County to give pay hike; tax jump likely

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Elected officials and employees of Deaf Smith County will find more in their paychecks in the new fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

On a split vote Monday, Deaf Smith County Commissioners boosted salaries by five percent for everyone, including themselves.

And, they indicated property owners will see an increase -- three percent -- in their tax bills to help fund the budget.

A sum of $30,000 in the new budget was budgeted for pay scale changes for sheriff's deputies and jail administrator.

During budget discussions at the meeting Monday, Commissioner Johnny Latham of Precinct 4 reminded that "everytime we give a raise, we exclude commissioners."

"Our expenses go up like everyone else."

Commissioner Tony Castillo of Precinct 1 responded to Latham's remarks, "I agree."

In a vote on the pay raise, the sheriff's department increase and the possibility of a tax increase, Latham, Castillo and Judge Tom Simons were in favor of a Latham's motion including those items.

Commissioners Lupe Chavez of Precinct 2 and Troy Don Moore of Precinct 3 voted against.

"I'm not opposed to an employee pay increase," declared Chavez, "but I am opposed to commissioners getting a raise."

Earlier, Chavez had mentioned that he preferred to spend on pay raises rather than participation in a city-county-school park district. The county had been requested to budget $40,000 for the project.

Moore's objection to the motion was based on what he called a "deficit budget predicated on fees from the state for housing prisoners."

He also supported the park district proposal.

Action taken by commissioners Monday is not the final word on the budget. Until a certified tax roll is prepared, County Auditor Alex Schroeter cannot project tax rates and revenues.

Schroeter's figures, based on tax values for the current year, indicate income from taxes at approximately $2.2 million. Other receipts are pegged at $2.1 million, including state fees of some $375,000 for housing prisoners.

Total expenditure budget projected by Schroeter is $4.5 million.

County employees' last pay raise was in the 1992 budget when a three percent hike was provided.

Commissioners did not share in that increase.

The pay scale for commissioners in the last several years shows that in 1985, they received an annual salary of $17,636.

The next year, 1986, commissioners reduced their pay to $16,754 but raised the salary the next year, 1987, to $18,094, the level where the pay has remained since that time.

Judge Simons observed that the reason for the three percent tax increase "is not for pay, it's for other costs."

He also noted that the tax base for Deaf Smith County has decreased about $6 million in the last 10 years.

Sheriff Joe Brown had requested an additional $62,000 in his budget to fund pay scale changes in his department.

He cited loss of deputies to the City of Hereford police department because of differences in salary schedules.

Commissioners agreed to $30,000 instead of $62,000.

During budget discussions, commissioners heard a request from two members of the extension staff for purchase of a van for use by participants in extension programs. Agents Beverly Harder and Jay Johnson suggested that a van would be better suited for transportation.

Agent Dennis Newton spoke in favor of trading the pickup now owned by the county for another pickup.

Commissioners made no decision on the issue.

Contract for construction of water and sewer lines in the Campbell Street development was awarded the low bidder, L.A. Fuller Company.

A request to install a water line across a county road in Precinct 1 was approved.

Hillary urges health allies to push universal coverage

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Hillary Rodham Clinton is exhorting health reform allies to redouble efforts to win passage of universal coverage, warning them bluntly that all else will be lost without that.

The first lady, in a private pep talk Monday with leaders of labor unions, seniors' organizations, medical and other groups, delivered an emphatic message that President Clinton will veto any bill that fails to set a specific date for universal coverage, participants said.

She told them that health care for all was at risk in part because the opponents of proposals requiring employers to pay for health insurance have been united while proponents of reform were divided about what their top goals were.

"She was very forceful, very emphatic," said John Rother of the American Association of Retired Persons.

The White House effort to rally its troops came on the very day that a nemesis of the Clinton health plan, the Health Insurance Association of America, unleashed a new $2 million ad campaign featuring Harry and Louise, the yuppie couple with trepidations about where Clinton and Congress are heading.

Two new 30-second spots invoke fears of rationing and soaring premiums. They are aimed at pressuring lawmakers not to impose restraints on medical spending and let the insurers charge older workers up to three times as much as younger workers.

In one of the ads, the anxious Harry asks his wife, "They're talking price controls?"

"Rationing, the way I read it," says Louise. "You know, long waits for health care and some services not even available."

"Government-controlled health care - Congress can do better than that," her husband rejoins.

The White House, which accused the industry of spreading falsehoods in the earlier Harry and Louise ads, quickly pounced on the new versions.

"They are back with a vengeance and with the same old scare tactics," budget director Leon Panetta said.

"What are insurance companies doing today if they are not in fact engaged in rationing" when they reject people with pre-existing conditions? asked Panetta.

Book highlights dreams about President Clinton

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - In bedrooms across America, Bill Clinton is a nightly visitor.

He plays his sax. Enjoys a Scotch on the rocks, no twist. Whips up a little snack, or gets a little loving - at least until the alarm clock rings.

Call him President Dreamweaver. Clinton is a fixture in the dreams of some constituents, and one of those dreamers recently assembled a book of those nocturnal appearances called "Dreams of Bill."

Julia Anderson-Miller, a publishing house art director, dreamed of Clinton giving her a relaxing neck massage. When she woke up her neck felt better, and she decided to find out if anybody else had dreamed a little dream of Bill.

They had. "We fell in love and had great sex," one dreamer wrote of the President. "He was married to Hillary and I was single. Al Gore yelled at me and told me I was a homewrecker!"

Or this: "He was trying to be a 'really cool' president and was hosting 'Saturday Night Live' and wearing jeans, a black vest, and no shirt."

Or maybe this: "I dreamed Bill made me a ham sandwich from a beautiful sugar-cured whole ham. ... Nice spicy mustard, real vine-ripened tomato, and green lettuce. He handed it to me on a china plate and said, 'That'll be $116, please.'"

These and 267 other dreams were sent to Anderson-Miller after she and her husband placed ads in newspapers around the country asking, "Have you ever dreamt of BILL CLINTON???"

Twenty-three people had "visited" Bill in the White House. Nine kissed Bill. Seven had dinner with Bill. One kissed Hillary.

Then there were the erotic encounters. Eight women slipped into the arms of Morpheus, and wound up in the arms of Bill Clinton.

When the Bill of their dreams wasn't being president, he held an assortment of other positions - and none of them were dream jobs.

"I was on line at a buffet-style restaurant - the type you find on the New Jersey Turnpike - and Bill Clinton was working the cash register," wrote one dreamer.

Bill was employed at Dominick's grocery store, wearing a "Bubba" nameplate. He was a traveling light bulb salesman. A veterinarian. A priest, saying Mass. A clown at a children's party.

In one case, Clinton provided executive clemency: "When Bill Clinton happens to come to town and finds out John is in jail, he not only has him released immediately but invites him as his guest for dinner."

Food, of course, is a Clinton dream staple. Bill shows up at McDonald's and the Chicken Box, a defunct Florida restaurant. And food does Bill in: "Someone referred in passing to the death of Bill Clinton by food poisoning," wrote another dreamer.

It's not all sweet dreams. There was this bizarre tale involving a man, his grandmother and the nation's leader:

"I fell asleep and when I awoke I noticed I had been stabbed repeatedly. ... I called my gram. I told her I had been stabbed, and she said to me, 'I warned you about him, and I asked, 'Who?'"

"She replied, 'Bill Clinton. He's been going around stabbing people who have relatives in Arkansas.'"

Good night, Bill.

CDA alleges 'possessive relationship' led to killing

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A "possessive relationship" ballooned into a sexual relationship and the eventual death of a Deaf Smith County man, charged the criminal district attorney as testimony began Tuesday in the trial of Donna Guggell for murder.

In his opening statement to the jury, Roland Saul alleged that Donna Guggell, 48, and Chris Don Barron, 24, planned the murder of her husband, 50-year-old Bill Guggell last September.

A jury of seven women and five men was seated in 22nd District Court Monday to hear testimony in the case.

Bill Guggell died on Sept. 12 in an Amarillo hospital where he was taken with a gunshot wound. His wife told investigators she found him slumped at the kitchen table when she got out of the shower about 11 p.m. on Sept. 11.

The prosecutor described the evidence he will present about Donna Guggell and her alleged affair with Barron, who moved into the Guggell home while he was in high school in Adrian.

Saul told the jury in the statement that Barron will testify about the relationship and the events leading to the shooting of Bill Guggell.

Saul also advised the jury that

Barron has accepted a plea bargain agreement to testify for the prosecution in Donna Guggell's trial.

"He will tell you he will plead guilty to the murder charge and receive a 35-year sentence, but he must testify truthfully," said Saul.

Continuing to outline the state's case, Saul said he will show that Donna Guggell had motive and opportunity for the murder.

"She used Barron to get what she wanted," said the prosecutor.

He said testimony from witnesses will prove that Guggell complained that her husband was "too hard on her" and she didn't like her lifestyle.

Saul alleged that the defendant talked with witnesses about "being free of Bill."

On the day of the murder, Barron worked during the morning, then spent the afternoon with Donna Guggell "drinking and making love," Saul alleged.

They laid plans for shooting Bill Guggell that night, the prosecutor claimed.

After Barron was arrested, Saul alleged, he tried at first to cover up for Donna Guggell.

Defense Attorney Selden Hale of Amarillo, in a brief opening statement to the jury, called the statement by the prosecutor "an inflammatory presentation . . . he left out great chunks of evidence."

Hale asked jurors to "hold your judgment" until all the evidence is heard.

First witness for the prosecution was a Hereford police department dispatcher, Cindy Madrigal, who answered the 911 call made by Donna Guggell the night of Sept. 11.

She played the tape recording of the call as jurors heard the voice of Donna Guggell as she reported that her husband had been shot.

Judge David Wesley Gulley, presiding at the trial, would not permit the prosecution to question Madrigal about her evaluation of Donna Guggell's demeanor from her conversation with her.

A call made by Guggell to a neighbor's home after the shooting was reviewed by Juanita Koetting. She said that Guggell said that "Bill had been shot and tell Gene to get over here (Guggell home) now."

Gene Koetting testified that he went to the home and found Donna Guggell holding a towel to her husband's head.

Since the wife had reported a shooting, Gene Koetting said he took a gun with him to the house.

"I wouldn't go where there had been a shooting without some protection," Koetting declared.

Testimony continued in the state's case against Donna Guggell Tuesday afternoon.

FDA eyes home AIDS test kits

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration takes up the difficult question this week of whether allowing home test kits would help or hinder the fight against AIDS.

Three companies want FDA approval to sell such kits in drug stores. Users would prick a finger, mail in a blood sample and find out by telephone if they have HIV, the AIDS virus.

"This could change the shape of the epidemic," said FDA Deputy Commissioner Mary Pendergast. "You have to look at the macro issues of public health and at what's this going to do to human beings."

Seeking guidance, the FDA has convened an advisory committee meeting on Wednesday to hear some 80 people argue the issue.

Supporters say home testing will help more people learn they're infected so they can get treatment and stop spreading the deadly virus. At least 40 percent of the estimated 1 million HIV-infected Americans have never been tested.

Critics fear the kits won't include proper AIDS counseling, that children would use the tests or that employers would secretly - and illegally - test workers.

Then there's the question of anonymity. Eleven states require named reporting of HIV patients, names states keep secret under strict law, and others require face-to-face AIDS counseling. How will companies sell home kits under those circumstances and protect confidentiality? wonders Aimee Berenson of AIDS Action Council.

The FDA has long maintained that trained health workers must do HIV testing, and in 1990 it rejected the first planned home test kit.

Now, "lots of things have changed," Pendergast said.

Public clinics are overwhelmed by demand for free AIDS tests, expecting 5 million requests this year. People already learn test results by phone from clinics too busy to tell them in person. "There are more drugs to help patients stave off full-blown AIDS - if they know they're infected."

Manufacturers insist the tests will save lives.

Commission backs airport improvements

A $1.8 million improvement project at the Hereford Municipal Airport that will cost the city only $90,000 was approved Monday evening.

Hereford City Commissioners adopted a resolution to be forwarded to the Texas Department of Transportation aviation division for participation in a federal grant program for airports.

City Manager Chester Nolen reported that the improvements originally were scheduled for 1998-1999, but the state agency moved Hereford's project forward to 1996.

The $90,000 city contribution will go toward engineering for the work at the airport, Nolen said.

Improvements included in the plan are reconstruction and widening of taxiways, hanger access to taxiways and apron.

New landing approach lights, rotating beacon, segment circle and drainage will be installed at the airport. Paving between hangers also will be in the improvement project, Nolen said.

Commissioners approved a contract with McGinty and Associates, Inc., for preparation of the city audit at the end of the current fiscal year.

Permission also was granted on a request from Hereford Iron and Metal to tie into the city sewer line on North Progressive Rd.

Park article clarified

Several paragraphs in an article about Hereford city parks in the Sunday Brand were accidentally transposed as the story was prepared for printing.

The Brand apologizes for the error and is reprinting the second half of the story:

Family outings to parks will be more convenient with outdoor cooking grills and picnic facilities.

Nolen (City Manager Chester Nolen) said a double grill has been installed at Jaycee park. Two single-size grills are new at Dameron while one each went to Central and 14th and H. Total cost of the grills was $1,047.

On order, but not received, yet, are a dozen metal picnic tables. Cost of each is estimated at $540.

Cities larger and smaller than Hereford are looking at ways to improve park facilities and the neighborhood concept seems to be a coming thing, Nolen said.

Some special side effects accrue with neighborhood involvement, he observed.

"For one thing the involvement of residents in the area makes them much more aggressive in reporting problems," he declared.

Since vandalism is a continuing problem, he sees neighbors exercising their own initiative in keeping their park free of vandalism and litter.

Another deterrent to vandalism, Nolen said, is high use.

"If there are people using the facilities, there's less opportunity for vandalism," he said.

Well-lighted areas in parks also help scare off those bent on destruction because there is more chance they will be seen, Nolen added.

When the Hereford park superintendent, Johnny Carr, spoke to the City Commission Tuesday night, he said Veterans Park presents ongoing problems.

"Nearly every day we have to go over there and spend a lot of time picking up beer cans and bottles and other trash people leave there," he said.

He described acts of vandalism that may eventually prompt the commission to order closing of Veterans Park during night hours.

Besides the $25,852 spent from the park fund this year, $4,850 was invested in Central Park as a match for a grant for planting trees in the park.

The balance in the fund, after expenditures, is $128,772, which the commission expects to continue to tap for work in the city's recreation areas.

Success of the volleyball court in Dameron Park has prompted the commission to tell the park superintendent to build a second one there and proceed with plans for one in the 14th and H park.

Carr expressed some distress that the net on the volleyball court was damaged.

"We'll just keep repairing it," he declared.

Pepper processing facility may relocate in Dimmitt

Maximo Foods Inc., a major pepper processor, packager and retailer, is pursuing plans to move part of its operations to Dimmitt before Sept. 1, according to Dimmitt City Manager Reeford Burrous.

Lee Hilpert, president of Maximo, said he was "confident about the move, but we're not on the bottom line yet," it was reported by The Castro County News.

Burrous said the city would guarantee a loan of $50,000 from the First State Bank of Dimmitt, and the firm would use about $68,000 in equipment for collateral. Maximo would receive a tax abatement based on money generated and number of employees, Burrous said.

Negotiations are in process for Maximo to take over the former La Mantia, Cullum and Collier vegetable processing facility in northeast Dimmitt. The plant was last used to process watermelons about six years ago.

The firm has operated the Vega facility for three years. Hilpert said his company plans to process carrots at the proposed Dimmitt facility. He added that the firm would maintain its guacamole operation in Vega.

Maximo currently employs four fulltime and 34 part-time workers. The firm would employ about 50 workers on a part-time basis in the fall, and the jobs could become full time within two years, Hilpert said.

There were 122 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,833. There were 8,172 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $98. And there were 157,203 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $17 million.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The Sex World porn shop has a new neighbor: the entertainer who used to be known as Prince.

The rock star - who changed his name to an unpronounceable symbol - bought a 107-year-old building that is sandwiched between Sex World and a restaurant in the city's Warehouse District.

He paid $185,000 for the four-story building, but there's no word yet on what he plans to do with it. He already owns one nightclub in the neighborhood, and there's speculation that he'll open a second.

"I think everybody thinks we're hiding something," said Kim Carlson, a consultant to the former Prince's Paisley Park Enterprises.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to speak in defense of the computer buff who had a thing going with a girl who, unbeknownst to him, turned out to be 12 years old.

Most networks have what is called a "profile" of users—a brief description including your real name, location, sex, age, hobbies and so on. People lie a lot. Surprising? Heck, no.

Every woman on a computer line describes herself as Cindy Crawford, and every guy is Tom Cruise. Women lie about their marital status, weight, age and occupation! And get this, Ann, some women are actually guys.

When I "talk" with a woman on-line, I have no idea what she looks like or how old she is other than what she tells me. Sometimes, I can determine if she is underage by her use of language, but not always.

The best thing about a computer "relationship" is if one or the other doesn't choose to continue, all he or she has to do is push a button. In the meantime, it's great fun.—Larry in Monterey, Calif.

DEAR LARRY: You've made a good case in defense of the computer junkie who was on-line with the 12-year-girl. It's good to remember that strangers always put on their best face when they are trying to make a good impression. Beware.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife's mother is making our marriage a living hell. She is very domineering and tough as an old boot. Her oldest daughter was abandoned by her husband several years ago and went to stay with Mama. Her only son is a wimp who can't hold a mob and lives off his mother.

My wife, "Terry," was determined to get away from her depressing family. She put herself through college and left home as soon as she could. We are both now professionals, an our joint income is considerable. We own a big, lovely house.

A few years ago, my mother-in-law came to live with us. She started pressuring Terry to take in her wimpy son as well as her other daughter's family. I said, "Absolutely not." Mama was so angry that she threatened to move out. I told her, "Go ahead." She informed Terry that if I forced her out, she would consider both of us "dead."

Well, Mama did indeed move out and is staying with her son. She refuses to take any calls from Terry but continues to cash the monthly check she sends. Terry also sends money to her brother and sister every month. None of them has ever said, "Thank you."

All this has been very painful for my wife. She thinks I am responsible for the estrangement, and we've been fighting about it. We went to a counselor who told Terry to stop sending money to her mother and siblings, but she refuses to follow that advice.

We are supporting two sons in college, and I resent all the sin-law subsidizing. What do you suggest?—Cerritos, Calif.

DEAR CERRITOS: I suggest that you and Terry continue counseling because it appears that her mother has succeeded in driving a wedge between you two. It's OK to help Terry's mother financially, but don't allow her to ruin your marriage. Your wife needs to cut loose from her family without feeling guilty. It sounds as if her mother really did a number on her.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Els overcomes tough start to win US Open

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) - Ernie Els was playing so poorly that he wanted to be somewhere else. Instead, he became the U.S. Open champion. The 24-year-old South African began an 18-hole playoff for the U.S. Open championship Monday with bogey, triple bogey at unforgiving Oakmont, quickly falling behind Loren Roberts and Colin Montgomerie. It was during the embarrassing triple on No. 2, after he'd taken a drop on the third tee from an unplayable lie and then pitched through the green, that he told his caddy, "Why in the hell did I make that putt at 18 yesterday to get into this thing?" I just wanted to get out of there. His caddy, Ricky Roberts, was having none of it. "Dig in there," he told Els.

"Hang in there." Els listened, steadied himself and won with a par on the second hole of sudden death when Roberts' 35-foot par putt caught the lip and spun out. The victory made Els the fourth foreign-born player since 1927 to win the American national championship. In addition to a $320,000 first prize, the victory also provides a 10-year exemption on the PGA Tour. On the day he won his first major championship to confirm his stature, the quiet young man appeared very aware of what it all means. After all, he's been knocking at the door for some time, and in the last two years he's finished in the top 10 in two British Opens, two U.S. Opens and a Masters. "I always wanted to win a major. It came early for me," he said. "I hope I can handle it. I don't want to let it change me." "I'm going to play a lot of golf tournaments. I want to play well in the tournaments I play. People will expect me to win every week. That won't happen. "I have a long road in front of me." It won't be any longer that the one he faced at the third tee. Regaining his composure and rebuilding his confidence, he scratched and scrambled, making the critical putts when he had to, and played the next 16 holes 1-under par, good enough to salvage a 3-over 74. Roberts, a 38-year-old whose only victory in 13 years came two months ago, also finished at 74, and Montgomerie of Scotland took the struggling theme to an extreme and turned in a fat 78 that finished him after 18 holes. Montgomerie's round included three double bogeys and a three-putt from 4 feet. On the second extra hole, Roberts drove into the rough "and didn't have a chance to get to the green," he said. Roberts dumped his second into a bunker, and the sand shot squirted to the right. Els, meanwhile, played the hole routinely - 2-iron to the fairway, 9-iron to about 18 feet. After Roberts' 35-footer spun out, Els had two putts to win it, and he used them both. His 3-footer clinched it, causing Roberts to ponder what may be. "A lot of players have had that title," Roberts said when asked about Els' role as an up-and-coming superstar. "But he has a lot of game. He's long and he's straight and he's a good putter. That's what you have to have to be a great player." "And the way he came back from that bad start shows a lot of guts."

Brazil beats Russia in soccer match

By The Associated Press
Brazil impressed everyone with its brilliance. Saudi Arabia did so with its persistence. Still, only the favored Brazilians got a victory in the World Cup on Monday. Goals by Romario and Rai led Brazil to a 2-0 win over outmanned Russia. The score easily could have been double or even triple that. "There was a total supremacy by Brazil and we even lost several chances to score, three or four,"

Brazil coach Carlos Alberto Parreira said. "We expected to feel the pressure in our first official game in 30 days in front of the world, but it went very good. "And I'll tell you, the trend is for the team to improve as the tournament progresses." That would be bad news for the rest of the field. Brazil was superb, sparked by the magic of Romario and Bebeto up front. Romario scored on a smart deflection of Bebeto's corner kick. Romario also was tackled in the penalty area to set up Rai's goal on the first penalty kick of the tournament. "If we had such strikers as Romario and Bebeto, we would be the winners," Russian coach Pavel Sadyrin said. The Russians don't even have four strong players who boycotted the World Cup rather than play for Sadyrin. And they were without their

Phillies capture Kids Inc. Majors softball tourney

The Phillies won the postseason tournament of the Major girls softball league with a 11-10 victory over the Marlins Monday night at the Kids Inc. Complex. The Marlins, with one loss, needed to beat the undefeated Phillies twice to win the double-elimination tourney. The Marlins accomplished half of that with a 13-12 win in the first game, scoring the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning. The Phillies came from behind in their last at bat to win the second game. The Phillies trailed 10-8, but Carlota Ruiz smacked a two-run triple down the right field line, then scored the go-ahead run herself on an error on the play. The Marlins were shut out in the seventh inning on two nice defensive plays. With a runner on first, Phillies outfielder Amanda Rickman—injured earlier sliding into a base—made a running catch of a fly ball and threw to first to complete a double play. For the last out of the game, shortstop Bethany Townsend made a leaping catch of a line drive.

Rockets, Knicks try not to think about pressure of seventh game

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Players and coaches try to pretend they don't think about losing when they are preparing for a big game.

In the NBA, there is no bigger game than Game 7 of the finals, a situation that will occur for the 15th time in league history Wednesday night.

Stay focused. Just play the game. Take advantage of the opportunity. Have fun.

That's what the Houston Rockets and New York Knicks were saying Monday.

But sometimes, the fear of losing seeped into a conversation, the knowledge that for some of them, Wednesday night will not end the way they hope.

"There's either winning or there's misery," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "That's all there is. One of those two things."

Hakeem Olajuwon, noting that New York won NBA titles in 1970 and 1974 and that Houston has never won a championship, said the Rockets deserve one more.

"But you don't always get what you deserve," he said, almost mournfully.

Rockets forward Robert Horry said he has thought often about what it would feel like to win a championship, then admitted that losing has crossed his mind as well.

"Hopefully, there will be tears of joy and not tears of sorrow," Horry said. "You want to be happy, take the champagne bath and wake up in the morning with a big smile on your face."

The Knicks were one big play away from taking that champagne bath after Game 6 Sunday night when John Starks, after scoring 16 of New York's 22 points in the fourth quarter, took a 3-point shot in the final seconds of a two-point game.

But Olajuwon got his fingertips on the shot, making it fall short and preserving an 86-84 Houston victory.

"I take every loss hard," Starks said. "But you shake it off because there's another game Wednesday. Now we have 48 more minutes to put up or shut up. You dream about playing pressure games like this. I know I can step up and play big. But I'm not worried about it because I know I will."

The Knicks will be playing their third seventh game of the playoffs - only the Riley-coached Los Angeles Lakers played that many in 1988 - and Starks said the team should benefit from that.

"The experience of playing Game 7s helps a lot, but the stakes are much higher now," Starks said. "But it gives us confidence we can win."

Olajuwon, whose 27.2 scoring average in the Finals is 15 more than anyone else on the Rockets, said coach Rudy Tomjanovich told the team several times during the season that the team was playing its biggest game of the year.

"This time we don't need him to tell us," Olajuwon said. "We know it's the biggest game. But we have to keep it in perspective. You can only do your best."

With neither team having scored 100 points in the series - an NBA Finals first - both realize that defense got them this far and that defense will win Game 7.

"We expect to win," Riley said. "We believed defense would give us this opportunity."

The Knicks are averaging just 87.3 points in the series, the Rockets 85.4.

"You have to be a defensive team to get this far," Tomjanovich said. "And you have to win on the road to get homecourt advantage. We're glad to have it."

The Rockets are in the Summit for Game 7 because they won one more game than the Knicks in the regular season, and that slimmest of margins could be the difference. The home team has won the last 19 seventh games in the NBA.

While the Knicks have more seventh-game experience, Tomjanovich said his team has learned about pressure during the season.

"The playoffs are like a man growing up," Tomjanovich said. "You go through things and accomplish things. We had to deal with pressure most teams don't get early in the season because we had a 15-game winning streak. All that attention and pressure helped us prepare for where we are now."

Riley said his preparation for Game 7 consists in part of forgetting the last opportunity of Sunday night.

Drabek ends Astros' Mile High jinx

By TOM WITHERS
Associated Press Writer

Two rain delays? Forget it. The Mile High Stadium jinx? Over.

Doug Drabek is not the same pitcher and the Houston Astros are not the same team as a year ago. Not by a long stretch.

The Astros, one of baseball's biggest disappointments last season, won for the first time in eight games in Colorado Monday night as Drabek notched his 10th win in the Astros' 5-4 victory over the Rockies.

Jeff Bagwell and Scott Servais each hit two-run homers as the Astros became the last NL team to win at Mile High Stadium.

"It is?" Houston manager Terry Collins asked when informed of his team's previous futility in Denver. "We'd never won here? Well, I hope it's not the last."

It won't be the way the Astros are going. The win moved the Astros within percentage points of the NL Central-leading Cincinnati Reds.

"This isn't last year anymore," Bagwell said. "This is a different team. You can see that just from our record. We're not playing the Colorado Rockies remembering we've lost here."

Losing was something that Drabek learned a lot about in 1993.

The 1990 Cy Young Award winner struggled to a 9-18 record last season, his first with the Astros. Now 10-3, Drabek has become the ace the Astros had hoped for when they signed him as a free agent.

Collins said Drabek was unaffected by the rain delays.

"It might affect another guy, but not that guy," Collins said.

In the second inning, Mike Simms hit a one-out double off Greg Harris (3-7) and Servais followed with his sixth homer. Craig Biggio led off the third with a walk and scored on Bagwell's 20th homer, equaling his career high for a season set last year.

John Hudek pitched the ninth for his 11th save.

Drabek benefited from two double plays after the Rockies had gotten the leadoff batter aboard in the fifth and seventh. He allowed four runs, three earned, and nine hits in 7 1/3 innings.

Braves 7, Mets 3

At Atlanta, David Justice hit a three-run homer and Kent Mercker pitched 7 1/3 solid innings. Justice's 11th homer erased a 2-0 Mets lead in the fourth inning. It followed consecutive singles by Ryan Klesko and Fred McGriff.

Mercker (6-1), who lifted his lifetime record against the Mets to 4-0, gave up four hits and struck out nine before tiring in the eighth.

Bobby Jones (7-6) allowed five runs and seven hits in five innings.

Bobby Bonilla had two of New York's five hits.

Expos 8, Cardinals 4

At St. Louis, Larry Walker and Wil Cordero each had four hits and homered in a five-run seventh inning. Walker led off the seventh with his 10th homer off Rob Murphy (2-3) to tie it 4-4. One out later, Cordero hit his seventh homer into the left-field seats.

Jeff Shaw (4-2) worked a scoreless sixth and Mel Rojas worked three innings for his 11th save.

Dodgers 3, Padres 2

At San Diego, Tim Wallach's three-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning gave the Dodgers their sixth straight win against the Padres.

Trailing 2-0, Brett Butler walked with one out in the eighth, and, one out later, Mike Piazza walked. Wallach hit the first pitch from Joey Hamilton (3-2) over the left-field fence for his 17th homer.

Kevin Gross (6-4) allowed two runs and eight hits in seven innings. Todd Worrell pitched the final two innings for his fourth save.

Bip Roberts went 3-for-4 with an RBI to extend his hitting streak to 23 games, the longest in the NL this season.

Indians cool off Tigers' red hot bats

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Cleveland Indians moved out of their park and managed to keep the Detroit Tigers in theirs.

The Indians, fresh off their 18th straight win at Jacobs Field, beat Detroit 7-1 Monday night and broke the Tigers' streak of 25 games with a home run.

"I didn't know too much about their home run deal. I heard about it. But I didn't know how many games, or anything like that," winning pitcher Charles Nagy said.

The Indians won their 10th in a row overall. The Tigers, meanwhile, wound up tied with the 1941 New York Yankees for the longest homer streak in major league history.

"We didn't beat the record," Lou Whitaker said. "But, hey, we joined some good company."

Whitaker hit a fly ball more than 420 feet to the warning track in center field in the first inning and later lofted a foul fly into the upper deck in right. Travis Fryman missed an opposite-field homer to right when his drive was a few feet foul.

In another game, the Boston Red Sox stopped their 11-game losing streak with a 4-1 victory over Toronto.

Also, Seattle beat California 5-0, New York defeated Minnesota 7-5, Milwaukee downed Baltimore 6-5 and Texas topped Chicago 12-6.

Nagy (6-3) gave up one run and five hits in seven innings. In his previous two starts at Tiger Stadium, he was 0-2 with a 14.63 ERA.

Eddie Murray drove in four runs and Sandy Alomar homered as Cleveland extended its longest winning streak since 1986. Mike Moore (7-6) was the loser.

Rangers 12, White Sox 6

Jose Canseco, Juan Gonzalez and Ivan Rodriguez homered as Texas romped in Chicago.

Rodriguez hit a two-run double during a seven-run rally in the eighth inning. The Rangers chased Jack McDowell and continued to score against Dane Johnson (1-1) and the rest of the White Sox bullpen.

Canseco hit his 20th home run, and Gonzalez hit a three-run shot in the ninth. Frank Thomas hit his 25th homer for Chicago. Rick Honeycutt (1-2) wound up with the win.

Red Sox 4, Blue Jays 1

Joe Hesketh pitched seven shutout innings and John Valentin homered as visiting Boston broke its 11-game skid.

Andre Dawson was hit by a pair of pitches from Todd Stottlemyre, and got angry both times. He threw the ball back past Stottlemyre the first time, then took a couple of steps toward the mound the next time.

Stottlemyre (5-4) was ejected and the benches emptied after the second incident. Stottlemyre threw a couple of water coolers onto the field and Toronto manager Cito Gaston later was ejected.

Hesketh (4-4) gave up three singles in his longest start of the season. Tony Fossas got the last out for his first save.

Mariners 5, Angels 0

Randy Johnson pitched his fourth shutout in six starts and Seattle won at California.

Johnson (9-3) gave up three singles and struck out 11 in his seventh straight win.

Johnson retired 20 of the first 22 batters.

Jay Buhner homered off Joe Magrane (2-4) and Keith Mitchell also connected for Seattle.

Yankees 7, Twins 5

Pinch-hitter Daryl Boston connected on Rick Aguilera's first pitch for a three-run homer in the eighth inning, lifting New York over visiting Minnesota.

Kirby Puckett and Dave Winfield homered in the sixth, helping the Twins take a 5-2 lead.

The Yankees scored twice in the seventh, then took advantage of a mistake by second baseman Chuck Knoblauch in the eighth. Knoblauch made a late throw and failed to get a forceout, and the prolonged inning gave Daryl Boston a chance to bat with two outs. Boston, hitting for Mike Gallego, hit his fourth homer after Aguilera relieved Carl Willis (1-2). Bob Wickman (3-2) got the victory.

Brewers 6, Orioles 5

Greg Vaughn and Dave Nilsson hit two-run homers in the first inning.

Bill Wegman (5-0) won despite allowing four runs in 5 1/3 innings.

Vaughn connected against Jamie Moyer (2-5). Harold Baines and Brady Anderson homered for the host Orioles.

WORLD CUP

captain, Viktor Onopko, who was suspended for the game.

"It's always unpleasant to lose the game, but this was explicable because we played against a better team," Sadyrin said.

The Dutch were supposed to be much the better team against the Saudis, who were making their World Cup debut. But, despite being outshot 29-9, Saudi Arabia was tied with the Netherlands deep into the match.

Goalkeeper Mohammed Al Deayea was outstanding in front of the net. The problem was that he wasn't there when it counted most.

Substitute Gaston Taument scored the game-winner in the 86th minute after Al Deayea strayed well out of the net to deflect a high kick from the left side that was headed for Ron de Boer. Al Deayea missed, and the ball took one bounce before Taument scored on a header from 15 yards.

"I didn't see the goalie," de Boer said. "I didn't know what he was doing there, but I managed to get a piece of the ball."

Then Taument got his head on it and sent it into the unguarded net.

"I've never scored a goal like that before; I can't remember anything like it," Taument said.

Today at Chicago, defending champion Germany met Spain in the second game for each; Argentina and Greece debuted at Foxboro, Mass., while Nigeria and Bulgaria got started in Dallas.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have vestibular disease. My attacks of dizziness and imbalance can be controlled usually by meclizine. However, sometimes I get a sudden attack while shopping. I have to sit, and sometimes it is an hour before I can walk with confidence. A severe attack causes heavy sweating and nausea, even vomiting. Is this evil curse of mine really epilepsy? — R.H.

ANSWER: Vestibular disease is not epilepsy. Any ear doctor or neurologist can make that distinction and help track down the source of your frightful imbalance episodes.

The vestibule of the inner ear, about the size of an olive, keeps us on even keel. Imbalance is a hallmark of vestibular problems, among them Ménière's disease, which I've discussed here.

I don't know if Ménière's disease is part of your problem. It can cause ear ringing, and the hearing is affected. If you have no ringing or hearing difficulty, I would doubt a Ménière's role.

Some people trigger vertiginous attacks with a turn of the head, often when rolling over in bed. Such benign positional vertigo can be helped through exercises to decondition the vestibule. The seated patient simply turns the head to the precise position known to cause the symptoms. He holds in that position for 30 seconds, repeating the drill a few times a day. The hope is that eventually the vestibule will learn to ignore the mixed-up signals that cause dizziness.

For completeness, I should mention some serious conditions where imbalance is prominent: hearing nerve tumor, erratic heart rhythms and drug reactions. Each has its own treatment.

You need to rule those out, so see a doctor.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a severe case of facial acne. I have tried everything. I have heard that benzoyl peroxide works, but it makes my face break out. What can I do to get rid of the acne? — J.H.

ANSWER: Severe acne requires special attention and prescription medicine.

Here are some general tips on acne:

- Keep your face clean with non-irritating soaps.
- Don't scrub.
- Avoid greasy cosmetics. Use water-based ones, sparingly.

Benzoyl peroxide is an over-the-counter medicine that helps with milder forms of acne. You should try the pads saturated with salicylic acid, also available over the counter. Ask your pharmacist for a brand name he likes. He gets feedback from customers.

As I hinted, severe acne calls for prescription cures. Retin-A as a cream, gel or liquid is a successful application formulation. And antibiotics — cream or pill — are useful acne fighters. Accutane — isotretinoin — has been a godsend for many with truly severe cystic acne.

All those drugs require a prescription, and they all have side effects and need to be monitored by a doctor.

The acne booklet I'm sending you discusses treatments. Others can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 39, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope.

FOR M.B.: Carotid arteries are the ones in the neck that supply the brain. Endarterectomy clears out their internal fatty material, plaque. Two major studies show carotid endarterectomy is an effective way to guard against a major stroke. If your doctor says such surgery is too great a risk for you to take, then you will have to settle for medicines to keep the blood thinned. When general health permits, though, the endarterectomy procedure is well worth considering.

READERS: J.S. is a physician and 100. When a 100-year-old physician offers fitness advice, I sit up and take notice.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I never fail to read your column. I enjoy them and keep informed, even though I've passed my 100th birthday. I'm writing you at this time because of your article pertaining to "Why do athletes stretch?"

Stretching is a form of exercise. Anyone with a cat or dog will tell you that they will stretch their legs and body after a nap. We frequently do the same upon awakening, from even a brief rest.

Some other thoughts: The heart pumps the blood. It gets plenty of exercise by beating day and night. The lymph channel system circulates only by movement of arms, legs et al. It's like sap in a tree (swaying branches help, as does heliotropism). I exercise daily by walking, stationary bike and use of a gliding rocker. I've done this for years. An active body is essential to an active mind. Brain tissues have a lymph circulation like all other kinds. We call it cerebral-spinal fluid, as you know.

When convenient, sit in a rocker and note how the muscles in your legs, arms, abdomen and back are in constant motion as you rock. That's exercise. That's circulating lymph. I always sit in my gliding rocker when I read, watch television (news only) or visit with friends.

I eat very little meat — once in two weeks — no fish. I live on vegetables, fruits and nuts. I've done this for years. (We are not carnivorous by nature.) I'm of the opinion that meats cause constipation and polyps and perhaps a good deal of cancer. Best wishes. — J.S. (MD)

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please answer something for me. Why don't the walking programs take height or length of stride into account? My husband is 10 inches taller than I, and when he is walking normally, I am almost running, because I take three steps to his two. Certainly, a 20-minute mile for me must be farther up on the conditioning scale than for him, all other pertinent facts being equal. In our situation certainly, I should reach the out-of-breath point before him. Also, please show me once again how to calculate the maximum heart rate beyond which we should not go during exercise. — D.J.M.

ANSWER: When you and your husband are walking together, you are indeed employing exercises of different intensities. He's walking. You're close to running. You are spending more energy.

You can measure the intensities by taking pulses before, during and after your joint jaunts. Your pulse should have increased much more than your husband's, proof of more energy expenditure. For equal time, you are getting more aerobic benefits.

Your theoretical maximum pulse is 220 minus your age. For safe aerobic training benefit, you want a pace that gets your heart beating between 60 and 85 percent of that theoretical maximum. If you are 50, your theoretical max is 220 minus 50, or 170. And 60 percent of that is 102; 85 percent of it is 144. So your pulse during exercise should be between 102 and 144.

Note: Figures can lie, so your doctor should say if your body is capable of sustaining any arbitrary heart rates safely.

DEAR DOCTOR: My coach is bonkers on the visualization thing. You imagine going through motions of your sport. What good is it? — F.Y.

ANSWER: In theory, the brain makes little distinction between the imagining of a deed and its performance.

During visualization, don't stick only to physical movements. Imagine everything — sounds, sights, etc. You are programming your body to react to the whole environment when called on.

I hope it works. They say it does.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I started having trouble swallowing. Sometimes, I cough and cough to the choking point. What could lie behind this? — H.K.

ANSWER: Such problems do not always begin in the esophagus. The throat, even the mouth, can be at fault.

Problems with the esophagus itself usually give a sensation of swallowed food sticking somewhere midway on the path to the stomach.

Tumors, nerve transmission problems or pouches in the lining are among the more unusual causes of dysphagia, which is difficulty in swallowing. Sometimes, causes can never be pinned down.

Chronic coughing and choking seldom get resolved without special tests, including X-rays and sophisticated scoping of the entire swallowing path. I suggest you begin this process, the sooner the better.

Meanwhile, modify your diet and eating style. Chew and drink slowly. Some patients need to use pureed food for a time.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a hiatal hernia. What do I need to know now about eating? Explain, please, the gas and the pain. — R.S.

ANSWER: The esophagus is a muscular tube running the length of the chest cavity, from throat to stomach. At the far end, it passes through an opening on its way to the stomach entrance. In some people, this gap weakens, permitting a bit of the upper stomach to herniate, slip upward. This is the well-known hiatal hernia.

A hiatal hernia can explain some heartburn, but you don't have to have the hernia to experience that. Heartburn — painful reflux of stomach acid — can occur in a person with a perfectly intact esophagus.

Antacids can neutralize acid and relieve such pain, and a sensible trial-and-error diet goes a long way toward relief of the problem. Beware fats, caffeine, alcohol, mints and citrus fruits especially. More potent medicines lessen stomach acid output.

Ten ways to move clutter from closet

Today, more Americans than ever are faced with an age-old dilemma: having more belongings than they know what to do with. One in 40 Americans moves each year, resulting in a temporary lack of storage space, and thousands more feel just plain crowded in their homes.

If you are one of the millions of Americans facing a move, or if you have finally decided to clean out the attack, these helpful tips may not only save time as you pack and unpack your belongings, but also help you find a little peace of mind.

-Plan ahead as you start packing. When loading boxes, store related items together and label boxes accordingly.

-Keep a master list of boxes and their contents, and number the boxes as you pack them into the storage area.

-Pad your breakables thoroughly and pack in smaller boxes that can easily be stacked on top of others. When packing breakables, load uniformly to keep boxes from tilting and crushing one another.

-Items which you no longer use can be donated to charity; some groups will pick up the items at your home and the donation may be tax deductible.

-In the storage area, leave aislesways in between boxes to avoid having to move larger boxes when retrieving single objects during the storage period.

-Do not store toxic or flammable chemicals, cleaners, solvents, etc. with your household items. If they will not be used, call the city disposal offices or your local service station to find out how to dispose of them properly.

-Whenever possible, store clothing vertically in garment bags or similar containers to avoid stressing seams or crushing fabrics.

-If the storage space is limited in your home, consider renting a storage area. Renting storage space is easy and cost-effective, and can be like adding square footage to your living space.

-When selecting a storage space, be sure to consider features like customer service, lighting, security, on-site help and cleanliness as well as cost; these simple amenities will not only affect the longevity of the items you store, but also help you rest easy knowing your belongings are in good hands.

-Year-round storage facilities are a particularly good investment for people with seasonal sporting goods, outdoor furniture, clothing, or other bulky items that don't get 12 months of use every year.

A 10th of the 7.7 million tons (7 million metric tons) of rice grown in the United States each year goes into beer, says National Geographic.

John Smith was elected president of the Jamestown Colony council in Virginia in 1608.

At 13.2 million acres (5.3 million hectares), Alaska's Wrangell-St. Elias is the biggest U.S. national park, larger than the states of New Hampshire and Vermont combined, according to National Geographic.

HANDY TACKLE BOX

Dear Heloise: Your request for ideas using fishing-tackle boxes reminded me that they are just right to hold art supplies. I use one to hold tubes of watercolor paints in the little sections meant for fishing lures. The bottom is a jumble of small tools, erasers, tape and pencils.

MIAMI (AP) - Sylvester Stallone and Madonna are hooking up - on the same side of a neighborhood dispute.

The pair want to build a guard-house at the entrance to their street in Miami's trendy Coconut Grove neighborhood. They're apparently worried about people who sneak in after hours to a city park next to their homes on the bay.

Stallone, whose house is worth $8 million, has offered to pay for the construction, according to the founder of the Cliff Hammock homeowners association. But some other nearby residents are annoyed at the idea.

"They need protection?" asked Joyce Nelson, president of the Coconut Grove Civic Club. "They have more money than God."

NEW YORK (AP) - Greg Louganis returned to the springboard for a four-dive exhibition at the Gay Games.

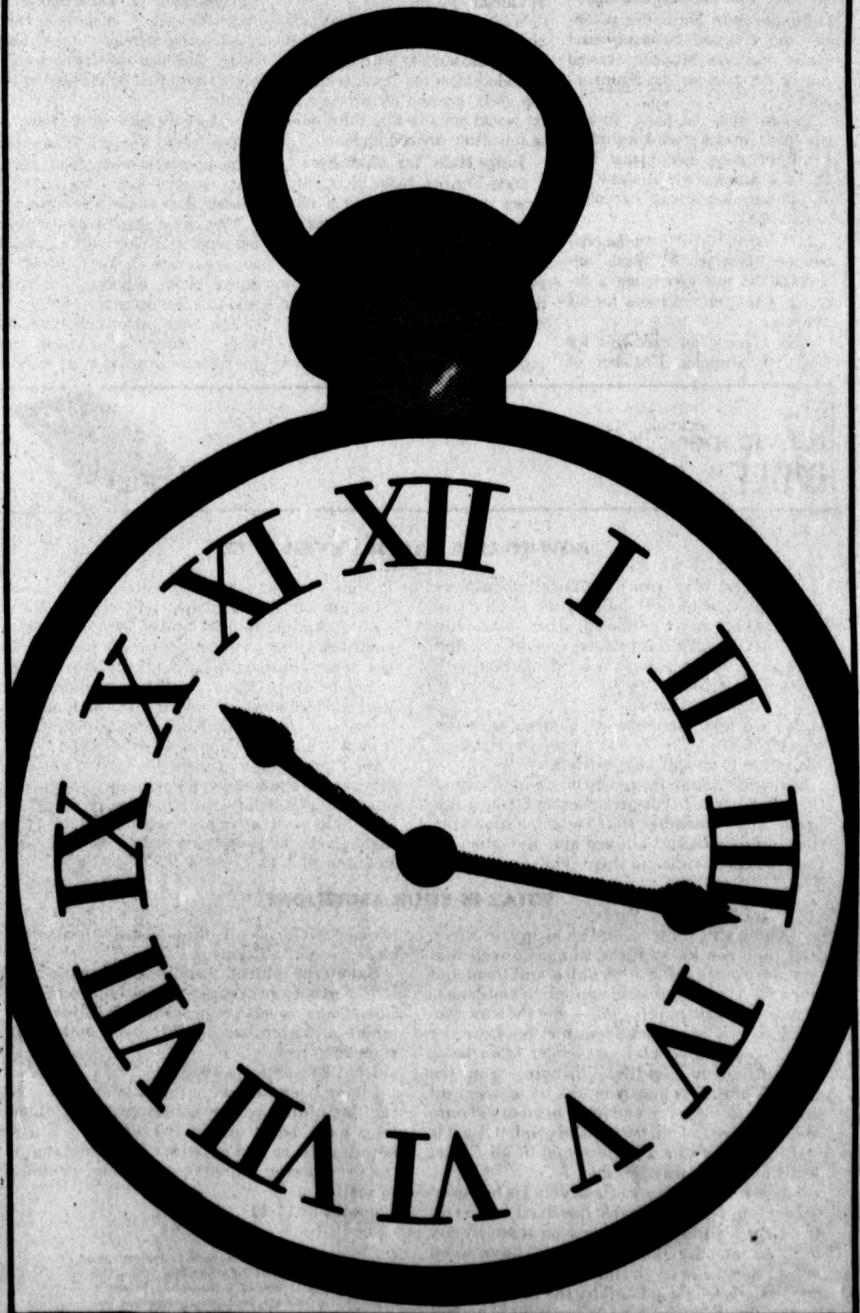

Louganis, who retired in 1988, was greeted Monday by a wildly cheering audience. He smiled and waved, then executed a back pike, a reverse pike, a back 1-1/2 somersault with 2-1/2 twists and a reverse 2-1/2 somersault in the pike position.

Louganis, 34, won a total of four gold medals at the 1984 and 1988 Olympics. He has been pursuing an acting career, appearing in the off-Broadway play "Jeffrey."

His autobiography, "Breaking the Surface," is due out this winter. He has said the book will deal with his homosexuality and other topics.

NEW YORK (AP) - Eddie Murphy says his kids help him deal with the ups and downs of a Hollywood career.

The 33-year-old comedian said he got bored and unhappy with show biz after his phenomenal screen success, which culminated in "Beverly Hills Cop."

Murphy said it showed in a string of flops he made after that, including "Boomerang" and "Harlem Nights."

"You can tell I was unhappy," he said in the June-July issue of Vibe magazine. "You can look on the screen and see an unhappy person. It wasn't fun. If you're miserable and a comic actor, how you gonna make people laugh?"

With "Beverly Hills Cop III" opening to mixed reviews, he said the highs and lows bother him less, thanks to his 3-year-old daughter and infant son.

"The kids put it all in perspective, really," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) - Former first lady Rosalynn Carter visited a program for developmentally delayed children and said she wished there were more like it.

"My dream would be for there to be a center like this in reach of every child in this country who needs help," she said Monday after watching 3- and 4-year-olds in the program, which is run by the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services.

Later she spoke about her hopes for national health insurance.

"We want mental health and substance abuse covered on par with physical health," said Mrs. Carter, who has advocated for better mental health care since leaving the White House. "You don't leave out a huge portion of people who are sick and suffering."

Posturing in Simpson case begins after arraignment

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - O.J. Simpson's lawyer began attacking the evidence against his client and stressing his anguished mental state after the football hero pleaded innocent to murdering his ex-wife and her friend.

Simpson was forlorn and morose and occasionally shut his eyes as he appeared in court Monday, wearing a dark suit jacket and white shirt buttoned to the neck. He was not allowed to wear a tie, belt or shoelaces because he has been under a suicide watch.

He responded "Not guilty" to charges of murdering Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman, and twice answered "Yes" when Municipal Judge Patti Jo McKay asked if he had been correctly identified and whether he understood the charges.

Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark later told reporters that Simpson was the "sole murderer" and that there is evidence he planned the slayings. But she added that "premeditation" can mean that a crime is planned only moments before it happens.

Shapiro questioned reports about bloodstains in Simpson's car and driveway, saying police tests could not prove the blood matched Simpson's. DNA tests, which are more conclusive, could take several months to complete.

"The conclusion of the chemist was that there is no conclusive evidence of blood spots. I think the closest that they came was a chance of one in 15 people having the same blood type," Shapiro said.

Shapiro also noted that four doctors examined Simpson and found "no evidence of any body scratches whatsoever." He said Simpson had small paper cuts on his left hand and a slightly larger cut that he probably sustained when he slammed down a glass after being informed of his wife's death.

News reports have quoted unnamed police sources as saying Simpson had scratches on his body when he was questioned by police the day after the bodies were found. Goldman fought fiercely for his life, investigators say.

Ms. Simpson, 35, was nearly decapitated and Goldman, 25, was stabbed 22 times, Time magazine reported.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The new chairman of the Texas Republican Party says reaching out to Hispanics is going to become a high priority of the party under his leadership.

"We're going to try to expand our efforts to reach out to the Hispanic community, whose values are Republican values," Tom Pauken, a Dallas lawyer, said. "For too long, our party has ignored the Hispanic community, and that day has ended."

Pauken was elected during the state Republican convention in Fort Worth in a victory for conservatives, who represented the overwhelming majority of delegates.

As many as 70 percent of the 12,000 delegates and alternates who attended were believed to be affiliated with the Christian right.

Congressman Joe Barton of Ennis and Houston businesswoman Dolly Madison McKenna bowed out of the race for the chairmanship.

Pauken said the party already has made strides toward including more Hispanics, noting that Rita Davis, a San Antonio Hispanic, is on the state Republican Executive Committee.

Last week, GOP gubernatorial nominee George W. Bush announced he was appointing a director of Hispanic relations for his campaign.

Abel Guerra, an executive for the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, "will focus his expertise and energy on reaching out to the Hispanic community of Texas, one of the keys to victory in November," Bush said.

Bush also named Karen Hughes, outgoing GOP executive director, to be director of communications for his 1994 campaign.

Clinton's Welfare Plan Hit
Meanwhile, Pauken assailed President Clinton's $9.3 billion welfare reform package, which the White House unveiled last week.

It is just going to "add more people to the rolls and government jobs," Pauken said. "We've got to unravel this welfare system that has had a terrible effect on society."

Pauken said states should run their own welfare programs.

"I want to get back to decentralization, limited government, local control. We were moving toward that in the early '80s, now we're moving in the opposite direction," he said.

Okl. to Pay for Texas Roads?
Oklahoma is dreaming of routing Texas traffic through it on a new corridor and is willing to spend $10 million to build roads in Texas that would improve the flow of traffic between the two states.

The Oklahoma Turnpike Authority wants to connect a toll road that ends in Lawton with an improved road covering the 144-mile stretch between Wichita Falls and Abilene that would someday go all the way to Laredo.

Wichita Falls and Abilene officials like the plan, although $10 million amounts to little more than an inducement for Texas to do the job itself, because Oklahoma's offer would buy less than three miles of four-lane, divided highway.

Judge Halts Tax Abatement
State District Judge Scott McCown on June 14 issued a temporary restraining order preventing a wealthy school district from extending current property tax abatements to a corporation in a move that would have circumvented the 1993 Texas school finance law.

Calhoun County had been working on a tax break that would have saved Formosa Plastics Corp. an estimated $54 million over the next three years in exchange for donations of "millions of dollars" to the school district, according to a Dallas Morning News report.

Rich Gray, a lawyer representing property-poor school districts in the ongoing school finance case, said other property-rich school districts are looking into tax abatement plans, which he said could "take millions, if not hundreds of millions of dollars off the tax rolls."

About $8.7 billion worth of tax abatements were in effect during the 1993-94 school year, which amounts to about 1.4 percent of the total school property tax base of $637.4 billion, the News reported.

DWI Checks Struck Down
Texas drivers no longer will be subjected to the scrutiny of sobriety checkpoints, following a 6-3 ruling by the state Court of Criminal Appeals on June 15.

Although DWI checks are infrequently conducted on Texas highways, the court, in a majority opinion by Judge Chuck Miller, held that a woman's arrest in an Arlington roadblock was against the law because it was done under local police procedures, not as part of a statewide policy.

Citing a 1990 Michigan case, the Texas court said the U.S. Supreme Court requires "that for any DWI checkpoint program to pass constitutional muster, it must at a basic minimum be authorized by a statewide policy emanating from a politically accountable governing body" and that enforcement techniques must first be analyzed by the courts.

Educate Children at Home
The Texas Supreme Court last week upheld a lower court ruling that parents have the right to educate their children at home.

"We agree that Texas law does not require children who are taught in legitimate home schools to attend public schools," the court said in a 9-0 decision.

The court also authorized the state to request achievement tests for students taught in home schools.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HOW TO LIVE HAPPILY EVER AFTER

May God who gives patience, steadiness, and encouragement help you to live in complete harmony with each other—each with the attitude of Christ toward each other. And then all of us can praise the Lord together with one voice, giving glory to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

So, warmly welcome each other into the church, just as Christ has warmly welcomed you; then God will be glorified.

Remember that Jesus Christ came to show that God is true to His promises and to help the Jews. And remember that He came also that the Gentiles might be saved and give glory to God for His mercies to them. That is what the Psalmist meant when he wrote: "I will praise You among the Gentiles, and sing to Your name." And in another place, "Be glad, O you Gentiles, along with His people the Jews." And yet again, "Praise the Lord, O you Gentiles, let everyone praise Him." And the prophet Isaiah said, "There shall be an Heir in the house of Jesse, and He will be King over the Gentiles: they will pin their hopes on Him alone."

So I pray for you Gentiles that God who gives you hope will keep you happy and full of peace as you believe in Him. I pray that God will help you overflow with hope in Him through the Holy Spirit's power within you.
Romans 15:5-13

WHAT IS YOUR AMBITION?

I know you are wise and good, my brothers, and that you know these things so well that you are able to teach others all about them. But even so I have been bold enough to emphasize some of these points, knowing that all you need is this reminder from me; for I am, by God's grace, a special messenger from Jesus Christ to you Gentiles, bringing you the Gospel and offering you up as a fragrant sacrifice to God; for you have been made pure and pleasing to Him by the Holy Spirit. So it is right for me to be a little proud of all Christ Jesus has done through me.

I dare not judge how effectively He has used others, but I know this: He has used me to win the Gentiles to God. I have won them by my message and by the good way I have lived before them, and by the miracles done through me as signs from God—all by the Holy Spirit's power. In this way I have preached the full Gospel of Christ all the way from Jerusalem clear over into Illyricum.

But all the while my ambition has been to go still farther, preaching where the name of Christ has never yet been heard, rather than where a church has already been started by someone else.

I have been following the plan spoken of in the Scriptures where Isaiah says that those who have never heard the name of Christ before will see and understand. In fact that is the very reason I have been so long in coming to visit you.
Romans 15:14-22
