Reagan opening door to compromise on MX missile consensus in Congress on the

By TERENCE HUNT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) President Reagan seems open to compromise on his embattled basing plan for the MX missile as he tries to line up Senate votes for the weapon after its crushing defeat in the House.

Facing a crucial Senate vote next week, the president said Friday he is willing to have Congress "debate and discuss and see if there are possible other options that could conceivably be improvements.

He urged Congress to approve money now and argue about its basing system next

"I believe it is absolutely essential to a strong, secure defense that we vote now on funds for that missile. Then next year as we have more time, I'd welcome a vigorous debate on the best way to base the missile," Reagan said at a brief news conference in the Oval Office.

He portrayed the densepack basing plan as "probably offering the best opportunity" but said "if the Congress wants to debate and discuss and see if there are possible other options that could conceivably be improvements over this, we're willing for that."

"It is a conciliatory statement," said Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C. "He is not looking for confrontation and we are not looking for confronta-

By a surprisingly large 69-vote margin Tuesday, the House deleted money from a defense spending bill to build the first five missiles. Reagan hopes to convince the House to reverse its vote

The dense-pack plan, calling for missiles to be deployed in silos spaced closely together in Wyoming, was initially opposed by most of the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and is the target of widespread skepticism in Congress.

ponents of the MX of "unfairly" building their arguments around the basing mode instead of discussing the need for the missile itself

'And this was unfair," Reagan said. "It was lacking a little in honesty to do that, and I think the message that came out was that they were opposed to the basing mode."

Noting that the Kremlin had expressed satisfaction about the House vote, Reagan said, "Well, if the Soviets are so pleased, perhaps we should be a little more con-

House to vote on jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ignoring threats of a presidential veto, the House Appropriations Committee is endorsing a spending bill that includes $5.4 billion to help the unemployed and a chance for members of Congress to raise their salaries.

The full House is expected to vote early next week on the package, which was approved by the committee Friday on a 25-18 party-line vote. The legislation is necessary to keep money flowing to most after Dec. 17.

This is just a grab bag of goodies," said Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., the top Republican on the panel.

'We're going to get a veto," he said.

Meanwhile, a jobs-creating gasoline tax hike bill is bogged down in the Senate, where conservative Republicans want to postpone debate until next year.

But Senate aides said Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., would have more than the 60 votes needed next week when he moves to choke off debate.

Wrangling over the stopgap bill and the nickel-a-gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax is expected to force the lame-duck session of Congress to meet past its Dec. 17 target for adjournment.

No Easy Task

A would-be pheasant hunter often has things less than easy as he pursues the elusive gamebird, having to contend with cold weather and rough terrain as he attempts to put one of the tasty birds on his table. This group of hunters was caught walking out a

Cosmonauts hailed as heroes

MOSCOW (AP) - Two Soviet cosmonauts returned to a heroes' welcome and were reported "feeling well" after completing history's longest space flight, a 211-day odyssey in orbit

The 40-year-old spacemen, Anatoly Berezovoy and Valentin Lebedev, returned safely to Earth Friday night.

After a medical checkup, the official Tass news agency reported the cosmonauts were "feeling well" and appeared to have "withstood well the long period of President Reagan has caught a lot of flak about the estimated 11 million unemployed people in this nation. It doesn't solve anything, but we liked his response to the complaining liberals in Congress.

Reagan points out there were 8 million unemployed when he took office. "I'll take the blame for 3 million if the Democrats will take the blame for the 8 million," the President was quoted as saying.

Now the liberals in Congress are claiming that the November elections show that Americans are demanding the right to pay higher taxes, and they are preparing to satisfy them.

We believe those liberal do-gooders are reading the message wrong. We haven't found anyone who wants to pay higher taxes. There is also a misconception about government creating jobs. Uncle Sam can only create jobs that are paid with money that has to first be extracted from others in the form of taxes. Congress is actually creating an "income transfer" program.

We make the same mistake when we write about projects "paid by the government", or when we refer to the government deficit. That's our tax money paying for any government program, and that's a huge deficit we'll have to pay for out of our taxes.

Once in the atmosphere, the Soyuz spacecraft floated Berezovoy and Lebedev undown under a parachute and a special rocket was fired just before touchdown to cushion the landing, Moscow radio said. The parachute descent took Baikonur space center in Kazakhstan where they had been fired into space last May 13, Tass said.

Ground control officials applauded when word of the safe landing was received at the monitoring center outside Moscow, state radio said. The cosmonauts' 211 days in space exceeded by almost a month the 185-day space endurance record set in 1980 by their countrymen Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin.

Berezovoy and Lebedev "fulfilled aboard the Salyut orbital station a broad program of experiments," Moscow radio said. "They took some 20,000 photographs

Friemel well at 4,500 feet

Drilling on the Jerome Friemel No. 1 wildcat well located 17 miles north and three miles west of Hereford has reached a depth of 4,500 feet as the Department of Energy (DOE) continues site selection exploration for the possible location of a nuclear waste repository in this area.

According to Friemel, Stone & Webster, operators of the well, are in the process of reaming the well out to 1034 inches to accomodate a casing which will be installed to the 4,500-foot depth. The drilling has proceded through the zones containing bedded salt, Friemal said. "After the casing is set and cemented, drilling will continue through the Wolfcamp, Pennsylvania, and Granite Wash (Cambrian)," Friemeal said. "Geologist John Nicholson of Amarillo expects granite (pre-Cambrian) to occur around the 9,100-foot depth."

According to Frimel, the area between 1,700-4,500 feet contains alternate layers of bedded salt, Dolomite, and Anydrite, with some streaks of siltstone and shale. The Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas at Austin is carefully monotoring the drilling procedure "as they actively seek all the data that will lead to the discovery of commercial quantities of oil and gas in this area," Friemel said. "They are also making sure that the testing underway on this project is properly conducted in the event that DOE contemplates using any areas of the state for the burial of nuclear waste."

Friemel, who will become operator of the well after the testing by Stone & Webster is completed, hopes to find some "shows" of oil and gas around the 7,000-foot depth.

"By drilling to granite, every zone that would likely produce oil or gas will be examined," he concluded.

Woodson banker pleads guilty to stealing funds

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -Former Bank of Woodson board chairman Tommy Ballard has pleaded guilty to two counts of stealing money from his since-failed West Texas bank in a plea bargain agreement with the government.

In return for his plea, the U.S. Justice Department agreed to drop 10 other counts of stealing funds filed against the 46-year-old banker, currently of El Paso.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jimmy Tallant said Ballard stole $326,000 from the bank in a phony loan scheme that forced the bank to close.

U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon accepted the pleas Friday and said he would sentence Ballard Jan. 21.

Until then, Ballard will remain free on bond. He faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. After pleading guilty, Ballard told Mahon, "I had no intent to injure or defraud the bank." Tallant read a summary that said Ballard arranged for business associates and friends to borrow large amounts from the bank and turn the money over to him. In return, Tallant said, Ballard agreed to repay the

Tentative agreement reported in Fina strike

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) -Negotiators have reached an "agreement in principle" that could end an 11-month-old strike at the American Petrofina refinery here, but still have to settle a "back-to-work" issue, a newspaper reports.

The Port Arthur News quoted two unidentified sources Friday as saying the agreement between negotiators for the company and the Oil. Chemical and Atomic Workers Union was reached Thursday afternoon.

Union leaders told the OCAW membership to "stand by" for possible weekend meetings.

A back-to-work agreement apparently remains the major stumbling block to a new contract, the News reported. At least one union member, who is now an officer with the OCAW, was fired by the company during the

Mexico gradually relaxes tough money exchange rules

Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) - In efforts to restore confidence in Mexico's debt-ridden economy, President Miguel de la Madrid's administration is relaxing tough monetary exchange controls imposed by his predecessor three months ago.

Miguel Mancera, director of the Bank of Mexico, the country's central bank, said at a news conference Friday that the controls will be eased gradually and that beginning Dec. 20 Mexicans will be free to buy and sell foreign currency in banks at a rate set by supply and demand.

til next year while allowing production funds to go forward.

Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., predicted a compromise would be achieved in which limits were placed on spending some of the MX money until "further validation of the dense-pack mode takes place."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., a critic of the MX. said, "My own view is that the two houses of Congress will never be able to mobilize a majority vote for any basing mode.

Meanwhile Senate Intelligence Committee leaders agreed to study the "dense pack" plan and report to the Senate by late winter, probably February. Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., suggested the study. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the committee's chairman, and Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., its ranking Democrat, agreed to conduct it.

The study will cover the ability of the dense-packed missiles to withstand Soviet attack, with or without antiballistic missile protection, the likely Soviet reaction and the feasibility of strengthening the shelters sufficiently so that the missiles could survive an attack.

Madrid's predecessor Jose Lopez Portillo had failed to stop the flow of dollars from the country and made foreign creditors even more reluctant to lend money to Mexico, which is already struggling to meet payments on its $81 billion foreign debt.

Mancera said the restric-

Reversing the restrictions will sharply devalue the already battered Mexican peso, which is officially traded at 70 to the dollar. It started the year at 28 to the dollar

But De la Madrid's administration, which took office Dec. 1, said the reversal in policy is one of several measures intended to pull Mexico out of its worst recession in half a century

"The free market must be truly so," Mancera said. "Otherwise, the black market in this country as well as the market for pesos in foreign countries will continue and grow.

A preferential exchange rate of 70 pesos to the dollar will continue to apply temporarily for imports of food and other essential goods, key raw materials, spare incorporation of the Panhanparts and equipment,

The Project County History committee is continuing distribution of the Deaf Smith County history book, "The Land and its People." Books may be picked up at the E.B. Black House, 508 West Third, Monday through Saturday from 12 noon to 5:30 p.m.

Books wanted for or by Christmas must be picked up by Saturday, Dec. 18, as the office will be closed for the holidays," said Mrs. Troyce Hanna, committee chairman.

Those picking up books for someone else must have written authorization or a confirmation by phone to a member of the history comittee.

But the Bank of Mexico will adjust that rate daily and eventually eliminate it. Mancera said. A more preferential rate of 50 pesos to the dollar that applied to top-priority imports will be abolished Monday.

He said the remaining restrictions will be lifted gradually because Mexico cannot immediately "reestablish complete free exchange nor continue with the generalized exchange controls."

Floods receding despite new storm

By The Associated Press

Floodwaters throughout the Mississippi Valley continued to recede despite a new storm that brought freezing rain, and some merchants held flood sales of items not washed away.

A heavy storm was moving east after dumping up to a foot of snow in Flagstaff, Ariz., and the northern Arizona mountains. The storm was bringing freezing rain to the Mississippi Valley and snow to Ohio.

The storm follows a week of flooding that caused an estimated $600 million damage in Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas. At its peak, up to 35,000 people were left homeless. The storms also killed 20 people and left three missing.

President Reagan late Friday declared 15 Missouri counties federal disaster areas, making merchants and homeowners eligible for low-interest loans for repairs. Twenty-two Missouri counties already had been declared state disaster areas. As the Illinois River was receding, Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson on Friday declared 20 more counties disaster areas, bringing the total to 27 in a state where an estimated 4,500 people remained homeless.

Flooding continued Friday along a 70-mile stretch of the Illinois River from Henry, north of Peoria, south to Liverpool affected about 1,600 homes, causing major damage to 86 of them and driving 568 families to shelter. Liverpool itself was under water, leaving virtually all its 243 residents homeless.

But in Arkansas, the surging Black and the White rivers, which had routed hundreds from their homes, were receding.

Merchants in at least one Arkansas town decided to make the best of a bad situation by holding flood sales Friday.

"Almost every store has a sale," said Van Buren County Sheriff's Dispatcher Thomas Love in Clinton, Ark., a town of 1,284.

Preliminary damage estimates in Illinois could run as high as $100 million, said E. Erie Jones, director of the state disaster agency.

Explosion forces evacuations of towns

TAFT, La. (AP) - A tank containing 20,000 gallons of a poisonous chemical exploded into flames at a Union Carbide Corp. plant today, forcing the evacuation of about 11,000 people within a fivemile radius, authorities said.

No injuries were reported when the underground storage tank containing acrolein exploded shortly after midnight, but the threat of poisonous fumes prompted the evacuation, said Inspector Henry Wolfe of the St. Charles Parish Sheriff's Of-

The fumes are fatal if inhaled, he said.

Firefighters planned to let the fire burn itself out, Wolfe said. "It burns up the poisonous gas and keeps it from getting in the air.'

Authorities ordered the evacuation of all residents within five miles of the sprawling plant along the Mississippi River about 20 miles northwest of New Orleans. Wolfe said the approximately 11,000 people were offered emergency shelter at area high schools.

Wolfe said the 40,000-gallon tank was half-filled with the liquid chemical. He said authorities did not know how long it would take the fire to burn up the material inside.

The immediate concern is the adjacent acrolein storage tanks, which have additional explosive potential," said plant spokesman Stan Sutherland. He did not know how many tanks there were.

The blast apparently was touched off when water got into the tank and reacted with the chemical, said Jules Hymel, assistant parish Civil Defense director.

Much of Louisiana received rain overnight, but Hymel said it was not known if rainwater was responsible.

Sutherland said, however the cause of the explosion was > Clements never has portrayed himself as a party man. He called himself a "Texas ticket splitter" and said he would vote for at least one Democrat this year.

Archer complained Friday that Clements too often looked outside the Texas Republican Party mainstram in making appointments to state boards and commissions.

Committee member Fred Gray of Pasadena said he felt because of his party ties.

"It's good for us to get this out of our system, but Clements is gone," she said. 'We are going up to his house to eat his cheese and drink his wine. Let's don't keep cussing our host.'

Clements invited the committee members to the Governor's Mansion for a Friday evening reception.

Mike Richards, GOP loser for comptroller, said, "We did not lose. We were defeated." He said his campaign topped the vote goal it set, but still lost.

Public tired of nit-picking cases

The American public is getting fed up with the kind of criminal justice being administered these days, and it makes a person wonder what it will take to change course.

Laymen over the state, as well as across the nation, keep asking the same question: How do we get our courts of appeal to quit nitpicking and turning criminals loose on what appears to be minor technicalities?

Most judicial officals seem to lay the blame on Supreme Court rulings. A lot of us are not completely convinced, however, that judges on the court of criminal appeals should hunt so diligently for some minor excuse with which to grant a new trial or reverse a verdict.

Despite the "letter of the law" stipulation, the reasoning in some cases is unbelievable to the layman. Several years ago, a man admitted killing his grandmother, sister and mother in Pennsylvania, but was released because of a preposition - the word "for". The officer warned him that anything he said could be used "for" or against him. The court held that including the "for" invalidated his confession.

Several years ago, a Central Texas man was found guilty of killing a grandmother and her two-year-old granddaughter when they surprised him in the act of burglarizing their home. He stabbed the grandmother and drowned the child in the commode, confessing to both murders.

Yet his conviction was thrown out because the appeals court said that the presecution did not prove that the child died by drowning.

In Maryland, a man was convicted of hurling a baby down an 11-story trash chute. After confessing to the crime, he got life. Last year the court of appeals turned him loose because he had not been taken before a court commissioner until 12 minutes after the allotted 24 hours after his arrest.

The technicalities in these cases had nothing to do with the criminal. It seems justice would have been served if the officers and prosecutors who made the legal errors were assessed a fine, or reprimanded, and the criminal still lived, or died, with his sentence.

There was a time when a person knew that murder would earn him a trip to the "hot seat", or electric chair. Now, whenever a murderer gets the death sentence, there is an outcry of sympathy for him and all manner of judges give stays of execution.

It's cruel punishment to execute a murderer. But it's also cruel to be murdered by one of them, and you don't hear of many appeals being granted by the murderer.

Investment in city is vital.

The new Rangerette Center went on public display for the first time Tuesday for most of the people of the community. There is no doubt that the visitors liked what they saw because it is, indeed, a fine building.

It is very functional and is being used every day by the girls and boys of Perryton High School. It will mean a lot for the physical education program as well as the overall athletic program of PHS.

While there was a lot of controversy over this building and, for a time, it became somewhat of an emotional issue, we believe that people have generally accepted it and most are glad we have the center.

Our position has always been that you never make a mistake by investing in your local community. There never has been a school building built in this community without some deep-seated opposition to it, and there never has been a bond issue that passed unanimous-

But, over the long run, the school buildings that we have, the city swimming pool, the hospital and other facilities, the county courthouse addition and even the jail are things that we are proud of and show to visitors when they come to town.

Yet there was opposition to every one of these structures and we suppose it will always be that way. Fortunately, the hard feelings that are sometimes generated eventually disappear.

Some of the most bitter opponents to the building of Ochiltree General Hospital are now so proud of it that you would think they actually had something to do with the hospital.

The Penultimate Word

AIN'T WEIRD WONDERFUL?

I have always collected weird friends. Everywhere I have lived I have felt closest to the weirdest. The city in which I reside is no different. I would list the weird ones I have collected here, but the ones listed would get mad at being on the list. The ones I did not list would get mad because they were not on the list. I have no intention of making the weirdos around here mad at me.

One of my favorite weird ones in Tulsa is a guy named Don French. The only person I know who is crazier than Don French is his wife Tot. If it is fun these two have done it.

One of the things Don liked to do was play Santa Claus. Every year on the afternoon of Christmas Eve Don would put on the Santa garb and go call on the children of his friends. He was headed into the house of some friends in his Santa suit one afternoon when a neighbor across the street saw him and slipped out of his house to request a visit for his children. He told Don to just come by and tell the children he would come back that night with their presents. Don agreed.

After he had completed his call on the house of his friends, he went across the street to surprise two little girls with a visit. The girls were excited almost out of their minds. Santa had come! The father was in the kitchen cooking up a mess of quail he had bagged that morn-

Don got the children on his knee and said, "Santa is sure hungry. He has been working hard all day with nothing to eat and he sure does like quail."

What could the guy do? Could he tell his little girl Santa Claus couldn't have any of his quail? He wrapped up three birds, while muttering under his breath.

Don took the quail and thanked the children. As he was leaving, he said, "Santa almost forgot, Mrs. Santa Claus is hungry, too, and she loves quail." Three more quail.

Ain't weird wonderful?

Restoring faith in S.S. is 'must'

By Richard L. Lesher, President

U.S. Chamber of Commerce WASHINGTON -- The bipartisian commission set up by President Reagan to study the financial future of Social Securty has unanimously agreed that the system faces a severe funding shortfall of somewhere between $150 and $200 billion over the next seven years. If that gap is not closed, either through revenue increases or reductions in the growth of benefits, Social Security will go bankrupt.

Now, before you dismiss this finding as simply of matter of telling of something we already know, recall that just over a year ago one commission member, New York Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, proclaimed that Social Security was basically "a sound system." He lambasted administration officials when they appeared before his Senate committee with reform ideas for "conducting a campaign of political terrorism" by scaring older folks with all this talk about the system going broke.

But with midterm elections over, the Senator and others have now changed their minds. They have concluded what the rest of us have known for a long time - that Social Security is in deep trouble.

What to do about this impending crisis is another matter. A variety of measures have been proposed and the commission's upcoming report (or reports, if no consensus can be reached) is likely to contain a package of reforms designed to reach effect of these higher taxes on that bottom line: finding the missing $150 to $200 billion.

both sides of the political aisle to opt for major payroll tax hikes on both workers and businesses as the centerpiece of a solvency program. Specifically, it has been suggested that the funding gap could be closed by speeding up Social Security tax increases already slated to take effect in the years 1985,1986 and 1990.

But before such a course is seriously considered, it is important to ask what impact these higher taxes would have on our overall economic performance. It is an important question not only to taxpaying workers and small businesses, but to those dependent on Social Security. When all is said and done, a healthy retirement system, like everything else in our society, depends on a healthy economy

Recently the U.S. Chamber's economists examined this issue. Working with a computerized model of our economy designed by Data Resources Inc., we attempted to measure the impact that moving 1990's tax hike to 1984 would have on our economy for the remainder of

But in the United States our industrial base is sufficiently virile to absorb everincreasing numbers of working women plus the babyboom generation now working age plus virtually limitless immigration-legal and otherwise.

The Wall Street Journal awhile back noted that makework jobs can be as demoralizing as unemployment; recommends instead that the sewers, roads-so they could have pride in accomplishment and the country would have something afterward to show for its expenditures.

Again--unemployment is painful. But the side-effects of some of the proposed been creating new jobs faster remedies may be worse.

Well, I have news for him. He isn't the only one concerned. Women are, too.

A number of women I spoke to recently all agreed that the last thing they wanted to happen to them at the office was to break down in tears.

A department store executive said, "I cried when a man yelled at me after I had been working a stretch of 15-hour days. Then, when I realized people had seen me, I cried even harder because I felt I had ruined my career."

Her view was the most extreme, but the others concurred: Tears are a definite "no, no." "Crying is not professional," said one. "It's like saying you can't cope, or that you're out of control.' "It's ironic," she added. "A man's tantrums at the office will be accepted as normal, but a woman's tears won't. She will be called 'too emotional.'"

If today's working woman represses this outlet, what will Probably a trade-off. Women will give up tears and, in return, develop stress-related disorders common to men ulcers, heart attacks and high blood pressure. It's already

Another misgiving is that this is again a case where women feel they must change their behavior because of how men perceive crying.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Federal prosecutors have a final chance today to convince jurors that a convicted hitman and two other people were involved in the assassination U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., before the panel begins deliberations.

Defense attorneys completed their final summations Friday on behalf of the three defendants.

Tom Sharpe Jr. told the jury, which has heard 131 witnesses in nine weeks of testimony, that convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson did not shoot Wood in San Antonio on May 29, 1979, because he was in Dallas.

Prosecutors contend Harrelson, 44, shot Wood in the back for a $250,000 fee from Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39. Chagra will be tried for murder later.

Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, was charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, and Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28, was charged with conspiracy to murder and to obstruct justice.

Mrs. Harrelson's attorney, Charles Campion, said prosecutors had failed to prove their case against her and asked jurors to ignore her conviction on charges she used a false name to buy the gun said to have been used in Wood's killing.

Mrs. Chagra was kept in the dark by her husband and unwittingly delivered the alleged $250,000 payoff to Harrelson through his stepdaughter, Theresa Starr Jasper, argued her attorney, Warren Burnett.

Prosecutors say Chagra, who was to have been tried before Wood on narcotics smuggling charges, had Wood killed because the federal judge was known for his stiff sentencing.

Wood killed because the federal judge was known for his stiff sentencing.

Chagra's attorney brother, Joseph, plea-bargained with the government and appeared as the star prosecution witness, testifying Harrelson and Jimmy Chagra admitted killing Wood.

Burnett used prosecutor John Emerson's plea for the jury to believe Joseph Chagra in defense of his client.

Burnett reminded jurors that Joseph Chagra had testified his brother was "domineering, demanding, unreasoning" and had said Jimmy Chagra "had the ability to make you say things."

"How in God's name can you tell us, Mr. Emerson, not to believe Elizabeth Chagra, who said the same thing?" argued Burnett.

His voice frequently rising with emotion, Burnett said a taped conversation between the Chagra brothers proved Mrs. Chagra did not know she was delivered the payoff money.

On the tape, Burnett said, Jimmy Chagra told his brother that Elizabeth sometimes paid off his gambling debts and did not know what the money was for.

Mrs. Jasper had testified that her mother, Mrs. Harrelson, told her not to cooperate with investigators. Mrs. Jasper spent several weeks in jail for refusing to testify before the federal grand jury investigating Wood's death. Campion said Mrs. Harrelson simply was concerned for her daughter when she told her to "be strong."

"Even though someone may have done something to hurt you to the core, that doesn't mean you can't love," he said

Herd nips Coronado on last-second shot

AMARILLO - It was an improbable finish, yet one which Hereford coach Bobby Decker would gladly accept any day of the week.

Gary Long's 17-foot bank-in, from just beyond the freethrow line, as time expired provided the Herd with a pulsating 74-73 victory over Lubbock Coronado in the opening round of the Amarillo Invitational Basketball Tournament Friday at the Palo Duro High gym.

But, it was the way in which things transpired that made it all the more improbable.

Consider the facts:

ing on the clock.

With two seconds left on the clock, Coronado's Cole Hasie popped in a 20-footer from the left of the foul line to give the Mustangs a 78-72 lead, and an apparent victory. Hereford quickly called time, but remember they had to get the ball the length of the floor with just a second show-

The inbounds pass traveled about three-quarters the length of the floor. It bounded off a Coronado player's hands. Long picked up the loose ball, dribbled to his left, then arched a jumper from beyond the foul line.

The buzzer sounded as the ball was in the air, but it banked neatly off the glass and through the hoop for the winning points.

Hereford, which snapped a two-game losing streak and improved its season mark to 2-5, played Palo Duro in the second round of the two-day tourney. The Dons stayed in the winner's bracket with a 67-58 win over Dumas.

Odessa Permian outlasted El Paso Andress, 83-81, in three overtimes and Amarillo High thumped Canyon, 60-48, in the other first-round games. Hereford's girls, meanwhile, had little trouble with Lubbock High Friday, winning 64-21. Stephanie Foster tossed in 21 points, while Sherri Ellis and Darla Alford added 12.

The Herd gals ran their season record to 4-3 as they won their second game in a row. They improved their District 3-5A record to 2-1.

The game was never in doubt as Hereford jumped out to a 16-4 lead at the end of one period. By halftime, it was 28-11 in favor of Hereford, and after three quarters the winners enjoyed a 46-11 advantage.

The boys, though, struggled much more.

Coronado started strong, grabbing a 23-16 lead after one quarter, the Mustangs dominated the boards early, pull-

Mavericks edge Pistons, 122-121

Dallas Coach Dick Motta knew when the National Basketball Association season began that the Mavericks would be much improved, but even he has been surprised at how quickly they have progressed.

Former Michigan State star Jay Vincent came home and poured in 30 points as the Mayericks held off a late Detroit Pistons rally to pull out a 122-121 victory Friday night. victory raised the The Mavericks' record to 10-9, which might not seem particularly impressive unless you know that it took Dallas 38 games to achieve 10 triumphs last season.

"I'm not surprised at the way we're playing, but I am a little surprised at our record," Motta said. "We figured most of our wins would come late in the season when teams that are settled in their positions are laying back.'

The Mavericks trailed by as many as 10 points, 46-36, in the second quarter before closing fast to pull to a 53-53 halftime tie

Detroit's Bill Laimbeer hit for 16 of his 24 game points in the first half

The third quarter saw each team go to the foul line 17 times, with the Mavericks hitting 14 of their foul shots while the Pistons made only nine of theirs, and Dallas entered the final period 'leading 87-82.

Vincent pumped in 12 of the Mavericks' first 16 points in the first four minutes of the final quarter as they moved out to a 103-88 lead. Dallas held a 112-100 lead with 3:45. remaining when Vincent foul-

"I had the hot hand tonight," Vincent said. "We have another great forward, Mark Aguirre, and it's either him or myself that leads this team in scoring and tonight it was me. In the past eight or nine games, Mark and I have been playing well together.

Detroit, playing mostly with rookies, clawed back to within one point, 118-117, with 25 seconds remaining, but a stubborn Coach Scotty Robertson refused to go back

Dallas' Brad Davis added two foul shots with six seconds remaining to pull the Mavericks out to a 120-117 lead. Detroit rookie Ricky Pierce hit only one of two foul shots with five seconds remaining to cut Dallas' lead to

A man's hair changes with age. Usually, a man will lose hair just where he most wants it, his head. Balding generally begins at the temples producing a widow's peak that recedes with age. Eventually, the back of the head thins out and the two balding areas meet to create a bald head. However, some men never bald at all. There is a similar difference among men with respect to graying. Some men turn prematurely gray while some not at all. The one thing that all aging men hold in common is the fact that individual hairs thin. The diameter of a single hair shrinks between the ages of 20 to 70 until the hair is as fine as a baby's.

Men have just as much pride in their looks as women. At NINE TO NINE, 323 N. 25 Mile Ave., we know how to handle a full head of hair as well as a slightly balding head of hair. And men, don't give up on styling just because you've lost a few hairs. We can make you look like a million and feel like a million in the relaxing surroundings of our salon. ing down 21 first period rebounds, compared to six by

But, the Whitefaces capitalized on better free throw shooting (24 of 32, compared to 9 of 11 by the Mustangs), and eventually rebounded better, trailing by only a 36-33 margin at game's end.

After trailing by seven points at the end of one period, Hereford finally went ahead, 35-22, 2:17 before intermission. However, Coronado ran off six unanswered points and at the half led, 38-37.

Hereford hit its first five shots from the field in the third period, and on four occasions led by as many as five points. But, again, Coronado closed the gap and heading to the final stanza the Herd's lead was two, 56-54

With 6:40 to play in the game, Hereford led by four points (60-56). But some costly turnovers led to a run of nine straight points by the Mustangs, and a 65-60 lead with Coronado led by seven (71-64) with 3:59 to go, and things looked dim for Hereford.

But Gomer Garcia and Long hit both ends of one-andone foul situations to pull the Herd within three (71-68) with 2:57 to go.

Terry Shelton's short jumper with 1:50 to play brought Hereford within a point, then Steve Welch hit a lavup with 59 seconds to play to put the Herd in front, 72-71.

Shelton missed the front end of a one-and-one with 13 seconds remaining, giving Hasie the chance to put the Mustangs back in front, and he responded with two seconds left.

Then, came the wild, improbably ending. Shelton led all scorers with 22 points. He hit eight of 10 field-goal attempts and pulled down seven rebounds. Welch added 16 points, while Brian Taylor chipped in with 14 and Long 13. Taylor had a team-high nine rebounds.

Pat Norris led the Mustangs with 16 points and 11 rebounds. Hasie and Martin Higgins each chipped in 12

For the game, Hereford was 25 of 49 (51 percent) from the field. Coronado canned 32 of 72 for 44.4 percent.

Ewing ready to battle Sampson

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - Georgetown Coach John Thompson likes to think that 7-footer Pat Ewing is the second coming of a combination Bill Russell-Wilt Chamberlain.

Ewing, a 19-year-old Georgetown sophomore, will attempt take a step toward that lofty prediction tonight when the No.3 Hoyas meet Virginia, the nation's topranked college basketball team.

Virginia is led by 7-4 Ralph Sampson, two-time College Player of the Year who could be another Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, according to many experts.

Sampson, 21, a senior who could have turned pro each of the past three seasons, is the force behind a veteran team. Georgetown is relying on key freshmen and several other players in addition to Ewing, who as freshman, helped the Hoyas gain the NCAA championship final last season, only to fall one point short of North Carolina.

But the spectacle of the first matchup between Ewing and Sampson has been enough to sell out the Capital Centre, which seats 19,000, long ago and enrich the Georgetown coffers by $600,000, most of its from television. Ted Turner's superstation which will show the event live starting at 8:35 p.m. EST.

In Friday night's only game involving a member of The AP Top Twenty, Uwe Blab and John Flowers scored 16 points apiece to lead sixth-ranked Indiana to an 85-48 victory over Eastern Michigan in the first round of the annual Indiana Classic basketball tournament at Bloom-

Eastern Michigan hit only four of 19 field goal tries in the first half, while Indiana's Randy Wittman keyed a string of 10 straight points that broke the game open late in the opening period.

Thompson says he had a "good seat" in watching the National Basketball Association showdowns between Russell and Chamberlain.

Thompson, who was a backup center to Russell for several seasons in the NBA, got the former Boston Celtic star to give Ewing some hints about the game last year.

While Chamberlain was known for his offense (and only one NBA title), Russell is remembered as the defensive whiz who changed the game with his shot-blocking which led Celtics domination of the NBA in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

When Ewing was asked recently what he knew about Chamberlain, he answered, "Not much."

What about Russell?

"A lot," he said. Thompson said before the season began that he expected Ewing to improve his offensive output after the former Cambridge, Mass., schoolboy averaged 12.7 points as a freshman.

"He'll get better offensively, " said Thompson, "but I'd love for him to copy Russell. Bill Russell was a winner.' Like Russell, Ewing is an intimidator with his shotblocking ability. Yet he has never faced the likes of Sampson, who does everything well.

"It's not just me and Ralph," said Ewing. "Both teams can't win because of us. We need our teammates. It's Georgetown vs. Virginia.'

Sampson echoed Ewing's comment.

So far this season, Sampson has averaged 18.4 points on 65 percent field goal accuracy and has averaged 9.6 rebounds and blocked 19 shots.

Ewing has a game-high 30 points and a 13.8 average (68 percent from the field). He has averaged 9.2 rebounds and blocked 24 shots.

Coach Terry Holland's Virginia team posted a 30-4 record last season, getting bounced out of the NCAA playoffs by Alabama-Birmingham.

Point guard Othell Wilson, injured that game, has helped the Cavaliers go 5-0 this season.

Georgetown, 30-7, is off to a 6-0 start, having only one tough game, when it was forced into overtime before beating Western Kentucky last Saturday night, 70-66.

For tonight, Sampson and Ewing will be the centers of attention.

In other games Friday night, it was Army 73, Yale 70; Pitt 95, Robert Morris 80; Bowling Green 88, Defiance 69; Texas-San Antonio 69, Texas Tech 67, and Montana 61, Washington State 58.

In the first round of tournament play, it was Mississippi 57, Fordham 47 in the Cougar Classic; Rhode Island 82. Colgate 53 and Ohio University 48, Providence 47, in the Fleet National Classic; South Florida 90, Florida State 77 and Florida 104, Jacksonville 78 in the Florida Four, and Texas A&M 82, La Salle 74 and Marshall 74, Brown 65 in the Marshall Invitational.

Baseball trading reaches new low in futility

HONOLULU (AP) - Major league baseball reached a new low in futility at the week-long winter meetings.

Only eight trades involving 22 players were completed during the days of talk, talk,

The previous low since a count was kept starting a decade ago was 11 transactions for 30 players at Torontc

On the final day, Friday, there were two deals of minor nature. Complex player contracts were blamed by many clubs for the lack of action. It seems the tail is wagging

A typical example was the attempt by the Los Angeles Dodgers to send four players to the Texas Rangers for catcher Jim Sundberg.

Dodgers' General Manager Al Campanis and his Texas counterpart, Joe Klein, shook hands on the deal.

But it fell through because Sundberg wanted his eightyear contract condensed to four, and insisted on retaining a no-trade clause.

"That's unacceptable to us," said Campanis, who was ready to send the Rangers pitchers Burt Hooton, Dave Stewart, Orel Hershiser and outfielder Mark Bradley.

Hooton also was believed to have asked for a buy-out of his right to approve a trade.

The only action Friday was trades between the Houston Astros and New York Mets, the Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs and a free agent signing by Houston.

The Astros obtained righthand pitcher Mike Scott and sent outfielder-infielder Danny Heep to the Mets.

The Red Sox swapped pitcher Chuck Rainey to the Cubs for pitcher Doug Bird. Houston also signed free agent outfielder Omar Moreno to a five year, $3.25 million contract.

And the Cubs said they had reached agreement in principle on the contract of outfielder Wayne Nordhagen, who had gone through the re-entry draft without being claimed.

The San Francisco Giants. seeking to avoid arbitration, a trade or free agency for pitcher Greg Minton, signed the reliever to a five-year deal through 1987.

Another action on the final day involved the Mets and Cincinnati Reds disclosing they had reached agreement on a deal that would send pitcher Tom Seaver back to the Mets, with whom he won three Cy Young Awards.

Even that was held up, because Seaver had to agree to the Mets' contract offer.

"It will take years and numbers," Seaver said in a telephone conversation.

Seaver won 189 and lost 110 in 101/2 seasons for the Mets. He was traded to Cincinnati

The Giants also disclosed they were in the Steve Garvey sweepstakes. Vice President Tom Haller said he, and probably club President Bob Lurie, would meet Tuesday in Los Angeles with Garvey and his agent.

San Diego and the Chicago Cubs were believed to be the only two teams still in contention for Garvey, with their offers in the $7 million area, both believed far in excess of the Giants.

It was a snail's pace meeting to the end.

The 10 p.m. EST trade deadline was extended to 10:45 to allow the Chicago Cubs to complete a trade with the Chicago White Sox.

Outfielder-infielder Tye Waller went to the cross-town White Sox for right-hand pitcher Reggie Patterson. Both were assigned to minor league clubs.

There was only one deal Monday, the five-player swap that sent Red Sox third baseman Carney Lansford to Oakland for power-hitting outfielder Tony Armas.

There wasn't another deal until Thursday, when the Philadelphia Phillies moved five players, including Gold Glove second baseman Manny Trillo to Cleveland for outfielder Von Hayes.

The Phillies also obtained infielder Larry Milbourne for a player to be named later.

Owner George Steinbrenner arrived Wednesday night, and Thursday he livened things by announcing agreement had been reached with free-agent outfielder Steve Kemp.

Steinbrenner engineered a five-player deal in which the Yankees obtained reliever Dale Murray and outfielder-catcher Tom Dodd from Toronto for outfielder Dave Collins, right-hand pitcher Mike Morgan, first baseman Fred McGriff and an unannounced sum of cash.

Also Thursday, Seattle traded right-hand pitcher Rich Bordi to the Cubs for outfielder Steve Henderson.

destination of Garvey and free agent pitcher Floyd Bannister, who according to his agent, Tom Reich, would decide this weekend which of three or four offers he'll ac-

The Philadelphia Phillies, St. Louis Cardinals, Kansas City Royals and Atlanta Braves were supposed to be in the running for Bannister, last year's American League strikeout king.

The Phillies' Bill Giles said Reich told him Bannister would not necessarily go to the highest bidder. In fact, Bannister asked to talk to Steve Carlton, his idol. Reich said Bannister would love to pitch on the same staff with Carlton.

On the administrative side. very little was accomplished. The owners discussed restructuring the commissioner's office and received a report from the committee which will recommend a new commissioner

Bud Selig, Milwaukee owner and chairman of that committee, said his group thus far was formulating a job description for the new commissioner. He said he had 15 names, and interviews weren't expected until Unresolved were the January or February.

Weaver: "Ref, judges and WBA against me"

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -A half-hour removed from the chaos that erupted in the ring following his knockout of Mike Weaver, newly-crowned World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Michael Dokes savored the controversial victory with a champagne bath in his room. "I was destined and just obsessed with getting the title." Dokes said in an impromptu press conference in the hallway outside his room Friday night

But a subdued Weaver, his title wrested from him after referee Joey Curtis stopped the fight at 1:03 of the first round, claimed Curtis was involved in a conspiracy to fix the bout

"Yes, I'm saying that," Weaver said. "I think the referee, judges and the WBA were against me.'

Dokes came out firing from the beginning against the slow-starting usually Weaver, and decked him with a left hook about 30 seconds into the fight.

Weaver was up quickly, but Dokes swarmed on him. throwing punches non-stop while Weaver tried to cover

With Weaver seemingly unable to counter the onslaught, Curtis moved in and stopped the bout - a decision that had the capacity crowd at Caesars Palace on their seats yelling "Fix."

Pandemonium erupted in the ring following the knockout and one Weaver assistant took a swing at Dokes when the new champion asked for the title belt. Dokes took a swing back as security guards tried vainly to restore order Dokes then collapsed on his back in the center of the ring, holding his gloves over his eves, seemingly oblivious to the chaos around him.

"I wanted to lay there and go over the 12 years of trauma and trials and tribulations," said Dokes. 'That was just pure jubila-Dokes rejected claims by Weaver and his manager, Don Manuel, that the outcome of the fight was somehow fixed.

"If he was injured or put in a coma or something it would have been different. I would have been the bad guy," he said.

"They can't blame me. I'm the fighter, not the referee."

Weaver, who lost the WBA version of the heavyweight crown in his third defense since taking the title with a 15th-round knockout of John Tate on March 31, 1980, called for the fight purses to be held up and another fight scheduled within 30 days.

"I'm not going to scream rematch, I'm going to scream no contest. They should have never stopped the fight," he

But stop it Curtis did, even though Weaver claimed he was never hurt.

"He knocked me down, but so what. I've been knocked down many times," Weaver said, "I wasn't hurt in the slightest way. This was a conspiracy.'

Weaver even claimed he hurt Dokes with one of the few punches he threw during

"I hit Dokes about the time the referee stopped it. I knew I hurt him.

Sig Rogich, chairman of the Nevada Athletic Commission, said he doubted Weaver's protest to the commission and the WBA would have any effect.

"It was the referee's decision," said Rogich. "I don't think it's our place to second-

The 24-year-old Dokes, who ran his record to 26-0-1 with 15 knockouts, said he couldn't understand the uproar over the decision.

"Why should we go on like that when there can always be another fight," he asked. "I'll give him a rematch. All he has to do is come up with the same figures as I came out with him.

Dokes chastised Weaver and Manuel for their claims that the fight was fixed.

Was the knockdown fixed?" he asked. "I think I have more integrity than that and more class than to try and make an excuse like

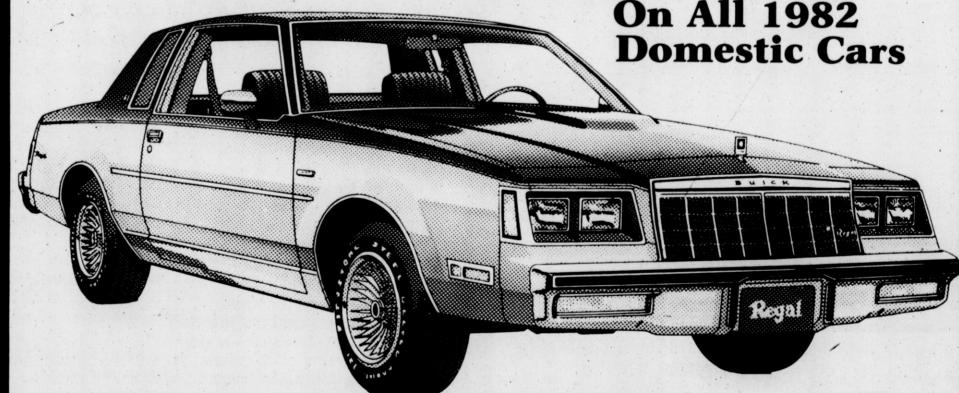

Weaver, 30, was knocked out for the sixth time in his professional career and suffered his 10th defeat in 34

But the Diamond Bar, Calif., fighter, who was guaranteed $1.2 million plus 75 percent of the live gate for the fight, said he will come "Maybe there's a reason for this and I'll find it out some day," he said. "But I definitely will fight again. I want another fight with Dokes.'

Cowboys, Oilers clash Monday

BY LES GILES Sports Editor

It's for the bragging rights of professional football in the state of Texas.

But, for Houston, it could be the end of the line (as far as the 1982 season is concerned) Monday night when the Oilers host Dallas.

The Oilers are 1-4 this season. Another loss will all but wipe out any playoff hopes in this strike-shortened campaign, which has been reduced to nine regular season

Dallas, on the other hand, seems a virtual certainty to make the playoffs again.

The Oilers and Cowboys have met three times in regular season play, and Dallas owns a 2-1 lead.

However, the last time the two met was Thanksgiving Day, 1979, and Houston rode a-great rushing performance by Earl Campbell to a 30-24 win - and it came in Texas Stadium.

If the Oilers could upset Dallas it might provide the needed spark to make a run at the playoffs. Because after Dallas, Houston plays Philadelphia and Cleveland (two teams which have struggled as much as the Oilers this season), before closing out the season against Cincinnati. But don't look for any upset Monday. The Cowboys are one of the best, if not the best, team in the National Football League They've knocked on the Super Bowl door the last two seasons (losing in the NFC championship game), and this year they just might break through again. Houston's offense simply has been pretty much one dimensional this season - and that dimension has been Campbell. He's accounted for 78.6 percent of the Oiler's rushing yards, and 36.1 percent of all yards gained. He carries the ball 81.8 percent of the time that the Oilers run it, and this in a year when head coach Ed Biles said he didn't want Earl to do as much.

Campbell, one of the league's great running backs, now ranks 10th in all-time rushing yards.

In less than five years, the "Tyler Rose" has rushed for 6,850 yards on 1,508 attempts, and has scored a club record 55 TDs on the ground.

Ninth on the all-time list is Leroy Kelly of Cleveland with 7,274 yards.

Jim Browns heads the list with 12,312 yards in an 9-year career. O.J. Simpson wound up an 11-year career with 11,236 yards and second place.

Franco Harris of Pittsburgh began the season in third place with 10,605 yards, while Walter Payton of the Bears was fourth with 9,878.

The average years played by the nine players ahead of Campbell was 10.6, and he attained the 10th place ranking in only four full seasons, plus five games.

The Southwest Conference wound up averaging 43,340 per game this season.

Texas averaged 74,181 fans to lead the way. TCU's average of 21,017 per game ranked last.

Texas A&M, despite a 5-6 record under new coach Jackie Sherrill, averaged 56,630 to rank second behind the Longhorns.

Arkansas was third in attendance figures, averaging 50,064. Texas Tech was fourth, averaging 43,311, while conference champion SMU could do no better than fifth Baylor was sixth, averaging 33,150; Houston averaged 30,269 to place seventh and Rice, winless this past season, averaged 26,000 to finish above the Horned Frogs.

In all, the conference drew 2,253,680 for its 52 games.

Important to winterize skin

BY LOUISE WALKER County Extension Agent

Winter is a difficult time of the year for many types of skin, with chief enemies being cold, wind and the drop in relative humidity.

Most heating systems also rob the air of moisture and may cause the skin to crack. become rough or red, scale and develop lines.

Here are some ways to protect yourself - before the bad weather arrives.

A moist skin is healthy skin. Use a moisturizer - not to add water or oil to the skin - but to prevent the skin's own water content from'

If you wear an oily, protective makeup base in the winter, a toner can help get your face completely clean.

A toner, usually an alcoholbased lotion, should be applied with a cotton pad after cleaning the face. This treatment should be followed with a moisturizer while the skin is damp - unless your skin is so oily that you don't need moisturizer.

Astringents - toners with more alcohol - may be used after cleaning the face but my irritate the skin. People with dry skin should avoid products containing alcohol. Three areas of the face require different amounts of moisturizer. Around the eyes there are few oil glands and the skin is driest. Pat moisturizer on gently before applying foundation.

The cheeks and neck require a lighter moisturizer. The area around the nose and forehead is usually oily and may need little or no moisturizer.

Women with extremely oily skin should select and use moisturizers carefully. because they can cause oily skin to break out.

Moisturiers are available in lotions and creams. Lotions have a higher water content and contain less oil. In dry climates, the water in the lotion evaporates rapidly, so one may need a cream for longer protection.

Finally, don't forget to protect your lips by using lip conditioner and lipstick or gloss. Winterize your skin indoors and out this season.

Mothers' attitudes influence views

COLLEGE STATION --Mom's attitude about her work away from home has a major effect on her children's views toward it, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist.

When mothers feel good about their work outside the home, the effect on their children is more likely to be positive," the specialist says.

Welch is with the Home Economics Program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Of course, many factors affect children's social and psychological adjustment to Mom working outside the home, but her attitude is significant, Welch notes.

For the first time in history, a majority of American women are in the labor force, Welch says.

Statistically more than half of all Texas mothers with school age children are employed. Of mothers with children under six the figure is only a bit lower - 40 percent are employed outside the

This dramatic social change has created concern. among researchers and the general public -- many are asking, "What's happening to the children?" Welch says.

Some of "what's happening" has been documented by studies that focus on children's thoughts about their mothers working.

Findings from these studies provide insight into needs of families in which the mother works outside the home, Welch says.

These family needs also suggest guidelines for parents, she adds. Here are the guidelines:

1) Mothers, share your work with the family.

Children who have some information about their mother's employment are more likely to understand it.

Mothers can help children gain understanding by talking over their jobs with the children, taking the children to places of employment when feasible and introducing the children to people 'Mom works with."

2) Mothers, consider the adjustments your children must make.

When Mom works outside the home, the whole family has to adjust routines, schedules and responsibilities.

Complaints sometimes voiced by children of working others include these:

'We miss out on all the "We have too many household responsibilities." "We miss not having Mom at home when we return from school."

Complaints can be avoided when mothers communicate with children about routines and responsibilities, Welch

As children mature, they recognize the contribution they make to the balance of home and work life, the specialist says.

3) Mothers, assure your children of your primary interest in them.

Children of working mothers need to know they still are a primary interest, Welch stresses.

To increase children's sense of security, take time to listen when they talk about the days activities and about 'just things." Also, "be around" when possible.

Make sure that job demands are not consuming all of your time. In the work world, naturally, peak periods of job demands do occur. Children can accept these times better when job demands in general are not all-consuming of Mom's time, Welch says. Finally, there is a kind of cycle about mother's and children's attitudes, Welch

"The better a Mom views her work, the better her children will feel about how that work personally affects them - and the more likely they are to think of Mom's job itself in favorable terms.

"The more favorable children are toward the mother's work, the more likely her own attitude will stay positive," she says.

Procedure may eliminate transplant problem

DALLAS (AP) - Scientists at the University of Texas Health Science Center say they have found a way to "trick" the blood, yielding new treatment for organ transplant recipients.

But the procedure probably won't be ready for human application for a couple of years, said Dr. Robert Eberhart, associate professor of engineering in surgery who has spent five years researching the idea.

The technique involves inserting into the body plastic organs, blood vessels and tubing coated with a modified plastic called alkylation. The plastic "tricks" the blood, terminating the need for anticoagulant drugs, Eberhart

The plastic "makes an attractive surface for albumin," a plasma protein found in the blood, Eberhart

The albumin "binds densely to the plastic to provide a surface that the blood recognizes as self and it does not initiate reactions," he said.

"In other words, it fools the body into assuming the plastic with the coating is the same as any other natural substance in the body," he

The technique has proved so successful on animals that scientists at the center say it could remove one of the greatest dangers that follow replacement or repair of body parts with plastic, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Friday.

Any foreign material that immediately triggers massive clotting that can obstruct blood vessels and kill if it affects the heart, lungs or brain, said Eberhart.

Resident visits former exchange student | Policies Announced |

By LINDA CAUDLE Family News Editor

"When I got off the plane therewere military personnel everywhere, all carrying guns or rifles;" relates Mae Wofford, who recently returned from a visit to Guatemala where she attended the high school graduation of Otto Salguero, an exchange student whom her family kept in their home during the 1979-80 school year

"That first night we went into downtown Esquipulas, where Otto's family lives, so they could show me around," continues Mae. "When we started back down the sixlane freeway, the military had the road narrowed down to one lane going each direc-

"They were pulling some cars off and searching them, looking for information and clues concerning several kidnappings, including the nephew of the president. That shook me up a little bit, but we made it back to their home O.K.

"Before 6 a.m. the next morning I awoke to what I thought was a round of machine gun fire, followed shortly by two more rounds. I was white as a ghost when I looked in the mirror, but no one else in the house even seemed to notice.

"Finally, when Otto got up, I asked him about it and he started laughing, explaining that it was a tradition for friends to wake up those celebating a birthday with a string of about 100 firecrackers.

"That's one tradition I wish someone had explained to me before I went over there!" laughs Mae.

Mae is employed as a travel consultant at the Hereford Travel Center, a job which she says came about through her association with Otto. "I went down there one day to get an application for a passport and found out they were looking for someone,' comments Mae.

Mae's husband, Dale, is a transport carrier for Lloyd Newton and the couple hasthree children, Alan, Rayma, and Bert.

The Woffords first heard about the student exchange program in an article they read in the paper. "When I called that phone number for information, I never dreamed I'd be visiting Guatemala three years later," says Mae.

When Otto came to live with us, I could speak very little Spanish," she continues. "It had been 24 years since I'd had it in school. His first words when he got off the plane were 'no hablo ingles.'

"But by late October (he had come in August) he said 'no more Spanish' and by Christmas he was speaking English pretty fluently." Mae says that when she went to Guatemala, she could communicate a little bit with Otto's family-he helped with interpreting - but she never could understand the maid or some of the other people she encountered.

When they went shopping in the open market, Mae says that Otto told her "if you see something you like, tell me but don't let them know you like it or they'll raise the price."

"Otto's mother was very good at 'dickering them down," says Mae, "and I ended up with some really nice things."

But although she made séveral purchases, Mae says the majority of the souvenirs she brought back from Guatemala were gifts from Otto's family. "His mother and sister are unbelievably talented," comments Mae. "They did the needlework on several of the items and his grandmother also made several things for me."

"I commented on the beauty of a large cross-stitch tablecloth while we were eating a meal, and they immediately said 'it's yours.' I was pretty careful about what I said after that!"

Otto's father owns two hotels and a hardware store. The family lives in Esquipulas, about a three and a half hour drive from Guatemala City.

Otto's oldest brother, Fredy, is a senior in college at Monterey, Mexico; another brother, Ivan, is a junior in college in Guatemala City; his sister, Elaina, is 15 years old; and his youngest brother, Mario, is 17 months old,

Otto and Ivan share an apartment in Guatemala City, as Otto has been attending a private high school there since returning Guatemala

"He's gone to private school there since he was in the seventh grade," comments Mae, "which is why he said that he never got homesick when he came to the states-he was used to being away from home.

After Otto's graduation ceremonies, Mae says his family hosted a dinner in Guatemala City for about 50 people. They brought along their cook, Paco, who has been with the family for 24 years, and he prepared the lavish meal

"That night, as we were sitting at the table, there was a 4.2 earthquake," says Mae. "It really scared me and I just sat at the table and didn't move. The electricity was off too so it was really dark."

Between those two times, he and his mother, father, and sister visited Disneyworld for his sister's 15th birthday present. "They usually have a big debutante party, but she chose Disneyworld instead," says Mae.

Otto's family took Mae on several excursions to nearby towns while she was there.

'We drove to Antigua and visited four churches. There were a lot of beggars outside the churches," says Mae. "I was overwhelmed by the poverty of many of the people and the great contrast between the rich and the poor. "I saw people I don't believe had ever had a pair of shoes on in their lives and observed some little boys who were completely naked or were only clothed in a shirt. Many of the people lived in straw huts, and the only shelter some had were cardboard boxes.'

In one city, Mae says they were in the midst of this poverty and then drove up to an eight foot high white concrete wall with guards who let down the gate. "It was like another world inside that wall," says Mae. "There was a Ramada Inn with two swimming pools and a nice restaurant."

'We visited some ancient Mayan ruins at Quirigua, north of Esquipulas," adds Mae, "and a castle which the

We also drove to an Indian village where they did all kinds of weaving," notes Mae. "The Indians wore very colorful dress and their dwellings were very neat and clean, though they were also quite poor.

'One memorable scene was a man carrying a woven mat on his back which was filled and overflowing with yellow flowers. They were so beautiful. A lot of the women carry baskets and big jars on their heads, and they often have a baby on their back,

'Guatemala is very mountainous and very similar foliage-wise to Hawaii," comments Mae, adding that she visited Hawaii last year. "I saw all of the same things growing plus more-except pineapple, and they have that

'Otto hadn't ever seen frost or snow when he came here the first time. Guatemala's motto is 'The Land of Eternal Spring.

Another thing Mae enjoyed during her visit there was the food. "It's very different and I loved it," she smiles.

LOSE WEIGHT & FEEL GREAT!

Volunteers who have produced the new book of Deaf Smith County History, "The Land And Its People," will be honored at a reception Sunday, Dec. 19, in the E.B. Black House Historical

The Deaf Smith County Historical Society, sponsor of Project County History, will host the reception from 3-5 p.m., inviting the public to join in expressing appreciation to the workers who have given hundreds of hours to compiling the 652-page, book.

We feel that these volunteers have performed a valuable service in recording the county's history in a beautiful, readable volume," Johnnie Turrentine. Historical Society president, said.

"In addition to the major contributors, there were many others who helped with information, suggestions and services. We are very grateful to those who wrote histories of their families, and of their businesses or organizations as well as tributes to county citizens which make up the special page sections. We hope many of them will come to the reception," she added.

Work on the history project began more than two years ago, when a mailing list of about 1,500 names of present and former county residents was compiled. Letters were sent to them announcing the project and asking their cooperation

Material was collected for stories on varied facets of the history, then the stories were written and edited, photos added, book selections planned and layouts made. Then material was sent to the publishers and returned for first reading and revised reading of proof. Meanwhile the cover design had been drawn, binding chosen and type styles selected for the basic text and headlines.

All this time, book orders were, being taken and careful records kept.

Troyce Hanna and Kathryn Ruga served as co-chairmen of the project committee, with Marjorie Mehlberg as bookkeeper and Sue Coleman as office secretary. Marian Kreig, Juanita Owen and Nelda Guy Ricketts were on the office staff with multiple duties Harold Close and Major Schroeter gave much time to contacting special page purchasers; Violet Reinauer, Wirt Albracht, Don Hicks, Robert Thompson, Walter Seed, Andrew Kershen, Homer Garrison and Garth Thomas also assisted in that phase of the work

Each community in the county had a representative on the project. These included Lazelle Fowler, Flora Homfeld, Pet Ott, Helen Kleuskens, Tanya Klueskens, Leta Kaul, Elzora Brown, Juanita Perrin, Alberta Higgins, Mildred Hicks, Juanita

Hershey, Ola McBroom and

with special photography

Proof readers and helpers with various office chores were Ruby Carmicahel, Eleanor Hudspeth, Abel-Ruga, Lester Mehlberg, Ann Kershen, Jenny Buckner, Mildred Betzen, Aileen Montgomery, Lucille Hughes, Ruth King, Helen Langely and Clora Brown.

Sourches with first-hand information on events of past and present were headed by Bessie Patterson's History of Deaf Smith County and the Hereford Jubilee History edited by Helen Rose.

Individuals on that list are Calla Mountz, Corinne Neely, the late J.T. Guinn, Frances Dameron, Cecil Williams, Lee J. Ott, Cap Cocanougher, Ogle Riddle, June Owens, Margaret Schroeter, Lorene Newman, Wilma Clark, B.F. Cain, Dessie Mae McCracken and Roberta Wilson.

Work on the project's mailing list was done by Guy Lawrence, Argen Draper, Lois Gililland, Vesta Mae

County and city officials, courthouse personnel and Chamber of Commerce staff were of continuing assistance, as were staffs of the Hereford Brand and Radio Station KPAN.

The Hereford Brand-Sunday, Dec. 12, 1982-Page 9B El Paso sheriff found guilty of official misconduct

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -El Paso County Sheriff Raymond Montes has been convicted of official misconduct, making him the second consecutive sheriff to be found guilty of misconduct while in office in this West Texas county. Montes, 55, was convicted Friday on a felony count of misappropriating a $1,900 cashier's check in connection with the sale of a pickup from the sheriff's abandoned auto auction.

Montes told jurors he misappropriated the money accidentally while signing other sheriff-related checks.

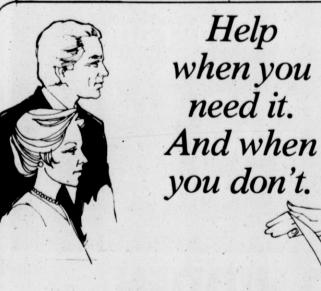

He faces sentencing Monday, and could receive two to 10 years in prison, a fine of $5,000, and loss of his post.

Texas state law requires that sheriffs convicted of a crime while in office be replaced. County commissioners are empowered to appoint a new sheriff.

In 1978, Montes predecessor, Mike Sullivan Jr., pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor counts of abuse of power by using Comprehensive Employment Training Act employees to work in his home and for buying personal goods from the sheriff's budget.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I suppose you're wondering what kind of people move into a new house two weeks before Christmas.

There are only two kinds: the ones who can't cough up the rent by the 15th and the people who say, "what the heck, what does it matter when we move just so long as the family's together?"

I belong to the latter group, I am stupid. No one is with you when you move. Not the family, not relatives, not God, and certainly not the utilities companies. No wonder President Reagan wants four more years. They're not unpacked yet.

As we speak, I am surrounded by 137 boxes marked "MISCELLANEOUS." I am alone. No one cares that you have to stand on your head to read "RIGHT SIDE UP" on 30 of them. No one seems to notice there are andirons in the kitchen sink. Not one person has brought up the fact that we have not seen Daddy since he climbed on the roof to unhook the TV antannae at the old house.

This is it! I am aware that this is the seventh time I have said, "This is absolutely the last time I move anywhere," but I really mean it this time. I am ready to live out the rest of my life in this house. And I'm going to reform. I will never own anything heavier that 20 pounds that does not come with wheels. When I hold a book in my hand I will ask two questions: "Did I read it? Did I write it?" If the answer is no, it gets pitched.

God is giving me a second chance. I know that now. He is giving me virgin drawers and shelves for a purpose. In return I will make Him a promise. I will never save a magazine because of a single tuna recipe on page 93.

I will never hang onto another rubber board, garbage bag tie, empty coffee can, mayonnaise jar (with lid) or plastic whipped cream container.

And if He will give me a sign as to where the coffee pot is, I will never save another plastic bag as long as I live. It'll all work out. It always does. I'll find the tree and the lights and the tinsel. Somehow, the boxes of ornaments will appear like magic and we'll get caught up in the spirit of things lke we always do. My son will put that ridiculous pie plate he made in the first grade on one of the branches and we'll get some firewood and build a fire and someone will play the piano and we'll sing Christmas carols.

Junior members present program

The Hereford unit of the American Legion Auxiliary met Tuesday evening in the Legion Home. Legion members joined the Auxiliary for a program presented by the junior members.

Karen Reinart, chairman of children and youth, introduced her sister, Jenifer Jesko, who was in charge of the musical program. The first number was a piano performance of "The Night Christ was Born" and "Silent Night" played by Crystal Finley.

Susan Reinart played "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas" and "Joy to the World," and Megan Sanderson sang "I Saw Mama Kissing Santa Claus."

The next piano selection was by Kari Reinart: "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day" and "What Child is This?" The final number was a piano and fluet duet, "Silent Night" and "I'll be Home for Christmas," by Kari Reinart and Jenifer Jesko.

Ruth King gave the membership report. She stated that the Herford unit has 77 senior members and 23 junior members and is the largest unit in the 18th

Lawyer left courtroom after Nixon tapes case

HOUSTON (AP) - Leon Jaworski, the Watergate special prosecutor who said he nearly resigned his post when he realized how deeply the president was involved in the scandal, never returned to the courtroom after securing access to Richard Nixon's secret tapes.

You just don't argue another case after you've argued 'the United States vs. Nixon' before the Supreme Court," he said after the 1974

But Jaworski, who died of a heart attack Thursday while sawing wood at his Wimberley ranch, never retired.

He continued to serve on the boards of several corporations and foundations, making several speeches a month and working at his law office at Fulbright & Jaworski in downtown Houston.

The man who helped put Lyndon Johnson in office and helped force Nixon from office was to be buried at 2 p.m. today after funeral services at First Presbyterian Church presided over by the Rev. John Lancaster, his minister for more than 20 years. Burial will be in Memorial Oaks Cemetery on Houston'

Jaworski was born in Waco in 1905. At age 20, he became. the youngest lawyer ever licensed in the state.

He represented Lyndon B. Johnson in legal proceedings after Johnson's controversial election to the U.S. Senate in 1948. Johnson used the Senate as a springboard to the presidency and several times selected Jaworski for special assignments.

Though he already had had a distinguished legal career, Jaworski was little known nationally until he was appointed Watergate prosecutor in November 1973.

'My friends thought that my mental health had failed me, that my head should be examined," he said of the appointment.

Aggie Moms prepare survival packs

Several Hereford Aggie Moms gathered Monday evening at Merle Clark's home to prepare "survival packs" for area Texas A&M University students who will be facing semester exams this week.

The boxes, containing a variety of snack foods and gifts, plus a note saying "We love you," were sent to 22 students from the Hereford, Dimmitt and Bovina area.

The Moms may have started a club tradition since they enjoyed preparing the surprise packages as much as the students will enjoy discovering all the goodies.

Merle Clark, whose daughter, Ronda is the frist female student from the Hereford area to be accepted into the TAM Veterinary School, will assume the office of club president in January, following a two year reign by Pat Clark, mother of the two Aggies, Jason and Dawson. Other officers to be installed at the same time will be Sue Sims, recording secretary; Bera Boyd, vicepresident for membership; and Betty Koelzer, historian.

Vice-president for projects, Mary Lyles: treasurer, Vondell Plummer; and reporter, Betty Koelzer, will hold their respective offices until January 1982.

Shirley Garrison and Donna Roming of Bovina, and Lois Wales of Dimmitt recently joined the organization. Their three sons are all first year TAM students. Tim Wales received the 1982 Hereford Aggie Moms scholarship.

Other Moms preparing the students' "survival packs' were Margie Ford, Margaret Ann Durham, Ms. Sims, Ms. Lyles, Ms. Boyd, Ms. Plummer, Juanita Bowles and Ms.

Take caution to avoid 'blues' during holidays

DALLAS - There's a little bit of the Grinch in everybody at Christmas, says Dr. Bob Dain, clinical assistant professor of Psychology at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

That's why the Dr. Seuss book is so popular with all ages. But people whose behaviour resembles the Grinch too closely during the holiday season may have a problem. They may be suffering from the Christmas blues. Or worse yet, they may have the Big D - Big Depression.

The psychologist, who says he has fun wearing a tie with Scrooge's "Bah, humbug!" message printed on it, says that some individuals do feel left out in the cold during the holidays. These people may have had close family ties as children that have been destroyed by death, distance or divorce. Or they may interpret songs about "the season to be jolly" as commands to live at a frenzied pace.

Too many people have the illusion that the pursuit of happiness is a high kind of thing like being on dope, especially during the

of this kind of Christmas cheer gets in the way of peace on earth.

"It's a cop-out to believe that having a good time means frantic activity and often a distorted consciousness from abuse of alcohol and-or drugs. Having a good time during the holidays. Actually too much Christmas season doesn't mean having a compulsive 'good time.'

The main thing to help us our emotional equilibrium during the holiday season, says the psychologist, is to know "where you're coming from" in your own life and what you want from the holidays and to beware of pressures. Too many people believe that they must do what is expected of them by others and cannot face others' criticism. They are under the delusion that we are forced by other people and cannot face others' criticism. They are under the delusion that we are forced by other people or by external pressures to meet the expectations of others -our spouses, our children, our parents, our friends.

"Giving can be a pleasure -but only if you feel like giving." Dain emphasizes. "Only if we give because we care about the other person. Giving on demand, on the other hand, always leads to resentcapitalize on a person's guilt. The commercial system says if you don't buy, you're a bad parent: A bad husband. We're pressured and blackmailed, and the expression of our caring by giving is cheapened.'

In Dain's view the way to deal with the special pressures the holidays bring is simply to deal with them in the same way he advises patients to deal with their lives

'Make your choice and take the responsibility for them. Look at the situation and decide what you think is best. Don't do what you really don't want to do.'

UTHSCD psychiatrist Dr. John Rush advises people who come down with a case of Christmas blues not to panic.

"The Christmas blues is not the same as a major clinical depression," he stresses. "But some people do get depressed over the holidays."

While the Christmas blues can make you feel rotten, it's important to remember that they won't last forever (usually only a few weeks' duration) and aren't lifethreatening. However, it would be better to try to head them off and spare yourself a lot of misery.

What can be done?

First, Rush suggests that during the holiday season people think about the good things going on in their lives at the present time and any personal gains that have added to their pleasure during the last year Too often people have a tendency to focus on their losses during the holiday season. Their children may have grown up and moved into lives of their own, especially to other parts of the country. Retirement may have dealt an emotional blow to a once busy corporate executive who is having problems filling his hours in a satisfying way these days. A woman who has recently been divorced may be brooding on past years' couple-oriented holiday celebrations she is no longer included in. Her ex-husband may find being away from his children during the holiday season a rough experience

Your wife will have some things she wants to do with you, too. So spell it out to your relatives early. Or else you'll get the guilt routine: 'Oh, but we planned....

Reagan plan actually devised in 1930's farm plan hailed by President Reagan this week as a "highly innovative approach" to crop surplus innovative problems was actually designed by the New Deal in the early 1930s.

The system was used again during the Democratic administrations of the 1960s to reduce holdings government-owned com-

Under the plan announced receive surplus grain in addition to cash if they reduce production substantially in the next two years.

The idea is to help dispose of the growing grain stockpile and reduce federal outlays for farm programs, which totaled $6 billion in fiscal 1981, $12 billion in 1982 and could rise to $15 billion in the 1983 budget year that started Oct. 1.

According

Agriculture Department background paper obtained Friday, "payments-in-kind to farmers as a means of reducgovernment-held surpluses made their first appearance in USDA programs as part of the cotton section of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933" in the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Farmers were required to choose between receiving straight cash for land taken out of production or a combination of smaller payments and an option to buy cotton from government stocks at cut-rate prices.

In the first year, the cashoption program resulted in farmers taking 10.4 million acres from cotton production which exceeded the administration's projections.

The program lapsed when the Supreme Court declared the 1933 farm act unconstitutional in 1936. New farm law in 1938 did not mention PIK specifically but did authorize the secretary of agriculture to make "payments or grants of other aid to agricultural producers."

No further PIK operations were seriously considered until the Kennedy administration took office in 1961, when government-owned surpluses of feed grains totaled 2.7 billion bushels, with prospects of more being action that allowed paymentsin-kind to farmers for reducing their acreage. The initial 20 percent reduction - or diversion - could be paid for either in cash or in kind and at a maximum of 50 percent of a farmer's normal crop production.

But then-Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman decided that all the payments would be in kind.

'The 1961 feed grain program was an immediate success in getting farmers to comply," the report said. administration estimated that 15 to 16 million acres would be taken out of production. In the first year 25.2 million acres were signed up for diversion, which represented 40 percent of all farms eligible.'

However, there was a major flaw in the 1961 farm act and the PIK system because farmers who did not comply with the feed grains program increased their production - riding on the coattails of those who did.

Freeman wanted compulsory marketing quotas for feed grain, which would do away with the PIK concept. But Congress didn't agree and in the 1962 farm law added to the acreage diversion feature, including an expansion of the PIK option. It also survived in 1965 legislation.

But gradually, as government-owned stockpiles dwindled, the PIK program faded and was not renewed by Congress in the 1970 farm bill.

The PIK system also was used to help curb cotton production in the 1960s, the report said. But it, too, was dropped after 1970.

In another variation, inkind payments were used in foreign trade by turning commodities by USDA's Commodity Credit Corp. over to private exporters, beginning in 1956, "as a form of export subsidy for wheat," the report said.

"Instead of cash, exporters received their subsidies through payment-in-kind certificates redeemable in CCC wheat. Wheat obtained this way could only be used for export." By 1958, corn and other feed grains, rice and cotton were added to the list. Non-fat dry milk was added in 1962. The PIK certificates were discontinued in 1966. In assessing the PIK system, the report said it was considered successful by Freeman and other administration leaders of the time, although they would have preferred mandatory controls to take more acreage out of production. "Government stocks (of grain) declined, despite almost yearly increases in yields for feed grains," the report said.

Government inventories of corn fell from 1.26 billion bushels in fiscal 1961 to 483 million in 1965 and 136.4 million in 1968.

The horses were not being abused but "because of the individual involved and that particular farm, the investigators felt they needed those particular animals for evidence," Gumert said.

Sooner turns boyhood collecting hobby into profitable business

By BILL JOHNSON Associated Press Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) Can't decide on a Christmas present for that hard-to-buyfor person? How about a rhinoceros beetle or a butterfly

Arturo Crucet will be glad to fill your order. But a word of warning - butterflies, or beetles, aren't free.

"I have them from about, $15 up to several thousand dollars each," says Crucet, a former high school biology teacher who turned a boyhood hobby into a profitable business.

Ninety-five percent of my stuff is under $25, the breadand-butter items," the bearded Crucet says. "There aren't too many people who will pay $200, or even $100, for a but-money order to have it shipped air express. Although Crucet didn't say what the collection cost, he did say that large specimens of scarab beetles from Africa or rhinoceros beetles from South America could cost as high as a thousand dollars each.

"A bird wing butterfly from New Guinea would sell for several thousand dollars, if you could get one" he added. "It all depends on how rare the specimen is.'

What a buyer gets for his money, whether it's $15 or $1,500; is a guaranteed specimen of the insect mounted on a cloth mat in a hand-made wooden frame. Each specimen is chemically treated to prevent deterioration, and Crucet writes the biological data on the back.

"I make the frames myself, from cutting the glass to staining the wood," Crucet

Although his initial contact with potential buyers often comes through arts and crafts fairs, much of his business comes from word-ofinouth advertising

"I have people who call or write and tell me they have seen one of my projects," Crucet says. "They'll tell me what what their decorating scheme is, that they have earth-tone walls or such, and ask me to make a collection for them:

"I do, and ship it to them. If they're not happy with it, they can ship it back. But few

I assume she is nlannin to give them as Christmas gifts," he says.

Crucet says his hobby began when he was growing up in the Panama Canal Zone, where his father worked for the government. "We lived in a little fown in the jungle for a while, and I used to catch butterflies and moths," he says.

Sometimes my father would take me to the canal at night and the fence would just be a tapestry of insects attracted by the lights."

His family bought land in Panama and he raises some of his insects there. Others are raised in Norman and still others are bought from people throughout the world.

'It's easier to raise them than it is to go out and catch them," he says. But he does catch some, usually in the winter when he looks for cocoons or chrysalises, the early stages of metamorphosis, while hiking or backpacking.

And he does pay some people to catch them.

There are people in the various countries who catch these things and sell them," he says. "Sometimes we pay them money, but often we barter for them, give them fish hooks or penicillin or something they need.

When you're way up in the bush, money isn't all that important.

Crucet says he used to get rare scarab beetles from "a fellow in Angola. But I haven't gotten any for six or seven years, since the cominunists took over.

His business got started when he gave some of his collections to friends. "It wasn't long before other people were offering to pay me to make some for them.

One day a friend told me about an arts and crafts show richness that is quite nice."

and said I should go," Crucet says. "I thought it was ridiculous, but finally packed up about 25 or 30 samples. They were all sold in about three hours, and I decided I was on to something.

Crucet taught school and handled his insect business as a sideline until about six years ago, when he began to devote full time to the bugs.

I'm not getting rich, but I'm comfortable," he says. "I can take a vacation when I want to:

anyway.

MADD finds ample support for its war on the death and destruction caused by drunken drivers, but dissension in the ranks springs from how best to wage the battle.

MADD wants to up the drinking age from 19 to 21, impose mandatory jail time for repeat offenders, and pin some legal responsibility for DWI accidents on the bartenders who served drinks to the offender.

Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, in line to take over as House speaker, reflects the attitude of the Legislature.

"I think we need to have a stronger DWI law," he says. "To some extent I do support (raising the drinking age). I can't say I'm a strong supporter of that. I'm supporting getting drunks off the road and penalizing those habitual drunks.

out to 'change attitudes'

Banning the carrying of open liquor containers in vehicles being driven on public highways is another of the options the Legislature, which convenes in January, that that's going to make that big of a difference," Lewis said of the container law proposal. Few legislators are expected to support MADD's suggestion that bartenders and other servers of alcohol take the blame for an intoxicated customers' irresponsibility at the wheel.

Most legislators seem more inclined to support legislation beefing up DWI penalties. Currently, a first offense is a misdemeanor, punishable by county jail time, a fine and driver's license suspension.

Later offenses move up to the felony level, with a potential sentence of five years in prison and a $5,000, plus license suspension.

Under current law, judges can "defer adjudication" in DWI cases, meaning the offender is put on pre-trial probation. If the offender completes the probation without another offense, his record is free of a finding of guilt.

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, introduced a bill last session that would do away with deferred adjudication and impose a minimum 72 hours of jail time for a second offender, 30 days minimum for a third and later offender. He is expected to reintroduce very similar legislation this session.

posal, saying judges should retain the option, since they can always impose the jail time later if a candidate for deferred adjudication does not make it through the probation period.

National DWI law expert Laurence Ross, a sociology professor at State University in New York, disagrees that the rush to increase penalties will do much good.

men claim they were beaten

 A police chief has suspended two of his officers without pay after two New Mexico men arrested for public intoxication contended the officers punched one of them in the kidneys and kneed the other in the groin.

William Officer Talamantez was suspended Thursday for three days and officer Robert Lester for one day, according to Big Spring Police Chief Rick Turner, who reviewed videotapes of the booking.

"Nobody's head was busted open during the booking,' Turner said. "There was no excessive brutality. They just committed indiscretions not anything to warrant terso severe that judges, prosecutors and juries see them as unfair, they will begin finding people not guilty," or convict them of lesser charges, Ross argues. "Increasing the certainty of the penalties works.

"If there were one thing recommended to the Texas Legislature that would reduce the crashes and death toll, it would be raising the mination. "I feel the officers didn't handle themselves well," he said. "They're not bad officers. They just got caught up in the heat of the situation. But I'm not going to tolerate that kind of behavior in my department.

Agapito M. Lucero, 32, of Fort Sumner, N.M., and Raymond L. Urban, 21, of Clovis, N.M., both accused the officers of abusing them after they were arrested with three other men at about 2:15 a.m. Wednesday outside a downtown* nightclub called Mary's Disco Paradise.

Lucero said he was punched in the kidneys, and Urban said he was kneed in the groin. The other three men said they also were abused.

A. Comprehensive coverage reimburses you for damage to your own car due to fire, theft, glass breakage, flood, falling objects, missiles, explosion, earthquake, windstorm, hail, water, vandalism, riot, civil commotion or collision with a bird or animal. Collision insurance covers the policyholder for damage to your own car from collision with another object. Ag leaders say grain plan too sketchy to judge

Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Farm leaders and members of Congress say they are withholding judgment on President Reagan's plan to attack commodity surpluses by giving away stockpiled grain and cash to farmers who stop planting crops.

cool to the idea of freezing 1984 and 1985 price supports at the 1983 level.

That's one of the administration's key conditions for the program, but it's viewed by some as an erosion of this financial "safety net" for farmers.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., fears moving stockpiled grain back into the market and Veryl Bailey of the National Corn Growers Association says a similar program 20 years ago was "pretty much a failure.'

But after Reagan announced the program on Thursday, Agriculture Secretary John Block said that if Congress approves quickly and farmers cooperate, the program can start an upswing in the rural economy almost imwill only drive prices lower, mediately. He said the mechanics are not "set in stone" and all suggestions will be viewed with an open mind.

"We cannot restore prosperity to the marketplace until stock levels are reduced," Block said. "The longer we wait, the less likely it will be that we can get the (farmer) participation."

Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., chairman of the Agriculture market stabilization subcommittee, disagreed with freezing price supports, proposing small support increases. But he said, "I don't think Congress should stand in the way.'

Kentucky Sen. Walter Huddleston, the ranking Democrat on the Agriculture Committee, told Block to expect "some additions" to his program and "disagreement in some respects."

If farmers give the plan a chance in 1983 and 1984, Block said the surpluses could be eliminated since, in conjunction with other programs, as much as 50 percent of the land devoted to major crops could be taken out of production during the next two vears.

Farmers could use the grain payment, coming from stocks owned by the government or under price support loan, to feed livestock or sell on the open market.

Potato growers to vote on increasing checkoff

Beginning Monday the nation's potato growers will participate in a referendum on a proposed amendment to increase funds for the National Potato Promotion Board. Ballots will be mailed to potato growers by the USDA and must be returned by Dec. 27. The proposed change must be accepted by a two-thirds majority of those growers voting.

Currently, each grower contributes 1 cent per hundredweight for use in a national research and promotion program. Approximately $2.5 million has been collected each year since the board's inception in 1971.

Because the current assessment rate is based on volume only. The board's budget has remained the same over the last 10 years while the consumer price index has risen about 125 percent," said Bill Reinauer, potato grower and Potato Board member from Hereford. "Inflation and rising media costs have drastically affected our budget and reduced our marketing dollars.

The proposed assessment volume. The new assessment rate would be based on a maximum of one half of 1 percent of the USDA reported price of potatoes over 10

Based on 1972-81 prices, the assessment could double to about 2 cents per hundredweight. Reinauer said. The actual assessment rate wold be set by board members each year but it could go no higher than 2.1 centers per hundredweight (based on the 1972-83 price of potatoes). There would be one uniform rate for all

The USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service says that exports of solid wood products alone are worth about $3 billion a year to the forest industry. And sales are expected to at least double by the end of the decade.

Fifteen trade associations representing forest products are participating in foreign market development projects, according to an article

Last year, it said, the exports was comprised of softwood logs - more than $1 billion in value. The remaining $2 billion consisted mostly of softwood lumber and plywood, hardwood logs and lumber, and veneer.

Japan took $1.28 billion worth of solid wood products in 1981, including $823 million worth of softwood logs.

"There is potential for increasing the U.S. share of the $25 billion Japanese market for wood products, particularly the processed products - lumber, plywood, veneer and particle board," the report said.

Italy off disease list

WASHINGTON (AP) - Effective today, Italy no longer will be on the Agriculture Department's list of countries considered infected by contagious equine metritis, a venereal disease of horses.

John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said Wednesday that the decision followed "an on-site review of all information available" on the disease in Italy.

Italy had been on the list of countries affected by the disease for more than three years. Those still on the list are: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, West Germany, France, Ireland, Japan, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

Farm exports off to poor fiscal year start

Medical itemizing takes new look COLLEGE STATION --

Taxpayers who itemize deductions on their income tax returns need to give careful consideration to medical expenses and casualty losses as they look at their 1982 income tax situation.

"This year's tax law (the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982) brings about some changes in filing tax returns that taxpayers need to be aware of," says Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Effective Jan. 1, 1983, the new tax law increases the exclusion on medical expense deductions to 5 percent of adjusted gross income from the present 3 percent

Also, all health insurance premiums paid by the taxpayers are treated as just another medical expense item and are subject to the 5 percent exclusion. This compares to 1982 and earlier years when taxpayers could decuct one-half of their health insurance premiums, up to $150, with the balance subject to the 3 percent limitation.

The current 1 percent exclusion for drugs and medicines will remain the same in 1983, notes Lovell.

"All this means that in 1983 many individuals will not exceed the exclusion renuirements and will not have deductible medical expenses in extreme situations," the economist points out

Thus Lovell advises cash basis calendar year taxpayers to consider paying outstanding drug, doctor and hospital bills by Dec. 31 if they intend to itemize medical expenses on Schedule A of their 1982 tax

As far as casualty losses are concerned, each casualty or theft loss is currently deductible to the extent that it exceeds $100 exclusion. Beginning in 1983, the total of unreimbursed personal casualty and theft losses is deductible to the extent that it exceeds 10 percent of adjusted gross income. In addition, each incidence is reduc-

This means that only lowincome taxpayers or taxpayers suffering large unreimbursed losses will qualify to itemize these losses on Schedule A beginning next year," says Lovell. He advises taxpayers with 1982 casualty losses to consult their tax advisors regarding such things as the new alternative minimum tax, unsettled casualty claims that fall in 1983, and carryback or casualty losses to the

With the change in casualty loss deductions as well as inflation, the economist advises taxpayers to evaluate the adequacy of casulty insurance coverage on homes, autos and other assets: Since the federal government will be assuming a much smaller share of the insurance deductible, it may be necessary for many to choose smaller deductibles in insurance policies unless they are financially able to assume greater

TMA says therapy good for psoriasis

PUVA is a relatively new treatment for severe cases of the fairly common skin disorder called psoriasis. The acronyn PUVA stands for psoralen, the class of oral drug used, plus ultraviolet-A, a type of long-wave radiation.

The Texas Medical Association says the therapy is not a cure for psoriasis but is highly effective in controlling the disease. Several million people in the United States have psoriasis-recurring red, scaly patches commonly located on the elbows, knees, back, chest, buttocks and scalp.

The spots do not hurt and often do not itch. But scales of dead skin constantly flake off, and a severe case can mean an unpleasant appearance. Psoriasis is not contagious and tends to be inherited, though anyone can have this incurable disorder.

The cause is unknown, but it may involve the normal shedding of dead skin cells daily and their replacement by cells that rise to the surface from deeper layers. In psoriasis patients, the new skin cells apparently multiply too quickly and form the abnormal patches on the skin's outer layer.

If conventional treatments fail in serious cases of psoriasis, PUVA may be used. The patient is given the

Brazil becoming broiler challenger

WASHINGTON (AP) -When is a loan at an interest rate of 40 percent a good deal? When it otherwise would be 100 percent, says the Agriculture Department.

That is the situation in Brazil's broiler industry, which has grown sharply in recent years to become a major challenger of the United States in the lucrative international chicken market.

According to the USDA's latest issue of Foreign Agriculture, government credit "has played a vital role in Brazil's success in export markets." For example, a Brazilian broiler producer can borrow up to 40 percent of the export value of his product. The money must be used in producing broilers exclusively for export markets.

"The loan is made for a 360-day period at 40 percent annual interest rates, a favorable rate when compared to Brazil's commercial rates of more than 100 percent annually," the report

Brazil is the world's second-ranked broiler producer, behind the United States. Production rose more than six-fold from 1971.

"With an increasing amount of its domestic output being diverted to export channels, subsidized broilers from Brazil have become a major U.S. competitor in lucrative Mideast markets. the report said. "In fact, Brazil has overtaken the United States in these markets this year.'

dividuals receiving unemployment compensation during 1982 may face higher taxes this year when they figure their 1982 income tax

This year's new tax law (the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act) lowered the unemployment compensation base amounts for income tax purposes, effective with the 1982 tax year, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

For married couples filing jointly, the base amount for 1982 is $18,000, which is $7,000 less than last year. For all other taxpayers except married individuals filing separately, the base amount is $12,000 for this year, or have been stocked at four locations in the state, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Deparatment officials.

$8,000 less than a year ago. Taxpayers receiving unemployment compensation must add it to adjusted gross income when figuring their income tax returns, says Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville. If the total exceeds the appropriate base amounts, taxable income is calculated by including the smaller of onehalf of the amount above the base of 100 percent of the unemployment compensa-

During the winter and early spring, department biologists will place approximately 230,000 of th eight-inch-long fish at the four locations-Guadalupe River below Canyon Reservoir Dam, the Brazos River below Possum Kingdom Reservoir Dam, Boykin Springs in Angelina County and Foster County Park at San Angelo.

One shipment of trout to the Brazos River fishery encountered problems resulting in the loss of several thousand fish, but officials said the loss represented only 10 percent of the firs tweek's haul from the federal hatchery at Norfork. Ark. Even with the initial loss, the Brazos fishery will receive the highest number of trout ever, at around 60,000 for the year. Trout Program Leader Pat Hutson of San Marcos said additional fish from the Guadalupe program were transported to the Brazos to boost the first week's stock-

Biologists released 3,700 trout at the San Angelo site. and they will stock at twoweek intervals. A total of 20,000 fish is anticipated for

At Boykin Springs, anglers can try for 1.500 trout stocked last week in the spring-fed lake. Boykin also is scheduled for a total of 20,000 trout for the year.

The department's trout program is on a put-and-take basis, with most of the fish being caught by anglers shortly after stocking. Rainbows do not ordinarily survive high water temperatures often encountered in Texas

No special permits are required to fish for rainbows, except for a valid fishing license where applicable. The statewide limit is five trout per day, 10 in possession.

Book on Lebanon stirs passion

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) -The case of Jacobo Timerman is taking on the dimensions of a classic family feud rage, mutual disappointment and hurt feelings.

"Ingrate," Israelis shout at Timerman. "Neurotics," Timerman responds.

Since his release from an Argentine prison and his arrival here in September 1979, Timerman has generated controversy. First it was human rights under Argentina's generals. Now it is Israel's war in Lebanon.

Timerman has just published a book which harshly criticizes Prime Minister Menachem Begin and the Lebanon invasion.

To many Israelis, it is an act of ingratitude. They claim much of the credit for winning Timerman's freedom and giving him a new home.

Timerman was a successful newspaper publisher in Argentina until 1977, when his dissenting opinions got him in trouble with the military government. He spent 29 months in prison before being stripped of his citizenship and deported to Israel.

Here he received a hero's welcome, but he quickly plunged into controversy.

First, he. became something of an embarrassment with his loudly expressed criticism of the Argentine regime. Israel has close ties with Buenos Aires, and also fears repercussions against Argentine Jews.

The furor spread to the United States, where his supporters made him a rallying. point for opposing American aid to Argentina.

Just as that controversy ebbed, the Lebanon war broke out, and Timerman sat down to record his reflections, now published as "The Longest War - Israel in Lebanon" by Alfred Knopf.

Timerman labels Israel an aggressor, insensitive to Palestinian suffering, led by an anti-democratic government that has terrorized its citizens into silence with horror stories about the Arab Timerman accuses Israel of perverting Jewish morality by razing Palestinian homes, bombing Lebanese cities and sending Israeli soldiers to a supposedly needless death.

"I'm infuriated," he wrote, "with us, the Israelis, who by exploiting, oppressing and victimizing the Palestinians, have made the Jewish people lose their moral tradition. their proper place in

He sees Israeli society becoming "more closed, more intolerant, more fundamentalist.'

Its occupation of the West Bank, he warns, "demands a social and economic effort that is not only bleeding the country but chaining future Israeli generations to its defense.

He believes most Israelis want the Palestinians to vanish physically from this region ..

But all that remains is that after more than 30 years. after several wars, after so many alliances, so many unutterable sufferings, so many political shifts, the actors remain the same ... We have beaten, persecuted and murdered each other, but we remain the same and we are stuck in the same place."

That last assessment is shared by many liberal Israelis who would like an accommodation with the Palestinians. But coming from a man who has been here only three years, and who is seen as having been rescued by Israel, such opinions have aroused the anger. of some moderates too.

One of them, Yoel Marcus, wrote in the daily Haaretz: "If there's one reason why I resent types like Mr. Jacobo Timerman, it is that their words and behavior automatically turn me into a fan of Menachem Begin.'

Marcus was especially annoyed at Timerman's criticism of Israeli democracy. He believes it is strong and safe. Timerman doesn't. He likens Begin to the late Argentine dictator Juan Peron - "reactionary and anti-democratic."

Israeli reactions have ranged from threatening phone calls to expressions of hurt to denunciation and ridicule.

"He is kicking the very country but for whose efforts he would still be rotting in an Argentinean jail," charges Shlomo Nakdimon, a journalist for the daily Yedioth Ahronoth, who was Begin's spokesman during the efforts to free Timerman.

Nakdimon does not deny Timerman's right to speak out as an Israeli citizen, but considers his attitude grossly

"Mr. Begin himself ordered every effort to get Timerman out of jail," he recalled in an interview. "We upended the world for him. We appealed to everyone who knew anyone in Argentinian circles to intervene."

Here is the paradox," Timerman said in an interview at his Tel Aviv apart- . Lebanon.

ment. "When a Jew lives abroad, they say 'Come to Israel, be an equal citizen and then criticize.' Now I'm in Israel and they say, 'Where were you until now?' It's a nowin situation."

He called Israel "a xenophobic, neurotic country," but insisted he won't leave."I have lost my fantasies about Israel, but not my convictions. I'm going to stay and try to do something

Part of the resentment toward Timerman reflects the generation gap between recent immigrants like himself and the younger Sabras, native-born Israelis, who feel that one has to fight here and blend into Israeli society to earn the right to criticize.

At 59, Timerman is too old to be drafted, but his involvement is deep. His 31-year-old son Daniel fought in Lebanon. True to the Timerman way, Daniel Timerman was jailed for 28 days for refusing to do another tour of duty in

Psychologists warn of blue moods

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - "That man must be a misanthrope indeed," wrote Charles Dickens, "in whose breast something like a jovial feeling is not roused - in whose mind some pleasant associations are not awakened - by the recurrence Christmas.

Either that or a psychologist.

There is something about the recurrence of Christmas that brings out bleak broodings among the professional guardians of the nation's psyche. I could swear this chap was eavesdropping outside our living room last year when a family crisis arose while decorating the tree. We ran out of bourbon and blew a main fuse at almost the same time. Southwest's low-riders love low-slung autos

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -The young man, slicked up in a stylish Zoot Suit, adjusts his Fedora so the shadow falls just over one eye. He preens himself carefully: his "baby" is waiting.

Frank Trujillo's baby, dressed in candy-apple red with low fender skirts, is scrutinized for any flaw. A speck of dirt catches his attention. Deftly, the 25-yearold pulls out a toothbrush and brushes clean a chrome edge

The baby the Albuquerque. N.M., man is so caught up with is a 1950 Chevy sedan that car collectors say is worth about $15,000.

"I love her," he admits. "Spent the last 3 years fixing her up, taking her from nothing to something."

He shows pictures of his beloved - from a shell of a car he pieced together at home, painted and spent his savings for original parts, to what he hopes will outshine other cars at the El Paso Convention Center's Low-rider

The spruced Chevy shines brightly under the Convention Center lights where some 300 other low-riders from across the Southwest were meeting in an almost ritualistic display of their dressed-up cars.

The rage from California to Texas, low-riders are lovers of the low-slung, groundhugging autos that started as a fad in the 1960s in the Hispanic ghettos of East Los Angeles and San Jose, Calif. After fading away in the 1970s. low-riding has once again become stylish across the Southwest where most of the nation's 18 million on Britain. Hispanics live.

'Low-riding is unique within the Hispanic culture,' said Johnny Lozoya, automotive editor for Low Rider magazine, a San Josebased publication that attracts an estimated 125,000 readers monthly

About 10 times yearly, Low Rider magazine and the Anheuser-Busch and the Coors beer company sponsor shows in Hispanic centers such as El Paso, Phoenix, or Los Angeles where local's low-rider cars are displayed.

Low-rider's children, too, can show their bicycles, most of which have small chainlink steering wheels and oversized dice hanging from rear view mirrors like their parent's cars.

Low-riding also features surrealistic art scenes painted on the car's exteriors and primly dressed young men such as Trujillo, a bar bouncer who says "style" is what he loves about the lowrider movement.

"It's something different, something that's readily recognizable," he said, posing beside his car in the striped-gray Zoot Suit made famous first in the 1940s and later by Luis Valdez's 1970 play of the same name.

Others at the show put trophies around their cars proving their past wins in low-rider competitions. Many of the low-riders stand beside their trophies, affectionately buttressed by their girlfriends, whom they call their "old ladies."

Low-riding is a maleoriented "leisure-vehicle sport" that Lozoya said has advocates from as far away as France and West Germany. The sport knows no boundaries, he said, because anyone can have an auto built with a hydraulic system that allows the cars "to hop" (bounce) up to 30 inches off the ground with special air pumps

Most of the low-rider's cars are often older than their owners. Some of the more valuable autos, such as a jetblack 1939 Buick 8, are worth up to $20,000. The conventions bring together an array of low-rider lovers who show off their old vehicles - one proudly displays a 1930 Ford flat-top with a snub-nosed shotgun mounted in the front seat. Others revel in the festive atmosphere that includes dancing to Hispanic bands amid a gathering of like spirits.

The original low-riders in the 1960s were often associated with surly street gangs who hung out in the Hispanic ghetto and taunted passers-by, said Lozoya. He said the movement has "survived the bad apples:" and now is a legitimate social group where about 85 percent of the low-riders are bilingual.

'Sure, some believe we're made up of a bunch of Latin outlaws, but that's just outdated," he said.

The "lead sleds" the lowriders dote on daily often have customized wet bars built in the backseat and televisions mounted in the front dashboard. Others have thick fur throughout the interior and are for show only - never driven.

The pampered cars have now become an expressi on of the Hispanic's standing within their community. Within the Hispanic community, the car is a prized possession. It is seen as a status symbol, an extension of one's personality by those who, express themselves through their vehicles," Lozoya said.

Low-riders who bring their customized "V-dubs" (Volkswagen Beetles) and aged Model T Fords to the shows often belong to area clubs with names such as the "New Breed" and "Texas Rodders."

Others come to listen to bands play 1950s tunes such as "Why Do Fools Fall in Fort Bliss' Danny Martinez said he came to view the show's Zoot Suit and Sexy Legs contest: "Hey, listen, you can only look at so many shiny old cars."

But Trujillo, who drove 300 miles south to show off his beloved car and Zoot Suit, was unsatisfied: "I turned down one guy the other day who wanted to buy this car for $20,000. Maybe next time I shouldn't - bills, you know, are for real."

'Hoarder' of slot machines sells off all his booty

Sam Woods Jr. remembers the nights he drove nervously down Louisiana highways, his illegal booty tucked away in the trunk of his car.

Woods is, or rather was, a collector of antique slot machines.

Lewis' long campaign for speaker near climax

His political foes say Gib Lewis wiggled his way to the House speaker's desk by getting an early start, shying away from the House microphones and listening to the lobby.

His supporters in the House - and they far outweigh his foes - say Lewis' legislative work has earned him the important leadership role.

Whatever the technique, it's an apparent success that is expected to culminate on Jan. 11 with Lewis' being elected speaker by his House colleagues in a landslide.

It was away from the House floor — not on it — that Lewis built the solid base he claims has led to "pledge cards" from all but nine members of the House. On the floor, the six-term veteran hasn't been a dynamo offering long speeches.

"It made me behave better," he said of his 1981 session role as heir-apparent to Bill Clayton. "You have to certainly be concerned with the image you present at that point."

Lewis, president of Lewis Labels, is a millionaire who made his money in the printing business. His products include windshield stickers used by Capitol reporters to secure parking in the press

Moscow - during a hunting trip to Asia - for a visa violation last year.

Lewis' House office includes photos of him with various animals he has encountered and defeated. His home at Fort Worth's Eagle Mountain Lake includes a trophy room.

"In those times when I can be home for awhile, I find myself sitting in (the trophy room) and looking at the birds and animals. Each one brings back a lot of memories," he once told an interviewer Politically, Lewis was a member of the Clayton team. Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie and a speaker candidate, said Lewis probably will use the speaker's post as Clayton did.

"For the people who are hard-core supporters of Gib - and they are the same ones from Speaker Clayton's era - the thing is (the House) has to work on fear and has to work on retribution; the situation where if you have the stroke you use it. If somebody steps in your way you not only bypass them but you bloody them in the process," said Smith.

Although a Clayton team player, Lewis was brave enough to start his run for speaker shortly after Clayton's Brilab troubles, which ended with an acquittal on bribery charges and an unprecedented fourth term for Clayton at the House helm.

When Clayton announced the 1981 session would be his last, Lewis was ready with enough pledge cards to ascend from his second row seat to the raised speaker's platform.

Smith, Lewis' only opponent for speaker, said, "Gib made the decision the night that Clayton had his troubles with Brilab. Lewis was on the phone and running the race the next day. All of the rest of the so-called close-in (Clayton) people were laying back either out of respect for Clayton or they felt it would be damaging for them to start picking over the bones so ear-

Lewis recalled he had 120 pledges when Clayton's political career was resurrected by the Brilab acquit-

"When we went back into session after re-electing Speaker Clayton I went back around and visited the same people again and said I'm going to run again in 1983," said Lewis.

Many House members -141 of them have signed on with Lewis - speak highly of Lewis and predict he'll be a successful leader.

But Smith, who said Lewis' claim of 141 votes sounds right is concerned about Lewis at the gavel. Among his concerns is one that's been heard before. It concerns Lewis' ties with the 'big lobby boys.'

"I think Gib relies too much on lobby input for his decisions. I'v never seen Gib really be his own man in regards to legislative decisionmaking," said Smith, an architect and engineer.

"Not getting people angry at you is the key ingredient" to winning the speakership,

Tom Uher, D-Bay City, was a speaker hopeful until the Lewis effort snowballed He said Lewis' silence on the House floor in 1981 was a calculated and successful

"Any person who is a frontrunner in the speaker's race has to be very careful," said Uher. "He did what any speaker candidate should

"That's almost a format now," said Fox. "Be friendly, sit back, don't make people mad at you."

In a recent interview Lewis was sporadically unwilling to announce his stand on issues certain to face the 1983 ses-

"That's a controversial issue you can't really get a good hold on," he said when asked if he supports legalization of parimutuel wagering.

But he has definite ideas on his legislative priorities. Education - particularly increasing teacher salaries is No. 1. Social programs, highways and prisons also are near the top, he said.

Legislature can keep state programs funded through 1985 without having to raise taxes

He also has definite changes planned for the House. He wants the House sergeants to wear uniforms, which he doesn't like called uniforms. Lewis said the outfit will feature a blazer with the state seal.

"There are many members who don't know who is a Lewis is "hoping" the 1983 sergeant and who might be a House employee," he said.

Lewis also wants more of the House on television. He is not looking for fulltime live coverage, but is working toward a daily or weekly highlight show on public television

"I would think if you went to a live, fulltime House proceedings it would be the boringest program in town. You'd have five minutes of excitement and 48 hours of dreary procedural nothings,"

Soprano Farley 'widowed' again

PARIS (AP) - American tional exposure it gives her, soprano Carole Farley is a widow again - for the third time this year.

Her appearance in the lead role of Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," now previewing at the Theatre Musical de Paris, not only marks the third production of the operetta in which she has appeared this year, but also the third language.

With so many thirds, one almost overlooks an important first: She is the first American ever to sing the role in France. She is also the only American in the cast.

To simplify matters. Argentine director Alfredo Arias has jiggered things around a bit. The character of the widow is usually from the fictitious central European country of Marsovia. In the Paris production, however, she is from the United States.

"I think it's going to be very nice," the 29-year-old Miss Farley says. "He's got some very interesting ideas." she said, referring to Arias.

according to her husband, New York-based conductor Jose Serebrier.

"I felt fine," she said of the opening preview. "So far, everybody seems to like it very much. In France, everything gets thrown together at the last minute. But I think ... when the regular public and the critics come, we will be in a better position to evaluate.'

Fluent in French, German, Spanish, Italian and bits and pieces of other tongues, Miss Farley has been working hard on her French accent, particularly for the dialogue.

Miss Farley, an attractive blonde and former Miss Idaho, began her operatic career shortly after graduating from Indiana University. A Fulbright scholarship sent her to the Munich conservatory, quickly followed by a contract at the Linz Opera in Austria when she was only 21.

In 1977, Miss Farley made Although operetta is not her her debut at the Metropolireal milieu, Miss Farley en- tain Opera, singing the lead

By Marie landiorio

As Mary Richards' friend and neighbor on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," Rhoda Morgenstern (Valerie Harper) had been somewhat overweight, insecure in her relationships with men and jealous of the trim Mary. Over the years, however, she did trim down, becoming more attractive and self-confident.

When she returned home to New York for a visit, she met and fell in love with Joe Gerard, the owner of the New York Wrecking Company. The romance blossomed and in a special full-hour show, aired in the fall of 1974, Rhoda Morgenstern glowed as she became Rhoda Gerard.

The cast of "Rhoda" was a class ensemble, featuring Broadway veteran Nancy Walker and debonair Harold Gould as Rhoda's parents. When the Emmy nominations were announced for the 1974-75 season, three of the actresses from the series were nominated and one of them won.

Question: Can you name the three nominated actresses from "Rhoda"? Who won?

Christmas reunion persuades Nostalgia Glasers to get together

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) nominations (they were - It took a Christmas reunion three years ago to persuade Tompall and the Glaser Brothers to get back together as one of the dominant singing groups in country music.

The award-winning trio, which had been together for about 20 years, broke up in 1973 to pursue separate careers. At the time, it was the end of the harmonizing music which had earned the brothers the Record World. Magazine's accolade of country music group of the decade for the 1960s.

In the summer of 1981, their redo of the Kris Kristofferon song, "Lovin' Her Was Easier (Than Anything I'll Ever Do Again)," reached No. 2 on the country music charts.

This year they were a finalist for the CMA's vocal group of the year, losing the honor to Alabama. They also have been voted comeback awards by the country music trade press.

Their current album is appropriately called, "After All These Years." It is a varied selection of material with touches of folk and Latin balladry and backing from their own road musicians.

The three were raised on the family farm in Spaulding. Neb. Under the guidance of their father, a guitarist, they first performed at fairs. Their first national exposure came when they appeared on the Arthur Godfrey "Talent Scout" television show in

In 1969, the brothers opened a recording studio, which rapidly became a haven for some of the brightest young talent in Nashville.

HEALTH Is this diet OK?

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 5 feet 4, 100-pound 16-year-old daughter has been put on a daily 75 gram carbohydrate diet for hypoglycemia. Her blood sugar at three hours was 67. However, the same foods she has in unlimited amounts are the ones we have heard so much about as being harmful.

She has bacon, pork, sugar substitute, diet colas, eggs and eats at least a pound of bacon a week as a midmorning snack. She also eats quite a lot of ham.

I wonder about the benefits of this diet at 16 to die at 40 from heart disease or cancer. Please advise. She has never been a good vegetable eater.

DEAR READER — At least your daughter does not have a problem of being too fat. Those high-calorie foods would cause many people to gain weight. One consideration in such a diet is the possibility that developing a habit of eating such foods will encourage obesity later in life.

Fat slows the emptying of the stomach. In individuals who have reactive hypoglycemia, fat helps prevent swings in insulin release that trigger attacks. But if there is so little carbohydrate (starches and sweets) in the diet such rebound swings should not be a great problem anyway.

Frequent feeding is often neglected in treating low blood sugar problems.
Small, frequent meals that are low or free of concentrated sweets and starches often help.

I never accept a diagnosis of hypoglycemia just from a person's statement. It is one of the most overdiagnosed conditions in medicine. You must have typical symptoms at the time a meaningful low blood sugar is observed or the diagnosis is in question. A level of 67 is certainly not significantly low.

You should read The Health Letter 18-8, Hypoglycemia, The Low Blood Sugar

Yes, those foods are not good for most people. High fat diets are suspected of being related to cancer of the colon and breast. But a 16-year-old slim girl has very little chance of developing heart disease. If she stays slim that probably won't be a problem until well after her menopause, when you are a grandmoth-

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a stroke five years ago. The doctors believe it may be related to damage of my heart valves from rheumatic fever as a child. I was 52 at

WE WON! WE WON!

Then a great pageant appeared in heaven, portraying things to come. I saw a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon beneath her feet, and a crown of twelve stars on her head. She was pregnant and screamed in the pain of her labor, awaiting her delivery.

Suddenly a red Dragon appeared, with seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns on his heads.

Then there was a war in heaven; Michael and the angels under his command fought the Dragon and his hosts of fallen angels. And the Dragon lost the battle and was forced from heaven. This great Dragon-the ancient serpent called the devil, or Satan, the one deceiving the whole world-was thrown down onto the earth with all his army.

Then I heard a loud voice shouting across the heavens, "It has happened at last! God's salvation and the power and the rule, and the authority of His Christ are finally here; for the Accuser of our brothers has been thrown down from heaven onto the earth-he accused them day and night before God. They defeated him by the blood of the Lamb, and by their testimony; for they did not love their lives but laid them down for him. Rejoice, O heavens! You citizens of heaven, rejoice! Be glad! But woe to you people of the world, for the devil has come down to you in great anger, knowing that he has little time." (Revelation 12:1-3, 7-12) the time of the stroke. For five years I have been on Coumadin and the doctors say I must stay on it the rest of my life.

What are the side effects of Coumadin? Will it affect arthritis of the spine? At the time of my stroke I was also diagnosed as having degenerative arthritis of the spine. Will it cause blood in my stool? Is it addictive? Would it cause my heart to beat too fast?

DEAR READER — Coumadin prevents the formation of blood clots. Your doctors evidently think your heart valve damage led to a clot being formed in the heart and released into the arteries causing the stroke.

Coumadin will not affect arthritis. But heparin (another anticlotting medicine) will cause loss of calcium and increase osteoporosis (bone dissolving), which is not the same as degenerative arthritis.

Yes, too much Coumadin can cause bleeding, including blood in the stools. It is not addictive or a drug that affects mental functions and should not affect your heart

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will liquid lecithin boost your brain power? I'm 62 years old and sometimes my brain seems fuzzy or foggy. Will one tablespoon of liquid lecithin with one gram of vitamin C help?

DEAR READER — Don't

count on it. If it has any value in this regard it would be for its choline content. Your memory is dependent upon transmission of nerve impulses using acetylcholine. So is half of your involuntary nervous system (parasympathetic or cholinergic fibers).

Lecithin is a fat with an Lecithin is a fat with an attached choline molecule. During digestion the lecithin is broken down and the choline is stripped off. So swallowed lecithin doesn't enter your body as lecithin at all.

There are many dietary sources of choline and your body can manufacture it from amino acids. But if you were choline-deficient it might be useful. The problem here is that there is a blood-brain barrier and medicines you swallow or inject may not get through in large amounts to your brain. But some interesting research is being done on transplanting tissue inside the brain that forms acetylcholine. In 10 to 20 years you may be able to have surgery to improve your memory.

Processing technique allows storage

COLLEGE STATION - A packaging procedure called "aseptic processing" now allows consumers to store perishable products for months without refrigeration, reminds Beverly A. Rhoades, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

This permits families to use items such as milk, fruit juices and similar perishable liquids in throw-away cartons for lunches, camping trips and other purposes without energy-consuming refrigeration, she emphasizes.

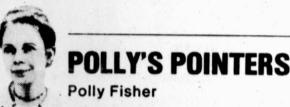

"Aseptic packaging is not new – it's been used in more than 50 other countries for over a decade – but it's just recently been approved by the federal government for use in the United States.'

Rhoades says.

The process involves aseptic liquids being sterilized and stored in bacteria-free protective containers, generally made of paperboard and plastic or polyethylene. Liquids are heated to ultra-high temperatures for a short time to destroy the bacteria which normally cause milk and juices to spoil quickly.

Knife-sharpening 'don't'

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — The blades of my electric carving knife seem quite dull. Can these be sharpened? — N.R.

DEAR N.R. — Don't try to sharpen these blades yourself. Running them through an electric sharpener or using a steel improperly can ruin them. Contact the manufacturer or the company's local service rep to find out if they resharpen the blades. If not, replacement blades can be ordered. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I've found that a bristle toilet brush works great for sweeping out dirt and dust from behind the bowl and cleaning out corners. Much better than a broom or anything else I've tried. — NELL

DEAR POLLY — When I clean my oven, I put the racks in the bathtub. I add a powdered heavy-duty cleaner, cover the racks with hot water, and soak them for about one hour. This removes the burned on food and they wash clean easily.

DEAR POLLY — I am getting ready to move and was about to write to you to ask if you had any Pointers for moving beautiful healthy house plants. On out of state moves, it seems it would be impossible to successfully transport these delicate items. I have decided to solve my problem by giving the plants to some very dear friends that I have to leave. This way, about 20 special ladies will have fairly long-lasting remembrances of our friendship. Meanwhile, I will know my plants are being taken good care of and enjoyed. — ELVA

DEAR ELVA — I think your Pointer is a lovelier way to settle that house plant problem than anything I could have come up with. Thank you very much. You sound like a warm, caring friend. Your Pointer of the Week earns you an autographed copy of Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer. You have already discovered the secret for making the most important thing of all last longer: friendship. — POLLY
