

For heroin sale

25 years given in first case of drug bust

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Domingo Jesus "Juan" Pesina Jr., the first subject on trial as a result of the Jan. 22 drug bust in which city and county lawmen arrested over 80 alleged narcotics dealers, was declared guilty Wednesday of possession of heroin with intent to sell and received a 25-year sentence.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated just over 1½ hours for the guilty verdict and took 2½ to decide the sentence.

Three witnesses appeared for the state, and only the accused testified for the defense. The state's star witness was undercover police detective Raul Sanchez. Sanchez was brought into Deaf Smith County via a joint effort by the city, county, and district attorney. Sanchez was to infiltrate the drug culture of the community and make as many buys as he could with cash given by the county.

Sanchez told the jury that he had met Pesina in the labor camp southwest of Hereford. Sanchez testified that Pesina had told him that he was an "old junkie" who could not get off drugs. Pesina asked Sanchez if he wanted to buy a "paper," slang in the drug community for a quarter of a gram of heroin.

Sanchez said that Pesina asked him for $25. Sanchez gave him the money and waited for Pesina to return. "He went into a store (at the labor camp) and brought me back a foil that was alleged at that time to be heroin," Sanchez said.

Sanchez stated that he turned the heroin over to Lt. David Wagner of the Hereford Police Department.

Wagner then testified that on June 20, 1985, Sanchez did submit to him a small amount of heroin. Wagner said that he then gave the heroin to Ben Murphy, a chemist with the Department of Public Safety in Amarillo.

Murphy testified that he received the heroin from Wagner on July 1, and found it to be 17 percent pure. Murphy also said that normal street heroin is 5 percent pure.

Defense Attorney Sam Ogan of Lubbock told the jury that he would be calling two witnesses on behalf of Pesina. Ogan called Nickie Garcia, a friend of Sanchez' during his undercover work in Hereford. District Attorney Roland Saul filed a motion to not have Ms. Garcia's testimony submitted to the jury. District Judge David Wesley Gulley agreed with Saul on the grounds that her testimony was not relevant to the case. A juvenile was also called to testify, but his testimony was also rejected by Gulley on the same grounds.

Ogan then called Pesina to the stand. Pesina said that he did not sell Sanchez any drugs and at the time of the alleged sale, he was not using heroin. Pesina said that Sanchez looked at him as an easy mark because he was previously addicted to heroin and he had a prior conviction for possession of heroin stemming from a 1976 arrest in Amarillo.

The next case connected with the January arrests is scheduled for May 6.

10 sentenced after guilty pleas

A 10-month police undercover narcotics assignment that resulted in over 80 arrests last January is beginning to bring some heavy prison terms for those arrested.

On Wednesday, a jury sentenced Domingo Pesina Jr. to 25 years in the Texas Department of Corrections (TDC). But 10 others have pleaded guilty to drug related charges and have been sentenced. Following are the persons arrested, their charges and their sentences.

Valentine Garcia, charged with delivery of heroin and delivery of marijuana, was sentenced to 18 years in the TDC.

Manuel Mendiola, charged with delivery of marijuana under four ounces, was given an eight-year prison term.

Manuel Zavala, charged with a delivery of marijuana under four ounces, was sentenced to seven years in the TDC.

Pete DeLaCruz, charged with delivery of marijuana under four ounces, was handed a six-year sentence.

Antonio Sustada, also charged with delivery of marijuana, will serve a six-year term.

Raul Gonzales, delivery of marijuana, will serve six years.

Gregoria Puada, delivery of marijuana, five years.

Don Riley, delivery of marijuana, was sentenced to serve three years.

Joe Angel Camacho and Geromino Mendoza were each given eight years probation for delivery of marijuana, and fined. Camacho was fined $2,000 and Mendoza was fined $500.

Two carriers on standby for orders from Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has sent one carrier to sea in the Mediterranean and ordered another to stand by in case President Reagan decides to order a military strike against Libya, officials say.

The preparations, disclosed Wednesday, included canceling the carrier Coral Sea's plans to wrap up a six-month deployment and depart the port in Malaga, Spain, for the United States. Military commanders have decided they must have at least two carriers in the Mediterranean to support any military operation, the sources said.

The Spanish Coast Guard said the Coral Sea left Malaga waters late Wednesday. Although the Pentagon had no confirmation of the action this morning, spokesman Maj. Larry Iceogle said, "That would not surprise me."

"I have reason to believe ... they'd be under way in no time at all, out of port and back to business as usual."

Iceogle described "business as usual" as the carrier "getting under way in the Mediterranean."

The carrier America, meantime, left the port of Livorno, Italy, as scheduled Wednesday. That ship was told to remain under way at sea instead of heading toward a second port call in Cannes, France, the sources said.

The sources — officials inside the administration and Pentagon who spoke on condition of anonymity — stressed the Navy had not received any formal orders to reform a battle group and sail for the Libyan coastline.

They acknowledged, however, that "options are now being maintained to do that," as one source put it.

The disclosure of the Navy actions came as President Reagan was telling newspaper editors the United States is "not going to just sit here and hold still" in the wake of renewed terrorist attacks against Americans in Europe.

Reagan said Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy is "definitely a suspect" in the latest fatal bombings aboard a TWA jetliner over Greece and in a West Berlin nightclub.

The president refused to say what he plans to do, other than continue to gather evidence about the incidents and seek the support of European allies.

Shortly before the president's appearance, a senior administration official disclosed that U.S. intelligence agencies had learned Khadafy was encouraging his embassies to guide new terrorist attacks against the United States and that Reagan administration officials had agreed there must be retaliation.

The Pentagon, for its part, refused most of the day to discuss the status of the carrier Coral Sea, although Pentagon sources disclosed early Wednesday the ship had been told to scrap its plans to return home and remain in port.

Finally, on Wednesday night, the Pentagon issued a prepared statement confirming the Coral Sea would not be sailing for the United States anytime soon.

"The Coral Sea battle group, which was scheduled to end its routine deployment to the Mediterranean shortly, has been extended for an indefinite period to maintain the existing naval presence in the Mediterranean," the Defense Department said.

The Pentagon refused to elaborate further on the decision, saying only that the Defense Department wanted "to maintain a larger naval presence than would be provided by the (carrier) America battle group alone."

The Pentagon also declined to say when the Coral Sea might depart

Candidates invited to forum

Candidates from each of the contested races in the May 3 primary have been invited to participate in the Chamber of Commerce candidate forum set for Tuesday, April 29.

The forum, sponsored by the Chamber's Legislative Affairs Committee, is slated for 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center and will be taped by Hereford Cablevision for rebroadcast several times prior to election.

Questions for the forum may be submitted to the Chamber of Commerce office at 801 N. Main.

Among the races to be covered at the meeting will be U.S. Representative Dist. 19, county commissioner for Precincts 2 and 4, county judge, county treasurer, justice of the peace and Democratic county chairman.

Theft from vehicle investigated

The County Sheriff's Department is investigating a theft from a motor vehicle that occurred Wednesday. Stolen from the car was a Pioneer car stereo and a Magnadyne equalizer valued at $730.

Slogan contest still open

Entries for a slogan only or a combination slogan and logo to add to "Hospitable Hustlin' Hereford" will be accepted until April 30 by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Contestants should mail entries to "Logo", P.O. Box 192, Hereford.

The winning entry will be announced at the Chamber's May Fun Breakfast.

Four thefts, burglary reported

The Hereford Police Department is investigating reports of four thefts and a burglary that occurred Wednesday. The thefts were of three bicycles and an air cooler valued at $500. Nothing was found to be missing in the burglary.

Police also heard reports of two cases of criminal mischief and harassment.

Heavy infestation of Russian aphid reported

Deaf Smith County possibly has one of the heaviest infestations of the Russian wheat aphid, an insect of which little is known except the damage it does.

A number of aerial applicators have reported seeing the four to five-foot diameter purple or white-ish damaged areas in fields in the county. County Extension agent Dennis Newton said he had no estimate on acres of damage, however dryland and stressed fields seem to be more susceptible.

The insect also has been snacking on oat fields in the county, and has been reported to feed on barley, triticale, rye and summer grasses.

Easily distinguishable from other aphids of the area, it is about two millimeters long, has short antennae, is green, and has a projection at the rear which makes it appear to have two tails.

A trace of infestation has been reported in Donley County, and some researchers say that as weather warms the bug may migrate into Oldham or Dallam Counties. Currently, Deaf Smith County is as far north as it has been spotted in Texas.

Newton said if the wheat is just damaged slightly it can be revived, but noted that it only takes four or five bugs to destroy a plant.

Since the aphid rolls up inside the flagleaf, all chemicals will not kill it. Some systemics — chemicals which the plant absorbs — are working best according to tests on treatment.

Toxins injected by the aphid into the new growth leaves are what turns the plant purple.

Most testing on treatment and life cycle has been done in South Africa. Scientists in the U.S. are still studying those test results and comparing them to regional wheat crops. The aphid is native to Southern Russia and has been found in the Middle East, on Mediterranean coastlines and Mexico, also.

After the South African wheat harvest, which begins in the middle of May, more should be discovered on the treatment.

Stocks mixed after volatile day

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in the aftermath of Wednesday's volatile session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 3.96 to 1,774.66 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5 to 3 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Farmland values plummeted 12 percent for second year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average value of U.S. farm land plummeted 12 percent for the second straight year, but the decline is expected to level off in the coming months, the Agriculture Department says.

Land values posted a 12 percent drop in the annual reporting period ending Feb. 1, the department said Wednesday, matching the rate for the previous year that was the worst since a 19 percent decline in 1933.

The fall in the department's land value index marked the fifth straight year of dropping prices.

"Severe financial stress on many farmers with large debt loads, cautious attitudes of some farm lenders and the large number of acres offered for sale relative to limited demand" all contributed to the decline, the department said.

The survey found farm land averaged $596 an acre on Feb. 1, down from $697 last year and a peak of $823 in the early 1980s. The average includes a wide variety of acreage, from highly productive suburban tracts to semi-arid grazing land.

The department's index of farm land values, which compares land prices from year to year, now stands just slightly above its 1978 level. However, when adjusted for inflation, land values have retreated to the levels of the mid-1960s, the department said.

Farm land values rose substantially in the Northeast, where land can be used for development and is less dependent on crop prices for its value. But those increases were more than offset by large losses across the rest of the nation. Twenty-five states suffered declines of 10 percent or more.

Taking the heaviest loss was Minnesota, where farm land values crumbled by 26 percent for the year. Iowa remained the most hard-hit state in the long term, suffering a 21 percent decline last year and a 59 percent drop since land values began to erode in 1981.

Bill Heneberry, a farm land analyst with the department's Economic Research Service, said the numbers were somewhat surprising to economists who had expected land values to begin leveling off.

"The decline probably already has slowed" since the survey was taken, Heneberry said, reaffirming a guardedly optimistic department projection for the overall farm financial situation this year.

Wagon train hits halfway point

FORT HANCOCK, Texas (AP) — The Texas Wagon Train is rolling across the dusty plains of West Texas at the halfway mark of the statewide tour.

"We're exactly on schedule. We're out in West Texas and will be in El Paso on Saturday, train spokeswoman Lou Mallory said Wednesday.

The West Texas heat and dust hasn't been a problem, said Mallory, who joins the trail ride every weekend.

"They're pretty prepared," she said. "We've been generally leaving at the same time every day (8 a.m.). We travel between 15 and 30 miles a day."

Because of the higher West Texas temperatures, the train might stay at a water break a little longer, but Mallory said the area hasn't been too hot yet.

On Wednesday, the wheels of the trains 40 wagons and its 55 horses came to a halt for a rest in Fort Hancock, about 60 miles southeast of El Paso.

The wagon train rolled out January 2 and is circling the state with covered wagons, horseback riders and recreational vehicles. The trail ride ends July 20 in Fort Worth.

Loan loss provisions increased

DALLAS (AP) — Dropping oil and gas prices prompted Texas American Bancshares to strengthen its loan loss provision by $44 million, resulting in an anticipated loss of more than $20 million for the first quarter, the company announced.

The increased provision brings the total to $84 million and will result in a loss of $22 million for the quarter ending March 31, 1986, the company said Wednesday in a news release.

The Fort Worth-based company, which holds most of its assets in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Central Texas, said the increased provision was made because of dropping oil and gas prices. The loan loss provision was based on an average expected oil price of $15 per barrel.

The company's board of directors approved a reduction in the regular quarterly dividend from 38 cents to 25 cents per share, effective with the next dividend payment in July.

Meanwhile, National Bancshares Corp. of Texas Wednesday announced earnings of $3.2 million, or 27 cents per share, for the first quarter ending March 31, 1986, compared with $6.8 million, or 56 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1985.

The reduced earnings are due primarily to a provision of $10.9 million made to the company's reserve for possible loan losses compared to a $4 million provision for the first quarter of 1985, the company said.

Waldheim's son denies allegations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The son of former United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is pleading his father's case with U.S. officials, attempting to put to rest allegations of wartime complicity with Nazis in atrocities against Yugoslav partisans.

Following a half-hour meeting Wednesday at the Justice Department, Gerhard Waldheim said his father "has an impeccable anti-Nazi record" and faced death if he had objected when drafted into the German army during World War II.

The 38-year-old Austrian banker is trying to persuade the United States not to place his father on an immigration "watch list" that would bar him from entering the country.

Kurt Waldheim, 67, is in the midst of an election campaign for president of Austria, his second bid for the presidency.

Waldheim served as U.N. chief for 10 years, but was blocked in his 1961 try for an unprecedented third term by China, which insisted on a Third World candidate and vetoed Waldheim during 16 inconclusive rounds of Security Council balloting.

His father's "credibility is definitely not ruined," Gerhard Waldheim told reporters. "We feel that we have clarified ... (the allegations) completely in Austria. The clarification ... in Austria has not gotten here."

Astronauts probably died instantly

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's crew cabin survived the shuttle breakup and nine-mile plunge to the ocean, but the seven astronauts probably died the instant the spacecraft began falling apart, experts believe.

A federal safety investigator told reporters Wednesday that the nose section containing the cabin broke cleanly away from the rest of the spacecraft and was intact until it struck the ocean surface, shattered and sank.

The crew probably died when the orbiter was subjected to very high gravity forces as it was tearing apart, said a source close to the investigation of the Jan. 28 explosion who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said the orbiter was jerked violently to one side after a booster rocket broke loose at its lower joint and swiveled, turning its flame onto the external fuel tank, freeing its liquid propellants to mix into a raging fireball.

Since it was not known the precise point this occurred, it raises a question whether the astronauts lived one or two seconds, long enough to know something terrible was happening.

Even if the crew had survived the violent maneuver — a slim chance — gravity and aerodynamic forces from the first cabin tumble would have killed them, the source said.

Mexico is get $574 million loan

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The World Bank agreed to give Mexico four loans worth $574 million, mostly to help it recover from last fall's devastating earthquakes, the government announced.

The Treasury Department, in a statement released late Wednesday, said Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog signed an agreement for the money with officials of the World Bank in Washington, D.C.

The loans are the result of a series of negotiations Mexico has begun to try to win at least $4 billion in fresh money from outside sources this year to help it with its financial woes.

The nation, which owes $96.4 billion to foreign creditors, has been badly battered by the collapse of oil prices in the international market. Mexico depends on sales of its crude to foreign buyers for about 70 percent of its export earnings.

President Miguel de la Madrid has said the sharp fall in oil prices will cost the nation $6 billion this year, about half of what the government had expected to earn from crude sales.

In the statement, Treasury said the fresh loan package from the World Bank included $400 million earmarked for the National Reconstruction Program, which was set up after the Sept. 19-30 earthquakes that killed more than 9,500 people and destroyed or damaged an estimated 3,000 buildings.

Formby speaks on AP, Lions top in district

Clint Formby, KPAN Radio and a director of the national Associated Press board, spoke on media credibility when he presented a program for the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday in the Community Center.

"Despite some problems, our system of freedom of speech and communications is the best in the world, by far," Formby told Lions. Formby, who is the only broadcaster from the southwest who serves on the AP board, will soon meet with directors in San Francisco.

Formby was with an AP group that visited Cuba in 1964, and a group is scheduled to visit Moscow this fall following a board meeting in London. His impressions of the trip to Cuba dominated the program Wednesday.

"Cuba is a conduit from Russia to the Western Hemisphere, and the ideology is apparent everywhere," said Formby. He said Cuba had made great advancements in education and medicine, but there appeared to be little construction in a number of years. "It doesn't even seem that any buildings have been painted during the Castro regime."

Formby said most of the cars in Havana were 1955 to 1959 American models, although there were a few newer cars from Communist countries. "The hatred of Reagan and the U.S. military was reflected everywhere, and a government official told us his country expects a U.S. invasion within the next few years."

In other business Wednesday, the club received a plaque for being named the top Lions Club in District 5. The announcement came at the district convention in Dumas last week, and district secretary Sid Shaw presented the plaque to club boss Donald Hicks.

In another presentation, Hicks presented pens to Larry Alley, Mark Andrews and Weldon Dickson for outstanding work on the pancake supper and auction project held recently. Lion B.J. Gilliland urged Lions to get ready for the annual Garage Sale, slated May 10.

trade ever on the Big Board — 48.79 million shares of Navistar International at 10.

The block included a 43.49 million-share secondary offering sold by institutions that had acquired the stock when the company, then known as International Harvester, underwent a financial restructuring in 1983.

Navistar shares subsequently traded at 10%, unchanged from Wednesday's close.

In the general market, analysts said investors seemed to be proceeding warily because of uncertainty over the future course of oil prices.

The price of crude-oil futures for May delivery moved higher in early activity today on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

J.P. Morgan, which reported a sharp increase in first-quarter earnings on Wednesday, climbed 2 1/2 to 80%.

International Business Machines was unchanged at 149 1/2. IBM's report for the first quarter is expected Friday.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .10 to 135.13. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was

SECTION 36.03. COERCION OF PUBLIC SERVANT OR VOTER. (a) A person commits an offense if by means of coercion he/she:

(1) influences or attempts to influence a public servant in a specific exercise of his/her official power or a specific performance of his/her official duty; or

(2) influences or attempts to influence a voter not to vote or to vote in a particular manner.

(b) An offense under this section is a Class A misdemeanor unless the coercion is a threat to commit a felony, in which event it is a felony of the third degree.

PUNISHMENT

Class A Misdemeanor: Any individual adjudged guilty of a class A misdemeanor shall be punished by: (1) a fine not to exceed $2,000. (2) confinement in jail for a term not to exceed one year, or (3) both such fine and imprisonment.

Felony Of The Third Degree: (a) An individual adjudged guilty of a felony of the third degree shall be punished by confinement in the Texas Department Of Corrections for any term for not more than 10 years.

(b) In addition to imprisonment an individual adjudged guilty of a felony of the third degree may be punished by a fine not to exceed $5,000.

Supreme Court to review long-arm law

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to review whether lawsuits against out-of-state firms under the 1959 Texas Long-Arm Statute must be personally served on the Texas Secretary of State.

The question arose in a default judgment of over $260,000 against Fleming Manufacturing Co., Inc., of Missouri.

Fleming, according to court records, sold a brick mold to Capitol Brick, Inc., and a dispute arose with Capitol filing suit in Austin for damages.

Capitol alleged that Fleming was an out-of-state corporation doing business in Texas without a regular place of business or a designated agent for service of citation, and asked that Fleming be cited by serving the secretary of state.

The 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin said a copy of the citation was delivered to an employee of the corporation department in the secretary of state's office but not to the secretary of state, as required by law.

"While such inconvenience is regrettable, it is unavoidable until and unless the Legislature sees fit" to amend the law, the appeals court said in reversing the trial court judgment for Capitol Brick.

The Supreme Court on Wednesday granted Capitol's motion for writ of error and set oral arguments for April 30.

Board set for big crowd at hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans upset with proposed state rules for private schools converged on Austin for today's State Board of Education committee hearing.

"Private schools, including home schools, have flourished in Texas with minimal government regulation and have consistently turned out superior academic products," said

W. Kirk McCord of Dallas, director of the Texas Home School Coalition.

McCord and several other groups opposed to the proposed rules held a Wednesday news conference at the Capitol. The groups planned a rally today before the committee's public hearing.

The proposed rules would set standards for teachers and curriculum in private and church schools. Current rules only require those schools to offer a course in citizenship.

The Texas Education Agency warned that the hearing, although moved to a University of Texas auditorium, would be crowded.

"Once the auditorium is filled, no one will be allowed in except for reporters with valid press credentials," the agency said in a release.

Many politicians, including GOP gubernatorial candidates Bill Clements and Kent Hance, are expected to attend the pre-hearing rally.

CARRIERS

Malaga, but sources said that could happen as early as today.

The carrier America, meantime, left the port of Livorno, Italy, as scheduled Wednesday. That ship was told to remain under way at sea instead of heading toward a second port call in Cannes, France, the sources said.

"It has become clear over the past 24 hours that we're going to keep our options open for the moment by keeping two carriers over there," said one source.

If a military strike is ordered, sources said, the Navy will have a total of 21 combat ships at its disposal, including the two carriers and five amphibious landing ships filled with Marines. The sources stressed, however, the Marine task force was not part of the Pentagon's contingency planning.

FFA members to compete

Eighteen Hereford Future Farmer of America members will be among about 2,000 students competing in the 58th annual FFA Judging Contest on Saturday at Texas Tech University.

Hereford's teams will be entering contests for livestock, dairy cattle, dairy products, land and meats.

The contest is a state qualifying event.

Unusual competition attracts variety of people

By STEVE PARKS

For Associated Press

PERALTA, N.M. (AP) — The smell of hay and dust mixes with the fresh country air as Lou Keating, a stocky man with a white beard, stacks bales of hay in preparation for his Jackpot Rodeo.

The competition held one Sunday a month doesn't attract big name rodeo stars. People from all walks of life come to see if they can stay aboard a bucking bronc for eight seconds.

"They come out here meek and mild," Keating said. "When they leave, they're strutting ... thinking, 'Hey, I can take on the world.'"

The rodeos are an integral part of the Lou Keating Rodeo School. They provide competition for the students, who pay a $22 entry fee for a chance to win a belt buckle.

The school's regular training sessions are held each weekend when Keating, 51, is free from his regular job as an insurance claims adjuster. He teaches people how to ride bucking horses, both bareback and saddle bronc.

Rodeoing has been a life-long love affair for Keating, who first came to New Mexico as a "New York cowboy."

The Yonkers, N.Y., native entered his first rodeo at age 16.

"I lucked out. I won second money. Second money was $8, and I said, 'I'll never see another poor day,'" Keating said. "That was the easiest eight bucks I ever made. I got hooked on rodeo and been hooked ever since."

Keating said his parents went along with his love of rodeo. He grew up believing it was a good, clean sport.

"It beats the heck out of walking with a gang," Keating said. "My mother was a registered nurse and my father was a surgeon. They figured between the two of them, what ever happened to me, they could patch me up."

He came to New Mexico in 1952 to join the University of New Mexico rodeo team and became a co-captain of the squad.

"Just as I got here, they declared it a non-varsity sport with no subsidies," he said.

He said team members did odd jobs around the university to raise money so they could participate in rodeos.

After college, Keating went to work and then he quit rodeoing.

But his criticism of a cowboy at a rodeo in Farmington about 11 years ago prompted his return to the sport and began a chain of events that led to his starting the school.

"He put his rigging on the horse, and I was taking pictures," Keating said. "The horse is coming out the chute on the run, head up, not bucking at all. And he's got both hands in the air and was leaning back. He just let go. The horse went out from under him and he hit the ground."

Keating said he heard the cowboy say the horse had blown him out of the saddle.

"I said, 'He didn't blow you out of the rigging, you let go.' It was almost a flat fight right then and there. I told him, 'Mister, I want you to watch Lou Keating. Probably, I'm going to buck off some horses. But you're never going to see me give up,'" Keating said.

Keating decided it was time to return to the rodeo. He bought a bucking machine.

"I bought the machine for my own use," he said. "You can't use it by yourself, and my wife is not really rodeo-oriented. She'd turn the machine on and never turn it off. The only way I could get off the machine was to get bucked off. After a while, that gets old."

One thing led to another. Friends came over to ride the machine. Before long, he was working the machine until midnight, every night.

"Every time you push the button on that big monster, it costs 35 cents," he said.

Keating said his wife, Dee, soon insisted he make his friends pay for rides so he began charging a dollar for three bouts with the mechanical bronc.

But he said the machine wasn't enough, and he bought three bucking horses.

"Pretty soon, my friends are coming down. They want to get on my practice horses," Keating said. He decided to charge for the rides and, in 1976, the school began to take shape.

The school doesn't have a formal enrollment. Professional cowboys show up at times to work on their craft but the school generally caters to the high school-type cowboy. Students range in age from as young as about 12 to as old as around 50, Keating said.

"We teach them as they go along," he said.

He said no one gets on a bronc until the person can prove he can ride the machine.

"If you can't ride the machine, you can't ride a horse," he said.

Keating said it's $1 per ride on the machine, $10 for one bronc, $17 for two or $24 for three. The machine is free to those who pay to ride the real thing.

Videotapes of the rodeos are used to show students how they can improve.

Keating said the training builds confidence and character.

"Kids who are into rodeo are not into dope, and that's why we say rodeo is America's No. 1 sport." That's Keating's motto, and it's how the recording on his telephone answering machine begins.

"Cowboys say there is no better high than the natural high you get from riding a bucking horse in a rodeo," he said.

"I rode a horse in Chama once," he said. "Sixteen cowboys came out of the chute and they all bucked off. I was the last cowboy out, gray haired and all. I rode the horse. ... Everyone in the stands was on their feet, clapping. Even the team ropers were out there clapping."

He said he still dreams about that.

Keating doesn't ride like he used to. Five or six years ago, he was thrown by one of his own broncs and hit the ground hard. His back was broken.

"That put a hiatus on my rodeoing," he said.

But he still has his school. Some students come to sharpen their skills, hoping for the day they can make big bucks on the professional circuit. Others come for different reasons — the enjoyment, the challenge.

"I'm real serious about it," said Shawn Ortega, a 24-year-old Keating student who makes his living playing in a country-western band but says he's "chasing a world title."

"You can't really make any money unless you practice," he said. "I figure if I'm going to go down the road with it, I may as well go through the famine as well as the feast."

Another student, Troy Rogers, said he spends his weekends at Keating's school "for the sport of it."

"When you ride good, it's a feeling you can't describe," the 29-year-old carpenter said. "It's like a high, I guess."

John Pearce, a 23-year-old carpenter, said he goes to the school because he enjoys the stiff competition and "to prove to myself I can do it."

Marge Dressel, a veteran barrel racer, became a student because she wanted to learn bareback bronc riding.

"It's a real kick," said the 32-year-old bartender.

But Keating said rodeo teaches all of the students something about themselves and what they can do when they have the right attitude.

"Once the gate opens, it's you and the animal. ... The only way you can hurt a cowboy is cut his head off and hide it from him. It's a matter of pride to get up and walk out of that arena," he said.

Advertising may be creating confusion

Television advertising about "equal access" by long-distance companies may be creating some confusion for Hereford residents.

Equal access, one of the by-products of the Bell System break-up, allows customers to place long-distance calls through the company of their choice by simply dialing 1+ the number. "That's a big change because in the past, customers had to dial as many as 24 digits when using a long-distance company other than AT&T," said Gary Stevens, manager-community relations for Southwestern Bell Telephone.

But not all Southwestern Bell Telephone customers in Texas will participate in the equal access program at this time.

The divestiture agreement recognized that equal access would not be economically feasible in all locations because costly electronic switching equipment is necessary to provide the service.

"Telephone switching offices with electro-mechanical equipment, the older-style equipment such as we have here in Hereford, cannot offer equal access without undergoing extensive modification," said Gary Stevens. "We expect our present equipment to meet the area's telecommunications needs for several years."

"At that time, conversion to electronic equipment and equal access likely will take place. But in the meantime, customers here don't have to be concerned with selecting a primary long-distance carrier, he said."

In Texas, about 20 percent of all Southwestern Bell Telephone lines are served by electro-mechanical switching offices.

Equal access primarily is available in larger cities and metropolitan areas because electronic switching equipment generally is used in the more densely populated locations.

Stevens said many smaller communities in Texas may not have electronic switching in the immediate future, primarily for economic reasons.

The term Middle Ages generally covers the years from A.D. 476 to A.D. 1450.

Boys and girls in the state of Utah, with their parents' consent, can get married at age 14.

TAXES

TAXES noun a compulsory payment for the support of government.

Benjamin Franklin is credited with saying "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes."

While we all must pay some taxes, now there's a way to pay less. It's with an Individual Retirement Account. This allows you an opportunity to place $2,000 a year ($4,000 if both you and your spouse work, $2,250 if only one of a married couple works) into a special account that is free of federal income taxes. Even the interest you earn isn't taxable.

Don't pay more taxes than you need to pay. Come to the First National Bank of Hereford and open your I.R.A.

A tax and/or interest penalty may apply for early withdrawal of your I.R.A.

Rangers suffer 3-1 loss to Blue Jays

By The Associated Press
Toronto's Doyle Alexander and ace reliever Tom Henke made the Texas Rangers wish they had kept them. Alexander came home to get his 150th major league victory and Henke, who spent three years with the Rangers, was magnificent in relief in a 3-1 victory on Wednesday night.

The 35-year-old Alexander, a resident of Arlington, scattered seven hits and was on the way to his 14th major league shutout until Pete O'Brien tagged him for a ninth inning homer.

Alexander, who also spent three years with the Rangers, gave up a one-out double to Gary Ward. Henke came on and struck out Larry Parrish and Darrell Porter to end the game and get the save.

The Blue Jays spoiled the Rangers' debut of 19-year-old Edwin Correa, who pitched well until he was hit on the leg with a line drive off the bat of Rance Mulliniks.

Correa, the youngest player in the major leagues, suffered swelling around the knee and will undergo X-rays.

"It felt good getting the victory at home where I have a lot of friends," said Alexander. "It was a good night but I would have liked to have the shutout. I got the ball a little up on O'Brien and he's a good hitter."

Alexander is now 3-0 against his former team.

Alexander said "I had a bad spring and I may go out and lose five in a row but I feel good now. The main thing about the victory was that it was important to the the victory was the first for new Toronto manager Jimmy Williams.

"Doyle did a good job of changing speeds and threw a lot of strikes," said Williams. "I went to Henke because Doyle hasn't gone the distance all spring."

Rangers' Manager Bobby Valentine said "Alexander is the type of guy you have to get early. We let him get off the hook and that was it."

It took the best heads in the country to come up with a grain sorghum like this.

You can trust HT 126DR.

If you've been thinking about using a superior grain sorghum hybrid, trust the best heads in the country to produce Terra's HT 126DR. This medium maturing hybrid with tropical breeding contains full season yield potential. It is medium height, with excellent standability and good head exertion with semi-open head. Plus HT 126DR has disease resistance to downy mildew, MDMV, head smut and tolerant to anthracnose.

Smart farmers plant HT 126DR.

HT 126DR performs well throughout the sorghum belt and it's high yielding properties are especially adapted to all sorghum producing areas having sufficient rainfall or irrigation. Smart farmers throughout the country plant HT 126DR grain sorghum, because HT 126DR is a very intelligent choice.

Get HT 126DR at your nearby Terra Seed dealer.

DR. GOTT Check labels to avoid salt

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Please tell me the difference between salt and sodium. They are often listed together as the same ingredient.

DEAR READER — Sodium is a mineral that is very common in our environment. It is attached to many compounds. When sodium combines with chloride, it forms salt (sodium chloride). Salt is often dangerous for people with heart disease and high blood pressure because, when eaten, it can stay in the body, hold water and cause fluid buildup. During digestion, sodium is often split off from other compounds; it then combines with chloride in the body and forms salt. Therefore, patients on low-salt diets must be cautious about eating any sodium-containing substance. For practical purposes, any food that contains sodium is dangerous. Check with your physician to make sure that there is no physical cause for your problem, such as anemia or an overactive thyroid gland. In otherwise healthy women, palpitations are, by themselves, no cause for concern. Perhaps you need to learn some ways to relax — like getting more rest or trying meditation. In any case, the place to start is with your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had very painful neck muscle spasms that get worse as I get older. What causes them and what can I do to help them, aside from applying heat and taking Tylenol?

DEAR READER — Spasms of the neck muscles have many causes, including injury, arthritis of the upper spine and stress. Ask your physician to help you identify the particular cause in your case. Although heat and Tylenol are acceptable methods of treating the condition, there may be more appropriate and useful ways to relieve your symptoms.

sodium can produce unwanted salt in the body. Many manufacturers list sodium, rather than sodium chloride, on food labels. If you must avoid salt in your diet, avoid sodium as well as sodium chloride.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it all right for a baby never to have water to drink? About five months ago a friend had a baby; she never gives it water. She feels that the formula is liquid enough and that he needs nothing more to drink. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Your friend is correct that infants do not need water. Breast milk or properly prepared formula supplies a baby's water requirements. There are exceptions to this rule. In a very hot climate, babies may need small amounts of additional water (two to four ounces); also, infants who appear to demand more feedings can often be satisfied with little "in-between snacks" of water.

In 1894, Sun Yat-sen led his first attempt at revolution in China—a revolt that finally succeeded in 1911.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother was pushed to incredible limits by our parents. From the day he was born, no matter what he did it was never good enough. He finished second in his class at Yale. When he was one year away from getting his Ph.D. in physics, my mother told him, "I want to introduce you to my friend, but don't tell her you don't have your Ph.D. yet. I said you already have it."

My brother developed severe psychological problems and has been institutionalized for the last four years.

I have spent a lot of time around high-achieving graduate students, and saw many parents who were distraught when their babies walked, talked, and even grew at near-average rates. Just today, a friend called. She was worried because her 4-week-old infant was not smiling yet. I asked her when babies usually start to smile. She replied, "At about six weeks."

Please tell the mothers and fathers who read your column that if they want an exceptional infant, one who grows fast, is coordinated early, sits up early and walks, to get a chimpanzee. Chimps develop so rapidly they make humans appear retarded by comparison.

To be emotionally healthy one must have a normal childhood with ample time to develop desirable qualities, become intelligent, sociable, to achieve at a comfortable rate, enjoy life and feel good about one's self—TOO BAD MY PARENTS MISSED THE BOAT IN CALIF.

DEAR FRIEND: Well said. Thanks for an excellent letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERES: My husband and I are expecting our fourth child in a couple of months. My husband's sister is being married 10 days after my due date. Since she knew when our baby was due, it's clear that she didn't care whether I was present or not. (The wedding is a four-hour drive from our home.)

My husband was asked to be an usher. He very much wants to be at his sister's wedding. My first response was to tell him to go and enjoy himself whether or not I go. He agreed to take the two older children (ages 5 and 7) with him. After thinking it over I realized that I am not happy about staying home alone for three days with a toddler and a newborn. His family wants him to be at the rehearsal dinner.

My husband sees no reason why I can't care for myself and the children in his absence. My going with him is now out of the question because the pediatrician says I cannot take the baby out of town until it is at least 3 weeks old. My husband said he would stay home with me if I felt I really needed him, but it would ruin his relationship with his family.

This is a burden I do not wish to carry, so I told him to go and I would hire someone to stay with me. I am very hurt by his desire to be with his family rather than with me at a time when I need him.—SENSITIVE IN MD?

the real villain to me. She could have scheduled her wedding three weeks later and avoided a lot of trouble.

Insist that your husband go, and hire help for you. If he stays home he'll never forgive you and neither will his family. But between you and me, a father of three kids under 7 years of age should be man enough to put his pregnant wife before his sister.

Many survive from cancer

Having cancer does not mean the end of the world.

The very word strikes a feeling of terror in many people, but Davor Vugrin, M.D., chief of oncology at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, says for most cancers a lot can be done. In very few cases can nothing be done.

"Contrary to a widespread belief, being diagnosed with cancer does not mean you've signed your death warrant," Vugrin said.

In 1986, 1,380,000 people are projected to develop cancer, Vugrin said. Of those, 400,000 cases will be slow-growing skin cancer, other than melanoma, and most of them curable by simple removal of the tumor. Another 50,000 will have noninvasive, or non-spreading, cervical cancer, and another 5,000 will have noninvasive breast cancer.

Of the remaining 925,000 who develop invasive cancer, 90 percent will survive with appropriate treatments, Vugrin said.

The majority of cancers, he said, could be successful treated with surgery, radiation, chemotherapy, hormonal therapy or immunotherapy. The best chance for survival is in early detection and removal of the involved part or organ.

The National Cancer Institute has set a goal for this country to cut cancer mortality in half by the year 2000—a goal Vugrin sees as optimistic but possible because of improved methods for prevention, early detection and treatment.

"Treating early stages of the disease is usually not very difficult," he said. "It's when the disease has disseminated to other parts of the body that the problems occur."

A patient's first reaction to a cancer diagnosis is usually shock, he said, followed by an attitude of "why me?"

"People also immediately think they will die in a very short time."

Vugrin believes that patient education is the key to the helping cancer victims cope with their futures and is vital to their commitment to adhere to treatment regimens.

"In dealing with cancer, physicians have to treat the disease, but the psychological aspects are often overlooked," he said. "The first couple of weeks after diagnosis are critical for educating the patient that not all cancers are equally bad. The best patient is the educated patient."

Fear of cancer often causes people to ignore signs and symptoms of the disease and thus delay diagnosis. Cancer victims may even deny the diagnosis once they are told about it, putting off treatment even longer and thus forfeiting a possible cure, he said.

Patients who do seek a professional opinion often are overwhelmed when they are diagnosed and are too stunned to ask the questions they need answered.

"They have to learn not to be afraid to ask," Vugrin said.

Physicians have the responsibility to explain to patients exactly what illness they have, he said, but they must determine how soon and to what degree the news can be broken.

"It's important to tell them early, give them the steps of the disease's development and then get right to the point of their particular type of tumor and what treatments are available for each step," Vugrin said. "If you give them an honest appraisal on how they could be helped, they'll go with you. They'll believe you and continue to try even if the outcome looks bleak.

"They'll also respond as long as the physician takes into account human dignity. Most patients, if the disease and their options are explained to them, still will have good motivation to fight even if the probability of favorable outcome is low.

"It is very important to make the patient an actively participating partner in the treatment."

The belief that "nothing can be done" is most likely not true, Vugrin said. Even in the worst cases, simple psychological and nutritional support will improve quality of life and enable the victim to deal more successfully with the illness.

Patients' motivation is naturally much higher when the treatment is short-term, Vugrin said. But keeping motivation up in all instances is important so that pessimism or depression do not get in the way of a possible cure or the prolongation of a useful and comfortable life.

Some tumors disappear with treatment even in the most advanced stages, he said. But, even in less successful cases, supportive measures should be taken to prolong the patient's good quality of life.

"One should never take away a hope," Vugrin said. "It's a common mistake for physicians to give a patient a deadline by which death will occur. They may tell patients they have three to six months to live, and five years later, they're still here," he said.

Vugrin's work and research has put him in such close contact with patients that he feels as if they were members of his own family. He has adopted a special philosophy to cope with those times when a death occurs.

"I know the natural course of untreated cancer is a steady, downhill course, and what I am trying to do with treatments is to interrupt that trend. Sometimes treatments result in a cure, sometimes the condition stabilizes and sometimes it continues downhill despite all our efforts," he said.

"The physician receives enormous mental reward from reversing and interrupting that natural downhill course. Although now more than ever in our history have we scored success in the treatment of cancers, we have to keep it in perspective and be realistic by expecting some losses."

POLLY'S POINTERS Luxuriate with home bubble bath

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Could you repeat your recipe for homemade bubble bath? The mixture contained epsom salts and fragrance. What was used to make the bubbles? — JILL

DEAR JILL — You'll enjoy relaxing in a luxurious tub of soothing bubbles when you make this homemade bubble bath.

Mix one-half cup gentle dishwashing liquid (for bubbles), one cup epsom salts, four to five drops glycerine, three to four drops perfume or cologne and four to five drops food coloring, if desired. Store in a tightly covered jar. For a luxurious bubble bath, add one to two tablespoons bubble bath to the running water. Relax and enjoy!

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Home Beauty Spa," which has this formula as well as other homemade cosmetics including a yogurt-honey-oatmeal facial, aloe vera salve and a scented skin bracer. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I'm a scout leader and today I was in great need of rubber bands. I took two balloons and cut off the thick rubber end, then continued to slice the balloons to the end.

These will make fine rubber bands for the craft I have in mind to do today. Being a scout leader, I've learned to use discards to my advantage. — NANCY

DEAR POLLY — I have a kitchen table with a white plastic laminate top. The way I keep it free of stains and hairline scratches is to scrub it with the suds from a bar of heavy duty hand soap (the kind with a gentle abrasive in it). I use the same thing on my white porcelain stove top. Repeat OFTEN to keep these household units free of unsightly stains and scratches. — DONALD

DEAR POLLY — Before I clean my wedding and engagement rings, each has diamond settings. I always slip them on a large safety pin. Then I put them in a small sauce dish filled with warm water, a little detergent or liquid soap and a few drops of ammonia and let them soak for about five minutes.

I brush them gently with an old toothbrush and rinse in warm water with a few more drops of ammonia. I dry them with a tissue. The rings really sparkle after this treatment. The safety pin makes it easier to hold on in case you happen to drop them, which is easily done when they are soapy and wet. Other rings with settings can be cleaned at the same time. When not wearing my rings, I also keep them on a safety pin. — FLORENCE

Precautions for safety given

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 met in regular session Monday night with Betty Boggs presiding. The meeting was preceded by a supper for VFW and Auxiliary members.

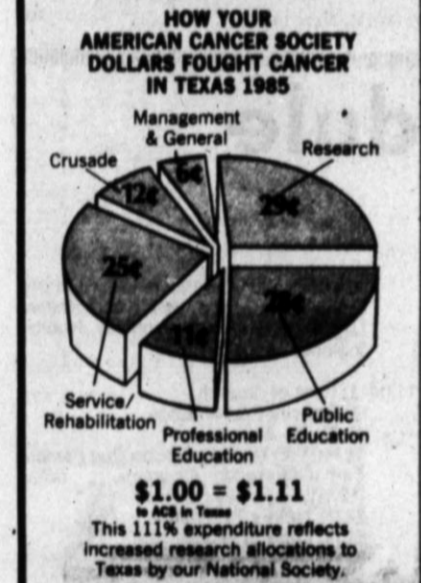

Chuck Cosper gave a very informative demonstration on gun safety, wildlife regulations and general precautions for personal safety in dealing with firearms.

During the business session, general orders from department and other correspondence were read and disposed of. State Convention will be June 27-29 in Austin and District 13 Convention will be May 3-4 in Plainview.

Members present were Helen Bishop, Boggs, Leone Buckley, Doris Coffin, Rose Goheen, Frances Green, Maisie Heath, Essie Martin, Erma Murphey, Doris Wilson, Debbie Broadstreet and Marie Goheen.

The next meeting will be April 21 at 7:30 p.m.

NBC wins prime time, ties in news

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC received a double dose of good news from last week's ratings: a victory in prime time and a tie in dinnertime news.

With NBC just two weeks away from officially claiming its first outright triumph in the traditional 30-week prime-time season, the network placed five comedies in the Top 10 and scored a narrow victory for the week of March 31-April 6.

And the "NBC Nightly News" came as close to the "CBS Evening News" as it's been in four years, almost stopping CBS' consecutive winning streak. But, with the ratings tie, the "CBS Evening News" still can claim 205 straight first-place finishes.

A.C. Nielsen Co. figures, released Tuesday, showed that both Dan

Rather's newscast on CBS and Tom Brokaw's broadcast on NBC averaged an 11.8 rating, while Peter Jennings' "World News Tonight" on ABC had a 10.9 rating.

The last time "NBC Nightly News" tied the "CBS Evening News" was a week in February 1982 when both broadcasts had a 13.4 rating.

The three regular anchors were on their newscasts last week, but network researchers said that the "CBS Evening News" rating probably was deflated slightly because it was preempted on the West Coast by CBS' live broadcast of the NCAA basketball finals March 31.

In prime time, NBC almost was overtaken by CBS' blockbuster Sunday lineup that included the network's three Top 10 programs:

"Murder, She Wrote," "60 Minutes" and "Nobody's Child," the critically praised movie starring Mario Thomas.

For the four hours of prime-time programming on Sunday, CBS averaged a 25.0 rating to ABC's 14.0 and NBC's 13.3.

A single ratings point equals

TDA authorizes temporary storage

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Agriculture said Tuesday it has approved, for the first time, temporary storage facilities in anticipation of an overflow grain crop this year.

"The federal government has masterminded a policy that in 1986 again forces our farmers to produce 850,000 homes with television.

Overall, NBC's "The Cosby Show" ranked first for the week with a 34.3 rating.

The best-performing new series was ABC's "Perfect Strangers," which, in its second outing, held on to most of the audience of its lead-in, "Who's the Boss?" and ranked ninth.

far more grain than can be stored this year," said Deputy Commissioner Mike Mueller.

"This is in addition to last year's tremendous overproduction, most of which still remains in local storage elevators across the country."

Mueller said the TDA would have a list of rigid requirements which must be met before temporary storage sites will be approved.

"A survey of the state indicates we simply do not have enough storage space to take in this year's harvest," Mueller said.

He said there are about 745 grain warehouses licensed by TDA. Mueller said those in the Wichita Falls area, in the heart of the wheat-growing region, are already 77 percent full.

Former Texan gains fame helping Hispanics

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — After only a few years in Oregon, José Angel Gutierrez, 41, is gaining recognition for creating successful social service programs for Hispanics.

During the past two years, Gutierrez has been director of both the Oregon Commission on Hispanic Affairs and the Oregon Council for Hispanic Advancement. He took control of the state commission in early 1984, after it became a legislative agency rather than a governor's commission.

In May 1984, the United Way of Columbia-Willamette hired him to supervise the creation of the Oregon Council for Hispanic Advancement. The group was launched after a March 1985 conference on Hispanic strategy from 1985 to 1990. United Way then hired him as a full-time director of special projects for the council.

"He's kind of a catalyst, he keeps things ignited," said Raquel Aquillon, administrative assistant for the Hispanic commission. "A lot of things that are happening with OCHA and the commission wouldn't be happening if it weren't for him."

"He inspires people to get involved and to give 100 percent. If he were to leave the state, I can't think of anyone who has the strength to keep the commission alive."

Gutierrez doesn't mince words about his mission to assist Hispanics. He said he's "paid by the United Way, but I work for OCHA."

Gutierrez believes that for some, the American dream has been replaced by "an ugly American nightmare."

"The black and Hispanic youth are en route — as the Indian youth is already there. — to becoming a subclass, where they could remain in unemployment and poverty," he said. "It's going to take people like them to understand that this is happening and people like me in partnership to help get them out of that."

"I firmly believe that you can make things happen, for yourself anyway," he said.

In his council work, Gutierrez has obtained funding to start several social and business groups for Hispanics. Gutierrez will directly supervise a newly formed Youth Leadership Institute and a regional non-partisan voter registration organization.

"We're fortunate to have him," said York Haines, vice president of communications for United Way. "This has been a very positive experience and, I think, a win situation for the United Way and the Hispanic community."

The Hispanic services project was intended as a pilot for future programs, Haines said. But it's been more.

"It broadened the concept and gave the Hispanic community a vehicle to become self-sufficient," Haines said.

The United Way expected the project to take three to five years, but Gutierrez made the independent Hispanic council possible in just a year and a half, Haines added.

"He's not just someone with a cause, he's results-oriented," Haines said. "He knows where to go and what he has to do."

"He wants to let Oregon know of the Hispanic presence and that they're in other professions besides agriculture," said Efrain Diaz-Horna, a former chairman of the state Hispanic commission.

Gutierrez "doesn't alienate, he's diplomatic and positive," Diaz said.

"Some Hispanics have a lot of bitterness about how they've been treated by the system," Diaz said. While Gutierrez may harbor some bitterness, he reaches beyond that, Diaz added.

"You don't see anger; he has a desire to work for better things," said Diaz, a native of Peru who has lived in Oregon since 1966.

Gutierrez was born in Crystal City, a south Texas town of 10,000. By the time he was 30, he had earned bachelor's and master's degrees in political science and a Ph.D. in government at the University of Texas in Austin.

He was organizing Mexican-Americans in the 1960s, and in 1967 he was one of five college students who founded the Mexican-American Youth Organization in Texas.

In 1970, he led another group in founding La Raza Unida, which became a national political party. The group pioneered the popular use of the term "Chicano" as a positive description of Mexican-Americans.

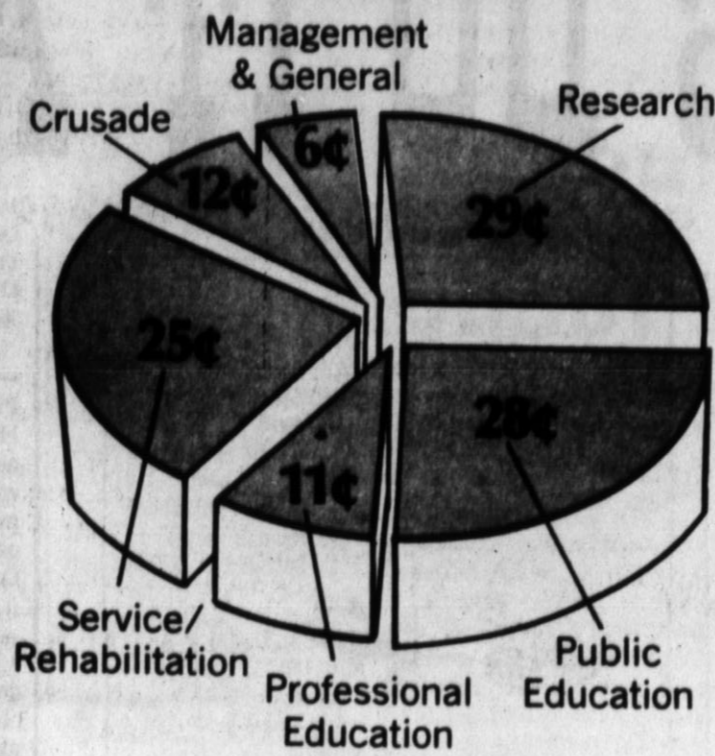

Gutierrez served on the school board in Crystal City and eventually became board president. He later became a county commissioner.

Gutierrez resigned his county post and in 1980 left Texas for Oregon where he hoped to become president of Colegio Cesar Chavez, the troubled Mount Angel college that closed in 1983.

Gutierrez did not get that job, however, and as a teacher he soon found that the college had more problems than a newcomer could solve. But he was not deterred from pursuing his own mission.

"Opportunities come or you make them," Gutierrez said. "What I thought I could do was save it (the college) and make it a viable institution, but that didn't happen for me or the college."

Brown accepted as member into Hospital Auxiliary

Phyllis Brown was voted to full membership when members of the Deaf Smith General Hospital Auxiliary Board met Monday in the hospital conference room.

The auxiliary prayer was led by Nell Culpepper.

During the business session, Grace Covington reported 250 hours of service in March and it was announced that the recent bake sale had netted $115.

It was also reported that the chairs the auxiliary had purchased for the hospital had arrived and that the Hospital Auxiliary Convention will be held June 2-4 in San Antonio.

Carolyn Andrews, chairman of the Hereford Chapter of the American Cancer Society, announced that the annual cancer drive is planned April 20-27. Members are asked to walk their blocks. Packets will be stuffed Friday morning. She also reported that a new film on cancer, entitled "Wellness Is Ageless," may be obtained for a program to interested groups or individuals.

A nominating committee was elected. They included Theda Seivers, Culpepper and Mary Williamson.

Those present were Etoile Manning, Baxter London, Helen Brown, Peg Hoff, Covington, Culpepper, Bonnie Sublett, Lupe Cerda, Jane White, Bertha P. Dettmann, Karen Barela, Gwen London, Williamson, Olga Harris, Brown and Mary Lou Spinhirne.

Gulley directs PTA musical program

Shirley Intermediate PTA members and parents met recently for their regular meeting and a musical program at the school.

Jane Gulley directed the Shirley choir that presented songs and skits concerning "Going To Texas."

Following the program, the business session was held. The meeting was called to order by President Sherrie Blackwell. Martha Rickman, secretary, read the minutes from the previous meeting and it was reported that the PTA had hosted Valentine parties for the children. The organization made Valentine cookies and furnished drinks.

It was voted that the PTA will hold the book fair April 22-25 at Shirley. The group will also sponsor a Shirley T-shirt sale before the May 8 track meet.

A motion was made and seconded that officers remain the same through next year. They included president, Blackwell; vice-president, Gayle Carter; and reporter, Vicky Ortiz.

The largest natural cave "room" in the world is in New Mexico's Carlsbad Caverns: a chamber 1,500 feet long, 300 feet wide and 300 feet high.

The greatest distance between two points in the United States is the 5,850 miles from Elliot Key, Fla., to Hawaii's Kure Island.

Members present were Marge Bell, Jackie Fangman, Kim Blackwell, Jo Ann Noyes, Kathy Christie, Linda Baird, Olivia Brown, Leaton Noyes, Carmen Rickman, Carter, Sharon Cummings, Terri Loring, Dee Ann Matthews, Martha Rickman, Lee Sherman, Belinda Godwin and Blackwell.

The next meeting will be in May.

Tax Tips

Fifteenth in a series of "tax tip" articles provided by the Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.
Q. What are the record keeping rules for travel and entertainment expenses?
A. For travel and entertainment expenses, the current rules for documentation requires records that substantiate:
-amount of expenditure
-time and place of travel or entertainment
-business purpose
Adequate records include:
-documentary evidence, such as paid receipts
-account books, daily diaries and travel logs
-expense and trip reports
-written statements of witnesses
"Contemporaneous" records are not required. Also, tax preparers are not required to obtain a signed statement from their clients certifying compliance with the record keeping requirements.

Appeals court bars testimony about 'Holocaust Syndrome'

AUSTIN (AP) - A state appeals judge has criticized his colleagues for barring a Houston man from using "Holocaust Syndrome" as part of his defense against a murder charge.
A psychiatrist who examined defendant Peter Alan Werner said the man grew up hearing Nazi concentration camp stories from his father, who was imprisoned in such a camp. Those stories could have left Werner prone to over-react in situations he perceived as self defense, the doctor said.
Werner, then 21, was sentenced to 10 years in prison in the April 1982 death of Tarbell Griffin Travis. Prosecutors said Werner chased Travis after Travis' vehicle damaged a car owned by a friend of Werner.
Travis was shot to death by Werner.
The testimony about Holocaust Syndrome was barred by the trial judge. That decision was upheld Wednesday by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in a majority opinion written by Presiding Judge John Onion.

"It did not establish that (Werner) did in fact act under the influence of the Holocaust on the night of the offense," Onion said.
But Judge Marvin Teague said testimony about Holocaust Syndrome should be allowed, just as is testimony about "Battered Wife Syndrome," "Battle Fatigue Syndrome," "Viet Nam Post-Traumatic Stress Syndrome" and similar conditions.
"Tomorrow, there will probably be additions to the list, such as 'The Appellate Court Judge Syndrome,'" Teague said.
He said jurors were entitled to hear about Werner's state of mind and "his belief that it was necessary for him to defend himself because he comes from a family who did not defend themselves, thus causing them to perish in the Holocaust."
"Today the majority opinion rules out evidence concerning the Holocaust Syndrome. In light of this opinion, what will tomorrow bring?" Teague asked.

Judge Sam Houston Clinton also dissented but did not write an opinion.
Werner's father is a concentration camp survivor. Several other family members died in the camps, according to Dr. Rudolph Roden, a psychiatrist who examined Werner.
Roden, himself a concentration camp survivor, is an expert in the effects of the Holocaust on survivors and their families. In his testimony, which was barred, Roden planned to say that Werner "grew up with stories of concentration camps told to him by his father and grandmother, who related seeing people beaten to death who did not fight back."

Roden said that although Werner was not thinking directly about the Holocaust when he pulled the trigger, it might have had a "sub-conscious effect on him."
Werner's views of injustice were colored by the concentration camp stories, according to Roden, and the act of the victim in "running into a car and leaving the scene was an unjust act ... and he sought to right the wrong by detaining (Travis) for the police," according to Roden.
"It was his state of mind to defend himself because he comes from a family that did not," he said.

Popcorn is a best seller at bank

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Like a beckoning finger, the smell of corn popping reaches out to entice passersby to the red, white and blue stand in the lobby of the downtown MBank.
"We think our popcorn machine gives the place a homey atmosphere," said Ted Houghton, bank executive vice president in charge of marketing and consumer services.
"Too many people have the idea that banks are cold and impersonal ... disarming places. So about eight years ago, we bought this stand, and it's been a big hit. Our bank at Bassett has one, and we have this one and another that travels around. And we've just ordered another one."
At first the popcorn was given away, Houghton said, but after lines formed around the block, they started charging 20 cents a bag.
"And we still have plenty of pay customers. We don't make anything of it, just enough to pay for our supplies and pay the person that runs it."
"We want to make our customers feel comfortable," Houghton said.
Lupe de la Torre said she enjoys operating the machine because it makes people happy. About 20 minutes between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., she pours seasoned oil over popcorn in a yellow measuring cup, dumps it out into the electrically heated pan and waits while the pan fills with fluffy white popped corn.

While she waits, she takes a broom and a long-handled dust pan and sweeps up the popcorn that customers have dropped on the small carpet under the machine. Then it's time to turn out the latest batch into the machine's glass cabinet.
Often, Ms. de la Torre's little daughter, Erica, 3½, comes along to play among the potted artificial trees along the window wall where the popcorn stand is parked. When the little girl gets tired, her grandmother comes for her and takes her home for lunch on a nap.
Crowds are heaviest during the noon to 1 p.m. lunch hour, Ms. de la Torre said.
Blanca Molina, who works in the bank's retail credit department, is a regular customer.
"Like it? Are you kidding?" she said, as she paid for a brimming sack. "When we smell it, we know it's Friday."
Robert Bell said he always comes in for popcorn.
"But sometimes it's not here, and I'm disappointed. It's supposed to be here every Friday."
Norma Curiel works at the bank's information desk only a few feet away from the popcorn stand. The first pan was popped by 11:30 a.m. and her lunch hour was not until 1 p.m., so she asked a guard to get her a sack to nibble on.
"It smells so good, I can't stand it," Ms. Curiel said.

IT'S WAR! ARE YOU PREPARED?
"Put on all of God's armor so that you will be able to stand safe against all strategies and tricks of Satan. For we are not fighting against people made of flesh and blood, but against persons without bodies - the evil rulers of the unseen world, those mighty Satanic beings and great evil princes of darkness who rule the world; and against huge numbers of wicked spirits in the spirit world.
So use every piece of God's armor to resist the enemy whenever he attacks, and when it is all over, you will still be standing up.
But to do this, you will need the strong belt of truth and the breastplate of God's approval. Wear shoes that are able to speed you on as you preach the Good News of peace with God. In every battle you will need faith as your shield to stop the fiery arrows aimed at you by Satan. And you will need the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit - which is the Word of God." (Ephesians 6:11-17)
"It is true that I am an ordinary, weak human being, but I don't use human plans and methods to win my battles. I use God's might weapons, not those made by men, to knock down the devil's strongholds. These weapons can break down every proud argument against God and every wall that can be built to keep men from finding him. With these weapons I can capture rebels and bring them back to God, and change them into men whose hearts' desire is obedience to Christ." (2 Corinthians 10:3-5)

Running In Groups

Giants score 4-1 win over Astros

By The Associated Press
 San Francisco Manager Roger Craig is batting 1,000 on a pair of spring training decisions.
 One was starting rookie Will Clark at first base and the other was shifting pitcher Scott Garrelts from the bull pen to a starting role.
 Clark delivered his second big hit, a run-scoring double, and Garrelts won his first start of the season Wednesday night as the Giants defeated Houston 4-1 in the Astrodome and moved within tonight's game of a series sweep.
 Craig, starting his first full season as the manager, decided Garrelts could help the Giants in a starting role instead of his 1985 position as an All-Star reliever.
 He was correct.
 "I worried before the game about throwing out of a windup," Garrelts said. "But after the first couple of innings, I felt real comfortable."
 Clark and Bob Melvin had run-scoring doubles and Jeff Leonard had two singles and two runs scored as the Giants won their second straight game over the Astros.
 Rob Thompson's groundout in the sixth inning and Chili Davis' sacrifice fly in the ninth inning produced San Francisco's other two runs.
 Houston's only run came in the sixth when shortstop Dickie Than doubled and scored on a single by Craig Reynolds.

 Houston had a chance to get back in the game in the eighth inning when the Astros loaded the bases with two out but relief pitcher Greg Minton forced Denny Walling to hit into a ground out to end the inning.

Ways with Wine

by David Hutchins

IRISH WHISKEY
 Irish whiskey has long been misunderstood by Americans. They believe that this splendid spirit is a rough liquor. At its best, Irish Whiskey is civilized and sophisticated. It is to be enjoyed before dinner or lingered over afterwards as one would a fine cognac. One of the finest spirits, Irish whiskey is triple-distilled. All other whiskeys, including Scotch, are double-stilled. Extra distillation results in a purer, smoother product with no noticeable smokiness. Made from high-quality grain, especially malted barley, and pure sweet water, it goes through a six-step process. It is malted, mashed, fermented, distilled, matured, and vatted in casks. There, the spirits are left to "marry" in harmony and take on the precise and consistent flavor of a brand.
 The next time you stop into THE STORE to buy a bottle of wine to complement your dinner please feel free to ask us any questions you have about wine.
