Governor signs bill overhauling welfare

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Personal responsibility is a key part of a new law overhauling welfare in Texas, Gov. George W. Bush says.

"You're responsible for the children you bring in the world, and you're responsible to the taxpayers of Texas," said Bush, who signed the welfare measure into law Tuesday.

Under the law, needy Texans face new limits on welfare benefits, parents who don't pay child support can lose state licenses and some ex-spouses can get alimony.

But the measure still needs some finishing touches.

Bush said the state must ask the federal government for 27 waivers from rules to fully implement the measure. Federal approval isn't expected until next year, he said.

"So long as the federal government has got its clutches on the capacity of Texans to run Texas, we must ask for permission to do this,"

said the Republican governor, who made welfare reform a priority of his campaign.

Provisions that need a federal OK include a requirement for welfare mothers to identify the fathers of children receiving benefits and a three-year maximum limit on benefits.

Bush also said if Congress approves changing to a block-grant system for divvying up welfare funds among the states, Texas lawmakers may have to take another look at the program.

"I would hate to have to call a special session (of the Legislature), but that might be one reason why," he said.

Bush didn't get everything he wanted in the law. It doesn't cap benefits for families who have additional children while on welfare, one of his chief campaign issues.

But he got many of the changes sought, saying the law represents an effort to make Texans less dependent upon government while weeding out fraud and taking care of "those who truly need help."

Bush rejected arguments from some lawmakers who said the measure would hurt the poor.

"There's nothing more harmful than dependency on government," he said. "For the first time, Texas is saying, 'We will do our dead-level best to help you, but we will try to take you off welfare into a job that exists. I can't think of anything more compassionate than that.'"

Bush said there is a harsh aspect to the bill - for "those deadbeat dads and occasional deadbeat moms" who don't provide support for their children.

Also Tuesday, Bush signed a bill to restructure the state's Medicaid system to allow it to attract more federal matching dollars and to encourage more preventive medicine in the health-care safety net for the needy.

City receives June sales tax rebate check from comptroller

The city of Hereford and Deaf Smith County have been sent their June sales tax reimbursement checks from the State Comptroller's Office.

The city check continues to reflect the first year of collections from the half-cent sales tax for economic development, with the city getting $73,032.80 from the state based on taxable sales in April.

On paper, the check reflects a 64.35 percent increase over the $44,434.92 received in June 1994.

The city's portion of the sales tax monies -- or a 1 percent tax for use in city coffers -- comes to $48,688.53 this year. The remaining $24,344.27 is earmarked for economic development.

For the year to date, the city has received tax rebate checks in the amount of $435,903.94, a 27.4 percent increase over the $342,134.61 received last year.

Deaf Smith County also receives sales tax funds based on a county assessment.

This month, the county's check is for $24,641.47, which is 5.77 percent above the $23,295.99 received last year.

The county does not receive revenue from the economic development tax, nor are taxable goods sold outside the city limits affected by that tax.

For the year, the county has received $175,682.41, or 1.58 percent more than the $172,937 received through June 1994.

Overall, State Comptroller John Sharp said sales tax rebate checks totalled $125.6 million and went to 1,076 cities and 111 counties. That reflects an increase of 8.7 percent over last year.

Other area towns and counties also received their June sales tax rebate checks. Only Castro County around the Hereford area imposes a county sales tax.

Shown are figures from area towns and counties, including this month's check, last year's June payment and the difference between the two figures.

Castro County -- Dimmitt, $21,036.66 this year, $15,869.89 last year, up 32.55 percent; Hart, $706.89, $774.61, down 8.74 percent; Nazareth, $579.26, $0; Castro County, $8,561.41, $4,833.82, up 25.28 percent.

Oldham County -- Adrian, $335.52, $0; Vega, $1,828.39, $1,451.69, up 25.94 percent.

Farmer County -- Bovina, $1,345.31, $1,417.70, down 5.10 percent; Farwell, $2,330.60, $2,639.37, down 11.69 percent; Friona, $10,211.63, $7,854.80, up 30 percent.

Potter County -- Amarillo, $2,379,218.51, $2,180,408.51, up 9.11 percent.

Randall County -- Canyon, $32,722.95, $31,952.10, up 2.41 percent.

A lady rented "Lion King" and watched the popular video with her 4-year-old granddaughter, we are told.

The somber little girl wanted to know if the Lion was dead. "Did it really die, is it really dead?" Grandma said it was.

The little girl carried the question one more step: "Or is it just dead until we rewind the VCR?"

A friend of ours reports his 90-year-old grandfather offered some deep philosophy at a recent family gathering. The talk got around to all the tremendous changes the old man had seen in his lifetime.

"Yep," replied the granddad, "but the women are still having the babies."

Today is Flag Day, a special day to display and honor the American flag. The date commemorates the day in 1776 that the Continental Congress of the new American nation, struggling for independence, adopted the national flag.

Each element, each color, of the flag has a meaning, according to the American Legion. The star was selected to stand for the individual states. George Washington declared that in the flag's design, "We take the stars from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down in posterity representing liberty."

Long may she wave!

It's difficult for me to think that animal rights activists really believe what they preach. An AP article reports that People for Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) staged a protest last Friday at the opening of the World Pork Expo in Des Moines, Iowa.

About a dozen activists put a mannequin dressed as a farmer on barbecue grill to dramatize what they say is cruel treatment of animals by the livestock industry. The protest didn't draw much attention, with a handful of people watching from a distance as the activists waved signs and spread sauce on the mannequin.

Tracy Reiman, a spokeswoman for PETA, said the group decided to roast a farmer to point up their contention that eating pigs or other livestock isn't different than eating other animals -- including people.

"If you eat pigs or you eat chickens, it could just as well be your dog or your cat, or your friend," she said.

I don't believe that PETA can document very many incidents of people eating their friends.

And, by the way, there are a few folks out there who are offended when the vegetarians tear up those nice green plants and eat them!

Vietnam move stirs controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) - A recommendation that the United States establish diplomatic relations with Vietnam is stirring controversy even before President Clinton has made a decision on the emotional issue.

"The only business we should be doing with Vietnam is the business of accounting for our missing men," said Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H.

However, Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., who recently visited Vietnam and received more than 100 pages of material relating to Americans missing since the Vietnam War, said that "given Vietnam's massive and recent cooperation on the MIA issue, I think it may be time to recognize them."

A congressional official said Tuesday that Secretary of State Warren Christopher was recommending that the United States establish formal diplomatic relations with the country it fought for more than a decade.

The administration refused to discuss Christopher's recommendation, but one senior official confirmed that Winston Lord, assistant secretary of state for East Asia, had told Christopher that normalizing relations would encourage further cooperation from the Vietnamese on efforts to determine the fate of missing Americans.

The Vietnamese recently have turned over hundreds of pages of documents pertaining to the 1,619 Americans still listed as missing. The documents were being analyzed by Defense Department experts, the administration official said.

Clinton's budget offering catches flak from Demos

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats, not Republicans, are reacting most bitterly to President Clinton's 10-year balanced-budget plan in a stark display of the conflicting priorities that exist between the administration and its erstwhile congressional allies.

Clinton unveiled his budget package Tuesday night, proposing to pull $1.2 trillion in savings out of Medicare, Medicaid and dozens of other programs. Seeking to draw a contrast with Republicans, his cuts would be gentler than those in GOP plans that already have passed the House and Senate. Clinton's plan includes tax cuts for families with children that are smaller than those in the Republican plans, while also protecting education.

Accompanying this was a modest health-care reform package, including provisions allowing people to carry health insurance from job to job, providing coverage to the short-term jobless, and providing grants for home-based care.

Vice President Al Gore today defended Clinton's budget proposal against the sharp criticism from within his own party. "When you're getting criticized from both sides of the spectrum, that's often a pretty good sign that you're on the right course in the direction most Americans want to travel," Gore said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

In a nationally televised White House address that lasted just over five minutes, the president gently slapped Republicans, saying the deficit could be wiped out in seven years, as Republicans propose, but insisted "the pain we would inflict on our elderly, our students and our economy just isn't worth it."

Mostly, though, he portrayed himself as transcending partisanship by offering a tough plan that would break through partisan gridlock - something voters have consistently signaled they've wanted since the 1992 elections and that he is eager to demonstrate for his re-election campaign.

But House Majority Leader Dick Armey said today he didn't hear any such effort to break through partisan politics.

"I was a little disconcerted by the tone," the Texas Republican told "CBS This Morning." "We've got our budget balancing train moving down the track and he's running to catch up and it seems to me he could have had a little bit more courteous tone. But nevertheless, we're welcoming him aboard."

105-year-old woman takes citizenship oath

By NANCY MAYER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - It took more than 35 years, and a measure denying state services to illegal immigrants, for 105-year-old Wen Tei Yue to become a U.S. citizen.

Yue, who may be the oldest person ever naturalized in this country, was honored with a special presentation Tuesday at a ceremony for 1,500 new citizens.

In a setting replete with stars, stripes and poetic speeches about America's cultural mosaic, the Chinese woman was given an American flag that will be flown over the nation's Capitol and then returned to her.

It was the first time a new citizen had been so honored, said San Francisco's Immigration and Naturalization Service director, Thomas Schiltgen. "Nobody could remember when we had someone older," he said.

"I'm just proud to be a U.S. citizen," the rosy-checked matriarch said through an interpreter as she leaned on a wooden cane outside the auditorium.

Yue was born in China's Canton Province in 1889. She moved to San Francisco to join her husband and two sons - already citizens - in 1959.

For more than 35 years, Yue was satisfied with her status as a legal permanent resident. But public rage at immigrants that fueled the passage of California's Proposition 187 last year changed her mind.

The measure, most of which is on hold while being challenged in court, denies state education, medical and welfare services for undocumented immigrants. Although it doesn't affect legal immigrants like Yue, she and her family were afraid public sentiment might spur further restrictions.

"There's a general climate of concern about what's going to happen in the future," said Yue's grandson, Gary Yee, 49. "People are taking their citizenship more seriously."

In a speech during the ceremony, Yee thanked "all those who work to make the laws fair for immigrants and those who helped (Yue) all these years even though she wasn't a citizen."

Immigration officials confirm that the number of immigrants seeking naturalization in northern California has nearly doubled over the past year and a half - from about 6,000 per month to roughly 11,000 per month.

But they say Proposition 187 was not the only impetus.

Amnesty and green card renewal programs adopted since 1985 are only now hitting maturity dates, making participants eligible for citizenship, said Schiltgen.

Until Yue took her naturalization oath last month, she was the only one of her 50-member family in this country who was not a U.S. citizen.

Yue is generally healthy, likes to help take care of her 18-month-old great-granddaughter and enjoys cooking.

To get ready for her test, she studied off and on for several months on U.S. presidents, the number of stars and stripes on the U.S. flag, the date American colonies declared freedom from British rule and other historic themes. Coached by her grandchildren, Yue also had to practice her signature.

Her son, 82-year-old George Yee, said she takes her citizenship status seriously.

"Now she's like a newborn person," he said.

Probation set in forgery allegation

A 30-year-old woman charged with forgery by passing was sentenced to five years' probation during a session of 222nd District Court Tuesday.

On her plea of guilty to the forgery charge, Carlota A. Montoya, also was assessed a fine of $500.

WASHINGTON - President Clinton's new balanced-budget plan may have been a bold political stroke, as the White House describes it. But it could also turn out to be the boldest of political blunders.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Thousands of Bosnian army troops mass along front lines north of Sarajevo, a sign of an upcoming government offensive to sever Serb supply routes and possibly try to break the Serb cordon around the capital. Bosnian Serbs rebels were expected to target the city with heavy artillery in response to any government strike.

SAN FRANCISCO - It took 105-year-old Wen Tei Yue more than four decades - and voter approval of a law denying state services to illegal immigrants - to become a U.S. citizen.

HOUSTON - Former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is stepping back into the public eye and perhaps the eye of a hurricane. Hobby, 63, agreed Tuesday to assume the post of chancellor of the University of Houston system.

AUSTIN - Following the death of a University of Texas sophomore and the banning of a UT spirit group for hazing, the author of the state's anti-hazing law is frustrated. "I do not know of one case where the law has been used to prosecute," Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said Tuesday.

WASHINGTON - House Majority Leader Dick Armey has won dismissal of an ethics complaint because he promised there would be no further improper uses of his office stationery, sources report.

AUSTIN - Personal responsibility is a key part of a new law overhauling welfare in Texas, Gov. George W. Bush says. "You're responsible for the children you bring in the world, and you're responsible to the taxpayers of Texas," said Bush, who signed the welfare measure into law Tuesday.

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico - Cattle don't wander across Alberto Chavez's fields anymore. Now he buys and sells cattle in Mexico and the United States.

HOUSTON - Taxpayers in some school districts may end up paying higher property rates because of the state's new education bill despite lawmakers having voted against any tax increases.

VERNON - Wheat farmers afraid their combines will get stuck in the mud are waiting for their harvest-ready fields to dry out. Mud is just the latest problem to bog down the state's 1995 wheat crop.

ATHENS - When Jim Toler first approached the Labor of Love board about working with the Henderson County service organization, board members were skeptical, said current president Steve Grant. Toler, a former Garland mayor, was free pending his appeal of his 1991 conspiracy conviction in the Interstate 30 condo scandal, one of the biggest connected with the savings and loan crisis of the 1980s. Toler's work to improve housing for the needy has won over many people who now are asking a federal judge to release him from prison to finish his sentence doing community service.

L.A. coroner admits to poor job on autopsies of murder victims

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Sitting in the O.J. Simpson courtroom, the county coroner watched footage of himself being pursued across a parking lot by Sam Donaldson one August morning.

Sitting on the witness stand, Dr. Lakshmanan Sathyavagiswaran recalled Tuesday that although he was surprised by the notoriously aggressive ABC newsmen as he stepped out of his car, he meant it when he defended the autopsies in the Simpson case as "very good."

Lakshmanan doesn't feel that way anymore.

After painstakingly detailing autopsy mistakes by his deputy, Dr. Irwin Golden, Lakshmanan stated Tuesday for the court record what had already become painfully obvious: the coroner's office flubbed its biggest case ever.

"I don't think we did a very good job," Lakshmanan said after the Donaldson interview played for the jury on the 7-foot courtroom screen. "I would say that we did a satisfactory job in portions of the case and less than satisfactory in certain portions of the autopsies."

Lakshmanan's mea culpa capped an aggressive attempt at damage control by prosecutors, who have decided to pre-empt a defense assault on coroner practices by bringing up errors themselves.

The defense gets its shot at Lakshmanan as early as today in cross-examination. Simpson's attorneys have attacked virtually every official involved in the case, suggesting the investigation was bungled at every turn.

The coroner's admission came during another emotionally wrenching court day. As Lakshmanan demonstrated how the killing knife plunged into Ronald Goldman's rib cage, a female alternate juror suddenly stood in the jury box and quickly left the courtroom.

News report claims bomb mastermind may still be at large

By PAUL QUEARY

Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -

Investigators believe the mastermind of the federal building bombing remains at large, a source said, and a newspaper reported that "John Doe 2" had nothing to do with the attack.

Several days ago, investigators located and questioned a man they believe to be John Doe 2, unidentified sources said in today's Los Angeles Times. The man apparently had just happened to be at a Kansas truck rental company when suspect Timothy McVeigh rented the Ryder truck that carried the bomb, the sources said.

The Times did not name the man or say where he was found. The descriptions of McVeigh and John Doe 2 came from an agent at the rental company.

Investigators told the paper they were checking their conclusion and planned to announce their findings soon.

McVeigh, 27, and Terry Nichols, 40, are the only ones charged in the April 19 bombing that killed 168 people. They are being held without bail under a federal anti-terrorism law that could bring them the death penalty.

There have been several occasions when authorities caught and questioned suspected John Doe 2s, only to later conclude they were not the person depicted in the FBI sketch based on the rental agent's description.

On May 20, the FBI denied a report in The Fort Worth Star-Telegram that John Doe 2 had been identified and eliminated as a suspect.

Authorities were still searching for other suspects Tuesday.

"There's somebody still out there," a source close to the investigation told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "Somebody had to point (McVeigh) at a target and tell him what to do. The guy isn't capable of doing it by himself."

The source cited McVeigh's failure to "look at the back of his own car."

Less than 90 minutes after the bombing, McVeigh was pulled over by an Oklahoma state trooper for not having a license plate. He was arrested after the officer noticed McVeigh was carrying a gun.

Terry Nichols' brother, James, was arrested in Michigan as a material witness two days after the bombing. He was indicted on an unrelated explosives charge and released on bail a month later.

James Nichols is the "sharper of the two brothers and a lot more hard-core in his beliefs," the AP source said. Authorities have said McVeigh and the Nichols brothers share a hatred of the government.

On Tuesday, James Nichols, 41, denied a claim made by an FBI informant in court papers that he had talked about blowing up the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building seven years ago.

"I didn't know there was a federal building in Oklahoma City," Nichols said outside his farmhouse in Decker, 90 miles north of Detroit. "I never knew it existed until the bombing took place."

The AP source said authorities have not re-arrested James Nichols because they want to concentrate on building their cases against McVeigh and Terry Nichols.

"If they go out there and scoop him up then they start the clock" for bringing charges, the source said. Under the Speedy Trial Act, prosecutors have 30 days to indict after a suspect is arrested. The clock stops when motions are pending.

Also Tuesday, FBI agents in Kansas sought help in the search for a red homemade trailer and 55-gallon plastic barrels, blue or white with blue lids. Authorities believe the trailer was used to make ammonium nitrate purchases on Sept. 30 and Oct. 18 in McPherson, Kan.

Ammonium nitrate is the type of fertilizer used to make the 4,800-pound truck bomb. Tiny pieces of blue plastic were found in the bodies of bombing victims.

A toll-free hotline was set up to receive tips: (800) FBI-OKLA (324-6552).

Area businesses may seek loans

LUBBOCK -- Businesses in Armstrong, Briscoe, Castro, Floyd, Hale, Randall and Swisher counties have until June 26, 1995 to file applications for low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA).

The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loans are available for businesses dependent on farmers and ranchers sustaining crop losses from extensive rain and hail which occurred May 1 through May 31, 1994 and again on July 9, 1994.

Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for these SBA loans. Applications and further information can be obtained by calling the SBA toll-free at 1-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the hearing impaired.

Area Lions extend help

Disaster relief following a deadly tornado in Randall and Potter counties last month came from a wide range of sources.

One group in particular that extended help was the District 2-T1 Lions Clubs International organization.

Representing 1.4 million Lions worldwide, the Lions Clubs International Foundation approved a $5,000 emergency grant which was requested by Lions District 2-T1 Gov. Sid Shaw of Hereford.

Gov. Shaw said the funds are to be used specifically for food, clothing and medical supplies. A voucher system was established by United Supermarkets, Wal-Mart and J.S. Penney Co. in Amarillo.

Upon referrals, the vouchers were issued to needy individuals who were able to purchase food and clothing. Two individuals who were severely injured-received assistance with medical supplies.

In all, more than 10 individuals received the help needed to get them through the crisis.

The May 7 tornado left many people homeless, one man dead and several others injured.

Lions Clubs International Foundation is the channel by which Lions of the world provide for numerous humanitarian needs.

One of the more recent accomplishments of the Lions was its Campaign SightFirst effort, in which Lions throughout the world raised more than $140 million to eradicate preventable blindness.

These are just a few of the ways Lions practice their motto "We Serve."

There are more than 2,000 Lions in the Texas Panhandle representing more than 60 clubs.

Ann Landers

DEAN ANN LANDERS: I recently became aware of an alarming new fad. One of my children came into the room with a colorful helium balloon she had received on her birthday. She opened the balloon and breathed in some of the helium, which made her voice very high-pitched.

My daughter insists this is harmless and "all the kids do it." I don't know what to think, Ann. I worry that this may not be entirely safe.

Will you please check with your experts and find out if this is something I should be concerned about? My kids think I am over-protective, and they laugh at me. Thanks for any help you can give me. -- Concerned Parent in Florida

DEAR CONCERNED: We spoke with Dr. Earl Siegal, associate professor of emergency medicine at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center, and Dr. Benjamin Emanuel, a Chicago pediatrician.

Both said helium displaces oxygen in the brain. Sucking a small amount of helium from a balloon is USUALLY harmless. However, inhaling helium from a tank, or long-term use of the gas, can cause asphyxiation, permanent brain damage and death.

Both doctors, however, made the point that fooling around with inhalants of any kind is not a good idea because it encourages the introduction of chemicals into our bodies and can set a dangerous pattern.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a long overdue "thank you." In 1990, you encouraged your readers to write to our soldiers serving in the Persian Gulf. I took your advice and wrote 12 letters to "Any Soldier" and wound up with eight interesting pen pals.

There was one guy who wrote more often (and his letters were more intriguing) than the others, and we began a long-distance friendship. When the war ended, he returned to North Carolina and kept in touch. The following June, he made a trip to Winston-Salem to meet me and my family. We hit it off right away.

To make a long story short, we are getting married next month. I just thought you could use a little good news today. Thanks, Ann, from the bottom of my heart. -- Janet in N.C.

DEAR JANET: Congratulations to you and the groom. Your timing was perfect. I am still getting clobbered by readers who are upset because I didn't defend the rooster's right to crow at dawn (and wake up the neighbors). Thanks for the upper.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word in support of U.S. postal employees? They have taken a lot of abuse lately.

My mother was ill for some time. The day she came home from the hospital, her postman, Russell, handed the mail to her with a welcome-home balloon. Every day, he brought the mail into the house and asked Mom how she was feeling. When she died last November, Russell came to the funeral.

Russell's warmth and compassion were truly appreciated. I don't know his last name, but I hope he reads this so he will know that the family of Jeannette Wein of Forest Hills, N.Y., is very grateful for his kindness. --

The Family

DEAR FAMILY: My heart was warmed by the sweetness of that man. You can be sure Russell will get the message.

Gem of the Day: Income tax has made liars out of more Americans than golf ever did.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: We have three big glass dishes, each 8 inches in diameter and 4 inches deep. To save storage space, they were put one into another a long time back.

When we wanted to use them, we tried to separate them and take one out but were unable to do so. -- V.S. Rao, Albany, N.Y.

One way you may be able to remove the dishes is to use cold water to shrink (contract) the inner dish while using warm to hot water to enlarge (expand) the outer one.

All you need to do is place ice cubes in very cold water in the inner dish, then immediately place the outer portion of the other glass in very warm or hot water, wait a few minutes and gently try to pull the dishes apart.

AN IMPORTANT NOTE: Don't do this with very old or fragile glass, or if there are any small or hairline cracks. The extreme or sudden temperature change could cause the glass to break.

Good luck! -- Heloise

EXPERI-HINTS

Dear Heloise: As a recent widow after 56 years of married life and cooking for a family of six children, I have much to adjust to now that I am alone.

Frozen dinners lost their big appeal, at least as a steady diet, in a hurry.

Now I purchase small packages of minute steaks, pork chops, ground chuck, chicken breasts and legs, and a small roast (this I divide in half for roasting and stew). I cut the steak into cubes and make patties with the ground chuck.

On a day when I really feel like cooking, I prepare all the meats. When cooled, I remove the bones from the chicken, then I put a single serving of each into freezer bowls and label them.

I purchase bags of frozen peas, corn, broccoli, green beans, mixed veggies, spinach and squash.

For my main meal each day, I need only decide what I'd like and the microwave has a delicious meal ready in minutes. -- Mrs. Florence Bockhorst, Moline, Ill.

SHAKER REFILL

Dear Heloise: When it's time to refill my salt and pepper shakers, I put a strip of transparent tape over the openings on top.

I can just turn over the shakers, pour in the desired ingredients, plug up the hole, turn it upright and easily remove the tape. Works like a charm! -- Kate Campbell, Marlton, N.J.

Descendants of pioneer Roberson families that came to Deaf Smith and Farmer Counties in 1901 from Johnson County, Texas, had their 13th reunion recently at the American Legion Hall. These reunions have been held every two years during the past several years.

A covered dish luncheon was served at noon. There was visiting among those present and family history books and charts were displayed.

Those in attendance were Diane Roberson of Austin; Arthur and Vikki Sears, D.L., Curtis and Natasha of Summerfield; Charles and Josie Mae Wilmer of Carlsbad, N.M.; Mark and Carol Roberson, Benjamin, Jonathan, Rebecca, Timothy and Deborah of Miami, Tex.; Russell and Imogene

Gardening inspires original books on the subject of vegetation, dirt

By GEORGE BRIA
 POUND RIDGE, N.Y. (AP) - Something about farm and garden inspires people to write, going back to Virgil's delight with double-flowering rose beds and late-blooming narcissus.

With gardening ever more popular, books keep coming out in a steady flow. I admire most of the ones I see, but some catch my interest more than others because of their timeliness, novelty, good looks, literary quality or humor.

Take "The Wild Lawn Handbook" by Stevie Daniels (Macmillan 1995, $27.95 hardcover). Addressing a current ecological issue, this 223-page book offers alternate landscapes for people concerned about pesticides, herbicides and heavy watering to maintain traditional lawns.

Ms. Daniels, former executive editor of Organic Gardening magazine, suggests how to redesign your yard to make way for wildflowers, prairie and ornamental grasses, ground covers, spreading perennials, mosses and shade plants. What's more, she interviews homeowners in Illinois, Arizona, Colorado, California and Connecticut to show various ways individual gardeners did it. The book includes sources for seeds, plants and equipment.

Aromatherapy, an intriguing health-through-fragrance concept, appears in "Herbs for the Home," by Jekka McVicar, a leading British grower of herbs (Viking Studio Books 1995, hardcover $27.95). Ms. McVicar includes a design for a 12-herb aromatherapy garden in her beautifully illustrated, 255-page book on the history, cultivation and medicinal and culinary uses of more than 335 plants. Nine other herb garden designs are also featured.

Linda Yang, an authority on terrace gardening, expands her range from upstairs sites to nooks and crannies in the downstairs yard. She gives us her expertise in "The City and Town Gardener" (Random House, an $18 paperback issue of an original hardcover edition). The 316-page book by this New York Times writer contains just about everything a city gardener would want to know about planting in small spaces and containers. Brightly written and edited, the book contains lovely color photos and line drawings.

Roses have captivated so many authors you wonder why anyone would venture another book. Yet "Peter Schneider on Roses" (Macmillan 1995, 216 pages, hardcover $24.95) makes good reading and is photographically gorgeous.

Schneider, an accredited rose judge who has grown 1,400 different varieties, has some fascinating knowledge. He writes, "Each rose is an identical clone of one original specimen. If you grow 'Peace,' you have the same rose Francis Meiland developed before World War II. If you grow 'Apothecary Rose,' you have a plant that the Romans grew. "Grow the roses we know as 'Old Blush' or 'Slater's Crimson China,' and you have a living piece of long-lost history, a rose hybrid developed centuries ago in China by an unknown genius."

Christopher Lloyd, a British writer, maintains his reputation as a stylist with "In My Garden," a collection of magazine essays (Macmillan 1994, 227 pages, hardcover $29.95). Lloyd often strikes a sad-funny note, as in this story about the dubious wisdom of giving people potted plants as gifts. "I had occasion to call in three days later," he says. "My friends were out but the plants, now sadly wilted, were still sitting on the doorstep where I had given them. I took them to their pond and immersed them for a long drink. I've no idea and don't want to know if they were ever planted."

A collection of "everyday advice" from two centuries of the Old Farmer's Almanac (Random House 1995, 212 pages, hardcover $22) contains, among many other things, some tried-and-true ideas for a kid's indoor garden. Like: Line a shallow bowl with small pebbles, scatter a handful of lentils over the pebbles and fill the bowl with water. In two to four days "the child will have the beginning of an interesting cluster of greenery."

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Bria retired from the AP in 1981 after 40 years that included coverage of World War II from Italy.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I feel a little silly writing, but it is in the interest of keeping peace with my husband. He is concerned because, he says, I cannot pass a drunk test. And, true, I cannot stand with my feet together for long or walk a straight line, and a few friends have told me I walk like I am tipsy when I am tired. I don't feel sick, and it seems silly to me to go to a doctor if I am to be thought of as a klutz. I am 33. I agreed with my husband to do what you say. — Mrs. C.P.

ANSWER: Your balance difficulty is not normal. It indicates something amiss. Most healthy adults can perform such simple tasks. The body's balance center, the cerebellum of the brain, permits them. That center has vital connections with other parts of the nervous system, and therein can lie the source of many balance problems.

Various nervous-system diseases can affect balance, and they are worth ruling out one by one.

You do not say how long you have had a problem with balance. Had you told me it was a lifelong problem, I would have been inclined to lay it to some slight functional lapse of your general sense of balance. If, as I suspect from your tone, the symptoms are of recent appearance, I would certainly insist on that doctor's visit.

I feel a bit on the silly side by daring to suggest such potential central-nervous-system matters from this great distance. Your doctor — who would not put you down as a klutz — can evaluate the situation with greater assurance.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would be interested in reading about low blood pressure. What causes a drop in pressure, and how does it affect life or quality of life? — C.G.

ANSWER: Most doctors consider a blood pressure between 120 and 100 systolic (first number) as acceptable in a demonstrably well patient. Many with numbers below the legendary systolic "norm" lead healthful lives.

Authorities often equivocate about such matters. A recent British survey of people with lower pressures revealed that most complained of being constantly tired. However, that information is new and has not prompted basic changes in how we evaluate the numbers. There is no uniform recommendation to increase such pressures, for example.

We labor under a great deal of uncertainty in the matter of low blood pressure and health. Always, we are assuming that the individual patient is not experiencing symptoms, such as faintness or heart irregularities.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would like to know about Addison's disease, specifically the matter of blood pressure in it. — B.P.

ANSWER: Please read the above item carefully. To repeat, what I had to say about low blood pressure presupposes that the person is in demonstrably good health. Then, for that person, a low blood pressure can be considered an acceptable thing.

But some illnesses do lead to low blood pressure readings, and Addison's disease is a good example.

In Addison's, the adrenal glands fail to produce their hormones, the ones that help maintain normal blood pressure.

I mention that only to answer B.P., who should also understand that other Addison's signs would accompany the low blood pressure in arriving at any diagnosis. There might be great fatigue, weakness, nausea, vomiting, weight loss and skin darkening.

IN RESPONSE to reader requests, Dr. Donohue has a complete listing of his pamphlets on various medical problems. Readers who want one should send their request to Dr. Donohue — List, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Names in the News

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Bryant Gumbel says CBS' did right in dumping Connie Chung as "Evening News" co-anchor.

"I don't want to speculate what happened in their shop, but I am a big Dan Rather fan," Gumbel says in TV Guide. "It's a better program with him alone. He's the one with credibility."

Chung was fired last month after two years on the program with Rather.

Gumbel, a "Today" show host on NBC, attributed long-repeated claims that he's arrogant and controlling to racism.

A fun-filled summer of reading

School is out, but reading is in! Use the relaxing weeks of summer to build your children's reading skills through ordinary and not-so-ordinary ways. Check out these fun-filled activities and choose several that fit your children's reading level for rewarding experiences all summer long.

— Visit your local library, get library cards and make regular visits part of your summer routine. Let your children choose books to check out. At home, designate an easy-to-reach shelf or basket for the borrowed materials.

— Inquire about volunteer opportunities at the library for your pre-teen or teenage children. As volunteers, they may be asked to read aloud at story hour, assist with crafts and puppet shows, monitor summer reading programs, search for titles on the computer and even check out books.

— Arrange 10 summer family photos in a row on a table and use them to create a story.

— Declare your home a television-free zone for one night and read a story you've never read before. Even older kids enjoy a story read to them now and then.

— Read the first half of a favorite storybook aloud with your children, then invent a new ending.

— Find the weather page in your daily newspaper, read the temperature and plan your day's activities. For extra practice, read the temperature for cities where you have relatives, friends or where you will soon travel.

— Hang a regional, national or world map on the wall and locate your town, then find and read names of cities you have visited.

— Enjoy poetry. Select short poems at first, geared to your children's interests. Try writing an original poem about a shared experience and recite it together.

— Press a pretty flower and tiny leaves between the pages of a heavy book. Glue them on the top of a strip of cardboard for a personalized summer bookmark.

— Use shaving cream to write a cheery message on the bathroom mirror for your children to read in the morning.

— Praise your children for the progress they are making in reading.

Rockets aim for respect by sweeping Magic

By WENDY E. LANE
AP Basketball Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - It has taken an unprecedented playoff run and a 32-year-old player with a yearning for a championship for the Houston Rockets to get a little respect and admiration.

Beating the New York Knicks last year for the NBA title didn't do it. Trading for Clyde Drexler in February didn't do it. And entering the playoffs as the Western Conference's sixth seed certainly didn't do it.

But with a win tonight in Game 4 of the NBA Finals, the Rockets can sweep Shaquille O'Neal and the Orlando Magic and enjoy the recognition that didn't come their way during a year's reign as champions.

"I think the country loves this team, and what we represent and the way that we do things," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said Tuesday. "Being down and sticking together and coming back, we should be admired for the way we do things."

The Rockets can set NBA records by becoming the first sixth seed to win a championship and by getting past four teams with 50-plus wins. They've already made history by winning a record seven consecutive playoff games on the road.

What the series between the veteran Rockets and the youthful Magic has shown more than anything else isn't that you have to pay your dues. It's that the process of paying them makes you stronger.

Now Orlando knows.

"We can take something from this," said John Gabriel, the team's vice president of basketball operations.

The Magic's talent has gotten them further than most thought. But talent, it seems, is no match for experience when the experience is not all happy memories.

The Rockets are still stinging from the heat they took in last year's finals for playing the Knicks' low-scoring, grind-it-out kind of game. And when they played it well enough to win, it was dismissed as a fluke.

"It's something I don't understand," Tomjanovich said. "We took on all the good teams last year. I know how hard it was, I know where we came from, I know the personnel we had. To come out on top of a great league and have people say it was an off year, that (Michael) Jordan wasn't there, that bothers me."

The unpopular finals was followed by the unpopular trade of Otis Thorpe for Drexler, a deal even most of the Rockets didn't like. And by the time Houston got to the playoffs with all of 47 wins, the team found it had a lot to play for and a lot to prove.

"It's been so much fun kicking all those doubters," forward Robert Horry said. "Now they can't say anything, because we weren't even supposed to be here."

What the doubters didn't accomplish, Drexler's desire for a title did.

After missing an NCAA championship with the University of Houston and missing two chances at an NBA title with Portland, he quietly has picked up the Rockets every time they were in danger of hitting a lull. He's rebounded and led the fast break, leaving behind the twentysomething Magic players.

"I think he's the guy that's really given them the spirit and the energy to carry the team through this whole playoff run," Orlando coach Brian Hill said.

Perhaps if the Magic had been playing another team, one without so much to prove, things would have been different. Now they have a sense of the Rockets' mission, O'Neal and his teammates are showing little sign of the exuberance that carried them past Chicago and Indiana.

A deflated-looking O'Neal acknowledged that youth hasn't given Orlando resiliency.

"We haven't played well and I don't think that we have recovered from the first loss," he said, referring to a game in which the Magic led by three with 10 seconds left in regulation.

"That first game, we were explosive and aggressive," point guard Anfernee Hardaway said. "Ever since the second half of that first game, nothing has seemed to go right for us."

To a man, the Magic deny that lack of experience is the main factor in a finals that looks to be much shorter than they figured. They point to poor outside shooting, problems with transition defense and the defensive dilemma posed by Hakeem Olajuwon.

But Orlando's veteran, Horace Grant, sees the look of a champion in Houston's eyes - and something else in his team.

"For the younger guys, being down 0-3, they have a tendency to be a little anxious, to play a little tight," he said. "It just comes from being in this situation before."

Big 12 bosses OK football title game

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Big 12 chief executive officers have approved a football playoff game between the North and South division champions that will bring at least $550,000 to each school in the new league.

During a seven-hour meeting Tuesday, school presidents and chancellors also agreed to a revenue-sharing formula that allows schools to keep their football gate receipts and their earnings from NCAA basketball tournament appearances in the year they earn them.

The Big 12 - a union of four schools from the Southwest Conference with the schools of the Big Eight Conference - plans to begin competition in August 1996.

The Texas schools - Texas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor - will join with Oklahoma and Oklahoma State in the southern division. In the northern division will be Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Colorado, Kansas and Kansas State.

The revenue-sharing plan and the playoff were two of the last hurdles to be tackled prior to the conference's inaugural year.

"We have more work to do, clearly, but I think what you're seeing is steady, systematic and substantial progress as this Big 12 comes to life," said Iowa State President Martin Jischke, head of the league's CEOs.

The playoff, which had been opposed by the 12 conference coaches, was proposed last month by the league's athletic directors and faculty representatives.

The school presidents, who have final approval on all major issues, approved the idea 11-1. Nebraska Chancellor Graham Spanier voted against the concept.

Spanier was not available for comment after the meeting. Jischke said he believes Spanier's concerns mirror those of the league's coaches, who have said they fear a playoff could knock a team out of a major bowl or a national championship game.

The coaches also contend that as much or more money could be raised by getting a second team into the major bowls each year.

However, Jischke said, a playoff "provides a sizeable source of revenue and a predictable, steady source of revenue."

He said he expects the revenue from such a game to be higher than the estimate of $550,000 per school.

"We have every reason to believe that the actual revenue will be higher than that," Jischke said.

Steve Hatchell, who becomes conference commissioner July 1, said: "We think we can do the $550,000 per team now. We think we can go north of that."

Cities vying for the title game are Dallas (Cotton Bowl), Denver (Mile High), Houston (Astrodome), Irving (Texas Stadium), Kansas City (Arrowhead Stadium), St. Louis (new domed stadium) and San Antonio (Alamodome).

Hatchell said an initial city could be selected by the Big 12 by the end of July, with the presidents approving it shortly thereafter. Hatchell said the title game could be rotated among cities.

As much as $40 million in gross revenue is anticipated for the conference annually, including $6.6 million from the football playoff.

The revenue-sharing formula, adopted unanimously by school presidents, allows the schools to keep their football gate receipts.

In addition, schools participating in the NCAA basketball tournament will keep the revenue they earn in the season they earn them. Revenue from previous years, under the NCAA's six-year rollover formula, will go into a pool and be shared equally.

"I think it has all the right elements of a good formula," Jischke said. "It's fair, it's equitable, it rewards performance, and it allows all of us to strengthen our programs."

The Big 12 presidents also discussed academic eligibility for incoming freshmen.

The presidents, who must decide whether the conference shall accept partial qualifiers or non-qualifiers, asked Texas president Robert Berdahl to draft proposals on both issues before their fall meeting.

Partial qualifiers are student athletes who meet one but not both of the requirements for grade-point average or standardized test score. Non-qualifiers are those who fall short on both.

Big Eight schools now can make their own decision on accepting partial qualifiers; the four Texas schools do not accept partial qualifiers.

The presidents continued discussions on possible sites for the conference headquarters. The Big Eight offices are located in Kansas City, Mo.; the Southwest Conference is based in Dallas.

Eight cities have voiced interest in being home to the league offices, and a final decision will be made by Dec. 1, Jischke said. The cities are Colorado Springs, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Lubbock, Oklahoma City, St. Louis and San Antonio.

Norman enters US Open play after two strong performances

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) - Once again, Greg Norman comes into a major championship playing very well. Once again, he'll be the favorite to win. The question is: Will Norman disappoint, once again?

When asked Tuesday if he was playing better going into the U.S. Open than at any time in his career, Norman replied, "Yes, I think I am."

And Norman at his best is positively awesome.

He returned to competition after six weeks of rest, recovery and a little fishing with a dominating 19-under-par victory at the Memorial two weeks ago and then had a strong fourth-place finish this past Sunday at the Kemper.

"On a scale of 1 to 10, I'd give it a 7 1/2," Norman said of the current state of his game.

Even before his layoff, Norman was playing well. He was second at Doral in March and a strong third at the Masters a month later, closing with three 68s.

Certainly he has served notice on defending champion Ernie Els and the rest of the U.S. Open field that he'll be in the hunt when play begins Thursday at Shinnecock Hills Golf Club.

But even Norman knows he's served notice before only to fail to follow through.

"I have been at the top of my game, too, going into other tournaments and it doesn't come off the way you like it to come off," Norman said before practicing Tuesday, his first round at Shinnecock since the 1986 U.S. Open.

Last year, for instance, Norman went into the Masters as a near prohibitive favorite after a record-shattering 24-under-par 268 and a four-stroke victory in The Players Championship ("that was in the 9s," he said about his 1-to-10 scale.) But he tied for 18th at Augusta, stumbling home in 75-77.

And then there was 1986, the year of Norman's Saturday Slam. He led all four major championships going into the final round, and came away with a victory only at the British Open.

At Shinnecock that year, Norman shot a final round 75 and finished tied for 12th, six strokes behind winner Raymond Floyd.

When he tees off in this Open, Norman will once again be playing as the front-runner, both in the minds of a lot of players and in the betting lines of most bookies.

But this is a road Norman has been down before, only to find unexpected twists and turns and more than his share of potholes. For a decade and a half now, Norman's awesome talent has haunted major championships, threatening to claim complete control, only to vanish in a ghostly POOF under pressure, punctuated by missed shots and a mountain of excuses.

Not so the New Norman, or so he says. This time, says this version of the New Norman, all those screaming little demons rattling around in his blond-haired head are under control, pushed back into their cages.

"I think if I look at it from my 20s to my 30s, now I am in my 40s, no question about it," he said when asked if he is currently at his best.

"I feel like I have gone a little up the ladder in my playability," Norman said. "But the control of my game ... I guess I am not as wildly aggressive as I used to be in my 20s and 30s."

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 29,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics.

Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing - county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Astros' Gonzalez solves Schilling, hits winning HR

By The Associated Press
Three times, Curt Schilling made Luis Gonzalez look bad. On the fourth at-bat, Gonzalez made Schilling a loser for the first time this season.

Gonzalez hit a three-run homer, capping a four-run eighth inning as the Houston Astros defeated Philadelphia 6-5 Tuesday night, snapping a six-game losing streak and the Phillies' four-game winning streak.

Gonzalez struck out twice and hit a weak fly ball in his first three trips against Schilling before the homer.

"Schilling is a very tough pitcher, and he had been eating me up all game," Gonzalez said. "It was a foreball down and in and I was fortunate enough to get it all."

Schilling, who struck out 10, took a three-hitter and a 5-2 lead into the eighth. But the Astros loaded the bases on a walk to Brian Hunter and singles by Craig Biggio and Jeff Bagwell.

After Derek Bell's sacrifice fly made it 5-3, Gonzalez hit a 1-2 pitch for his sixth homer of the year.

"It felt really good right off the bat," Gonzalez said. "To hit a ball like that in a key spot is a real good feeling."

Schilling, who lost his first game after four victories, blamed himself for the defeat.

"I thought I pitched him well all night and I had really good velocity," he said. "I wanted to throw the forkball, but I didn't put in a really good spot. Nothing bothers me more than a night like that. I should have gotten the last six outs, there's just no excuse for it."

Dave Veres (3-1), the fourth of six Houston pitchers, pitched 1 1/3 innings for the victory, while John Hudek got the last four outs for his seventh save.

The game was tied before Darren Daulton homered and Schilling hit a two-run single, giving the Phillies a 5-2 lead.

Rockies 6, Reds 4
Andres Galarraga homered twice and drove in three runs and Dante Bichette had three hits to extend his hitting streak to 19 as Colorado beat Cincinnati.

Bichette had a single, double and triple and missed hitting for the cycle by a foot when his home-run bid was caught at the wall by left fielder Ron Gant in the third inning.

Kevin Ritz (5-1) held the Reds to one run on three hits through six innings. He tired in the seventh, when he allowed two runs.

Curtis Leskanic pitched the last two innings for his third save despite allowing a ninth-inning homer by Jeff Branson.

The Rockies, winning for the 10th time in 13 games, snapped the visiting Reds' five-game winning streak.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 3
Ismael Valdes pitched six-hit ball for seven innings and twice started run-scoring innings with singles, leading Los Angeles.

Jose Offerman had a two-run triple off Jon Lieber (2-6) in the fourth inning as the Dodgers took a 4-0 lead over the Pirates, 5-12 at home this season.

Los Angeles led off each of the first six innings with hits, and four of the runners scored as Lieber continued to struggle in Three Rivers Stadium, where he is 0-5 with a 7.26 ERA this season. Ten of the 19 Dodgers hitters to face Lieber got hits.

Valdes (3-2) won despite allowing Al Martin's two-run homer in the Pirates' three-run fifth inning.

Todd Worrell earned his eighth save in as many opportunities. Worrell, 6-5 with a 4.29 ERA in 1994, has an 0.00 ERA in 21 2-3 innings in his 20 appearances.

Mets 7, Marlins 3
Jeff Kent, coming off a 10-game road trip in which he batted .188, had a homer, triple and single and drove in two runs as New York snapped a three-game losing streak by defeating Florida.

Bret Saberhagen (2-2) scattered six hits while striking out 10 and walking two before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. John Burkett (4-6) yielded seven runs on 12 hits and two walks in 5 1/3 innings.

Kent's homer, his seventh of the season, keyed a three-run rally in the fourth that put New York on top 4-2. His RBI triple increased the advantage to 5-2 in the fifth.

Rico Brogna also knocked in a pair of runs with a homer and single for the Mets.

Giants 8, Cubs 4
Mike Benjamin had his second straight four-hit game and Mark Portugal pitched seven strong innings as San Francisco won at Chicago and handed Jaime Navarro his first loss in six decisions.

The Giants snapped a season-high four-game losing streak, while the Cubs have lost seven of eight, a stretch in which they have managed only 23 runs.

Navarro, whose previous loss came last August when he was with Milwaukee, allowed nine hits and five runs in 7 1/3 innings.

Portugal (4-1) allowed only three hits and one walk in seven innings. He has given up only six hits to Chicago in 14 2/3 innings this season.

Expos 11, Braves 2
Rookie Carlos Perez, who leads the National League with a 1.88 earned run average, allowed two runs and six hits in seven innings as Montreal routed Atlanta.

Tony Tarasco, David Segui and Sean Berry each drove in two runs as the Expos won their fourth straight, helping Perez improve his record to 6-1.

Atlanta starter Kent Mercker (3-3) gave up six runs in three-plus innings.

Cardinals 3, Padres 2
Brian Jordan's grounder drove in the winning run in the eighth inning, and Tom Urbani allowed just three hits and a run in seven innings, leading St. Louis over visiting San Diego.

Jordan's grounder drove in Tripp Cromer, who led off the eighth with a single and advanced to third on a one-out single by Todd Zeile. The Padres tried for a double play, but the speedy Jordan beat the relay throw as Cromer scored.

Tony Fossas (1-0), who got the final out in the top of the eighth inning, got the victory. Tom Henke pitched a perfect ninth to earn his 13th save in 13 attempts.

The Cardinals victory gave them their first three-game winning streak of the year.

Tribe's Martinez shuts out Orioles despite bum knee

By MIKE FLAM
Associated Press Writer
For Dennis Martinez, winning can dull any pain brought on by torn cartilage in his knee.

Despite doctors' warnings he might need arthroscopic surgery if his left knee acts up, winning appears to be the best rehabilitation for Martinez. He pitched his second shutout in three starts Tuesday night as the Indians routed the visiting Baltimore Orioles 11-0.

Martinez injured his knee while running before Cleveland's game in Toronto on May 28, and aggravated it a week later while tossing a shutout against the Blue Jays.

His latest victory gave him a 6-0 record and was the Indians' 10th in their last 11 games.

"I didn't feel anything in my knee tonight," Martinez said. "I didn't feel any pain. I'm just going to go one start at a time."

Jim Thome and Albert Belle backed Martinez with home runs and three RBIs, helping the Indians improve baseball's best record to 32-11 and extending the best start in team history before a record Jacobs Field crowd of 41,927.

It's the ninth time this year the Indians have reached double figures in runs.

"All we pitchers have to do is keep the game close, and they will break loose," Martinez said. "They've been doing that all year."

In other American League games, Chicago beat Oakland 7-6 in 10 innings, New York topped Detroit 10-4, Boston outscored Toronto 11-7, Milwaukee routed Texas 14-2, California beat Minnesota 7-2 and Kansas City nipped Seattle 3-1.

White Sox 7, Athletics 6
Oakland's comeback from a two-run deficit in the bottom of the ninth was ruined when Frank Thomas homered with one out in the top of the 10th.

Thomas, who doubled in a run in the first, hit his 11th homer of the season off Dave Liper (1-1).

Robin Ventura had a pair of solo homers for Chicago, which won on the road for only the fifth time in 20 games this season.

Brewers 14, Rangers 2
Texas' six-game winning streak ended in Milwaukee on the poor pitching of starter Kevin Gross (1-6), who allowed six earned runs on eight hits in just 4 1/3 innings. Gross leads the AL in runs allowed (52).

Ricky Bones (4-3), pitching for the first time since taking Kirby Puckett's line drive off his right kneecap Wednesday, allowed two hits over seven innings.

Fernando Vina had three singles and two RBIs, and Jose Valentin had three RBIs for the Brewers.

Yankees 10, Tigers 4
Whether inspired or frightened by the presence of owner George Steinbrenner sitting behind the dugout, visiting New York won for only the fifth time in 21 games.

Mike Stanley hit a grand slam and drove in a career-high six runs the day after manager Buck Showalter held a 15-minute, closed-door meeting following the Yankees' poorly played 6-1 loss to the Tigers.

Jack McDowell (2-4) snapped a career-worst string of eight straight starts without a victory, winning for the first time since his first start of the season, April 28 at Kansas City.

Red Sox 11, Blue Jays 7
Reggie Jefferson and John Valentin both homered and drove in four runs, but Boston outfielder Mike Greenwell spent the night in a Toronto hospital after injuring his neck crashing head first into the left field wall.

Greenwell, who also homered, was taken off the field in a medical vehicle in the seventh inning after he was injured chasing Roberto Alomar's triple.

Strawberry may join Yankees

DETROIT (AP) - Darryl Strawberry reportedly is headed for the New York Yankees, perhaps as early as today.

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner is expected to finalize a deal with Strawberry, the Record of Hackensack, N.J., reported in today's editions. Strawberry, 33, is serving a 60-day suspension from baseball for violating his aftercare program.

The suspension ends June 24, meaning he could play the next day.

Royals 3, Mariners 1
Vince Coleman extended his hitting streak to 17 to support Chris Haney (3-1), who allowed five hits in seven innings in Seattle.

Salomon Torres (0-3) made his second start for the Mariners since being acquired in a trade from San Francisco on May 21.

Angels 7, Twins 2
Rookie outfielder Garret Anderson hit his first major league home run in support of Shawn Boskie, who remained undefeated in Anaheim, Calif.

Wild hog trapping may be solution to pair of problems

Deputy lures animals with fruit-flavored gelatin; wants to give meat to food pantries

By MARK SMITH
Houston Chronicle
BASTROP, Texas - When Deputy Eddie Matthews found that area farmers were continually mending fences and guarding their crops against wild hogs that tear up ranch and farmland, he saw a way to help them and feed the hungry at the same time.

So now, on his days off from the Bastrop County Sheriff's Department, Matthews is busy setting traps for the marauding packs of feral hogs. He's got a butchery willing to process hundreds of pounds of pork for distribution to four area food banks.

"If you are able to help other people, you should extend your hand," said Matthews, 30. "Every problem has a solution, and I thought this would be a good way to make sure needy people received food while also helping the farmers."

Jewell Hodges, who runs the food pantry in this Central Texas town, says the extra food will come in handy as workers try to feed about 45 needy families each month.

"It certainly will be welcome, as long as it passes inspection," she said. "If it's edible food, especially meat, we can well use it. Right now, we have to squeeze out of our budget money sufficient to buy hamburger at times to support the needs of hungry families."

Bastrop County Sheriff Fred Hoskins said he believes Matthews' program represents a proactive, innovative approach for law enforcement officers.

Tornado research help asked

The University of Oklahoma's school of meteorology, is conducting a Tornado Debris Project in this area to trace debris that may have been lofted in the recent tornadoic storms that the area received.

The goal of this project would be to study debris transported long distances by tornadoic thunderstorms and to trace debris such as canceled checks, photographs with names on them, invoices, receipts, envelopes, etc., and inferring a trajectory for the debris from its starting and ending locations.

For the task the University is requesting the assistance of National Weather Service offices, emergency management personnel, law enforcement officials, and the public.

The tornado debris project was initiated in conjunction with the Verification of the Origins of Rotation in Tornadoes Experiment (VORTEX), a project conducted by the NOAA National Severe Storms Laboratory in partnership with researchers from several universities and other federal agencies.

The tornadoes which hit west Texas on June 2nd caused significant damage, and the storm may have lofted debris far downstream. In order to assist with the research, the University asks anyone to "keep an eye out" for reports of any "traceable" debris which may have been found.

If anyone comes across any reports, please contact the University of Oklahoma via the toll-free number 1-800-3DEBRIS. Or by writing Tornado Debris Project Sarkeys Energy Center Suite 1310 100 East Boyd Street Norman, Ok. 73019

Disaster funds offered Castro

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, has announced that farmers in Castro County are eligible to apply for low-interest emergency loans to recover from crop losses caused by drought conditions which have occurred in the area since 1994.

In addition, six other Texas counties have been named as contiguous counties and also are eligible for interest -- Deaf Smith, Hale, Lamb, Parmer, Randall and Swisher.

Gramm said farmers have eight months to apply for the loans to help cover part of their actual losses.

For those who cannot obtain credit through normal channels, the U.S. Farmers Home Administration will make loans available at below-market interest rates to family farmers.

The FmHA, which will supervise the loan program, is charged with providing aid to the farmers and ranchers to assist their economic recovery from natural disasters.

Local FmHA county offices can provide affected farmers with more information and assist in completing assistance applications.

"It's an extracurricular activity he has taken part in because he has a heart for people," Hoskins said. "It changes the public's perception of a public servant." The program is known as "Hogs for the Hungry." Matthews said he hopes it will spread throughout Texas and possibly the nation. Recent agricultural studies have found that more than 2 million feral hogs scavenge across 23 states. The hogs can be found in 185 of Texas' 254 counties.

Feral hogs can destroy or damage thousands of acres of crops, authorities said. The agricultural damage is greatest among crops of hay, small grains, corn and peanuts. Damage also is reported in crops of watermelon, soybean and cotton, along with orchards and seedling trees.

The swine also damage fences and water tanks, while transmitting diseases such as swine brucellosis and pseudorabies to livestock, especially sheep and goats.

"They can plow up an area better than a plow," Matthews said. "They can do some real damage."

Matthews said he first began trapping wild swine two years ago after droves of hogs "pigged out" on 800 pounds of his corn in three nights.

He stayed out all night trying to catch the animals but was unsuccessful. But with his landlord's help, Matthews built wire and steel traps and began to place them throughout his leased 160 acres.

Using berry-flavored Jell-O and corn as bait, Matthews said he has captured some 200 hogs.

"They really like cherry, strawberry and raspberry Jell-O," Matthews said. "It gives them the smell of wild berries. When they can't find roots and grub worms they enter the traps. I think the smell of berries gives them the feeling of being safe."

The wild hogs, Matthews said, are very intelligent and wary of being trapped. In an effort to fool the swine, he allows the critters a few evening feasts of corn and Jell-O before springing the trap. At night, Matthews said the hogs will run in packs of 50 to 100.

"When they are running to their favorite feeding places they race to get there first," Matthews said.

Due to their active jaunts, Matthews said the hogs are devoid of the fat found in domestic swine. "It's better than the pork you buy at the store," he said. "It's a whole lot leaner meat. I've barbecued the meat and it just fell off the bone."

The feral swine are believed to have been brought to the continental United States by Hernando DeSoto, a Spanish explorer in the early 16th century, according to a recent Texas Agricultural Extension Service report.

DeSoto brought 13 hogs from Cuba to Florida in 1549. The Cuban pigs are thought to be descendants of pigs brought to the New World by Columbus in his second voyage in 1493.

The wild swine are powerful and fierce. With tusks up to three inches long and full-grown boars weighing up to 400 pounds, the animals can be dangerous to trap and transport.

Although he has avoided injury, Matthews said he had a few "close calls" with the beasts known to charge dogs, even humans.

"I've seen them jump from ground level over a five-foot-high fence," Matthews said. "One did a broad jump over the trailer."

Matthews said the program hopes to distribute 600 to 800 pounds of pork to food banks in Bastrop, Elgin and Smithville during the middle part of June.

"I'm trying to do something to help others and the solution is right in front of you," Matthews said. "If I can help one person it will be a success."

Keeping an eye on Texas

Card cuts back on food stamp fraud

Grocers report that food sales increased $4.5 million in the Houston area with the introduction of the Lone Star card—a 'credit card' sized plastic card that replaces food stamps. Sales jumped because food stamps, which are paper coupons, were being traded illegally for non-food items. Unlike food stamps, the card—which will be available in 32 Metroplex and Gulf Coast counties June 1—cannot be trafficked illegally, and requires a personal identification number to purchase grocery items.

The Lone Star card will be used in these Texas counties as of June 1. It is scheduled to be implemented statewide in 1995.

Firm takes crystal-ball look at upcoming TV season

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Months before the launch of the fall TV season ... long before you even get a glimpse of the 34 new series ahead ... at least one seer has passed judgment on all that awaits you.

A man busily evaluating television for 15 years, Steve Sternberg is senior partner at the BJK&E Media Group, whose annual "Prime Time Fall Preview" claims an accuracy rate of 91 percent.

This report is more than a divining of what's hot, what's not. The Media Group, which buys advertising time for such clients as Taco Bell and American Airlines, is concerned instead with pinpointing the shows most likely to be watched by those viewers each client wants to reach with its commercials.

Behold the five series, all sitcoms, to which Sternberg assigns his highest grade, "Passing." (By this, he means shows expected to win their time periods with at least a 19 percent household share, and to hold on to at least 80 percent of their respective lead-in program's audience.) ABC's only such series is "Hudson Street," scheduled for Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. (all times Eastern). Tony Danza plays a divorced New Jersey detective sharing custody of his young son with his ex-wife. He strikes up a relationship with a brassy reporter who covers the police beat.

CBS will have not one, but three new "Passing" series, according to Sternberg. They include "Almost Perfect" (Sundays at 8:30 p.m.), with Nancy Travis and Kevin Kilner as two successful overachievers who accidentally meet and fall in love; "Can't Hurry Love" (Mondays at 8:30 p.m.), with Nancy McKeon as a placement coordinator at a New York City personnel agency; and "Bless This House" (Wednesdays at 8 p.m.), a domestic comedy with Andrew (formerly Dice) Clay and Cathy Moriarty at the top of their lungs.

NBC should score with "The Single Guy" (Thursdays at 8:30 p.m.), starring Jonathan Silverman as a bachelor whose married friends want to hook him up with the perfect mate. Here are a few more predictions from the BJK&E crystal ball:

-ABC, which won the 1994-95 season, will corral four nights (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday) to do it again, finishing next season with a razor-thin victory over NBC.

-NBC will win only Thursday, but big, with runner-up status every other night.

-This year's woebegone CBS will finish next season a much stronger third, separated from top-ranked ABC by only about one-half million households. Don't bet the baby's college fund on ABC's "Drew Carey Show," CBS' Montel Williams drama "Matt Waters," NBC's action drama "JAG" or Fox's sci-fi "Space," just to name a few. These are among the newcomers Sternberg brands "Doubtful."

How do Sternberg and his colleagues figure this stuff out? "It's not just guesswork or sorcery," he insists. Nor is it simply screening tapes and crunching numbers, although both those things are part of the process.

Lottery winners likely to use own numbers more than Quick Pick

By JUSTIN BACHMAN
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas - If you want to win the lottery, stick with those numbers from Aunt Ethel's birthday, your niece's baptism and the dog's age.

They have a better chance of winning a Lotto Texas jackpot than the Quick Pick numbers chosen by a computer, based on lottery records.

Of the 128 Lotto Texas jackpots claimed since the lottery began offering Quick Picks in May 1993, fewer than half - 53 - new millionaires let the machine choose their numbers.

The 75 others, including Joe Jones of Mansfield, the single largest winner in Lotto Texas history with $53.9 million, chose the numbers themselves.

"People pick lottery numbers with birthdays and other sentimental dates," said John Cook, an assistant mathematics professor at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

"Picking lottery numbers really has more to do with psychology than it does with mathematics. People play for fun, and if you're playing for fun, you might as well have the fun of picking your own numbers."

The popularity of Quick Picks soars whenever the jackpots grow large enough to motivate big-prize players, said lottery spokesman Steve Levine, explaining that novices and occasional players tend to let the computer choose their numbers.

"Sometimes we get as high as 70 or 80 percent (playing) with Quick Pick," he said.

When the pots are smaller, the regular players more often select their own numbers, Levine said.

The state's top lotto retailer, Tim Potter, said: "The people that really concentrate on it (picking), it's almost like a hobby to them." Potter owns Town and Country grocery in McAllen.

"They think they're actually predicting what the numbers will be. They think it's a kind of a skill."

However, mathematicians are quick to point out that all schemes devised by lottery fortune seekers are irrelevant to the twice-weekly drawings.

"You can't influence the choice of numbers for the state," said Daniel Weiner, an associate professor of statistics and probability at Boston University.

"I could concoct any scheme - use your son's birthday times three - and it's as stupid as any other. As long as you follow the rules of the lottery to pick your numbers, all setups are the same."

Not quite, according to 9-year-old Ashley Griffin of Dallas, who chose the six numbers her uncle, Johnny Brewster, used to win $12.8 million in the $51.5 million drawing May 31.

"I just do my own numbers," said Ashley, who is now called upon to select numbers for several of her cousins and for her mother. "I was just sitting around, thinking about buying a Charles Barkley T-shirt and a jersey, and they came to me," she said of the winning numbers.

In a telephone interview, Ashley advised lottery players to keep choosing their own numbers because, "My Mom did (Quick Pick) one time, and she didn't win anything."

Federal ammo seizure case comes unraveled

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - It turns out that federal authorities were shooting blanks last month when they announced the largest ammunition seizure in U.S. history.

They have agreed to give all 75 million supposedly smuggled rounds back to Eagle Exim, Inc. - and taxpayers will foot the bill. No evidence ever surfaced that the cache of 7.62mm bullets was snuck into the country from China disguised as legal Russian ammunition.

The May 3 seizure at Eagle Exim's warehouse in Santa Clara came in the wake of the Oklahoma City federal building bombing. The U.S. Customs Service and federal prosecutors hinted darkly about links to right-wing militia groups and promised "certain" arrests.

"It's the biggest ammunition seizure ever in the U.S.," Rollin Klink, head of Customs in San Francisco, crowed at the time. Indeed, it took nine or 10 tractor-trailer trucks to move the boxes of ammunition to storage.

But the case began to unravel when Eagle Exim filed a motion in federal court forcing the government to explain the seizure.

The papers showed the raid was based on information given by a confidential informant in Arizona a year before - but not acted on until after the Oklahoma City bombing, said Eagle Exim attorney William Nickerson.

Customs then said it would hold most of the ammo because it was imported after Eagle Exim's license expired, but it apparently found little evidence to back that claim.

Last week, the U.S. attorney's office told the court no criminal charges were anticipated, but it was considering a civil forfeiture action against Eagle Exim.

Over the weekend, however, federal authorities agreed to return all the ammunition within a few days in exchange for Eagle Exim's promise not to sue.

June is Dairy Month

Here's the Moos... Hi I'm Steak and This is my brother Elmo. We're the Moos Bros and we're here to set the record straight about Dairy Month. Every June, America expects every cow in the country to work overtime to fulfill the phenomenal demand for more milk. Well, our little heifers are tired of this and they're not going to take it anymore! It's time that some of the "other guys" in the Dairy Aisle contribute, too! Dairy month is more than milk - it's orange juice, it's biscuits, yogurt, dips, cheese, cultured products, and even ice cream and eggs! Let's see some chickens put in some long hours for a change!
