Hospital shows gain for fiscal year '94-'95

Impact of tax revenue highlighted

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors, in regular session Tuesday evening, accepted bids on insurance and approved purchase of a lab chemistry analyzer, discussed a remodeling project in the OB/Nursery unit, approved monthly reports, and approved a salary increase for Jim Robinson, chief executive officer of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

The hospital showed a net gain of $236,500 for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, according to a report given by trustee Boyd Foster. Without tax revenue, the operating loss for the year was $82,889.

During the operations report, Robinson said total admissions were 2,209, up 129 over last year. Outpatient visits had increased by 192 to 9,283; emergency room visits were up slightly to 8,061; and laboratory tests increased by 5,400 to 41,045. Home Health visits hit another record in September and totalled 19,863 for the year—a hike of 2,732.

Jim Wurts, vice president of Lubbock Methodist Hospital regional services, informed directors that Methodist will construct a helipad at the hospital. The landing site will be constructed following a study to determine the best site.

The board went into executive session to conduct the evaluation of Robinson, then returned to open session to approve a 4.5 percent salary increase. The motion also included a 2 percent bonus for the year.

Robinson had declined a bonus earlier this year because of a freeze on employee salaries, but a bonus was later given to employees. It was Robinson's first salary hike. The raise and bonus was approved by a 7-0 vote.

After viewing bid comparisons on a new lab analyzer unit, and the renovation of the current unit, directors approved purchase of new equipment at a cost of $105,000. Rodney Bailey, chief financial officer, pointed out that cost savings on chemistry and service maintenance would pay for a new unit in six years.

Plains Insurance was awarded a bid on property, general and professional liability, and auto and employee theft insurance. The board had considered three bids last month, but noted that specifications varied from company to company.

Board president Mal Manchec had appointed a committee to review the bids and make a recommendation. Scott Keeling, reporting for the committee, said the bids of Plains and Gallagher & Co. were similar and recommended either one. Plains had no deductible, while Gallagher had a $9,000 deductible. Keeling pointed out that if the hospital had about two claims, the bids would be equal.

Robinson reported that work was nearing completion on the first three rooms being remodeled in OB. In addition to new furniture provided by HRMC Auxiliary, new paint and window blinds are being added. He also reported the old CAT Scanner trailer had been sold and removed. Parking space will be created for doctors and outpatients.

The administrator also reported that the United Way campaign at the hospital completed with a total of $6,602—up significantly from contributions of $3,400 last year. He reminded trustees that the Auxiliary is holding its annual Jewelry Sale Friday in the dining room from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The November board meeting date has been changed to Nov. 14. The regular date of Nov. 21 was deemed too close to the Thanksgiving holiday.

All board members were present—Manchec, Foster, Keeling, Steve Cortez, Dean Crofford, Jo Beth Shackleford and Larry Watts.

Jury to set punishment for Saldivar

By MICHELLE KOIDIN

HOUSTON (AP) - Prosecutors hoping to send the woman who killed Tejano star Selena to prison abruptly ended their punishment case today after calling just one brief witness.

Defense attorneys then called witnesses for Yolanda Saldivar who told of her good character before wrapping up their case.

That cleared the way for final arguments this afternoon before the jury can deliberate punishment.

Sentences range from probation to life in prison, which would mean at least 30 years behind bars.

The prosecution's unexpected lack of testimony at the punishment phase came after a five-hour hearing Tuesday outside the presence of the jury. At that session, Nueces County district attorneys called witnesses who alleged that Ms. Saldivar, convicted of Selena's murder earlier this week, embezzled money from the singer.

Defense attorneys challenged prosecution witnesses, and state District Judge Mike Westergren heard all of the state's case before agreeing the jury could consider it.

Today, however, after a brief opening statement by defense attorney Douglas Tinker, prosecutors called Faustino Gomez, a San Antonio physician who employed Ms. Saldivar in the early 1980s.

Gomez said he did not find Ms. Saldivar a law-abiding person but did not elaborate. Under cross examination, he acknowledged he had not seen her for the past 10 years. The state then rested.

Jurors were not told he once employed Ms. Saldivar. The judge

Gun found at Shirley Intermediate School

Police were called to a local school on Tuesday when a teacher discovered a handgun in a student's property.

According to police reports, a Shirley Intermediate School teacher discovered a North American Arms Corp. .22 magnum five-shot revolver and turned the weapon over to principal David Fanning, who called police.

The 12-year-old student was being held in the principal's office when officers arrived.

He was taken to the police department and later turned over to his mother.

Police Chief David Wagner said the gun was not loaded. Reports said the weapon was not on the child's person when it was discovered.

The Herd's cross country track team has had a strong season, and will vie for honors at the district meet next Saturday. The UIL golf season is still ahead, but the Herd golfers have scored well in triangular matches, with both the boys and girls taking second here Saturday.

"The sign foretells that life as you know it will become a 10-year ride on Space Mountain—sharp turns, steep climbs, heart-stopping dips, and all at high speeds and in the dark. As on bumper sticker reads—Get in, sit down, shut up and hang on."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The ranks of House Republicans rebelling against the GOP leadership over a rewrite of the nation's farm policies are growing in size and clout.

The insurrection began when four cotton-state Republicans, including Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock, refused last month to back the "Freedom to Farm" bill drafted by House Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

The so-called "Gang of Four" was boosted this week with addition of 11 other Southern lawmakers - including House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La. - leery of the bill that the House is expected to consider Thursday as part of a massive budget package.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A videotape of government low-speed crash tests of several minivans shows the rear hatches of two Chrysler Corp. models popping open and dummies being ejected through the rear.

The government's highway safety agency announced it was releasing the long-held crash tape today, but The Associated Press reviewed a copy of the tape obtained by an auto safety consulting firm late Tuesday.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration was releasing the footage partly in response to a lawsuit by the consulting firm, Ralph Hoar & Associates, which has among

Two Texas Republicans, Mac Thornberry of Clarendon and Henry Bonilla of San Antonio, were among the signers of a letter sent Monday to Speaker Newt Gingrich, outlining their difficulties with the current legislation.

The 15 signers contend that "Freedom to Farm" amounts to "welfare" for farmers because it removes the link between commodity prices and crop subsidy payments, moving instead to a system of direct payments.

"Transforming current farm programs into strict welfare payments is contrary to the underlying principles of the Republican conference," the letter said.

The "Freedom to Farm" plan, designed to save $13.4 billion in farm spending over the next seven years, ends traditional farm programs by providing growers with a fixed but declining payment to ease the switch to free-market agriculture.

The rebels stressed that they support the cuts. But they added that the route taken to the reductions by the Senate Agriculture Committee is far preferable to the House bill.

The Senate bill is similar to an alternative drafted by Combest and Rep. Bill Emerson, R-Mo., that was rejected by the House Agriculture Committee last month. That bill would provide the same amount of cuts but keep most current farm subsidies intact. The savings would result largely from reductions in the amount of land eligible for subsidy payments.

In addition to their philosophical opposition to "Freedom to Farm," the recalcitrant lawmakers contend it would unfairly impact cotton and rice growers in their districts.

The letter's signers stopped short of saying they would vote against the huge budget reconciliation package that includes the agriculture rewrite. The reconciliation bill includes the GOP's plan to balance the budget over seven years, welfare and Medicaid reform, and other highly-prized Republican initiatives.

In an interview Tuesday, Thornberry said he has yet to make up his mind about the reconciliation vote, which is a cornerstone of the GOP's agenda. Spokesmen for Combest and Bonilla said their bosses have yet to make up their minds, too.

"I've got to look at the whole bill and decide how I'm going to vote," Thornberry said. "And there are some things in there that could be very good for agriculture."

Government tape shows minivan latches fail its clients lawyers who sue auto companies.

"We filed the lawsuit to end the ambiguity about whether there is a hazard (in these minivans) and these crash tests do that," Hoar said.

NHTSA also was expected today to close its two-year investigation into the effectiveness of the rear latches on Chrysler Corp. minivans sold from 1984 through 1995, said sources close to the probe who spoke on condition of anonymity.

At least 35 people have died in accidents in which the liftgates opened on Chrysler's Town and Country, Dodge Caravan and Plymouth Voyager minivans and people were ejected from the rear, according to government records.

NHTSA had been investigating but had made no formal finding of a defect - which leads to an official recall - when Chrysler offered last spring to repair the latches on the more than 4 million minivans for free under a "service campaign."

The agency has been keeping its investigation open until it was satisfied the repair program was well on track. In September, Chrysler started notifying the first 60,000 customers to bring in their minivans to have the latch replaced. The automaker anticipates it will take about a year for all the minivans to be repaired.

The crash tape contains a total of six low-speed crash tests, four of them with Chrysler minivans and two with minivans from other automakers. The rear liftgate held in both crash tests involving other minivans - the Ford Aerostar and the Mazda MPV.

In each test a vehicle hit the left rear side of the minivan while three dummies without seat belts rode in the back seat.

In one Chrysler crash test, a vehicle slammed into a 1987 Dodge Caravan at nearly 37 miles per hour, popping open the rear hatch and ejecting two dummies. In another test, the vehicle crashed into a 1991 Caravan at about 31 mph, popping open the rear liftgate and ejecting one dummy.

has limited testimony of her character to the past 10 years.

On Tuesday, Gomez said he fired her in 1983 after he suspected her of stealing money.

Tinker told the jury today he would ask them for probation and hoped to show through his witnesses that Ms. Saldivar was a "good, honest person ... with a good reputation."

The first witnesses were friends and family members of Ms. Saldivar.

"I coach a Little League baseball team," her brother, Fernando Saldivar, said. "She's always helping us with what we need, whatever we need for the kids. She's a real big asset to the community. She can help the community. She's always done that."

Witnesses testifying outside the jury's presence Tuesday told of irregularities involving thousands of dollars and unpaid bills for everything from nail files bearing Selena's name to radio advertising time.

"These checks were cashed and the cash went somewhere," prosecutor Elissa Sterling said.

Defense attorneys argued there was no way to positively link the irregularities to Ms. Saldivar, though her name was signed on checks.

"We'd rather it wasn't admitted before the jury," defense attorney Douglas Tinker said. "We don't believe there's any evidence of theft."

Among those who took the stand Tuesday was Joel Castaneda, a white-collar crime investigator with the Corpus Christi Police Department. He listed more than a half dozen checks totalling several thousand dollars drawn from an account in the name of Selena Etc. Inc., the singer's boutique.

Castaneda said the checks were cashed by Ms. Saldivar but were not used to pay bills as noted on the checks.

Defense attorneys suggested money from the checks could have gone directly to Selena, who then could have used it for her own purposes.

Elvia Hernandez, an accountant hired in April by Selena's father, Abraham Quintanilla Jr., said her search of financial records for Selena Etc. Inc., showed what she considered several suspicious checks.

Under cross examination, she said she was hired by Quintanilla specifically to look for irregularities in the financial records.

Another witness who managed a beauty supply company said she was surprised to learn that a check from Selena Etc. - carrying her company's invoice number and signed by Ms. Saldivar - was cashed but she was not paid.

Birthday of U.N. stokes differences

Survival of organization called 'remarkable in itself'

By TONY CZUCZKA
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) - World leaders ended their biggest gathering in history much as they began it: convinced the United Nations is needed but at odds over how to revive it for the 21st century.

In three days of speeches celebrating the world body's 50th birthday, many leaders held up U.N. successes in peacekeeping and helping the world's needy.

"The very fact that this organization survived half a century of crisis and conflict in the world ... is already remarkable in itself," Philippine President Fidel Ramos said.

But familiar gaps emerged: Rich countries that provide most U.N. funding focused on calling for money-saving reforms in the cash-strapped organization, while many developing nations called for an even more active United Nations and complained of big-power domination.

Czech President Vaclav Havel said the get-together, while a good idea, left him unsatisfied.

"I would find it even more important if they had been able to achieve a greater measure of agreement," he said as the meeting wound up.

More than 180 kings, princes, presidents and prime ministers capped their gathering Tuesday by resolving to "create new opportunities for peace, development, democracy and cooperation."

In a unanimously adopted declaration, they called for reforming the powerful Security Council, where the five World War II victors - the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China - still have a veto.

But the seven-page declaration, worked out in months of haggling, offered few detailed ideas "to ensure that the United Nations of the future serves well the people in whose name it was established."

In a parting shot at the United States, it demanded that member-states pay their bills "in full and on time."

Washington is the United Nations' biggest deadbeat, owing $1.3 billion of a $3 billion U.N. budget shortfall. President Clinton promised to work with the Republican-controlled Congress to pay the U.S. debt. But he insisted the United Nations slash spending, reduce its bureaucracy and streamline overlapping agencies.

Those goals were also reflected in the final declaration's call for a more efficient U.N. bureaucracy.

The Czech president offered some of the most striking reform ideas: a standing U.N. strike force "capable of stopping aggressors" and a small income tax on the world's citizens to help fund U.N. operations.

Other countries used their time at the podium to draw attention to problems at home.

Bosnian President Alija

Izetbegovic bitterly criticized a lack of U.N. resolve he blames for war in his country.

Libya and Iraq, both under U.N. sanctions, railed against the United Nations.

Small island-nations warned that sea changes brought on by global warming could wipe them out.

Cuban President Fidel Castro used his first trip to New York in 16 years partly to woo U.S. investors.

While leaders spoke in the General Assembly Hall, which often was nearly empty, noisy protesters pressed their causes on the streets. On Tuesday, 800 Taiwanese marched through Manhattan denouncing China's human rights record.

Despite the problems, many world leaders said the United Nations had much of which to be proud.

"The United Nations remains humankind's beacon of hope," said Indian Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao.

Jury awards $495,000 to woman in trial on phone eavesdropping

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A jury has found Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. negligent in its response to a San Antonio woman's complaint that a company employee was eavesdropping on her private phone conversations.

Jurors in the state civil court case awarded plaintiff Virginia Pawlik $245,000 in actual damages Monday and on Tuesday set punitive damages at $250,000.

Ms. Pawlik said her case exemplifies how advanced technology makes it easy to monitor phone calls without a physical "wiretap." She said she hopes the verdict makes the phone company more accountable for employees' actions.

"I hope they got the message," she said. "They will probably pay closer attention to the complaints that they get."

Southwestern Bell contended it investigated Ms. Pawlik's complaints of line interference and found no evidence of wiretapping or monitoring. If it had, the company would have taken swift disciplinary action, Southwestern Bell lawyer Diego Pena said.

The company said it would appeal.

"We are disappointed by the verdict and do not believe the evidence supported the jury's decision," said company spokesman Bob Ferguson.

"We plan to appeal this decision and are confident that we acted properly and thoroughly in this matter. At Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. we take issues of privacy very seriously and constantly are working to ensure the integrity of our network," he said.

Ms. Pawlik, a former Southwestern Bell employee, claimed she experienced unusual pops, clicks and disconnections on her home and work phones for about three years beginning in 1988 after the breakup of her relationship with another Southwestern Bell engineering department employee.

The man she had dated, Joe Buckland, repeated things to her that only could have been overheard on her telephone conversations, Ms. Pawlik claimed.

Buckland was laid off by the company in 1993. There was no connection between the layoff and Ms. Pawlik's complaint, Pena said.

Buckland did not return a telephone call from The Associated Press on Tuesday.

Ms. Pawlik said her lawsuit against him was settled earlier this year for about $5,000.

She contended Buckland could have listened in on her phone line through remote access monitoring, which is done electronically with an access code, without placing an actual wiretap on a phone line.

Remote access monitoring is used by the telephone company for checking the quality of phone service. Only certain employees have the authority and the ability to do it, and Buckland did not, Pena said.

Ed Kalka, whom Ms. Pawlik dated later, sued Southwestern Bell along with her, claiming he suspected unauthorized monitoring of his phone line. Jurors did not award Kalka any money.

The plaintiffs said they had gone to the FBI and the Texas Department of Public Safety and to high-ranking Southwestern Bell officials with their complaints and the names of people to question for suspected eavesdropping.

They claimed the phone company did not conduct a thorough investigation.

Roberts also argued that phone company records connected to the case mysteriously disappeared.

Youngsters, found in New Orleans, returned to parents

By ED WHITE
Associated Press Writer
BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) - With Spanish music accompanying their parents' cries of joy, two kidnapped brothers returned home to their wooden hut on a migrant farm after a 10-day odyssey that ended in New Orleans.

"Gracias, gracias, gracias," Martin Alvarado said Tuesday night with 3-year-old son Eleazar in his arms and 11-year-old Adan by his side.

"My children were once lost," he said. "With everybody helping, here they are."

The boys, who disappeared Oct. 14 after buying potato chips at a convenience store near their home, were found by the FBI in New Orleans' French Quarter along with the man who allegedly snatched them.

Agents arrested Boyd Dean Weekley, 24, an ex-convict from South Dakota who only two weeks earlier - with the help of a priest - had been bailed out of jail on child-fondling charges.

When asked if the suspect had been "bad" to them, Adan replied, "a little." An FBI agent with the family declined to comment on whether the boys had been physically abused. Many other questions also remained unanswered, including why the boys had been taken and driven south.

"They're putting the pieces together," said an FBI agent who spoke on condition of anonymity. "Everything has happened so fast."

Agents said they acted on a tip to make the arrest. They had narrowed their search to the South after getting reports that the boys had been seen in Montgomery, Ala., late last week.

The Topeka (Kan.) Capital Journal reported today that one tip came from vacationing Topeka stockbroker Lou Allen, who said she spotted the suspect walking down a New Orleans street followed by two children with a much darker complexion.

"They had a lethargic expression on their face. They looked lost and afraid," Allen said.

When she saw the boys' photographs on the TV news, she called the FBI.

Agents searching the French Quarter spotted Weekley outside the stolen car he allegedly used to drive the boys from Michigan. The boys were in the car.

Weekley, wearing a purple tie-dyed T-shirt, dirty black jeans and hiking boots, was ordered held without bail.

He was charged in August with fondling an 8-year-old girl at a Sioux Falls, S.D., swimming pool. He was released in September after relatives and a prison chaplain, the Rev. Larry Rucker, raised $500 to secure his $5,000 bail.

"I was burned. I'm sorry it ever happened," said Rucker, who met Weekley when the man was serving time a few years ago for forgery and attempted escape. He insisted Weekley was not violent.

Maria and Martin Alvarados are migrant farm workers from Texas who for the past four years have traveled to Michigan with their nine children to pick fruits and vegetables.

When word came that their sons had been found, the couple boarded a donated private jet to New Orleans' Lakefront Airport, where the boys squealed "Mom!" at a joyous reunion. Both parents cried almost uncontrollably.

Wearing a children's police badge, Adan said: "They looked for us and they found us. It's nice."

The family flew back to Michigan late Tuesday night.

The Alvarados said the fact that they are migrants who spoke little English complicated the police search. The parents are permanent U.S. residents from Monterrey, Mexico. Some of their children are Mexican citizens, and the younger ones are U.S. citizens.

It wasn't until Mrs. Alvarado passed a lie detector, she said, that police broadened their search.

Benton Township police wouldn't comment. Willie Askew, township clerk, said it made sense for police to look at the family first.

"I'm sure they are going to think about the Susan Smith situation. So often it seems like there is an estranged family member involved," Askew told the Detroit Free Press.

Susan Smith was the South Carolina mother who reported that her two young sons had been kidnapped but later admitted drowning them. She was sentenced to life in prison.

had a flashback to a shopping trip when I tried to convince my own mother that without a pair of five-inch bare-straps platform shoes, I would be banished from every social function on campus. My mom gave in. So did I. I must have inherited her soft spot. It's located right near my wallet.

"Adolescence bubbled up again when I dropped my boy off for his first day at middle school. I leaned over to kiss his cheek, as I have every single day of his life, and he pushed me away in horror.

"Not here, Mom!" he gasped. "Somebody might see!" We compromised on a cordial, business-like handshake. I drove away with a heavy sigh. Not only am I a dork in my son's eyes, but now I have Mom Cooties as well.

"I knew the teen years were imminent when we went to McDonald's. I began to order his usual fare--a Chicken McNugget Happy Meal--when my son stepped in to correct me. He ordered adult-sized McNuggets, fries and a shake. The exact same thing that comes in a Happy Meal. For about a dollar less.

"Amazed, I pointed out that he'd only get the cute little toy with a Happy Meal. Again I got the rolled-eyes treatment. "Mom, don't you think I'm a little old for toys?" he asked.

"Too old for toys. What a sad thought. I wondered if this would be the first Christmas when I wouldn't buy any toys to put under the tree. I asked him if this meant he liked girls now. He informed me that girls were stupid. I breathed a little sigh of relief. For now.

"I realized that my son is entering that awkward 'too old for toys, too young for girls' stage. Not really a child, not really a teenager. Some people call a child at this stage of development a 'tweenager.'

"My own label for this stage is 'pubert.' There's a subtle ickiness to the word that captures the essence of an 11-year-old boy.

"I had a long talk with my pubert about hormones. I told him how he'd get all hairy and smelly and sound like a frog with laryngitis. I told him testosterone would make him really itchy, as evidenced by the fact that most men seem to spend a lot of time scratching.

"I told him he'd wake up one day and be more interested in girls than video games. And when all that happened, he'd hate me for about 10 years and think I was weird and stupid.

"I already think you're weird and stupid," he responded, looking at me as if I were some vile strain of slime mold. But then he cracked a smile and added, "not!" and allowed me one brief cuddle.

"A reprieve. At least for a little while. The hormones may be simmering, but they're not at a full boil yet."

AUSTIN — Though early voting continues until Nov. 3, Secretary of State Tony Garza predicts only one of every 10 registered voters is likely to cast a ballot in the Nov. 7 constitutional amendment election, which includes 14 propositions.

That works out to an anemic turnout — about 870,000 voters exercising their privilege (and duty).

"Quite frankly, that's not a number Texans should be proud of when you consider we're talking about amending our state constitution," Garza said.

He pointed out that turnout in constitutional amendment elections since 1977 has exceeded 14.1 percent only twice: in 1987, for the pari-mutuel racing referendum, and in 1991, for the state lottery amendment.

Four propositions on the ballot deal with state bond debt and six deal with property tax exemptions.

The most highly publicized among the propositions is Prop. 10, concerning the elimination of the state treasurer's office. Abolishing the office would cut three-fourths of the agency's $11 million annual budget and merge its duties with those of the state comptroller's office. Prop. 10 has the support of state Treasurer Martha Whitehead, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and Comptroller John Sharp. All are Democrats.

Though doing away with the treasurer's office would save taxpayers' money, Texas Republican Party Chairman Tom Pauken and other GOP members have voiced concern that putting the duties of the treasurer's office under Sharp's control would give the Democrat too much power.

Commerce Chief Under Fire
As director of the Texas Department of Commerce, it's Brenda Arnett's job to attract business to Texas. Doing that requires travel.

Since May, Arnett's travels have cost more than $11,000. Expenses totaling $6,400 also have been charged to the agency for employees who have accompanied her on those trips, according to documents examined by Waco-based Texas State Agencies Newsletter.

The Newsletter also studied her phone bills. Arnett said she made $526 in calls on state business while vacationing in Mexico in March, and said she reimbursed the state for $137.19 in personal calls, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

Gov. George W. Bush, who appointed Arnett, called her a "tireless advocate for Texas" and said her position and responsibilities require extensive travel at home and abroad.

State Rep. Robert Junell, D-San Angelo, who serves as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said he has offered Arnett advice on travel and related expenditures, but added, "It's not my job to be all monitor..."

Junell, like other state lawmakers, has criticized the Department of Commerce, and questioned the need for the agency. Problems over travel costs also plagued the Commerce Department during the Richards administration.

TDCJ May Choose Director

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice will meet Oct. 24 in San Antonio to interview candidates and possibly select a new executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice who will succeed James A. "Andy" Collins.

Collins resigned Sept. 14, but is continuing in office until a successor is named.

The board is to interview seven qualified candidates, including:

- D. Wayne Scott, director, Institutional Division, TDCJ, Huntsville;
- William R. Starling, contract monitor, TDCJ Parole Division, Austin;
- Charles M. Greer, associate warden, Federal Bureau of Prisons, Dublin, Calif.;
- James T. Henderson, panel analyst, Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles, Gatesville;

■ Norman Allred, deputy director, Defense Special Missile and Astronautical Center, Fort Meade, Md.;

■ Tommy A. Baucum, chief, Planning, Development and Procedures, executive services and planning, TDCJ, Houston; and

■ Henry M. Falgoust, assistant regional director I, TDCJ Parole Division, Tyler.

Seidlits to Leave Office
State Rep. Curtis Seidlits, D-Sherman, is planning to leave office and go to work for the Association of Electric Cooperatives of Texas, the American-Statesman reported last week.

The group represents the state's 10 investor-owned utilities.

Seidlits, who served as chairman of the House State Affairs Committee during the last legislative session, wrote much of the telecommunications deregulation bill, derailed term-limits legislation and sponsored new regulations for the power industry.

Other Highlights

■ The State Board of Education has approved a 70 percent passing standard on the state's new end-of-course algebra test despite projections that three out of four students will fail. "If the teachers out there are not teaching it, this test will pretty well tell the world that they're not teaching what we require to be taught," said Will Davis, a board member from Austin.

■ During his fund-raising swing through Texas last week, President Clinton told San Antonio's Kelly Air Force Base workers that he is working to preserve their jobs. He said the five-year plan to phase out the base and transfer many of the jobs to the private sector will work. "We are not shutting this base down," Clinton said. "We are transforming it."

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It took a bit longer than 9-1/2 weeks, but Kim Basinger and Alec Baldwin have announced a new production: a daughter.

Ireland Eliesse Baldwin, weighing 8 pounds, 3 ounces, was born Monday at a Los Angeles-area hospital, said Sandy Rice, a publicist for the actress.

It's the first child for the couple. Basinger starred in "9-1/2 Weeks." Baldwin was in "The Shadow" and "Glengarry Glen Ross."

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) - Shawntel Smith, crowned Miss America last month, is spreading her gospel about the importance of career-oriented education.

"Learning is earning. Our education takes us where we want to be," Smith said Monday in her keynote address at Ventura County's first School-to-Career Conference, part of a national program begun last year.

The program is designed to challenge local governments, school systems and businesses to guide students into the workplace.

Smith made School-to-Work the centerpiece of her pageant platform. She now acts as an ambassador for the U.S. Education Department program.

"Young people need help in making the transition from the classroom to the workplace," she said.

Sales of previously-owned homes climb for fifth consecutive month

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Sales of previously owned homes rose in September for the fifth straight month to their highest level in nearly two years.

The National Association of Realtors said today that low mortgage rates helped sales of existing single-family homes climb 0.7 percent last month. They totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4.15 million, up from 4.12 million in August and the highest rate since 4.17 million in January 1994.

Sales rose in the Northeast and Midwest but slipped in the South and West.

Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.64 percent in September, down from 7.86 percent the previous month and from a recent high of 9.19 percent last December.

The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $699, compared to $805 for the same loan with a 9 percent rate.

Character actress dies after surgery

By The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mary Wickes, an actress who played a spirited nun in "Sister Act," died Sunday following complications from surgery. She was 79.

Wickes' credits included 50 movies, 27 Broadway productions and 10 TV series.

Wickes appeared opposite Whoopi Goldberg as Sister Mary Lazarus in "Sister Act" and "Sister Act II: Back in the Habit."

Her other films include "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Now, Voyager," "White Christmas," "Little Women," "The Music Man," and the voice of a gargoyle named Laverne in the upcoming Disney animated feature, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

On television, she played Marie, the busybody housekeeper on "Father Dowling Mysteries."

One of the finest accomplishments is making a long story short. —Kin Hubbard

The savings has been a boon to purchasers. "First-time buyers who were priced out a year ago are now finding they can make the stretch," said John Tuccillo, chief economist for the National Association of Realtors.

The median price of an existing home in September was $115,200, down from $117,600 in August. The median is the midpoint, meaning half the homes cost more and half less.

Sales rose 3.8 percent in the Midwest last month to a 1.10 million rate. The median price was $96,600. In the Northeast, sales advanced 1.7 percent to a rate of 610,000 and the median price was $137,600. They fell 1.1 percent in the West to a rate of 890,000. The median price was $150,200. In the South, sales slipped 1.3 percent to 1.54 million, with the median price $98,400.

Lady Whitefaces dump Dumas for 1-4A crown

Herd comes from seven points down in third game for dramatic victory

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

All the Lady Whitefaces volleyball team had to do to win the program's first outright district title Tuesday in Dumas was come back from a loss in the first game and come back from an 11-4 deficit in the third game.

No problem. For good measure, the Hereford team skunked the Demonettes (15-0) in the second game of the match. They went on to outscore Dumas 11-4 down the stretch of the third game, ending up with an 8-15, 15-0, 15-12 win.

"This is the first time we've ever done this," senior setter Brittney Binder said after being pulled from a mass of celebrating players and fans. "I have no way to explain how excited I am."

Hereford improved to 24-3 overall and 11-0 in District 1-4A with one match left in the regular season - Caprock Saturday in Hereford. Dumas slipped to 15-9 and 9-2, with both district losses to Hereford.

"They're the best team in the state," Dumas coach Jack Wilson said, not arguing with Hereford's No. 1 ranking in Class 4A by the Texas Girls Coaches Association.

"They've got to be good to beat us," Wilson said. "Congratulations to them. Hopefully we'll meet in the regional finals."

Tuesday's match was nothing like the first meeting between the two, a 15-4, 15-2 win by the Herd in Hereford. While Tuesday's second game went quickly - Hereford finished the shutout with 10 points on one rotation - the first and third games included many more sideouts than actual points.

One of the few runs of consecutive points came in the third game, when Dumas scored five in a row, helping the Demonettes to an 8-3 lead, then an 11-4 lead.

Things looked bad for Hereford at that point, but the Herd started to slowly chip away at that lead without letting Dumas score.

"We were thinking about cutting down on the unforced errors - that's what killed us (in game one and early in game three)," senior hitter Tarabeth Holmes said. "We were trying to be aggressive and not cautious. A lot of it was not letting them score, and if they were going to score, make 'em earn it."

Hereford scored on a Danielle Cornelius' ace and a couple of Dumas errors, all separated by several sideouts. Dumas scored only once more, when Hereford was called in the net, making the Dumas lead 12-7.

Heather Hodges served an ace for Hereford's eighth point. After a pair of sideouts, Hereford got three points in a row on kills by Binder, Holmes and Cornelius, pulling the Herd to within 12-11.

Of the next 13 volleys, 12 resulted in sideouts, as neither team allowed the other to score - except for when Dumas was called in the net, tying the score at 12-12. During this stretch, Dumas seemed to dig every hit Hereford sent over the net.

"As well as Dumas played, it was nearly impossible to keep them from scoring points," Herd coach Brenda Reeh said. "Dumas played as good a defense as I've ever seen Dumas play. Some plays they shouldn't have handled, they handled."

Cornelius had a hard kill for the last of those 13 sideouts, then Holmes had consecutive kills for Hereford's 13th and 14th points.

Finally, after another long volley, Cornelius squeezed a hit through a Dumas blocker's hands. The ball fell behind the blocker, and all hell broke loose in the home of the Demons.

"We kind of folded our tent there at the end," Wilson said. "We made some physical errors and mental errors. They kept attacking us and we didn't attack them. With a team like Hereford, you need to keep attacking."

Hereford coach Reeh shared what she told the Lady Whitefaces in crunch time.

"Just don't give up, essentially," Reeh said. "We talked about how we have to, it at all possible, shut out everything around us and pretend we're playing one-on-one in the gym. To play the point at hand and don't fear losing. If we had let fear overcome us, we wouldn't have won any of the points."

"When you're in situations where it's that close, sometimes it comes down to who's got the most courage that night," Reeh continued. "I'm very proud of how much character these kids showed."

Hereford sowed the seeds of a comeback in the first game. The Herd didn't play well early in the first game - the team made numerous service errors all night - and hitting errors were a particular problem early on. Dumas took a 10-3 lead largely on Hereford errors.

"I felt like the majority of our errors were due to poor passing," Reeh said. "I didn't feel we hit well early in the first game. We had a couple of kids get good swings, but after that we went through a real lull as far as hitting."

Dumas caught the error bug as Hereford scored four straight, then Catie Betzen had a kill to pull Hereford within 10-8. Hereford didn't score again, and even gave Dumas the 11th-13th points on passing or hitting errors.

A Mindy Ratliff kill gave Dumas its 14th points, and after six sideouts, Dumas won when Hodges hit into the net.

Hereford's Catie Betzen puts up her hands to block a tip by a Dumas hitter. Hereford seized the volleyball program's first outright district championship Tuesday in Dumas, defeating the Demonettes, 8-15; 15-0, 15-12.

HJH football teams sweep four from Borger

The Hereford Junior High football teams swept four games from Borger Tuesday.

The seventh-graders played in Hereford, and HJH's Kyle Artho got the A team started by returning the opening kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. Later, Tim Dudley picked up a blocked punt and returned it 36 yards for a score. Cody Hodges passed to Slade Hodges for a six-yard TD to cap off the 18-0 win.

The B team won 22-6, getting scoring runs of 15 and 65 yards from Clint Swain. Two-point conversions came on a Toby Torres run and a pass from Jeremy Williams to Eric Ramos. Javier Alonzo tacked on a 40-yard TD run later.

In Borger, the Hereford eighth grade A team won 21-12, getting three long touchdown runs from Greg Ewing. The first two were both 50-yards, and L.J. Vallejo ran for two points after one of them. Borger pulled to within 14-12 with four minutes left in the game, so Ewing uncorked a 65-yard TD run, and Jerry Nanes' kick put the game away.

The B team won 20-0. Matt Lusk hit Julian Garcia with a 70-yard touchdown bomb on Hereford's second play from scrimmage. Eddie Dominguez ran 15 yards for the second TD, after which Lusk and Garcia hooked up for a two-pointer.

Perfecto Macha capped the game with a 30-yard scoring run.

Deion to play on Sunday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - Prime Time will get his playing time in Atlanta.

Look for Deion Sanders on both offense and defense Sunday, but he likely won't be returning any kicks.

Sanders has been cleared by the NFL to play in against the Falcons even though the league has ruled his contract invalid, Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said Tuesday.

"I have been assured by the league that they won't try to keep Deion from playing in Atlanta," Jones said. "It will be great to finally have Deion in the lineup."

The NFL told Jones in a letter last Friday night that the seven-year, $35 million contract is $1.39 million over the salary cap and therefore invalid. The NFL called again Tuesday to tell the Cowboys that Sanders can suit up while the league seeks a confirmation from U.S. District Judge David Doty that the contract circumvents the salary cap.

The NFL Players Association will appeal the disapproval of the contract. Under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement between the league and the players, there is a five-day stay of the disapproval, allowing Sanders to play Sunday.

Murray's 11th inning RBI gets Tribe back in Series

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) - Let's face it, this World Series would have been over if the Cleveland Indians had lost Game 3.

People wouldn't have watched tonight. They would have counted down the days until the Florida-Florida State game and the start of the NBA season. They would have checked the NHL standings closely for the first time.

They'd forget about the Braves and the Indians, figuring the outcome was all but certain.

Now, they don't have to. The suspense is back in the World Series.

The Indians kept the postseason interesting by beating the Atlanta Braves 7-6 in 11 innings Tuesday night on Eddie Murray's RBI single.

"It was a huge win for us. I don't think there's been a team in history that has come back from 3-0. So it was a big win for us emotionally, physically, the whole gamut," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said.

It would have been a devastating loss.

The Indians blew a 4-1 lead, and the fans were booing the manager as they fell behind 6-5 in the eighth. They were facing the prospect of a 3-0 deficit, a hole that no baseball team had ever climbed out of in the World Series or any other part of the postseason.

This city that had waited since 1954 to make it back to the World Series was ready to give up, to thank its Tribe for taking them this far and to hunker down for another windy winter.

But the Indians, masters of the late-night comeback, did their thing.

They scored a run in the bottom of the eighth to tie it, survived a two-on, two-out threat in the ninth, another nail-biter in the 10th and got Atlanta manager Bobby Cox to remove closer Mark Wohlers heading into the bottom of the 11th.

After that, it ended quickly. Carlos Baerga doubled to dead center, Albert Belle was intentionally walked and Eddie Murray singled off Alejandro Pena. The throw home was up the third-base line, and the game was over. Jacobs Field was jubilant.

"It's nice to get this little World Series jinx over with and get on with the Series," Murray said. "We worked pretty hard. It should have been over with a lot sooner."

"We were a little bit timid the first couple of games. We had a little pep talk in the clubhouse that Kenny Lofton initiated to talk about how we needed to get out there, relax and let our talent take over and not try to overdo things," Sandy Alomar said.

Lofton reached base all six times he came to bat, getting three singles and three walks. The first three hitters in the order went 8-for-15 with six runs and four RBIs. And the defense, the most underrated part of Cleveland's attack, ended the final four innings with nifty plays.

Atlanta left four runners on base in the final four innings - three in scoring position - and had two others erased on inning-ending double plays.

"We had several chances to drive in the winning run and we didn't. They were in the same boat, too. It was just a matter of time," Cox said.

The win was the Indians' 29th in their last at-bat this year and made them 22-2 in one-run decisions at home and 15-1 overall in extra innings.

Cleveland stopped a six-game World Series losing streak dating to 1954. The Braves, meanwhile, had their seven-game winning string in this postseason snapped.

Murray's single ended a game that lasted 4 hours, 9 minutes. The only Series game to take longer - five minutes more - was Toronto's 15-14 victory over Philadelphia in 1993.

"We had to win," Hargrove said. "We win tonight, or chances are we're going home earlier than we planned."

Cleveland took a 2-1 lead in the first on Omar Vizquel's RBI triple and Carlos Baerga's run-scoring groundout. The lead grew to 4-1 in the third when Baerga and Belle had back-to-back RBI hits.

Atlanta got solo homers from Ryan Klesko and Fred McGriff to make it 4-3, then went ahead in the eighth on an RBI single by Luis Polonia that knocked out Charles Nagy, David Justice's run-scoring grounder and Mike Devereaux's RBI single.

The Indians tied it in the bottom of the inning as Sandy Alomar doubled on the first pitch from Wohlers, driving in Manny Ramirez, and from there the game went into extra innings and reliever Jose Mesa got out of trouble three straight times for Cleveland.

In the ninth, Atlanta had runners on first and second with Chipper Jones up, but his sharp grounder to first was grabbed by Herbert Perry near the foul line. Had the ball got past him, it would have been a double and one or two more runs would have scored.

"It was just a line drive hit to my left with topspin. It started at me, then started running away from me, but I stayed with it as much as I could. I felt it hit my glove, was like 'All right and I ran to first base."

"It was the play of the game," Cleveland manager Hargrove said.

Alejandro Pena came on to pitch the 11th, and Murray ended it to atone for an 0-for-5 start to the night.

"You hate to see him coming up in that situation. He's a big-time, late-inning player when the game's on the line. That's the situation he'd probably rather be in," Devereaux said.

Now, the Indians have avoided a situation they probably couldn't have recovered from. And there's still reason to watch the World Series.

Bengals sign ex-Steeler Foster

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Bengals are making no promises about the role 1992 AFC rushing champion Barry Foster will play now that they have signed him to a contract.

The former Pro Bowl running back, the Pittsburgh Steelers' fifth-leading career rusher, said Tuesday he's happy to be back in the NFL. He was released by the Carolina Panthers prior to the season and said it had occurred to him that his NFL career might be over at age 26.

"It was beginning to look that way," Foster said.

He rejected Cincinnati's effort to sign him three weeks ago for a reported $1 million for this year, but said the Bengals' televised 27-9 victory over Pittsburgh last week rekindled his interest.

Coach Dave Shula said Foster would give the Bengals some depth. But Shula said he was concerned that Foster's arrival could upset players involved in the team's resurgent offense.

"We've got a pretty good thing going here on offense," Shula said. "We don't want to upset the apple cart."

Foster said he wants to fit in, but it is the coaches' job to ensure team unity.

"I'm a man enough to handle it. I think everybody knows it's a business. Players come and go," Foster said. "I feel like I can help any team. When I'm healthy, I think I'm one of the best."

Foster will be a free agent after this season, but the Bengals retained the right to match any offer to him.

"I got tired of sitting around. I watched these guys play Thursday and I was impressed," Foster said. "The only thing they told me is I'll have to prove my way and earn my keep."

He likely will be a backup to starter Harold Green. Foster's presence could mean less playing time for backup Eric Bienenmy.

Foster hasn't been promised a starting job and will have to work his way into the Bengals' offense, Shula said. Foster likely will not be in uniform for Sunday's home game against the Cleveland Browns so he can have time to get in shape and learn the offense.

Foster said he hopes to be in shape to play in two weeks. Bengals coaches expected him to work out in pads for the first time in practice today.

Foster, released by Carolina after the Panthers obtained him in a May 30 trade with the Steelers, has been criticized for having poor work habits. Foster said he didn't know where that got started.

"We'd heard everything and checked it out as best as we could," Shula said.

Jordan Woy, Foster's agent, said Foster considered the Bengals a good opportunity to get back into the NFL and demonstrate that he can still play.

Woy said the Bengals asked him not to release contract details. But Woy confirmed it was approximately a $1 million deal for this season.

The Bengals cleared a roster spot for Foster by terminating the contract of backup quarterback Erik Wilhelm, 29, a six-year pro from Oregon State who did not play this season.

errors in the second game. Cornelius and Betzen had kills to start the Herd out 2-0, then Hodges served an ace for a 3-0 lead. Soon after, a Cornelius stuff and a Kari Barrett ace made it 5-0.

Six sideouts followed without a point for either side, until Binder stepped to the service line. She didn't leave, serving for the next 10 points. Her serves kept Dumas off-balance; she was credited with an ace for the 12th point, but many of the others were nearly aces as Dumas couldn't mount an effective attack.

"We've worked on serving aggressively," Binder said. "Our goal was to get a free ball back on every serve. I just knew I had to go out and be aggressive."

While Dumas made several errors, Hodges had two kills during the run, and Cornelius, Betzen and Julie Rampley each had one. Betzen and Rampley combined on a stuff block for the 15th point.

"Dumas eased up a bit," Reeh said of the second game avalanche. "They made many more errors than in the first or third games. (But) our kids got hot - Heather had a run of several kills. She was busting the ball."

Agent watched after tampering with Frogs' star

HOUSTON (AP) - A sports agent who reportedly made purchases for Texas Christian tailback Andre Davis, a former wide receiver and a Mississippi player is the subject of a state investigation.

Sources familiar with TCU and Jackson State matters told the Houston Chronicle in today's editions the NCAA obtained documents showing agent Jeffrey Newport purchased disability insurance for Davis, a Jackson wide receiver and a former TCU wide receiver.

The Texas Secretary of State's office is investigating whether Newport violated state law in his dealings with Davis, Jackson's Greg Spann and former wide receiver Jimmy Oliver, and other college athletes, according to the Chronicle.

"We have made contacts with individuals," Guy Joyner, who directs the Secretary of State's efforts to regulate sports agents, told the newspaper. "We are doing the usual investigating."

Texas' athlete agent law, enacted in 1987, prescribes civil and criminal penalties for sports agents who offer cash or other gifts to athletes competing for state colleges and universities.

Texas Christian withheld Davis, the Southwest Conference's leading rusher, from last Saturday's game with Tulane pending completion of their inquiry.

The TCU investigation is being conducted by Mike Glazier, the Overland Park, Kan., attorney who directed the Southwest Conference inquiry of the Baylor basketball program.

But Davis' status for the Horned Frogs' game at Baylor on Saturday has not been determined.

Joyner, who directs the Secretary of State's efforts to regulate sports agents, said Tuesday he began looking into Newport's activities after finding the agent's relationship with Davis was the focus of an investigation by TCU and the NCAA.

Sources said documents obtained by the NCAA show Newport bought disability insurance last December.

A check in the amount of $5,940 was drawn Dec. 29, 1994, on Newport's account and made payable to Pro Financial Services of Schaumburg, Ill., the chief U.S. correspondent for Lloyd's of London.

A notation on the check indicates it was for the three players, according to the newspaper.

National Collegiate Athletic Association rules prohibit college athletes from receiving cash or other favors from agents.

An athlete found to have violated the regulations can lose his eligibility and must seek to have it restored by the NCAA.

Under NCAA rules, Davis and Spann could not receive disability insurance through the arrangements of an agent.

Newport, 40, has represented former Rockets guard Vernon Maxwell in a variety of legal matters.

"We are conducting an internal investigation in concert with the NCAA," said TCU athletic director Frank Windeger. "We would like to see the matter resolved by the end of the week, and we would like to see it resolved favorably, with Andre able to play."

Jackson State officials, who have withheld Spann from the Tigers' game with Grambling last Saturday, are working with the NCAA to determine the nature of Spann's dealings with Newport.

Another facet of the Davis investigation, sources said, is an attempt to find if Newport provided gifts to the player during a shopping trip to a Galleria-area clothing store.

NFL Players Association records show Newport has been certified by that organization to serve as an agent for professional football players since February 1994.

Moon's court appearances set

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) - Warren Moon didn't enter a plea but his wife, Felicia, did.

Moon, charged with misdemeanor assault on his wife in a July 18 incident at the family home, agreed to a series of court appearances on Tuesday but was not required to enter a plea in the case.

Mrs. Moon, however, renewed her wish for the court to drop the charges resulting from a 911 call by their 7-year old son, Jeffrey, to the couple's Lake Olympia home.

"Warren and I have been through tremendous problems," she said. "I beg you to allow our family the opportunity to heal. I understand the media has a job to do, but enough is enough when it gets down to vicious rumors."

Mrs. Moon's pleas won't keep Fort Bend County District Attorney John Healey from proceeding with the case. Healey said it wasn't up to victims to decide if a case should go forward.

"It's not a matter of forcing anyone to do anything," Healey said. "Texas is the moving party in any case. Batterers for years have hidden behind people, witnesses and victims."

"I'm not saying that's the case here, but health care providers believe there can't be any real healing without accountability."

Moon will return to court Jan. 18 for pre-trial motions, while the trial was set for Feb. 13.

The incident occurred at the couple's Lake Olympia mansion, southwest of Houston. Jeffrey Moon placed a 911 call to Missouri City police that an assault was taking place.

Mrs. Moon later told investigators that her husband slapped and choked her to the point that she almost passed out, but she broke free and fled in her car. She said Moon chased her in his car before the couple eventually returned home.

She has declined to press charges since the incident, but prosecutors have decided to file criminal charges anyway.

Bobbi Blackwell, Mrs. Moon's attorney, read a statement that indicated her client's wishes that the courts would drop the matter.

"She would like for the government to get out of their house and let them get on with their lives," Blackwell said. "She feels she is in the best position to meet the needs of her family."

Mrs. Moon said the entire family was involved in family counseling and that her husband attends sessions twice weekly.

"As a result of all of this, Warren and I have realized how much we forgot to appreciate each other," she said. "No one in the sound of my voice ... can say they haven't done something wrong at sometime."

Kirbyjohn Caldwell, pastor at the Windsor Methodist Church, accompanied the Moons to the

COWBOYS

Jones said the NFL didn't mention anything about Sanders playing for the rest of the year, but added, "They don't have a case and we'll still be playing Deion. They didn't say about the remainder of the season. But the main concern I have is for down the road and not for 1995."

Sanders, who has been recovering from ankle surgery since baseball season ended, will make his Dallas debut against one of his former teams, the Falcons.

Coach Barry Switzer said, "Deion at cornerback will allow us to do some things differently. On offense, he will get into the game (as a receiver). We've got four or five plays he can run."

"He's trying to shake off the rust, the cobwebs," Switzer added. "At some point and time, he will return kicks. He's not ready for the total package yet. He hasn't had enough hearing and also asked that the case be dropped.

"We all appeal to everyone that this not be tried in the media," Caldwell said. "Resolution of this case should be done within the family."

If convicted, Moon could face up to one year in jail and a $4,000 fine, time to get ready for all three phases."

Jones said the contract dispute with NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue is headed for the court of Judge Doty in Minneapolis.

"Judge Doty will ultimately hear the issue," Jones said. "The (NFL) challenge is wishy washy at best. They change their position as days go by. Of course, they could say next week Deion can't play. They could say anything. They have been all over the lot on this thing. As far as the numbers are concerned, you can make them say anything."

Tagliabue and the NFL Management Council met with the NFL Players Association executive director Gene Upshaw and lawyers representing Sanders and the Cowboys on Tuesday.

Aggie LB Walker honored by SWC

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

Texas A&M linebacker Larry Walker had just lost his starting job to a redshirt freshman, but he didn't let that get him down.

Walker blocked a punt that led to a touchdown and swung the momentum in the Aggies' favor in a 24-9 victory over Baylor Saturday.

For his efforts, Walker has been named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week.

Texas kicker Phil Dawson, who hit a 50-yard field goal with no time left to give Texas a 17-16 victory against Virginia, is the AP's SWC Offensive Player of the Week.

Walker lost his starting linebacking job during practice last week to redshirt freshman Warrick Holdman. But he took the field against the Bears on Saturday with a fresh attitude.

"Our coaches always teach us to do your best in whatever role you're asked to play," Walker said.

His block of a punt by Baylor's Ty Attebury gave the Aggies the ball on the Bears 19, leading to a 17-yard TD pass from Corey Pullig to Albert Connell in the first quarter and triggering 21 unanswered points by A&M.

Iowa fans anger Fry by throwing objects

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) - Iowa coach Hayden Fry says that Hawkeyes fans who throw objects from the stands at Kinnick Stadium should be jailed.

Fans reached a new low last Saturday when they tossed a hog's head during the Hawkeyes' game with Penn State. Other debris included a full whiskey bottle and a full can of beer. The beers struck Hawkeye assistant coach Milan Vooletich.

Fry said Tuesday that such behavior is not only dangerous, "it hurts our image."

"It's national TV or regional TV,

"We lost the game on the blocked punt," said Baylor coach Chuck Reedy.

The block also allowed Walker to make up for a roughing penalty he was flagged for on Baylor's first punt. That miscue kept a drive alive for the Bears and resulted in a field goal for a 3-0 lead.

"I thought I was blocked into the guy," Walker said. "It brought our defense back on the field, and I really felt bad about it. But coach told me just to take advantage of the next opportunity."

Dawson also got to make up for missed opportunities. He missed field goal attempts of 52 and 57 yards earlier in the game against Virginia and hoped for another chance.

He got it with three seconds left in the game and the ball sitting on the 33-yard-line with a 20 mph wind blowing in his face.

"When I was lining it up, I knew I had to hit it hard and I knew how the wind was going to affect it, but in the back of my head I really didn't think I was going to make it," Dawson said. "I was barely making (40-yard kicks) before the game. But right after I kicked it, I said, 'Oh my gosh, that has a chance.'" and it's going across to people who've never been to Iowa in their life, and they get the image that we're all a bunch of clucks," the coach said.

School officials said they are upset, as Fry said they should be. "They're our students, primarily. We have to put our foot down," he said. "We've got 'no drinking' rules or 'no smoking' in certain places. Why can't we stop people from being idiots?"

Fry said he knows what he would do if he caught anyone throwing things on the field.

"Lock 'em up," he said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm an attractive 23-year-old woman with a great job, money in the bank, and a wonderful fiancé. You'd think I haven't a worry in the world, but I'm a nervous wreck because I don't know how to tell my fiancé about my fetish.

When I'm feeling really stressed or tired, I dress and act like a baby. I have adult-size diapers, rubber pants, baby pajamas, etc. I put these on, feed myself baby food from a jar and drink juice from a bottle. Then I fall asleep with a pacifier and a "blankie."

This soothes me because I imagine I'm being taken care of by a loving father. I wake up in the morning refreshed and ready to take on my responsibilities.

I've had this fetish since childhood. I was an only child, and my mother died when I was very young. My father raised me on his own. He worked long hours, so the only real chance we had to talk was at night. The first thing he did when he came home from work was diaper me because I wet the bed. I stopped the bedwetting at age 12, and that was the end of a lot of attention from my father. I would occasionally wear a diaper under my pajamas, but after Dad caught me, he threw the diapers away and I no longer wore them.

I am perfectly normal except for this kinkiness, but I now I can't keep it from my fiancé forever. I just can't muster the courage to tell him, and I'm desperate for help. Please advise. -- Twenty-Three-Year-Old Baby in Ohio

DEAR OHIO: First, you are not alone. Several males as well as females have a baby fetish. In fact, a few years ago, I saw five grown men on a talk show in rompers and baby bonnets, waving rattles and drinking milk from baby bottles. They all declared that dressing in baby clothes relieved tension and gave them a feeling of contentment and well-being.

Psychiatrists with whom I checked said infantilism is not harmful, but spouses should be told before marriage about this fetish so there will be no surprises. P.S. A father who diapers his daughter until the age of 12 has a geranium in his cranium. But that's another letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a good income and two houses and am above-average in looks. In the last year, I've had relationships with five beautiful women -- ages 22 to 37. These women seem to enjoy the attention, meals, visits to my house in the mountains, gifts, flowers and money I give them to fix things around the house.

I have not had so much as a kiss from any of these females. They go and sleep with some bum and tell me all about it. What's the problem? Is it because they don't want to ruin a good friendship? Or can it be that they are just using me? I think Leo Durocher was right when he said, "Nice guys finish last." Any clues? -- Mr. Outside-Looking-In (Huntington Beach, Calif.)

DEAR MR. O.: You need to sharpen your selection skills. Apparently, you have a knack for dialing wrong numbers.

Stop sending gifts and flowers and giving women money "to fix things around the house." And maybe you'd have better luck if you paid more attention to the plainer Janes and stopped going after the dollies. Try it.

Gem of the Day (Credit Dale Carnegie): The best way to get somebody to do something is to let him think he thought of it and then proceed to give him credit.

"A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day" is the perfect little gift for that special someone who is impossible to buy for. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Collection, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Mexican man claims he invented nachos

Ignacio 'Nacho' Anaya recognized by Mexican government for creating snack sensation

By DAVID McLEMORE
The Dallas Morning News
PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mexico - Some rise to greatness. Some have greatness thrust upon them. For Ignacio Anaya, greatness came with cheese and jalapenos.

For out of necessity and the desire to please, Anaya invented the nacho. In a border town restaurant in 1943. His son said so.

So does the government tourism office of the Mexican state of Coahuila. By formal decree, Saturday was International Day of the Nacho and a bronze plaque was installed in Anaya's honor. Then, the First Annual Nacho Cook-Off was held in Piedras Negras' main plaza.

Over the years, the singular combination of fried corn chips, cheese and jalapenos has blossomed into a culinary staple in the United States. It can be found in its dazzling variety at Tex-Mex restaurants, fast food joints, catered banquets, ballgames and movie theaters.

But the details of how it all started have been shrouded in time. For some of us, anyway.

"My father invented the nacho in 1943," said Ignacio Anaya Jr., a retired banker in the cross-border town of Eagle Pass. "It was at El Moderno Restaurant in Piedras Negras. It never has been a secret."

It seems the senior Anaya, maitre d' at El Moderno, had welcomed a group of U.S. Army officers' wives from Eagle Pass at the restaurant, the younger Anaya said. They wanted some "botanas" or snacks.

Alas, the kitchen staff was gone. Anaya rummaged in the kitchen, grabbed some tostadas (fried corn chips), shredded some cheese and heated them in the oven, topping each chip with a piece of sliced jalapeno. They were, as they say, a hit.

"By the time my father returned with a second platter, the ladies had named the dish 'Nacho's Special,'" Anaya said. "That is the Spanish nickname for Ignacio." With such simplicity, denizens say, history was made.

"I am very proud of the recognition being paid my father," he said. "It was not something he did for fame, but simply to serve his guests."

David Garcia, vice president of B. Martinez & Sons in San Antonio, doesn't want to rain on Anaya's parade. But he finds the concept of inventing the nacho a little hard to swallow.

"I've heard this story before, about the nacho being invented in Piedras Negras. But in my opinion, this is just a very old custom along the border, melting cheese on fried tortilla chips," Garcia said. "It's like saying someone invented the fajita. It's just something people have been doing all their lives."

Garcia brings a certain historical perspective to his opinions. His firm has made tortillas, tamales and other Mexican food products in San Antonio since 1896. "Corn chips are a relatively small percentage of our sales," Garcia said. "Mostly we make those for restaurants along the River Walk, maybe 2,000 pounds a day. We make ours the old-fashioned way, hand-cut and hand-fried."

Like the invention of the margarita, the emergence of the nacho as a cultural icon is typical of folkloric events, said Dr. Jay Ann Cox, a writer and authority on food and folklore in Austin.

"The actual event of creation was an isolated event. The producer was just trying to please customers," she said. "But the cultural importance is attached later, usually by the consumer who is searching for cultural authenticity, the real thing."

The hunt for the "real thing" isn't always successful, Dr. Cox said. "There was a tortilla company in Tucson that marketed a blue tortilla. It was a brilliant turquoise blue. But who would buy it to eat? They invented something no one wanted."

Bob Guidry recalls eating something similar to the nacho as a boy growing up in El Paso during World War II. Except it was a corn tortilla, fried whole, and covered with cheese and peppers. And it's called a quesadilla.

Guidry, now a spokesman for the University of Texas at El Paso, doesn't remember seeing the more bite-sized nacho until he returned to El Paso in the 1950s after a stint in the Navy.

"Maybe this guy in Piedras Negras came up with the idea of cutting the chips into smaller pieces," Guidry said. "That's pretty imaginative. But it doesn't really matter. Nachos are popular because they taste good. Not because of where they were invented."

In Piedras Negras, they might argue that point. Especially at Restaurant El Moderno, which sits where it has since 1936, just across from the central market, only a few blocks from the International Bridge.

Now, its faded sign above a nondescript wood door is obscured by the one next door for El Destroyer shoe store.

Inside, a narrow hallway leads into the darkly elegant dining room. For reasons no one remembers, a statue of a Chinese woman stands graciously at one end of the dining room. At the other, a grandmotherly pianist serenades the handful of diners with "New York, New York."

With its linen napkins, tiled walls and tiny parquet dance floor, it's not hard to imagine well-dressed citizens crowding in to dine on fine food and sip cocktails. It is a little more difficult to imagine them nosing on nachos.

But Rene Leal Villapando, chief bartender and impromptu historian, confirms that this is the birthplace of the nacho. "It is still on the menu," he said. "They are very popular, especially with our American guests."

While Leal agrees that the combination of corn chips and cheese may seem a thin reed to hang fame on, he says Anaya may be on to something.

"There is always room for ingenuity," he said. "He made the nacho his own way. If it tastes good and it pleases people, is it any less important because it is simple?"

Nor was the nacho El Moderno's only brush with fame. "We get people here from all over the world," Leal said. "Once, your president, Lyndon Johnson, dined here."

And John Wayne came here frequently when he filmed "The Alamo" in Brackettville, Texas, about 60 miles to the north. No one could remember if Wayne ever ordered any nachos. "But he did like Jim Beam whiskey," said Alfonso Landa, a waiter for 36 years. "And good Mexican tequila."

Back in Eagle Pass, the inventor's son recalls how he and his brothers sought to patent the nacho in the early 1960s, but learned that the dish had already fallen into the public domain.

"It did not bother my father. He opened his own restaurant in Piedras Negras and worked there until he died in 1975 at age 81," he said. "Everyone here knew he was the inventor. Now, the world will know."

At the very least, Anaya may have known the world was ready for the nacho, Dr. Cox said.

Halloween costumes can be original, safe, inexpensive

By MIA B. MOODY
Waco Tribune-Herald
WACO, Texas - With Halloween just around the corner, most children have started the mad scramble for the perfect costume.

Pint-size trick-or-treaters often want something that is flashy and trendy, while their parents prefer something that is original, safe and inexpensive.

That's where the battle begins. It's hard to convince a child that a ghost made from an old white sheet is just as cool as an expensive Power Ranger costume.

Costumes made from sweats are the perfect compromise.

To appeal to kids, they can be used to make almost anything with a little imagination and patience. On a more practical side, they are inexpensive, warm and can be used again after Halloween.

Here are some ideas on how to make costumes using sweats and other materials:

NOTE: Before beginning, pre-wash sweatsuits without fabric softener. When you're done, let them dry flat for 24 hours. Wait 72 hours before laundering, then wash inside out in warm water only.

STRAWBERRY

Materials: Red sweatshirt and sweatpants, white fabric paint, black fabric paint, green ski cap, glue gun, one yard of green netting, 1 yard of green ribbon.

Directions: Using white paint, make tear-shaped, pea-sized dots all over the sweatshirt, then outline each dot in black. To make the leaf, glue gathered netting using a glue gun between the fold of green ribbon. Leave enough room on each side to tie ribbon in the back. Top off the strawberry with a green ski cap.

BUMBLEBEE

Materials: Yellow sweatshirt and black sweatpants, 12 strips of black utility tape long enough to wrap around sweatshirt, a black headband, round styrofoam balls painted yellow, two 12-inch pipe cleaners.

Directions: To make the body, adhere black tape (spaced evenly) in horizontal stripes to the sweatshirt. To make an antenna, wrap the pipe cleaners around the headband, letting the ends stick up. Push the yellow styrofoam balls onto the ends of both pipe cleaners.

LION

Materials: Yellow sweatpants and a yellow hooded sweatshirt. About 1-1/2 yards of brown felt that has a sticky backing, a long-strip of yellow felt, semi-permanent velcro, glue gun, enough brown fur to trim the hood, sleeves and tail.

Directions: Cut an egg-shaped piece of the brown felt about the size of your child's stomach and stick it to the front of the hooded shirt. Attach two round pieces of brown felt to knees of pants. Cut yellow felt to desired length of tail, then safety-pin it to the seat of the sweatpants. Use velcro tape to adhere fur trim around the hood and arms of the jacket and tail.

For parents who have a little more time and money to spend on Halloween costumes, here are two ideas offered by Jerzees American Activewear and Tulip fabric paints, using sweats and pants.

INDIAN PRINCESS or CHIEF

Supplies: 1 forest green full-length apron, 1 light oxford or birch youth crewneck sweatshirt and matching pants, 1 painted seashell with a hole near the top, black or forest green thread, different shaped sponges, fabric paints (colors: teal, true red, golden yellow and precious metals quicksilver).

Directions: Paint a true red armband on one arm of the sweatshirt and legbands on both legs of the sweatpants. Paint a necklace design on the sweatshirt (fill in with true red, golden yellow and teal, outline in quicksilver). Attach the shell to the necklace with thread. Cut fringes at the bottom of the apron and use sponges to put diamond, rectangle and squares on it. Paint rectangles red, then add teal diamonds and golden yellow squares. With quicksilver, draw a diamond outline around each teal diamond. Use a piece of fabric to make a headband, then paint the same design on the headband as on the apron. For an Indian chief, omit the necklace and use a waist-only apron.

BALLERINA

Supplies: 1 white youth crewneck sweatshirt, 2-1/2 yards of pink ribbon, 1-1/2 yards of bias tape double fold, 2 yards of pink netting, clear jewels (assorted sizes), sponges, 1 sheet of white fun foam (9-by-12), white plastic headband, glue gun, fabric paints (colors: heather, peach blush, purple, pink, brilliant jewels silver agate and amethyst).

Directions: Sponge-paint a purple camisole tank on the front and back of the white sweatshirt and panties on the white Jerzees sweatpants. Then, lightly sponge over the purple with peach blush. Outline the camisole and panties in silver agate. Sponge hearts on sweatshirt and pants with pink and purple paints. Outline hearts in amethyst. Add jewels by swirling pink and purple paints on bottom of jewels, then placing them on shirt outline. Also add swirl paints on backs of jewels before applying to shirt for necklace.

Create necklace by outlining from jewel-to-jewel with silver agate. To make a ballerina's skirt, glue gathered netting using a glue gun in between folds of bias tape. Leave a couple of feet at both ends for tying on skirt. Glue about two yards of ribbon on each leg, then crisscross around calf and tie below the knee. For headband, cut crown shape out of white fun foam. Sponge silver agate on back of large jewel before applying to crown. Outline jewel and add decoration to crown with silver agate, purple pearl and pink slick. When dry, glue to plastic headband.

The United 4-H club met recently for its first meeting of the year and election of officers. Those elected are pictured back row from left, Michael Claudio, vice president; Tyler Martin, president and Cody Greene, secretary. Front row from left is Blake Schilling, reporter; Shawn Blanton, council delegate and Chad Schilling, alternate delegate. The club will hold its next meeting on November 16 in the Community Center at 4 p.m.

NEW YORK (AP) - There was no improvement for Tim Allen in the latest Harris Poll of America's favorite TV personalities: He's No. 1 for the third year in a row.

The "Home Improvement" star was the most frequently named entertainer in a survey of 1,005 adults. Jerry Seinfeld placed second, followed by Oprah Winfrey, David Letterman and Bill Cosby.

The others in the Top 10 were Roseanne, Martin Lawrence, Kelsey Grammer, Brett Butler and Jay Leno. Lawrence, a newcomer to the list, was actually No. 1 among viewers ages 18 to 24, Hispanics and African-Americans. Oprah was No. 1 with women.

Rush Limbaugh, Candice Bergen and Peter Jennings - all members of last year's Top 10 - dropped out of the listing this year. The survey was conducted between Sept. 28 and Oct. 1.

While I am busy with little things, I am not required to do greater things.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Are cluster headaches hereditary? Is there any help for the affliction? My son's father had them, and now he is complaining of them, at 50. A small pill, something called ergot, which he took, opened a brain blood vessel and gave him relief. That is no longer available to him in the United States. Please explain for us. — M.K.

ANSWER: I was frankly surprised to learn that hereditary factors are usually absent in cluster headaches. I would have thought otherwise, and have often suggested genetic connections, especially where there is clear evidence of family history, as in your son's case.

Cluster headaches are one-sided onsets of intense pain, during which the patient typically moves about anxiously in an effort to distract himself. The headaches often develop at night, perhaps rousing the patient from sleep. Pain typically lasts from a half-hour to a couple of hours.

Cluster headaches got their name from the grouping of aches interrupted by symptom-free periods, which often are quite extended. A cluster can occur daily for weeks to months, with remission periods of years at times. Often, the nasal passage on the headache side becomes stuffed and the eye tears.

Oral ergot medicine was a standard treatment that was removed from the market because of production difficulties and problems with short shelf life. However, you can still obtain ergot suppositories. And some related drugs, such as ergomar, can be used.

Has your son tried non-medical therapy? Sometimes breathing supplemental oxygen helps. That requires a prescription and clear guidance.

Some cluster headache patients respond to the injectable drug sumatriptan, which was developed for migraine headache patients. It comes in a self-injecting kit the patient can use at home.

For more on headaches, see my report on the subject. You can order it by writing: Dr. Donohue—No. 15,

Fire doesn't stop Castroville post office from doing its job

By RALPH WININGHAM
San Antonio Express-News
CASTROVILLE, Texas - Add fire to the list of things that can't stop U.S. Postal Service employees from completing their rounds - at least in the case of postal workers here.

Less than a week after a blaze raced through the 4-year-old post office on U.S. 90, postal employees had set up shop in the old post office - which served the city for 30 years - and they were working at a fevered pace to maintain service to the community.

"We delivered mail on Friday (Oct. 13, the day of the fire) and every day since the fire," Postmaster O.Y. Matthews said as she salvaged stamps and other items from the burned facility.

"We had to work out of the Hermann Sons Lodge for several days, but we were back in the old post office after they completed its restoration at noon Tuesday."

"The only problem has been a little bit of confusion over where we are operating," she added.

Safety deposit boxes at the local bank were used to store stamps and other supplies, Matthews said, explaining that the locks to the lodge had to be changed so only postal workers would have access to the building.

"From the time of the fire, the city has worked with us and offered to let us back in our old facility," she said.

Castroville, located 20 miles west of San Antonio, had signed a lease on the old post office and planned to renovate it as a new police station, but the work had not yet begun. So workers moved in and restored it as a post office instead.

Matthews said the cause of the blaze and damage estimates were pending, but she said no mail or packages were lost in the fire.

"The firefighters were just great," she said, explaining that the blaze started in the east end of the building where no mail was stored, but spread throughout the attic of the structure.

"They rushed in with the carts we had in the building and pulled out all the mail and packages they could find. Anything that was damaged by water was still identifiable, so we didn't have to work from a pile of ashes," Matthews said.

She said very little mail and packages were in the building at the time of the fire, which stopped all the clocks in the building at 3:45 a.m.

"We don't keep a lot of mail overnight, and we don't get our mail until about 5:30 a.m. All we had in the building was a little that had not been picked up from the boxes and some stored mail for people who were out of town," she said.

Most of the stamps and other materials also were saved.

"Everything has to be counted one at a time, but everyone's stock or accountability has been verified," she said.

Matthews and the eight other postal workers have been working 12 to 14 hours a day to maintain service, she said, although the old post office quarters are a little cramped.

"When we left the old building four years ago, we had 700 boxes and two routes. Now we have 1,300 boxes and four routes."

"The space was cramped when we left, and we have even less floor space now because of the larger number of boxes."

"We joke about all wearing the same perfume each day so we don't clash," Matthews said.

Since returning to the old post office, about half a mile east of the newer facility, employees have been focusing on exchanging keys with customers to allow them access to the new boxes.

"They have the same box numbers, we just have to give them new keys," she said. "The whole community has been very supportive."

Matthews said she will be happy if the burned facility is restored within 90 days, although the prospects are not too bright.

"We've got Christmas coming, when we have a high volume of mail," she said. "We will be working in close quarters, but we still plan to do our jobs."

Spring, fall forage conditions will affect state's deer hunting

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Forage conditions in the spring and fall in Texas may prove beneficial to deer hunters this year, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Charles W. Ramsey, Extension wildlife specialist in College Station, said weather conditions throughout the spring, which is a rapid growth period for deer, have an effect on growth and antler production.

"Deer feed on some weeds by choice, but not all weeds," he said. "They will mainly feed on herbaceous forbs such as warm season grasses. Deer don't feed on dry grasses."

Ramsey said if the weather is particularly dry and inhibits growth of herbaceous forbs, deer will turn to forages such as woody plants.

"An extremely dry year can mean poor antler production. The antlers will not grow as much as they should if the deer is not getting the forages it needs," he said. "The size of the antlers is a very important aspect of hunting."

Ramsey said deer also choose to feed on acorns. He said hunters will have a more successful hunt if the acorn crop is good. He explained that deer will not respond to corn, a traditional baiting method used by hunters, if there is a good crop of acorns nearby.

"If a hunter is sitting in his blind and waiting for the deer to come because he has put out corn, he may not ever see a thing," he said. "It may be wise to find a spot with a lot of oak trees instead."

"This is an important thing to consider about hunting -- you may have to change your hunting techniques."

Dr. Donny Steinbach, Extension program leader for wildlife and fisheries science, said Texas is always a place that attracts deer hunters. Bow season opened in October and rifle and black powder season begins in November.

"We're known as a deer-hunting state," he said. "Visitors from places such as Pennsylvania, Florida and many of the southeastern states like Texas for its wide-open spaces and deer."

Steinbach said range conditions look good now due to adequate rainfall and forage should be ample for most of the state.

"There are no outstanding areas in the state this year that have had an exceptionally high amount of rainfall," Steinbach said. "So pretty much we can look across the state and say it is going to be average everywhere."

Karen Shelton-Mur, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station, said high pressure will produce fair skies and cool to mild conditions Wednesday through Friday.

Lows will range from the upper 30s to lower 40s in North Texas and in the upper 50s and lower 60s in South Texas and along the Gulf Coast, Shelton-Mur said. Highs will be in the upper 70s and lower 80s across most of the state.

"Next week's outlook indicates above normal temperature in areas roughly north of Interstate 10," she said.

Shelton-Mur said little or no rainfall is expected statewide.

Cooler temperatures that were ushered in with a cold front Sunday night should begin to suppress mosquito populations across the state, said Jim Olsen, professor and medical entomologist with Texas A&M University.

Mosquitos require warm weather to survive and reproduce. "What's cold weather to them is still warm weather to us," Olsen explained.

Entomologists and medical officials have stepped up monitoring efforts in the Rio Grande Valley after a McAllen woman was recently diagnosed with the first confirmed case of dengue fever in South Texas. She contracted the disease in Mexico, but since the disease could be spread from an infected human to the mosquito and back to a human, officials are worried that an outbreak could start in Texas.

Dengue is a virus transmitted by certain species of the Aedes mosquito. The first, Aedes aegypti, is an old nemesis and came from Africa during colonial days. The other, Aedes albopictus, was introduced in about 1985 through tires infested with eggs from Japan, he said.

Also called "break bone fever," the virus causes excruciating eye pain and headaches and severe muscular pains. It also, in some cases, can cause hemorrhaging and is deadly, Olson said.

Everyone across the state can reduce mosquito populations even further, by "choosing not to keep mosquitoes in their backyard," he said.

Breeding sites such as old tires, rain barrels, bird baths, or outside potted plants -- anything that can hold water -- should be cleaned up.

If that's not possible, the water should be changed out completely every three days. He suggested that rain barrels be covered with a screen to keep insects out and let the rain in. Also, common varieties of minnows, called gambusia, may be collected from a local creek and added to the rain barrel to eat the mosquito larvae.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture adequate. Warm temperatures have helped mature cotton crops. Harvesting corn, peanuts, sorghum, milo. Wheat planting underway. Sugarbeet harvest will begin soon.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate. Harvest aids continued to be applied to cotton; cotton bolls continue to open; started harvesting. Corn harvest is almost complete. Wheat planting is almost complete.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in need of rainfall. Harvesting defoliated cotton. Wheat planting near completion. Harvesting peanuts; yields low due to field moisture, pod disease. Livestock in excellent condition.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to short. Pastures, ranges in fair condition. Winter pastures in need of rain. Harvesting cotton, soybean, peanuts, pecans; sorghum harvest near completion. Livestock in fair condition.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to short. Germination good in small grains, ryegrass; need moisture for growth. Cattle conditions remain good; hay and supplemental feeding underway. Harvesting fall vegetables; good sweet potato yields.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition; low in good quality forage. Harvesting cotton. Cutting, baling alfalfa. Livestock in fair condition; shipping, culling cattle.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in need of rainfall; stock tanks getting low. Moisture needed to complete wheat, oat plantings. Fall vegetable gardens near completion. Harvesting early pecan varieties; peach harvest complete.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Harvesting peanuts. Cotton harvest almost complete. Last cutting of coastal in progress; quality is excellent; yields are low. Cattle conditions are declining; supplemental feeding of hay, protein.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition due to recent rainfall. Harvesting hay, pecans. Cultivating fields. Livestock in good condition.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges improving due to recent rain, cooler weather. Harvesting peanuts, pickling cucumbers. Planting small grains, harvesting fall hay. Pecan harvest gaining momentum.

COASTAL/BEND: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges in poor condition due to lack of moisture. Land preparation continues. Young oat fields making excellent growth. Hay harvest continues. Cattle in good condition.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges improving due to rain. Planting fall vegetables; cucumbers being harvested. Sugarcane harvest continues; juice quality is poor. Early grapefruit harvest continues.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I remember reading some information, I believe in your column, about making ice cubes from vinegar to put through the garbage disposal.

Does this ring a bell and, if so, what are the specifics? — Liz Thomas, Salem, Ore.

Yup, the bell is ringing. To make "vinegar ice," you just mix a cup of vinegar with some water in an ice cube tray and freeze. The theory is that the ice cubes knock off grease and gunk from the blades and sides of the disposal.

When you're ready to clean the garbage disposal, run a couple of ice cubes through it, followed by plenty of cold water.

If the disposal isn't very powerful, you may want to crush the ice first (easily done by wrapping a couple of cubes in a cloth and crushing with a hammer).

STEAK MARINATING

Dear Heloise: I came across a chocolate cake recipe recently that uses vegetable-oil spray to prepare the pan. Instead of sprinkling the pan with flour, sprinkle with unsweetened cocoa powder.

Lows will range from the upper 30s to lower 40s in North Texas and in the upper 50s and lower 60s in South Texas and along the Gulf Coast, Shelton-Mur said. Highs will be in the upper 70s and lower 80s across most of the state.

"Next week's outlook indicates above normal temperature in areas roughly north of Interstate 10," she said.

Shelton-Mur said little or no rainfall is expected statewide.

Cooler temperatures that were ushered in with a cold front Sunday night should begin to suppress mosquito populations across the state, said Jim Olsen, professor and medical entomologist with Texas A&M University.

Mosquitoes require warm weather to survive and reproduce. "What's cold weather to them is still warm weather to us," Olsen explained.

Entomologists and medical officials have stepped up monitoring efforts in the Rio Grande Valley after a McAllen woman was recently diagnosed with the first confirmed case of dengue fever in South Texas. She contracted the disease in Mexico, but since the disease could be spread from an infected human to the mosquito and back to a human, officials are worried that an outbreak could start in Texas.

Dengue is a virus transmitted by certain species of the Aedes mosquito. The first, Aedes aegypti, is an old nemesis and came from Africa during colonial days. The other, Aedes albopictus, was introduced in about 1985 through tires infested with eggs from Japan, he said.

Also called "break bone fever," the virus causes excruciating eye pain and headaches and severe muscular pains. It also, in some cases, can cause hemorrhaging and is deadly, Olson said.

Everyone across the state can reduce mosquito populations even further, by "choosing not to keep mosquitoes in their backyard," he said.

Breeding sites such as old tires, rain barrels, bird baths, or outside potted plants -- anything that can hold water -- should be cleaned up.

If that's not possible, the water should be changed out completely every three days. He suggested that rain barrels be covered with a screen to keep insects out and let the rain in. Also, common varieties of minnows, called gambusia, may be collected from a local creek and added to the rain barrel to eat the mosquito larvae.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture adequate. Warm temperatures have helped mature cotton crops. Harvesting corn, peanuts, sorghum, milo. Wheat planting underway. Sugarbeet harvest will begin soon.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture adequate. Harvest aids continued to be applied to cotton; cotton bolls continue to open; started harvesting. Corn harvest is almost complete. Wheat planting is almost complete.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in need of rainfall. Harvesting defoliated cotton. Wheat planting near completion. Harvesting peanuts; yields low due to field moisture, pod disease. Livestock in excellent condition.

NORTH TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to short. Pastures, ranges in fair condition. Winter pastures in need of rain. Harvesting cotton, soybean, peanuts, pecans; sorghum harvest near completion. Livestock in fair condition.

EAST TEXAS: Soil moisture very short to short. Germination good in small grains, ryegrass; need moisture for growth. Cattle conditions remain good; hay and supplemental feeding underway. Harvesting fall vegetables; good sweet potato yields.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in fair to good condition; low in good quality forage. Harvesting cotton. Cutting, baling alfalfa. Livestock in fair condition; shipping, culling cattle.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in need of rainfall; stock tanks getting low. Moisture needed to complete wheat, oat plantings. Fall vegetable gardens near completion. Harvesting early pecan varieties; peach harvest complete.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Harvesting peanuts. Cotton harvest almost complete. Last cutting of coastal in progress; quality is excellent; yields are low. Cattle conditions are declining; supplemental feeding of hay, protein.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition due to recent rainfall. Harvesting hay, pecans. Cultivating fields. Livestock in good condition.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges improving due to recent rain, cooler weather. Harvesting peanuts, pickling cucumbers. Planting small grains, harvesting fall hay. Pecan harvest gaining momentum.

COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture short. Pastures, ranges in poor condition due to lack of moisture. Land preparation continues. Young oat fields making excellent growth. Hay harvest continues. Cattle in good condition.

SOUTH TEXAS: Soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges improving due to rain. Planting fall vegetables; cucumbers being harvested. Sugarcane harvest continues; juice quality is poor. Early grapefruit harvest continues.

Builders Club officers installed

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I remember reading some information, I believe in your column, about making ice cubes from vinegar to put through the garbage disposal.

Does this ring a bell and, if so, what are the specifics? — Liz Thomas, Salem, Ore.

Yup, the bell is ringing. To make "vinegar ice," you just mix a cup of vinegar with some water in an ice cube tray and freeze. The theory is that the ice cubes knock off grease and gunk from the blades and sides of the disposal.

When you're ready to clean the garbage disposal, run a couple of ice cubes through it, followed by plenty of cold water.

If the disposal isn't very powerful, you may want to crush the ice first (easily done by wrapping a couple of cubes in a cloth and crushing with a hammer).

STEAK MARINATING
Dear Heloise: To tenderize a steak, brush it on both sides with lime juice a few hours before the steak is cooked. — Agnes Boddy, Port Deposit, Md.

CHOCOLATE CAKE
Dear Heloise: I came across a chocolate cake recipe recently that uses vegetable-oil spray to prepare the pan. Instead of sprinkling the pan with flour, sprinkle with unsweetened cocoa powder. I did this and enjoyed this method. — Willa Altman, Durham, N.C.
