Browns win NGSP milo contest

Bar 7 Cattle Company of Deaf Smith County was the national winner in the non-irrigated division of the National Grain Sorghum Producers' 1991 Grain sorghum Yield and Management Contest.

The company is one of the operations of Mrs. N.A. Brown and Sons in the western section of the county.

The Browns had a yield of 155.19 bushels per acre with their Asgrow A504. Their yield was 111.09 bushels above the county's five-year average yield per acre on dryland. The crop received significant boosts from plentiful rains last spring before planting and throughout the summer.

The Browns will be honored at the NGSPA national convention next month in Kansas City.

Also earning honors in the NSGPA contest was Bill Wimberly of Dawn. Wimberly was second in the state in the irrigated division with a yield of 172.63 bushels per acre with Warner W902W. The yield was 73.93 bushels per acre above the average five-year yield in the county on irrigated land.

Richards: first thought will be for the students

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says she is determined that the state will "do right by the schoolchildren" in drawing up a new school finance plan.

"We must not let anything distract our attention from the real issue - and that is ensuring a quality education for the children of this state," Richards said.

The Texas Supreme Court on Thursday declared unconstitutional the state's new public school tax system and gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993 to fix it.

It deferred the ruling's effect so that it will not interfere with the collection of 1991 and 1992 property taxes in the 188 new county education districts (CEDs).

"We are grateful that the court has allowed us almost two years to come up with a new plan because we need to examine very carefully where we go from here," Richards said.

The court voted 7-2 against lawmakers' latest effort to meet its mandate to equalize school funding. Justices Lloyd Doggett and Oscar Mauzy joined in a blistering dissent. The court has twice before, unanimously, struck down previous school funding laws.

Justices Bob Gammage and John Cornyn wrote separate opinions. They agreed that the regional property tax system was unconstitutional, but they disputed the majority's decision to defer the order's impact for so long.

"The court veers from the straight and narrow path of judicial propriety... by, in effect, telling taxpayers that an unconstitutional CED tax must be endured for an additional tax cycle because this is an election year," Cornyn wrote.

Doggett called the decision "an immense wrong" and raised the spectre of a state income tax.

"For the school children, there is delay - perhaps infinite delay - in achieving equal educational opportunity; for the taxpayers, most probably an income tax," Doggett wrote.

Justice Raul Gonzalez said in the majority opinion that an income tax is not the only remedy.

Doggett and Mauzy also charged that the majority "turns a deaf ear both to the commanding voice of the law and to the whispered pleas of the children." They said that in devising the new system, the Legislature and the governor had followed prior court instructions.

The new school funding system is designed to shift hundreds of millions of local property tax dollars from wealthier to poorer school districts within 188 new taxing regions, made up of one or several counties.

The court ruled that the plan violates the Texas Constitution by imposing a statewide property tax, and by levying a property tax without voter approval.

Despite state leaders' call for the Supreme Court to give them clear direction if this latest plan failed constitutional muster, Gonzalez said:

"Our role is only to determine whether the Legislature has complied with the constitution. We have not, and we do not now, suggest that one way of school funding is better than another."

The decision came in a legal challenge filed by more than 50 property-rich school districts - and just one day before the deadline for paying the school property taxes.

The court's opinion said it "is not to be used as a defense to the payment of any such taxes."

Hundreds of taxpayers, including many of the state's largest businesses, had filed lawsuits challenging the tax. They had said the suits were meant to ensure they could get a credit or refund on the CED tax if it is replaced with another levy, and avoid double taxation.

Doggett and Mauzy said that the majority had been unfair to taxpayers, and possibly invited a federal court challenge, by calling the tax unconstitutional but requiring it to be paid.

Attorney General Dan Morales also said he was pleased about the time given the state to come up with a new system.

"We believe there is ample opportunity and ample time over the course of 1992 to prepare for a situation where the Legislature can hit the ground running" in the regular session, he said.

To enforce its deadline, the court directed that state officials be stopped from distributing money under the school finance system if a plan is not enacted by June 1, 1993. The plan must begin being implemented by Sept. 1, 1993.

ON THE ISSUES

EDITOR'S NOTE - The Associated Press asks the major presidential candidates a question each weekday about their views on a particular issue and assembles their responses. President Bush has declined to participate at least until he formally announces his re-election campaign. Responses were not available for all candidates.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here are the views of the major presidential candidates on the question: "Do you favor a reduction in the tax on capital gains? If so, of what sort?"

DEMOCRATS
-Jerry Brown: "I favor abolishing practically all federal tax including personal and corporate income tax and payroll tax, replacing it with a 13 percent flat tax on all individual and corporate income."
-Bill Clinton: Would not respond.
-Tom Harkin: "Bush's capital gains cut, the centerpiece of his economic plan, is a giveaway to the very wealthy without helping the economy. In spite of his rhetoric, on average, those with over $200,000 will get $100 for every quarter going to average taxpayers... We cannot get the economy going by just giving a bonus to the wealthy and hope they will invest it well."
-Bob Kerrey: "No. I support indexing capital gains so that inflation doesn't erode earnings. The president's attachment to a capital gains tax cut obscures two more crucial issues: restoring fairness to our tax system, and generating the funds to make badly needed investments that will create jobs and ensure long-term growth."
-Paul Tsongas: "The capital gains tax cut I favor is highly targeted. It rewards long term investment in business by taxing it at progressively lower rates the longer an investment is held. And it provides even lower rates for investments in smaller firms, to ensure a flow of venture capital to developing companies."

REPUBLICANS
-Patrick Buchanan: "The capital gains tax should be cut to 14 percent for the affluent and eliminated entirely for those with incomes of $50,000 or less. There's no good reason why the middle class should not benefit from their own capital gains, allowing them to buy homes, save for college for their children, their retirement, etc."
-David Duke: "Yes. The reduction in the tax on capital gains should be 15 percent."

Tax breaks become big campaign issue

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats are claiming the richest 3 percent of Americans would reap 83 percent of the benefits from President Bush's favorite tonic for reviving the economy as they vow to prescribe a cure of their own.

"Democrats will fight for what we believe in," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., told White House Budget Director Richard Darman at a hearing Thursday. "We will provide a clear distinction between the allegiances and ambitions of the two political parties."

He said Democrats would alter Bush's package and let voters know it.

The Senate Budget Committee was taking its turn today at grilling Darman, who is charged with defending Bush's proposed $1.52 trillion government budget on Capitol Hill.

"Where's the benefit for middle-class wage earners in this budget?" Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., the Senate panel's chairman, asked in an interview.

"The tax portion seems to be heavily slanted in favor of the wealthy, and just a crumb for middle-income people."

Democrats on the House budget panel expressed that same concern, although they pledged a rapid push to get a recovery plan into law. Bush has called for congressional action on his proposals by March 20.

The president's proposed tax breaks, cuts in defense spending and other changes "will get the job done," Darman told the House budget writers.

The exchanges could set the tone for a contentious election year in which Democrats are determined to keep the recession at the top of the political agenda.

The differences between the two parties are sharp. Democratic leaders say their top priority is quickly passing broad tax cuts and dramatic programs to create jobs. Bush's proposed fiscal 1993 budget contains little of either.

Even as the two sides maneuvered Thursday, more bad economic news poured in. Government reports showed that factory orders for durable goods dropped sharply in December, business layoffs were continuing to rise and consumer spending rose only slightly.

House budget panel Democrats used most of their swipes on Bush's proposal to slash capital gains taxes on the profits from property sales. Bush says the oft-rejected idea would spark the economy; Democrats say it would overwhelmingly benefit the rich.

With Darman as his panel's star witness Thursday, House Budget Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said 83 percent of the reduction in the capital gains tax rates would go to the wealthiest 3 percent of American families.

By comparison, Democrats said Bush's proposal to increase the $2,300 personal exemption by $500 per child would net most two-child families only $37.50 this year, since it would not take effect until Oct. 1.

"We're doing far too much for people who already do well," said Gephardt, D-Mo.

Ford joins calls for release of documents

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Ford and 13 staffers from the Warren Commission say there's nothing to cover up in John F. Kennedy's assassination and the CIA should disclose all its files on the matter.

They joined a growing chorus urging a complete airing of all government documents relating to the investigation of Kennedy's death, which has received renewed attention with the release of the movie "JFK."

The film suggests that elements of the government, particularly the Pentagon and the CIA, conspired to murder the president.

Records from two panels that investigated the assassination have not been released. Two percent of the Warren Commission files are sealed, while 400 cubic feet of records from the House Assassinations Committee are closed until the year 2009.

"I would like to deny to our critics that we are part and parcel of some kind of coverup," former Warren Commission lawyer Howard Willens said Thursday.

All 12 commission lawyers who are still living plus a commission staff member endorsed the request, which was publicized in news conferences in Los Angeles, Cleveland and Des Moines, Iowa, in addition to Washington.

Ford, the only surviving member of the Warren Commission that concluded gunman Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing the president, has made a similar request.

"Americans are entitled to know the truth," Ford wrote last week to House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, who headed the House Assassinations Committee in the late 1970s.

The House committee found that Kennedy probably was slain as a result of a conspiracy, basing its conclusion largely on acoustical evidence suggesting a fourth shot was fired at the president from a grassy knoll.

In his letter, Ford recommended the National Research Council should appoint a panel of scientists to review the acoustical evidence.

Filmmaker Oliver Stone stirred up the controversy with his movie released in December that suggests Kennedy was the victim of a government conspiracy.

Stone said in a statement Thursday: "After 28 years of defending the indefensible, the Warren Commission staff members accuse me of corrupting the truth and of irresponsibility. But responsible people would have begun an investigation years ago."

But the Warren Commission lawyers said in a news release. "We remain convinced" that "there was no credible evidence of... any conspiracy."

Think a stroke is coming on? Don't call the doc

PHOENIX (AP) - Doctors studying what people should do if they think they're having a stroke came up with some surprising advice: Don't call your doctor.

Instead, they say to call an ambulance at the first sign of a stroke. The distinction could mean the difference between life and death.

While health officials have long campaigned to get people to the hospital at the first sign of a heart attack, the urgency of treating strokes has gotten less attention - in part because strokes are more difficult to treat.

Strokes are the third leading cause of death in the United States after heart attacks and cancer, killing 145,000 people annually.

Many doctors believe that therapies now under study will be available soon. And even current approaches improve the chances of survival or recovery if a person is treated quickly.

The study, conducted at the University of Cincinnati, found that people who called 911, the emergency number in most places, got to the hospital within an average of about three hours. Those who phoned their doctors were not hospitalized until about 10 hours after the first symptoms.

"The worst thing is to call your doctor," commented Dr. Edward Cooper of the University of Pennsylvania, president-elect of the American Heart Association.

The results were outlined Thursday by Dr. Joseph Broderick at a stroke meeting sponsored by the heart association. They were based on a review of 1,243 patients in New York, Ohio and Virginia.

Broderick said people who call their doctor rather than an ambulance often have milder symptoms, so they wait longer before seeking help. But calling the doctor also significantly slows down the trip to the emergency room.

Typically, callers cannot get through to their doctors immediately and have to wait for them to call back.

Japan-bashing risks Texas exports Business leaders rush to smooth relations

DALLAS (AP) - Texans cannot bash Japan because they have a super collider and a $2.25 billion export market at stake, experts say.

Less than a month after President Bush's trip to Japan, "Buy American" sentiments and Japan-bashing risk a trade war that would harm both countries. Texas, in particular, would suffer, experts said Thursday.

"All of our basic industries are international - agriculture, energy, electronics, aircraft and avionics," said Bernard Weinstein, economist for the University of North Texas.

Some businesses have hurriedly designed advertising that captures the sentiment. And inflammatory rhetoric by political leaders in both countries has added to the ruckus.

"My concern is the misinformation that is being primarily distributed by some of our politicians," said

Bruce Brownlee, a Dallas businessman who worked and lived in Japan for 22 years.

"I think politicians on both sides of the Pacific are saying things that are destructive of the interest of both nations," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "In many cases, they're saying it to promote the greedy special interests rather than the public interest."

"It simply has its origin in ignorance, in economic illiteracy. It sounds like something out of the 16th century," said Roy Ruffin, a University of Houston economist.

Texas' economy is deeply entwined with Japan's. The country is the state's third-largest export destination, more than $2.25 billion annually. And Japanese companies employ more than 50,000 people in Texas.

"Texas perhaps more than any other state can ill-afford to engage in Japan-bashing or take other initiatives that restrict trade and investment," Weinstein said.

In addition, the state, particularly North Texas, is counting on a $1 billion investment from Japan to give the superconducting super collider the political boost in the U.S. Congress that will get it built.

"I worry that continuation of Japan bashing will give Japanese politicians the reason they need not to support the collider," Weinstein said.

But Rep. Joe Barton, the Ennis Republican whose district includes the collider, said the giant atom smasher could smooth relations.

"We can use the SSC as a bridge to dampen some of this" word war, Barton said.

"If it's in their self-interest to change the trade laws, they will. If it's in their self-interest to invest in the super collider, they will," said Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas. "They are not going to do either one over a sense of charity."

Fred Bucy, former director of the state super collider agency, said problems in Japan's banks and stock market pose a greater obstacle to the country's decision to invest in the collider.

"I would worry more about that than about the bashing of the Japanese," Bucy said. "They're tough enough to handle that."

The new directors learned more about the chamber's functions and heard special presentations by city, county, school and hospital officials.

Scientists elated with experiments

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - Joyful scientists

retrieved their experiments from Discovery and astronauts endured still more dizzying tests after a mission that paved the way for NASA's planned space station.

"We're just thrilled to death. We're walking around off the floor," said Alex McPherson, a University of California, Riverside, biochemist studying virus protein crystals grown during the flight.

The shuttle and seven astronauts landed at this Mojave Desert military base Thursday morning after an eight-day Spacelab mission that carried the $70 million International Microgravity Laboratory. They were greeted by 18,500 spectators.

After a day of medical tests, shuttle commander Ronald Grabe, pilot Stephen Oswald and mission specialist William Raddy were to fly home to Houston today.

The other four astronauts will stay in California until Saturday night, repeating many of the tests conducted in space, including reflex and eye movement exams, urine and blood tests, and nausea-inducing rides on lurching sleds and rotating chairs.

Dick Covey, acting chief of NASA's astronaut office, said the crew and shuttle returned in excellent condition.

The mission's purpose was to study how cosmic radiation and weightlessness will affect long-term space travelers, including those on NASA's planned $30 billion space station Freedom. The mission also tested methods of processing materials for new medicines and other products.

Spokesman Mark Hess said space station construction is set to begin in late 1995, with the first astronauts working aboard it about a year later.

During Discovery's flight, the astronauts performed experiments on themselves and on animals and plants including mouse embryo leg bones, 7.2 million roundworms, 3,942 stick insects, 180 fertilized frog eggs, slime mold, lentil roots, 3 billion yeast cells and hundreds of wheat and oat seedlings. The Spacelab contained 55 experiments involving 225 scientists from 14 nations.

NASA extended Discovery's flight one day to allow more time for experiments. That allowed payload commander Norman Thagard to set a record for the most time spent on shuttles: 604 hours and 44 minutes.

The next shuttle flight is scheduled for late March, when Atlantis carries a payload of instruments to study Earth's atmosphere.

'Friendly fire' death notification delays defended by Army

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Army is defending its decision to wait nearly six months before notifying survivors of servicemen killed by friendly fire in the Persian Gulf War.

At the same time, the service offered its regrets for the drawn-out inquiry into suspected cases of friendly fire, which caused pain and anguish for 21 families.

"We regret the length of time it took to complete this process," Lt. Gen. William Reno, the deputy chief of staff for personnel, told the House Armed Services investigations subcommittee Thursday.

Thirty-five of the 148 American servicemen who died in the war were killed accidentally by their comrades' guns, the Defense Department reported in August. Of the 96 Army troops killed and 354 wounded, friendly fire was blamed for 21 deaths and 65 injuries, Reno said.

The majority of the U.S. casualties were hit by weapons fired from M-1 tanks and Bradley fighting vehicles, helicopters or airplanes.

U.S. forces were also held responsible for killing nine British troops and wounding 13 other British soldiers in friendly fire incidents, officials said at the time.

The House panel's chairman, Rep. Nicholas Mavroules, D-Mass., summed up the concerns of several families, including the parents of Army Cpl. Douglas Lance Fielder, a 22-year-old from Tennessee killed by friendly fire.

"Many people think the Army knew the scale of friendly fire deaths right from the start and tried to cover up the facts to save the service from embarrassment," Mavroules said.

The Army official said there was never any cover up or thought of embarrassing the Army. "We have done our very best to be totally open," he said.

In defense of the lengthy process, Reno said the brevity of the 100-hour ground war allowed for a full-scale investigation of all combat casualties.

In addition, the unique munitions fired by the M-1 left a radioactive residue that enabled the Army to determine whether damaged vehicles were hit by U.S. or Iraqi fire.

Ballistics and radiological teams sent to Saudi Arabia found that 58 vehicles had been hit by American munitions. The teams, which were trying to determine how the vehicles survived, discovered as well that there may have been more friendly fire cases.

"Given the expected timely resolution of all friendly fires, I did not want to piecemeal the information out to the families," Reno said.

Reno also detailed how mistakes were made in the case of Fielder, including a lost death certificate and soldiers rather than Army officials informing the family that the death was due to friendly fire.

Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., said the case was a scenario of mistakes. "Thoroughness is hardly a word to fit into that scenario," the congressman said.

"I agree with you," Reno responded.

State official tells health care myths

DALLAS (AP) - Most people believe two false assumptions about health care, a state official says.

Deann Friedholm, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock's aide on health and human services, says those myths are that the government automatically picks up the tab for poor people and that anyone with a job has automatic health coverage.

Ms. Friedholm says health care and welfare are not synonymous.

"The basic question is: 'Do we think that every person as an American or as a Texan has a right to health care?' People in this country haven't decided that," Ms. Friedholm said. "And the statistics exemplify the results of this indecision."

About 35 million Americans have no health insurance, she said. In Texas, some 3.5 million of the state's 17 million residents are uninsured, while another 3.5 million have inadequate coverage, she said Thursday.

Cost containment is the bottom-line in making health care accessible and affordable, she told about 150 people at a seminar sponsored by the Texas Medicaid Reform Coalition and Women's Council of Dallas County.

"It's hard because you're talking about restructuring how much prescription drugs cost, and that's people's income," she said. "You're talking about keeping the number of hospital beds down, and that's free enterprise."

She said lawmakers will continue tinkering with the state health care system and put off any drastic overhaul until Americans decide to make health care affordable for all. Texas' health care system is fragmented and underfunded, Ms. Friedholm said.

The state's anti-tax stance tends to keep health care on a low priority, she said.

"There are a lot of people who are convinced that the only real structural change that can be made to fix the health care system would be at the national level," Ms. Friedholm said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You hear so much these days about adopted children searching for their birth parents and having touching reunions. I felt it was time I wrote my first letter to Ann Landers to tell a different story. I'm sure there are others like me.

I am adopted and I don't wish to find my natural mother. I KNOW who my "real" parents are. I was born in a home for unwed mothers so I know my birth mother did what was best for both of us when she gave me up. I was adopted by a loving couple who already had an adopted son. Even though my brother was physically handicapped my parents still had room in their hearts and their home for him.

I've had a truly wonderful life--piano lessons, private schools, family vacations, clothes, cars and a college education. But even more important, I was raised in a home where morals and values were not only taught but shown by example. My parents had a 45-year marriage based on strong faith and true love.

When my father passed away, no "Daddy's girl" ever grieved more for a natural father than I did for him. Now the time I spend with my mother seems a lot more precious to me.

I know this letter is getting long, so let me conclude with a message to my birth mother: Thank you for giving me up. I know God helped to put me in the best possible home. I am all grown up now and a respected professional. I do wonder about you on occasion but I am not searching for you. I hope you've had a happy, fulfilling life. I have, and I thank you for thank--C.B., Shreveport, La.

DEAR SHREVEPORT: What a mature and comforting letter. The parents who raised you should be terribly proud. The mother who had the courage and good judgment to allow you to be adopted should also feel good about herself when she reads this today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you answer a real puzzler? Some friends and I have debated this issue and have decided to seek your counsel. Here is the scenario:

"Bob" and "Carol" are divorced. Carol was the one who left and has since remarried. "Nancy" is single and is Carol's friend. They see each other frequently at the local country club. Nancy has become acquainted with Carol's ex-husband, Bob, and she is beginning to like him. Should Nancy consult Carol before she goes any further with Bob?--Puzzled in the Pines

DEAR PUZZLED: Nancy has no obligation to consult Carol about her relationship with Bob, since Carol is (or should be) finished with him. Since they are good friends, however, it would be rather odd if Nancy didn't mention it. If the budding romance should develop into something truly serious, Carol might wonder why Nancy was so silent.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What should happen to wedding gifts that were acquired during a very short marriage? The couple I'm writing about separated after eight weeks. They did not live together after the marriage.

7th Maroon advances in district tournament

The Hereford Junior High seventh grade girls' Maroon team won its opener in its district tournament Friday in Pampa, while the seventh White lost its first round game.

The Maroon team squeaked by Valleyview Silver 28-27. Up by four points with a minute left in the game, Hereford ran most of the time off the clock but then threw the ball away, Coach Brenda Reeh said. A VV player scored with three seconds left, was fouled and completed the three point play.

"It was just a matter of getting the ball inbounds without throwing it away," Reeh said.

The Maroon didn't throw it away, and will face Canyon Purple in the second round at 10:15 a.m. Saturday.

Danielle Cornelius led the Maroon with 18 points.

Hereford's White team fell 40-26 to Borger Red. Borger won the second quarter 14-9 to lead 18-12 at the half and also outscored Hereford in the third and fourth quarters. Cassie Abney led the White with 10 points. The White team goes against Pampa Red at 9 a.m. Saturday.

In a tournament in Plainview, Hereford's freshman girls started strongly against Floydada, but couldn't keep up the pace. Floydada won 39-30 after scoring 24 points in the second half.

"It was a slow-paced game," Coach Jill Harrison said. "We were in control in the first half, and we were not playing our best, but in the second half we didn't pick up the intensity like we needed to. It wasn't very intense in the first half, but we were in control."

In scoring 24 in the second half--to Hereford's 12--Plainview shot 10-of-19 from the free throw line.

Brooke Bryant led Hereford with seven points.

In Amarillo, Hereford's freshman boys' teams lost badly to Caprock. Hereford's A team went down 76-58. Caprock outscored Hereford 21-12 in the first quarter and pulled away in the second half.

"The biggest part of the game was Caprock made it free throws and we didn't make ours," Coach Curtis Cotten said.

Hereford made 10-of-30 free throws, while Caprock hit 14-of-23. Curtis admitted that free throw gap alone wouldn't have made up 18 points, but said the players lost their composure when Caprock's lead got big. "Making our free throws" makes it a lot closer ball game, and I think the kids would have stayed in it better," he said.

The B team lost 63-43. Caprock won the first quarter 23-17 and increased its lead in each quarter.

Cotten said at the start of the game, both teams ran and broke each others' press, but then Caprock got hot shooting.

Rangers need Palmer to improve

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Texas Rangers were third in the American League West last season with a 85-77 record. This year they'd like to finish two spots higher--something they've never done.

The Rangers strength is their offense, which makes up for many of the team's pitching shortcomings. If their pitching improves, they could contend for a division title and an American League pennant. If their offense improves, they'll be frightening. One spot in the batting lineup that could improve immensely is the one occupied by Dean Palmer, who was in Amarillo Thursday as part of the Rangers' Winter Caravan.

Some of Palmer's 1991 numbers are pretty. In what turned out to be about half a season in the majors--Palmer had 268 at-bats in 81 games with the Rangers--he hit 15 home runs. Double that for a full season and anyone this side of Cecil Fielder would be happy.

Add his homers at Triple-A Oklahoma City, and he hit 37 round-trippers in 1991. His 22 homers at Oklahoma City led the American Association, even though he was only there half the season. In 1989, he nailed 25 at Tulsa to win the home run title of the Double-A Texas League. He has obvious potential for great power.

Other numbers need work, though. He had only 50 hits in the majors for a .187 batting average. He struck out 98 times, which is poor even when not compared to his 32 walks. His RBI total of 37 is low for someone who hit 15 homers.

Now that Palmer finally has a position, all his numbers are expected to improve. Palmer, a third-baseman by trade, was forced into other positions for much of last season because Steve Buechele owned the hot corner at Arlington Stadium.

When Buechele was traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates late last season, Palmer had third base all to himself.

"I feel a lot more comfortable at third knowing I'm going to play there every day," Palmer said. "It's a good feeling going to the park knowing you're going to play a certain position, instead of thinking: 'Am I going to play left? Am I going to DH? Am I even going to play?' I've always been a third baseman during my minor league career, and I feel comfortable there."

The Buechele trade will put pressure on Palmer because Buechele was one of the favorites of the Arlington Stadium faithful. Buechele also was an excellent defensive performer and came on offensively in 1991 with 18 homers.

"It was tough when the trade happened," Palmer said. "It's tough on me because he's a great guy. You don't know whether to be happy or sad."

"There were a lot of people upset. I knew it was going to be like that. I expected it."

Towards the end of the season, though, the fans began to accept him, Palmer said.

"Just like when he took place of Buddy Bell, the fans forgot about Buddy Bell, and I think the same thing will happen with my situation," Palmer said.

Some of the pressure will be alleviated because Texas does not need 40 homers from Palmer. With hitters like Rafael Palmeiro, Ruben Sierra and Julio Franco, manager Bobby Valentine won't be tempted to move Palmer into the pressurized middle of the order too soon. Palmer probably will blend in close to the bottom.

"Probably seventh or eighth," he said. "You've got so many great hitters in there. It's fun to be in there. I'll take anywhere in that lineup."

Baseball checks on Mariners' suitors

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball's ownership committee has started background checks and deliberations on a Japanese-led group's $100 million offer to buy the Seattle Mariners.

Deputy commissioner Stephen Greenberg and committee chairman Fred Kuhlmann of the St. Louis Cardinals said Thursday there was a chance the committee would be able to report to all owners at the next quarterly meetings, scheduled for March 4-5 at Rosemont, Ill.

"We're still working on coming to grips with what this proposal is, and I think there will be several meetings," Greenberg said.

The group, which is 60 percent controlled by the owners of Nintendo, formally presented its offer to the Mariners on Wednesday. Commissioner Fay Vincent has said he thought it was unlikely a sale would be approved because of baseball's preference for local ownership.

"We'll be using the same procedures we use in other cases, checking it against the guidelines we already have in place," Kuhlmann said. "Our committee does not make a decision; our committee makes a recommendation. I don't think it will take us too long to do it."

In addition to Mariners owner Jeff Smulyan and Kuhlmann, other owners on the committee are Bill Bartholomay of Atlanta, George W. Bush of Texas, Stanton Cook of the Chicago Cubs, Peter O'Malley of Los Angeles, Jerry Reinsdorf of the Chicago White Sox and Bud Selig of Milwaukee. American League president Bobby Brown and National League president Bill White also are part of the panel.

Hiroshi Yamauchi, president of Nintendo Co. Ltd. of Kyoto, Japan, would put up $75 million of the $125 million the group intends to raise.

Rockets get revenge on Bulls in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Five days wasn't long enough for Hakeem Olajuwon and the Houston Rockets to forget the humiliation of a loss to the Chicago Bulls.

After a 114-100 setback at Chicago on Saturday, the Rockets returned the favor Thursday night with a 105-102 victory. Olajuwon had 24 points, 11 rebounds and eight blocked shots, including a last-second rejection of Michael Jordan that preserved the victory.

"I'm glad they didn't beat us twice," Olajuwon said. "This was an exciting game, but the difference is they play like this all the time. You have to be up for this game, playing the world champions and Michael Jordan."

The Rockets proved to themselves in the first half that they could beat Chicago, surging to a 14-point lead.

"When we play smart against a great team, it's a good sign," Houston coach Don Chaney said. "When we get this kind of effort and intelligent play, it's a sign we're making strides."

The loss was the second straight in Texas for the Bulls after a 37-5 start, and also was their fourth consecutive defeat at the Summit. The explosive beginning had prompted talk that Chicago could become the first team to win 70 games.

"We haven't accomplished anything yet this year," Michael Jordan said. "We realized we've played good basketball, but we need more maturity to pick up the momentum again."

Chaney also was pleased with the mature play of guard Vernon Maxwell, who scored 23 points after being suspended by the NBA for one game following an incident in Saturday's emotionally charged game at Chicago.

Maxwell also did a credible job of defending Jordan, limiting the league's leading scorer to 9-for-26 shooting and 22 points, eight below his average.

left when Reggie Williams was called for a technical for protesting the 3-pointer.

Williams finished with 24 points and 11 rebounds.

Cavaliers 115, Magic 98
Cleveland won at home as Larry Nance scored a season-high 33 points and grabbed 13 rebounds.

The Cavaliers, still smarting from a 99-96 loss at Orlando last Saturday, missed six of their first seven shots but then took charge by hitting six in a row for a 16-8 advantage. Nance, who finished 15-for-19 from the field, hit two jumpers during the flurry, starting a string of eight straight without a miss.

The Cavs expanded the margin to 58-40 at halftime and took their biggest lead at 69-44 on Nance's tip-in with 8:50 left in the third quarter.

Nick Anderson tried to bring the Magic back, scoring 16 of his 28 points in the third quarter, but they got no closer than seven.

Blue Devils turn away Seminoles

By The Associated Press

Down to crunch time and down by a point, No. 1 Duke was determined not to become the next big upset victim.

So the Blue Devils went to work on No. 23 Florida State. Boy, did they.

Duke scored the final 14 points Thursday night and stayed unbeaten by struggling past the Seminoles 75-62. The victory came a day after No. 2 UCLA fell to Southern Cal for its first loss of the season.

"We practice end-of-game situations a lot (but) we haven't been in many," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "It seemed like all of our veterans made big plays."

Duke (16-0, 8-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) matched the best start in school history, accomplished first in 1985-86. The defending national champions also extended their winning streak to 22 games.

Florida State (13-5, 5-3) had won six a row. The Seminoles were ahead 62-61 with 3:43 left, but could not hang on at home.

Duke ran off 13 points in the last 2:22, eight by Grant Hill. His scoop shot put the Blue Devils ahead 64-62. Hill and Christian Laettner each scored 20 points.

Sam Cassell scored 15 points for Florida State.

No. 9 Arizona 104, Oregon 53
Arizona forced 27 turnovers and made 16 steals.

The Wildcats (14-3, 4-2 Pac-10) matched a school record with 15 3-pointers, including a team-record 10 in the first half. Oregon (5-11, 1-6) lost its sixth straight game.

Matt Othick made four 3-pointers and Chris Mills had three in the first half as Arizona took a 56-28 lead. Khalid Reeves had 19 points for the host Wildcats, Mills had 18 and Othick 16. Antoine Stoudamire led Oregon with 17 points.

No. 10 Ohio State 74, Illinois 72
Jimmy Jackson scored 16 points and Ohio State held on to win at Illinois.

The Buckeyes led by 18 points at halftime before Illinois rallied. Ohio State missed four of six foul shots in the final 1:19, but Brooks Taylor missed a 3-pointer at the buzzer that would've won for the Illini.

Mark Baker scored 15 points for Ohio State (13-3, 5-1 Big Ten). Deon Thomas scored 26 points for Illinois (8-9, 2-5).

No. 16 Tulane 98, Southern Mississippi 86

Tulane again relied on The Posse, and its super subs came through with a 23-10 burst midway through the first half that got the Green Wave rolling.

Matt Greene scored nine points in the 8:10 burst. Carln Hartman and Pointer Williams, also Posse members, tied for the team lead with 16 points each.

Tulane (16-1, 4-0 Metro) led 80-59 with 8:25 left. Mississippi State (8-9, 2-2) closed to 88-80 with 2:00 remaining, but Hartman scored eight more points as the Green Wave won at home.

No. 17 N. Carolina-Charlotte 77, No. 24 Louisville 68

James Terrell made two 3-pointers in overtime and finished with 22 points as UNCC bounced back from a loss to Butler earlier this week.

Henry Williams had 18 points for host UNCC (14-3, 3-0 Metro Conference). Everick Sullivan scored 16 points for Louisville (12-5, 3-3).

Utah 57, No. 19 Texas-El Paso 54
Byron Wilson sank a half-court heave at the buzzer and Utah stung visiting UTEP.

Wilson made only one of five shots and had only two points before making the game-winner. Jimmy Soto led the Utes (14-5, 4-3 Western Athletic Conference) with 12 points. Prince Stewart scored 15 for UTEP (16-2, 6-1).

No. 21 UNLV 85, Utah State 80

Elmore Spencer scored 27 points and combined with Reggie Manuel to help UNLV pull away in overtime at Utah State.

Spencer, who had seven points at halftime, began the overtime with a free throw. He then blocked a shot and added a dunk. Manuel, a freshman, came off the bench to make a 3-pointer and two foul shots in the last 12 seconds.

UNLV (18-2, 10-0 Big West) blew a 10-point lead in the last 8:10 of regulation. Kendall Youngblood scored 39 points for Utah State (11-6, 5-3).

Lakers 106, Nuggets 96

Los Angeles took advantage of a controversial 3-pointer by Byron Scott to win at Denver.

Scott, who scored 28 points, gave the Lakers a 94-90 lead with a layup, then was credited with a 3-pointer although replays clearly showed he still had the ball when the 24-second clock expired.

Scott then made it 98-90 with 1:33

Hawkins, Lanier find Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - Connie Hawkins and Bob Lanier have been elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame along with seven others, including the first two women players to be honored. Hawkins is the New York playground legend whose pro career was delayed by allegations that he had been involved with gamblers.

Delta State great Lusia Harris and AAU star Nera White became the first women players elected.

Three women coaches and contributors were inducted previously, including Margaret Wade, Harris' coach at Delta State.

Elected as coaches this time were Lou Carnesecca of St. John's; former Marquette Coach Al McGuire; Jack Ramsay, whose 864 career victories with four NBA teams ranks second in league history, and the late Phil Woolpert, who led San Francisco to the NCAA championship in 1955 and 1956.

Also elected as a player was Sergei Belov, who sank the controversial basket that gave the Soviet Union the gold medal, in the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE BIBLICAL CHARIOT!

THE CHARIOT, IN BIBLICAL TIMES, WAS THE COUNTERPART OF OUR MODERN AUTOMOBILE...EXCEPT IT WAS USED MAINLY FOR WAR! THE FIRST BIBLICAL MENTION OF THE CHARIOT OCCURS IN GENESIS (GEN. 41:43) WHERE JOSEPH, AS A MARK OF DISTINCTION, WAS PLACED IN PHAROAH'S SECOND CHARIOT. THE ISRAELITES DID NOT USE CHARIOTS UNTIL AFTER THE REIGNS OF DAVID AND SOLOMON WHO NOT ONLY GOT THE IDEA FROM THE EGYPTIANS BUT ALSO THE NECESSARY EQUIPMENT: HORSES AND CHARIOTS! EVEN SO, ONLY KINGS, PRINCES, AND NOBLEMEN, AMONG THE ISRAELITES, RODE IN CHARIOTS AND KINGS QUITE OFTEN HAD A SECOND CHARIOT FOLLOW THEM WHEN IN BATTLE IN CASE THE FIRST ONE WAS DESTROYED. ODDLY ENOUGH THE NEW TESTAMENT MENTIONS A CHARIOT ONLY ONCE (ACTS 8:28) IN CONNECTION WITH THE ABYSSINIAN EUNUCH OF QUEEN CANDACE.

Recycling Christmas Trees
ATLANTA (AP) - More than 36 million American families will buy real Christmas trees this year, according to a forest products company, adding that many of the trees will be recycled after the holidays.

One of the more popular uses for recycled Christmas trees is mulch for landscaping, according to the Atlanta-based Georgia-Pacific Corp. A spokesman for the company says used Christmas trees also serve as barriers to prevent sand and soil erosion. Some are even placed in ponds and lakes to create fish refuge and feeding areas.
