Americans demonstrate Christmas 'good will'

By MARK BERNS Associated Press Writer

Americans demonstrated their "good will to men" on Christmas by giving freely of time, money, food and clothing to the nation's needy and by sharing with their families the joy of the holidays.

In Washington, President and Mrs. Reagan spent Christmas Day at the White House exchanging gifts before a festive dinner, joined by Mrs. Reagan's brother, Dr. Richard Davis, and his family and other guests. The Reagans' children were not on hand this year.

Artificial heart recipient William Schroeder, hospitalized in Louisville, Ky., since the implant a month ago, spent Christmas Day visiting with members of his family, who said Schroeder's "gift of life" was the best present they could have had.

In Madison, Wis., Marine Corps veteran Thomas F. Miller, director of the Wisconsin Vietnam Veterans Memorial Project Inc., donned battle dress, left his family and stood vigil in the statehouse in memory of servicemen missing from the Vietnam War.

"The veterans should not be forgotten," said Miller, 43. "The war should not be forgotten. We don't want our children to get involved in such a war."

Volunteers in Los Angeles rolled shopping carts piled with donated clothing to two blue-and-white tents and a teepee next to City Hall, where about 300 homeless people spent Christmas Eve and Christmas.

"God bless these people, God bless these people," a grizzled Freddy Johns, 64, said of the tent city organizers as he sta Restaurant with elderly diners for the third annual Christmas dinner given by owner Joe Garcia.

"You look around, you see the faces, you know what Christmas is for," Garcia said. "Some of these people only see each other once a year, and that's here. Today, at least, they have someone to talk to, someone to share with."

In Oklahoma City, 6,000 people were served more than a ton of turkey and trimmings at the Red Andrews Christmas Dinner, named after a state legislator who started it 40 years ago as a party for the needy. Friends and relatives have carried on the tradition since Andrews' death in 1977.

Rita Swiener spent the day distributing to St. Louis' needy children the $2,500 in gifts she spent the year collecting. The psychology professor has been playing Santa's helper since her college days, spurred by her lonely holiday seasons as a young girl in an orphanage.

"It's really fun, although it does get a little bit overwhelming at times," she said. "But you should see these kids when you walk in with all the presents."

Holiday Season in Hereford

Many homes around Hereford were lit up for the Christmas holidays, and this one took third place in the Chamber Women's Division lighting contest. The "Merry Christmas, Charlie Brown" theme was used by Ted Taylor, 140 Greenwood. It was a relative uneventful news time for the city, and law enforcement officials and firemen breathed a sigh of relief.

Death, despair mark Xmas, too

ALAMATA, Ethiopia (AP) — Two famine victims died and hundreds too weak to walk were spoon-fed a thick gruel of sorghum, salt and cooking oil for their Christmas meal in this northern Ethiopia relief camp.

Several thousand other men, women and children facing starvation lined up silently from morning until dusk Tuesday for their single meal of the day, porridge cooked and served amid clusters of flies at Alamata, some 375 miles north of Addis Ababa.

In Ethiopia, a Coptic Christian nation, Christmas is officially celebrated on Jan. 7.

But there was no time for celebration anyway for the four nuns of the Sisters of Charity, the order started on the streets of Calcutta, India, by Nobel Peace Prize winner Mother Teresa. A simple Christmas Mass was followed by a routine day tending the dying, diseased and desperate.

"There could be no festivities," Sister Vincena, from Kerala, India, told reporters visiting Alamata, one of 211 feeding centers for Ethiopians. "That would be a crime amidst this terrible suffering."

Two gravely ill peasants — a boy suffering from dysentery and a middle-aged man afflicted by hepatitis — died before noon in shelters roofed with corrugated iron in this camp in the northern highlands of Wollo province. Their deaths added to the toll of 300,000 victims of the famine brought by three years of drought.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of others perished during the holiday in other camps, succumbing to malnutrition, measles, pneumonia, dysentery and other ailments.

Mother Teresa flew into the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa on Tuesday morning to visit camps where 26 sisters of her order have been working for up to 12 years. Mother Teresa, 75, planned to fly to the camps in the next 10 days to serve some of the 7.7 million people the Marxist government says face starvation.

"Most of these people have eaten their seed stocks and sold their tools and their livestock," said Lawrence Bourasse, public relations officer for the Catholic Relief Services, which is caring for some 750,000 people.

A Christmas letter from the charity, published Tuesday, warned that the famine had deteriorated "from critical to crisis proportions."

At Alamata, 45,000 people a day are being fed, sheltered and inoculated against disease by the Indian sisters; World Vision International, based in Monrovia, Calif., and Ethiopian government agencies.

Fafau Ashanow, 16, walked a whole day from his Mahago village to reach Alamata on Tuesday, leaving his hungry parents and relatives behind. He was squatting with 200 other famine victims, mainly children and old people, under the hot sun, waiting to be admitted to the feeding shelters and tents run by the nuns.

To coincide with the Christmas Day celebrated by most of the world's Christians, the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) announced that 380,000 blankets were being delivered, or had been pledged to the famine victims. The announcement came at a time when nighttime temperatures plunge below freezing at altitudes of 7,000 feet and where many hungry and homeless peasants are living in the open.

Moments of cheer come to some of world's trouble spots

By The Associated Press

Christmas 1984 brought moments of cheer to some of the world's troubled places.

Striking British coalminers donned Santa Claus costumes on the picket lines they have manned since March.

Mother Teresa arrived in Ethiopia to comfort victims of the calamitous famine.

And a holiday truce in El Salvador's five-year civil war survived in spite of a 15-minute battle Monday night at the northern town of Dulce Nombre de Maria. One rebel was killed.

Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas, who has acted as mediator in El Salvador's first peace talks, said in his Christmas homily:

"Though we have to be realistic...we cannot but be joyful, we cannot but have great hope, because — yes — there is change."

Pope John Paul II chided the rich for being "frighteningly poor in heart," and the Queen of England said the world would be a better place if nations behaved more as children do.

Some striking miners in Britain's bitter 10-month-old coal strike turned up to man Christmas Day picket lines outside mines and power stations in Scotland wearing Santa Claus outfits and carrying balloons and Christmas crackers.

Mother Teresa, the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize winner, began visiting camps where 26 sisters of her order were helping care for the estimated 7.7 million Ethiopians who the government says face starvation.

In Rome, more than 100,000 people jammed St. Peter's Square to hear Pope John Paul II's Christmas Day message to the world.

"We ... manifest our solidarity with the countless multitude of the poor, with their rights, with their hopes," he said. He criticized "the cynical society of consumerism," saying: "Are there not people rich in material goods, power, fame, and yet who are poor ... by reason of the great emptiness of the human heart?"

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II made her newest grandchild, Prince Harry, the star of her traditional Christmas message.

"Above all, we must retain the child's readiness to forgive, with which we are all born and which it is all too easy to lose as we grow older," she said.

In Christ's birthplace Bethlehem on the Israeli-occupied West Bank, Israeli soldiers stood guard on rooftops looking down on Manger Square outside the Church of the Nativity.

The troubles of the world intruded on Christmas celebrations in predominately Protestant Northern Ireland, where the mainly Catholic Irish Republican Army is fighting for independence from Britain and union with the Irish Republic.

In Limavady, police were called to a Protestant church when fighting broke out between the moderate congregation and Protestant hardliners who burst in on a Christmas Day service to protest the presence of a Roman Catholic priest.

The priest and the Protestant minister had exchanged visits to each other's churches in a show of Christian unity.

Two local schools hit by burglars

Hereford police made seven arrests during the long Christmas weekend, including that of a man wanted for jumping bail and bond forfeiture.

The remaining arrests were for driving while intoxicated, driving while license suspended and having no liability insurance.

Several large thefts were investigated, including a Friday night burglary at Bluebonnet School that resulted in the theft of a video cassette recorder machine. Together with damages to the inside of the building caused by the burglars, that incident resulted in a $915 loss for the school.

Jerry Tyler reported the theft of $450 worth of items from a garage at his rental property on 303 Brevard.

Baby furniture and an air conditioner were among the items taken.

Officers discovered another school break-in Monday, at the Tierra Blanca Elementary. Taken were seven or eight cassette players and an adding machine, and change from vending machines. Police have not determined the amount of that theft.

Greg Martinez, 713 Knight, reported the apparent theft of $524 worth of tapes and car stereo equipment while he attended Midnight Mass at San Jose Church.

Stocking fund tops $7,200 in community

The caring and sharing spirit of Hereford citizens has helped make Christmas brighter for a number of less-fortunate families in the community. Contributions totaling $7,207.97 were contributed to the Christmas Stocking Fund through Christmas Eve day. Funds for the project were used to help needy families at Christmastime, mostly in the form of food and clothing.

The CSF, a non-profit organization, was formed several years ago to help needy persons during the Yule season. All money contributed to the fund goes to help the families, since all work is volunteered.

Applications for the CSF are handled through the Social Services office at the courthouse, and The Hereford Brand collects money for the project. Anyone wishing to contribute for those still in need may take a check to the newspaper office or mail it to Box 673, Hereford.

Reagan administration dealing with own self, Soviet Union

An AP News Analysis By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's tough enough dealing with the Soviet Union, but the Reagan administration has the added burden of negotiating with itself, the Western allies and the news media.

In less than two weeks, Secretary of State George Shultz is to sit down across the bargaining table from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Their meeting could set the agenda for reducing nuclear weapons — or, if it fails, extend the year-long suspension in arms control talks.

The consequences could be horrific. Both sides are ready to break out new and devastating weapons. Both are spending wildly on defense. With technology on the march, the nuclear fuse is getting shorter.

Considering the stakes, President Reagan and his senior advisers have enough on their hands deciding what Shultz should say to Gromyko and what he should not say. But they have made the job harder on themselves by trying to be both tough and flexible in public.

Most of the trouble revolves around the controversial "Star Wars" project. It portends a major shift in U.S. nuclear strategy from deterrence based on offensive nuclear weapons to being able to shoot down incoming Soviet missiles.

With Americans and Europeans conditioned since World War II to think one way about averting nuclear war, the Strategic Defense Initiative — the form name for Star Wars — has raised questions in this country and anxieties across the Atlantic, where the allies are protected by the U.S. nuclear umbrella.

Knowing that Gromyko's principal goal in Geneva will be to sidetrack U.S. anti-satellite weapons, the Reagan administration wants to make sure it has the American public and the allies on its side.

The result has been a hard-sell campaign. Officials are describing the $26 billion research program as both indispensable and humane. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger got so carried away recently he dismissed the current strategy of "mutual terror" as flawed, odd, simplistic and a failure.

That's not what the Europeans think.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, visiting last weekend with President Reagan, said it had kept the peace for nearly 40 years.

She left with a commitment from Reagan that weapons deployment in outer space would come only after negotiations with the Soviets.

At the same time, Mrs. Thatcher suggested rather strenuously that the media had got it all wrong in saying she had qualms about Star Wars.

Actually, Mrs. Thatcher said, "It's right to go ahead with the research" since the Soviets were busily working on missile defenses.

Apart from tracking the British leader's position, the media were having enough of a problem lining Weinberger up with Robert C. McFarlane, the White House national security adviser.

Knowing the onus of failure in Geneva probably would fall on the side that appeared to be intractable, McFarlane said the United States (See REAGAN, Page 2)

Police testing 'stun guns'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Battery-powered "stun guns" might be undergoing testing in nearby cities' police departments, but Fort Worth lawmen say they're not yet ready to use the disabling devices.

Police in Dallas, Grapevine, Colleyville, Southlake and Watauga are already using the devices, which are designed to disable a suspect without causing permanent injury. The guns cost about $100 each and are about the size of a transistor radio.

But Homer Clark, deputy Fort Worth police chief, says his department will not authorize their use "until there is no more data available of any possible long-term effects of their use."

"We've never tried them (stun guns), but we've considered the potential use of them," Clark said. "If they prove successful in other areas, we may look at them again."

The guns, which discharge 40,000 volts at extremely low amperage, cannot kill a person, but tend to stun the central nervous system for a few minutes, experts say.

Carl Jones, head of the physiology department at the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine, said the charge causes skeletal muscles to contract at the same time.

Leukemia victim gets pony

BRIDGE CITY, Texas (AP) — While most children chewed on candy and plowed through piles of wrapping paper Christmas Day, 8-year-old Shon Babineaux perched atop a dream come true.

The terminally ill leukemia victim had wished hard for a pony, so hard that his wish reached the ears of some big-hearted neighbors. And on Christmas Eve, when Shon looked out his house's front door, a 10-year-old horse peeped back.

"Mom, there's my horse," exclaimed Shon, who was appropriately dressed for the holidays in a bright red shirt and red pants. In moments, he was atop his Christmas gift.

"I've always wanted a horse," Shon said after a brief ride on Cherokee in front of his house as family, friends and well-wishers surrounded him.

Cherokee, came from Albert Adams, a pound master for the Orange County Sheriff's Department, who heard about Shon from My Wish Inc., a non-profit agency that fills wishes of terminally ill children.

After Shon wished for the horse Friday, a relative contacted an Orange radio station, which in turn called My Wish. Four hours later, the organization had a horse, saddle and western outfit to give to Shon, courtesy of Adams, Betty Jo Spence, Skipper Peveto and Sam's Western Wear.

"I hope it makes him happy," Adams told the Beaumont Enterprise. "I think it will. (The horse) is gentle as a dog."

As Shon enjoyed the pony, Ruby Pickard reveled in Shon's smiles. "The smiles to me on the children's faces are my reward," said Ms. Pickard, co-founder of My Wish, which celebrated its first anniversary Dec. 11. In one year, the group has filled the wishes of 32 children in the Beaumont-Port Arthur-Orange area.

Man-made comet rescheduled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scientists will try again Thursday to create a comet-like phenomenon 70,160 miles over the Pacific Ocean after being stymied by poor weather that would have prevented them from observing it.

The so-called Christmas Comet was rescheduled for 4:32 a.m. PST Thursday, said West German scientist Gerhard Haerendel. It was to have been created early Tuesday by the release of a barium vapor cloud from a West German satellite over the Pacific Ocean off the coast of South America.

The "comet" would have been visible from much of the western United States, southwestern Canada, northern Mexico, Hawaii and Tahiti.

But Haerendel, directing the experiment from the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona, scrubbed the release with 15 minutes to go when clouds moved over the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, making the site too marginal for telescope observations.

President gets pickup for Xmas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Christmas haul included a pair of down booties, a chain saw carrying case and a yet-to-be selected pickup truck for his California ranch.

Sheila Tate, press secretary to First Lady Nancy Reagan, said the booties, from son Ron and his wife Doria, were among the first presents the Reagans opened Tuesday morning at the White House.

Another of the Reagans' children gave the chain saw case, and the pickup truck is the couple's gift to themselves. While the truck hasn't been picked out yet, it will be an American-made one, Mrs. Tate said.

The Reagans spent the day with friends and family, although none of their children came to Washington for Christmas.

Mrs. Reagan's brother, Dr. Richard Davis of Philadelphia, his wife Patricia and children Anne and Geoffrey were at the White House, and the families of U.S. Information Agency director Charles Wick, friend Nancy Reynolds and Deputy White House Chief of Staff Michael K. Deaver came for dinner.

Ron and Doria were with her parents for the first time in five Christmases, Mrs. Tate said. Daughter Maureen Reagan was with her husband in California.

Vietnamese troops hit Cambodia

NONG SAMET, Thailand (AP) — Backed by artillery and mortar fire, Vietnamese troops and tank units swept into the largest Cambodian resistance camp today, setting it afire and battling a guerrilla counterattack, Thai military and guerrilla officials said.

Some 61,000 Cambodian refugees from the Rithisen camp watched huge columns of smoke rising above their former homes from temporary shelters near this Thai border village.

Lia Ne, the camp guerrilla leader, told newsmen the defenders of Rithisen had split up into groups of 20 to 30 soldiers and were counterattacking the Vietnamese, who moved at least five tanks into the camp.

Ne, who belongs to the anti-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front, claimed the guerrillas had been able to retake a northern section of the sprawling camp which is set on a sparsely forested plain near the Thai frontier.

The Vietnamese launched their attack Tuesday, and Bun Soi, a minister of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, said by telephone earlier today from near Rithisen: "The condition is tense and serious there."

The Vietnamese also were reported attacking Ampil, another of the guerrilla group's camps, but as of late Tuesday had not been able to breach its defenses, Bun said.

Rithisen's 61,000 civilian inhabitants reportedly fled into Thai territory after Vietnamese artillery barrages began Tuesday.

20 die in Christmas fires

By The Associated Press

At least 20 people were killed and 20 injured in holiday fires in seven states, including an inferno at an Illinois retirement home that claimed eight lives and three Christmas tree-spawned blazes in California and West Virginia, authorities said. In other fires on Tuesday, two people died in a Baldwin, Mich., foster home; one person perished in a fire blamed on an electrical malfunction in West Virginia; two people were killed in a Tennessee house fire; two people lost their lives in a Minneapolis suburb house fire; and one man died in a rural Columbia, S.C., house fire.

The fire in the nine-story Karcher Retirement Hotel in Waukegan, Ill., that also left 21 people homeless, apparently was caused by an electrical problem in a tailor shop on the ground floor, authorities said.

"From what we can determine right now, it appears to have something to do with the wiring," said fire Lt. Jim McGrain. "We think it began in the dead space above a drop ceiling, and that it smoldered for a long time. Whatever started it was totally destroyed, we think."

"The building was built in the 1920s, but we don't know how old the wiring was. From what I saw, it didn't look like it was very old."

The early morning fire — the deadliest in the county in at least 10 years — swept into the lobby and sent dense smoke up an elevator shaft, said Lake County Coroner Bobby Richardson.

"The dead were found on the building's sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth floors," Mrs. Richardson said. "The cause of death for all appeared to be smoke inhalation."

Seven of the dead ranged in age from 67 to 86 years old, and an age was not available on the eighth, she said.

Five of the six tenants injured, also suffering smoke inhalation, remained hospitalized in good condition today, officials said.

Temporary shelter for the homeless was established at a nearby hotel in the community 40 miles north of Chicago.

A St. Albans, W.Va., couple died Tuesday when an apparent malfunction in Christmas tree lights set the house afire. A 9-year-old girl visiting the home with her parents saw the Christmas tree ablaze and woke her father and sister and fled the house," said Kanawha County Sheriff's Deputy K.H. Savilla.

"The house was pretty well burned up by the time we got there, said Lakewood Fire Chief Carl Cobb. "We had to haul water to the area because there aren't any hydrants. It was a good piece from the station."

A man in his 70s died in Frankford, W.Va., in a fire caused by an apparent electrical malfunction, authorities said.

A woman died of heart failure in La Puente, Calif., and a teen-ager from smoke inhalation in Bell, Calif., both near Los Angeles, after Christmas trees caught fire in separate incidents Tuesday that also injured 14 people, authorities said.

The woman's son had used flammable liquid to restart a fireplace and flames jumped to the tree, said Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies.

The owner of the foster home in rural Baldwin, about 200 miles northwest of Detroit, was able to remove two residents, but could not reach two others who died in the fire around 4 a.m., said a Lake County deputy.

In Covington, Tenn., a 78-year-old woman and her 58-year-old son died around 1:30 a.m. Tuesday in a house fire authorities said may have been sparked by one of the victims smoking in bed. Both victims died of smoke inhalation, authorities said.

A house fire in the Minneapolis suburb of St. Louis Park claimed the lives of two sisters on Tuesday, fire officials said.

Reflections Of The Season

This Christmas centerpiece reflects a scene repeated in many Hereford homes during the holiday season. For many, the decorations start coming down today; for others, the holiday lights and trimmings will remain until New Year's Day. A few retail stores remained closed today, while others were open for swaps or for special sales.

Manges' plane crashes near Marble Falls

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

MARBLE FALLS, Texas (AP) — Investigators were working to determine what caused the twin-engine plane belonging to Texas rancher-oilman Clinton Manges to crash and explode in a Hill Country ranch, killing the pilot of the aircraft.

The victim, whose body was burned beyond recognition, was identified as Manges' pilot, Ray McClennan, 50, of Horseshoe Bay in Llano County, said Leigh Moore, a dispatcher with the Llano County Sheriff's office.

Earlier, speculation mounted that the victim may have been Manges. But his wife, Ruth, told the Associated Press her husband was alive and well.

"We're just glad to report it's not Clinton. He's fine. He called me," Mrs. Manges said early today.

Malou Manges, 20, said she talked to her father by telephone from Houston almost four hours after accident.

The twin-engine Cessna Conquest crashed and exploded at about 8:20 p.m. Tuesday night at the T.P.

would be open to "tradeoffs" in the quest for an agreement.

Reporters pressed him to say whether Star Wars might be traded off.

"Our research program and our intentions for it have to be on the table and a matter for discussion and agreement and negotiation between us," he said. "And they surely will be."

Back went Weinberger before the public. Appearing on television last Sunday he said Reagan would not agree to trading away the space defense plan. "It offers too much hope," Weinberger said. "It's the on-

Ranch northwest of Austin, Todd said.

He said the plane was identified as belonging to Manges by the craft's tail number, which is N441CM.

The Waldrope Funeral Home in Llano transported the victim's remains to Austin for an autopsy, said funeral home spokeswoman Diane Hatfield.

The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the crash.

The plane was registered to the Clinton Manges Oil and Refining Co. of Austin, Todd said.

The 10-passenger aircraft had flown this week to Horseshoe Bay in Llano County, said FAA tower supervisor Don Endsley in San Antonio.

"They were inbound at the time. Nobody was waiting here for them," said Warren Marsh, general manager of Horseshoe Bay Airport. "The pilot had radioed Austin Central to close out the flight plan. He said he was circling and had the airport in sight."

Marsh said weather conditions were "kind of hazy and misty but not really too bad."

ly thing that offers any real hope to the world. And he will not give that up."

McFarlane, appearing on another TV program, fell into step. Asked whether the United States was considering "negotiating away" Star Wars, he said, "Well, we think that that is not the way to go."

All this probably means Star Wars has special priority in the Reagan administration, but that it's not a good idea to imply the United States would let anything stand in the way of a genuine arms control agreement with the Russians.

Ann Landers

Thousands equally upset

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have never read more screwed-up, self-righteous, short-sighted, poorly thought-out advice than yours to "C.W." in Evansville, Ind.

The poor guy is trying to live a normal life, despite a wife confined with a head injury in a care facility. The doctors believe she will never recover, nor do they know how long she will live. He has been going with a woman who loves him and says she will marry him when his wife dies. He asks if he is doing anything wrong. You tell him to remember his vows—"in sickness and in health, till death to us part." I couldn't believe my eyes.

What possible good can this man do his wife by staying alone night and day, watching TV or reading? Why should both of them "die" prematurely?

If he is good to her, considerate enough to visit regularly and paying for her care, why shouldn't he and his lady friend make a life for themselves? They could not be hurting the injured woman, from the sound of her condition. Would his lonely misery make her heal?

Your answer was woefully lacking in wisdom, compassion and humanitarianism. It was also unbearably smug. Shame on you.—Reading In Portland, Ore., Who Usually Admires Your Stuff

DEAR PORT: Glad you wrote. I knew you would — along with thousands of others who were equally upset by my response. I don't know when I have struggled so hard to come up with the right answer.

One of the toughest aspects of writing this column is knowing that I am being read by 70 million people every day and those folks out there represent every segment of society — old, young, affluent, deprived, bright, not so bright, conservative, liberal, warm-hearted, tough as tanks, fundamentalist bible-thumpers and agnostics. There is no way I can please all the people all the time so I don't try.

One of the problems I keep running into is not knowing if I am getting the whole story—or the STRAIGHT story. People have a tendency to slant letters in a way that will help produce the responses they want.

The man said the doctors didn't know if his wife would ever come out of the coma, not how long she might live. People have been known to come out of comas after several months — and recover. I had to consider that possibility. Even though it was a long shot it could happen.

How would the woman feel if she regained consciousness, only to learn that her husband had written her off as hopeless and busied himself with a lady friend?

One of the most common excuses for cheating is, "My wife is sick." Some of those wives are indeed sick. Others GET sick because their husbands run around. But does a sick wife give a man a legitimate excuse to look elsewhere?

I had to decide how hopeless was the wife's condition. There was no way for me to know for certain. Doctors have been known to be wrong. It happens every day. In the absence of documented facts I felt it best to advise him as I did: to remember his vows—"in sickness and in health, for richer or poorer, till death do us part." Perhaps I decided to take that route because I sensed the man's letter a shade too much eagerness to justify what he was doing in an effort to get my approval.

'Tis The Season For

Culinary Delights

RECIPES COMPILED BY SANDY PANKEY, LISA BALL

JELLO DIVINITY

- 3 c. sugar
- 3/4 c. light Karo syrup
- 3/4 c. water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 2 egg whites
- 1 pkg. any flavor jello
- 1 c. nuts

Mix sugar, salt, syrup and water in heavy saucepan; bring to a boil. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Cover; reduce heat; simmer 3 minutes uncovered. Cook to 260 degrees.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add jello. Beat until jello is dissolved and mixture holds peaks. Pour hot syrup over egg whites. Beat until candy holds shape. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered pans.

GINGERBREAD MEN

- 1 c. shortening
- 1 c. brown sugar
- 3/4 c. molasses
- 1/2 c. hot water
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 tsp. ginger
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tsp. cloves
- 5 1/2 c. flour
- 2 tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. salt

Cream shortening and sugar. Add molasses and hot water along with the eggs. Sift together the dry ingredients and add to the shortening and sugar mixture. Chill overnight. Roll out on baking parchment and cut into shapes. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes.

LEMON-LIME TEA

- 2 family size tea bags
- 3 lemons
- 3 limes
- 2 C sugar

Brew tea bags in open quart water for 30 minutes. Squeeze lemons and limes and pour juice into a four-quart pitcher. Pour water into pitcher until it is half full. Add tea and sugar. Fill with water to top of pitcher. Mix well and chill.

LIME JELLO SALAD

- 1 large can crushed pineapple
- 1 large package lime jello

- 1 small carton whipping cream
- 1 small carton small curd cottage cheese
- 1 C pecans, chopped

Boil pineapple and dry jello for three minutes. Let cool thoroughly. Add whipped cream, without any sugar, cottage cheese and pecans. Place in refrigerator and let set.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

- 4 large onions, thinly sliced
- 1/4 C butter or margarine
- 3-10 1/2 oz. cans condensed beef broth
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- dash pepper
- 2 french or hard rolls, sliced and toasted
- grated parmesan cheese

Cook onions in butter until lightly browned, about 20 minutes. Add broth and Worcestershire. Bring to boiling. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle toast with cheese; place under broiler until cheese is lightly browned. Pour soup in bowls and float toast slices atop. Makes four to six servings.

FAST FUDGE FROSTING

- 1 pound package confectioners' sugar, sifted (about 4 3/4 C)
 - 1/2 C cocoa
 - 1/4 tsp. salt
 - 1/2 C boiling water
 - 1/2 C butter or margarine, softened
 - 1 tsp. vanilla
- Combine sugar, cocoa and salt. Add water and butter, blend. Add vanilla.

Frosts tops and sides of two 8- or 9-inch layers.

STRAWBERRY-GLAZED CHEESECAKE PIE

- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 C sugar
- 1 C (1/2 pint) sour cream
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- 8 oz. Cool Whip, thawed
- 1 prepared 9-inch graham cracker crumb crust
- 1 pint strawberries, hulled and halved
- 1/2 C melted currant jelly

Beat cheese until smooth; gradually beat in sugar. Blend in sour cream and vanilla. Fold in whipped topping, blending well. Spoon into crust. Chill at least four hours.

Arrange strawberries on top of filling. Brush with currant jelly.

Pompon squad to compete

NORMAN -- The Spirit of Oklahoma, the University of Oklahoma's combined pompon and cheerleading squad, will be one of 20 teams in the country to compete in the National Cheerleaders Association and Doritos Collegiate Cheerleader Championship.

The squads, selected from more than 2,700 universities and colleges throughout the nation, will compete Saturday, Jan. 12, in Dallas.

The final competition will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday in Moody Coliseum at Southern Methodist University. Each squad will perform a 3½-minute routine to music and incorporating all facets of cheerleading—cheers, chants, tumbling, partner stunts and pompon routines.

More than $60,000 in grants, trophies, scholarships and other gifts will be awarded. Members of the top squad will receive national championship rings, a $5,000 grant to the university cheerleader fund and a trophy.

The event will be nationally televised on USA cable network.

Spirit squad members include Jace Weiser of Laverne and Sondra Smith of Dallas, who recently were named All-American cheerleaders.

Other members are Rhonda Wuiram and Brenda Fried, both of Midwest City; Angela Reynolds and Rita Bailey, both of Lawton; Jennifer Crider, Ada; Keli Stallings, Marcheta Robinson and Lezlea Dotson, all of Oklahoma City; Beth Ann Hodges, Woodward; Jeanna Urton, Yukon; Kris Pryor, Blanchard; Kevin Jones, Dallas; Josh Daab, Glenview, Ill.; Chuck McDowell and Glenn Phibbs, both of Hereford; Dave Pistone, Bethany; and Kim Morris, Moore.

The OU squad already has taken top honors at the National Cheerleaders Association summer camp in Knoxville, Tenn. There the group defeated many of the squads that will participate in the Dallas Event. The OU squad was the first in the Midwest to win awards of excellence for both the cheerleading and pompon portions of the competition, said Jan Lane Warner, sponsor of the group.

Accompanying the squad to Dallas will be OU mascot, Top Daug, and CeCe Farah Colclazier, coach and choreographer.

Health
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Doctor can help

DEAR DR. LAMB -- I am a woman, 49, and apparently have started menopause. I started having hot flashes, sweating and insomnia this month. I have all my female organs. Should I have medication to control the hot flashes and sweating, or should I just let my body do its own work? What kind of medication? Should I see a doctor to find out if I have an estrogen deficiency?

DEAR READER -- Of course you should see your doctor. Your age and symptoms certainly suggest that you are into your menopause. Having hot flashes is the one symptom that is characteristic of the menopause, and it is the one symptom that can be controlled by administering estrogen.

But there are a lot of other reasons why you should not just let Nature take its course. In the first three to seven years after menopause, a woman is most apt to lose a lot of her bone mass. That makes her susceptible to osteoporosis (porous bones), which may lead to a humped back and serious fractures later. Estrogen, in sufficient quantities at an early stage, can prevent these changes. Getting enough calcium helps, too.

The after-effects of the cancer scare linger on, but the amount of estrogen needed to control the important symptoms and side effects of the menopause is much less than was used before the panic. A small amount of estrogen may control hot flashes but may not be enough to prevent bone degeneration.

Many changes occur during menopause. Not all of them are because of diminished estrogen. I have discussed these in a new issue of The Health Letter, Special Report 22, Understanding the Menopause, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB -- A short time ago there was a rash of stories that said high blood pressure was caused by not getting enough salt and calcium. Do you believe this is true? Do you recommend increasing one's salt intake to avoid high blood pressure?

DEAR READER -- No, in answer to both questions. I believe that the sodium scare has been overdone.

Many people who have a decrease in blood pressure from sodium restriction do so because of a loss of body fat that results from eating fewer calories. People often eat less on low-salt diets because the food is not appealing. There are many studies that show that body-fat loss does lower blood pressure.

The study you refer to did not prove anything. It only showed an association that suggests a need for research, and it is unrelated to the need to restrict sodium in many medical conditions, such as congestive heart failure.

I'm not unhappy with the findings, because many people are not getting the calcium they need. It may prove important in terms of blood pressure. But milk is a major source of calcium, and those in the study who got lots of calcium also used more milk. Milk is a good source of potassium, which may mask part of the results about calcium.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Demonstrating the high visibility of his office, Gov. Mark White was all over the news last week as other public officials settled back to prepare for Christmas holidays.

By week's end, White had:
—Blasted federal officials for selecting a West Texas site as one of their choices for a nuclear waste burial site;

—Held a 20-minute "summit meeting on the budget" with more than 50 state agency directors and board members, actually more like a pep talk;

—Echoed the leadership of House Speaker Gib Lewis in forecasting no tax increase coming out of the approaching legislative session;

—Said he saw many benefits and no major problems in hiring private firms to build or run prisons in Texas;

—Announced plans to call a drug "summit" of Gulf Coast governors to make a unified plea for more federal help against drug smuggling;

—Criticized a potential political opponent's bid to take over a major oil company, and,

—Freed 11 prison inmates after they were rearrested for being illegally paroled due to bookkeeping errors.

Bullock's List

Meanwhile, State Comptroller Bob Bullock gave the Legislature a list of 94 ways lawmakers might reduce the impending state budget deficit. Some 20 of Bullock's "options" were estimated to save Texas a total of $400 million annually. The Comptroller has predicted a $900 million shortfall in state revenues over the next two years at current spending levels.

Bullock also suggested reducing the state work force through attrition to save $78 million a year.

By consolidating 209 small school districts, another $50 million could be saved. Another $41 million could be avoided by increasing energy conservation in state office buildings . . . and the list goes on and on, even to point out the State could avoid paying for some 508 million paper towels by switching to electric hand dryers.

Nuclear Dump

Now high on the federal list of atomic dump sites is a Deaf Smith County location, but Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox promised last week he will file a lawsuit challenging the process used to screen potential underground sites.

Mattox accused the feds of "ignoring the importance of the prime farmland in our panhandle and the danger to our aquifers and residents . . . The stuff they want to dump will be highly radioactive and dangerous for at least the next 10,000 years."

A second Texas site targeted by the feds is in Swisher County near Tulia.

Who's In D.C.?

The chief lobbyist in Washington D.C. for Texas government drew sharp criticism last week for her plan to move back to Austin and run her northern office from the Texas Capitol.

Texas Republican Party chairman George Strake accused Sarah Weddington, a Democrat, of moving back to Texas to prepare for a statewide political campaign.

Saying she should stay in Washington to watchdog several billions of dollars in federal funds, Strake pointed out that "Texas taxpayers should not have to finance the political grooming of Sarah Weddington."

Governor White defended his appointee by saying the director of state-federal relations traditionally splits time between the state and national capitals.

Short Takes

—The Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority reportedly signed a contingency to purchase 365 acres in South Texas for possible use as a dump site.

No final decision has been made on any site, according to officials, but preliminary surveys are beginning in McMullen County, near Tilden.

—The Clerk of the Texas Supreme Court, Garson Jackson, retires at the end of the month after 25 years with the High Court. Jackson served 18 years as clerk, the top administrative spot.

—Mary Nabers of Brownwood was named to the Texas Employment Commission as the employer representative. She is in the publishing and broadcasting business, and is the wife of former legislator, now lobbyist, Lynn Nabers.

DEAR POLLY — My grandmother used to make dried beans called "leather britches." Can you find directions for making these and using the dried beans? They were made with garden green beans. — ARLISS

DEAR ARLISS — "Leather britches" are simply green beans strung on string or cord and dried. They're easy to prepare. The following directions come from the "Gardens for All News" from the National Association for Gardening.

Select young, green beans for drying. Snap off stem ends, then string with needle and thread. To dry, either hang in front of a fireplace several days or hang from rafter or in a dry warm place for winter use. Before cooking, soak beans overnight, then parboil an hour or two until tender. Rinse, add clean water and seasoning and cook until done. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — The little laundry-care tags on clothes sometimes fade in the first laundering. To keep a record on my washables, I cut off the care tag from each new item. I write the color or some description of the garment on the tag and put it in a plastic sandwich bag with other tags. I tape or tack this bag to my closet wall. I can always find the information I need on laundry day. — L.B.

DEAR POLLY — Rub a cloth dipped in baby oil over the dashboard of your car. Your dash will shine like new again.

When cooking both sweet and hot sausages at the same time, insert a toothpick into the hot ones. This will distinguish between the two.

Bake brownie batter in muffin tins. You'll have big, round, uniform brownies without having to cut them.

To make your mouthwash easier to use, pour it into a clean spray bottle. Just a few squirts does the trick — and you'll have no glass to wash, either. — BOBBIE

DEAR POLLY — Oil cake racks slightly to keep the cake layers from sticking while cooling.

When freezing cake layers for future use, dust them lightly with powdered sugar to prevent sticking to the foil or freezer wrap. — K.A.E.

Bake your own sourdough bread, buckwheat pancakes and a delicious chocolate sourdough chocolate cake with the recipes in Polly's newsletter, "Baking with Sourdoughs and Starters." Send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title.

DEAR POLLY — When I was a girl, my grandmother told me that baking powder settles and it should be stirred briskly before it's used. I have followed that advice for many years and have used baking powder that is a couple of years old with no problems. — BONNIE

DEAR POLLY — I had a bag of very ripe bananas. I mashed them in my blender, adding just a tiny bit of sugar to help retain flavor. I measured the mashed bananas into plastic freezer bags, putting into each bag just what I needed for one recipe of banana-nut cake or banana bread; I then froze the bags of banana. When I used this frozen mashed banana, I couldn't tell the finished product from that made with fresh bananas. The cake and bread were delicious! — ERMA

NBA roundup

Despite King's 60 points, Knicks fall

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For Bernard King, a career-high 60-point performance was nothing to be excited about.

"I'd rather have scored 10 and we had won the game," King said Tuesday night when, despite King's high-powered performance, the New York Knicks lost a 120-114 National Basketball Association decision to the New Jersey Nets.

The point total was not only a season high for the NBA this year, but was the highest since April 9, 1978, when Denver's David Thompson had 73 and San Antonio's George Gervin 63 in separate games. King's 60 points also broke the Knicks' club record of 57 set by Richie Guerin in 1959.

The previous NBA high this season was 59 by Golden State's Purvis Short, also against the Nets.

In the other NBA action Tuesday night, Philadelphia edged Detroit 109-108, Portland beat Golden State 106-97 and Cleveland stopped Atlanta 109-106.

With King scoring 40 of his points in the first half, the Knicks twice held leads of 16 points before finishing with a 64-54 advantage at halftime. But Micheal Ray Richardson, who scored 24 of his 36 points in the second half, rallied the Nets to their first road victory after eight straight losses.

Richardson wasn't the only big gun for the Nets, who also got 27 points and 14 rebounds from Mike Gminski and 24 points from Kelvin Ransey.

76ers 109, Pistons 108

Moses Malone scored 28 points and Andrew Toney made two free throws with 30 seconds remaining to lead Philadelphia over Detroit. The victory was the 76ers' 13th in their last 15 games and improved their record to 22-6.

Boston College coach wary of Houston's stats

By HOWARD ULMAN AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Some numbers tell one story.

Boston College is ranked eighth in the nation with a 9-2 mark, and Doug Flutie has thrown for a major-college career record of 10,579 yards. Houston is 7-4 and not ranked in the Top 20.

But other numbers tell Eagles' Coach Jack Bicknell a different story.

Houston rushed for 309 and 366 yards in its last two regular-season football games, and his Boston College defense gave up an average of 201.2 yards on the ground from Bowl on New Year's Day.

"They're a split-back veer. They run it very well," he said of Houston's offensive system. "They have two guys in the backfield, exceptional team speed. They won five of their last seven games. They really played well down the stretch."

Boston College has had trouble with running formations it hasn't seen much. It played against the wishbone twice in the last three years, allowing Auburn to rush for 313 yards in the 1982 Tangerine Bowl and Army to gain 349 yards on the ground this season.

"We didn't play a true veer team this year," said Bicknell. "I think we understand it.... They don't have the lead-back blocker that the wishbone has."

"It's not quite as difficult to defend as is the wishbone from a technical standpoint. From the standpoint of their people, it's hard."

DeLozier letters for third time

A total of 63 players earned football letters at the University of Texas-Arlington this past season, with seven seniors lettering for the fourth straight year.

The list includes 19 seniors, 13 juniors, 18 sophomores and 13 freshmen.

With number of letters received and hometowns, the UTA football lettermen include Don DeLozier, 3, Hereford.

Former Hereford player letterman

Four seniors are among the 30 lettermen named for the 1984 Trinity University football team. Ten juniors, 10 sophomores and six freshmen also are included among the lettermen announced by Coach Gene Norris.

Sophomore letter-winners include Hereford High School graduate Tim Martin, 206 Ranger.

Texas, Iowa looking to regain respect in Freedom Bowl today

By TIM LIOTTA AP Sports Writer
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Two teams that suffered through poor finishes in the regular football season are looking to the inaugural Freedom Bowl as an opportunity to erase some of the bad memories.

The Texas Longhorns, who lost their final two games to finish 7-4-1, meet the Iowa Hawkeyes, who went 1-2-1 in their final four games and ended up 7-3-1, meet tonight in the bowl game at Anaheim Stadium. Kickoff will be 5 p.m., PST.

Texas Coach Fred Akers wants his team to enjoy its trip to California.

"It's a reward for a football team," Akers said at a press conference. "I would be upset if all we did was come out and think about the game. We would miss a great deal of what a bowl really is.

"We're a bowl team. So you generally gave players who know how to turn on and turn off. They should know when business takes the place of pleasure."

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry has his team thinking the same way.

"We treat a bowl game as a reward for the players, the fans, and the coaches," Fry said. "I'm not saying we're not trying to win... These kids are missing an opportunity to be at home with their families for the holidays."

The game has, however, captured the attention of the players.

"I want to finish out on a winning note," said Texas defensive lineman

Tony Degrade, who was awarded the Lombardi Award as college football's premier college lineman.

"It seems like your last game will be the one you remember most. Our last game against (Texas) A&M didn't turn out so well, so personally, I'm looking for a little satisfaction. I'd like to finish out on a winning note with a win against Iowa."

"After our last game, we just wanted to go and hide," said Johnny Gray, the Longhorns' All-American defensive back. "But then we started thinking that a bowl game would give us another chance. We could go there and try and come out as winners. The seniors are really taking the game seriously. They don't want to go out on a wrong note."

Both teams have been working out in the area only since Saturday because their players had final examinations all last week.

"Our practices have gone well," Akers said. "The players are alert and they've been real sharp."

Fry couldn't say the same about his team, which hadn't practiced in three weeks since their final regular season game.

"We're a little bit rusty and our execution is a little off," he said. "But the thrill of seeing the sunshine and feeling the heat will have us ready by game time."

Steeler boss respects defenses

By The Associated Press
 Nobody in pro football appreciates defense more than Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, who assembled the Steel Curtain that produced four Steeler Super Bowl championships.
 So Pittsburgh goes into Sunday's American Football Conference semifinal game with proper respect for the Denver Broncos, who allowed only 241 points all season, second lowest in the National Football League.

Noll was not surprised that the wild-card victories of the New York

Giants and Seattle Seahawks were constructed by stifling defenses that simply shut down the Los Angeles Rams and Los Angeles Raiders.

"Defense has been important in championship football games as long as I can remember," Noll said. "Before you can win, you have to not lose."

Denver didn't lose very frequently, dropping only three games all season. And the opportunistic Bronco defenders scored eight touchdowns after forcing fumbles and picking off passes. Noll, a connoisseur of defense, was suitably impressed.

Bronco Coach Dan Reeves knows the Steelers' reputation for being stingy with yards and points and spent much of the last week drilling Denver on defending against the blitz. "The Steelers blitz a lot more than most people," Reeves said.

Nobody, however, blitzes more than the Chicago Bears, who led the league in rushing defense, total defense and set a record with 72 quarterback sacks. The Washington Redskins, hoping for a third straight trip to the Super Bowl, must control the Bear defenders as well as handle

Walter Payton, the NFL's alltime rushing leader.

Redskin Coach Joe Gibbs, analyzing the films, said Chicago's most frequent defensive set had produced blitzes almost three-quarters of the times they lined up in it. "What scares you offensively is that they force things," Gibbs said. "Their interior rushers, nobody can block."

Blitzing, of course, has its price. It leaves the defensive secondary in man-to-man coverage and against the Redskins that can mean trouble with receivers like Art Monk, who broke the NFL single season record with 106 catches this season.

The Bears thought they would be playing in San Francisco this weekend but the New York Giants changed those plans when they upset the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC wild-card game. That thrust the Giants into the NFC semifinal against the 49ers, whose 15-1 record was the best mark in the NFL this season.

"The 49ers are the best team in football right now," New York linebacker Lawrence Taylor said. "This will be our Super Bowl."

The game affords the Giants a chance at revenge for a midseason 31-10 loss which the 49ers administered to them in a Monday night game. The same kind of incentive helped them eliminate the Rams, who had embarrassed them 33-12 during the season. Coach Bill Parcells used the early-season loss to drive his team last week and promised to do the same this week.

The Giants stayed conservative, using a short-pass attack and aggressive defense to defeat the Rams. A day earlier, Seattle did the same thing against the Los Angeles Raiders with a throwback offense that included only 10 passes all day by Dave Krieg. Now the question is whether they'll stay with the ground game against Miami.

In Action Again

Hereford High School basketball player Bobby Baker, a 6-3 sophomore, takes a shot in action earlier this season. The Whitefaces are to be in action Thursday through Saturday when they play in the Clovis Boys Basketball Tournament.

For basketball games

Tech has tickets remaining

The Texas Tech Ticket Office has more than 1,000 season tickets remaining to be sold for the Red Raiders' final 10 home basketball games of the 1984-85 season.

Ticket manager Carol Baker said evidently there was confusion on ticket availabilities to Texas Tech basketball games.

American gains upset in tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — American Scott McCain scored the biggest upset of the opening round of the $100,000 Victorian Open tennis tournament with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over third-seeded Miroslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia today.

In other matches, Darren Cahill of Australia beat Brian Levine of South Africa 6-7, 6-2, 6-3; seventh-seeded Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland beat Kevin Belcher of the United States 2-6, 6-2, 7-5; Howard Sands of the United States defeated fellow American Glenn Layendecker 6-3, 7-6; Jonathan Smith of Great Britain defeated Carl Limberger of Australia 6-4, 6-7, 6-4; Mark Wooldridge of the United States defeated Craig Miller of Australia 7-6, 6-7, 6-2; Colin Dowdeswell of Great Britain defeated Dale Houston of Australia 7-5, 6-2; and Matt Anger of the United States defeated Thierry Champion of France 7-6, 7-6.

option seats."

Baker said tickets are being sold on a season and individual game basis for the eight Southwest Conference contests and non-conference games against North Texas State and Midwestern University. Tickets can be purchased at the Ticket Of-office, located at the north end of Jones Stadium, or at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum on game nights. The Ticket Office will be closed for the Holidays, but will reopen on Jan. 2 and operate on an 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekday schedule.

Because the Tech studnets will be gone on semester break, Baker said there remains a heavy excess of tickets to the Jan. 2 Southwest Conference opener against Texas and the Jan. 5 game against North Texas State. Both games tip off at 7:30 p.m. at the coliseum.

For Von Erichs

Wrestling: a family tradition

DALLAS (AP) — Mike Von Erich never doubted he would follow in the steps of his father and three older brothers.

"I always knew I'd be a wrestler," he said.

He was nervous, he said, before he first stepped into the ring on Nov. 23, 1983.

"But once I got in the ring, it just seemed to come naturally. I loved it. Because of my dad and my brothers, the people were really behind me right off," he told the Dallas Times Herald.

"That makes a difference, for me at least. Even when I was an amateur wrestler, I always did better when my friends and family were there."

In Texas, the name Von Erich is hot stuff.

The Von Erich dynasty began when his father, Jack Adkisson, gave up a career in professional football 30 years and began wrestling under the name of Fritz Von Erich.

Fritz and his wife, Doris, raised five sons, one of whom died in a childhood accident. The boys were Kevin, David, Kerry, Mike and Chris. Kevin, at 26, is the oldest and Chris, 15, the youngest.

Kevin, David and Kerry all went into wrestling ahead of Mike, and when David Von Erich died unexpectedly earlier this year of natural causes in a hotel room while on a wrestling tour in Japan, an estimated 3,500 people — most of them grieving and worshipful wrestling fans — attended the funeral.

In addition to having a ready audience of fans for his debut, Mike said his heritage benefited him in other ways. For one thing, there were his father and brothers to help smooth the way and teach him things like the practically patented Von Erich Iron Claw hold.

But having the Von Erich name has had its disadvantages, too, he says.

In school, someone — "usually one of the older kids" — always wanted to whip a Von Erich, it seems.

"Sometimes I'd lose, but then they'd have to contend with Kevin, or David, or Kerry. One way or another, they'd always end up losing to a Von Erich," he said, grinning.

Wrestling's show biz image is a sore point with the Von Erichs.

"I'm sort of the shy type, but I really get ... enraged when people talk about how fake wrestling is. I remember one girl telling me that wrestling is phony, and I asked her how she knew that," Mike said.

Athletics is emphasized above gimmickry in wrestling here, he said.

"She said, 'My father told me.' Well, maybe back when her father was going to wrestling matches, it was. But it's changed a lot," he said.

Are You Ready For Retirement?

Our early settlers had one common denominator -- they all worked, and they worked hard! Everyone from grandma right down to the kids worked -- and worked -- and worked.

For all it's worth, the word "retirement" couldn't have been in the vocabulary of many of our forefathers.

Today, that word, "retirement", holds a very special and deep meaning to a lot of folks.

At our bank, we offer the new Individual Retirement Account. It's a plan that helps make your retirement years all you've worked for and more. You can deposit $2,000 a year as an individual to this program, without paying any federal income taxes on the principal or the interest, until you retire. Married couples who are both working may deposit $4,000, and one-paycheck couples may deposit $2,250.

The I.R.A. program from the Bank that's pioneering new ways of service and security for you, your family and your retirement.

It's not easy being state's first quintuplets

DALLAS (AP) — Nearly everything the Davis kids do is a public spectacle.

The five — Christa, Casey, Chanda, Charla, and Chelsea — are Texas' first quintuplets. They were born 10 years ago to a young Lewisville welder and his wife at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Their baptism drew almost 500 people. Their first Thanksgiving, first day of school, first Halloween and "their first everything" has been recorded by newspapers throughout the state.

Even shopping isn't easy because they're whispered about, stared at and invariably asked: "Which one are you?"

Restaurants aren't any better. "It's terrible going to eat," Jerry Davis, the quins father, told the Dallas Times Herald. "You always have a mouthful of food when someone comes up and asks about the kids... We don't go out that much."

The only one who likes being a celebrity is Casey. And he's the only boy.

"People know you better, everyone knows you," Casey said.

But the girls, who resemble each other are tired of the attention and having their identities confused. Christa and Chelsea have it roughest: They are identical.

"I'd rather be by myself," said Charla. "People always say, 'I saw you on TV,' and are bugging you all time."

At their request, Mrs. Davis stopped dressing her children in matching outfits.

"I dressed them alike for years because it was easy," she said. "I could say, 'Go get the red outfit,' and they knew which socks and shoes went with it. But the first time they said they all wanted different clothes, we started doing our own thing."

All the girls have short brown hair but each is a little different in length. They wanted it that way.

Mrs. Davis says her five freckle-faced have different personalities:

Christa is more social; Chanda and Chelsea are "more babyish," Casey is a health nut; Chandra wants to work at a bank.

All the children play soccer: Casey on one team, the four girls on another, which causes problems for the coach.

"The girls won't look at you until you call them by the right name, so their coach spends half the game walking up and down the sidelines calling out their names, Christa... Chandra... Chelsea... until he gets it right," Mrs. Davis said.

Having four girls on the team also puts an extra burden on the family not to miss a game.

"If we don't show up, the team has to forfeit," said Mrs. Davis.

Both parents say ushering children to soccer games, choir practice and school functions makes the diaper years seem calm by comparison.

And there's the chore of finding a babysitter.

"They come once, but the second time you call, they're busy," said Mrs. Davis.

THE TAX BITE

Washington takes less

TAXES COLLECTED (1982-83 CHANGE)

Americans paid less for 1983 in federal taxes, but more for the year to state and local governments — some of which raised taxes to replace aid that Washington had reduced or withdrawn.

Workplace noise case raises far reaching issues

WASHINGTON (AP) - Is a steel company responsible for the hearing loss of an employee exposed to 90 decibels of noise near a blast furnace on the job when he also listens to 90 decibels of rock music at home on his stereo?

A federal appeals court has said no, some labor unions say yes, and federal safety regulators say they want another opinion.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration asked all nine judges of the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals on Friday to consider the question.

Last Nov. 8, three judges on that court in Richmond, Va., threw out a new OSHA noise regulation, saying its enforcement could be too easily triggered by hazards outside the workplace.

"Airplanes, hunting rifles, loud music and a myriad of other sources produce noise potentially as damaging as any at the workplace," the court said in its 2-1 decision.

The noise regulation would require employers to give workers hearing tests, provide hearing protectors and conduct education programs on hearing loss whenever factory noise rises beyond an 85-decibel level. An 85-decibel level is about half the din of 90 decibels. Normal conversation is about 65 decibels.

At first, OSHA appeared as if it were prepared to accept the court's ruling and continue using an older noise rule that merely limits noise to 90 decibels. But after studying the issue and hearing from concerned labor unions, it sought the judicial review.

The unions say that if the court's ruling is allowed to stand, it would set a dangerous precedent that can be applied to benzene and lead workplace standards OSHA is now amending.

The AFL-CIO also sees the OSHA hearing standard case as he appeals court suit against the OSHA noise regulation, says it will take the blame for noise in its factories — as long as the government sets reasonable limits.

"This is a noisy business we're in. We smash and shape metals," said association treasurer Charles Hageman. "When OSHA had a 90-decibel limit, everybody was happy, and we protected workers with ear plugs and headphones on the job."

Abundant Life

PERSPECTIVE means to 'look through', and as used here in 'perspective of life' the thought in mind is "the way we see life". It is necessary for personal well-being that we develop and maintain a sensible and a realistic view of our own personal life. To begin with a practical and acceptable view, one with which we can live well, is essential.

THIS VIEW does not consist of being recognized as some kind of VIP; it does not require wealth, but does require the wise management of material things; it does not demand that we fill a role which our society considers impressive, but does demand that we fill a role of usefulness and wise behavior; it does demand that we fill a role of usefulness and wise behavior; it does not call for a status of fame, but requires a status of stability and dependability; it does not promise material riches, or political power, or great social influence, or even widespread acceptance among people, but it does promise personal happiness, the respect of worthwhile people, great self-respect, and enduring sense of worthwhileness, and freedom from the distress of fragmented and uncertain living.

You can perhaps improve this "perspective", but this is the general view of life with which all of us can live very well.

MUCH OF the popular talk of our time places upon most of us burdens much too heavy to bear. Such notions as, "be a winner", "be the best", "be a leader", "have the best", "make the best grades", etc., may have a place, but, generally speaking, if we accept these as our guides, we take on a burden we are unable to bear. Of course, it is important that we do our best because this is a reasonable and productive element in our "perspective of life".

We can live with this.

No. 369,808
ROBERTO CAMARENA AND OTHERS PLAINTIFFS VS. TEXAS EMPLOYMENT COMMISSION AND OTHERS DEFENDANTS IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF TRAVIS COUNTY, TEXAS
201ST JUDICIAL DISTRICT NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS

IF YOU ARE AN AGRICULTURAL LABORER, PLEASE READ THIS CAREFULLY.

On January 2, 1985, Judge Harley Clark of the District Court in Travis County will hold a trial to decide whether the exclusion of agricultural laborers from the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act is unconstitutional and should not be enforced.

The Plaintiffs in the suit have asked Judge Clark to prohibit the Texas Employment Commission from denying unemployment benefits to agricultural laborers who would otherwise qualify for such benefits except that they are employed in agricultural labor.

This notice has four purposes:

- (1) to inform you of the existence of the lawsuit and of the fact that you may be a member of the class of agricultural laborers on whose behalf the lawsuit was brought and has been certified as such by the Court;
- (2) to inform you of the trial in the case on January 2, 1985;
- (3) to give you a chance to remove yourself from the class and the suit and from being bound by the judgment; and,
- (4) to inform you of the right of any member to appear before the Court and challenge the Court's determination as to the class and its representatives.

The effect of the judgment may be to bind you as a class member under terms of the judgment, whether it is favorable or unfavorable to you. However, you may have the right to be excluded from the class and the judgment, if you request that the Court do so. That request should be filed with John Dickson, Clerk of this Court, located at the Travis County Courthouse, P.O. Box 1748, Austin, Texas, on or before January 2, 1985.

Signed this 18th day of December, 1984.

No. 369,808
ROBERTO CAMARENA Y OTROS, DEMANDANTES VS. COMISION ESTATAL DE EMPLEOS Y OTROS DEMANADOS EN LA CORTE DISTRITO DEL CONDADO DE TRAVIS, TEXAS

DISTRITO JUDICIAL 201ª NOTICIA A MIEMBROS DE ESTA ACCION LEGAL COLECTIVA SI UD. ES TRABAJADOR DEL CAMPO, FAVOR DE LEER ESTA NOTICIA CUIDADOSAMENTE Y ATENTAMENTE

A Todos Trabajadores Campesinos y Agricolas:
Eldia 2º de enero 1985, el juez Harley Clark del Condado de Travis va a decidir si la provision legal que excluye a campesinos o trabajadores agricolas de la ley que protege a personas que se desemplean del trabajo es anti-constitucional y que no se puede enforzarla para negar al campesino los beneficios de desempleo.

Es decir que, si el juez falla a favor del obrero campesino, tales trabajadores agricolas estaran cubiertas por la ley del desempleo tanto como cualquier trabajador cualificado en Texas.

Hay cuatro razones para esta noticia:

- (1) para informale de este litigio y de que Ud, quiz sea miembro de la clase campesina en el nombre de cual esta demanda estuvo presentada y que el juez ha certificado;
- (2) para informale a Ud. del juicio pendiente el 2º de enero;
- (3) para darle la oportunidad de excluirse de tal juicio y del orden emanante, si Ud. no quiere estar cubierto por la ley del desempleo; y
- (4) el derecho de cualquier miembro de aparecer y oponer la certificacion de los representantes designados por la Corte.

Si Ud. no se excluye del juicio, el orden judicial se le incluyera a Ud. como miembro de la accion colectiva, no importa si sea favorable o in-favorable a Ud.

Entonces, quiz Ud. tendra el derecho de excluirse de esta accion colectiva y del juicio si Ud. lo pida del juez antes de la fecha del juicio. Pero es necesario que su peticion de excluirse este sentado en la oficina del Secretario de la Corte, John Dickson, colocada en la Casacorte del Condado de Travis, P.O. Box 1748, Austin, Texas 78767, por el dia 2 de enero, 1985.

Este orden es firmado el dia 18 de diciembre, 1984.

In 'General Hospital'

West Texan acquires fame

SNYDER, Texas (AP) — Brad Maule's dream of being a recognized actor finally has come true — he has landed the role of Dr. Anthony Jones on ABC's top-rated soap, "General Hospital."

Maule, a 1970 Snyder High School graduate, studied drama under Jerry Worsham. He is the son of George and Josie Maule of Camp Springs.

Maule originally auditioned for the role of Dr. Jones' brother, Frisco, but that part went to another actor.

But when the producers later decided to introduce a new character, he got that part, Maule told the Snyder Daily News during a recent telephone interview. He was hired last January and began work in March.

In this way, Dr. Anthony Jones was born and Maule got his first taste of what it is like to be recognized in public, no matter where he is or what he is doing.

He experienced that first hand this summer during a 14-hour flight to Greece.

"For the first two hours of the flight, people came by and for the whole flight I had to sit up straight and sign autographs. I couldn't relax and just be myself because everyone recognized me as Dr. Anthony Jones."

But Maule isn't complaining about his newly acquired fame.

"It's as much a part of the business as anything else. Fans are the reason I'm on the show."

For the most part, Maule said, people asking for his autograph try not to be too bothersome.

"A little bit of fame is great," Maule said. "But a lot could be dangerous. I wouldn't like to be Paul McCartney, for instance. That's the darker side of fame."

He said he receives 200 fan letters a week. His secretary screens the letters first and weeds out those from overly eager fans who assume they have a special bond with the actor. Some want "to marry you and take you away," Maule said.

Some fans even reacted to the news of his upcoming marriage to his high school sweetheart by threatening suicide.

Those are the kinds of letters Maule said he doesn't like to receive. "I'd rather people would write and tell me about themselves," he said.

Maule also gets letter from people who want to become actors.

Last month Maule put in long hours filming "General Hospital" and then went to rehearsals for "Fade In, Fade Out," a musical which opened Nov. 10, in Los Angeles. It's not unusual for "General Hospital" to stop filming around 1 a.m. but generally, they quit around 7 or 8 p.m., he said.

In the morning, before heading to the ABC studio, Maule said he learns from 30 to 40 pages of dialogue. He learns from 80 to 150 pages of dialogue per week for the show.

"It's a tough schedule right now, but things will settle down in the future," he said. "It really works the muscles in your head to learn that many pages, though."

Maule likes the character Dr. Anthony Jones, and since the character was created for him he is able to supply some input into Jones' development.

"Dr. Jones is a lot like me, because he has a dry sense of humor," Maule explained. "He is a doctor who really cares for his patients and humanity in general. He has a good sense of humor, and I try to do that with my life, also."

He said he likes working on a soap, noting there is no longer a stigma attached to soap opera actors. Actors like Christopher Reeve (who played Superman) played on "Love of Life," a now-defunct soap opera.

"My role was created when they hired me, and since soap opera plotlines are projected one and two years in advance it has been bits and pieces with nothing really connecting until now. They are auditioning actresses to play my love interest, and after the first of the year I will have a more active role. I am now in the unique position of suggesting people I might play opposite of."

"I like 'General Hospital.' I think it is the best soap opera, and it is the best training experience I have ever had. When people ask me if I ever get tired of training I say 'no' because an actor never stops learning his craft."

In addition to "General Hospital," and "Fade In, Fade Out," Maule is also recording some of his own country and western music and is making personal appearances throughout the country every other week.

But Maule hasn't gotten too far from his roots — a farm near Camp Springs some 20 miles from Snyder. He recently went into the cattle business with his father.

"My parents never tried to stop me from becoming an actor. They said 'we love you, and if that is what you want to do then do it.' They always told me I would come back to the land. That is why I am buying the cattle. Because I am from a farm. I couldn't leave that kind of upbringing even if I wanted to."

Maule loves the land and is proud of his West Texas heritage. Even though he doesn't get to see Dane Witherspoon and Barry Tubbs that often (they also graduated from SHS and studied under Worsham), he said they maintain a close relationship.

"Barry and Dane came out here after me, and we we have our own Texas group here."

The trio has a dream of one day making a movie together which will depict the West Texas heritage the way it really is. "We've discussed it for a long time," Maule explained.

"It takes star power to be able to put the deal together. That's what we're working toward. Because of our common background we feel we could tell a story about the West Texas area better than a Hollywood writer who has never seen it."

"I was always singing especially on tractors," Maule said when asked why he opted for a singing and acting career. "I had never had any training. I went to school in Hobbs, and they didn't have a drama department. I was always a little bit of a misfit."

"When I transferred to Snyder High School, Jerry Worsham gave me direction. He opened my eyes to other things in the world. He took me to Dallas to see a play with a group of kids. He showed me that I could make a life of what I loved to do.

"I don't care if I'm in a soap or a movie or a play," Maule continued. "I just love what I'm doing. If I was after money I'd be in a different place you are from and yet go any place in the world and fit in."

He said Worsham sends people to him in Los Angeles. "I can't really help them, but I can empathize since I know the terror I felt when I went from Snyder to a city with 7 million population. I experienced a lot of culture shock. That's why we Texans stick together out here. Our lifestyles haven't really changed that much."

When asked what advice he would give beginners, Maule said, "I'd tell them to go to performance school if they could or Yale Drama School if the money is available. So many actors (especially me) have no training when they come to Los Angeles. I did it because I felt it was what I had to do, but it has taken me longer to learn my craft. High school training, no matter how good it is, just isn't enough," he said.

"I'd also tell them to be practical and realize that while they are waiting for a chance to break into the business they still have to pay rent and buy food. You have to make a living no matter what your aspirations are. You can't wait around hoping to be discovered. It won't happen."

Maule graduated from Snyder High School in 1970. He completed four years at Stephen F. Austin where he earned a degree in fine arts theatre and English.

He arrived in Los Angeles in 1977. "It was a frightening situation for me. I had the desire and the dream but no in-roads into this business or practical experience. But I have no regrets. Sometimes I do regret having very little time for a personal life."

Upon arriving in Los Angeles, Maule landed a job in the chorus of "Evita." He then went on to appear in episodes of "The White Shadow," "Charlie's Angels," "Too Close For Comfort," "Three's Company," and "Romance Theatre" as well. He also appeared in the ABC-tele-film "Malibu," and the pilot, "One Night Band" was one of his favorite projects.
