Sartor awarded Bull Chip at fun breakfast

Hereford High School head baseball coach T.R. Sartor was presented the Bull Chip Award this morning at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfast at the Hereford Community Center.

Sartor's 1989 team is 22-2-1 and won its third-straight district championship on Tuesday at Lubbock Estacado.

Under Sartor's three years as head baseball coach, the Herd is 42-3-1 in District 1-4A and is 70-12-1 overall, an .843 winning percentage.

The team went to the regional round of the playoffs in 1987, then advanced to the state quarterfinals in 1988. The 1989 team will begin its playoff schedule next week.

In 1987 and 1988, Sartor had 12 players named all-district and four named all-state: Kyle Streun in 1987, and Jason Scott, Robbie Collier and Rodney McCracken in 1988.

In 1987 and 1988, Sartor was named District 1-4A Coach of the Year, an honor selected by the other coaches in the district.

Sartor received a standing ovation and praised his teams in accepting the award, pointing out their willingness to work for their success.

The award was selected by a secret committee and was presented by Hereford Brand Publisher Speedy Nieman.

The breakfast was sponsored by Peavey Grain Co. of Hereford. Local manager Mark Black introduced several of the employees of the local office, which was established in 1987 and is ConAgra's first venture in grain handling in Texas.

Several announcements were made at the breakfast, including:

--The "Pancake Day" to be held Saturday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center to benefit the Hereford High School Band for its trip to Washington, DC next month. Tickets are $5 for one meal or $10 for breakfast, lunch and supper. Hereford civic clubs will be helping prepare the meals, and tickets are available from any HHS band member and will be available at the door.

--Roger Eades and Betty Taylor gave a summary of the upcoming Rhinestone Roundup on June 16-18 at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

--The annual all-sports banquet will be held Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the Bull Barn and is open to the public, with tickets available at Hereford High School.

--The chamber will be kicking off a new membership drive in the near future. Chamber president Rocky Lee emphasized that "the chamber is not they, it is us."

Bill Harris won a drawing for $100 for attending the breakfast.

Referendum for potato growers ends Friday

Area potato producers have until Friday to cast ballots in a USDA referendum to determine if a federal marketing order for potatoes in 21 western Texas and 10 eastern New Mexico counties will be established.

USDA has mailed ballots and voting instructions to all area potato producers of record. Deaf Smith County producers who have not received a ballot may obtain copies of the notice of the referendum, ballots and voting instructions in the Extension Office in Room 402 in the courthouse in Hereford today or Friday between the hours of 8 a.m. and noon and 1-5 p.m.

If it passes, the order would authorize grade, size and maturity regulations for High Plains potatoes and specifications for the size, capacity, weight, dimension, marking and pack of containers used in marketing these potatoes.

The order also would authorize research and promotion projects but not paid advertising.

An administrative committee would administer the order. Six members would represent growers; four would represent handlers; and one would represent the public-at-large. The handler and grower members would be chosen by the secretary of agriculture from a list of peer-selected nominees, and then would select the at-large member from nominees offered by the ten committee members.

To pass, the recommended order must pass by at least two-thirds of those voting, or by those producing at least two-thirds of the volume of potatoes grown in 1988 by those voting in the referendum.

Wheat forecast is expected to go lower

By WENDY E. LANE
Associated Press Writer

HEREFORD - It's just not a wheat year, say some longtime farmers in the area.

But agronomists and county extension agents can recite a litany of factors that makes this year's winter wheat crop possibly the worst ever.

"There are no large areas where there's a fair to average wheat crop and that's unusual," said extension service agronomist Travis Miller.

Federal officials will release the latest state-by-state wheat harvest estimates Thursday. Crop experts' forecasts predict a statewide yield of no more than 60 million bushels on about 6.8 million acres, planted in 220 of the state's 254 counties.

Over the past 10 years, Texas has averaged 140 million bushels, putting it among the top three U.S. wheat-producing states.

To put the devastation in perspective, farmers in the state's biggest wheat-growing county - Ochiltree County in the far north Panhandle - have reported 90 percent of their crop as a total loss.

"That level of disaster didn't even happen in the 30s," said Bill Nelson, executive vice president of the Texas Wheat Producers Association.

A drought that has lasted more than nine months is to blame for much of the damage. However, pests, disease and seesawing temperature extremes took their toll as well, said Miller.

Crop experts have written off most dryland wheat as a complete loss, and yields on irrigated wheat are expected to be drastically reduced.

What's salvageable of the Panhandle wheat crop, which makes up about half of the state's total production, will depend on the crucial weeks before harvesting begins in late June and early July.

A little rain would be a blessing, said Deaf Smith County agent Davy Vestal. Otherwise, the drought-stressed wheat plants will form small heads and kernels. And for farmers who irrigate, rain would eliminate the need for another costly watering before harvest.

"Right now, we can't say that anybody is going to make a wheat crop," said Vestal.

In Deaf Smith County, where between 120,000 and 150,000 acres are planted in wheat, dryland acres are ruined.

"Some of the people who didn't graze out have since gone back and disestered it out," Vestal said.

Farmer Charles Schlabs is one of the lucky ones. Because his 400 acres are irrigated, he'll have a crop worth harvesting, but his usual yield of 80 bushels at best will be cut in half.

"I can't remember when I've seen so much bad-looking wheat," he said.

Russian wheat aphids were a serious problem, Schlabs said, but not as serious as the drought. Although rain would help other crops such as cotton and corn, he fears showers would just encourage weed growth in wheat fields.

"Our drought has just gone on too long," he said. "All you can do is wait for next year."

That wasn't the case in North Central Texas, where adequate moisture had gotten the crop off to a good start.

But in Hill County north of Waco, where dryland wheat is the biggest crop, a pair of freezes in early February and March left 20,000 acres a total loss, said county agent Bill Buxkemper. More acreage was lost after an early April freeze and two hailstorms last week.

"Of the 90,000 acres of wheat planted in Hill County we will average only about four bushels of wheat per acre," Buxkemper said. "I've been here 17 years and it's by far the worst crop."

Many Central Texas farmers are just giving up and baling their ruined wheat for hay, according to extension service crop reports.

During the fall and early winter growth season, temperatures stayed warm, which encouraged pests such as greenbugs. But in February, March and April temperatures gyrated from freezing to unseasonably warm, Miller said.

"The wheat would recover and start to grow, then, whack, another front would come along," he said.

This year's disaster makes the 89 million bushels harvested from last year's disease-plagued crop seem like a bountiful harvest, said crop experts.

And whether the federal government will provide disaster assistance is still unknown.

Wheat farmers in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, all hit hard by the drought, have asked Congress to extend the 1988 drought disaster relief into 1989. Three disaster relief bills aimed at helping wheat producers have been introduced in the House, including one last week by Rep. Bill Sarpaluis, D-Amarillo, whose district covers the state's largest wheat-producing region.

"Right now I'd say there's a 50-50 chance of getting something through," said Nelson.

Bullock: well's run dry

AUSTIN (AP) - Comptroller Bob Bullock has a simple message for lawmakers hunting for up to $600 million more to balance the budget. The well's gone dry.

Although an upturn in the economy allowed Bullock last month to increase his official projection of state income, he said that's all there is for the 1990-91 state budget unless lawmakers want to add new taxes.

"Santa Claus has dropped down the Capitol's chimney several times this session, but he's gone back to the North Pole. Lawmakers shouldn't expect any more gifts in their stockings," Bullock said.

Both the House and Senate have passed proposed budgets, and a conference committee has been negotiating on the final spending plan to total more than $46.5 billion for the next two years.

But legislative leaders this week unexpectedly announced they still find themselves $300 million to $600 million short of paying for all needed services.

"He's saying there's not going to be any last-minute miracle," Deputy Comptroller Tony Proffitt said of Bullock's warning Wednesday.

"He told them, 'What you see is what you've got.' They can either cut (spending) or they can approve some new taxes," Proffitt said.

Bullock's revenue estimate is a critical element in the budget-writing process. The comptroller must certify that the Legislature's spending blueprint will balance with expected income before it can take effect.

Bullock in April raised his estimate of available funds. But that projection included money that would be raised by passage of eight bills still are pending in the Legislature. Proffitt said passage of all eight still would leave lawmakers facing the $300 million to $600 million shortfall.

"They're still in excess (of available revenue). That's something their budget process is going to have to deal with," Proffitt said.

How do they wear these things?

Darwin McGill, Greg Buckley and Roger Eades all wrestle with panty hose this morning during a game at the Fun Breakfast this morning at the Community Center. The men were blindfolded before trying to put on the hose. The breakfast was co-sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and Peavey Grain.

Committee rejects Bush bailout plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democrats are rejecting President Bush's savings and loan bailout bill in a move that the administration contends may force him to abandon his pledge of no new taxes.

In the biggest challenge yet to Bush's campaign promise to reduce the federal deficit without new taxes, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 25-11 Wednesday to dump the $50 billion S&L bailout costs on the government's budgets for fiscal 1989, 1990 and 1991. The amounts would not count against the Gramm-Rudman deficit limits, according to the plan.

An angry Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady called the vote a "mistake" and said it could lead to "months of stalemate."

"If adopted, this action could force us to go back to square one on both the budget and the savings and loan plan," he said. "This is not the way either to lower interest rates or solve the savings and loan crisis."

Two Republicans - Reps. Willis Gradison of Ohio and Raymond McGrath of New York - joined all 26 Democrats in rejecting Bush's off-budget financing scheme.

The Ways and Means alternative would swell this year's budget deficit by $9 billion or $10 billion and next year's by between $22 billion and $25 billion.

All the money would go toward closing or merging some 350 insolvent thrift institutions that have lost an estimated $100 billion in federally insured deposits through poor and often fraudulent lending practices.

"This is the first step in ending the period of Ronald Reagan's blue smoke and mirrors," said the committee's chairman, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

Prior to Wednesday's vote, Brady met for an hour with committee members behind closed doors, repeating a threat to recommend that Bush veto any S&L plan that - without a tax increase or spending cuts elsewhere - would raise the deficit.

Senate Democrats bowed to a similar threat last month, rejecting an alternative proposed by its banking committee chairman, Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., to put the entire bailout's cost on this year's budget.

The Ways and Means Committee meets again on May 18 to affirm its vote formally before the bill goes to the full House on the following week. But Rostenkowski said he hopes his panel will not reopen the issue.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., an early proponent of including the S&L bailout's costs in the budget, said the committee's action Wednesday has breathed new life into a once-abandoned effort to force Bush's hand.

"The Democratic caucus is pretty much on board now that Ways and Means has said it wants this on the budget," Schumer said. "I think the odds are 70 percent to 80 percent that we'll win on the House floor."

Both the administration's plan and the alternative separate the cost of cleaning up the S&L mess from the Gramm-Rudman law, which requires a reduction in the federal deficit to less than $100 billion for the next fiscal year beginning in October.

Bush's proposal gets around the requirement by borrowing the $50 billion through a new off-budget government corporation and including only the $3.5 billion in interest costs as part of federal budget for the next three years.

The Ways and Means measure allows the budget deficit to swell a total of $50 billion over that time, but exempts it from the official Gramm-Rudman target deficits of $136 billion this year, $100 billion in 1990 and $64 billion in 1991.

"Everybody knows that it's already breached," said Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., referring to the $163 billion deficit anticipated this year and assumptions that interest rates will fall to 5.5 percent so that the 1990 target can be met.

While Bush's plan prevented the cost of solving the S&L crisis from showing up on the budget, it also swelled the overall costs to taxpayers because higher interest rates would have to be paid on the borrowed $50 billion.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates the savings in lower interest rates from what the Ways and Means Committee did at $671 million over the first five years, $1.5 billion by the year 2000 and $4.5 billion over 30 years.

BABBLING BROOKS

By John Brooks

I don't usually do book reviews. I do know a good book, or a good story, when I read it. I'm 33, and I've been reading for 31 of those years, so I have some experience.

There's a brand new book out that you're gonna like, once you can get your hands on it. And Deliver Us From Evil is the title. It's about Texas crime, and it's written by the best reporter to come down the pike in this state, Mike Cochran.

Cochran has won just about every award available for a really good writer. He's been named the state's top reporter twice in this decade. He's won the Texas Associated Press story of the year award four times, he was named the top AP staffer in the state five times, and he was named the best feature writer in the entire world of AP in 1987.

Mike has written other books: his best effort, I thought, was Texas vs. Davis, about T. Cullen Davis, the trial Mike covered in Amarillo, and all the circumstances around it.

His new book is better. Maybe that's because his editor, AP chief of bureau John Lumpkin, edited the book.

It has some new goodies on Davis and that horrible night. It also contains the saga of former Methodist minister Walker Railey, the near-murder of his wife, and his "thing" for Lucy Papillon, and the story of fugitive Kenneth Miller.

Cochran also looks at other Texas crimes, from the all-time crime committed by Lee Harvey Oswald on down.

These stories were written by a man who has a special gift for getting people to talk. They'll talk to him when they might not even talk to their attorney or their preacher. He gets more things out of more people: if he had been working in Washington instead of Fort Worth in 1972-73, Richard Nixon and his merry band wouldn't have lasted as long as they did.

One of Texas' most renowned ex-cons, Billie Sol Estes, carries an impression of Cochran. "He's worse than a bulldog," Estes said. "When he gets ahold of your foot and sinks his teeth in, he just won't let go."

Racehorse Haynes, the man who defended Davis, said, "You want to give him a sock in the soup-sucker, and then the next time you see him, he has such an effervescent nature you forget about it."

Cochran's been on a hit list and has almost been killed several times. He's still more effervescent than your leading denture cleanser. A little over a year ago, he was in Hereford. We ate at Dos Caballeros, and he turned the place on.

He's the kind of guy that makes reporters want to report and readers want to read. You'll want to read his latest.

Local Roundup

Confidence game suspected

An elderly Hereford resident was apparently the victim of a team of confidence men on Wednesday. The team convinced the man to withdraw $1,900 from his bank account to demonstrate "how the bank works." As they rode in the victim's car, the confidence men apparently switched the money and left the victim with a stack of paper in exchange for the bills.

Other incidents investigated by the Hereford Police Department included a theft reported in the 700 block of South Texas with clothing taken from a clothes line; an apparent drug over-dose reported at Deaf Smith General Hospital; and criminal mischief reported in the 600 block of Blevins. Police also assisted in checking on the welfare of a child whom it was believed had been left unattended.

City officers issued 17 citations and investigated two minor accidents. The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department received one call to a grass fire on East U.S. Highway 60.

Arrests made by Hereford police included a 25-year-old male arrested for driving while intoxicated; a 33-year-old male arrested for no liability insurance (second offense); and a 41-year-old male arrested for disorderly conduct and public intoxication.

Arrests made by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department included a man, 18, on a warrant for assault; a 28-year-old female arrested on a warrant for perjury; and a 22-year-old female arrested for no liability insurance (second offense).

Heavy rain chance continues

Tonight will see a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms with locally heavy rain possible this evening. The low will be 55, with southeast winds 15-25 mph and gusty diminishing after midnight.

Friday will be cloudy with a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms, with some possibly severe during the afternoon. It will be warmer, with a high of 78, and south winds will be 10-20 mph and gusty.

This morning's low at KPAN was 50 after a high Wednesday of 73.

Now You're Cooking

By GAYE B. REILY

Gayla Sanders was a confirmed city girl until she took a tractor ride more than four years ago.

"My boyfriend was always busy farming, so I thought riding the tractor would be a good way to be with him. He said, 'Let's get married tomorrow' and we did," laughed the 23-year-old.

Following their September, 1984 wedding, the couple settled southwest of Hereford and she began life as a country dweller. "It's quite different living in the country—you can't just run to the store every time you're out of something." The dark-eyed woman with long, light brown hair passes the time by jogging or riding a four-wheeler with her dog, Samson Knight, a black Lab.

"I get bored easily so I have a variety of hobbies," she said. "I sew, cross stitch, play the organ, and I'm active in an aerobics class. Reading is my passion and I enjoy studying the Bible."

The daughter of Loyd Hulsey and the late Pearl Hulsey, the bright, articulate woman has lived in Hereford since she was three when the family moved from Quitaque. She and Kevin graduated from Hereford High School, in 1983 and '79, respectively, and they attend the Nazarene Church.

She is involved in Hereford's activities, including volunteer work for such organizations as the American Cancer Society. She belongs to Pilot Club, the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

"I've had a great time being a Big Sister to Laura Jesko," Sanders said. "We don't have children but I am close to several, like my niece, Cassie Harrison. Kevin said he wanted bumpers instead of diapers when we married, but maybe we'll start a family someday."

The 'bumpers instead of diapers' remark alludes to his enthusiasm for auto restoration and racing. Her main love, however, is cooking.

"I watched Grandma cook and can vegetables and learned to make jellies and jams. I also like baking different types of bread.

"I didn't begin experimental cooking until I married; I'd say about half of my attempts are successful."

Sanders, who collects copper and ducks, plans to start a garden of her own. "I like all kinds of food, such as potatoes, which are so versatile. Asparagus is my favorite food and Chinese stir-fry is my preferred method of cooking."

She prefers fruits and vegetables while her husband is a steak and potatoes man. "Kevin made fun of my 'city girl' cooking until he bragged about one of our neighbor's cooking. He had to eat crow when he found out she was once a city girl too!" She sometimes creates dishes using tofu or alfalfa sprouts, which she eats alone.

Sanders has time to cook creatively since she no longer works outside the home. "I've worked with some fantastic people and made new friends at my previous jobs, but there is plenty for me to do at home." Indeed, some of the recipes she has concocted are so special to her that she will not give them out.

Looking forward to the upcoming days of barbecuing, Sanders shares the following recipes:

BRISKET

- 1 bottle Cattleman's BBQ sauce (Hearty Flavor)
- 1/2 bottle Claude's Brisket Sauce
- 1/4 c. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tsp. Liquid Smoke
- 1/4 c. sugar
- 1/4 c. lemon juice
- 1 tsp. soy sauce
- 1/2 tsp. minced garlic
- 1 Tbsp. Adolph's seasoned tenderizer
- 1 tsp. black pepper
- 1/2 med. onion, chopped

Combine ingredients and pour over 8-10 lb. brisket in foil-lined pan. Cover and marinate 12-24 hours in refrigerator. While still covered, and in marinade, cook in 225 degree oven for approx. 8-10 hours.

POTATO SALAD

- 6 medium-sized potatoes
- 1/2 c. Kraft light mayonnaise
- 1/4 c. sour cream
- 1/4 c. chopped dill pickles
- 1/2 tsp. horseradish
- 2 strips bacon, crumbled
- 1 tsp. prepared mustard
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1 hard boiled egg, chopped

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been planning to commit suicide for a long time. Although I haven't yet actually attempted to do it, I have come close enough so that I no longer fear death. When the time comes, I have every intention of doing it right.

When I hear of someone who has taken his or her life, I silently applaud the decision. When I hear of homeless people living in boxes under bridges, people who are trapped in a dysfunctional body, and those who are dying a slow death and are racked with pain, I wonder why they feel that life is so precious that they want to continue to live.

You tell people who are harboring suicidal thoughts to seek professional help, but you never tell them why they should. When it comes right down to it, Ann, no one is indispensable. We will all die eventually, so if life is lousy, why stick around?

I have found that life's trials and tribulations are not temporary. When one agonizing situation ends, a new one pops up to take its place. I no longer believe that God does not give us more trouble than we can endure, or a heavier load than we can carry. Often people who are crushed by life's cruel blows opt for sleeping pills, a rope or a bullet in the brain. I see nothing wrong with that.

The only reason I am still alive is because I am waiting for my elderly mother to die. She is the only person in my life I care enough about not to hurt. When she goes, I go.

If you have any answers, Ann, I'd like to hear them.--A Reader in Parma, Ohio

DEAR PARMA: I have a sneaking suspicion that your letter is a cry for help. I believe that you really want me to talk you out of killing yourself.

The fact that people live in boxes under bridges and suffer from terminal diseases is the best evidence that even under the worst conditions, life is precious. Otherwise, why would they want to go on? Even though life may be painful and depressing, hope springs eternal that things will get better.

I urge those who contemplate suicide to wait for the cloud of depression to lift. I cannot tell you how many letters I have received from readers who were hellbent on killing themselves and changed their minds because of a letter in the column from a reader who had traveled the same road. They decided to give it one more shot and were thankful that they did.

Suicide is a permanent solution to what could be a temporary problem. Once you cross that great abyss there is no coming back. Even those who suffer from terrible illnesses, such as cancer and AIDS, tell us they want to die with dignity. They want to thank family members and friends who stood by them and offered unconditional love and emotional support. How much more compassionate (and classy) than blowing your brains out and leaving the carnage to be discovered by a spouse or a dear friend.

Please consider counseling. I believe that the majority of people who talk about suicide are hoping that someone will talk them out of it. Like you.

Write a year from now and tell me how you are doing.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I recently moved some of my heavy furniture and am now left with carpet indentations. I can't remember the way to get rid of them, but I know that it has been in your column. Will you please reprint the directions for me. — Janet Turner, Biloxi, Miss.

Ice cubes to the rescue. Simply put an ice cube in the indentation and let it remain overnight. The next morning the moisture from the ice cube will enable you to fluff up the carpet fibers. You may need to blot the spot with white paper toweling to absorb any excess moisture.

A steam iron can also be used to remove the indentations. Hold the iron about an inch or so above the spot and push the steam button several times. DO NOT LET THE IRON TOUCH THE CARPET. The steam will penetrate the fibers and they should spring back (they may need a little help).

If the furniture has been in the same spot for a long time and the indentation is deep, it may take a couple of applications of one of the above methods to achieve the results you want. — Heloise

PICK UP GLASS

Dear Heloise: If you happen to break anything that leaves tiny fragments of glass all over your floor, here is a great tip that will help pick up all the pieces.

I was staying at a cabin on vacation. While doing the dishes I dropped a glass and it shattered all over the floor. I looked for a vacuum or broom, but couldn't find either. I remembered a tip that my aunt told me many years ago, so I tried it.

I picked up the large pieces of glass and then wet a piece of newspaper. I put the paper on the tiny bits and pieces of glass, lifted it up and the glass clung to the paper. I did this all around to make sure I got all the pieces.

It worked. I never found a piece of glass during my stay there. — Judy Granger, Reno, Nev.

STORING BOOKS

Dear Heloise: I'm packing to move into a new home. I have boxes and boxes of books, some old and some new. I'm writing to tell you what I learned from the owner of a bookstore.

I'm planning on keeping some books in the boxes and storing them away. I was told to put some charcoal in the boxes with the books. The charcoal will absorb any moisture and keep books free of mold. — Mary Lerner, Gulfport, Miss.

Be sure to store the boxes in a dry place, and if you put the charcoal in an old sock you don't have to worry about it getting on the books. — Heloise

Investigator: time necessary for study

CINCINNATI (AP) - The special investigator who prepared a report on the gambling activities of Pete Rose acknowledges that his investigation took a long time, but said it was necessary for baseball and for Rose.

The report by John Dowd is now being reviewed by baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti. At the same time, a federal grand jury in Cincinnati is also conducting a probe.

Rich Levin, a spokesman for Giamatti, when asked if Rose would get a hearing before the commissioner makes his decision, said the commissioner "will read the report before deciding on the procedure."

"In terms of the time, effort and care we invested in the inquiry, I was very satisfied," Dowd told The Cincinnati Enquirer in a story in today's editions.

But Dowd, whose investigation lasted 10 weeks, would not comment on details of the report.

"I don't think it would be appropriate," Dowd said. "I want to wait and see what Bart does with it ... In whatever I have done, there is an awful lot of trust; I'm speaking of trust that baseball has placed in me and the trust the people I have interviewed have placed in me. To say anything, at this point, would be a violation of that trust."

"This thing has been going on for some time and I know that bothered a lot of people," Dowd said. "I know it has been difficult for Pete Rose. But you can't put enough effort and care into something like this."

"In fairness to baseball, in fairness to Pete Rose, it is the only thing you can do. You have to be very careful, very careful ... It is not something you rush."

Meanwhile, Michael Fry, among those who have linked Rose to alleged gambling, told the Cincinnati Post he has personal knowledge that Rose was behind in payments to his alleged bookmaker, Ronald Peters.

Homer takes bass honor

Tim Homer took overall honors and Bruce Johnson landed the big bass at the Hereford Bass Club's second tournament of the year on May 6-7 at Greenbelt Lake at Clarendon.

Johnson landed a 2.64-lb. bass to win the big bass honors, and his total catch was 5.02 lbs.

Homer's total catch of 5.28 lbs. moved him to first place after two tournaments with 11.80 lbs. Johnson is in second with 11.06 lbs., while Marvin Gaddy is third with 6.02 lbs. Ronnie Bell is fourth with 5.66 lbs., and Lowell Rusher is fifth with 3.88 lbs.

The club will hold its next tournament on June 3-4 at Ute Lake at Logan, N.M.

MVP: the 'P' is for Patient

By DICK BRINSTER
Associated Press Writer

MVP - Most Valuable Patient. That's the current status of Kirk Gibson, Jose Canseco, Andre Dawson and George Brett, all of whom are past Most Valuable Player award winners.

Those players and 60 others, including Dave Winfield, Eric Davis, Andy Van Slyke, Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd and Carlton Fisk, were on the disabled list as of Wednesday.

Some teams are coping, some are not.

Despite the loss of Canseco, who won American League MVP honors by leading Oakland to the World Series last season, the Athletics lead their division. In 1988, Canseco became the first player in major league history to hit at least 40 home runs and steal 40 bases in one season. He has not played an inning and could be sidelined for an additional two months following surgery Wednesday on his left wrist.

On Sunday, while playing for the Huntsville Stars after being sent to the Southern League for rehabilitation, Canseco re-injured the wrist he first hurt in spring training.

"He's a great guy to have in the lineup, but can we play without him?" All-Star catcher Terry Steinbach said in explaining Oakland's standing in the AL West. "Yes, we can, and yes, we are. Do we want him back? Yes, we do, but we have to prepare ourselves to play without him, and that's what everybody on this club is doing."

The Chicago Cubs also are playing well without their top slugger, Dawson, the 1987 National League MVP. The Cubs, two games over .500, will have to persevere for another month until Dawson's injured right knee is healed.

First baseman Mark Grace, who inherited the cleanup spot in the lineup, said the Cubs can't afford to bemoan the loss of Dawson.

"We'll have to play the games of our lives for the next month," Grace said. "The damage is done. We have to find the will to win."

The Los Angeles Dodgers are not doing so well without Gibson, their 1988 MVP and postseason hero. The Dodgers are a game under .500, albeit close to front-running San Francisco in the tight NL West.

Mets, errors beat Reds

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Keith Hernandez is starting to feel good about his offense, not surprising considering a two-hit inning.

Pete Rose would like to feel the same way about his defense, but after a three-error inning, there wasn't any way.

"I can remember making two outs in one inning more often than making two hits," Hernandez said after he and the porous Cincinnati defense provided the main ingredients in a six-run sixth inning Wednesday night that gave the New York Mets an 11-4 victory over the Reds.

"You've got to catch the ball, you've got to throw it straight. If you don't, you won't beat the Rhode Island Reds." Cincinnati manager Rose said after the Reds' errors led to six unearned runs.

Elsewhere, it was St. Louis 3, San Diego 1; San Francisco 4, Chicago 3, and Montreal 10, Houston 1. Los Angeles at Pittsburgh and Atlanta at Philadelphia were postponed by rain. The rainout was the second in as many nights in Pittsburgh, setting up a six-game series between the Dodgers and the Pirates in July.

Cardinals 3, Padres 1
Joe Magrane limited San Diego to two hits in 8 2-3 innings and Tom Brunansky hit a two-run homer for St. Louis. Magrane, 3-2, had a no-hitter for 6 2-3 innings, losing it on a one-out double to left field by Carmelo Martinez.

Giants 4, Cubs 3

A disputed balk by reliever Mitch Williams scored Donnell Nixon after Will Clark singled in the tying run in the eighth inning.

Williams, 0-2, came on looking for his 11th save in 13 opportunities after Ed Jurak started the eighth with a single off Mike Bielecki. Brett Butler beat out a bunt between the mound and first, but Jurak was forced at third on Nixon's attempted sacrifice. Clark's single scored Butler and sent Nixon to third.

Expos 10, Astros 1

Montreal's Tom Foley had four hits and drove in three runs to lead a 15-hit attack in a game marred by a bench-clearing brawl. Bryn Smith, 3-1, gave up just three hits and walked one in seven innings as the Expos swept the three-game series.

The game was interrupted for 15 minutes in the sixth by a brawl. The incident began when Houston reliever Larry Andersen threw high and inside, striking Spike Owen's bat as he avoided the pitch.

Tigers rally to beat Angels

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

California manager Doug Rader did what Detroit could not do. He got Kirk McCaskill out of the game and gave the Tigers a chance.

The Tigers, shut out for eight innings by McCaskill, rallied for three runs in the ninth against Bryan Harvey and beat California 3-2 Wednesday night, ending the Angels' six-game winning streak.

"That's going to happen," Rader said. "(Harvey) is one of the league's best in relief."

McCaskill leads the American League with an 0.87 earned run average. Despite losing his chance at a victory, he wasn't upset.

"I had no qualms about being taken out," McCaskill said. "He could have taken me out in the fifth inning. I wasn't sharp tonight."

Matt Nokes' two-run double with one out tied the game and Keith Moreland followed with an RBI single that won it.

In other games, Toronto also rallied for three runs in the ninth inning and beat Seattle 3-2, Chicago routed Milwaukee 12-2 and Kansas City defeated Cleveland 3-2. The Texas at New York, Oakland at Baltimore and Minnesota at Boston games were rained out.

Blue Jays 3, Mariners 2
Mark Langston held Toronto hitless for eight innings before the Blue Jays rallied for three runs to beat Seattle.

Tom Lawless opened the ninth inning with a pinch-single, the third time this season Toronto has spoiled a no-hit bid in the ninth inning. Bob Brenly's RBI double and Junior Felix's tying single finished Langston, 4-4, and George Bell singled home the winner against Mike Schooler.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

"SEE YOU IN THE MORNING": Starring Jeff Bridges and Farrah Fawcett. (I know I shouldn't...but, what the heck, this pun is just too good to miss.) The title of this disappointing movie is apparently a subliminal message to the audience; after sitting through this film, you feel as if you have been in the theater all night. See You In The Morning is a long, long-suffering and dull movie.

Jeff Bridges plays a psychiatrist, with a broken first marriage, attempting a second marriage and attempting to blend two families.

Farrah Fawcett plays the ex-wife and Alice Krige the new one. There is an assorted number of children and dogs, none of whom perform very well. Unless you like lots, and operative word here is lots, of talk about guilt and angst; lots of talk about dead and dying relationships, and unless you are in the mood (and have the time) to plod very slowly through other people's problems, it might be better if you skipped this one. Rated PG-13. An the title done on purpose. I was astounded at this film; it is so badly made. The quality of the film, the sound, the gory special effects and the audio are worse than the acting - and that's saying something. The plot - what there is of it - concerns a doctor who moves his family to Maine and discovers a pet cemetery behind his home. And, like they say in the cartoons - that's all folks; that's all there is. Rated R. An Upside Down Box. Now for the good stuff this week....

RENTAL MOVIES
An often overlooked, first-rate horror/suspense film....
"ASYLUM": (1972) Starring Barbara Parkins and Patrick Magee. This English horror anthology was reissued in 1980 as House of Crazies. Try though, to find the original because House of Crazies is an edited version and the shorter movie is just not as good as the original.
I can't tell you much about Asylum or it will spoil your fun, except to say that there are fine performances by all and that the script is terrific. Asylum, written by Robert Block, appears to be four unrelated stories of madness. The stories, however, are interwoven into a marvelous puzzle that leads you to a nail-biting climax. A real family horror movie that is rated PG. Four Boxes.

One of my favorite new suspense dramas which got only fair reviews when it was first released and not the good ones I think it deserved.

"BLACK WIDOW": (1987) Starring Debra Winger and Theresa Russell. Black Widow is a superb thriller from director Bob Rafelson.

Debra Winger plays a federal investigator who stumbles over a series of apparently unrelated deaths in which very rich men are victims of a rare syndrome which causes them to die in their sleep. She becomes intrigued with these coincidences - then obsessed with the theory that the same person has killed all of the men. She sets out not only to prove her theory but to find the murderer. In order to really get into this film you'll have to accept that Debra Winger is more psychic than intuitive, but if you do, you'll find Black Widow a handsome, stylishly crafted yarn loaded with sexual tension.

Admittedly some of the tension, and part of the plot, just miss the mark - but not enough to prevent you from enjoying the movie. The acting is excellent throughout; especially effective is the chemistry that is created between Debra Winger and Theresa Russell. (Black Widow may be Theresa Russell's best movie acting to date.) Lots of twists and turns to keep you going, even when you can anticipate the next turn of events. The film has wonderful photography, gorgeous locations and a very good musical score by Michael Small. Rated R for nudity and adult situations.

Three Boxes. "CRITTERS": (1986) Starring Dee Wallace. This is a mild horror film made for family viewing with enough hilarious spots to make it a cult film. In the movie, eight ravenous critters escape from a distant planet and head for Earth. Now for the good news: two futuristic bounty hunters pursue them, and the fun begins. There are more comic moments in Critters than you'll find in E.T. and Gremlins; the bad news is that the gore is a little graphic and the film also contains unnecessary profanity. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

One last suspense film that perhaps only a film buff would love, but is worth a risk recommending... "THE LODGER": (1926) A silent, black and white movie that is Alfred Hitchcock's first signature thriller. This film remains a timeless piece of wonder, showcasing the unique visual and stylistic tricks that would mark Hitchcock's work for years to come. The plot revolves around a man who checks into a boardinghouse and becomes the object of scrutiny when a series of murders plague the area. Not rated but probably a PG. Three Boxes.

Dey enjoying role on 'L.A. Law'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Deputy District Attorney Grace Van Owen frequently stumbles over her own seriousness. "Grace is very much in her element in the courtroom," says actress Susan Dey, who plays her on NBC's "L.A. Law."

"But I battle with her in terms of how serious she is."

At the moment, Dey is prosecuting another of Van Owen's hopeless cases, outfoxed by a sly attorney and facing a jury swayed by sympathetic defendants. On the courtroom set on a sound stage at 20th Century Fox Studios, three old-timers are on trial for robbing a bank.

Law Ayres, 81, white-thatched and slightly stooped, has the jury hanging on every word. "They robbed the bank because they couldn't draw out their senior citizens money," he says.

"They're very sweet men," concedes prosecutor Van Owen, adding, "who committed a very serious crime." She doesn't smile. Her suit, a black-and-gray striped jacket with padded shoulders and a black skirt, reinforces her no-nonsense attitude.

Although some of the comic scenes in "L.A. Law" are played at her expense, Van Owen is by no means a loser. As the love interest of attorney Michael Kuzak (Harry Hamlin), she's bright and talented, beautiful and sexy.

Back at the makeup trailer parked outside the stage, Dey ponders the paradox that is Grace. "She's in a very serious environment. She feels safest when she's at work. She's most insecure when she's away from that environment," Dey says.

"I like her best in a dilemma, when the crisis comes. In a dramatic or comedic conflict. She has a vulnerability in a conflict. She's really a powerful woman. She's strong. When something gets to her, it's wonderful. She gets frustrated. She can be outwitted because she's so serious. Her determination boxes her in."

Makeup artists Lee Mitchell and Candy Conery work on her face for the next scene. Then Sarah, her 10-year-old, enters the trailer. "Boo-Boo's here!" Dey exclaims, jumping off the high makeup chair to hug her.

Sarah is from a previous marriage. Dey is now married to television producer Bernard Sofronski.

Van Owen isn't known for doing things on impulse, but on a show early this year she did suddenly kiss Victor Sifuentes (Jimmy Smits).

"Nothing's come of that yet," says Dey. "For us, the moment was so wonderful for Grace to fulfill this fantasy. But there's no talk that anything will come of it. Steven Bochco said it was just something Grace has always wanted to do.

"That was one of the few times I got to work with other members of the cast besides Harry. I'm usually in court. It was a new experience and it was fun, too. I'm kind of lucky. There's a lot of give and take. I work the long hours in the courtroom, which makes you kind of crazy. But I get to work with all these wonderful guest stars."

She was not in the "L.A. Law" pilot, but was cast after running into executive producer Bochco at a school function for their children. Bochco was looking for a love interest for Kuzak, as well as another view of the law.

Seasonal fruits, vegetables featured

COLLEGE STATION—May marks the start of the special season that ushers in fruits and vegetables for the summer, according to Dr. Dick Edwards, a food marketing expert at Texas A&M University. He said strawberries will still be priced attractively early in May, and as they phase out, early peach varieties will be featured at many supermarkets.

Edwards, an economist in marketing (food distribution) with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said plums, raspberries and blueberries also will be arriving later this month.

"In addition, fresh field-grown sweet corn from Florida and large quantities of tomatoes that are not imported will be available for the first time this year," Edwards said.

He said other produce items featured this month at many supermarkets will include cauliflower, lettuce, spinach and sweet onions, including the 1015Y, developed by vegetable breeders with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"All of these products will be domestically grown so the fears and concerns some consumers have about imported products can be laid aside for the next few months," Edwards said.

He said one impact of the February and March freezes—which caused growers to replant only to have the second freeze destroy much of the same acreage—will delay melons, peppers and tomatoes until later this month. He said the products will be available from other sources in early May, but prices will be higher than the normal seasonal levels.

Edwards said the new fruit offerings will hit the market just in time for Memorial Day outings, which mark the unofficial beginning of picnics and grilling outside.

The economist said food stores will make all of this easier for us by lowering prices on numerous items that are central to these activities.

Meat enthusiasts can look for lower prices on pork chops, spare ribs and pork roasts that can be converted to barbecued pork.

At the poultry counter, leg and thigh cuts that are ideal for outside grilling are priced between 35 and 45 cents a pound. "However, these prices likely will have restrictions such as they must be purchased in lots of 10 pounds or more, or with a minimum dollar value grocery order," Edwards said.

He said ground beef and hot dogs also will be on sale, with the ground beef specials in the 99-cent to $1.09 per pound bracket.

"Beef cuts which can be grilled, such as round steak and sirloin steak, also will be featured," Edwards said.

He said turkeys will be available at reduced prices, ranging from 79 to 89 cents per pound.

"If you feel your family can't consume the bird at one meal, have it cut in half and freeze the remainder," Edwards said.

Also on special at many supermarkets will be items such as barbecue sauce, catsup, mayonnaise, relish and buns. For side dishes, ingredients for pork and beans, macaroni and cheese, pasta salads, potato salads and three-bean salads will be featured as Memorial Day nears, Edwards said.

He said the demand for soft drinks increases in May and continues through the summer. Makers of both carbonated and powdered drink mixes will entice consumers with lower prices and heavy advertising that will feature coupons.

Edwards said the Memorial Day weekend also starts the ice cream season.

"The biggest event will be an introduction of diet ice cream which will have about the same number of calories as sherbet and ice milk," Edwards said.

Perhaps the most special event in May is Mother's Day. Edwards said supermarkets carry a complete line of gifts, cards and wrappings, as well as film and videotape for that occasion.

Bean sprouts leading way to healthier diets

Consumers focusing on a more healthful diet will want to add bean sprouts to the menu.

Bean sprouts are packed with thiamine, riboflavin, niacin and ascorbic acid, are low in fat, and have no cholesterol. And it's a good bet that some of them were grown in Texas.

"Bean sprouts, thick and white and about two inches long, are produced from mungbean seeds that contain up to 29 percent protein. They fit right in with today's popularity of salad bars and stir-fry cookery," said Dr. Creighton Miller, a scientist in vegetable breeding with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Texas A&M University.

"Today's health-conscious consumer and the influx of Oriental people into the United States have brought on an increased demand for bean sprouts," he said.

Uses Are Many

"Bean sprouts can be used in a variety of ways in the home kitchen," Miller said. "For instance, they are excellent for various types of salads. Also, they are used in egg rolls, with Oriental stir-fry vegetables or stir-fried by themselves, and with fried rice. In addition, bean sprouts are excellent for use in potato cakes, chop suey, omelettes and egg foo yung. The possibilities are unlimited!"

"Bean sprouts are a cheap, healthful and pleasing addition to our common green vegetables," said Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "They are excellent for use (either raw or cooked) in salads as well as in soups, stews and many other dishes."

If cooking bean sprouts, do so only briefly to avoid destroying their vitamin value, Cooksey said. Two minutes of boiling is sufficient. If they are to be served in stews and soups, it's best to add them shortly before cooking is complete. Bean sprouts are especially palatable lightly fried in good oil or butter, said the nutritionist.

Ansel Adams, American photographer best known for his photos of the High Sierra and Yosemite Valley, began the first college photography department in 1946 at the California School of Fine Arts.

Texas A Major Producer
Mungbeans--small, slick, shiny, dark-green beans--are grown in northwestern Texas and Oklahoma. After harvest, farmers ship the beans to a cleaning operation and then on to a sprouting plant--from where they go directly to supermarkets.

Texas currently has about 10 sprouting plants, Miller said. There are a number of sprouting plants on the West Coast to meet the demands of the large Asian American population. These plants sprout beans shipped from other countries.

Miller said a large portion of the bean sprouts consumed in this country are imported from China, Thailand and Australia because U.S. farmers aren't growing enough mungbeans to meet the expanding demand. Most of the Texas crop is grown in the Rolling Plains area around Vernon and ranges from 2,000 to 20,000 acres a year.

"I think we can produce a higher quality mungbean crop in the U.S. than what is produced in other countries," Miller said. "We are continuing to work on new varieties, such as TexSprout, that will produce more high quality beans. That will make the crop more profitable for growers and will provide markets with a more steady supply. Of course, the ultimate aim is to provide consumers with a better product."

Abundant Life

OUR REAL WEALTH

By Bob Wear

Our wealth, our material wealth is a matter of great concern to almost everybody. Those who have the wealth are concerned about it, and those who don't have wealth are concerned about it, too.

One way or another, such things as inflation, taxes, governmental expenditures, increasing cost of consumer goods and services, interest rates, the total national product, etc. touch all of us.

We cannot afford to be impractical or improvident in our attitudes, because if we do we become a burden to others; something very near to a parasite. On the other hand, if we assume that material wealth is the most important thing in life, we have certainly made life a miserable distortion.

Most of us know what our real wealth is. We know, and give lip service to the view that a man is wealthy because of what he is and not because of what he has. There are, however, some questions: How do we measure the worth of a person? How do we measure our own worth? Do we usually get to the financial statement, and measure the worth of a person by what he has? I think we know better, but, in our materialistic society, it is nearly impossible to do better; and this is a great loss.

Several years ago, Roger Babson, a well-known business analyst said, "Perhaps real wealth is something that cannot be touched, or seen or even deposited in a bank or kept in a safe deposit box. I do, forever, forecast that the time will come when it will be recognized that wealth is not nearly what everyone considers 'wealth' to be." I think we are trying, but the process is very slow.

Our real wealth is not measured by monetary standards, but by spiritual standards. This wealth is a good home; the value of the soul; the worth of a good name; peace of mind; a pure heart; good health; true friends; and you can continue the list.

Compare butter, margarine

Deciding which bread spread to buy used to be easy--if it wasn't butter, it was margarine. Now the selection includes several forms of both butter and margarine and new spreads that really fit neither category. Here's the summary of the products you're likely to find in your supermarket.

Butter contains 80 percent butterfat, about 100 calories per tablespoon. Unsalted butter has the same fat content but has no salt added.

Whipped butter has air beaten into it for easier spreading. It has one-third fewer calories than butter.

Margarine has the same number of calories as butter but is made with vegetable fats such as corn or soybean oil as well as animal fats. Check the label; your most healthful choice is a product with twice as much polyunsaturated fat as saturated fat.

Soft margarine is made with vegetable oils and is specially processed for easy spreading. Its calorie count equals that of butter or regular margarine.

Whipped margarine has air beaten into it for easy spreading. It has one-third fewer calories than regular margarine.

Liquid margarine is made with a high proportion of liquid vegetable oils. It contains the same number of calories as butter or regular margarine.

Diet margarine contains more water than regular margarine and has about half the calories.

Butter-margarine blend combines butter and margarine, usually with more vegetable oils than butterfat. It has the same number of calories as butter but less saturated fat and cholesterol.

Light spreads vary in composition depending on the brand. All contain large amounts of water.

Because diet margarines and light spreads contain more water than butter or regular margarine, they cannot be used in baking. You can use them for cooking vegetables but you may need to use more because the water will evaporate, leaving less fat for cooking.
