Gudgell may testify in her own defense

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A woman charged with murder in the death of her husband is expected to take the witness stand in her own defense Monday in 22nd District Court.

After the recess for the weekend Friday, Selden Hale, attorney for Donna Gudgell, 48, said that he has one more witness to present testimony for the defense.

He said Donna Gudgell "probably" will testify.

The defendant's husband, Bill Gudgell, 50, died on Sept. 12, 1993, in an Amarillo hospital, several hours after he was shot while sitting at the kitchen table in his home in northwest Deaf Smith County.

His wife and Chris Don Barron,

24, were indicted for murder in October.

Barron testified for the prosecution Tuesday, claiming that he shot Gudgell at the instigation of Donna Gudgell. Barron said he agreed to testify for the state in a plea bargain that will send him to prison for 35 years.

Hale opened the case for the defense Friday afternoon, after Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul rested the prosecution at 2:30 p.m.

Gene Gerringer, investigator for the district attorney, concluded testimony in early afternoon Friday. The jury heard a tape recording of Gerringer's interview with the defendant on Sept. 30.

The defense attorney sparred with Gerringer over the answers the witness gave to his questions and complained to Judge David Wesley Gulley that Gerringer was "unresponsive" to questions.

Replying to questions from Hale about his interrogation methods, as revealed on the tape, Gerringer repeatedly said he "made statements to solicit a response" from the defendant.

For several minutes, Hale read Gerringer's statements from the transcript of the tape, asking if the investigator was "putting words in her mouth."

The witness continued to answer that his purpose was to "solicit a response."

After one question from Hale, Gerringer admitted that he wanted "some kind of response instead of the monotone line she was running on me."

Gerringer said Donna Gudgell's answers to some of his questions led him to believe she had "knowledge" of the murder.

"I stopped and read her rights to her," he said, a statement confirmed by the tape.

The portion of the tape leading up Gerringer reading her rights was directed to the night Bill Gudgell was killed.

Donna Gudgell claimed, during the interview, that she tried to prevent the shooting that night, telling Barron, "Not now, not tonight."

She admitted in the taped interview that she knew Barron was "going to take a shot at him."

During the questioning, Gerringer said Gudgell asked him several times if she were under arrest.

"I told her she wasn't at that point," he said.

Gudgell was not arrested until the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury returned murder indictments against her and Barron on Oct. 15, 1993. Both have been free on $50,000 bond since Oct. 21.

Hale opened the defense's case with testimony from Todd Gudgell, 23, son of the defendant and Bill Gudgell.

Todd Gudgell testified that he found a shell casing on the roof of the Gudgell home while making repairs.

Asked what he did with it, Gudgell said he picked it up with a pair of pliers, put it in a baggie and sent it to Hale's office.

He said it was the casing for a .223 caliber shell, like that used in a rifle belonging to Chris Don Barron.

Hale also questioned Gudgell about Barron's attitudes.

"Chris didn't want to be like anyone else . . . he had to have his own way," said Gudgell.

Asked about Barron's relationship with Bill Gudgell, the witness said there had been disagreements.

"Were there ever any threats from Chris?" asked Hale.

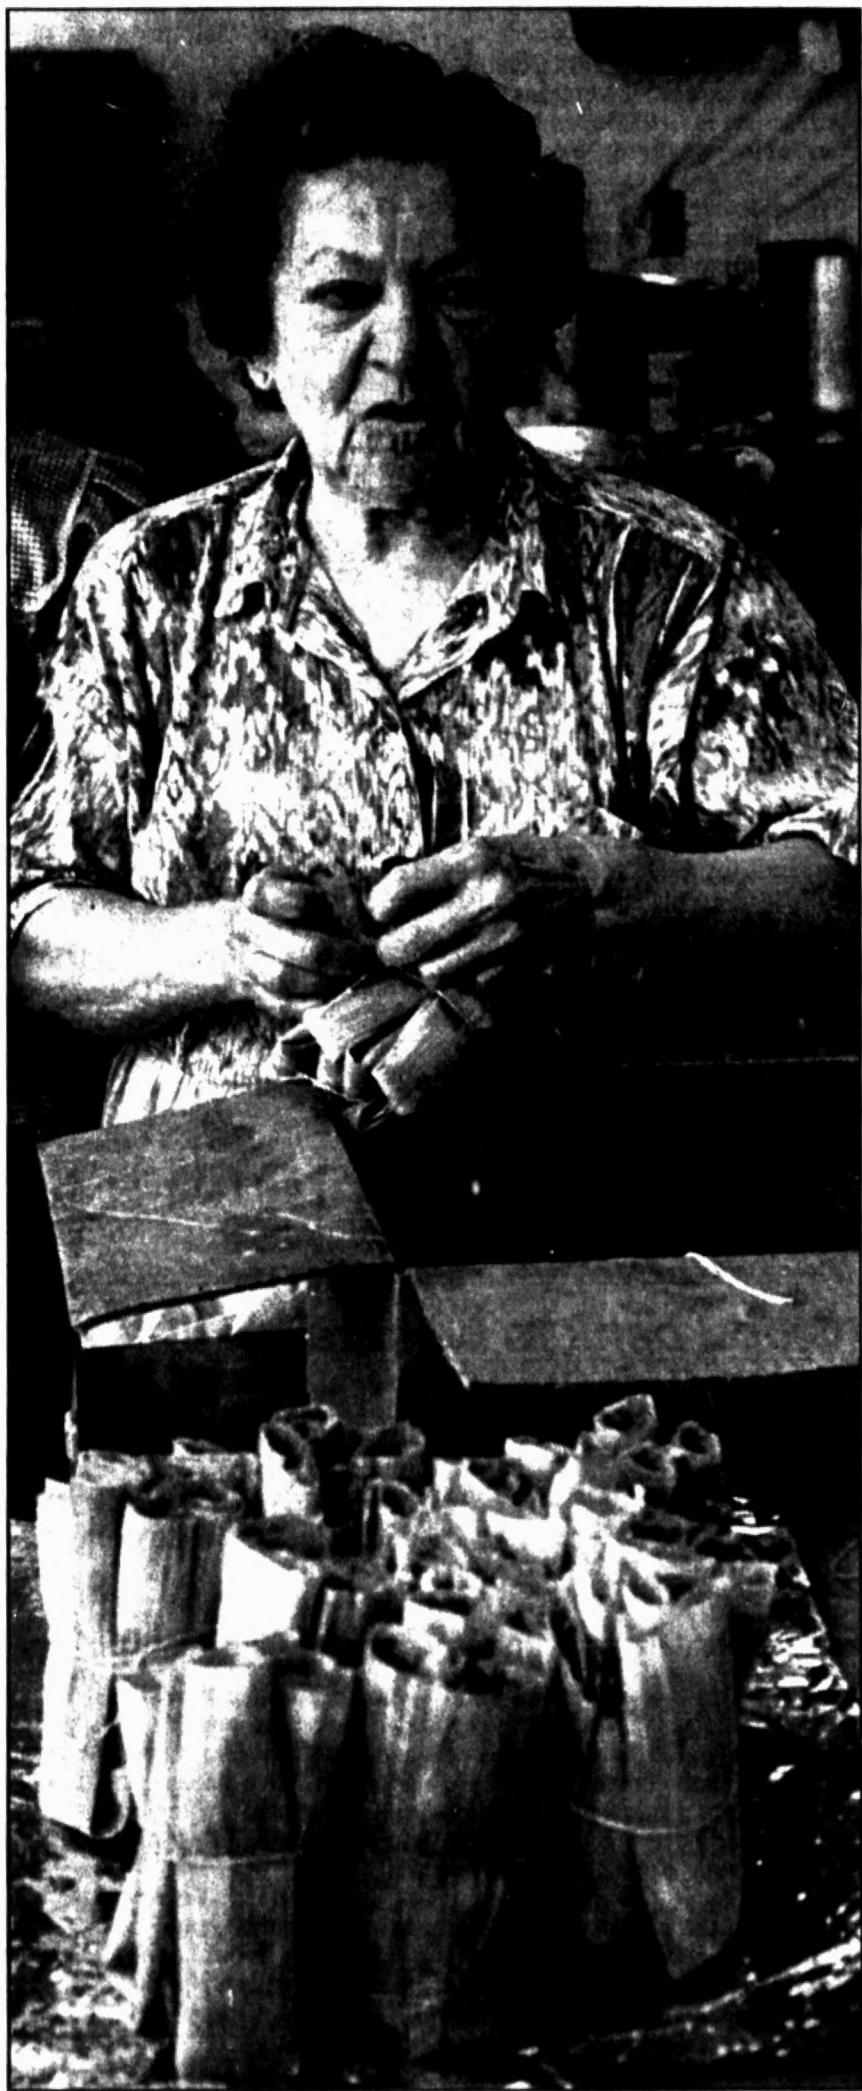

"Chris had a problem with an authority figure," answered Gudgell.

The attorney asked, "Did he (Bill Gudgell) ever get mad and run him (Barron) off."

"He said he might, but he never did, literally," was the answer.

Founder's Barbecue is a lot more than eating

Plans for the future of King's Manor Methodist Home and introduction of officials of the home's new operating board will be the highlights of this year's 16th annual King's Manor Founder's Barbecue.

The barbecue will be held on July 9 and will include a full day of activities, including a 5K run, 5K walk, Senior Mile, Golf Scramble, craft and bake sale and quilt auction.

L. Reeder Huddleston, interim administrator of the facility, said board members from Sears Methodist Retirement System Inc. will be on hand to introduce themselves to the community. In addition, members of the board of the Panhandle Corporation, the body that directly oversees King's Manor, will attend to be introduced.

In addition, there will be explanations of "what Sears Methodist Systems is (and) what King's Manor is going to be in the short- and long-range future," Huddleston said.

That program will be at 6:30 p.m., (See FOUNDER'S, Page 2A)

HEREFORD ASC INDUSTRIES

Ready to make the change

Robert Mercer, chairman of the Hereford Satellite Center board, and Lorraine Sandoval, director of the center, look over the center's new sign, which will be only the second name in the more than 20-year history of the center. The name change reflects the center's affiliation with the Amarillo State Center. The new name -- Amarillo State Center Industries-Hereford -- is already in use and telephones are answered with the abbreviation "ASCI-Hereford." The letters will be painted Herd Maroon before being mounted on the front of the 218 N. 25 Mile Avenue center.

Name only thing to change at Hereford Satellite Center

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

For more than 20 years, the Hereford Satellite Center has worked with mentally retarded individuals, providing them with job training and working with them on personal skills.

That work will continue even though operators will answer the phone with a different name and a new Herd Maroon sign will grace the front of the building.

Within the next two weeks, the formal name of the center will change to Amarillo State Center Industries-Hereford -- or ASCI-Hereford, as it will be referred to over the phone.

The change, said board president Robert Mercer and executive director Lorraine Sandoval, reflects changes in state laws concerning working with retarded individuals.

It does not mean, however, that the work of the facility -- which was begun by parents of retarded individuals -- will change.

The past five years, said Mrs. Sandoval, the center has worked primarily to prepare clients for employment in the community.

"Our goal was to get them out in the community working like normal people," she said.

As that is accomplished, Mercer said, clients become less dependent on parents or other caregivers and hopefully become able to live more on their own.

"This is vocational training to get them employed out in the community," she said. As clients meet the goal of working in the community -- even if it is only one day a week, she continued, "that is a great accomplishment for them."

ASCI-Hereford still operates a workshop at its 218 N. 25 Mile Avenue location, paying laborers a small salary as they do contract labor.

The attorney asked, "Did he (Bill Gudgell) ever get mad and run him (Barron) off."

"He said he might, but he never did, literally," was the answer.

A Gudgell daughter, Gwenna Gudgell, who was called as a prosecution witness Wednesday, was

But, said Mrs. Sandoval, "we have seven who are in supportive employment" in the community.

In addition, the center has two janitorial contracts that involve work five nights a week, plus four contracts cleaning parking lots. Clients who work at those jobs get paid minimum wage.

The two officials stressed that, even though they are formally being made part of the Amarillo State Center, a state-funded operation, they are not changing their relationship to the community.

"We are not leaving," Mrs. Sandoval said.

Satellite Center staffers have been staying employees for some time now, Sandoval said, and have been affiliated with the Amarillo center for years.

The new name was made necessary by changes in state laws regarding how mentally handicapped people are cared for and who may work with them, she said.

The center's board will continue to operate, Mercer said, in the way it has for some time -- raising funds to be used for items the state cannot fund and taking care of the physical building.

Both Mercer and Mrs. Sandoval stressed that funds raised by the board for ASCI-Hereford will remain in Hereford to benefit local clients.

'Tree of Life' dedication set by Health Care Foundation

Dedication of the "Tree of Life," a wall sculpture that recognizes donors to the Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation, will be held Tuesday at Herford Regional Medical Center.

The sculpture is mounted in the main hallway, just off the lobby area, at the hospital. The dedication ceremony is scheduled at 5:30 p.m.

"The foundation board invites all interested citizens to attend," said Sylvia Khuri, volunteer executive director of the non-profit organization.

"The Tree of Life was selected as a recognition to donors because it is a living monument to all those who are concerned about the quality of life in our area," said Mrs. Khuri. "Many residents are choosing to donate to the foundation to show their commitment for quality health care in the community."

That program will be at 6:30 p.m., (See FOUNDERS, Page 2A)

raised for the foundation since October, Khuri announced. The foundation is a separate entity from the hospital district. The non-profit corporation will build and maintain a permanent endowment fund for the benefit of the hospital and health care in general.

Gifts, memorials and endowments from individuals, corporations and organizations are solicited by the foundation. Members of the board include Argen Draper, Shirley Garrison, Don Graham, Bob Josserand, Dr. Nadir Khuri, president; Doug Manning, Pat McGinty, Garth Merrick, Speedy Nieman and Jerry Smith.

The 5-by-8-foot wood and brass sculpture was conceived by Mrs. Khuri and the art work and installation was accomplished by David Workman, director of plant operations at HRMC.

Panel puts in OT on health plan

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee are working overtime on a bill to guarantee health insurance for all Americans, while a bipartisan group of Senate Finance Committee members wants to solve the problem without forcing coverage on anyone.

The Ways and Means panel was meeting in a rare weekend session Saturday to grapple with standby cost controls and other health reform issues.

And the staff of the Finance Committee worked late into the night Friday to flesh out the plan that Chairman Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., will unveil Monday when that panel begins drafting its own health bill.

Moynihan, who has labored to find a bipartisan compromise, got help Friday from a group of committee members who suggested ways to cover as many as 20 million uninsured Americans without compelling employers or individuals to buy insurance.

The proposal by Sen. John Chafee's "mainstream coalition" was a stripped-down version of the Rhode Island Republican's earlier bill to combine subsidies with insurance reforms and tax changes to get the job done.

Under the plan, if 95 percent of Americans were not covered by 2002, a national health commission would develop ideas for closing the gap. The recommendations would come up for a vote quickly in Congress, but lawmakers could reject them.

Adrian, were called to the stand by the defense.

Hale questioned her about a report that Bill Gudgel might have Huntington's disease, a disorder she said affects the brain and causes equilibrium problems.

"Why did you think he might have it?" Hale asked.

"His sister had it," she answered.

The attorney delved into the relationship she had with Barron and if he ever made threats about others.

"Yes, he and I and my son were in the car and he wanted me to go to Lubbock with him. I told him Troy (Rodgers, her husband) would catch us."

"He just said, 'If he confronted me, I wouldn't deny it, I'd just kill him' but Chris had been drinking and I just blew it off."

Gwen Gudgel repeated a story about Chris telling her that he "knew a man who knew a man who will do a murder" for $1,000.

"When did he say this?" Hale asked.

"Sometime between March and June of 1993."

"How did this come up?"

"Chris was mad, something about Daddy checking up on him."

"Did you report it?"

"No, I just blew it off."

Questioned about Barron's behavior during the time he allegedly was having sexual relationships with both mother and daughter, Gwen Gudgel replied: "He played Mama and me against each other. One day, he would play up to me, the next day Mama would be the center of his attention."

Under cross examination by Saul, Gwen Gudgel was asked if Barron ever followed through on threats.

"He killed Daddy," she declared.

Two other witnesses, James Samuel Bettis and Karen Fortenberry, both of Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Deputy Jerry Hodges was called back to testify by the defense. He earlier was a witness for the prosecution.

Hodges brought with him several bloody towels he testified were taken from the Gudgel home after the shooting. He also identified the shell casing found on the roof of the home by Todd Gudgel. A beer can picked up near a door also was introduced into evidence.

Chris Don Barron had lived in the Gudgel home off and on for several years, beginning when he was a junior in Adrian High School.

He contended in his testimony that he shot Bill Gudgel at the instigation of Donna Gudgel.

Barron said he told investigators about her role in the shooting only after he learned she "wasn't standing behind me."

He testified that he and Donna Gudgel had been involved in a sexual relationship since he was in high school.

In her taped statement, made to Geringer and played in open court Friday, she said that she "had guilt" over the affair with the youth.

"I don't know what caused it -- the devil in me, I guess -- the excitement of doing something."

Judge Guley recessed the trial at 4 p.m., announcing that testimony will resume at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Clinton goes on offensive against conservative foes

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pummeled for weeks by conservative critics, President Clinton is striking back, declaring that radio pundits such as Rush Limbaugh should have their attacks filtered through a "truth detector."

Clinton said he is conducting his presidency amid "a constant unremitting drumbeat of negativity" and vowed to be far more aggressive in defending his record and promoting his programs.

He tried to do that in St. Louis on Friday as he showcased the national volunteer service corps he fought to create. With the cooperation of city neighborhoods, it can help chase crime from the streets, he said.

Today, the president planned to devote his weekly radio address to another appeal to Congress to quickly work out its differences on a comprehensive crime bill and allow him to sign it into law this summer.

But in a telephone interview from Air Force One on Friday with St. Louis radio station KMOX, Clinton escalated his administration's conflict with conservative radio talk show hosts and spokesmen for the religious right.

He singled out not only Limbaugh but televangelist Jerry Falwell and those whom he said cloak political attacks in the rhetoric of religion.

The president said he wanted to make clear that he was not attacking anyone's religious convictions.

"But that is very different from what is going on when people come into the political system and say that anybody that doesn't agree with them is godless, anyone who does not agree with them is not a good Christian, anyone who doesn't agree with them is fair game for any wild charge, no matter how false, for any kind of personal, demeaning attack," he said.

Clinton complained: "After I get off the radio today with you, Rush Limbaugh will have three hours to say whatever he wants. And I won't have any opportunity to respond. And there's no truth detector."

As he predicted, Limbaugh returned fire on his talk show 30 minutes later.

"The gauntlet has been thrown," he said, then proceeded to play a tape of Clinton's remarks and take issue with them.

"This is not a program of negative pessimism," Limbaugh said.

Clinton complained that Falwell, who is selling videotapes that criticize the president, does not disclose the backgrounds of people who criticize him for his involvement in the Whitewater land deal and level a variety of unproven allegations against him.

He called those allegations false. Falwell invited Clinton to tape a "personal and direct rebuttal" to run on "Old Time Gospel Hour," which airs on 200 stations nationwide. He offered to distribute the rebuttal with any future tapes his organization distributes about Clinton.

White House spokeswoman Dee De Myers said said it was cynical of Falwell even to suggest that Clinton respond to reckless and unproven charges. "It just proves the president's point," she said.

To contact the U.S. Senators, call (202) 224-3121.

GATT was recently approved by international trade negotiators after seven years of discussions. America's family farmers will be greatly affected by the agreement, and many content that family farmers will be forced out of business.

"Do you as a producer know what's going on with GATT? It will affect your livelihood," said Gerald Donaldson, chairman of the Texas Corn Producers Board.

The TCBP and other farm groups have had many concerns about GATT, including provisions that could impact the environment and ultimately prevent Congress from having any say in future U.S. agriculture policy.

"The Clinton Administration wants to introduce implementing legislation for GATT this coming week," said Carl King, TCBP executive director.

"Therefore, it is imperative that we contact our U.S. senators, as well as our congressmen, to voice our opinion on this trade deal. Tell them to stop the rush to pass GATT."

Finally, at dark, we will kick off a choreographed fireworks display that will last 30 minutes. As an added feature, the finale will be a 10-foot by 15-foot American flag of fireworks, which will be very impressive.

European collider funding delayed

GENEVA (AP) - Plans to build the world's most powerful atom-smasher got strong support Friday from all 19 members of a European consortium, but a last-minute wrangle delayed approval.

Britain and Germany, two of the biggest contributors to the laboratory, withheld their approval in a move to wring concessions from other contributors. A key concern was that host countries France and Switzerland provide extra support, officials said.

The proposed Large Hadron Collider would be about one-third as powerful as the Superconducting Supercollider that was to have been built in Texas and would cost about one-sixth as much. The $11 billion American project was canceled last year.

Physicists long for a collider that will give them new capacity to study elementary particles. Both the American and European models are designed to smash protons into each other, shattering them into even tinier, short-lived particles such as quarks.

Scientists say such a device will allow them to replicate conditions similar to those in the early moments of the universe's formation. The practical application of such knowledge is unclear and many critics of the American project said it was a boondoggle.

On Friday, British and German spokesmen told the governing council of the European Laboratory for Particle Physics, the collider consortium, that their governments fully support the $1.8-billion project and hoped that all budgetary issues could be nailed down quickly.

The 17 other countries voted in favor of the project, but council chairman Hubert Curien of France left the vote open until the council can reconvene, possibly in July. The council wants unanimous approval.

The collider would be built in the 17-mile circular tunnel that already houses the Large Electron-Positron collider, the world's largest such device. The tunnel runs under Geneva and towns and countryside in nearby France.

The council also is asking non-member countries for contributions in exchange for permission for their scientists to work at the facility. It is hoping for $500 million from the United States.

Up to 1,000 American scientists are hoping to work on the new collider, modifying experiments they had planned for the American model. Many U.S. high-energy physicists already work at the consortium.

Hadron is the term for subatomic particles made up of quarks, including the proton and neutron. Electrons and positrons are not made of quarks.

Couple notes anniversary with winnings

AUSTIN (AP) - For Gina and David Skinner, their 20th wedding anniversary had something extra: $15.7 million.

Skinner, 51, of Euless, claimed his Lotto Texas jackpot Friday after correctly guessing the six numbers drawn in Wednesday night's game. His first check was for $796,095, with one to come annually for the next 19 years.

Skinner didn't watch Wednesday night's Lotto drawing. He realized he was the winner after reading the paper at work Thursday.

"I was at work the next day reading the paper and drinking some coffee when I saw the numbers. I kept reading them over and over, and I just couldn't believe it," he said.

Skinner, who had the lone winning ticket, is purchasing director for the Texas Drug Company.

He said he plans to use the money to remodel his house and pay some bills. Skinner also says he'll buy a bass boat. And he hasn't ruled out early retirement.

Isn't it funny how many folks take their ball and go home if the game is not played according to their rules? Reminds us of a clipping we saw that was used in a Plainview church's newsletter. It's entitled "Ten Little Church Members", but it can apply to organizations or communities:

Ten little church members came to worship all the time.

One fell out with the preacher, and then there were nine.

Nine little church members offered to work late.

One overslept, then there were eight.

Eight little church members on their way to heaven.

One took the low road and then there were seven.

Seven little church members chirping like chicks.

One didn't like the music, and then there were six.

Six little church members seem very much alive.

But one liked to travel and then there were five.

Five little church members pulling

But one was tired and disgruntled, and then there were four.

Four little church members as busy as can be,

But one got his feelings hurt, and then there were three.

Three little church members and the story's almost done,

For two of them got weary and then there was one.

Well, one little church member, was feeling rather blue,

But he met with a neighbor, and then there was two.

Two little church members, each won one more,

Now don't you see; then there were four.

Four little church members worked early and late.

Each one brought one and then there were eight.

An AP news analysis

Term limits: key legal decision due in 1995

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Generations of congressional seniority will be erased by retirements and elections before the Supreme Court decides whether state-imposed term limits are constitutional.

But changing faces won't blunt the campaign for legal ceilings on tenure in the House and Senate.

The aim of that movement is to change attitudes as well, so newcomers will know the limits when they get to the Capitol and won't think of Congress as a career.

Fifteen states now have the congressional term limits that are at issue in the Supreme Court case and by the time it is decided, at least seven more are likely to have joined them. Limits are a popular cause; once on the ballot, they are next to unstoppable.

In Utah, where a referendum campaign is under way, a poll showed 3-to-1 support for term limits, although sponsors acknowledge the vote count would be closer than that. The sentiment is typical.

The idea has been around for a while. Harry S. Truman once said that term limits would cure two terrible diseases in Congress, seniority and senility. But it was more than 40 years before the issue took hold, and states began to vote in limits on their own officeholders and, often, on congressional terms.

The Supreme Court never has ruled on the question of whether states have that power. When the term limits push began it was with an implied assumption that they did not, since the first proposal was to set a 12-year ceiling, two terms in the Senate or six in the House, by amending the Constitution.

That's the hard way. There still are such proposals pending, which is how they'll remain. It would take two-thirds majorities of the House and Senate, unattainable even if sponsors could get the amendments cleared for action, to send an amendment to the states for ratification.

The limit the advocates point to, two terms for a president, was set by constitutional amendment in 1951. Now the court will decide whether that's the only route, or whether the states can impose the limits they've already adopted.

The decision will come in 1995, on an appeal from an Arkansas Supreme Court ruling that overturned state-set term limits. The Arkansas court held that the state could not add limited tenure to the qualifications set by the Constitution for service in Congress, age 25 for the House, 30 for the Senate, U.S. citizenship, and residence in the state represented.

While those legal arguments are being heard and settled, there will be another display of political muscle in a movement whose sponsors say that career members of Congress lose touch with everyday America. That meshes with voter resentment of congressional powers and perks, and with the sagging confidence ratings that show up in the public opinion polls.

The odds are that where term limits go on the Nov. 8 ballot, they'll be approved - to apply later to a Congress that is changing markedly right now.

There are 117 first-term House members in this Congress, including two Republicans who have just won special elections to Democratic seats, both as supporters of term limits.

There'll be another crowd of newcomers next year; 50 are guaranteed even before the off-year elections, 48 by retirements, nearly half to seek other offices; 2 by primary defeats. Among the retirees are more than 20 members whose seniority had made them chairmen of committees and subcommittees. One had been there since 1941.

The off-year elections will add to that turnover; incumbents won 88 per cent of their races last time, but that was down a bit, and their rate of return could slip again.

That adds up to House with a majority well within any term limit, including the six-year ceiling the Arkansas law would set.

Nine senators are retiring. So there will be major changes in the lineup there, too, with elections this year for 34 seats.

Out Blue

They said it would be a weekend that we'd never forget and, boy were they right!

Last weekend our family went to Brownwood for the annual Bilberry Family Reunion, which is the clan of my mother-in-law.

The Bilberries have been meeting at one lake or another for years, to fish, play 42, gossip, hug and generally get away from it all and catch up on the family happenings.

This year was the first time in four years we had been able to go and were really looking forward to an exciting time.

Just how exciting we could not have anticipated!

We should have taken for an omen the fact that my wife went to Brownwood sick, but we pressed on.

Then, Younger Daughter -- who had ridden most of the way with Pappy and Grandmommy in the pickup (eating mustard flavored pretzels all the way) tossed her cookies right as we arrived! But wait, that's not all.

Next thing I knew, Cousin Danny was under the car, removing the oil pan with Cousin Mark's tools from his pickup.

Everyone arrived in force on Friday afternoon and we repaired to the "big house" to do our things. The "big house" this year was a misnomer, because it was not big and it was not a house -- it was just a hot kitchen, so everyone did their visiting outside.

Unfortunately, as I drove my car from the cabin to the "big house," I somehow hit a rock, knocking a hole in the oil pan and (don't tell the EPA) depositing its contents on the ground.

I will say this, though, it is a circumstance like this that emphasizes the importance of family and the love and concern in the Bilberry Clan.

You see, as I tried to find a way to tow my car the 10 miles into town and find a repair place open on Saturday, Cousin Danny and Cousin Mark went up to where it was parked to take a look.

That done, Cousin Danny crawled back under the car in the heat of the afternoon (after brother-in-law Noble drove me into town to buy replacement oil) and put everything else back together.

There is still a very small leak that will need to be fixed before long, but at least we have oil.

Finally, Saturday night came, the last formal activity of the reunion -- the auction to raise money for next year's reunion.

That night, unfortunately, Pappy came up sick and the next morning Aunt Edna's crew learned they had brought a stomach flu bug with them for the weekend!

That meant I ended up Sunday night and Monday morning lying around parents-in-law's house in Lubbock, sick with stomach flu!

As I said, I weekend that we'll never forget!!

There were many good parts to the weekend, though, as we got to visit with many people I have only seen a few times, but who mean a lot to my wife.

All told there were 114 people in attendance, which I understand is some sort of record for recent years.

Best of all, I teamed with Aunt Edna and we wiped the floor with everyone else on the 42 tables (not because of my skill, but because this sweet elderly lady is a tenacious bulldog player who beats you to death by any means necessary!).

Older Daughter got to run with lots of cousins, while Younger Daughter tried to keep up. Older Daughter also went fishing and rode in Cousin Mark's boat.

All in all it was a good weekend (but I still prefer living in a town and driving on paved roads!).

political action committee giving, leaving that issue in limbo.

Help may be on the way.

After a White House meeting Wednesday, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt said he hoped work on the crime bill, campaign reform and lobbying reform would be finished before Congress takes a July 4th recess.

If that timetable is met, and credible legislation enacted, Clinton would have a few victories, and perhaps more leverage, to carry into health care negotiations.

For now, however, Clinton's hand is weakened because many Democrats don't support his health plan and public support has dwindled, leaving Clinton to muse aloud about his rocky ride.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

Do you ever wonder why some teams seem to win no matter what their competition does? Do these teams just get lucky or are they better coached, or have more ability and desire? Most winners seem to be at the top every year, so what's their secret?

Most folks would agree that luck probably plays a small role but hard work and desire are key ingredients of a consistent winning program. You can't forget ability either. A team can work hard and have all the desire in the world and still fall short without ability.

Similarly, a city can go through all the motions to retain and recruit industry and still fall short because they do not have the funds(ability). Today, progressive cities everywhere are competing for new industry and new jobs and most have the ability to "out-gun" us.

To compete, we need all the tools--desire, hard work, ability and luck. Furthermore, we need these tools available on a continual basis to sustain a longterm winning tradition.

Hereford has the hard workers and desire to compete with other communities in the economic development areas. Our leadership is moving forward and Hereford is quickly becoming a better place to live and work.

Luck cannot be discounted. Becoming proactive in developing our economy will produce more luck than doing nothing. Given these factors, the primary problem is financing. How can we establish and maintain a longterm economic development program for the citizens of Hereford?

The Mayor's Task Force, also known as the People Promoting Progress committee, studied the issue for several months. They found the most practical method of accomplishing this is to ask voters to help "level the playing field" by voting for a 1/2-percent sales tax.

The 1/2-percent sales tax will give Hereford the ability to compete. There are approximately 150 cities in Texas right now using this tax for economic development. These funds provide incentives to business and industry. Many Panhandle cities are already generating millions of dollars in funds and using them to expand and retain existing business and industry and attract new ones.

There are other advantages to passing the sales tax as well. Industries wishing to relocate are more likely to target cities with the economic development funds. Also, there are additional state funds available to those cities to help them leverage their sales tax revenues.

For Hereford to compete, financing must be established and sustained to build a winning tradition of which we can all be proud. Give Hereford the ability to compete on a level playing field by voting for the sales tax for economic development on Aug. 13.

Sincerely,
Jeff Carlile,
PPP Co-Chairman

Supreme Court takes side of cities in question over taking private land

By LAURIE ASSEO

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Property owners were the winners Friday as the Supreme Court made it harder for governments to require them to set aside private land for public purposes.

The court, in a 5-4 ruling, said an Oregon city did not justify its requirement that a store owner make part of her land a public bike path in exchange for a permit to build a larger store.

"The city's goals of reducing flooding hazards and traffic congestion and providing for public greenways are laudable but there are outer limits to how this may be done," Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote for the court.

"The city must make some sort of individualized determination that the required dedication is related both in nature and extent to the impact of the proposed development," he said.

In a sharply worded dissent, Justice John Paul Stevens said,

Centennial marked for London's Tower Bridge

By KARIN DAVIES

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - On its 100th birthday, Tower Bridge is a temperamental old thing that demands lots of pampering.

"The bridge moves, the bridge shakes and the bridge always wins. You have to understand that," says Chris Stevens, 57, who has the title of Bridge Master Tower Bridge.

"Really, considering that she is 100 years old, I believe that she's pretty easy to get along with."

The centenary of the Gothic span across the River Thames will be celebrated Thursday, with a visit by Prince Charles, whose great-great-grandfather, Edward VII, opened Tower Bridge. On July 2, a carnival featuring Knights in armor will celebrate its history.

Much needed and long overdue, the bridge epitomized the mechanical genius and industrial exuberance of the late 19th century. When it opened, Punch magazine exclaimed: "Oh cloud, cap towers! Oh, spanking spans!"

Unlike all other spans across the River Thames, it had to cater to the passage of tall-masted ships making their way to the busy docks upriver.

The architect, Horace Jones, proposed a fanciful drawbridge, built of brick in medieval style to harmonize with the Tower of London on the north bank which dates back to the late 11th century just after the Norman Conquest.

Jones died before completion of his dream of "the most picturesque bridge on the river" - a structure with lots of windows, lively facades with elaborate window frames, balconies and niches, and high-pitched roofs covered with Welsh slates.

Like its contemporaries, the Eiffel Tower and the Statue of Liberty, Tower Bridge represents its capital to the world.

Tower Bridge consists of a pair of movable spans called bascules - French for seesaw - and two suspended spans connecting the main towers and the shores. The secret of the bascules is in the counterweights which make them easier to lift up and down.

The bridge was built over eight years at a cost of a million pounds, then the equivalent of $4.5 million, drawn from a trust established in the 12th century that continues to maintain Tower Bridge and three "Property owners have surely found a new friend today." He said the court "has stumbled badly" by giving government the burden of proving that land-use regulations are valid.

But some environmentalists said governments should be able to meet the court's standard for proving a need to regulate the use of private land.

"The good news is the court's explicit recognition that land use can and should be regulated," said John D. Echeverria of the National Wildlife Federation.

Rehnquist's opinion was joined by Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia, Anthony M. Kennedy and Clarence Thomas.

Joining Stevens' dissent were Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Ruth Bader Ginsburg. Justice David H. Souter wrote a separate dissent.

In other decisions Friday, the court:

-Said Oregon cannot bar judges in personal-injury lawsuits from reducing punitive-damages awards they consider excessive.

-Ruled in a Mississippi case that federal juries do not have to be told a criminal defendant will be sent to a mental hospital if found innocent by reason of insanity.

-Said police may continue questioning criminal suspects who make an ambiguous request for a lawyer. The court added in a South Carolina case that police need not even seek clarification of such statements.

Company offers children chance for summer camp

IRVING -- Texas ColorTyme stores have teamed up with Kids Across America, a non-profit summer camp for inner-city kids, for a nationwide fundraiser which kicked off this week and runs through Aug. 12.

The ColorTyme store in Hereford is participating in the 10-week campaign which will raise money to send inner-city kids to camp.

More than 2,000 inner-city boys and girls attend the Branson, Mo., camp each summer. The camp incorporates a unique combination of Christian leadership and sports activities to build friendships, self-esteem, and hope.

Since the inner-city child lives among violence, gangs, and drugs on a daily basis, the Kids Across America program presents children with alternatives to these destructive lifestyles.

The Kids Across America/ColorTyme campaign is expected to boost the awareness of the camp and provide realistic solutions. In-store displays used during the campaign communicate the objectives of the camp, as well as the fundraiser.

Dole nabs top spot in Iowa GOP presidential straw poll

By MIKE GLOVER

Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole won an Iowa straw poll of 1,349 Republicans, but several other likely contenders for the White House in 1996 also had strong showings among the GOP faithful.

Dole captured 356 votes, or about 25 percent, to 205 for former Education Secretary Lamar Alexander and 200 for Texas Sen. Phil Gramm in the poll on Friday. Vice President Dan Quayle received fewer than 100 votes.

"We got 15 percent of the vote, over half as much as Senator Dole. I feel very proud of it," Gramm said.

Dole won the Iowa Caucuses in 1988 over Pat Robertson and then-Vice President George Bush.

Former Housing Secretary Jack Kemp got 156 votes and former Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney had 130 votes. The others in the 23-candidate field, including former Transportation Secretary Lynn Martin and CNN political commentator Pat Buchanan, each received fewer than 100 votes.

Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter and former New Jersey Gov. Tom Kean used the gathering to attack the religious right's growing influence among Republicans, but the theme appeared unpopular. Specter got six votes and Kean got two.

The rally kicked off the state GOP convention, convened to adopt a platform and attend to party business. Republicans paid $25 each to attend the rally and vote in the straw poll.

By tradition, Iowa is the first test of strength for prospective presidential candidates. Iowa's precinct caucuses in February are the first step toward choosing state delegates for the national conventions and come about a week before the New Hampshire primary, the nation's first.

LOW COST HOME IMPROVEMENTS

It usually doesn't pay to start major renovations to make your home more saleable, you'll rarely recoup the cost when you sell. However, there are low cost ideas that can make your home look more interesting to a prospective buyer. Fresh paint is the number one fix up, choose a neutral color. Install new window seats where you can for extra storage space. Build a vertical wine rack in a cool corner of the basement or a closet. Improve garage storage with wall storage panels and hangers to hold tools. Bring in sunlight with transom windows over the cabinets in the kitchen and skylights wherever you can. Build lattice-work sheds to hide utility meters and heat pumps. We are not interior decorators but we can help with non-partial advice about low cost improvements.

Hereford girls to play in national tourney

Three Hereford girls will be part of team competing in a national volleyball tournament put on by the Junior Olympic Volleyball Association (JOVA).

The tournament, set in Austin, will start Wednesday and continue through July 3.

Danielle Cornelius, Heather Hodges and Brittney Binder are the girls from Hereford.

All three play volleyball at Hereford High School. Cornelius, who'll be a sophomore this year, was selected as the newcomer of the year in District 1-4A last season. Hodges, who'll be a junior, earned honorable mention last season. Binder, also a junior, was the setter for the junior varsity team.

Their JOVA team includes players from two other volleyball powerhouses from the Panhandle: Amarillo High and Tascosa. The team has done well in several tournaments, including a third-place finish in the Lone Star tournament in Austin, which qualified it for this national tournament.

Cornelius, who said she plays on a JOVA team for the greater competition and for exposure to college coaches, has high hopes for the national tournament.

Sampras, Navratilova advance

By DAVID CRARY
Associated Press Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Immune to the rash of Wimbledon upsets, top-seeded Pete Sampras and nine-time champion Martina Navratilova cruised through third-round matches today.

Sampras trounced fellow American Chuck Adams, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4, in a match suspended by rain late Friday. The defending champion has yet to lose a set in his three matches, winning the last two in less than 90 minutes.

"Hopefully I can maintain this level. I've played extremely solid," he said. But he described his fourth-round foe, hard-serving Czech Daniel Vacek, as "extremely dangerous."

Navratilova, seeking her 10th title at the age of 37, triumphed 6-3, 6-2 over fellow American Lindy Harvey-Wild, who had won the only previous match between them. Like Sampras, Navratilova hasn't lost a set yet, and has a clear shot at the title following the first-round ouster of top-seeded defending champion Steffi Graf.

Jana Novotna, trying to shake off memories of her collapse in last year's Wimbledon final, fought back from a second-set lapse today to win her third-round match over Dominique Monami, 6-0, 4-6, 6-0.

The fifth-seeded Novotna, who broke into tears after blowing a 4-1 third-set lead over Steffi Graf a year ago, raced through the first set, then lost momentum as Monami took a 4-0 lead in the second set.

Novotna recovered, extending the set to 65 minutes before losing it, then overpowered the 21-year-old Belgian in the third set.

Monami, ranked only 75th, has lost in the first round in her two previous Wimbledons, including a 6-1, 6-2 defeat by Novotna two years ago.

Jeremy Bates, the only Briton left in the tournament, outplayed power-serving Markus Zocke of Germany 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 and became the first Englishman to win a match on Centre Court since John Lloyd nine years ago.

Bates, playing his 13th

Wimbledon, matched his previous best showing in 1992, when he became the first Briton in 10 years to reach the fourth round.

In another third-round match, Helena Sukova, designated the 17th seed after the withdrawal of No. 7 seed Mary Pierce, beat Silvia Frankl of Germany 6-3, 6-2. It is the ninth time in 13 Wimbledons that Sukova has reached the fourth round, but she has never gotten further than the quarterfinals.

Bagwell's big night leads rout of Dodgers

By The Associated Press

No player is having a bigger year with less fanfare than Jeff Bagwell.

Bagwell ranks second in the NL in batting average, homers and runs scored, and his 74 RBIs lead all of baseball. Not bad for a player most fans know nothing about.

Bagwell tied a major-league record by hitting two home runs in one inning, and added his third two innings later Friday night, leading the Houston Astros to a 16-4 rout of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Bagwell, who hit two homers in the sixth, became the 28th player to homer twice in the same inning and the second Astro, joining Lee May who hit two in an April 29, 1974 game. Bagwell added his third homer in the eighth.

"That's the best night I ever had," said Bagwell. "I hit three home runs in college once, but that was against the University of Richmond. This is the major leagues."

Bagwell went 4-for-5 and drove in a career-high six runs to increase his total to 74.

The Astros, who scored nine runs in the sixth inning, collected 17 hits to produce their season-high run total.

Bagwell, who is fifth among NL first basemen in the All-Star voting, hit his 23rd homer in the eighth off Brian Barnes.

"He doesn't get the kind of notoriety he deserves," outfielder Luis Gonzalez said. "He gets all those home runs and has 70 RBIs and nobody takes notice."

"And this isn't an easy place to hit home runs in. There's no free-agent home run hitter who wants to play here. This is not a home run paradise."

The last player to hit two homers in one inning was Toronto's Joe Carter on Oct. 3, 1993 against Baltimore.

At Chicago, Mark Whiten drove in two runs and Allen Watson won his third straight decision.

Whiten's two-out, third-inning single came after Chicago starter Anthony Young (3-6) had walked the bases loaded.

Watson (5-3) allowed seven hits in seven innings. Mike Perez pitched the eighth and Rene Arocha worked the ninth for his fifth save.

Expos 9, Marlins 0

At Montreal, Darrin Fletcher homered twice and drove in five runs and Butch Henry and two relievers combined on a six-hit shutout.

Henry (4-0), making his sixth start, left for a pinch hitter after six innings. He scattered six singles, struck out five and walked one in sending Florida to its fifth straight loss.

Pat Rapp (4-3) was the loser.

Braves 9, Phillies 4

At Philadelphia, Mark Lemke's three-run homer capped a five-run fourth inning for the Braves.

Lemke went 3-for-4 to help Tom Glavine (8-7) snap a two-game losing streak. Mike Stanton pitched two hitless innings for his second save.

Phillies starter Danny Jackson (9-2) gave up nine hits and five earned runs in six innings.

Pirates 9, Mets 4

At New York, Dave Clark homered twice off Dwight Gooden and drove in four runs as the Pirates won their fourth straight.

Denny Neagle (7-8) scattered five hits in seven innings as Pittsburgh won for the sixth time in seven games.

Gooden (3-4) was tagged for nine runs - the most in his 11-year career - and seven hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Reds 3, Padres 2, 10 innings

At Cincinnati, Reggie Sanders tied it with bases-loaded single in the eighth and scored the game-winner on Bret Boone's single in the 10th.

Scott Sanders shut the Reds out on four singles over seven innings, but the bullpen threw away a 2-0 lead in the eighth and allowed the Reds to come from behind for their sixth straight win.

Reggie Sanders started the winning rally with a one-out single in the 10th off Tim Mauser (2-3). Hector Carrasco (4-3) pitched two perfect innings for the win.

Giants 10, Rockies 3

At Denver, Matt Williams hit his National League-leading 27th home run, and the San Francisco Giants broke a five-game losing streak.

Williams VanLandingham (3-0) pitched six innings, allowing three runs and five hits before leaving the game when he was hit by a pitch. VanLandingham, who was taken to the hospital for x-rays on his right hand, struck out five and walked two.

Marvin Freeman left the game in the third inning with a strained right hamstring. His replacement, Willie Blair (0-3), promptly gave up a game-tying triple to John Patterson and a two-run homer to Williams to give the Giants a 4-2 lead.

Rangers stretch lead over Angels, M's

By The Associated Press

With a strike looming, the Texas Rangers have emphasized building their lead in the AL West.

The California Angels don't feel it's time to panic yet. Perhaps that explains why the Rangers lead the Angels by 3 1/2 games in a division where no team has a winning record.

"I think there's some importance to it, and that's what I addressed to my team," Texas manager Kevin Kennedy said Friday night after the Rangers stretched their margin over Seattle to 2 1/2 games with a 2-1 victory over California.

"With the strike possibility and the different dates that I'm hearing, I think we have to look at the season differently and the possibility that we won't play it all the way through."

Kenny Rogers lulled the Angels to sleep, allowing six hits, including a RBI single by J.T. Snow. The complete game was the fourth by the left-hander, who struck out six and walked two and lowered the team ERA to 5.45.

No division champion has finished with an ERA over 5.00 since divisional play was instituted in 1969.

"The pitching has not been as good as it should have been - not even close," Rogers said after the Rangers' second win in 10 games. "But it's not just one department that our team is lacking in right now. We've lacked defense some days and offense some days. We've just got to get the confidence to do it in all areas.

WIMBLEDON

Grossman 6-0, 6-2.

In a match between unseeded men, Christian Bergstrom of Sweden swept past Jordi Burillo of Spain 6-3, 6-3, 6-4. Bergstrom, though ranked only 112th, has done well in past Wimbledons, reaching the fourth round in 1991 and the quarterfinals in 1990.

Burillo had never played a match on grass before this tournament.

Heading into today's matches, only eight of the 16 men's seeds were still around. And four of them rely mostly on baseline power games rather than the serve-and-volley tactics which usually win on Wimbledon's grass.

Leading the baseline bunch is

and we haven't yet."

Loser Chuck Finley (5-7) was a lot calmer after this defeat than he was on the Angels' recent road trip, when he criticized his teammates' attitude. The left-hander, however, disagreed that the strike deadline of mid-August is making each game more meaningful.

"Nobody's really looking that far down the road," Finley said. "We've still got two more games with these guys, and we can't try to play the game with the thought of a strike coming along. We didn't go into the game thinking about a strike date or a 'must' series with these guys."

Whatever was on Finley's mind at the start of the game apparently worked for him. He struck out his first five batters, finishing with 10, and allowed two runs on six hits in his fifth complete game.

"You're going to run up against guys who have good stuff like Finley, and you've got to find a way to win the battle," Will Clark said. "That's exactly what it was tonight - a battle. Early on, he had good control of his breaking ball and he was striking everybody out with split-fingers. Later on he was mixing it up a little bit more."

Rogers ended the game by striking out Snow and pinch-hitter Harold Reynolds after a one-out double by Chad Curtis in the ninth.

"I wanted him in there all the way," Kennedy said. "He had good stuff all night and he was still strong.

Andre Agassi, who proved in 1992 that his style could produce a championship here.

Joining him in the fourth round, to widespread surprise, is two-time French Open champion Sergi Bruguera, who was derided for skipping Wimbledon the past three years because he disliked grass.

Seeded eighth, Bruguera has silenced the critics with determination and versatility. He has also spiced the baseline play that suits him so well on clay by making frequent charges to the net.

The Spaniard now has a 10-match winning streak, including seven wins en route to the French Open title earlier this month.

WORLD CUP

Russia, which almost certainly is headed home after the first round for the second successive tournament, Sweden beat Russia 3-1 and sources, speaking on the condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that coach Pavel Sadyrin would resign.

The team was disrupted by a bitter dispute between several star players and Sadyrin. Four players refused to play in the World Cup, demanding higher pay and the ouster of Sadyrin.

We needed him to do what he rose to the occasion. That's why I voted him for the All-Star team. I think he deserves it. He's pitched big games for us when we've had some slumps, and he's made tremendous strides since June of last year."

Texas pulled ahead 2-1, thanks to some absent-mindedness by Finley. After one-out singles by Manny Lee and Rusty Greer, Chris James followed with a dribbler up the third base line.

Catcher Chris Turner made the play and threw out James, but Lee scored all the way from second when Finley failed to cover the plate.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Chicago 6, Seattle 2; Minnesota 4, Kansas City 1; Baltimore 5, Toronto

1; Boston 4, Milwaukee 3; and Oakland 4, Detroit 3.

The game between Cleveland and New York was suspended with the Yankees leading the Indians 9-5 after seven innings. The game was delayed several times by rain and was suspended at the 1 a.m. American League curfew.

It was to be completed Saturday prior to a regularly-scheduled game. If the score held up, the Indians' winning streak at Jacobs Field would end at 18 games.

White Sox 6, Mariners 2

Frank Thomas hit his 28th home run as the White Sox and Scott Sanderson beat Seattle despite another Homer by the torrid Ken Griffey, Jr.

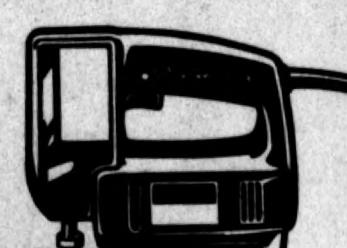

Red Sox 4, Brewers 3

Damon Berryhill hit a two-out, two-run single in the ninth inning, lifting the Red Sox over the Brewers.

Athletics 4, Tigers 3

Steve Oliveros pitched five strong innings and Brent Gates hit a two-run double to key a four-run Oakland fourth.

Fans don't know how tough it is to be NFL ref

By PAUL HAMMONS
Sulphur Springs News-Telegram
SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas - Back when the debate over the NFL instant replay rule was still raging, much was made over the NFL referees' general dislike for the setup. If fans better understood an NFL official's job, they'd understand more why referees disliked instant replay, NFL referee Tim Millis says.

"The public and even the press really hammered away that we didn't like it because it had somebody looking over our shoulder," said Millis, a Wylie resident who this fall will enter his sixth season as an NFL official.

"Nothing could be further from the truth because every play is graded by a supervisor. We were being scrutinized every play from two different angles by supervisors, so the fact that instant replay was taking a shot at us gave us no concern at all."

Most people seem to look at an NFL referee's job as one that involves travel and about four hours of work a week. Millis says there's yearlong training and testing, hours of weekly preparation and a hectic travel schedule involved.

That's not a complaint, says Millis, who adds that, for him, the benefits more than make up for the hard work.

"We're fortunate in having a job that doesn't require you to work every day when you're working, and also one that kind of has its slack season," said Millis, who is self-employed as a financial consultant for civil and criminal litigation when his officiating schedule allows.

"All the games are fantastic. That's the best part of it, and of course the playoffs are fantastic."

But while the season provides memorable moments, the off-season has its share of work to balance them out.

Millis said his football schedule begins with 100-question tests in March and April as well as a physical examination. Officials then take a 250-question test in May and have their first official organizational meeting. An officials clinic is held in Dallas in July, after which they report to various NFL training camps to work with coaches on rule changes and interpretations.

Then comes the actual game schedule. Each official works four pre-season games and 14 regular-season games. The weekly schedule involves a flight the morning before game day to the site of the contest, meetings throughout the day and the morning of the game, and then a late flight home that night.

And if he's one of the top 11-rated refs at his particular position, he'll also work a playoff game. That adds up a busy fall.

"The last weekend I'll see my family is July 4," Millis said, "and after that, I'll have two weekends off until February. When you toss in the schedule along with so many variables now, like Thursday and Friday and Saturday and Monday night, those cut even more into your week."

"I happen to be fortunate enough that I have four kids and they were all through playing ball except two. But if you haven't got the right home situation, you're not going to make it, because--your officiating or your home--one will come apart."

Millis started officiating youth football games in college and eventually worked his way into high schools and to the college level. From working small Texas schools in the late '70s, he went to an eventual position in the Southwest Conference, where he officiated from 1984 to 1988.

Reaching the college level, to Millis, was the realistic goal to shoot for.

"The timing and luck you have to have to even go beyond the small college level is so great that you never really sit down and think, 'Wouldn't this be great to do this for a living?'"

"And then, when you make the SWC, it's almost something you don't even think about because, again, there are probably a thousand college officials in the U.S., and the NFL may hire one to three a year. I know I didn't even really sit down and count my money and my chickens before they hatched," he said.

Millis got a break because of the college teams he was officiating, he said.

As a back judge working the defensive secondary, he was graded by NFL official scouts on how he covered the pass in terms of positioning, accuracy and general composure during a game.

And because he got a chance to work a lot of games involving the run-and-shoot Houston Cougars, Millis got a chance to showcase his skills.

As a result, he was one of 11 prospects invited for an interview. That number is usually more like three or four, Millis said, but that particular year the NFL planned to add an extra crew, which was later eliminated.

So with a combination of luck, ability and timing, Millis found himself in his first regular-season game, a matchup between Cleveland and Pittsburgh that immediately put his poise to the test.

"That was the year Cleveland beat them 55-0," Millis recalled. "I was told you won't have as many fouls in the pro games, and I had six and we tossed like four (players) out, and I'm thinking, 'Is all of it going to be like this?'"

As it turned out, they weren't. But many of his games have been memorable because of the situations surrounding the games.

Millis said he officiated the game in which New York Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor went down with what appeared at the time to be a season-ending injury two years ago. He's had a chance to referee the Pro Bowl, an exhibition game in London, and he worked a season in the World League, which gave him more chances to travel abroad.

He's worked two divisional playoff games as well, and says his goal is to take the next step—not necessarily to the Super Bowl, but to the conference finals.

"It's sad in some respects that as officials we keep the same kind of score (as pro football teams)," he said.

"Buffalo has been the stepchild of the NFL because they've never won a Super Bowl, but the positive side of it that the public doesn't see is how many teams have been to as many as they've been? Officials are the same way," he said.

"I'd certainly like to work (a Super Bowl), but I guess it goes back to my childhood. The game of the year was always the NFC championship game, and that's what I would really love to work, and I feel like I've been a notch away in two years."

Being an official has basically changed the way Millis and most other officials watch a football game, even when it's on their own time.

"I watch (NFL games) because it's like taking a test," he said. "Monday nights, I'm usually glued to the set, and I'm usually watching the officials more than the game. When I go watch a college game, I can relax and watch the game, but even when I was in the college ranks, I probably watched the officials more than anything else. You watch it through different eyes."

when a 60-year-old man smashed his car into the back tire of Seaborne's bike. Seaborne was thrown into the air, landing on his head and knees. Doctors said Seaborne should have been killed in an accident like that, but he escaped serious injury and actually raced in the qualifier.

The next calamity was the 1990 Mojave mishap, which was basically repeated the next year.

In 1991, Seaborne's crew - made up mostly of students at North Central Texas Community College of Mount Vernon, where he teaches physical education - again lost him in the desert.

"It was a nightmare, riding around and asking people, 'Hey, did you see a bike race come through here?'" said Seaborne, who had to drop out of the race after being hospitalized for dehydration.

Tough break? It got worse the next year.

While training on U.S. 67, a 94-year-old man with one good eye who had 10 wrecks before that smashed into him, not even stopping as Seaborne rolled over his car.

He was hospitalized with two broken bones in his leg. Doctors again told him he was lucky to be alive.

But even with disasters sprinkled generously through his short cycling career, Seaborne has emerged as a top UMCA contender. Shermer said his association doesn't have any official rankings, but Seaborne is among the top 10 racers.

"He's a unique guy," Shermer said of Seaborne, who also holds a doctorate in sports psychology, has written fitness books, has played varsity tennis at Penn State and has won two AAU national tae kwon do titles.

Seaborne, 38, began setting records in 1990. In March of that year, he broke the north-south Texas record, pedaling 555 miles from Brownsville to Wichita Falls in 37 1/2 hours. The old mark was 44 hours.

After that, he broke the east-west record, going 528 miles from Hobbs, N.M., to Waskom, Texas, in 33 1/2 hours - with no sleep and a total time off the bike of 15 minutes.

Seaborne set those records to train for the RAAM, which winds its way from Irvine, Calif. to Savannah, Ga. He also prepared for that race by developing the regimen he still follows: Cycling 500 to 700 miles per week and eating six to eight meals (6,000 calories) per day, including one meal of 12 raw egg whites and a "gigantic" bowl of oatmeal.

In addition, he continued the demanding weight-lifting routine that has made him look a little more like an NFL linebacker than a cyclist.

All that training was good for 10th place out of 30 racers in that RAAM, as Seaborne finished in 10 days, three hours and 32 minutes - the only time he's finished the race in four tries.

In 1992, Seaborne established a UMCA mark by riding 229 miles in 12 hours. And last April, Seaborne set Lesley Fisher and Garrick McPherson, both of Lubbock, were united in marriage early Saturday evening in Trinity Episcopal Church in Fort Worth. Officiating was the Rev. Keith Burns of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Lynn and Mike Fisher and the groom is the son of Gary and Karen McPherson of 215 Fir St.

The church altar was flanked by two floral arrangements of stargazers, tulips, roses, snapdragons and larkspur. Aisles were marked with organza and greenery.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

Blair Frase of Fort Worth served as maid of honor and the groom's cousin, Phillip Betzen of Lubbock, was best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's cousin, Kyla Betzen of Lubbock, Rhea Rodgers of Austin, and Sherri Coffman of Houston.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother, Wade McPherson of Hereford; the bride's brother, Kyle Fisher of Fort Worth; and Hereford residents, Cody Page and Clay Wallace.

The groom's cousin, Todd Betzen was the crucifer.

Deborah Clark of Fort Worth was accompanied by two trumpets, "Horn Pipe" from Water Music Suite by Handel as the processional, and "The Trumpet" by Purcell.

The bride was attired in a formal gown of white slipper satin and embroidered lace which featured a fitted bodice and a sweetheart neckline. The basque waistline was appliqued with beaded lace and the sleeves were short with pleated bands of lace. The gown also featured a detachable cathedral-length train with loops of satin and beaded lace trimming the front edges of the train's hemline.

In her hair, the bride wore a lace bow baret with netting reaching down to mid-back. She carried a cascading arrangement of white roses, phalaenopsis orchids, spray orchids and stephanotis with ivy.

To complete her attire, the bride wore a drop diamond necklace which belonged to her great-grandmother.

Bridal attendants wore black strapless ankle-length dresses accented by white collars. They carried bouquets of stargazer lilies, hot pink tulips and pink roses.

The reception was held in the Ridslea Country Club in Fort Worth.

The main refreshment table was adorned with the bridesmaids' bouquets and centerpieces furnished by the country Club.

The bride was attired in her wedding dress as she left for a honeymoon to Puerto Vallarta.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock.

The bride graduated from high school in 1990 and is currently attending Texas Tech University. She is working toward her human development degree.

The groom, a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School, is currently employed as a production supervisor at Cartridge Plus Inc. in Lubbock.

Wedding guests from Hereford included Charlene Sanders, Priscilla Lacey, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Aleshire, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Cardinal, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ott and Mrs. Wayne Reinart. Also, attending were guests from Fairfield, Vega, Lubbock, Little Rock, Ark., Dallas, Tulsa and California.

The rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at Joe T. Garcia's in Fort Worth.

A bridesmaids' luncheon was hosted by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Floyd Melton, at Ridslea Country Club.

It's something to smile about

Lipstick on a collar—or anywhere else, for that matter—won't be telling a tale on you, thanks to a new lip makeup that's giving many women and the people they kiss something to smile about.

Not a lip gloss and not a lipstick, it's a self-sealing lip makeup with chronologix. It utilizes advanced silicone technology and delivers a unique, velvety texture, as well as a soft opaque look that's non-drying and color true. The result: Lip makeup that's wonderfully light-weight, yet rich feeling and long lasting. It is packaged in a sleek, contemporary gold tube with a sponge tipped wand that gives precision application to shape and define lips easily.

I hope your summer is a time of fun in the sun as well as a time of rest and relaxation. To assist you with special projects, crafts and hobbies in

Among the new books this week is

State Fashion Show winner

Amanda Sims, at left, winner of the 1994 State 4-H Fashion Show, shares her honor with Cindy Harder, who placed fifth at the show. Both Deaf Smith County 4-Hers participated in the consumer buying categories of the contest and were judged by a panel of professional and peer judges in the areas of fiber and construction knowledge, appearance and poise, 4-H leadership, community service and teaching in the areas of clothing and textiles. Sims was also a recipient of a $300 scholarship provided by Justin Boot Co.

Views of working women being sought in survey

What do you think about your job? What issues concern you? What changes would you most like to see in your work places? Your government wants to know!

From July until August, 1994 the Women's Bureau at the Department of Labor will be sponsoring Working Women Count, a questionnaire to find out about how America's working women view their jobs. The questionnaire will appear in magazines and newspapers, and be distributed by associations, businesses and unions nationwide.

"We've been talking with women across the country, from every kind of occupation, income level and community," says Women's Bureau Director Karen Nussbaum. "But there seem to be some widely shared issues and feelings about being a working woman in America today. We want to help working women speak out about their concerns and develop practical policies to change them."

The results of the Working Women Count questionnaire will be included in Working Women: A Report to the Nation, to be released in the fall.

Make your voice count. To obtain a questionnaire, contact your place of business, union local women's organization or the Women's Bureau at 1-800-827-5335.

Take care of skin

MEMPHIS (AP) - You can't make the sun go away this summer, but you can limit its impact on your skin. Dr. Rex Amonette, founder of the Memphis Dermatology Clinic, lists some sun-smart moves:

- Limit sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., when the sun's rays are strongest.

- Wear protective clothing - hat, long-sleeved shirts, long pants, and sunglasses - when you're out in the sun.

- Apply an SPF 15 sunscreen before every exposure to the sun, re-applying liberally at least every two hours or after swimming.

- Keep track of your time in the sun, and do not stay in unshaded spots for long stretches.

- Be aware that sunlight bouncing off reflective surfaces can reach you even if you're under an umbrella or tree.

- Stay out of tanning salons.

- Protect your children from the sun, and teach them good sun habits.

- Examine your skin every three months, and know the signs of skin cancer:

A skin growth that increases in size and appears pearly, translucent, tan, brown, black or multicolored;

A mole, birthmark or any brown spot that changes color, increases in size or thickness, changes texture, is irregular in outline, bigger than 6mm (the size of a pencil eraser), or appears after age 21;

A spot or sore that continues to itch, hurt, crust, scab, erode or bleed;

An open sore that does not heal within three weeks.

The Oberlin Collegiate Institute of Ohio went coeducational in 1837 as it conferred equal academic status to a class of four women and 50 men.

England's Queen Elizabeth I was born in Greenwich in 1533.

Former Hereford man retires from MoorMan's

Truman Hazelrigg of Comanche retired as an operations manager for MoorMan Manufacturing on May 31 after a career of more than 35 years.

Hazelrigg had served as general manager of MoorMan's Hereford division from 1976 to 1985.

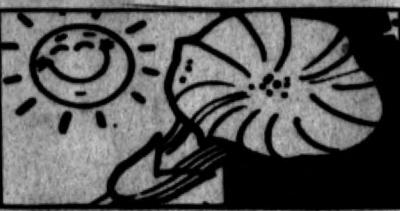

Hazelrigg joined Moorman's in May 1954 as a sales correspondent in Quincy, IL. He was named the Comanche, TX, division's first office manager in April 1962. After leaving Hereford in 1985, he returned to Comanche as the division's general manager. In 1992, he was named operations manager for the Red River Strategic Market Area.

Active in his community, Hazelrigg has served as a director of the Comanche Chamber of Commerce, and is a past president of Comanche Child Care Center. He is a former president of the Comanche and Hereford Kiwanis Clubs, and served as a director of the United Way in Hereford.

Truman has three sons. Stephen lives in Sugarland; Thomas lives in Clarksville, TN., and Jeffrey lives in Coppell. Truman also has three grandchildren.

In retirement, Hazelrigg plans to spend more time golfing, fishing, square dancing and traveling. High on the list, however, is spending more time with his grandchildren.

4-H'ers urge "get with it"

Craig Campbell, at left, and Ian Isaacson, Deaf Smith County junior 4-H members, presented "Let Us Pump You Up" during the Golden K Kiwanis Club's recent meeting. Campbell and Isaacson, who won first place at the District Public Speaking Contest in May, are available, along with other 4-H teams, to present programs to civic clubs or other groups. Fitness and flexibility were presented by the two youth in their informative and humorous presentation.

In 1881 Texas was still feeling the after effects of the Civil War. The people were living at poverty level. A new Capitol building was badly needed but there were many other pressing needs. Then one night the old wooden Capitol building burned.

What were they to do? The state of Texas was money poor but land rich. Their first plan was to try to trade five million acres of the most worthless parts of the state to some very wealthy, unsuspecting person to build a new Capitol building. Then they decided that three million acres should be enough for a building, after all, what they really wanted was a Capitol building that would be somewhat larger and somewhat taller than the United States Capitol in Washington! They allocated 50,000 acres of land to pay for the surveying and appointed five Texas Rangers to accompany the surveying crews.

The state of Texas ran advertisements in large city newspapers for a contractor to build the Capitol building and received one reply from a group of five men in Chicago. The Chicago group formed the Capitol Syndicate Company.

These men thought they had enough money for any "big project." Even though they had never been to Texas they signed the contracts to build the Capitol building and to accept the land in payment without any inspection of the land. The Texas legislatures were bragging about this deal for years and years.

The land they accepted in payment lay approximately two hundred miles along the New Mexico line and was approximately thirty miles wide. It reached from north of Dalhart to south of Lubbock. The early history of Deaf Smith County is the history of the XIT ranch because almost one half of our county was part of the largest fenced-in ranch in the world.

In March of 1882 the Syndicate finally sent a man to inspect the land. The inspector's report was a shock, it showed no water or wood except along the Canadian River. There were few creeks or playa lakes. There was no market for farm products. The area was a mecca for all sorts of outlaws and the nearest forts were hundreds of miles away. This was an uninhabitable desert.

Since they couldn't sell the land at that time they decided they would have to develop the land into the world's largest ranch. These five men had big plans but they didn't know anything about cattle. Some contacts were made in England to finance the cattle for the XIT Ranch, but they tried to keep this a secret, since Texas did not like the idea of foreign money being used in Texas.

In the meantime, the Capitol building project was costing much more than planned. A special committee and thirty miles of railroad had to be built to bring pink granite from a quarry at Marble Falls. No workmen could be found who knew how to work the granite so they had to bring men from Scotland. They then found the contract forbid foreign labor. These setbacks and others were frustrating and expensive. They were quickly running out of money.

When the Capitol was finished in 1888 all expenses were tallied and the XIT land had cost the owners $1.07 per acre. They could have bought the land to begin with for 16 cents to 50 cents per acre or even for free if they had sent some men to homestead the land.

It is interesting to think that this beautiful pink Capitol building we are using today was paid for in part by land in Deaf Smith County. After 106 years of use, this year the Capitol building has been renovated.

It was a very good deal!

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 22:6 (RSV)

In the forties and fifties, teachers and administrators were still responding to the duty of teaching appropriate behavior and morals, along with mastery of the curriculum, to America's children. Now, in the decade in which we are preparing students for the 21st century, has the time come again for us to trade in our materialistic society for a moral one? Wouldn't a moral education that builds self-confidence that can take students anywhere be ideal?

It has been proved over and again that people who have attained appropriate behavioral skills are more successful scholastically as well as in society.

HJH students who excelled on the TAAS by passing all areas of the test will be receiving prizes from a drawing of items provided by professional sports teams. A partial listing of these follows: Life size Dallas Mavericks Poster; James Blakely, Kendra King; Three Time World Champ BULLS posters; Jacque Bezner, Shane Decker, Charlotte Parman, Nick Chandy, Ruben Nanez, Brandon Brown, John Gutierrez, Joe Luis Alvarado, Willie Rhine, Andrew DelToro, John McWhorter, Spencer Power, Daniel Cortez, Wendy Brisdine, Bryan Baros and Brent Berend; BULLS Bumper Stickers; Norma Hernandez, Willie Rhine, Steven Holmes, Toni Barret, Shannon Walker, Amber Vasck, Nacho Avila, Leann Bivens, Richard Alaniz, J.J. We hope that each of you will accept the challenge to train each generation to be "master craftsmen who will be the moral sculptors" of the future.

Preserve your wood flooring

High-tech finishes have made wood flooring practical and easy to maintain.

Preserving a beautiful finish is easy with the following guidelines:

- Place mats and throw rugs at doorway exteriors and interiors to help prevent the tracking of grit, dirt and sand.

- Sweep or vacuum wood floors regularly.

- Never wet-mop a wood floor. Water can dull the finish and damage the wood.

- Wipe up food and other spills immediately with a dry or slightly dampened towel.

- Put plastic or fabric-faced glides under the legs of furniture to prevent scuffing and scratching.

- When moving heavy furniture, protect wood flooring by slipping a piece of cloth or pile under the legs or covering each leg with a heavy sock or half of a milk carton.

- Never use sheet vinyl or tile floor care products on wood floors. Self-polishing acrylic waxes cause wood to become slippery and appear dull quickly.

- Never wax a urethane-finished floor.

- Do not excessively wax a wax-finished floor. If the floor dulls, try buffing instead. Avoid wax buildup under furniture and other light traffic areas by applying wax in these areas every other waxing session.

- Remember: cleats, sports shoes and high heels can dent any floor surface.

- If wood flooring is in the kitchen, place an area rug in front of the sink to catch water.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I believe you were unjustly critical of the husband who euthanized the cat with carbon monoxide. The family had already agreed that euthanasia was the humane choice.

My daughter is a veterinarian and feels that carbon monoxide is just as painless as injection.

The question then becomes this: Was placing the cat in a box at home and piping in the exhaust from the car any more traumatic to the cat than taking it to the vet for the injection? I suspect it's a tossup.--G.S. in Wisconsin over five years and a blind, incontinent cat for several months deserves to be canonized, not criticized.

Citrus Tower, Fla.: Did you ever stand behind an exhaust pipe while putting things in or taking things out of a car trunk? The heat from the exhaust is unbearable. What that woman's husband did to that cat was just plain torture.

Garland, Texas: We had "Prissy" for 19 years before her health failed. My wife and I agreed to let the vet make the decision to treat or euthanize.

He advised us to put her to sleep.

The vet said it would take about 10 minutes. When the vet was finished and brought Prissy out wrapped in the towel I brought her in, I handed the check to him. He refused to take it, saying he could not charge for completing this last act of mercy for a family pet of so many years.

Prissy now rests peacefully under a myrtle tree in the back yard. This was eight years ago, and I still get teary-eyed about it as I write this letter.

Thanks, dear readers, for your interesting responses.

Thank You

The family of Bobby Fields wish to express their gratitude and thank everyone for their kind words, thoughtful prayers, food, phone calls, & flowers received during the loss of our beloved son & brother.

A special thanks to Don Cherry, Cary King, Sheila Brandon, Avenue Baptist Church & Christian Assembly Church.

YOUR BYTES

MACULAR DEGENERATION

The macula is the central portion of the retina that is responsible for fine visual detail. With age, it is not uncommon that the macula begins to deteriorate and patients develop blank spots or distortions in central vision; the spots widen in time, but after all.

Burlington, Vt.: The most humane way to dispose of sick and old animals is to shoot them right between the eyes. I was brought up on a farm, and this is what my dad did. It may sound cruel, but it's best for the animal to go fast.

Springfield, Ill.: I believe you were much too hard on the poor man who euthanized his cat at home. What do you think the humane society does with them? Well, I'll tell you. They use an engine and gas them.

Santa Fe, N.M.: I disagree with your response to the woman whose husband personally euthanized her cat to save $50. Any man who has put up with three teen age stepchildren for there is no pain. Some peripheral vision always remains.

It's vital to see an eye doctor as soon as symptoms appear, because one type of age-related macular degeneration can be arrested if treated promptly. Otherwise, there is currently no cure or correction available.

Symptoms to watch out for include:

- The appearance of a gray film in front of the eyes
- A straight line looks wavy, curved or chopped up
- Objects, or part of them, seem magnified or smaller than usual
- When reading a line of letters or words, certain letters drop out and blank spots remain.

GEESE WORK

(Last of two parts)

In last week's column we described how geese flying in formation are an efficient team. We pointed out how they travel farther with less effort when they fly in formation. We can all learn some great business lessons from the way geese go about their work of survival.

The number one lesson is the value of teamwork. Teamwork is the willingness to work together toward a common vision or goal. Over the nearly 30 years my working career spans, I've had the pleasure of working with some very talented teams. I've watched as the dynamics of teamwork allowed common people to obtain uncommon results. That is the value of teamwork: extraordinary results.

The word team even makes a good acronym: Together Everyone Accomplishes More. Together we can fly higher, travel farther, be more productive and enjoy lifelong relationships.

I've noticed that some teams dream of worthy accomplishments while other teams stay awake and get the job done. What are the ingredients that make teams successful? I believe there are five common factors you'll always find in winning groups.

Five Success Factors

- The first factor is that successful teams stay focused on a common vision or goal. Every team member has a sense of the purpose or mission of the organization.

Successful teams focus on achievement. They focus on winning. They focus on execution - doing the job right the first time and improvement.

If you wish to lead a successful team, make certain that every team member knows where the team is headed. Unlike geese who intuitively fly in the right direction, you will have to bring your team members into the inner circle of knowledge. Let each person know their role and responsibility.

- The second factor of success is that all members make a commitment to the team. Although everyone who tries is a winner, history only records the finishers.

Successful teams are comprised of those who are committed enough to follow every task through the end. They never lose their focus, they never let other team members down intentionally. On those rare occasions where a team member can't perform due to illness or injury, others step in to fill the gap.

- The third element of successful teams is that they look for ways to build one another up. Just like the honking geese encourage the leader to keep up the pace, committed team members praise and encourage each other.

This may sound easy, but it isn't. There are times when we make more mistakes than progress. It is easy then to tear the system down. Winners are quick to praise and slow to criticize. Look for positive behavior and encourage it. Praise a factor in strengthening every successful team.

- The fourth factor of team success is pride. Yes, I know the Bible says that pride goeth before a fall, but I'm not talking about a false, vain pride. The pride I'm talking about is the personal satisfaction that comes with the knowledge you've done the job well.

Every job is a self-portrait of the person who did the work. Autograph you work with quality and pride. Don't be vain or boastful. Give credit to other team members. Build them up and they will carry you with them - with pride.

- The final factor found in successful teams is that they acknowledge a leader. Someone has to be in charge. Some team member must have the ultimate responsibility for the actions of the team. Acknowledge your leaders and give them all the support they deserve.

This fall as you look up and see a big flock of Canadian geese headed south for the winter, I hope you'll remember this column. Also, I hope you'll be reminded of the value of teamwork.

COLONIAL DESIGN ESPECIALLY DISTINGUISHED

Four Bedrooms - One a Master Suite

FEATURE HOMES

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

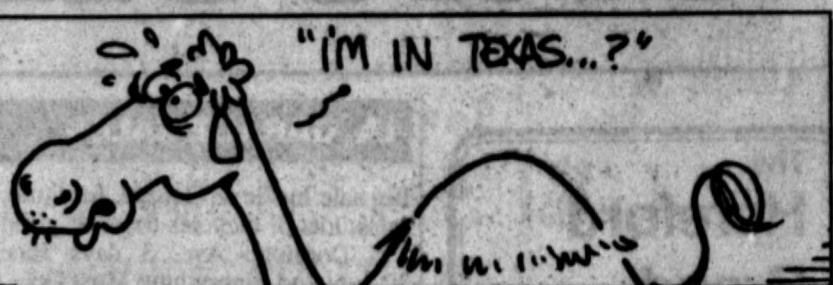

A colonial columned covered porch leads to a private foyer that directs you to the formal living and dining room or the spacious family room. The family and dining rooms both feature a tray ceiling and the family room is endowed with a fireplace, screen porch access and a wet bar.

The three car garage located behind the home, connects to the superlative laundry area with bonus cabinets and storage beyond expectation. An attic stair is accessible from the garage.

The kitchen and breakfast room are positioned to allow complete privacy, thus a benefit that provides less noise and distraction for the housewife and those enjoying the comfort of family room activity. There is an abundance of cabinet space, an island surface unit and the comfortable breakfast room enjoys the optimum bay window and extra cabinets.

The sizeable bedrooms are of a comfortable size and feature direct bath room access. A powder room is central for convenient daytime access. The interconnecting master bedrooms are shown with private entries and one features a tray ceiling, a luxurious bath and an enormous walk in closet and the other is provided with a bay window, large walk in closet and a private bath with a shower.

The plan is Number 3608. It is a computer generated plan and includes special construction details for energy efficiency. The total square footage of heated space is 3,694. For further information write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145.

Question/Answer

By Popular Mechanics
For AP Special Feature

Q: I will be moving to a new apartment about five miles from where I am presently living, and I will be taking my refrigerator with me in a rental trailer. What sort of precautions or preparations, if any, are recommended for this move?

A: Regardless of whether you are moving across town or to another state, there are several things you need to do to move a refrigerator.

- Unplug the refrigerator and tape the power cord to its back.

- Remove the food and store it in an ice chest.

- Take out all removable parts such as ice trays, bins, racks and shelves.

- Open the doors and defrost the freezer.

- Remove the drain pan, clean it and reinstall it.

- Tape the doors closed.

- Transport the refrigerator standing upright. The refrigerator can be plugged in and used immediately if transported in this manner. If the appliance has been moved while lying on its side, wait 24 hours before plugging it in. The oil that is in the refrigerator's compressor drains out and into the sealed refrigerant system when the appliance is laid on its side. The oil must be allowed to drain back into the compressor.

- Rent or borrow an appliance hand truck that has a stair crawler and a ratchet take-up belt. Fasten the refrigerator to the hand truck using the belt.

Texas beef is available in abundance for July 4

AUSTIN—Consumers should expect to find plenty of Texas beef at grocery stores and supermarkets across the state for Fourth of July picnics and backyard barbecues, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said.

"Wholesale beef prices have declined over the past few months and now lower prices are reaching consumers just in time for the traditional July 4th cook-outs," Perry said. "Not only are beef prices coming down, there's plenty of beef because of the jump in this year's production and surplus from previous years."

Beef production increased by a record 7 percent from last year and is expected to rise another 3 or 4 percent over the next few years.

"In Texas, barbecue is beef, and often brisket," Perry said as he offers tips for selecting and barbecuing beef brisket:

"Choose a brisket that weighs at least eight pounds with a moderate amount of fat."

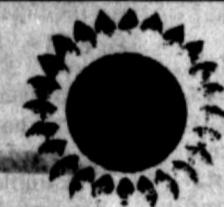

"Briskets require cooking at low temperatures, 300 degrees or less."

"Start the charcoal fire at least half an hour before cooking is to begin."

"The brisket should be at least eight inches from the coals."

"Connoisseurs might tout brisket as the best for barbecue, but Texans know that there are a number of other cuts of beef that are just as delicious," Perry said.

AGRIFACTS

RICE

Rice is grown primarily in 20 Texas counties along the Upper Gulf Coast. Texas producers in 1993 harvested 1.61 billion pounds, down about 20 percent from the previous year because of bad weather.

1992 saw decline in new food items

WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of new food products introduced in the United States declined in 1992 for the first time in a quarter-century, according to the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

"Stagnation in the general economy was reflected in the food system's real growth in 1992," the service said in its recent Food Marketing Review for 1992-93.

The food marketing system's direct share of disposable personal income averaged 11.5 percent in 1992, the lowest in history, it said.

However, sales of the four food marketing sectors increased between 1 percent and 3 percent in 1992. The food processing sector's value of industry shipments rose 1 percent to $390 billion.

The $453 billion estimate of wholesale food sales for 1992 was up 3 percent, as was food service sales.

"Restaurants are taking a higher portion of the food dollar because income has been rising at a much faster rate than the population and because consumers have a tendency to eat out more often as their income rises," the report said.

Food service accounted for about 46.3 percent of food sales, excluding alcohol, in 1992.

"Alcoholic beverage sales likely accounted for another $88 billion of food marketing sales in 1992," the report said. "Nearly $52 billion was in the form of packaged alcoholic beverages, while alcoholic drinks served in restaurants and other institutions likely amounted to nearly $36 billion."

Distilled spirits in 1992 accounted for about 31 of total alcoholic beverage consumption, while wine made up 11.5 percent and beer was 57.5 percent of the total.

The nonfood component of retail sales through the food marketing system amounted to about $100 billion in 1992.

Nonfood groceries include tobacco, health and beauty aids, detergents, paper products and other grocery items sold through retail food stores, the report said.

Nonfood items, such as tobacco products, catering supplies and nonfood supplies sold through vending services, are grouped into the food service category.

"Though hurting food sales, 1992's weak economic climate was favorable to the food marketing system for the 10th consecutive year in terms of costs," the report said.

For the 10th consecutive year as well, labor costs, including hourly earnings and fringe benefits, were the major expense item for the food marketing system in 1992. Average hourly earnings in food retailing and food processing increased by 3 percent.

"The food system, the economy's largest advertiser, experienced few increases in advertising costs for evening network television, network radio, magazines and newspapers," the report said.

Foreign ownership of ag land rose in 1993

WASHINGTON (AP) - Foreign investors owned slightly more privately held U.S. agricultural land in 1993 than in the previous year, the Agriculture Department says.

The number of acres held by foreigners inched up to 14.6 million last year, an increase of 140,141 acres from 14.5 million in 1992. The total represents slightly more than 1 percent of the total 1.3 billion acres of privately owned land in the United States.

The 1993 total includes parcels of land that are only partly owned by foreign investors and land held by American companies with significant foreign interest or control.

Foreign individuals own only 6 percent of the foreign-held acreage and partnerships represent 21 percent, while corporations account for most of all foreign-owned land, with 71 percent. The rest is held by estates and institutions and in trusts.

Forest land accounts for 48 percent of all foreign-owned acreage, pasture and other agricultural land accounts for 32 percent, crop land for 17 percent and nonagricultural land for the remainder.

Canadian, British, Swiss, French, German and Dutch investors hold most of the foreign-held U.S. acreage, with only 3 percent held by Japanese interests, the report said.

Margie's Notes

BY MARGIE DANIELS
HSCA Director

I received two new Scam Alerts from the Area Agency on Aging today. One of those—the "friends network" pyramid scheme—may well be operating in our community right now. It's not new, but has developed from that crudely written, badly photocopied chain letter to a skillfully prepared, polished "project" complete with alleged supporters ranging from judges and lawyers and district attorneys to preachers and ministers—none of whom is legitimate. People in Amarillo are holding meetings, household supply parties, trying to get more to fall for it. Even churches are getting in on this thing—whole congregations are being conned into it. All this is happening despite lots of publicity, even on national news, showing clearly that it is a fraud—and a crime as well.

According to the National Council of Senior Citizens, backed by Chairman Pryor (D-Ark), four direct-mail groups that call themselves "senior organizations" are little more than money-making schemes aimed at fleecing money out of older Americans. These four scams are called or are operated by: The Seniors Coalition, based in Fairfax, Virginia; United Seniors Association, related to the above; The American Council for Health Care Reform, from Arlington, Va.; and Citizens Against Health Rationing, no primary home base listed.

We will see more and more of these scams as long as the economy is struggling. Those targeting the elderly will increase as the elderly population increases.

If you receive anything from any of these, please bring it to me and I will send it to the Area Agency on Aging.

Please call soon for your reservations for "TEXAS". We will be going Friday, July 22nd.

We had a wonderful time on our tour to Branson. We saw some great shows and I think what impressed me the most was the Japanese Fiddler and the Russian Comedian. They express their love for God and Country so beautifully. Sometimes we fail to do this.

See you at the Center.

The temperature reminds us that it is summer time. The wheat crop is mostly ready and the combines have been rolling for several days now. On the whole the wheat crop will be an average crop at best. Hail damaged some crops, including the wheat. Anything that affects our farmers affects all businesses in Hereford. Cattle prices haven't been favorable to cattle feeders for seven to eight months. Keep eating that beef, as it seems the only way to get supply equal to demand. Attendance seems to be holding up well at Hereford Senior Citizens and I remind you that your annual dues of $12.50 per member are due by July 1. We need your support to continue the programs and benefits our center continues to provide. Visitors coming to the center, and they are numerous, are amazed at our facilities and the services and activities we provide.

Panel content explained for new FDA food labeling laws

BY CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD

(Editor's note: This is the second part of a series on nutrition labeling which is now required by FDA and FSIS. The article continues with information on the nutrition panel content).

All labels will have the same format, except where variations in format are allowed. All nutrients must be declared as a percent of their Daily Value—the new label reference value. The amount in grams, of components (such as fat, cholesterol, sodium, carbohydrates, and protein) still must be listed to the immediate right of each of the names of each of these nutrients. For the first time a column headed % Daily Value will appear, as will a footnote to help consumer place their individual nutrient needs with respect to the Daily Values used on the label. Requiring nutrients to be declared as a percent of the Daily Value is intended to prevent misinterpretations that arise with qualitative values.

Variations in format will be allowed in several instances. Some variations are mandatory:

1. Labels of foods for children under 2 years old
2. infant formula has special labeling rules

3. simplified labels format if food contains insignificant amounts of seven or more of the mandatory nutrients and total calories.

4. if simplified format is used, information on total calories, total fat, total carbohydrate, protein, and sodium must be listed even if they are present only in insignificant amounts.

5. small and medium sized packages with limited space on their label has specific exemptions.

SERVING SIZES

Serving sizes are defined as the amount of food customarily consumed. Nutrient content values are based on the standardized serving sizes.

FDA has identified 139 food-product categories and established a standard serving sizes. FSIS has established 23 food-product categories for meat and 22 food-product categories for poultry. There are specific rules for individual-size containers, meal-type products, and products that come in discrete units such as slices of bread or cookies.

DRV'S-DAILY REFERENCE VALUES

Energy-producing nutrients are based on a daily intake of 2,000 kcal and are as follows:

1. fat based on 30% of calories;
2. saturated fat based on 10% calories;
3. carbohydrate based on 60% of calories;
4. protein based on 10% of calories—adults and children over 4 years old.

5. fiber based on 1.5 g of fiber per 1,000 kcal.

DRV's for other food components represent the uppermost limit that is considered desirable when considering public health concerns:

1. total fat: less than 65 g.
2. saturated fat: less than 20%
3. cholesterol: less than 300 mg.
4. sodium: less than 2,400 mg. (2.4 grams)

NUTRIENT CONTENT AND OTHER DESCRIPTORS

The new regulations spell out what terms may be used to describe the level of a nutrient in a food and how they can be used. Following is a list of core terms:

FREE

Product contains no amount of, or only trivial amounts of one or more of these components: fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, sugars, and calories. Synonyms for "free" include "without," "no," and "zero."

LOW

Term used on foods that could be eaten frequently without exceeding dietary guidelines for one or more of these components: fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, and calories. The descriptors are defined as follows:

1. low fat: 3 g or less per serving;
2. low saturated fat: 1 g or less per serving;

3. low sodium: 140 mg or less per serving;

4. very low sodium: 35 mg or less per serving;

5. low cholesterol: less than 20 mg per serving;

6. low calories: 40 kcal or less per serving.

Synonyms for low include "little," "few," "and" "low source of."

LEAN AND EXTRA LEAN

Term to describe the fat content of meat, poultry, seafood, and game meats.

Descriptors are defined:

1. lean: less than 10 g of fat, less than 4 g of saturated fat, less than 95 mg of cholesterol per serving and per 100g.

2. extra lean: less than 5 g of fat, less than 2 g of saturated fat, less than 95 mg of cholesterol per serving and per 100g.

HIGH

Term used if food contains 20% or more of Daily Value for a particular nutrient in a serving.

GOOD SOURCE

Term means that one serving of a food contains 10% to 19% of the Daily Value for a particular nutrient.

REDUCED

Term means that a nutritionally altered product contains 25% less of nutrient or calories than the regular, or reference, product. A reduced claim cannot be made on a product if its reference food already meets the requirement for a "low claim."

LESS

Term means the food contains 25% less of nutrient or of calories than the reference food. i.e. Pretzels that have 25% less fat than potato chips could carry a "less" claim. "Fewer" is an acceptable synonym.

LIGHT OR LITE

Term can mean two (2) things:
a. nutritionally altered product contains one-third fewer calories or half of fat of the reference food:

b. sodium content of a low-calorie, low-fat food has been reduced by 50%.

In addition, "light in sodium" may be used on food in which the sodium content has been reduced by at least 50%. The term "light" may still be used to describe such properties as texture and color, so long as the label explains the intent; for example, "light brown sugar" and "light and fluffy."

MORE

Term means that a serving of food, whether altered or not, contains a nutrient that is at least 10% of the Daily Value more than the reference food. The 10% should also apply to "fortified," "enriched," and "added" claims, but in those cases, the food must be altered.

PERCENT FAT FREE

A product bearing the claim "percent fat free" must be a low-fat or a fat-free product. In addition, the claim must accurately reflect the amount of fat present in 100g of the food. Thus, if a food contains 2.5 g of fat per 50 g, the claim must be "95% fat free."

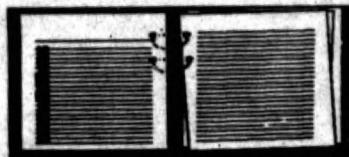

HEALTHY

Both FDA and FSIS issued proposed regulations regarding the term "healthy" and other derivatives of the term "health" that are appropriate for foods under their jurisdiction. Each agency requires products to meet limits on fat, saturated fat, and sodium in order to use the term.

FRESH

The regulation defines "fresh" when it is used to suggest that a food is raw

Scam alert: 'shell games' not only fraud, but crime to play

Much has been made recently in Panhandle newspapers and television news segments about a seemingly new version of an old, old shell game. The "new" scam is often called "The Friends Network" or by some other title, invariably with the word "friends" in it. It is not new: An Area Agency on Aging staffer received a crude version of it in an unsolicited mailing over two years ago. He reported it to Postal Inspectors shortly after receiving it.

The "friends" get rich-quick-without-working scheme is nothing more than a quirky new stab at the old pyramid swindle scheme, or a "chain letter" as most people know it. You are advised that via this "new, perfectly legal" opportunity, you can eventually gain $12,000 from an initial "investment" or "gift" of only $1,500. There are no puzzles to solve, no jingles to write, no boxtops to send in. In fact, all you have to do is recruit 11 other "friends, relatives, fellow employees, fellow church members," etc., to follow your lead and send $1,500 in cash or money order "gift" to a particular name on the list you receive. Then you copy the list, give it to your friends, relatives, etc., and have them do the same. Eventually, you are guaranteed to get your own name onto the lists, so that people begin sending you $1,500 at a whack, until you reap benefits of at least $12,000. You are discouraged from using the mails. You are informed that it is best to organize "friends" parties or meetings, or to pass the letters around at work or at church or in other civic situations. The word "gift" is repeatedly emphasized.

At the same time, you're told that various officials have "declared the network to be perfectly legal." You will even find signatures and titles of attorneys, district attorneys, attorneys general, senators, representatives, mayors, et al, all of whom apparently attest that the scheme is legal.

It is NOT legal - it is not a legitimate fund-raising plan. It is a Fraud, pure and simple, no matter who tells you what!

All pyramid or "Ponzi" schemes are illegal in every state, and for a very simple and good reason: they are frauds, based on deceptive mathematics and deceptive perceptions, and more importantly, they are based in simple, basic greed. If it were not for the common human failings of greed and ignorance (of mathematics), the pyramid scheme would have died out long ago.

Keep in mind that to "play" this game and attempt to enroll others in it is a crime, and you can be fined (the average fine, interestingly enough, is $1,500) or imprisoned or both. And in this case, ignorance is no excuse: everything about it should literally scream at you that it is a fake.

The longest running Broadway show was A Chorus Line, which opened on July 26, 1975 and closed on April 28, 1980 after a record run of almost 15 years and 6,137 performances.

HEALTH CLAIMS

FDA Claims for seven relationship between a nutrient or a food and the risk of a disease or health-related condition will be allowed for the first time. They can be made in several ways: through third-part references, such as National Cancer Institute; through statements; through symbols, such as heart; and through vignettes or descriptions. The claims must meet the requirements for authorized health claims and must state that other factors play a role in that disease.

Following is a list of the nutrient-disease relationship claims that will be allowed on food labels:

1. calcium and osteoporosis;
2. fat and cancer;
3. saturated fat and cholesterol and coronary heart disease;
4. fiber-containing fruits, vegetables, and grain products and cancer;
5. fiber-containing fruits, vegetab-

Networks unveil fall lineups: A lot going on in Chicago

BY JEFF PLASS

With all that summer offers people to do outside their living rooms, TV programming goes on creative hiatus. As a result, anticipation builds toward the new and exciting fall lineups the networks offer.

Here are some of the upcoming programs:

ABC

• "On Our Own" – Seven orphan siblings are in danger of being split up, so the eldest brother impersonates "long-lost Aunt Jecilda" to keep them together. It airs Sundays.

• "Blue Skies" – Two friends start their own back-to-nature mail-order business, and a sexy Harvard MBA tries to balance their books. It will air Mondays beginning in January.

• "All American Girl" – Margaret Cho portrays a Korean-American college graduate whose traditional family sometimes hampers her in her quest to be an "All American Girl," airing Wednesdays.

• "My So-Called Life" – From the producers of "thirtysomething" comes this turbulent drama about a 15-year-old (Claire Danes) trying to figure out who she is and where she belongs, on Thursdays.

CBS

• "The Boys Are Back" – Hal Linden and Suzanne Pleshette star as a couple just settling into their golden years when their grown-up kids (and their families) move in. It will air Sundays.

• "Touched by an Angel" – Roma Downey stars as an earthbound ambassador of heaven, who protects children fated for greatness known as "Destiny Tots." It will air Wednesdays.

• "Daddy's Girls" – Also on Wednesdays, Dudley Moore stars as a man trying to rebuild his life while dealing with the ever-changing relationships of his three daughters.

• "Due South" – A Canadian Mountie

and a Chicago policeman sleuth murders in Chicago, Thursdays.

• "Chicago Hope" – Mandy Patinkin, Adam Arkin, Hector Elizondo and E.G. Marshall star in this medical drama set in (of all places) Chicago, also on Thursdays.

• "The Five Mrs. Buchanans" – Four sisters-in-law and one mother-in-law, 'nuff said. It will air Saturdays.

NBC

• "Earth 2" – Centuries in the future, scientists organize a covert expedition to a distant planet capable of supporting life. It will air Sundays.

• "The Martin Short Show" – Short stars as a husband, father and "Seinfeld"-esque TV comedy series star. It will air Tuesdays.

• "Friends" – Six young adults try to make it in New York City, on Thursdays.

• "Madman of the People" – Dabney Coleman plays an irreverent newspaper columnist who hates his bosses, also on Thursdays.

• "E.R." – Michael Crichton is the writer and executive producer of this Thursday drama about resident doctors in a Chicago hospital.

Fox

• "Fortune Hunter" – Mark Frankel stars Sundays as an international agent for a search and recovery company.

• "Hardball" – A struggling baseball team tries everything to make it to the top, Sundays.

• "Party of Five" – Airing on Mondays, orphan children try to survive on their own.

• "Models, Inc." – Linda Gray heads a modeling agency, Wednesdays.

• "Uptown Undercover" – Two policemen work the streets of New York City. It will air Thursdays.

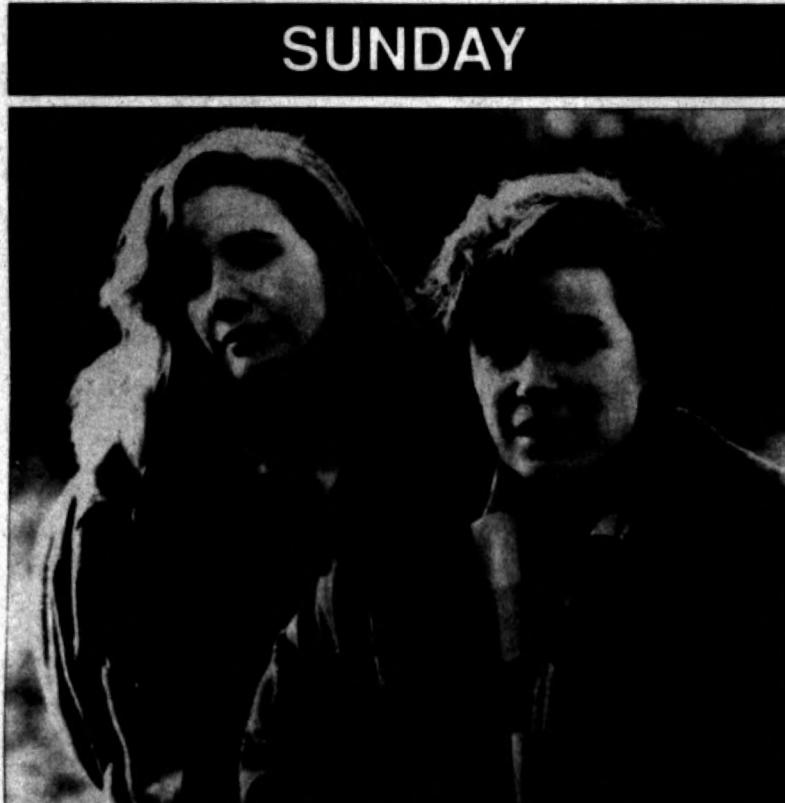

• "M.A.N.T.I.S." – A high-tech superhero fights crime, Fridays.

Claire Danes stars as a troubled teen-ager in "My So-Called Life," a turbulent drama scheduled to premiere this fall on ABC. The program, which is slotted for Thursdays, comes from the producers of "thirtysomething."

A black and white movie poster for "The Burning Season". The title is at the top in large serif letters. Below it is a large, grainy photograph of a wildfire with intense flames. To the right is a promotional text block, and at the bottom right is a box for "The Weather Channel".

Sunday on CBS, Melissa Gilbert (left) and Patty Duke star in "Family of Strangers," a fact-based drama about an adopted woman's search to find her biological parents.

Stonewalled Stone turns to new work; death penalty debate apt for 'Firing Line'

Oliver Stone

Oliver Stone's "Noriega" has gone the way of Arnold Schwarzenegger's "Crusade" — and for the same reason: money. In recent weeks both movies were deemed too expensive by respective studio brass and pulled from this year's production rosters.

Al Pacino was to have starred in Stone's film as Panamanian强人Manuel Noriega in a story of his rise and fall that would have linked him to Oliver North, Fidel Castro and former President George Bush, but the costs of shooting in Central America were prohibitive, Stone admits.

But don't cry for the controversial producer/director. He's at work on his next project, the screen version of Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Evita."

Here's talkin' at ya: With NBC's Talk America cable channel set to launch next week, CNN has announced plans for a daily "town meeting" to debut Monday, Aug. 22, with anchor Susan Rook. "TalkBack Live" will feature the news network's first studio audience, in a specially designed high-tech auditorium.

John le Carré's "The Night Manager" is coming to the big screen next year with the help of producer/director Sydney Pollack and screenwriter Robert Towne, former partners in "The Firm." Credit for the movie deal reportedly goes to Pollack's powers of persuasion, since le Carré usually favors BBC dramatizations of his work. A cast for the post-Cold War spy thriller has not yet been chosen. Victory is in the eye of the beholder in the Friday, July 1 "Firing Line Special Debate" on PBS (check local listings). A team led by William F. Buckley Jr. argues for the proposition "The Death Penalty Is a Good Thing." Ira Glasser, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, takes the opposing view.

Panelists include Ed Koch, former mayor of New York City, and Bard College President Leon Botstein. Moderator Michael Kinsley, the witty liberal of CNN's "Crossfire" team, sets the tone by saying "There are strict time limits on all speakers, and anyone who fails to adhere to them will be taken out and shot."

HOME BIJOU

'The Lion in Winter' roars robustly again in richly restored 25th-anniversary video reissue

BY JOHN CROOK

"Henry? ... Did you ever love me?"

"No."

"Good. That will make this pleasanter."

It's been a quarter-century since it premiered in movie theaters, but almost any cinema buff will recognize this exchange from "The Lion in Winter," the Oscar-winning 1968 drama about Plantagenet power-playing.

Now, a new generation can discover, and old friends revisit, this magnificent movie in its spiffy restored 25th-anniversary video forms: Columbia TriStar Home Video has released "Lion" in both standard and letterboxed videocassette formats, bargain-priced at under $20. It's a steal.

Katharine Hepburn (in case anyone needs to be told) won her third Academy Award for her towering portrayal of Eleanor of Aquitaine. Also Oscarred were James Goldman's witty screenplay (based on his Broadway flop, which folded after only 83 performances) and John Barry's quasi-medieval score.

Perennial Academy bridesmaid Peter O'Toole never gave a better performance than his Henry II here (a role he also had played earlier in "Becket"), but lost to Cliff Robertson's sentimental "Charly." Director Anthony Harvey and the film itself lost to Sir Carol Reed and his "Oliver!," one of the last successful screen musicals.

The strong supporting cast included two major screen debuts: Anthony Hopkins as Richard Lionheart, Eleanor's choice to succeed Henry, and a pre-007 Timothy Dalton as the silky King Philip Capet of France. Diabolically clever Geoffrey was played by John Castle. Nigel Terry (Arthur in John Boorman's "Excalibur") was the youngest son, John.

It's hard to decide which is better, Hepburn or Goldman's script. Put them together — "I could peel you like a pear and God himself would call it justice," she sneers to Henry — and you have matchless movie magic.
