House Post Office scandal may get new investigation

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Post Office scandal is getting a second wind in Congress, a week after Rep. Dan Rostenkowski was indicted in a related corruption probe by federal prosecutors.

Republicans have negotiated a concession from the U.S. attorney's office that could spark a new House investigation, one designed to determine - once and for all - whether lawmakers violated their own standards of conduct.

Prosecutors agreed Wednesday to drop their objection to public release of records from an earlier congressional probe of the House Post Office, according to William Pitts, an aide to House GOP Leader Bob Michel of Illinois.

An aide to U.S. Attorney Eric H. Holder Jr. confirmed House leaders are to receive a letter, probably today, confirming the agreement. Michel will then seek a vote on releasing the records. The aides spoke on condition they not be identified.

A new House investigation - this time by the chamber's ethics committee - could embarrass the Democratic leadership, which was responsible for running the post office before it became part of a new, nonpolitical House operation.

Republicans believe the documents will make it clear that further investigation is warranted to determine whether several members might have received illegal cash from the post office and whether there was an effort by the House Democratic leadership to squelch investigation of post office operations.

A House Democratic leadership aide said the leadership's opposition to a new probe had been based on objections by the U.S. attorney's office and if those objections no longer existed there would be no reason to resist release of the records.

The records will come from an investigation by the Committee on House Administration. That probe concluded the post office was mismanaged, but found no wrongdoing by lawmakers or top House officers.

But it became clear later that the findings in July 1992 might have been different had congressional investigators known that former postmaster

Robert Rota lied to them.

The transcripts from the House probe now can be compared with court documents from Rota's guilty plea in July 1993. In admitting to embezzlement and conspiracy, Rota said he provided lawmakers with illegal cash from the post office. He told the court he lied to the congressional investigators.

Last July, The Associated Press reviewed the transcript of Rota's House testimony. When asked whether members redeemed stamps for personal cash, he said, "Not to my knowledge, sir."

Also to be made public from the House probe would be testimony by Capitol Police officers, who, according to news reports and congressional investigators, accused top House officials of trying to quash their investigation of wrongdoing at the post office. Democratic leaders have denied doing any such thing.

The House's image sustained another setback last week when a prosecutors' related probe produced a 17-count corruption indictment of Rostenkowski, D-Ill., forcing him from the chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee.

HUMIDITY

a weak cool front Wednesday night. But that didn't help much in the afternoon, as temperatures were in the 90s and heat indexes were in the 100s all over North Texas. Mineral Wells had a heat index of 110. In the meantime, though, air conditioners were strained.

Guidelines may bump enchiladas from menu

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The man in charge of school lunches at San Antonio knows that enchiladas are fattening and he knows that new federal requirements call for schools to cut the fat from cafeteria fare.

But John Duffy also knows what would happen if he cut the cheesy tortilla treats from the menu at San Antonio schools.

"Sure, we're serving enchiladas one day a week. But if you take away enchiladas from this area of the nation, you're going to be looking for another job," said Duffy, executive director of food services for the San Antonio School District.

Students still can enjoy enchiladas so long as they are provided with less fatty meals the rest of the week, Duffy said Wednesday.

The Agriculture Department Wednesday unveiled new rules requiring schools to meet the government's nutritional guidelines for citizens.

Under the plan, no more than 30 percent of lunch calories can come from fat and no more than 10 percent from saturated fat.

The plans call for reducing sodium and cholesterol levels while adding fiber. That means less salt and more fruits, vegetables and grain. Schools must make an effort to meet those guidelines, based on an average weekly menu, by 1998.

Many school food supervisors knew for more than a year that the government was working on a leaner meal plan for students and have taken steps to meet the federal goal.

Cafeteria chefs in the North East School District have experimented with low-fat gravy recipes and are using low-fat mayonnaise and salad dressings. Chef salads and baked potatoes are offered as alternatives to the meal entree.

South Texas was humid with afternoon temperatures were again in the 100s. Del Rio hit 102, and the Central Texas town of Junction had a high of 104. The forecast calls for little change, as Thursday's South Texas highs should reach into the 100s.

The Houston District Office of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service announced it would close until Friday because its cooling systems and computers crashed.

"We normally hit summer demand at the end of July," concurred John Hardesty of Texas Utilities Electric in Dallas. "This seems like an early start on a hot month and high usage."

Survivors include his wife; three sons, Lynn Brisendine of Brownfield, Trent Brisendine of Lubbock, and Mickey Brisendine of Hereford; one daughter, Diann Burns of Salisbury, Md., and nine grandchildren.

TEXAS LOTTERY

By The Associated Press
No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials say.

The numbers drawn Wednesday night from a field of 50 were 8-16-20-26-38-40.

There were 332 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $899. There were 14,696 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $73. And there were 223,396 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $28 million.

Meno eyes textbook adoption shortfall remedies

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - In hopes of keeping the state from ever again running short of money for planned textbook purchases, Texas Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno is proposing changes in the way the books are adopted.

The State Board of Education is scheduled to vote Friday on the proposal.

School districts aren't receiving state-paid updated textbooks in several subjects next fall, such as health, because books purchased for the 1993-94 school year ate up almost the entire two-year textbook budget of $272 million.

That means they'll use current books for another year, Meno said. School districts also could use local money to buy new books.

State-paid textbooks for a new seventh-grade science course also will be in short supply.

Meno said Wednesday the state is buying enough of those books so every classroom will have a set. But they will be shared by several different classes, so students can't take them home each day.

The cost of buying all the updated books that had been planned on this two-year period was about $370 million, Meno said. But lawmakers couldn't fund that much, he said, so education officials scaled back their request and decided to put some books on hold.

The problem arose because in the past, the state has solicited textbooks in various subjects without projecting how much they will cost, Meno said.

The cost was determined after publishers put in their bids to the State Board of Education. Until the 1993 legislative session, the Legislature has been able to meet the cost, he said.

Meno is proposing that officials in the future settle on what amount the Legislature will provide before soliciting textbooks, "and then you look back from that amount in terms of what you're going to buy."

"Therefore, we wouldn't have this problem of something being planned to be put in place and then not have enough money to do it," he said.

He also wants to require publishers to submit for Education Board approval supplementary materials - such as slides or worksheets - that are provided at no charge to school districts along with textbooks.

"My position is there's no such thing as free. It's being paid for by the cost of the textbook, therefore it ought to be part of the submission," he said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Bob Barker says he'll countersue the "Price is Right" model who accused him of sexual harassment.

"As God is my witness, I have never forced her to do one thing she did not want to do, ever, sexually or any other way," Barker said Wednesday.

The 70-year-old television host said he was humiliated by charges he forced Dian Parkinson to have sex with him while she was a model on his show. He has admitted to "hanky-panky," which he claims she initiated.

"When we go to court, I'm going to sue her for malicious prosecution. I'm going to recoup my legal fees and give everything else to charity," he said.

Parkinson filed a lawsuit Monday in Los Angeles Superior Court seeking unspecified damages for sexual harassment, employment discrimination and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

COMMERCE, Calif. (AP) - Barbra Streisand has either sat on it, sipped from it or polished it.

An eclectic collection of more than 100 household items from her three Malibu homes will be up for grabs during a giant garage sale of sorts by the A.N. Abell Auction Co.

"This is a veritable feast, clearly possessions that one would have had a great deal of fun acquiring and owning. This collection reflects such humor, such a wide range of interests," said auction house president Robert Abell.

A French decanter, waffle irons, a toaster, jugs, cups, saucers, rugs, sofas and chairs are among the items to be offered Sunday.

Streisand donated the houses this year to the Santa Monica Mountains Conservancy.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The title just about says it all: "My Billy Ray Cyrus Story: Some Gave Too Much."

Kari Reeves' kiss-and-tell book claims she had a four-year affair with singer the popular country singer.

Reeves, the daughter of Grand Ole Opry star Del Reeves, writes that Cyrus had been married for two years when they became intimate in 1988.

"Each morning we awoke in each other's arms in a place where we shouldn't be but wanted to be," she writes.

Jack McFadden, Cyrus' manager, refused to comment on the book.

Cyrus, 32, became a star in 1992 with his song "Achy Breaky Heart." Reeves, 33, says she met Cyrus in 1988 when she interviewed him for a magazine article.

RENO, Nev. (AP) - A bankrupt man shouldn't be spending thousands of dollars to keep his pet penguins happy. Or so Wayne Newton's creditors say.

"In spite of his bankruptcy status, Newton has, among other things, spent almost $75,000 repairing the pond at his home for his pet penguins, over $76,000 on jewelry," said Jennifer Smith, a lawyer for one of Newton's creditors.

Smith said Wednesday talks would continue with Newton's lawyers until a June 29 hearing on the bankruptcy.

Newton filed for bankruptcy protection in August 1992, listing estimated debts at $20 million.

Since then, the creditors' lawyers allege Newton has refused to make payments on his debts, despite $12.3 million in gross earnings.

Displayer of the month

Richard Martinez, shown with his son, Rick, is exhibiting awards and trophies he has won for running this month at the Deaf Smith County Library. The honors will be on display at the library through June.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please publish this letter for daughters-in-law who are having problems with their mothers-in-law. They need all the help they can get.

DEAR OTHER MOTHER: What follows are some ideas that your daughters-in-law would dearly love to get across to you but don't have the nerve.

1. Get into the 20th century before it closes. You were an obedient daughter and allowed your mother to push you around. It's natural to want to get even, but you do NOT have the right to run your children's lives.

2. Take responsibility for your own health. Doing things that are self-destructive does not prove your independence, nor does it obligate your children to rescue you when you get sick.

3. Don't expect custodial care. Just because you took it upon yourself to keep your own mother after she became senile and disabled, your heroics do not entitle you to the same treatment from your daughters-in-law. These are different times, and they may have different ideas.

4. You had only sons. Tough luck. It is unrealistic for you to expect your daughters-in-law to fulfill the requirements of a daughter. We have mothers of our own.

5. When you have a fight with a daughter-in-law, don't expect the rest of the family to take your side. If you are upset because they refuse to become involved, get over it.

6. Take responsibility for your own social life. If you haven't made friends of your own along the way, that's your hard luck. Don't expect to be included in our social circle. You don't fit.

7. It is unfair to you to expect us to always visit you. The road allows traffic in both directions. You are in good health, and there is plenty of convenient transportation available. Come and see us once in a while.

8. Believe it or not, we do love you.—Daughters-in-Law

DEAR D.I.L.: That last proclamation came as a jolt. After laying down seven hard-boiled guidelines, your attempt to make nice fell rather flat.

You've put forth some valid points, but I'm sure a great many daughters-in-law will be appalled by the harshness of your presentation. I'll bet I hear from a lot of them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife snores to the high heavens. The house reverberates with the sound waves of this nocturnal wonder.

When questioned about it, she denies that she snores and insists that I am making the whole thing up. She then has the audacity to accuse ME of snoring.

The problem is that while I allow her to snore like an elk, she refuses to grant me the same courtesy and finds it necessary to do bodily harm in the form of elbow-to-rib confrontation.

I am convinced that my wife is responding to her latent primordial instincts—namely, if in the black of night you are confronted with a shapeless mass making strange sounds, kill the thing and ask questions later.—Paul in Malibu

DEAR PAUL: I don't condone murder—not even for 40-decibel snorers. I recommend earplugs. If they don't do the job, try separate bedrooms.

Gem of the Day: Cats are definitely smarter than dogs. You will never see eight cats pulling a sled through the snow.

The opera "Tristan and Isolde" by Richard Wagner premiered in 1865 in Munich, Germany.

Rockets trip Knicks in ugly opener

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Houston was lured into a low-scoring game of attrition in the second half by the New York Knicks, who usually thrive on that situation.

That the Rockets won anyway had them feeling lucky, like someone who just ducked one of those Nolan Ryan fastballs that used to fly around these parts.

"This is the worst we've played in awhile," guard Kenny Smith said after Houston escaped with an 85-78 victory in the opener of the NBA Finals on Wednesday night. "We were fortunate to get away with a win. Carl Herrera looked like he was the only one that had been playing all along."

While the Rockets complained of rustiness after an eight-day layoff, the one player who looked sharp was Herrera, the reserve center-forward from Venezuela who last played on May 17. Herrera, averaging 2.8 points in the playoffs, finished with 10 on 5-for-6 shooting, helping Houston build a first-half lead it never lost.

The Rockets won despite scoring only 31 points in the second half, just one more than the worst performance for any half in Finals history. They did it by playing the Knicks' style almost as well as the Knicks do - holding New York to 32 points in the second half.

Those 63 points by both teams were a whopping 10 less than the previous second-half scoring low in the Finals. Seattle and Washington combined for 73 in 1979.

Houston has a reputation for relying on Hakeem Olajuwon and the 3-pointer, but the Rockets used their underrated defense to stay ahead of the Knicks throughout the second half, although New York closed a 12-point deficit to three in the fourth period.

Olajuwon did his part in the first half, scoring 19 points on 9-for-13 shooting. But in the second half, he had just nine more points and missed eight of nine shots from the field.

Because New York matched Houston's four 3-pointers and because the Rockets made just 26 percent of their shots in the second half, it would be logical to assume that the Knicks could win down the stretch, a strategy that proved victorious earlier in the playoffs.

But by making just 24 percent - 12-for-50 - in the second half, New York just didn't have the offense to make a successful run.

"We had a chance to win the game if we just make the shots," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "But that's a universal disease of ours. We let it slip away at the free-throw line and from the perimeter."

Especially from the perimeter, where John Starks was 3-for-18, Derek Harper 3-for-10 and Hubert Davis 1-for-6. Center Patrick Ewing, despite his 23 points, also was forced outside for most of his shots and missed 16 of 26.

"We had a chance, but they made the plays and we didn't," Harper said. "We weren't able to knock down the shots, and that cost us the game."

"It was the kind of game we wanted. In the second half, our defense began to wear on them," said Riley, who lost for the first time in nine playoff series openers as Knicks coach. "But we got this far by making shots, and if we had been able to step up and make some shots, we would have been able to win."

The Rockets had last played on May 31 against Utah in the Western Conference finals, and they admitted the layoff was a bother.

"There's nothing like a game situation," said guard Vernon Maxwell, just 4-for-16 for the Rockets. "In the next game Friday, I'm sure I'll do a lot better."

Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said the layoff "definitely affected us. We had great looks at the basket that we didn't take advantage of. Defense carried us."

"It was like a football game played in mud where X's and O's didn't mean much," Tomjanovich said.

The Rockets, ahead 54-46 after shooting 53 percent in the first half, had a 77-65 lead with 8:53 left that New York trimmed to 79-76 with 2:13 remaining. But a free throw by Olajuwon and a dunk by Otis Thorpe, who had 16 rebounds, built the lead to 82-76 with 1:02 left.

A jumper by Hubert Davis cut the Houston lead to 82-78, and when Robert Horry missed a 3-pointer with 38 seconds left, New York had a chance.

Ewing, hoping to lift the Knicks to victory the way he did in the clincher against Indiana with a rebound dunk with 26 seconds remaining, missed a 3-pointer with 27 seconds to play.

Houston finished the scoring with a free throw by Maxwell with 21 seconds left and two by Sam Cassell with 7.4 seconds remaining.

Indian relievers quiet Griffey in 5-3 Tribe win

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Even the great Ken Griffey Jr. can't come through every time. Griffey struck out against Derek Lilliquist with two runners on to end the seventh inning, then flied out against Paul Shuey with two runners on in the ninth Wednesday night as the Seattle Mariners lost to the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

The Indians had lost nine in a row at the Kingdome since Aug. 26, 1992, and Griffey was in position to send Cleveland to another loss. But Griffey, batting .324 and leading the majors with 24 home runs, hit a fly ball in the ninth with runners on first and second, and Shuey followed by striking out Jay Buhner for his third save.

"I'm used to working with men on base," Shuey said. "If Buhner hits it out, that's fine. If Griffey hits it out, that's fine, too. I might be back in the minor leagues, but I'm fighting as hard as I can to stay here because I like it here."

Albert Belle and Manny Ramirez hit home runs off John Cummings

(1-2) that helped Cleveland take a 4-2 lead.

Mark Clark (7-1) won his fifth straight decision. He went 6 2-3 innings and Lilliquist, the losing pitcher in the first two games of the series, struck out Griffey to end the seventh.

Rangers 6, Yankees 5
Texas reached .500 for the first time this season as Dan Smith and Darren Oliver provided late relief. The host Rangers (28-28) had lost in their previous seven tries at getting to the break-even point.

Smith (1-0) was called up from the minors and earned his first major-league win. He stranded two runners in the sixth inning and escaped a bases-loaded jam in the seventh.

Oliver took over in the ninth with the score 6-4 after New York loaded the bases with no outs against Rick Honeycutt. He got Gerald Williams to ground into a double play with his first pitch and retired Bob Melvin on a foul pop for his first major-league save.

Bernie Williams and Mike Stanley homered for the Yankees. Melido Perez (3-3) was the loser.

Tigers 14, Red Sox 5
Cecil Fielder singled twice during a 10-run fifth inning and also hit his 15th homer as Detroit beat visiting Boston.

Chris Gomez drove in four runs, two of them with a double in the fifth. Junior Felix and Lou Whitaker also had two-run doubles and Chad Kreuter hit a two-run single.

Mo Vaughn and Rich Rowland hit home runs off winner Bill Gullickson (4-4). Rookie Gar Finnfold (0-3) was chased in the fourth inning.

Jackson opened the ninth with singles off Darren Hall (1-2), tying it at 2. One out later, LaValliere singled up the middle.

Dane Johnson (1-0) got four outs for the win. Ed Sprague homered for the visiting Blue Jays.

Angels 5, Twins 4
Spike Owen led off with a home run and Bo Jackson hit a two-run homer later in the first inning. The host Angels won for only the second time in 10 games.

Owen connected against Jim Deshaies (2-6) for his first home run since last June 19. Jackson hit his seventh homer of the season.

Mark Langston (3-4) ended his four-game losing streak and Joe Grahe got his ninth save.

Marlins rally for win against Dodgers' struggling bullpen

By The Associated Press

If the Los Angeles Dodgers had a better bullpen, they'd probably be up by more than two games in the NL West.

The Dodgers' bullpen blew its 15th save in 24 opportunities, failing to hold a 4-2 lead in the ninth inning of a 5-4 loss to the Florida Marlins Wednesday night.

"The kid is the hero," Diaz said of Tavarez. "The hitter that ties the game is more the hero than the guy that wins the game."

Astros 9, Expos 2
At Montreal, Jeff Bagwell hit two home runs and pitcher Brian Williams went 2-for-4 and drove in the deciding runs.

Williams (3-2), a career .136 hitter before this season, broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth with a two-out, two-run single to left on an 0-2 pitch from Jeff Fassero (4-4).

Bagwell's home runs, a three-run shot in the seventh and a solo homer in the fourth, were his 14th and 15th of the season.

Andy Van Slyke, back in the lineup after a two-game benching, tripled in a run. Orlando Merced also had a run-scoring triple and Lance Parrish added an RBI single in a two-run second inning against Salomon Torres (2-4).

Neagle (6-6) was making his 28th start in the majors and 12th of the season.

Rickey Henderson opened the Athletics' first with a homer, extending his major league record for leadoff home runs to 64. But the A's did little else in eight innings against Ricky Bones (6-4).

Greg Vaughn homered in the Brewers second. In the eighth, Bill Spiers led off with a single against Vince Horsman (0-1) and scored on Nilsson's one-out double. John Jaha and Matt Mieske later hit consecutive two-run doubles.

White Sox 3, Blue Jays 2
Darrin Jackson and Mike LaValliere hit RBI singles in the bottom of the ninth inning that rallied Chicago over Toronto.

This time, the culprits were Todd Worrell (3-3) and Al Osuna. Worrell blew a save for the fifth time in seven save chances this season and Osuna gave up a sharp single to Mario Diaz for the game-winning hit.

"I'm not getting any outs," Worrell said. "I'm not making good enough pitches to get the outs."

He isn't making a friend of his manager, either.

Tom Lasorda was irate after the game, upset that Worrell conceded a stolen base to Chuck Carr, who scored the tying run from second on a single by Jesus Tavarez.

"That's not what we told him to do," Lasorda said. "I don't know how you can let the tying run go to second base without holding him. I've never heard of that."

On Monday, Los Angeles blew a 9-3 lead and lost 11-10 to the Marlins. The Dodgers fell to 1-5 on their current road trip. In the past four games, the bullpen has allowed 18 hits and 11 earned runs in 4 1-3 innings for an ERA of 22.85.

Tavarez's hit drove in Kurt Abbott and Carr, and the ball eluded left fielder Cory Snyder when he tried to make a shoestring catch. Tavarez made it to second on the error, then raced home on Diaz's hit, sliding in head-first when center fielder Brett Butler's throw was wide up the third-base line.

Bret Saberhagen (6-3) overcame an early 3-0 deficit and held a 4-3 lead entering the eighth before Colorado rallied. Marcus Moore (1-1) got the victory by pitching the eighth and Bruce Ruffin worked the ninth for his eighth save.

Phillies 3, Cubs 0
At Philadelphia, David West pitched seven strong innings.

West (2-5) allowed three hits, struck out five and walked two, and allowed only two runners to reach second base.

Kevin Foster (0-1) gave up all three runs on three hits in five innings.

Pirates 3, Giants 1
At Montreal, Denny Neagle pitched his first complete game in 124 major-league appearances, shutting down San Francisco on four hits.

Braves 5, Padres 2
At Atlanta, Terry Pendleton had three hits and three RBIs and Tom Glavine (7-5) allowed a run on six hits and struck out seven in seven innings.

Pendleton, who entered the game in a 15-for-120 slump, keyed a three-run first inning with an RBI single off Wally Whitehurst (4-7). Pendleton also had RBI doubles in the fifth and seventh innings.

Cardinals 8, Reds 2
At St. Louis, Terry McGriff drove in three runs and Allen Watson won his second consecutive start.

McGriff, the Cardinals' backup catcher, had a two-run double off John Smiley (4-8) in the second and an RBI groundout in the sixth. Watson (4-3) allowed two runs on four hits with three strikeouts before a blister on the middle finger of his pitching hand forced him out in the sixth.

Orioles 6, Royals 4
Cal Ripken homered for the second straight night and also keyed a rally in the seventh inning that sent visiting Baltimore over Kansas City.

Ripken hit his sixth homer off Bob Milacki (0-1) in the third inning, then

State baseball tourney features familiar teams

AUSTIN (AP) - The University Interscholastic League boys state baseball tournament began play today loaded with past state title winners.

But only 1993 Class 3A Hooks returned to Austin after playing in the 1993 tournament. There are no defending champions.

In Class 5A, two-time titlist Lubbock Monterey returned to the state tournament for the first time since 1985. The Plainsmen (33-9), making their 11th state tournament appearance, won 5A titles in 1972 and 1974 and finished as runner-up in 1961, 1971 and 1978.

Monterey, which faces Corpus Christi Moody (28-5) today, is led by senior pitchers Scott Brand (11-3) and Britt Carmichael (10-2). Moody is led by junior pitcher Joe Luis Lopez, who is a perfect 16-0 this season.

In the other semifinal, Houston Bellaire (34-3-1) was scheduled to meet Lufkin (27-7).

Bellaire, which won the 5A title in its only other state tournament appearance in 1986, is led by pitcher Richard Crosby (11-2), who is batting .344 this season.

Lufkin, the 5A champs in 1963 and runner-up in 1958, is making its eighth state tournament appearance, led by pitchers Robert Keens (13-3) and Ryan Foley (10-0).

In Class 4A, six-time state titlist Brenham (32-3) heads the semifinal field and was to take on Big Spring (27-8), which reached the state tournament in 1992.

Carthage (28-5), 4A state champs in 1990, was pitted against tournament newcomer Belton (33-6) in the other bracket.

In Class 3A, Hooks (19-11), a finalist in 3A in 1987 is the only team with 1993 tournament experience in the semifinals. Hooks was to meet Alpine (27-3), led by pitcher Ben Gallego (14-1). In the other semifinal, Orange Grove (20-3) faced Robinson (27-4).

In Class 2A, Holliday (25-1) is making its fifth tournament appearance. Holliday was pitted against Pineland West Sabine (20-7). Tournament newcomer East Bernard (24-2-1) faced Palmer (28-4-1), which is making its sixth tournament appearance, including a Class B championship in 1979.

In Class 1A, Gunter (22-2) was paired against D'Hanis (18-9), the runner-up in 1A in 1990. The other semifinal features Trinidad (25-4) against Gorman (19-7).

Owners send tough message to players

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) - It looks like baseball players and owners are set to go to war again.

Owners, in an effort to show their unity, voted unanimously Wednesday to require a three-quarters vote instead of a simple majority to approve a labor agreement during a strike.

Donald Fehr, head of the Major League Baseball Players Association, called the development "ominous" and "extraordinarily negative."

"It would allow eight owners to perpetuate a dispute," Fehr said from Washington. "That is not a step in the right direction. It's a direction of people preparing for war."

Owners voted unanimously to give negotiator Richard Ravitch the go-ahead to present a salary cap proposal to the union. He will make the proposal Tuesday in New York, and the union's executive board will meet next Thursday in Chicago to discuss it.

Ravitch said the change in the voting requirement was meant to send a message that owners are serious about the salary cap plan.

The owners' three-day meeting concludes today with a report from expansion committee head John Harrington of the Boston Red Sox. Harrington said no votes or major announcements are expected.

Wednesday's other main business was the election of Gene Budig to succeed Bobby Brown as AL president on Aug. 1. Budig has been chancellor of the University of Kansas for 13 years and a director of the Kansas City Royals.

Olajuwon gets help from Rockets' forwards

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets' MVP was tired but his supporting cast wasn't.
Hakeem Olajuwon scored 28 points and gave Houston an early boost but the Rockets needed the help of Otis Thorpe and Carl Herrera to dispose of the New York Knicks 85-78 on Wednesday night in Game 1 of the NBA Final.
"I was tired," Olajuwon said. "New York is a very physical team and they did a good job on me and I didn't have any energy to fight back. I was just trying to stay in the game."

When Olajuwon tired from the constant battering from the Knicks, Thorpe and Herrera picked up the pace, Thorpe with offensive rebounding and Herrera with 10 important points since recovering from a separated shoulder.
The Rockets, among the worst offensive rebounders in the league, got 12 on the offensive end against the Knicks. Thorpe had 14 points and 16 rebounds, six of them offensive.
"His numbers don't speak for what he does for this team," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "In the first series he had to go up against Buck Williams, and Cliff Robinson, then he has since played Charles Barkley and Karl Malone."

"We could not have won without his great effort tonight. He has been great for us in every series we've played."
The Rockets outrebounded the Knicks 37-32 but lost out 13-12 on the offensive boards.
"He (Thorpe) lived off what Hakeem did not get, he's a real force," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. Herrera was determined to come back and play in the Finals despite the shoulder separation he received May 17 in Game 5 of the Western Conference semifinal against Phoenix.

He took advantage of Houston's 8-day layoff after clinching the Western Conference title to get his aching shoulder ready. He hit 5 of 6 shots for 10 points and boosted the Rockets in the second quarter.
"My shoulder didn't hurt at all, even when I jammed it," Herrera said. "I was more concerned about the team being off as long as they were. I had to work harder just to get back to normal playing condition."

Herrera, who blossomed this season as a key backup for Olajuwon and Thorpe, didn't worry about the Knicks' physical reputation.
"It was so intense out there, something had to suffer and tonight it had to be the shooting," Herrera said.
The lack of outside shooting by the Rockets, put the heat on Thorpe to get more offensive rebounds.

"We had to go more for offensive rebounds because our perimeter shots weren't falling," Thorpe said. "Of course, that means I had more opportunities."
"The fourth period we always talk about execution. Tonight, it wasn't there so I had to rebound. We had to hit free throws and hang in there. We had no trouble with fatigue."
"Both teams had problems with jitters. But it's a relief that we were able to get the win and get off to a good start," Thorpe said.

Fatigue affects Knicks' shooting

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - One after another, shots thrown up by New York's overworked arms clanged off the rim. Horrible shooting cost the Knicks a chance to capitalize on Houston's own wayward attempts.
Ultimately, it cost them Wednesday night's opener of the NBA Finals, won by the rusty Rockets 85-78.
The Knicks, with just two days to rest after their second straight grueling, seven-game playoff series, made only 12 of 50 shots in the second half and 31 of 91 for the game.
Fatigue, they said, was not a factor.
"We had open shots, but they just didn't go down," said Charles Smith, one of two Knicks to hit more than half his shots. "Houston gave us every opportunity to win the game."
The Rockets, coming off an eight-day layoff, hit only 2 of 13 shots in the fourth quarter when their 77-65 lead dropped to 79-76 with 2:13 left.
But with 1:40 to go, New York's John Starks launched an airball on a 3-pointer that could have tied the game. After Hubert Davis' basket cut Houston's lead to 82-78 with 1:00 left, the Knicks missed their last four shots - two 3-pointers by Patrick Ewing, one by Starks and a 2-pointer by Davis.

"It's the playoffs, and it's time to step up and knock the shots down," said Charles Oakley, who went 6-for-11. "You can't think about being tired at this time of the season because you only play seven games" if the Finals go the distance.
"There's no time to be tired," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "We're professionals and we're in shape. We played two seven-game series, but that's no excuse this time of year. That ring should create enough adrenaline."
It didn't do much for New York's streaky shooting guards.
Starks was 3-for-18. Derek Harper, the other starter, was 3-for-10. Davis was 1-for-6. Only Greg Anthony shot respectably at 3-for-7. That's a combined 10-for-41.

performance in 19 playoff games.
"Against a great defensive team like theirs, when you're presented with a shot, you have to take the shot," Riley said when asked if the Knicks had poor shot selection. "I don't know if John should have pulled up on that 3 (with 1:40 remaining), but he's made some of those in the past for us."
Houston, which held Utah to 33 percent shooting in the clinching game of the Western Conference final, limited New York to 34.1 percent.
But the Rockets struggled themselves. Vernon Maxwell, Houston's counterpart to Starks in emotional style and willingness to shoot 3-pointers, was a dismal 4-for-16.
The Rockets made 53.5 percent of their shots in the first half and 26 percent in the second as New York nearly wore them down.

Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said the layoff since the end of the Utah series on May 31 "definitely affected us. We had great looks at the basket that we didn't take advantage of. Defense carried us."

Violent crime increase by teens prompts cities to adopt curfews

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - A steady increase in violent crime among Texas juveniles, fueled by gangs and drugs, has prompted a number of cities to adopt or consider teen curfews, state officials say.

In the four years before 1993, homicides, robberies and other violent youth offenses rose 165 percent, according to the Texas Juvenile Probation Commission. The Texas Youth Commission said referrals of juveniles for violent acts have increased from 3,072 in 1986 to a projected 8,398 in 1993. Jay Lindgren, deputy executive director, said gangs and drugs are factors in the rise.

"There is no question that they play a significant role. About half of our kids report they are members of a gang or have gang involvement," he said Wednesday. "With some, it has replaced the family."

"One kid told me he knew his life was at risk. They figure that with a gang, they will die with at least a few friends," he said, adding that curfews could help stem such activity.

The state Juvenile Probation Commission said that in the first three months of 1994 - the most recent state figures available - delinquent conduct cases totaled 24,847, compared with 43,988 for the first six months of 1993.

"Gang activity is a big factor," Susan Dow, a spokeswoman for the agency in Austin, said. "In 1987 and 1988 is when we started seeing a jump in juvenile violent crime. That was also about the time that crack cocaine hit the streets. So drugs are also a factor."

Delinquent conduct includes homicide, sexual and aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, theft, motor vehicle theft, weapons violations and drug and other offenses.

Violent crimes - homicide, sexual assault, robbery and aggravated assault - totaled 8,533 last year, an increase from 7,217 in 1992. State records show 6,146 juveniles were involved in violent crimes in 1991, with 5,002 the previous year.

By contrast, only 2,762 were reported in 1985.

Those rising numbers helped spur officials from Panhandle cities like Dimmitt, Floydada and Plainview to Austin, San Antonio, Houston and Dallas to enact ordinances that, generally, prohibit teen-agers from being on the streets unescorted after 11 p.m. or midnight.

Fort Worth had a curfew, but repealed it when Dallas lost a federal court challenge of a similar ordinance. An appeals court overturned that ruling, action that was upheld last month by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Fort Worth City Council expects to revive its curfew as early as next week in the wake of a 321 percent increase in the number of Tarrant County juveniles accused of violent crimes over the past four years.

"The majority of the kids that are violent are gang members," said Assistant District Attorney Kenneth Mullin, head of the juvenile section. "We get drive-by shootings, walk-by robberies for shoes, and robberies for jackets. And we keep seeing more and more of them."

Juvenile authorities in 1989 referred 287 youths younger than 17 to the Tarrant County District Attorney's Office in investigations of violent offenses. By 1993, that number had grown to 1,210.

"Curfews make a difference. Around the state, residents are starting to reclaim their neighborhoods," said Ms. Dow.

In Odessa, where police records show 1,999 juvenile arrests last year, the Mayor's Drug and Crime Task Force is beginning statistical research that could clear the way for a curfew.

The matter also is under consideration in the West Texas cities of Friona, Stinnett and Dumas. In South Texas, Laredo city officials are drafting an ordinance they want to have ready for the beginning of the next school year.

"Everyone realizes this is not the answer, but it is another way that your local law enforcement has a little more control on your youth activities," Floydada city manager Gary Brown said.

72-year-old given probation after mercy killing of ailing wife

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A 72-year-old man who admitted to the mercy killing of his ailing elderly wife has been sentenced to the lightest sentence possible - five years probation.

When the sentence was read Wednesday, William Knop of Las Cruces, stared at jurors, his hand over his mouth. Asked by state District Judge Lupe Rivera if he had anything to say about the decision, Knop replied: "No, your honor."

Knop had faced a maximum sentence of life in prison. He testified earlier this week that he killed his 81-year-old wife to end her pain and suffering, and that he missed her very much.

"It was a good verdict," said Joe Edd Boaz, Knop's attorney. "The jury was very compassionate. The trial was fair and it was just."

Jurors said Knop, who pleaded guilty in the killing, already has been serving a sentence.

"Yes, the rest of his life," said juror Ann Haverstick.

Knop pleaded guilty Monday to shooting his wife in the back of her head with a .357-caliber Magnum handgun as she sat in a wheelchair at an El Paso rehabilitation hospital. Francis Knop died last Nov. 10.

A massive stroke last September had left her partially paralyzed and unable to speak. Knop said his wife, who didn't respond to therapy, always had worried about being incapacitated in a nursing home.

Juror Pamela Doherty said she was swayed toward a light sentence by the testimony of police detective Alfonso Marquez, who said Knop was a good candidate for probation.

Jurors said they discussed giving Knop 10 years' probation, but they said they never considered a prison sentence. By law, the nine-man, three-woman jury couldn't impose a sentence shorter than five years' probation.

In Monday's testimony, Knop admitted to shooting his wife of 46 years. He took the stand Tuesday, describing his wife as a loving, vibrant, independent and intelligent woman before reconstructing the killing for jurors.

"I said, 'Good morning, Fran. The weather is nice, and I love you, and I bought you some clean, clean sweats. Do you want to die?'" Knop testified.

Frances Knop, who had suffered a massive stroke, didn't respond, Knop testified.

"I walked behind (her), put the gun to the back of her head and pulled the trigger," he said.

Divers probably began using snorkels made of hollow reeds about the A.D. 100s.

Earning climbs with learning

Census figures show how Texans' incomes climb at each successive rung of the educational ladder. On average, those at the highest educational levels earn more than four times as much as those who drop out before finishing high school.

Sixth degree from UT earned by San Antonio businessman

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Dick Gill was one of those college students who hoped he'd never see another classroom after getting his four-year degree.

Now, he has six degrees from the University of Texas, including a doctorate he received this spring in anthropology.

Gary Speer of the University of Texas registrar's office said Gill, who earned his first bachelor's degree in history back in 1967, appears to be one of only two students who have received six degrees - including a Ph.D. - in the school's 111-year history.

"We consider his (Gill's) accomplishment a record," Speer said, adding that it likely would be a record at most schools across the country.

But don't confuse Gill with the so-called career student who's unable to decide on a profession and hides out in classrooms semester after semester.

Gill, 50, is a San Antonio businessman, who earned a small fortune running a now-defunct mortgage company and savings and loan. He was a founder of two of Texas' most successful wineries, Ste. Genevieve and Llano Estacado, both in West Texas.

"I never had a goal of getting six degrees - never remotely in my mind," Gill laughs. "When I got my first degree as a young man, I just wanted out."

But as he grew older, he found his curiosity about technology and history went much further than what he might learn from magazines or the television program "Nova."

Nonetheless, he says, "I hope I have cured my desire to get any more degrees. I guess to some people it might seem absurd."

The day after his first college graduation, Gill went into his father's mortgage banking business, the Richard Gill Co. He later developed Gill Savings Co., a thrift which grew to have more than $1 billion in assets, he said.

A desire to get into oil and gas took Gill back to the university in the late 1970s for a degree in electrical engineering, which he received in 1979. Those studies led to bachelor's degrees in math (1981) and physics (1983).

Gill had resumed his banking career and gotten into the winery business when the real estate market collapsed, forcing him and his family to begin selling off assets in 1986.

"I had the schedule of any businessman," Gill said. "I had meetings all the time and responsibilities that other people depended on me to get done. When the bust came, I found myself without those responsibilities and I had an opportunity to get my doctorate, which is something I really wanted to do."

Gill began studying the collapse of the ancient Maya civilization, an interest kindled by two trips to Central America, including his honeymoon in 1968.

He completed a master's degree in anthropology in 1989, then juggled his career while working on his Ph.D. until its completion this year.

His thesis, which links the collapse of the Mayas to volcanic eruptions and long-term drought, has won praise from anthropology scholars.

"The thesis is publishable and is making a considerable contribution to our field," said Richard Adams, a professor of anthropology at UT-San Antonio who reviewed Gill's research.

For years, Gill's degrees had little to do with his business career.

But he recently set out to market pollution control devices in Mexico, allowing him to make practical use of his knowledge in math, science, Latin American history and of his fluency in Spanish.

"You don't have to get six degrees, but you ought to continue to learn throughout your life," Gill said. "You will make money and lose money, but education is something they can never take away from you."

Arkansas S&L routinely covered overdrawn Whitewater account

By JOHN SOLOMON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Inside the failing Arkansas S&L owned by the one-time business partner of President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, the Whitewater Development Co. checkbook was routinely overdrawn. Each time the shortfalls were covered afterward - sometimes two weeks later - by transfers from James McDougal's other companies.

An Associated Press examination of the records identifies more than $100,000 in Whitewater checks written on the overdrawn account from 1984 through 1986.

Those overdrafts were covered by 18 deposits totaling $107,856 from other companies controlled by McDougal, the AP review shows.

All of these money transfers occurred inside the failing Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan, which was owned by McDougal and in which Whitewater and the other McDougal firms had their accounts.

These deposits are a key to S&L investigators' allegations that Whitewater was used as part of a scheme in which money was drained from Madison to McDougal companies through a series of revolving bad checks.

Madison failed in 1989 at a cost to taxpayers of $47 million and eventually triggered the investigation of Whitewater and Clinton finances by special counsel Robert Fiske.

The allegations were turned over to Fiske in the form of 10 criminal referrals. Civil investigators file such referrals when they come across information they feel could merit criminal prosecution.

The Clintons were equal partners in Whitewater with McDougal and his former wife, Susan.

In a statement, Clinton attorney David Kendall said the Clintons "were not involved in the operation and management of Whitewater Development Co. and did not keep its records."

When McDougal was felled by a stroke and depression in the late 1980s, Kendall said, Hillary Rodham Clinton "took certain limited but necessary steps to wrap up and wind down the company's affairs properly."

McDougal has denied wrongdoing. His lawyer, Sam Heuer, acknowledged this week that there were overdrafts at Whitewater but dismissed the investigators' allegations. "We're not guilty of any criminal activities," he said.

Money from Whitewater's overdrawn account went to figures as diverse as former Arkansas Sen. J. William Fulbright and a northern Arkansas real estate agent.

In the real estate agent's case, he and his company received $28,000 in Whitewater money, then two months later arranged to buy $35,000 worth of lots from the land venture, the AP's review found.

Only one check identified by AP - for $143.65 - went to the Clintons, an apparent reimbursement for property taxes.

An individual close to the Clintons, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that during the time Mrs. Clinton was involved in Whitewater's operations she discovered and tried to rectify several problems - unpaid real estate and franchise taxes and overdue income tax returns.

But Mrs. Clinton did not have access to the company's checkbook, which was controlled by McDougal and his wife, according to the Clinton confidant.

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, a leading Whitewater critic in Congress, speculated McDougal's payments saved Clinton, who was Arkansas governor at the time, from having to put his own money into Whitewater when its accounts were overdrawn.

"You have this picture in which a public official is a significant player being bailed out ... from a failed institution," Leach said, noting that some McDougal deposits came from companies directly funded by Madison.

The AP reconstructed most of Whitewater's financial affairs for 1984 through 1986 - a key period in Fiske's investigation - identifying several previously unreported transactions affecting its main checking account at McDougal's S&L.

The computer-assisted effort used records released by Republican congressional investigators, McDougal and the White House over the past year and from sources in Washington, Arkansas and elsewhere who are familiar with the company.

In all, the review identified 27 of the 36 checks written between September 1984 and March 1986. Some of the missing checks are believed to have been voided.

The AP identified eight checks, totaling $52,994, that paid down Whitewater's three loans: the main mortgage at Citizens' Bank and Trust and two smaller loans at the Bank of Cherry Valley and Security Bank of Paragould. Those checks accounted for less than half the money the AP could trace from the account.

Information obtained by the AP indicates at least 12 Whitewater checks - totaling $103,847 - were written on the account when it was overdrawn. Checks were overdrawn for periods from one day to more than two weeks.

Under Muslim rule in the early 10th century, Cordoba, Spain, became the largest city in western Europe and one of the great cultural centers in the world.
