Rare blizzard belts southern Texas

HOUSTON (AP) - A snowstorm that frosted roads and lawns drew frustrated sighs from Lany South Texans, and for others the weather had grim consequences.

At least four people died in weather-related accidents and five others were killed in fires that. authorities say could be linked to the freezing temperatures. Hundreds of traffic accidents were reported and dozens of schools ordered closed on Thursday.

Thursday night and Friday morning were expected to bring more low temperatures. Freeze advisories were posted for far South Texas Thursday night and early Friday morning, the National Weather Service said. The forecast for South Texas called for lows Friday morning near freezing along the coast to the teens the Hill Country.

In the lower Rio Grande Valley, temperatures were expected to drop below the freezing mark on Thursday night, worrying farmers who saw their citrus crops ravaged by a hard freeze a year ago, In Houston, 0.4 inches of snow had fallen Wednesday night - the first officially recorded snowfall in the nation's fourth-largest city since 1980. Whitened lawns disappeared by Thursday afternoon, but near freezing temperatures returned by nightfall.

Snow also fell in Beaumont, and so did school attendance. Officials said about 15 percent of the city's students stayed home in the wake of

'It was just a touch of snow for us, t it was probably exciting for some ple and especially for the kids," said Ray Broussard, of the National Weather Service in Beaumont.

Farther inland in Texas, travel was improving but continued to be hazardous, particularly in the Austin and San Antonio areas, which were trying to recover from ice and snow on Wednesday.

In Austin, the 3.3 inches of snow there was the most since 1966. All city offices except those dealing with emergency services were shut Thursday for a second straight day.

Police in the state capital handled more than 250 traffic accidents and some areas were so jammed with wrecked autos that officers at the scene were told to quit taking reports, Officer C.F. Adams said. Instead, drivers were given do-it-yourself accident report forms and were told to mail them.

At the Night Rider Wrecker Service in Austin, Cathy Senterfitt said the firm had to close because there were too many calls from stranded motorists.

In San Antonio, the 2.4 inches of snow - the most in 20 years - was dubbed the "Blizzard of '85." Police reported more than 100 traffic accidents between midnight and late Thursday morning. A day earlier, 572 accidents were recorded when San Antonio's entire freeway system had to be closed.

"Most San Antonians are not familiar with this particular weather," Mayor Henry Cisneros

Of the four fatalities blamed on the storm, three were in traffic accidents. The other was an 84-year-old San Antonio woman, Hilda Burt, who slipped on an icy sidewalk Wednesday and died of a head injury.

Fire officials in the Houston area said blazes that killed five other people may have been weather-related. A Houston man died Thursday morning in his home near the city's downtown. Authorities said the wood frame home caught fire after the man lit an open barbecue pit in his living room to keep warm. Earlier Thursday, man and his 24-year-old son died in their Conroe home when a fireplace blaze swept throught their home. In Manvel, officials were still investigating the cause of a house fire that killed a 39-year-old man and his 11-year-old son.

Traffic was moderate and only about 30 accidents were reported probably because many people apparently stayed home, police said.

Final semester tests gone from district

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

Jelly still goes well with peanut butter. The sun still rises in the east. Bo Derek still makes bad movies.

Final semester examinations, however, are no longer to be given in the Hereford Independent School

During their Dec. 18 meeting, local school board members decided by a split vote (4-2) to do away with cumulative semester exams in secondary schools. Despite the move, students are spending more time being tested than they were when final semester exams were ad-

New state education laws are the root of the changes. Beginning next school year, Texas secondary instructors are required to instruct certain "essential elements" and base students' grades on their "mastery" of those objectives.

Hereford secondary schools have implemented the mastery learning concept this year as a sort of trial run. According to Marc Williamson, HISD assistant superintendent of instruction, the early adoption helps 'Summative' exams most important determine "pacing" needs. "This year we can adjust accordingly," he said.

Grading, as approved by the school board last month, is to be accomplished primarily through "summative" tests. Such exams are given at the conclusion of each unit.

Prior to the summative tests, "formative" exams are administered in either written or oral form. They are to help determine what level of ability, students prepossess in a particular unit. A score of 80 percent or better means they will be placed in an "enrichment" cycle, while lower marks mean designation to the "reteach" cycle.

Results of formative tests are not to be used for determining grades.

At the conclusion of instruction of a unit, summative tests are given. Seventy percent is the cutoff for passing a unit. Regardless of homework and other assignments, failing grades are alloted those scoring below 70 and passing marks are given those who record 70 or above.

According to the new HISD policy, six weeks grades are to be based 75 percent on the average of summative test results. The average of other work is to count 25 percent. Each six weeks grade is to count one third in determining semester marks, which are to represent one half in fixing the full year's grade. In some cases, students who fail the summative test will be given a second chance. Should they prove they have done "self-directed outside remediation," another summative exam may be administered by teachers. The higher of the two summative marks will be used for grading purposes.

Most units, Williamson said, take one to three weeks apiece to complete. Some, such as art projects, may last up to six weeks. Speed depends on the number of essential elements which need to be covered, he explained.

One argument for final semester tests, the assistant superintendent said, is they provide instructors with something to measure students'

Bomber group seeking members for reunion

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

Texans who served with the U.S. Army Air Force 330th Bomb Group during World War II are being sought for a reunion later this year.

Al Verble of Dallas, who is coordinating the Texas effort to bring the veterans together, said a first-ever reunion is tentatively planned for September 5-8 at Right Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio.

Members of the 330th Bomb Group Association in virtually every state are trying to locate the hundreds of men who served with them-most of whom are more than 60 years of age.

"Our B-29s took part in the climactic raids on Japan between April and September, 1945," Verble said. "In the nearly 40 years since the war ended, the 330th has never held a reuAir Force 330th Verble said at least 115 men of the 330th came from Texas. He feels that many of those men returned to their home state after the war, but all he has are 1944 addresses for a few of those men.

According to Verble, the 330th was activated in 1942 as a training unit for B-24 crews, a role it maintained until early in 1944. On April 1, 1944, the group was reactivated as the 330th Bomb Group (VH). The initials stand for "very heavy," meaning equipped with B-29's.

The new 330th's first cadres arrived at Walker Army Air Force Base in Kansas that April. Through the hot summer the organizational process

Sanctuary worker's trial set

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - A federal judge has set a Jan. 21 trial date for Jack Elder, accused of transporting Salvadoran refugees in the United States.

But U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr. refused Thursday to granta change of venue motion filed by Elder's lawyers.

'The change of venue motion is denied," pending jury selection, Head said in a brief hearing.

'The information I have received is not sufficient to convince me the defendant could not receive a fair trial in this district," the judge

Head also set Jan. 9 as the day he will begin taking testimony on several defense motions to dismiss the charge. Elder, 41, was arrested April 13 and charged with transporting three Salvadorans from a Catholic Church-sponsored halfway house to a bus station in Harlingen. He directs a halfway house for refugees, known as Casa Oscar Romero.

Supersonic training now allowed

VALENTINE, Texas (AP) - Residents in this sparsely population region of West Texas say they're "holding our breath" now that Air Force pilots can begin supersonic training flights over their heads.

In an agreement worked out in September, fighter pilots from Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico can begin the flights over West Texas and southwestern New Mexico anytime after New

They haven't started yet, however, and Holloman officials say the actual number and frequency of the low-level test flights won't be known until the F-15 fighter wing uses all available flight time within White Sands Missile Range.

In West Texas, some residents still oppose the flights and at one time had said they might file a lawsuit against the Air Force to stop

But Ralph Voigt, a Fort Davis-area rancher who led opposition, said Thursday no court action has been initiated.

'We're not going to do anything until they start and we get some reaction from the people under the flights," he told the El Paso Times. "We're just holding our breath."

Letters call enemy counts lies

NEW YORK (AP) - The producer of a CBS documentary that prompted retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland's libel suit says he relied on a U.S. officer's letters from Vietnam complaining of "outright lies" about enemy strength.

The letters, written in 1968 by Navy Cmdr. James Meacham to his wife, Dorothy, told of . "outright falsification on the very highest levels" in reports about the strength of the communist forces opposing American troops.

Meacham, now military correspondent for The Economist, a British magazine, was then a ranking officer in the "order of battle" section of Westmoreland's Saigon staff. His job was to estimate the strength and location of enemy forces.

Westmoreland lawyer Dan M. Burt said he would have some final questions for producer George Crile today before calling CBS film editor Ira Klein as his final witness in Westmoreland's $120 million

Jurors saw Meacham's letters Thursday as the trial resumed after

More lie-detector tests slated

WASHINGTON (AP) - Seeking more protection against espionage, the Pentagon is stepping up its use of lie-detector tests for employees and civilian contractors who work on classified military projects. Defense Department officials, citing a grant of special authority from Congress for a one-year trial, said Thursday they would administer up to 3,500 polygraph tests between now and Sept. 30 when determining whether employees or civilian contractors should receive or retain access to military secrets. Richard G. Stillwell, a retired general and the deputy undersecretary of defense for policy, said the tests were a direct response to heightened Soviet, efforts to obtain U.S. technology secrets and had been authorized by Congress on an experimental

The tests will be administered to selected individuals who are working on or have been assigned to work on "special access programs and intelligence programs," Stillwell said.

Rescuers climbing to wreckage

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) - With hail, rain and fog barring an aerial rescue, Red Cross workers are scaling an icy, snow-covered Andean mountain to reach the wreckage of an Eastern Airlines jet that crashed with 29 people aboard.

Officials said there was no hope anyone was alive aboard the Boeing 727, which crashed Tuesday night about 1,600 feet below the summit of 21,000-foot Illimani Mountain. Eight Americans were among those on the plane.

Fernando Lopez de Castillo, a Red Cross official, said 11 Red Cross rescue workers set up a base camp at Uranu Mine, at the foot of the mountain 35 miles southeast of La Paz, and some began climbing toward the crash site Thursday.

Two Bolivian air force helicopters ferried a U.S. diplomat and five Bolivian mountaineers toward the Red Cross camp but the weather interrupted their trip.

Steve Seche, a spokesman at the U.S. Embassy in La Paz, said U.S. Consul Royce Fichte and the five experienced climbers were forced to stop at Coani, short of the mine.

Search continues for missile

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) - Using snowmobiles and helicopters, Finnish border guards are searching in Lapland's round-the-clock winter darkness for traces of what may have been an off-course Soviet missile.

Norwegian officials say the object, tracked by radar on Dec. 28, may have been a Soviet cruise missile and are protesting to Moscow because the low-flying projectile passed through Norway's airspace before disappearing over Finland.

However, Danish intelligence sources said Thursday that the object probably was a drone missile fired by a Soviet warship for use as a target during a training exercise.

Finnish border guards have been combing the rugged snowbound wilderness of the country's far north for the projectile, but the nonligned government in Helsinki as yet has refused to characterize the object as a missile.

Norway is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and a NATO spokesman in Brussels said of the incident: "We view any Soviet viciation of Allied national airspace as a matter of serious Administration says

Research of 'Star Wars' necessary

Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - With important new arms control talks just-days away, the Reagan administration says it must proceed with "Star Wars" anti-missile research so that Americans won't someday be forced to choose between "surrender and Administration officials defended the "Star Wars" initiative Thursday as Secretary of State George P. Shultz made final preparations for talks next week with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva, Switzerland.

One senior U.S. official, briefing reporters, said the space-based, antimissile program "is not a bargaining chip" in any arms talks with the Soviets.

The statement came as the administration, offering a new defense of the controversial program, contended that the Soviet Union is also engaged in research and development of an anti-missile system that could give Moscow an ominous advantage.

Shultz was to receive final instructions today from President Reagan, and leave for Geneva Saturday evening. The purpose of the talks next Monday and Tuesday is to establish a framework for comprehensive arms control negotiations.

The Soviet Union has signaled that of nuclear war."

By R. GREGORY NOKES AP one of its key objectives will be to pressure the Reagan administration to curb the "Star Wars" research, which is aimed at developing the capability to destroy Soviet missiles before they strike.

> The administration said the Soviets are at work on radar systems that are "of particular concern." Officials said the radar systems; especially one under construction at Krasnoyarsk in central Siberia, might be in violation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty and will be discussed with the Soviets in Geneva.

> An administration report on-the U.S. and Soviet defense programs said Moscow may be far enough along in its research to have the capability of deploying a nationwide anti-missile defense system in the next 10 years.

Five thousand dollars gathered for surgery

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - About they are a year old, Goodkind said. $5,000 has been raised for a 6-yearold boy who traveled from Poland for a life-saving operation doctors will perform free after Stanford University Medical Center gets $25,000 to admit him.

Granting a free operation to Piotr Sternik might set a precedent that could flood Stanford with similar requests, said medical center spokesman Mike Goodkind, adding advance payment is necessary for the "survival of the hospital."

"It's a real dilemma, there is no doubt about it," Goodkind said. That's the way the system works and I'm not sure what the alternatives are."

Piotr, the son of a former Solidarity union activist, came to California from Gdansk, Poland, last week with his mother, Halina, for an operation to repair his defective heart. Polish surgeons cannot perform the surgery.

Piotr underwent surgery in San Diego four years ago to keep him alive until the age of six, when final corrrective surgery usually is performed.

Although the hospital's advancepayment policy is flexible to accommodate unusual, emergency cases, Piotr does not fall into that category, Goodkind said. But he added: "I'm pretty confident things will be worked out and he will receive the treatment he needs."

The Polish child suffers from transposition of the great arteries, a congenital heart defect that causes most of his blood to bypass his lungs. Although his condition is not considered critical, he eventually will die without the operation, doctors

The Sterniks have no American health insurance, and hospital costs make up most of the total bill for surgery.

Peter Wasowski, a family friend who arranged for the Sterniks to come to Stanford, said he understands the hospital's position on advance payment and is grateful for the doctors' decision to forgo their fees.

"Nobody is making money on this, the surgeons, the hospitals," he said Thursday night in a telephone interview from his San Carlos home. "They (Stanford) are just recovering their out-of-pocket expenses."

Wasowski has opened a bank account for donations for the surgery. Individuals have donated about $5,000 and Wasowski is hoping corporations also will contribute. He hopes to raise the entire $25,000 within a month.

After the boy arrived last week, Stanford surgeon Norman Shumway examined him and decided he required an implant of a portion of human heart rather than a synthetic implant.

Housekeeping chores were the main order of the day. But the talk was all of federal deficits and freezing federal spending - all spending - to deal with that flood of red ink.

Dole kicked off his first day in the job declaring "We want to get out front" on the deficit issue and not wait for marching orders from President Reagan. Some form of freeze "will be the centerpiece of any reduction plan," he added. "We'reall pretty much on the same wavelength."

On the House side, O'Neill said in his acceptance speech that the American public will judge this 99th Congress "by our willingness to make the tough decisions to get our fiscal House in order.. These deficits will not take care of themselves. It is up to the president and to the Congress to take them on."

O'Neill won a fifth term as speaker on a pro-forma, straight party vote, defeating Republican Robert Michel of Illinois, 246-173. Michel will remain as House minority leader.

Reagan budget director David Stockman briefed GOP members in a closed-door session.He told them that deficits over the next three years will be $8 billion to $11 billion larger than the administration forecast only a few weeks ago, The Washington Post reported in today's editions. That would boost deficits to $225 billion in fiscal 1986, and $240 billion and $235 billion in succeeding years, the newspaper said.

"I think by these changes the teachers think that they are adequately measuring the students' progress," Williamson said. "We're more precise this way than we were with semester tests.'

Williamson admitted instigation of the mastery learning system has been a difficult transition for instructors. "It's been hard for them," he said, "because there've been so many changes."

It will take three to five years, the dministrator guessed, before success of the new program can be adequately evaluated. He did, though, comment, "We're making some good

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I couldn't help but write after reading about the 26-year-old man who is losing his hair and is depressed.

I am also 26 and losing my hair. I, too, went through a period of being self-conscious and miserable. I also thought about hairpieces and transplantation.

Finally, I came to terms with myself and acknowledged the fact that there is nothing wrong with being bald. I had not lost my friends or -my job because of it, and women still liked me.

I feel ashamed when I think of the millions of people who are struggling with real problems such as unemployment, physical handicaps and terminal illness.

I don't believe a hairpiece is a wise solution. The guy would feel uncomfortable around his relatives and old friends. He would wonder what they think about his fake hair. His problem is not baldness-it is being ashamed of being bald. If even his supportive wife cannot change his attitude, I second your motion that he get a bald therapist.-Kojak In Paul

DAILY, we read of murders and other tragedies. Oftentimes, the news story begins with the statement, "There was an argument," or something similar to this. This emphasizes again the "power of words", power for good or power for evil, depending upon the words and the manner in which the words are expressed. So much of personal distress and unhappy relationships comes from unwise choice of words, and the misuse of words. "

WE CAN, with diligent effort learn to be wise in both the choice of our words and the way in which we use them. Much of the difficulty experienced in human relationships, in the home, the school, the church, the community and in other areas of human associations comes from failure to recognize the "power of words", or just plain carelessness. Whereas, so much that is for the good of all persons involved can be promoted and supported by the power of good words spoken well.

TOO OFTEN we seem to think that being hasty with the reply, the retort, or perhaps with the put-down is a virtue, at least a desirable capability. We must learn that such action does not protect our ego and never makes any situation better. In fact, this manner of speech is likely to alienate people and embarrass us.

WE CAN LEARN to control our thinking to the degree that we can choose our words wisely, and direct the power of them along the most helpful lines. We can choose our words so that they serve us well, are helpful to others and better the life situation for all concerned. We have this potential, and the beautiful aspect of this life plan is that it will

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

The local congregation of Spanish-speaking Jehovah's Witnesses will attend a circuit assembly Saturday and Sunday in the north meeting room of the Amarillo Civic Center. Approximately 500 delegates from the area congregations are expected to attend.

Repudiate Ungoldliness and Worldly Desires" will be the theme for both days. This will show the need for Christians to gain God's favor and to maintain it so as to receive His blessing. Personal Bible study on a regular basis will be stressed so that Christians will be on guard against a 'me first' attitude so common today and to help others as well.

On Sunday beginning at 2 p.m., the public talk "the War of Armageddon...Is It Near" What Will It Mean?" will be given by F. Aleman, a representative of The Watchtower of New York. He will provide insight as to the Bible's point of View on this subject.

All sessions will be in Spanish. The public is invited to attend.

> FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

During the December meeting of the church women, new officers for the coming year were installed. Camille Williamson will serve as president; Pet Ott, vice-president; Mozelle Neill, treasurer; Mary Williamson, secretary; Sue Malamen, program chairman; Priscilla Power, mission chairman; Janice Conkwright, cheer chairman; and Dee Dee Osborn, hospitality chairman.

Also, during the meeting, a Christmas story was presented by Helen Rose:

During the Women's Association luncheon scheduled at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, a program will be given by Avis and Milford Grisham, mis-sionaries to Argentina for 30 years. Also, on January's agenda, a special luncheon has been scheduled at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 28 sponsored by the church women. Nancy and Charles Ross, missionaries from Zaire, Africa are to speak. The entire congregation is invited to attend and are asked to bring a dish.

School separates hot lunchers, carriers

LINCOLN, R.I. (AP) - In the lunchroom of the Saylesville Elementary School, all children are divided into two classes: the "hot lunchers" and the "brown baggers."

The separation of children has caused a feud between the suburban school system and a local family. The Rhode Island chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union has entered the fray, claiming that the school is breaking federal regulations.

At issue is Principal Samuel Williams' policy of segregating children in the school's lunchroom on the basis of whether they bring their lunch from home or buy a hot lunch at the school.

Williams says his policy helps maintain order and gets the children out of the lunchroom faster, giving them more time to play.

But the DeQuattro family and the ACLU say the year-old policy arbitrarily keeps students from mingling freely during lunchtime. Further, they claim, it violates federal law by discriminating against students in the federally subsidized school lunch program.

The town School Committee has refused to change the policy, and the state Education Department has sent the ACLU complaint to the federal Department of Education, A decision from Washington is pen-

The policy requires students who buy lunch, the "hot lunchers," to sit at the six tables closest to the foodservers. The students who bring their lunch, the "brown baggers" or "carriers," are required to eat at the far six tables:

The ACLU complaint, filed last September, said the federal law states: "The children (participating in the subsidized-lunch program) shall not be required to use a separate dining area.

'There's much less movement, therefore it's much safer for the children." Williams said. "The children can now eat in a calmer, more relaxed environment because the lunchroom runs more effectively."

That is not the way 12-year-old Sherry DeQuattro, who bought her lunch in the sixth grade at Saylesville last year, saw it. Sherry, who now attends a junior high school, spoke out against the policy and got in touch with the Rhode Island chapter of the ACLU.

"I think it's important for any citizen of the United States to stand up for their rights," said Anthony DeQuattro, Sherry's father. "I teach my kids that they should go out and fight for what they believe in ... They live in the United States, not

The DeQuattros have two younger children in the Saylesville school, which has 320 students.

Sherry said she and her friends did not like the policy because it prevented them from sitting with some of their schoolmates. Neither the family nor the school would reveal whether or not Sherry was in the federally subsidized lunch pro-

Steven Brown, executive director of the Rhode Island ACLU, agreed

'The rule is simply another example of school officials coming up with arbitrary and petty rules to promote order and discipline in the schools without any sensitivity to the in-terests of the students. If students want to stick with their friends during lunch hour, they ought to, and concerns about order should not take precedence," he said. Brown said he believes the policy also breaks federal regulations that prohibit schools from discriminating against children enrolled in the government-subsidized school lunch program.

"This policy has the effect of spotlighting children who participate in the school lunch program," he said. Although not all children who buy lunch at school are part of the federal program, "students and teachers are able to see or at least guess who is participating in the program," Brown said. Dr. John Ambrogi, superintendent of the Lincoln school system, took issue with Brown. "There's no way of knowing which youngsters are getting free or reduced lunches," he said.

Williams said the policy has the widespread support of parents. "Individual parents say to me, 'keep it up, we think it's good.' "

And teachers serving as lunchroom monitors said they believed the students were unaware of any problem in the lunchroom. "I think it's more of a grown-ups' problem," said one monitor.

In interviews during a recent lunch period, more than a dozen students questioned were split evenly about whether they liked the policy.

Andrew Duffell, a second-grader, said he likes the new policy. "When you have to bring up your trays ... you don't have to walk that far," he

But third-grader Chris Hunter said he told his mother he does not like the separation. "Before you could sit with anyone we wanted," he said.

"Now we have to sit here," chimed in his classmate, Seth Blais.

Solid fat makes a different cake

DEAR POLLY. — Many cake recipes and cake-mix recipes call for oil as one of the ingredients. I cannot tolerate the oil and was wondering if other shortening can be used with the same results. - SOPHIE

DEAR SOPHIE — Oil and solid shortenings produce different results in cake recipes. It's usually not possi-ble to substitute one for the other. I suggest you stick to recipes that call for butter, margarine or solid vegetable shortening. Virtually all butter-style cakes can be made with any of these three solid fats, so your choice of recipes is quite large.

Melting solid shortening will not give the same results as oil, either.

DEAR DR. LAMB — How much exercise should a normal, healthy person do each day? I realize that a person should start with a little and gradually add more, but when should there be a leveling off?

Walking is a favorite with me. I am a 45-year-old female and each day I try to welk four to five miles, which takes approximately an hour to an hour and 10 minutes. When I first started, I walked a short distance on flat areas, then added distance and some rather steep hills. How much more distance should I add? Are the hills good or bad? Would it be better if I jogged instead of walked? I really do not wish to build up my leg muscles. I only want to keep them firm.

What exercise do you recommend fo flabby upper arms?

DEAR READER — Congratulations for developing a good walking program. If everyone walked four miles a day, we would have far fewer medical problems. There is no definite answer as to how far you should walk. For most people, four miles a day should be adequate. However, if a person is able to walk farther and wants to lose excess body fat, then the longer the distance, the greater the benefits. How much you should do depends a lot on your goals.

Walking will not build up the trunk muscles or the arm and shoulder muscles. While you get a lot of benefits, including eliminating excess body fat, you cannot strengthen, firm or enlarge muscles you don't use.

Add exercises that use the rest of your body, using small weights or any device that enables you to work your muscles against resistance. Stretching exercises, to maintain your flexibility, should also be a part of your program.

Herd triumphs

By DENNIS BALL

Sports Editor LUBBOCK — The Hereford Whitefaces kicked off the new, year right Thursday night in Lubbock by kicking Coronado out of the gym in District 3-5A girls basketball.

Well, maybe not kicked. Edged probably is the better word.

The Whitefaces upped their league record to 4-2 and overall mark to 5-7 with a 58-53 victory over the homestanding Mustarigs. Coronado fell to 0-6 and 5-9, respectively.

After getting off to a poor start trailing 12-6 at the end of the first quarter — Hereford got seven points from Stacie High and six from Darla Alford enroute to a 21-point second period to lead 27-23 at intermission. Coronado pressed full court man-toman and seemed to give the Whitefaces some trouble early in the ball game.

Hereford coach Larry Sowers didn't buy that, however.

"Their press really didn't hurt us," he said after the game. "We worked on beating a press all week in practice because Monterey (Hereford's opponent Saturday) plays the same type of game. We just couldn't seem disappointed Coronado coach Bob Jama now has seen his team fall deeper into the 3-5A cellar.

"I don't know what it will take, we seem to come so close," he said. "We had them down by six points, just like we do a lot of teams, and they (the Whitefaces) come back and win.

"Our kids played hard, and I thought we might win. We just had some mental lapses out there tonight."

Even though the Mustangs trailed at half, they had a chance to pull the game out in the fourth quarter. Hereford led by as many five in the third quarter, threatening to pull away, but held only a 42-39 advantage at period's end.

The fourth quarter began with Coronado's Terri Bales getting two quick baskets underneath - one following an offensive rebound and one on a layup - to grab a 43-42 lead Cera and Shonia Carpenter each had

Coronado hands Hereford 3-5A loss

Sports Editor LUBBOCK — The Hereford Whitefaces weren't beaten at the free-throw line Thursday night at The smaller Hereford team wasn't beaten by CHS's inside game, either. Instead, Coronado used some strong outside shooting by Todd Duncan to can the Whitefaces 68-64 in a District 3-5A boys basketball game. Duncan pumped in 29 points for the night, his lone free throw his shortest shot of the night at 15 feet. Most of Duncan's shots came from the 20 to 25-foot range.

"He ate us up," Hereford coach Mike Fields said after the game. "I don't think any shot he took was under 15 feet. But it was really that stretch there at the last of the third quarter or in the fourth that hurt us."

What Fields meant was that Hereford, now 7-8 overall and 1-3 in league play, lost a lead at the conclusion of the third quarter that it had held since the 2:40 mark of the first period. Mike Scott, who finished the night with 12 points, hit one shot of a two-shot foul to put the Herd up 7-6 in the first quarter. The quarter ended 13-10, Hereford.

Hereford held a 26-24 halftime advantage, but during the period Duncan got hot for the Mustangs. Scoring only two points in the first eight minutes, Duncan scored 12 of his team's 14 points in the second quarter. Hereford, on the other hand, spread its scoring around in the period - as was the case for the entire ball game - Scott getting two, Kevin Redus four, Sammy Suarez two, Rodney Torres two, Blair Rogers two and Daniel King one.

"He's quite a shooter," Coronado coach Jimmy Joe Robinson said of Duncan. "We all were just shooting better in the second half, and that . was the difference in the two halves (of the game)."

The Mustangs, now 14-5 overall and 2-3 in district competition, tied the game at 46 at the end of the third with under four minutes to play in the period, Duncan hit another bomb to draw CHS to 45-42. John Lewis then hit two buckets to give Coronado the lead temporarily at 46-45. Stefen Hacker got in on the scoring with a free throw to tie the score at 46.

Hereford stayed within two and four points until 3:49 remained in the game. There, Robert Brasher grabbed an offensive board and put a shot in to make the score 55-51, Coronado. Duncan hit another 20-footer, and Alvin Marriel got two buckets in the next 1:16 - while the Whitefaces had no scoring - and Coronado was up 61-51.

"They have an awfully good team," Fields said. "One reason their district record is not so good is because they started out playing the big ones (Monterey, Amarillo and Palo Duro). Also, their center (Brashear) was out with a knee in-

"But you have to give us some credit. We played one of our best

CHS also was coming off a win the championship game of the ABC Caprock Tournament in Lubbock last weekend.

Redus led Hereford scorers with 18 points. In addition to Scott's 12, Baker added 12.

The Whitefaces next will be in action Saturday when they host leagueleading Monterey in the HHS gym. Monterey, which blew out Lubbock Thursday 93-52, sports a league mark of 4-0. The Plainsmen are 16-2 overall.

Montana vs. all-pros in NFC championship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -Sunday's NFC title game is being billed as a showdown between the Joe Montana-led offense of the San Francisco 49ers and the National Football League-leading Chicago Bear defense led by all-pros Dan Hampton, Mike Singletary and Richard Dent.

Except for one small item that's been overlooked - the 49ers have a defense, too. Not as overpowering as Chicago's perhaps, but just as effective - particularly in the statistic that counts most — points allowed.

In fact, during the regular season, Chicago and San Francisco were 2-3 in the NFL (behind the Denver Broncos) in points allowed, and San Francisco with 248, allowed fewer than Chicago's 260. Each allowed 24 touchdowns - 10 rushing and 14 passing, with the difference in the points coming on those allowed by Chicago's offense.

Last week, in San Francisco's 21-10 win over the New York Giants that ran its best-in-football record to 16-1 and got the Niners to the NFC title game they lost last year to Washington, the defense pitched a shutout - New York's only touchdown came on a 14-yard pass interception return by Harry Carson.

The Bears, 10-6 and Central Division titlsts in an injury-riddled season in which they used six quarterbacks, also arrived here via the defensive door - a 23-19 win over the Redskins in which they registered seven sacks, three by Dent, who led the NFC in the regular season with 171/2.

Which is why all the talk about the reincarnated Monsters of the Midway - defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan's philosophy is to attack; the 49ers sometimes play the old bendbut-don't break game.

"They're a take-chance, tight man-to-man bump-and-run and come-after-you type of defense,"

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Paul Hackett, who coaches San Francisco's passing game, says of the Bears.

"The reason they can get away with playing a gambling, roll-thedice kind of defense is because they have truly outstanding players. They ding linebacking and, when they're healthy, a secondary that's as good as any around."

But the 49ers also have good players on defense - linebacker Keena Turaner and backs Ronnie Lott, Dwight Hicks and Carlton Williamson are all going to the Pro Bowl and their colleague who's not cornerback Eric Wright - was a second team all-pro.

Then there's Fred Dean, who held out for the first 10 games. He gives the 49ers a pass-rusher. He had two sacks against the Giants last week after registering four in six regularseason games, giving him six in seven games for the season, an allpro pace.

"I think Dent is as fine a pass rusher as there is in football," says 49ers Coach Bill Walsh, paying homage to the man he hopes to keep out of Joe Montana's face Sunday.

"But Fred Dean also is in that category and I would hope that in this game Fred Dean is the better pass rusher." In fact, the 49ers are confident that their defense can stop almost anything Chicago throws at them be it world-class speedster Willie Gault, who broke loose for a 75-yard touchdown against Washington after taking a 10-yard toss from quarterback Steve Fuller; or all-time NFL rushing leader Walter Payton.

Walsh is hoping the soft grass turf of Candlestick Park can slow up Payton as it has the likes of the Los Angeles Rams' Eric Dickerson, who gained 98 yards in 26 carries here; Tampa Bay's James Wilder, who was 18 for 89, and Washington John Riggins, who got just 12 yards in 10

In draft

USFL closer to Flutie

States Football League, proud of its previous record of signing college draft choices, is zeroing in on Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie, officially property of the New Jersey Generals.

The USFL, which says it signed almost 40 percent of the players in the previous two drafts, now has the head start in getting down to business with the Boston College quarterback after Thursday's draft.

The signing of the Flutie by the Generals, in a major marketing area, is considered essential for the survival of the league, which begins

NEW YORK'(AP) - The United its third season Feb. 23 with 14 teams four less than last year.

Flutie, who was in Honolulu for the Hula Bowl, has said he will see what the USFL has to offer.

"If the money and the situation were the same, I would sign with the NFL," Flutie admitted. "But there will be many factors involved. "It's time to realize your college career is finally behind you. The time has come to talk about pro football ... money and the whole works."

The rival National Football League will hold its draft April 30 with the Buffalo Bills, with the worst record, 2-14, having the No. 1 pick.

AFC championship game

Miami, Pittsburgh headed for showdown

MIAMI (AP) - It is three months and 1,230 miles away from the last time the Miami Dolphins met the Pittsburgh Steelers - and a lot farther than that in terms of what the game

Sunday's showdown for the American Football, Conference title means a ticket to the Super Bowl for the winner, a ticket to a seasonending ride home for the loser. On Oct. 7, in Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, the Dolphins' 31-7 pounding of the Steelers was merely onesixteenth of the National Football League season.

"This isn't just another game. This is for the AFC championship and the pressure begins to mount earlier because of what's riding on it," Bob Baumhower, the Dolphins' nose tackle, said Thursday.

"There's only four teams left in the hunt right now," Baumhower went on, including the National Conference's Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers. "This is what we've worked for and it's a good position to be in. It's a good feeling to have."

Don Shula couldn't agree more. "It sure feels a lot better ... than it did last year at this time," he said. "A year ago at this time the season was over for us."

A year ago, when Miami was bowing out of the playoffs with a 27-20 loss to Seattle (avenged last Satur day when the Dolphins routed the Seahawks 31-10), Pittsburgh also was an early loser, to the eventual champion Los Angeles Raiders.

This year, the Steelers eked into the playoffs with a 9-7 record, goodenough to win the Central Division title but nothing like the conferencebest 14-2 run up by Miami.

And despite their 24-17 upset of the Western Division-champion Broncos last Sunday in Denver, the Steelers are a 10-point underdog.

have "Teams underestimating us lately," Pittsburgh linebacker Robin Cole said. "I just hope it happens one more Delphins running back Tony Nathan, after watching Pittsburgh beat up Denver quarterback John Elway and the rest of the Broncos, said the Steelers "looked a lot more physical than they did when w played them the first time. And they've got some people back who were hurt when we beat 'em."

Frank Pollard gained 851 yards during the season and added 99 yards and two touchdowns against the Broncos. Walter Abercrombie tacked 75 yards against Denver onto his 610 during the year. They were the two primary reasons the Steelers finished the season tied with Cincinnati for second in rushing in the conference. The Dolphins' defense was 13th in the AFC - next-to-worst against the rush.

The 1976 St. Louis Cardinals, in a game against the Washington Red-skins, lost the ball on a fumble eight times, an NFL record.

Reward offered for information of couples

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Relatives of two American couples last seen one month ago in an affluent neighborhood of Guadalajara are offering a $5,000 reward for information that leads to their location.

Alan Rogers, spokesman for the U.S. Consulate in Guadalajara, said the reward was arranged by Norman Carlson of Vacaville, Calif., father of one of the missing couples.

"He and the other families of the missing people are offering a reward of $5,000 for information leading to the location of the missing couples," Rogers said in a phone interview.

He said Carlson, who arrived in Mexico before Christmas, left Wednesday to go back to California.

Dennis and Rose Carlson of Redding, Calif., arrived in Guadalajara three days before they were last seen Dec. 2. They were with Benjamin and Patricia Mascarenas of Ely, Nev., who had lived for more than a year in Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city, located 330 miles northwest of the capital.

All are in their 20s or 30s. to the missing people themselves."

Rogers said Thursday. He said fliers were being printed for distribution to the police, the news media and for posting in public

'The fliers request that anybody anyone was armed.

with this information contact the detective in charge of the case, Edgardo Rogelio Levy Gallardo, or the consulate, or himself (Norman Carlson) in Vacaville, Calif., or his other son David in Redding, Calif.." Rogers said. "It's being distributed at his request and at his expense."

Levy Gallardo has said the father's formal complaint confirms that the four Americans were Jehovah's Witnesses but said the couples were in Guadalajara as tourists and not to proselytize.

Police accounts, however, say the two couples had been selling Bibles in 'the Chapalita neighborhood on Sunday morning, Dec. 2, when several cars drove up and took them

Initial accounts said the abductors spoke Spanish, but the Foreign Ministry in a statement released Dec. 21 said they were Englishspeaking individuals "more than 60 years old and Anglo-Saxon in appearance."

The Foreign Ministry statement, the only high-level official comment "There is nothing new as pertains on the case so far, said a government investigation showed that the missing Americans were Jehovah's Witnesses who were prselytizing when approached.

Witnesses said no violence was involved and there was no indication

PRI candidate selected in Nuevo Leon

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) -The Institutional Revolutionary Party selected its candidate for governor of Nuevo Leon state, preparing for one of two races in border states this year expected to present unprecedented challenges to its long domination.

The candidate will be Jorge Alonso Trevino Martinez, a member of the federal Chamber of Deputies.

Humberto Cervantes Vega, the president of the Nuevo Leon chapter of the ruling party, known as the PRI, announced the decision Wednesday night.

Trevino Martinez currently presides over the chamber's finance and public credit commission.

Notimex, the official government news agency, reported that he had the support of labor and peasant organizations that make up an important part of the PRI's base.

Trevino Martinez was born in Monterrey in 1935 and received a law degree from the National University of Mexico in 1958. He received a doctorate in law from the University of Paris in 1963.

The candidate of the opposition National Action Party, Fernando Canales Clariond, said Thursday that he expects an easy victory because Trevino Martinez "does not have support among the population."

He warned if the election result is not respected by the ruling party and his party's candidate is robbed of victory through fraud, "people will find the necessary strategy to make hit respected ... without the necesity of resorting to violent acts such as those that occurred in Coahuila." The National Action Party claims it was robbed of mayoral victories in Piedras Negras, Monclova and several other cities in Coahuila state. Rioters burned the municipal complex in Piedras Negras this past weekend to protest the alleged fraud.

The PRI, which has governed Mexico for more than 50 years, controls the governors' offices in all 31 states. But National Action is hoping to make gains in northern Mexico, historically its strongest base.

The governors races in Nuevo Leon, which is south of Texas, and in Sonora, south of Arizona, are attracting significant attention. The governor's election in San Luis Potosi state in north central Mexico also could be difficult for the PRI, according to many political analysts.

Elections for governor also are scheduled this year in Guanajuato, Colima, Queretaro and Campeche states further south.

"We don't need them anymore. Now we have sophisticated, computerized electronic equipment, "Susan Metcalf, public relations representative for Sante Fe railway office, teld the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Sante Fe is one of several companies eliminating cabooses from mainline-traffic freight trains which haul merchandise long. by first-day ceremonies distances.

Railroad companies say eliminating cabooses from U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said it .. personnel - usually two the first time: employees - will be moved to the engine car.

"None of these people are just being put on the engines," said A.M. Henson, superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company office in San Antonio. It's not necessary to have people on the rear end of the train. because we have electronic devices that check the trains for you."

Cabooses were originally used for an office and dormitory for the conductor and rear brakeman and a storage place for tools. Their main purpose of cabooses was to serve as a lookout station for employees monitoring rear-end train activities and spotting mechanical defects or other potential problems.

HOUSTON (AP) - Tenneco's purchase of International Harvester facilities in Illnois could help alleviate unemployment in the state's Quad Cities area, Illinois Gov. James Thompson said.

Thompson met Thursday with Tenneco chairman James L. Ketelsen and Rock Island, Ill., Mayor James Davis to discuss the fate of tractor and farm implement factories in west central Il-

In November, Tenneco announced the purchase of part of the manufacturing capacity of International Harvester. The $430 million deal included a plant in East Moline, Ill., and the machine tools at a plant in Rock Island. Both plants, which are in neighboring cities, were shut down earlier by IH. Also shut down was a plant in nearby Bettendorf, Iowa, operated by J.I. Case, a division of Tenneco...

Thompson said the meeting produced a "good news, bad news" situation, but he forecast that Tenneco has plans that eventually may increase employment in the Quad Cities area.

"The good news is that there is a potential for higher employment in that area than there would have been if Tenneco had not purchased" the International Harvester facilities, said Thompson. Ketelsen said Tenneco had no plans to re-open the Rock Island plant, and the East Moline and Bettendorf plants will remain closed through this year, but may reopen in Eventually, he said, Case and some of the International Harvester plants will be combined to develop a manufac-

made these things.

So it was that when they gave God up and would not even acknowledge Him, God gave them up to doing everything their evil minds could think of. Their lives became full of every kind of wickedness and sin, of greed and hate, envy, murder, fighting, lying, bitterness, and gossip. They were backbiters, haters of God, insolent, proud braggarts, always thinking of new ways of sinning and continually being disobedient to their parents. They tried to misunderstand, broke their promises, and were heartless -- without pity. They were fully aware of God's death penalty for these crimes, yet they went right ahead and did them anyway, and encouraged others to do them,

SICKNESS? OR JUST PLAIN SIN? Since earliest times men have seen the earth and sky and all God made, and have known of His existence and great eternal power. So they will have no excuse when they stand before

God at Judgment Day. Yes, they knew about Him all right, but they wouldn't admit it or worship Him or even thank Him for all His daily care. And after awhile they began to think up silly ideas of what God was like and what He wanted them to do. The result was that their foolish minds became dark and confused. Claiming themselves to be wise without God, they became utter fools instead. And then, instead of worshiping the glorious, ever-living God, they took wood and stone and made idols for themselves, carving them to Took like mere birds and animals and snakes
