

Eades Named To City Commission Place

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Insurance salesman R.W. "Bud Eades" was appointed city commissioner, Place 3, to replace Dickie Gerles, who resigned because he is moving out of the city limits, during the regular semi-monthly commission meeting Monday night.

Commissioners discussed the credentials of seven persons who had expressed an interest in the position before deciding on Eades behind closed doors Monday. Action on the appointment was taken in open session.

Gerles resigned with nine months remaining in his first term because of a state statute which requires commissioners to reside within the city limits. His resignation was accepted before commissioners went into executive session to discuss a replacement.

Eades, managing partner of Plains Insurance Agency, has resided in Hereford for nine years, moving from Amarillo. Eades is past president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and has served as president and campaign chairman of United Way. He was elected president of United Way for the second time earlier this year.

In other business Monday, commissioners approved a resolution which permits the acceptance of affluent from the San Jose labor camp by the city's sewage treatment plant, authorized bids for furnishing the new city hall, approved a contract with Amarillo attorneys for delinquent tax collections, appointed Melvin Jayroe to the county tax appraisal board, agreed to consider a plat from Sam Nunnally and discussed street and sewer improvements.

West Texas Legal Services attorney Chuck Hester of Amarillo, who is representing the San Jose water district in its efforts to construct federally-funded water and sewage systems, presented the resolution to commissioners, who had already decided that the city treatment plant would be used by the camp.

Commissioners approved the resolution but deleted a jail term for violators of the city's affluent code since municipal court cannot impose a sentence. The resolution had called for a jail term and $200 fine for any person putting undesirable or dangerous affluent into the sewage system.

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and Environmental Development Agency have invited Deaf Smith County to file a pre-application for a $350,000 sewage system. Texas health department representative Ralph Quiones of Canyon told The Brand during Monday's meeting that the invitation almost assures the labor camp of grant approval.

All camp residents will be required to hook up to the system, Hester said. The city will charge its regular sewage fee plus a 30 percent surcharge for use of the treatment facility.

Commissioner Emory Brownlow said he would oppose the resolution if it allowed a person living outside, but adjacent to, the labor camp to tie onto the system.

"If they take 40 acres next door and say that we've got to take their sewage, then I'm against it," Brownlow said.

Hester said the city would not be obligated if the resolution stated that the water district "is drawn by meets and bounds."

Panhandle Regional Planning Commission representative Tom Abshar told commissioners that both HUD and

Mexican Oil Discovered On South Padre Island

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — The first oil from a massive oil slick originating from a runaway Mexican oil well in the Gulf of Mexico washed ashore along a mostly deserted section of the Texas coast early today, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard spokesman at Port Isabel said the oil was observed on the beach of South Padre Island in an area from 10 miles north of Port Isabel to 20 miles north of the Port Mansfield cut.

This approximately 40-mile stretch of beach is north of the heavily populated area of the slender resort island along the South Texas coast and south of Corpus Christi.

Another major concentration of oil was sighted early today in the Gulf of Mexico 50 miles due south of Aransas Pass, Texas. Aransas Pass is located near Corpus Christi, Texas. The Coast Guard said this oil was 10 miles long and two miles wide.

Further details concerning the discovery of oil on the beach were not immediately available, the spokesman said.

Discovery of the oil on Texas beaches and the concentration of oil south of Aransas Pass came less than 24 hours after the Coast Guard reported that the oil spill had drifted into U.S. waters and thick strips of oil washed ashore just south of the Mexican border.

Carl Posey of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration predicted Monday that the oil would reach South Texas beaches today.

A Coast Guard helicopter Monday sighted unusually heavy patches of tar balls near the Mansfield cut, some 50 miles from the tip of the South Texas

Administration Plans 2-Year Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration today strongly suggested it is likely to adopt cumulative, two-year wage and price guidelines to help fight inflation, with a goal of limiting wages to 15.5 percent over two years.

"Unless we receive comments with compelling arguments to the contrary, we intend to adopt the two-year (price) standard with such adjustments as may be required to overcome the problems that we have identified," said a report from the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

As for wages, the council's 52-page "issues paper" said: "The pay standard could alternatively be formulated as a two-year, cumulative limitation...Symmetry between the pay and price standard may be desirable."

The new wage goal could be 15.5 percent, the council says. This would mean that "employee units that receive less than the pay standard in the first year are rewarded with a higher base pay rate for the second year."

The current program calls for pay increases of no more than 7 percent this year. Price increases are to be held a half percentage point below 1976-77 increases.

There is no suggestion in the document that the voluntary program might become mandatory in the guidelines' second year, starting Oct. 1, or that the government is considering the adoption of penalties to enforce the standards.

Administration sources, who asked not to be identified, said statements from council chairman Alfred E. Kahn and acting director R. Robert Russell would be "honest about the shortcomings of the first year."

The council was straightforward in its "issues paper" about problems the guidelines had encountered in their first year.

"Inflation has been far worse than was anticipated when the anti-inflation program was announced in the fall of 1978," the document said. In fact, inflation has been running at nearly twice the 7.4 percent rate projected by the administration for this year.

The council paper said, however, that

Carter 'Determined' To Win War Over High Energy Costs

BALTIMORE (AP) — President Carter rode a train to Baltimore today, inspected a solar-heated home and an abandoned school being converted to apartments and told a street-corner crowd: "We are making good progress, giving our people a better life and making you independent of foreign oil."

Carter rode a regularly scheduled Amtrak train as he took his once-a-week road show 37 miles outside Washington to continue his campaign for an energy program.

Standing under a hot sun at an inner-city intersection, the president declared to several hundred persons crowded onto the sidewalk: "Our country is determined to win the energy war and I believe the people here on East Biddle Street will help me."

The crowd responded with cheers when he asked, "Do you agree?"

The president added that with cooperation among government officials and others, "we'll have energy security for our nation and a better life for all Americans."

Carter's brief remarks were sandwiched between handshaking trips along the rope restraining the crowd.

From the inner-city neighborhood, the president drove to a downtown hotel to continue his energy theme in an address to the national convention of the Sons of Italy in America.

Carter was accompanied on the 35-minute train ride by a number of prominent officials of Italian descent, among them Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, U.S. District Judge John Sirica, Assistant Housing and Urban Development Secretary Gino Baroni and Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y.

Carter scrapped plans to make the trip from Washington to Baltimore by helicopter and instead took the train. The change in transportation apparently was an effort to demonstrate presidential concern for energy conservation.

The president and his wife Rosalynn rode aboard the last car, which had been reserved for the presidential party.

The train arrived here on schedule at 8:38 a.m. EDT. After a greeting by city

Jaws See Action

Hereford volunteer firemen used their newly-purchased "jaws of life" rescue tool in an actual emergency for the first time Saturday afternoon after 22-year-old Randy Lider of Amarillo was pinned in his car during an accident at the intersection of 15th and U.S. Highway 385. Lider's car—a 1969 Chevrolet Malibu—and a pickup containing six members of a Hereford family collided, knocking the crumpled car into a drainage ditch. It took firemen about 15 minutes to cut away the doors and top of the car with the rescue tool, enabling them to free Lider, who was not seriously injured. Roberto Mongia, of Route 4, his wife and four children were in the pickup. The children were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital for observation but were released a short time later. DOE Says Washington Article On Underestimation 'Inaccurate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Energy has described as "totally inaccurate" a published report that it underestimated by $9 billion the additional oil company revenues allowed by its recent "gasoline tilt rule."

The Washington Post reported such a "miscalculation" Monday, based on a department estimate published last January. The newspaper report did not note, however, that a revised, higher estimate was published in February, prior to the rule's March 1 adoption.

Before that date, federal price controls required that crude oil and refining cost increases be spread proportionally among all refined products.

The "tilt" rule, adopted to reflect more realistically the higher costs of refining gasoline, allows companies to "tilt" more of their costs into the price of gasoline.

The Post, based on the department's January figures, said the Carter administration estimated that the rule would add 1.6 cents per gallon to the cost of gasoline in 1979 and 1.8 cents in 1980, for a two-year increase of 3.4 cents per

Tech QB To Speak At Local FCA Event

Ron Reeves, starting quarterback for the Texas Tech Red Raiders as a freshman last season, will be the featured speaker at a pre-season meeting of the Fellowship of Christian athletes Thursday evening in Whiteface Stadium.

Special music led by Pat Michaels will begin at 7 p.m. in the west stands of the football stadium, according to FCA coordinators Frank Ford and Coach Danny Haney. However, those who would like to come early to visit personally with Ron are encouraged to do so, they said.

"We want everyone, whether an athlete or not, to come," said Ford. "As our entire purpose is to lift up the Lordship of Jesus Christ in Hereford." A special invitation is extended to all students who are participating in athletics in this coming school year.

"Ron Reeves was one of the outstanding freshman athletes in the nation this past season," and we are pleased to have him come and share what Christ means in his life. We plan to have active chapters at both the adult and student levels in the coming year, and this is a good way to begin."

The football stadium will be open at 6:30 Thursday evening according to coaches Don Cumpston, who is athletic director, and Haney.

"The meeting, to be held in the reserved seat section of the West stands, will be over before 8 o'clock, in time for supper," Haney said.

Western Sculptor To Show Bronzes

By lantern light in a remote cabin in the mountains of Utah, Shirley Wadzeck began creating prize-winning Western sculpture.

Her "Cow Camp Originals" were started in June, 1974, at a camp where she, her husband and sons, spend each summer tending cattle. Because of a continually exciting ranch life in South Dakota, Colorado, Texas and Utah at round-ups and at rodeos she possesses a desire to sculpt this life as she has lived it.

Shirley Wadzeck calls Wichita Falls her home and is a member of the Wichita Falls Art Association. She is also a member of the Women Artists of the American West.

She will be among 40 women artists from a dozen states exhibiting in this year's annual National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Art Show and Sale to be held here August 16-18. A photographic reproduction of "The Third Hand," a sculpture by the artist depicting a rancher's wife helping with the chores, is featured on the handbill publicizing the art show and Hall of Fame Weekend.

Other activities planned for the Hall of Fame Weekend in Hereford include a professional all girl rodeo, a parade, barbecue, old time fiddler's contest, open calf roping and dances both Friday and Saturday nights. Seven Cowgirl Hall of Fame honorees will be inducted during the rodeo on the evening of August 18.

Recital To Be Given By Hereford Youth

Kenneth Shore will be presenting his Senior Organ Recital Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in Temple Baptist Church.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Shore of 709 Cherokee.

He will be playing six different selections during the recital. Kenny has studied organ for nine years under Mrs. Joe Hacker. He will be attending West Texas State University this fall studying music.

Anyone interested in attending the recital is welcomed to attend.

4-H Firsthand

HOUSTON — As far as the energy situation in the United States is concerned, "we can't have our cake and eat it too."

That was the overriding thought that seemed to flow throughout discussions at the 1979 Texas 4-H Congress at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel here July 19-22.

More than 500 4-H members from throughout Texas as well as a host of adult leaders and county agents with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service heard a number of officials give their views on our nation's energy situation. And for the most part, they painted a rather dim picture.

Dr. John McKetta, an engineer at the University of Texas who served on several energy policy committees under the Nixon and Ford Administrations, said that "we are facing a great upheaval in our society due to the energy situation. We want plenty of energy but we don't want to make some of the sacrifices that go with this condition. For instance, we don't want pollution—we demand air quality that we can't attain. We could save one and one-half billion gallons of oil per day if we would decide to live with a less purified air."

McKetta called for a number of conservation measures that could save some three and one-half billion barrels of oil a day. These include reducing auto and home air-conditioning and heating, drying clothes outdoors rather than in dryers, shutting down escalators when they are not being used, driving smaller cars, car pooling, mass transportation, abiding by the 55 mph speed limit, reducing weekend driving, raising the legal driving age to 18, recycling solid wastes, constructing more energy-conserving buildings and using re-refined lubes.

"At the same time, government should take some steps to match this same saving of three and one-half billion barrels of oil per day," he emphasized. Among his recommendations were eliminating forced busing, eliminating catalytic mufflers and thereby allowing lead in gas, changing ICC (Interstate Commerce Commission) rules to allow more efficient trucking, increasing coal use in industry, and eliminating unnecessary regulations in the market place that hamper decision-making and discourage the production of energy.

Another speaker Ken Murphey with Gulf Oil Corp., reiterated the opinion that people want plenty of energy as well as a "risk-free" environment. "People want energy but don't want to pay the price," he emphasized. "We do not live in a world where something is available for nothing. We are building political roadblocks to the energy we so desperately need," he said, referring to political and environmental decisions that have hampered energy production.

"We are not running out of possible sources of energy," Murphey assured the 4-H group. "But we are running out of developed and readily available sources of energy."

To survive the energy crisis, Murphey said that "we must adapt to change and we must enable the business community, not our political institutions, to make decisions. There is currently something amiss in our society. We must work together to deal with the true issues rationally and effectively," he emphasized.

D.A. Buell with Houston Lighting and Power Co. reviewed some of the current and future sources of energy and emphasized that his company is going to use what's available, including coal and nuclear energy. "Nuclear power last year produced more energy than could have been delivered by the Alaskan pipeline in full operation for an entire year," he said. "Nuclear power is real and I hope it's here to stay." He said that the uranium in the surface of the United States today could produce energy equal to the total world oil reserve.

He challenged the 4-H'ers to use their abilities and resources to work toward solving the nation's energy problems.

Dance Club Donates Refrigerator Here

Members of Merry Mixers Square Dance Club expressed pleasure upon learning Friday evening that the new refrigerator, which they had purchased for the Community Center, has been installed.

The club met in the Community Center lounge for the regular business meeting prior to a dance called by Jack Thompson of Tulia.

Rocky Lee presided during the business session. The official club attache case, bearing the Merry Mixers emblem, was displayed as a new acquisition. Also, it was announced that volunteers will be needed at 6 p.m. Wednesday to help lay new carpet on risers at the Community Center.

Following routine business reports, the club adjourned for their regular square dance. Special guests were Pat and Dean Harrison of Weslaco, immediate past president of Magic Valley Square and Round Dancing Association. Other guests were present from San Antonio and Tulia.

The club's next regular dance will be Aug. 17 at 8:30 p.m. with Roger Thompson of Amarillo calling.

Merry Mixers extends an invitation to all interested persons to attend their dances on the first, third and fifth Fridays of each month at 8:30 p.m.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I finally figured out what motivates a little boy to become a big league baseball player.

One day he gets sick of his mother nagging, "Don't wipe your hands off on your pants"... "Don't play in the dirt"... "Don't muss your hair up with that hat"... "Tuck your shirttail in"... "And for crying out loud don't spit in public. It's disgusting!"

He stops. But he makes a promise to himself. "One of these days I'm going to grow up and do all those things. I'm going to play professional baseball."

If all the spitting by ballplayers was cut out, a nine-inning baseball game could be played in 32 minutes—give or take a few seconds.

As I was watching a major league game a few weeks ago, a relief pitcher approached the mound in a critical situation. He eyed his objective, scooped up a handful of dirt in his hands, tipped his hat brim a few times, checked to see if everyone was in position, became very intense, wound up and burnt it in.

Who knows what he did with the ball, but his spitting was impressive. Good, clean, no dribbling down the chin like a lot of rookies.

Other sports have a certain amount of grossness, but none to equal baseball.

Boxers wallow their mouthpieces in and out of their mouths.

Tennis players spit on their hands.

Basketball and football players gargle water which they never swallow.

Runners slobber a lot.

But the Gross Olympics has to be baseball.

Not everyone who spits is in the big leagues. Some are just beginning. There's the "Closest Spitter," who puckers up his lips and puts out a short spray so fast it is barely seen by the naked eye.

There's the Picket Fence Spitter, who has the advantage of a space between his teeth. These spritzes sometimes go 15-20 feet in the air. There are the ones who don't trust themselves and put their body at a 90-degree angle.

But the big leaguers are the ones who walk out in front of a crowd of 30,000 in the stands and a few million more watching on television, put their hands on their hips, face INTO the wind, get about three quarts of tobacco juice going for them and remember when their mothers used to nag, "Don't play with your gum, Howard!"

Hospital Auxiliary Convenes For Lunch

Deaf Smith Hospital Auxiliary met for a noon luncheon at K-Bob's Steak House yesterday with presiding officer Oliver Denning.

Discussion during the program included a bake sale scheduled this Saturday at Sugarland Mall. Members also discussed the possibility of buying ashtrays for the hospital lobby.

It was announced that a new display of purses were being made for the hospital gift shop. Members were asked to help notify any retired ladies who can sew and would like to donate their time to help auxiliary members make puppets for the children in the hospital. Anyone interested in doing this is urged to call 364-0328.

Members also discussed plans for the future tasting bee to be scheduled for members.

Visitors present were Lesvia and Kenneth Brown.

Members in attendance were Bea Huison, Grace Covington, Irene Reinart, Mary Johnson, Lupe Cerda, Olivia Denning, Olivia Brown, Jane White, Juanita Bennett and Marge Mchberg.

Reunion Celebrated By Local Families

Relatives of the Carlyle and Bryant families met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cawthon Bryant, 312 Star, for their tenth consecutive year of celebration Saturday.

Sunday morning the families set in reserved pews at the First United Methodist Church for services. Following church and lunch the group met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Newell at 123 Liveoak.

Activities for the 1980 reunion have been scheduled to take place in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Albracht of Amarillo.

Those present for the reunion were Lemuel Carlyle, Hereford; Howard Carlyle, Muleshoe; Mr. and Mrs. H.H. Carlyle, Farewell; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Burgess, Tulia; Mr. and Mrs. John David Bryant, Brooke and Brack, Hereford; The Rev. and Mrs. Noel Bryant, Sherman; Dr. and Mrs. Gene Albracht, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Martin, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reynolds, Lazbuddie; Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Carter, Pampa; Mrs. Orion W. Carter, Plainview.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir:
As an American taxpayer involved in the production of oil and gas, I can no longer remain silent about the direction this country is heading on energy. I am disturbed by two things. The first is that the President's most recent proposals reflect the totally defeatist attitude that American business can no longer meet the technological advancements necessary for the growth of this country, and that the government must prevail to solve our problems. I am equally disturbed that the American public is viewing these proposals as a great step toward attaining energy self-sufficiency.

A more accurate description of the situation is that these proposals reflect a great step toward government self-sufficiency. We can talk from now on about the inefficiency of such government run organizations as the postal service and social security, but the fact is that the windfall tax program and the $140 billion that the government proposes to spend on alternative energy sources represent one of the largest tax programs ever proposed. And who is going to pay for this $140 billion answer to our prayers? The oil companies, right? WRONG — the American taxpayer!

Does this seem to suggest that we would rather give the OPEC countries world price for oil and give the government the revenue from our own oil production, than to let the American oil and gas industry reinvest the additional money so needed for future energy development? That is precisely the President's proposal.
The American people must realize that the economic laws of the free enterprise system work. With oil prices decontrolled in order to create price incentive for conservation, and all the additional price going to the government as tax, the oil and gas industry could conceivably end up with less revenue than they currently have to develop the costlier energy of the future. The development of the alternative sources of energy also depends on the laws of the free enterprise system being allowed to work. The price of oil can only rise to the price of the alternative energy sources (solar collectors, nuclear, windmills, etc.). Once that occurs, the alternative energy sources will be developed by private industry under the incentive of return-on-investment (moral equivalent of war sounds good, but it will not pay shareholders return-on-investment).
The free enterprise system works — and the bureaucrats better thank God that it does or there would be a lot fewer of us working in private industry to pay the taxes to support all of those marvelous government programs.

Sincerely,
George R. Blankenship

Cleaning Oil Off Birds Important

WASHINGTON (AP) — Workshops are planned this week in Corpus Christi, Texas, to teach bird cleaning skills in preparation for the imminent approach of oil from a blown out Mexican well.
"Cleaning birds is not like washing dishes. It requires a certain amount of skill," Columbus Brown, a national pollution response coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said Monday.
Officials are hoping, however, that the bird cleaning crews will never have to swing into action.
"Prevention is No. 1," Brown said. Even the best cleaning program after oil coats birds' plumage could hope for only a fairly low survival rate.
Among other variables, the amount of damage to the waterfowl population depends on where the oil goes and not how big the spill is. A 25,000 gallon spill of No. 6 fuel oil last year in the Chesapeake Bay killed far more waterfowl than the recent crash of two supertankers in the Caribbean.

"Our people probably have to respond to a lot of oil spills people never hear about," Megan Durham, a public information officer for the service, said.
The Coast Guard's efforts to forestall the spill's penetration to the estuaries and sheltered areas of the Laguna Madre where most of the bird habitats are located therefore are crucial.
"First of all, we want to make sure that as little oil gets into these areas as possible," Brown said. "In the event that doesn't work, the option would be to keep the waterfowl out of the area."
Fish and wildlife workers would use "hazing" techniques to disperse the birds from their usual nesting grounds for a time.
Ms. Durham said a 30 percent survival rate would be good if bird cleaning needs to be performed.

"There's a whole lot of things that can affect their survival rates," she said. "They would be lucky to save 20-25 percent."
State and federal employees will be trained at a workshop Wednesday. A session is planned Thursday to train a group of volunteers.
Alice Berkner, executive director of the bird rescue research center that formed after the famous 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill, is scheduled to assist with the training and the cleaning.
Ms. Durham said the techniques of bird cleaning are complicated enough to mean that trained workers are significantly more successful.
The science, after all, is only 10 years old.

The Texas Gulf Coast species causing the most concern right now are the brown pelican, on the endangered list, and the state-protected least tern, Ms. Durham said.
The situation should become more complicated if the oil continues in its present direction in the fall and winter when the area's population of migratory birds grows.
The rare whooping cranes which winter in the Aransas Pass area hopefully will be far to the north of the oil-stricken sections, or they may arrive after the cleanup ends.
"It's something that we've thought about, but it's pretty hard to tell whether they would be affected," Ms. Durham said.

A massive protective campaign would roll into gear if the 'whoopers appeared in any danger, she added.
The bird rehabilitation center now being set up in Corpus Christi is under the direction of the fish and wildlife service's regional headquarters in Albuquerque, N.M.
Washington officials said as many of the workers as possible will be coming from nearby.
The oil spill's effect on the Texas Gulf Coast waterfowl population remains impossible to predict.
"Every oil spill is unique," Brown said. "I think when you consider the Pemex spill as perhaps the largest in history, then you don't have much to compare it with."

Hance Mailouts To Get Residents' Opinions

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance is mailing a questionnaire to all residents of the 19th Congressional District seeking their opinions concerning present and future legislative proposals.
The questionnaires have been mailed and local residents should begin receiving them in the mail this week.
"We want to try to get the opinions of all the people in the 19th District," said the congressman. "In the questionnaire we have covered a wide range of topics in an attempt to get the overall feelings of the people. We strongly encourage people to take just a few minutes to fill out the questionnaires and mail them back to my Washington office."

"We will carefully evaluate every returned questionnaire to see what issues most concern the people of West Texas," Hance said. "This is one way I know of making sure every person has a voice in the federal government. One of the biggest problems of government today is that the people do not feel they have any say in what happens. I intend to make sure the people I represent have as much say as possible and this questionnaire should provide them an avenue for input to their elected representative."
Residents of the district will have until Sept. 1 to fill out the questionnaire and send it back to Hance's office. The questionnaire is a four-page brochure which allows participants to fill out the questions, detach and mail it using the self-address already printed on it. The remainder can be retained for reference of congressional office telephone numbers and addresses.

Klan Youth Camp Not An Equal Opportunity

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — In most ways, it looked like any other summer camp — kids munching hot dogs and playing volleyball. But the guard at the gate was dressed in white robes and packed a pistol, and the kids took time from their games for rifle practice.
A counselor at the camp told the youngsters they were being taught how to fire a rifle because, "Some day you'll be Klansmen in robes and you'll be fighting beside us."
The camp, somewhere north of Birmingham, is run by the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan. The 47-acre site is owned by Roger Handley, Alabama grand dragon of this particular Klan faction.
Reporters who visited the camp Sunday, at the Klan's invitation, were taken to it convoy-style, over a roundabout route of country roads that made its exact location hard to pinpoint.
Reporter Bob Bray of the Birmingham News was among those who visited the camp. His story appeared in Monday's editions.
Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, La., imperial wizard of the faction, said in addition to usual summer-camp activities, target practice and karate lessons, campers attend weekly classes on "what it means to be white. We want to make what the liberal media would call racists out of them."
Tony Anderson, state director for the Klan's Youth Corps program, said after Life magazine printed several pictures of camp activities in its August issue, it was decided that the camp should be opened to other media.
So on Sunday, NBC News showed up. So did a crew from CBS' "60 Minutes," the American correspondent for the Danish national television network and a reporter from a New York newspaper.
They waited for hours under a blistering sun to see youngsters heft a rifle and take two shots apiece at paper plates lined up in a ravine.
"There are people, particularly communists, who would stoop to anything, even attacking kids," Wilkinson said.

Some of the youngsters told reporters that they joined the corps because of harassment and physical attacks from blacks in schools.
"Let's face it," Anderson told the group. "You're Youth Corps. You stand together and you fight together."
Wilkinson said members of the youth group, which is open to 12- to 18-year-olds, are not Klan members. He added that he expected most would join the Klan when they are grown.

Wilkinson said his Klan group, one of several in the nation, operates 12 such camps in six states. Also, he said, plans are under way to construct a family recreation club for Klan members, with a lake and artificial beach, roller rink, game room and bowling alley.
"We want to interest the big cities in the Klan and we feel this will draw people who want segregated recreation facilities," Wilkinson said.
"We make no bones about it. We're not an equal opportunity employer."

New Bolivian President Named

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Senate President Walter Guevara Arce will be inaugurated interim president of Bolivia on Wednesday to serve for one year and to hold elections for a new president and vice president next May.
Ending a six-day political crisis, Congress elected Guevara Monday night by a show of hands and postponed the showdown between deadlocked presidential candidates Victor Paz Estenssoro and Hernan Siles Zuazo for nine months.
This cleared the way for the presidential inauguration postponed Monday and with it the restoration of democracy after a decade of military rule.
Guevara, 68, is a member of Paz's party, the centrist National Revolutionary Movement, and like Paz and Siles was a leader of the 1952 revolution that resulted in major political and economic reforms. He has been foreign minister twice as well as interior minister and ambassador to the United Nations.

He was elected to the Senate in the national elections July 1 in which Paz, Siles and six other presidential candidates all failed to get the majority of the vote required for election. This threw the decision to the new Congress which was required to hold a runoff election with the three high men as candidates.
The three were Siles, who led with 528,695 votes but whose leftist Popular Democratic Union won only 45 of the 144 seats in both houses of Congress; Paz, who ran a close second with 527,184 votes but whose party won 64 seats, and Gen. Hugo Banzer, a former military dictator who won 218,587 votes and 22 seats for his right-wing National Democratic Action Party.
The resolution that was finally adopted was worked out Monday by representatives of Paz, Siles and Banzer.

South Plains College Looking For Alumni

LEVELLAND — South Plains College is trying to track down ex-students from the year 1961-64 and 1971-74 for a fall round-up and reunion Oct. 27.
"We need the names, phone numbers and addresses of as many former students from those years as soon as possible," said Earl Gerstenberger, dean of students at SPC. He added that this information should be given to the SPC Office of College Relations.
Gerstenberger, an original faculty member at SPC, first taught agriculture and sponsored the rodeo team for the young college. SPC was founded in 1957.

Registration, reception, special activities and a buffet dinner are scheduled for all former cheerleaders, Tex-Anns, basketball players, rodeo team members, and students from tennis, track, Baptist Student Union, student government, sciences department, agriculture, golf and any other students from those years, said Gerstenberger.
Festivities will be from 2 to 5:30 p.m. Oct. 27 in the Student Union Building.

L&B Enterprises located at 404 E. 7th is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Reece Lawson. L&B has been at their present location for the past 18 months. L&B opened for business because of an overload of surplus stock that trader Reece had bought. L&B has just about anything that you could possibly be looking for. They carry shoes, clothes, tools, jewelry, paintings, and many other items. If you can't find what your looking for, just ask at the counter because they probably "have it in stock somewhere."

A giant silage-maker
that's 250-hp strong.

All the power you need—and then some! It's the "1895" SP chopper from Sperry New Holland.

- Exclusive electronic metal detector (optional) reduces harvester damage, helps cut down on hardware disease.
- Exclusive underbeveled knives never need re-beveling, make knife sharpening fast and easy.
- Exclusive flip-up feed roll makes shearbar adjustment easy.
- Exclusive interchangeable crop heads—ideal for the farmer/rancher who chops both windrowed crops and row crops.
