/4 page ad, it's 31%. Radio ad recall is only 4%.
- Once a commercial is aired, it's gone. There is absolutely no tangible evidence it existed. For those listeners not tuned in at that specific time, the commercial is lost.
- Radio is an entertainment medium. People listen for musical enjoyment (passive experience).
- Newspapers are an information medium. People read to seek data and learn (active experience).
- Newspapers are the only medium that allow shoppers to compare values offered by competitive advertisers.
- 77% of all newspaper readers look at every page. No audience can actively listen to the radio 77% of the time (Audits and Survey, Inc.).
- 44% of newspaper readers look forward to ads, compared to 10% for radio (Audits and Survey, Inc.).

Newspapers are the way to reach today's consumers

No time on his hands: John Tesh keeps busy

John Tesh has to be one of the busiest people around. Best known as co-anchor of the nationally syndicated Entertainment Tonight, the six-time Emmy winner is also an accomplished composer and experienced sportscaster. This month, Tesh joins NBC's team in covering the Olympics, for which he has also written several musical works.

Music, 'E.T.', the Olympics and ... he's a newlywed

By Steven Alan McGaw

"In this world, a lot of people think that you can't do more than one thing," says John Tesh, in a rare moment of inactivity. "I do a lot of things 'kinda good,'" he laughs, "so I do 'em all."

A lot of folks would scoff at Tesh's low-key appraisal of his work. The producers of the syndicated Entertainment Tonight, which Tesh co-anchors, would surely praise his charm and easy wit before the camera. Thousands of music lovers and sports fans gave their support by purchasing the composer's Emmy-winning soundtrack for TV coverage of the 1987 Tour de France bicycle race.

Now, NBC Sports has given Tesh a double vote of confidence. Hired to provide on-air commentary for events including gymnastics, synchronized swimming and cycling in the network's coverage of the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain, Tesh has also composed several musical pieces to accompany footage of the Games.

Tesh regularly maintains a tight schedule, balancing the daily taping of E.T. with afternoons and evenings spent composing, recording, or simply practicing the piano.

"I don't get a lot of sleep, ordinarily," Tesh admits, and says his schedule has only intensified with his dual Olympic duties. "I like the chaos. I let my life go in the direction it wants to," he says.

Attending North Carolina State University, Tesh studied music and communications, and landed a job as a local news anchor before he graduated. Subsequent jobs took Tesh to Florida, Tennessee and New York, and an Associated Press award for investigative reporting seemed to confirm his career as a newsman. Then came the call from CBS Sports.

"I took what I felt was a big chance, and it changed my life," Tesh says of his move into network sports. He also saw it as an opportunity. "I tried to use television to expose my music," he admits, and the gamble paid off, first in 1983, with his theme for the Pan-American Games, and then with the Tour de France.

Although he loves his work in television, Tesh says he thinks of himself as a musician first.

Following cutbacks at CBS, Tesh moved to Entertainment Tonight. Simultaneously, his musical career was growing, with works like the theme for Fox's animated Bobby's World, some film soundtracks and appearances with symphony orchestras. On television, Tesh was rewarded with his own daytime interview show on NBC, One on One.

The fall of 1991 brought NBC's grand offer to cover and score the '92 Olympics. "I realize this could be a once-in-a-lifetime chance," Tesh says. Never claiming to be a sports expert, Tesh feels, "It's all about knowing how to do the homework."

TESH

Tesh says that his twin Olympic responsibilities, reporting and composing, have a cross-pollinating effect. "Sports are very passionate. So is music. The translation is easy."

The music for the Olympics is collected on an album titled The Games, available on Tesh's GTS label. The work contains nine tracks, including two arrangements of "Concetta", written for Tesh's wife, actress Connie Sellecca, whom he wed last April. In December, Tesh is releasing an album of Christmas music, "stuff you could decorate the tree to," he says. And after that?

"A little sleep, maybe." © TV Listing Inc.

Hankerin' for Haggard; 'Life Goes On' still

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My father was raised as an orphan and only began searching for his (biological) relatives in 1990 at the age of 75. We found out that he is related to the Baldknobbers of Branson, Mo., and it was recently verified by a second cousin that we are, in fact, related to Elvis Presley as well as to Merle Haggard. I am very anxious to know what Merle knows about all of this, because we have yet to learn very much about my father's father. —Joyce Anne Earl, Chillicothe, Mo.

A: Try reaching Haggard in care of Epic Records, 666 Fifth Ave., P.O. Box 4455, New York, N.Y., 10101-4455.

Q: Could you please tell me where I can have a videotape made of Sybil, starring Sally Field and Joanne Woodward? I've been to many video stores, and they say it's not available. —Rose Layando, Astoria, N.Y.

A: Sybil has been widely available for rental for years. Though many made-for-television movies are never released to video and don't deserve to be, Sybil, made in 1976, won wide acclaim and an Emmy for Field, establishing her as a respected actress (not just the grown-up Flying Nun).

Merle Haggard

If you still don't have any luck, try calling the Video Library of Philadelphia at 1-800-669-7157.

Q: I was wondering, is it true that Life Goes On is going to end next season? I like the show very much, and I would hate to see it go. I would greatly appreciate anything you could tell me. —Cathy Maines, Johnstown, N.Y.

A: The show has been renewed for the upcoming fall season, and all indications suggest it will retain its usual 7 p.m. (EST) Sunday-night position. Bill Smitrovich, who plays dad Drew Thacher, recently said in a USA Today interview that he hopes the network will realize the show's "loyal audience" will follow the program to any time slot of any day, if moving it would save it from being canceled.

Q: I just saw a terrific video entitled Rush, starring Conrad Nichols. He is a great actor. What other movies has he done? —B.T., Jonesboro, Ark.

A: Look for Nichols in these other two low-budget actioners: Days of Hell and A Man Called Rage.

Q: We were discussing the old series Death Valley Days recently and were trying to recall all of the program's hosts. Ronald Reagan and Dale Robertson came to mind, but who were the others? —Mark Hax, Fort Worth, Texas.

A: Though produced on a shoestring budget, the Western anthology (sponsored by 20 Mule Team Borax) proved to be one of the longest-running series in broadcast history, having begun on radio in 1930.

The first host on television (1952-1965) was Stanley Andrews as "The Old Ranger." He was succeeded by Reagan, who left in 1966 for the better job of California governor. Robert Taylor was next (1966-1968), followed by Dale Robertson (1968-1972) and singer Merle Haggard (1975).

Days reruns have appeared under several titles with various hosts, including Call of the West (John Payne), Trails West (Ray Milland), Western Star Theater (Rory Calhoun) and The Pioneers (Will Rogers Jr.).

Q: I would like to know whether I can obtain Gene Autry's address. My granddaughter thinks he's so nice. I'm hoping I can get in touch with him and that he'll send her a photo. —Marjorie Stronen, Ewen, Mich.

A: You can't pull the wool over my eyes, Marjorie. I'll bet that picture of Gene will have your name on it.

It has been said that few other things mean as much to Gene (and he has quite a few things) as his baseball team, the California Angels. My hunch is your letter will find him more quickly through this channel than any other. Write him in care of the California Angels, P.O. Box 2000, Anaheim, Calif., 92803.

Please send your questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

SOAP TALK

Daytime Emmys; remembering Riley

By Candace Havens

The elusive Emmy passed Susan Lucci (Erica, All My Children) by again, and it was a darn shame. Instead, Erica Slezak (Viki, One Life to Live) won the award for Outstanding Lead Actress, although Jessica Tuck (Megan) and Lucci were much better and had a lot more to work with this past year. In a recent interview with Lucci, she said it was great to be nominated 13 years in a row and though she would like to win, it doesn't make much difference to her.

Emmy night wasn't a total loss; there were quite a few surprises and well-deserved awards given. Thom Christopher won for his devilish portrayal of Carlo Hesser on One Life To Live. The Outstanding Supporting Actress category had some tough contenders but it was appropriate that Maeve Kinkaid won for her portrayal of Vanessa on Guiding Light.

Kristoff St. John won the Emmy for Outstanding Younger Lead Actor, but his performance simply did not compare to that of Patrick Stuart (Will, All My Children). Tricia Cast (Nina, The Young and the Restless) did deserve to win the Outstanding Younger Lead Actress award. Her scenes with the wicked David were incredible.

I think the biggest surprise was Peter Bergman picking up his second Emmy for his portrayal of Jack Abbott on Y&R. I think it is a well-deserved award, but I really didn't think he would win two years in a row.

AMC was named Outstanding Daytime Drama Series and it is about time. It is one of the best-made shows and has many talented people.

A sad note is the death of the actor Larry Riley. Several readers have noted that he did not look well last season on Knots Landing. On June 6, the actor died of kidney failure as a complication of an HIV infection.

Riley was best known for his role as Frank on Knots, but he also played Calvin Barnes on The Doctors for three years, and guest-starred on Miami Vice. He appeared in the feature films Crackers, A Soldier's Story and Bird. Riley was also in the TV movies Muggable Mary and Blind Side.

Hall of Famers masters of going faster

By Dan Rice

It may be difficult to imagine a black-tie event for sportsmen who spend time in the pits, but the International Motorsports Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony is such an evening. Broadcast live from Birmingham, Ala., on The Nashville Network, the 90-minute presentation airs Wednesday, July 22.

The International Motorsports Hall of Fame, a non-profit organization operated by the state of Alabama, selects its inductees from the top 12 nominations submitted by a 124-member voting committee composed of members of the media. Located next to the Talladega Superspeedway in Talladega, Ala., the Hall is housed on a 35-acre complex that's open to the public year-round.

This year's inductees include motorsports entrepreneur Andy Granatelli, NHRA founder Wally Parks, three-time world motorcycle champion Kenny Roberts, USAC champion Roger Ward and the 87-year-old Louis Meyer (the first three-time Indy 500 winner), who will accept the honor via a taped interview from his home in Nevada.

1992's posthumous inductees are World Grand Prix champion Alberto Ascari, former Indianapolis Speedway president Eddie Rickenbacker, IMSA GTO champion Peter Gregg, stock car racer Curtis Turner and race car driver/builder Louis Chevrolet.

Marilyn talks; New Orleans swings

By Dan Rice
 Thirty years ago on Aug. 5, Marilyn Monroe met her untimely end. Yet the passing decades have not diminished the aura of celebrity and controversy surrounding the actress who attained the status of cultural icon. Debuting Monday, July 20, on HBO, Marilyn: The Last Interview combines her audiotaped interview by Life magazine's Richard Meryman with photos, newsreel footage and home movies to paint an intimate portrait of the screen star in her own words.
 Still alive and well, veteran actors Kirk Douglas, Anthony Quinn and Jack Lemmon share their thoughts on the third Larry King TNT Extra, airing Wednesday, July 22. The one-hour special draws upon the massive TNT film library for clips representing the actors' illustrious careers.
 Double your listening pleasure on Tuesday, July 21, when A&E Stage: New Orleans Live! presents two back-to-back concert specials from the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival. First up is Roots 'n' Rock, featuring blues and rock greats Leon Russell, Ritchie Havens, Jimmy Buffet, The Neville Brothers, Indigo Girls, Bela Fleck and Los Lobos. Next comes An Evening With Wynton Marsalis, in which the young trumpeter pays tribute to Louis Armstrong. Also performing some of Satchmo's best are Marsalis' father, Ellis, and Doc Cheatham and Ruby Braff.

British syndicated series goes 'Beyond the Groove'

Musician Tom Petty plays an enigmatic philosopher/guitarist in the opening episode of Beyond the Groove, a syndicated series airing this summer. David Rappaport stars as a man on a musical journey of self-discovery.

Road trip makes many musical stops

By Dan Rice

A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step, according to the old saying, but in Beyond the Groove, the main character's musical journey of self-discovery begins with a brass send-off by the Tower of Power horn section. The six-part British-made series makes its U.S. television debut in syndication this summer.

It is no wonder that with Dave Stewart (half of the Eurythmics) as executive producer and co-creator (with Roger Pomphrey) of Beyond the Groove, the series is more music than anything else. Stewart also composed the series' incidental music and performs with partner Annie Lennox in two of the half-hour episodes.

The story, which is actually no more than a skeletal premise, commences when workaholic Sir Harold (David Rappaport) is given a car key by his secretary, Miss Sparse (Gates McFadden), who tells him he's going on a little trip, and while his business will be the same when he returns, he will be very different. The car is a '59 Cadillac convertible, which exaggerates the diminutive stature of Rappaport. Best remembered for his roles in The Wizard and L.A. Law, Rappaport died not long after making this series.

Sir Harold embarks on his trek as instructed, traveling through Los Angeles, New Orleans and Memphis. Every turn of the corner is an excuse to introduce one of the dozens of musical guests, whether they are in a cafe, on the phone or hitching a ride. Sir Harold is gradually transformed by their mystic words and performances (largely in snippets) into a looser, hipper version of his former self.

But forget the mere semblance of a narrative structure — Beyond the Groove is about music, and in that regard it succeeds splendidly. Some of the more memorable appearances are by Tom Petty, k.d. lang, Bob Geldof, Shakespeare's Sister and actor Harry Dean Stanton, who sings a Mexican ballad. Enjoy the trip. © TV Listing Inc.

Think back to Packett Island

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. This 1971 film was set on Packett Island in New England and won the Oscar for Best Original Score. A) Name the composer; B) name the film; C) identify the director and also name the 1962 film for which he was nominated for an Academy Award as Best Director.
2. Who received the Best Director Academy Award in 1962?
3. Identify the decadent nightclub depicted in Bob Fosse's Cabaret. (Bonus: What's the color of Sally's nail polish when she and Cliff first meet?)
4. Name the celebrated TV dramatization of 1962's Cuban Missile Crisis and the actors who played John and Robert Kennedy.
5. How did Scarlett O'Hara's father meet his death?

Answers:

1. Michel Legrand composed the score for Summer of '42. The movie was directed by Robert Mulligan, who was nominated for his achievement with To Kill a Mockingbird.
 2. David Lean took the trophy in 1962 for Lawrence of Arabia.
 3. The place was the Kit Kat Club and Sally's nails were green.
 4. William Devane played President Kennedy in The Missiles of October, while Martin Sheen portrayed the young attorney general.
 5. He fell off a horse.

FAMILY FARE

Ellerbe, Nick write news that can't lose

By Chris Carpenter

For most kids, TV news provides a 30-minute breather, a great opportunity to take in supper while the TV set illuminates an empty living room. But Linda Ellerbee intends to change all that.

Kicking off a three-year deal between Ellerbee's studio, Lucky Duck, and Nickelodeon, the first program, Special Edition, premiered in the midst of the Persian Gulf War. More recently, Special Edition presented a frank interview with basketball hero Magic Johnson.

This spring, Nick News W/5 joined Special Edition in Nickelodeon's lineup. Also from Lucky Duck, it gives kids their own half-hour report each week.

"It's my great ambition," Ellerbee says, "if we do this right, that kids may actually grow up and read a newspaper." Exchanging her signature "And so it goes" tag line for "If you want to know... ask," she emphasizes the W/5 of the show's title — who, what, when, where and why.

By demonstrating her investigative skill on the show, Ellerbee says, young viewers become accustomed to gathering facts and making decisions for themselves.

"The show's motto is 'Question Authority,'" Ellerbee says proudly.

"I've never heard any two words that better describe the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States."

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

UNLAWFUL ENTRY: Starring Kurt Russell, Ray Liotta, Madeleine Stowe. The film is a by-the-numbers suspense thriller that manipulates your every emotion. However, it's fun to go along because the story line is different. A policeman (Ray Liotta) becomes ominously involved in the lives of a young couple (Kurt Russell and Madeleine Stowe) after their house is burglarized. It seems he wants their lifestyle; but first he wants the wife. Ray Liotta plays the policeman with almost over-the-top, maniacal theatricality. There's hardly an emotion he doesn't plumb. Kurt Russell is very good as a stressed-out, yuppie husband too nice at first to stop Liotta, and then too outraged to stop at anything. Madeleine Stowe, an excellent, emerging new actress, is the balance board between the two. And it is on this seesaw that the director beautifully plays on the audiences' sympathy, anger and fear. It is good directing and the tension is well-paced. You will probably figure out the ending, but it will still scare the daylight out of you. This is old-fashioned, cookie-cutter adult entertainment. Rated R for extreme violence, nudity, sex and language. Three Boxes

PINOCCHIO: The 52-year-old Disney classic has been refurbished for re-release and it just sparkles. Rated G. Fifty Boxes

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

THE MAN IN THE MOON: (1992) Starring Sam Waterston, Tess Harper, Reese Witherspoon and Emily Warfield. Two teen-age sisters (Reese Witherspoon and Emily Warfield) negotiate the shoals of romance in an old-fashioned family drama set in a small Southern town. Sam Waterston is the stern but sympathetic father, ever watchful as the boys begin buzzing around his daughters, and Tess Harper is effective as a harried but resilient mother. With a warm touch, Robert Mulligan (To Kill a Mockingbird and Summer of '42) has made a small, fond film that achieves a kind of quiet perfection. Sadly overlooked when first released, The Man in the Moon is easily one of '92's better family films. Rated PG-13. Four Boxes

HEARTS OF DARKNESS: FILM MAKER'S APOCALYPSE: (1991) Eleanor Coppola's documentary follows her husband, Francis, and his beleaguered company as they film the epic Apocalypse Now in the Philippines during 1977-78. "We were in the jungle," Mrs. Coppola says, "there were too many of us, we had access to too much money, too much equipment - and little by little we went insane." A monsoon, civil strife and casting problems dragged out the project. So did "druggy improvisations, egged on by the director holding forth on vast, steaming sets against backdrops of exploding ordnance trailing across the sky." Seldom has there been a sharper portrait of the film maker as alchemist. Even if you didn't like, or never saw, Apocalypse Now you will enjoy Heart of Darkness. Rated R for language and violence. Four Boxes

HIDDEN GEM NEW RELEASE

THE INCIDENT: (MTV/1990) Starring Walter Matthau. In 1944, a revered old doctor is found dead near a Nazi POW camp in Colorado. One of the prisoners is accused of the murder, and small-town lawyer Walter Matthau is unwillingly assigned to defend him. This is a provocative, well-made TV movie with a star-turn by Matthau in his TV movie debut. The Incident won the 1990 Emmy Award for Best Drama. Not rated. Would be a PG-13. Four Boxes
