Proper methods can relieve summon woes

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

New computerized notices are simplifying the jury summons process, but a jury summons can still be a complication in one's life.

The rash of phone calls which always follows the mailing of jury summons has already begun at the District Clerk's office here. Most of the calls concern conflicts which may prevent a citizen from serving during the dates given on the notice.

The process is simple when a person qualifies for one of the legal exemptions listed on the notice, said District Clerk Lola Faye Veazey. If qualified, the person need only check off the correct exemption and then mail back (after attaching the proper postage) the pre-addressed card.

There are four legal exemptions for citizens who are required to serve on a jury: anyone over the age of 65; anyone with the legal custody of a child under the age of ten who would need to leave that child unattended; students of a public or private secondary school; and, anyone enrolled in and attending an institution of higher education.

This does not mean that these are the only reasons that an individual may be excused from serving on a particular jury.

If someone has a conflict other than one of the listed legal exemptions, he or she needs to go by the district clerk's office to file a special exemption application.

The request for a special exemption is submitted to District Judge David Wesley Gulley. Judge Gulley then decides the outcome of that application.

"Most of the time, he let's us submit their name for a later jury selection," Veazey said.

Using this method, citizens are frequently able to postpone their jury duty until a time when there is not a personal conflict.

A thoughtful outlook

Man is sentenced for cocaine

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

A McKinney man was sentenced to 18 years in prison and fined $10,000 in 222nd District Court this morning for possession of cocaine.

Raul Guajardo was convicted of possession of a controlled substance (cocaine) on August 13, 1988. Before sentencing, District Judge David Wesley Gulley reviewed material from a pre-sentencing investigation and listened to arguments from both the defense and the prosecution.

"I find no mitigating circumstances or evidence," Judge Gulley said prior to pronouncing sentence.

Guajardo was arrested by local authorities on August 13, 1988. At that time Guajardo was on probation for an earlier possession of cocaine conviction out of McKinney.

Judge Gulley approved defense attorney Jeff Blackburn's request to call a witness in order to dispute material in the pre-sentencing investigation. Guajardo's brother, Alfred Guajardo, also of McKinney, was called to speak in his brother's behalf. Several members of the Guajardo family were present for the sentencing.

"If the court would put him out on probation, we could help Raul," Alfred Guajardo said during testimony.

Defense questioning encouraged the witness to tell of his brother's involvement in the family landscaping and construction business. This questioning was intended to dispute implications that Raul was not "dependable," defense council indicated.

Without seed, farming, agriculture, is nothing. But what about the seed business in the future, and the federal government? Are we going to lose the advances made in plant genetics because of a lack of testing and supervision? Are we too stingy with our seed supply? A three-part series by the Associated Press will examine these issues and more in "Seeds of Conflict", beginning in Tuesday's Hereford Brand.

National Agriculture Week is observed across the U.S. this week, March 19-25, with the event keyed to the continuing theme of "Honoring America's Providers."

The observance provides special recognition of the food and fiber industry's contributions to America and will hopefully increase awareness of agriculture's accomplishments and the challenges it faces in meeting the world's food and fiber needs.

The primary observance in Hereford will be Saturday at Hereford State Bank's annual hamburger cookout, car and implement show. K-Bob's Restaurant, Hereford Tortilla Factory and R&R Refrigeration are contributing hamburger patties, corn chips and ice for the cookout.

Other participating firms include Oglesby Implement, Ford-New Holland, Arrow Sales, White Implement, Whiteface Ford/Chrysler, Stagner-Osborn Buick-Pontiac-GMC, and Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile. Farmers can pick up tickets for the event at any participating firm.

Perhaps we're a bit skeptical, but all this business about taking the grapes from Chile out of the supermarkets sounds a bit far-fetched. James Roberts, editor of The Andrews County News, feels the same way.

"Think about it for a moment," notes Roberts.

"During the winter months, Chile ships somewhere in the neighborhood of 800 million pounds of grapes into this country. A local grocer says that on the average a pound of grapes contains about 50 to 75 grapes.

"That's 40 billion grapes--and our diligent inspectors in Philadelphia managed to pick out the two grapes that had a minute amount of cyanide. And the amount found wouldn't have given a 6-year-old child the tummy ache!

"How could anyone inspect roughly 16 million crates of grapes in four months? Do we spot check every 100 crates? Every 1,000? The chance of picking up two tainted grapes out of 40 billion are greater than the odds of winning the Irish Sweepstakes and the New York lottery combined--unless the crates were pre-marked and the inspectors pre-notified.

"Because two grapes were found out of 40 billion, we've wiped out a billion dollars worth of sales for Chile, hurt untold numbers of fruit wholesalers and retailers, and actually protected the public against nothing.

"Something strange is going one here.

"The same thing is true of the apple scare concerning the pesticide Alar. A report was issued by a private firm--an environmental group--about children being at risk of cancer because apples treated with Alar had been linked to cancer in animal tests--that's animals, not children.

"The environmental group did not mention that only five percent of the apples grown in this country are treated with Alar. But once the report was issued, the school boards in Los Angeles and New York City immediately voted to stop serving apples--and the schools in those two cities alone serve five million apples annually.

"The federal government rushed in to defend domestic apples, with three federal agencies issuing statements urging parents and schools to continue providing apples and apple products, declaring there is 'no imminent hazard' posed to children in the consumption of apples.

"Frank Young, FDA, said that of 800 apple samples tested by the FDA for Alar since 1981, the highest residue levels found were 8 parts per million, which is less than half the 20 parts per million allowed by the EPA.

"It used to be in this country, that all a farmer or grower had to worry about was the weather, worms, boll weevils, price and Johnson grass.

"But running off at the mouth is evidently more disastrous than any of the old enemies.

"Maybe we'd better start checking all the bananas coming in--they're grown by the people we've been fighting in Central America!"

Gramm pledges aid on Medicare funding

LEVELLAND (AP) - Sen. Phil Gramm pledged to work to whittle the disparity in Medicare reimbursement between urban and rural hospitals, calling rural health care U.S. medicine's No. 1 problem.

"We're going to have to reduce and hopefully eliminate the differential in payment between what we pay providers in urban areas and what we pay them for health care in a rural setting," Gramm said Wednesday on a tour of a hospital here.

Nine rural hospitals closed last year in Texas, and another two have shut down this year. Hospital officials say the reduced reimbursement for Medicare treatment given to rural facilities relative to urban hospitals makes it tough to survive.

Both urban and rural taxpayers can benefit from improved rural health care, said the senator.

"Providing primary health care where people live in the rural areas is actually cheaper," he said.

Gramm praised the urban-rural cooperation demonstrated at Methodist Hospital of Levelland. Six months ago, Hockley County purchased the struggling facility and leased it to Lubbock Methodist Hospital System to manage and operate.

"What we're seeing here is a reaching out from the urban area to preserve and increase the quality of health care in our rural areas," he said.

The 78-bed hospital about 25 miles west of Lubbock had been owned by Summit Hospital Corp. but was in danger of closing last year due to low occupancy. Hockley County commissioners held a referendum election in Aug. 1988 in which 92 percent of voters approved a $1.9 million bond issue to purchase the hospital from Summit.

"We were facing a truly devastating situation," said commissioner El Lea Hensley. "We knew that a thriving community could not exist without a hospital."

Since the lease agreement with Methodist took effect, the hospital's financial health has improved, said Methodist Hospital president Bill Potect.

"For the first five months, we've even been able to see (an impact on the) bottom line," he said. "They've been able to put something aside so that they can replace medical equipment, update the facility, add benefits for the employees. We're going to recruit new physicians to bring into this area."

Potect said that for the Lubbock Methodist Hospital System, such a partnership is experimental but seems to be working because Levelland residents are committed to having a viable hospital.

"A buyout of a rural health care facility is not the best business opportunity," he said. "However, we did see elements of success in this area."

At a time when the community is working on industrial development, including expansion of local businesses, the Hereford City Commission inadvertently sent out the wrong signal this past week.

City officials faced a dilemma when two contractors bid exactly the same amount on a project to seal coat some city streets. In our opinion, the bid should have gone to the local bidder, if for no other reason than he submitted a completion time of 45 days compared to 60 for the out-of-town company.

Hereford City Commission opted to re-open the bids on the project after the Amarillo bidder pleaded for the commission not to give preferential treatment to the local bidder. The out-of-towner claimed he did not receive preferential treatment in Amarillo.

We do not blame the city commission for being concerned about the situation but, in an attempt to be fair, commissioners overlooked the recommendation of City Manager Darwin McGill and voted to table the bids. As it turns out, there is a provision in the state statutes to select the local bidder in such a situation.

The Brand further checked this opinion with the Texas Press Association office in Austin, and they quoted the Local Government Code, Texas Statutes, Section 1, Chapter 243:

"In all cases where bidding is required and where two or more responsible bidders submit bids in connection with proposed city or district contracts, and these bids are identical in both amount and nature, the governing body of the city or district shall enter into contract with only one of the responsible bidders and reject all other bids. If only one of the bidders submitting the lowest and best bids is a resident of the city or district, the local bidder shall be selected." The code also states that if two bidders tie and both are local, it is decided by casting lots.

We can understand the city commission's concern when this rare tie bid resulted but common sense would seem to dictate that the local bidder should be selected. Or, perhaps the commission should have asked the city attorney to provide an opinion on the matter.

I'm sure the commission was trying to be fair, but it came across as bending over backwards to avoid awarding the bid to the local company.

We've got some fine folks on the city commission, and we don't question their integrity or motives. We just suggest that they dropped the ball on this one and should correct their action.

Texas leads in toxic chemical releases

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas leads the country and Louisiana ranks second in releasing toxic chemicals into the air, and officials blame the petrochemical industry along the Gulf Coast for most of the poisonous emissions.

According to preliminary data from the Environmental Protection Agency, Texas releases 229.9 million pounds of toxic chemicals a year, followed by Louisiana with annual emissions of 134.5 million pounds.

The national total was 2.4 billion pounds of toxic chemicals, including substances that have been linked to cancer, birth defects, reproductive dysfunctions, neurological disorders and genetic mutations.

EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas said the data "is all preliminary" and subject to change.

"I think it would be unfair and a disservice to the public to say that it spells death, doom and destruction and an imminent threat to public health, because it doesn't," Meacham said. The greatest source of the Texas pollutants is the petrochemical industry.

Meacham said the agency believes in the need for a more "thorough and careful" regulation of these emissions "because the potential is there for long-term public health effects because (petrochemical) companies use toxic chemicals."

Rep. Mickey Leland, a Houston Democrat, said the findings, released Wednesday, reveal a need for strong, immediate federal regulation. The EPA's failure to take leadership, he said, "has jeopardized the health of our constituents."

"Texas has suffered the most from the EPA's failure to exercise leadership in this area," Leland said.

He said the EPA has forced states and local jurisdictions to decide between public health and economic well-being.

"Local jurisdictions are told that if they implement strong regulations against toxic air releases, companies will be forced to close plants and relocate to areas with no regulation," Leland said.

A company in states such as California or New Jersey cannot compete with one located in Louisiana or Texas because air quality standards there are not as stringent or as vigorously enforced, he said.

Uniform standards are needed to reduce the routine release of toxic pollutants, Leland said, promising to introduce legislation after the Easter recess that will set hazardous air pollutants and mandate that the sources use the best available technology to reduce their emissions.

Leland said that in Houston alone, the fire department in 1988 responded to an average of 1.3 hazardous materials alarms every day.

"It's time for the EPA to stop dancing and start doing its job," Leland said, "protecting the environment and the citizens of this nation."

Meacham said the EPA would be drafting amendments to the Clean Air Act "to give us so more specific authority to do a faster and better job of regulating air toxics and other air pollution problems that have come to the forefront."

Bruce Broberg, chief of emission and air quality analysis for Texas Air Control Board, said he was not surprised by the findings because of the size of the petrochemical industry in the state, and expressed confidence in his agency's programs for dealing with toxins.

"I think you'll see the number start dropping next year," he said. "Industry is very concerned with the numbers and want to be proactive in getting them down."

Among the 328 individual and classes of chemicals surveyed by the EPA were 60 government-identified cancer-causing agents; methyl isocyanate, the toxic gas that killed at least 3,400 people and injured some 20,000 in Bhopal, India, in December 1984; and phosgene, a nerve gas used in World War I.

Public school funds studied

AUSTIN (AP) - Senate and education leaders praised House Speaker Gib Lewis' proposed $600 million increase in public school financing to improve equity funding.

Earlier Wednesday, education officials and lawmakers said urgent action is needed to correct inequity in public school financing and recommended at least a $1.2 billion increase in state funds to public schools.

But State Board of Education members Will Davis of Austin and A.M. "Bob" Aikin of Commerce said their recommendation is not far from Lewis' proposal.

The House Appropriations Committee already has included a $300 million increase for student enrollment growth, and Lewis' proposed increase is in addition to that, they said.

Essentially Lewis' $600 million proposal is about two-thirds the amount recommended by the Education Board. "That's a real good down payment," Aikin said.

"There isn't any number that's enough for education, but it's a good figure," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"I think his spending levels on public education are commendable and they are a positive step towards addressing equalization problems," said Sen. Kent Caperton, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Before a joint meeting of the Senate Education and Finance committees, Davis said a $5 billion increase - equal to about a 25 percent annual increase - was needed "to raise us to a minimum equity position."

But Davis said that because of budget constraints "we know that's an impossibility."

Equity in public school financing has become the center of controversy following a lawsuit filed by poor school districts that claim the state's method of funding public schools is discriminatory.

Because public school financing is a mix of state and local funds, many poor districts cannot spend as much money on education as wealthy districts.

The lawsuit is pending before the Texas Supreme Court.

In earlier decisions, a state district court ruled the state's method of financing public schools was unconstitutional. But that ruling was overturned by an appeals court, which agreed the state's financing method is unfair to poor districts, but said it does not run afoul of the constitution.

That opinion by the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin does not take the heat off the Legislature to correct the problems in funding, Davis and legislators said.

Now You're Cooking

By GAYE B. REILLY
Staff Writer

National Agriculture Week continues through March 27, and Dee Anne Trotter is committed to promoting the beef industry; she even puts beef in her Brownies.

"When I married Johnny, I married the beef industry," she laughed. "I can remember cooking chicken only twice since we married; he could eat steak and potatoes daily but I try to vary our menu." She said they especially enjoy the unique Beef Brownies, a recipe developed by the local CattleWomen back when they were known as the CowBelles.

"Our chapter hosted a tour of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center a few years ago. Food editors from various publications attended and tried our menu featuring steak and salad, and they raved about the Beef Brownies, which contain ground beef," she said.

Indeed, the Trotters are deeply immersed in the cattle industry as he is the manager and vice president of Bar G Feedyard and has been recognized as Cattleman of the Year. She is an active member of the Hereford chapter of Texas CattleWomen, which was the first organization she joined when she returned to Hereford from college in 1981.

Trotter is a past president of the CattleWomen, has served as scholarship chairman at the state level and says the organization is more than a social club.

"It is the purpose of CattleWomen to aid in the promotion and development of beef and show support of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, Texas Southwest Cattle Raisers Association, and the National Cattleman's Association. We have beef workshops through the Beef Industry Council to educate the public about beef."

Hereford, like the beef industry, is fortunate to have the striking, slender, blonde woman as its ardent supporter. "I'm a joiner--I'd belong to every organization in town if time permitted," the Hereford native said.

She began promoting Hereford early as she was crowned Miss Hereford in 1977 while a senior at Hereford High School. "I had taken piano lessons since I was four years old and organ lessons when I was seven. Twirling lessons came in between and I had voice and modeling lessons by the time I entered the Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant. Performing was a way of life for me at that point--I had been in the Little Miss Pageant when I was younger."

She then progressed to the Miss Texas-America Pageant and Miss Texas-USA Pageant, where she earned the title of Miss Congeniality.

After receiving a degree in mass communications from West Texas State University in 1981, Trotter understands the importance of proper promotion and packaging of a product. "Johnny has traveled around the country and said that big cities have very nice beef displays in their stores that list the percentage of calories in the meat. The industry is striving to educate the public and CattleWomen hope to go to local schools with nutrition facts about beef."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.D. Caison, Trotter was raised in a pro-beef atmosphere. "I grew up eating steak in Dad's restaurant and learned to appreciate the fact that beef offers so many different cuts for variety. Now my family loves prime rib and I use beef in cooking Mexican food, Chinese, and Italian dishes."

Trotter has witnessed many changes in the beef industry throughout the years. "Since there are more cattle fed, per capita, in Hereford than anywhere else, Hereford has witnessed the rise and fall of the industry firsthand," she said. "The beef concept is becoming more popular since the American Heart Association endorsed it recently," she said. "The beef industry has responded to consumers' demand for a less fatty, more lean product, so beef is now competitive in a health-conscious society."

Now residing in their new home west of Hereford, Trotter finds it challenging to use beef in most of the family's meals. "We are not big on desserts that are rich; we think that nothing satisfies the eater like beef."

While the beef industry is an integral part of the Trotters' lives, she is also active in Hereford Music Study Club and L'Allegra Study Club. But her top priority is her family, as the Trotters' son, five-year-old Eddie, keeps the couple busy. "Eddie is in choir and gymnastics and is in kindergarten at Northwest School," she said.

The family belongs to First United Methodist Church where she is pianist and sings in the choir, is children's coordinator, and has taught children's Sunday School. In the rare event that she finds a free moment, Trotter enjoys cross stitch, music, playing bridge, likes fine art and is an avid reader. "I don't think you can ever read enough, so I read anything I can get my hands on."

BEEF BROWNIES

1/2 c. finely ground cooked beef
3 eggs
1 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt

DEE ANNE TROTTER

...supports the beef industry through the Texas Cattlewomen and cites beef's assets during National Agriculture Week

1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 c. butter or margarine
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
3/4 c. flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 c. chopped nut meats (as pecans)
confectioners sugar

Beat eggs, sugar, salt, and vanilla until fluffy. Melt butter and chocolate. Cool and add to egg-sugar mixture.

Add beef and mix. Sift flour and baking powder together and stir into beef mixture; add nut meats. Spread in an 8x8" pan lined with wax paper. Bake 35 minutes in 350 degree oven. Cool.

Sprinkle with confectioners sugar, cut into squares and remove from pan. Makes approximately 18 brownies.

PRIME RIB

Rub a large ribeye roast with cracked black pepper. Place fat side up in shallow pan. Preheat oven to 500 degrees.

Cook 5 minutes per pound at 500 degrees. Cut off heat and do not open oven door for 2 hours. Ribeye roast will be done on the end and pink in the middle. If you want it less rare, cook 6 minutes per pound.

May serve with horseradish sauce.

RICE ARTICHOKE SALAD

1 c. rice, cooked (not instant rice)
1 small onion, chopped
1 bell pepper, chopped
8 stuffed olives, chopped
1 can artichoke hearts (marinated)

Drain artichoke hearts and save juice. Chope artichoke in already mixed salad. Mix artichoke juice with 2 Tbsp. mayonnaise and combine with salad. Serve immediately or may refrigerate.

CREAM CHEESE POUND CAKE

1 lb. real butter
1 pkg. cream cheese (8 oz.)
2 Tbsp. vanilla
3 c. sugar
3 c. flour
6 beaten eggs

Allow butter, eggs, and cream cheese to soften at room temperature. Slice butter into chunks and add sugar slowly while beating with electric mixer.

After mixing well, add cream cheese. Slowly add flour and continue to mix. Add beaten eggs. Add vanilla. Pour in bundt pan and bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour or more. Cool on wire rack for 10 minutes.

BEEF AND CHEESE ENCHILADAS

Brown 1 lb. extra lean ground beef and drain. Grate 8 oz. cheddar cheese. Chop 1 onion (may saute with beef if you prefer onions cooked.)

Place 2 Tbsp. meat in flour tortilla and sprinkle with cheese and onion. Roll up tight and place in slightly greased 9x13x2" baking pan. Cover with sauce (recipe follows).

Sprinkle grated American Cheese over and bake covered at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until hot and bubbly.

SAUCE FOR ENCHILADAS
Melt in saucepan 1/2 c. margarine. Add 3 Tbsp. flour. Gradually add 2 c. milk. Cook until slightly thickened.

Add 8 oz. of Velveeta cheese (if you like it hot, use Velveeta with jalapenos) and melt throughout. Add 1 can chopped green chilies.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I read with interest a recent column you had on robberies of homes. Here is another suggestion.

If a family member dies, a criminal can easily read the obituaries and find out when the funeral is going to be, and on that day will know that everyone will be out and can then rob that home. What a terrible thing to return from a funeral to a home that has been robbed.

Having tight security and someone to watch your home while you are away would be the practical hint. — E.J.M. Sr., Oil City, Pa.

It is really important for someone to stay at the house while others are attending the funeral service. This certainly is a terrible to have to think about, but please take heed. — Heloise

Pete's picture becomes less rosy

PLANT CITY, Fla. (AP) - If Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose is worried about his future in baseball, he's not showing it.

Rose cracked jokes, talked baseball and sidestepped questions about gambling allegations during a 45-minute session with reporters Wednesday before an exhibition game.

"All I worry about is my team," Rose said. "All I worry about is the Cincinnati Reds. You find that hard to believe?"

Rose still refuses to discuss allegations that have linked him with gambling and could jeopardize his future in baseball.

One of the allegations under investigation is that Rose may have bet on baseball, possibly his own team, a baseball source told The Associated Press.

"That's what they're looking into. Nothing has been proven yet," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

If proven true, Rose would be suspended or even banned for life.

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and Commissioner-elect A. Bartlett Giamatti announced in a statement Monday that Major League Baseball was looking into "serious allegations" about Rose. The statement didn't mention the nature of the allegations, and gave no indication when the commissioner might act.

In a copyright story today, the Dayton Daily News reported that Ueberroth probably would announce his decision today. The newspaper quoted an unnamed source as saying, "Pete will get a minimum suspension of a year, if he's lucky."

However, a source with major league baseball told the AP it was "unlikely" any action would be taken today.

Rose has been left to issue "no comment" when asked about the allegations, and to wait for a ruling by the commissioner. Rose said Wednesday he had no information about when it might come.

"No idea. No more idea than you do," Rose said.

His dugout meeting with about 75 reporters before an exhibition game against St. Louis was the first time he'd made any comment about his situation.

To hear Rose, the storm of allegations hasn't affected him much.

"I don't have any problems sleeping," he said. "Not the way my team played yesterday (in beating St.

Louis). The only thing that creates problems for me sleeping is the way my team plays."

Rose even had a hand in a little skit by his players making light of the media mob. Pitcher Danny Jackson put on a Rose jersey and strutted around the field during batting practice while about a dozen players with "PRESS" taped on their caps followed him around.

Federal officials as well as baseball authorities are investigating allegations about Rose's gambling, according to published reports.

The Dayton newspaper said federal investigators in Cincinnati were scheduled to meet today with investigators from the commissioner's office about the widening probe into Rose's alleged gambling activities.

John M. Dowd, the special counsel hired by Ueberroth, and Kevin Hallinan, baseball's security chief, also are scheduled to meet with the attorney for Ronald Peters, a Franklin, Ohio, bar owner who has emerged as a central figure in the investigation into Rose's alleged betting activities, the newspaper said.

The Dayton Daily News said the investigation had nothing to do with gambling initially, but grew out of drug probe that focused on Peters and a major cocaine dealer in Cincinnati. Rose wasn't a target in the drug investigation, but authorities found betting slips in Peters' bar that led them to Rose, the newspaper said.

The federal investigation of Rose involves tax and gambling issues, including income Rose may have derived from the sale of personal memorabilia, the newspaper said.

D. Michael Crites, U.S. attorney for the southern district of Ohio, declined comment.

The New York Post also said in Wednesday's editions that Rose's activities have the attention of Crites' office and the Internal Revenue Service, plus the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Cincinnati police.

The New York newspaper quoted an unnamed source as saying Cincinnati police estimate the Reds manager owes bookmakers between $500,000 and $750,000. Police officials were not commenting on that report.

COLD PUNISHMENT

LAUREL, Md. (AP) - Nikolai Nasibov, a former star jockey in Russia, now trains horses and brought one of them to Laurel for the $750,000 Budweiser International in October.

He was asked what would happen to a Russian trainer caught using drugs on horses in the Soviet Union. "I'm afraid," he said, "that he would wind up training polar bears in Siberia."

Rozelle resigns as NFL leader

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) - When Pete Rozelle strode to the podium, all but a half-dozen of the 50 or so people in the meeting room thought he was doing no more than opening a routine business session.

A few seconds later, when the commissioner with the second-longest tenure of any chief executive in sports history announced his resignation, there was stunned silence.

"It was as if they didn't believe it," said Wellington Mara of the New York Giants, the NFL's senior owner and one of the few who knew.

A few hours later, most still didn't, not even Al Davis of the Los Angeles Raiders, Rozelle's longtime adversary who embraced the commissioner as he left the meeting room after his resignation.

"I feel emotionally drained," Davis said.

The tear-laden announcement Wednesday by the 63-year-old Rozelle that he was stepping down three years before his term expires ended a 29-year tenure in which the league expanded from 12 teams to 28 and less than $1 million a year in television revenue to a $440 million TV extravaganza about to go international. Only Clarence Campbell, who ran the National Hockey League from 1946-78, was in charge longer.

"We've got the greatest sports league of all time and that makes him the greatest commissioner of all time," said Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Rozelle said he was in good health "except for the 20 pounds I've added since I've quit smoking a year ago," and said he was quitting primarily for family reasons and will move from the New York suburb of Rye to the San Diego area.

Rozelle said he made the decision last October to make the announcement now. But those close to him said it probably gained impetus by the death of his stepson - the son of wife Carrie - two days before last January's Super Bowl.

"I want to enjoy free time - stress free-time - with Carrie," he said.

Unlike most major developments in the NFL, this one was top secret.

The first to learn were Mara and Leon Hess of the New York Jets, whom he told last week. When he arrived here Sunday, he told four other league fixtures - Rooney, Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys, Art Modell of the Cleveland Browns and Lamar Hunt of the Kansas City Chiefs.

And it wasn't until a few minutes before the announcement that he broke the news to three of his four top aides - communications director Joe Browne, executive director Don Weiss and director of broadcasting Val Pinchbeck. A fourth, counsel Jay Moyer, was away with his ailing wife.

Elected in 1960 as a compromise candidate at age 33, Rozelle emerged from a background in public relations and as general manager of the Los Angeles Rams to build the first league that shared revenue as a matter of course.

"He was able to get people in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago to share television revenue equally with people in Green Bay and Buffalo," said Art Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns. "That was his genius and that made us what we are today."

"Pete Rozelle dominated his profession," said Davis, to whom Rozelle barely spoke during the 10-year period that began in 1978, when Davis first proposed moving the Raiders from Oakland to Los Angeles, and ended two weeks ago, when the lawsuit against the league that was won by the Raiders was settled for $18 million.

Hunt and Mara, presidents of the AFC and NFC respectively, will head a five-man search team that will seek a successor. The other members are expected to be named today.

Frank Robinson was named Most Valuable Player in the National League, while playing for Cincinnati in 1961 and was the American League MVP at Baltimore in 1966.

NFL to cut camps

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) - NFL owners, attempting to cut costs and even competition, are limiting all teams to 80 players in training camp.

Under new rules approved Wednesday on a day that all activities were overshadowed by the announcement of Commissioner Pete Rozelle's retirement, the owners also extended the time a player must spend on injured reserve from four weeks to six and set up a six-player developmental squad of rookies and first-year men.

But Rozelle's retirement announcement postponed debate on the long-awaited renewal of instant replay. It will be voted on today, the final day of the meetings and is likely to be approved, if for no other reason than as a going-away present to Rozelle.

"Pete really wants it," said one team official. "I think he'll get it."

That left Wednesday as the day that the same owners who are giving six-figure signing bonuses to unprotected free agents elected to cut costs by trimming rosters.

In the past, there was no limitation on the number of players a team could take to camp. The Denver Broncos, for example, had 140 in camp last year.

"We found out we couldn't find the nuggets we thought we could find," said Patrick Bowlen, the team's owner and member of the finance committee.

Bobby Knight mellow? Well, maybe

DENVER (AP) - Bobby Knight as a jolly old elf?

"You remember when you were a kid growing up and you believed in Santa Claus?" Knight responded when asked if he had mellowed. "There's not much difference between Claus and me today, you know. We're two overweight, lovable guys that kids really enjoy."

Knight was in top form Wednesday as he talked to the press gathered for tonight's NCAA West regional semifinal matchup between his eighth-ranked Hoosiers, 27-7, and No. 11 Seton Hall, 28-6.

No. 1-ranked Arizona, 29-3, plays No. 15 Nevada-Las Vegas, 28-7, in tonight's second semifinal.

The winners meet Saturday with a berth in the Final Four at stake.

Knight spoke out on subjects including his own future, the recent rash of coach resignations and firings and the fact his Wednesday practice, under NCAA rules, had to be open to the public.

Knight flirted with moving to the head coaching job at New Mexico last season, but he said he figures he's at Indiana for good now. Asked if he'd be interested in any of the jobs opening up now, he said, "No, I'm done. Take a look at me. I just barely get by here, I finally decided."

As for all the coaches who have lost their jobs in recent weeks, Knight said, "I think it's a sick thing."

He said coaches should refuse to take the vacated jobs.

"I can't believe what's going on," UNLV's Jerry Tarkanian said.

His former assistant, Lynn Archibald, was fired at Utah.

"He was perfect for Utah," Tarkanian said. "I think somebody ought to fire that athletic director."

The NCAA tournament is to blame, he said, for giving teams too much money. He said all major colleges should share in the tournament revenue.

Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo seemed about to lose his job two years ago. Now he's a two-time Big East coach of the year with his school in the "Sweet 16" for the first time.

"It's a disgrace the caliber of coach who's been fired or forced to resign," he said.

Arizona coach Lute Olson said he expects serious discussion about forming a coach's union when the National Association of Basketball Coaches meets next week in Seattle.

Against Seton Hall, the Hoosiers will be playing a team that was picked for seventh in the Big East. Instead, they wound up tied for second.

"This team has exceeded a lot of people's expectations," Carlesimo said.

Arizona, which coasted to first- and second-round victories last week in Boise, is calm and confident heading into the Nevada-Las Vegas game. The Wildcats beat UNLV 86-75 Dec. 10 in Tucson.

All-America Sean Elliott scored 32 points in a head-to-head matchup with Stacey Augmon in the earlier Arizona victory, but Tarkanian said nothing special is planned to try to stop the Wildcats' star.

Brown comes from Georgia to Rangers

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) - That Kevin Brown even has a chance to make the Texas Rangers this spring is remarkable. Coming out of middle Georgia's Wilkinson County High School, he was a pitcher nobody wanted.

But the 23-year-old right-hander is currently in a battle with Brad Arnsberg and former Atlanta Brave Craig McMurtry for the Rangers' fifth starting spot. And on Tuesday in a game against the Chicago White Sox, he became the first Rangers pitcher to go five innings this spring.

Against the White Sox, Brown allowed three hits and struck out five in an 8-0 victory. So far this spring, he has allowed 18 hits in 21 innings, struck out 11 and walked six. He has a 2-0 spring record and 3.86 earned run average.

"He's going to be an outstanding major league pitcher for years to come," Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve said in a telephone interview. "He's going to have to be patient and wait for his opportunity. It may come this year, but the deck is stacked against him."

The Rangers stacked the deck during the offseason by signing 42-year-old free agent Nolan Ryan, still one of the hardest-throwing pitchers in baseball, and acquiring left-hander Jamie Moyer from the Chicago Cubs.

"In any other year over the past four or five seasons, a pitcher like Kevin could come into spring training with an excellent chance of leaving with the big club," Grieve said. "This year, the competition is tough."

"I'm not going to worry too much about it," said Brown. "It's just a matter of hanging in there for a while until things open and the opportunity arises."

Brown has been in the majors on two brief occasions, winning his first major league start in 1986 and going 1-1 in four games last season. He was the Rangers' No. 1 draft choice in 1986 out of Georgia Tech, where he is the all-time leader in victories with 28.

Pitching in college was not on Brown's mind in the summer of 1983 when he left his home in nearby McIntyre to attend Georgia Tech.

"When I got through with high school I didn't think I'd play any more baseball," he recalled. But he played in a Fourth of July tournament in Valdosta and was offered a scholarship to Valdosta State College.

"It sort of blew my mind. I thought I was through with baseball, period," said Brown.

But Brown already had paid to go to Tech and didn't want to give up a co-op job he had, so the Valdosta State coaches called Tech and advised the coaches there to give Brown a tryout.

"It was all like a dream. All of a sudden these guys are wanting me to come out and play for them," Brown said.

Brown got a scholarship and had what he termed a "so-so" freshman season. Then he grew to 6-4, added some speed to his fastball and all of a sudden the scouts began to notice.

Georgia Tech head coach Jim Morrison said he's never seen a player progress as unexpectedly as Brown did.

"I'll never forget it. He was pitching a game at home, and he was throwing around 88 to 89 miles per hour, his usual velocity," Morrison said.

"The next time he pitched - we were playing at Maryland - he was being clocked at 93 and 94. From then on, he threw that fast. I really don't know what happened."

After an 11-5 junior season, Brown was a first round pick of the Rangers in the summer draft.

But in 1987, Brown pitched in Double A, Triple A and then down to A. He wound up with a 1-11 record.

Grieve said the Rangers never gave up on Brown, and they may have been partially to blame for his disastrous second season.

"That was probably our fault. We started him at AA, and we assumed he was farther along in his pitching maturity than he really was. Then we sent him to AAA, thinking that being around a better team might help him. He probably should have started that season at Port Charlotte," he said.

"The key thing was last season. He completely turned it around and was a major reason Tulsa won the Texas League championship. We're very high on Kevin."

Espy, Kunkel ready for roles

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) - After shuffling Cecil Espy and Jeff Kunkel around the Texas lineup last season, Manager Bobby Valentine has decided to allow them to unpack at center field this season.

In their careers with the Rangers, Espy and Kunkel, have played every position on the field, including pitcher, between them.

But when the Rangers traded starting center fielder Oddibe McDowell in the off-season, it created a home for the versatile duo.

"This has been more settled than any other spring," Kunkel said. "They've put me in center field and just let me play a lot of outfield."

Kunkel played second, third, shortstop, left and center field and pitched an inning last season.

Kunkel retired the side in the ninth inning Aug. 31 in a 10-1 loss to Minnesota, becoming the first non-pitcher in Ranger history to take the mound.

Espy, getting his most extensive playing time in the majors, started 81 games in the outfield last season.

He was the designated hitter three times and also played first, second, shortstop and catcher.

Espy was Texas' best hitter with runners in scoring position, hitting .354.

Filling the center field position was a major concern for the Rangers at the start of training camp. Espy sees no problem.

"I don't think we're hurting as bad as everyone seems to think," Espy said. "Our outfielders can play all positions."

"We've got Kunkel to play center field and (right fielder Ruben) Sierra has got all the talent in the world. He could move over."

"I certainly don't feel any pressure that I've got to do the job or it's not going to get done."

Espy, 26, is starting his 10th year in pro baseball and has struggled to establish himself as a major leaguer. He finally broke through as a rookie last season, hitting .248 in 123 games.

Espy led American League rookies with six triples, 33 stolen bases and he was second in games played and had 347 at bats.

Espy's speed makes him an ideal leadoff hitter. His 33 stolen bases last season was the eighth best in Ranger history.

"Once I get to first base it's chaos," Espy said. "When I get to first base I cause a lot of problems for the pitcher."

"I'm going to run until Bobby stops me. I like to run and I'm not scared to run."

Kunkel has started each of the last four seasons at Class AAA Oklahoma City. He came up to the Rangers last June 9 to begin his jack-of-all-trades services.

"I'm just trying to worry about what I'm doing today and getting a chance to play," Kunkel said. "I feel really comfortable in the outfield. I'm judging the ball much better out there."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 18 and I have a problem that involves my doctor. He happens to be a good friend of my parents and they insist that I go to him whenever I'm sick.

The minute I get to his office, he sends me to the examining room to take of my clothes, no matter what I'm seeing him for, even if it's a sore throat. When he comes in to see me I have to stand there with nothing on and tell him what is bothering me.

After a complete physical exam (every visit) he wants to have a conversation with me while I'm undressed. He always has a lot of questions about school and boyfriends. Last time I asked him if it was OK for me to put my clothes back on, and he said, "No, it's healthy for a girl to be relaxed about nudity. This is good for you."

When he finally let me get dressed, he stayed in the room and watched me put everything on. I felt very self-conscious.

I told my mother that I want to go to another doctor and why. She said, "Absolutely not. Dr.—is wonderful. Get over your false modesty."

Ann, I want to be fair. He really hasn't done or said anything that could be considered "fresh," but I still feel uncomfortable about my visits to his office. Am I being foolish? The only other doctor I ever went to was my pediatrician. I saw her until I was 16. Can you help me?—L.W., New Britain, Conn.

She was afraid that something awful would happen to me if I didn't follow the instructions outlined in the letter. (It was pointed out that the last person who broke the chain had several years of bad luck.)

I tried to explain that it was all a lot of nonsense, that chain letters are illegal and nobody makes any money off them. She was still frightened and begged me to reconsider.

Ann, in addition to the time it would take me to comply with the request, it would cost $5 in postage and $2 in Xeroxing to keep the chain going. Also I would not feel right about imposing such responsibility on my friends by sending them this dreadful thing.

Please ask your readers not to put a burden on their acquaintances. It's no act of friendship to lay this junk on them. Thank you--No Thanks in N.Y.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. I added maraschino cherries and walnuts to my angel food cake and it came out like a pound cake. What happened? F.H., Brownsville, OH

A. Angel food cake's light texture isn't strong enough to hold walnuts and cherries. Overfolding or underbeating egg whites and adding sugar all at once also may cause angel food cake to be compact.

Q. What is corned beef? J.S., Bridgeport, CT

A. It is beef preserved in salt brine for several weeks, a process dating back hundreds of years. Corn isn't used, but was the term in old English for the salt bits.

DEAR NEW BRIT: I'm annoyed by your mother's refusal to be sympathetic. Ask if he makes her get undressed every time she comes to see him.

In my opinion, your doctor is grossly out of line. Enlist the help of your pediatrician at once. I'll bet she will come to your rescue.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday, I received a chain letter in the mail. Normally, I throw this sort of thing in the garbage and don't give it a second thought, but this time my 11-year-old daughter picked it out of the wastebasket, read it and became very upset.

DEAR NO THANKS: I have dealt with chain letters in this space several times.

I repeat: Chain letters are against the law. They are a rip-off, a waste of time and energy. The threats are a lot of malarkey. Don't bite.

Do you have questions about sex, but nobody you can talk to about them? Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," will give you the answers you need. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

A Special Tribute to our Farmers & Ranchers.

A hamburger, by any other name, smells and tastes just as sweet!

Our farmers and ranchers produce all the ingredients necessary to fill the requirements of a good burger!

That's why we feel a hamburger cookout held in your honor, is an appropriate way to pay tribute to your efforts as producers.

Hereford State Bank, in conjunction with Hereford's NEW car and implement dealers, will commemorate National Agriculture Week with an agriculture day celebration for Hereford, Saturday March 25th, 11 a.m.- 2 p.m. at Hereford State Bank.

Register for a FREE limited edition print "Continuing the Legacy" signed and numbered by artist Bart Forbes. Then join us for a delicious hamburger cookout while you view the newest lines offered by Hereford's NEW car and implement dealers.

In addition to the participating merchants listed below, K'Bob's Steakhouse, Hereford Tortilla Factory and R&R Refrigeration have generously contributed hamburger patties, corn chips and ice for the festive occasion.

If you're planning to attend, you must pick up your tickets at Hereford State Bank or at any of these participating merchants; Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac-GMC, Whiteface Ford/Chrysler, Ford-New Holland, Arrow Sales, Oglesby Equipment Co., Inc., and White Implement.

Serve an Easter feast

Easter is the most important holiday in the Christian religion and calls for rejoicing, celebrating and feasting. It celebrates the rebirth of Christ and the renewal of nature.

Lamb is often served on the feast of Easter. The lamb offering symbolizes Christ as the lamb of God.

Whole roast lamb or sheep is still prepared in villages in the Holy Land on special ceremonial occasions and family festivities. The outdoor barbecue spit is set up in the garden or rigged up on the beach.

However, a leg of lamb is much easier to prepare than a whole, stuffed lamb and will easily fit in the oven. In The Garden of Eden Cookbook (Harper & Row), Deborah Emmet Weigender shares a recipe for Oven-roasted Leg of Lamb with herb Paste that will serve 10 to 12 people on Easter Sunday.

OVEN-ROASTED LEG OF LAMB WITH HERB PASTE

1 leg of lamb, 4 to 5 pounds
Parsley, for garnish
Herb Paste
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon ground rosemary
Salt and pepper, to taste
1 jigger brandy or sherry
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup chopped fresh mint

1. In small bowl, mix all the ingredients for the herb paste. Remove any excess fat from the leg of lamb, and discard. Rub the lamb all over with the herb paste. If possible, wrap it in a plastic bag and leave it in the refrigerator for a few hours. 2. Preheat the oven to 450 degrees. Roast the lamb for about 2 hours. Turn off the heat, and let the roast rest for 15 minutes. This allows the juices to congeal, and makes carving easier. 3. Slice the lamb and serve with pan juices as a gravy. Or, thicken the gravy with cornstarch and water mixed into a paste, or with a prepared gravy mix. Garnish with parsley.

Serves 10 to 12.
Mint is traditionally served with lamb. If you want extra mint flavor added to the taste of the mint, this recipe for Fresh Mint Cress Chutney from Jeffrey Sapp Brooks' cookbook, The Art of Accompaniment (North Point Press), allows guests to add the desired amount of mint to their lamb to satisfy their own palates.

FRESH MINT CRESS CHUTNEY

2 cups chopped fresh mint leaves
3/4 cup chopped watercress leaves
1/2 cup minced onion
1 tablespoon minced gingerroot
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons minced lemon zest
1/2 teaspoon minced jalapeno chile pepper
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon minced fresh garlic

Combine all ingredients in a medium-sized bowl. Serve immediately or refrigerate, covered, for a few hours until ready to use. Will keep several days refrigerated.

Eggs for adults
Easter weekend also includes egg decorating, egg rolling and Easter egg hunts. Adults who want bright-colored eggs for Easter don't have to dye them or buy foil-wrapped eggs left by chocolate buddies.

Nature produces the brightest eggs of all. "Caviar", with the help of the most ancient symbol of fertility—the fish.

Betty Fussell includes a recipe for Easter Egg Surprise in her cookbook, Food in Good Season (Alfred A. Knopf), to bring joy to adult palates while kids are hunting for those chocolate and brightly dyed eggs.

EASTER EGG SURPRISE

4 white hen's eggs
4 tablespoons black, red or golden "caviar"
Pepper to taste
4 egg cups
Hard-cook the eggs by covering them with cold water and bringing them slowly to a simmer. Remove from heat, cover, and let sit 20 minutes. Drain and cover with cold water until the shells are cool. With a sharp knife slice off the pointed end of each egg far enough up to remove the contents and yet retain most of the shell. Finely chop together white and yolk and season with pepper. Pack each shell with a tablespoon of "caviar", then the chopped egg. Reverse the shells into egg cups. Set each place with a sharp knife to crack the shell and a small spoon to remove contents.
Serves 4.

Tips given on retreaded tires

If makes sense to buy a retread if you want to get the most value for your money, according to a spokesman for the Tire Retread Information Bureau.

Retreaded tires offer motorists the same mileage as comparable new tires at a far lower price, which is why retreads are safely used on school and municipal buses, emergency vehicles and taxis, and by all major airlines the trucking industry and millions of motorists. Retreaded tires also perform as well as new tires. The only real difference is in the cost.

Motorists can expect to save about 30 percent of the cost of new tires when buying retreads. The savings are even greater for RV, pickup, 4x4 and performance car owners. Also, the warranty on a retread will generally be better than on a new tire.

Retreaded tires help to reduce our scrap tire disposal problem, too. Every tire is retreaded is one less tire for the scrap pile.

Write to the Tire Retread Information Bureau, Box 374, Pebble Beach, CA 93953, for a free brochure on the features and benefits of retreaded tires.

HOWELLS, Neb. (AP) - It was a special "K" day for kindergartners who learned about kittens, kaleidoscopes and the state's top Kay - Gov. Kay Orr.

The governor accepted an invitation from Dee Morrison's morning and afternoon kindergarten pupils, who decided Mrs. Orr could help them learn about the letter K.

The youngsters treated the governor to Kool-Aid and, well, konversation, during her visit Monday to Howells Public School.

Mrs. Orr shared her kaleidoscope with the kindergartners and read "A Visit from Dr. Katz." She said some of her favorite K-words were kind, kiss, keys, kite, koala and kitten.

Create an edible hat for Easter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
This Festive Easter Bonnet Cake comes from England, and is fashioned after one of the many hats worn by Diana, Princess of Wales. The cake is easy to bake and decorate. The recipe is provided by Golden Granulated Sugar.

FESTIVE EASTER BONNET CAKE

- 3 cups self-rising flour
- 3/4 cup margarine
- 1 cup Golden Granulated Sugar
- 2 tablespoons orange marmalade
- Grated orange rind
- 2 oranges
- 2-3rds cup orange juice
- 2 eggs, beaten

Filling:

- 2-3rds cup heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons orange marmalade

Frosting:

- 3 cups confectioners' sugar
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 2 tablespoons warm water
- A few drops orange or yellow food coloring

Bippus plans Easter service

There will be an Easter Sunrise service at the Bippus Community Center on Sunday beginning at 6:15 a.m.

The annual event will feature a country breakfast and Easter egg hunt for the children, weather permitting.

Breakfast participants should bring their own breakfast foods and prepare them at the Center.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Grease and line two 8 1/2-inch layer cake pans.

In a bowl, rub the margarine into the flour until the mixture resembles fine bread crumbs. Add sugar, marmalade and grated orange rind.

Squeeze the juice from the oranges and add to the 2-3rds cup orange juice. Mix with beaten eggs and add to the cake mixture. Mix well.

Divide the mixture between the pans and bake for 30 minutes until golden. Turn out of pans onto cooling rack.

For the filling, whisk the cream until thick and gently fold in the marmalade. Sandwich the cakes together with the cream, making sure it reaches the edges sufficiently to seal the gap between them.

Place the cake in the center of an 11-inch, thin, round silver cake board and then put the board onto a turntable or pedestal, on a clean work surface.

For the frosting, sift the confectioners' sugar into a mixing bowl, then gradually stir in the orange juice, followed by the warm water, until the frosting is thick enough to coat the back of a spoon. Add the food coloring and mix thoroughly.

Pour the frosting onto the center of the cake and all over the cake board so the entire "bonnet" is evenly coated. (Don't worry too much about the sides because they will be covered by ribbon.)

Carefully transfer the cake onto a plate. Leave to set for several hours or overnight.

To decorate: Use colored ribbon (approximately 1 yard) to create a hatband around the side of the cake, securing it with a little of the leftover frosting. (You may secure it with a pin, but don't forget to remove the pin when serving the cake.) Arrange artificial flowers on the bonnet as desired.

JOHN FORD

Military Muster

Airman John G. Ford, son of Rene and Michelle Ford of 614 Ave. J., has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the community college of the Air Force.

He is a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School.

Family shoppers can stretch food dollars

Family food shopping is no longer the domain of veteran homemakers. While 40 to 49-year-olds still dominate supermarket aisles, recent surveys show a steady invasion of teenagers crowding deli counters and competing for produce.

To help consumers of all ages stretch their food dollars without sacrificing quality, the following tips are offered.

-Clip newspaper coupons: Look for cents-off coupons and rebate offers in the food section of daily newspapers. Weekly specials are regularly announced in newspapers and supermarket circulars.

-Reduce impulse buys: Plan a week's worth of balanced meals before shopping. Make a list of essentials and stick to it.

-Compare unit price: Compare the cost of different brands and package sizes by referring to the unit price, item cost by weight (ounce, pound) or volume (pint, gallon). This price is posted on labels on the edge of store shelves, directly above or below the product.

-Check dates: Look for expiration or last sale dates on perishables to make sure you're buying the freshest product available. Because many marketers rotate their stock and push older products towards shelf fronts, particularly in the dairy case, select a product from the back of the shelf.

-Check packaging: Food storage is just as important as preparation. Select food items contained in convenient and protective packaging. Unused portions of perishables such as cereal, hot dogs, cheese and potato chips in resealable zippered packaging are better protected from spoilage. -Make substitutions: In order to stretch your financial and nutritional budget, be prepared to make substitutions. Frozen fruit and vegetables may be less expensive than fresh produce during the winter months.

Certain grades and cuts of beef (select, lean) may be lower in fat. Bread, muffins and cookies baked at home may be a better buy than commercially baked products.

-Educate yourself: Pick up consumer information brochures, handouts, and other information available at most supermarkets. For further information, write the Food Marketing Institute, 1750 K. Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20006.
