Mr. and Mrs. George R. Halley thoroughly enjoyed being awakened at the hour of 1 o'clock in the morning Wednesday. Their son, Robert, who is assigned to the cruiser Indianapolis, was on the other end of the line. Mr. and Mrs. Halley didn't learn where the ship was but they had a nice long chat with Robert, who is now a lieutenant. They have not seen him since he left for duty after graduating from the U. S. naval academy early in 1941.

A. W. (Arch) Thompson, formerly commissioner from precinct No. 2, is keeping busy these days at Coahoma. He is serving as tax assessor-collector for the Coahoma independent school district, is milking half a dozen cows and raising some hogs and chickens, as well as looking after rental of some farms in the area. The other day when he paid rent on box 41 at the Coahoma postoffice, it was the 22nd year he had engaged the same box there.

Gilbert Gibbs, now Pvt. James G. Gibbs as far as the army is concerned, has been stationed at Kessler Field, Miss., with the 33rd training group, he has written his wife. He likes his new station and his work fine.

Another worry has beset city officials. Someone, probably youngsters with nothing better to do with their time, is pulling up survey stakes. Frequently the city has run lines for a lot or some parcel one day for construction or other purposes, only to have the stakes knocked down or moved before the next day. This, of course, necessitates running of new lines.

Jetty Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cook, has received his call to report on March 22 at Lubbock to be assigned for his training as an aviation cadet. Jetty has been getting his fundamental military training as a member of the local

Lend-Lease Extension Is Up For Senate Approval

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Overwhelmingly approved by the house, the bill to extend the lend-lease program another year reached the senate today along with a report that this help to other nations fighting the Axis now totals $2,632,000,000.

The report by Administrator E. R. Stettinius, Jr., said this figure was attained by the transfer of $1,977,000,000 worth of lend-lease goods in the quarter ended March 1.

"Almost as much aid was provided in the last six months as in the previous 18 months," he said, adding:

"In the last 12 months we shipped to our Allies, under lend-lease or in fulfillment of previous direct purchase contracts, 30 out of every 100 bombers we produced, 35 out of every 100 fighter planes, 25 out of every 100 light tanks and 35 out of every 100 medium tanks."

Whether the senate can get around to consideration of the extension bill today was uncertain, but on the basis of the 407 to 6 vote by which it swept through the house yesterday it appeared likely that it would be ready for the president's signature within a week.

He told congress that 60 per cent of the transfers in the last quarter were munitions with a value of $1,175,000,000, that agricultural products made up 16 per cent, and industrial materials 24 per cent.

Stettinius noted a shifting of lend-lease aid from the United Kingdom, which received 68 per cent of all shipments in the first year, to other areas.

Percentages of total shipments for the second year:

United Kingdom 38 per cent; Russia 29; Middle East and Africa 15; Australia, New Zealand, China and India 14; other areas 4 per cent.

Lend-lease aid by areas:

United Kingdom $4,480,000,000; Russia $1,828,000,000; Africa and Middle East $1,573,000,000; China, India, Australia and New Zealand $1,344,000,000; other areas $459,000,000.

Stettinius divided the total lend-lease aid to date, including both goods and services, for the war against Japan as follows:

China, $158,000,000; India, $295,000,000; Australia, $452,000,000; New Zealand, $139,000,000.

Apply Golden Rule, Says Club Speaker

The Golden Rule was contrasted to the rule of gold as a guiding principle for business and living in a message delivered to the Kiwanis club Thursday by J. H. Greene.

The history of South America, which the speaker said had been built on the rule of gold, was put against that of the United States which was based upon the Golden Rule. Greene urged, however, use of the Golden Rule in all personal and business dealings—even to "talking and advertising."

Otto Peters urged Kiwanians who operate businesses to see that they have some member of their organization enrolled in the 8-hour industrial safety engineering course which is due to be offered here soon. Applications should be turned in to Roy Reeder not later than March 15. The course is free of tuition and is offered by Texas Tech under sponsorship of the Big Spring safety council.

Mrs. Helen L. Bragg and her mother, Mrs. Gertrude E. Ward, who reside at 1301 Settles, each received orders to report for training on March 15. Lois Key, route No. 2, Colorado City, is to report a day earlier.

Victory Gardens Provide Vitamins And Minerals

Vitamins and minerals from your own backyard to help your country's wartime food situation and your family's health. That is the Victory Garden story for 1943 in brief.

This is a year when growing your own vegetables is not only pleasant and profitable but a patriotic duty as well. Many more gardens and gardeners are needed this year if Americans are to have food to keep them fit.

The plain fact is that you will not be able to buy as much of certain fresh vegetables as you did last year because they won't be on the market to buy. As for canned goods, Uncle Sam has already figured on taking half of all the vegetables commercially canned in 1943. So Americans are going to need all the food they can grow on six million farms and 12 or even 15 million backyards and vacant lots.

The farm people are bearing the brunt of this great job. Millions of tons of the goods that farms will produce are already earmarked—one-fourth to go to our armed forces and allies. Our soldiers and the men fighting with them will have first call on food.

And a soldier eats twice as much as the average civilian. But people on the home front need to be well-fed, too—and most of them are working harder than ever before.

So there has to be enough food for our own boys, for the starving people of liberated countries, for our allies, and for our civilian population. To keep them supplied with the food they need will not be simple.

Every home gardener can see that at least one family has the vitamins and minerals vegetables can supply. So if you have the right ground, plan now to put it to use for feeding your family.

More Peanuts To The Acre

Texas' 1943 peanut quota was increased by more than a quarter of a million acres over 1942 plantings. But we haven't any more equipment, and will have less labor than last year to grow and market the crop.

A short-cut to larger production is to grow more per acre, says E. A. Miller, agronomist for the A. & M. extension service. . . . And more production per acre requires seed of high germination and free culture reports marked improve-

Baked Fish: Takes no coupons from your book

You use point-rationed foods to supplement your other eating. They must be chosen wisely to get the most possible food value for points expended. A family of four can afford to spend about 45 points a week during the first ration period of March, 1943.
I have planned a week's shopping list for a family of four which uses up 44 points. Each of the point-rationed items chosen fills an important balancing position in your meals. The use of canned tomatoes and canned applesauce, once each during the week, is calculated to save you precious time for other household duties or for war work. Here's the list:
Rationed Goods Points
No. 2 can tomatoes ..... 16
1 lb. dried lentils ..... 8
1-2 lb. prunes ..... 10
No. 2 can applesauce ..... 10

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—If you're a male American, age 45, there are only 3 chances out of 20 that you can pass an army physical.
At 35 years, the chance is 6 out of 20; at 21, it's 14 in 20, and at 18 and 19 years, 15 out of 20.
The senate found the figures today in publication of testimony on the first deficiency bill of the session, a $6,280,000,000 measure which includes $3,152,000 for the high school Victory Corps.
Speaking in favor of the appropriation to give American youths pre-induction training, physical and mental, Col. Leonard G. Rountree, director of medical services for the selective service system, disputed the theory "that we have the healthiest and most rugged youth in the world."

98 Fines Paid In 143 Arrests Of The Past Month

Continued activity in all fields was noted in the February report by Chief of Police J. E. Bruton as released Thursday.
The month produced a total of 143 arrests, and fines were paid in 98 of these. Ten, including four for theft, were transferred to the sheriff for action and four others were turned over to the United States Employment Service.
Gaming or gambling ranked relatively high on the list of offenses, 25 paying fines for this infraction in February. Five similar cases were pending.
Drunkness led the list as usual with 45 such fines being paid and two cases of this nature pending.
Another large increase was for trespassing with 16 picked up by police from railroad officers who caught the men riding freight trains. Fines were assessed in these cases and there were four turned over to the USES and two pending. Another development for the month was in picking up men for investigation of draft status, there being four of these.
The traffic docket showed 38 tickets issued in February, 13 fines paid during the month, 13 assessed, leaving 31 active cases on the docket. There were only three speeding tickets for the month, and two were paid. Police cars drove nearly 7,000 miles and the police radio handled 1,745 calls of all character.

All In Need Of Forgiveness, Day Says In Sermon

None ever attains a state of sinless perfection in this life, and thus all are in need of the forgiving power of God, Dr. R. E. Day, Port Arthur, reminded a revival crowd at the First Baptist church Wednesday evening.
The Bible declares, he elaborated, that all have sinned and denial of it amounts to calling God a liar. The Bible is clear that all have sin, and to deny this is to deceive one's self. But the Bible also declares that God is able to forgive sin and save souls, continued Dr. Day.
The intensity of character of sin makes no difference, for the worst can be forgiven, he said. This applies too evil habits that degrade a life, and it applies to a rebellious spirit that lets weeds grow up in its Christian spiritual life. The only remedy, he pointed out is to ask forgiveness for sin through Christ.
Approximately 50 were in prayer groups prior to the Wednesday evening meeting, the Rev. P. D. O'Brien, pastor, reported. Morning services, which probably end with that of Friday at 10 a. m., are being well attended.
The 1941-42 rice crop of Chile now being harvested is estimated the largest in the country's history, says the department of commerce.

Editorial - - The Prelude To Invasion

In the day-and-night hammering of Europe by British-American bombers the prelude to invasion? Surely it is, but a prelude may last for some time. Actual landings may not come until the softening up process has gone considerably farther. Moreover, the pattern of the bombing immediately before invasion probably would take on a somewhat different shape from that of the last few days. The recent attacks upon ports might be useful in helping to free the Channel from small enemy craft of all kinds, but many harbors have been left untouched; the big attacks have been upon sub-

Capital Comment Rayburn And Sumners Observe 30th Anniversary In Congress

By GEORGE STIMPSON Harold Washington Correspondent Sam Rayburn and Hutton Sumners celebrate the 30th anniversary of their becoming members of Congress: 30 years ago these two now famous Texans, then comparatively unknown freshmen, came to Washington on the same train, and they stood side by side on the Capitol steps while Woodrow Wilson took the oath of office as President; a lot of water has gone over the dam since then; Sam is now Speaker of the House and Hutton is chairman of the important judiciary committee; these two "good old country boys" have come far since those days; both were born in Tennessee, both went to Texas young, both came up the hard way, both are a credit and ornament to Texas. New arrivals in Washington are Lieut. and Mrs. Dodd Vernon, of Paris; Lieutenant, lived in Paris about 12 years and at one time worked on News, now with war department public relations; wife was Lanna county girl, hopes to stay in Washington with husband; it can get decent place to live, now stopping at hotel, having usual trouble finding suitable living quarters in war-wrecked capital. Congressman Ed Gossett, of Wichita Falls, elected new president of Texas University Ex's club

Hollywood Sights And Sounds - She's Strip Teaser, But Can't Say So In Pictures

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—There's a pretty lady in town making a movie in which she can't mention the art that made her famous. Her name is Ann Corio. "Are you a public dancer?" inquires a dowager character in the script. "I'm a strip teaser," would be Ann's mature response, but she couldn't be natural with the Hays office keeping an eye on her. She had to evade the issue—just how hadn't been decided. Her picture, "Barong Girl," is about a burlesque queen who went to work in a night club after New York clamped the lid on burlesque and put the strip-teases in fancy revues on Broadway.

Miss Corio, small and shapely and daintily striking, was not hit by New York's blow to burlesque. "I'd been out of it for two years when that came," she says. "I gave up $1,000 a week and more in burlesque public relations; wife was Lanna county girl, hopes to stay in Washington with husband; it can get decent place to live, now stopping at hotel, having usual trouble finding suitable living quarters in war-wrecked capital. Congressman Ed Gossett, of Wichita Falls, elected new president of Texas University Ex's club

That was when Ann appeared in "White Cargo" and "It's a Wise Child" and "The Barker"—and got pretty good notices for her acting as well as for her more obvious charms. "I know I've a long way to go before I can call myself a real actress," she says, "but that's what I want." She's the daughter of Italian-born immigrants, and one of 12 children. The father, a factory worker in Hartford, Conn., died when she was 13, and her mother, though poor, disapproved Anne's theatrical ambition. But a dance contest won her a chance with Earl Carroll's Vanities on tour, and her mother finally consented. "I got homesick," Ann recalls, "and mother sent me money to come home. Then a girl friend told me she could get me a job at a place called Minsky's, and I took it—with never an idea what burlesque was." Her strip tease boosted her from

Washington Daybook - Committee System Of Congress Is Obsolete

By JACK STENNETT WASHINGTON - Probably nothing will ever come of it, but there's a lot of conversation going around about the possible reorganization of congress to eliminate some of its more obvious defects. Probably the springboard for much of the talk is the recently published book, "This Is Congress," by Roland Young. Mr. Young was for some years secretary of the State Committee on Foreign Relations. He knows his congress, doesn't do any theorizing about it, and makes some suggestions for internal overhauling. However, George Galloway, another student of the congressional scene, in a recent address before the American Political Science Association, summed up the faults a little more briefly. First, he said, the committee system is obsolete. It results in duplications and dispersions of effort. It is completely inadequate in handling wartime legislation. The sources of information upon which congress relies are insufficient and too often biased. Leadership is so scattered (through scores of committee chairmen) and ineffective because of the reluctance of congress as a body to delegate its powers, that there hardly is any at all. There is no defense against pressure groups nor against pressure from constituents, whose demands on comparatively trivial matters often occupy so much of a congressman's time that he has little left for legislative considerations. As a free translation of Mr. Galloway's criticisms, but it's a pretty concise summation of what students of the legislative arm think are the principal complaints. Often I have tried to point out how congressmen are hampered by demands from their constituents that make them just "errand boys." And a study of the hearings in an exhaustive committee investigation will reveal what is meant by biased sources of information. Too often congress has to sit like a jury, hearing both sides of a case in which the opponents do their best to distort facts to bring a decision in their favor. As for the problem of committees and leadership, I'm reminded of a speech that the late Rep. Champ Clark, of Missouri, once made to "new congressmen." In urging that they not be discouraged if their committee appointments did not make them happy, he was reminded of his early days in congress, when Maine—with only four members—had the chairmanships of the vitally important Ways and Means committee, the navy committee and the committee on public buildings and grounds. Give that a thought and you will begin to see at least one fault of the committee system, which operates almost wholly on seniority and hardly at all on a representative's or senator's fitness for the post. Frank Lester has cause to be proud these days, for he has just received word of the promotion of his son, Stanley, from rank of first lieutenant to that of captain. Capt. Lester is stationed somewhere in Alaska.

Isolation Island

Chapter 5 Morrison never roused from his coma. It was as if a king had died. The hush of grief that spread over the Island showed Jim Blair what an integrated kingdom O'Shanessy and Morrison had ruled. He felt an intruder, and told O'Shanessy and Don he was moving over to the mainland to bunk in the native shacks with his crew. "Ridiculous!" roared Mike O'Shanessy. "Does homage to the dead forbid hospitality to the living? As our guest, you must see the castle, the Island." His voice thundered over Jim's protests. Upon the instant he planned a series of events in Jim's honor—a tour of the island, a hunt, a special banquet. "Do you ride?" he broke off to ask. Jim said that he did. "Splendid!" cried O'Shanessy. "We will have a race down on the beach, with the two finest horses in my stable; Asot or Churchill Downs have nothing to top the spirit of our spectators or the speed of our mounts! You will see we have everything of the world on our Island—everything but its trouble!" While O'Shanessy gave the servants their morning orders, Jim strolled to the great entrance hall with Don, who was on his way to Landa's. "I still believe," Jim argued, "there are times when families should be free of guests, and I shouldn't stick around here." Don flicked his riding whip at the sleeping lion guarding the stone steps as he watched the Indian groom bringing his horse. "On the contrary," he said slowly, "you would be doing us the greatest of favors by staying. I must be with Landa during these hard days and my father is more distraught than he will show. The responsibility of being a host will be a comfort and a distraction to him." His gaze moved with musing pride over the panorama of the Island's tropic splendor spread below them. "This," he said in a low voice, "is my father's kingdom. Morrison was his friend. These two things filled his life. Now one of them is gone. He is going to need a great deal to fill the void of that loss. I am wondering into what direction he will throw the terrific energy of his absorption." Jim remembered the anxiety in Don's voice as later he followed O'Shanessy on a whirlwind tour of castle, stables and Island. He marveled at the dynamic energy in the towering Irishman, the fanatical zeal with which he approached every detail in the management of the estate and its native population. He felt the friendly, sensitive Don would have good cause for alarm should this father of his ever take an opposing view of his interests. The years of routine this Island Kingdom had created had crystallized his fervor spirit into a relentless, steam-roller arrogance, unable to brook interference. "And the whole Island is completely self-sufficient!" he was now boasting to Jim. "We sell a few nanas and send away for tailor-made clothes. We would not need to do that. We have leather, we have wool grown right here, and expert tanners and weavers among the natives." Jim admitted O'Shanessy's enterprise was fabulous and successful. O'Shanessy's heavily-browed eyes blazed with satisfaction. "And don't think my plans are ending," he cried. "They're just beginning! If you believe I am an old man whose dream is fading, you are wrong, my friend! Some day I will tell you how the real work of my Island is but starting!" The day after the funeral, Landa moved about her father's hacienda, like a person reneacting a half-forgotten dream. She took a book from the case in her father's room and wandered out onto the patio to drop into a deep chair. With her father's death, the great love he had borne this island that had made it home to her was broken. She felt a strange fear of the years stretching ahead—years of this strange feeling of being lost in a remote land. Had the outer world, she wondered, gradually taken the Island's place in her heart? A shadow fell across the stones of the patio and she looked up. O'Shanessy's great bulk filled the door in the patio wall as he strode through, his sun-bleached, light hair ruffled over his broad brow, his blue eyes blazing a smile at her. Behind him came Don. He crossed to the other side of Landa's chair to take her hand in a gesture of protective affection as his father roared down at her. "You're lovely as a lark this morning, girl! Now you're home we'll have the Landa back in those checks in no time. What say to a ride this morning?" Landa smiled wanly. "If you wish, Uncle Mike." She rose to go in to change. O'Shanessy cupped a great hand under her chin, and rumbled with unsteady tenderness. "Lots of sunshine for you, girl, and a sight of the old Island—that's what you need. We'll have the wedding Saturday." Landa shrank back with a protestant cry. "Not the wedding—not yet!" Don's arm slipped around her. "I know what Landa means," he defended. "The raley, the feasting, the whole ceremony we've they who have maintained that independence came from the various states of the Union. The President of the first provincial government of Texas hailed from New Jersey. The last President of the Republic of Texas, and the one, in my judgment, most responsible for the annexation of Texas to the Union, came from Massachusetts. "Old Betsey," the rifle with which David Crockett fought so valiantly at the Alamo, was presented to him by the Young Men's Club of Philadelphia. "As the sole representative of the only other independent republic now represented on this floor," chimed in Congressman Charles Plumley, of Vermont, "I wish enthusiastically to congratulate Texas on its anniversary and the record it made as an independent republic and ever since; and for having taken advantage to its everlasting glory of the example which was set it by that other, earlier independent republic, Vermont." Then up hope Michigan's mischievous Clare Hoffman and tosses a discordant note in the otherwise harmonious occasion. "I just want to bring the history of Texas down to date," he then read from Washington Times-Herald of February 2 a full-page advertisement entitled "Texas Speaks" and carrying the picture of Gov. Coke Stevenson and Lieutenant Governor John Lee Smith; "Apparently Texas has again declared its love for freedom and liberty." Congressman Wright Patman was moved to answer this. "It is not known who sponsored this advertisement appearing in Washington newspapers; in fact many of us would like to know who did. It was quite an extensive and expensive advertisement, costing several thousand dollars, appearing in different newspapers in full page spread, but it was not signed by either the Governor nor the Lieutenant Governor of Texas, and there was no evidence that they were sponsoring it. Thinking and patriotic citizens will give very little consideration to any anonymous advertisement usually resorted to by selfish interests operating under cover and who would not hesitate to borrow the names of public officials."

City Fund Up To $52,000

Balance of the city's general fund increased somewhat during February, a summary of conditions of all funds as reported by City Secretary J. D. McWhirter shows. General fund receipts stood at $18,405 for February against expenditures of $18,403, which raised the balance of $32,280. The interest and sinking fund increased to $39,937. In non-tax funds, the cemetery unit's balance was stronger at $3,331.27 and the water and sewer bond total was down slightly to $7,889. The airport bond fund had $1,041 in it and the swimming pool fund remained at $42.42. Under the city's cost accounting system, water billings for January were not included until the February report. They amounted to $11,780, which was $427 more than for December and $4,041 more than for January of 1942. Similarly, general fund receipts for January also were contained in a section of the report and showed $33,729, of which $15,547 was in current and $18,182 was in delinquent taxes. This, said McWhirter, made a 91 per cent collection on the current roll and did not include 1.5 per cent due in partial payments still outstanding.

Liability Rules For Taxi Firms Are Altered

City commissioners Tuesday evening acted to make more flexible the manner in which taxi and bus operators could maintain public liability and property damage protection required. Formerly, operators have been required to maintain $5,000 insurance for these contingencies, but now rates have become almost prohibitive in some instances. Under the new plan, operators may secure against possibility of crashes and injuries in any one of four manners: They may 1) post bond in that amount; 2) put up that amount of cash; 3) hold that amount of government bonds in escrow; or 4) maintain proper insurance. The city, as far as it was concerned, gave its permission for the Child Nursery School to operate on a reserve of $237 which it had accumulated. This was calculated to be sufficient for about a month, and after that date, fate of the nursery is highly uncertain. Attention of the public was called to the city charter provision which calls for the filing of names of candidates for city commission at least 15 days prior to the date of the election (this year on April 6). If this is not done, then a petition signed by 30 qualified voters must be filed with the city secretary in behalf of a given candidate at least three days prior to the election.

February Fires Claim Two Lives

Insured loss remained low, but for the first time in years, Big Spring listed fatalities from fires during the past month, according to the February report of City Fire Marshal J. D. Stenbridge. Two women were fatally burned during the month when fumes from a cleaning fluid ignited. The fire total for the month ran to 19, which showed an upward trend. Value of buildings and contents stood at $10,000, but insured loss to both was $266.44, said Stenbridge. In addition to the two fatally injured, one other was burned during the month. Among causes of fires were: Defective stove or connection (3), grass (5), rubbish-trash (4), and unknown, smoking in bed and grease on hot plate (1 each).

Stenbridge said that each year, "come income-tax time," hundreds of people request statements of their annual earnings for use in making out income tax returns, because they know that the social security board keeps careful records of wages paid to workers who are in jobs covered by the old-age and survivors insurance system. It is on the basis of these records that benefits are calculated for the insured worker or his family. Adams pointed out that wages earned during the last three months of 1942 were reported to the federal government during January. These reports must be recorded on the ledger sheet maintained for the individual worker in the Baltimore offices of the bureau of old-age and survivors insurance. This will not be completed until the end of May. While the bureau will be glad to furnish a report of wages earned through June 1942 at the present time, its record will show only the wages reported by employers and not any other types of earnings.

Death, Injury Or Damage From 54 Crashes In Year

Fifty-four automobile crashes within the city limits resulted in death, personal injury or property damage of more than $50 during the past year, the annual traffic accident report of Police Chief J. B. Bruton showed Thursday. Fatal mishaps occurred on W. 4th street on Nov. 12 and on W. 3rd street on Oct. 24. Nineteen cases required hospitalization, and six of these had injuries of a serious character. In all there were recorded 38 cases of personal injuries. Analyzing the picture, Bruton recalled that the "accident percentage has been very light in the down-town or business district." There were no records of accidents at any of the outside intersections where lights were removed. In only one instance was an obstruction blamed for a crash, and Bruton was of the opinion that "negligence is almost always a contributing factor." In a few instances, he added, the low sun may have been responsible to an extent by obscuring vision.
