Governors Granted Gas-Shifting Power

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, faced with federal rules that contribute to long gasoline lines in urban areas, is granting governors new authority to shift up to 5 percent of their state's gasoline supplies from the country to the city.

That would be in addition to the 5 percent "set aside" they already control. Carter made the new offer Monday after being told federal allocation rules "put the gasoline where the cars are not."

The common reaction of several governors queried was that they would have to wait until they see specifics of the plan before commenting on how it might work in their states.

Carter planned to work today on details of a "bold and forceful program" to cut the nation's thirst for imported oil.

He will explain the general outline of the program in a broadcast speech to the nation Thursday at 9 p.m. EDT - his third energy speech since taking office.

The program is expected to include a revived standby gasoline rationing plan; federal incentives for producing synthetic fuels, mandatory thermostat controls for non-residential buildings and a fleshed-out version of an "energy security fund" he proposed in his last energy speech.

There also could be some replays of earlier proposals such as the ill-fated tax on automobiles that get poor mileage, which was part of a package Carter sent to Congress in 1977. Referring to that package Monday, White House press secretary Jody Powell said: "If those proposals had been accepted, we would be in much better shape than we are now."

This time Carter is taking special pains to clear his proposals in advance with key members of Congress and their staffs. Powell said two task forces are being set up to include administration and White House officials and representatives of Congress. One deals with energy and the other to the closely related topic of inflation.

Carter said Monday he is convinced

Congress, which so far has rejected all administration proposals aimed specifically at curbing oil use, is now ready to act because of current fuel shortages, the threat of a home heating oil "crisis" next winter and the shock of this year's 60 percent price increase by oil exporting countries.

"I want a bold and forceful program that will be highly acceptable and that we can move without delay," Carter told a group of energy advisers at the start of a White House meeting Monday.

Just before that meeting began, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told Carter, in a murmured exchange picked up by tape recorder microphones, that federal gasoline allocation rules are hurting urban areas by continuing to ship gasoline to the country despite reductions in long distance driving.

"It's a uniform formula," Schlesinger said. "The effect is to..."

Commission Votes Out Discotheque

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Hereford city commissioners Monday night twice accepted the recommendations of the Planning and Zoning Commission - killing one request for a zoning change and giving the go-ahead to another.

A proposed discotheque at 213 W. Park had prompted a local man, Tom Beatty, to request that the lot be rezoned from D-Local Retail to E-Central Business.

City Manager Dudley Bayne said that people living in the area were on hand when the zoning commission met last week to protest the change "and the man orally withdrew his proposal."

Bayne said the city commission would need to take action on the zoning board's denial of the request since Beatty's withdrawal was not written. Commissioners approved the recommendation of the zoning board.

Lots 5, 6 and 7 of Block 12 in the Evans Addition were rezoned from C-multi-family to D-Restricted as commissioners approved another recommendation from the zoning board. Avenue Baptist Church, 130 N. 25 Mile Ave., had asked that these lots be rezoned.

Commissioners Monday accepted the resignation of James McDowell from the Planning and Zoning Commission and replaced him with Clifford "Bud" Snyder.

A $19,867 backhoe was purchased from Case Power and Equipment for the city water department as commissioners rejected four other bids, ranging from $20,040 to $23,393.

Commissioners discussed the possibility of beginning proceedings for an assessment program to pave city streets after Bayne received a request from a local real-estate agent to have Ave. F paved between 13th and 14th.

4th of July Festivities Scheduled

Old-fashioned lemonade, local singing talent and a congressman will help Deaf Smith County citizens celebrate the Fourth of July at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday on the lawn of the county courthouse.

U.S. Congressman Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, will speak during the ceremony sponsored by the women's division of the chamber of Commerce. Hance represents the 19th Congressional District which includes Deaf Smith County.

The Chamber Singers and former Miss Hereford Sherry White Talley, now of Odessa, will provide musical entertainment. Local dignitaries will pay tribute to Independence Day.

"We want to urge every Hereford citizen to attend, and bring a friend. The program tomorrow will be enjoyable and the best way we can think of to spend the Fourth of July," said Mary Thomas, program chairman.

Mrs. Thomas represents the chamber women's division. The courthouse meeting will be the only locally-scheduled Fourth of July ceremony Wednesday. The city commission and Hereford Volunteer Fire Department decided not to put on a fireworks display this year because of persons shooting off firecrackers last year inside Veterans' Park.

Horse . . . uh, Bear Trader

Reece Lawson's just the man to sell you what you've always wanted -- a full mount of a brown bear to add that "different" touch to your den. Lawson, who with partner Mike Bradford operates L&B Enterprises here, specializes in unusual items, and has found that there's a good market for animal mounts and skins, in addition to the numerous items he picks up at bankruptcy and going out of business sales. A former cattle buyer, Lawson abandoned that line of work to devote his time to "trading," and the colorful local business could well be likened to an old time trading post. Merchants' Theme: 'Good Neighbor Days'

"Good Neighbor Days" is the theme under which Hereford businessmen are welcoming your visit to their stores and business offices this week.

A special section inside today's edition of The Brand offers items and services at bargain prices. But, the eight-week "Buy In Hereford" campaign is more than prices; it emphasizes that local merchants provide the highest quality products or services at the fairest and most reasonable prices.

The campaign also is aimed at telling the story that reliability, dependability and trust are the basic needs for all transactions, and you'll find these here in Hereford. There is no frustration; you can buy for all your family and personal needs knowing that Hereford businessmen are trustworthy and that they value your friendship as well as your patronage.

The business firms of Hereford are good neighbors. They support our community; they employ many of our people; they contribute to the local charities and to local organizations; they provide their fair share of the tax dollars needed to operate our city and county, and are sincerely interested in the future of Hereford.

Check the special section in today's issue and visit your good neighbor businessman this week.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wheat producers who have grain stored in the government's reserve will have more time to think about redeeming and perhaps selling it on the cash market.

The Agriculture Department said Monday the stored wheat will continue in a "release" status at least through July. But federal storage payments to farmers - a yearly rate of 25 cents a bushel - were stopped as of June 30, officials said.

The program involves grain that farmers agreed to store for as long as three years or until market prices rose (See WHEAT, Page 2)

If you're looking for an offbeat gift item or novelty, Reece Lawson probably has just the thing for you.

How about a 400 pound mount of an elephant head? Or a special mount of the posterior view of the whitetail deer that got away?

Of course, if your tastes are a bit more tame, he'll sell you a few thousand pair of tube socks. Cheap.

Lawson, who has forsaken cattle buying for dealing in all forms of dry goods, hardware, jewelry and other merchandise, may well be one of the top "horse traders" in the Texas Panhandle.

With his wife, Sarah and partner Mike Bradford, Lawson operates L&B Enterprises here, an offbeat sort of dry goods store that's filled with surprises for

'We Can Play That Game . . .'

Clements Hopes To Tie Exports To Price of Mideast Crude

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements suggests the United States should play financial tit-for-tat with the Mideast, pegging the price of U.S. exports to the cost of Arab crude oil.

"We should say, in effect, 'name your poison.' We can play that game as well as they can," Clements told reporters Monday.

Clements said President Carter's announcement that the United States would freeze oil imports at current levels until 1985 illustrates Carter "has a great facility for making bad decisions."

"Creating more energy is the only thing that will solve our problem," Clements said. "I think Mr. Carter has made a bad mistake."

"We're on the horns of a dilemma," Clements added. "We must import petroleum products to sustain economic growth. We're on very dangerous ground. We can't cut back on imports. If we do cut back on imports, we cut back on growth. This country can't stand a no-growth policy - that's nonsense."

A Carter adviser has predicted the United States will have "roughly a zero growth rate" this year, partly because of the recent hike in crude oil by OPEC nations.

Clements also said he was in Houston recently, and Texas' allocation of gas to motorists on an odd-even day basis has cut the length of lines of drivers waiting for gas.

Bruce Hardy of Dallas gave Clements two T-shirts, illustrated with a sketch of a tie and the words, "Texas Dress Shirt."

"We designed this for you," Hardy said at the presentation in the governor's reception room.

"That's pretty cute," said Clements. Clements and his staff now work without ties in shirtsleeves, and he was asked if he might don one of the T-shirts.

"I don't think I will, but I can see how some would," said Clements.

Clements said he visited with several hundred persons over the weekend, and "I found no one who didn't like" his "no tie, no coat" policy.

He said merchants had told him although tie sales are down, sales of sports shirts are up.

Clements said Texans are setting thermostats at 76 degrees, using fans, raising windows, sitting on porches and "talking politics - that's all to the good."

Asked about the independent truckers' strike, specifically two reported shooting incidents over the weekend, Clements said, "The trucker situation is correcting itself...and should return to normal after the July 4 holiday."

The shootings, he said, "are not sufficient to take emergency steps at this time."

King's Manor Barbeque Set Saturday

King's Manor Methodist Home will try to raise funds to assist residents unable to afford its services during a public barbeque beginning at 5 p.m. Saturday at the Manor.

Tickets are available from any King's Manor auxiliary member or at the home for $10 apiece, according to ticket sales chairman Helen Langley.

Mrs. Langley stated that "the impact of inflation" has made it impossible for some residents to continue affording the Manor's services. Proceeds Saturday will assist those residents.

King's Manor Methodist Home is a non-profit organization, offering retirement living and geriatric care in two separate care levels. Retired residents not receiving geriatric care live in apartments and cottages.

There are 146 residents at King's Manor.

Reward Offered For Arson Info

The City of Hereford will pay $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons responsible for setting the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department's training tower on fire around June 24, Fire Marshal Jay Spain announced today.

The tower, which was constructed by local firemen over an eight-month period, was destroyed in the fire which occurred around midnight Sunday, June 24.

Spain, through evidence obtained at the scene, had determined that the fire was set. The reward money is a standing offer established by the city for any arson.

Lawson grew up in the Happy area, and came to Hereford in 1951. His father bought cattle for a meat packing firm, and Lawson grew up with an eye for a bargain and an urge to trade.

He began trading guns in his youth, and has branched out over the years into novelty taxidermy, jewelry, clothing and dry goods, coins, and even gold, silver and diamonds.

"People are ready to give money for something odd and different," he commented.

That fact, and his love for "swapping" were factors in his purchase, along with partner Bradford, of the building of a wholesale grocery firm here.

With a line of goods Lawson had traded for and Bradford had trucked into the area, they opened the colorful L&B Enterprises, located on East Park Avenue, in March of 1978.

Since that time, it's been trade for and sell anything that will bring a dollar.

"I just ran into this business as a swapper. Anything that will make a dollar, I'll buy," Lawson explained.

"I don't buy anything I can't sell at half price and still make a profit on," he continued, pointing out that much of his material is purchased at bankruptcy or going out of business sales.

Asked why he abandoned the cattle business for the life of a "trader," Lawson explained, "Since 1951, cattle have broke me three times. They got so silly price-wise back in 1973 that I told my wife they weren't gonna break me again. Cattle can lose money so fast it's unbelievable, and I've had all of that I want," he stated flatly.

"This stuff don't eat," he said, nodding toward counters and shelves filled with merchandise. "I don't hafta feed it in the winter during a snowstorm. I can just stay at home," he added.

Some of that "stuff" to which Lawson refers makes his store like no other in the area.

Adorning the walls of the establishment are various animal mounts that get lots of second glances from the curious.

"I buy a lot of mounted animals. They're a good item to sell back east, or up in Nashville. People around here don't pay much attention to them, but in the east, they're a lot more oriented to this sort of thing and they buy them as decor for their homes. One guy in Indiana bought 29 mounts from me to put in his cafe...and they bring good money," the

White Sentencing Scheduled Today

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dan White, whose manslaughter conviction triggered a riot by homosexuals, faced sentencing today for killing Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

White could receive a maximum sentence of seven years and eight months in prison, with the possibility of parole in about five years. The minimum sentence that could be imposed by trial Judge Walter Calkagno is four years.

Since his arrest after the shooting of Moscone and Milk in city Hall last November 27, the former firefighter and police officer has been in custody in the San Francisco jail.

White was convicted May 21 of voluntary manslaughter for both killings after six days of jury deliberations. The panel could have convicted him of first-degree murder, which carries a maximum penalty of death.

Truckers' Strike Winding Down

By The Associated Press
The nationwide truckers' protest "should be over shortly," says the Interstate Commerce Commission, but a spokesman for the striking independent drivers says that while the shutdown may have wound down, it is not finished.

Meanwhile, convoys converged Monday on the Massachusetts Statehouse and Chicago's Loop. In Tennessee, however troopers ended a week of 12-hour days protecting shipments of food and fuel supplies during the worst of the often-violent strike. Independent Truckers Association voted to stay off the job. And as western Montana truckers ended their three-week-long shutdown, drivers in the eastern part of the state vowed to continue the protest, which has been aimed at high fuel prices and short supplies, the 55 mph speed limit and weight regulations that vary from state to state.

Shipments of food and goods continues to show "substantial improvement," said an ICC report.

"The facts are - whether they admit it or not - the truckers are going back to work," said ICC spokesman Doug Baldwin, who added that the number of regional offices mentioning violence in their reports was down substantially.

Steel Producer Scales Back Hikes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's leading steel producer, has fallen in line with other steel companies, scaling back previously announced price increases.

"We're revising prices to meet prevailing price levels," a company spokesman said Monday.

U.S. Steel initiated the latest round of price increases on June 12, saying the rise amounted to 3.5 percent when calculated over the company's entire line of steel products.

U.S. Steel said it had approval from the federal Council on Wage and Price Stability to abandon past pricing guidelines in favor of more liberal guidelines based on profit margins.

A percentage figure for the revised prices was not available, the spokesman said.

"I expected it (U.S. Steel's) revision," said one Pittsburgh-area steel purchaser. "If everybody else goes along with one price and theirs is considerably higher, it only stands to reason they will scale back or they'll lose a lot of business."

U.S. Steel's price actions covered base prices for sheet and strip, used heavily in autos and appliances; bars and semi-finished products; rail; wheels and axles; mechanical and pressure tubing and continuous weld pipe.

City's Policemen Protest Release

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Napa police officers staged a "blue flu" walkout when the alleged killer of their lone and beloved police dog was freed without bond.

Vem, the 3½-year-old, four-legged pride of the department was stabbed in the line of duty Saturday after attempting to drag a vandalism suspect from an apartment closet. Vem died Sunday.

Harry Reese, 21, of Napa, was arrested and charged with several counts of assault and attempted murder of a policeman. He was not charged with Vem's death, though officers said they saw the slaying.

Heid on $10,000 bail over the weekend. Reese was released on his own recognizance Monday by a Napa County Municipal Court judge.

Almost immediately after Reese walked out the door, 11 Napa policemen walked off the job.

"We all became violently ill and unable to work," said Officer Vince DeGuilio upon hearing of Reese's release.

He would not say when or if officers would come back to work. The six officers due in at midnight Monday did not come to work, officials reported.

Thing Called 'Honor'

Each Fourth of July, at least, we re-examine our nation's foundation and find it was sound, but...

Our cornerstone Declaration of Independence from foreign domination has since been diluted by half a hundred "declarations of dependence" on our own government.

So it is refreshing to reflect on those do-it-yourself patriots who asked nothing for nothing. The signers of that Declaration pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor.

Many lost their lives and most lost their fortunes—but none lost his honor. What is honor? My admiration for Gen. Mark Clark dates back over three wars and many visits in our respective homes.

In an era when there is such a dearth of giants, when political-we are up to our ankles in pygmies, who better than Mark Clark holds to the principles that once guided our nation and have always guided his professional and personal life?

As commandant of the Citadel he founded the Honor Code.

In the wake of new exposes of pickpockets in public office, I asked Gen. Clark, "What is honor?"

Gen. Mark Clark says, "Honor is the capacity to control the instinctive selfishness that lurks in all of us. It is the tough case-hardened ability to put morality ahead of expediency, duty ahead of deviousness—and to do it instinctively and every time. Honor also means pride in excellence—of every kind; especially excellence of performance."

However history has X-rayed the lives of our nation's founders focusing on imperfections, the consensus of historians has to be that those were rare times in the affairs of men when we had greatness to spare.

Where did our ancestors get this morality and selflessness and pride in performance? Where did they get this sense of honor—which characterized them?

Gen. Clark believes they got it from their parents, from their churches, from their teachers, and from their political leaders.

Their earliest learning separated rightness and wrongness. They grew up knowing it is wrong to cheat, to lie, to steal.

They grew up knowing that laws are made to be obeyed or changed or mended—but never broken.

They matured into positions of leadership still knowing these things. Today Americans are so starved for examples of public stature that they will defy a cowboy movie actor. Congress will mint a special medal for "John Wayne, American."

Who else is there? Gen. Clark says there is so much latent nobility in us, that Americans are starved for a leader of honor; that anyone wanting election to office does not need to promise special favors for special groups; he does not need to promise spoon-feeding for the lazy, and he does not need to promise to give anybody something for nothing.

He needs only to promise "honor" and "excellence."

It would be thrilling to have a chance to test that premise.

local merchant pointed out. Among the top taxidermy items marketed by Lawson are zebra skins, and both full mounted bobcats and bobcat skins.

Lawson dabbled in marketing animal mounts for years, but when he bought out a trophy room complete with 92 mounts and skins, he had to get serious about marketing these novelties.

Many of the mounts he purchases for resale end up as decor in his home north of Hereford, and at various times he has had mounts including a jaguar, leopard, polar bear, brown bear and ostrich scattered around his dwelling.

"My wife thinks they're okay," Lawson offered in the way of reassurance. "We use 'em for decoration."

Lawson may have scored the coup of his animal mount collecting and selling career about six weeks ago when he acquired the 400 pound head mount of Wilbur the elephant from a Dallas zoo.

Wilbur came to the Dallas zoo in 1930, and met a tragic end in 1949 when his mate rejected him and he committed suicide by ramming his head through a concrete wall.

automobiles are?" Carter asked. "No ... what it does is to put the gasoline where the cars are not. Puts it in the rural areas where people are no longer going on weekends," Schlesinger said.

Shortly afterward, Carter approved a change that gives governors power to authorize refiners to shift up to 5 percent of a state's gasoline allocation from areas of relative plenty to those with less gas. In most cases, that would be rural to urban. But in the rare instance where the shortage might be reversed, the flow would be the other way. The new power is in addition to the 5 percent "set aside" pool of gasoline already granted the governors for priority users, such as farmers.

The new ruling also would allow refiners to shift some gasoline supplies from one state to another, but this would require much stricter proof of shortage in the receiving state than a governor's mere declaration that his or her state was desperate for gas.

However, it was unclear whether refiners would actually shift supplies from states with a relative surplus to states where shortages are most severe. It also was unclear what criteria could justify such interstate shifts of allocation.

Carter informed the governors of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey of the new rule in a conference telephone call. White House press secretary Powell said. None of them, or any of the other governors queried by The Associated However, more recent figures showed that on June 29 the so-called moving five-day average had dropped to $3.95 a bushel.

The department said the wheat reserve program will be reviewed again on July 31 to see if the release status will continue.

Farmers can redeem their stored wheat by repaying loans they initially received from the agency - a national average of $2.35 a bushel.

However, as it stands now they are not required to pay off the loans. But if prices rise further to a "call" level of $4.11 a bushel, farmers then would be required to pay off their loans, meaning that all remaining wheat in the reserve would be in producers' hands for sale or other use.

trading a lucrative new enterprise as well. Even for a seasoned trader, however, the precaution, "let the buyer beware" still applies, Lawson emphasizes.

"You get cheated pretty regular if you're not careful. I bought a set of carved whale's teeth the other day that I got took on. They cost me $1,400, and turned out to be the best reproductions I ever saw. They may bring $200. One of them turned out to be a copy of a carved tooth that's in a museum and priced at $20,000," he admitted.

Lawson tries to keep such happenings to a minimum however, and by trading smart and selling at a reasonable price, he's managed to keep a steady stream of customers coming in to look over the latest novelties and bargains.

"If I couldn't trade, I wouldn't have anything," Lawson replied as he paused to pick up the telephone. Twenty minutes later, he was preparing for a trip to Dallas.

Somebody had 20,000 pairs of pants they wanted to "horse swap" for, and one local trader just had to go close the deal.

Press, gave any immediate indication they would seize the hot potato handed them by Carter and shift gasoline from one set of voters in their state to give it to another group.

"A lot depends on the specifics of it," said William J. Watt, energy adviser to Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

"Without anything in hand, it's difficult to say anything about how it might benefit the state," said Ginny Friedlander, deputy press secretary to Gov. Harry Hughes of Maryland.

Powell said of the new authority, "I would assume that they would welcome this additional flexibility," although he acknowledged that allocating scarce gasoline is "a very difficult, thankless process."

CORA ELLIOTT
Cora Elliott, 86, of 207 Ave. died Monday in Deaf Smith General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Rose Chapel of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home. The Rev. J.L. Bozeman, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, will officiate, assisted by J.W. Gillpatrick, representing 15th St. Church of Christ. Interment will be in Memorial Park Cemetery at Littlefield under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Elliott was born Feb. 13, 1893 in Altus, Okla. She was preceded in death by her husband, Bill Elliott in January of this year. She moved to Hereford in 1946 from Littlefield.

Survivors include a son, Carroll of Hereford; three daughters, Open and Jewell, both of Hereford, and Mrs. Earl Griffith of Dimmitt; a brother, Jack Merritt of Arlington, Va.; three sisters, Mabel Hanks and Madge Benefield, both of Mangum, Okla.; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

3 Persons Charged In Heists

Hereford police arrested a 17-year-old white male and two Mexican-American juvenile females on shoplifting charges Monday.

The man was arrested at TG&Y after he allegedly tried to steal a pair of boots. A 12-year-old girl was arrested at M.E. Moses at Sugarland Mall and a 15-year-old was arrested at Safeway.

Officers received a call concerning a man lying in the street in the 200 block of George about 6:20 a.m. Monday. The man, who appeared to have been in a fight, was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital, where officers found a small quantity of marijuana on him.

Charges had not been filed in the incident as of this morning. Officers arrested three Mexican-American youths, ages 15, 15 and 14, for fighting at 7th and Main around 1 a.m. Monday.

Charles Burfield, 149 Ranger, reported that someone stole his motorcycle helmet at Shook Tire Co., W. Highway 60, sometime Monday.

Someone broke a lock off a cage at the city dog pound, N. Progressive Rd., Sunday night or Monday morning. No dogs were released in the incident, according to the animal control officer.

Three speeding tickets were issued by police Monday.

Swimming Classes To Begin July 10

Swimming lessons will begin July 10 at the Elks Pool under sponsorship of the BPOE Lodge. Instructing the classes will be Summer Boyd, a new resident who has ten years experience as a swimming instructor.

Classes will be open to children of all ages, beginning with infants (six months old) and toddlers. Miss Boyd explained quite successfully, meriting attention by the news media in Florida, where she initiated the classes.

Each class will be small (from five to six swimmers) and it will be required that mothers be in the water with their children if the youngster is under three years of age. Miss Boyd instructs the children while helping the parent to learn to teach their child. Mothers need not know how to swim in order to participate.

Swimming skills to be taught include kicking, paddling, floating on the stomach and back, rolling from front to back for air and returning to poolside after "falling in."

Children above three years old are in a class without mothers present. The same skills are developed in this class, but in finer detail. Each child works at his or her individual pace.

Old children are in classes in which they learn Red Cross-sanctioned swimming methods.

Miss Boyd was a member of the Aquatic Advisory Board at Florida State University, being director and head instructor of the Winter Community Swim Program at FSU. She also owned and directed the Tallahassee Swim School in Florida as well as teaching in Virginia, New Orleans, Dallas and the Panama Canal Zone.

For further information or to register in swimming classes, individuals can call the Elks Pool at 364-4511 and provide their name, phone number and age of the child. Miss Boyd will return calls to provide information concerning class schedules.

Auxiliary Holds Noon Luncheon

The Hospital Auxiliary meet Monday afternoon at K-Bob's for a noon luncheon. Olivia Denning presided over the meeting.

Announcements were made of the District meeting Sept. 26 in Lubbock in the Health Science Center. A report of orders for the Christmas material for the gift shop was read.

The club will sponsor a bake sale Aug. 11 in Sugarland Mall as a fund raising project.

Members present were Olivia Denning, Mary Johnson, Olivia Brown, Lupe Cerda, and Irene Reinart.

New Harvest To Perform Wednesday

The gospel group New Harvest will be presenting a concert Wednesday afternoon in Veterans Memorial Park.

The public is invited to attend this Independence Day program, free of charge. The concert will begin at 11:30 a.m., but the audience will start to assemble at 11 o'clock.

New Harvest was organized three years ago in Dallas. The group relocated here in 1977. They have recently recorded an album, "What Can I Give you?" under the Love label.

Paint Brings Carousel Horses To Life

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine (AP) — With flowing manes and showy tails, the colorful carousel horses strain and run, nostrils flaring, feet high in the air.

Repainting the antique carousel is a labor of love for Vincent Staley, a 74-year-old artist in temporary residence at this oceanside resort.

Staley works with care, studying each flower on the saddle, slowly painting the carved blankets and straps, getting the carousel ready for the summer tourist onslaught.

"This is the second largest carousel in the world, that I know of," he says. "And the only other one like this one is gone now. No, this is one of the last big, carved wooden jobs."

He restored the ride he's now repainting in 1971 after Palace Playland bought it from its owners in Euclid, Ohio. A 1901 classic, it had been in storage for years.

"This beauty was built by the Philadelphia Toboggan Company," said Staley. "Back in those days they didn't mass-produce things. They had this one model and they only made two of them."

There are 16 sections to the merry-go-round, each of them 13 feet wide. The dozens of horses lined up in four rows range from show horses to jumpers.

Umbarger Resident Reaching for Title

CANYON - For Miss West Texas State University, five months of intensive training will culminate at the 1979 Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant during the first week of July in Fort Worth.

Sharon Lindemann, a WTSU junior theatre major, will compete against 62 other contestants for $5,000 in cash, prizes and full tuition at North Texas State University in Denton.

But even more important to the 20-year-old Umbarger beauty is the chance that she might be selected to reign over the state as the Panhandle's first Miss Texas.

"The Panhandle area has not had a candidate place in the top ten since WTSU's first queen, Molly Malone," Lindemann said. "It is important for me to try and change that."

In trying to change the Panhandle's poor record at the Miss Texas Pageant, Lindemann along with Jim Holston, director of student activities and coordinator for Miss WTSU's activities, undertook a rigorous training period. The routine takes a minimum of 2 hours to 4 hours.

A typical day for the shapely brunette usually began at 4:30 a.m. and ended at 10:30 p.m., starting with a pre-dawn wake-up in order to spend the two to four hours required to apply make-up and style her hair.

At 6:30 a.m. she would hostess the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce breakfast, and drive back to Canyon to make her first class at 9 a.m. Her classes would end at 12:50 p.m. which gave her 30 minutes to grab a bite to eat before a 1 to 3 p.m. ballet class.

Taking two hours off to study, she would arrive at the Activities Center at 5 p.m. to lift weights according to a specially-designed fitness program. The weight program was tailored to her needs by a health expert in Dallas. Along with specific exercises, the beauty queen takes a nutritional supplement designed to burn off fat and squeeze out water. At the present time, the 5'5", 114 pound Miss WTSU's measurements are 35-24-35.

After dinner, Lindemann would rehearse either her talent for the Miss Texas Pageant, or her role in one of the many WTSU theatrical productions. Upon arriving home exhausted at 10:30 p.m. she would wash her hair and fall into bed.

According to the sleep-eyed Lindemann, her current schedule has varied only in so far as there is more to do these last few weeks before the pageant, with shopping for her complete pageant wardrobe, makeup and beauty consultations with Dale John's of Amarillo, and the endless rehearsals as Elsie McLean, the lead in "Texas."

Poised and self-assured, Miss WTSU appears well prepared for the stiff week-long competition she will face upon her July 1 arrival at the Ramada Inn in Ft.

Worth. Part of the reason for her self-confidence seems to be her attitude. "I'm already a winner," Lindemann said. "So is every girl I will be competing against. I'm not worried about what is going to happen down there. You have got what God gave you, and you just have to do your best, and there is no way that you can be a loser."

Besides a positive approach to the Fort Worth Pageant, the multi-gifted Lindemann is sure to capture top points for talent with her song and dance routine, "Much More," from the musical "The Fantasticks." At 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 7, in Fort Worth's Centre Theatre, the final Miss Texas Competition will determine who will be crowned queen when the winner takes the traditional promenade down the walkway, under the intense klieg lights. Sharon Lindemann hopes it will be her.

TROPICAL SOLE
One of our best ideas for using thrifty frozen fish.
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 pound package frozen sole fillets
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon mixed dry herb seasoning
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 medium onion
1 medium orange
Garnish: Parsley or watercress and ripe olives

Spread inside surface of a 10 by 6 by 1 1/4-inch baking dish with 1 tablespoon of the oil. Add frozen block of fish. Mix salt, herb seasoning and pepper and sprinkle over fish. Peel onion and cut in half lengthwise; slice crosswise about 1/4-inch thick; do not separate into rings. Stand onion slices, one against the other and rounded side up, over top of fish; spoon remaining oil over onion. Bake uncovered in a preheated 450-degree oven until fish, when flaked, looks opaque — 40 minutes. Meanwhile, pare orange so it is membrane free; cut in half lengthwise; slice 1/4-inch thick; using a spatula, carefully hold back onion and insert orange slices between onion slices. Garnish with parsley and olives — no need to remove fish from baking dish. Serve at once, cutting into 4 crosswise pieces. Makes 4 servings.

Ann Landers

"Landers Fraud?"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are a fraud. I have written several letters to you -- all real problems, very sensible and of general interest -- yet not one has appeared in print. I am forced to raise my daughter without your help because you'd rather make up letters than print ones from readers. Or are you too lazy to read them? Battle Creek

DEAR B.C.: Sorry your letters never made print (till now) but I receive 1,000 pieces of mail a day and I can't publish them all.

Anyone who reads this column regularly should get plenty of advice on child-rearing. If I'm a "fraud" I'm a pretty slick one to have lasted for almost 25 years.

DEAR MISS LANDERS: Would you print just one more letter on suicides? This person who wrote saying "those nuts aren't worth saving" has no knowledge of what it's all about.

I lost a handsome young brother to the water. We all knew he was not himself, but we failed to reach out to him. He needed help, but he was so considerate of others he didn't want to "bother anyone."

Our anguish was indescribable, but with the passing of pick up the signals these tortured people send out. Some are blatant, others may be subtle -- but they are present and the sharp eye and ear can catch them. I regret I wasn't alert enough and the guilt will be with me forever. -- No Name Please

DEAR N.N.P.: The sentiments expressed in your letter are tender and compassionate, but the guilt you carry is unearned. Those "signals" are often so subtle only a professional could decode them. You did your best -- as did thousands of others who have lost a loved one to suicide. Angels could have done no more.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The very day I read and enjoyed your lead item about how to tell a man his fly is unzipped, I encountered a similar problem.

As I strolled through my office, I encountered an attractive young woman wearing man's jeans, and HER fly was open. I didn't know her but even if I had, I don't think I would have said anything because I couldn't think of what to say. Since you're so good at words -- what should I have said? Or, does a gentleman say nothing under those circumstances? -- J.P., Chicago

DEAR J.P.: While the female who wears jeans does not run the same risk as her male counterpart when the fly is inadvertently left open, the information is no less appreciated.

The language can be the same for either male or female: "I'm sure you would want me to tell you -- your fly is open."

The next letter on the same subject suggests another approach:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the man who didn't know what to say to the young fellow in the department store whose zipper was open reminded me of one of the best laughs I've had in a long time.

My little grandson (age eight) pulled me aside at a family party and asked, "Grandpa, are you afraid of heights?" I replied, "No. Why do you ask?" He smiled in pishy and said, "Well -- your zipper is."

Kinda cute? Print it if you want. -- Tampa-St. Pete

At Home Meals Fewer

CHICAGO (AP) — There may be no place like home, but fewer people each year are eating their holiday and anniversary meals there.

Recent surveys indicate nearly half of all American family meals are consumed outside the home, according to some restaurant-industry observers.

"Restaurants have taken over an important social role in the United States," says Manfred Steinfeld, chairman of Shelby Williams Industries, which makes chairs for restaurants and other public places.

The major factor in the shift is "the cost-of-living squeeze, which has reduced the size of today's houses and apartments, virtually eliminating space for entertaining and sending almost half the nation's wives and mothers off to work," Steinfeld explained.

In his view, the days when grandma had everyone over for Thanksgiving, Christmas and birthday or anniversary dinners are virtually over.

Steinfeld sees them as part of vanishing Americana.

Food Faddism Costs People $2 Billion

"Faddism and nutrition nonsense have created a major public health problem, with Americans squandering $2 billion on food fads," according to Joyce Shipp, County Extension Agent.

"These people are fooled, because they don't know or won't accept scientific facts about foods and nutrition," she challenged.

She cited "ignorance, indifference and fear" as the major factors that contribute to the situation.

"Victims are persuaded that 'health foods, wonder diets, or super pills' can produce magical results," she continued.

"These people accept false promises of the quack and believe they can regain 'youth, vigor and charm' -- or 'lose ugly fat, no counting of calories, no exercise."

"And they believe claims, such as those for having 'nerves soothed while miraculously being cured of whatever ails' them," the agent added.

Mrs. Shipp termed food fads dangerous for several reasons.

"Food fads and nutrition quackery are dangerous because essential nutrients may be lacking from the fad diet -- malnutrition could result."

"Instead, a variety of foods will produce a wholesome diet."

"Also, children following a fad diet may not get the nutrients they need for growth and development."

"In addition, attention to a serious ailment may be delayed while a food faddist or quack attempts to treat the condition."

"And faddish foods and treatments are always expensive," she concluded.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I never reflect on the glorious Fourth of July that I don't remember our family reunions.

The entire clan would gather on the bank of some obscure Ohio river to play ball, eat, and gossip (not necessarily in that order).

Our family reunions were discontinued years ago when we could no longer keep track of who was speaking to whom...and why.

Keeping track of family sins was a year-round job and was not taken lightly. Our oracle was my grandmother, who we consulted every other minute to find out who was "in favor" and who wasn't.

There was no such thing as a family misdemeanor...all offenses were mortal sins, punishable by "death by ignoring." Some of the more popular rules of misconduct that were noted at the reunion were:

Entered into a mixed marriage. He was a Democrat. Was heard to say last year that Grandma's fried chicken was "pale."

Never sent a card at Christmas. Never acted "right" since she dyed her hair. Went back after Bill's funeral and reclaimed her pot of flowers.

Never returned the piepan she borrowed 15 years ago. Stole her pictures of "mother" out of her album when she thought no one was looking.

Was tipsy at Georganne's wedding. (That took in 35 people alone.)

Got a new car and was "biggity." Named her baby after a husband Grandma had divorced. Visited for eight hours and didn't get so much as an apple or a drink of lemonade served.

The list was never discarded. Each year, a few more names and crimes were added until it got to the point where if you said hello to your own mother, you'd get it from Grandma.

The older I get, the more I think back on those Fourth of Julys by the river when we went swimming and the mud squished between our toes and the crowdads moved under the disturbed muddy water to a new hiding place...the Haines family beat the Hudgets at softball 136-92...and we spit seeds at one another while the watermelon ran down our elbows.

But it had to end. After all, when someone accused Grandma of simonizing her car with lard to save money...what else could she do?

TEXAS 4-H'ERS GO TO WASHINGTON

Texas 4-H club winners "go to Washington" in the summer if they're among those participating in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course and Heritage Tour.

This year 108 Texas 4-H youth and 12 adult leaders will travel to Washington, D.C.

Delegates will tour historical sites enroute to Washington, D.C. along with several key sites in the Nation's capital. Once they, they will visit Kennedy Center, Arlington National Cemetery, the Capitol and Library of Congress. Also, they will visit several memorials, Mount Vernon, Williamsburg, Monticello and the Museum of Atomic Energy.

Highlighting the trip will be a Citizenship Short Course at the National 4-H Center.

Four additional days of return travel studying American heritage will end the event.

The National 4-H Citizenship Short Course and Heritage Tour is designed to supplement the citizenship education -- and leadership development training -- that young people receive through the home, school, church and other organizations.

Citizenship short course for 4-H members of senior high school age are conducted at the National 4-H Center to enrich experiences started at the local club level.

Listening, sharing, receiving, caring and touring are all a part of the two-week personal learning experiences each 4-H'er will have. Assemblies and mini-courses will deal with citizenship topics relating to the individual's concept and responsibilities concerning citizenship.

Six major results of citizenship short courses that directly affect each young participant's personal development as a citizen:

-they realize their potential as effective participants in our democratic system of government;

-they gain leadership training to help implement newly realized abilities, responsibilities and programs back home;

-they develop a better understanding and appreciation of their American heritage;

-they realize a new relationship and responsibility of the individual to self and to others;

-they gain a better understanding of the federal government and their relation to it; and

-they gain an insight into some aspects of international citizenship.

4-H'ers interested in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course and Heritage Tour or in beginning citizenship projects should contact the county Extension office.

Nuclear Plant Makes Glen Rose A Boom Town

[Editor's Note: Nuclear power has turned the community of Glen Rose in North Texas to somewhat of a boom town and most residents seem to consider it a boon instead of a boondoggle. The dangerous aspects of the facility don't seem to bother them.]

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) - It used to be in Somervell County that Comanche Peak dominated the landscape, the dinosaur tracks were the No. 1 curiosity and the Flat Top Ranch was was easily the biggest thing on the tax rolls.

That was five years ago - before 4,000 construction workers began building Texas Utilities' $1.7 billion Comanche Peak nuclear power plant.

The plant's two domed concrete-and-steel containment towers, rising like giant silos 265 feet out of the rocky, scrub cedar ranchland, can be seen for miles.

And they stand in such stark contrast to the rugged rolling hills that it's sometimes easy to overlook Comanche Peak, a commanding area that looms 600 feet above the landscape five miles to the north and was once a traditional rallying point for the Comanche Indians.

The nuclear plant is so noticeable, in fact, that it's common for travelers near Glen Rose to pull off on the side of U.S. 67 and gawk at it.

Except for the well-preserved dinosaur tracks and some aging fiberglass dinosaur models at Dinosaur Valley State Park, there really isn't much else to look at in Somervell County.

It's the state's third smallest and was one of its poorest and most sparsely populated. The Texas Almanac lists its mineral resources, not as oil and natural gas, but as "limited sand and gravel."

The county's 2,600 residents, 1,500 of whom lived in Glen Rose, either scratched out a living by raising peanuts along the Brazos River or cattle and goats in the semi-arid hills. Some commuted the 50 miles northward to the plants in Fort Worth or 17 miles to Cleburne.

A small, but steady stream of tourists visited the state park and the church camps along the Brazos. There were once spas and sanitariums here in the 1920s, but some say the moonshine whiskey from stills in the remote cedar breaks was the county's leading product from the 1920s until the 50s.

But by the 1970s, the feed mill in Glen Rose was the closest thing to an industry.

It so happened, however, that Texas Utilities officials felt the site five miles north of Glen Rose near the Hood County line and along Squaw Creek was ideal for any power plant, especially their nuclear plant.

Construction began in early 1975 and brought in the hordes of workers and a million-dollar payroll in a county where minimum wage was considered good money not so long ago.

The tax base at that time was about $5 million - at a rate of 2 percent of market value. The projected cost of the plant was about $800 million and has since risen to $1.7 billion.

By the time both of the nuclear plant's units begin operating in 1983, it will have increased the county's tax base by 60 times of what it was in 1974. The same holds true in the county's school district.

"It's just like hitting oil in a county in West or East Texas," said Sandra Montgomery, the office deputy in the combination tax-sheriff's department. "That's the only comparison I guess you could make."

That increase in tax base doesn't include the other businesses the project has attracted. There's a new supermarket and other stores, houses and apartments and a lumberyard. Mobile homes are parked seemingly everywhere.

"They're living in anything, anything," said Dan McCarty, 38, a former mayor and publisher of The Glen Rose Reporter. "If it's something you could possibly consider housing, then they're living in it."

The Glen Hotel, once nearly deserted, is now packed with construction workers and the buildings from the old spas and sanitariums are being used as dorms for the workers.

Only about 16 percent of the workers live in Somervell County. The rest commute to the site from the six surrounding counties. The economic effects of the construction project can also be seen in nearby Cleburne and Granbury.

But county officials say the population of Somervell County has doubled to more than 5,000. The school enrollment has jumped from about 500 to 800, said Superintendent Charles Gibbs.

"The transient workers have young kids, so it's really crowded in the elementary school," he said.

The school district, flush with its new-tax wealth, has added temporary buildings to relieve the overcrowding and is building a new $2.5 million high school. The old high school will be used to ease the overcrowding in the lower grades.

The new high school will be a real showplace, not any better than anywhere else, but it'll be really something for us," said Gibbs. "We need to be one of the poorest school districts in the state."

There's also been the corresponding increase in nuisance crimes, said Mrs. Montgomery. There were only two sheriff's deputies in 1974, but there are now six deputies and two state troopers.

"Like anything else, this has its assets and liabilities," she said.

Even in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident, the fact that the plant is nuclear powered seems to be lost in the shuffle.

"About one percent of the people of Somervell County are opposed to the location of the plant for all reasons, not just because it's nuclear," said McCarty. "Probably 20 percent are actively for the thing and a vast majority of the people couldn't care less if it's nuclear or not. The fact it's a nuclear plant doesn't bother me at all."

"I don't worry about it. It's not worse than living near a refinery or near a highway where they're transporting chemicals," said Doug Robinson, owner of The Feedlot Restaurant.

"I would prefer not to have to live around it, particularly since the Harrisburg Three Mile Island thing," countered author John Graves, 58, whose secluded ranch "Hard Scrabble" is about six miles from the plant. "I don't want to sit here and get radiated, plus there's the disposal of the waste and the chance of sabotage and the whole mess in general."

"I don't think that we have much chance of stopping it, though," he continued. "There's still a chance it will never operate. It would take another Three Mile Island."

"It came in here and it was a payroll and a tax base. That's all the people worried about and a vast majority of them were in favor of it. Up until Three Mile Island, I don't think the people had any large doubts about radiation."

"One thing is for sure, it's certainly changed the society in this little county."

Nukes Bring Terms To New Use

By The Associated Press

Here's a glossary of terms used in the commercial nuclear power industry:

AUXILIARY BUILDINGS - Concrete and steel structures adjoining the containment towers. The primary auxiliary building contains safety and reactor support systems and tanks for the handling of radioactive water. The control building houses the control room and the fuel building is where spent fuel assemblies and new fuel is stored.

BACKGROUND RADIATION - Naturally occurring radioactivity caused by radioactive materials in the earth and air and from cosmic rays. It's usually about 100 millirems per year, which utility officials claim is many more times powerful than that emitted from nuclear power plants.

BREEDER REACTOR - A reactor that produces more fissionable fuel, in the form of plutonium, than it consumes. The plutonium is created by the capture in fertile materials of neutrons from the transmutation of uranium 238.

CONTAINMENT BUILDING - A giant, 265-foot domed silo 135 feet in diameter that contains the reactor and the coolant system. The building is lined with steel and has concrete and steel walls four and a half feet thick. The dome is more than two feet thick. It can be sealed off from the rest of the plant to prevent the escape of radiation should there be a leak in the coolant system.

CONTROL RODS - A rod containing a material that readily absorbs neutrons and controls the power of a nuclear reactor. By absorbing neutrons, a control rod prevents them from causing further fission.

COOLANT - The water in the reactor vessel that cools the reactor core and prevents it from melting itself with its own intense heat. It also helps govern the chain reaction by slowing down the neutrons so fission can occur. The water, kept under pressure to prevent it from boiling, is heated to 600 degrees Fahrenheit and pumped into a steam generator, where the transfer of heat creates the steam that drives the turbines and generates electricity.

CORE - The central portion of a nuclear reactor, containing the fuel elements.

DOSIMETER - A device for measuring radiation dose.

ENRICHMENT - The process by which the fissionable 235 isotope is artificially increased in uranium for use in a nuclear reactor.

FISSION - The nuclear process in which a neutron splits the nucleus of uranium 235 into fragments, releasing heat energy and more neutrons that continue the chain reaction.

FUEL ASSEMBLY - A cluster of fuel rods, long tubes of zirconium alloy containing stacks of thimble-sized uranium dioxide fuel pellets.

FUEL REPROCESSING - The reprocessing of spent fuel assemblies to salvage unused uranium and the small amounts of plutonium produced in fission.

FUSION - The formation of a heavier nucleus from two lighter ones, such as hydrogen isotopes, which causes a significant release of energy. The process used in a hydrogen bomb and being investigated as a possible process to generate electricity commercially.

HALF-LIFE - A term used to describe the time rate of radioactive decay. A single half-life is the time required for the intensity of radioactivity, 100 units for instance, two decay to 50 units. Two half-lives will see the initial 100 units decrease to 25 units, and so on.

MELT DOWN - The most serious nuclear accident, in which the core is no longer covered with the coolant water and melts itself with its own intense heat. It would then theoretically burn through the bottom of the reactor and the containment building and into the ground.

PLUTONIUM - A heavy, radioactive, man-made, metallic element produced by fission.

especially the neutron irradiation of uranium 238. It is used for reactor fuel and in weapons.

PRESSURIZED WATER REACTOR - The type of nuclear power plant in which heat is transferred from the core to a heat exchanger by water kept under high pressure so it can achieve high temperature without boiling in the primary system. Steam is generated in a secondary circuit.

RADIATION - Energy transmitted in the form of waves, particles and bundles called photons. There is harmless radiation, for example, in light, in the air, in food and in the ground. But ionizing radiation, such as that in X-rays, can damage or kill body cells.

RADIOACTIVE WASTE - The radioactive by-products of the fission process, including small amounts of plutonium.

The dirigible Hindenburg exploded in 1937 while landing at Lakehurst, N.J., killing 36.

Russian Weather Pushes Wheat Prices Higher

ROME (AP) - Poor growing weather in the Soviet Union has cut into its wheat harvest and helped push up world grain prices, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reported Monday.

Hot weather and winds have dried out the soil in western Russia after a severe winter. As a result, FAO has reduced its estimate of the 1979 Soviet wheat harvest to 192 million metric tons from a previous estimate of 210 million tons.

The cutback for the Soviet Union was the principal reason for a reduction in FAO's estimate for the global 1979 crop of wheat and coarse grains to 1.115 billion tons from a forecast a month ago of 1.132 billion tons. In 1978 the world harvested a record 1.190 billion tons of grain.

The Soviets will have to buy more grain abroad because of the worsened harvest. FAO raised its forecast of total world grain imports to a record 165 million tons this year from 154.5 million in the previous season.

Prospects for increase grain purchases have contributed to a sharp rise in world grain prices, FAO said. The export price for U.S. wheat rose a sharp 26 percent to $180 a ton between the third week of May and the third week of June and shipping costs have also risen sharply.

FAO warned that rising prices for grain and shipping could create problems for poor countries that rely on food imports. It cautioned that world grain reserves could fall this year the first time since 1974.

Stockbrokers Smile And Look To Brighter Future

NEW YORK (AP) - As the economy drags toward recession, and inflation overpowers the buyer and gasoline lines stretch for hours and heating oil problems loom for the fall, some stock analysts are smiling.

Not at the human discomfort, but at the prospect of a better tomorrow. Odd folks, these stock market people, forever living in the future. The present is not for them; and the past is valued only for its lessons.

Drawing on this knowledge of the past, many of them are now telling clients to invest in the future. Stocks are cheap, they say. Get aboard before prices rise. A stronger market is coming, they declare.

because oil is a modern economy's blood.

In fact, some of the economic and stock market reports, do appear to discount and impact of the energy problem. Until the problem is resolved, they ask, who knows where we are headed?

The concern involved in the question is, of course, reasonable. It appears also that those who forecast have no special insight on the matter, and that perhaps they are relying heavily on past experience.

Experience tells them that the ingenuity and technological has overcome many problems in the past. Projecting the past, forecasters see the energy problem eventually being overcome.

What unnerves many people is doubts that the past is prologue. So far, they say, the United States has been ineffective in solving the problem, and that, they contend, is what should be projected.

Boat People Expulsion Draws Ire Of Vance

BALI, Indonesia (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance criticized Hanoi Monday for the mass expulsion of boat people and promised "continuing American help in dealing with the refugee crisis."

"The policy of systematic expulsion which Vietnam is pursuing places responsibility for the current crisis squarely on Vietnam's shoulders," Vance told the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

"We have called upon Vietnam, publicly and privately, to change the conditions and policies which are forcing hundreds of thousands to flee, and tens of thousands to die. We today join in your appeal to the international community to prevail upon Vietnam to stop the exodus."

Vance also told the ministers their countries and the United States should "work together urgently to institute an internationally supervised relief program for the Kampuchean (Cambodian) people," and that the Carter administration supported the establishment of additional refugee centers by Southeast Asian nations.

Malaysia, meanwhile, towed 950 more boat people out to sea today. It also said processing centers for Indochinese refugees should be set up in Vietnam, the United States, China, Australia, French territories and other points, and it will propose this to the conference on refugees in Geneva July 20.

The 950 were intercepted in waters 180 miles northeast of Kuala Lumpur and were the largest single boatload of refugees towed out to sea by Malaysia since the end of the Vietnam war four years ago. In the past two weeks the Malaysian government has towed away more than 15,000 refugees as part of its policy of keeping new boat people out.

Home Minister Ghazali Shafie told reporters emigrants leaving Vietnam could be put into camps there run by the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, and from there the United States and other countries could transport them to permanent residence after processing them.

Ghazali also said more than 300,000 refugees now in Southeast Asian camps, including 76,000 in Malaysia, should be put into refugee centers in the United States and other third countries for processing and acceptance by Western countries.

Spy Released After 20 Months

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Terre Fleener, released after 20 months in an Israeli jail on a spying conviction, tearfully embraced her 67-year-old grandmother and a few other friends Monday as she returned home to Texas.

She was greeted by Rosa Guerrero, her maternal grandmother, and Catherine Edwards, her friend and former professor at the University of Texas at San Antonio. Ms. Edwards had testified at her trial in Israel.

Friends gave her a bottle of champagne and a box of flowers. She was also surrounded by three airport security personnel.

"It's been difficult but I'm very glad to be back," she told newsmen as she and her entourage walked toward their cars.

Asked if she had continued sympathies with the Arab terrorist group Palestine Liberation Organization, which landed her in jail, she said, "That's a tough question to answer. It's quite involved."

"I'm afraid I'm just a little overwhelmed right now."

"This is a complicated issue," she said, referring to her earlier statements that she still supported the Arab position. "I don't think I can handle that right now. I'm very, very grateful to the American government."

Ms. Edwards said there would be a news conference in Washington in about a week.

Mrs. Guerrero said Sunday her granddaughter was "confused, nervous, and upset" after her prison stay, but seemed better after a day of sightseeing in New York on her return to Texas.

SBC Qualities Seen In Recent Convention

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

America's largest Protestant denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, has some singular qualities and they came into view in fascinating array at its recent meet in Houston.

The incongruities, the grandeur, the suspicions and graciousness tumbled forth in mingled profusion, with the process starting out in one direction and winding up in another.

That curious, seesaw mixture of thrust and array, backing and hauling, is part of the unusual nature of this vast, looseknit body of 13.2 million Christians holding them together in teeming vigor.

Although retaining the "Southern" designation, they've stretched across the land in all 50 states, with missions in 90 foreign countries, and a myriad diversity of tastes and cultural bent.

viewpoints whose freedom of expressing themselves has always been a hallmark," notes the Rev. Russell H. Dillard, president of Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth.

But whatever the frictions or tangles the Baptists display a fervent faith and passion to evangelize the world for Christ. They backed that dedication with budgets, praise and w'emens," despite the peripheral upheavals.

Ironically, on the surface, however, the convention began with rolling thunder directed at seminaries and charges of lax teaching about the Bible, but ended with a salute to them for good work.

Strangely, too, the meeting of 16,000 "messengers" started with the triumph of an extraordinary political-style campaign for the denomination's presidency by a strictly conservative coalition.

But in a remarkable twist, the convention afterward rebuked such "overt political activity..."

as a method of selection of its officers," and ordered an investigation of reported voting irregularities.

It was a zigzag, flip-flop sequence that brought tears and chuckles, arguments and embraces, but withal, that spirited, full-fledged commitment to the cause of spreading the Gospel.

"Let's get on with this obsession," their famed evangelist Billy Graham told them in Houston's Astrodome, brushing aside the intramural bickering as beside the point.

The odd turn-around of affairs, however, apparently derived at least partly from the casual, easygoing makeup of the annual meeting, and offhand voting procedure, with some "messengers" apparently casting multiple ballots.

Any Southern Baptist - up to 10 from each of the denomination's 35,000 autonomous congregations - is eligible to attend, speak if he can get recognized in the crowd and vote, which could mean a possible total of 350,000 people.

Desegregation Plan Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court Monday upheld a racial desegregation plan under which some 18,000 students in Dayton, Ohio, public schools are being bused.

At the same time, the justices cleared the way for a desegregation plan that will require Columbus, Ohio, public schools to bus 37,000 of their 89,000 pupils.

By votes of 7-2 in the Columbus case and 5-4 in the Dayton matter, the nation's highest court issued a decision that could ease efforts to desegregate public schools in northern cities.

Writing for the minority, Justice Byron R. White said the court was not about to back away from a landmark 1973 ruling that has served as the foundation of desegregation efforts in the North.

White said lower court proceedings in both the Dayton and Columbus cases had not proved that the respective school boards had been guilty of racial discrimination.

The court's 1973 ruling, called Keyes vs. School District 1, concerned busing in Denver. The justices ruled then that if a judge finds intentional segregation by school officials in a substantial portion of a school district, a "presumption" is created that other segregation within the district did not occur by chance.

Such a finding imposes on school officials "the burden of proving that other segregated schools within the system" were not caused by "intentionally segregative actions," the court said.

If school officials do not meet that burden, district-wide busing is a permissible remedy under the Keyes decision.

In the Dayton and Columbus cases, the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals relied heavily on the legal presumptions authorized in the Denver case.

White's decision today in the Columbus case said the court did not "perceive any misuse of Keyes."

Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist dissented in the Columbus case.

They were joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Potter Stewart in dissenting from the court's ruling in the Dayton case.

Pee Wee Rangers Win

The Pee Wee Rangers of the Kid's Inc. baseball program finished the season with a perfect record, winning the championship game against the Dodgers last Saturday, 35-15.

The Rangers controlled the game the entire way, jumping to a 9-2 first inning lead. At the end of the second frame, the Rangers and upped their margin to 17-3 and coasted to their 11th consecutive win of the season.

The game marked the finale of the T-ball league in which the Rangers had been named the champions of the American league and the Dodgers represented the National League.

Joyce, Jason Walterscheid, Jason Bradshaw, Eddie Tjjerina, Todd Collier, Robby Collier, Keith Brown, Robert Jones, Derek Osborne, and Mark Watson.

Members of the Dodgers team are Jared Victor, Bubba Long, Shawn Sciombato, Shannon Alston, Jason Scott, Thomas Minor, Ricky Rieves, Clint Cotton, Bradley Cotton, Carl Schumacher, Anthony Gonzales and Kirby Kaul.

In the game before the championship match, the Mets edged the Yankees in the game to determine the third place winner, 35-31. The Mets had to come from behind in the last frame to capture the win for the National League team.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Tracy Austin mastered Billie Jean King, 6-4, 6-7, 6-2 in a tennis classic and reached the Wimbledon semifinals for the first time.

Martina Navratilova, the defending champion, came back from a slow start to defeat Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 2-6, 6-3, 6-0. The 16-year-old Austin will face Navratilova in the semifinals Wednesday.

Chris Evert Lloyd outstroked Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-3, 6-4 and Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia snuffed out Britain's hopes for a women's champion by hammering Virginia Wade 6-4, 6-0, setting up their semifinal match.

NEW YORK (AP) - Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds has been selected Player of the Week in the National League for the week ending July 1, the league announced Monday.

Seaver started two games during the week and won them both, defeating the West Division-leading Houston Astros 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants 2-0, allowing only three hits in each game.

Minnesota Twins shortstop Roy Smalley, the American League's leading hitter with a .369 average, was a unanimous choice as the league's Player of the Week for the period June 25-July 1.

Smalley had two hits in five of the Twins' six games, batting .462, with two doubles and three home runs. He also collected 23 total bases, drew four walks, drove in 11 runs and scored seven times.

BOWIE, Md. (AP) - Irish Tower, $2.40, defeated Big Event by six lengths to capture the $33,250 Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie Race Course.

CHICAGO (AP) - Likely Exchange, $6.20, beat Grand Niece to capture the $15,000 Motto Handicap at Arlington Park.

Errant Running Stops Orioles, 2-0

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) - The Baltimore Orioles gambled on the base paths, but their risks went unrewarded Monday night.

In a game Baltimore lost to Texas 2-0 shortstop Kiko Garcia was nailed trying to score on Ken Singleton's short fly to center in the first.

First baseman Eddie Murray was thrown out trying to advance from second to third on Lee May's fly to left in the fourth.

And left fielder Pat Kelly was erased at second as he tried to stretch his shot to the left field corner into a double.

"We gambled and didn't make it, that's all," Orioles manager Earl Weaver said.

"They were running away from the ball on the sacrifice in the first inning, and he (John Grubb) made a heck of a play to get him. In the fourth, Eddie just used some rather poor judgment, but again the throw had to be right on the money to get," Weaver said. Steve Comer, 8-6, allowed seven hits and three walks, but his teammates backed him with four double plays.

"Plays behind you like that really help," said Comer, who struck out two in hurling his second complete game of the season. "I thought Murray and Garcia used bad judgment: That was just a pop fly that Garcia tried to score on."

Dennis Martinez, 10-5, also went the distance, allowing just six hits, striking out three and walking two. It was his third loss in as many starts after winning ten decisions from April 22 through June 20.

"This is the best he's looked in the past three starts. He's coming back," Weaver said.

Catcher Dave Skaggs said the 24-year-old right-hander from Nicaragua "pitched well enough for us to win, but Comer did a good job and kept us from scoring any runs. Martinez had only one bad inning. He hung a slider to Jim Sundberg, and the rest of the game he did very well."

Sundberg, who missed several starts last week after being hit in the head by a pitch in the California series, doubled off Martinez in the second and fifth innings. His first double scored both Texas runs, coming after Richie Zisk had doubled and Grubb had walked.

"Sundberg, he's one of our trouble men. You have certain guys you just have trouble with, and Sundberg is one of them," Weaver said.

The Orioles will continue to be aggressive of the base paths, Weaver said. Kelly concurred.

"We're not always going to make it, but you've got to be aggressive. If you start playing scared in a defensive game, you're never going to make it."

In tonight's second game of the series, Ferguson Jenkins, 8-4, will start for Texas against Baltimore's Steve Stone, 6-5.

All-Stars Chalk 11-8 Win

PAMPA - Superb pitching, hitting and baserunning keyed the 13-year-olds Babe Ruth all-star team to an 11-8 win over Pampa last night here according to manager Gene Combs.

"The boys played exceptionally well," Combs said. "We could not have asked more of them as a team and as individuals."

The team, made up of the best players that were 13 years old from the Kid's Inc. baseball program, are involved in a double elimination tournament here.

The Pampa team scored first, tallying three runs in the initial inning. Hereford came back in the top of the second to tie the score and then went ahead in the third with three more runs to lead 6-3.

Pampa came back in the fifth to tie the score again, but an additional run by the Hereford team made the score 7-6 going into the final inning.

Pampa tied the score in the last of the seventh to send the game into extra innings and Hereford ended the Harvesters hopes with a four run outburst to put the game out of reach.

Offensively, the Hereford all-stars were led by the two triples of Robert Martinez and one by Mickey Stengle. Along with the triples, a host of Hereford players poked doubles throughout the game.

"Our hitting was awesome," Combs said. "We were able to hit the long ball and then move on the bases. These two factors along with the pitching of Martinez and the catching of Jeff Streun made the victory possible."

Martinez, the all-star's ace, recorded eight strikeouts and was able to keep the Pampa team from making solid contact with the ball by pitching on the corners.

"Jeff played like a pro behind the plate," Combs said. "he was unbelievable in all aspects of his position."

The team will face the winner of the Canyon-Perryton game Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Combs said that Dale Holguin will be the likely starting pitcher.

Errors Downfall Of Legion Team

Errors plagued the Hereford American Legion team Sunday as they dropped their contest to the Tascosa Rebels, 8-4.

The Rebels were able to get 11 hits off of Redbird starter Chris Hill (1-4) but because of the five miscues only three of the runs were earned. Hereford notched 10 hits against winner Rex Gill, but were unable to push the baserunners across the plate as they left nine men on base.

Hill continued his assault on the strikeout records of the district, fanning 12 Rebels in the nine inning contest. Along with the strikeouts, the Redbirds' ace gave up four walks.

Offensively for Hereford, Ronald Plummer, Hill, Jeff Hazelrigg, and Steve Bartels got on base via hits twice each. The Rebels were the only ones to gain extra-base hits as Gill blasted a double and Jerry Rouse lined a triple to left centerfield.

The loss drops the Redbirds a record of 3-7 and Tascosa upped its ledger to 8-3. Tonight the Redbirds go against Canyon and the Rebels face Borger.

Americans Gain Gold In Games

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - An unexpectedly fiery and colorful American squad blitzed the competition and set the stage for a rout Monday in only the first day of activity in the VIII Pan-American Games.

American swimmers swept all seven gold medals up for grabs Monday and were solid favorites to do the same thing in today's six aquatic categories. Records were rewritten in every event.

The potent United States men's and women's basketball teams slaughtered their opponents, and controversial men's Coach Bobby Knight even managed an international competition rarity - being ejected from the game, even though his team was leading by 35 points at the time.

The U.S. medal haul of 20, including 10 golds, easily out-distanced everyone, with the Canadians, hopeful of beating the Cubans for second place overall in the Games, next with 11 medals. Only two, however, were golds.

The Cubans had a slow start, in fourth place with only one gold, but their strongest sports are yet to commence play.

Sixteen-year-old Tracy Caulkins led the swimmers with two gold medals Monday, and goes for her third - in an attempt to garner five overall here - today in the 100-meter breast-stroke.

The sensation from Nashville, Tenn., ripped off four seconds from the record she had set in morning heat races in the 200-meter individual medley, and then teamed with the 400-meter medley relay squad that knocked an incredible nine seconds off the previous Games record.

Other individual U.S. gold medal winners Monday in swimming were Ambrose "Rowdy" Gaines, Winter Park, Fla., in the 200-meter freestyle; Steve Lundquist, Jonesboro, Ga., in the 100-meter breast-stroke; and Bob Jackson, San Jose, Calif., in the 100-meter backstroke.

Gaines tried for another gold today with the 400-meter freestyle relay team. Linda Jezek, Los Altos, Calif., and Cynthia Woodhead, Riverside, Calif., of the victorious 400-meter relay team, were also back in action today.

One of the biggest upsets Monday were newcomer Denise Christensen's defeat of veteran Janet Ely Thornburn, of Dallas, in the three-meter diving. Miss Christensen, of Tucson, Ariz., is in her first international competition.

Michele Beaulieu, Millbrae, Calif., collected a gold in the solo synchronized swimming.

The rest of the American Golds - out of a total of 16 awarded in all competitions Monday - went to roller skater Ken Sutton, Muskegon, Mich., in the 500-meter speed event, and the U.S. teams in the 100-kilometer cycling and air rifle.

The American basketball squads, based on their first round performances, looked like sure gold medalists too.

The women, led by Denise Curry's 27 points, stomped a Puerto Rico squad, 124-69, that they had feared.

The men looked generally awesome in their 136-88 crushing of the Virgin Islands - and so did their coach.

Knight was tossed out with his fourth technical foul of the sloppy game, in which 71 personal fouls were whistled, when he charged onto the court to criticize an official and then stayed there arguing.

"He (the official) took away a charging foul - he did," Knight insisted. "They called it first then changed the call."

Although the women do not play again until Friday, against a tough Canada team, the men will have to reorganize themselves quickly for a stern test tonight against the aggressive Cuban five, probably their strongest opposition in the round robin tourney.

Amarillo Gold Sox Fall To Dodgers

By The Associated Press
Five home runs powered the El Paso-Diablos to a 9-8 Texas League baseball victory over the Midland Cubs Monday night.

In other Texas League action, Shreveport edged Arkansas, 3-2. San Antonio beat Amarillo, 6-1, and Tulsa and Jackson split a doubleheader. Tulsa won the opener, 4-2, and Jackson took the nightcap, 3-1.

Mike Bishop had two homers for the Diablos and Tom Bhagwat, Brandt Humphrey and Steve Lubratich had one each to help take a come-from-behind victory. Midland held an 8-3 lead until El Paso staged a seventh-inning rally, highlighted by Humphrey's solo homer. Javi Fierro had a homer for Midland.

Mike Heaton, 3-5, was the winning pitcher. Lee Smith, 4-3, was charged with the loss.

Shreveport scored three runs in the fifth inning to beat the Arkansas Travelers, 3-2. The Captains got the three runs on singles by pitcher Scott Budner, Howie Mitchell, Bob Brenley and Craig Landis and a double by Mark Woodbrey. Fred Tisdale had a triple and a double for Arkansas.

Budner, 3-8 was the winning pitcher, Arno Kirchenwitz, 4-4, was the loser.

Rusty McDonald, 6-2, picked up the pitching victory as the San Antonio Dodgers edged the Amarillo Gold Sox, 6-1. George Stabern, 6-7, was the losing hurler.

Chris Smith had a solo homer and Ron Carney added a double and a single as the Tulsa Drillers beat the Jackson Mets, 4-2, in the first game. Jackson scored two runs in the first inning on a RBI triple by Jody Davis and a run-producing single by Ronald McDonald.

Len Whitehouse, 2-4, was the winner. Greg Harris, 5-8, was the losing hurler.

In the second game, Jackson turned two Tulsa throwing errors into runs and added a third run in the fifth when Wally Blackman singled home Sergio Beltre. Tulsa's only run came in the sixth when Ron Carney tripled and came home when Mike Richardt grounded out.

King Checks Final Four At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Billie Jean King shrugged off the disappointment of losing to Tracy Austin to analyze the chances of the four Wimbledon semifinalists.

Billie Jean believes two-time champion Chris Evert Lloyd is the most psyched-up of the four.

Lloyd plays Evonne Goolagong Cawley in one of Wednesday's semifinals. Defending champion Martina Navratilova meets the 16-year-old Austin, a Rolling Hills, Calif., schoolgirl, in the other.

"I think Chris is the toughest mentally of those who have come through," said King, a six-time Wimbledon champion. "The semifinalists are of two distinct types. Chris and Tracy sustain their drive inwardly."

"Martina is physically the strongest - she is a brute - but emotionally she is up and down. Evonne really cares and her game suits these courts."

But Billie Jean, still hoping to win a record 20th Wimbledon title in the doubles, would not be drawn on making a forecast, on either the singles or her own chances in the mixed and women's doubles.

Aviation pioneer Wilbur Wright was born in 1867.

Austin took more than two hours to beat Billie Jean 6-4, 6-7, 6-2.

"That was one of the best wins of my life," said Tracy who trailed 0-2 in the final set. "I told myself to fight harder than ever."

Austin's semifinal opponent, Navratilova, took nine successive games against Australian Dianne Fromholtz to win 2-6, 6-3, 6-8 after losing the first set in just 20 minutes.

Lloyd outlasted Australian Wendy Turnbull 6-3, 6-4 after a 1 1/2-hour baseline battle. "I have never lost to her and I found she couldn't hurt me," said Chris afterwards. "I think I am ready to play Evonne now. I haven't played her for 18 months, but I don't think her game has changed that much."

Lloyd, beaten by Navratilova in a dramatic final last year, feels she is better prepared mentally this time. "This year I am tournament tough - I wasn't last year. Having played Eastbourne a recent Wimbledon "warmup" tournament and won there, I believe I can do it here."

Cawley, who won the title in 1971, had a straightforward quarterfinal victory when she beat Britain's Virginia Wade - the 1977 champion - 6-4, 6-0 on the center court.

The Australian was very happy with her performance. "I felt fine. I was in good touch and feeling confident. When I am moving well that is when I am playing well."

Turnbull, well beaten by Lloyd, fancies Cawley's chances. "I think Evonne could be the danger," she said. "I know she would like to win. She has the kind of game to beat Chrissie and I think she could beat everybody."

Home Brings Win For Phillies, 6-2

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Phillies were so happy to be back home in Philadelphia that they provided the fans and themselves with two surprises - a complete game and a victory.

"I guess it's home cooking," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark.

The 6-2 victory over the New York Mets Monday night opened a 14-game Phillies home stand. And it was the first time in 12 games that Ozark has not had to call upon his bullpen.

In other NL games Monday, Montreal blanked the Chicago Cubs 5-0. Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 5-4 and the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the San Diego Padres 6-3 in 12 innings.

STATE CAPITAL

Highlights

AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN — Independent truckers lifted a circle of just around the State Capitol Wednesday as more than 400 vehicles, ranging from 18-wheel rigs to passenger cars, motored into town to discuss a host of concerns with Governor Bill Clements. The convoy, horns blowing and stacks smoking, circled the Capitol entrances guarded by highway troopers before its delegation met inside with Clements to discuss raising the speed limit to 65 mph, higher freight rates to compensate higher diesel fuel costs, partial deregulation of Railroad Commission rules, and removal of the so-called "bridge law" that limits the loads trucks may carry.

Clements was "sympathetic but not encouraging," said Bill Hoadley, president of the South Texas chapter of the Independent Truckers Association. The group left Austin with their demands unmet but promised to return.

The governor received better news that same day when country music superstar Willie Nelson promised to sing a plea at his annual Fourth of July picnic for drivers to stay under 55 mph.

Special Session Blasted

Clements reportedly is still determined to call a special session, but the top two leaders in the Legislature (both gubernatorial contenders) are in opposition to the idea. Prior to a speech before the Texas Press Association convention, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton said they do not favor the rumored special call.

Clayton said he thinks the 66th Legislature "met with enough success. I feel the issues he (Clements) is talking about are not enough to warrant a special session."

Hobby took the governor to task over his recent budget vetoes, saying Clements deserves "no more than an F." The veto pencil saved taxpayers far less dollars than the governor's claimed $252 million, Hobby said. He pointed out Clements did not have the legal authority to block $90 million the governor purported to veto. Another $12.3 million was contingent upon passage of bills that did not pass and could not have been spent anyway.

(Capitol sources have said that another $50 million claimed for Texas taxpayers was actually federal money that will go back to Washington, D.C. for distribution to other states.)

Hobby also blasted Clements for vetoing construction of new cells at state prisons, and vetoing $989,000 for the University of Texas Center of Energy Studies and a UT-El Paso $269,000 solar energy study which Hobby called

"the most significant solar research we have."

Opinion Sought

Three days later House Appropriations Committee chairman Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, asked Attorney General Mark White for an opinion on the validity of Clements' vetoes of several riders in the budget. Presnal said the vetoes were similar to those made by previous governors and subsequently invalid by either attorney general opinions or Supreme Court decisions.

In 1975 the Texas Supreme Court ruled governors do not have the power to veto budget riders unless the riders appropriate money.

On a brighter note for Clements, he received words of praise for his odd-even gas rationing plan and requests for more such action. Monday he signed an order extending the ration program to Ellis and Collin counties near Dallas and Liberty, Montgomery and Brazoria counties near Houston.

In compliance with another gubernatorial order to raise thermostat controls in state office buildings, workmen made the office rounds Wednesday adjusting temperatures. Those employees who hadn't doffed ties and coats earlier were walking Capitol halls in shirtsleeves by that afternoon. After the first day's acclimatization, workmen visited the offices again early Thursday morning, raising thermostats a couple of more notches to 76 degrees.

Roloff Closes Home

Evangelist Lester Roloff, fiery advocate against state encroachment on the church, struck an agreement with Attorney General White to close down his Rebekah Home for Girls in obedience of a week-old court order. Roloff conducted a three-day confrontation with a Human Resources task force to prevent closing down the home. A District Judge had ordered Roloff to apply for a state permit for the homes or close them down.

Clements said he might include proposed legislation to exempt Roloff's homes from state regulation in a special session of the Legislature.

Efforts to pass such a bill failed during the regular session.

Meanwhile, Roloff's troubles aren't over yet as a Nueces County grand jury Thursday returned an indictment against him on misdemeanor charges of operating a youth home without a license.

Energy Common Market?

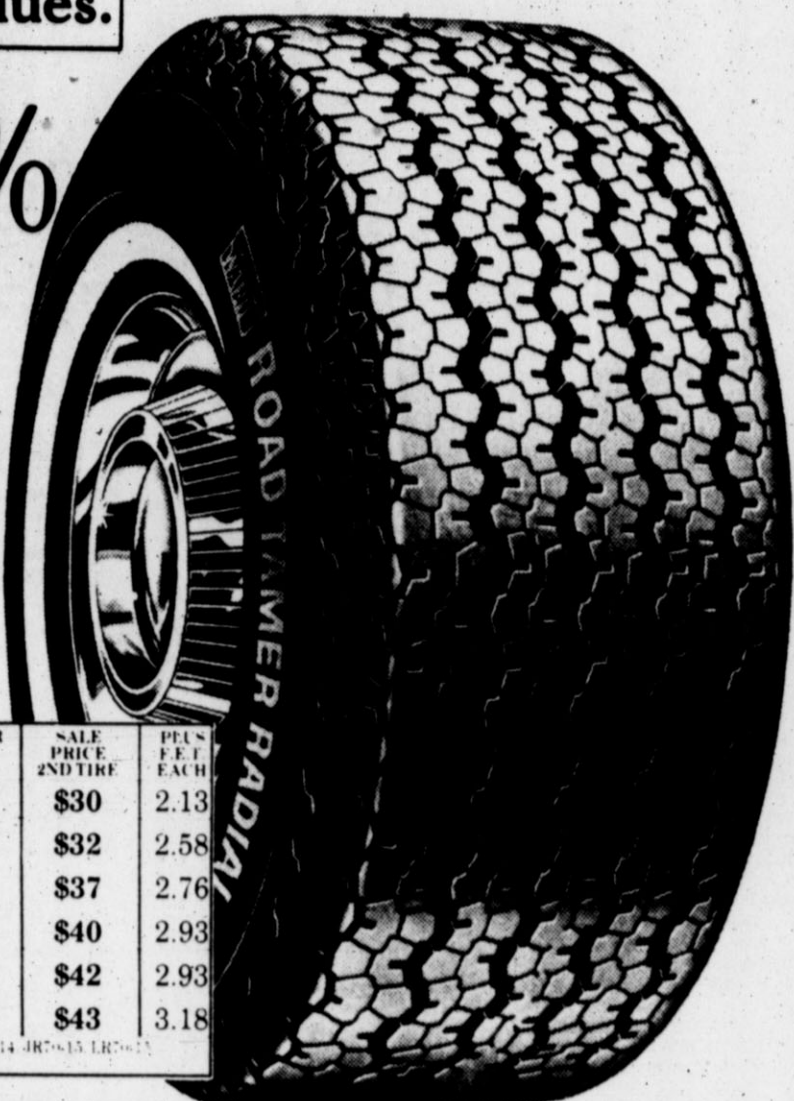

At a Border States Governors Conference meeting Friday in Brownsville, Clements, Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico, Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona and former anti-war activist Tom Hayden (representing California Gov. Jerry Brown) may have taken a cautious step forward to a North American energy common market.

Many folks still call it "Whites Auto," but the actual title is "Whites Home and Auto." Tony Cortez, manager and part owner of the local store explains the difference. "A number of years ago, we started stocking more home furnishings and appliances, so we felt the name needed to include the word 'Home.'" Cortez has been at the store since 1962 when the Poyner Brothers bought White's Auto store in Hereford. The White's warehouse is close by in Shallowater, providing quick delivery on stock for the area stores. Besides home furnishings and appliances, auto accessories, tires, and batteries, the store also stocks seasonal supplies—like air conditioners, and lawn garden supplies. This fall there'll be a big stock of toys.

A powerful response to your working needs

The 4440 packs a real wallop with its 130 horsepower. Maybe more than you expect. Because as impressive as 130 horsepower is, the amount of power has never been delivered more effectively than it is by the 4440. It has a terrific torque response from its 466-cu.-in. turbocharged engine. And the whole chassis is designed to magnify power at every point, including the drawbar, PTO, 3-point hitch, and hydraulic system. Stop by the store for more information on the powerfull 4440.
