

Mob violence erupts in Miami; looter killed

MIAMI (AP) — Dozens of police patrolled a black ghetto early today after rock-tossing gangs looted stores and burned cars in violence sparked when an officer critically wounded a black man playing a video game. One looter was killed by police, authorities said.

Tuesday night's violence in the run-down neighborhood known as Overtown also left at least seven people injured. It was Miami's worst disturbance since a May 1980 riot claimed 18 lives and caused $100 million in property damage.

Nine people had been arrested on various charges by early today, said police spokesman Mike Stewart. An 84-square-block area remained sealed off, with exit ramps on a nearby highway closed, and about 50 officers equipped with riot gear were on patrol, said Stewart.

"Now it's real quiet," he said shortly before dawn. "There's only sporadic incidents of rocks and bottles being thrown."

The man whose shooting by police prompted the violence, Nevell Johnson Jr., was reported in critical condition today at Jackson Memorial Hospital with a bullet wound in the head. Two witnesses claimed the shooting was unprovoked.

Community leaders warned that violence might flare again, since Overtown is near the site of the Orange Bowl Parade on New Year's Eve, and the Orange Bowl college football game on New Year's Night.

"This weekend, that neighborhood is going to be a dangerous place," said Bill Perry, president of the local chapter of People United to Save Humanity, who said he walked the streets to try to quell violence. "These people are mad. We can probably expect a lot more trouble."

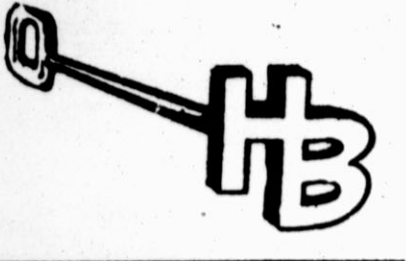

Perry said he thought many rioters wanted to avenge the shooting of Johnson. After he was wounded, two or three officers investigating the shooting were trapped in the arcade by an angry mob for about an hour before they could be freed with a tear gas assault, police said.

Reagan heads for vacation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan has completed his business in the West and plans several days of relaxation in Palm Springs, highlighted by a New Year's Eve party with friends from the business and entertainment worlds.

The president was flying late this afternoon to Palm Springs, after a 27-hour visit to Los Angeles for the recommissioning of the battleship USS New Jersey and a quiet evening at a hotel.

One of the few remaining pieces of business the traveling White House may conduct while Reagan is in the West will be the announcement of a presidential commission, appointed at the urging of Congress, to study possible basing modes for the MX missile.

Reagan's proposal to place 100 missiles in silos near Cheyenne, Wyo., in a closely spaced "dense pack" pattern met with strong objections in the House and Senate, forcing the president to agree to name a panel to give the issue further study.

Overnight low sets record

Old Man Winter tightened his grip on Hereford early today, and the mercury in area thermometers may have been reaching for electric blankets as a new low temperature mark was recorded.

The area's official weather station, KPAN radio, recorded a temperature of a minus five degrees at 4 a.m. today. That broke the old low on this date by nine degrees. The old record was a four-degree reading in 1917.

Light snowfall also added .03 an inch of precipitation to the month's previous total of 1.55 inches. The city's yearly total rose to 17.23 with the added moisture.

The area forecast called for clear skies with partly cloudy conditions Thursday. The high temperature was expected to be in the mid 30's today.

An administration official, requesting anonymity, said that former Defense Secretaries Harold Brown, who served in the Carter administration, and James Schlesinger, a veteran of the Ford administration, were "highly likely" to join the commission.

Seized drugs worth millions

ROME, Ga. (AP) — The 633 pounds of cocaine seized Oct. 25 when seven men were arrested at the LaFayette airport would have sold on the streets for $287.5 million, a federal drug agent testified.

Harold R. Metcalf of the Drug Enforcement Administration was a main witness on Tuesday during the U.S. District Court trial of the seven men, who are accused of violating federal drug laws.

In other testimony, the prosecution attempted to link the plane from which the cocaine was confiscated to Colombia and show its flight plan to and from the South American country.

Larry Shermer, packing manager with the Coca-Cola Co., testified a Coca-Cola bottle found on the aircraft was authorized for use only in the Bogota area of Colombia.

Harvey Halman, manager of the Dalton Municipal Airport, plotted on three maps the routes written on a paper found in the pocket of defendant Johnny Ray Moore, 50, of Houston.

He said it showed a route that ran within five miles of the eastern boundary of Cuban radar, then across the Caribbean to an unregistered air strip in Colombia.

The return route skimmed the ocean until the plane reached Ocala, Fla., where it would climb to normal altitude, making it appear to U.S. radar the plane had just taken off from the Ocala airport, he said.

A defense attorney moved that Halman's testimony be stricken from the record because Halman had said he had gone over the testimony with prosecution lawyers and an FBI agent who also is a witness in the case. U.S. District Judge Harold Murphy denied the motion.

Defense lawyers also objected to Metcalf's testimony and asked Murphy to declare a mistrial, arguing that the agent's estimate of the value of the drugs was based on "pure speculation."

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Wisebram responded that federal appeals courts have held that information on the resale value of confiscated drugs may be furnished to a jury to show intent to distribute the drugs.

Murphy overruled the motion for a mistrial, instructing the jury that Metcalf's testimony should be viewed only as evidence that the seven men on trial may have intended to distribute the drug.

That ruling prompted another motion for a mistrial

Inmate trio sought

ANAHUAC, Texas (AP) — Tuesday, handcuffed him and locked him in a cell before fleeing out a second-floor window, Morris said. The jailer was not injured.

The men stole a dark green 1972 Mustang Mach 1 from a Ford dealership a block away and later took a red and white 1977 Ford pickup truck from a motel in Mont Belvieu, the sheriff said.

Authorities today remained on the lookout for the three men, who Morris called "armed and dangerous."

Administration 'confused' as it seeks budget deficit remedies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is confused as it searches for ways to narrow a record $200 billion deficit estimated for 1984, presidential budget planners report.

A month before a budget plan is to be sent to Congress, administration officials cannot agree on a course because alternatives are politically unacceptable or philosophically distasteful to President Reagan, according to several sources.

Sources at the Treasury Department, Office of Management and Budget and Council of Economic Advisers, discussed the budget dilemma on the condition that their names be withheld.

Several aides Reagan and his top aides seem unwilling to decide between equally unpleasant alternatives: proposing tax increases, military spending cuts and Social Security savings to narrow the deficit or asking Congress to swallow a huge deficit.

"We're all in a dilemma. You can't dispute that," conceded one budget official.

The budget blueprint for the fiscal year beginning next October is due on Capitol Hill Jan. 31, but the administration would like to have key

Power zapped by storms in Midwest

Power was restored to many areas by nightfall, but 35,000 customers in Michigan, 20,000 in Kansas, 150 in Nebraska and 402 in Iowa were still without power overnight.

The National Weather Service called the storm the fourth-worst in Minnesota history. In Minneapolis and St. Paul downtown offices were deserted and the airport was shut for the first time in 25 years. More than 470 flights were affected during the 16-hour stoppage.

The storm moved into Canada on Tuesday evening after dumping up to 18 inches of snow in Nebraska and 17 inches in South Dakota and Minnesota. Michigan got up to a foot of snow and Kansas and Iowa recorded up to 8 inches in places.

"It's over with. The storm moved so fast the low pressure system's already in Canada. It's gone," said Alex Koscielski, a National Weather Service meteorologist.

There were record highs in decisions made by Jan. 25 when Reagan is to deliver his State of the Union message.

So far, the president's only major budget decision has been to approve up to $25 billion in non-military cuts.

Democrats and Republicans in the new Congress are expected to press for additional tax increases and curbs on the Pentagon's spending. Thus, one key political decision yet to be made by Reagan is whether to start out proposing a budget compromise in these

Stocking Fund benefits reported

Officials of the Hereford Christmas Stocking Fund reported today how the contributions of more than $8,400 were spent to help less fortunate families at Christmas time.

Clothing certificates were issued to 72 families; grocery certificates were given to 51 families, and the CSF made direct payments on behalf of 17 families for utility bills or medication payments.

"The people of Hereford who made this possible are to be commended," stated one of the CSF members. "We are learning each year, and we think the funds were used where they did the most good," he added.

While the number of families aided in the different categories adds up to 140, the actual number of households was less because there were some duplications on food and clothing.

Ben Childers, who serves as treasurer of the Christmas Stocking Fund, said all the members of the committee were "very pleased" that local residents responded to the project. The total surpassed last year's contributions of $7,480.

"We feel our citizens gave more per capita than did residents in other cities where such projects are conducted," added Childers. "Hereford citizens who participated in the program can feel a sense of sharing, because they helped some real needy families."

Wilderness center teaches youths responsibility

DAVY CROCKETT NATIONAL FOREST, Texas (AP) — It is a bumpy road that leads to Hope Center for Youth.

If nothing else, the dirt path that winds into the middle of the national forest is enough to convince a visitor that this is the wilderness.

But the boys and girls, ages 10 to 17, who come to one of the camps here are used to being isolated. For most of their lives they have lived on society's periphery. Hope Center is just another stop on the line.

They come here in various ways. As the victims or perpetrators of rape. As drug abusers or prostitutes. Many have been involved in car thefts or robberies. A few have had contact with murder.

With a boys' camp about 10 miles from Apple Springs and a girls' camp near Groveton, Hope Center is a receiving point for juveniles who for one reason or another have not followed the rules. For many, it is the last chance to adjust or be sent to the Texas

Youth Council juvenile facilities. For others, it is a place to go after failing at the TYC.

But if the young people here can be classified as juvenile delinquents, they generally leave differently.

By independent studies, six months after leaving Hope Center — the time when the juveniles would be most likely to return to their former ways — 85 percent of those who go through the program are still in school and have not had any additional "negative" contacts with the police or court systems.

"Not everybody leaves here a perfect angel," the boys' camp director, Lyndon Langford, says. "We don't expect that. What we do expect is for them to leave here responsible adults who can function responsibly in society."

Responsibility is the password at Hope Center. It is drilled incessantly each day by counselors and teachers. The campers are told repeatedly that the help they receive here will come mostly from within, that no one will do the work or make the decisions for them.

Both Langford and the girls' camp director, Jeff Jamar, say that making the choice to enter the camp is the first step for a juvenile in learning what responsibility really means.

Entering is their decision, but they understand before coming that leaving is the choice of many others," Langford said.

To leave, a youth must get permission of his group of 10 or 12 campers and three counselors. Then Langford or Jamar arrange meetings with all the other people who would be affected by the release — family, juvenile probation officers and school officials.

If anyone cannot be convinced to agree, the boy or girl stays at Hope Center.

The average stay at the boys' camp is 12 to 13 months, while girls usually stay about 11 or 12 months.

Before entering the camp the juvenile must make three commitments: that he will not try to run away, that he will work on his own problems as quickly as possible so that someone else may take his place and that he will help the other people in his group work out their problems.

In return, Hope Center promises no one will be kicked out of the camp, no matter what the offense.

"We expect some problems," Langford said

"That's why we are out in the woods. Nobody gets too excited if the warehouse gets broken into. There aren't any punishments here. We want to work out the cause of the problem."

"If a kid goes out on homedays and steals a car, we will go to the court and tell them we will take the kid back. We will always take them back."

Each juvenile is responsible for building and maintaining their living areas, and a decision not to cooperate can lead to serious consequences.

"They find that if they don't cooperate they don't get a structure built," Langford said. "If they don't get a structure built and it rains, somebody is going to get wet or a lot of people are going to be crowded when the others move in."

Langford and Jamar say the designing, building and maintaining of structures is one of the most important therapeutic aspects of life at Hope Center.

"They feel a sense of pride when they finish something," Langford said.

The buildings, made of untreated pine poles, usually last less than a year and so everyone at the camp gets a chance to build them.

At the beginning of each week, the youths make out a schedule listing exactly what they will do for that week, hour-by-hour. It is the counselors' job to see that the youths stick to their schedules.

But Langford stresses that the counselors don't act as bosses. While they have total control in matters involving legality, health and safety, in other decisions they have the same vote as other group members.

The most common way problems are dealt with is in a "circle talk," when all group members gather to talk about the difficulty at hand. Langford said the group doesn't move until the problem is solved, even if that means talking all night.

Getting along with the group is essential, but Hope Center also must teach the 100 youths involved in the programs to survive in a society where they had severe problems before.

To do this, both camps plan a number of trips — some for a few hours at a pizza parlor, others for days canoeing down a river — to get the youths to interact with others.

"They get to see people in a different light than they have maybe ever seen them before," Langford said. "They don't like the police and they talk bad about police. But on some of these trips they get to see the police in a helpful sort of way."

Both the boys and the girls are required to attend three hours of classes a day. Although that is less time than they would receive in a regular school, Langford said Hope Center boys average gaining 1.1 grade levels a year and girls 1.4 grade levels for each year in the school.

The education goes on every waking moment, from the time the campers wake up and cook breakfast to the solving of a drainage problem to a nighttime hike through the woods.

And for Langford and Jamar and all the others who work at the two camps it is all toward one end — to make the road out of Hope Center a little less bumpy than the one coming in.

Pulitzer gets sons after headlined divorce trial

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — After a divorce trial laced with tales of drugs and sex, a judge granted newspaper heir Peter Pulitzer custody of his twin sons and gave only modest alimony to his wife Roxanne, saying she engaged in "flagrant" adultery.

Circuit Judge Carl Harper, who listened to 18 days of headline-grabbing, reputation-blackening testimony that ended in November, offered little sympathy for Mrs. Pulitzer, 31, in his ruling Tuesday.

In a terse order blaming the former secretary, 21 years younger than Pulitzer, for the breakup of the 6½-year marriage, Harper said she had engaged in "flagrant acts of adultery and other gross marital misconduct."

The judge ordered that Mrs. Pulitzer get her jewels, valued at about $60,000; a black Porsche, valued at $20,000; $48,000 in alimony spread over two years or until she remarries; and a $7,000 interest in her husband's 74-foot yacht.

"I'm so happy, I can't believe it," said Pulitzer, 52, the grandson of publisher Joseph Pulitzer. He and sons MacLean and Zachary had been staying at his 8,000-acre ranch north of Lake Okeechobee since Sunday.

Mrs. Pulitzer, staying at the estranged couple's Palm Beach home, refused comment, said Pierrette Barr, a governess for the 5-year-old twins. She said Mrs. Pulitzer burst into tears.

"She was destroyed. She was absolutely destroyed," said Ms. Barr. "She was in tears. She said Judge Harper believed all the lies."

The trial rocked this Gold Coast resort community with testimony of cocaine abuse, extra-marital affairs, incest, lesbianism, menage-a-trois sex and late-night seances.

According to court documents, Pulitzer tried earlier this year to avoid the publicity of a trial by offering his wife the car, annual alimony of $45,000, four years in their home and a $200,000 home after that.

She turned down the offer, instead fighting in court for a share of her husband's fortune, which she estimated at $25 million in international hotels, orange groves and other properties. He placed his wealth at a tenth of that.

Harper wrote that a larger settlement was not justified, saying, "The wife's exorbitant demands shock the conscience... putting the court in mind of the hit record by country singer Jerry Reed, which laments: 'She Got the Gold Mine, I Got the Shaft.'"

Mrs. Pulitzer's legal team was awarded a lump sum of $90,000, plus $12,500 awarded in June.

In a 19-page decision, Harper ordered the "primary physical residence" of the twins to be with their father. But he said they must have "frequent, continuing and reasonable contact and visitation" with their mother.

Mrs. Pulitzer was barred from removing her sons from Palm Beach County without written consent from her husband.

Bear's last hurrah set tonight

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The lined face grew even more wrinkled and his gaze seemed to drift off to some faraway time and some long-ago place as Bear Bryant, barely 24 hours away from his last hurrah, tried to recall where it all began.
 For sure, it was more than a half-century ago when the game of football and Paul William Bryant began to work their wonders together at Fordyce High School in the Arkansas bottomland.
 "I'm not sure, but I think I played two games in one week," the great Alabama coach said Tuesday as he lounged in his hotel suite and tried to dismiss tonight's Liberty Bowl game against Illinois, his final bow, from his mind.
 One thing of which he is certain is that the first game in which Bear Bryant played was the first one he ever saw.
 "I had never seen a full football game, but I slipped in and saw part of one," he reminisced. "I played guard, but I didn't really know what position I was playing.

 "But I remember my first practice before I played in a game. I wore street clothes and my only pair of shoes. Before the game, I went and had cleats put on those shoes. They were nailed on and I couldn't take them off. I was so proud of those cleats. You could hear them clomp when I was walking. I had to wear them all the time, either that or go barefoot."
 Since the Alabama team arrived here Sunday, the 69-year-old Bryant has been Memphis' main attraction. Cameras and gawkers are everywhere and everyone wants to cast their eyes on the winningest, most famous coach in history. The final tally sheet will show either 322 or 323 victories for the old man, who announced his retirement two weeks ago after 38 years as a head coach, the last quarter-century at Alabama, his alma mater.
 Bryant played there in 1933-34-35 and then served as an assistant under Frank Thomas for four years.

His first head coaching job was at Maryland in 1945 and his first game was against Guilford at College Park, Md.
 "I remember that well. The Green Bay Packers were in town to play the Washington Redskins and George Marshall, who owned the Redskins, was a good friend of mine. He got me the Maryland job. He invited Don Hutson (a Packer star and Alabama teammate of Bryant) and me to dinner the night before.
 "I heard Guilford had a bunch of ringers from the service, but Hutson said, 'If you have to worry about beating this team, you better get out of this profession.'
 "I had 19 servicemen with me from North Carolina Pre-Flight and they probably knew more football than me."
 But who knows more football nowadays than the Bear? Lordy, he has seen just about everything there is to see and coached just about every place there is to coach and won just about everything there is to win. The record as a college player, assistant coach and head coach is 383-100-25 and 45 of "Bear's Boys" have gone on to become college or professional head coaches themselves.
 "So many years and so many teams," Bryant said. "The 1950 Kentucky team, you couldn't hardly score on them, but I don't know how they'd do now. I thought the team I played on was the best then, but I couldn't make anybody's team now. The 1956 Texas A&M team (9-0-1) was just awesome. I tied the one game, they didn't do it. The 1961 Alabama team, nobody could score on us (25 points in 11 games). The 1966 team might be the best I've ever had; they had such speed and great balance. We had a heck of a team in 1972 and great teams when Marty Lyons and all those guys were playing (1977-78).

 "I always said Pat Trammell was my favorite player because he died so young, but I have so many favorites I couldn't point out who they all were. Little Pat is in school at Alabama now on an all-around scholarship and he made the dean's list this semester."
 Memories are made of this. Memories.
 "Heck, I don't know. Everybody asks me that. This might surprise you, but the first team I had at Texas A&M that won only one game, I'm awful fond of them. So many times they could have quit, but they hung in there and lost some games by only one or two points. When you've been in it as long as I have, it's really hard to pick out things. If you do, you forget something and hurt people's feelings."
Highlights
 Beating Auburn for the first time, beating Oklahoma in a bowl game. But the closest thing to a No. 1 highlight was at Texas A&M in 1955. We were playing Rice in Houston and we were behind 12-0 with 3:27 to go and they had the ball. We won 20-12 and were about to score again when the game ended.
 He leaves the game continuing to insist that "I don't know if I've contributed anything to football. I've had an influence on a lot of young people's lives: some was good and some wasn't. But I could coach people. I've known that for a long time. I just don't coach people as well as I used to."

In Berger tourney

Herd to battle WF Rider

BORGER — After more than a week layoff, Hereford's boys return to action tonight here in the opening round of the Berger-Holiday Basketball Tournament.
 The Herd, 3-9 overall, will meet Wichita Falls Rider at 6:50 p.m. in the tourney's opening game. Host Berger and Tulsa will meet at 8:30 p.m.
 If Hereford wins its opening game, it will play Dumas at 6:50 p.m. tomorrow. If the Whitefaces lose they'll play at 10:30 a.m. Friday.
 While Dumas will meet the winner of the Hereford-Rider game in the second round, Perryton will take on the winner of the Berger-Tulsa contest.

 There'll be two games today and tomorrow and five on Friday. The championship game will begin at 7:50 p.m. Friday.
 Hereford, which has lost four of its last five games (three of those by five points or less), is led by Steve Welch who averages over 15 points per game.
 Following this tournament, Hereford will return to District 3-5A play next Tuesday when both the boys and girls travel to Amarillo to meet Tascosa.
 The girls' game scheduled Tuesday between Hereford and Olton was cancelled because of the weather. The girls will take a 4-5 season record into the Tascosa contest. They are 2-3 in district play.

Landry dislikes Monday contests

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry likes Monday night football about as much as he likes fumbles.
 And he's had a third of his National Football League strike-shortened regular season schedule on Monday nights this season.
 Dallas is only 11-10 on Monday nights, and the Cowboys have another one in store next week in Minnesota.
 "I don't relish coming back to Dallas at 3 a.m.," Landry said Tuesday.
 Landry also doesn't like the idea of having to play on Monday night and losing preparation time for the first-round game of the National Conference playoffs on Jan. 9.
 "It's tough coming off a Monday night, particularly if you have to travel, and getting ready to play again," Landry said. "The guys are tired for two days."
 Dallas lost to Pittsburgh 36-28 in the Monday night season opener, but beat Houston 37-7 in another Monday night game.
 Landry said the Cowboys would have to get their running game into high gear to beat the Vikings. Dallas has been having trouble spurring All-Pro tailback Tony Dorsett for long gains, and Dorsett has expressed dismay over not breaking a long one.

 "Dorsett should be frustrated and I'm with him," Landry said. "When we look like that, anything I called could have been better. It's not hard to second-guess it."
 Landry said he was concerned but not totally disappointed with the Cowboys' ground output.
 "It's been tough to run since the strike," Landry said. "We've been running fairly well. Dorsett is the leading rusher in the NFC but we would like to do things better."
 Dorsett, the NFL's second leading rusher last season, has gained more than 100 yards only twice this season. He has 592 yards on 161 carries or 3.7 yards per attempt. His longest gain has been only 19 yards.
 "The lack of progress on the ground has been some things we've been doing and some of the things the defense has been doing," Landry said.

Dole says windfall profits tax to drop TULSA, Okla. (AP)—U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., says significant cuts in the windfall profit tax on oil will come with the new year.

Effective Jan. 1, the tax will be reduced substantially on crude oil from small stripper wells and from newly discovered wells, Dole said, the Tulsa World's Washington bureau reported.

The tax relief was enacted in the 1981 Economic Recovery Tax Act, but the effective date was delayed until 1983.

Also, just before the recent lame-duck Congress session adjourned, it passed legislation to extend the royalty owner exemption to certain trust interests that had not previously been eligible for relief from windfall profit taxes.

Under the 1981 tax act, all stripper wells — those pumping fewer than 10 barrels per day — other than those owned by major oil companies will be exempt totally from the windfall profit tax.

Stripper wells produce about 12.6 percent of all U.S. production, but constitute a majority of all wells.

Prosecutor calls plea bargain unenforceable

By PHIL LATHAM
Lufkin Daily News

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)— A prosecutor who fought against the dropping of murder charges against a Texas City nursing home says a plea bargain arrangement the home entered into is "a complete farce."

David Marks, who failed in a bid to force Galveston County to try Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. of Houston, said Tuesday an agreement to erase the firm's criminal record if it keeps the law for 10 years is impractical.

The corporation and eight of its present or former employees had been charged with murder, accused of killing eight people through neglect.

Visiting State District Judge Larry Gist approved a proposal to let the firm plead no contest to one charge of involuntary manslaughter hours after an appeals court refused to interfere Monday.

Marks said the Autumn Hills firm has leased the Texas City facility to Beverly Enterprise Corp., effective Tuesday.

"How can they commit any wrong when they're not even going to be in control?" asked Marks, who was fired as assistant district attorney Dec. 16 after his first attempt to prevent his boss, District Attorney James Hury, from completing the plea bargain failed.

Marks said Gist also would have no way of knowing if crimes were being committed at the home.

Marks says his three-year investigation of the nursing home showed 56 people were killed by neglect and another 38 injured between 1977 and 1979.

One murder indictment returned in the case was the first ever filed against a corporation in Texas.

Under the plea bargain, the corporation agreed to pay $100,000. A deferred adjudication clause says that if Gist finds the firm does not violate state law in the next 10 years, the plea will be erased from criminal records. All charges against individuals were dropped. Marks contends there's a "back-room" deal between Hury and Roy Minton, who represented the nursing home.

"I believe there is a cloud of impropriety hanging over this entire matter," Marks said. "I think that ... is cemented together by the hastiness with which the plea bargain followed the appeals court's decision.

Marks said he saw "an obvious attempt to keep from the public" word that the plea bargain would be submitted to Gist for approval Monday afternoon.

Marks said he could not reach Hury after the appeals court decision and was unable to get information from Gist's office in Beaumont or from the district clerk's office in Galveston.

Attorney Joe Archer, who represented Marks before the appeals court, said Marks had planned to testify at Gist's hearing.

Hury failed to return phone calls from The Associated Press Monday and Tuesday. He has said he is "convinced beyond any doubt we would never, ever be able to sustain a murder indictment in the case."

"This is like pleading John Gacy for reckless homicide and saying, 'We're gonna give you a deferred adjudication and besides that, you don't even have to plead guilty,'" Marks said. Gacy was convicted in March 1980 of the sex-related slayings of 33 young men and boys and has been sentenced to die. His case is on appeal.

Marks said he will try to void the agreement, but refused to reveal his new plans.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Dec. 29, the 363rd day of 1982. There are two days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 29, 1170, Archbishop Thomas Becket was murdered at the altar in the Cathedral of Canterbury, England.

On this date:
In 1845, Texas was admitted to the union as the 28th state.

In 1973, Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos ended his elected term and began to rule on the basis of a takeover decree.

Ten years ago: The United States asked Sweden not to send a new ambassador to Washington after the Swedes compared the American bombing of North Vietnam to the Nazi massacres.

Five years ago: President Carter arrived in Warsaw to start a seven-nation tour.

One year ago: The United States halted trade and technology sales to the Soviet Union in protest of the martial law regime in Poland.

Toay's birthdays: Ballet star Gelsey Kirkland is 29.

Thought for today: "When fortune knocks, open the door" — German proverb.
