Lexi Sciumbato captures crown at annual Miss Hereford pageant

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN

Editor-Publisher

Lexi Sciumbato, a May graduate of Hereford High School, was crowned as Miss Hereford 1994 Saturday night after earning the judges' nod over 10 other beautiful and talented entrants.

Aimee Alley was chosen as first-runner-up in the 22nd annual Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant, and Fidelia Hernandez was second runner-up. The special "Miss Congeniality" award went to Beth Weatherly.

Miss Sciumbato was crowned by Dusty Saul, Miss Hereford 1993, and drew a standing ovation as she was introduced as the new titleholder. The 18-year-old daughter of Albert and Betty Sciumbato, she plans to attend West Texas A&M University this fall and study optometry. She performed a skit in the talent division. Her sponsor was AzTx Cattle Co.

Lexi receives a $500 college scholarship from the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the pageant. College scholarships of $250 and $200 were presented to the runners-up.

Miss Alley, 16, is a high school junior and the daughter of Larry and Eileen Alley. She performed a twirling routine in the talent division. Her sponsor was H&R Manufacturing. Miss Hernandez, 18, is a May graduate of HHS and plans to attend West Texas A&M this fall. She was sponsored by Lithographics, and her talent was singing. She is the daughter of Malilde Hernandez.

Avila receives probated term

A defendant charged with theft over $750 but under $20,000 was given a probated sentence after pleading guilty in 222nd District Court Monday.

Jesus Avila, 39, was sentenced to eight years' probation.

Another defendant was sentenced to nine years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division on revocation of probation.

Kennith Stacy, 31, was convicted in 1990 of delivery of a controlled substance, methamphetamines, and given a nine-year probated term.

District Judge David Wesley Gulley revoked Stacy's probation in late May and ordered him to jail until sentence was pronounced Monday. In addition to the prison term, he must pay a $1,000 fine.

Added Committee Chairman Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.: 'We agreed that ... there is not now a majority for any health-care reform plan in the Senate Finance Committee, that we will continue to work on a bipartisan basis to provide legislation that covers everybody."

'We've got a very intensive work period ahead and we're ready to go," Moynihan said.

dead," he said. "Anybody's plan."

"There's not a majority for any single plan," Packwood added. "So the question is, can we accommodate ourselves to different parts of different plans and reach a majority."

The crux of the problem lies in Clinton's desire to guarantee coverage to all Americans, with "The president asked that we take employers forced to provide insurance to their workers.

'We are all wanting to go in the same direction but there is a strong, large feeling on the Republican side against compulsion that absolutely forces people to do things they don't want to do," Packwood said. "That is sort of where we are.'

Moynihan said the legislators would return to Capitol Hill to try "to put together combinations" of various existing proposals.

'There are many forms of triggers (for universal coverage) that will be considered," Moynihan said. "The president was open to any suggestions we had. He didn't make any commitments.

Poor school districts seek property tax abatement end

AUSTIN (AP) - Poor school districts want a state judge to keep school districts and private companies from using property tax abatements to get around the public education finance law.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin scheduled a hearing for today on the request by more than 100 property-poor school districts for an order against abatement proposals such as one in the Calhoun County school district on the Gulf Coast.

"It looks to us like it's an attempt to try to use a loophole in a tax evasion scheme," said Craig Foster of the Equity Center, a group of poor school districts that includes a number of those seeking the order.

Calhoun County Judge Howard Hartzog has compared the school district's situation to that of American colonialists who fought against British taxation in the 18th century.

"This nation was founded by a group of immigrants who came to this country because of the resources it found." Hartzog told the Houston Chronicle. "And we had war because England said: 'No! It all belongs to England.' It almost continues to be the same now."

The school funding law requires Texas school districts with the most property wealth to share with the rest of the system. It was approved by lawmakers in response to a court order to even out funding available to districts of differing property wealth.

The Calhoun County school district is among those that must share some wealth under the law.

But a proposal is being considered that is envisioned as keeping some Calhoun County wealth off the tax rolls, and thereby allowing the school district to keep extra funds without sharing, the Chronicle reported.

Under the proposal, a tax abatement currently granted to Leon Darby, Alicia Priscilla Garza, Formosa Plastics Corp. would be Christine Lance, Claudia Medeles, Inf. extended for a major expansion of the Girl Medeles, Anely Dene Villegas. company's Point Comfort plant.

The tax break would mean as much as $54 million in taxes wouldn't be collected from the company between 1997 and 2000. In return, Formosa would donate money to the school district. The exact amount of the donation still is being negotiated, but could be tens of millions of dollars. according to the newspaper report.

Austin lawyer Rick Gray. representing the poor school districts, said the Calhoun County proposal "totally destroys the underpinnings" of the school funding law.

Before the law was approved last year, tax abatements were subtracted from a school district's taxable property value. That value determines how much wealthy school districts must share with poorer schools, and how much state aid school districts

The new law says abatements granted after May 31, 1993, won't be subtracted from the property value of a school district. That means the districts will be treated as though the tax revenue is being collected.

.02 percent consumer price index increase recorded

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER

AP Economics Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumer prices edged up a modest 0.2 percent in May as falling gasoline prices and the biggest drop in airline fares in 25 years helped to offset rising food costs, the government said today.

The small advance in the Labor

Department's Consumer Price Index followed an even tinier 0.1 percent advance in April as inflation continued to be well behaved. For May, energy costs dropped 1 percent, the biggest one-month decline in more than two years, but food prices were up 0.3 percent, reflecting higher vegetable and fruit So far this year, prices at the consumer level are rising at an annual rate of just 2.3 percent, even better than the small 2.7 percent price gain posted for all of 1993.

The report on consumer prices followed news last week that wholesale prices posted back-to-back declines of 0.1 percent in April and May, the first time that has happened since mid-1991.

In other economic news today, the Commerce Department reported that retail sales fell 0.2 percent in May as auto sales were down sharply. It marked the second straight monthly decline and provided further evidence, analysts said, that interest rate hikes earlier this year by the Federal Reserve are helping to slow

Analysts said the good inflation news and mounting evidence that the economy is slowing should keep the Fed on hold for several months.

The central bank, worried about extremely rapid growth as 1993 ended, boosted interest rates four times beginning in February in what was billed as a pre-emptive strike against inflation. Economists said they are not looking for another Fed rate increase until August at the

The 1 percent drop in energy costs in May reflected a 1.8 percent decrease in gasoline pump prices, the best showing since last June, while natural gas costs fell 2 percent, the biggest one-month drop in four years. The 1 percent drop in overall energy costs was the biggest decrease since a 1.5 percent decline in January

Food costs, however, rose 0.3 percent, a pickup from the previous month's 0.1 percent advance.

The increase was led by a 5.7 percent rise in vegetable prices, the biggest increase in a year. Fruit prices were up 2.3 percent as orange prices jumped 5.5 percent, the biggest gain since last October.

Excluding volatile food and energy costs, the so-called core rate of inflation was up 0.3 percent last month and has risen 2.8 percent for the past 12 months, a 20-year low.

Outside of food and energy, one of the biggest developments was a 5.4 percent drop in airline fares, the largest one-month decline since January 1969.

In contrast to this good news, tobacco prices took a sharp jump upward last month, rising by 1.3 percent. New car prices were up as well, rising a more moderate 0.3 percent.

Medical costs were up 0.4 percent last month and have risen 4.6 percent over the past 12 months, a significant deceleration from price increases of Overall, the Consumer Price Index stood at 147.5 last month, before adjusting for normal seasonal variations, compared to 144.2 in May 1993. That means that a marketbasket of goods and services that cost $144.20 a year ago would have cost $147.50 last month

Parents are warned of health hazards

Parents. Be alert for the health hazards that "come out of hibernation" as warmer weather arrives, including:

Traffic: Review kids' street and sidewalk safety habits. The smaller kids may be crossing on their own for the first time this year, and where there's a ballgame, there's a ball that can roll into the street, too.

Bike: Make sure bikes are in proper working order, that kids know the rules of the road (or sidewalk) and that they wear bike helmets. Bike safety helps prevent accidents; helmets help kids survive when accidents do happen.

Water: Start refreshing kids' swimming-safety knowledge. If you have a pool, make sure unsupervised kids can't get near it.

The Briand-Kellogg pact, outlawing war, was signed in 1928 in Paris.

Animals: Update pets' rabies vaccination, and remind the kids never to approach a wild animal. Remind kids to use caution with stray animals, too; they can be injured by wild animals.

Insects: If anyone in the family is allergic to bee or wasp stings, get a bee-sting kit to treat allergic reactions and learn how to use it. Adults and teens can carry their own kits. Spiders: All states except Alaska have the poisonous black widow. The brown recluse, also poisonous, lives primarily in the midwestern and south-central sections of the United States. Both favor warm, dark, dry places. Teach kids not to play in likely spider "hideouts."

Wounds: Cuts and scrapes are inevitable. Make sure the kids' tetanus shots are up-to-date and check your first-aid kit. Because each family's needs are different, ask your pediatrician what should be in your home first-aid kit.

Spurs last week, also has been Sandberg retires after losing love of baseball

By RICK GANO AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - Ryne Sandberg just couldn't play with the verve he demanded of himself. Baseball was losing its appeal, and he decided it was time to leave the Chicago Cubs and the game he'd loved for so long.

Sitting in the dugout last weekend, he soaked up the surroundings one last time, surveying Wrigley Field where his play at second base often had been brilliant for 13 seasons, most of them losing ones.

"It was tough. I did a lot of thinking. I looked at Wrigley Field. I will miss it," Sandberg said Monday when he stunned the city and most of baseball by announcing his retirement at age 34.

A 10-time All-Star, a winner of nine Gold gloves and a fan favorite, Sandberg leaves the game a rich man who could have been much richer.

"One morning I woke up and said, 'I'm not happy with myself,"' said Sandberg, who is leaving in the second year of a four-year, $28 million contract. The club had an option for 1997.

"I didn't have what I felt I needed to go on the field every day, give my very best and live up to the standards I set for myself. ... I do not want to just hang around. I want to be the best player I can be."

Sandberg said he had decided before spring training that this would be his last season. He wanted more don't think that was a major part of quality family time. But he just it," Sandberg said.

The team will introduce Lucas at an afternoon news conference, one day after Katz met with Lucas in Philadelphia, the newspaper said.

The team told head coach Fred Carter on Monday that his one-year contract, which expires in two weeks, will not be renewed, the Inquirer said. "I can't confirm or deny that either. I do not know that," Favorito said.

Centers haven't shown great ability in NBA finals

NEW YORK (AP) - Hakeem Olajuwon and Patrick Ewing both have enough individual credentials to reach the Hall of Fame. Only one of them will come out of this series with the honor they both want - a championship ring.

The way the NBA Finals are developing, however, one of them will emerge from the series with bitter memories of what could have

Ewing, the leading scorer in New York Knicks history, has made just 35 percent from the field in the three games so far. While he is taking plenty of shots - an average of 25 per game - he's attempted just six free he was 9-for-13 from the field - he has made just 19 of 50 shots, 38 percent from the field.

In addition, Olajuwon has just two field goals in 12 attempts in the three fourth quarters.

At times, Ewing and Olajuwon have been brilliant defensively. Both had seven blocked shots in Game 3, and Ewing is averaging 5.0 blocks to Olajuwon's 4.3.

the defensive work on the other. Knicks coach Pat Riley has used four defenders on Olajuwon - with Anthony Mason getting more and more time against him - while Ewing has missed dozens of outside shots with little pressure from Olajuwon.

With Houston leading the series 2-1, Olajuwon can afford to shrug his shoulders about his declining production.

"It's not like the regular season when you can get big numbers," he said Monday. "There are no easy baskets in the championshup series. Scoring 20 points here is hard work. When you have Mason on your back all the time, you get very sore. Scoring 20 points is like scoring 40 points in the regular season because they make you work for every point."

Olajuwon was asked if he had known he would get just two baskets in the fourth quarter of the first three game, would he have thought Houston would be behind 3-0?

"You can't always predict things in basketball," he said. "You can't say who will take the last shot or who will score the points in the fourth quarter. The fact I have two baskets in the fourth quarter makes no difference. I am content because we have won a big game on the road."

That victory came Sunday night in Game 3 as the Rockets won 93-89 when rookie Sam Cassell scored the last seven Houston points in the final 32 seconds.

Mason at 6-foot-7 is five inches shorter than Olajuwon, but weighs just as much and is probably stronger. "Height is very over-rated on Mason said the Knicks' strategy is to wear down the NBA's Most Valuable Player.

"He's too great of a player to let him be in his comfort zone," Mason said. "To be a good defender, you have to love defense. I love to frustrate players and see them complain to the referees."

Riley, with an eye toward critics who say the Knicks are making basketball a brutal game, called Mason "a tough player, a leverage player who is doing the job legitimate-

As for Ewing, Riley acknowledged that Ewing will have to take the ball to the basket more.

"In this game, you've got to earn your free throws," Riley said. "He had a lot of good shots, his normal shots, but he's playing against a great defensive center that's closing out on him strong. "I thought he hesitated maybe a dozen times when he should have just gone up and shot the ball."

Ewing said his small number of free throws is a result of a combina-

"I wasn't getting the calls in the second game," Ewing said. "I thought I got fouled on numerous occasions, but I didn't get the call. (In Game 3). I was just out of my rhythm, out of synch. I tried to pump-fake to let him run by me, and he wasn't buying it. "Come Wednesday (Game 4), I'm just going to play my game. If I have the shot, I'm going to take it instead of hesitating. Forget all the pump

But Ewing blames himself more than the officials.

"I had a lot of open shots and I didn't knock them down," he said.
"I think come Wednesday, those shots are going to fall."
Ewing left it to Olajuwon to say the two centers' reputations are secure.

"We don't have anything to prove," Olajuwon said. "We both have proved we can play. We should be relaxed and just play and not worry about losing."

Canseco's 3 HRs fuel Rangers

AP Baseball Writer doubts, Jose Canseco showed Ken Griffey Jr. and everyone else at The Ballpark that he's still Jose Canseco. Canseco hit three homers and drove in a career-high eight runs Monday night and the Texas Rangers - despite Griffey's grand slam and career-best six RBIs - trounced the Seattle Mariners 17-9.

Canseco went 5-for-6 and set a team record with 14 total bases. He also hit a 480-foot home run, the longest in Arlington since the Rangers began measuring distances in 1987. The power show - his homers traveled an estimated 1,282 feet gave Canseco 19 home runs, 62 RBIs and a .318 average, along with 12 stolen bases. Not bad, considering many thought Canseco was finished last summer after he tore up his elbow trying to pitch and missed most of the season.

"This makes me much more excited. It means all the work in the off-season has paid off," he said.

Canseco matched his career-high for homers in a game. He hit three for Oakland against the Blue Jays at Exhibition Stadium in 1988, the year he became the only major leaguer ever to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in the same season. "Tonight means much more to me," Canseco said. "The other one

Expos' Fassero flirts with no-no

Associated Press Writer The name the Montreal Expos had so much trouble with three years ago nearly went into their record book.

Jeff Fassero, a converted reliever who was thrust into the starting rotation last season, lost a no-hitter with two outs in the ninth inning Monday night when he failed to catch Carlos Garcia's line drive in the Expos' 10-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

When Fassero arrived at spring training in 1991 as a non-invitee, he gained quick notoriety by allowing a base hit to Atlanta's Nick Esasky, who was returning after a one-year layoff because of vertigo. However, Montreal newspapers referred to the unknown left-hander as either "Ralph Fazzaro" or "Jeff Fassero was involved in another near no-hitter in 1991. He relieved in the 10th inning of a June 26, 1991, game in Los Angeles after Montreal's Mark Gardner had lost his no-hitter.

Tyson denied prison release

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Mike Tyson woke up in prison again today, serving yet another day of his six-year term for rape after a judge refused to shorten his sentence.

His plea for leniency and testimony Monday by friendly witnesses who said he was ready for life on the outside failed to convince Marion Superior Court Judge Patricia The judge said Tyson had failed to meet education requirements that might have entitled him to early release. While Gifford praised the former heavyweight boxer for his efforts to improve himself, she remained baffled by his refusal to admit to what she called "inexcusable behavior."

Tyson admitted only to acting rudely toward Desiree Washington, the beauty contestant who accused him of rape three years ago.

Rangers, Canucks to clash for Stanley Cup By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Hockey Writer NEW YORK (AP) - Suddenly, the Vancouver Canucks have emerged as the team to beat in the Stanley Cup

"Obviously, we're a more confident team right now," Vancouver forward Trevor Linden said as the Canucks prepared to meet the New York Rangers tonight in the decisive York Rangers tonight in the decisive seventh game of the NHL's championship series. "I think that at the start we were in awe of the situation and maybe the circumstances. We're used to things now and we're focused on one thing, and that is winning."

Coming into the finals, the Rangers were overwhelming favorites to win their first Cup since 1940. They had finished with the best record in the NHL and had beaten the

The Canucks are 5-0 when facing elimination in these playoffs. Their marvelous 8-3 road record has had since 1940. They insist their poor play of late has been coincidental.

After all, hadn't they barely escaped the first-round series with Calgary by winning three straight games in overtime after losing three of the first four?

As it turned out, that first-round triumph only toughened them for the finals, where they have also come back from a 3-1 deficit to force a

The Rangers have heard more than they want to hear about the so-called "curse" that has allegedly prevented them from winning the Stanley Cup

Reverend doesn't shy away from politics

When House Majority Leader from politics. It only makes people Richard Gephardt visited First Baptist angry. Church in Arnold, Mo., the Rev. Gerald Davidson let him know where the church stood on abortion and homosexuality.

And when Missouri Gov. Mel Carnahan recently signed a law expanding riverboat gambling, Davidson didn't hesitate to criticize his fellow Southern Baptist by name.

The real prophet is not worrying about how people will react, Davidson says. "He's got a word from God and he's speaking out on what's moral, right and just."

In a different approach, when an effort to allow the sale of liquor was voted on (but defeated) in his community, the Rev. John Rogers of First Baptist Church in Asheboro. N.C., met and prayed with the opposition leader. He does not believe the pulpit should be used to call public officials to account by

"I just couldn't see Jesus throwing stones from the synagogue at the people," Rogers said.

The contrasting styles of Davidson and Rogers, discussed in recent interviews and in point-counterpoint articles in the Southern Baptist publication Light, offer an intriguing glimpse into the ways pastors draw the boundaries between politics and religion.

There has been no shortage of criticism on the national level. Liberal denominations were highly critical of President Reagan, and President addresses the sin of adultery but Clinton now finds himself under not personally accuse anyone. some critical scrutiny from conserva-

Last year, his own denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, criticized him for his support of abortion and gay rights. In early June, Pope John Paul II firmly stated his opposition to abortion in a meeting with Clinton, who has liberalized U.S. abortion policies.

Davidson said that when he was a young pastor, an elderly deacon gave him a piece of advice: Stay away temple as a place to attack."

Hints from Heloise

That was poor advice, in Davidson's view.

"If there is such a thing as prophetic preaching today, Scripture today is on the side of those speaking out," he said in an interview.

Those who speak out, he said, are following the biblical examples of individuals such as Samuel, who took away King Saul's mantle and said, Saul, the Lord has rent the kingdom from you"; or John the Baptist, who said to Herod, "You ought not to take your brother's wife.

The most compelling modern example of the failure of religious leaders to speak out is the Holocaust, Davidson said. Millions died as the church was weak, feeble and silent.

If America today is going to be turned around, he said in his article in Light, "we must hear again that prophetic voice that is unafraid to name sin and name those who lead us down the road to death!"

But Rogers takes a different Scriptural approach in arguing that the pulpit is not the place to throw stones at public officials or anyone

In the Gospel of John, he notes, Jesus refuses to publicly condemn a woman for adultery, telling the crowd gathered around her, "If any one of you is without sin, let him be the first to cast the stone at her." And in the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus addresses the sin of adultery but does Attacking individuals from the pulpit can serve to divide rather than build up the kingdom of God by "alienating some members or even fragmenting the church, Rogers said.

Addressing the issues is part of the prophetic mantle of the pulpit, Rogers says, but by biblical example individuals should be criticized through a personal visit, call or letter.

"Prophets went to kings directly," Rogers said. "They didn't use the

The nurse said there was no need to return. What confuses me is that I thought you could turn positive for HIV years after being exposed to it. Also, would a regular blood test give evidence of HIV? - S.L.R.

ANSWER: The nurse was quite right. The test tells if there are antibodies to the human immunodeficiency virus, which causes AIDS. If a person has been infected with HIV, corresponding antibodies show up six weeks to three months later.

test is done to make sure.

ANSWER: Acute sinusitis is inflammation — from either infection or an allergy.

The sinuses are fluid-producing caverns in the skull. The constantly produced fluid must be drained, and drainage occurs by way of open sinus channels. When those channels become blocked, bacteria multiply within and you get acute sinusitis, whose symptoms run from fever and a thick nasal discharge to pain across the cheeks, the forehead or at the bridge of the nose, depending on which of the facial sinuses are affected.

Jessica Lange lost a $250,000 lawsuit against the actress. A Circuit Court jury Thursday rejected the claim by 37-year-old Laura J. Douglas, who said she suffered chronic upper back and neck problems in the 1993 wreck between her car and one driven by Lange. Douglas admitted that diabetes had caused her chronic lower back and leg pains and that she had been on disability for five years before the wreck.

State A Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams & Ed Sterling TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Some Texas public school children might have to make do with last year's textbooks and some might have to share books with fellow students because of a $100 million funding shortfall.

Texas Education Commission spokeswoman Della May Moore said seventh-graders taking a newly offered life sciences course in the fall will have to share their textbooks. Also, texts for reading, business law and some vocational courses will be the same as last year's unless local school districts can pay for new books themselves.

All but about $5 million of the state's $272 million two-year book budget was eaten up in the 1993-94 school year, creating the $100 million shortfall.

sioner Lionel "Skip" Meno proposed that a set amount for school books be budgeted by the Legislature before education officials order books from publishers. In the past, Meno said, education officials made their requests without projecting the costs.

CAPTION

Before Meno made his proposal, Sen. Bill Ratliff, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said guidelines for publishers set by the TEA in its textbook adoption system have driven up costs.

"I think the entire system of textbook adoption is broken ... and has to be restructured," Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, told the Houston Chronicle.

Also, the $272 million book budget reportedly did not take into account the estimated 65,000 new students who enroll in Texas public schools each year.

GOP, Demos in Labels Battle

Gov. Ann Richards' speech at the Democratic Party convention in Fort Worth two weeks ago set off a flood of criticism from the religious right wing of the Texas Republican Party of Texas, and counter slams.

Richards invited alienated Republicans to join the Democratic Party after saying the Texas GOP had been taken over by "mongers of hate" who would ban abortion and dictate what is taught in public schools.

The Texas Eagle Forum re-After news of the shortfall was sponded by labeling the governor made public, Education Commis-, a "Christian-basher" and an "anti-

The Democratic Party struck back last week by criticizing the GOP's gubernatorial nominee George W. Bush for not choosing sides between factions in his own Democratic Party spokesman Joe Cutbirth said, "George W. Bush wants to lead the state of Texas, but he won't stand up to the radical right and take leadership of his own party. Mainstream Republicans and reform-minded Texans want a governor who isn't afraid to fight for Texas." But the Bush campaign responded by saying that the Richards campaign is just trying to divert attention from the governor's record, and claimed that Richards did not participate in forming her party's platform. Speaker Pete Laney Saluted

More than 2,000 constituents and friends from every part of Texas crowded into Plainview's Ollie Liner Center last week to pay tribute to House Speaker Pete

The mostly boots and jeans crowd included former Gov. Preston Smith, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, Secretary of State Ron Kirk, 77 legislators and former House Speakers Billy Clayton and Gib Lewis. All praised Laney for integrity, fairness and leadership ability.

"Pete Laney brings common sense, the knowledge of working with people in both parties and getting the job done," said Bullock. 'He's tight-fisted with a buck, yet he has a vision that helps every school in Texas."

The catered dinner - beans. combread and barbecue - was free to everyone who attended.

"Pete's a person without any pretentions. What you see is what you get," said banker John Anderson, chairman of the event.

Organizers said they wanted to thank Laney for his service in the Legislature since 1973.

last week the state cannot force Texas Ku Klux Klan leader Michael Lowe to divulge the secret list of his group's members.

In a decision reached without hearing oral arguments, the court said the state was wrong to jail Lowe, Knights of the KKK grand dragon, for refusing to surrender membership lists.

The trial court had ordered Lowe to release membership lists, but the high court said the "rights to form, discuss and express unpopular views" were protected fundamental

Candidate wants schools to be given option on TEA

By JOHN McFARLAND Associated Press Writer

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) - The Republican gubernatorial nominee is touting an education reform program that would permit school districts to withdraw from the Texas Education Agency and set their own curriculum.

'One size fits all has failed," Bush said Monday to about 300 members of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

His plan calls for letting school districts, with voter approval, "secede" from the Texas Education Agency if they are significantly funded and meet other specified

Bush, who is challenging Democratic incumbent Ann Richards for the governor's seat, said the state agency shouldn't decide what is taught in every district.

Texas schools also need to move away from reliance on property taxes as a major source of funding, Bush said, adding that education should be funded based on how much money it takes to teach each student.

Richards' spokeswoman Cindy

Rugeley said Bush has flip-flopped on the education issue, and the governor has her own plan.

"What the George W. Bush plan attempts to do is turn back the clock on education reform in Texas," she said. "Ann Richards supports a plan that allows schools to be flexible, but at the same time meet the standards.

"We're ready to move out of school finance and into areas of educa ion and other issues that make our schools better.

While stressing that education should be the state's primary concern, Bush said Texas needs also to crack down on crime, to revamp the welfare system and to clear the courts of frivolous lawsuits.

Bush said he would focus on juvenile crime because Texas laws dealing with youngsters are "outdat-ed, outmoded and absolutely ineffective" and in desperate need of "Individuals must be held accountable for their behavior," he said, adding that children who commit serious crimes are being treated like "they broke a window."

parole for sex offenders and murderers, who he says cannot be rehabilitated. County jails that are overcrowded from state prison overflow could be eased with temporary shelters like tents and barracks, he said. "If it's good enough for military people, it ought to be good enough for Texas prisoners," Bush said.

Ms. Rugeley said Richards also has called for the Juvenile Justice Code to be rewritten and that a Senate committee is working on it.

"While he's out there talking about things, Gov. Ann Richards is out there taking actions on these issues," she said. Richards has significantly reduced the number of prisoners being paroled, Ms. Rugeley

Last week's Republican convention in Fort Worth went smoothly, Bush said, noting that little infighting

In an interview after the speech, he said the convention wasn't "that acrimonious," and the party platform was similar to that of 1990.

A member of the convention asked Bush if his school plan might include support for the teaching of "pseudo science" creationism, a reference to a position supported by some members of the religious right.

Bush didn't address the particular issue of creationism vs. evolution, but said each district could handle that topic individually under his "home rule" plan.

"I believe in the school district," ought to be mandated at a local level."

Public forum to be held on EEIS plan

AMARILLO -- A proposal for the Educator Excellence Indicator System, a tool to evaluate training programs for educators, will be discussed at a public form in the Region XVI Education Services Center on June 23. The forum will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Room ABC of the center, located at 1600 S. Cleveland.

All people interested in improving the quality of preparation and training for teachers and administrators are invited to attend.

The Educator Excellence Indicator System plan was developed by the Texas Commission on Standards for the Teaching Profession, a group of higher education and public school administrators and faculty. Deans at colleges of education and staff at the Texas Education Agency also cooperated in the design.

The purpose of the EEIS is to assess whether educator preparation programs are able to produce effective educators and to use resources wisely.

The plan envisions a shared database of statistical and qualitative information, which will include data from public schools, colleges and universities, test results and other

Results will be made available to the public.

Statistical measures are proposed so that quality standards are fairly applied to all programs which train educators for their professional roles.

Public discussion and suggestions are essential for the success of this project.

Texas Congressman will not declare war on peanut program

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Congressman Dick Armey, who is a vociferous critic of the federal peanut program, won't attempt the all-out war that defenders of the program were bracing for this year.

Defenders of the program were expecting the Lewisville Republican to launch an all-out war.

That might happen next year, but Armey said that for the time being he'll just try to take a bite out of the program that guarantees peanut producers a minimum price and limits

When the House considers the 1995 agriculture appropriations bill, possibly as early as Thursday, Armey said he plans to offer an amendment that could save the government $14 million annually.

Many advocates of the peanut program had said they expected Armey to offer language abolishing the entire program.

Instead, his measure would instruct the federal government to buy peanuts for its school lunch and other food assistance programs from producers who don't participate in the peanut program, top aide Brian Gunderson said Monday.

Those peanuts cost about one-fifth that of the quote peanuts in the form that of the quota peanuts in the farm program, which offers price supports and sets production limits.

Armey unsuccessfully sought to kill the peanut program during debate over the 1990 bill authorizing farm programs for five years.

Although Armey probably will try to do that again next year when Congress considers the next five-year farm authorization, he never considered offering his termination amendment this week, Gunderson

Armey has long campaigned

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT against the peanut program on grounds that it drives up prices for consumers. He frequently cites Congressional Budget Office projections that the program will cost taxpayers $100 million a year through 2000.

His efforts to end the program may be complicated by new CBO figures showing the program would have no cost to taxpayers in the next five years if the worldwide trade accord known as GATT is implemented.

"These new CBO numbers disprove the Armey argument," said Rep. Sanford Bishop, D-Ga., whose district is the largest peanut-producing region in the nation. "In fact, based on the CBO projections, the peanut program will

The difference in the two CBO estimates stems from GATT provisions that would limit peanut butter imports to 1993 levels, driving up the demand for domestic peanuts.

If GATT is enacted, the peanut program could post a $42 million surplus over five years, CBO said. Advocates contend the new numbers knock some of the wind out of Armey's sails.

Armey countered: "These taxpayer costs could be relieved if GATT passes, but only because the peanut lobby will arrange for high tariffs and other devices to force consumers to pay more at the grocery

"In the world of the peanut lobbyists, the way to avoid taxpayer costs is to force consumers to pay more," he added. "They need to understand that taxpayers and consumers are the same people."

Armey notes that the peanut program results in higher supermarket prices for consumers.

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, concluded in a 1993 report that the peanut program costs consumers $314 million to $513 million yearly in higher prices for peanut butter and other peanut products.
