19 die Tuesday in Abilene crash

ABILENE, Texas (AP)-A military refueling jet that crashed in a fireball during takeoff, killing all 19 aboard, was scheduled to refuel F-16s as part of a training mission before flying nonstop to Hawaii, the Air Force says.

Officials at Dyess Air Force Base and at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base near Marquette, Mich., where the flight originated, said the plane's passengers included spouses of military members, retired military members and one child.

"It couldn't have been more than 50 or 60 feet off the ground," said Skeet Jackson, who witnessed the crash from his back yard.

"That left wing hit the ground and (crashed) just like these pictures of atomic bombs you've seen."

The plane was to refuel an undetermined number of F-16s based out of Fort Worth, Texas, before flying to Hawaii, said 1st Lt. John Ames, deputy chief of public affairs at Dyess. Ames said it remained unclear how much the fuel the plane was carrying, but added it was enough to complete the training mission and make the eight-hour flight to Hawaii.

The flight manifest showed that 17 of the passengers were from Sawyer and the other two boarded at Dyess, said Master Sgt. Al Doster, another Dyess spokesman. In addition to seven problem during takeoff. crew members, four passengers were active duty military, four were retired military and among the four dependents to board a military flight.

are some of the precautions: Before attaching the cables, make sure the battery fluid is not frozen, keeps sparks or flames away from the batteries, be sure the vehicles are not touching, be sure both vehicles' electrical systems have the same voltage. While not many folks do it, the society also recommends the wearing of chemical splash

Attaching the cables--Clamp the positive cable to the positive(+) terminal of the dead battery; connect the other end to the positive terminal of the live battery. Do not allow the positive cable clamps to touch any metal other than the battery terminal. Then, connect one end of the negative(-) cable to the negtive terminal of the live battery, and make the final connection on the engine block of the disabled vehicle(not to the negative battery post). Remove the cables in reverse order, beginning by first removing

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office reported today that Randy Barrett, a security guard who disappeared from his post last Wednesday morning at the Swift plant west of Hereford, arrived in Hereford Friday after staying in a Phoenix, Ariz., medical center for a day.

Barrett's employer, Allstate Security, contacted the Sheriff's Office Wednesday when Barrett did not check in at his regular time. Deputies found blood, a broken glass lens and the guard's keys lying on the ground, but Barrett was not located.

The Sheriff's Office then received a call from a doctor at the medical center, saying Barrett was there.

After Barrett flew in to Hereford Friday, he explained that he slipped on a piece of fat on the ground at the plant and hit his head, was disoriented, squeezed through the gates and hitched a ride to Phoenix, Ariz., where the driver admitted him to a hospital.

Barrett also said he had a friend in Phoenix who loaned him money to fly home.

Clements talks of no specifics in address

AUSTIN (AP)--Although he talked for 28 minutes, some legislators said Gov. Bill Clements didn't say quite enough in his state of the state address.

The governor called on lawmakers to consider school funding equity, limits on campaign contributions, and reform in picking Texas judges. But some in his audience said they didn't hear many specifics on those topics.

"I don't see how you move toward (school funding) equity without putting some state money into the public school system. Perhaps he has a way and he's just not willing to divulge that to us today," said Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice.

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said he was left wondering about

"He did not give us any kind of specifics on the school finance situation. I'm not sure what specifically he has in mind," Barrientos said.

The governor, who spent an estimated $12 million on his 1986 campaign, sounded a call for campaign finance reform. But he urged only "reasonable" limits on contributions.

And Clements said it was time to look at the way Texas picks judges, currently done by direct partisan election. But asked for more information after the speech, Clements said no specific plan is ready yet.

'We're talking about it," he said. "We do not have a plan at this time, although one is being evolved."

"The bottom line is we do not need a tax increase. We must reach a consensus on the budget that fits within our commitment to maintain our economic recovery. A tax increase will choke it off," he said.

He urged the mergers of numerous state agencies, including several in criminal justice and one which oversees financial institutions, and backed the proposed mergers between the University of Texas and Texas A&M with South Texas institutions.

The governor also backed "flexible tuition" proposals, which would allow Texas college and university regents to set tuition charged at their schools.

He repeated his $39 million proposal to reward public schools for making academic gains and reducing the dropout rate and drug and alcohol abuse. He endorsed a proposal by State Comptroller Bob Bullock to sell about $600 million in state bonds and use the proceeds for classroom construction.

Turning to the subject of crime, the governor said Texans demand action. He endorsed mandatory flat-time

Bush to propose child care credit, oil and gas tax cuts in U.S. budget proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Several major campaign promises by President Bush are likely to be missing or significantly scaled back in the budget proposal he will make to Congress next week, administration of-pansion of Medicaid and increased funding for several education programs are among those likely to fall victim to concern about the federal deficit, said the officials, who spoke Tuesday on condition of anonymity.

tax breaks, the officials said, but the scope of a proposed capital-gains rate cut remains undecided.

Bush has long advocated a reduction in the capital gains tax — the tax on profits from the sale of homes, stocks and other assets — to a maximum of 15 percent. But senior aides said Treasury officials are having a hard time coming up with a formula, and the final proposal could call for lower rates for one category than for another.

Dental braces can be worn by any age

One out of every five orthodontic patients in the United States is over the age of 18. In other words, approximately 800,000 adults are wearing braces, and their smiles will soon be the better for it.

Contrary to common belief, it is almost never too late to benefit from orthodontic care, according to the South Plains District Dental Society. Braces can be worn at any age, which is why thousands of adults who needed braces as youngsters but for one reason or another never got them, are straightening

No longer concerned about the esthetics of a mouth full of metal, many adults view braces as a means of enhancing the quality of life. Like aerobics classes and low-fat diets, orthodontia's popularity is one more manifestation that ours is the age of self-improvement.

The improvements made possible with orthodontic treatment are indeed impressive. Malocclusions, defined by the American Dental Association as crooked, crowded, protruding or widely spaced teeth, can detract from appearance and harm overall health.

A malocclusion, or "bad bite", not only in many cases looks bad, but also can cause problems with biting and chewing, making it difficult to eat a balanced diet. Malocclusion can contribute to facial muscle tension and pain and weaken the bone and gum support structures for the teeth. In addition, misaligned teeth make plaque removal by brushing and flossing more difficult. (Plaque is the major cause of both tooth decay and gum disease.) Orthodontic appliances, worn anywhere from one-and-a-half to three years, can in most cases alleviate these health problems.

Today's orthodontic patient has a Westgate. variety of types of appliances from which to choose, according to the SPDDS. In addition to traditional metal brackets, so-called "lingual" braces are available for those who want to straighten a malocclusion but would rather the entire world didn't know. These "invisible" braces can be attached to the back (tongue) sides of the teeth rather than to the front (lip) sides, where they pull rather than push teeth into proper alignment.

Lingual appliances are more expensive than traditional braces because they take more time to be fitted and because the inner surfaces of the teeth are smaller and vary more in size and shape than do the outer surfaces. In addition, they require more frequent adjustment in the orthodontist's office. For patients willing to accept the special challenges involved, these "hidden" appliances offer a viable alternative.

Other orthodontic options currently available to adults include tooth-colored or clear plastic appliances with thinner, less noticeable wires that eliminate the metallic gleam of standard braces, and removable braces that need be worn only a certain number of hours each day or night.

And, contrary to widespread belief, it's not an unpopular vegetable. Carrots rank fourth behind lettuce, onions and tomatoes as the most frequently eaten vegetable in the country.

Nowadays wise cooks familiar with the benefits of carrots grate them on turkey sandwiches and chalupas and put them in breads, spaghetti sauces, stir-fries and, of course, soups, stews

"The natural sweetness of carrots cuts the acid in tomato sauce and adds sweetness to muffins and cakes," said Carol Guthrie, Texas Department of Agriculture home economist. "Carrots also give flavor, texture and nutritional value to sandwich spreads. They're a more versatile vegetable than we used to think. Imaginative cooks can find many ways to use them."

Texas growers plant around 10,000 acres of carrots every year. Peak harvests take place during winter in the Rio Grande Valley and South Texas. Carrots are also pulled in the spring and from August to December on the High Plains.

SPORTSCARD Mavericks deny deal on trading Aguirre

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP

Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks owner Donald Carter says the team has not been involved in recent trade talks concerning moody forward Mark Aguirre, but advised a reporter to "Stay tuned."

Carter made the remark Tuesday night after Aguirre had complained of ankle problems and said he could not play against the Utah Jazz, a game the Mavericks lost, 99-84.

Mavericks fans filled Reunion Arena with enthusiastic booing after it was announced that Aguirre, the team's leading scorer would not play, and they continued some booing during the game.

Carter confirmed, however, that the team has been involved in trade talks for 10 days with unspecified NBA teams, but added "no deal has been made." The Dallas Morning News had reported earlier Tuesday that Aguirre was about to be traded to the Detroit Pistons for Adrian Dantley. The newspaper quoted sources as saying the trade between the Mavericks and Pistons might be completed before the Feb. 23 NBA trade deadline.

Aguirre worked out during pregame drills, then complained that both his ankles were sore and said that he didn't think he could play.

Dr. Pat Evans, a team doctor, examined Aguirre, and said, "He has a swelling of a heel cord and we treated it and hopefully he will be able to play Friday."

Aguirre stayed in the dressing room until the game was over, then

Carter wouldn't say that Aguirre was the subject of the trade talks. He said that personnel that personnel director Rick Sund has held dialogue with teams over some players, but Aguirre was not involved over the last 10 days.

Kite playing well, says 'time will come'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Kite need go no further than his long-time caddy to get some positive feedback from that devastating loss last week in the Pebble Beach National Pro-

"The way he's playing, the way he's putting, this easily could be an '81-type year," caddy Mike Carrick said before a practice round for the $1 million Los Angeles Open.

In 1981, Kite led the PGA Tour in money-winnings and in scoring average.

Perhaps more significantly, Kite set a standard of consistently high finishes that season that hasn't been approached. He was 10th or better in 21 of 26 starts.

"He's playing just like that now," Carrick said, "maybe even striking the ball better. He just needs to keep his confidence up, not get discouraged. He just needs to get over the hump and win one.

"If he won one soon, he could go on to a very good year, two or three wins," the caddy said.

Kite agreed.

"I just have to put that behind me, not dwell on it," Kite said of the oneshot loss to Mark O'Meara last weekend. It was doubly difficult for Kite, who also lost a playoff to Curtis Strange for the rich Nabisco Championships at Pebble Beach last November.

"The second loss was tougher. Much tougher. That hurt," said Kite, who has five second-place finishes since recording his last victory in the 1987 Kemper Open.

"There's only two options. Either you quit, or you keep trying. I haven't quit.

"I know I'm playing well, and that helps," Kite said. "If I keep on playing well, if I keep on getting in contention, if I keep on giving myself a chance, my time will come.

"Maybe soon."

Leonard-Hearns rematch finali

NEW YORK (AP) - In a dim corner of the Roseland ballroom, where lonely ladies with sequined high heels often sit, a cynical wag ventured: "Now, there's hope for uniting the Beatles."

On the same stage after more than seven years, stood Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns, who icked a dance hall, of all places, to ign for their June 12 rematch in Las

"I'm still hanging around. Tommy's still hanging around. We figured we'd better get it on before Father Time got both of us," the 32-year-old Leonard said, flashing his smile by Steinway.

Leonard is the only fighter ever to old world championships in five hold world champion weight classes. Hearns had four world championships and could make it five with Leonard's World Boxing Council super middleweight belt, which will be at stake at the Caesars Palace outdoor stadium.

Moreover, this rematch marks the end of a long journey for Hearns.

"He avoided me as long as he could," the 30-year-old Hearns said.
"He can't avoid me anymore. He must show up.
"This is the one thing that's lingered on my mind, getting back into the ring with Leonard," Hearns said. "Nobody else has stayed on my mind like him. I feel I had the (first) fight won all the way, and I still don't think it should have been stopped."

Leonard and Hearns originally met on Sept. 16, 1981 at Caesars Palace. Leonard stopped Hearns in the 14th round of a fight that could have gone either way, unifying the world welterweight title.

The fight marked the end of Leonard's active period. After the fight, he sustained a detached retina and retired in November, 1962. He came back with a lacklustre knockout of Kevin Howard in 1984 and didn't fight again until April 1987, when he won his third title, the WBC middleweight belt, with a 12-round decision over Marvelous Marvin Hagler.

"I've taken a lot of criticism for not giving rematches," Leonard said, "but I had the eye injury, and we just went our separate ways. Now just seemed like the right time for the rematch."

While Leonard said that he expected to see a highly motivated Hearns this time, "and that means a dangerous Tommy Hearns," Leonard also admitted he thinks Hearns has slipped. Hearns last fought on Nov. 4, scoring a 12-round decision over James Kinchen in Las Vegas. Three days later, Leonard won his fourth and fifth world titles — WBC super mid-dleweight and WBC light heavyweight — by stopping Donny Lalonde in nine rounds in Las Vegas. After the Lalonde fight, Leonard rated his performance a "10" and called Hearns' showing a "2." "I'm not defending Tommy," Leonard said. "I think he's totally shot. But Tommy's always had distractions. With him, sometimes it's more mental than physical. I think he has something to prove to you and to me."

Advised of Leonard's remarks, Hearns said: "He's just as shot as I am, maybe more shot. He's older

New free-agent plan starts

NEW YORK (AP) - A decade ago, there would have been major bidding wars all over the NFL had Tony Dorsett, Dave Butz, Randy White or Ottis Anderson been available as free agents

But when the NFL's most drastic amendment ever of its free agent system takes effect today, those four and dozens of aging or injured marquee names like them are liable to find their market value drastically reduced.

The new system will allow each of the NFL's 28 teams to protect just 37 of the average of 59 on their roster, whether their contracts expire or not. The rest - more than 600 players - will become unrestricted free agents, available to sign with whomever they can reach agreement, whether they have a contract

And, while no team officially has released the names of its unprotected players, the consensus among league and team officials is that many will be household names who share a common attribute age, injury problems, large con-tracts, or some combination of all

The new system, unilaterally imposed by the owners without consent of the NFL players union, is an outgrowth of last year's 24-day strike and the antitrust suit filed by the players' union at its end. It is aimed at showing Judge David Doty, who is presiding over the suit, that the league can devise a fair system that will allow players movement bet-

But the union says it will free only the least desirable players.

"Every player has to be free some time in his career," Gene Upshaw, the executive director of the NFL Players Association said Tuesday.

"What you've got here is every player in the league older than 30 except a few quarterbacks, plus the 42nd, 43rd, 44th and 45th player on every roster. That's hardly free

In fact, Upshaw's opinion seemed to be confirmed by the as-yet sketchy reports of players on the list.

The Washington Redskins, for example, reportedly have left un-protected the 38-year-old Butz, a starting defensive tackle for 16 years, and Neal Olkewicz, their 31-year-old middle linebacker. The New York Giants reportedly have left unprotected Jim Burt, an eightyear veteran nose tackle who has been troubled throughout his career by back problems, and starting guard Billy Ard, another eight-year veteran who is being challenged by several younger players.

Dorsett, the 34-year-old running back traded by Dallas to Denver last year, and Anderson, the 32-year-old one-time All-Pro with the Cardinals who now is a backup with the Giants. are other possibilities.

"You'll see Super Bowl players, Pro Bowl players, very big names, said Tex Schramm, president of the, Cowboys and a member of the owners' Management Council.

"But there will be reasons for them - they'll be bad medical risks, they'll be older. A lot of them will be getting good salaries, own homes in the area, things like that. They won't want to move."

Rangers ink Russell for 1-year pact

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Texas Rangers pitcher Jeff Russell agreed to terms on a 1-year contract for the 1989 season, the team announced Tuesday.

Russell was eligible for salary arbitration, and his case was scheduled to be heard Feb. 6 in Chicago.

No further terms of the contract were disclosed.

Russell, the Rangers' lone representative to the All-Star Game last season, was seeking $475,000 and the Rangers were offering $360,000.

Russell, 27, was 10-9 last season with a 3.82 earned-run average in 34 games, including 24 starts. He moved into the starting rotation in May and won his first six decisions. He also set career highs for victories and complete games, with five.

Russell's signing leaves outfielder Pete Incaviglia the only Ranger eligible for salary arbitration.

The Rangers also announced the signing of three rookies on the major league roster to 1-year contracts right-handed pitcher Scott May and infielders Ray Sanchez and Dean but he will get some financial aid. Because of his scholastic record at Boerne, it is likely Langbein would have been awarded an academic scholarship. But it was his play on the football field that got the attention of the Gallaudet coaches.

Two years ago, when Langbein transferred from the Texas School for the Deaf, his family was concerned about about the difficulties Langbein would face at BHS, not only on the classroom but on the football field.

"The decision was entirely Wayne's," said his mother, Peggy. "But I wanted him to get back in the hearing world. When he came from TSD, it was supposed to be a one semester try. At TSD he probably would have been valedictorian and he didn't want his grades to drop. But in the first six weeks, he had a 4.0

GPA." Boerne head coach Jack Moss became something of a father figure to Langbein, who said he learned many years ago that an athlete could overcome deafness.

'When I was in college, I played with a boy who was deaf and went to TSD. I roomed with him one time and learned we could communicate," Moss said.

Moss's roommate at Hardin-

Texas offering.

Simmons was Sammy Oates, who later earned All-American honors.

Other coaches weren't so sure about Langbein.

"I didn't know how we could communicate," said defensive coordinator Hack Holcomb. "But it became obvious quickly that he reads lips well. He is a visual learner. He sees things and concentrates so hard that when he sees something once, he learns it."

Coaches were eager to give Langbein a try. He is 6-2, 230 pounds and consistently runs the 40 in 4.7 seconds.

Langbein was put at defensive end and fullback and seldom disappointed the coaches.

Last season he recorded 77 tackles and had a team-high seven sacks. Langbein played fullback on shortyardage situations to block or carry the ball. He finished the season with 310 yards rushing and four touchdowns.

Because he couldn't hear the snap count, Langbein had to peek through the quarterback's legs and go on the movement of the ball.

"And he never missed a beat," Holcomb said.

That same quickness, along with his intense concentration, made him an outstanding defensive end.

Coach cites family reasons for returning to Plano

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Tom Kimbrough said he had to look no further than his family in deciding to return to Plano as football coach only two weeks after starting a similar job in Henderson in East Texas.

"You think about your boy (6-yearold Kyle) who needs you and after about the third week you know it's still going to be four or five months (before he saw him). It's tough," Kimbrough said at a news conference Tuesday.

"It makes you want to spend that much more quality time with him. You want to look in that boy's eyes and get out and throw the ball to him a little bit more."

Kimbrough resigned on Jan. 4 as Plano football coach to become coach and athletic director at Henderson, 115 miles east-southeast of Dallas. He started work there on Jan. 16, but on Monday - two weeks to the day after starting his new job - he announced he was returning to

He said he never felt comfortable with his decision to leave Plano after two decades of helping to establish the Wildcats as one of the most feared teams in Texas schoolboy football. The Wildcats have won three state championships in Kimbrough's 13 years as head coach.

"I had been on the road for about an hour (to Henderson) when I took the exit and turned around and came back," Kimbrough said. "I went back home and started back out at about 4:30 the next morning.

"I was trying to interpret (what he should do). ... I don't have a direct line (to God)."

While he was at Henderson, Kimbrough said, "I was trying to do a good job for them. So I attacked the work just like I would have here.

"The small town atmosphere was definitely a factor in my decision to leave (Plano). But I guess after 21

"John wanted the same thing for me that the people in Henderson wanted," Kimbrough said. "They wanted me to do what was best for me. For awhile, I was doing it because they (the people in Hender-son) were such good friends."

Plano's booster club organized a going-away party for Kimbrough the day before he left for Henderson, and about 500 persons attended. What was scheduled as a two-hour party stretched into four hours.

"I was touched because not one of them ever mentioned winning," Kimbrough said.

"That's what surprised me. I figured most people thought winning was the most important thing," he said. "But they talked to me about values, ethics and work habits. I believe they were sincere too. They kept coming up with tears in their eyes. Most of the women were crying and about half of the men.

"I had allergies that day myself." Asked what he would do with his going-away presents, Kimbrough

Interspersed between the "get to know you appointments", the settling-in process begins. Just getting a feeling for the place is an important part of the process. Being assigned your official parking space, learning that you can dial all numbers within the Capitol with only five digits, learning where you can grab a quick sandwich and a bowl of soup in the members lounge, are all part of the process.

The legislative process starts slowly. It's the way the system was week the Senate was rarely in session more than 30 minutes per day. At this point, all of the bills that have been pre-filed and those being currently filed ar read in the Chamber and simply referred to committee. There is no debate on the floor because there is nothing to debate. With the exception of the State Affairs and Finance Committees, most of the committees only hold a short organizational meeting during the first week. As time passes, however, and bills are heard by the various committees and reported back to the floor, the hours spent in Session will increase. Toward the end of the Session in May, under pressure to deal with a great number of pending bills, the time spent in Session will increase dramatically.

The committee system is the backbone of the Texas Senate. A member's committee assignments more than anything else will shape his tenure in the Senate. Lt. Governor Hobby traditionally announces committee assignments on the opening day of the session. There was a slight break with tradition this year when committee assignments were not announced until the second day of the Session. I had advance notice, however.

At a reception the night before the swearing in, Governor Hobby came over to me and asked if we could discuss business for a moment. We stepped over to the side of the room and sat down at a large table. There he pulled a piece of paper out of his pocket where he had listed all the Senate members on one side and all the committees across the top. As he ran his finger across the paper he cleared his throat and said to me, "Teel, I would like it if you would serve on the Natural Resources committee, Economic Development Committee, and the Jurisprudence Committee." I was extremely pleased with the appointments. I thanked him and told him that the assignments were a great way to top off the evening.

When you look at my background and the interest of Senate District 31, you have got to be very pleased with the committee appointments. Natural Resources deals with energy issues, water issues, and agricultural issues. Economic Development is, of course, vital to our part of Texas and is often times overseen by the more populous areas. So having a member on the important committee from Senate District 31 is great. The Jurisprudence committee deals with all of the civil statutes from the Family Code to the Business Code. I was extremely pleased when Senator Bob Glasgow, the Chairman of the Jurisprudence Committee, asked me to chair a subcommittee on business bills that come to the Jurisprudence Committee. This is particularly exciting when you consider I am the only freshman senator to chair a subcommittee.

While the second week of my term in office was filled with mostly housekeeping matters, two important substantive events occurred. The first with regard to my bill calling for a constitutional amendment to prohibit a state income tax. Senator Caperton, the Chairman of the Senate Finance committee, indicated that the bill would get a hearing in his committee. This is very significant in view of the fact that the constitutional ban has passed the House of Representatives on several occasions, but was never even granted a hearing in the Senate Finance Committee.

Secondly, Senator Robert McFarland and I co-authored and introduced a bill calling for a constitutional amendment to allow a Freeport exemption in Texas. Throughout the campaign I discussed my view of the Legislature's role in economic development: to create a climate for doing business that is more favorable than in any other state. The Freeport exemption is a critical step in accomplishing that goal. Senator McFarland and I were both pleased to learn that the Governor has declared this piece of legislation an emergency. The significance of this declaration is, one, it can be dealt with in the first sixty days of the legislative session; and, two, that upon passage of the constitutional amendment by the voters of Texas in November, this revision accounting firm of Touche Ross suggests as many as 600 hospitals may collapse in the next five years, Bent-

"Rural hospitals are the cor-nerstones of health care delivery systems in their communities," Bentsen said. "Without them, people residing in small, often isolated areas can be denied vital health care services. This is particularly true for older Americans enrolled in Medicare. The elderly comprise 12 percent of the nation's population as a whole, but 25 percent of the population of rural areas."

Bentsen blamed inequities in the Medicare prospective payment system for contributing to the problems of rural hospitals. Under the program, hospitals are reimbursed for the average costs of their elderly Medicare patients and not on actual

Because rural hospitals have historically incurred lower average costs than city hospitals, Medicare payment rates are running 12 percent to 13 percent below what their urban counterparts receive, Bentsen said.

But Texas Hospital Association officials say rural hospitals have to pay as much or more keep professional staff, and because many are smaller than their urban counterparts, may have to pay more for supplies and equipment because they can't buy in bulk.

Rural hospitals also depend more heavily on Medicare patients. According to 1986 figures, rural hospitals in Texas on average had 42 percent of patients on Medicare, compared to a 25 percent Medicare patient mix in urban facilities, the THA said. But some rural hospitals had as high as 80 percent Medicare patients.

Bentsen said his plan calls for phasing in a new uniform reimbursement rate beginning in 1991 to ensure equity for rural hospitals.

In the interim, Bentsen wants Medicare to guarantee that rural hospitals with large numbers of elderly patients and 100 beds or less receive reimbursement for their full Bentsen's bill would also create a panel to review complaints by "border hospitals" — those located near urban areas - that are unfairly treated by Medicare; increases funding for a program that helps rural hospital administrators to improve services; expands a demonstration program under which teaching hospitals are encouraged to send physicians to rural areas for training; and adds new demonstration programs which encourage students to enter the nursing profession.

Officials of the Texas Hospital Association welcomed Bentsen's pro-

'The point we have tried to make with Congress is that payments should be adequate so that Medicare is paying the proper cost of care and that local taxpayers are not subsidizing the Medicare program," said Charles Bailey, vice president for legal services at the THA. "Our studies show that every time a Medicare patient walks in the door, the hospital will lose money in a rural area."

"A lot of communities in Texas understand and agree on the need for higher taxes to keep their hospital," Bailey said. "We're not saying Congress is totally responsible for fully subsidizing these hospitals to keep them open, but they whould pay their fair share."

Bentsen is co-sponsoring the bill ith Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas. Rep. Jake Pickle, an Austin Democrat, is the bill's sponsor in the House.

Clements' justice agency opposed

"AUSTIN" (AP) Gov. Bill million in new prison bonds. such prison alternatives as intensive lawmakers see the need for prison Department of Criminal Justice for prison, parole and jail programs would just be "adding another layer of bureaucracy," says the chairman of the House Corrections Committee.

"If you create a czar and an extra level, now you've got a TDC (Texas Department of Corrections) board that the TDC administration has to go to for direction, and now you've got a board that the board has to go to," Rep. Allen Hightower, D-Huntsville, said Tuesday. Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said he thinks Clements is suggesting an omnibus board to jointly address criminal justice issues "instead of multiple boards going in all direc-

Their remarks came the day Clements gave a state-of-the-state address to the Legislature in which the governor also called for $200

Clements' proposal to create a Hightower said he doesn't plan to supervision of parolees and proba-construction, but that he doesn't move forward with such legislation until he's convinced it's the only way

"I'm carrying the bonding bill. That doesn't mean it's coming out (of committee)," Hightower said. "I'm going to hold that bill until I'm satisfied that that's the only answer for this session."

As of now, he said, "I'm not satisfied that that's the only answer,

Clements has urged constructing facilities with the capacity for nearly 11,000 new prison beds, financed by a total of $343 million in bonds. About $140 million in bonds already earlier was approved for prisons but not used, so another $200 million would be needed to implement his plan. Opponents have voiced concern about bond financing costs.

The governor endorsed such items as mandatory flat-time sentences for repeat offenders and increased penalties for assaulting police officers. He also indicated support for

364-1281

"The same folks that are advocating 11,000 beds and bonding $340 million have a crime package that will send more inmates to TDC (Texas Department of Corrections) than the 11,000 beds they want. ... This legislature is already planning to send enough with enhanced punishments to fill those beds," Hightower said.

'The goal of the state should be that within the resources we have available, we structure our criminal justice system to incarcerate violent people and find progressive management areas for the other people," Hightower said.

The bonding measure is scheduled to come up in the House Corrections Committee on Wednesday. The chairman of the budget-writing House Appropriations Committee, Rep. Jim Rudd, said that the House. "I hear too much hostility," said

Rudd, D-Brownfield, "and most of the members are saying, 'Let's find some other way, if possible."" House Speaker Gib Lewis said, "I think everyone realizes that additional prisons are needed, and I don't know of any other proposal that's currently before us that will allow us to build additional prisons without bonds."

Sen. John Montford, a key opponent to prison bond construction, renewed his opposition to Clements'

"This incremental bonding is going to cause longtime fiscal problems," said Montford, D-Lubbock. "I still think that in weighing the benefit to the state, we would be better off paying cash for the prisons."

Lewis wants new look at class size

House Public Education Committee and a teachers' group spokesman have voiced concern about a proposal to review class size requirements for public schools.

AUSTIN (AP) — The head of the House Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday that class size limits in House Bill 72, the massive 1984 education reform bill, should be looked at. He said the bill contains a "very stringent" guideline and the state should examine whether school districts need more flexibility. The state limits classes from pre-kindergarten through fourth grade to 22 students per teacher. Lewis made his comments after saying he's not sold on issuing state bonds to finance classroom construction. "I think it would not matter if the cap were 42, there would be those who say well, we need to put 43" students in a class, said Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, chairwoman of the Public Education "I realize that it is expensive to build facilities, but it is even more expensive to have primary grade children not get the skills that they need to succeed in school, and that's the whole idea behind the cap," she

John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, said, "I can understand exploring all ssibilities, but class size continues to be one of the most effective and most constructive things we've done in education reform."

Lack of facilities is not a legitimate excuse for not implementing the class size requirement, he said.

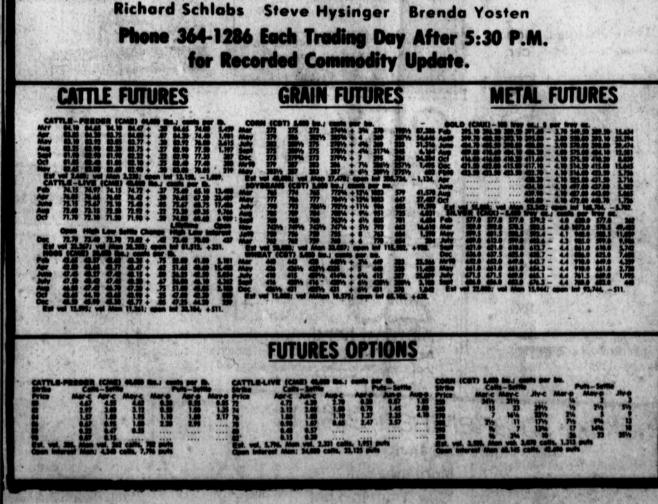

"For example, team-teaching would deal with the same problem -44 students in a class and two teachers complies with the law," Cole said. "It might even be a better way to deliver education than having one teacher for one classroom all alone with no colleague to share ideas, especially when you consider new teachers."

Lewis said "minor changes" in House Bill 72 could relieve the problem schools face in building new classrooms.

"We have pretty well kept House Bill 72 real strong for the last four years, and we have not even allowed anyone to think about making any changes," he said. "Well any law, I don't care how good it may be or appear to be, needs to be reviewed from time to time to just see what the impact was."

Lewis said the law "is drawn so tightly that we don't give them any back door. We don't give them any

"My staff right now is looking at possibly making some slight ad-ustments where we can give school justments where we can give school districts some degree of flexibility. You could easily use an average," he
