

Key indicators: what the numbers really mean

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Like children in a classroom, some key indexes of the nation's economic health can be divided into groups: Fast, average and slow.

The leading economic indicators are like fast learners, the coincident indicators are the ones in the middle and the lagging indicators trail behind.

The leaders tell you what will happen in the economy tomorrow, the coincident indicators tell you what is happening today and the lagers confirm what happened yesterday.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday that the Index of Leading Economic Indicators went up 3.6 percent in January, while the Index of Coincident Indicators rose 0.6 percent. The Index of Lagging Indicators dropped 1 percent.

"The difference among the three groups is essentially timing as it relates to the business cycle," said Edgar R. Fiedler, vice president for economic research of the Conference Board, a business group in New York. "The leaders move first and the coincident next and the lagers follow."

Larry Moran, an economist who is public information officer for the Bureau of Economic Analysis at the Commerce Department, said that on the average, the leading indicators start going up 2.6 months before a recovery gets under way, although it has taken longer in the current recession.

There are 12 leading indicators, 4 coincident indicators and 6 lagging indicators. In most cases, Fiedler said, a rise in an indicator is good news. (The exceptions are the numbers relating to unemployment.)

A look at some individual components of the indexes shows why leaders are leaders, etc. Take the length of the average work week for production workers in manufacturing. That's one of the leading indicators. It is easier and faster for a company to put existing workers on overtime than it is to hire new employees or recall laid-off ones. When production turns up, therefore, one of the first signs will be an increase in the work week.

Other leading indicators are: the average number of weekly initial claims for unemployment insurance, the value of new orders for consumer goods and materials, vendor performance or the number of companies receiving slow deliveries, net business formation, the value of contracts and orders for plants and equipment, the number of new building permits for private housing units, the net change in inventories on hand and on order, the change in sensitive materials prices, the change in outstanding credit, prices of 500 common stocks and the money supply.

The coincident indicators — which generally measure production, Moran said — are the number of employees on non-agricultural payrolls, personal income, industrial production and manufacturing and trade sales.

Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal has completed an inquest into the death of Deaf Smith County jail inmate George Ramirez, Jr. on Feb. 20, ruling that Ramirez's death was by suicide.

Ramirez apparently hanged himself in his jail cell around 3 a.m. Feb. 20. He was found by jailer Shirley Wheeler. According to Chief Sheriff's Deputy Dean Butcher Ramirez had fashioned a noose from his coveralls and hanged himself in the cell's shower stall.

Inquest of jail death completed

Neal said he was turning his findings over to Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, who will present the information to the Grand Jury today. The judge added that the presentation before the Grand Jury was also a matter of routine.

No signs of foul play were evident the night of the incident, and an autopsy performed on Ramirez's body by forensic pathologist Ralph Erdmann of Childress also indicated that death was "self-inflicted."

Solons refuse Reagan offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen investigating the Environmental Protection Agency say President Reagan's offer to give them restricted viewing of agency documents is "totally unacceptable" because of growing evidence of wrongdoing.

Chairmen of four House subcommittees involved in the dispute rejected Reagan's offer Wednesday and said they will continue to press the White House for full and unrestricted access to the documents.

Meanwhile, White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, in an interview with The Associated Press, would not commit the administration to keeping EPA Administrator Anne McGill Burford on the job permanently.

Permits paltry

Building permits for February were at $26,000 for two, according to city offices. February 1982 showed six permits at $26,500.

The total for the year is four permits at $43,600 compared to last year's 11 permits totalling $67,600.

Houston man faces local charges

A Houston man will face charges here for felony theft of a $100,000 rig from Owens Trucking last month.

Willie C. Wilson Jr., of Houston, is in custody there for other charges, according to Lt. Vernon Hope of the Hereford Police Department.

One report was filed by police Wednesday. A scuffle at 15th and Avenue H resulted in a broken pickup window.

Police arrested two persons for public intoxication and issued 12 citations.

Hereford Key Club sweetheart a finalist

Michelle Osborn, Hereford Key Club sweetheart, has been named as one of 12 finalists for Texas-Oklahoma District Key Club Sweetheart. The announcement was made by District Governor Milam Bentley and the queen candidate committee.

Miss Osborn will compete at the 34th annual Texas-Oklahoma District Key Club Convention scheduled April 29 through May 1 at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel in Houston. She will travel to the convention with members of the Hereford Key Club and her female sponsor.

This is the second year Hereford Key Club's sweetheart has been a district finalist. Lisa Snyder, last year's sweetheart and winner of the Texas-Oklahoma District title, will preside over the candidate's activities at the convention.

Miss Osborn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Osborn, 129 Mimosa. She was an annual queen candidate and football queen attendant her sophomore year and was drill team corporal her junior year.

She is presently drill team captain and serves as senior representative on the HHS Student Council. She is a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and National Honor Society and has participated in cross country and varsity track all three years at Hereford High School.

State Senate panel approves tough DWI bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate panel has approved a tough bill on drunken driving that would eliminate the current practice of allowing some offenders to clear their records after completing probation.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, sponsored the legislation which was approved by a Senate subcommittee Wednesday.

"I'm very pleased with the bill. I can't see any loopholes," said Sarpalius. He said he hoped to bring the bill to the full Senate by the end of next week.

The primary focus of Sarpalius' proposal is the elimination of "deferred adjudication," but it also raises minimum fines and applies them equally to adult and juvenile offenders and requires minimum jail time on second and later offenses. The proposal also allows law enforcement officers to ask people suspected of driving while intoxicated to take a blood tests in addition to breathalyzer tests. Refusal to take either test would be admissible in court.

If the bill is enacted, a first-time DWI conviction would carry a minimum fine of $100 instead of the current $50. A second offense would mean a minimum fine of $300 instead of $100 and a third offense would cost at least $500 instead of $100. The maximum fine for all three levels would be $2000. A second-offense DWI conviction would mean minimum jail time of 72 hours. Third offense would carry a minimum jail sentence of 30 days.

The bill makes no changes in current license suspension laws — 12 months the first time a license is suspended and 18 months the second time.

Sarpalius' measure would carry a mandatory six-month sentence for a second conviction of involuntary manslaughter with a motor vehicle.

He said he expected efforts on the floor to put deferred adjudication back into the law.

Sarpalius and others concerned about DWI deaths object to the practice because DWI penalties go up based on the offense, and those who have been subject to deferred adjudication can be treated as first offenders because their prior convictions are not known.

and we've been working on some other areas," White said Wednesday when asked at a news conference why the committee had not yet been appointed. But White said that "this is

His name is John Moschitta and he is the world's fastest talker

NEW YORK (AP) — His name is John Moschitta and he does Federal Express commercials.

Actually, the guy who blitzes through those ads at a cool 400-plus words a minute has to slow down to do them.

"Oh, I can go faster," Moschitta says. "My record is 534 words in 58 seconds."

His two rapid-fire commercials have won a slew of awards — including the prestigious Clio, the industry's Oscar, for best ad — have helped company business and have made him a hit on the banquet circuit.

They've also made him a celebrity, of sorts, around his home in Los Angeles.

"The three words I dread most in the English language are 'Say something fast,'" he says, slowly. "I'll be in a supermarket buying tuna fish and they'll come up and say 'Do it.'"

Moschitta, who insists he doesn't look anything like the business executive he plays in the commercials ("People think I have greased-down hair and walk around with my eyes rolled back"), finds all the attention flattering and ironic.

"I still wake up and pinch myself and can't believe I'm making money for doing something I've done since I was 12," says Moschitta, now 28.

Moschitta, a swift-speaker in real life, began his fast-talking exploits as a kid on Long Island after going to a charity fair.

"There was Guinness booth set up for people to try to set records. I wanted to ride the Coney Island roller-coaster for the longest time," he says. "They told me to get lost."

Not wanting to "swallow lead pipes," he began trying to talk fast.

"I tortured my five sisters. I locked them in a room and made them listen to me over and over," he says.

"I try not to concentrate on the content of what I'm saying, but just try to let the words flow," he explains.

His hopes of becoming an actor, however, didn't materialize as quickly as he spoke. His talent got him some television walk-on parts, but "nothing people would recognize me from."

Moschitta's first break came when he appeared on an early morning talk show in Los Angeles and a producer of ABC's "That's Incredible" heard him. The next thing he knew, he was on "That's Incredible" in October 1980 and did his 534 words in 58 seconds.

This time, some executives from the Ally & Gargano, Inc. advertising agency saw him.

"We had just started working the day before on the Federal Express ads," says Michael Tesch, executive vice president at Ally & Gargano. "We were trying to think of a way to communicate the idea of everything moving fast."

Shortly thereafter, Moschitta got a call to come to New York for a Federal Express commercial, an ad that originally called for 16 scenes in 30 seconds.

He and writer Patrick Kelly — then a vice president at the agency — rewrote "about 75 percent of it" on the set.

After going through warmup exercises, which include reciting "Mama's a mean mama, daddy's a dear daddy, baby's a bad baby" to the notes of a music scale, Moschitta did the award-winning commercial that features him breezing through a half-tougher law. Subcommittee Chairman Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said it would amount to "bounty."

—Elections set—

Contenders for offices with the city, school district, and hospital district have been finalized with the closing of the filing period for the April 2 election Wednesday.

For two at-large seats on the Hereford Independent School District Board six people have placed their name on the ballot; with one person unopposed to fill an unexpired term.

Incumbents James Gentry and Paul Ramirez will be facing challengers Cal Jones, Dale Pierson, Tripi Gamez, and Marilyn Culpepper for school board seats. In addition, Paul Mason will be unopposed to fill the unexpired term of former board member Bobby Griego.

In the city election Wes Fisher, current Place 1 commissioner, is unopposed for the position of Mayor; while Melvin Jayroe was the only person to file for Fisher's commission place. In place 2 incumbent Ed Coplen will be facing B.L. Jones for that seat.

Three at-large seats on the Deaf Smith General Hospital District board will also be up for grabs April 2. Incumbents Dr. Gerald Payne and Eddie Reinauer, Jr. will be aiming at two of those places; while Judy Neumeyer and Dr. Charles Allison have also filed for a chance to serve on that board.

Austin woman gets $150,000

HOUSTON (AP) — An Austin woman whose nude photograph appeared in Hustler Magazine without her consent suffered a "blow of her self-perception" and is entitled to $150,000 in damages, a judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Jr. ruled Wednesday that Hustler, a sexually explicit men's magazine, acted "with reckless disregard for the offensiveness of the material" by publishing the photograph of Lajuan Wood, 27, in its February 1980 issue. O'Connor awarded Mrs. Wood damages for "a blow to her self-perception" after the photo was published. Her husband, Billy Wood, an instructor at the University of Texas at Austin, was awarded $25,000 damages.

At a trial in January, a psychologist testified Mrs. Wood's reaction to the incident was similar to a woman who had been raped.

Testimony also showed Wood photographed his wife during a camping trip and then hid the picture in a desk drawer.

According to testimony, the photo was stolen by a neighbor, whose wife pretended to be Mrs. Wood when Hustler called to verify that the photograph was hers.

In his ruling, O'Connor said, the magazine had no formal written policy of verifying photographs and did not require notarization of a release form or a social security number.

House committee approves law

AUSTIN (AP) — A legislator whose daughter's popularity has dropped because he won't let her drive has persuaded a House committee to OK a bill to make it tougher for 15-year-olds to get licenses.

The House Transportation Committee voted 6-0 Wednesday for a measure — already approved in the Senate — to tighten restrictions on "hardship licenses" granted 15-year-olds.

Rep. Gerald Hill, D-Austin, is the bill's House sponsor. He said his 15-year-old daughter wants to drive now, but he won't let her.

"She's not too popular with her friends at school because of her dad," he told the committee.

The Department of Public Safety issued more than 72,000 "hardship licenses" to 15-year-olds in 1982. State law says DPS must approve the licenses for 15-year-olds who say they must drive for the "general welfare" of their family.

DPS Director Jim Adams has said 15-year-old drivers are "disproportionately involved in accidents."

The bill would eliminate the "general welfare" provision and require 15-year-olds to take a driver's training course.

Hardship licenses could still be issued if the applicant shows "unusual economic hardship," illness in the family or that he or she must drive to attend vocational education courses.

Railroad commission seeks help in fight

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas needs to spend more money and hire more people to battle oilfield pollution, says Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace.

He proposed fines of up to $10,000 a day to violators and said the Legislature should spend more money on the problem. At present the fine is $1,000 per day.

The main problem is abandoned, unplugged "leaking wells that pose serious health or pollution threats," Wallace said Wednesday. At present, the maximum fine is $1,000 per day for polluters.

"Tougher penalties will provide a more effective deterrent," Wallace told the Water Quality Committee of the Texas Water Conservation Association. "Additionally, the commission proposes that proceeds from any penalties collected be earmarked for the state's well-plugging fund."

At present, fines go to the state's general revenue fund.

When oil wells are abandoned without being plugged, shifts in underground formations can break the casing, and oil and other pollutants can leak into fresh water supplies. One method of plugging a well is to pour concrete down the hole.

Wallace said about 800,000 oil wells have been drilled in Texas, and only 300,000 are now in operation.

"It is estimated that thousands of wells remain unplugged without authority in Texas," Wallace said. He said the state's well-plugging fund was "simply not adequate to address the state's problem."

Wallace said he planned to ask the Legislature for more funds, more people and tougher penalties to fight the problem.

Church's plans dine-in service

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Church's Fried Chicken Inc. plans to stray from its longtime take-out approach by introducing a new "upscale" family dining restaurant with an expanded menu, company officials say.

The first two restaurants of the San Antonio-based national chicken and hamburger chain will be built here and in Atlanta, Ga., with the facility here opening in mid-April, according to Bill Storm, senior vice president for finance.

The "dine-in" restaurant marks a departure from the chain's longtime marketing strategy of operating neighborhood take-out stores with limited seating.

The establishments still will allow the company to move customers through very quickly and keep both overhead and prices low, Storm said.

The first San Antonio restaurant will have about 50 seats and offer an expanded menu and more types of desserts, he said.

Enlightened self-interest

Some American bankers guessed wrong.

They gambled — lending long-term at low interest. Then, when higher interest rates increased the cost of borrowing, the banks' resources were drained by those bad debts.

Some went broke. Others are recouping, painfully.

Internationally, something similar happened.

During the 1970s when inflation was making things dearer than money, international bankers were eager to lend money to oil-rich Mexico and Argentina — also to Poland and Brazil.

Now those nations are in trouble, those obligations are in default, those bankers are panicky. They are demanding that the International Monetary Fund pump billions into those troubled countries until they can get on their feet again.

Douglas Lamont, Dean of Business Administration at Roosevelt University, Chicago, calls that "Dumping good money after bad."

He sees no reason our Congress should vote more money to the IMF so the IMF can help other countries pay interest on their old loans. He says that would delay the repayment of principal indefinitely.

It would amount to American taxpayers bailing out those banks.

For our country to borrow the money due from these countries in order to pay off those banks would increase our nation's federal deficit by more than $200 billion.

Nobody wants to see the collapse of international banking.

Everybody wants everybody liquid and viable and productive and growing again.

But Mr. Lamont suggests that "maybe it's time to tell the international bankers that their binge is over and they must experience their hangover so that they will not forget what they did wrong."

He says if the big banks want to be bailed out, then their future credit must be allocated to rebuilding the United States economy.

"These funds should be spent on creating new industrial jobs at home, constructing more houses for our citizens, extending credit to our people for meeting their needs."

President Eisenhower once used the expression "enlightened self-interest" to define his priorities.

When the United States was the incomparable powerhouse of the planet, we did have an obligation to others.

Some of us have always thought that we led more effectively by example than with largesse but, be that as it may, our nation's balance of power with other nations is now precariously tilted the other way.

Our needy neighbors are no longer necessarily of another tribe or creed or clan. Our needy neighbors now are right next door!

23 witnesses called

Harrelson perjury trial begins today

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Federal prosecutors planned to begin presenting their case today in the perjury trial of Jo Ann Harrelson, accused of lying to a grand jury that indicted her on charges stemming from the 1979 killing of a federal judge.

The first of 23 scheduled government witnesses was scheduled to be called after the government's opening argument. Defense lawyers waived their opening remarks until the prosecution finishes its case against Mrs. Harrelson, 42.

A jury of nine women and five men — 12 regular jurors and two alternates — was accepted Tuesday night after two days of jury selection.

Earlier Tuesday, 300 miles away in New Orleans, Mrs. Harrelson's lawyers asked the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn her conviction on a charge she secretly bought the rifle used to kill U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. in San Antonio, on May 29, 1979.

The appeals court took the argument under advisement. Mrs. Harrelson is being tried at Shreveport on five counts of lying to a grand jury about the purchase of the rifle. Each count carries up to five years in prison.

She also is accused of lying to grand jurors about a trip made by her daughter, Teresa Starr, from Corpus Christi to Las Vegas, Nev., allegedly to collect the $250,000 payoff for killing the judge.

Ms. Starr is expected to be called as a government witness. Mrs. Harrelson has been convicted of obstruction of justice in the investigation of Wood's death. She faces sentencing on that count March 8.

Her husband, Charles V. Harrelson, was convicted of being Wood's assassin.

In the gun-buying case, she was found guilty in December 1981 of using the fake name Faye L. King — pronounced the same as "faking" — to buy a high-powered rifle 12 days before Wood was gunned down in San Antonio. She received a five-year prison sentence.

In their arguments Tuesday at New Orleans, her lawyers told the appeals court the grand jury that indicted Mrs. Harrelson heard a wiretapped conversation that was "privileged."

That conversation was between lawyer Joseph Chagra and his older brother Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra, who was later acquitted on a charge he paid $250,000 to Charles Harrelson to kill the judge.

In the conversation, Joseph Chagra told his brother he had heard, from Charles Harrelson, that Mrs. Harrelson had bought the gun used to murder Wood.

Mrs. Harrelson's court-appointed defense lawyers, Fred Time and Ed Mason of Dallas, argued that at the time Joseph Chagra was acting as a lawyer. Thus, they said, the conversation was protected by the lawyer-client privilege.

The wiretapped conversation never was mentioned at her trial. But since it was used to help get the indictment, the whole case should be thrown out, Mrs. Harrelson's lawyers said.

US favors Kohl to win West German election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials believe Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Party will win in Sunday's West German elections, thus helping pave the way for deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles.

Some officials fear a victory by Kohl's chief rival, Hans-Jochen Vogel of the Social Democratic Party, could provoke a costly delay in the missile installation, planned for later this year.

West Germany is scheduled to be one of the first European countries to install the U.S. cruise and Pershing II missiles as part of NATO's strategy for countering the threat from Soviet SS-20 missiles targeted on Europe.

While Kohl is firmly committed to the strategy, Vogel has suggested a review focusing on whether the United States has been sincere in efforts to negotiate an arms control agreement with the Soviet Union. In the view of officials here, Vogel's campaign was running impressively until early February when it peaked. They say he has become increasingly strident since then, further hurting his chances among Germany's predominantly moderate electorate.

Baker said. He also said the possibility that she had mismanaged the agency had been discussed at the White House.

The demand in Congress for full access to EPA documents came after White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president would allow what he called "complete access" to EPA files.

But the House chairmen said Reagan's proposal still carried too many conditions. "We now have solid evidence of wrongdoing which will make it harder to accept constraints," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee.

Dingell said his committee "is continuing to receive allegations under oath which are very, very important." He said they include not only political manipulation of EPA's $1.6 billion superfund toxic wastes cleanup program, but also questions about "ethical behavior and possible questions with regard to violation of the law." Dingell, whose subcommittee has now issued more than 50 subpoenas for documents and testimony, said the issue in the dispute is no longer executive privilege, the grounds upon which Reagan originally refused to give Congress the documents.

"At issue here is the question of the health, environment, safety and well-being of the American people and the enforcement and administration of the law," Dingell said. "I believe the public will not accept constraints that deny the Congress the right to full information and the right to all documents."

one of those things that we're moving to the front of the stack, and we should have within a brief period of time the names of those individuals" on the committee.

He said the appointments would be announced "probably next week."

He said he wanted the committee to come up with recommendations to present to the Texas congressional delegation.

Since then, a U.S. Senate subcommittee has started considering legislation that would extensively revise immigration laws. And this week, the National Governors' Association approved a change in its policy stand on immigration, calling for a ban on employment of illegal aliens and a delay in any amnesty program.

White was on an NGA committee that approved the policy stand, but he abstained from voting on the issue.

Afterwards he explained that he wanted the Texas committee to study the issue "and for that reason did not take a position."

He said Wednesday, "We are trying to make the right selections on that committee, and we're moving as quickly as we can."

White said the committee would comprise representatives of the Hispanic community, business and labor interests, agricultural interests and others affected by the problem.

Earlier in the day, White met with Vice President George Bush, Deputy Agriculture Secretary

Richard Lyng and Democratic members of the Texas congressional delegation.

White said he discussed with Bush the severe economic problems in the Rio Grande Valley caused by devaluation of the peso, and asked "for whatever federal assistance could be made available to help relieve the economic circumstances that are so dreadful there in the Valley."

White said Bush assigned a staff member to "inquire into this matter," but that Bush "pointed out, and I think we all recognize, that's he's not a direct line officer in this case. The president of the United States is."

White acknowledged that "it is going to be difficult for them to try to come up with an immediate yes or no answer" to his request for aid, and that "I think it's only fair that we give them some opportunity to assess the problem."

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, said that "nothing substantive, absolutely nothing" was discussed when White attended a luncheon meeting with Democratic members of the Texas delegation.

Wilson described the meeting as "just kind of a love-in" largely devoted to celebrating the Democratic victories in Texas during the last election.

White returned to Texas following a five-day visit to Washington, during which he attended the NGA's winter meeting.

dozen office settings. ("Pittsburgh's perfect, Peter. May I call you Pete?")

A few of the 'shots' were re-done several times, including one when director Joe Sedelmaier fell off a camera pedestal while laughing too hard during a take.

"Everyone was telling me it was going to be a great commercial," he says. "I personally didn't think it would be."

That was in April 1981. Federal Express, pleased with the results, held the ad so it could be released during the highly competitive football season.

A second ad, filmed in December, is now being shown.

The new commercial is a non-stop shot of him talking ("How 'bout those Yankees?") while an assistant — Tony Azito, who was in the Broadway and film versions of "The Pirates of Penzance" — scrambles in the background.

Since his Federal Express success, Moschitta has "been working like crazy."

"The last two years, I've made more money than I'd made in my entire life," he says. "But I'm not ready for retirement."

He currently appears in about 24 commercials around the country and is busy addressing conventions and business meetings.

Moschitta has also parlayed his ear-boggling ability into parts of television's "Madame's Place" and "Matt Houston" and will appear as a regular on CBS-TV's "Zorro and Son," set to air in April. In it, he plays the role of Corporal Cassette, a human tape recorder.

"I still think of myself as an actor first and a fast-talker second," he says. "But this is opening a lot of doors for me."

Supper, auction gross $5,000

Preliminary results of proceeds from the Hereford Lions Club's annual pancake supper and auction show that the club grossed just over $5,000 for the dual event last week at the Bull Barn. Club members received a report on the projects at their meeting Wednesday.

Total receipts to date for the pancake supper are $2,500 according to chairman Charles Hoover and Jay Eubanks. The club still has 800 tickets outstanding, so proceeds from that event could be much larger.

Gross receipts from the auction totaled $2,775 according to chairman Jerry Baker and Richard Schlabs. The club's board voted Tuesday to donate $50 of the proceeds from the auction to Girlstown U.S.A. in the name auctioneer Ted Walling, who donated his services to the project again this year.

Top ticket sellers for the pancake supper were recognized Wednesday by the Lions as well. W.H. Andrews topped the club with 350 tickets sold, dethroning perennial champ Cawthon Bryant, who sold 192 this year.

The club received an update on the activities of the Texas Lions' Camp for Crippled Children in Kerrville. Lion John Locke of Pampa, a member of the camp board, made the presentation, which included slides of camp activities.

Freak tornado rips through hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A terrified hospital patient "screamed and screamed" as a freak tornado smashed windows and tore down walls when it cut a 3-mile path of destruction through the city.

"It went black and everything went flying through the air outside — huge pieces of wood," said Patricia Goodman, 52, bedridden at Orthopedic Hospital after hip surgery.

More than 100 buildings were damaged Tuesday and 25 people suffered minor injuries as a rare California twister careened through the southern downtown area.

Ten miles away in Pasadena, another twister lifted a car carrying one motorist at least 15 feet in the air, eyewitnesses said, while the National Weather Service said a third tornado may have touched down in Santa Ana.

"It's unbelievable," said Gerald Baker, a resident of the tornado-ravaged section of Los Angeles. "You know we worry about earthquakes, but never this."

The Los Angeles twister caused at least $2.5 million in damage as it struck the huge Convention Center roof and Orthopedic Hospital.

"It looks like a war zone," Police Chief Daryl Gates said.

Although tornadoes occur every year in Southern California, National Weather Service specialist Dieter Crowley said they are "very rare. Everything has to be just in the right sequence."

No one was killed by the twister itself, but Los Angeles reserve police officer Stuart Tiara, 26, was killed and two others were injured when a helicopter apparently hit a power line and crashed while taking off from an emergency tornado command post Tuesday evening.

More than 200 officers spent the night patrolling a 250-block area that was closed to all but residents and businessmen.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,
I want to thank Don Tardy who arranged the seminar Friday through the Farm and Land Institute for the benefit of all of us in farm and ranch real estate.

We had the opportunity to add skills to our profession here in Hereford and saved the $400 costs of attending such things usually held downstate in Austin or DFW area.

Thanks, Don,
Sincerely,

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Like most women I have become paranoid about crime. I lock my house every time I go to the garbage can, set the burglar alarm when I go for the mail, and lock my car every time I get gas.

To date, I have been locked out of my house 14 times, have been charged for five false alarms, and required the services of a locksmith on eight occasions to get me into my own car. This proves something. The world is safe from me!

If there's one thing that ticks me off about the whole crime scene, it's the way other people whom I don't even know have had a profound effect on my life.

To begin with, I carry around more keys than a school janitor. I have a key for my luggage, a key for the gas tank, a key for the safety deposit box and a key to the box that holds all of my extra keys.

The keys have two things in common. They all look alike and they never open what I want to get into.

Secondly, I have been forced by bad people roaming the streets to get a dog that barks whenever he hears a noise. Unfortunately, this noise can be as inaudible as the sigh of a bored cricket at 3 a.m. This will cause the dog to jump higher than the window sill. The dog never barks at strange people. Only family.

Thanks to evil lurking around every corner, I have had to install dead-bolt locks on all our doors. Dead bolts were never meant to be taken seriously as a deterrent against crime. They were originally invented to measure the limits of human stress. At one point when I could not find a key I found myself on my hands and knees signing for flowers through a dog door.

Robberies have also turned me into a crazy person every time I leave the house. The house must look like it is occupied by five or six people who work from home. There should be no exposed windows but lots of lights. No newspapers in the driveway. A car in the garage ALWAYS. A sign on the front lawn that says this house will break your eardrums if you turn the door knob.

Possibly the worst thing crime has done for me is to turn me into an unlisted number in the phone book, living in a house without a name, who is afraid to open the door to a person who might need help.

Sometimes, I think the rats are winning.

Says Houston's Lewis

Key to beating Hogs; stop Walker, Robertson

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Guy Lewis, coach of top-ranked Houston, believes the key to winning tonight's Southwest Conference basketball showdown is stopping fifth-ranked Arkansas' backcourt duo of Darrell Walker and Alvin Robertson.

A victory for Houston would give the Cougars their first SWC title since they joined the conference in 1976.

"I don't believe there are as quick guards in the country than Walker and Robertson," Lewis said Wednesday. "If we handle them, that'll be the No. 1 reason we win."

Walker, a senior, leads the Razorbacks in scoring with an 18.5 average and Robertson, a junior, is next with 14.5. Robertson and Walker are ranked 1-2 in assists. Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton believes they are the best backcourt men in the country.

The game marks the first time two SWC nationally ranked in the top five have met.

"This is probably the biggest regular season game ever played in the SWC," said Sutton.

On Jan. 22, when Houston and Arkansas played at the Hofheinz Pavilion in Houston, the Razorbacks suffered a 75-60 drubbing, their only loss of the season.

"I'm surprised we wouldn't lose a conference game this season," said Lewis, whose team has a 14-0 SWC record, one-half game in front of Arkansas. "And I didn't think Arkansas wouldn't lose another."

Houston is 23-2 with an 18-game winning streak, the longest in the nation. Arkansas is 24-1 overall and 13-1 in the SWC.

One factor Houston will be facing is the Barnhill Arena here, with a capacity of more than 9,000 people.

"I think it's going to be as loud as it's ever been," Walker said. "The crowd can be intimidating. Houston is the No. 1 team in the nation and I don't know if they can be intimidated."

Arkansas has won 28 straight here and Sutton's home record is 100-6 over nine seasons. Houston gets its scoring punch from 6-foot-6 Michael Young (17.8), 6-foot-7 Clyde Drexler (17.4), 6-foot-9 Larry Michaux (14.5) and Akeem Abdul Olajuwon (12.8).

Olajuwon, a 7-foot sophomore from Nigeria, heaped embarrassment on Arkansas the last time they met by blocking 11 shots. The Cougars registered 17 blocked shots in that contest. Olajuwon has blocked 135 shots this season.

Sutton said several goaltending calls should have been made against Olajuwon and he hopes to get a better break in officiating this time.

"No way he blocked 11 shots," Sutton said. "I studied the film. By not calling goaltending and the three-second rule, they (referees) give Akeem a chance to go free, just battering everything away."

Houston finishes its regular season Saturday at Baylor, while Arkansas visits Rice Saturday night.

Eagles clip Hoyas, 87-85

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Write

As a player with the Boston Celtics, John Thompson wasn't used to losing in the Boston Garden.

He still hasn't gotten used to it now that he coaches the Georgetown University basketball team.

"To be a coach or a player, you have to be a little crazy, a glutton for punishment," said Thompson after his 16th-ranked Hoyas were tripped up in the Garden by 15th-ranked Boston College 87-85 in overtime in an intense Big East game Wednesday night.

"With the competition in this league, you have to be ready every day."

The Eagles had a distinct advantage at the foul line, sinking 37 of 46 shots while Georgetown was making just 17 of 26 free throws. It was a field goal by Michael Adams with 2:06 left in overtime that finally put Boston College ahead to stay, 86-85.

"I really wanted to give it to the big guys," said the 5-foot-10 guard. "But Georgetown just backed up and let me shoot it."

It was still nail-biting time, though.

After Michael Jackson, who led the Hoyas with 26 points, was called for traveling with 23 seconds remaining, Georgetown stole the inbound pass. With four seconds to go, Jackson missed a 20-footer, and B.C.'s John Garris wrapped up the rebound and was fouled. He made the first of his two free throws, accounting for the final margin.

"Anybody could look for the penetration on that play, but we were a little apprehensive. We're young," Thompson said. "Still, it (Jackson's shot) wasn't bad. It hit the rim."

"They just got the breaks in the end," said Georgetown's Patrick Ewing, who had 16 points, 14 rebounds, six blocked shots and six steals before fouling out near the end.

Jay Murphy, whose basket with 24 seconds left in regulation forced the overtime, had 20 points for the Eagles and Adams added 19.

"We beat Georgetown, St. John's and Villanova, all fine ballclubs," said Garris, who led the Eagles with 25 points. "We're in the Top Twenty, we just want to stay there."

Boston College's 21-5 overall record and 11-4 conference mark include a two-point loss to the Hoyas, who fell to 19-8, 9-3 in the Big East.

In other games involving the Top Twenty, No. 2 Virginia whipped Wake Forest 107-74; No. 3 Louisville stopped Virginia Tech 73-64 and No. 8 North Carolina downed Georgia Tech 85-73.

Top Ten Ralph Sampson scored 28 points to lead Virginia to a runaway victory over Wake Forest. The Cavaliers shrugged off an early seven-point deficit and raced to a comfortable 53-28 halftime lead behind their big man.

Wake Forest went scoreless for four minutes at the start of the second half as the Cavaliers expanded their margin to an unsurmountable 69-41.

Charles Jones, Rodney McCray and Lancaster Gordon teamed for 49 points as Louisville whipped Virginia Tech for the 1,000th victory in the history of the Cardinals' basketball program.

Louisville led 38-31 at the half and put the game away with a nine-point burst early in the second half. The closest Virginia Tech got after that was five points at 65-60 with 1:20 left in the game.

Virginia Tech Coach Charlie Mair: "Louisville is so strong inside that we were intimidated by them. They cut off Perry Young, and he's been such a big scorer for us. They played him with a taller man and it was difficult for him to take the ball to the basket."

Michael Jordan scored 24 points as North Carolina downed Georgia Tech. Jordan had two baskets during an 11-0 Carolina spurt that stretched a 42-36 advantage to 53-36 with 11:18 left in the game. Georgia Tech never threatened thereafter as the Tar Heels eventually rolled up a 23-point lead, their biggest of the game, which they held on five occasions.

"I didn't like our shot selection in the first half," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, "(but) I thought we played very well in the second half."

"They simply had too much firepower," said Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins. "We couldn't get anything going. I'm disappointed. The last two games we've just played poorly."

Spring training woes

Ailments plague camps

By The Associated Press

Sore knees and ribs and hamstrings. Even an appendix. A continuing contract hassle. A training camp no-show. A dispute between a player and a manager.

The inevitable arguments, injuries and ailments are bringing the inevitable clouds to the dreams of pennants and playoffs that major league baseball teams bring to spring training.

One blow fell on the New York Yankees, hoping to rebound under new manager Billy Martin from a fifth-place finish in 1982. Roy Smalley, a key man in Martin's infield plans underwent an appendectomy Wednesday and will be lost for at least three weeks.

Club officials said Smalley arrived at the Yankee training base in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., suffering from stomach pains and was hospitalized shortly thereafter. Smalley was operated on by Dr. Richard Schultz, who said he should be able to resume workouts in two weeks and be back to normal in three.

The Cincinnati Reds also temporarily lost pitcher Charlie Puleo, obtained from the New York Mets in the deal for Tom Seaver. Puleo fighting for a spot in the starting rotation, underwent arthroscopic surgery and is expected to be lost for two weeks.

Seaver himself had his share of aches and pains in the Mets' camp at St. Petersburg — primarily: series of pulled calf muscles. But Seaver said Wednesday he had recovered and Me Manager George Bamberge said the 38-year-old three time Cy Young Award winner was slated to start today in the first intrasquad game.

Then there were the Montreal Expos, where all-star catcher Gary Carter was chewed out by new Manager Bill Virdon for going after a pop-up Virdon believed belonged to an infielder.

"You don't have any right to catch a pop-up that can be caught by an infielder," Virdon said, pointing a finger at Carter. "And I don't want to hear you calling the play."

Later, Carter told reporters that he would go along with Virdon. "But I don't know for how long," he added. "It's not my style to remain passive on that kind of play. The transition will be hard."

The no-show was in Bradenton, Fla., where the Pittsburgh Pirates were still awaiting the arrival of relief pitcher Enrique Romo. But

Manager Chuck Tanner wasn't overly concerned. "He's late every year," Tanner said of Romo. "But when he does get here, he's ready to pitch."

In Tucson, Ariz., there were contract problems between second baseman Manny Trillo and his new team, the Cleveland Indians. Trillo, obtained from the Phillies during the off-season, was trying to agree on a new contract during spring training, so that, in his words, "I won't be bothered during the season."

There also were some potential disputes that never developed.

In St. Petersburg, rightfielder George Hendrick of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals was working out at a new position — first base. Manager Whitey Herzog said Hendrick had asked to work out there and could be a help if Keith Hernandez were injured or to provide a spot for outfielder David Green against certain left-handed pitchers.

There also were some potential disputes that never developed.

The Banvel® herbicide advantage: For season-long kochia control in corn.

Overlay your corn from spike to 5. Broadleaf weeds are often up soon after your corn spikes. That's the best time to overlay with up to a pint of Banvel® herbicide. Anytime from corn spike until it's 5 inches tall.

This excellent timing gets dozens of broadleaf weeds when they are most vulnerable—as seedlings.

An overlay application of up to a pint of Banvel herbicide applied before corn is 5 inches tall controls many of your toughest broadleaf weed problems in corn: kochia... pigweed... Russian thistle... cocklebur and many more.

Banvel herbicide doesn't stop working until the weeds stop living, all the way down to their roots. It penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Then moves throughout the entire weed for more complete control... season-long. All without carryover.

Be sure your corn weed control program includes an overlay with Banvel herbicide. See your ag chem dealer today.

USFL: what the new league's about

PHOENIX, Ariz. (NEA) — Just a shade more than two decades ago, a new professional football league came into being. The American Football League, unshackled by conservatism or tradition, brought a new flair to the game.

It featured football-in-the-air.

And vestiges of it are retained in the NFL Record Manual, which, after the existent leagues merged, incorporated the old AFL records.

For instance, on Nov. 27, 1960, the Denver Broncos trailed the Buffalo Bills by 31 points; the final score, however, was 38-38. In 1961, the Houston Oilers scored 513 points. Included were 66 touchdowns, 48 of them on passes. In 1963, the Oakland Raiders and the Oilers combined to score 49 points in one quarter of play.

These all remain NFL records!

On an individual basis, in those early 1960s of the AFL, George Blanda threw 36 touchdown passes in one season. Charley Henning, one of his Oiler targets, caught 101 passes in one season and gained 1,746 on passes in another. Bill Groman, his fellow wide receiver, caught 17 touchdown passes in 1961.

These, too, remain NFL records.

Now another pro venture, the United States Football League, is starting competition. The USFL opens its 16-game regular season on March 6. The 12 USFL teams are: the Los Angeles Express; the Arizona Wranglers; the New Jersey Generals; the Washington Federals; the Birmingham Stallions; the Chicago Blitz; the Oakland Invaders; the Philadelphia Stars; the Denver Gold; the Michigan Panthers; the Boston Breakers; and the Tampa Bay Bandits. The first USFL season will end with a championship game on July 17.

The question is logically raised: Will history repeat in the type of football that will be displayed by the upstart pro football league?

An expert who saw it happen then, as an assistant coach for the Boston Patriots who paced the sidelines in the first AFL game ever played, and who has a hand in what happens now, as the head coach of the Denver

Gold in the USFL, is Robert "Red" Miller.

He does not anticipate a USFL reversion to the AFL style of throwing up the ball for grabs.

er factor, possibly self-serving, that will enhance the USFL's caliber of football: "We have better all-around coaching."

The biggest competitive timid about experimenting with radical alignments and formations. Stacked defenses and odd fronts came out of the AFL while the staid old NFL was still hide-bound in the traditional even 4-3-4 lineup.

"It's difficult," admits Miller, "to put together a good defense that's cohesive in such a short time. I had 27 days and one week of review to prepare a team-out of 100 players who hadn't been together before. There's no carry-over value. It's like opening a major college schedule with only one going."

Miller made a trek this winter to the docks of New Orleans and located a stevedore named Joe Gilliam who had been one of the great quarterback prospects with the Pittsburgh Steelers before drug problems scuttled his career. Gilliam showed Miller he still had the ability to throw a football and got a chance to revive his career with the Gold.

The USFL, dedicated to spawning its own stars, can also be the vehicle for the emergence of little-known talents overlooked by the NFL. It will even have its own updated version of George Blanda — with Greg Landry, a veteran passer, performing for the Chicago Blitz.

Offensively, the league will also receive input from its Canadian wave — coaches Hugh Campbell of the Los Angeles Express, Ray Jauch of the Washington Federals and Jim Stanley of the Michigan Panthers. Their experience in Canada — where the field is bigger, you get only three plays to make a first down, and multiple men are put in motion — influences them toward a wide-open passing game.

Which is where this thesis began. The USFL has enough diversity of talent and coaching philosophy to present an interesting display of football in which the offenses initially will show an aptitude for moving the football as the game becomes a rite of spring.

Lakers roll past Bucks, 127-117

By The Associated Press

Magic Johnson showed the Milwaukee Bucks a trick they didn't expect.

Rather than dish off slick passes to teammates for easy baskets, the 6-foot-9 point guard decided to put the ball in the hoop himself. The result was a season-high 34 points that paced the Los Angeles Lakers to a 127-117 National Basketball Association triumph over the Bucks Wednesday night in Milwaukee.

In other games, the New Jersey Nets swamped the Houston Rockets 124-85, the Dallas Mavericks shaded the Seattle SuperSonics 108-105, the Phoenix Suns downed the San Antonio Spurs 110-106, the Portland Trail Blazers nipped the San Diego Clippers 104-102 and the Denver Nuggets trimmed the Golden State Warriors 128-108.

Nets 124, Rockets 85

At East Rutherford, N.J., Albert King scored 17 points and had seven assists and Buck Williams had 15 points and 13 rebounds as New Jersey piled up its largest margin of victory this season. Darryl Dawkins, Darwin Cook and Mike Gminski each had 14 points, while Cook also contributed 11 assists. The Rockets have the worst record in the NBA at 11-47.

Mavericks 108, Sonics 105

At Dallas, Kelvin Ransey made two free throws with three seconds left, enabling Dallas to hold off a furious fourth-quarter rush by Seattle, which erased most of a 17-point deficit. Gus Williams, who scored a season-high 38 points, led the surge that brought the Sonics as close as 106-105 with 30 seconds to play.

Suns 110, Spurs 106

Walter Davis' baseline jumper with 39 seconds left snapped a 104-104 tie. Davis, who scored 10 of his 21 points in the fourth period, hit his game-winner 48 seconds after San Antonio's Johnny Moore tied the score on a hook shot. Larry Nance, who paced Phoenix with 27 points, stole an inbound pass at midcourt and went in for a slam dunk with 35 seconds remaining for a 108-104 lead. George Gervin scored 31 points for the Spurs, while Alvan Adams added 22 for Phoenix.

Trail Blazers 104, Clippers 102

At San Diego, Calvin Natt scored 24 points as Portland snapped a three-game losing streak. The Trail Blazers took the lead for good 68-66 midway through the third quarter on a layup by Jim Paxson that triggered a 7-0 spurt. The Clippers had several chances to tie or go ahead in the final 40 seconds. With the score 103-102, San Diego's Terry Cummings missed two free throws with 40 seconds to go. After Natt made one of two free throws, Cummings, who led the Clippers with 20 points and 14 rebounds, missed a jump shot with 10 seconds remaining.

The game was delayed for about three minutes in the third quarter because of a leak in the roof of the San Diego Sports Arena. San Diego, like the rest of Southern California, has been hard-hit by rain in recent days. The leak over the scoreboard, which dripped water near the center of the court, actually started before the game, but the teams played anyway.

Nuggets 128, Warriors 108

At Oakland, Kiki Vandeweghe scored 33 points as Denver moved within 5½ games of the Midwest Division lead. The Nuggets outscored the Warriors 27-6 during a seven-minute stretch of the second period to move ahead 67-44. Alex English had 23 points and 12 rebounds for Denver and center Dan Issel added 22 points and 10 rebounds.

"In the old AFL," says Red, "the standard defense was the bump-and-run and man-to-man coverage. There was very little zone played early except for Sid Gilliam at San Diego (the Chargers in 1961 intercepted 49 passes to set the existing NFL record). I think we've become more sophisticated on defense. People won't be stupid enough to stay in one coverage. We'll see a lot of zone early. You can play zone with less talent. That'll cut down somewhat on the passing."

Miller also stresses another danger the USFL faces is imbalance. A tally of AFL scores in that opening season of 1960 reveals numbers such as 52-18, 48-10, 35-0, 32-3. "Through our rules and regulations," argues Miller, "we've tried to establish parity. We can't afford the blowouts, the big disproportionate scores."

The USFL will elaborate on the defensive deployments now prevalent in the NFL — the trend toward the three-man front, the nickel coverage (five secondary backs and sometimes even six or seven on obvious pass-

YOU CAN BE HAPPY—THOUGH MARRIED

Now about those questions you asked in your last letter: my answer is that if you do not marry, it is good. But usually it is best to be married, each man having his own wife, and each woman having her own husband, because otherwise you might fall back into sin.

The man should give his wife all that is her right as a married woman, and the wife should do the same for her husband: for a girl who marries no longer has full right to her own body, for her husband then has his rights to it, too; and in the same way the husband no longer has full right to his own body, for it belongs also to his wife. So do not refuse these rights to each other. The only exception to this rule would be the agreement of both husband and wife to refrain from the rights of marriage for a limited time, so that they can give themselves more completely to prayer. Afterwards, they should come together again so that Satan won't be able to tempt them because of their lack of self-control.

I'm not saying you must marry; but you certainly may if you wish. I wish everyone could get along without marrying, just as I do. But we are not all the same. God gives some the gift of a husband or wife, and others he gives the gift of being able to stay happily unmarried. So I say to those who aren't married, and to widows—better to stay unmarried if you can, just as I am. But if you can't control yourselves, go ahead and marry.

SOUND COUNTRY

By Doug Davis

Loretta Lynn interrupted her Hawaiian vacation to take her current tour of Texas. While in the Lone Star State, she will tape the "Austin City Limits" TV show.

Concert appearances scheduled for the tour include Fort Worth's Billy Bob's, Gilley's and the San Antonio Livestock Show.

Loretta has signed for a week's engagement as a headliner at the Playboy Hotel in Atlantic City, N.J.

This week's 1969 her "Woman of the World Leave My World Alone" was No. 1 on the country charts.

Warner Bros. Records has signed Freddy Fender. His debut single, "Chokin' Kind," produced by Huey Meaux, has just been released.

Fender scored with two No. 1 singles in 1975. "Before the Next Teardrop Falls" and "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights."

Commenting on "Don't It Be Hard Way" from the Bellamy Brothers' LP, "Strong Weakness," David Bellamy said: "It's a ballad about a man and a woman in love. But the interesting thing about it is that they're the happiest when the love's tough. They're only nappy when there's problems to face.

Producer Walter Haynes and Bill Monroe have been in the studio recently working on a new concept album — to be called "Bill Monroe and Friends."

Definitely scheduled to work on the sessions are Larry Gatlin, Ricky Skaggs, Mel Tillis and Johnny Cash Dolly Parton, Emmylou Harris.

Now You're Cookin'

A house in the States is just that...a house with an address where John and Jane Doe reside. A house in Scotland takes on a more elegant connotation—it has a name.

Lynda Glenn, who lives at 417 Ave. G. with her husband Kevin and their cat, Bob, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, the country's capital, and resided there until her marriage last December.

She and her family moved into the "Magdelene House" when she was four years old. She describes her family home as a two story house well over 200 years old with approximately 20 rooms.

The house, once a vicarage, is located on an acre of land and is complete with its own family cemetery plot at the back of the grounds. "It has eight bedrooms and my mother has it furnished with antiques," Lynda explains.

"We have 11 chimneys but only eight fireplaces. Most of the fireplaces aren't in use any longer and it is heated by radiators."

Compared to the average house in the United States, Lynda's Scotland home is unique, not only because of its size but for its historical background.

After research by Lynda's mother, May Roberts, the family found that the famous poet, Robert Burns, wrote poetry in their home.

When Lynda's father was living, he was a minister at the Church of Scotland and also taught school for many years. He had a masters degree of arts and a bachelor degree of divinity.

Her mother is a nurse residing in Lochmaben, a town located near the English border. Lynda's twin brother, David, and her sister, who is also a nurse, both live in Glasgow.

Lynda graduated in 1978 with a degree in business study and languages from Glaschiel College. She speaks French, German and Latin although she adds there is very little demand to speak Latin.

While growing up in Scotland, Lynda has very fond memories of not only her homeland but of the countries she was able to visit. She and her family toured Greece, Majorca, (an island off of the coast of Spain) Holland, France, Germany and Switzerland. Her mother's brother has lived in Switzerland for many years.

"Scotland is a pretty country but the weather in Texas is much more pleasant," adds Lynda. "It is wet and cold in the winter with very little snowfall and in the summer, it is wet and a little warmer. For a few days each summer, the temperature may reach 70 degrees and it seems very hot to us then."

Lynda has been greatly impressed by the friendliness of Hereford people. Besides meeting acquaintances of her husband's, and his parents, Kenneth and Opal Glenn, she has also met friends through Dr. Duffy McBrayer and his wife, Claudia.

Lynda met her husband while she and her friend were in Hereford visiting the McBrayers. "Dr. McBrayer and his wife had come to Scotland and became acquainted with my family so I decided to reciprocate the visit," explains Lynda.

"My friend and I rented an apartment and I guess our neighbor took pity on us and introduced us to some people our own age. That's when I first saw Kevin in September of 1981.

"I went back to Scotland in April of 1982 and Kevin came home with me for three weeks to meet my family and see some of the country," Lynda adds. "We visited London, Buckingham Palace, Glasgow and Edinburgh."

Lynda came back to Hereford Oct. 31 where she stayed with Kevin's parents and the couple were married Dec. 18 at Central Church of Christ.

They had the traditional church wedding but the reception was unique in that Carl McBrayer of Oklahoma, Dr. McBrayer's relative, played the bag pipes.

It was during the time that Lynda was staying with her future in-laws that she became a very good cook. She helped Opal with the cooking and baking.

The homemaker likes to try new dishes and says of her husband, "Kevin is an ideal husband; he will eat anything from desserts to all kinds of vegetables."

Some of the recipes Lynda prepares includes chicken cordon bleu, tea scones and pork chops in onion sauce.

Ann Landers Demands unreasonable

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 85-year-old father is a recent widower. I know he misses our mother terribly, but he has become totally dependent on my sister and me. The man stubbornly refuses to stay with either of us and insists that one or the other spend the night in his home seven nights a week. He also expects us to drive him everywhere even though it means time away from our jobs. (We are both employed.)

Our father refuses to consider moving into a facility where there is maximum security and someone to look in on him. Needless to say, our husbands are fed up being left alone three and four nights a week. This is causing trouble in both our families.

What can we do without making our father feel we have deserted him? -- Desperate Daughters In Florida

DEAR DAUGHTERS: Your father's demands are unreasonable. (He might also be a bit senile.) Discuss this with your clergyman. He will surely tell you that your first responsibility is to your husbands and that your father must accept a housekeeper or be moved to a care facility. You will feel less guilty if the decision is made by someone else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have had a running argument for several years about a family friend. "Friend" is an attractive man in his early 40s who owns a lovely home, two cars, has his own business, is good-looking and definitely straight.

The problem: Some highly suitable women are waiting in line for him, but he always goes for a dumb chick in her early 20s. Each one is sure she's going to snag him, but he drops her after wasting several years of her life. She then comes to me and cries on my shoulder for weeks at a time.

I believe Lover Boy should go with women his own age and make it clear that he doesn't want marriage or children. It just plain stinks the way he deceives these young girls and breaks their hearts.

My husband says if the dummy is stupid enough to think she is going to hook this slippery fish, it's her problem.

I am expecting his current cutie to come crying to me after he ditches her for another (probably younger) one. What should I tell her? Also, should I say something to the Great Deceiver? -- I Hate Dishonesty

DEAR H.D.: Since you seem to enjoy lending your shoulder to these ditched dollies, fine—but I can't think of anything you can say that will do any good except, "No experience is a total loss if you learn from it."

As for the slippery fish, they are notoriously poor listeners, so M.Y.O.B., dearie.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been trying for four years to have a child. We have put our applications in at several adoption agencies. They all say we may have to wait a year at least.

It makes me cry when I read in the papers about babies who are found in trash cans, or church steps and in alleys—healthy, adorable newborns—when couples like us would give anything to become parents. Please, Ann, tell these mothers who do not want their babies to please contact an agency through their doctors. They would make so many people happy and assure their child of a loving home. -- Empty Arms

DEAR EMPTY ARMS: I add my plea to yours. For God's sake, girls, listen to what this woman is saying!

Students present programs on Texas

Four students from the speech department at Hereford High School gave the program at a recent meeting of La Afllatus Estudio Club. Lucile Hughes and Aileen Montgomery served as hostesses.

ranches of Texas, emphasizing the X.I.T. Ranch in years past.

Ms. Hughes, vice-president, presided over the business session. Club collect was led by Emily Suggs and roll call was answered with "A Thought for Today."

A donation was made to the speech department and dues were paid to the Friends of the Library.

Those present were Madeline Bell, Opal Elliston, Eva Gilliland, Tresa Hale, Allyne Johnson, Della Stagner, Mary Williamson, Jennie Terrell, Lydia Hopson, and Mmes. Suggs, Hughes, and Montgomery.
